"The proposition made by the Corsican to England, has been rejected with contempt It was, that he would agree to make peace with her and all her allies, and that he would agree to her keeping all her conquests, provided he would agree on her part to withdraw all her troops from Spain, and acknowledge his brother Joseph as king of that country.

"The aid of every description already received from that inexhaustible island is beyond all calculation, and still more is destined for our use."

Zamora, January 4.

Most Excellent Sir—It is now 7 o'clock at night, and we have this instant received by a courier dispatched by the Junta of Zamora, a letter of which the following is an exact copy, viz.

We have just now, at half after five in the afternoon received certain advices that the French after a very severe engagement, are retreating, mostly without arms: and that those who were passing the bridge of Castro Gonzalo, have turned back with precipitation, with their provision waggons——The whole are in full retreat, and have of course been beaten—I am about leaving this place with a guide for San Estevan, where the scattered French troops are collecting. All which I communicate for the information of the Junta.

TIBURCIO FRANCOS.
Silvestre Martinez de Colma, Secy.

Copy of the advices which the Central Junta has given to this Government (of Cordova) on the 23d December, 1808.

"By expresses we are informed that the Marquis Romana with the English who were at Salamanca, forming together a body of 60 or 70,000 men, have begun their march for Madrid, and that the first divisions have reached Tordesillas—Intelligence highly gratifying under our present circumstances; as is also that of the landing of a considerable body of English foot and some cavalry at Lisbon—and of the immediate preparation of 6000 Portuguese who are to join our army."

Important and latest News from Spain.

Philadelphia, March 28.

Captain Domingo Brito, of the Spanish schooner Dolores, alias Ferdinand the VIIth arrived at this Port from Laguira, touched at Porto Rico, which place he left on the 9th of March—Capt. B. informs, that the day before he left Porto Rico, a Spanish Felucca had arrived in 26 days from Cadiz, which confirmed the news already published of the success of the Spanish arms, and of the affairs of the Patriots——that they had beaten the enemy in every action down to the date of his sailing—and this news was further confirmed by the official Gazettes which the said Felucca brought—The capt. further adds, that Gen. Mallena lost an arm and was mortally wounded in the breast, leaving on the field of battle, 16,000 men killed and wounded, and 14,000 prisoners.

Capt. B. further informs, that the Province of Caracas remained perfectly tranquil —and that a British frigate had arrived, having on board the Governor of Curracoa, Sir Jas. Cockburn, and suite—who was received with the greatest rejoicing and enthusiasm at Laguira; from whence he proceeded to Carracas on a visit to the Captain General.

[A respectable gentleman, who handed the preceding statement, says that, from his knowledge of Captain Brito, he believes it to be correct.]

SUMMARY TRANSLATIONS.

The Official Gazette of the Supreme Junta of Spain, dated Seville (to which they had again removed) the 29th Dec. gives the particulars of a severe engagement having taken place at SARRAGOSSA, between the French Army under Marshal Moncey, and the Spanish Patriots under General Palafox, on the 21st of that month.

It commenced at day light, upon the batteries on the heights surrounding the city, from which, after some smart resistance the Patriots finally retreated in good order. At mid-day, the attack was renewed by the French, upon the suburbs of the city, and some important Posts established there. Gen. Palafox ordered Brigadier Monso to maintain them; which he did with great courage and skill in an action lasting more than five hours. The colonel of Artillery, Velasco, also directed three batteries with great skill and terrible effect upon the enemy, who were obliged to fall back. They however afterwards brought up their reserve, and renewed the attack with almost incredible fury, and with all their force. At this time PALAFOX himself, sword in hand, accompanied by Lt. Gen. O'Neilly, and Major Gen. St. Marc, took the command, and rushed into the thickest of the battle; exercising his whole energy, skill and valor, so as to secure the victory. This was complete. The French lost the greater part of their force, and were entirely routed and dispersed, leaving before the batteries and walls more than 4000 killed, and as many wounded; among them the grenadiers who had fought with the greatest boldness.

The Spaniards recovered an immense booty which the French had taken in the country, besides military arms and horses; and, considering the victory the most complete which had happened during the war. The account here closes with the proud remark, that the valiant city of Sarragoss may now be considered as invincible, while there may remain an arm to defend—for that "every breath is a fortress, every house a castle; and every battery the witness of art, talents and valor!" A long list of Officers who had distinguished themselves in the battle is follows; and among the troops the Walloon guards are particularly noticed. Among the Officers lost were Don Adriano Cardon, Colonel of the Regiment of Cavalry of Fernando VII. by a musket shot—the Lieutenant Colonel Torrini, wounded—and two officers of the Artillery killed—the loss of the troops generally is not stated—though it must have been severe; but great exultations took place in consequence of the signal victory.—The French were afterwards followed by the volunteers and others of the Spanish troops, near Sarragoss, in which several skirmishes took place in favor of the Patriots.

Christiansted, (St. Croix,) Feby. 14.

We have been politely favored with the following Extract of a letter dated,

MARTINIQUE, Feb. 5.

The army landed in three divisions on the morning of the 30th Jan. without the smallest opposition. General Beckwith with the first division under Sir George Prevost, principally composed of the Halifax troops, disembarked at Cul de Sac Robert, to the northward of the Island: the York Rangers with Gen. Shipley at Ance d'Arlet to the southward for the attack of Pigeon Island; and General Maitland's division at Sainte Luce Bay to the Southeast.

Our division luckily has hitherto surmounted no other obstacles than those of the very deep and difficult roads we have passed through in a fatiguing march. The first division has been so fortunate as to have had two opportunities of distinguishing themselves, which they have not failed to make the most of, and though their loss has been considerable, they have gained much credit, and taught the enemy what kind of troops they have to deal with. On Wednesday the first of February, a part of General Hoghton's Brigade (the 7th regiment) and a flank battalion under Major Campbell, carried the heights of Surerier, in a very gallant style; the enemy contested the ground well, but could not stand the near approach of our troops, who drove them over the most difficult ground and made tremendous havoc among them. On the 2d, the same brigade made a further attack on some redoubts at the extremity of the ridge, covering the outworks of the fort; but though they marched with the most unparalelled coolness, even to the very muzzle of the enemies guns, and under a tremendous fire of grape and musketry (without even the assistance of a field piece) made good their way to the ditch, it was found impracticable to get into the redoubts, and our troops were obliged to be withdrawn and I am sorry to say with loss. The officers killed are captain Taylor of the 7th, and Sinclair of the 25th, with Major Maxwell of the 8th. Amongst the wounded are Col. Packenham, who is again shot through the neck, and Major Campbell in the arm; neither of whom however, are in danger. The enemy have suffered still more than we, their hospitals are quite full, and they have been obliged to put the rest of their wounded into a convent. The place near our head quarters is still strewed with their dead. The courage of our troops has never been more conspicuous, and it seems to have struck a damp into the enemy, for all the militia have disbanded themselves, and the troops of the line (not more than 1500 at most) are shut up in the fort, which alone now remains to them, for Pigeon Island surrendered yesterday, and fort Bourbon is invested on every side, and the bombardment will open as soon as the batteries can be constructed;—which, however, the continued rains we have, and the almost impracticable roads will render a task of length and labour.

PROCLAMATION.

By their Excellencies Lieut. Gen. George Beckwith, and Rear Admiral the Hon. A. Cochrane, Knight of the Order of the Bath Commanders of the Land and Sea Forces of His Britannic Majesty in the Windward Islands, &c.

Colonists and Inhabitants of Martinique.

His Majesty yielding to impertious circumstances returned you to the power which then governed France.

His Majesty, deceived in the hope, that the happiness which his government had created among you, would have been cultivated by your new masters, groaning at the unfortunate situation in which the events of war, or rather the want of respect due to property, have reduced your Colony.

But the term of your misfortunes is arrived—famine will disappear—the sources of your prosperity will be renewed—your ancient laws shall be restored to you, and the government, protector of your person and property, which ruled you under the British flag, shall be re-established in the Colony. It is with these intentions that his Majesty has confided to us the command of a formidable land and sea armament, to retake Martinique and to create again in this suffering colony —abundance and tranquility—the inseparable companions of a just and protecting government.

In consequence of these benevolent dispositions, we invite you, in the name of humanity, to submit yourselves immediately to the forces of his Majesty, who will not fail to punish the temerity of a fruitless resistance.

We order all civil and military commissaries, to immediately divest themselves of their functions.

To every inhabitant, of whatever class or condition he may be, to retire peaceably to his dwelling, and there maintain order.

We declare that every colonist or inhabitant, who shall be taken to arms, shall be treated as a prisoner of war.

That every free coloured man, taken in arms shall be transported, and that every slave taken in like manner, shall be subject to be tried by a military tribunal.

Ministers of Divine Worship!—Your Religion will be protected, and the properties and rights of the Church will be respected.

Given at head quarters, this 30th day of January, 1809.

GEORGE BECKWITH,
ALEX. COCHRANE.

By order of their Excellencies.
WM. H. WILBY,
JOHN S. TRACY, Secretaries.

Martinique Surrendered to the English.

A relief arrived at Newport, a few days ago, from Dominica, the captain of which asserts, that Fort Bourbon, after sustaining a dreadful bombardment from four British batteries, and suffering much from the want of water (the pipes that furnished a supply, having been cut by the besiegers) was compelled to surrender by capitulation.—Thus is the whole Island of Martinique in possession of the British.—Guadaloupe, it is said, was to be immediately invested. This Island is very strongly fortified, and, it is expected, will be obstinately defended.

Rumour.—The British Prize officer, who arrived in the Batavian, was put on board from the Comet frigate on the 16th January.—He informs, that about the 7th January, they spoke a cutter in the channel, and learned from her, that Admiral Mitchell had fallen in with the Toulon fleet, and had taken two ships of the line, and sunk two others.

The Montreal Courant says, "we noticed in our last paper, that one hundred hardy Americans had passed through town, going up to the Seigniory, which Mr. Fletcher had lately purchased of J. Papineau, Esq. upon the Grand River.—We now are assured that upwards of 160 have actually gone, and more daily expected, to the amount of Two hundred in all, with many yoke of large American oxen. Several Ship Carpenters of the first reputation, and considerable property are among the number of men gone up.

London Gazette Extraordinary, Jan. 24.

Admiralty Office, Jan. 24.

Copy of a letter from the Honorable Michael de Courcy, Rear Admiral of the White, to the Honorable William Wellesley Pole, dated on board His Majesty's ship Tonant, at Corunna, the 17th and 18th instant.

SIR, January 17, 1809.

Having it in design to detach the Coffack to England as soon as her boats shall cease to be essential to the embarkation of the troops, I seize a moment to acquaint you, for the information of the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, that the ships of war as per margin,† and transports, under the orders of Rear-Admiral Sir S. Hood and Commissioner Bowen, arrived at this anchorage from Vigo, on the 14th and 15th inst. the Alfred and Hindostan, with some transports were left at Vigo to receive a brigade of three thousand five hundred men, that had taken that route under the Generals Alton and Crawford,

In the vicinity of Corunna the enemy have pressed upon the British in great force. The embarkation of the sick, the cavalry and the stores went on. The night of the 16th was appointed for the general embarkation of the infantry; and, mean time, the enemy prepared for attack. At three P. M. an action commenced; the enemy, which had been posted on a lofty hill, endeavoring to force the British on another hill of inferior height, and nearer the town.

The enemy were driven back with great slaughter; but very sorry am I to add, that the British, though triumphant, have suffered severe losses. I am unable to communicate further particulars, than that Sir John Moore received a mortal wound of which he died at night; that Sir David lost an arm, that several officers & and many men have been killed and wounded; and that the ships of war have received all such of the latter as they could accommodate, the remainder being sent to transports.

The weather is now tempestuous and the difficulties of embarking great. All except the rear-guard are embarked; consisting, perhaps, at the present moment, of two thousand six hundred men. The enemy having brought cannon to a hill overhanging the beach, have forced a majority of the transports to out or slip. Embarkation being no longer practicable at the town, the boats have been ordered to a sandy beach near the light house, & and it is hoped that the greater part if not all will ſtill be embarked, the ſhips of war having dropped out to facilitate embarkation.

January 18.

The embarkation of the troops having occupied greater part of laſt night, it has not been in my power to detach the Coſſack before this day; and it is with ſatisfaction I am able to add, that in conſequence of the good order maintained by the troops, and the unwearied exertions of Commiſſioner Bowen, the Capts. and other officers of the navy, the agents as well as the boats' crews, many of whom were for two days without food and without repoſe, the army have been embarked to the laſt man, and the ſhips are now in the offing, preparatory to ſteering for England. The great body of the tranſports having loſt their anchors, ran to ſea without the troops they were ordered to receive, in conſequence of which there are ſome thouſands on board the ſhips of war.—Several tranſports, through miſmanagement, ran on ſhore. The ſeamen appeared to have abandoned them, two being brought out by the boats' crews of the men of war, two were burnt, and five were bilged.

I cannot conclude this haſty ſtatement without expreſſing my great obligations to Rear Admiral Sir Samuel Hood, whoſe eye was every where, and whoſe exertions were unremitted. I have the honor to be, &c. M. DE COURCY.

Hazy weather rendering the Coſſack obſcure, I detach the Gleaner with this diſpatch.

LONDON, Jan. 29.

We are happy to ſtate the arrival of the whole of the tranſports with our troops on board from Corunna. Sir David Baird is arrived at Portſmouth, and is on board the Ville de Paris. We are rejoiced to find that brave officer is in ſo favorable a ſtate that no doubts are now entertained of his recovery. Gen. Hope has reached town. Several French priſoners came home in the ſame ſhip with him among whom are ſome officers, who ſpeak in the higheſt terms of the courage of the Britiſh troops, and declare, that they were never before oppoſed to ſuch enemies. Report ſtates that a French officer of high rank fell in the battle of Corunna, and that he was ſuppoſed to be either Soult or Junot. The army of the latter is ſuppoſed to have joined Soult on the night before the battle, if ſo, they were afforded a ſecond opportunity of paying tribute to Britiſh valour.

The 10th, or Prince's regiment were under the painful neceſſity of ſhooting about 540 horſes in the courſe of the retreat, and previous to its embarkation.

General Blake's family are among the recent arrivals from Corunna, but the general is not with them.

The total loſs ſuſtained by the Britiſh army in Spain, from the moment they entered that country, till they finally evacuated it, it is reported, amounts to little more than 4000 men. The whole of the returns have not yet been accurately made out; but as far as they have been received, it is proved, that inſtead of 19,000, upwards of 25,000 embarked at Corunna, and 3,100 at Vigo. The following is an abſtract of the returns already received:

Embarked at Corunna.
Cavalry	2,877
Engineers, Artillery, Drivers, &c.	2,680
Infantry	19,532
Total, Sick included,	25,090
Embarked at Vigo.
General Crawford's brigade,	3,109
Grand Total,	28,199

Which, added to Gen. Mackenzie's brigade in Portugal, conſiſting of between 6 and 7,000 men, makes the grand total about 35,000 men.

An account has been received of the loſs of part of the baggage under the command of Sir John Moore. We underſtand that the muleters who had been hired to carry the baggage, took fright on the appearance of the French cavalry, cut the bands which kept the packages on the backs of their mules, dropped and left them to be picked up by friend or foe, while they ſcamp red off, and took ſhelter in their native mountains. It was not owing to treachery or theft, that the Britiſh owe their loſs; for thoſe muleteers are proverbial for their honeſty.

Government has given orders for the building of ſixty ſmall ſhips of war for a ſpecific object: thirty of which are to be built at the out ports, and the reſt at the dock yards at Deptford, and in the vicinity of London.

Seville gazettes have been received to the 18th inſt. theſe papers mention ſome ſucceſſes to the ſouth of Madrid, & that the diviſions of Infantado and de Courci were preparing to follow up the advantages. The manner in which the propoſitions of peace from Eufurth were rejected by this county ſeems to have been peculiarly acceptable to the feelings of the Central Junta. The government paper of the 11th January mentions that Don Pedro Cevallos has been appointed Ambaſſador extraordinary to this Court.

The public will be highly gratified to learn from the converſation that paſſed between the Lords Morpeth and Caſtlereagh on Friday evening in the Houſe of Commons, that his Majeſty has it in contemplation to beſtow ſome laſting mark of his favor on the family of the late lamented Sir John Moore.

Battle at Corunna, and particulars relating to Lieut. General Sir John Moore.

The public are naturally anxious to know as many particulars as poſſible reſpecting thoſe diſtinguiſhed characters which claim their attention, and the lamented fall of this eminent general muſt excite a more than uſual intereſt with regard to his military career.

Sir John Moore was born at Glaſgow and was the ſon of Doctor Moore then a phyſician in that city; but afterwards known to the world by numerous works of literature, which rank him high as a juſt and philoſophical obſerver of human life and manners, and an elegant & pleaſing writer. Doctor Moore travelled with the late Duke of Hamilton on the continent, and on this occaſion he was accompanied by his ſon, afterwards Sir J. Moore, who had thus an excellent opportunity of finiſhing his education, and acquiring a facility in the modern languages. Gen. Moore entered the ſervice early in life, and as he ſoon diſplayed his military talents, his riſe was rapid.

The following particulars as to his death, are given to the public on the authority of his moſt confidential attendants and friends.

"I met the general on the evening of the 19th inſt. as ſome ſoldiers were bringing him into Corunna, ſupported in a blanket with laſhes. He knew me immediately, although it was almoſt dark; ſqueezed me by the hand & ſaid do not leave me.—He ſpoke to the ſurgeons on their examing his wound but was in ſuch pain he could ſay but little. After ſome time he ſeemed very anxious to ſpeak to me, and at intervals expreſſed himſelf as follows: The firſt queſtion he aſked was 'are the French beaten?' which he repeated to all thoſe he knew as they entered the room. On being aſſured by all that the French were beaten, he exclaimed—'I hope the people of England will be ſatisfied. I hope my country will do me juſtice. You will ſee my friends as ſoon as you poſſibly can—tell them every thing—ſay to my mother'—(here his voice failed him) "Hope—Hope! I have much to ſay, but cannot get it out. Is Col. Graham and are all my Aides-de-Camp well? I have made my will and have remembered my ſervants. Colborne has my will and all my papers.'

"Maj. Colborne (his principal Aide-de-Camp) then came into the room—he ſpoke kindly to him, and then ſaid to me—'Remember go to —— and tell him it is my requeſt, and that I expect he will befriend Major Colborne—he has been long with me, and I know him moſt worthy of it.' He then aſked Maj. Colborne if the French were beaten; & on being told they were repulſed on every point, he ſaid, 'it was a great ſatisfaction, in his laſt moments, to know he had beat the French.'

"Is Gen. Paget in the room?"—On my telling him he was not, he ſaid, "Remember me to him."—

"I feel myſelf ſo ſtrong, I fear I ſhall be long dying; I am in great pain."

"He then thanked the doctors for their attention.

"Capts. Percy and Stanhope came into the room; he ſpoke kindly to both and aſked Percy if his Aides-de-Camp were well. He preſſed my hands cloſe to his body, and in a few minutes died without a ſtruggle.

"He ſaid to me, while the ſurgeons were examining his wound—'You know I have always wiſhed to die this way.' As far as I can recollect, this is every thing he ſaid, except aſking to be placed in an eaſier poſture."

Feb. 13. The diſtreſs of the inhabitants of Copenhagen was ſo great that many of them had been obliged to ſubſtitute horſe fleſh for butcher's meat; & its price for January and February was fixed at 4d and 5d per pound.

Feb. 16. The San Juſto has arrived at Cadiz from Vera Cruz with nine millions of dollars. This is the richeſt cargo that has been ſent from the Spaniſh ſettlements to the parent ſtate, and is one fifth of the total annual ſupply from thoſe countries in times of peace and proſperity. About ſeven millions belong to the government.—The reſt is private property, but we imagine the whole will, for the preſent, be applied by the Junta to the public uſe.

General Beresford is deſtined to Liſbon, to organize the Portugueſe levy: Major Gen. Hill is alſo going out with five regiments, deſtination unknown.

It is now currently reported, that Miniſters mean to adopt a mode of warfare, with regard to Spain, more conſiſtent, it is ſaid, with our inſular ſituation, naval preponderance, and military eſtabliſhment. This is to conſiſt in frequent and partial deſcents on the extenſive line of coaſt from Bayonne to Genoa.—Its expediency and advantages were frequently recommended by the great Lord Nelſon; and the alarm which Lord Cochrane kept up, ſome time ago on the French coaſt in the Mediterranean proves, if it be purſued on a large ſcale, that nothing can contribute more to harraſs and diſtract the enemy.—By theſe means the hopes of the Patriots will be conſtantly kept alive; whilſt the invaders will be tormented and worn out by toiſome marches.

Tranſlations from Spaniſh Papers.

Oloi, Jan. 20.—Our famous General Reding has given proofs of his ſkill and talents. In a ſhort time he collected an army of 30,000 men, which will ſoon be encamped before Barcelona. Claros and the Marquis of Lazun, will march towards that place with 8 or 10,000 men, to prevent the vandals from eſcaping towards the capital. Three Spaniards who eſcaped from Narbonne, aſſert that orders were iſſued in France for raiſing a new army of 500,000 men—but where will they get them?

Manreſa, Jan. 20.

They write from Hueſcaſe on the 2nd inſt. that the attacks on Sarragoſſa were continued; that in one of them the French were entirely routed in the Cantarilla of St. Joſeph; and their cavalry, which at the ſame time attacked the gate del Carmen, met with the ſame fate. If theſe attacks are thus continued, the French will ſoon be without an army before that place.—That from Hueſcas and the other places armed people ſallied forth by hundreds, and even from the convents there, 50 of the regulars and ſeculars went out to attack the French; finally it is ſaid, though not certain, that the French entered Saragoſſa by the gate of portillo, where thouſands of them were killed; and that 3000 who attacked the place of S. Pablo were all killed by our cavalry. And from Fraga they write, on the 25th, that Don Francisco de Palafox (brother of the General) on the night of the 25th Dec. laſt for the ſalvation of the country left Saragoſſa and embarged in a launch with a colonel, an engineer and aid, and went down the river, the banks of which were lined with enemies till he landed 3 leagues on this ſide of Gulza, whither he went on foot, on his way to Cuenca for the purpoſe of procuring auxiliaries, to ſuccour Saragoſſa, which is happily defended by his immortal brother. We arrived at Mequienza the 24th to fortify that place and aſſemble the armed inhabitants with which they expect to raiſe the ſiege of Saragoſſa, and chaſtiſe the Vandals of our times.

Carthagena, Feb. 3.

The 27th January, a diſpatch from the Marquis of Palacios arrived, who ſtated that the army of Andaluſia amounted to 21,000 infantry and 3000 very good cavalry, and that its advanced guard extended to Madridejos, 18 leagues from Madrid and 24 from Carolina.

The 28th January, a courier arrived from Salamanca, which he left 12 days before, who ſtated that there had been no action near that place, but that near Benevente there had been one, in which the French loſt from 14 to 16,000 men, and that the Spaniards continued to purſue the enemy. It was alſo mentioned at Salamanca, that a ſecond victory as glorious as the firſt had been obtained.

Malaga, Jan. 29.

Extract of a letter from Madrid.

The French army which was at Eſtremadura has returned part to Toledo and part here, much weakened.—The remnant of Soult's diviſion in the ſame condition, arrived here laſt night, the greater part without arms; they entered the city in the night, ſo that their miſerable condition might not be generally known. Several corps that were in Caſtile have met the ſame fate. In the vicinity of this place there are 30,000 men, (French) among which are 3000 cavalry.—Councils of war are held at every inſtant by the generals; and the troops are going towards Guaxalaxara and Aranjuez.

A ſecretary of the ambaſſador Cevallos, arrived at Cadiz, brings information that gen Cueſta had ſent a diſpatch, announcing that he had cut off 6000 men at the bridge of Alrez, and defeated the reſt of the French, who were returning to attack Eſtremadura; and that on that ſcore no fears need be entertained. Sen. Cavallos has publiſhed this for general information.

The following account of a revolution which broke out laſt November at Bantam, a Dutch ſettlement in the Eaſt Indies, was handed to the editor by a gentleman who arrived here in the Ship Illinois, from Batavia.

ORDER OF THE DAY.

Camp at Ceram, 4 miles above Bantam, November 24, 1808.

The 14th inſt. the Marſhal and Governor-General Daendels, received intelligence that on the 11th inſt. at Bantam, Governor Du Puy, Lieutenant Kohl, one corporal, and three Malay ſoldiers, had been murdered in a moſt barbarous manner, in the Fort of the Sultan, and that orders had been given to kill the commanding officer and the Europeans ſtationed at Anjah, but who however fortunately made their eſcape.—Immediately 300 Grenadiers, one company of Flying Artillery, 125 Cannoneers on foot, with two heavy howitzers, 300 Infantry, and 60 Cavalry were ordered to march thither, which, notwithſtanding the difficulties they had to encounter by bad roads, and the croſſing of deep lawns and rapid rivers, was effected in a very ſhort time. The Sultan, who had been unfaithful to his engagements, and countenanced the intereſts of the Dutch government, had been inſtigated to this malicious act by his firſt miniſter, whoſe removal from office the Marſhal had deviſed. On the 19th, the Marſhal ſummoned the deluded Prince to ſurrender, which he refuſed to do. On the 21ſt, Fort Diamond was ſurrounded by the military, and taken poſſeſſion of without reſiſtance.—The Sultan was found in his Palace by himſelf, with his wives and concubines, deſerted by his ſoldiers. The next day the Marſhal incorporated the kingdom of Bantam, with the other poſſeſſions belonging to his Majeſty the King of Holland, viz. the eaſtern part joined to the circumjacent country of Batavia; the Kampoon is to be forever ſeparated, and the remainder given to the brother of the former Sultan, who is to conſider himſelf as a ſubject of his majeſty the King of Holland, and to be under the controul of the new governor. The Sultan is at preſent arreſted, in the Fort of Speelwyk, from whence he will be tranſported and baniſhed to Amboyna. On the 24th the firſt Miniſter of the depoſed Sultan, who had been the cauſe of all the miſchief, was ſhot, and his body thrown into the river—whereupon the honor of the Dutch Government being ſufficiently revenged, the Marſhal proclaimed a general amnesty. The jewels, and moſt precious things are confiscated for the government, and ſhall either be tranſported to Batavia, or remain here for further orders.

The ſhip Friendſhip, Smith, from the Cape of Good Hope, is arrived at Falmouth. The Friendſhip ſailed from Table Bay on the 10th of January, leaving there his Majeſty's ſhips Powerful, Raiſonable, Culloden, Racehorſe, Sea Flower, and Camel, (ſtore ſhip) with the Phoenix and Weſford homeward bound Indiamen; alſo the ſhip Role Brook, from New South Wales, Botany Bay, where it appeared the inhabitants had diſpoſſeſſed Governor Blight of his authority, and appointed Mr. Johnſon acting governor. On board the Role were two gentlemen, Lieut. Symmonds, of the Navy, and a Mr. Blackſtone, charged with diſpatches from Mr. Johnſon—on the arrival of the Role at the Cape, they were both put under arreſt, by order of the governor there—Lieut. Symmonds was put on board the Powerful man of war, and Mr. Blackſtone confined on ſhore, and their papers taken from them. It was reported at the Cape, that the inhabitants of the Iſle of France and Bourbon (15,000 of whom were ſaid to have died for want of proviſions, owing to the ports being ſtrictly blockaded) had made ſome offers to the Britiſh government at the Cape, in conſequence of which a cutter had been diſpatched to England in January.

Extract of a letter from the Havana, dated March 25.

"From the exertions uſed there is great proſpect of order being again reſtored here. Irreparable injury has been done—ſome lives loſt. Not only the French have been plundered, but many Spaniards in Town and Country have ſhared the ſame fate. God knows where it would have ended had not energetic meaſures have been adopted.

...Many troops have been sent into the Country, headed by our first characters; and I repeat, I have no doubt tranquility will be again restored. At least 2 or 300 of the plunderers are in the prison, and forts, and on board the guard ship. Several of them will be hung & all found guilty will be punished. The traders of these villains assumed the name of Gen. Blake, Palafox, &c. Their intentions it seems, were to plunder not only the city but the whole country. They are thank God, stopped in their career, and many will meet the fate they have so well deserved.

A report from Trinidad received at Grenada states, that the British squadron in the West Indies, to the windward of Barbadoes, had fallen in with and captured twenty sail of transports and armed vessels laden with provisions, &c. for the relief of the French colonies. Three had escaped and went into Martinique where they have fallen into British protection as their flag was still kept flying as a decoy.

The French frigate Junon has been captured in the Sambero passage after a smart engagement with the British frigate Latona, and sloops Superieure and Hazard, and carried into Halifax.

We learn by Mr. Saltus, who came passenger in the Barque Gottenburgh, 14 days from the Havanna, that on the 20th of March the Governor of the Island of Cuba issued a proclamation, ordering all the French out of the Province in fifteen days. The next day the negroes rose & plundered almost all the French houses in the place, and committed some murders. The governor issued an order for the military to turn out, when the riot was quelled in the town; but in the country they committed devastation, and every French planter had to abandon his property to their mercy. The French inhabitants of Havanna to save their lives, were forced to take refuge on board the vessels in the harbour. Ev. Post.

New York, April 20.

Last evening arrived at this port the brig Cumberland, Capt. Meserve, in 44 days from Liverpool, which place the vessel left on the 6th of March, & Captain M. has politely favored the Editor of the Mercantile Advertiser with a file of the London Courier to the evening of the 3d of March, from which we have copied the following articles of intelligence.

Our London papers are nearly filled with the examination of the witnesses against the Duke of York.

LONDON, March 1.

A question was asked by Mr. Ponsonby in the House of Commons yesterday, whether the treaty which had been said to be on the eve of being concluded with Spain, had as yet been ratified?—& ad whether the report to which he had alluded on a former night, viz. that the force sent from Lisbon had been refused admission into Cadiz, was true or not?

Mr. Canning replied to the first question, that the ratification of the treaty had not been received; and to the second, that he could not give any precise answer, though he did not know of any such circumstance having taken place.

The gallant Sir David Baird is immediately to be elevated to the Peerage, with the title of Viscount.

Sir J. Moore's family are to have pensions.

Gen. Hope is to be made a Baronet, and get the first Red Ribbon.

Cork, Feb. 26.

The expedition to sail from this port, will, we understand, be under the command of Major General Beresford. It will consist of six regiments, their destination is not mentioned. The transports have not yet arrived for their embarkation.

The troops under Maj. General Sherbrooks still remain at the Cove, waiting for instructions to proceed on their destination.

Peace between Great Britain and Turkey. —Probability of War between Austria and France.

Dutch papers arrived this morning to the 28th ult. They contain very important intelligence—War between Austria and France is openly spoken of, & an article in the Leyden paper, of the 27th informs us of the measures which have been adopted by the Cabinet of Vienna, measures which can only have been adopted in the contemplation of an immediate war.

Peace has certainly been concluded between Turkey and Great Britain—It was signed by the Turkish Minister, Hakki Effendi, and Mr. Adair. A fresh insurrection had broken out at Constantinople, and the peace with England, is said, in an article from Vienna, to have been the immediate consequence of it.

The Russian Generals as soon as they were informed of the event, broke off all negociation with the Turks.

Peace with Turkey was signed on the 6th of January.

An article from Arragon, dated the 11th February, informs, that there are 40,000 men in arms defending Saragossa; that Junot is besieging it; that the works and trenches are pushed on to the gates of the town, and a bombardment kept up without intermission —— The enemy hope to force the place to surrender by famine more than by force of arms.

Linitz, Feb. 8. (by way of France.) The anxiety which the reports of a new war in Austria has occasioned, has been augmented by the late measures of the court of Vienna. It is certain that some light corps are to be formed, which will be sent to join the different regiments. Other military preparations are likewise making and magazines are forming in Bohemia and Austria. Mr. Fasbender, who in the late campaign was principal Commissary to the Austrian army, has again been appointed to that post, and the Count de Guinne, formerly adjutant general to the Archduke Charles has been appointed adjutant to the Emperor. The Archduke Ferdinand is to take the chief command of an Austrian army in Bohemia, if war should break out, and Count Bellegrade will command an army in Carinthia. In the mean time several Generals who commanded on the Turkish frontiers, have been recalled to Vienna—Many persons, however doubt whether the Archduke Charles approves the measures of the Court, and will be willing to enter into a new war In the conferences which have been held on the subject, and at which both that Prince, and the Archduke Ferdinand, the brother of the Empress were present; it is said, a new general levy was spoken of, and different measures proposed to render it agreeable to the people. Those most experienced in military affairs estimate the whole of our regular troops at 143,000 men; but it is not practicable to find a train of artillery sufficient for an army of 60,000 men —Leyden Courant, 27th Feb.

Vienna, Feb. 11.—A courier sent off by our Internuncio at Constantinople, M. Surmer, has brought intelligence to the government of a new insurrection of the Janisaries which has been very bloody, and by which the Porte was obliged to conclude a peace with England. The courier left Constantinople the 16th of January. The first consequence of this event has been that the Russian Generals have broken off all communication with the Turks.

The gazette contains the following article under the head of Turkey.

On the 5th January a peace was concluded between England and the Sublime Porte by the British Minister, Mr. Adair, and Hakki Effendi, in consequence of which all the ports in the Turkish Empire are open to the English ships. This important intelligence was immediately transmitted to the principal commercial towns in Europe, Asia and Africa, and a great change may be expected in the great towns of the Levant, and the price of most commodities.—Leyden Courant, Feb. 28.

The Brest fleet have put into Rochefort. The object of the Brest fleet was in the first instance, to surprize our squadron off Rochefort, consisting of four sail of the line, then to join the Rochefort, and proceed from thence to Ferrol, where, united to the Ferrol squadron, their combined force would have amounted to 20 sail of the line. It has been reported that on their passage to Rochefort, the Brest fleet called off l'Orient, & were joined by the squadron there—but this, we understand is not the fact; they made their way direct to Rochefort. The enemy had no sooner got into Basque Roads, than Admiral Stopford was joined by 3 sail of the line that had been blockading l'Orient.—The Admiral has now under him the Caesar, Donegal, Defiance, Triumph, Valiant, Revenge, and Theseus.—He would soon be joined by the division under Admiral Duckworth, which had been dispatched by Lord Gambier to cruize off Cape Finisterre, his Lordship very naturally supposing that the enemy would push for Ferrol. The Caledonia, his Lordship's ship, supplied Admiral Duckworth with all her provisions, which obliged her to return to Plymouth to procure a fresh supply. The frigates belonging to the Brest fleet were a good way behind the line of battle ships, and hence we were enabled to drive them under the batteries of the Sables d'Olonne. The Caesar was left keeping up a tremendous fire upon them, and it was hoped, would be able to effect their destruction. The Brest fleet was in Basque Roads, and expectations, as we stated yesterday, were entertained that their capture or destruction may be effected.

Our communication with Sweden and the Baltic is at length opened, and this morning 11 out of the 16 Gottenburgh mails due, arrived. On the 22d of December, 5 British and 3 Swedish ships of war, with a convoy of 18 merchant vessels sailed for England, part of which were lost by the ice, and part captured by the Danes—some of the prizes were also lost in the same way.

The Stockholm Gazette of Feb. 16th, states, that intelligence had been received from Shwerin, that Gen. Davoust had given notice to the French Consul in Rostock, that the embargo laid on 51 merchantmen lying in that port is raised.

In the House of Commons, on the 2d of March, Mr. Whitbread moved for an account of all the duties levied on exportation, in consequence of the acts of last session, subsequent to, and in pursuance of the system laid down in the orders of Council—ordered. The Hon. Gentleman then made some observations on the subject of the papers relative to America which had been laid on the table of the House not being printed. He thought the correspondence between Mr. Canning, Mr. Pinkney, Mr. Rose, and Madison, ought, from their importance, to have been in the hands of every member of parliament; but did not make any motion on the subject.

British loss.—General Stewart declared in the House of Commons on the 27th Jan. that as many supposed their loss amounted to 8 or 9,000. he arose to do away that impression, by stating that it did not exceed half that number. House of Lords, Thursday, Feb. 23.

On motion of Lord Auckland, an address was ordered to be presented to His Majesty, praying for copies of a letter from Mr. Secretary Canning, to Mr. Pinkney, in September last, and the answer of Mr. Pinkney.

House of Commons, Feb. 23, 1809.

"The Speaker acquainted the House that he had received a letter from his Royal Highness the Duke of York, which, with their permission he would read.

"The House having signified its assent, the Speaker read the letter, dated Horse Guards, 23d Feb. 1809, and addressed to him in his official character of Speaker, to the following effect.

"Sir,—"I have waited with the utmost anxiety till the committee appointed to enquire into my conduct as commander in chief came to the close of its examination. I trust that being now done, it will not be considered improper for me to address this letter to the House through you.——I have heard with the deepest concern, that in the course of this enquiry, my name has been coupled with transactions the most criminal and disgraceful; and I must ever regret and lament that I have been connected with persons who have exposed my character and honor to public investigation. With respect to these calumnies, as connected with the discharge of my official duties, I solemnly on my honor as a prince, assert my innocence—not only by denying any connivance with these transactions which have appeared in evidence at your bar —But even any knowledge, participation, or suspicion, that they existed at all. My consciousness of innocence leads me to hope that the House of Commons will not adopt, on the evidence they have heard, any proceedings prejudicial to my honor and character; but if, on such evidence, the House of Commons should think that my innocence is questionable, I claim the justice of not being condemned without trial; but to be allowed that which is allowed to every British subject —to be heard by evidence at the bar, as in other cases and in the ordinary administration of the Law.

(Signed) "FREDERICK."

One day later from London.—At a late hour this morning we received our regular files of London Papers and Lloyd's List by the Cumberland—the former down to the 4th March inclusive—the latter to the 3d. The following interesting articles are from the latest paper.

London, March 4.

Dutch papers have arrived to the first instant, and we find from them that the indication of hostilities between Austria and France grow stronger every day. While the war languishes in Spain, and is confined entirely to the siege of Saragossa, troops are marching in great haste to the Rhine, and the scene of active military movements has been transferred on a sudden from Spain to Germany. Divisions that were on their march to the Pyrenees have been countermanded, and ordered to proceed to the Rhine. Marshal Monsay who was employed before Saragossa has been directed to return to Paris; and general Oudinot has received a destination towards Augsburgh. At the same time the greatest activity is observable among the troops of Bavaria, Baden, Darmstadt, and Wertemburgh and their contingents are to be ready to march at an hour's notice.—The Palace of Strasberg is preparing for Bonaparte, and there are reports even of his having arrived at Augsburgh. But this we do not believe. He has demanded however, a categorical answer from the Court of Vienna, with respect to the object of its armaments, and has required as a proof of its pacific disposition, that its military force shall be reduced to 45,000 men, a requisition which will not of course be complied with. There is a circular letter from the Prince of Nassau Usingen to the States of the Confederation, in which, while he talks of warlike preparations, he expresses a hope that war may yet be avoided. Bonaparte has also, in calling upon the States for their contingents, stated that it will depend upon Austria whether they will be wanted or not. But he is convinced, we are persuaded, that war is inevitable; though it is his usual practice to affect to believe to the last moment that no power can have any hostile intention towards him—"Why are they going to war with me?"—was his hypocritical cry before the last war with Austria, and the subsequent cry with Prussia.

What will be the conduct of Russia? for of Prussia it were needless to speak, her military force being so small as to be of little weight in any scale into which it may be thrown.—Bonaparte has informed us that he and the Emperor Alexander are intimately united both for peace and for war.—No Cabinet is so remarkable for sudden changes of policy as the cabinet of Petersburgh: but we see little reason at present for supposing that Bonaparte has lost his influence over it. It will not however, be able to unite its whole force to the French, for the peace between Great Britain and Turkey, and the war with Sweden will occupy another portion. Russia too must keep a strong military force on her coast to oppose any attempts we may make. If Bonaparte stations a large army still in Spain that will operate in a favorable manner for Austria—if on the contrary he withdraws his army from Spain, and direct his whole attention towards Austria, Spain will have time to recruit her strength, to raise new levies, and to combine her resources.

There are no further accounts relative to the Brest fleet; though there was a rise last night of its having been taken. It is generally believed that the three French frigates which were driven under the batteries of the Sables d'Olonne, have been destroyed.

Dutroe, we are informed, left Vienna on his way to St. Petersburgh.

Eight towns have been entirely destroyed in Holland by the late inundations, and most of the inhabitants lost their lives.

Extract of a letter from Captain Boyes, of the ship Harmony, dated Carlscrona, Jan. 29

"There are about 60 sail in this port, bound to England. The last convoy sailed from hence on the 22d, with the Salcette frigate, but only nine of the vessels got out of the ice. I sailed on the 5th, under convoy of the Orion man of war, and three brig cutters, with about 70 sail.——The fleet was dispersed in all directions. The Orion brought up under Bornholm, with 14 sail only. Nearly half of the fleet are missing. I saw the Danes capture two of them. We have accounts here of 20 being captured, and four lost.—On the 14th I arrived here in company with about 14 sail; on the 16th, 17th, and 18th, about 20 more returned."

From off Rochefort.

"The Naiad frigate, of 30 guns, brings intelligence that the French squadron, of eight sail of the line, and two frigates, being seen on Friday morning, the 24th ult. at day light, standing into Basque Roads.

"The Naiad was ordered to proceed in quest of the Channel fleet, and communicate to Lord Gambier the situation of this squadron, and that of the enemy's course, &c. &c. and she bore up accordingly with a press of sail.

"By half past seven o'clock, the enemy's squadron hove to in Basque Roads, and before eight o'clock, five strange sail were seen bearing at N. N. W. who not answering the given signals, immediately announced to the Cæsar they were enemies: our squadron then bore up, and chased the enemy in the N. N. W. until the signal of recall was made by the Cæsar, then hauled our wind and stood towards our squadron.

"Soon after nine we found the strange ships to be three French frigates chased by his Majesty's ships Amelia and Dotterell gun brig. Made sail to N. and little after ten the enemy's ships took shelter under the batteries of Sable d'Olonne, where they were soon attacked by the Cæsar, Donegal, Defiance, Emerald, Amethyst, and Amelia.——A continual fire was kept up for near two hours, when it ceased. The Naiad at this time at a considerable distance, could not possibly know the result of the action; but no doubt can be entertained of their having taken or destroyed the enemy.——By one o'clock spoke the Alcmene, and pointed out the situation of the enemy. Before four the squadron under Captain Beresford's orders passed, consisting of four sail of the line, and the indefatigable Irigate. Captain Beresford gave information that the enemy's squadron had escaped from L'Orient, and concluded them to be the vessels just attacked. He then directed his course for Admiral Stopford's squadron, of which he was nearly in sight.

"On the following day the Naiad fell in with the Cuckoo schooner, and learnt that Sir John Duckworth's squadron could not be at any great distance, she therefore returned to the squadron to give the information received by the Naiad.

"Enemy's Force in Basque Roads.——One three decker, ten two deckers, one 50 gun ship, and four frigates.

"At Sable d'Olonne.—Three frigates.

"British force with Admiral Stopford.——Three sail of the line, four frigates and one brig.

"With Captain Beresford, and nearly in sight of Admiral Stopford—Four sail of the line, and one frigate.

Boston, April 22.

Last evening we received Halifax papers to the 11th inst. containing London dates to the 9th March; one day later than by the Albatross. The last papers give news from the Spanish Junta, in Seville to the 18th Feb. which is represented as highly favorable to the Spanish cause.

A fleet of British transports, having on board the troops which reduced Martinico, was spoken off St. Kitts, bound to St. Martin's; after the capture of which they were to proceed to Halifax—Gen. Prevost was on board—Capt. Spaulding of the William, arrived here yesterday, 7 days from Halifax, informs, that he spoke 12 leagues from that place a fleet of 19 sail of transports with troops from Martinique, bound in.

Washington City, April 20th, 1809.

Since the arrival of Mr. Oakley, at Washington, Mr. Smith, Secretary of State, and Mr. Erskine, the British Minister, have been, we understand, every day engaged in discussions, in relation to two points of difference between the United States and Great Britain, when, it seems, Mr. Erskine has been authorized to arrange in virtue of powers received from his government by the British sloop of war, now laying at Hampton, subject to his orders.—The following notes shew the happy result of these discussions.

(No. 1.) Mr. Erskine to Mr. Smith.

Washington, 17th April, 1809.

SIR—I have the honor to inform you that I have received his Majesty's command, to represent to the government of the United States, that his Majesty is animated by the most sincere desire for an adjustment of the differences, which have unhappily so long prevailed between the two countries, the recapitulation of which might have a tendency to impede, if not prevent an amicable understanding.

It having been represented to his Majesty's government, that the Congress of the United States, in their proceedings at the opening of the last session, had evinced an intention of passing certain laws which would place the relations of Great Britain and the United States upon an equal footing in all respects with the other belligerent powers, I have accordingly received his Majesty's commands, in the event of such laws taking place, to offer, on the part of his Majesty, an honorable reparation for the aggression committed by a British naval officer in the attack on the United States frigate Chesapeake.

Considering the act passed by the Congress of the United States on the first of March (usually termed the non intercourse act) as having produced a state of equality in the relations of the two belligerent powers with respect to the United States, I have to submit conformably to instructions for the consideration of the American Government, such terms of satisfaction and reparation as his Majesty is induced to believe will be accepted in the same spirit of conciliation, with they are proposed.

In addition to the prompt disavowal made by his Majesty, on being apprised of the unauthorised act, committed by his naval officer, whose recall, as a mark of the king's displeasure, from an highly important and honorable command, immediately ensued, his majesty is willing to restore the men forcibly taken out of the Chesapeake, and, if acceptable to the American government, to make a suitable provision for the unfortunate sufferers on that occasion.

I have the honor to be, &c.

D. M. ERSKINE.

Hon. R. Smith, Esq. Secretary of State, &c. &c,

(No. II.)

Department of State, April 17, 1809.

Sir,—I have laid before the President your note, in which you have in the name and by the order of his Britannic Majesty declared, that his Britannic Majesty is desirous of making an honorable reparation for the aggression committed by a British naval officer, in the attack on the United States frigate Chesapeake: that in addition to the prompt disavowal of the act, his Majesty as a mark of his displeasure, did immediately recall the offending officer from a highly important and honorable command; and that he is willing to restore the men forcibly taken out of the Chesapeake, & if acceptable to the American government, to make a suitable provision for the unfortunate sufferers on that occasion.

The government of the United States having, at all times, entertained a sincere desire for the adjustment of the differences, which have so long and so unhappily subsisted between the countries, the President cannot but receive with pleasure assurances that his Britannic Majesty is animated by the same disposition, and that he is ready, in conformity with this disposition, to make atonement for the insult and aggression committed by one of his naval officers in the attack on the United States frigate the Chesapeake.

As it appears, at the same time, that in making this offer, his Britannic Majesty derives a motive from the equality, now existing in the relations of the United States with the two belligerent powers, the President owes it to the occasion and to himself, to let it be understood, that this equality is a result incident to a state of things growing out of distinct considerations.

With this explanation, as requisite as it is frank, I am authorised to inform you that the President accepts the note delivered by you, in the name, and by the order of his Britannic Majesty, & will consider the same, with the engagement contained therein, when fulfilled, as a satisfaction for the insult and injury of which he has complained ——But I have it in express charge from the President to state, that while he forbears to insist on a further punishment of the offending officer, he is not the less sensible of the justice and utility of such an example, nor the less persuaded that it would best comport with what is due from his Britannic Majesty to his own honor.

I have the honor to be,
with the highest respect,
and consideration, Sir,
Your most obedient servant,
R. SMITH.

The Hon. David M. Erskine, Esq Envoy Extraordinary & Minister Plenipotentiary of His Britannic Majesty.

FROM THE LONDON GAZETTE.

At the Court of the Queen's palace, the 26th of April, 1809. Present the King's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

Whereas his Majesty, by his Order in Council of the 11th November, 1807, was pleased, for reasons assigned therein to order "that all the ports and places of France and her allies, or of any other country at war with his Majesty, and all other ports of places in Europe from which, although not at war with his Majesty, the British flag is excluded, and all ports or places in the colonies belonging to his Majesty's enemies should from henceforth be subject to the same restrictions in point of trade and navigation, as if the same were actually blockaded in the most strict and rigorous manner;" and also to prohibit "all trade in articles which are the produce or manufacture of the said countries or colonies:" And whereas his Majesty having been nevertheless desirous not to subject those countries which were in alliance or in amity with his Majesty to any greater inconvenience than was absolutely inseparable from carrying into effect his Majesty's just determination to counteract the designs of his enemies, did make certain exceptions and modifications expressed in the said Order of the 11th of November, and in certain subsequent Orders of the 25th November, declaratory of the aforesaid Order of the 11th November, and the 18th December, 1807, & the 30th of March, 1808.

And whereas in consequence of Divers events which have taken place since the date of the first mentioned Order affecting the relation between Great Britain and the territories of other powers, it is expedient the sundry parts and provisions of the said orders should be altered or revoked.

His Majesty is therefore pleased, by and with the advice of his Privy Council to revoke and annul the said several orders, except as hereinafter expressed, and so much of the said several Orders except as aforesaid, is hereby revoked accordingly.

And his Majesty is pleased, by and with the advice of his Privy Council, to order and it is hereby ordered, that all the ports and places, as far North as the river Ems, inclusively, under the government styling itself the Kingdom of Holland, and all ports and places under the government of France, together with the colonies, plantations and settlements in the possession of those governments respectively, and all ports and places in the Northern part of Italy, to be reckoned from the ports of Orbitello and Pesaro inclusively, shall continue and be subject to the the same restrictions, in point of trade and navigation, without any exception, as if the same were actually blockaded by his Majesty's naval force in the most strict and rigorous manner; and that every vessel trading from and to the said countries, colonies, plantations or settlements, together with all goods and merchandize, on board, shall be condemned as prize to the captors.

And his Majesty is further pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that this Order shall have effect from the day of the date thereof, with respect to any ship, together with its cargo, which may be captured subsequent to such day on any voyage which is and shall be rendered legal by this Order, although such voyage at the time of the commencement of the same was unlawful and prohibited under the said former Orders; & such ships upon being brought in shall be released accordingly; and with respect to all ships, together with their cargoes, which may be captured in any voyage which was permitted under the exceptions of the orders abovementioned, but which is not permitted according to the provisions of this Order, his Majesty is pleased to order, and it is hereby Ordered, that such ships and their cargoes, shall not be liable to condemnation, unless they shall have received actual notice of the present Orders before such capture or in default of such notice, until after the expiration of the like intervals from the date of this Order, as were allowed for constructive notice in the Orders of the 25th of November, 1807, and the 18th of May, 1808, at the several places and latitudes therein specified.

And the Right honorable the Lords commissioners of his Majesty's Treasury, his Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, and the judge of the High Court of Admiralty, and the Judges of the Courts of Vice Admiralty, are to give the necessary directions herein, as to them may respectively appertain. STEPHEN COTTERELL.

DECLARATION OF WAR, BY FRANCIS I. EMPEROR OF AUSTRIA

From the Vienna Gazette.

Vienna, April 12.

Before his Imperial Majesty left this capital, he was pleased to issue the following

PROCLAMATION.

"Francis I. By the Grace of God, Emperor of Austria &c.

"People of Austria!—I leave my Capital to join the brave defenders of the country, assembled on the frontiers for the protection of the state.

"For these three years past, I have made the utmost exertions to procure you, my beloved subjects, the blessings of a permanent peace. No sacrifice any ways consistent with your welfare, and with the independence of the state, however painful, have I spared to secure your tranquility and welfare, by a friendly understanding with the Emperor of the French.

"But all my endeavors proved fruitless. The Austrian monarchy was also to submit to the boundless ambition of the Emperor Napoleon; and in the same manner he strives to subdue Spain, insults the sacred Head of the Church, appropriates to himself the provinces of Italy, and parcels out the German dominions. Austria was to do homage to the great Empire, the formation of which he has loudly announced.

"I have adopted all necessary measures to assert the independence of the state. Not only have you answered my call, but your love for your native country has prompted you to anticipate it. Accept my cordial thanks; they will be repeated by my posterity and yours. Self-defence not invasion, was our aim. But the Conqueror will not allow the Sovereign of his people, strong in their mutual confidence, to possess sufficient means to oppose his ambitious views. He declared himself hostile to Austria, unless she should relinquish her measures of defence and prostrate herself disarmed at his feet. The disgraceful proposal was rejected, and now his hosts are advancing against us, arrayed for battle.

"I confide in God—in the valor of my armies, in the heroic conduct of my brother who leads them on to glory, in you my beloved people. Our exertions for this war are great; but such they must be in order to attain more securely the important end of self preservation.

"What you have hitherto done is the most unquestionable pledge of the powerful assistance which I am to receive from you. They who bear no arms will also share in the protection of their country. Unanimity, order, obedience, activity and confidence, constitute the real strength of a nation. You have evinced them, and to this alone it is owing, that we start with a fairer prospect of success, than we ever did.—Fortunate events will not unnerve your energy, disasterous occurrences, should any happen, shake your firm resolve. Perseverant valor overcomes all dangers, enhances every advantage, and supplies all losses. Our cause is just; Providence does not forsake those who do not forsake themselves.

"I depend on your love, your tried fidelity to your prince and country. Depend you on the paternal solicitude of your monarch who finds all his happiness in yours.

"FRANCIS."

London, April 30.

Our differences with America may now be considered as approaching an amicable adjustment. The New Orders in council, which appeared in last night's Gazette, it is said, has been approved by Mr. Pinckney, who considers it sufficient to satisfy his Government, at the same time that it will be as grevious to the enemy as former Orders were.

The full particulars of these changes in our commercial system in regard to the United States, are to appear the Gazette of Saturday next.

Mr. Pinckney, we understand, has expressed his approbation of the adoption of these measures by our government, and the Pacific is under sailing orders to convey the intelligence to America.

The public will naturally be anxious to know what has induced Ministers to adopt a line of conduct respecting America, so diametrically opposite to the policy hitherto maintained, nor can it be doubted that some explanation will be given in Parliament. We sincerely hope that it will be made apparent that none of the just rights of Britain have been conceded to America.

The business will perhaps receive some explanation at a meeting of the American committee, to be held this afternoon at the City of London Tavern.

Two vessels arrived at Yarmouth yesterday morning from Holland he captains of which state, that Bonaparte was endeavoring to enforce the conscription in Holland, and that in many places the people had manifested a disposition to resist it by force.

Attack on the French Fleet at Rochefort.

The result of the attack of the British fleet on the French in Basque Roads, Rochefort harbor, on the tenth of April, as stated in the official dispatches to the British Admiralty: "The entire ruin of the enemy's fleet for the present; three ships of the line, a fifty gun ship, the Ville de Varsovie, of 80 guns, the Tonnerre of 74, the Acquillon of 74, and the Calcutta of 56 and one frigate destroyed forever;—four more not yet out of danger of the same fate; and at any rate, should they escape utter demolition, will be incapable of service, as well as three more ships of the line and three frigates, without essential repairs; but some will in all probably be irreparable. Even the two which continued afloat, and retreated early up the river, cannot be uninjured; for some of their stores must have been thrown overboard to facilitate their retreat. The loss and destruction of stores in those which were more must have been considerable. They could not have got off but by taking out nearly the whole, and much must have been thrown overboard. The Calcutta was of very great value, being full of stores of every kind, intended, it is said for Martinique. The Tonnerre and Ville de Varsovie were new ships, the latter a very fine one admirably finished and equipped. All this has been accomplished in their own ports, in their very holds guarded on all sides by batteries & shoals, with inconsiderable loss of men to us, and with still less damage to our shipping. It has cost us 13 men killed, and about twice that number wounded."

The French fleet consisted of 10 sail of the line, 2 50 gun ship, and 4 frigates.

Letters by the Pacific mention that Col. Burr left London the 26th April, on his way to the north of Europe —They add, that his departure from Great Britain was in consequence of an order from the British Government.

Boston, June 7.

LATE FROM PORTUGAL.

An arrival from Lisbon has brought accounts to the 26th April,—At that time no information had been received of the advance of the French beyond Oporto.—That the English had received reinforcements which augmented their force to 25,000, which with 30,000 Portuguese troops, such as they were, had occupied the strong holds for a considerable distance from Lisbon, and the expectation of the letter writers was, that they would be able to resist and repel the attacks of the French. Vigo, as before reported, had been retaken by the Spaniards and English, and Oporto had been pillaged by the French.

Proclamation of the British General Wilson to the Spaniards.

Inhabitants of the Sierra! I am come to join you in the sacred cause which you have sworn to defend. My duty, my conscience and the love of glory, urge me to undertake any thing and to make every possible sacrifice for your interests. The alternate successes, naturally to be expected during so great a contest, I am positive, have not damped your ardor or depressed your patriotism. The evils which have been inflicted upon your countrymen by sanguinary gangs of lawless and barbarous vandals, only serve to kindle in your hearts a desire to avenge yourselves, and the outrages committed against God, your country and your captive king. The cause, which we support, is too interesting for us to abandon it. If you would conquer, you would bequeath to posterity the independence which you have inherited, and Spain would preserve her name and distinguished rank among the powers of Europe; but, if conquered Spain will no longer be a power. You shall be subjected to foreign laws; your industry will only serve to enrich the nations plundered by a perfidious Corsican; and your unhappy children doomed to a disgraceful servitude, shall be in his hands, the instruments of the ruin of other countries, the object of his ambition and covetousness.

Spain will shake off the infamous yoke, if she be firm and steady in her determination: the armies of one nation shall ever prove impotent against the population of another, if the latter be armed and united to defend its freedom and independance. What! are one hundred and twenty thousand Bandits, to subjugate ten millions of Spaniards?. No, Ah! if the Spaniards preferred the memory of a Gonzola of Cordova, of the conquerors of France, of a Francis I, and of so many other heroes who triumphed over many nations; and if they should but for one moment, on the conble forces with which the tyrant hopes to subdue Spain, they would soon be sensible, that it is not for the shrub to contend with the ilex, or for the soft grass to lord it over the hard oak.—The enemy of humanity wants to persuade you, that his black eagles are victorious in every quarter, and that England has abandoned Spain forever. All his victories will shortly be like those of Caylen and Arragon; and the King of England will keep his royal word, provided the Spaniards do not desert the sacred cause for which H. M. feels so lively an interest. All Europe expects every Spaniard to prepare for vengeance;——and so long as there is arms in his hands, he shall find an Englishman to stand by him, at all events in an honorable manner. Beloved Spaniards! let us fly to arms: the time of glory is close at hand. Vengeance, victory or death! let these be the consoling words which shall fire your souls.

(Signed) WILSON, Brigadier-gen.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

By the Spanish schooner Good Voyage, in 40 days from Liverpool, London papers have been received to the 13th of April, from which the following articles are copied.

Vigo has surrendered to the Anglo Spanish forces

No confirmation of the report that hostilities had commenced between France and Austria is given in these papers.

London, April 13.

Extract from a letter dated Stockholm, March 24, 8 P. M.

The King has this afternoon been removed under a strong escort from Dortmingholm to Gripsholm, a Palace about 45 English miles from Stockholm. He has hitherto been kept closely confined, and has not been permitted to see the Queen.

About 600 Cossacks, who had come over from Aland to Greslehamm, being a part of the army who had taken the former Island, were on their march to Stockholm, when they were met by a flag of truce in the name of Duke Charles, and an armistice was immidiately signed to wait the Emperor of Russias answer.

By two Gottenburgh mails which arrived last night, we have received intelligence from that place to the 21st inst. and from Stockholm to the 25th ult. The report of the rising of the Dalecarrians for the purpose of effecting the liberation of their dethroned and imprisoned Monarch, appears altogether unworthy of credit.——The unfortunate Gustavus has been transferred to a fortress fifteen leagues more remote from his capital, where he continues closely confined, and all intercourse between him and his Queen is carefully prevented. The Duke of Sudermania excercises the functions of royalty with uncontrouled power, and Adlerfparre, who first gave the signal for insurrection, is arrived at Stockholm with a division of the western army.—The inhabitants are stated to have conferred upon these troops every mark of approbation and regard.

Our port letters of this morning contain little of importance. We regret to learn that Sir Arthur Wellesley had not so late as yesterday embarked for Lisbon. The Surveillante frigate, which is to take him out, is said to have received counter orders.

At 11 o'clock this morning a Gazette extraordinary was published, containing official details of the surrender of Vigo to the gallant peasantry of Gallicia, and the complete reduction of the Island of Martinique. Vigo capitulated on the 27th of March. The garrison were allowed to march out of the forts with the honors of war to the places, where they surrendered themselves prisoners of war, and were to be conducted to an English port. They consisted of 46 officers, 968 inferior officers and privates fit for duty, 300 sick; total 1304 men. The captors found 447 horses, 62 carriages, covered waggons and carts; and the military chest, containing 117,153 francs in French specie.

To counteract this misfortune, we are informed that the Gallacians are again roused from their torpor, and are acting with such energy that the enemy can hardly maintain his footing in that province. —From other parts of the north, the accounts are not less favorable.—Dispatches has been received by our government, announcing that the port of Vigo has been taken by the united English and Spaniards, with 1500 prisoners, and a large quantity of stores.—In the South, no defpondency appears, either in the people or government. The Seville Gazette contains some spirited observations on the conduct of the French, and the present state of the campaign; and a calculation is made that not less than 163,000 of the enemy's troops have fallen victims to the sword, disease and fury of the people.

NEW-YORK, May 24.

The following from the Philadelphia True American of yesterday, is a more particular account of the capture of the French 74 Le Hautpoule, that what we have before published:—

By capt. Stevens, from St. Barts, we learn that the three French ships of war, laying at the Saints, when they pushed out, were pursued by the British ships laying there. The French ships out sailing the British, kept in sight, by the Pompey only, who coming up with the dullest of the French ships off Martinico, where the Frenchman gave her a broadside, which cut away most of the shrouds of the Pompey, and killed 7 men, after which they fought the Pompey one hour and a half, and would have got off if the British Admiral and several other ships had not hove in sight, when the Frenchman struck. She proves to be Le Hautpoule of 74 guns, said to be the ship in which Jerome Bonaparte made his escape, some time since, from the West Indies to the Chesapeake.—She was sent to St. Kitts, refitted, named and put to sea under the English flag. The other French ships made their escape. He also mentions that the British had taken a French government brig of 24 guns, called the Calibre, and sent her into St. Kitts.

The arrial of the ship Magdalen in the River Hooghly, was the subject of much congratulation at Calcutta, the was greeted as the harbinger of good news, and almost a general joy was diffused through the place, it being at first supposed that all differences were settled between England and America, and that a renewal of the usual intercourse with India had taken place; the suspension of which, even for a short time, had caused a great stagnation in some branches of the trade of Bengal.—When the real motive of the Magdalen's appearance was known, though nothing favorable or unfavorable could be inferred from her arrival, (she having sailed under a special licence from the American government) and notwithstanding the disappointment of the public expectation, she was received and treated as a vessel of the most friendly nation, every facility extended to her as formerly to American vessels, and placed on the same footing as their own ships.

From the British ships of war in India, every civility and politeness was experienced that could have been desired, particularly regarding the crew; in no instance was there an attempt to examine either the men or their protections.

There were three American sailors in Fort William, prisoners of war, who had been taken in October last, serving on board the French National Corvette La Jena; on application being made claiming them as Americans, the Governor General in Council gave an order for their delivery to captain Watkinson, commander of the Magdalen.

An Embargo was laid on at Calcutta, on the 7th of November by the Government, which was understood to be a permanent one during the war, excepting for the regular appointed convoys. French frigates and privateers had greatly distressed the trade of India, particularly in the Bay of Bengal.

A short time previous to the arrival of the Magdalen, the French Corvette La Jena, was taken off the Sandheads by H. B. M. frigate La Modeste, captain Elliot, after a long chase. This Corvette was the same vessel that last year, under the name of La Revenent, commanded by the noted Surcouf, had made so many valuable prizes in the Bay.—On account of her swift sailing, she had been put in requisition by the Governor of the Isle of France as a national vessel, and stationed off the Sandheads, where she had for some time eluded all the British cruizers, and intercepted many vessels entering the Hooghly. There had likewise been two small privateers in the Bay; and in the month of November, the French frigate Caroline, captured on the coast of Sumatra, an English sloop of war, and several merchant ships.——In the China sea there was an heavy privateer.

All the Danish ships that had been seized in the Hooghly, have finally been condemned by the Court of Admiralty, Bengal, together with their cargoes, as prizes to the captors, and in some cases as droits of Admiralty.

Two American ships had arrived on the coaſt of Sumatra, and were purchaſing pepper. The ſhip Atlantic, captain Barnum of New York, had arrived in January at Madraſs from Madeira, and was there loading for America.

PHILADELPHIA. Feb. 12.

Capt. Chatty reports that the city of St. Domingo, is now entirely evacuated by the British, and is left entirely under the command of the Spaniards. That American produce was very low there; and that, the Spaniards as well as the reft of the inhabitants of the Iſland, ſeemed rather in a quiet undiſturbed ſtate.

Yeſterday arrived ſhip Hannah, Clements, fifty days from Londonderry, with fifty or ſixty paſſengers; on her paſſage ſhe fell in with the Britiſh ſhip of war Atalanta, the Captain of which ordered a few of the young men on board his ſhip, to learn the uſe of artillery and ſmall arms.

LISBON, Oct. 13.

On the 19th inſt. a fleet of tranſports arrived from England, with artillery, ammunition and clothing, and about one thouſand troops, to join the broken regiments.

Lord Wellington is ſtill here, but we are in daily expectation of his joining the army.

A few nights ſince, one of the Ruſſian line of battle ſhips, a 74, that remained here on account of her not being able to go to England with the others took fire. After ſhe parted from her moorings, ſhe floated for ſome diſtance down the river, and excited conſidera-ble alarm for the ſafety of the ſhipping, ſhe was however towed on ſhore, and burnt without doing any damage. The people who were on board, were all got out, and we have no heard of any lives loſt. The ſcene exhibited by the flames ruſhing out of the port holes, and the three columns of fire extending to the top of her maſts, was grand beyond all deſcription. Several of her guns were ſaid with powder, and went off as the fire reached them.

ALTONA, Oct. 27.

Extract of a letter ... Paris, dated Oct. 18.

"We are aſſur... ...that the Emperor will remain at the caſt... ...f Fontainbleau until the middle of ... when he will depart for Spain and ... ...ortugal. The caſtle of Marrac, near ... ...ayonne, is already fitted up for the rec... ...tion of the Emperor.

"It is ſaid that ... guards, a part of whom have been on their march ſince the 15th of Oct, together with the corps of Marſhals Oudinot, Marmont, and the Duke of Abrantes, will go to Spain."

Peace between France and Auſtria, was ſigned on the 14th Oct. Bonaparte left Schoenbrunn on the 15th. The fortifications which ſurround Vienna are to be entirely razed. 100,000 men are ſaid to remain in Auſtria until a general peace. Moravia has been evacuated by the French, and occupied by the Auſtrians. The cloſing of the ports of Sweden was publickly announced in hand bills at Stockholm, dated 12th Oct. John Q. Adams and family have arrived at Elſineur. It appears, that in addition to his miſſion to Ruſſia, he is charged with a ſpecial miſſion to Copenhagen. In conſequence of the peace between Sweden and Ruſſia, the price of Tea at Copenhagen, ſuddenly fell from 21 to 17 marks. Mr. Adair, the Engliſh Miniſter at Conſtantinople, has demanded of the Ottoman Porte, a free paſſage to the Black Sea for England and her allies, which has been refuſed him: in conſequence of which, Mr. Adair was preparing to leave Conſtantinople.

Vienna, Oct. 24.

The Prince Schwartzenberg, our late Ambaſſador at St. Peterſburgh, is underſtood, is to proceed in the ſame character to Paris. It is alſo ſaid that Gen. Andreoſi will remain here in the character of French Ambaſſador.

The Emperor Francis is expected here on the 16th, but not to make any long ſtay. He is to proceed to Prague, where the palace has already been prepared for his reception.

It is rumoured that of the grand French army, 60,000 men are to be ſtationed partly in Gallicia, and partly in the Ukraine.

The corps of Marſhal Marmont began its march for Carniola on the 22d; Marſhal Oudinot's corps is going to Fr. Marſhal Maſſena's is expected to arrive here in a few days from Moravia. All the troops of the league of the Rhine have already began their march for their reſpective ſtates.

We are aſſured that the final departure of the French from this Capital is fixed for the fifteenth of next month, and that in 4 weeks from that date, they will evacuate the whole of the provinces remaining under the dominion of the Emperor of Auſtria. It is added, that they will occupy the ceded diſtricts with 80,000 men, and that two of the corps, now on their march will take routes contiguous to the northern and ſouthern frontiers of the Tyrol, to ſupport if neceſſary, the Bavarian troops which have already penetrated into that country.

New-York. December 20.

Capt. Bowditch, of the ſhip Eliza, politely favored us with London Papers of October 24 and 25, and a Liverpool paper of 26; which he had procured from the brig America, Capt. Salmon, ſpoken 21ſt Nov. in lat. 43. long 46, 23 days from Liverpool for Marblehead.

Paris dates are to the 16th of October. Amſterdam to the 19th.

It appears that the late accounts of the ſigning of a treaty peace between France and Auſtria, on the 3d of Oct. was untrue. But it is now aſſerted to have actually taken place at ſome ſubſequent date. Many diſtinguiſhed French Officers had returned from Germany, and Napoleon was daily expected at Fontainbleau. On the French coaſt oppoſite England, grand ſalutes were heard on the 21ſt, 22d & 23d of October. On the laſt day, the houſes at Dover, in England, were ſhaken by the concuſſion of the air. Theſe ſalutes were probably for the concluſion of peace, and for the return of Bonaparte to his capital.

A new draft has been made in France of 30,000 conſcripts, a part are taken from the liſt of 1810. It is probable they are to be employed in Spain; where Marſhal Soult has been appointed Major General. Laborde is appointed to the 4th corps, lately commanded by Soult.

"The Engliſhman," a London Sunday paper of the 12th of November, is ſaid to contain intelligence of the arrival of the King of Saxony at Fontainbleau; and of the deſtruction of a Fr. convoy, from Toulon to Barcelona. Of the convoy, it was ſaid, two ſhips of war 1 of them of 90 guns and the other of 84, were run aſhore, and blown up. The exploſion was heard at Nismes, 8 leagues diſtant, and the news was confirmed by way of Hamburgh and Amſterdam.

The ſame paper ſtates that a conſecration of Cardinals was ſpeedily to be held in Paris, for the double purpoſe (in the opinion of the Engliſh Editor) of conferring the papal dignity on Cardinal Feſch, and of divorcing the Emperor from his preſent wife, who, it was ſaid is to be ſucceeded by a daughter of the King of Saxony.

Died on the 5th Dec. laſt, in the town of Harriſon in the County of Weſt Cheſter, Peter John Follow, (commonly called French Peter) a native of Fl. When he firſt came to this town from Canada, with the neutral French, he was an old man, and he lived here 60 years. It is impoſſible exactly to aſcertain his age, but as he was at the battle of Ramilies in 1706, it is probable he was more than 120 years, and he uſed to ſay, he had ſerved in twelve campaigns. He retained his ſenſes to his laſt moments—his hearing was remarkable good and his ſight ſo acute that he could ſee a pin on the floor at ſome diſtance —He was never known to have any ſickneſs, and died by a natural decay of the bodily powers, occaſioned by extreme old age. He was never married and has been on the Town of Harriſon 26 years.

Extract of a letter from Liſbon, dated October 26.

"Lord Wellington leaves here tomorrow to join the Army.

"A ſerious affray took place laſt night at Belem;—ſome of the 1ſt Dragoons, drinking in a tavern, quarrelled amongſt themſelves.—The man of the houſe went out and called in the Portuguese police, who attacked the Dragoons and ſhot one of them dead. The Dragoons immediately drew their ſwords, killed 3 of the police and wounded ſeveral. One of the police placed himſelf behind a door where he expected ſome of the Dragoons would enter, but it happened to be his own officer that firſt came in.—The police man ran him through the heart, and he inſtantly expired.

A letter from Cadiz, dated Octr. 30, contains the following:

"The Marquis of Wellesley ſtill remains at Seville.

"The immortal Gerona has, we fear, fallen.

A letter from Seville, dated October 30, ſays—"What with threats from Cadiz, with plots in this city, and with open rebellion to the eſtabliſhed Council at Valencia, the government is completely paralized. Nothing is done either in commerce or in civil affairs, or even in military concerns, except ſending [illegible] and arrangements made for the [illegible] bullence."

Bonaparte, it is ſtated, has convened conclave of Cardinals at Paris, for the purpoſe as is rumoured, of placing Fesh at the head of the Roman Church.

Letters from Cadiz ſtate a prevailing opinion that the Supreme Junta will be diſſolved, and the Archbiſhop of Toledo declared Regent. The 28th was the day appointed for electing the new preſident of the Junta. It was ſuppoſed Marquis Wellesley would defer his return until the iſſue of this great political criſis was known.

November 14.

In the different offices of government, it was ſaid, yeſterday afternoon, that a merchant in this city, of the name of Hogham, had received a Moniteur, ſtating that ſix French line of battle ſhips had been deſtroyed in a late action in the Mediterranean, and four Engliſh. As the Moniteur, however, has not been ſent to his Majeſty's miniſters, which of courſe it would have been, had it contained that intelligence; we doubt whether any ſuch paper had been received. But we are not at all weakened in belief that an action has taken place, and a victory been gained. The article from Nismes, in the Rotterdam Courant of the 9th, is deciſive in our minds as to the fact of two ſhips of the line having been driven aſhore and blown up. But, we truſt that this is not the ſole loſs ſuſtained by the enemy—that theſe two ſhips will prove to have been the two which attempted to eſcape after the defeat of the French fleet, and were run aſhore to prevent their falling into our hands. And that leaſt we are led to indulge in with ſome confidence by other accounts which have been received, and which ſtate that the enemy loſt ſix ſail of the line in the action.—The Seville Daily of October 14, ſtates that there had been an obſtinate action on the coaſt of Marſeilles between the French fleet from Toulon and the Engliſh fleet under Lord Collingwood; that the loſs of the French were ſix ſhips, and that of the Engliſh four; but that the whole of the French convoy had been taken.—The ſame paper of the 24th ſtates, that the French convoy had been carried into Majorca.

Some letters from Caen of the 3d, mention the action in general terms, and ſay that the French were defeated, but give no particulars. If the French papers acknowledge the action, they will of courſe attempt to make a leſſ off againſt any loſs they have ſuſtained, by declaring that our loſs was nearly as great. After the victories of the 1ſt of June, of Aboukir and Trafalgar, they ſaid, in ſpeaking of that of Aboukir, that they had only ſhip blown up. With reſpect to the battle of Trafalgar, they actually publiſhed bulletins in different parts of France, claiming the victory, and aſſerting that we had loſt 10 or 12 ſail of the line. We perfectly well remember that ſome Britiſh ſeamen who were priſoners of war at the time in France, did not know the reſult of the battle till they returned home. Equally falſe was the account they publiſhed of the reſult of the battle of the 1ſt of June. There was ſomething ludicrous, [illegible] for they actually declare that part of their fleet (that which we ſhall either taken, ſunk, or deſtroyed) was left blockading the Britiſh fleet in Portſmouth harbour!

Yeſterday ſeveral Ladies, who have been inhumanly detained in France during the war, arrived in town, in conſequence of the order which has at length been given for the releaſe of the women. A Gentleman alſo contrived to make his eſcape, and came over in the ſame veſſel, an American——He left Paris on the 4th inſt. They all confirm the account of Bonaparte's epilepſy, and ſay that he continues at Fontainbleau for the purpoſe of recruiting his health. But his mind is as active as ever.—He is of a ſuſpicious, more rancorous than ever in his enmity to England. All the endeavour that has been made by the Britiſh Government to procure an exchange of priſoners, or the enlargement of thoſe detained at the commencement of the war, have failed.—They all ſpeak of the ſtate of wretchedneſs that prevails in the country. Univerſal complaints are heard of the fatal effects of his inſatiable ambition.

Letters from Cadiz of the 24th and 30th ult. ſtate, that the French were concentrating their forces in Madrid; and that the Spaniſh armies remain in the ſame poſitions as our former accounts ſtated.

We underſtand that the project of the appointment of the Cardinal of Toledo as Regent was negatived. After which the principle of the Executive Committee was agreed upon; and a ſpecific plan for the conduct of the Government propoſed, but this was alſo negatived. A ſecond plan was digeſted, and was to be taken into conſideration, but the fate of the propoſition we have not heard, though it was ſuppoſed that it would ſhare the fate of its predeceſſor.

FOREIGN OFFICE, Nov. 11.

A letter, of which the following is an extract, was this day received by Earl Bathurſt, his Majeſty's principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, from Lieutenant Colonel Carrol, dated [illegible] of the left, camp on the heights of [illegible] October 18, 1809.

Sir,

I have the honour to acquaint you that the army of Marſhal Ney, now commanded by General Marchand, advanced on the morning of yeſterday in force [illegible] 000 infantry and 1200 cavalry, with [illegible] pieces of artillery, to attack this army, which was moſt judiciouſly poſted on [illegible] heights.—The enemy divided his [illegible] into three columns, which advanced againſt the right, centre and left of our line; it ſoon became evident that the principal object of attack was to force and turn our left, it being the point in which our poſition was weakeſt.—The enemy at the commencement, gained ſome advantage of poſition on our left, in conſequence of the retreat of a ſmall party of cavalry, deſtined to cover the left of our line. This ſucceſs, however, was momentary, as the vanguard, led on by generals Menuzabal and Carrera, charged with the greateſt ſpirit [illegible] took at the point of the bayonet, 6 guns, of which the enemy poſſeſſed themſelves during the retreat of our cavalry. The vanguard in this charge committed great ſlaughter among the enemy, taking from them one 8 pounder gun, with a quantity of ammunition. After a long and obſtinate conteſt, the enemy unable to gain a foot of ground, began to give way in all points. About three o'clock in the afternoon the enemy betook to a precipitate and diſorderly flight.

The loſs of the enemy as far as we have been yet able to aſcertain, exceeded 1500 in killed and priſoners. The number of the wounded muſt be very conſiderable.—Our loſs has been comparatively very trifling, not exceeding 300; one Imperial Eagle; one eight pound braſs gun; 3 ammunition waggons; 12 drums, with 4 or 5000 ſtand of arms; an immenſe quantity of ball catridge; carts of proviſions, and knapſacks loaded with plunder fell into our hands. No language can do ſufficient juſtice to the gallant and intrepid conduct of the troops on this memorable day; it would be impoſſible to make any diſtinction in the zeal and ardour of the different corps, for all equally panted for conteſt. The vanguard and firſt diviſion, however, had the good fortune to occupy theſe points againſt which the enemy directed his principal efforts, and to add freſh laurels to the wreaths they had acquired in Lugo, St. Jago, and San Paye.—The ſteady intrepidity, diſplayed by the ſecond diviſion, through whoſe ranks the party of retreating cavalry paſſed, and the ſpirit and promptneſs with which it puſhed forward

MR. COBBETT.

The public have ſeldom been preſented with a better piece of biography than the life of Mr Cobbett, written by himſelf. It is at once vigorous and pleaſing, and characterized by that national eloquence, and nervous humour, which diſtinguiſh Mr. Cobbett above all the writers of the day. It is with great ſatisfaction we make the following extract:—

"With reſpect to my anceſtors (ſays Mr. C.) I ſhall go no further back than my grandfather, and for this plain reaſon, that I never heard talk of any prior to him. He was a day labourer; and I have heard my father ſay, that he worked for one farmer from the day of his marriage to that of his death, upwards of forty years. He died before I was born, but I have often ſlept beneath the ſame roof that had ſheltered him, and where his widow dwelt for ſeveral years after his death. It was a little thatched cottage, with a garden before the door. It had but two windows; a damſon-tree ſhaded one, and a clump of filberts the other.—Here I and my brothers went every Chriſtmas and Whitſuntide to ſpend a week or two, and torment the poor old woman with our noiſe and dilapidations. She uſed to give us milk and bread for breakfaſt, an apple pudding for our dinner, and a piece of bread and cheeſe for ſupper. Her fire was made of turf, cut from the neighbouring heath, and her evening light was a light dipped in greaſe.

He was honeſt, induſtrious, and frugal; it was not therefore wonderful, that he ſhould be ſituated in a good farm, and happy in a wife of his own rank, like him, beloved and reſpected.

"So much for my anceſtors from whom, if I derive no honor, I derive no ſhame.

"I had, (and I hope I yet have) three brothers; the eldeſt is a ſhop-keeper; the ſecond a farmer, and the youngeſt, if alive, is in the ſervice of the Hon. Eaſt India Company, a private ſoldier, perhaps, as I have been in the ſervice of the King. I was born on the 9th of March, 1766; the eldeſt age of my brothers, I have forgotten; but I remember having heard my mother ſay, that there was but three years and three quarters difference between the age of the eldeſt and that of the youngeſt.

"A father like ours, it will be readily ſuppoſed, did not ſuffer us to eat the bread of idleneſs. I did not remember the time when I did not earn my living. My firſt occupation was driving the ſmall birds from the turnip ſeed, and the rooks from the peaſe. When I firſt trudged a field, with my wooden bottle and my ſatchel ſwung over my ſhoulders, was badly able to climb the gates and ſtiles; and at the cloſe of the day, to reach home, was a talk of infinite difficulty. My next employment was weeding wheat, and leading a horſe at harrowing barley.—Hoeing peaſe followed, and hence I arrived at the honour of joining the reapers in harveſt, driving the team, and holding a plough. We were all of us ſtrong and [illegible] grew warm, and gave way [illegible] that could not fail to attract [illegible] attion. My father was worſted without doubt, as he had not an antagoniſt, a ſhrewd and ſenſible old Scotchman, for his ſuperior in political knowledge; but he pleaded before a partial and [illegible] judge; we thought there was but one wiſe man in the world, and that that one was our father. He who pleaded the cauſe of the Americans had an advantage with young minds; he had only to repreſent the King's troops as ſent to cut the throats of a people, our friends and relations, merely becauſe they would not ſubmit to oppreſſion; and his cauſe was gained. Speaking to the paſſions, is ever ſure to ſucceed on the uninformed.

"Men of integrity are generally pretty obſtinate, in adhering to an opinion once adopted. Whether it was owing to this, or to the weakneſs of Mr. Martin's arguments, I will not preſume to ſay; but he never could make a convert of my father; he continued an American, and ſo ſtaunch a one, that he would not have ſuffered his beſt friend to drink ſucceſs to the King's arms at his table. I cannot give the reader a better idea of his obſtinacy in this reſpect, and of the length to which this difference in ſentiment was carried in England, than by relating the following inſtance.

"My father uſed to take one of us with him every year, to the great hop fair at Weyhill. The fair was held at Old Michaelmas-tide, and the journey was, to us, a ſort of reward for the labours of the ſummer. It happened to be my turn to go thither, the very year that Long-Iſland was taken by the Britiſh. A great company of Hop merchants and farmers were juſt ſitting down to ſupper as the poſt arrived, bringing in the Extraordinary Gazette, which announced the victory. A hop-factor from London took the paper, placed his chair upon the table, and began to read with an audible voice. He was oppoſed, a diſpute enſued, and my father

Latest Foreign News.

LONDON, Nov. 18.

Upon that event of which our readers must be most anxious for the official information, we have some further information to add, tho' no dispatches are yet arrived from the Mediterranean, nor have any foreign papers been received containing any additional accounts.—A letter from Amsterdam was received yesterday, of the 9th, mentioning in general words, that "a Naval battle had been fought—we have not heard the particulars." Other letters from Holland mention the intelligence, but only in a general way. A gentleman however arrived yesterday, who left Rotterdam on the 10th inst. his statement is more circumstantial: he says—

"That a few days previous to his departure from Holland, he had been favored with the perusal of a letter from Cette (about 5 leagues from Montpellier) written by a merchant there, to another in Rotterdam, in which it was observed that the French fleet from Toulon were pursued and overtaken by the British; that two of the French line of battle ships had run on shore, and were afterwards burnt by their crews to avoid being taken—that five ships of the line, three three frigates, were overtaken and destroyed by the British squadron." This account was, in the letter alluded to, said to be derived from the commandant of a frigate.

All these statements give more and more confidence to our belief that another brilliant victory has been gained by our naval arms.—That the official accounts have not been received from Lord Collingwood, is to be accounted for from the prevalence of contrary winds till within a day or two.—It will be recollected how long we were before we received the official intelligence of the battle of the Nile.

In the mean time it may not be unacceptable to recapitulate shortly the authorities on which the action rests.—The first was the authority of a gentleman who left Rotterdam the 7th (see the Courier of the 11th) and who said, "that two of the most respectable houses in that city had received letters from their correspondents at Paris, which mention that Lord Collingwood had intercepted a large convoy of military stores and provisions that was proceeding from Toulon to Barcelona, the whole of which he had captured.——Of the ships of war, under whose protection it was, an 80 and a 74 gun ship were driven on shore, where they were burned by their crews to prevent them from falling into their hand. A frigate was also driven ashore, which to all appearance must be lost."

The second authority was that of the Rotterdam Courant, which published the article from Nismes——

"The day before yesterday, between ten and eleven o'clock at night, there was felt in this place a concussion, followed by a very loud and sharp report. This was heard twice, with an interval of about half an hour between each report. This cause was at first thought to be an earthquake; but as the sound proceeded from the coast, (for it was a dead calm and the little wind there was, came from the S. or S. W.) and several French and English vessels had been seen upon the coast, between Cette and Aigues-mortes, some persons ascribed this phenomenon to the explosion of a great quantity of gunpowder.—The conjecture in his day confirmed by intelligence, that two vessels had gone ashore near Avesquimeres' had been set on fire and blown up at the time above mentioned. It is remarkable that the explosion should have been so distinctly heard at Nismes, considering that it is ten leagues from their coast. We are in anxious expectation of the particulars of this event."

On the same day on which the Rotterdam Courant of the 9th was received, letters arrived at Caen, mentioning the action in general terms. It will be recollected, that two cartels which sailed for Morlaix, and returned on the 28th, were refused leave to come near the shore, or to land for refreshments. It may be that the enemy did not wish us to obtain information with respect to the action.

The letter from Cette to a house in Rotterdam which we have alluded to in the commencement of our article, mentions a frigate to have got into Cette after the action. The Nismes article, our readers will observe, informed us that several French and English vessels (the two fleets) had been seen between Cette and Aigues-mortes.

To the above recapitulation, we add the following article from a German paper. It does not certainly bring down the intelligence to the date of the battle; but it states two material facts; the sailing of the Toulon fleet, and the amount of its force:

"From Switzerland, October 21.

A traveller from Toulon has arrived at Lausanne—he assures us that he saw the French fleet sail from that port—it consisted of 17 sail of the line of different rates, and many transports."

ROYAL DECREE.

Don Ferdinand VII. by the Grace of God, King of Spain, &c. &c. and in his name, the Supreme Central Governing Junta of Spain and the Indies, to my Councellors of War, Viceroys, and Captains General of my Armies and provinces, and all other Officers of my army and Navy, Intendants, Governors, and Alcaldes of Towns and Fortresses, and other persons, of whatever chis, estate, or condition they may be in all the Cities, Towns and Villages of these my Kingdoms of Spain and the Indies, to whom the contents of this my Royal Decree may seem, be it known, that on the 26th of September, I have sent to the President of my Supreme Council of War, the following Decree:

Spain, elevated in one day to the summit of glory, which her valour and magnanimity acquired her, cannot now, without compromising her honour, observe much longer with indifference the aggravated and hostile acts of the Danish Government, for which that Government cannot plead in justification or excuse to the Court of Spain, the loss of liberty, and the oppression suffered on the part of France.

One of the means by which the French Government took advantage to forward its designs was to send from Spain a part of the Spanish army, first to Hamburg, and there to Denmark, in which it was evident to the Sovereign of that kingdom, and to the French themselves, in the way in which they were engaged, that the services which all Europe has seen (and which were to have been expected from the discipline and valour of the Spanish troops) and which were performed with so much glory, became an injury to themselves, of which the loss of so many men in distant regions is a manifest proof.

The moment that part of the Spanish army which was in Denmark, got intelligence of the noble resolution of their compatriots throwing off the yoke and declaring war against France, they adopted the noble plan, examples of which are very rare in history, and abandoned Denmark, embarking themselves to unite with their fellow citizens in their own country; to fly to succour their brethern, fearless of danger, and to partake in the glory which the others had acquired—a memorable instance of the unanimity and cordiality of sentiment which reigned among Spaniards, even when divided by so immense a distance. The Marquis of Romana, who commanded that corps, not doubting of the valour, the constancy, and patriotism of his soldiers, assisted by the zeal of the officers and the common sentiment, resolved to withdraw with the greater part of his troops, re-uniting them in the island of Langeland, from which they were to embark for Spain, by means of the efficacious assistance which was tendered them by the English Navy stationed in those seas.

The delicate proceedings of the Marquis of Romana, and his care in avoiding every thing which could be considered as an act of hostility towards the Government of Denmark, and in maintaining, on his part, the good harmony which has subsisted between that Court and his own, declined the indispensible seizure of some Danish vessels to carry his troops to the fortress of Nyburg, which might have protected their escape, and he requested the English Admiral to carry them across.

If Denmark had remained neutral during these events, and had not opposed their flight, nor used force to retain that portion of troops, Spain, constant in her system of delicacy and scrupulousness, would not now have had recourse to strong measures towards Denmark, nor would have broken the ties of good harmony and amity which have existed for time immemorial between the two nations, but the succeeding events fully prove the active part which the King of Denmark, whether spontaneously, or by force, has taken, and continues to take, in the war between Spain and France.

Denmark opposed the retreat of the Spanish troops from her territories, and if she did not succeed in detaining them, it ought to be attributed more to the bad means taken to oppose them, or the exertions of the Spanish troops, than to the will of the Danish Court, which adheres in its system of coalition with France, and blindly obeys the orders which are dictated to it by the Emperor of France.

Our clear proof of this is the refusal to receive a Negociator from Spain in Copenhagen, and the declaration of Count Bernstorf, that circumstances did not permit him to maintain any correspondence with Mr. Shaw. D. Edmund Bourke, the Minister of Denmark was at that time tranquil and respected in Madrid, and only departed from that capital, abandoning his employments, to follow the French, in the month of July, 1808; which proves, by the most obvious evidence, his attachments to France, and his renouncing all correspondence with Spain.

Denmark yielded their naval and land force to France; their fortresses serve them as a wall, and an asylum! the Spanish vessels cannot freely navigate their seas, & much less, enter their ports to trade with them, nor even have them as an asylum against tempests, and a portion of Spaniards are detained in their forts as prisoners; and in a word, Denmark is, without a formal declaration, at war with Spain. What more can one power do than declare war to another, when the judges her enemy? Spain is convinced that Denmark, neither for interest or friendship, nor for any motives, enters cheerfully into this contention. Spain is convinced that Denmark being Governed by the force of influence of France, cannot throw off the yoke which she has fixed on her—a yoke as hard and arbitrary, as if she had been a conquered nation; and that if Denmark was free, she would not act hostilely against a nation of which she had no complaint, but on the contrary, many motives to cultivate a good understanding.

But Spain must answer to Europe and all the world, for her conduct. It appears that she ought to have no consideration with a nation of whom she has received so many injuries, having committed acts of hostility against the individuals of the nation, against their commerce, and navigation. Spain consulting her generosity, waited a year that Denmark might decide more conformable to her interests and duty—and Spain consulting her dignity, cannot delay any longer from taking a step which she is compelled to by her honour, decorum and greatness.

Whether Denmark considers herself independent and with the faculty of acting freely or whether Denmark is oppressed and subject to the will of Napoleon—Denmark is no longer in peace with Spain——Spain declares war to her, in the first place, as a power by whom she feels herself injured, and secondly she does so as to a province of France. Denmark is responsible to God, the world and humanity, for the blood, which in this contest, will be split—likewise responsible for the losses and damages which will take place, and for the toil of the Spaniards who loosely remain in her territory. Spain, and her government, in the name of the beloved sovereign, Ferdinand the 7th, perfidiously detained in France, declares that she has ceased all communication with Denmark, and that the ties of friendship which united them, gives liberty and authorizes the Spanish troops, vessels of war and private vessels to attack the Danish forces wherever they may be found, to take their vessels in every place, revenge their received insults, and not to cease hostilities until a mutual agreement has taken place between the two powers, by treaty, in which shall be stipulated the conditions of peace, and put an end to the war which Spain solemnly declares to the world she gave no cause for, but rather endeavored to avoid. And for the evils resulting the aggressor is responsible, as no injustice was occasion to the misunderstanding which has taken place. Let it be so understood in the council and chamber of Castile, for the convenient effects.

President.

Royal Palace of Alcazar of Seville, the 26th September, 1809.

To the Senior of the Supreme Royal Council.

LONDON, Nov. 27.

It seems to be expected by Bonaparte that America will be drawn within the vortex of his policy against this country, or will be so led the continental system, the system by which the continent is to be ruined, in the hopes that the British empire may also be ruined. Gen. Armstrong, who was to have left France in the beginning of October, but who remains still at Paris, is said to have been among the first to carry to Fontainbleau the homage of his congratulations at the successful issue of his contest against Austria.—The General was most favorably received—he was honored with a private conference, and a vessel was immediately ordered to be got ready to carry dispatches to the American Government. By some it is said that the French government has presented to G. Armstrong the project of a treaty between the two countries—by others it is asserted, that the invitation, made to America is, to form an alliance with France, Russia, Sweden and Denmark, to be called, if she accedes to it, the Quintuple Alliance, for the purpose of attchieving what Bonaparte styles "the freedom of the seas."—The expectation that she will accede to it has been for some time strongly circulated at Paris, and indeed it should seem as if the negotiation between the American Government and M. Champagny had been renewed before Bonapartes, return to Paris. However that may be, it is certain that the expectation to which we have alluded, has been held out in publications known to be official. About a week since, we selected a passage on the subject, from a work under the direction of the Senator Neufchateau. As the passage is now, from recent intelligence received from Paris, become of more interest, we republish it.

"In fact, the peace with Russia is but the happy prelude to that which is about to unite all the northern flags, like a fasces, against that flag which pretends to keep them all in a state of humiliation. It is beyond a doubt that Sweden will treat with Denmark, with Prussia, and obtain from France oblivion of the past. On their side, the United States approximate as much as possible the North, by bringing as a first guarantee of their amicable dispositions, the resentment which has been produced by the conduct of England towards them. Their ambassador to Russia is arrived at Copenhagen. The Americans do more—they have rejected the British minister, Mr. Jackson.

"Every thing induces us then to believe that by supporting nobly the contest in which they are engaged by honor and well understood interest, the Americans will not lose sight of the memorable words addressed to them by his majesty the emperor of the French, through the medium of his minister for Foreign affairs—that the intentions & motives of that monarch will be judged, as well as the acts of which he makes mention; and that conformably to the wise advice & useful encouragement contained in it, the English will soon find in the North of the two hemispheres, a long chain, by which their vessels will be stopped, and their pride reduced."

Salem, January 2.

The Belle Savage, Captain Jones, from Cadiz the 19th of November, put into this port on Sunday, being bound to Boston. We did not have an opportunity of seeing the captain.—We understand that he was but a short time at the place, and had but little opportunity to obtain intelligence respecting the public affairs of Spain. A person who conversed with him informs us that it was among the reports there, that Bonaparte had arrived at Bayonne—and that a very powerful force was on its way with him to Spain; that large reinforcements had arrived by another route, and that the Marquis Wellesley had gone to Madrid.—We do not learn the object of the Marquis's visit; it has been some time suggested, in the London papers, that through him some advances had been made towards a negociation for peace; perhaps this circumstance may be considered as a corroboration of it; or his purpose may be to negociate terms for the Spanish patriots, in case of the conquest of the Kingdom. We further understand, that captain J. represents the patriot cause as very feebly supported at Madrid, or at least the people divided for and against the French; that the fall of the country appeared inevitable; that the Supreme Junta, though not dissolved, was reduced to three members; that the Spanish ships of war in port were unprepared for sea, and that the Spaniards were determined, if the French got possession of Cadiz, that the English should not carry away their fleet.

It may be remarked that the reports from Cadiz have continually been of a very uncertain and contradictory nature. According to the present appearances, however, there is little room for hope to the cause of the patriots.

The Archbishop of Mexico having been appointed Viceroy of New Spain, has declared to the Supreme Central Junta, in his answer dated Mexico, July 17. 1809, that he cedes all his income as Viceroy to the Junta, to be employed for the benefit of his Majesty, Ferdinand VII.—N. Y. Spectator.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States.

The act authorizing a detachment of one hundred thousand men from the militia, will expire on the 30th of March next. Its early revival is recommended in order that timely steps may be taken for arrangements such as the act contemplated.

Without interfering with the modifications rendered necessary by the defects or the inefficacy of the laws restrictive of commerce and navigation, or with the policy of disallowing to foreign armed vessels the use of our waters, it falls within my duty to recommend also, that in addition to the precautionary measures authorized by that act, and to the regular troops for completing the legal establishment of which enlistments are renewed, every necessary provision may be made for a volunteer force of twenty thousand men, to be enlisted for a short period, to be held in a state of organization and readiness for actual service, at the shortest warning.

I submit to the consideration of Congress, moreover the expediency of such a classification and organization of the militia, as will best insure prompt and successful aid from that source adequate to energies which may call for them.

It will rest with them also, to determine how far further provisions may be expedient, for putting into actual service, if necessary, any part of the naval armament not now employed.

At a period presenting features in the conduct of foreign powers towards the United States, which impose on them the necessity of precautionary measures involving expense, it is a happy consideration, that such is the solid state of the public credit, that reliance may be made for resorting to it in a convenient form, and to an adequate amount.

This day His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, with the usual Formalities, opened the Session of the Legislature, and was pleased to deliver the following Speech to both Houses:

Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council,
And Gentlemen of the House of Assembly,

ON reviewing the situation of this Province, I am happy in stating to you, that I do not perceive any occurrence has taken place, to interrupt its Commerce, or internal Prosperity, since the last Session of the Legislature.

It would have been an additional source of satisfaction to me, to have been enabled to announce to you, the Restoration and Renewal of Friendship and Amity, between Great Britain, and the United States of America, which, until of late, have so happily existed.—And should the repeated efforts of His Majesty to accomplish so desirable an End, not succeed; I trust that his Brave and Loyal Subjects in this Province, will evince, as many of them have already done, an unconquerable attachment to their King and Constitution.

Your respective Situations in the Province, will enable you to discover what may be still wanting, to increase the Happiness and Prosperity of your fellow Subjects; and to direct your Deliberations to those Points which may require Legislative Assistance.—It is the honorable Task, you are now called upon to perform.

It is incumbent on me to call your Attention to the Evils resulting from the unskilful Surveys of Land in this Province:—Instances of which have been reported to me by the Judges, on their return from the Circuits;—A subject of such importance, will, I have no doubt, engage your most serious consideration.

Gentlemen of the House of Assembly,

I have directed the Public Accounts, to be laid before you, in order that they may undergo such an examination, as the nature of the Subject requires.

Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council,
And Gentlemen of the House of Assembly,

It is unnecessary for me, to recommend to you, an unremitting Zeal for the Public Service; and a steady prosecution of those Objects which may promote the General Interests of the Province; as a prompt, and faithful discharge of those Duties, will be most conducive to the Interests of your Constituents, ment under way for Boston, I send you a list of the veſſels in this port. As to political news, I cannot expreſs an opinion for fear of ſtating that which will not prove correct, the reports in circulation are ſo contradictory. We are momently expecting to hear of a great battle which is about to be fought near Madrid. A ſmall American ſhip is now ſtanding into the Bay."

Captain Coffin, from St. Barth lomews, informs, that on the 7th of December, he fell in with the Britiſh frigates Naiad and Narciſſus, being part of a ſquadron ſtationed off Breſt. They were dispatched in purſuit of two French frigates and three Transports, full of troops, that had made their eſcape, deſtined for Guadaloupe. It is very probable that the two French frigates mentioned above, as having arrived at Boſſeterre, are the two purſued by the Naiad and Narciſſus. We hear nothing of the arrival of the Transports.

We alſo learn, that a French brig with troops and diſpatches, from France, bound to Guadeloupe, had been captured and ſent into Antigua. It was diſcovered from diſpatches on board her, that between 70 and 80 ſail of veſſels had and were about ſailing from the different ports of France, with men and proviſions, deſtined for Guadaloupe.

One of the French frigates, mentioned above, got aſhore on Antigua point, and before the got off, her guns were thrown overboard.

Liſbon Gazettes to the 2d of Dec. ſtates, that a battle was fought on the 6th of November at Madridejos, (about thirty leagues from Madrid,) between Field Marſhal Manoel Freire, and a French army conſiſting of 2600 foot, and 3000 horſe. The battle continued the whole day, with conſiderable loſs on both ſides. On the 8th, the French were obliged to abandon their poſition at Guardia. The reſult of this action is mentioned to have reflected great honor to General Freire and his troops, and to place the province of La Mancha again in the power of the Spaniards. [The official account of this action is publiſhed in the papers.]

The Central Junta have determined to augment the army to 150,000 men.

LISBON FLEET.--On the 14th of Novr. the Britiſh Conſul communicated to the Government of Cadiz, officially, the following letter from E. Wylie, dated Gibraltar 10th.

"A Britiſh frigate of war has juſt arrived from Lord Collingwood's fleet, with the agreeable news, that Admiral Gantheaume, on board of an 80 gun ſhip, two 74's ſundry frigates; and from 15 to 18 tranſports, with proviſions ammunition and troops, were burnt and deſtroyed in the Bay of Roſas, and only one eſcaped."

Another account ſtates, that Gantheaume's ſquadron ſailed from Toulon on the 20th of October.—That it conſiſted of 3 ſhips of the line and 2 frigates convoying 20 tranſports, bound to the coaſt of Catalonia. They were attacked on the 26th of the ſame month by Admiral Martin with 7 ſhips, near Cette. The reſult was, 3 of the French ſhips went aſhore, 2 were deſtroyed, and the others were rendered unſerviceable. After this Admiral Collingwood came up, and attacked the remainder of the ſquadron off Cape Croix took 5 veſſels and ſunk 4. the others retired to the Bay of Roſas, where 4 were burnt and 5 taken. Out of the 25 ſail only one eſcaped.

The New Government of Spain.—The following intelligence dated from Seville, proves that the Spaniards are making the greateſt efforts to rid their country of their enemies, and that the New Government has commenced its operations by infuſing new energy into the people, and taking the moſt vigorous ſteps for preſerving the Kingdom. The news of a great and deciſive battle having been fought, may be expected by the next arrivals.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman in Seville, dated, Nov. 6, 1809, to another in this City.

Don Franciſco Saverda.

It is reported that the French have carried off all the heavy artillery they had at the ſiege of Gerona which place ſtill holds out, and has of late received ſome reinforcements beſides ſome proviſion and ammunition.—All the Spaniſh armies are in motion towards Madrid, as alſo the Britiſh at Badajos—ſo that we expect ſhortly ſome deciſive blow will be given. God grant them ſucceſs.—The generals have iſſued orders to fire upon the firſt man that retreats, ſo that I hope you will ſoon have the news of a great victory obtained by the patriots."

Tranſlated from a Spaniſh Paper.

"Among the many vexacious inſults which the conquered provinces are obliged to ſubmit to from the tyrant monarch who calls himſelf a philoſopher and boaſts of his humanity, may be enumerated the following decree juſt iſſued by Kellerman, the French General.

"Conſidering that it is neceſſary to augment the resources and means of increaſing His Imperial Majeſty's cavalry, and to cut off from the rebels and thieves the means of procuring horſes, for their incurſions,——we order, that all horſes male and female, belonging to the inhabitants of the provinces compoſing La Eſpagna Superior, viz. Salamanca, Tamera, Toro, Leon, Valladolid, Vicencia, Burgos, Soria, Santandor, Vizcayn, Guipuzcoa, and Alava, of the height of 4 feet four inches, or five feet and half an inch, Caſtilian meaſure, or above to put in requiſition for the use of the French army, and ſhall be brought to the capital of each department to be received and depoſited. The governors of each province ſhall carry this decree into execution, and remit me a ſtatement thereof.—Every horſe under five feet and a half and all mares 3 months with foal, and horſes of 30 months old, ſhall be made blind of the left eye, ſo that they may be rendered uſeleſs for the ſervice by the owners. Defaulters herein ſhall be puniſhed by a fine of four times the value of the animal—The execution of this decree is entruſted to the governors, commandants of arms, the commandants of all detachments, and flying columns. Valladolid, 18th October, 1809. KELLERMAN General of Diviſion, Governor General of Spain Superior."

Cadiz News.—A paſſenger on board the ſhip Whampoa, Captain Decoven, in 37 days from Cadiz, informs us, that while at Gibraltar on the 1ſt of December, 7000 troops from Liſbon were hourly expected for the object of taking poſſeſſion of Cueta, and the Iſlands of Majorca and Menorca.—He adds, that a new Spaniſh Government had been formed, conſiſting of ſix members—and that the French armies under Victor and Ney, conſiſting of 21,000 men, attacked the Spaniards near La Mancha, about the middle of October, in which the latter were totally defeated. We have received a file of the Seville Gazette to the 7th of December. Should they be found to contain any articles worth tranſlating, they will be given in our next.—N. Y. Spectator.

PHILADELPHIA, JAN. 13.

The News from Spain.—We do not attach any credit to the information received at N. York, via Liſbon, Dec. 2, of a Grand Battle having been fought near Madrid, in which the Spaniards were defeated, with the loſs of 5000 killed and 7000 wounded, and that they afterwards ſet fire to the city of Madrid and reduced it to aſhes. Captain Cooper, of the ſhip Arabian, arrived here yeſterday from Liſbon, which he left on the 12th of December, ten days later than the arrival at New-York, brings no confirmation of the report. It probably took its riſe from the circumſtance of an action having taken place at Madridejos (about 30 leagues from Madrid) between the Spaniſh General Friere, and a corps of 6000 French, in which the latter were obliged to retreat with great loſs, leaving the whole province of La Mancha in the power of the Spaniards.—Freeman's Journal.

Extract from Waſhington, dated January 10th,

I have nothing to communicate this evening, only that the war party are completely down—even old Smith is againſt them. I think they are laſtly down for this Seſſion. What will come of Bacon's Bill, I know not. I think it will paſs, but in what ſhape I cannot tell—perhaps all the reſtrictions will be ſtriken out—it is certain they ought to be.—Balt. Fed. Rep.

LONDON, 25th October, 1809.

This day was celebrated, throughout the United Kingdom as a Jubilee, being the day on which our beloved and revered Monarch entered the Fiftieth year of his Reign. Our limits are by no means proportioned to the taſk of detailing the various exhibitions of loyalty and patriotism which were diſplayed on this occaſion. Thankſgivings and Sermons in all the Churches and Chapels; viſits of hoſpitality; balls and illuminations were general—of the latter, ſome ideas may be entertained by thoſe who remember the public rejoicings, for the reſtoration of his Majeſty's health in March 1789. But the moſt brilliant in the preſent caſe was the ſubſcription to enable the poor to partake in the general joy and to liberate priſoners confined for ſmall debts. Charity and loyalty went hand in hand; and it may be truly ſaid, that there was not an individual, that day, in this great metropolis, who wanted the comforts of life. His Majeſty in the Gazette of the preceding day had iſſued a Proclamation granting a free pardon to all Seamen and Marines who had deſerted previous to that day, whether they return to their duty or not; but in caſe they return to their duty, they are not to be entitled to arrears of pay or prize money previous to their deſertion, and alſo a Proclamation to a ſimilar effect with regard to the army. A general promotion of military officers, has taken place, which appears in the Gazette, beginning with Lieutenant Generals and deſcending through all the ranks to Captains, the former appointed Generals in the Army, and the latter Majors. An extenſive Naval promotion is alſo intended. The Commander in Chief at the ſame time ordered a general liberation of all ſoldiers confined in priſons for military offences—the following was the form of Prayer and Thankſgiving adopted on the 25th.

"O God, in whoſe hands are the iſſues of life and death, and to whom alone it belongeth to diſtribute Mercies, as well in lengthening as ſhortening the days of Men; we yield thee praiſe and thankſgiving for the protection thou haſt vouchſafed to our gracious Sovereign, during a long and auſpicious Reign. Continue we pray thee, thy watchfulneſs over him: Shield him from the open attacks of his enemies, and from hidden dangers; from the arrow that flieth by day, and from the peſtilence that walketh in darkneſs; enlighten his Councils for the public good; Strengthen all his meaſures; and when it ſhall ſeem fit to thy unerring wiſdom, perfect the ends of both: The reſtoration of Peace and Security to his people, of concord and independence to contending and bleeding nations:—Theſe bleſſings and mercies, we implore for our Sovereign, ourſelves, our allies, and our Enemies, through Jeſus Chriſt, our Lord and Saviour, Amen.

It would be in vain to attempt recording particular inſtances of ſplendour and liberality, or to note the PERSUASIONS of men moſt forward upon the occaſion; ſuffice it to take leave to mention the Quakers, who have been moſt liberal in their Subſcriptions toward the releaſe of priſoners for debt; nor ought the Catholics as well as the Members of the Synagogue, with every other tolerated denomination, to go without due praiſe and remembrance. The donations to the poor were very general: and the generous hoſpitality for which Britons were ever famous, characteriſed a liberality which would be injured by the cold name of charity, or by any other name that conveys an idea of inequality, of dependence and ſuperiority, that belong not to an occaſion upon which all feel alike. It is with pleaſure we obſerve, that upwards of one hundred unfortunate debtors from the priſons of this metropolis alone, were reſtored to liberty and to their families.

The liberal donations made to the Society for the relief of debtors, have enabled them to extend their benevolence to an unprecedented extent on this occaſion. The day opened with a ſplendour and mildneſs that ſeemed to recall the fineſt period of Summer. Sounds of joy and happineſs marked the progreſs of all, and it was impoſſible to liſten or to look, without a conviction that every Briton felt and celebrated the Jubilee of George the Third, as a feſtival of the Heart. The Hiſtorian in dwelling upon the Character of his Majeſty, will by the proceedings of this day, be releaſed from the trouble of much ſtrictity; balls and illuminations were general—of the latter, ſome ideas may be entertained by thoſe who remember the public rejoicings, for the reſtoration of his Majeſty's health in March 1789. But the moſt brilliant in the preſent caſe was the ſubſcription to enable the poor to partake in the general joy and to liberate priſoners confined for ſmall debts. Captain Chace, arrived at Boſton, left Tonningen 20th November. He reports that at time the French ſoldiers were taking up quarters in the different cities about Tonningen; 2,500 Weſtphalian troops had arrived at Hamburgh, and more were daily expected.

Jos. E Bloomfield, paſſenger on board the ſhip Camilla, Capt. William Fleming of Philadelphia, has communicated to us the following intelligence for publication.

Veſſels carrying out cotton are ſubject to a quarantine of 40 days, as are all thoſe veſſels whoſe Bills of Health are not regularly certified by the Spaniſh Conſul. The conduct of the Health Officers had been ſo various to veſſels arriving from the U. States, that it is impoſſible to give a rule for their conduct, as almoſt every day brought out ſome new order.

The renewing the quarantine, was in conſequence of the refuſal of the Spaniſh Conſul at New York to endorſe the bills of Health; and he muſt at the ſame time have ſtated to the Government of Spain that a contagious diſeaſe was in New York; and as all the ports in the U. States had conſtant communication, it would be proper to lay a general quarantine, which was accordingly done; nor were the Spaniſh Conſular certificates to regular bills of health, from other ports in the U. States any advantage in the firſt inſtance, but all ſhared the fate of thoſe from New York.——Even veſſels which had been at Liſbon, and performed a quarantine of 8 days, and brought bills of health from thence, had to lay 40 days, deducting the time they had been at Liſbon.

There was no news of conſequence at Cadiz, except that Gerona had at laſt fallen to the French, after having undergone a ſiege, in which the inhabitants experienced great deprivations and ſhowed aſtoniſhing fortitude and courage, not equalled by Saragoſſa or any place the French have beſieged in Spain.

It was reported that the Marquis Romana had gone forward to collect and take charge of the defeated Spaniſh grand army, and had been able to form another of about 40,000 of the defeated troops and peaſantry, with whom he hoped to ſtop the progreſs of the French.

There was a report in Cadiz, which came by the way of Gibraltar, which was thought very probable, that Bonaparte had ordered 80,000 of his troops from Italy into Spain, and intended to let his brother Joſeph eſtabliſh himſelf.

The French continue ſucceſsful in the Province of Catalona, and it was expected they would be able to poſſeſs themſelves of the Province of Valencia, as they were getting poſſeſſion of the different ports on its coaſt.

A number of Spaniſh ſhips of the line were lying at Cadiz; ſeveral frigates had been fitted out and ſailed for South America.

Commodore Purvis was ſtill in the Atlas, lying at Cadiz. There were ten Britiſh ſail of the line expected, and ten more would be off that ſtation, to act as occaſion may require, who will no doubt prevent the Spaniards giving up Cadiz. Another great object is the taking care of the French and Spaniſh fleets lying there, in caſe the French ſhould be ſucceſsful.

The beſt informed perſons in Cadiz think that Spain muſt ſoon fall, as ſhe has not now any troops ſhe can depend upon, and the Engliſh are much diſtruſted with the Spaniſh government, ſo that little can be expected from them.

The paſſes of the Sierra Morena are the only barrier now to the French, yet they are ſtrong, and may be held with few troops, if they are ſuch as can be depended upon.—Should the French paſs the Sierra Morena, the whole of Andaluſia will fall to them.

The ſpotted fever prevails in the vicinity and neighborhood of Goſhen and Walkill, it appears to an alarming degree; and a meeting of phyſicians is to be held at Goſhen on the 24th inſt. to conſult on the beſt method of treating this formidable diſeaſe, of which ſeveral perſons have died within a few hours after being attacked.

FEBRUARY 7, 1810

The following Addreſſes were preſented to His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, in answer to His Excellency's Speech at the opening of the preſent Seſſion of the Provincial Legiſlature.

To His Excellency FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

WE His Majeſty's moſt dutiful and Loyal Subjects the Legiſlative Council of Upper Canada in Parliament aſſembled, do return our thanks for your Excellency's moſt gracious Speech at the opening of this Seſſion of the Legiſlature.

We rejoice with your Excellency on a review of the commerce and internal proſperity of this Province, and ſhould have felt the higheſt gratification from a continuation of that friendſhip and amity, which ſubſiſted ſo long between Great Britain and the United States of America.

To the repeated efforts of His Majeſty to accompliſh that deſirable object, we ſincerely with a happy termination; but ſhould ſuch efforts prove fruitleſs and vain, we truſt that the Legiſlative Council of Upper Canada, with His Majeſty's other Subjects in that Province, will by their conduct, evince attachment to their conſtitution, and loyalty to their King.

We will pay the utmoſt attention to remedy the evils that neceſſarily muſt have ariſen to private property, from the unſkilful Surveys of Land in this Province, and will on every occaſion, cordially unite with the other branches of the Legiſlature, in ſuch meaſures as may appear to be beſt calculated for promoting the happiness and proſperity of our fellow Subjects.

(Signed) THOS. SCOTT,
Speaker.

Legiſlative Council Chamber, York, February 3d, 1810.

To which His Excellency was pleaſed to return the following Anſwer:

HONORABLE GENTLEMEN,

I thank you for this very dutiful and loyal Addreſs.

Your aſſurances of attachment to the King and Conſtitution, afford me peculiar ſatisfaction; and your profeſſions of cordially uniting with the other branches of the Legiſlature in whatever may promote the Happineſs and Proſperity of your fellow Subjects in this Province, are moſt honorable to yourſelves.

To His Excellency FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

WE His Majeſty's dutiful and loyal ſubjects the Commons of the Province of Upper Canada in Parliament aſſembled, beg leave to return you our unfeigned and ſincere thanks for your Excellency's Speech to both Houſes of Parliament, upon opening the preſent Seſſion.

We contemplate with ſatisfaction increasing Commerce, and internal Prosperity of this Province, since our last Session.

We lament that His Majesty's repeated efforts for the restoration and renewal of Friendship and Amity between the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the United States of America, have heretofore failed of accomplishing so desirable an end; et, we cherish a hope that the wisdom and policy of that Nation, will direct them to embrace His Majesty's overtures. Should His Majesty's efforts prove unavailing to obtain the happy event, We trust, the confidence Your Excellency has so flatteringly expressed, in the bravery, and loyalty of His Majesty's Subjects in this Province, will be fully justified; animated with a continual desire to maintain that character, which many of them have purchased, with all but life; and ever exert themselves to manifest their unconquerable attachment to their King and Constitution, and to repel any attempt to alienate their attachment from either.

The recommendation of Your Excellency, to discover, (from our respective situations) what may be still wanting to increase the Happiness and Prosperity of our Fellow Subjects, shall meet our earnest and grateful attention; and we shall endeavor to direct our deliberations to those points which may require Legislative assistance.

Your Excellency's calling our attention to provide a remedy for the unskilful Surveys of Land in this Province, is a further proof of the unremitting Watchfulness of Your Excellency, to the Interests of His Majesty's Subjects in this Province; and shall meet our most deliberate investigation.

The Public Accounts shall likewise undergo such an examination, as the nature of the Subject requires.

We shall endeavor, agreeable to Your Excellency's recommendation, to use an unremitting Zeal for the Public Service, and a steady prosecution of those objects which may promote the general Interest of the Province; and a prompt and faithful discharge of the honorable task we now have to perform, will be most conducive to the Interests of our Constituents.

(Signed) SAML. STREET, Speaker.

Commons House of Assembly, York, the 5th day of February, 1810.

To which His Excellency was pleased to return the following answer:

GENTLEMEN OF THE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY.

Your expressions of zeal and loyalty, afford me the highest gratification:—They are the honorable pledges of that fidelity, which the original settlement of this Province was intended to insure, and which I trust will be rendered perpetual, in yourselves and your posterity.

PRAGUE, Nov. 3, 1809.

Our Emperor has issued the following proclamation:

"I have brought the war to a close, to give the blessings of repose to my people, and not to expose their welfare any longer to the incertitude of accidents. They have shewn their fidelity and real attachments in all dangers, and thereby have strengthened the ties by which a prince is bound to his people. I acknowledge my army, whose attachments I shall always remember with heartfelt emotion, as the support of my throne and as a safeguard for the future happiness of my subjects. In the last three bloody battles, it has won the esteem and admiration of the world. The numberless tokens of an inviolable fidelity and attachment to my person have procured it my highest encomium and esteem, they are the best surety of my gratitude. Its welfare, will in future be my utmost care, to remunerate the merits of every single individual agreeable to the wishes of my heart, is as yet impossible."

The Rabbi Ascher Loew, of Wallerstein, who had been called to the place of first rabbi at Metz, and afterwards to that of grand Rabbi of the central consistory of the Jewish religion at Paris, is invited to go to Carlsrune, by his royal highness the grand duke of Baden, to regenerate the Jews in the states of Baden, as is expressed in a letter from that government to the minister of worship at Paris.

AUGSBURG, Nov. 3.

According to the last news from Verona, the corps of French & Italian troops which have penetrated into South Tyrol, under the command of General Peyry, has not only maintained its position, but a part of the vice-roy's army has presented itself before Vallach in the Pustnearthal, and has already formed a junction with the corps of general Peyry.

Extract of a letter from St. Jago de Cuba, to a gentleman in this City, dated Dec. 30, 1809.

"By an arrival here from Carthagena we have just received the agreeable intelligence, that the momentary revolution which took place at Quito, has been completely done away. It appears that it was not a revolt against the established government of Spain under Ferdinand the Seventh; but, on the contrary, the over zealous watchfulness of the Spanish Patriots, who fearing an attempt, from the crafty wishers of Napoleon, to seduce the constituted authorities from their allegiance to their legitimate sovereign, took upon themselves to suspend their functions, and named as their chief the Cleto Alegra, declaring they would never submit to any foreign yoke, or recognize any other sovereign than Ferdinand the Seventh, and his lawful successors. However, troops were immediately ordered to march against these infatuated people, from the different viceroyalties of Peru, New Grenada, and Mexico; and commissioners were at the same time appointed to precede the army in order to prevent the effusion of blood, and persuade the inhabitants of Quito, that the object of their rulers was to maintain their independence against all foreign usurpation, and a firm determination to remain faithful to their legitimate Monarch, Ferdinand the Seventh; upon which the worthy inhabitants of Quito laid down their arms, embraced their patriot brethern, and swore to be faithful to the cause of their beloved King, so nobly defended both in the old and new world.—N. Y. Herald.

Agreeable to a written order by Napoleon, the fortifications of Vienna are to be razed: It is however presumed that the blowing up of them will be procrastinated; the troops of the Rhenish confederation are on their way home; Near Presburgh the bastions are demolishing. The grand army is filing off through Ausburg; within a fortnight 40,000 men will pass through that city.

General Carra St. Cyr, remains Governor of Dresden. The Pope is at Savona. John Quincy Adams, Esqr. has arrived at St. Petersburgh. The blowing up of the fortifications at Frunn has commenced.

Extract of a letter from Cadiz, dated Decr. 5.

"I observe that you were alarmed at the state of Europe, and looked on a peace as the downfall of this country. I am pleased to say that I think differently; and, although I will not attempt to support the doctrine of a Spanish army opposing a French one, yet I am decidedly of opinion that Bonaparte will not conquer Spain, at least for many years; and, that he can never take this place so long as Spain and England are allies. Wherever a large body of Frenchmen say they will march to the interior, there they will go to a certainty; but, the moment that body of men separate, that moment they are lost; & in every private house and room they find graves, and in every man woman and child, an enemy ready to assassinate them. Such is the state of the whole country, with a population of nine millions of souls; and, I leave you to judge of the difficulty which the French have to labour under.

"The present government of Spain, so far from issuing licences to foreign vessels to trade to any of their colonies, have given the strictest orders to shut every port against them; and notwithstanding the close alliance between the English and Spaniards, not a British vessel has obtained a licence—This I can assure you as a fact."

FROM SPAIN.

Seville. Nov. 23

Dispatches have been received from General Don Arreyzaga, commander in chief of the army of the centre.

In one dated Trembleque, the 19th November, he states:—That the enemy having commenced the attack on the front and flanks of our army in Ocana, particularly on the right, with an intent to surround it, it made during 3 hours a vigorous resistance, and that excellent officer Brigadier Liacy, repulsed the enemy with his division, but at length the superiority of the enemy's artillery occasioned a dispersion; and in this situation the van and the 6th division retreated. That our loss is considerable, but not more than that of the enemy, who were driven back several times by our infantry, and the brisk fire of the artillery.

Another, dated, Daniel, Nov. 20, is as follows:

Most Excellent Sir—To night I arrived at this town, and tomorrow I shall proceed to that of St. Cruz, where I have ordered the infantry to re unite, and at Mandazores the Cavalry of this dispersed army, with the exception of a part of the second division under the command of Brigadier D Vasgar Vigodut, in order to check the progress of the enemy of whom the advanced troops have arrived to day at Madridejos and of whose main body I know nothing to prevent him from approaching the Sierra Morena, and to preserve the communication with La Mancha. I shall then, if possible, give to your Excellency an account of the loss which has been sustained. I can only state at present that the loss of good officers has been considerable, and which is the best proof that that class has most honorably distinguished itself on this occasion, and has followed the example of the Generals of division, who displayed their skill by the excellent arrangements which they made, and exhibited that serenity which is their characteristick. JOS. DE AREYZA.

To His Excellency Don ANT. CORNEL.

TARRAGONA, NOV. 13.

By an official dispatch of the 30th of the last month we learn that the British squadron which was sent to drive the Fr. from the Ionian Islands, have effected that object; that the garrisons of Zante, Cephalonia, Ithoca and Carigo, surrendered themselves prisoners of war, after a week's resistance; and that the Republick of the Seven Islands is reestablished under the protection of Great Britain.

KINGSTON, (JAMAICA,) NOV. 25.

Arrived the United Kingdom from P. Glasgow. She touched at St Kitt's on the 7th inst and learht there that Admiral Cochran had arrived at Barbadoes with a number of troops from Halifax, destined for the reduction of Guadalupe, which, it is expected, will prove an easy conquest, as most of the inhabitants wish to be under the protection of the British Government.—The Governor of Guadalupe had disarmed the Militia, which he knew to be inimical to the present ruler of France, and raised several corps of black troops in their stead, with which and the rest of their effective force, amounting in all to upwards of 800 men, he had withdrawn into Fort Flour de la-Pays, the strongest fortification in the Island. There were upwards of 8000 of the troops ready to embark at Barbadoes, besides marines, and some other troops from the adjacent islands, which would comprize a formidable body of about 11,000 men. The attack was expected to take place hourly.

From Barbary—Interesting.

A letter from Tunis, of the 18th October, 1809, mentions the arrival there of a great number of valuable American vessels, with intention to make use of the Barbary flag in the dispofal of their rich cargoes, in the Mediterranean ports:—the great risk vessels run in attempting to get into France, "colonial produce even coming from Guadaloupe (unless in a French bottom) with all kinds of documents and even if not boarded by the British, is confiscated, if having touched at a neutral port; the precarious state of property covered by Tunisians, which is at all times liable to be seized by the Bey, is also mentioned; and an instance given of the tyranny of the Bey, in the arrest of a rich Moor, and the seizure of his effects: The letter concludes, "The American character stands very high here; EATON with all his foibles gave them an idea of our bravery, which they confider inherent—and although they have a good notion of our small naval force, I believe the Bey would sooner have war with any other Christian power. A frigate should peep in upon these gentry now and then, as a kind of memorandum, particularly as so much property is under their thumb.

Extract of a letter from an English gentleman at St. Croix, to his friend in this city, dated St. Croix, Decr. 24.

"We have accounts from Martinique to day, by which it would appear that the expedition intended against Guadaloupe was in a great state of forwardness, and it is expected to sail early in nex month. With the troops lately arrived from home, I suppose we will muster between eight and 9000 men. Notwithstanding the vigilance of ou cruzers, and owing to some of them being becalmed, two French frigates with troops, succeeded in getting into a port on the north side of Guadaloupe. The troops and part of the crews had not time to get on shore to the utmost confusion, before a party of seamen, headed by their officers from our ships, landed and stormed a strong battery in the most gallant manner. They afterwards got possession of the enemy's frigates, which they blew up with the whole of the baggage and stores on board. Captain Cameron of his Majesty's ship Hazard, was unfortunately killed while in the very act of hauling down the French colours. There are two more French frigates skulking about these seas, and I have no doubt we will soon hear a good account given of them. Those four frigates and a Corvette that have been sent into Antigua, full of troops, fell in with the Junon frigate, taken some time ago by his Majesty's frigate Horatio. The Junon did not surrender until after an action of 3 hours, and having lost 70 of her men. She was such a complete wreck when the enemy took possession of her, that they were obliged to sink her. The brave captain of the Junon was killed in the engagement."

Letters from Calcutta, of the 20th of September, mention that the rainy season had set in with such violence, that the Ganges had overflown and swept off whole villages, and destroyed the crops of indigo in several districts.

Died in Moravia, Count Von Berchhold, the Howard of Austria—He had travelled in Europe for 13 years, and 4 in Asia and Africa, in order to become acquainted with the customs, policy, happiness and misery of mankind, and every where to promote felicity and mitigate wretchedness—He had converted his fine castle Buchlowitz into an hospital for sick and wounded Austrians; in attending whom he caught an epidemic fever and died, a victim of his humane efforts.

A letter from a gentleman in N-York, to his correspondent in town, after mentioning the arrival there of Mr. JACKSON and his taking a house in Broadway, adds—"A few hours after his arrival, a trunk was stolen from the entry of the house, which contained Mrs. JACKSON's jewellery, &c. valued at 3000 pounds Sterling.

THE PILLARS OF HERCULES.

The last London papers state, that the Spaniards have consented that the English shall garrison the port of Ceuta, an important position on the African side of the Streights, about 15 miles from the rock of Gibraltar. This acquisition secures to England both the pillars of Hs. and of course the entire the entire controul of the entrance to the Mideterranean.

Was executed in Halifax, (N. S.) on the 23d November, as a pirate and murderer, EDWARD JORDAN; he having, while a passenger on board, role upon the captain and crew of schr. Three-Sisters, on the coast of Nova-Scotia, in August last; killed two of the crew, and compelled captain Sairs to jump overboard, but who was Providentially saved a few hours after, by captain Soddard, in schr. Assisted by Kelly, the mate, the Three sisters afterwards reached Newfoundland, and where Jordan had engaged a man to navigate her to Ireland, when he was taken into custody: His wife was acquitted: and he declared Kelly was innocent——He was a native of Ireland; was an old offender against the laws: & had visited New-York, Montreal, Quebec, &c.

LEUGNE, the name of a village of France, in the department of Upper Saone, and late Province of Franche-Comte, lying to the East of Vesoul Here is a cavern 35 paces deep, and 60 wide, which serves as a barometer to all the country people A fog, at the entrance of this glacier, is an infallible sign of rain the next day From the roof which is 50 feet high, defcends columns of ice, of a prodigious size. The brook which runs through a part of this grotto, is frozen in summer, but flows in winter.

Lexington:—This Town is the capital of the state of Kentucky, and county of Fayette: and near it are to be seen curious sepulchres, full of human skeletons, which are thus fabricated. First on the ground are laid large broad stones on these are placed the bodies, separated from each other by broad stones, covered with others, which served as a basis for the next arrangement of bodies. In this order they are built without mortar, growing still narrower to the height of a man. This method of burying appears to be totally different from that now practised by the Indians. In the neighborhood of Lexington are also to be seen the remains of two antient fortifications, with ditches and bastions; one containing about six acres of land, and the other about three Pieces of earthen ware have been ploughed up near Lexington; a manufacture with which the Indians were never acquainted: fortifications with theie, and the sepulchres, have been urged as an argument, that this country was formerly inhabited by a people different from the present Indians, and further advanced than they in the arts of life; and Mr Filson, in his account of this country, has advanced arguments to prove, that these people were in all probability, an antient colony from Wales.

In the Shetland Islands, which lie to the north of Scotland, the Aurora Borealis are very remarkable. They are the constant attendants of clear evenings, and prove great reliefs amid the gloom of the long winter nights. They commonly appear at twilight near the horizon, of a dun colour, approaching to yellow; sometimes continuing in that state for several hours, without any apparent motion; after which they break out into streams of stronger light, spreading into columns and altering slowly into ten thousand different shapes, varying their colours from a light tinge of yellow, to the most obscure russet. They often cover the whole hemisphere, and make a brilliant appearance.

REFLECTIONS BY A LADY.

THE midnight moon serenely smiles
O'er nature's soft repose;
No low'ring clouds obscure the skies,
Nor ruffling tempest blows.

Now ev'ry passion sinks to rest,
The throbbing heart lies still;
And varying schemes of life no more
Distract the labouring will.

In silence hush'd to reason's voice
Attends each mental power;
Come, dear Amanda, and enjoy
Reflections favorite hour.

Come, while this peaceful scene invites,
Let's search this ample round;
Where shall the lovely fleeting form
Of happiness be found?

Does it amidst the frolic mirth
Of gay assemblies dwell?
Or hide beneath the solemn gloom
That shades the hermit's cell?

How oft the laughing brow of joy
A sick'ning heart conceals!
And thro' the cloister's deep recess
Invading sorrow steals.

In vain thro' beauty, fortune wit,
The fugitive we trace!
It dwells not in the faithful smile
That brightens Cloës's face.

How'er our varying notions rove,
All yet agree in one,
To place its being in some state,
At distance from our own.

O blind to each indulgent gift
Of power supremely wise!
Who fancy happiness in aught
That providence denies.

Vain is alike the joy we seek,
And vain what we possess,
Unless harmonious reason tunes
The passions into peace.

To temp'rate bounds, to few desires,
Is happiness confined
And deaf to folly's noise, attends
The music of the mind.

BOSTON, 25th Jan 1810.

Summary of Military Affairs in Spain.

LISBON, Nov. 20.—The troops of Le Marchant have attacked the Frigus. General Freire in La Mancha has destroyed a body of French Cavalry. Ten thousand French, had marched from Madrid into Old Castile to relieve Salamanca, upon which the Duke de Infantado abandoned that place. He has taken a position, so as to be able to make a diversion in favor of the army of La Mancha.—General Garcia, from the north of Leon threatens Burgos, and has carried his advanced posts even beyond that city. The Duke of Albuquerque commands the army of Estramadura. Marechal general Lord Wellington, was at Bajados the 12th inst. Joseph Bonaparte had gone to Valladolid, Marshals Ney and Jourdon, had left Spain for France; Soult had succeeded the latter as Major General of the army of Spain.

Letters from Oporto, (Upper Canal mis) under date of the 20th Oct. by that Curlis and Rovina attacked a French Convoy at Campomony, escorted by 140 infantry, a body of cavalry and an 8 pounder. Our peasantry though destitute of cavalry and artillery, attacked with such fury, that they killed 100, made 30 prisoners, with a captain and Lieutenant, took many waggons loaded with provisions of all sorts, and a considerable sum of money.

LERIDA, Oct. 22.—The brave Baron de Eroles, Governor of Lerida, governor of this place having collected as many troops as the time would allow at Balaguer, fell suddenly upon the enemy at Caspe, dislodged them from their camp, which he destroyed, killed upwards of 100 and wounded many; on our side 12 killed and 9 wounded.

VISEU, Oct. 24. The day before yesterday there arrived here 8 French prisoners, taken in the action which Gen. Sand Beresford had with the French near Junqueira; after which our peasants pursued the enemy within gunshot of Bellgarde.

SEVILLE, Nov. 6.—The following is a copy of a dispatch from General Blake, received at the office of the department of war.

Most Excellent Senior,

The troops under my command had scarcely taken positions at, and in the vicinity of Buonnolas, on the 18th ult. when the enemy's advanced guard, consisting of between five & six hundred men, appeared before us, but not choosing to approach near to our positions, they retreated, and on the following day a body of about 3000 infantry and 250 cavalry came by the way of S. Dalmay, having marched through the thick woods that cover all that part of the country. They came upon our advanced posts in front of this place, upon which the firing commenced. The Marshal de Camp, Don Martin Garcia Loyorri, commanding that position, drew out his light troops, which he deemed sufficient, while brigadier Henrique O'Donnel, with part of the centre, composed chiefly of the grenadiers of New Castle, the grenadiers and chasseurs of the Walloon Guards, which compelled the enemy to make a precipitate retreat.—They were followed by O'Donnel to their camp, which they were compelled to abandon, leaving their camp equipage and stores, which were destroyed. From the disorderly retreat of the enemy he suffered severely, and our loss has been trifling.

JOAQUIM BLAKE.

Camp at Brunnolas, October 22, 1809.

The most excellent Senior Don Antonio Cornel.

NOV. 13.—Don Miguel Freire, general and commander of the cavalry of the army of La Mancha, writes under date of the 6th, "I alight at this village (Madeilejos) after pursuing the enemy, who made his retreat by the way of Mora; he has also retreated from Consuegra and Corunonas; our cavalry which was at Vrda, has advanced to the former place. There has been a constant skirmishing with the cavalry of the two armies from Porto Lapice to two leagues beyond this place. At the three posts of the enemy's cavalry were from 2633 to 3000; he has also some at Tembleque and to Guardia."

The same general under the 9th of Nov. from Tembleque, writes that he has forced the French position of Guardia. While this action covers the general and his army with honour, it restores the province of la Mancha to Spain.

The Hero of Gerona.—Few readers have attended to even the name of the illustrious captain who has so long and so gloriously commanded the defence of Gerona. It is Don Mariano Alvarez. A letter from Valencia, published in the Spanish papers, says —"All eyes are fixed on that immortal man, who, with a feeble garrison which never exceeded 2500 men, has effected such prodigies, and given a new aspect to the cause of liberty. The name alone of the illustrious hero Alvarez, will, in all future times, do honor both to Gerona, and the whole Spanish nation."—Freeman's Journal.

Donna Susana Claretona.—It appears by the Government Gazette of Seville, that among the Spanish heroines who have so much contributed to the defence of the country, and the honor of their sex, DONNA SUSANA CLARETONA, wife of D. FRANCISCO SELANCH, merits a distinguished place.—She has served with her husband, in the Somatenes, from the commencement of the war;—acquired the rank of sub lieutenant of infantry; has been in many actions; has killed several of the enemy; has been wounded; and has lately received the appointment of Somatenes, in conjunction with her husband.—ib.

NEW YORK, 27.

LATE SPANISH NEWS.

BADAJOZ, November 24.

Under date of the 1st November, the Brigadier Don Juan Dias Porlier informs Count Villanueva de la Barca, commandant general of the Province, that his division had been augmented with the regiment of Cangas de Onis, one of those of the Asturian army, which was marching by Guando, to the mountains of St. Andero, who, in conjunction with lieutenant general Don Nicholas Llano Ponte, would attack the French, and drive them by force of arms, out of that country.—That he had taken a great quantity of silver, and other effects, belonging to the convents of Castilla, and which the enemy was carrying off, and he had forwarded it, with the information, to the interine general of the Asturias, lieutenant general Don Nicholas Mahy. That at 12 at night, on one of the preceding days, on the bank of the river Grandeges, he surprised 500 horse of enemy, which he put to precipitate flight, a great many having been drowned, and the rest clearing the field.

This young chief, who is hardly 21 years of age, and his troops, who, encouraged with the valour of their commandant dare all danger, merits the esteem of all good Spaniards.

CADIZ, DEC. 5.

On the 1st inst. arrived at this port in safety, after a passage of 80 days from Monteviedo, his Majesty's frigate the Proof, commanded by Don Joaquin Somosa. She brings 1 83,522 hard dollars; 181,703 for his Majesty's account; 1,567 819 for the account of individuals; and 88,000 remaining from the soldiers chests. She likewise brings for his Majesty several articles of precious stones and 100 zetoons of bark, and for individuals, 120 bars of pewter and 12 sacks of wool. The new Viceroy was beloved by all, and among the people reigned the greatest patriotism and love for the sovereign.

They write from Seville, that on the night of the 22d or 23d, Gerona was succoured with provisions for two months, by means of the darkness which a great tempest afforded. It is likewise said that the French availing themselves of the opportunity afforded them, at acked the place, and even entered as far as the Cathedral, to the number of about 3000 men, who fell victims to their boldness. All is supernatural at Gerona, and each day augments their glory, & their hurels.

The Army of La Mancha has descended to the plains, and the vanguards and the piquets keep their positions. They receive daily reinforcements, which will make up for the losses sustained by the battle of Ocana.

It is said that the enemy had 1500 cavalry Villatubia. The place where the bulk of the army exists is not known.

The Duke of Parque, after having repulsed the enemy, who, to the number of 8000, attacked a division of his army, has united his corps, to be ready, in case the enemy should attack him again.

MANRESA, Nov. 14.

We have been informed by persons who came from the parts of Martorell, that about 1000 Frenchmen who came from Barcelona, went to Molinesdel Rey with 200 horse and 4 pieces of cannon, to rob the villages, which our few valiant soldiers and mountaineers repulsed vigorously—leaving dead in a ditch near Villerianna upwards of 60, and many more wounded.

The first lasted 4 days. I cannot pass over in silence the valour and intrepidity of a Spanish cavalry soldier, of Santiago, who alone attacked four and a corporal of the enemy's cavalry, of whom, with his sword, he killed three—but we are sorry to add, that this intrepid [illegible] —Manresa Diary.

November 20.

On the 17th, about 9 o'clock at night, a great firing of musketry and cannon was heard in the fortifications of Gerona, which lasted until two in the morning. The positions which the enemy had round the place that night, were the same, more or less, as what they occupied until noon—which are as follows: Montagut, Santa, Colebrocs, Llano de Domeny. St. Gregoria, and Bas ano, Monluvia, Espanol, Farnello, Coy, Llambillas, Castella, Monnegre, Angels and St. Michaels.

PORT ROYAL (Martinique) Dec. 20.

Dispatches have been received this morning from Vice Admiral the honorable Sir A. Cochrane K. B. dated off Basseterre, Guadaloupe, upon the 18th instant, conveying intelligence that early on that day two French frigates, the Seine and the Gloire, had been destroyed in a small bay with the Battery which protected them, after a spirited resistance.—A Corvette had like wise been cut out of Des Haye, by His Majesty's ship Thetis and brig Pultulk; and another corvette taken at sea by the Melampus; a merchantman from Europe has also been re-taken.

Arrived at Charleston on the 16th inst. the schooner Polly and Lydia, Richardson, 7 days from Amelia. Just before the Polly and Lydia sailed, the Commandant at Amelia informed the captains of the English vessels there, that he had just received a letter (which might be depended on, but would give no information as to the author of it) stating that the French who had been driven out of Cuba, had gone to Guadaloupe to collect forces sufficient to make a formidable attack on Amelia; in consequence of which information, the British captains appointed as commodore, Captain Foster of the ship Mary-Ann, (formerly an American East Indiaman) mounting 22 guns; and signed an agreement to abide strictly by his orders. Captain Foster was not at St. Mary's but was momently expected.

There was in all about 150 sail of vessels at Amelia; among which were the ship Hibernia of 18 guns, and some other armed vessels. The people at Amelia were under considerable alarm in consequence of the above report. Two or three of the American captains lately arrived from Liverpool, signed the agreement to act under captain Foster, in case of an attack. The cotton along the coast for a mile and a half, was piled up five tier high. Freight for rice in American vessels 8. Dollars; British vessels 9l. Cotton in American ships 3 2-3 — cotton in British ships, 4 1 2d.—N. Y. Spectator.

The following singular facts are copied from a late London paper:—

"It appears that of the fifteen monarchs of Europe, who were tranquilly seated on their thrones in the year 1760, George the Third, of England, alone possesses the kingly power. The sum of this melancholy record of royalty stands thus:

One murdered,	One assassinated,
Five deposed,	One abdicated,
One expatriated,	One died a lunatic,
Two prisoned,	One natural death,
One sudden death.	One still reigning.

Latest from Canton.—The following information is communicated by Captain Daniel, of the brig Sylph, who arrived at this port yesterday:—

Nine full of British East India Company's ships, a 64, a frigate, and a gun-brig, were lying at Chumpee, being detained there by the Chinese, until they received permission from the Court of Pekin, to proceed to Whampoa. This was in consequence of the misunderstanding of the affair which occurred last year.

The Ladrones are differenced to the Chinese Government, and are daily increasing in power, are very daring, making frequent excursions up the rivers, burning and plundering the villages, and massacreing all that attempted to resist them. Their force by fear, is estimated from 900 to 1000 Junks, of from 3 to 28 guns, and powerfully manned —their connexions and abettors on shore, are much more numerous and widely disseminated through the maritime provinces, who amply supply the rebels with provisions and ammunition. The efforts to suppress them by the Vice Roy of Canton, is feeble, and of no effect, he having no confidence in those he sends against them: as they are as often inclined to act with the Ladrones, as against them. So wide is the disaffection spread, that the lower order of the Mandarins are not to be trusted with the executing the orders of Government. Their mode of warfare, is sanguinary to the highest degree, as they murder the native prisoners on both sides, with all the horrors of savage barbarity. Application was made by government, thro' the security merchants to the Americans at Canton, for their ships to drop down the river for a few days, to protect the passage from the Boga Tyrrss to Whampoa, which the Americans could not consistently comply with, as being defenceless merchant ships and not calculated to fight their battles; although a number of American seamen volunteered their services on board of a country ship that government had chartered for a cruise of 15 days, to act in conjunction with a fleet of men of war Junks, to cruise between the Boga Tygriss and Maccow—the latter made off to a man as soon as they saw the enemy, and left the ship to sustain the conflict alone, in case the Ladrones thought it proper to engage her. They however, sheltered themselves in shoal water, not willing to come near her.——Previous to this, about the latter end of August, 18 or 20 sail of Ladrone junks, of the largest size, made a formal attack on the ship Atahaulpa, captain Sturges, while at anchor in Maccow roads. Captain S. notwithstanding part of his crew were on shore, repelled their united attack with the utmost bravery for a length of time, when taking the advantage of a breeze, cut his cables and run under the guns of the fort at Maccow. The spectators of this affair, from the town of Maccow spoke in the highest terms of praise of captain S's conduct by whose spirited bravery and excellent management, the Atahaulpa was rescued from such a superior force; the attack was led on by the side of the Ladrones, the admiral junks of 28 guns. The Atahaulpa mounted 6 six pounders, and had her rigging much cut, and several shots in her hull, but fortunately no person on board was injured. A short time before, they fell in with a Portuguese brig from Goa, bound to Maccow, which they fell in with among the Lema Islands; two masted vessels are much more the object of their attack than ships. Measures have been taken to appraize the Americans of their danger, that they may be on their guard. The Ladrones only attack a single vessel at a time, and when they fall in with more than one, they stand off. None of the American vessels at Whampoa, would sail singly, while the Ladrones were in the river, and there is not the least danger to be apprehended for their safety. The Sylph came down the river under the escort of the British country ship Russell, captain Ferguson, who politely gave his protection.—Mer. Adv.

CITY ADDRESS.

YESterday the Right Honorable the Lord Mayor, the Aldermen, Sheriffs, and Common Council of the City of London, waited upon his Majesty, at the Queen's Palace, (being introduced by the Lord in Waiting) with the following Address, which was read by John Silvester Esquire, the Recorder:—

TO THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY:

The humble and dutiful Address of the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons of the City of London, in Common Council assembled.

MOST GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN.

"We, the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons of the City of London, in Common Council assembled, approach your Majesty's sacred Person, with our most lively & unfeigned congratulations on the recent Anniversary of your Majesty's Accession to the Throne of these Realms. With joy and gladness we hailed the day on which your Majesty entered the 50th year of your Majesty's Reign, not only over the persons, but in the hearts of your Majesty's subjects.

"When it pleased the Almighty Ruler of Princes to place the sceptre in your Majesty's hands, the brave, free, and loyal people whom your Majesty was ordained to govern, received with pleasure your Majesty's first declaration to the great council of the nation, that born and educated a Briton, the peculiar happiness of your Majesty's life would ever consist in promoting the welfare of your people; and your Majesty's resolution to maintain our most excellent Constitution, both in Church and State; with an affurance that the civil and religious rights of the subjects were equally dear to your Majesty with the most valuable prerogatives of the Crown.

"We experience and acknowledge the blessings of this security to our religion and laws, and that great charter of our liberties which, by virtue of the glorious Revolution your Majesty's illustrious house was chosen to defend. Through a space of nearly half a Century, your Majesty has proved yourself on every occasion unwearied in the maintenance and practice of all the principles so gratefully pledged.

"It is a proud subject for your Majesty's faithful citizens of London to record, that in the midst of all our unexampled struggles, your Majesty is enabled to say now, as at the commencement of your Majesty's reign, that your Majesty can see with joy of heart the commerce of these kingdoms, that great source of our riches, and first object of your Majesty's never failing care and protection, flourishing to an extent unknown in any former period.

"Deeply impressed with gratitude to Almighty God, for the innumerable blessings he has been pleased to pour down upon this highly favored nation, and more particularly for his wonderful and great goodness, in having continued his divine protection to your Majesty until this joyful period; we, your Majesty's faithful Citizens of London, have implored Heaven to accept our fervent prayers, of praise and thanksgiving, and to continue that same providencial care and protection to your Majesty for many years yet to come.

"Believe, Sire, that it is the warmest wish and most fervent prayer of your Majesty's Citizens of London, that Providence may long continue to this nation so distinguishing a mark of divine favor, and that, in the fulness of time, when your Majesty shall be called from your earthly to a celestial crown, the memory and example of so beloved a Sovereign may secure to a grateful people the imitation of your Majesty's virtues, in the succession of Your Royal House, till time shall be no more."

To which Address his Majesty was pleased to the following most gracious answer:—

"I thank you for this testimony of your zeal and affection for me & my Government.

"It has ever been my anxious care to maintain the rights and priviledges of every class of my subjects; and it is a great satisfaction for me to reflect, that in the midst of all our unexampled struggles, and notwithstanding the duration of the wars, in which, for the safety of my people, I have been engaged, the commerce and manufactures of my City of London have been carried to an extent unknown at any former period."

They all had the honor to kiss his Majesty's hand; after which his Majesty was pleased to create the Lord Mayor a Baronet, and conferred the honour of Knighthood on William Plomer, Esquire, Alderman.

ANECDOTE

Of Sir Edward Herbert, English Ambassador in France, in the Reign of James I.

SIR Edward Herbert being sent ambassador from King James I. to Louis XIII. was instructed to mediate a peace for the protestants in France. De Luines the French prime minister, haughtily asked him what the king of England had to do in that affair. The ambassador replied, 'it is not to you that the king my master owes an account of his actions, and for me it is enough that I obey him. At the same time I must maintain that my master hath more reason to do what he doth, than you to ask why he doth it. Nevertheless, if you civilly desire me, I shall acquaint you further.'

Upon this De Luines, bowing a little, said 'Very well.' Sir Edward answered, that 'it was not on this occasion only, that the king of Great Britain had desired the peace and prosperity of France, but upon all other occasions, whenever any war was raised in that country, and this was his first reason. The second was that, because a peace being settled in his own dominions, the king of France might be better disposed and able to assist the Palatinate in the present broils of Germany.' The French minister said, 'We will have none of your advices.'—The Briton replied, that 'he took that for an answer, and was sorry only that the amicable intention of his master was not duly understood; unless it was to abruptly rejected, he could do no less than say that the king knew well enough what to do.' De Luines answered.—'We are not afraid of you.' Sir Edward smiling a little, replied, 'If you had said you had not loved us, I should have believed you, and should have given you another answer; in the mean time, all that I will tell you more is, that we know very well what we have to do.' De Luines, upon this flaring from his seat, said 'By God, if you were not monsieur l'ambassadeur, I know very well how I would use you.' Sir Edward, also rising from his chair, said, 'that he was the king of Great Britain's ambassador, to whom as a gentleman, and this his sword (on which he clapped his hand) should give him full satisfaction, if he was pleased to take any offence.' To this the Frenchman made no reply; and Sir Edward walked towards the door, to which De Luines seeming to accompany him. Sir Edward said that, 'after such language there was no occasion to use such ceremony;' and so departed, expecting to hear farther from him.

He had afterwards a gracious audience of the French king; after which a courtier told him, that, after having offended the constable De Luines, he was not in a place of safety, he gallantly answered, that 'he always confidered himself in a place of safety wherever his sword went with him.'

The vindictive De Luines procured his brother with an army of officers (of whom there was not one, as he told King James) that had not killed his man) to go as ambassador extraordinary to England, who by misrepresented the affair, that Sir Edward was recalled; but on his return cleared up the affair in his honor.—He however left on his knees to the king, beseeching him that a second might be sent to the French ambassador from him, bearing an accusation of falsity, and a challenge for satisfaction; but James, not [illegible] quel pitch [illegible] only the answer, 'tell the would [illegible]' De Luines died [illegible] and Sir Edward Herbert was again sent ambassador to France.

the occurences of La Mancha, of which we have nothing to say, but that if the scandalous habit of dispersing is not remedied, there cannot be a remedy to our misfortunes

"The English continue at Bajados & the frontier places, which they are powerfully fortifying.

"The army of Estremadura, which possessed itself of Archbishop's bridge with great slaughter of the enemy, afterwards proceeded towards Talavera, and where it was attacked by the French who being superior in number, it was obliged to fall back over that bridge.

"We cannot ascertain with precision the points occupied by the army of the Duke del Parque, but we suppose it to be in the vicinity of Placentia.—From the point occupied by those troops to the Bay of Biscay, we know not whether there are any other troops than the troops which are under the orders of Brigadier D. Juan Diaz Porlier, of the number of which, we are ignorant, and who were at the close of last month at Leon, and in its neighborhood."

Malaga, Dec. 4.

The consequences of the disposition of the army at Ocana, have not been so considerable as fear and the love of the Country at first suggested.——A great part of our troops, with some cannon, were collected in the Sierra, and they soon descend into La Mancha, which the enemy had not penetrated. This proves that the defeat they had suffered prevented them from pursuing our army.

MODERN BENEFICENCE.

Such is the degraded state into which all the nations conquered by Bonaparte are reduced; that it has been published in Italy, even which his son in law reigns, as an act of "the great benevolence and condescension of Napoleon the Great," that he had "vouchsafed" to create out of his Italian slaves and favorites, at one batch, sixteen new Senators, eight Legislators, seven Counsellors of state, forty five Barons, three Chamberlains of the King, four Ladies of Honor to the Queen, several Grand Dignitaries of the Iron Crown and a great number of Knights of various degrees!

American Ambassadors.——An American Correspondent, now in London, enclosing an article, relating the manner in which Mr. Adams was received on his arrival in Russia, thus expresses himself—

"The enclosed will give you a very just idea of the opinion which all Foreign Courts have of the insignificance of our Government. An American who has a fortune, and lives like a Gentleman, is more noticed and respected at the Courts of St. Cloud and St. Petersburgh, than the American Ambassador because the former supports his character, & the latter is not able to support the style of a Gentleman with the salary allowed to him by his Government."

The following is the article enclosed in the letter, from which the preceding was extracted. It was taken from a London paper of the 22d of November.

"Letters from St. Petersburgh, of the 26, Oct. have been transmitted by the Gottenburgh Mails. They mention the arrival there of the American Plenipotentiary, Mr. JOHN Q. ADAMS, on the 23d, in the merchant ship Horace. The approach to the Russian capital of this ship and her charge, had been previously announced from Carlscrona, and for a day or two previous to her appearance, guns were prepared on the ramparts to give eclat to the landing of this new states man; at length, instead of a frigate, as was expected, a merchant ship laden with sugar and coffee hove in sight. A boat was hoisted out, and Mr. Adams approached the shore, but before he was suffered to land, he underwent a severe examination by the Officers of the Customs, who were with difficulty convinced that he was the Ambassador expected from the new world. He was, however, at last permitted to land, but the usual salute by the guns on shore did not take place.

Extract of a letter from a member of Congress, to the editor of the Raleigh Minerva, dated Washington, January 18, 1810.

"A gentleman arrived here yesterday from Mexico, and was introduced to the President —He says the people of that country have come to a determination to declare themselves independent if they find that the Fr. will conquer Spain; that they hate the Fr. and are jealous of the English. It is believed that he is deputed by the people of that country to make some overtures to our Government on that subject."

Remarkable Affidavit.—Mr. James Miller, has petitioned the Legislature of Ohio, praying assistance, and stating that he has six children, all born cripples, and who have never been able to stand, walk, or talk, but have remained as helpless as infants from the day of their birth. Four of them are daughters, from 17 to 25 years of age; the other two are sons, the younger 18 years old.

HALIFAX, November 10, 1809.

PROVINCIAL ASSEMBLY.

Thursday, the Provincial Assembly having met, agreeable to Proclamation, for dispatch of public business—about half past one o'clock, His Excellency Sir George Prevost, Bart. attended as usual proceeded to the Council Chamber; and the Speaker and House of Representatives being summoned to attend, His Excellency was pleased to open the Session with the following Speech, to both branches of the Legislature:

Mr. President, and Gentlemen of His Majesty's Council;

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly:—

WHILE Europe, afflicted with calamities, is struggling under the disastrous events of sanguinary war, planned to overthrow those ancient Governments, under which the Nations on that Continent, were rapidly advancing in civilization and happiness—our hearts ought to be filled with gratitude to the Almighty, under whose divine favor, the powerful Empire to which we belong, now alone maintains her envied prosperity, and independence; while she defends the remotest part of her extensive dominions, is able to extend her succouring arm, in aid of those Nations which yet have energy to contend for their freedom and independence.

In times of such general calamity, it is fit we should be vigilant in performing the duties we owe to God and the King; and ready on every occasion to defend, to the utmost of our power, the political establishments, under which we, and our ancestors have lived happy and free.

It is with sincere pleasure, that during this awful period of public Affairs, I can congratulate you on the flourishing state of the Agriculture and Trade of this Province; which, daily gaining strength, rapidly advances to that prosperity, which is the natural result of those sources of industry, and beneficial intercourse with our fellow subjects, that mutually support and strengthen each other.

The Treasurer of the Province has my commands, to submit for your information, a state of the Revenue, with an account of the Receipts and Expenditures, since the last Session; from which the prosperous situation of our finances will appear; and, it gives me peculiar satisfaction to find, that our resources will enable me to pursue upon a more extensive scale, these measures, which I consider so essential to the permanent interests and prosperity of the Province.

I am now able, from my own observation, as well as the information I have received from those employed on that service, to call your particular attention to the public Roads; in the hope that I shall be enabled the ensuing year, to have a free communication open to the Capital, from all parts of the Province, and to model the Roads according to that form, which experience has proved to be the most useful and permanent.

For these purposes, I have caused an estimate to be made, for the sums of money necessary to be appropriated to that service; the ensuing year, which the Secretary will by my orders, present to you: Together with Estimates of the Civil Establishment of the Government, and such other public services, as I consider necessary to be provided for, in this Session.

The Agriculture, Trade, and Fisheries of the Province, having manifestly improved, under the system hitherto pursued, I recommend a continuance of the same for the ensuing year.

If, in the course of your deliberations, any other Services, not comprehended in the Estimates I have directed to be laid before you, should in your opinion be necessary in the further prosperity and welfare of the country, I shall give a ready and serious attention, to whatever you may think proper to submit, for my consideration.

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly;

The experience I have had of your wisdom and liberality, in making adequate provision for the support of his Majesty's Government, and the ready attention you have given, to such other exigences, which, it has been my duty to point out, gives me a perfect reliance on your continuing the same good disposition, in the present Session.

Mr. President, and Gentlemen of his Majesty's Council;

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly;—

The measure adopted by the Legislature, for establishing a sufficient Militia, have been carried into effect, under my orders; and I have much satisfaction in informing you, they have been attended with the happiest success; I therefore, recommend to you, the continuing of those laws, with such amendments as experience may point out.

Sensible of the great personal inconvenience, which a protracted Session, at this advanced period of the year, would be to you all; I have been particularly anxious, that the Public Accounts, and Estimates, of every kind, should be ready for you, at the opening of the Session; and I beg you to proceed, with diligence and unanimity, to the immediate consideration of the business for which you are now assembled;—and I assure you, that I will contribute every thing in my power, to accomplish a purpose so desirable.

Miscellany.

BAREIN, a swift-footed animal, that abounds at Kamptskatka. Bears put in practice a remarkable stratagem to catch these animals, which run too swift for them to expect much in pursuing them. The bareins herd together in great numbers, at the bottom of precipices; at the top of which the bear conceals himself, and, with his paws, pushes down upon them large pieces of rock. If he perceives that he has killed or maimed any of the flock, he descends and devours the prey. There appears to be a peculiar sagacity in the country. The Kamptskadales are indebted greatly to their bears not only for their food and clothing, but for their medicines. They say that their knowledge of the medicinal virtues of certain plants was obtained by their ancestors, from observing the use made of them by bears, when sick or maimed.—Cook's Voyage.

BASTINADO, a cruel punishment practiced in the Turkish dominions, and often inflicted upon the innocent, with a view of squeezing money from them. The victim is thrown upon his belly, and his legs raised up, so that the soles of his feet are horizontal. A chain is then thrown round both feet above the ancles, which are twisted together; and two fellows hold up the feet, by means of a stick that is fastened to the chain. Thus prepared the blows upon the soles of the feet commence, and give excruciating pain.

There have been instances of the bastinado having been repeated for three days successively, to the number of three thousand strokes; after which the feet are generally left useless for life; and it often happens that before they have received six hundred strokes, the blood gushes from their mouth and nose, and they die either under or soon after the operation. When the punishment of the bastinado is inflicted on an alien, never so unjustly, and merely for the sake of extorting money from him, and the sufferer complains to a magistrate of the higher order, all he can get from him is this reply, "Min Allah, Macktub, Muckkader! that is, it is from God, it is written in the book of fate, which cannot be altered."—Antes.

AREOPAGUS, a celebrated Athenian tribunal: it was in the city of Athens, on the summit of a rock or hill opposite the citadel; the word Areopagus signifying literally rock of Mars. The judges of this court voted with pieces of flint, held between the thumb and fingers; putting their votes into two urns, the one called the urn of death, and the other the urn of compassion. The primitive condition of the Areopagus, the judges were remarkable for their integrity and impartiality; but in process of time they degenerated: they condemned the wise and virtuous Socrates; three hundred and sixty-one of them, on that occasion, casting their votes into the urn of death. St. Paul was brought before this high and ancient court; when he delivered that powerful address recorded in the 17th of Acts; and Dyonisius, one of his judges, was converted by him to the christian faith.

Apollo's Statue:—A brazen statue, of a prodigious size, dedicated to the god Apollo. It had formerly stood in the city of Gela in Sicily. The Carthaginians having taken it, about four hundred years before the nativity of Christ, had given it by way of present to the city of Tyre, which was the parent of Carthage, and the Tyrians had set it up in their City, and worship was paid to it. During Alexander's siege of Tyre, on a dream which one of the citizens had, the Tyrians imagined that Appollo was determined to leave them, and go over to Alexander; and immediately they fastened with a golden chain, his statue to the altar of Hercules, the tutelar god of the city, to prevent Appollo from making his escape. Such strange ideas did some of the wisest among the pagan nations entertain of their divinities!—Rollin.

TORPEDO, a fish that gives to those who touch it a kind of electric shock. The body of this fish is almost circular; the skin is soft, smooth, and of a yellowish colour, marked with large annular spots; the tail tapering to a point. Such is that unaccountable power it possesses, that, the instant it is touched, it numbs not only the hand and arm, but sometimes also the whole body. The shock received most resembles the stroke of an electrical machine; sudden, tingling, and painful. Even if one treads upon it with the shoe on, it affects not only the leg, but the whole thigh upwards. The nerves are so affected, that the person struck, imagines all the bones of his body, and particularly those of the limb that receive the blow, are driven out of joint. All this is accompanied with an universal tremor, a sickness of the stomach, a general convulsion, and an universal suspension of the faculties of the mind.—Goldsmith.

Caution to persons engaged in nurseries of Fruit-Trees.

The Apple Tree, and many of the other valuable Fruit-Trees, have been originally procured from Syria, and Africa. They should be kept from their first growth, pruned in such a manner as to cause them to spread very much, rather than be allowed to shoot up tall;—they should be cleared from all limbs which stop and interfere with a free circulation of the air. From May to November, manure enough to destroy the weeds and grass, should be put about the stems; but this must be carefully removed about the first of November, as after that period, it begets a hurtful and intemperate heat, and shelters mice &c.

It is to be remarked that uncommon negligence, often causes the total loss of the best fruit trees.

MONDAY, MARCH 12.

On the 8th and 9th Instant, the Legislative Council, and Commons House of Assembly, of this Province, went up to His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, when the following Loyal and Unanimous Addresses, To The King's Most Excellency Majesty, on His entering into the Fifteth Year of His Reign, were presented to Him by their respective Speakers, accompanied with Addresses to His Excellency, praying Him to transmit the same, to be laid at the foot of the Throne.

TO THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

The Humble Address of the Legislative Council of the Province of Upper Canada.

MOST GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN,

WE your Majesty's most dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Legislative Council of Upper Canada, in Parliament Assembled, do most humbly present to your Majesty, our sincere Congratulations, on your having entered into the Fifteth year of your Majesty's Reign.

With Gratitude and Thankfulness we acknowledge, that whilst surrounding Nations have been torn by civil Dissension and Outrage, and after the most sanguinary Revolutions and Convulsions, have been constrained to submit to the Yoke of Tyrannical Power, we, under your Majesty's Mild and Upright Government, have the happiness to be Free.

We acknowledge also, as a most especial Blessing, which has accompanied and adorned your Majesty's Reign; that whilst Atheism and Infidelity have been openly professed, without check or controul in other Countries, Religion and Virtue have found a most firm, and steady support within the British Empire, from your Majesty's Influence and Example.

Having experienced, and being fully sensible, of your Majesty's goodness, and Paternal care, we offer our most unfeigned thanks for that protection and encouragement, which at all times, your Majesty has condescended to bestow upon every pursuit, that may tend to improve, instruct, and enrich your People.

Attached to your Majesty's Person and Government; happy in the enjoyment of that invaluable Constitution, which we possess; and grateful for the Bounty, which in this Province we have received from your Royal hands; We the Legislative Council of Upper Canada, do most fervently implore the Great Ruler of Princes, that he may be Graciously pleased, to preserve your Majesty's valuable Life, and to permit your Majesty long to continue to be the Father, the Protector, and the King of your People.

By order of the House,

THOS SCOTT, Speaker.

Legislative Council Chamber, Eighth Day of March, 1810.

TO THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

MOST GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons of Upper Canada, in Parliament Assembled, humbly pray your Majesty to accept our warmest Congratulations, on the happy Event of your Majesty having attained the Fiftieth year of your Reign. An Event so pleasing to all your Majesty's Subjects in this remote Colony, that it hath pleased Almighty God to preserve the life of your Majesty until this Period, while one and all are imploring the Great Disposer of Events, still to cherish and preserve a life so dear as that of our most beloved King. Let it not be considered Ostentation from the humble Commons of Upper Canada, to offer their prayers for a life endeared to the Subjects of this Province, by the most Parental affection; your Majesty having afforded your Loyal Subjects of this Province, an asylum in the hour of distress, when nothing was left them, but their Loyalty to their King, their Lives, and their Honor.

Permit us, SIRE, to assure your Majesty, that none of your Subjects are animated with a more fervent zeal of Loyalty and Attachment to your Sacred Person and Government, than your Majesty's Subjects of Upper Canada.

(Signed SAML. STREET, Speaker,

Commons House of Assembly, Friday, the Ninth Day of March, 1810.

This day the following Address was presented to His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor

To His Excellency FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c &c &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

WE His Majesty's dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons of Upper Canada in Parliament Assembled; beg leave to assure your Excellency of our approbation of your Excellency's Administration of the Government of this Province, which since your arrival among us, has encreased in Wealth, Prosperity and Commerce, far exceeding our most sanguine expectations, aided by your wise and liberal exertions to promote the same.

WE should not intrude on your Excellency at this time, to express the general sentiment of the People of this Province, did we not feel ourselves called upon and impelled by a sense of that duty which we owe to our Constituents, His Majesty's Loyal Subjects of this Province, to you Sir, as Administering the Government thereof, and to that August Sovereign, whom we revere as the Father of His People; only to express our abhorrence and indignation at a Pamphlet now before us, addressed to the King, Lords and Commons of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, containing in almost every Page, the most gross and false aspersions on your Excellency, and His Majesty's Executive Government, the House of Assembly and the Loyal Inhabitants of this Province; under the Signature of JOHN MILLS JACKSON, tending to misrepresent a Brave and Loyal portion of His Majesty's Subjects.

The Commons of Upper Canada, as the Organ of the People, consider the Author and the Publisher of such false and Libellous Pamphlet, as a Character endeavoring to alienate the minds of the unwary from His Majesty's Government, and to diminish the Parental affection of His Majesty to his Liege Subjects in this Province; which with gratitude, we proudly acknowledge to have experienced an ample and abundant share of.

In addressing your Excellency, we feel a satisfaction in repeating our approbation of your Excellency's Administration of this Government, without entering into details which would exceed the bounds of an Address.

We humbly request your Excellency will be pleased to represent us to His Majesty in our true Character, as Loyal Subjects, to remove any impression which such Libel may have made, or might make under such imputation.

(Signed) SAML. STREET, Speaker.

Commons House of Assembly, 12th March, 1810.

To which His Excellency was pleased to return the following Answer.

Gentlemen of the House of Assembly,

THE Publication which you mention, contains the most Gross misrepresentations of the Principles, Temper, and Situation, of every class of His Majesty's Subjects in this Province, and is calculated to produce, the most Pernicious effects.

The approbation which you have been pleased to express, respecting my Conduct, merits my acknowledgement, and thanks.

It shall be my Duty, to convey the Sentiments of His Majesty's faithful and Loyal Commons of Upper Canada, to the Foot of the Throne.

12th March, 1810.

This day His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, with the usual Formalities, closed the Session of the Legislature, and was pleased to deliver the following Speech to both Houses:

Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council, and

Gentlemen of the House of Assembly,

IN closing this Session of the Legislature, I with pleasure embrace the opportunity of expressing my approbation of that Zeal with which you have discharged the duties committed to your Care.

The Regulations which you have Enacted respecting the Statute Labour on the High Ways, as well as the liberal appropriation of Money for the purpose of laying out and amending certain Roads, and of Building of Bridges, I consider as an Honorable Testimony of the attention which you have paid to objects of Public Utility and Benefit.

By the extension of the Powers delegated to the Commissioners for Purchasing Hemp of the Growth of this Province, a facility will be obtained of establishing Manufactures of that valuable Article amongst ourselves.

The Laws which are now passed for the Prevention and Punishment of Forgery, and Counterfeiting of Foreign Bills of Exchange, and other Securities for the payment of Money, which we have adopted from our Parent State, will, I trust put a stop to a Crime so detrimental to the Interests of Civil Society in every Country.

I entertain the hope, that the other Bills passed by you, and to which I have Assented in His Majesty's Name, will produce the Salutary Ends, for which they were intended.

But Gentlemen, before I Prorogue this Session of the Legislature, I cannot deny myself the Satisfaction, of uniting my Congratulations with yours, on the happy Event of His Majesty having entered into the Fiftieth year of his Reign; to few Sovereigns has it been granted for so long a period to Reign in the Hearts and Affections of his People; may his Subjects ever bear in mind, the Security and Protection which they have enjoyed under his Government; may his valuable Life, if it should so please Almighty God, be still prolonged for their Benefit; and may we in this Province, who have been Specially favored by his Bounty, manifest our Gratitude, by Attachment to His Person and Government, and by obedience to his Laws.

His Excellency was then pleased to Prorogue the Provincial Parliament, to Monday the 16th day of April next.

At the Annual Town-Meeting, held at THOMS STOYELL'S Tavern, on Monday the 5th day of March, 1810, the following Persons, were Chosen and Sworn Town and Parish Officers.

We learn that the Government has received dispatches from Mr. Adair, dated in the beginning of last month, which do not agree with the accounts in the French papers, that the British influence in Constantinople had diminished. The events which took place on the Danube, and the successes of the Russians have occasioned considerable consternation and embarrassment in the Divan, but have not caused any change in their communication with our minister, whose last dispatches continued to request, agreeably to the desire of the Porte, the presence of a British squadron in the Turkish seas. LONDON Dec. 4.

At a late hour this morning, we received Moniteurs and other Paris papers to the 23d ult. The former contains a letter from General Suchet, at Saragossa, dated 31st Oct.—It gives an account of operations in his quarter, from the 13th October. On the 26th Brigadier Villa Campo, with 7000 men, was attacked at N. S. de Fremended, a very strong position. The battle lasted 3 hours and the Spaniards fought with the greatest bravery.—They had fortified themselves in a Monastery, which was taken by assault.—On the 30th the enemy passed the river near Torre de Segre, and attacked a Spanish camp which, was surrounded—they then pushed on within half a League of Lerida.

DECEMBER, 5.

A Spanish Officer has arrived with Dispatches which are said to afford great hopes of the immediate surrender of Barcelona, which is in the greatest distress for want of provisions, in consequence of the destruction of the convoy destined for its relief. The Spaniards are said to be preparing to storm Fort-Montjuic.

The chief Spanish army is pursuing the plan for which it was put in motion, of penetrating to Madrid.——The necessary preparations for passing the Tagus, in the neighborhood of Aranjuez, having been completed on the 12th, 10 Battalions were sent over on the following day to reconnoitre; and the whole of the army, except one division left to observe Toledo, was immediately to follow. These measures and movements would necessarily bring on a general engagement.

This march towards Madrid, though not oppofed as might have been expected, has not been wholly uninterrupted. A ftrong corps of the enemy, proceeding to Toledo, endeavored to throw itfelf into the rear of the Spanifh army, but the project failed.

The Duke del Parque has occupied thofe very important pofitions the Puerto de Banos and the Bridge of Bejar; through the neglect of which, Ney effected his junction with Soult.

We have received Dutch papers and letters to the 27th laft. It is ftated as a report in the latter, that Bonaparte means to annex Holland to the Empire of France.—A new kingdom will of courfe be created for King Louis.

DECEMBER, 6.

Paris papers have arrived to the 29th ult. and Dutch to the 2d inft. They fpeak of the immenfe force that is about to proceed againft Spain—160,000. The Duke of Dalmatia has arrived at Madrid, and will foon be followed by Bonaparte.

From a Spanifh Paper.

GRANADA, Dec. 12.

We learn, that the Patriot Army under General Blake, continues in its pofitions near the immortal Gerona. This Army has lately been augmented, by many thousand mountaineers, valiant defenders of their invaded country; and thus are ftrengthed the hopes of the fuccefs of that caufe which all good men approve.

Up to the 7th inft, nothing new had occurred in the army under the command of the Duke del Parque, or in that of Signior Alburquelque.

Letters from Toledo affert, that the lofs of the French, in the battle of Ocana, was 4 or 5000 men; and it is faid to be confirmed by official returns.

One account of the battle of the 28th of Nov. in which the army of the Duke del P. was engaged, mentions that we took two thoufand prifoners.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH, 21

Extract from the minutes of the proceedings in the House of Aſſembly 16th March 1810.

The Houſe went into the order of the day for taking into conſideration a motion made yeſterday by Mr. C. Willſon, ſeconded by Mr M'Nabb, that the Houſe do reſolve, that the Pamphlet entitled, "A View of the Province of Upper Canada," ſigned John Mills Jackſon, contains a falſe, ſcandalous and ſeditious LIBEL; compriſing expreſſions of the moſt unexampled inſolence, and contumely towards his Majeſty's Government of this Province, the groſſeſt aſperſions upon the Houſe of Aſſembly, the Courts of Juſtice therein, and the Officers of the Civil Eſtablihment of the ſaid Government, and moſt manifeſtly tending to alienate the affections of the People from His Majeſty's Government of this Province; to withdraw them from their obedience to the Laws of the Country, and to excite them to inſurrection.

The Houſe unanimouſly resolved the ſames

Mr. Gough moved, ſeconded by Mr. McNabb, that the Houſe do preſent an Addreſs to His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, expreſſive of its abhorrence and deteſtation of an infamous and ſeditious Libel, ſigned John Mills Jackſon, and that Meſſrs. C. Willſon, M'Lean and M'Gregor be a ſelect Committee to draft the ſame.

Which was ordered accordingly.

Mr. C. Willſon, ſeconded by Mr. Gough moved, that the Pamphlet entitled, "A View of the Province of Upper Canada" ſigned John Mills Jackſon, be preſerved amonſt the Records of this Houſe.

The Houſe unanimouſly ordered the ſame.

Mr. Gough then moved, ſeconded by Mr C. Willſon, that the names of the Members preſent be taken down.

The names of the Members present, were accordingly taken down, and are as follow:

The Speaker,

James M'Nabb,	Joseph Willcocks,
Stephen Burritt,	D. M. G. Rogers,
Henry Marcle,	Thomas Fraser,
J. B. Babv,	Matthew Elliott,
Allan M'Lean,	David Secord,
Phillip Sovereign,	Levi Lewis,
T. S. Gough,	John M'Gregor,
Peter Howard,	and
John Willson,	Crowell Willson,
	Esquires.

York, Upper Canada, 11th March, 1810.

And grounded on these Resolutions, the following Address was presented on the 12th Instant, to his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

To His Excellency FRANCIS GORE Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c &c &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

WE His Majesty's dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Commons of Upper Canada in Parliament Assembled; beg leave to assure your Excellency of our approbation of your Excellency's Administration of the Government of this Province, which since your arrival among us, has increased in Wealth, Prosperity, and Commerce, far exceeding our most sanguine expectations, aided by your wise and liberal exertions to promote the same.

WE shou not intrude on your Excellency at this time, to express the general sentiment of the People of this Province, did we not feel ourselves called upon and impelled by a sense of that duty which we owe to our Constituents, His Majesty's Loyal Subjects of this Province, to you Sir, as administering the Government thereof, and to that Auguft Sovereign, whom we revere as the Father of His People; only to express our abhorrenee and indignation at a Pamphlet now before us, addressed to the King, Lords, and Commons of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, containing in almoft every page, the moft gross and false asperfions on your Excellency and His Majefty's Executive Government, the Houfe of Aflembly, and the Loyal Inhabitants of this Province; under the fignature of JOHN MILLS JACKSON, tending to mifrepreſent a brave and loyal portion of His Majefty's Subjects

The Commons of Upper Canada, as the Organ of the People, confider the Author and the Publiſher of such false and libellous Pamphlet, as a Character endeavoring to alienate the minds of the unwary, from His Majefty's Government, and to diminiſh the Parental affection of His Majeſty to his Liege Subjects in this Province; which with gratitude, we proudly acknowledge to have experienced an ample and abundant ſhare of.

In addreſſing your Excellency, we feel a ſatisfaction in repeating our approbation of your Excellency's Adminiſtration of this Government, without entering into details which would exceed the bounds of an Addreſs.

We humbly requeſt your Excellency will be pleaſed to repreſent us to His Majeſty in our true Character, as Loyal Subjects, to remove any impreſſion which ſuch Libel may have made, or might make under ſuch imputation.

Commons Houſe of Aſſembly,
12th March, 1810.

Statement of Proceedings in Court, &c.

On Tuesday laſt came on the Leaſt Aſſizes for the Home Diſtrict, before the Hon. THOS. SCOTT, Chief Juſtice, when after the learned Judge had delivered his charge to the Grand Jury, Mr. Firth the Attorney General, roſe and addreſſed the Court nearly as follows:

"MY LORD,

"Before the Grand Jury retire to their Chamber, I beg the indulgence of the Court to say a few words. It will be in the recollection of your Lordſhip that at the laſt Aſſizes held here, the Grand Jury preſented Mr. Willcocks for a ſeditious Libel againſt the Government and Lieutenant Governor. In ſo doing, if my humble concurrence is any thing, I think they faithfully diſcharged their duty to the Country, and amply deſerve its thanks for the eſſential ſervice they performed. I would only ſay that had they omitted so to do, I ſhould have conſidered it my bounden duty to have filed an Information Ex Officio for the ſame Libel; but I was happy in this inſtance in being foreſtalled by a Preſentment from the Country. It muſt be notorious to all, that the Upper Canada Guardian has been for a length of time a Paper directly calculated to miſlead the People and to alienate their minds from their lawful Allegiance to their good old King and from his Repreſentative in this Province; and to bring into contempt the general Adminiſtration of the Government, by vilifying thoſe who held the higher and more reſpectable offices under Government. Theſe Libels became so frequent that Juſtice loudly called for the Proſecution of the Publiſher. Happily however it now appears that they have not made the purpoſed impreſſion on the Public mind. Notwithſtanding the oſtenſible verbal motive to these Publications affected to be proudly Patriotic, and intended for the Public Good, let him not tell me of his Patriotism; it is not the holy, generous, and expanſive flame which glows and animates, and illumes every Britiſh bosom: it is the paly fire of the Sepulchral lamp dimly making viſible its little horizon of darkneſs. The Loyalty of the Province is undoubted—it has been evinced many ways, witneſs the Loyal Addreſſes from almoſt all parts of the Province, the Addreſses of the Grand Jury of this and other Diſtricts, compoſed of the moſt reſpectable Perſons, witneſs alſo the Addreſs of the Commons Houſe of Parliament, the united voice of the People of the Province denying the foul imputation contained in an inflammatory and ſeditious Pamphlet puoliſhed in England and addreſſed to the King, Lords, and Commons, in which the whole Adminiſtration of the Government, and all who bear office in it from the higheſt to the loweſt are calumniated in one indiſcriminate abuſe. To give you an idea of the nature and temper of this Libel, I will (with the leave of your Lordſhip) read one ſhort Paragraph."

(Extract.)

"The moſt loyal attached and determined People are become ſo aggrieved, enſlaved and irritated that they view with delight the proſpect of hoſtilities with America, in the hope of being freed from that Government to which they once looked for ſecurity, liberty and repoſe."

"Now is this true?—Aſk the Loyal and Reſpectable Yeomanry who ſurround me if this be true?—I answer no, it is a falſe aſſertion, and their deeds in arms will refute the base falſehood whenever the hour of trial ſhall come. What other Country on Earth enjoys the bleſſings we do? We live under a Conſtitution, the envy of the World, in a ſtate of perfect freedom, with laws which ſecure to us the undiſturbed enjoyment of our Property, our Civil and Religious rights and our perſonal Liberty. We are abſolutely loaded with the bounties of Providence, and have every thing in common with our Parent Country, but its burdens. What would our good old King (who has reigned in the hearts of his ſubjects for more than half a Century, now that he is old and full of years and verging towards the grave) what I aſk, would he ſay if he were told that the Province was not well affected to his Perſon and Government, and that nothing but murmurs and diſcontent were to be ſeen in the countenance of his ſubjects here on whom he had conferred ſo many bleſſings, and to whom ſhewn ſo many bounties?—I think it would at leaſt produce ſome painful emotions in his aged breaſt, and ſomewhat embitter the tranſitory moments of his declining years. But it is a calumny and a ſlander on his ſubjects, to impute to them theſe dread things.

When the public ſafety appeared thus ſecured harmleſs from the attack made on every thing like Order and Inſtitution which was anywiſe connected with Government, and the ſhafts of malice fell pointleſs, then was the time for magnanimity to ſhew itſelf in forgetting the perſonal injury and extending an act of Chriſtian Charity and forgiveneſs to one from whom I doubt not the return of gratitude. I have therefore to ſignify to your Lordſhip his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor's Commands that I ſhould enter a Nolle Proſequi on the Preſentment againſt Mr. Willcocks, for a ſeditious Libel. It is an act highly honorable to his feelings, and of no common mind: when he found a seeming enemy on the brink of a precipice into which he muſt inevitably have been plunged, with a generous hand he has raiſed him up from deſtruction.

As to the Official Information I filed againſt Mr. Willcocks for a ſeditious and defamatory Libel on Colonel Claus and the Indian Department of Government, I would on my own part, ſay a word or two, altho' I have had no communication whatever with that Gentleman on the ſubject, yet in as much as Acts of Grace and Mercy have been extended around us to thoſe charged with offences againſt the Law, of a certain claſs, I would not wiſh that this Province ſhould be behind-hand in beſtowing a ſort of general Amneſty to offenders againſt the Crown, but only ſo far as we have Authority to do, I am therefore confident it will not be conſidered as an abuſe of the Royal prerogative in my entering alſo a Nolle Proſequi on the Information filed againſt Mr. W. and I do truſt that this Mercy will not be beſtowed in vain. At the ſame time I muſt obſerve that the Libel which was the ſubject of this Proſecution was Publiſhed in the abſence of Colonel Claus, when he had no means of defending himſelf. I have always underſtood him to be a faithful and meritorious Officer, and what has a ſoldier to live upon but his honor! It is his life, it is the principle of vitality that glows in his bosom. It is the prop that doth ſuſtain the houſe. Tear it away and the fabric in a moment is levelled with the duſt. Libels on the Characters of Individuals ſtrike deep in the heart of the innocent and when unatoned, only lead the injured to acts of paſſion, and revenge which Lord Bacon not inaptly calls 'a ſort of wild Juſtice.' To give one inſtance out of hundreds which might be produced to exemplify the fearful danger of perſonal Libels; Lord Chief Juſtice Holt mentions the caſe in an action for words where the Judgement was arreſted on account of ſome informality. The Plaintiff in the action roſe up in the midſt of a crowded Court, and exclaimed in the bitterneſs of his feelings, "If I had known that, my Lord, I would have had his blood." It cannot but awaken our paſſions and make our boſoms throb with indignation, when thoſe baſe aſſaſſins of reputation ſtab in the dark, thoſe they have not the courage to attack, or look in the face of in the day; and, my Lord, as it is in the natural world that the canker feeds upon the goodlieſt fruit, ſo it is that theſe calumniators fix upon the faireſt Character, for theſe are in truth their deadlieſt foes. even thoſe who ſtand forward the moſt prominent for their virtues and are moſt eminent for their good qualities: and thoſe who languiſh under ſuch foul imputations find no conſolation but in the inward conſciouſneſs of their own innocence. My Lord, I do hope and truſt that Mr. Willcocks will feel a due ſense of gratitude for the mercy and forbearance which has thus been ſhewn him, proving eminently that which is ſo beautifully expreſſed by our great Bard, that "The quality of Mercy is not ſtrain'd:

It droppeth, as the gentle rain from Heaven
Upon the place beneath. It is twice bleſſed;
It bleſſeth him that gives, and him that takes."—

My Lord, I beg pardon for this intruſion on your time, I have now done."

Mr. Willcocks then addreſſed the Court as follows:

"MY LORD,

I receive with pleaſure the information from the Attorney General, but at the ſame time I cannot but obſerve that it might have been conveyed without ſo many vile and injurious expreſſions againſt my loyalty and character. I do conceive myſelf, My Lord, to be as true and as loyal a Subject to his Majeſty, as ever was in America: and I defy the Attorney General or any other man in the Province, to produce a ſingle inſtance of my Diſloyalty. I depended, my Lord, in the preſent caſe, upon the Laws of my Country for an acquittal, and I aſſure you, that I never dream't of a Conviction."

By the Court:—

"I am ſorry to ſee his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor's Mercy ſo ungraciously received, and I hope and truſt, that in future, you will conduct yourſelf in ſuch a manner as to render it unneceſſary."——

Mr. Willcocks attempted to reply, but was ſtopped by the Court, in theſe words;—"I will have no reply from you Sir.—And I muſt obſerve that lately, your Paper has ſeemed with Libels not only againſt his Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, but againſt every perſon who is high in office: whether you would have been convicted in the preſent caſe, or not, I cannot preſume to ſay."

There was a general murmur of diſapprobation of the ungracious conduct of Mr. W.

Denmark and Sweden.—The pacific negociations between Sweden and Denmark are terminated.—The plenipotentiaries reached the ſcene of negociation on the 11th ult. and on the morning of the 25th, intelligence was received at Stockholm, that peace pas concluded.

The ſucceſſion of Prince Auguſtenburgh to the Swediſh Throne is likely to meet with oppoſition, as a ſtrong party has been formed in favor of Guſtavus's ſon, who, it was reported, would be favored by Ruſſia. An untounded rumour prevailed in Gottenburgh on the 25th ult. that the late king Guſtavus, was dead.

The private letters from Sweden, ſpeak of a growing miſunderſtanding between Denmark and France, but are wholly ſilent as to the cauſe.

[From London Papers to the 15th Dec. received by the ſhip Thomas Wilſon, arrived at Philadelphia, from Liverpool.]

LONDON, Dec. 18.

The day before yeſterday was the day fixed upon for the final evacuation of the Iſland of Walcheren, but in conſequence of the ſtrong weſterly winds which we have experienced for theſe ſeveral days paſt, we ſuppoſe the embarkation would be delayed. The 5th regiment was to cover the embarkation—and conſequently the laſt that would embark.

December 14.

Mr. Mayna, the Auſtrian Meſſenger, we now find, has bro't propoſals to our Government for a General Peace, to be negociated at a Congreſs to be held in ſome city in the north weſt of France. Should theſe propoſals be rejected, Prince Stahremberg has orders to leave this country. This important ſubject will be the firſt that will occupy the Marquis Wellesley's conſideration.

A propoſal for a cartel has been received, but not by the Meſſenger Mayna. Commiſſioners will probably be ſent immediately to ſome town on the coaſt of France to ſettle the terms of the Cartel.

Yeſterday a Cabinet Council was held at the Foreign Office. There were preſent the Lord Chancellor, the Marquis Wellesley, the Earls of Liverpool, Bathurſt, Weſtmoreland, Harrowby, and Chatham, Lord Mulgrave, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Secretary Ryder, and Mr. R. S. Dundas.

The Marquis Wellesley had appointed his brother-in law, Charles Cullen Smith, Esq. to the under Secretary of State in the Foreign Department.

The hon. Henry Wellesley is appointed Miniſter Plenipotentiary to Spain in the Room of Mr. Hookman Frere.

Yeſterday all the King's miniſters, in full dreſs paid their reſpects to the Perſian Ambaſſador. By the circumſtance of his Majeſty's not coming to town yeſterday, his excellency cannot ſtir out of doors, as by the etiquette of his high and lofty court, he muſt not ſhew himſelf abroad until he has delivered his credentials to his Majeſty at his Court. This ceremony is to take place on Wednesday next, the 20th inſtant, when his excellency will make his formal entry to the Queen's Palace, with Eaſtern ſplendor.

The Perſian Ambaſſador is a perſon of a moſt noble and dignified deportment. He is handsome and elegant. He has a family which is not conſidered large, of only ſixty three children; but it is conſidered as a mark of peculiar good fortune, even in Perſia, that he had ſix children born to him on one and the ſame day.

It is reported that Lord Wellington's army had quitted Badajos, and proceeded to Caſtello Branco. We know not whether the report be correct.

His Majeſty's ſquadron in the Baltic, under the command of Vice-Admiral Sir James Saumarez, and the cruiſers under his orders on the different ſtations incident to that extenſive command, have captured and deſtroyed 430 veſſels of various deſcriptions within the preſent year, the aggregate burthen of which exceeds 45,000 tons, navigated by 2,300 men, with 130 guns of different calibres. Of this grand total, 310 veſſels, with 1,900 men and 100 guns, including 14 ſtout cutter privateers and upwards of 80 armed ſchooners, are Danes, Government having fitted out a great number of veſſels of the latter claſs are employed in ſupplying Norway with grain during the unexampled ſcarcity occaſioned by the preſent war, which they are compelled at all riſks to attempt. The remaining 90 veſſels, with 430 men and 30 guns, belonged to Ruſſia and were captured in the Gulf of Finland, during the ſhort ſummer ſeaſon, in which are included an imperial ſchooner, 10 gun boats, and as many transports for carrying ſupplies to the Ruſſian army in Finland and in Bothnia, beſides the loſs ſuſtained in the very ſevere attacks on the Ruſſian flotillas in Percollo and Aspo, on the 7th and 25th of July, amounting in killed and wounded to 200 men.

NEW YORK February 19.

Madam Bonaparte Divorced.—Capt. Turner, of the Amazon, informs us that his Imperial Majeſty, Napoleon the 1ſt, has at length divorced his wife. He adds that the official ſtatement, or letter addreſſed to he public announcing the fact, had been publiſhed at Tonningen before he ſailed.—N. Y. Spect.

From Lisbon.—Captain Kearney, of the ſhip Montecello, who arrived this morning, in 40 days from Lisbon, ſtates that juſt before he ſailed, a Britiſh Packet arrived, in ſix days from Falmouth, bringing London papers to the 1st of January. He informs us that they contained nothing of importance, excepting, that Mr. Canning was appointed firſt Lord of the Admiralty.—Capt. K. alſo ſtates that the Britiſh troops had retired from Spain—that explanatory letters had paſſed between Sir Arthur Wellesley and the Spaniſh Junta, on this ſubject—and that the Britiſh head quarters were at Coenbry in Portugal. The Portuguese were raiſing a new army of 41,000 men.

From the Weſt Indies.—Captain Grois, of the brig Eliza Green, who arrived this morning in 13 days from Porto Rico, informs, that news had been received there that about the 25th of January, the Britiſh made a landing on the Iſland of Guadaloupe, between the river Salle and Baſſaterre; took and blew up ſeveral redoubts; and on the firſt inſtant, were to commence a general attack upon Baſſaterre.

February 28.

CAPTURE OF GUADALOUPE BY THE ENGLISH.

Captain Telford of the ſhip Phoenix, and captain Fowler of the ſhip Louiſa Cecelia, (he former veſſel belonging to James Johnſton and the captain, and the other to Jonathan Ogorn, one bound to Gijon and the other to Lisbon and ſunk at ſea by the French) arrived here yeſterday, via St. Bartholomews, in 210 days from Guadaloupe.

Theſe gentlemen informed the Editors of the New York Gazette, that on the 26th, 27th, and 29th of January, the Britiſh troops under the command of General Beckwith and Admiral Cochrane, completed their landing on the ſouth ſide of the iſland near Baſſaterre. The diſembarkation was effected without interruption and the weather being fine, no accident occurred.

On the 3d of February, at 5 in the morning the Britiſh attacked the French at Macoubac about ſix miles from Baſſaterre. The battle continued till 11, when there was a ceſſation till one, when it was renewed with encreased violence and laſted till dark.

At day light the next morning, the bloody conflict again began and laſted without intermiſſion till 8; at which time the French white flags were hoiſted on all the poſts, as a ſignal for capitulation.

At one o'clock on the 4th, Admiral Cochrane landed, and with ſeveral officers went into the French camp, and remained there till 8 in the morning of the 6th when he proceeded to Bellaverre, where he arrived about 10. Here, in the presence of captains Telford and Fowler, Admiral Cochrane observed to some of his officers, that the whole island had capitulated to the British, and that the articles of capitulation were signed that morning at 8 o'clock.

The report was, that the loss of the English was about 500 killed and wounded. The loss of the French was not known, but it was certain however, that it must have been great as only 5 men of their grenadier companies (some of Bonaparte's invincibles) survived. Every post was taken by storm at the point of the Bayonet; and the fighting was most desperate.

The French had in the engagement 130 brass pieces of artillery. Their numbers has not been ascertained. The British army, besides seamen and Marines, consisted of 7 or 8000 men. We further learn that the English were immediately to proceed against St. Eustatia, Saba and S. Martins. Where will the p or privateersmen fi d a skulking place?

Extract of a letter from the Cape of Good Hope, dated December 2. 1809.

"The isle of France has been vigorously blockaded for some time by the British, who have a squadron of 10 ships off the Island, & two ships on the coast of Madagascar.

"On the 20th September, the squadron went into St. Paul's Bay, Island of Bourbon, landed, and by surprise, took possession of the town. They cap ured the Caroline, Fr. Frigate, and retook the European and Strathan East Indiamen, which had been taken by that frigate some time since;—they kept possession of the place about ten days, & brought off the frigate, the two India-men, and three other vessels, with a quantity of indigo, silks &c. and burnt the Publick stores, with a large quantity of coffee, indigo &c. left in them.

Extracts from the N-Y. Spectator of the 5th and 7th Inst.

BALTIMORE Feb. 26.

Having received from a mercantile friend, a file of French papers by the Ewn, we are enabled to give further extracts this Evg —It will be seen by the French accounts, that the Tyrolese have not submitted; that immense bodies of French Troops remain in Germany; that the Jews are compelled to pass under the yoke of military conscription.

From Lisbon.—By the Fame from Lisbon, the editors of the Baltimore Federal Republican, have received Lisbon papers to 8th January.—30,000 French conscripts had passed into Spain. Joseph Bonaparte had marched for the northern frontier with 18,000 men. A Patriot army of 72,000 men were on their march to relieve Gerona, in which quarter the greatest enthusiasm prevailed among the Spaniards.—The French had not advanced to Ciduad Rodrigo. In addition to the taxes on the rich, the French had appropriated the Church plate to pay the army.——Fresh Cavalry and Artillery had recently arrived from England, and were marching to join the British army in Portugal.

The December storms had done considerable damage along the English coast, particularly at Yarmouth. A frigate arrived in England, with a million of dollars from Vera-Cruz.——Sir R. G. Keates, is appointed Governor of Malta.

LONDON, December 19.

A letter from Flushing dated Dec. 13th says, "I have to acquaint you that the whole of the troops in the Isle of Walcheren, embarked on board the transports on Sunday last, except the rear guard; and on the following day, the Dock heads, together with the whole of the build. were blown up and destroyed.—There were 250olbs. of powder, which completely upset the works to the foundation.—The same day the Dock, yard and Storehouses were set fire to and totally destroyed; after which, the arsenal was set on fire.

"The late gales have done much mischief here.—I am sorry to add, several transports have been blown on shore, and some totally lost. There are now 12 on shore, several of which, I fear, will never be got off again.—I much fear our line of battle ships will not be able to get away until next spring-tides, the wind blowing so hard from the S. W."

Dutch papers up to the 15th inst. have been received in town. They put us in possession of the result of the battle of Ocana; but furnish few details of the engagement. The French state the loss of the Spaniards at 4000 left dead on the field of battle, and 20,000 made prisoners. The action took place on the 19th inst. The French were commanded by Joseph Bonaparte in person, who had under him the Marshal Duke of Dalmatia.

La Mancha is not the only quarter in which the enemy's arms have been successful. A corps under General Bonnet has detached General Marquesito, with considerable loss, & reoccupied St. Andero.

The Emperor Francis has returned to his capital, and the Arch Duke Charles was expected in a few days.

General Monnet, the late commander of Flushing, has been declared by a council of enquiry, guilty of cowardice and treason.—He has likewise been found guilty of embezzlement and extortion. We cannot help stopping a moment here to remark on the injustice of the French Government. General Monnet is tried and condemned unheard, and should, he ever return to France, his life will probably be the penalty which he will be obliged to pay to satisfy the vengeance of his ruthless master.

The Dutch papers contain a long account of a fete given to Bonaparte by the city of Paris, at the Hotel de Ville, on the 4th inst. Besides their imperial majesties of France, there were present at this entertainment, no less than nine crowned heads of Napoleon's creation.

As soon as the intelligence of the defeat at Ocana reached Seville, the Marquis de la Romana, with a detachment of from eight to 10 thousand men, left that city to proceed to La Carolina, to reinforce General Arezaga.—Several officers have been executed at Seville for treason.

VIENNA, Dec. 2.

The count Andreossi, it is announced, will very soon arrive in this capital, in quality of ambassador, from his majesty the emperor of the French near his majesty the emperor of Austria.

The French troops which occupy Steyer, St. Polten, Wells, and Lintz, are so crouded, that it is found impossible to furnish even the superior officers with separate lodgings. The Regency distributes victuals to the soldiers, so that they have only occasion to require from the inhabitants on whom they are billetted, salt and vegetables.

LONDON, Decr. 27.

The liberty to import salt and Colonial produce from England is said to be conceded to Sweden, in one of the articles of peace between that power and France.

December 29.

The flag of truce that failed from Calais on Sunday, with Mayne, the Austrian Courier, and Mr. Powell, the Secretary to the American Minister, returned to Dover on Wednesday, with the latter gentleman, who was not allowed to land. The refusal, it is said, was qualified by an assurance that he would be allowed to disembark and proceed to Paris, whenever he should present himself at that port (St. Maloes) through which communication between the respective Ministers of the U. States at the Courts of London and Paris were generally made.—After what has been said of America, in the Expose we are rather surprised to find so little disposition in the French government to accommodate the diplomacy of that country. What difference does it make to Bonaparte, through which of his ports, provided he tolerates it, Messrs. Pinckney and Armstrong correspond? This marked insult can hardly have arisen from mere displeasure at the breach of a capricious regulation.—From the length of time that the Flag of Truce was on the other side, it is probable there was som communication by the Telegraph, or otherwise, between the Commandant at Calais and his government, respecting the admittance of Mr. Powell into the Empire. The Flag of Truce brought over a report that Mr. Armstrong was about to return to America.—This, if the rumour be well founded, will sufficiently account for the indignity with which Mr. Pinckney's Secretary has been treated.

January 1.

It is said that the troops now embarking at Portsmouth, which were intended for Portugal, are to proceed to Halifax. Another embarkation for the same destination, is immediately to take place at Cork.

Incorporation of Holland with France.

The threat denounced against Holland in the message to the French Senate, and the Expose, is carried into effect. That country no longer forms one of the States of Europe. The formal annexation of it to the French Empire has been declared; and swarms of custom House officers, supported by numerous troops, are on their way, to give effect to the new organization to which it is condemned.—Letters to the 22d instant, upon the authenticity of which we can implicitly rely, were yesterday received with this information. The intelligence was brought to Amsterdam by express from Paris.

January 9.

An immense force it would seem, is proceeding to Spain. Exclusive of 15,000 conscripts that have been trained at Bayonne, veterans to twice that amount are on their march to the Peninsula.

The Russians are said to have been defeated near Silistria, and compelled to re-pass the Danube.—The Turks were under the command of the Grand Vizier.

We find in those papers a decree of King Louis, issued at Paris on the 29th ult. the object of which is the augmentation of the existing taxes: a proof that he has not yet done with the country.

The Princess Charlotte frigate, with the Lord Keith, Earl Spencer, and Monarch, homeward bound East-Indiamen, arrived on Sunday at Portsmouth. They bring the agreeable intelligence of the capture of the Isle of Bourbon.

January 10.

Mr. Oakley is about to return to America. We believe he leaves town to day, in order to embark.

Accounts from Holland received yesterday, state, that it was hoped they would be able to avert the fate with which they were menaced by the threat of annexation to France, the Senate and Legislative body were understood to have represented, through King Louis, their readiness to adopt and enforce any measures suggested by the French government for distressing this government. They also agreed that Holland should give every aid of which it was capable, in any way to the French Finances.——In this representation, some of the principal commercial houses are said to have joined. It is possible the proposition may be accepted, but we doubt whether it will prevent the eventual incorporation with the French Empire.

London, January 4.

The reinforcements about to be sent to Portugal amount to about 10,000 men; and it is understood that with these reinforcements Lord Wellington had declared that he can defend Portugal against the enemy, at least for a considerable time.

No fewer than 33 ships arrived from Holland in the course of yesterday morning, by which numerous letters and papers have been conveyed to this country. The inhabitants were in great confusion and anxiety, under the view of the political changes which were expected to take place in the government.

January 11.

A corps of 2200 Hessians lately received orders to march for Spain; but before they reached the Rhine, no less than 2000 of them deserted. The whole amount of the military employed in the expedition to Walcheren exceeded 28,000 men, of which number more than 22,000 were returned on the sick list, not less than 3000 have died of fevers.

FROM THE N. YORK SPECTATOR.

The Power of Bonaparte.—The following interesting remarks on this subject are copied from the Baltimore Federal Republican.

"Intrigue more than the arms of France has subjugated the European Continent. The extravagant opinions entertained of the irresistable and colossal power of the French Emperor, display themselves in all the important measures of our government. His fancied invincibility has struck such terror to the hearts of our Chief Magistrate and his Ministers, that they have been rendered unfit to meet the exigencies of the times. Instead of regulating their conduct by the great and obvious interests of the nation, they are governed entirely by foreign politics, and are solely influenced by Bonaparte's campaigns on the Continent.——Without striking out and adopting any great and salutary system of their own, their councils are in a state of perpetual oscillation, and they have no fixed plan, unless forlooth hostilities with England be their aim, which they have not the courage to commence nor the means of maintaining with a prospect of honor and success.—No effects are permitted to provoke England to a declaration of war, nor are the most abject and degrading compliances neglected, to purchase the forbearance and compassion of France. But while an earnest wish is betrayed, in all their actions, to bring about an alliance with France, and an open rupture with England, they want the firmness, perseverance, and energy to call forth the resources of the nation, to give effect to their plans. Popularity has more attractive charms in their estimation, than all the substantial and invaluable blessings which would flow from a wise and just system of policy.—But in their eyes no policy is either wise or honorable which has not for its object the conciliation of France and the violent irritation of her adversary.

"It has long been our opinion that the power of the French tyrant is declining in Europe. So far from being augmented by his achievements on the Danube, it received a shock in the battles of Esling and Wagram, from which he has not yet recovered, and cannot soon be relieved. In his campaigns in Austria, he exhausted his main resources, without accomplishing any of his favorite objects, or executing his vaunted threats against that power. He pledged himself to annihilate the Austrian Monarchy, and to gratify the full measure of his overflowing resentment against a power, whose timely interposition baffled all his operations against Spain.—His vengeance roused and augmented by the unexpected failure of his base designs upon Spain, was not of that unsettled and indistinct character to be appeased by a trifling acquisition of territory which future events will prove his inability to retain, and which his present military force is insufficient to keep in quiet subjection while his operations are carried on against Spain.—So far from blotting Austria from the map, that power single handed, has so crippled and disabled him, that he has been forced to relinquish for an unusal and portentous period, his plans of aggrandizement.——True he has worsted his enemy, he has forced upon him a dishonorable treaty, taken from her a portion of her territory, but her armies remain unconquered, she still possesses all the sinews of war, the Austrian soldiery continue undismayed, and from the most authentic accounts are individually eager to renew the contest.—This is far from annihilation.

"Neither the pride nor ambition of the "generous conqueror" have been gratified by the issue of the contest. He was not able to follow up his successes and he has been thrown back many years in his scheme of universal dominion. The accounts most to be relied upon, admit a loss on the part of France, in the two great battles of the Danube, of at least 60,000 of his choicest troops. How is this sudden and immense gap in his army to be supplied? If he was not materially weakened by his immense loss why was not Austria completely subjugated, and why has he not renewed the war of Spain with that spirit, enterprise and confidence with which it was commenced? We were told not long since that, a respite of six weeks has been granted to Spain, that at the expiration of that period he would pour his legions into Spain, and the would fall without a blow, that a simple proclamation, a la Americaine, would reduce her to quiet submission. These six weeks have long since expired, and Spain is yet free and daily becoming more able to resist. Her troops have acquired fresh strength and spirit, and their patriotic enthusiasm has been quickened by the noble example set them by Austria.

"Let us suppose that the Emperor is now marching in full force against Spain, and is sufficiently strong if uninterrupted to carry his point. Can he leave behind him a sufficient force to keep Austria at bay, and secure submission to the states of Germany? —Do there not exist stronger inducements than ever, for Austria to renew the war? Comparatively, she has as yet suffered nothing.—She well knows what is in reserve for her, after Spain shall be conquered. Let but the Emperor be again fairly engaged with Spain, and he will find Austria in his rear, once more arrayed in all her force against him. Such an occurrence would be the signal for a general revolt in Germany, and more business would be carved out for him, than his present strength and resources would qualify him to dispatch with his accustomed celerity. Whatever may be the cowardly apprehension of some of our wise politicians in this country, there still exists on the continent of Europe alone, the means to thwart the tyrant in his ambitious schemes. The most intelligent men who have lately visited Europe, are well persuaded from the information they have collected, that Napoleon's power is far less formidable at the present period, that it was before his boasted victories in Austria, and Spain. They state, and it requires no excessive blindness in fate to believe it, that he has not and cannot recover from his immense loses in those countries. At the most reduced computation 300,000 men have been sacrificed in the last twelve months. His conscripts cannot supply this immense deficiency. France is already nearly drained of her effective population. Can any better evidence be required than that he was lately clamoring for the levy of the conscripts for the year 1811? These raw and undisciplined soldiers are not as heretofore to undergo the regular training before they are called into actual service. They are wanted for immediate use, and they are called forth to fill the hiatus which Austria and Spain have made in his reduced armies. To what alternative will he resort in the event of further disasters, which he will assuredly encounter? The idea of Spain's surrendering after a short struggle, and all Germany's remaining quiet and inactive, is contrary to nature and past experience. Insurrections will perpetually embarrass him in his movements. It will require force to watch Austria, and keep down the German states, equal, if not superior, to that which he will find in need of in Spain. This force he has not, nor the means wherewith to acquire it."

MUNICH, Dec. 5.

The general orders of his excellency General Dronet, count of Eilon, commander in chief of the Bavarians in the Tyrol, announces the taking possession of Finstermuntz, by the first division of those troops.—The French troops who had penetrated into the Vintschgau, are arrived at Schlauders, and all the communications are reestablished. The few Tyrolians who had suffered themselves to be again misled by the perfidious suggestions of certain miserable foreigners, unacquainted with their country, are every where dispersing, and returning to their duty. The Bailliages of the Upper Inn, have laid down their arms.

The chief of the rebels, Ferle, and his adjutants, Bachem, De Hall, Schart, and Pfunds, endeavoring to escape over the Bavarian Lines, fell into a bavouac, and were seized and sent under guard to Inspruck.

It is rumored that Andrew Hoffer, having with difficulty collected some fresh troops, was attacked, and completely beaten, by the French; that many of these rebels have been killed; that Hoffer was taken, and his house at Passeyr burnt; and that all the inhabitants of that valley have delivered up their arms, and submitted to the French.

The works on the fortifications of Passau, are continued with the utmost activity. Fort Napoleon, the work most advanced on the side of Schaerding, is already finished.

A great part of the French and confederate troops in Upper Austria and towards the Inn, it is said, will immediately begin their march for France.

FRANKFORT, Dec. 8.

Conscripts are at this time raising by draft amongst the inhabitants of our city, who have heretofore been exempted.

The Jews will be formed into battalions upon the same footing as in Holland. Until the present time, the individuals of this religion, have here paid a certain sum of money, as a commutation for actual service. Their exemption has now ceased.

SCHAFFHAUSEN, (Switz.) Dec. 4.

It is generally reported, that the late King of Sweden will shortly arrive in Switzerland with his family, and that he will fix his residence in the fine country of Gren, near to Morat, which a French merchant has lately purchased from the city of Berne.

PARIS, Dec. 14.

The Royal Gazette of Madrid, contains a proclamation addressed by Admiral Messerado to the insurgents, dated at the capitol 24th Nov. the admiral invites the rebels to submit, announcing that the delay of a week may be fatal to them.

On the 26th Nov. the English evacuated the two Islands of Ponza and Vantatene, situated in front of Gaeta, after having destroyed the fortifications.

Last evening arrived at this port the schr. Lydia, Reynolds, from Malta and Gibraltar—the left the former place the 14th of Nov. and the latter the 2d of January.——Capt. R. informs us that it was reported at Gibraltar the day before he failed, that a French army of 35,000 men, were marching for Valencia, and had taken several towns on their way.

NEW YORK, March 14.

Latest from Cadiz.—On Saturday arrived at this port, the ship Atlantic, captain Barnum, 45 days from Cadiz, which port he left on the 20 January. By this arrival we learn verbally, that a battle was fought early in January, between a Spanish and French army, in which the former were completely dispersed—that a large army were approaching Andalusia, and that the members of the Supreme Junta had taken refuse at Cadiz, where they were expected about the 1st of February.

The officers and men of the Spanish fleet in Cadiz, were bending sails, &c. and getting their ships ready for sea.

We further learn that intelligence had reached Cadiz, that a serious insurrection had broken out in the south of France, and that the instigators had invited Marshal Massena to head them—that the leaders of the insurrection party had communicated the fact to the British admiral Lord Collingwood, who was cruising in the Mediterranean.—M. Adv.

By the schooner Comet, Guthrie, arrived at Philadelphia, from St. Bartholomews, we learn that the British, after the surrender of Guadaloupe, proceeded to St. Martins and Eustatia, the former abey took possession of on the 15th ult.—ib.

Translated from Lisbon papers received at Norfolk.

SEVILLE, Dec. 15.

The following intercepted letter from the French general Thebault, a commander of the legion of honor, to M Legarde, (late intendant of police of Lisbon) now at Madrid.

Our situation here grows worse daily, the whole province is nearly in the hands of the enemy.——I keep up my communications as far as I am able, but I cannot answer for their safety. My orders are not obeyed two leagues beyond the walls of this place—our military chest is empty, our stores almost exhausted, and provisions is scarce and difficult to be had, that a fowl for the sick, has at times, been with difficulty procured. Our situation is discouraging in every view, and notwithstanding all I have done, and procured to be done, the result I assure you is extremely doubtful.

Farewell, &c. &c.

THEBAULT.

BADAJOS, Dec. 26.

The head quarters of the British army, under the command of Lord Wellington, marched from this place to-day, to be fixed is supposed at Almeida and Ciudad Roderigo.

Lisbon, Jan. 1.

It is affirmed for a fact, by a person who had an opportunity of being in the office of gen. Belliard, and seen the official returns, that since the first invasion of the peninsular, six hundred and seventy two thousand men have been sent into it. By deducting the number marched back to France, and the present French army in Spain, we can arrive at the knowledge of their loss.

January 4.

The following intercepted letter published in the Seville Gazette of the 20th last month, by order of the Spanish government, will prove the precarious tenure by which the enemy hold some posts in Old Castile, and exhibit a specimen of the confidence which is to be placed in the foreign troops incorporated in Bonaparte's legions.

Fortress of Pandora. Nov. 12. 1809.

The lieutenant commander of artillery at the fortress of Pane ra to the general commander in chief of artillery.

General—All the prisoners of state arrested in this province made their escape last night Upon examination my suspicions fall on all the guard. The officer of the patrole has deserted, and the sergeant convicted of being an accomplice. In fine, general, I cannot place any confidence in the men composing this garrison, who are chiefly Prussians, and if they are not shortly withdrawn, and French soldiers sent in their places, I am confident they will deliver the place to the Spaniards. I am under the necessity of making the artillerists mount guard in the most exposed parts of the garrison.

I have the honor &c.

YORK.—PRINTED, BY JOHN CAMERON,
PRINTER TO THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

Supplement to the York Gazette.

MR. EDITOR,

By inserting the following note of thanks, accompanied with a few remarks for public consideration, you will much oblige the Subscriber:

Who having performed, that part of his mission which was assigned to him in the Canadas, is expecting this day, to cross into the States to pursue his journey to Boston; and he desires to return sincere thanks for the many tokens of friendship and respect, manifested to him during five months residence in the two Provinces. And particularly, he would acknowledge the kind assistance afforded towards printing and disseminating of small tracts and useful books for the new settlements. It is hoped, they may have hearts to water the seed, which they have been instrumental in sowing, by offering up their prayers, and continuing to bestow their charity, for the benefit of society: the blessing of many ready to perish, will come upon them, and by using the means for correcting the public morals and diffusing useful knowledge through the country, they will excite future generations to rise up and call them blessed.

Should any gentlemen wish to see any of the tracts, and small books which have been published for distribution, they may find some of them in every town, from Montreal to Niagara. In a number of Towns there are charity Boxes set up and some Tracts left for distribution, especially in Kingston, at Mr. Walker's; in Thurlow, at Mr. Leaven's and Capt. Meyer's; in York, at Mr. Post's and in Niagara, at Mr. Heron's; where trunks of books and tracts are ordered to be left for distribution. All are invited to take of them, and forward to such families, where they may be useful. No price is set upon any of the books or tracts thus left, but all are invited to put into the charity boxes according to their abilities; to assist in printing more tracts, to be disposed of in the same manner.

I am with due respect, the public's most devoted humble servant,
THADDEUS OSGOOD.

King, Soldier, Emperor, tragic ftill in name,
Dread Fabricator of Berlin Decree,
Sole Champion of the now enfranchis'd Sea,
Thefe honored attributes, around entwine
The grand Confederator of the Rhine,
At whofe High Will, yon Western world you hold
"Teeming with Patriots, Prairie dogs, and Gold;"
Held by his will, hence hold it by his name
And firm fubftantiate the undoubted claim:
Unfit 'tis called Louifiana ftill.
Remove the evil by Napoleon Bill;
Let fuch untarnifhed patriotic deed,
Re-echo loud the Jeffersonian Creed,
Relieve the anxious Carter-Mountain Mind,
And rear the Banner a Twin-Reign design'd.

Degenerate men, fanatical at will,
I weep your follies whilst I grasp the quill:
Relieve'd I turn, and wrapp'd, revere, admire
The Sons borne up and warm'd by Albions fire.
Bleft, envied EDEN of the wondering World;
Her glorious Ensigns in each Sea unfurl'd;
Still Neptune's trumpet to her victories sounds
And Scepter'd Ocean, laves her ftedfast Bounds.
Thrice happy Iland, bless'd thy Regal line,
Fostered, preferv'd, the care of Good divine,
Still in each Britons heart the Monarch reigns,
Who Heaven impell'd, near half a Century deigns
To grace the Land, difpense the balm of woe,
Teach Loyalty and Gratitude to flow.———
—Hail his Accession's happy annual day,
Whose Nations pride and bliss, their joys pourtray,
The happy Epoch, Heaven to Debtors lent,
And bloodless Culprits greet the rare Event.
His peoples Weal, he knows no second cauſe,
The reverenc'd Guardian of their equal Laws;
Laws whose juft scope, from Mendicant to King,
All rights secure, and equal judgements bring;
Near fifty years, has dazzling Juftice fhone,
The Cottage Boast, and Pillar of the Throne.
Nor softened less of Sovereign Power Divine,
The Royal Mother of the Princely Line;
Bleft'd in the Nations love, and grateful care,
Thrice bleft'd in thefe ftill live the Royal pair.——
But yet the day may come, the mournful day,
When with his Fathers, Britains King may lay;
Millions will then, weep o'er the sacred Urn,
And holy griefs in generous bosoms burn.
When thus fulfilled his meafured Earthly Round,
And full of glorious years, his race be found,
Loft in the utmoft vast Elysian range
May raptured tranfit dignify the change;
May his exalte, mild Ethereal flame,
Mount and adore its Origin Supreme.
Long vital organ of his Nations good,
Thron'd in their Hearts, sublime the Monarch ftood,
Long first in power, fupreme in wide command,
His Lofs ferenely wept throughout the Land.
Britons, with thanks unfeign'd, with vivid praife,
To Heavens High Throne your joint petitions raife,
Beseech its Sires ineftimable grace
For future Gems of Englands Sovereign race.
May her commanding elevation ftill,
Stand mighty herald of the Uttered WILL;
Innumerous bleffings e'er her Isles furround,
And Adorations fervid Harp refound,
For lavifh burthens preft'd of gifts benign,
Let grateful impulse court the load divine;
Thefe proofs refplendent, emanate above,
And forge our chains of adamantine love.
When here, the mighty Monarch lives no more,
A realm bequeaths, and sacred Sovereigns lore,
May His Succeffor then, not tread in vain
His choicest steps, nor monitory Reign.
—Thence Princely George, eclipfe thy absent Sire,
Bid Monarchs envy, and the World admire:
Great by thy Birth, diftinguifhed by His NAME,
Tranfcend His virtues, emulate His fame;
Be thou like King, like pattern of the Land,
And wield the Scepter with a Parents hand.
Inftruct thy People with a Parents zeal,
To foster goodneſs, and promote the Weal;
Protect their fhores, impel their Wooden-Walls,
And urge spontaneous where their Honour calls:
Still the firm Champions of juft Liberty,
And EUROPE's Bulwark, to her latest day.

POSTSCRIPT.

To the politeness of the Editors of the New-York Gazette, we are indebted for the following important summary of Foreign News from London papers to Jan. 20th.

FOREIGN NEWS.

By the U. S. brig Argus, capt. Jones, in 7 days from Charleston, the Editors of the New-York Gazette have received the Charleston "Times" of the 9th inst. containing London News to the 20th January, received at Amelia by the ship Savannah, 48 days from Liverpool.

The London Courier, (a Ministerial paper) says, "America has made haste to arrange her differences with France, and a convention between the two powers is said to have been signed on the 5th or 6th of this month (Jan.) Not a syllable of its contents has transpired, but one great point which the American government has always endeavored to gain has been the abandonment of the right of search by the naval powers of Europe."

London, Jan. 20.—An American ship, with dispatches for General Armstrong at Paris, in attempting to go into Havre on the 8th inst. was taken poſſeſſion of by a French armed ſhip, and ſent into another port. Her diſpatches were forwarded immediately to Paris, but her crew were not permitted to have any communication with the ſhore. This circumſtance is a ſufficient proof that no definitive arrangement has taken place between America and France.

The French Journals to Jan. 10, are ſilent reſpecting the repeal of the Berlin and Milan decrees; but the fact of their relaxation, admits of no doubt.—Lon. Sun.

A letter from Paris of the 11th inſt. ſtates, that on the 6th, Bonaparte had a freſh attack of his epilepſy, which was ſo violent as to occaſion conſiderable alarm for ſeveral days. A Bulletin, however, of the 9th, was iſſued, pronouncing him to be rapidly recovering.—Hence, doubtleſs, originated the report of his death, mentioned on Thursday. The Grand Dutcheſs Anne, of Ruſſia, is ſpoken of as Bonaparte's new bride, ſhould he recover.

Talleyrand, was again in high favor with Bonaparte.

A French decree of the 22d December, forbids the importation of cotton yarn.

On the 10th January, a Britiſh Cabinet Council was to be held upon buſineſs of great importance. A full meeting was therefore requeſted in the circulars. It was probable to take into conſideration the ſtate of affairs with the United States, previous to the ſailing of the Packet.

London, Jan. 10.

Endeavors have been made with great induſtry to repreſent a negociation with France as not only actually begun, but as having made conſiderable progreſs—nay, ſome have gone ſo far as to ſay that ſome of the principle points have been diſcuſſed. No negociation has been begun—All that has yet been done, amounts, we believe, to this: Auſtria could not withdraw her miniſter with any decency from this country before ſhe had offered her interpoſition to reſtore peace. She has made through her miniſter at Paris, and with the conſent of the French government, an overture, to which the reply has been returned through the medium of the prince Stahremberg; the diſpatch from the Auſtrian miniſter at Paris having been addreſſed to that Prince, it may be that the reply was not conveyed by Mayntz, but by M. Prevoſt, who ſailed laſt Saturday—Mayntz may have carried back to Paris a letter announcing that the propoſal had been laid before our government, and that the aswer would be ſent by another meſſenger.

As to peace, it is abſurd to ſuppoſe that it can be made at preſent.

January 12.

German papers have arrived to the 31ſt ult. and Dutch to the 5th Inſt.——They confirm the intelligence previouſly recived of the defeat of the Ruſſians near Siliſtria, on the 22d of October.—They were obliged to evacuate the right bank of the Danube.

Vienna, Dec. 18, 1809.

We have received intelligence from Pera to the 9th, inſt. which ſtate:—

"Intelligence has been received from the Grand Vizier, of his having attacked, with an equal force, the Ruſſian army that had advanced againſt Siliſtria. The engagement was continued with the greateſt ardour until night, and was not until the following day that it was decided in favour of the Turks, by the defeat of a corps of Albanians that had juſt arrived on the field. The Ruſſians retreated towards the Danube, leaving behind them a great number of killed and priſoners. This event excited univerſal joy; it was inſtantly communicated to the Foreign Miniſters, and Conſtantinople was illuminated three ſucceſſive evenings. It is confidently reported, that a ſecond Courier arrived here yeſterday, with intelligence that the Ruſſian army had been compelled to retreat across the Danube, and that upon this occaſion, a corps of Ruſſian cavalry has fallen into the hands of the Turks."

An extraordinary fact.—From 24th June to 8th November, no leſs than 2210 Britiſh and other veſſels were conveyed through the Belts without the loſs of a ſingle veſſel, though the Danes had 100 gun boats to annoy them.

French Military Conſcription.—The following anecdote will in part illuſtrate the severity of the ſyſtem: An aged father having attempted by artifice to exempt from military ſervice a ſon who was the only ſtay of his age, he was condemned to an expoſition in the pillory for ſix hours to be branded with a hot iron, to pay the expences of the proſecution, &c. and to labor for eight years in chains.

Boſton, March 12.

It does not appear by the laſt dates from London, that Mr. Jackſon had been recalled; although the report that Mr. Oakley was to return to this Country, and aſſume the character of a Commercial Agent, or Chaige des Affairs, ſhould ſeem to lead to ſuch an event. The Truth however, is, that the Britiſh Cabinet had not made up their minds, as to the courſe to be purſued—they appear diſpoſed to avert if poſſible, any ſerious rupture with this country; although the language of our Cabinet threw ſuch obſtacles in the way, as ſcarcely to admit a hope, of the continuance of the friendly relations which have exiſted between the two countries.

1400 French and Dutch troops are ſaid to have been drowned, when proceeding with others to take poſſeſſion of Walcheren.

Mr. Erſkine, late Miniſter to the United States, was preſented to the King of England on his return home.

Lord Grenville has been choſen to ſucceed the late Duke of Portland, as Chancellor of Oxford. The other candidates were the Duke of Beaufort and the Lord Chancellor. The majority was 109.

From Waſhington.—We underſtand, that a letter has been received this morning, from a gentleman of high ſtanding in the democratic ranks, which ſays that the Marquis Wellesley ſtated to Mr. Pinckney that the government of England wholly juſtified Mr. Jackſon in the part he took in the late Correſpondence; but that to convince the United States that they were earneſtly deſirous of an adjuſtment of difficulties, they were willing to recall him, and to ſend another Miniſter of talents and rank.

This, we apprehend, is nearer the truth, than any of the numerous extracts which have filled the democratic papers. As reſpects the main point, however, it is a matter of no conſequence to this country, how Mr. Jackſon's conduct has been received by his government, provided that government is diſpoſed to ſend another Miniſter, and is ſtill ſincerely deſirous of treating with us, on juſt and honorable terms. That ſhe is diſpoſed to treat on ſuch terms, the ſending a ſucceſſor to Mr. Jackſon will be inconteſtible evidence; and it is ſincerely to be wiſhed that our adminiſtration may not be ſo far led aſtray, by their partialities for France, nor by the ſenſeleſs clamors of the war party, as not to meet this renewed overture with a correſponding diſpoſition. Of this, however, we are not very confident.——Their paſt conduct, we confeſs, has given us too ſlender a ground for any very ſanguine indulgence of hope.

Extract of a letter from a Merchant in Bordeaux to another in Philadelphia, dated December 31.

"This letter we ſend to Rochelle, by the mail juſt going off, in order to be in time for the dispatch ſhip Matilda, lying there wind bound, and the only opportunity for the United States.—We are, therefore, obliged to be very laconic, which you will excuſe. We regret to be obliged to add, that the French government has put all American property under ſequeſtration.—This meaſure was executed only on the 28th of this month, and was the leſs expected as there was rumours of a very pacific nature towards America. Government diſpatches by the ſhip Commodore Rogers, would reach Paris on the 2d inſt. She arrived at St. Sebaſtians on the 27th Dec. in 25 days from N. York."

Extract of a letter communicated to the Editor of the Philadelphia Regiſter.

The following is an extract of a letter from a reſpectable gentleman at Cadiz, dated Jan. 14, to another in this city.—received by the brig Eliza, arrived at this port yeſterday from Cadiz: ſhe ſailed in company with the Atlantic, arrived at New York.

"There is nothing to be apprehended here from the French, notwithſtanding all the threats of Bonaparte.

"Should he even ſend 200,000 men we may calculate that he will get poſſeſſion of the major part of this country for the preſent: but if my real opinion he will not be able to keep it. He will, however, deſtroy all commerce as far as in his power, except in this rich port, when it muſt flourish more than ever from the ſecurity of the place."

The letter from which the foregoing extracts are taken, makes no mention of any battle having been fought ſubſequent to the battle of Ocana.

Lateſt from the Cape of Good-Hope.—Captain Le Fort, of the ſchooner Richmond Packet, arrived this forenoon, in 63 days from the Cape of Good Hope, informs, that from the 9th to the 20th of January, there were daily from one to four ſevere ſhocks of Earthquakes, which alarmed the inhabitants to ſuch a degree, that whoever could pitch a tent out ſide of his house, did it for ſafety, as a great number of buildings had been materially injured, and fearful that they would be tumbled to the ground.

Captain Le Fort further informs, that a few months previous to his arrival at the Cape, the Engliſh had made an attack on the Iſland of Bourbon, and had taken one 40 gun frigate called the Bourbounoiſe, a French merchantman, and retook two large Company ſhips, that was in the harbour, who afterwards left the Iſland and ſailed for the Cape of Good Hope.

We have ſeen a letter to a gentleman in this city dated Cadiz January 16th, 1810, which ſtates, that a Britiſh frigate had arrived there from off Toulon, with an account of an inſurrection having broken out in the South of France, and that generals Maſſena and La Borde were at the head of it.

Commerce with the Weſt-Indies.—The Governor of Barbadoes, in a ſpeech to the Aſſembly of that Iſland, dated Oct. 21, ſays: "The great attention paid by the planters to the raiſing of the different kinds of ground proviſions, produced during the laſt American embargo, a greater plenty than ever before was known. Our poor white inhabitants and ſlaves, far from enduring want, were ſupplied in the greateſt abundance. Except a little temporary inconvenience, which ſome of the inhabitants may feel from a ſcarcity of ſome kinds of lumber, we may look with indifference upon the want of all intercourſe with the United States."

From the Baltimore Federal Republican.

More King Stealing.—All the world has viewed with indignation the captivity of the Spaniſh Royal Family, through the villainy and deception of Bonaparte. The Pope he alſo ſtole laſt year, and afterwards poiſoned in his impriſonment. He has ſince, it appears, purloined the Royal Family of Sweden.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Gottenburgh, to his friend in Alexandria dated 16th of December, 1809.

"It is expected that peace is concluded between this country and France, and that Napoleon the 1ſt. Autocrat of the Weſt, demanded the depoſed king, Guſtaff Adolph, the 4th, for the future ſecurity and peace of the Continent, which it appears the government has ſubmitted to, as the unfortunate king and family had arrived ſome days ago at Carlscrona, to be conveyed from thence across the Baltic."

SALEM, March 6.

War Report.—On Saturday laſt the brig Increaſe, Captain William Widger, arrived at Marblehead from Gion, a port on the north coaſt of Spain, about 4 leagues ſoutheaſt from Cape Pinas, in poſſeſſion of the French, and brings the very intereſting report, that Bonaparte had actually declared WAR againſt the United States of America.

We have been politely favored with the following minutes made by Captain Widger, of the intelligence he received reſpecting this very important event, on which our readers will form their own opinions:

"Intelligence was received from St. Andero a few days before I left Gion, that the Emperor of France had declared War againſt the United States, and that all the American veſſels at the ports under the French influence were Embargoed. Several letters from reſpectable merchants at Bilboa and St. Sebaſtians, under dates of December 30th and 31ſt, received at Gion, alſo mentioned it as a fact. I was alſo informed, the morning I left Gion (Jan. 15) that another letter had been received by expreſs from St. Andero, under date of January 6, ſaying that a general Embargo had been laid on in all the Eaſtern ports, and a Decree iſſued by the Emperor, unfavorable to commerce, particularly prohibiting the introduction of any goods into the ports in his poſſeſſion from thoſe occupied by the Spaniſh Patriots."

In addition to the foregoing, we have been furniſhed with the following extract of a letter from Mr. Henry K. Fettyplace, reſiding at Gion, to his correſpondent in Marblehead, dated January 15th.

"We have intelligence here from Eaſtward, that France has declared War againſt the United States, and that all the American veſſels in the ports under French influence, have been detained. I have ſeen three letters from very reſpectable gentlemen in Bilboa and St. Sebaſtian's, which mention it as a fact and adviſe their friends by no means to think of ſending down any American veſſels from this quarter; the letters were under date of 30th, 31ſt, and January 1. From all the information I have been able to collect, there appears to be no doubt but that the Embargo has been laid (I believe a general one) at the ports Eaſtward, and ſome decrees iſſued by the Emperor, unfavorable to commerce. I am in daily expectation of letters from St. Andero, which will doubtleſs give me more poſitive and particular information relative to this unexpected affair."

In another letter Mr. F. mentions, that he had ſeen reſpectable gentlemen both from Bilboa and St. Sebaſtian's who ſtated the fact of a declaration of War with confidence. But not withſtanding this intelligence was from perſons whom he ſhould deem good authority, as far as their knowledge extends, ſtill he had hopes that this report might prove to be a miſtake. Connected with this report was another,—that all the American property in France had on a recent order been ſequeſtered. We muſt wait for further arrivals for more diſtinct information in regard to theſe things. We know not to what violence the delay of our government to enter openly into the war againſt England may have inſtigated the Arbiter of Continental Europe.

London, January 1.

It is reported to have been arranged after the Peace of Tilſit, between Napoleon and the Emperor Alexander, that a marriage ſhould take place between the former and the ſiſter of the latter, but this Princeſs is ſaid to have poſitively refuſed the honour thus intended for her.

The French Emperor's name, was, in ſome meaſure, a prototype of his divorce from his crowned Empreſs, Joſephine. By his marriage, he made her bone of his bone, and by his divorce, he has reduced her to the ſtate of a Bone-apart.

The following is the amount of the Britiſh Nav l Force up to the 1ſt day of January 1810.

Copy of a letter from Bonaparte to the Emperor of Ruſſia.

MONSIEUR MY BROTHER,

The Duke of Vienna informs me, that your Imperial Majeſty wiſhes for peace with Sweden, and that you have obtained the advantages which you deſired.—Will your Majeſty permit me to congratulate you upon the event!

"The negociations of Altenburgh have been transferred to Vienna. Prince John of Lichtenſtein conducts them with M. de Champagny, and I expect I ſhall ſoon be able to inform your Majeſty of peace being concluded with Auſtria. You will ſee by the treaty, that conformably to your wiſhes, the greateſt part of Gallicia will not change maſters; and that I have managed your intereſts as you would have done yourſelf, conciliating every thing with what honor required of me. The proſperity and welfare of the Duchy of Warsaw require that it ſhould poſſeſs the favorable regards of your Majeſty; and your Majeſty's ſubjects may reſt aſſured that, in no case, nor under any circumſtances, have they to expect any protection from me.

"I have given Auſtria the moſt advantageous peace ſhe could expect.—She only looſes Saltburg, and a mere trifle this ſide the Inn. She cedes nothing in Bohemia. On the ſide of Italy ſhe cedes nothing but what is indiſpenſible for my communication with Dalmatia. The Auſtrian Monarchy, therefore, remains entire.—This is the ſecond experiment I have been willing to make.—I have used towards her a moderation which ſhe had no right to expect. In this I hope, I have done what is gratifying to your majeſty.

"I ſend your Majeſty the Engliſh journals laſt received.—You will there ſee that the Engliſh miniſters are fighting with each other—that there is a revolution in the miniſtry, and all is perfect anarchy. The folly and abſurdity of that cabinet are beyond deſcription. They have recently occaſioned the deſtruction of from 25 to 30,000 men in the moſt horrible country in the world—it would have been juſt as well to have thrown them into the ſea:—ſo peſtilential are the marches of Walcheren! In Spain they have loſt a very conſiderable number of men. Gen. Wellesley had the extreme imprudence to commit himſelf in the heart of Spain with 30,000 men, having on his flank three armies conſiſting of 90 battalions, and from 40 to 50 ſquadrons, whilſt he had in his front the army commanded by the king, which was of equal force.—It is difficult to conceive ſuch an act of preſumption. It remains at preſent to be aſcertained who are to ſucceed the late miniſtry.

"The United States are on the worſt terms with England, and ſeem diſpoſed ſincerely and ſeriouſly to approximate to our ſyſtem.—

"I pray God, Monſieur my brother, to have you in high and holy keeping.

(Signed) "NAPOLEON."

FROM A LONDON PAPER.

The following inſtance of extraordinary preſence of mind and courage, is mentioned in one of the Madras Couriers:—

"Veljee Patell, an inhabitant of Mahonoodabad, in the vicinity of Kaira, about noon, the 13th of Jan. 1809, whilſt working in his cotton field, perceived a Royal Tygreſs approaching him in an attitude that convinced Veljee of the animal's deſire to deſtroy him—and as he was aware from the nature of his ſituation, he could not eſcape, he made preparations to receive her. The Tygreſs ſpringing on this undaunted cultivator, he held out his left arm to oppoſe her—whilſt with his right upliſting a korand or ſmall hatchet, his premiditated blow was ſo correctly given between the ears of the animal, and with such force, opposed to the velocity with which the Tygress advanced, that it occasioned her immediate death.—Veljee Patel had his left wrist much lacerated."—London Paper.

Latest Foreign News.

NEW-YORK, March 21.

Capt. Hedge arrived at Bolton on Friday, in 19 days from Cadiz —He brot no papers; but states verbally, that previous to his sailing, it was reported that a French army of 60,000, was within 100 miles of Seville :—— That the supreme Junta were quitting business at Seville; and were expected shortly at Cadiz — He also learnt, that 30,000 English, and as many Portuguese, were on their way from Portugal to Spain.

The reports circulating in the Spanish sea-ports are scarcely worth detailing. They are the echoes of many in being months ago. Ever since the Fr have overrun La Mancha they have been literally "on the borders of Andalusia;" but we believe none of them have ever traversed the Sierra Morena since Dupont. The left wing of the Fr. army in La Mancha had menaced Valencia and Murcia; but we have no account of its having ever entered either of those Provinces —That the Supreme Executive Power, in Seville, were taking precautions, in the event of misfortune, to repair to Cadiz, and eventually to South America, there can be no probable doubt.

Letters from Lisbon, to 23d January, mention the recent arrival there of 15,000 troops from England.

CHARLESTON, March 7.

The ship Savannah, Capt. Mitchell, arrived at Amelia, on Tuesday last, 42 days from Liverpool, from which place she sailed on the 22d January. A gentleman of this city has obligingly loaned us a Liverpool paper of the last date, received by this arrival, from which we have extracted the following important and interesting articles—all that our very limited time would permit us to make. This paper contains an account of the capture of Bourbon by the British on the 21st September, and the taking of seven ships of war, one of them of 100 guns, and the whole together mounting 318 guns.

LONDON, Jan. 18.

America has made haste to arrange her differences with France, and a convention between the two powers is said to have been signed on the 5th or 6th of this month. Not a syllable of its contents has transpired: but one great point which the American Government has always endeavored to gain has been the abandonment of the right of search by the naval powers of Europe.—Courier.

We have already stated that Prince Stahremberg might be expected soon to take his departure from this country, having received from his court instructions to that effect.—This circumstance has given rise to various rumours, which may at least furnish amusement to our readers. It is said that all hopes of a negociation for peace have vanished; the French Emperor having refused as a preliminary, that we should treat in concert with our allies, Ferdinand VII. the Queen of Portugal, and the King of Sicily. It is also reported, that Napoleon has written a letter to the King requiring an answer from himself, proposing very gentle means of restoring peace to mankind; and that the Marquis Wellesley, in whose department it lies to advise his Majesty on this subject, has thought it due, in politeness, that the letter of the Emperor should be answered in his Majesty's own name.—Star.

The general opinion at the Thuilleries is, that the Grand Dutchess Anne of Russia is the destined new bride of Bonaparte. It is added that let "the victim" be whom she may, the jewelers of Paris are preparing the diamonds which are to ornament her person.

BOSTON, March 21.

Latest from Spain.—Capt. Vinnel who arrived here yesterday, from Cadiz, has politely favored us with the papers of that city to the 24th Jan. We have not been able to procure translations from them.—But from a cursory perusal, they are found to breathe the same language, to express the same hope, and to hold the same tone of defiance to their French invaders, which marked the earlier periods of their opposition. A paper of the 23d Jan. contains a very animated Proclamation of the Supreme Juntato the Andalusians, announcing the approach of the French towards the Sierra Morena, and calling upon them to rise en-masse to prevent their ravaging the fields of Andalusia. The Proclamation is dated at Seville, the 20th of January. Other articles appear to be emanations of the same spirit; one from Mercia, dated the 15th January, says, "the retreat of the enemy has not lessened our activity; but on the contrary every exertion is making to convince the execrable tools of Napoleon, that if they dare invade this province, they will find therein a valiant and generous people, resolved to imitate the immortals of Saragossa and Gerona, and who have sworn to die rather than become the slaves of the most vile of all tyrants."

LATE FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE
Received at Charlestown.

LONDON, March 13.

The intelligence of the relaxation of Bonaparte's commercial decrees, is, we understand confirmed by the Paris papers of the 3d, which arrived in town, and which contain the following

DECREE.

"The ports of France, and all those under her control, are open to all vessels furnished with proper licences; that is to say, they must be new ones, of a date posterior to this decree.

ARTICLES OF EXPORTATION.

"Vinegar, pepper, pasteboard, silks, embroidered stuffs, verdigrease, oil of all sorts, honey, perfumery, corks, cut and in piece, turpentine, Spanish liquorice, dry pitch, rosin, juniper berries, raw, worsted, lamb and kid skins tanned and tawed, linen of Brittany, cloths and woolen stuffs of all kinds, velvets and cottons, silk, worsted and cotton hosiery, cutlery, trimming, china, work of leather and skins.

"Those articles cannot be entered in greater quantity than one fourth part of a cargo.—The other three parts of the cargo must be primative articles; those are corn, wine, brandy and fruit

IMPORTATION.

"Russia tallow, wax, mats, sail cloth, deals for various purposes, sulphur in flour, pot-ash, staves, row for fishing, Spanish dollars, black-lead, pewter, litharge, logwood, pitch and tar, barilla, sumack, arsenic, fish, oil, hides and lignumvitæ.

Letters from Holland, of a late date, mention that King Louis has returned from Paris; and that apprehensions of an incorporation with France no longer existed.

For the present, Bonaparte has contented himself with seizing part of Holland, the province of Zealand.—Accounts from Holland, of the 6th, state that a proclamation for incorporating the province of Zealand with France, had been received from Paris. The chief civil officer having refused to take the oath of allegiance without a more explicit and formal declaration of so important a change, was, it is said, immediately put under arrest by the commander of the French troops, and sent to Paris, to account for his contumacy. The possession of the Province of Zealand, makes Bonaparte master of the mouths of the Sheldt and the Maes, and in fact of the whole trade of Holland.

January 15.

In consequence of the French decree, a great number of vessels have, within these three days, arrived at different ports of this kingdom, with grain, butter, cheese and other articles.

Spanish papers arrived this morning, to the 30th ult. and Lisbon to the 7th inst. —They state, that Joseph Bonaparte with 18,000 men, was about to proceed to the North of Spain; for what purpose is not mentioned.

Bonaparte is lavishing upon the divorced Josephine, pensions and palaces. She has had a palace at Paris given her, and another near Bruffels, besides Malmaison. Bonaparte has added a million of livres from his private purse.

The wits of Paris say, that Jerome Bonaparte has magnanimously determined to ape Napoleon, and that having no hope of issue by his wife, he thinks seriously of repudiating her, & taking back his first wife.

January 18.

Several American cargoes in French ports, released from sequestration, were on the point of being disposed of at the invoice prices, when, in consequence of information from Gen. Armstrong, the sales were suspended, and the lots that would otherwise arise to the American owners avoided. A few days after this communication from Mr. Armstrong, the order for extending the list of articles of Export and Import appeared.

January 20.

This morning we had advice of the arrival of several ships from France to obtain logwood and other articles from this country admitted under the new custom house regulations of Bonaparte.

A bag from Heligoland has arrived with letters to the 13th inst. The following are extracts from some of them:

"Landscrona, January 7.—A very large fleet sailed from Carlscrona on the 30th ult. Many of the ships have been unfortunately lost from the difficulty of the navigation at this tempestuous season.

"Embden, Jan. 6.—The obstruction to the intercourse with the interior from this port still continues, and we can acquire no licences from hence to enable us to find a market for your goods in any of the other ports of the Kingdom of Holland."

Constantinople, Nov. 15.

On the 1st of November the thunder of cannon from Tophana announced to us a victory gained on the 22d October, not far from Silistria, over the Russian army besieging that fortress.—The battle according to the advices from the Grand Vizier, lasted from early in the morning till night, and the Russians, who made their attack along the whole line of the Turkish army, more than 10,000 —both armies fought principally with the sword, and the fortune of the day was decided by the coming up of Mucatar Pacha, in the critical moment, with his Albanian cavalry.

"The Russians, after the battle, retired to their entrenched camps before Silistria. Two days before the Garrison had made a sally, and killed about 1000.

"On the 8th of November, the Porte received from the Grand Vizier a more circumstancial account of a general action which took place between the two armies, in which the Russians suffered a defeat, and were obliged entirely to evacuate the right bank of the Danube; that is to say, with their infantry, which passed that river at Wirfova, while the cavalry which covered the retreat had no other way, as the Turks had broken down the bridge, but the road to Babadaz, and to pass the Danube near Watschim.—This cavalry was, however, closely purfued by the Turks, who at the time the dispatches of the Grand Vizier came away had taken many prisoners.

REMARKS
ON "THE POWER OF BONAPARTE."

From the Baltimore Federal Republican.

It will be found that the yearly average of conscripts from 1792, to those of 1811, now called out, amounts to one hundred and fifty thousand men, making in the whole three millions of men. What has become of these men? Are they all still in existence and capable of aiding the tyrant?—No, they have fallen in battle or become a prey to disease. Those who are now in the Emperor's army are all that remain, and France cannot supply their places when they have suffered the fate of those who have gone before them. It is morally impossible—France has been drained of her effective population by her continued wars, not merely by the destruction in battle of nearly three millions of the flower of her youth, but by the civil massacres of the revolution, the effects of which the still has occasion to deplore. The first conscription of France was levied in 1792, the last 1809, averaging 150,000, and the last levy was made two years in anticipation, making 3,000,000. These are undisputed facts, not mere hypothesis, so that any man capable of calculating population may judge of the present resources of the emperor with in his actual dominions. But still more conclusive evidence of the amazing decrease of Napoleon's power, is to be drawn from the circumstance of his being obliged to require the services of boys, scarcely able to bear arms and undergo the fatigues incident to a war waged in distant countries. Full-grown men cannot be supplied to feed the gaps made in his armies by battle and mortality. Boys at the age of 18 are now relied upon to perform those arduous duties which until a year or two past were confined to those who had arrived at man's estate. As a proof of our flatement and reasoning, it is an undeniable fact, that at one period, Paris alone, by voluntary levies, furnished annually, 6,000 able bodied men, but now under the severe conscription law she supplies the small number of 1,400 soldiers, and they are from eighteen to twenty-five years old. This is not all, it is notorious that at the present moment the city of Paris exhibits the curious spectacle of a population composed of from six to ten females to one male; and her universal moral corruption and beastly depravity is ill calculated to remedy an evil so untrienely to the perpetuity of military power.

Another conclusive proof of Bonaparte's want of men, is to be found in the circumstance of his being actually reduced, after first marching into Spain, to the deplorable "necessity of withdrawing his troops from the frontiers, and sending them over the Pyrenees into the Peninsula; to Garrison his vassal German towns with Russian troops, and to bring 100,000 mercenary Germans from the Rhenish confederacy into the heart of France, in order to keep down the insurrection of his own oppressed and famished subjects." This proves that at the period mentioned he had no great disposable force of French men, and that the population of France has not experienced any material increase in the last eighteen months, is a point which we are not willing to suspect his warmest American friends of maintaining.

Well, having arrived at this point of our enquiry, let us suppose that Napoleon has at this time beyond the borders of France, a disposable force of 500,000 men. He recommences his attack upon Spain.——Will a less number than one half of this force be sufficient to overawe Germany and watch Austria? Let it be remembered that the disposable and effective force of Francis alone generally exceeds this number. Had the Emperor been able to subdue Austria, a main obstacle would have been removed, but it is proved that he was not so able, and must therefore provide against her future interposition in behalf of Spain and his own ultimate security. Half his army at least, must be allotted to the performance of that duty, and we will suppose the other half or 250,000 to set out for Spain. Provisions and all the necessary munitions of war are to be provided, and carried, or, otherwise transported to Spain. They must be carried to Spain, because those parts of Spain which he must pass through he has already ravaged and laid waste, and from them he can derive little or no support for an army which cannot march or fight without being fed. These munitions of war cannot be transported by land conveniently, and if attempted will be liable to misadventures, and will be harrassed and destroyed in their course. An attempt to transport them by sea will be fruitless, for we have already seen, and that recently, that a considerable fleet of transports laden with provisions, &c. have been totally destroyed by a British fleet under command of Lord Collingwood. As often as he attempts to supply the means for supporting his army in Spain by sea, so often will he suffer discomfiture and a total loss.

Such are our reasons for believing that Spain will continue to maintain her independence in defiance of the threats and enterprising plans of her enemy. The spirit, integrity and strength of unsubdued Austria, the disposition of the German states to revolt, the discontents prevailing in France, the havoc heretofore made in Bonaparte's armies and his inability to supply this deficit with effective men, the difficulty of transporting succours and the munitions of war to the country to be subdued, and above all the determined spirit and patriotic enthusiasm of the Spaniards manifested in a recent important battle, all lead to the conclusion that the power of "our King Napoleon" is drawing to a gloomy close—and may Providence in her infinite goodness realize our fond anticipation! The tyrant must fall and we trust and believe his fate will not be prolonged another twelve month —— If it should chance to survive his Punic war, then have these United States little hope of remaining independent unless her present rulers are deposed. Slavery will be the inevitable doom of America, unless our councils are purged of the fraud, treachery and foul corruption with which they have been so long infected.

Extract from a late London Paper.

Miraculous Escape—Saturday se'n night, a private soldier in the North Devon Militia, named Tolcher, returning from Oreston to his regiment at Plymouth Dock, in crossing near Catdown, owing to the darkness of the evening, lost his road, and mistaking the wall erected as a fence to the quarry, for the file in the pathway, he leaped over it, and fell down a precipice of near one Hundred feet. In his fall, however, he lodged on a jutting rock, what the quarry-men call a head, about a third of the depth of the declivity. Being rather stunned, he imagined he was on solid ground, rose to walk, and was instantly precipitated to the bottom. Dreadful as was this fall, it did not deprive him of the power of exerting his voice, and his cries soon brought several perfons from the Oreston Dock yard to his affiftance, and marvellous as it may feem, he was in a fhort time enabled to walk to his quarters, with the affiftance of a perfon to take hold of his arm, although the diftance was near two miles. Contemplating the frightful precipice down which he fell, the ruggednefs of the rocks, and the large maffes of ftone fcattered in every direction, his efcape from inftant death appears almoft miraculous. His body was very much bruised; the fore part of the fkull laid open, and the left leg terribly lacerated; yet, as no blood-veffel is broke, the poor fellow is in a fair way of recovery

Boston, April 4.

BRITISH KINGS'S SPEECH.

Yesterday we obtained our files of London papers to the 25th January, received via Salem, in the Mary, Captain Stickney, from Liverpool.

The papers of the 24th of January contain his Britannic Majesty's Speech, to Parliament, delivered by commission, the 23d.—It is of considerable length.—The first nine paragraphs relate to the expedition to Flushing, to events in Austria, Sweden, Spain and Portugal, which are well known. The only paragraph which respects the United States, is the following:—

"His Majesty commands us to acquaint you, that the intercourse between his Majesty's Minister in America, and the Government of the United States, has been suddenly and unexpectedly interrupted. His Majesty sincerely regrets this event: He has, however, received the strongest assurances from the American Minister resident at this Court, that the United States are desirous of maintaining friendly relations between the two countries. This desire will be met by a corresponding disposition on the part of his Majesty."

The other paragraphs allude to the trade and revenue of the kingdom, which are stated to be highly satisfactory, and to the necessity of a vigorous opposition to the unabated animosity and violence of France.

We find very little in the debate on the subject of American Affairs.—It was intimated that the subjects in dispute between the two countries, were in a train of amicable discussion:—But no mention had been made of sending a new minister to the United States.

NEW-YORK, April 2.

The following important intelligence we copy from the Boston Gazette and Repertory.—We shall at present only remark, that we believe it entitled to the fullest credit.—What impressions it will make at the seat of Government, a few days may inform us. We suspect, that, after this, nothing more will be heard about the private letter!

Important Intelligence.—The following information from London, to a gentleman of this town, is handed us by one, who is incapable of knowingly abusing the public confidence for a moment. It is unquestionably derived from an authentic source; and our readers we think, may perfectly rely on its truth.—Boston Gaz.

"In a formal communication from Ld. Wellesley to Mr. Pinckney, the conduct of our executive, and the proceedings of Congress subsequent to the late negociations, are censured in the most unequivocal manner.

"It is asserted by the British Cabinet, that Mr. Jackson behaved only as his duty required; that the charge against him is absolutely groundless, and that he as well as his king and country, are treated with unprecedented rudeness and grossness by the United States.

"Lord Wellesley beginning with the offer to renew Mr. Jay's Treaty, recites a series of acts proving the sincere and uniform desire of Great Britian to meet the United States on fair and friendly conditions, all which have been met with a contrary Spirit by the government of the United States; and he says, now it is the belief of the British Cabinet, that every overture at conciliation, on their part, must be unavailing, because our government are resolved that no adjustment of differences shall be made—and he adds, that although they are disposed to receive propositions from us, yet it cannot be concealed, that none can at present be expected.

"Lord Wellesley took this occasion to remark, that the British government are fully sensible of the great part that is assigned them to act in the present eventful period of the world; and to declare explicitly, that all the means which God has graciously given them, shall be used, so far as is necessary, to resist the establishment of despotism, which would be more terrible than any yet known in the history of nations."

As there is no doubt, that a note, of which the foregoing is the substance, was delivered to Mr. Pinckney on or about the 18th of January, so it may be fairly presumed, that our government are in possession, or at least know perfectly well its tenor and import; for altho' that note may not have arrived at the seat of government, yet it is not pretended that Mr. Pinckney's "unofficial letter" of the fourth of January, in which he gives some account of a conversation with Lord Wellesley on the 30th of December, is the last communication received from Mr. Pinckney; and it is to be supposed that before the 14th, when the vessel sailed which bro't this dispatches, he gave some account of the subsequent conversation, which led to the official note above alluded.—Repertory.

Extract of a letter from Paris, dated 15th Jan. to a gentleman in this city.

"I did myself the pleasure of writing you, by the ship Madison, which vessel sailed from Dieppe on the 5th inst. At that time I had great reason to hope and expect that we should soon have a free intercourse between France and the United States, and advised you &c. but since that epoch, things do not wear quite so favorable an aspect; and I must recommend you not to follow the advice then given, though I think something will be done for the mutual interests of both countries, before General Armstrong leaves this for the United States, which will probably be in all the month of April."

PHILADELPHIA, March 30.

By the Satellite we have received Antigua papers to the 9th instant, from one of which we have extracted the following London articles, which have never before appeared in American papers, and bespeak a very favorable sentiment in regard to our relations with England.

LONDON, January 15—Private letters from Paris state, that King Jerome had incurred the displeasure of the Emperor in consequence of his declaring his resolution to be divorced from his second wife, the daughter of the King of Wirtemberg, because he had lost all hopes of having any issue by her. He is stated to have announced his determination to recognize his first marriage with Miss Patterson. This we consider as a mere report.

Lord Wellesley and Mr Pinkney have had several conferences on the subject of the pending differences with America, and their discussions had assumed the most amicable aspect, when the late dispatches from Paris suspended their intercourse, by creating occasion for Mr. Pinkney to apply to his Government for fresh instructions.

January 19—The presentation of Mrs. Pinkney at Court yesterday, of all the days in the year, is looked upon as the favorable augury of the amicable views of the American minister in regard to the pending negociation between this country and the United States, which is still actively carried on between the Marquis Wellesley and Mr. Pinkney.

It is said Government have resolved to send out a new minister to the United States; and that this measure has been adopted through the active influence of the marquis Wellesly.—The report of a treaty between France and America being actually concluded at Paris, is not believed; but, whether it is concluded or not, common sense requires that we should forthwith send a minister to America, as some one was expected there to replace Mr Jackson.

From Guadalupe via St. Barts.—A Fr. gentleman, passenger in the brig Hiram, from St. Bartholomews, ashore at the H. reached town this forenoon. He informs us that General Ernouf, with about two thousand French prisoners of war, sailed from Guadalupe on the 15 February for England.

The British were expected hourly to attack St. Bartholomews.

New-York, March 31.

Double dealing.—The contents of the following letter are of so extraordinary a nature, that we hardly know what to think. If it is not true, the administration will certainly at once disavow it: otherwise we suppose an enquiry will be instituted by the Representatives of the people. This is the first intimation we have had of an American minister at the court of Kin, Joe. Nor do we recollect of any such nomination being submitted to the Senate.—Freeman's Journal.

Extract of a letter from an American gentleman in Cadiz, dated 17th of January 1810.

"I have just seen Madrid dates to the 31st inst. nt, and cannot avoid relating to you a curious fact mentioned in a letter under that date, from a person of respectability—"Yesterday, (the 30th Dec.) the criminal court, appointed by the benevolent intruder, King Joseph, took cognizance of the cause of an Irish Clergyman, who acts as Charge des affairs of the United States in this Capital, and who has been imprisoned upwards of two months by order of the usurper.' Until now it was not known here that the present American administration was playing a double game in Spain; and that whilst they gave orders to Mr. Erving to follow the Supreme Central Junta in the character of their representative, they also had another agent near the Court of the intruding Monarch. The few Americans here have seen with deep regret this double game, and cannot help drawing a comparison betwixt the legislative government of Spain and that of the usurper.—The Junta treats Mr. Ervine with all possible respect and attention, while King Joseph imprisons and ill treats the agent, representing near his person, the American government. Since this circumstance has transpired, I blush to meet my Spanish friends: however, I am glad to observe they discriminate between the act of a set of men who would wish to favor French usurpation and tyranny, to answer their private views, and the wishes of all true Americans who surely never can approve, they say, an attempt against the liberties of a great and independent nation."

Extract from the same person, dated 24th January.

"Since the defeat of the French in the passes of the Sierra Morena, all is again in confusion in Madrid.—We have just learnt that King Joe, the Barbarian, has ordered the beautiful custom-house, post-office, and other public buildings in Madrid, to be immediately demolished; by this time I suppose these elegant edifices no longer exist. Joseph consulted his friends respecting the demolition of the magnificent new palace he inhabits, but this has been suspended for the present. Meanwhile his rapacity and that of his myrmidons is beyond conception; they rob and plunder the plate, jewels, and other valuable effects of the churches, convents and individuals, and such is their avidity for gold, that they even scrape off the gilding of picture frames, and burn every ray of tissue they meet with. This conduct of the French induces the Spaniards to believe their visitors about quitting that capital.—God grant they may, and the kingdom too, for as long as a Frenchman remains in Spain there will be no peace or happiness."

Boston, March 27.

FROM SPAIN.

Yesterday arrived at Manchester, the brig Alonzo, Captain Burges, from Malaga. Captain B. had the goodness to transmit us Gibraltar papers of Jan. 6, Malaga papers to Jan. 17, his marine intelligence, and the following

Extracts of Letters,

"Malaga, Jan. 20.

"Among the lower class of people the greatest enthusiasm continues to prevail, and great sacrifices will be made to prevent our being overrun. It will not be surprising should they rise en mass; and as the roads in general are bad, and of difficult access, the enemy will be materially annoyed. If great reinforcements arrive from France, in the long run we may be subjugated; but the French Government will never find a friend in this country in the present generation."

January 22.

"The Members who are to compose the Cortes of the nation have been chosen. In this Province we have made a good selection. No person of title or any holding a public office has been chosen."

"P. S. We are just informed that general Lacc has taken 900 Frenchmen of a corps who attempted to pass the Sierra Morena."

January 23.

"Two officers of the Voluntaire frigate, arrived here last evening from Gibraltar, and mention, that they carried from Mahon four French Deputies that had been to see Lord Collingwood, and landed them on the coast of France near Marseilles, in the night time. That the object of their mission was a perfect secret, but that it was generally believed that they had carried proposals from the South of France and part of Italy, to declare themselves independent, and solicited they should be considered neutrals by the English."

From the Genius of Liberty.

Great & noble actions ought to be known and recorded.

The following is an extract of a letter from a gentleman near Princeton, N. J. to his friend at Long-Hill, dated February 28th 1810.

"An interesting incident occurred near Princeton some weeks ago. The cold Saturday a number of Students were skating on Scudder's mill pond; one of them named Hone, about 16 years old, fell into the water, where it was from 10 to 12 feet deep. In struggling to get out, he broke the ice for some distance round, but did not succeed, and become at last so exhausted and overcome that he could not see. The students in the mean time, ran backwards and forwards clamoring, but no one ventured to the aid of his perishing friend.—An apprentice boy, however, about 14 years old, approached so near Hone that he put one end of a stick, with which he had been playing ball on the ice, into his hand. With the aid of this stick he drew Hone upon the ice, and though sensible of his own danger, and shedding tears, persisted till he drew Hone so far forward that the end of his skate caught on the edge of the ice. Hone then asked the boy to let him draw back and extricate his skate: he did so, and both at last reached a place of safety. Hone, when sufficiently recovered, put his hand into his pocket, and offered the boy two dollars which he had with him. The generous boy would not take it, saying he would have done the same for any person in the same situation. He offered him afterwards 20 dollars; the boy said he did not want his money. Hone's father came on, and offered to buy the boy's time, but the sensible little fellow said he wished to learn his trade. Finally, Mr. Hone, the father, vested, for the boy, 500 dollars, and the students made him up about two hundred dollars more. It is said the boy's father was a man of property in N. York; but became insolvent, died, and left his children so destitute, that this son was bound to Horner to learn the Tanner's business."

FROM THE BALANCE.

A MARCH ODE TO SPRING.

Winter, thou savage pow'r, away,
With all thy desolating train;
Lo! king of reign,
Sweet Spring appears,
To compensate thy cruel sway,
And make fad nature smile again.

But whence, sweet Spring, the cordial fire,
That doth thy countenance pervade?
Ah! I had thou been
A captive queen,
Since last thy presence did repair,
The rude Winter's rage had made!

I thought that when thou had'st replac'd
The beauties spoil'd by Winter rude,
The fire of love
Call'd thee above,
The joys of Paradise to take,
Till earth again thy presence had.

And this undoubtedly is true:
Whence then thy weeping and thy sighs?
Sure they must flow
For Nature's woe;
Her mournful state thou can'st not view
With heart unmov'd and tearless eyes.

And is there nought but woe, sweet Spring,
To bid thee welcome to thy throne?
Dear as thou art
To Nature's heart,
No objects bloom, no songsters sing;
Nought seem thy sovereignty to own.

But doubtless thou dost not complain
That thou art now poor homage paid;
For, long ago,
Sure thou did'st know
That, by thy animating reign,
Thy noblest worshippers were made.

Soon, grateful for thy gentle sway,
Creation will in bloom appear;
And ev'ry thing,
On foot or wing,
Will some peculiar homage pay
To thee, the glory of the year.

Though Nature's welcome's still delay'd,
No longer must I mine defer;
Thou'rt not regard
A simple bard,
When Nature in her chaunge array'd,
Becomes thy glorious worshipper.

Thrice do I welcome thee, fair queen;
For long, with heavy heart, I'd sought
Man's greatest wealth,
Sweet rosy health;
And this dear nymph of heav'nly mein,
Thou to my longing arms hast brought.

And thrice, dear Health, I welcome thee,
For now full well thy worth I know;

O deign to look
Upon my misery,
Till there is nothing left of me,
But a worn frame and locks of snow.

And then, all gracious Power Supreme,
From whom alone our blessings spring,
Since thou dost prove
A God of love,
O shed on every heart a beam,
That every tongue thy praise may sing.

LATEST FROM SPAIN.

On Monday arrived at Philadelphia, ship Caledonia, Captain Taylor, from Cadiz, which he left the 11th of February, and informs that the French army, after passing the Sierra Morena, had taken Seville—drove the whole country en masse, before them into Cadiz—captured Port Maria the watering place opposite the city of Cadiz, on the 6th of February, where they were fortifying themselves. They had been fired on constantly from a British two decker and 4 gun boats, but without success. A flag had been sent into Cadiz to demand its surrender to its lawful Sovereign and Friend, King Joseph; the answer returned, was, that the loyal people of Cadiz knew no King but Ferdinand.

The Junta were at the head of Cadiz Bay, at a small place called Illes. The French and Spanish men of war had their sails bent, and were ready for sea, to the number of 17. The British Admiral, Purvis, with about 12 ships of war, was at Cadiz, and appeared to have the principal direction. Cadiz being so much crowded with people from the country, water was very scarce, and all business at a stand.

All merchant vessels having provisions on board were embargoed, but those that were unloaded, were permitted to sail when they chose. The American Consul had, at his family on ship board; and with a great number of inhabitants, were preparing to leave Cadiz as soon as possible.

Extract of a letter from Cadiz, Feb. 9.

"We have the French in sight, at Port St. Mary's on the opposite side of the Bay, six miles from here. They have already sent in a summons, and was answered that they were ready to receive them at the mouth of the cannon. The city is quiet, and no mobs or any disturbances."

A letter from Cadiz of the 8th of February mentions that the French have taken possession of Malaga.

Cadiz, Feb. 9.

The Supreme Junta of this place does not lose sight of, or omit any means which can contribute to the public convenience, and at the same time not diminish the means of defence. In addition to the numerous measures hitherto adopted, it has been published, that navigation is free, and that all vessels may depart for their respective destinations, provided they do not take with them provisions, which must be left for the sustenance of the inhabitants.

The regiment of Patriots which was in garrison in this city, has received its full complement of arms, ammunition, &c. and measures are taking to organize the militia, for the better defence of the city.

According to advices from Lisbon, we may every moment expect 5000 British troops & eight ships of the line. We also look for reinforcements from Gibraltar.

The enemy on the 7th, in the morning, were seen falling back to the Puerto Real, in consequence of the fire from our boats; notwithstanding which they afterwards advanced and were fortifying themselves at the battery Del Commercio, keeping up a constant fire of musquetry on our boats, who continued to annoy them.

Another division of 500, with five pieces of flying artillery, proceeded the same evening to the Trocedaro, where they had to shelter themselves in the magazines, so smart was the fire of our ships and gun-boats.

According to accounts from Puerto and Xeres, it appears, that the enemy, no longer able to conceal their true character, have commenced their accustomed outrages on the peaceable inhabitants. This is the happiness they offer to those who treacherously adhere to their cause!

The whole of yesterday, with but short intervals, we witnessed the fire of our gun-boats, of the English and of the ship San Justo, upon the Trocadero. The enemy has not shown himself at a single point.

According to letters from Isla, the enemy has sent a column of 15,000 men to Chiclana. They also say, that the advanced guard has been beaten with great loss to the enemy, as well upon the road del Arrecif, as also by the fire it sustained from Gallinetas.

The regiment of Patriots has let out for D Isla.

We have just received news from Madrid as late as the 17th January. The enemy has concentrated all his force to invade Andalusia. 1500 men only remain in Garrison at Madrid and 1000 at Toledo.—In Desperations they have left 2000, and a strong detachment in Carolina. By the same conveyance, we are informed that they have received no fresh reinforcements from France; and that Gen. Blake is at Guadix, where he has collected the dispersed, and incorporating into his army, all the praisantry, who flocked to his standard in great numbers.

By order of the government, packet boats have been established for the purpose of maintaining a correspondence with places not in possession of the enemy.

Although the contents of our Spanish Gazettes indicated a crisis of peculiar trial, there is nothing in them that evinces despondency in the government or the people. In Cadiz particularly, a spirit of uncorquerable patriotism and determined resistance is every where manifested.—Phil. Gaz.

NEW YORK, April 13.

Very late and Important News from England.

Last evening arrived at this port the fast sailing ship Cincinnati, Conklin, in 30 days from London, from whence she sailed on the 13th of March. Captain C. and his passengers have obligingly favored the editors of the Mercantile Advertiser, with a file of London papers to the 10th of March, inclusive, nearly a month later than our former advices.

We learn verbally, that it was expected Mr. Pinkney would speedily arrange a treaty with the British government.

No relaxation had taken place in France relative to American affairs and Commerce.

No change had taken place in the British Ministry, but such an event was confidently expected.

The John Adams frigate was to sail from England, for France, on the 13th of March.

PARIS, March 1.

NOTE.

From the Minister of Foreign Affairs, to Mr. Armstrong, Minister Plenipotentiary from the United States.

"The undersigned having rendered an account to the Emperor and King, of the conversation which he had with Mr. Armstrong, Minister Plenipotentiary from the United States of America, his Majesty has authorised him to return the following answer.

"His Majesty considers his Decrees of Berlin and Milan as conformable to the principles of eternal justice, if they were not the compelled consequences of the orders of British Council, and above all of that of November, 1807. When England proclaimed an universal sovereignty by the pretention of making the universe submit to a right of navigation, and of bringing the industry of every nation under the jurisdiction of her Parliament, his majesty considered it the duty of all nations to defend their sovereignty, and declared denationalized the vessels which, ranging themselves under the dominion of England, recognized the sovereignty which she arrogated over them.

"His Majesty distinguishes the visit and the recognition of the vessel. The recognition has no other object but to ascertain the reality of the flag. The visit is an inferior inquest made notwithstanding the reality of the flag is ascertained, and of which the result is either the pressing of individuals, the confiscation of merchandize, or the application of arbitrary laws or dispositions.

"His Majesty could not but attend to the proceedings of the United States, who without making any complaint of France, comprised her in their acts of exclusion; and in the month of May prohibited the entry into their ports of French vessels, under the penalty of confiscation. Immediately that his Majesty was informed of this measure, he ordered a reciprocity to be used towards American vessels, not only in his own territories, but also in the countries under his influence. In the ports of Holland, Spain, Italy and Naples, American vessels were seized, because the Americans had seized French vessels.—The Americans cannot hesitate as to the part which they ought to take. They ought either to break the act of their independence, and become again as before the revolution, subjects of England, or take such measures that their commerce and industry may not be tarriffed by the English, which would render them more dependent than Jamaica, which at least has an assembly of Representatives and its privileges.

"Men without polity, without honor, and without energy, may well alledge that they will submit to pay the tribute imposed by England because it is light, but will not the English feel that they would rather have the principle admitted than increase the tariff, because, if this tribute, now light, should become insupportable, those who had refused to fight for honor, must then fight for interest.

"The undersigned frankly confesses that France has every thing to gain by giving the Americans a good reception in her ports.—Her commercial relations with neutrals are advantageous to her, and she is not in any manner jealous of their prosperity. Great, strong, and rich, she is satisfied, if by her commerce, or that of neutrals, her exportations give a suitable developement to her agriculture and manufactures.

"It is scarcely thirty years since the States of America became an Independent Government in the bosom of the new world, at the price of the blood of many immortal men who perished in the field of battle, in order to shake off the leaden yoke of the English monarch.—These generous men were far from supposing, when they thus sacrificed their blood for the independence of America, that a question would so soon arise, of imposing on it a yoke heavier than that which they had shaken off, in submitting its industry to the tariffs of British legislation, and to the orders in council of 1807.

"If then the American Minister will enter into an engagement that American vessels shall not submit to the Orders of the English Council, of November 1807, nor to any decree of blockade, unless that blockade shall be real, the undersigned is authorized to conclude every species of convention tending to renew the Treaty of Commerce with America, and in which shall be arranged all the measures proper to consolidate the commerce and prosperity of the Americans.

"The undersigned has thought it his duty to answer the verbal overtures of the American Minister by a written note, in order that the President of the U. States may better know the amicable intentions of France towards the United States, and her favourable disposition to American commerce.

(Signed) "DUC DE CADORE."

VERY LATE NEWS.

By the ship Juno, which arrived yesterday in a very short passage from London, papers to March 12, were received.

The London Courier of March 9, says the the ship John Adams was expected to sail yesterday from Cowes, and is to touch at a French port to take dispatches from General Armstrong. It is said she will carry with her the basis on which it is proposed to termin ate all differences between Great Britain and the United States.—It is stated to have obtained the entire concurrence of Mr. Pinkney. [The John Adams remained in England when the Juno sailed.] The Morning Post of March 12, says, "we have reason to hope that the negociation between the Marquis Wellesley and Mr. Pinkney has taken a favorable turn;" and thus we trust, the evident designs of Napoleon will be frustrated.

An order of Council has been issued for continuing open the West-India Islands to vessels from the United States, if the Colonial Governors think proper.

Paris dates in the London papers are to March 4.

Intelligence from Cadiz is to the 20th of February. It had nearly 30,000 troops within its walls, and was well supplied with money, water and provisions. The British and Spaniards had prevented the French from attacking the city. Several forts they had erected had been destroyed by the gun-boats; and several successful enterprizes had been made against parties of them on the main land,—Deputies from Joseph had been refused admittion at Cadiz, and his proclamation burnt by the hang-man.—The Members of the Supreme Junta are said to have been arrested.—Cadiz will withstand a long siege. —In Catalonia, the Spaniards have gained some trifling advantage. A body of French troops were near Badajos, on the frontiers of Portugal; but we do not find that kingdom had been invaded up to Feb. 25, although the Duke of Abrantes on his way to Spain, has arrived at Bayonne, destined speedily to subdue the Portuguese.

A paris paper of March 2, contains a letter from Marshal Soult, with an account of the taking of Malaga, by Sebastiana. Some disturbances preceded the event. Gen. Cuesta, and the old civil and military officers had been seized and sent on ship board. A great number of the inhabitants, marching out, and joining with the country people had a desperate battle with the French. 1500 of them (Spaniards) were killed; and the remainder retreated into the city fighting, but at length were subdued. The French acknowledge the loss of 30! There were 25 ships in the harbour. English goods were sequestered.

The French have imposed a contribution at Algeziras, at Tariffe and at Seville. The British and Spaniards had been successful in some enterprises against the French on the main land near Cadiz.

A Paris paper of March 1, contains a communication from the Emperor Napoleon to the Senate, announcing that he had concluded a treaty of marriage with the Archduchess Maria Louisa, daughter of the Emperor of Germany.

A French tribunal had been employed at Treves, to try a prodigious number of persons accused of revolt in the department of Sarre, in which the insurgents had been joined by the national guards.

From Cadiz.—Capt. Burrows, of the Julia-Ann, who arrived this morning in 45 days from Cadiz, informs us that the inhabitants were under no apprehensions—that they had 6 months provisions in the place—that 8 or 9 transports had arrived there with troops from England—and that they could hold out against the French as long as they pleased.

Extract of a letter from Cadiz, 19th Feb.

"We have here now 4500 English troops, and hourly expect 3000 more, which we know have embarked at Lisbon for our port, as also 2000 troops from Gibraltar. With these and the ships of war, Cadiz will defy all the power Bonaparte can send against it."

—(We also can state from an authentic source that Romana was following up the invaders of Andalusia, and at the last accounts was on the point of cutting off the junction between two of their grand divisions.)

Latest Foreign News.

NEW YORK. April 20.

Latest from Cadiz.—By the brig Young Soldier, in 25 days passage from Cadiz, which port she left on the 22d of March—we learn that Cadiz still held out, that the French army, under Joseph, consisted of about 50,000 men; that the Emperor Napoleon was shortly expected with a reinforcement of 50,000 more. The force employed in its defence, consisted of 22,000 Spaniards, 7,000 British, and 5000 others were daily expected from England. There is a considerable party in Cadiz in favor of the French, but it is almost certain death to speak the French language there. Being well provisioned, it was expected that Cadiz would hold out for a long time against its besiegers.

We further learn, that an American Gentleman arrived in Cadiz about the 20th of March, in 5 days passage from Lisbon, and reported that the French army had not entered Portugal, and that Lord Wellington, with the British and Portuguese armies, was on the frontiers of Portugal.—Mer. Advert.

A passenger in the brig Eliza, capt. Taylor, arrived at Charleston from St. Bartholomews, informs that on the 12th ult. the French privateer Superior went in there, in company with an armed Swedish schooner, commanded by captain John Portele, who it was understood was dispatched for that purpose, and also to take the money out of the privateer, in consequence of a secret understanding between the Swedish Governor and capt. Jean Marie, who had previously some conference on the subject. The property carried into St. Bartholomews, which was immense, was daily exposed to public sale, as forfeited to the Swedish Government, but the distribution of the proceeds among the privateermen, according to their respective shares, fully exposed the fraud. Some days before the Eliza sailed, a British armed brig and a frigate arrived off St. Bartholomews, and were still at anchor there. This greatly alarmed the inhabitants, who were in daily expectation of an attack. The principal object of the British was, to demand of the Swedish Governor the privateer and the property she had captured, which was refused; in consequence of which a dispatch had been sent to Admiral Cochrane, for instructions. There was no doubt the privateer would be taken by force. It is further stated, that the Swedish Governor was sitting the Superior as a cutter, to be commanded by captain Portele, who is to be sent to Sweden, on the subject of what they call her capture. Sometime before the Superior entered St. Bartholomews, the captured near St. Domingo, a schooner, laid to be American, under Spanish colours, having a valuable cargo on board, which they caused to be landed on the beach at St. John's, where it was taken possession of by the Swedish government. This was also said to be in consequence of a private understanding between the Governor and privateersmen.

The (English) Papers contain many rumours of a renewed spirit of hostility in Russia towards France. The point upon which Napoleon will pique Alexander, it is said, is the establishment of a kingdom in Poland—a measure deferred at the treaty of Tilsit till a more convenient time; and it is this, it is said, which has led to the determination of Russia to march troops into Poland. A new movement of the French armies towards the frontiers of Alexander are also mentioned in an article from Nuremberg, though the ostensible object was a more rigorous blockade in the North of Germany, to effect an entire exclusion of English commerce.

LONDON, Feb. 5.

The mail from Gibraltar has just arrived.

The famous Spanish Heroine, Augustina Saragossa, had arrived at Gibraltar some days before our letters came away, dressed in her uniform as an officer of the Spanish army. This lady had her husband and son killed by her side at the siege of Saragossa, and herself received three wounds, in the different actions she was engaged in during the siege, and shewed the most heroic bravery.—The French sent her a prisoner towards France, but she made her escape at Pampeluna. She has a commission and a pension from the Spanish Government, and is now going to join her regiment in Arragon. She is a modest good looking woman, 32 years of age, and her manners and her appearance are highly pleasing.

A very considerable naval force consisting of several tail of the line and smaller vessels, is forthwith to be sent to the East Indies.—Several ships now fitting at Plymouth, and others at Portsmouth are named among the number. A considerable body of troops also go out in the ships of war. Portsmouth is appointed as the general rendezvous. The reduction of the Isle of France is said to be the primary object of this force; but it is also destined to relieve our ships now on that station, and to fill up the vacancies in our foreign garrison, occasioned by disease and other casualties.

BONAPARTE'S MARRIAGE.

Copy of an Address voted by the Senate in answer to Bonaparte's Message on the subject of his Marriage.

SIRE—Your Imperial and Royal Majesty has been pleased to announce your approaching marriage with the Archduchess Maria Louisa, the daughter of the Emperor of Austria.

The Senate, Sire, feels most sensibly that joy which all Frenchmen must experience on learning so memorable an event. Every thing that interests the happiness of your Majesty is dear to all Frenchmen!

The August Princess, whom the wishes of the people of Austria are about to accompany, will arrive on the banks of the Seine, surrounded by the tributes of the grateful love of your people.—Her presence, in the capital of the Grand Empire, will be a happy sign of the duration of that continental peace which is cemented by the moderation of your character, and which perfidious insinuations can no longer disturb.

How happy a destiny is that of Napoleon and Maria Louisa! The happiness of the world is in your hands, Sire, and your happiness is to be confided to that young Princess, whose brilliant qualities have fixed your regards.

Seated near you, on the first of thrones, and placed so high in your thoughts, she will fulfil the wish of the French people; she will render you happy; she will charm the Hero's hour of leisure! May France be indebted to her for young princes, who, under the paternal eyes of your Majesty, shall learn to render themselves worthy of the great name which will be transmitted to them. By what gratitude will not the French be bound to her?—They will love her for the love of you; they will love her for her virtues; they will, above all, adore her for the felicity she will give you; and, like posterity, will confound in their homage the greatest of Monarchs with her, who will have to embellish the most glorious of Lives.—May that precious life be also the longest! Such is the most earnest desire of the French people.

The Assembly decrees that this Address be presented to his Majesty the Emperor and King, by the Senate in a body.

(Signed) CAMBACERES, Prince, Archchancellor of the Empire, President.
FRANCOIS JAUCOURT, } Secretaries.
CORNET, }
LAPLACE, Chancellor of the Senate.

Bonaparte's Reply.

SENATORS—I am touched with the sentiments you have expressed. The Empress Louisa will be a tender mother to the French; she will also be to a blessing. I am happy to have been called by Providence to reign over this affectionate and feeling people, whom I have found, under all circumstances of my life, so faithful and so kind to me.—[London March 20.

PARIS, March 13.

The criminal Tribunal of the department of the Siene, continues to prosecute and punish all Frenchmen who have acted with the Austrians against France since 1804, agreeably to the decree of the 6th April, 1809.

Official information has been forwarded to England conjointly by France and Austria, accompanied as we are told, by some new propolals for peace.

Altona, March 19.

We learn from France that a closer confolidation of the confederative states belonging to the French fyftem is in agitation. It is alfo said that an alliance between France, Auftria and Sweden is about to be promulgated, and letters from Stockholm of the 6th March, announce the departure of Col. Von Engelbrechen to receive poffeffion of Pomerania, which province the French will evacuate.

They write from Holland that the caftle of Loo, (on the frontiers) is to be ready on the 15th of April to receive the king of Holland; who is expected at Amfterdam early in that month. The Dutch are again taught to hope peace.

Straiburgh, March 12.

The princefs Maria Louisa, of Auftria, has arrived at this place, on her way to Paris.—The papers are filled with the intended ceremonies of the coronation.

An Altona paper of the 22d inft. fays, that a letter from France dated the 8th, which mentions, that the armiftice between the Ruffians and Turks has not yet taken place. They affure us that a note from the French miniſter has been handed to the Porte, to induce him to join the continental fyftem, the succefs of which is expected. In the mean time it is affirmed, that France has offered her mediation between Ruffia and the Turks.

Conſtantinople, January 25.

The Porte has determined to raiſe immediately a new army of 150,000 men, alſo to reinforce the army of the Grand Vizier, as information is received of the advance of the Ruſſians again towards Siliſtria and Griergiewo.

LONDON, March 21.

The attention of the people on the Continent is ſo entirely abſorbed by the contemplation of the approaching marriage between Napoleon and the Auſtrian Princeſs, that every other political conſideration is ſuſpended.

The rumours of war between France and Ruſſia has wholly ſubſided.—Letters have been received from Peterſburgh, dated the 3d inſtant. Of war there is not the ſlighteſt apprehenſion in that capital. Trade is ſomewhat revived, the Exchange has advanced to 17 and a fraction, and there is a general hope in Ruſſia that the reſtriction on the trade with Great Britain, ſo far from being increaſed, will be relaxed.

Private letters have been received from Spain by which it appears that Cadiz has not yet been formally attacked, although it is in a ſtate of complete blockade on the land ſide. At Malaga, the French remain in undiſturbed poſſeſſion.

The report of Napoleon having inſiſted on America declaring herſelf the friend of France or of England, is again revived. The neutrality of America we have long believed to be much longer, impoſſible.

March 22.

Some more ſets of Paris Papers have reached us, but not of a more recent date than thoſe which had already ſupplied us with extracts. If reliance can be placed on an article from Turkey, Sir Samuel Hood's ſquadron had paſſed the Dardanelles. The Porte muſt have been threatened with ſome formidable operations, on the part of the Ruſſians, in the Black Sea, to permit the paſſage of our ſhips. The Tyroleſe inſurgents have been driven from the refuge they had took in Vienna, and ſeveral of them arreſted, by orders of the Auſtrian Government. Theſe papers continue to be occupied at great length with accounts of the ſplendid preparations for the nuptials of Napolean, which it is now underſtood, will be celebrated at Paris on the 29th inſtant. Berthier arrived at Vienna on the 4th, and was to leave it again on the 15th, with the new Empreſs—The only notice taken of the affairs of the Peninſula is the removal of King Joſeph's head quarters from Xeres to Port St. Mary.

YORK, 26th MAY, 1810

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, and Suite, arrived here this morning from a tour of three weeks, through the Weſtern part of the Province.

—The Editor with pleaſure inſerts whatever can in any manner tend to inſtruct the Cultivators of this Country in the moſt improved modes of preparing Hemp, and now gives the extract of a letter on the ſubject, publiſhed in the N Y Spectator.

NEW YORK April 5, 1810.

"An anxious deſire to call the attention of the Farmers in this State to what I conceive their greateſt intereſt, as well as the intereſt of the Country at large, has induced me to ſend the following obſervations relative to the raiſing of Hemp; being fully convinced that no ſpecies of agriculture can be rendered equally productive."

"Though Hemp has for many years been cultivated in the State of New York with conſiderable ſucceſs, and many thouſand acres of land are better adapted to its growth than for any other purpoſe, yet it is ſurpriſing that more general attention has not been paid towards raiſing a plant of ſuch intrinſic value. Were all the Farmers that have land adapted to its growth, to turn their attention to raiſe and prepare ſo important an article for market, they would ſoon make independent fortunes; but if they were under the neceſſity of giving double trouble the uſual wages paid to laborers, they ought not to be deterred from entering on its cultivation, nor ſuffer one ſeaſon to be loſt."

"As our troubles ſeem likely to continue, there is no knowing to what extent the price of Hemp may be carried. To every country a ſupply of it muſt be neceſſary; to a commercial nation in particular, it is abſolutely indiſpenſible. I am confident that nothing is wanting to ſtimulate our citizens to attend to its culture, but a knowledge of its real importance and the great profits ariſing therefrom. Upon an average, three tons of good bottomed land will produce a ton of Hemp; and fifty dollars will pay every expence that attends raiſing, water rotting, and preparing it for market.—Thoſe who have not a natural pond, may with a ſmall ſtream of water furniſh themſelves at a ſmall expence with an artificial reſervoir that will anſwer every purpoſe equally as well, if not better. There is great ſaving as well as certainty in this mode of rotting, which in the lore part of the ſeaſon, is accomplished in a few days, and with the greateſt certainty; the ſtrength of the Hemp is not endangered by this method, for the color or beauty of it injured, and the ſooner it is rotted after being pulled the brighter and more ſaleable it will appear."

"The old ſlimy method of rotting on the grass, has been the means of diſcouraging many a poor man, who, by efforts of induſtry, having obtained a fine crop, has, by this injurious proceſs, had his flattering hopes in a great meaſure bliſted, and his labours principally lost; moreover, when got out in this way it is by no means equal in quality to that which is water rotted.

We are happy to announce that, the first reports of the loss of a number of lives and considerable sums in specie & other valuables by the Boat from Kingston to Montreal, were exaggerated.

Take of common Salt, 5 parts, by weight,
Oxide of Manganese, 1 " "
Sulphurick acid, 4 " "

The black oxide of Manganese is to be pulverized and passed through a hair sieve and mixed with the salt without trituation, when the sulphurick (formerly vitriolick) acid is to be poured on the mixture.—The product of this union is the oxigenated muriatick gas.

The second process differs from the first only in omitting the Manganese, and in its producing the muriatick gas simply. This gas is sufficient to effect all the beneficial purposes mentioned below. It differs from the oxidenated muriatick vapours merely in being somewhat less pungent, expansible and powerful.

Guyton Morveau began his fumigating practice at Dijon in 1773, where he checked an infectious fever occasioned by the effluvia from the dead bodies just removed from the vaults of the Cathedral Church.

Another opportunity for trying these vapours occurred soon after in the same place.

The atmosphere in the jail of Gijon became so corrupted, that a malignant jail fever broke out among the prisoners, by which many of them were carried off. the muriatick vapours for two days completely stopped the progress of these diseases.

Since that period, the utility of these fumigating processes has been recognized, their use every where directed, and the inventor of them honored and rewarded by the French government.

From a body of most respectable and authentic communications and testimonies as exhibited in the last edition of this work, now before me, it appears that the acid fumigations have now been fully tried in almost every country in Europe, and in some parts of the West-Indies with success in all the states of malignant fever, from the mild typoid grade, to the yellow fever of America. This disease first appeared in France in 1802, at Marseilles, on board an American ship, and again in the lazaretto, of the same place, in October, 1804, with characters of contagion still more alarming. Many observations made on those seized with yellow fever in this lazaretto, confirm, in the clearest manner, the power of the muriatick acid fumigations, according to the Guytonian method. Every vessel coming from Spain on which the yellow fever was in a state of activity, was completely disinfected. The same method invariably preserved the guards who had charge of the sick, with the exception of those who came on board before any precaution of this kind was taken.

The process for correcting bad air, for destroying contagious miasmata, and for guarding the body against their impressions, are founded on the same principles; but the quantities and manipulations ought to vary according to circumstances, and the object to be attained.—Large fumigations are indispensible where places not inhabited are to be purified, as hospitals, ships, prisons, &c. In a word, in al places where it is proposed to effect a complete purification in a few hours, and where the intensity and duration of the fumigations need not be restrained by any consideration, and where more is to be apprehended by doing too little than too much. After filling an apartment with these vapours it should be shut for eight hours, it may be then well ventilated, and immediately occupied with safety.

Subjoined are a few of the many instances of success of these fumigations.

The Hospital at Cherbourg, after the peace of Amiens, was filled with English prisoners. Several of these had a bad species of ulcer, called "hospital ulcer," when Dr. Fleury had attempted to cure with all the known means of medical surgery. This contagion was so active as to give every mild ulcer and recent wound in the hospital the appearance and character of this malignant hospital ulcer. Dr. F. directed the daily use of Morveau's fumigations for the amelioration of the air, directed them particularly to these sores. Soon after this practice was established the ulcers were observed to heal readily under the same treatment which before was attended with no good effect.

Dr. Luiscius, of Delft, informs M. Morveau, that since the use of his fumigations, in a very extensive practice, that the malignant catarrrhal fever, formerly so very frequent in Holland, even in the same family, had never prevailed.

Of twenty-eight prisoners at Coutances in 1804, eighteen were seized in one week with the jail fever, some of them with such violence that the physicians judged it beyond the resources of art. The disease was making its appearance in several houses near the prison. Some individuals guided by popular prejudice, advised the purifying of the air, by means of the streams of vinegar and the odour of burnt juniper berries.

This advice was followed but without any good effect. M. Coltaz, prefect of the department of Manche, hastened to Coutances, suppressed these streams, and directed the acid fumigations in question. These precautions completely arrested the progress of the disease, "as it were by enchantment."

Many other cases or infectious diseases, treated in this manner, with perfect success, are recorded by M. Morveau.

When the intention is merely to support the salubrity of the air in the rooms of the sick, to quicken the vital energy by a slight stimulant, to destroy the fetor of dejections, to secure the attendants against all deleterious impression, these effects may be produced by gradually pouring the acid on the salt and carrying the vessel about the apartments, taking care to diffuse the vapours equally through every part of them, and not to evolve the vapours so rapidly as to incommode respiration.

These operations are conducted equally with or without heat; vessels of glass or hard pottery are the best.

The old fumigations with aromatick & other substances, as woods, herbs, barrozins &c. possess no power to correct the infection of putrid air—they only seemed to do so by weakening the perception of its smell.—All this was worse than doing nothing, because it lessened the sense of danger, while its reality existed in full force.

These acid vapours, on the contrary, result from the improved chemistry of the present day; and it is their prerogative, as now proved by numberless trials, to neutralize and radically destroy atmospherick infection. This is done by a decomposition of the infectious atmosphere and by the formation of new compounds.

NEW YORK May 12.

Death of Admiral Collingwood.—Captain Delalingham, of the fast Commerce, arrived here this morning from Tragona, spoke on the 28th of March, off Malaga, the ship recovery Cap. Stokes, from Gibraltar, for Alicant, who informed that Admiral Collingwood died at Cadiz from the 24th of March, and that all the shipping in the harbour of Gibraltar were dressed in mourning.

Cadiz, March 22.—The critical situation of this garrison, and the effect which its fate will have on Europe, persuade me you are anxious to hear from us.—47 days we have been in a state of siege, during which the French have made little progress. Their army we estimate at about 25 000; Marshal Soult commands, under him are Ney and Victor; 'King Joseph,' with Sebastiani, at Malaga. Our garrison 5000 British, 1500 Portuguese, and 13,000 Spanish troops; and we have nine sail of the line British, besides Spanish, &c. Provisions plenty, except fresh beef. It appears that this place may, from the necessity of the case (should the French conquer the rest of Spain) be yet rendered a second Gibraltar. Confidence in the success of the patriots is perhaps weakened, from the circumstance of the French having changed their plan. They throw off tythes, abolish the interior custom houses, and resort to other practices to conciliate the lower classes of the people. The people here, long convinced that the British troops are not as they were represented by French proclamations—add to this, that the commercial party greatly preponderates, and you will not consider it impossible, that in failure on the continent, the two Gibraltars will be beyond the reach of France.

P. S. March 24.—We just learnt that the French are driven from Malaga. They abandoned that city on the 17th, after having plundered it throughout; this retrograde argues their weakness, and that their reinforcements do not arrive.

Latest from Spain.—Yesterday arrived at this port the ship Ariadne captain Burrows, from Cadiz, which she left on the 4th of April. Capt. B. informs us that a British fleet had just arrived from England with 5000 troops, who were debarking the day he sailed. Fourteen British ships of the line were in Cadiz Bay; and the Anglo Spanish army were determined to hold the city. The French were on the opposite shores, progressing with their fortifications. Lord Collingwood died off Toulon; his body was brought to Cadiz in the Victory, and put on board a frigate which sailed for England on the 3d of April.

THE YORK GAZETTE

SATURDAY, JUNE, 9.

Monday last being the Anniversary of His Majesty's Birth-day, it was celebrated here with every demonstration of Joy—At Sunrise the Standard of the United Kingdom, was displayed from the Garrison. At twelve o'clock the Garrison commanded by Captain Martin, and the Militia by Major Chewett, were inspected by His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, and afterwards the Artillery fired a Royal Salute followed by three Vollies from the Infantry.

The Lieutenant Governor expressed himself highly satisfied with the appearance of the Garrison, and complimented the Militia on their Steadiness, and the excellence of their firing; which would have done Credit to Veteran Troops.

In the Evening, there was a Ball at the Government House:—about half past nine o'Clock, The Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. Gore, entered the Ball-Room, which was fitted up for the reception of the Company, in the first Style of Elegance. The Dancing commenced at ten and continued until three when Supper was announced; which consisted of the choicest Viands and the most select Wines.—Dancing was resumed about four, and continued with unabated Spirit, until seven o'clock in the Morning.

The following Address was presented to His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor on his late Tour through the Western part of the Province.

To His Excellency FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY.

WE the Magistrates, Militia Officers and Principal Inhabitants of the County of Norfolk, beg leave to present to your Excellency our most respectful Congratulations on your arrival in this County.

We view with peculiar pleasure your presence amongst us, and we consider it as affording the strongest evidence of that anxiety and solicitude which your Excellency has on all occasions manifested for the welfare, happiness and prosperity of the Province.

We cannot but lament, that from the infant state of the settlement of this County, it does not afford better means of accommodation to your Excellency, in travelling through it, that you might be enabled with ease and convenience, to take a more extensive view of its situation, improvement and local advantages; but we trust, that it will fall within your Excellency's observation, that Agricultural Improvement has not been neglected, and that the Inhabitants of this County, are not ungrateful for the many blessings they enjoy, under the protection of that happy Constitution and Government which it will ever be their pride to support.

In addressing your Excellency on this occasion, we feel that both duty and inclination impel us to declare our unequivocal approbation of your Excellency's administration of the Government of this Province, and of our entire confidence in the Wisdom and Rectitude of your Conduct.

We cannot conclude this Address without expressing our sentiments of gratitude to Divine Providence, for suffering in its wise dispensations, our beloved Sovereign to attain the Fiftieth year of His Reign enthroned in the hearts of his People; an event as pleasing to his Subjects, as uncommon in the Annals of the World.

We request your Excellency's acceptance of our warmest wishes for your health, for an agreeable Tour, and (when it shall so please your Excellency) for your safe return to the seat of your Government.

We have the honor to be, with sentiments of the highest respect, Sir, Your Excellency's most obedient humble Servants.— (Signed)

GENTLEMEN,

I return you my thanks for your Congratulations on my arrival in the County of Norfolk.

It has afforded me great satisfaction to observe that, the habits of Industry, and a spirit of agricultural improvement, prevail in this infant Country.

The sentiments of Gratitude expressed by you on the happy occasion of our beloved Sovereign attaining the Fiftieth year of His Reign, is a further proof of your loyalty, and attachment to the best of Kings.

I beg of you Gentlemen, to be assured, that I shall always feel a most lively interest for the prosperity of the County of Norfolk.

Woodhouse. 1th May 1810

The following Address has been received by His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, from the Eastern District of this Province.

To His Excellency FRANCIS GORE, Esquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY.

WE His Majesty's Loyal and Dutiful Subjects, Inhabitants of the Eastern District of the Province of Upper Canada, humbly beg leave to express to Your Excellency, our inviolable attachment to His Majesty's Sacred Person and Government, and our warm approbation of that wise and vigorous administration by which Your Excellency has so powerfully promoted the Commerce and general Prosperity of the Colony.

The great anxiety of Your Excellency to Embrace every opportunity of augmenting the Wealth and happiness of this Province, has been so fully evinced by Your strenuous and liberal exertions, that we cannot forbear considering the choice of Your Excellency for this Government, as a new proof of the Paternal affection of our Venerable Sovereign; nor can we repress our Joy at having a Lieutenant Governor whose Administration for nearly four years, has been only known to us by acts of the purest Justice, and the most pleasing condescention and benevolence.

Possessing a Constitution the admiration and envy of the World; a Constitution which not only inspires the noblest Independence by affording ample security and protection, but fills the breast of every person who is able to appreciate its blessings with the most pure and generous Patriotism. We feel the greatest indignation at those men, who endeavour by vile slander and misrepresentation, to alienate His Majesty's Subjects from His Royal Person and Government, the best practical form of Government that ever existed, and which only requires to be known, to be beloved.

Many of us have already proved our attachment to the Mother Country, by the most precious sacrifices, and all of us are ready to come forward, should circumstances require it, in defence of our Virtuous King, and Glorious Constitution, the benefits of which are so fully communicated to all the Inhabitants of this Province by Your Excellency's impartial Administration.

GENERAL ORDERS.

Horse Guards, January 18, 1810.

The Commander in Chief has directed the following Order, issued by the General Officer Commanding His Majesty's Forces in North America, to be inserted in the General Orders of the Army.

"QUEBEC, 4th October, 1809.

"GENERAL ORDERS.

"The Commander of the Forces has lately had occasion to see in a Halifax Newspaper, a copy of an Address presented by the Sergeants of the 1st Battalion Royal Fuzileers to Captain ORR, on that Officer relinquishing the Adjutancy in consequence of being promoted to a Company. So novel a circumstance could not fail to draw the attention of His Excellency, it being the first of the kind that has come to his knowledge during the forty-six years that he has been in the service, and as the first instance has thus (so far as he is aware at least,) occurred on the part of the army, with the charge of which the King has been pleased to entrust him, he feels himself called on by every obligation of duty to His Majesty and the service, to bear his testimony against it, by a public expression of disapprobation.

"His Excellency does not mean, in this instance, to ascribe any improper motive to the sergeants; he has no doubt that their sole view was to express their regard and gratitude towards an officer, who, in the intimate connexion that had officially subsisted between them, had very commendably conducted himself with kindness to them, without departing from the strictness of discipline which was indispensable to the discharge of his duty.

"But while his Excellency thus does justice to the intention of the sergeants of the Royal Fuzileers, he desires at the same time very seriously to observe to them, that in presuming to meet, in order to deliberate on the conduct of their superior officer, they have in fact, however unintentionally, been guilty of an act of great insubordination.

"It matters not that the design of the meeting, or in whatever manner the Address was unanimously assented to, was solely to express their respect and esteem, the very circumstance implies discussion, and by that discussion they rendered themselves obnoxious to the imputation alluded to. Who indeed, shall say where such a practice, if once introduced, shall end? If the Non Commissioned Officers of a regiment are permitted to express their approbation of the conduct of the Adjutant, why may they not exercise the same right with respect to their Commanding Officer? or what reason can be given why they should not be equally entitled to express their disapprobation? Indeed, should the practice become general, the merely withholding the former would imply the latter.—"General Sir James Craig is the more desirous that his sentiments on this subject should be distinctly understood in the Fuzileers, because it appears on the face of the Address of the sergeants in question, that it has been countenanced by the Officer who commanded the regiment. The Commander of the Forces does no more than justice to the character and services of the Officer, when he admits, that feeling as he does the dangerous tendency of the practice which he is censuring, he also feels himself the more bound to oppose it, in the first instance, from the strength which it might otherwise derive from the sanction which he appears to have given to it.—Lieutenant Colonel Pakenham will however believe, that though it was impossible the General should avoid this observation upon his error, yet his doing so can by no means destract from the esteem with which he has been taught to view his character as an officer or the confidence which he should be disposed to place in his service."

(Signed) EDWARD BAYNES,
Adjutant General of the British Army serving in North America.

The reason for which the Commander in Chief has directed the circulation of this Order, is, that he may avail himself of this opportunity of declaring to the army, his most perfect concurrence in the sentiments therein expressed by the distinguished and experienced officer by whom it was framed, on a subject, which appears to have been, by some, very much misunderstood.—The circumstance of inferiors of any class of military men assembling for the purpose of bestowing praise and public marks of approbation on their superiors, implies a power of deliberation on their conduct, which belongs to the King alone, or to those officers to whom his Majesty may be pleased to entrust the command and discipline of his troops.

It is a procedure equally objectionable whether in the higher or lower ranks of the army, and as the Commander in Chief cannot but regard it as, in principle, subversive of all Military Discipline, he trusts it is a practice which will be for ever banished from the British service, as deserving of the highest censure, and he directs Officers in command to act accordingly.

—By command of the Right Honorable the commander in Chief,

HARRY CALVERT, Adj. Gen.

FRANCE.

The continental papers are filled with little else than accounts of the magnificent preparations for the nuptials of Bonaparte. Amidst this glare of vanity, we, however, still behold the horrid aspect of despotism breaking forth in characteristic terror. The Father of the French people, has issued a decree, professedly for "the relief of certain state prisons in France; but, as has been well observed, in reality for the establishment of eight Bastiles, eight spacious tombs for living men. The wretched tenants of these abodes are, as the Decree states, never to be brought to trial, nor never to be put upon their justification, the original cause of their detention being to be reviewed every year.

The decree makes out, as the object of its enactments, five classes of persons

1. Men who have, at different epochs, made an attempt upon the safety of the State; and who would be condemned, did not superior considerations oppose their being brought to trial.

2. Chiefs of bands in civil wars, whom motives of general interest alike prevent from being brought to trial.

3 Robbers of diligences, whom the courts are not able to condemn, though they have a certainty of their guilt.

4. Men acquainted with state secrets, having been employed by the police in foreign countries, and suspected of failing in fidelity, but whom it is still unsafe to try.

5. Subjects of the Federative States, who cannot be put upon trial, because their crimes are either of a political nature, or have been committed before the union with France; that is, before they were crimes at all.

It is evident that these five classes embrace every discription of persons that can, by any implications whatsoever, become liable to the suspicions of a jealous and guilty mind.

These are the rewards of revolutions, of an unbridled desire of innovation, of wild projects of reform. For an ideal tyranny the French have got one of terrible reality; they have exchanged a monster; and for one Bastile they have got eight! But when these instruments of tyranny shall share the fate of the Bastile of the Bourbons; when a people justly inflamed to vengeance shall level their towers to the ground, & drag their wretched inhabitants into the light of Heaven, what comparison will be found to exist between the number of victims to the policy of the murdered Louis, and that of the enthroned Napoleon? When the old Bastile was taken, seven prisoners were only found within its walls, four of which, were confined for forgery, two lunaticks, and one noble there at the suit of his friends; but not one state prisoner. Such was the bastile of tyranny—what the bastiles of liberty will disclose, the human heart shudders to contemplate!

LONDON. April 6.

France and the United States.

Letters of the 28th ult. from France, state, that Mr. Armstrong has terminated his correspondence with the French Government without coming to a successful issue.—Matters have proceeded so far, that he has chartered a vessel on purpose to convey home himself, family and suite. It was his intention to have taken his passage on board the John Adams, but there was a want of accommodation. Mr Armstrong takes his departure the moment he receives an answer to some dispatches recently sent over to Mr. Pinckney.—The British Government, on application from Mr. Pinckney, has agreed to forward the answer with a messenger in a cartel. The prevalent opinion among the Commercial Politicians is, that there will be war between France and America, and peace between the latter country and England.

Britain and the United States.

It is fully understood that the John Adams, took out the stipulation upon which the Marquis Wellesley agreed to adjust all differences, subject to the sanction of the American Government; and this appears the most certain, from intelligence which has recently transpired, namely, that Mr. Morier has been appointed to succeed Mr. Jackson, as British Plenipotentiary in America.—Mr. Morier has lately been employed as British Consul, in the Morea; and is nephew to the gentleman of the same name, who is Secretary to the Persian Embassy.

April 7.

The private letters to the 24th ultimo, which accompanied the Portuguese and Spanish papers brought by the Cadiz mail yesterday, all tend to give a favorable account of the state of affairs in the Peninsula, and shew that whatever may be the final issue, the French have very great difficulties to encounter. By the accounts of deserters from the enemy, they are much in want of provisions.

The dispatches which arrived yesterday from Lord Wellington give a very gratifying account of the state of our army on the Portuguese frontiers, as well as of the improvement of the native troops.

Lisbon, March 21.—The inhabitants of Lower Mancha were in active insurrection; they had killed the intendant and other Spanish traitors, and had intercepted the mails, and several small parties which guarded the road between Madrid and Seville. The French who were in Sierra had fled for Andalusia.

It was likewise said, that the report was considered as well founded that a corps of 20,000 men had advanced from the kingdom of Valencia for Upper Mancha, with a view to surprise some of the important points of New Castile.

DUBLIN, April 10.

There is a rumour again afloat of a negociation being on foot between G. Britain and France. Certain it is that a Mr. M'Kenzie, was to leave London on Thursday last, for Morlaix, for the avowed purpose of negotiating an exchange of prisoners; but tho' this may be the ostensible object, it is believed that peace is connected with his mission.

It is further rumoured that Bonaparte had positively promised an act of grace to such British subjects as were detained in France at the commencement of the war; and such is the sensibility of the British funds to all pacific rumours that the three per cent consols have risen one half per cent.

CADIZ ARTICLE.

A sally was made on the 17th March from the Castle of San Pedro to Chiciana, about seven miles, and the Spaniards destroyed two batteries that had been raised by the enemy.——Several hundreds of the latter were killed.

JUBILEE FOR JUBILEE;

OR FIFTY YEARS SHEPHERD FOR FIFTY A KING.

The following is a true copy of some simple and beautiful Verses which have lately appeared, entitled, "An Address to His Majesty on entering the 50th year of his reign, by an old inhabitant of the Grampian Mountains," and who lives in the cottage in which Norval (in the Tragedy of Douglas) was bred.

FRAE the Grampian hills, wi' the Royal ear hear it,
An' listen to Norman, the Shepherd's plain tale?
The north win' is blawn' and gently will bear it,
Unvarnish'd and honest, o'er hill and o'er dale.

When Loo'on it reaches, at Court, fire, receive it,
Like a tale you may read it, and like a faug fling;
Poor Norman is eas'y—but you may believe it,
I'm fifty years Shepherd, you're fifty a king!

Your Jubilee, wi' my ain I will mingle,
For you and myself twa tat lambkins I'll slay,
Fresh turf I will lay in a heap on my ingle,
An' wi' my auld neebours I'll raut out the day.

My pipes that I play'd on langsyne I will blow them,
My chanter I'll teach to lilt over the spring;
My drones to the tune, I will roun' and roun' threw them,
"O' fifty years a Shepherd, an' fifty a King!"

The flock o' Great Britain ye've lang weel attended;
The flock o' Great Britain demanded your care—
Frae the tod and the wolf they've been fraugly defended,
An' led to fresh pasture, fresh water an' air.

My flocks I hae led day by day o'er the heather,
At night they around me hae danc'd in a ring;
I've been their protector thro' foul an' fair weather;
I'm fifty years Shepherd—you're fifty a King.

Their fleeces I've thorn, frae the cauld to protect me;
Their fleeces they gave when a burthen they grew;
When escap'd frae the sheers their looks did respect me,
Sae the flock o' Great Britain still looks upon you.

They grudge not their monarch a mite o' their riches,
Their active industry is aye on the wing;
Then you and me, Sire, I think are twa matches—
I'm fifty years Shepherd—you're fifty a King!

Me, wi' my sheep, fire, and you wi' your subjects,
On that festive day will baith gladly rejoice;
Our two hoary heads will be fu' o' new projects,
To please our leal vassals that made us their Choice.

Wi' sweet ripe o' hay I will treat a' my weathers,
The juice o' the vine to your Lords you will bring;
The respect they hae for us is better than brithers—
I'm fifty years Shepherd—you're fifty a King!

My crook I will dress in the relick o' summer,
My faithful auld Collie that hail that hirth morn;
An' to my wee cabbin I'll welcome each comer,
The friend that has plenty and stranger forlorn.

Ye'll sure do the same, tho' nanebody broach it,
Ye've plenty o' beef, butter, lubbers and ling,
An' routh o' mufficans to strike up the crotchet
O' "fifty years Shepherd, an' fifty a King!"

I live in the cottage where Norval was bred in,
You live in the palace your ancestors rear'd;
Nae guest uninvited dare come to your weddin',
Or ruthless invader pluck us by the beard.

Then thanks to the Island we live in, where shipping
Swim round us abreast, or like geese in a string;
For safe I can say, as my brose I am sipping,
I'm fifty years Shepherd—you're fifty a King.

But ah! Royal GEORGE, and ah! NORMAN,
Life to us baith draws near to a close;
The year's far awa' that has our natal hour, man,
The time's at our elbo that brings us repose;

Then e'en let it come, fire, if conscience acquit us,
A sigh frae our bosoms Death never shall wring;
An' may the next Jubilee, among angels meet us,
To hail the auld Shepherd, and worthy auld King.

FROM THE GLASGOW COURIER.

SPANISH PATRIOTISM.

The following very intereſting Narrative has been handed us by Serjeant M'Adam of the 3d Guards, a native of this City. Our readers, we have no doubt, will paule it with much pleaſure. The original copies of the Paſſports, from the Spaniſh Alcalde, alluded to by him, are in our poſſeſſion.

To the Editor of the Glaſgow Courier.

SIR—Finding in this, and other places in Britain, a general prejudice againſt the Spaniſh nation, as being wholly without real patriotiſm as it reſpects themſelves, and as undind, and ungenerous to the Britiſh, I am inkuced to ſend you the following Narrative; in doing which, I do no more than record the grateful ſenſe, which, to the end of life I ſhall entertain, of the indeſcribable kindneſs, which I, and three other Britiſh ſoldiers, experienced at the hands of the Spaniards. Before proceeding to my narrative permit me to ſay of myſelf, that I enliſted into the 3d Regiment of Guards in the year 1798; and, with the 1ſt Battalion of that Regiment, ſerved in Holland. Egypt, Hanover and Copenhagen, under the reſpective commands of his Royal Highneſs the Duke of York, Sir Ralph Abercrombie, and Lord Cathcart.

In the beginning of this preſent year, I went to Portugal with Sir Arthur Welleſley, and in the battle of Talavera, I received three different wounds. After the retreat of Gen. Cueſta from that place, I, and many other wounded Britiſh, fell into the hands of the French. I was in the firſt eſcort of priſoners ſent off to Madrid, in number about 500. On our arrival at the bridge at the entrance of the city, the eſcort halted for ſome time; and ſ oon as the Spaniards were apprized, that the eſcort conſiſted of Britiſh Priſoners, they came to us, and thowed us the moſt unbounded tokens of kindneſs. Had the guard permitted they would have loaded us with preſents. Even in deſpite of the guard, many ran in, and ſhoved money into our hands. At Madrid, we were attended in a Convent by Spaniſh ſurgeons, and nurſes, whoſe treatment of us, was of the very kindeſt nature. The inhabitants flocked round our hoſpital, and when they could get at any of the windows they gave us money, bread, vegetables, and indeed every thing that they thought could contribute to our comfort. Even after ſeveral genteel people were taken in cuſtody by the centries, for ſuch marked kindness to us, the Ladies and Gentlemen, uſed to ſend old men and women, with money which they threw in at the windows. When our men recovered they were removed to a priſon, and allowed by the French, only brown bread and water. Here, genteel people brought them the beſt of every kind of eatables; and ſo abundant was the ſupply, that the men ſold bread to the French ſoldiers at a penny per loaf. The predilection in favor of the Britiſh, was of the moſt open and avowed nature, particularly on the part of the females. Ladies have even in the preſence of the French, and with a view to vex them, taken Britiſh ſoldiers within their arms and embraced them, with appearance of the greateſt affection. I was ſolemnly aſſured that Madrid was ready for revolt, and only waited an opportunity of raiſing with ſome probable proſpect of ſucceſs. After being about ten days at Madrid, all who were able to march, were ordered forward to Segovia, where we arrived on the ſecond evening, in company with 500 Spaniards, having marched 57 miles. I have ſeen many things revolting to human feelings, in the courſe of my ſervice as a ſoldier, but the cold blooded murder of thirteen Spaniards in the courſe of this march, affected me more than any thing I had ever witneſſed before. Their ſole crime was inability to keep up with the march; they were wantonly ſhot, as they lagged behind.

At Segovia, we were received with, if poſſible, even greater kindneſs than at Madrid. In paſſing through the town, the people kept giving us, and when arrived at the hoſpital, they brought us bread, wine, brandy, and lint to dreſs our wounds; and a ſort of canvas ſhoes, to thoſe who were barefooted. While we were here King Joſeph came to the town, the bells indeed were rung, but no other ſign of joy, all was ſtill and ſilent, and few people out of doors. After remaining three weeks at Segovia, and being joined by another party from Madrid, we were marched for France, by the way of Valladolid. At this place there was no want of inclination, to ſhow us kindneſs, but the Spaniards were not allowed to come near us, owing to their having aided the eſcape of thirteen men, belonging to Sir John Moore's army, who had been left there ſick. The kindneſs which the Britiſh experienced, was not confined to towns, the villages, even thoſe not immediately in our route ſupplied us ſpontaneouſly with proviſions. On the 18th of September, we left Valladolid for Bayonne; we that evening reached Seveco; in the courſe of the night, John ſmith, 3d Guards; John Coop, 32d regiment; Hugh Martin, 45th regiment, and I, contrived to make our eſcape from our escort. We travelled all night acroſs the mountains, and in the morning ventured into a houſe, to inquire after the French in that quarter, and our way to Portugal. The guidman of the houſe, when he was convinced that, we were very Engliſhmen, railed his wife out of bed, who made us ſome ſoup, and after conſulting together, they diſſuaded us from attempting Portugal, but referred us to the next town, for more correct information, the worthy man went about two miles with us, to put us into the direct road. Arrived at the town in queſtion, we were treated with the greateſt kindneſs, and urged to accept of peaſants' cloathes for our greater ſafety, we being inuniform; theſe we declined, and aſked a route for the neareſt Spaniſh army. This they readily gave us, with ſome ſalutary directions, to prevent our falling into the hands of the French. Having now got amongſt friends, and on our way to Aſtorga, we experienced the greateſt kindneſs from the peaſants of the villages through which we paſſed. One of them whom we met within a field, took us to an Alcalde, who gave us rations of bread and wine, and paſsports, which enabled us to draw rations during the remainder of our journey to Aſtorga, which laſted ten days. Theſe rations were moſt cheerfully given to us by the inhabitants. At Almanza, a Surgeon dreſſed the wound of my left arm, and gave me as much dreſſing as ſerved me until I got to Corunna. Though we were, during the whole of this journey, ſurrounded by Frenchmen, we never ſaw one of them owing to their keeping cloſe in their quarters in large towns, which we avoided, by means of guides furniſhed by the villages, which guides led us over mountains and through woods, with the greateſt anxiety for our ſafety. The French ſeldom go far from their quarters, from apprehenſion of being murdered by the peaſantry. I did myſelf ſee in Gallicia old grey headed men, who exulted in the deed of having killed a ſtraggling Frenchman.

We arrived at Aſtorga on the firſt of October, and were introduced to the Governor, who received us very kindly; he gave us in charge to the Commander of the Regiment of Buenos Ayres, who with his Officers and men, paid us every poſſible attention. An Officer and a party belonging to that regiment, eſcorted us to Corunna. During this journey the Officer beſpoke the kindneſs of the people in our favor, and they were indeed kind to us. In Gallicia, in almoſt every village, we ſaw young men at drill, and the greateſt appearance of patriotism. I can ſafely aver, that from Madrid to Corunna, by our route, one univerſal ſentiment of deteſtation of the French prevailed. A ſtrong predilection in favor of the Britiſh is deduceable from the treatment my companions & I met with. What the iſſue of the preſent conteſt in Spain will be, I do not pretend to ſay, but this I am enabled to ſtate from my intercourſe with the Spaniards, and a ſlight knowledge of their language, that there does exiſt a fixed determination, implacable hatred of the French, in the heart of almoſt every Spaniard. A feeling ſo general, will not be eaſily reconciled to the dominion of a Frenchman, until King Joſeph has a place in the affections of thoſe he calls his ſubjects, his throne will be inſecure. My companions and I ventured to England in the Arethuſa frigate, and arrived on the 20th October at Portſmouth.

I am, Sir,
Your humble ſervant,
W. M'AMAM,
Serjeant, 3d Guards.

CADIZ.

LONDON, March, 5.

On Friday we received the following communication from Cadiz, containing much important information on the reſources for its defence—on the expedience for its ſupply—on the operations and progreſs of the enemy, and on the circumſtances which will influence the reſult of the conflict in this ultimate effort for Spaniſh independence.

"The movements of the enemy in this Province have been characteriſed by their national activity. Without the leaſt oppoſition they have over-run the whole province of Andaluſia, and they have ſent a flag of truce to the Iſle de Leon, to demand the ſurrender of Cadiz.—"Moſt of the towns between this city and the frontiers being open, the invading enemy has had no more to do than march from the paſſes to Corva, Seville and Xeres, and laſt of all to port St. Mary's, which forms one angle of the bay. In a direct line acroſs, the ſailors call it eight or nine Engliſh miles, but as the French muſt take the circle of the bay, they will have to march 27 Engliſh miles before they are oppoſed by the Iſle of Leon, ſtrongly fortified and garriſoned with about ten thouſand men, ſeven miles diſtant from Cadiz. This iſland is united to the neck of land towards Cadiz, the iſthmus is from a quarter to half a mile broad, and is flanked by the ſea on one ſide, and the bay on the other, enfiladed by gun boats and men of war, and protected by chevaux de friſe.

Suppoſing the French in poſſeſſion of the iſle de Leon, they muſt continue their march on this narrow cauſeway, no where I think exceeding from a quarter to half a mile broad, when they are again oppoſed by flanked fortifications, mounting about 30 pieces of heavy artillery, completely commanding the road. If again ſucceſsful, the French have good carriage way until they arrive in front of Cadiz, where the ground has been mined for half a mile. They will then encounter between 60 and 70 pieces cannon from the outer walls, which command the whole approach of Cadiz. Theſe walls muſt be regularly attacked, but even ſuppoſing them to be forced, there is a ſecond fortification in the road of them, with draw bridges, and flanked by the heavieſt ordnance. A coup de main is out of the queſtion, and regular approaches are difficult, from the open nature of the ground, and the looſe ſandy ſoil.—"Immenſe exertions are now making by all ranks to complete the ſecond fortification. The French are in poſſeſſion of all the environs whence Cadiz drew her ſupplies of freſh proviſions. Of courſe winter quarters muſt be very agreeable.

"Cadiz has about 130,000 barrels of flour; abundance of ſalt proviſions and water for twelve months. Beſides, there are millions of dollars, and a regular garriſon of between 12, and 15,000 of the regular forces, and 5000 irregulars, with the ſailors from the fleet.

"Theſe are the means of defence by land, and From the ſea the French are impeded in their movements by the combined fleets in the bay. With the firſt change of the wind, we expect a reinforcement of nine ſail of the line from Lord Collingwood.

"It is currently reported, that the invading army conſiſts of from 55 to 60,000 men, and deducting about 20,000 who were left to guard the paſſes and garriſon the towns, you have the force, which is now preparing to beſiege Cadiz. Little fear is entertained of treachery, and in caſe of voluntary ſurrender, the Spaniards are ſenſible that they will looſe their fleet and all their treaſures, public and private, which have arrived, or may arrive from South America—The ruin of the party connected with the South Weſt Indies, would likewiſe be an immediate conſequence. If the Members of the old Junta eſcape aſſaſſination, they will make the beſt of their way to Gallicia.

"An inſurrection has taken place in Malaga, where the Junta and General Cueſta were thrown into priſon. Whatever the reſult on our efforts may be, Cadiz is indebted for her ſalvation to the Duke of Abuquerque. His forces are excellent, and they fairly outwalked the French by 48 hours!—The Duke has not loſt a man.

"People ſtate, that the Marquis de la Romana is advancing to attack the French in the rear with an army of 45,000 men. It ſeems to me that the Andaluſians defend Cadiz for two or three months, and then (reaſoning only on their privations) that they will reſign it to the enemy; unleſs, indeed the Britiſh, as they have been ſupplicated to do, throw in 10 or 15,000 men, to hold the City until a general peace or, as Gibraltar, in perpetuity."

LONDON, April 21.

The Paris Journals have reached us of the 6th inſt. they contain nothing of importance. The details reſpecting the Imperial Marriage occupy whole pages of theſe papers.

Glaſgow, April 24.

From a ſtatement by the Chancellor of the Exchequer we obſerve, with great ſatisfaction, that the amount of the ſurplus of the Conſolidated Fund for the laſt year, was no leſs than ſeven millions nineteen thouſand pounds ſterling, a ſum near ly double that of any of the four preceding years; and that the receipts of the Exciſe and Cuſtoms, for the ſame period, were conſiderably more than any of the four preceding years. He concluded by ſaying, "He did not think it would be expedient to add any further tax to the public burdens.

Liſbon Diary, April 11.

"According to the laſt intelligence from Cadiz, the French have been compelled to evacuate the poſt of Santa Maria, after an action, in which the Portuguese Regiment, No. 20, took a ſhare. The report of the French having raiſed the blockade of Aſtorga, is alſo confirmed.

April 14.

"Certain intelligence has been received here, that Ballaſteros is with his diviſion at Ronquillo. The whole coaſt of Ronda is free, and Gen. Blake is marching to Despena Perros, at the head of 25 000 men. Nothing is known with a certainty of King Joſeph; it is however ſaid, that he has left Andaluſia. At Cadiz every thing is going on well. The French have abandoned ſeveral points which they have occupied; and it is generally believed that they will ſoon evacuate the whole territory. The Junta of Seville is in Ayamonte, whither they removed on the 4th inſtant. The French are retreating from Alva in the direction of Neibla.

"A report is current which ſeems to be well founded, that the Duke of Abrantes, has raiſed the blockade of Aſtorga. (Correio du Peninsola, April 14.

"All the accounts we receive from Spain ſtate, that the French in that country every where meet with defeat. It was General Caro, who, placing the French that were marching from Saragoſſa to Valencia, 18000 in number, between two fires, put them completely to the route.

"It is alſo known, that the Spaniards have entered Aranjuez, and taken there 6000 ſtand of arms, and that the French are retreating to Burgos. In Eſtramadura, General Ballaſteros is carrying every thing before him, and all the movements made by the French, indicate an intention to retreat.

Tranſlated from the Extra Gazette of Cadiz, April 1, 1809.

BADAJOZ, March 23, 1810.

The following information was communicated to the Supreme Junta of this city, by Don Antonio Morillo, member of the ſame:

"On the 12th of February, between one and two in the morning, I entered Valverde de Leganes, where there were 1200 French cavalry, having previouſly furniſhed their advanced and van guards, &c. immediately routed the body of reſerve, which was followed by an obſtinate battle, which coſt the enemy 250 killed, including one officer and a general. The latter was killed by a Serjeant, Juan Gonzalez. Our loſs conſiſts of 12 men killed and wounded; among which is one ſerjeant, one corporal, and Donna Maria Catalina Lopez, neice of the commandant Don Toribio de Buſtamante, the inſeperable companion of her uncle in all his glorious actions, and on this day not only made herſelf ſuperior to her ſex, but exceeded and was ſuperior to the moſt valiant of the others. Notwithſtanding her wounds, ſhe killed with her piſtols the perſon who wounded her; and behaved, throughout all the action, with the greateſt firmneſs and valour. On the 26th I entered the village of Fryeneride la Sierra, with the intention of eſtabliſhing order among its inhabitants, which had been diſturbed by ſome bad intentioned perſons, and in which I completely ſucceeded. I was already in Xeres de la Cuballeros the 1ſt inſt. when the enemy made an attempt to enter the city, which they did not effect until after keeping up a long fire, and giving ſufficient time for the inhabitants to retire. Their loſs in this action was greater than ours. Being informed that the enemy's cavalry were at Velve de and Almenoral, I went to meet them to Golondrina. They formed themſelves in battle immediately on feeing us, and began a briſk fire, notwithſtanding which, we rushed upon the enemy, ſword in hand, and puſhed them as far as the village of la Torre."

By accounts from Belmonte, in La Mancha, we learn that Baldo Lucio entered Aranjuez, killed a great number of Frenchmen, took 3000 muſkets and other valuable effects; and that the Empecinado had lately intercepted eight mails, killed the perſons that eſcorted them. He entered Cindad Real, and took four waggons of plate that was going to Madrid.

We have juſt received news from Catalonia, and have the ſatisfaction to ſtate, that Vich has been retaken after a very bloody and obſtinate action, in which the army have ſuffered extremely; we have alſo ſucceeded in raiſing the ſiege of the caſtle of Hoſtalrich, and that on reuniting our forces, in a ſhort time we ſhall be enabled to expel them from Spain.

A perſon of high character and intelligence writes with dates of the 3d and 6th of laſt month the following to a friend of his:

"I inform you that until now our enemies have not received more reinforcements from France than the 16,000 men that entered in December and January laſt. The enthuſiasm is greater that ever in both Caſtiles, where we have a great number of ſkirmiſhing parties. The 22d of Feb. one of them had one of the moſt brilliant actions ever known in the war. They attacked 2000 conſcripts who had lately arrived, and were marching to Valladolid between Duenas and that city, they killed and wounded 1500 and diſperſed the reſt, ſo that only 400 entered Valladolid. I have just been informed by a person of information residing in the village of Amendrufego, that 150 French troops had arrived there being the remains of five regiments that entered by Iron, as according to their own account, they have ALL been destroyed by the skirmishing parties of Castile."

NOTE TO THE FOREGOING.

Don Toribuio Bustamante, was post master at Rio Seco. When the vandals, under the orders of General Bessieres, pillaged and put to the sword the greater part of the inhabitants of that unhappy and dismembered town! He had the grief to see thirty monsters tear from the breast of his wife his innocent infant, which they fixed on a bayonet and murdered in the most atrocious manner! His wife they violated and killed in his presence! And finally making his escape, he went to Seville, and was appointed courier of the cabinet, and, swearing in the most solemn manner to revenge his wife and child, requested they would give him a few horses, and permit him to raise a party of men, who were inspired with the same feeling to avenge themselves of these cannibals for the insults offered to their families. They granted him the grade of Lieutenant—gave him six horses—and at present he has a party under his orders consisting of 1500 men, with which he is the terror of the enemy, being greatly feared in all his operations, by the knowledge he has of all the paths and passes of the kingdom. The heroine spoke of here is a niece of his, who was also determined to avenge herself of those murders.—Sp. Gaz.

[From London Papers of latest dates.]

Napoleon and his bride were passing the honey moon at Campiegne, and were soon to visit Italy. Further reinforcements were to be sent to Spain and Portugal. The combined army of English and Portuguese, amount to upwards of 100,000 men including probably, 40,000 militia. Lord Wellington was about to advance, when a battle was expected.

Though Louis Bonaparte King of Holland, had returned to his territories, yet the Dutch papers mentioned that he had been ordered to go back to Paris. His Imperial brother had in view, it was supposed, some commercial regulations and not comprehended in the late treaty.

It was believed in Holland, "that importations even direct from America, would be rendered liable to confiscation in the countries under French influence."

It was supposed at Vienna, that the two negociators at Paris, would go to London, with a French negociator, to treat for a general peace.

Lord Collingwood's remains arrived at Portsmouth from Gibraltar, on the 16th April.

A Squadron of 7 ships 2 frigates, and smaller vessels, under Sir J. Stirmerez, was to sail immediately for the Baltic.

FROM PARIS, April 10.—This place has been in such a scene of confusion during the late marriage ceremonies, that no business has been attended. "We have not the least hope (says a friend) of recovering of any of the ships or property sequestered at St. Sebastians, although a notice has been made public for all persons who have legal claims. Satisfactory to the court, to bring them forward. The same opinions are entertained of cargoes and vessels in Italy, where several new seizures have been made which it is feared, will have a under extention.

NEW YORK, 13th June.

A report of a tremendous battle between the Russians and Turks, was received at Rotterdam on the 20th April, in which, after fighting two days, the Russians gave way, having sustained great loss in killed and wounded and artillery.

THE YORK GAZETTE.

SATURDAY, JUNE 30.

The Editor avails himself of this early occasion to correct his misstatement respecting the late Ball at Niagara, in the last Gazette; and he regrets that the error arose from his misunderstanding a verbal communication. The Ball instead of being by subscription as was stated, was a private Ball, and the company principally selected by the wishes of the amiable young Lady at whose instance the entertainment was given.

Judging from the general tenor of the last news from Spain, and from what may be gathered of the general sense of the Spaniards, it is not an irrational deduction to suppose, that an uniformity of opposition will be made to these unprincipled invaders, and that if a decided and timely stability be given to the system of operations against them, the contest, however baneful, would be greatly shortened. It is but too evident that from instances of treachery, and the want of organization in the Spanish Patriots, the exterminating warfare has been prolonged; but a confidence in their perseverance and magnanimity, must lead us to look forward to a triumphal issue, and that from Spain overlong, will be expelled the tyrannical hordes and scourges of Continental Europe.—Animated by the steady valor and atchievements of British Troops serving with them the National nerve with this forceful example will be exerted for National preservation.—Humanity urges assistance, public Policy justifies it, and British aid and protection may lead to Spanish independence. Combined with ours, the Portuguese Forces is now stated to be formidable; our officers are indefatigable in disciplining their Troops, and from the reinforcements we are constantly sending to Spain, & the actual system on which the war is prosecuted, added to the unrivalled hatred of the Spaniards, the devoted Conscripts and Legions of Bonaparte, will find in Spain and Portugal, insatiable burying grounds.

Ps. Russia and Turkey little is said—as little of Germany or the low Countries. An addition Naval force is sent to the Baltic from England.—We suspend our favorable opinion of the result of negociations with the American Government, as no particulars are published as being arranged. The French not having any fleet at Sea, we cannot add any thing very material to our captures.

NEW YORK, June 9

Latest from England.—Since copying the Foreign news from the Nova Scotia Royal Gazette, which furnishes the following additional articles :—

LONDON, April 24.

A Mail from Lisbon arrived this morning with accounts to the 12th instant.—There has been no battle between the British and French, nor does any one seem to be expected—Lord Wellington's head quarters, are still at Vizeu. The most important articles in the Lisbon papers relate to the operations of Ballasteres's division.—He has reached Roriquillo, from whence a notification was sent to the Magistrates of Seville to prepare so many rations for his troops which would arrive there the next day (3d)—We have no accounts however of their having reached that city. The French, about 4,000 in number, retired from it on the 27 h ult. and proceeded to Chapatro.—We cannot find that the progress of Ballasteros has yet produced any change in the positions or intentions of the French, who had advanced to Chiclana, to invest Leon. The last account represents them as busily employed upon an intrenched camp.

Junot has advanced with between ten and twenty thousand men to Astorga, which he has invested.

Joseph Bonaparte left Malaga in great haste in consequence of the re-capture by the Patriots of Ronda, Osuna and Marbella.

Some Paris papers have been received to the 17th.—Bonaparte who was going to St. Quintin on the 16th, has suddenly put off his journey—It is supposed he remains till the rising of the Legislative Assembly on the 21st intending to close the Session by a Speech, of which the war with this country will probably form a prominent feature.

The Master of an American vessel, which has been condemned at Christiansand, in Norway, arrived in town yesterday.—He states that between forty and fifty American vessels had been seized in Norway, and were in course of adjudication. The slightest pretexts were made use of to cover these piracies. Some vessels were seized because they had been overhauled by British cruizers; others for irregularities in their papers; and in one instance a vessel was condemned because the supercargo was empowered to dispose of a share in her to any American citizen residing at Riga. A vast number of privateers were fitting out in the ports of Norway.

General Fraser, with the 4 h regiment of foot, landed and took possession of Ceuta, on the 24th of March, in consequence of a peremptory order to the Governor from the Junta at Cadiz. This officer it is said, had previously received another from the renegade O'Farrel, commanding him to retain, and defend Ceuta for their Sovereign, King Joseph.

We have received some Portuguese papers to the 11th inst. The intelligence they contain continues to be of the most satisfactory nature. The Spaniards appear to be most successful in the harrassing system of warfare which they have adopted, and unless the accounts are wholly destitute of truth, the communications between the French army in Andalusia, and Madrid, are in danger of being completely intercepted.—The van guard of Ballasteros army had advanced to the neighborhood of Seville.

Letters from Malta state that his Neapolitant Majesty Ferdinand IV. intended to dispose of a large tract of land in the way of lottery; the tickets to be sold at nearly three guineas each. Several of the prizes will put the holders in possession of a principality.

A letter from on board a transport in the harbour of Messina, dated Feb. 5, says—"We have had dreadful weather here, and at Milazine ships sunk in the harbour. On Friday night last three ships ran on shore here, and were dashed to pieces, there were 200 women on board one of these ships, who were going up to Ceuta to their husbands; fortunately they were all saveed."

The office is sent to command the important garrison of Ceuta is General Fraser, of the Royal African corps, a distinguished officer, who lost his leg in the service. He has with him a battalion of Lord Chatham's regiment, the 4 h, or King's regiment, 1000 strong—a very fine body of men.

The reduction that has already taken place in the Staff comprehends five Generals only—viz. Lieutenant General Pigot, Loftus, lord Cavon, and Tarleton in England; and lieutenant General Campbell, in Scotland. The Districts in Yorkshire and other quarters are not, we understand, to be blended.

SPANISH AMERICA—DECLARED INDEPENDENT.

By the arrival of the brig Thomas, capt. Ingram, from Corunna, we have been politely favored with the following important state paper, issued by the supreme government of Caraccas, which we hasten to lay before our readers —Pub. Ad.

DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

It has pleased almighty God to grant to every country alike, the natural right of its own sovereignty.

These provinces planted by Spain, fostered and protected by her power, have, and of right ought to have submitted to her guidance and subjection during the period of their infancy, when from imbecility and weakness they were incapable of their own government and protection.

But Spain, deprived of her king by the unparalelled perfidy of the Emperor of the French, her European state vanquished by his treachery and by his arms, and the ancient lawful and acknowledged government of the country destroyed by the violent outrages of his sanguinary policy, there exists neither reason, right nor justice for continuing our dependence on a power that has no existence but in memory; policy and self preservation, therefore demand that we should provide for our common safety and the protection of these provinces by taking into our own hand the natural sovereignty of our country.

The period has at length arrived when these United Provinces possess both the strength & the power to protect themselves. With a population of nine millions of inhabitants, with an extent of fertile territory superior to any empire on the globe, and abounding with all the riches that bounteous nature ever bestowed on the human race, it would be contrary to found policy, in the present state of the world to submit, AND WE ARE DETERMINED NO LONGER TO SUBMIT TO THE DOMINATION OF ANY EUROPEAN OR FOREIGN POWER WHATEVER.

For whilst a lawful government existed in Spain, and her legitimate King sat upon her throne, we have ever been loyal to his person, and faithful to his government, and our treasures have been the only support of the European monarchy and its allies, whilst we have been distressed by a war in which we had no interest whatever, and our country drained of those riches which nature has bestowed upon the inhabitants of America, for their own happiness, support and defence.

Under these considerations and to prevent the inevitable and ruinous consequences of falling under the yoke of the emperor of the French the tyrant of Europe and the oppressor of Spain—WE the Spanish provinces in America declare ourselves a FREE SOVEREIGN and INDEPENDENT PEOPLE, not acknowledging the DOMINATION of any power on Earth, refusing submission, and denying and repelling the authority of whatever nation may attempt dominion over us. Thus we unanimously engage and pledge ourselves to maintain and support with our LIVES, and FORTUNES and our SACRED HONORS, calling upon every inhabitant in the provinces to aid and support in carrying into effect this, our laudable and just resolution, and establishing for ourselves and our posterity, a free, equitable and independent government, that shall secure our happiness and give us a place of honor and respect among the independent nations of the earth.

And we do earnestly entreat all foreign nations to acknowledge and guarantee our independence and to favor us with such alliance and assistance as may enable us to defeat the designs of the enemies of our country.

By thus disavowing our dependence on Spain. We solemnly appeal to Heaven for the rectitude of our intentions, and we do protest before the sacred Majesty of God himself, that in all our measures we have ever been actuated by motives pure and honorable and that we have no other design in view than the preservation of ourselves, and the protection of our common country. And we do most humbly supplicate that Being who decides the fate of nations, to smile on our exertion, and to bless and protect this, our new established empire.

DUBLIN May 4.

The last accounts from Lisbon and Spain, describe the French as suffering under great want of provisions.——One of these letters state, "the French are retreating from the frontiers of Portugal in want of every thing."—The same want is felt in Spain and the next Accounts will probably bring us intelligence of their having quitted the vicinity of Cadiz.

The Duke of Belluno (Victor) is stated to have died at Seville, on the 4th April, in consequence of a wound inflicted by a cannon shot, while reconnoitering the Spanish works, before Cadiz.

BALTIMORE, June 8

Lateft from Spain and Portugal.—By the ship Augustus, Captain Bacchus, from Lisbon, whose arrival was noticed last evening. we have accounts three days lateft from Portugal, and four days lateft from Cadiz. Capt. Bacchus left Lisbon on the 17th April, at which time, the allied army of Portuguese and British on the frontiers was understood to be 100, 000 strong The recent reinforcements from England being confiderable, the portion of British troops was rated at 30,000 effective men well appointed.—The combined armies rather courted than apprehended an attack from the French; whose advance was not talked of at Lisbon, where great confidence continued as to their safety.

Previous to the failing of the Augustus, they had accounts from Cadiz to the 12th April. No advance had been made by the invaders for the last week. On the contrary, the French troops it is said, had abandoned Port St. Mary's, whence the city obtained water as usual.——It was supposed, that the French Generals withdrew their troops, either from fear of being Duponted cut off by advancing too far, or in order for a concentration of force and vigorous attack on the combined armies covering Portugal, and which it might be feared would advance should their opponents continue much longer wasting their resources under the walls of Cadiz.—The whole Island of Leon becomes stronger and more inacceffible every day insomuch that Cadiz can only be reduced (if ever it fall) by a protracted and coftly siege. They have cut a canal across the Island, about midway, or six miles from the city. and have fortified the city side, mounting heavy cannon in such positions as to command the gut & rake the causeway; so that should the French become poffeffed of the end next the main they can only approach the city, under the fire of the British fleet and gun boats in the canal, and of the cannon on its adverse bank We are assured that immense will be the loss of the French before Cadiz will surrender.—The surrender is not expected.

BOSTON, June 12.

Lisbon accounts—Lisbon papers as late as the 28th April have been recieved at this office but contain no positive intelligence of great importance.——— Cadiz still remained secure; the governor of that city, however, confidering that the population had increased to a threefold augmentation, so that a greater quantity of provisions than could be spared, was consumed; and supposing that in the summer months, such numbers condensed into a small place, would generate malignant diftempers, has determined that the inhabitants not [illegible] military service or belonging to the city, shall depart for the many free provinces which remain in the poffeffion of the Spaniards.——These are the kingdoms of Gallicia, Valencia, and Murcia; the greater part of Asturias and Catalonia; part of the provinces of Estemadura and Cuducar; the islands of Majhorea, Minorca, all the Canaries, Chuta, and the whole kingdom of Portugal

No intelligence of importance from the frontiers of Portugal had been recieved.——The Spaniards avoided pitch battle, and by purfuing a fyftem of partizan warfare, greatly wearied and perplexed the enemy.

Napoleon has given his troops in Spain to understand, that they can expect no pay from France, but must obtain their recompence and subsistence from Spanish contributions. The city of Salamanca, has been compelled to furnish 20 000 beds, for the French hofpitals; and great numbers of foldiers were dying every day

The head quarters of Regnier, were at Merida. The troops of Ballestros, occupied Aracena and Velverde del Camino; but afterwards retired on the approach of the French. A skirmifh enfued and the French again retreated An advanced guard of the enemy entered Talavera la Real; and another in Mantigo; but the former were obliged to retire to Merida, where the French Headquarters were eftablifhed.

June 19.

The French had not entered Portugal on the 9th May, and the inhabitants in excellent fpirits, and fanguine in their expectations of not giving the Grand Kingmaker the trouble of appointing them a master. The Regency had adopted the beft meafures for organizing the whole population, as far as was practicable, in military bodies, for the defence of their country, and the people cheerfully conformed to the meafures adopted.—The native troops had become very refpectable for their numbers, appearance and difcipline.

London, May 14.

The reports of victory over the French in Catalonia, by General O'Donnell are corroborated.

Our squadron under Sir J. Saumarez, has fafely arrived.

New-York, June 21.

Late and important ——The fchooner Refolution has arrived at Plymouth, in Maffachusets, bringing London dates to May 15. Letters had been recieved at London in fix days from Lifbon, ftating that the Britifh and Portuguese forces were on the frontiers, puthing forward to Salamanca, where it was underftood the French forces were.

Paris dates to the 5th May ftate that Bonaparte and the new Empress were at Dunkirk,—and that an attempt had been made to refcue Ferdinand 7th—but he refufed to go and betrayed the names of the agents to the French Government

French troops were daily paffing thro' Bayonne for Spain.

The Britifh and Spanifh troops it is faid, had evacuated the fortres of Matagorda, which had given to the French an important advantage in purfuing their affault upon Cadiz.

An infurrection had broken out in Sweden, in favor of the depoled King

John P. Mofier is appointed Secretary of Legation to the United States.

Captain Endicott, of the ship Traveller left Lisbon on the 8th of May, at which time an Englifh army of 19,000 men, and a Portuguefe army of 40,000, were on the frontiers, within a three days diftance of the French; so that a general engagement was expected to take place there—that it was reported a fhort before he failed, that permiffion was given for exportation of merchandize from Lavingen to Hamburgh and Altona.—Mer. Adv.

Extract of a letter from General Armstrong to Mr. Madison February 22, 1811.

"Mr. Patterson offered so good a conveyance that I cannot but employ it. Nothing has occurred here since the date of my public dispatches (the 7th) to give to our business an aspect more favorable than it then had; but on the other hand, I have come to the knowledge of two facts, which I think sufficiently shew the decided character of the Emperor's policy with regard to us.—These are, first, that in a council of administration held a few days past, when it was proposed to modify the operation of the decrees of November 18 6, and December, 18 7 (though the proposition was supported by the whole weight of the council) he became highly indignant and declared that these decrees should suffer no change—and that the Americans should be compelled to be the passive character of either allies or enemies; and, that on the 27th of January last, two weeks after Mr. Champagni's written assurances, that the decrees should work no change in the property sequestered until new discussions with England were brought to a close and seven days before he reported to me verbally these very assurances, the emperor had by a special decision confiscated two of our ships and their cargoes (the Julius Henry & Junior) I went merely of a document not required by any law or usage of the commerce in which they had been engaged. This act was a take as I am informed on a general report of sequestered cafes amounting to one hundred and fixty and which at the prices which ruled upwards of one hundred millions of francs, a sum whose magnitude alone renders hopeless all attempts at saving it—Dines, Portugueze and American will be the principal suffers. If I am right in supposing that the Emperor has definitively taken his ground I cannot [illegible] in concluding that you will immediately take yours."

Uncommon manner of spending a large fortune.—Mr. Rogerson of Gloucestershire, who was for the very best of education that England could afford; sent him abroad to make the grand tour, upon which journey young R. arrived to nothing further than an uncommon degree of eating and drinking luxuriously. Before his return his father died and he entered into poffeffion of a very large monied fortune, and a small landed eftate.—He was now able to look over his notes of epicurism, and to discover where the most exquisite dishes were to be had, and the beft prepared. He had no other servants in his house than two cooks, one from France, another from Vienna, and a third from Vienna, for dreffing [illegible] dish, the decrepicante of Florence.—He had a German cook for drefling turkies' livers—the test were all French. He had a foot messenger constantly on the road between Brittanny and London, to bring him eggs of a certain sort of Plover near Mola. He has eaten a single dinner at the rate of 98l. though himself sat down to it, and there were but two dishes. He counted the minutes between meals, and seemed to be totally absorbed in the idea of in the action of eating, yet his stomach was very small; it was the exquisite flavour alone that he sought. In nine years he found his table very much abridged by the ruin of his fortune, and himself hastening quickly into poverty. This made him melancholy, and brought on disease. When totally ruined, having spent near 150,000l. a friend gave him a guinea to keep him from starving, and he was found in a garret soon after, roasting an ortolan with his own hands. He shot himself in a few days after.—Lond. Pap.

London, May 14.

By letters from Malta it appears, that an inſurrection had taken place in Minorca, occaſioned by ſome indiſcreet reſtrictions on commerce, which led to a diſpoſition in the malcontents, to ſupercede the authority of Spain, and place the iſland under the protection of Great Britain.—After the deſtruction of the Cuſtom-Houſe, and of ſome private property of its ſuperintendant, order was re-eſtabliſhed.

The Gleanor, Lieutenant Green, has arrived at Plymouth, in 6 days from Liſbon. Lord Wellington had advanced to the frontiers, and a rumour prevailed that his intention was to endeavour to puſh on to Salamanca, where great part of the French army deſtined for the attack on on Portugal, was ſtationed. The Britiſh army is in the higheſt ſtate of diſcipline. The Portuguese force conſiſts of about 40,000 men well appointed, and principally commanded by Engliſh officers.

April, 30.

Since the evacuation of Fort Matagorday we have had nothing material happen; both ſides are no doubt making preparations for further attempts

All the intelligence we recieve from Catalonia is of the moſt flattering deſcription——Admiral Martin ſtill remains in the naval command. Our head quarters are at Iſler, a ſmall brigade of Britiſh troops remain here. The Duke of Albequerqe is to ſail in the Undaunted for England. Sir Charles Cotton arrived here on Saturday laſt; he has ſhifted his flag to the San Joſef, and proceeds to morrow to take command of the Mediterranean fleet.

A diſpatch from Gen. H. O'Donnell, dated Venetrett, April, 14 ſtates, that ſubſequent to the action of the 3d, near Eſpanaguera, the diviſion purſued its march under the orders of Major General Marquis Campaverde to Manresa, but the enemy evacuated the place, marching in the direction of Barcelona.—Campaverde ordered them to be purſued, and an obſtinate conflict took place, the reſult of which was the compleat defeat of the enemy's diviſion commanded by General Schewartz, who after having recieved two wounds, owed the preſervation of his life to the ſwiftneſs of his horſe.—The enemy loſt five hundred killed, and 299 taken priſoners; the reſt were diſperſed, and purſued their flight to Barcelona, without knapsacks or arms.

LISBON, May 2.

Extract——"The only news that I have to communicate is, that we are in conſtant expectation of being attacked. The enemy have been for ſome time tolerably quiet; but within theſe few days our out pickets report that their force has greatly accumulated. We are buſily employed in the conſtruction of additional batteries, and mounting guns for the protection of this city Troops from England are landing every day, and the marines from the fleet in the Tagus come on ſhore every day to improve in diſcipline, and to aſſiſt in working the guns,"

MALTA, March 6,

Information has been juſt recived that the Iſland of Liſſa, ſituated in the Adriatic ſea, has fallen into our poſſeſſion.—From ſuch an acquiſition, it is reaſonble to expect that conſiderable advantages will reſult, it being very commodiously ſituated to form a depot for the introduction of merchandize into Germany; both Britiſh manafactures and Colonial produce.

BOSTON, June 21.

The lateſt intelligence from Europe, is brought by the Schooner Reſolution, Capt. Bates from Plymouth, London accounts to the 15th May are recieved by her.

Joſeph Bonaparte is ſaid to have joined the army before Cadiz on the 29th April.

It is not true, as reported, that the Fr. had evacuated Malaga; they were in poſſeſſion on the 16th April.

A rumour prevailed at Liſbon, about the 7th May, that Lord Wellington had advanced to the frontier of Portugal, & intended to puſh on to Salamanca, at which place the greater part of the Fr. army deſtined to attack that kingdom, was ſtationed. The Portugueſe force conſiſted of about 40,000 men, well appointed, and principally commanded by Engliſh Officers.

It is mentioned as a report in the Bayonne papers of the 23d April, that between fifty and ſixty thouſand French troops were on their march to Spain.

The report that the Arch Duke Ch's is to be made King of Spain, continues. Joſeph to be King of Italy.——There ſeems to be an occaſional exhibition of ſpirit on the part of the Spaniards, particularly in Catalonia, where Gen. O'-Donnel has met with ſucceſs- An advanced corps of his army commanded by the Marquis Campaverde, after defeating a French diviſion of 1,800 men, has purſued them towards Barcelona, and the communication between, that city & the enemy is cut off in conſequence.

Napoleon has decorated the A. Duke Charles with the Grand Ribbon of the Legion of Honor and alſo with a Croſs of the ſame Legion; "the former," ſays the Emperor, in a letter under his own hand, "as a tribute due to your genius as a General, the latter, to your bravery as a Soldier."

The moſt vigorous meaſures are about to be adopted by France, Pruſſia, and Auſtria, to compel the Porte to accede to the Continental ſyſtem, or to make her pay dear for her condeſcenſion to the common enemy. The Porte on the contrary, has declared in favour of England.

A London article of May the 8th obſerves—"We are ſorry to find that His Majeſty's total loſs of fight, will oblige him to undergo a painful operation, that of couching, which his phyſicians have recommended; every friend to his country will view with anxiety the reſult of an operation of ſuch importance."

Continuation of Intelligence:

LONDON, May 13.

From Cadiz.—The loſs of Fort Matagorda, which was not in a ſituation to withſtand the overwhelming force of the beſiegers, it is apprehended, will enable the French to impede our paſſage by ſea to the watering place at the Isla; but it is the opinion of the Naval officers, that no impediment they can raiſe can effectually prevent our veſſels from obtaining the water. Another ſerious inconvenience that will reſult from the loſs of Fort Matagorda, and our leaving that ſide of the water is, that it will enable the French partially to bombard Cadiz, and to render our anchorage room very confined—It is intended, however, that the ſhore from Cadiz to Puntal, & from the Puntal to Fort St. Fernando, ſhall be lined with mortar batteries and guns, to meet the enemy, in caſe they ſhould throw up works for the purpoſe above mentioned.

"Gottenburgh, May 7.

"An Engliſh ſquadron of line of battle ſhips has been reported from the telegraph to have paſſed this port under a preſs of ſail to the Northward, ſuppoſed for the Baltic."

German papers to the 6th, mention, that great diſcontent prevails in Sweden—that the party attached to the gallant Guſtavus acquires ſtrength daily—that the intended ſucceſſor to the Throne, the Prince of Auguſtenburgh, is extremely unpopular—and that a ſtrong deſire is entertained in favor of raiſing the ſon of Guſtavus to the Throne, upon the demiſe of the preſent king.

The Intelligence of a Britiſh fleet being deſtined to the Baltic has ſtruck terror into the Danes.

NEW-YORK, June 15.

Extract of a letter from a correspondent at Havanna, dated May 27.

"A new general of marine, admiral Olava, lately commanding at Cadiz, is hourly looked for at this port with two ſhips of the line and one frigate; he brings with him Don Honore Buton, as conſtructor general, and it is ſaid that a number of ſhips of war are to be built at this port under his direction."

Boſton, June 26.

The ſchooner Johanna, Capt. Quiner, arrived at Marblehead, in 45 days from Cadiz. This makes the time of his ſailing the 10th May.

Capt. Quiner informs, that ſince the French captured fort Matagorda, they had proceeded to form or ſtrengthen other forts to annoy the Spaniards and Engliſh.—5000 of their troops had made an attempt againſt the iſland of Leon, but were beaten back. The patriots and their allies were confident of being able to defend Cadiz—they had 700 pieces of cannon mounted, and well appointed. Two veſſels arrived May 4, from Vera Cruz, with 9 millions of dollars. The French have row boat privateers out of St. Lucar, and have captured 5 American veſſels, one a ſhip of 300 tons, loaded with tobacco. Proviſions are high at Cadiz. Algerine veſſels are cruizing between St. Mary's and St. Vincent's and were reported to have captured ſeveral Portuguese veſſels.

A late London Paper ſtates that in addition to the great obeliſk to be raiſed in Paris to the memory of Louis XVI. —It was ſaid in an article from the Elbe that the ſurviving members of the National convention now in France, who voted for the death of the late monarch, or of his queen, "would be baniſhed, or impriſoned for life in ſome ſtate priſon."

On the 3d of February official notice was given to Mr. Bourne, the American Conſul at Amſterdam, that "no American veſſel whatever would be admitted into the ports of Holland."

Horrible Maſſacre.—The following is taken from a late London paper. Unhappy Europe! literally wallowing in blood, what a deſtiny is yours?

The following is an extract of a private letter from Abo, the capital of Finland, under date the 6th ult.—"It is with the deepeſt regret that I communicate to you an account of the perpetration of atrocities ſcarcely exceeded by the memorable maſſacre on St. Bartholomew's day at Paris, by the Ruſſian troops on the inhabitants of this ill fated country. In violation of an expreſs ſtipulation in the treaty for the transfer of Finland to Ruſſia, a certain portion of the inhabitants were ordered to be drafted or rather impreſſed into the emperor's ſervice. The deſpotic mandate was in general obeyed, and conſiderable levies were procured, before their deſtination was known to be the ſhores of the Euxine, to fight againſt the Turks. In the province of Savolax the alarm became general; and the people conceiving they we exempt from ſervice for a limited ti , ventured to remonſtrate what they conſidered as an infraction of the treaty.

Count Tolesky, the Governor of Finland, to whom the appeal was made in the moſt reſpectful and ſubmiſſive terms, invited the inhabitants by proclamation, to repair on Sunday laſt to their reſpective churches, in order to obtain a redreſs of grievences. This artifice had the deſired effect. The inhabitants, who are widely ſcattered, and difficult to be got at in detail, were collected in a focus; and, while in anxious expectation of the proffered act of grace, and unconscious of the impending danger, they were ſuddenly ſurrounded by bands of ſoldiers, who, regardleſs of the ſanctity of the place, and deaf to the voice of humanity, dragged the flower of the young men from the altars of their God, from the bosoms of their parents, and the enjoyment of all that was moſt dear to them in life; and moreover butchered, without any diſtinction of age, ſex, or condition, thoſe that attempted by interceſſion or force to ſoften the hearts or avert the deadly weapons of their remorseleſs aſſaſſins. In the pariſhes where thoſe atrocities were perpetrated, no leſs than 700 unoffending and defenceleſs individuals have fallen victims to the relentleſs fury of monſters in human form."

Honorable Proposal.—An unlucky regimental diſagreement occurring between two officers of conſiderable rank in the army, one of them ſent the other a challenge in the uſual form, to which the following anſwer was returned:—

"SIR,

"I received your meſſage this morning by Maj.——. I will freely declare I will not meet you; I have ſome reaſon to think my character in the army will out weigh any imputation on my courage as a ſoldier; but I confeſs I dare not be your murderer—inſtead of that attempt, I make the following propoſal:—We are both ſingle men, I will part with my commiſſion, and attend you to any part of the globe, where as a volunteer, our troops may be likely to meet with the moſt active ſervice—we will then fight together in the ſervice of our country, and in defence of our GOD—ſhould this not meet with your approbation, we will then meet—you ſhall fire at me as often as you pleaſe, but I will not return your fire—with either of theſe alternatives, I pledge my honor to comply, but muſt requeſt of you not to propoſe, or to expect from me, any apology, for which I cannot feel myſelf culpable."—Naſſau paper.

The wife of a Mr. Bellenger, a rope-maker at Honfleur, was delivered at the beginning of March laſt, of four daughters, who with the mother, are doing well.—The firſt was born at 6 P. M. the ſecond at 8. and the others within twenty four hours thereafter.

Kine Pock—In the report given by the Medical Board in India, we find that in the ſpace of 13 months, no leſs than 145,806 perſons were vaccinated, and recovered—The Rajah of Tanjore, and the Dowan of Travancore, were among the number.

Gout.—A new virtue is diſcovered in the Loadſtone. The ſeverest attacks of the Gout will, it is ſtated, be cured, by the ſufferer's wearing a magnet encloſed in flannel next the ſkin.

DIED.

At Falmouth, Jamaica, on Tuesday the 15th ult. Ann Sylvetter, a free black woman, at the very advanced age of 133 years. She lived in the neighborhood of Duncas at the time of the Earthquake, which happened at Port Royal in the year 1692, and from her own account muſt then have been about 15 year old. She had at one time children, grand-children, and great grand children, to the number of 82. It is ſomewhat remarkable that ſhe never loſt a tooth from the time ſhe was grown up—nor ever wore ſpectacles, as her eye ſight was ſufficiently ſtrong to do common needle-work till within about a fortnight before her death. She was a motherly and humane creature, was much beloved among her neighbors, and retained her faculties to within a few minutes of her decease.

In Ireland, LORD LECALE, Vice Ad. of the Red. In England, J. GIBSON, aged 106: His faculties were entire to the laſt; he was a great ſmoaker, and at his requeſt his pipe and walking ſtick were placed in his coffin.—Mr. J. STOKES: He had kept his coffin as an ornament in his parlour for 25 years.

PROPOSALS

BY NAHUM MOWER & CHARLES KENDALL,

FOR

PRINTING AT KINGSTON, UPPER-CANADA,

A

WEEKLY NEWSPAPER,

TO BE ENTITLED, THE

Kingston Gazette.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE advantages derived from well conducted newspapers are so various, and so well appreciated, that arguments to prove their utility are deemed useless in this place. The want of such an establishment, in this part of Canada, must be generally acknowledged, so long as a large community continue to derive their information from abroad. To supply a deficiency so apparent, the editors advance to the present undertaking; and it gentlemen of intelligence and respectability, of different parts of the Province, form a correct estimate of the public sentiment, their paper will receive a liberal patronage, while conducted in a manner deserving support.

Avoiding, intentionally, a multiplicity of promises, the editors will merely give a sketch of their proposed course. It is intended that the KINGSTON GAZETTE shall be made the earliest public vehicle of intelligence, both foreign and domestic. It will exhibit, from time to time, a statement of Parliamentary proceedings, and internal regulations, as well as of the general concerns of the Province. The best information for the farmer, the merchant, and the mechanic, they will also endeavor to give. Various are the tastes to be consulted; and though none may find the KINGSTON GAZETTE wholly adapted to his own, it is hoped that every correct reader may find something which will greatly his palate. Gentlemen of science and leisure, the divine, the moralist, the poet and the politician, are each respectfully invited to enrich our columns with their respective pens, or with such occasional selections as may be most rare and interesting.

Should any thing further be required, it must be a statement of the political bias of the editors—a summary of which may be comprised in a few words:—Living under an enlightened government, mildly and generously administered, they will be the last to abuse the privileges it affords them. Their loyalty will never be loud, but it may be depended on as honest. If called on to stem the torrent of their rulers, they will be firm but decorous—and as the English law allows a generous latitude to men of their profession, it shall be their chief study that the liberty they possess does not degenerate into licentiousness.

Latest Foreign News.

New-York, June 30.

Capt. Tarris, of the ſhip London Trader, arrived at Philadelphia from Cadiz in 45 days, informs, that the French had made no farther progeſs after the reduction of fort Matagorda on the main: & that the Spaniſh and Portuguese force on the Iſland amounted to 32 000 regulars—and the Britiſh troops were 9 000 ſtrong, and a reinforcement of 8,000 was daily expected.

The garriſon and the inhabitants, of whom none had left Cadiz ſince our laſt accounts, were amply ſupplied.

Many young men, whom the French had doomed to their conſcription liſt, had reached Cadiz—and no apprehenſion was entertained for its ſafety.

Adm. Purvis had gone to England, and was ſucceeded by Adm. Pickmore.

Accounts from the interior ſtated that the Spaniards continued a ſucceſsful partizan war againſt their invaders.

The Spaniſh papers recieved by the London Trader, are replete with official advices of ſkirmiſhes with the French, in which the patriots appear always to have had the advantage.

At Villa Franca, in Catalonia, a regiment of 900 infantry and 0 horſe were attacked by Brigadier Juan Caro, who forced them to take ſhelter in the barracks at the entrance of the Town, where after a reſiſtance of two hours, they ſurrendered with very conſiderable loss in killed; among the few wounded on the part of the patriots, was the commander Don Juan Caros, who was in conſequence obliged to ſurrender the command to Don Pervaſio Paſca, Colonel of Cavalry, who on the 3d of May followed up their ſucceſs by attacking a flying column of the enemy between Eſpanaguira and Abrera, of which they took 500 priſoners and left 400 killed and wounded on the field of battle; the remainder of the column, which conſiſted of 1200 men, were diſperſed, and only 200 got to Barcelona, of which 50 only were armed. Proud of the ſucceſs gained over the enemy at Villa Franca and Eſpanaguera, the Marquis de Campo V. determined to follow it up and attack the enemy at Manreſa, which was recently under the direction of Brig General Don Franciſco Miror, who ſucceeded in routing them from their poſition at Manreſa, and purſued them in their flight to Barcelona as far as Sabadel, where attacking them with the bayonet, he completely finiſhed them—The reſult of this action was 500 killed, among which were 12 officers, and a woman of the Generals family—299 priſoners, including 2 women, 10 officers, three ſurgeons and the phyſician of the army—Gen. Savery eſcaped with two wounds, after having his horſe killed under him.

The report adds, that the great number of killed is owing to their having given no quarters in conſequence of the treachery of the enemy, who having ſurrendered twice, on the patriots coming up received them with a cloſe fire.

Cadiz, May 3 ——Yeſterday the Patriots of Madrid, who had fled to Cadiz and the Iſland of Leon for refuge, celebrated with ſolemn honours in the Carmelite church, the remembrance of their illuſtrious fellow citizens, who on that day two years, fell victims to the cruelty of the French, and their own zeal for the liberty of the Nation. The aſſemblage of the Miniſtry, the members of the Diplomatic body, the Grandees, Magiſtrates Generals, Spaniſh and Engliſh, both of ſea and land, and the numerous officers of the three allied nations, Spain, Portugal and England—the martial appearance of the troops, the view of the harbour and oppoſite ſhore, crowded with innumerable veſſels——all conſpired to render the ſcenery grand, which was heightened by the arrival the ſame morning of the two ſhips of the line, the Algeziras and Aſia, from Vera Cruz, and the Caraccas, bringing with them 7 millions of dollars and 4000 Joes, ſent to our ſuccour by our brethren in America.

LONDON, May 19.

We have private letters from Liſbon to the 5th, when it was reported, that Ld. Wellington was advancing toward Spain, with 22,000 Britiſh and 36,000 Portuguese troops.

Oporto advices bring accounts from Lord Wellington's army to the 6th inſt. His Lordſhip had left Viſeu, and was advancing towards Ciudad Rodrigo; and the French were falling back into the centre of Leon. The head quarters of the oppoſing armies were about 30 miles apart; and there is no doubt a conteſt will ſpeedily enſue.

The Princeſs Amelia, was in a very critical ſtate laſt night. The accounts from Windſor ſtated, that her Royal H. was much worſe than on the preceding day, and that no further hopes were entertained.—The whole Court were overwhelmed with affliction on her ſituation; and ſhe is conſtantly attended by the Princeſs Mary, and His Majeſty.

The boats of our ſquadron in Quiberoon Bay have deſtroyed ten ſail of Fr. veſſels, under La Foſſe de L'Owe on the Iſle of Rhe.

It was reported that the Daniſh iſland of Bornholm had ſurrendered to Admiral Saumarez—Bonaparte and his Empreſs were touring in Holland.

PHILADELPHIA, July 4.

Lateſt from Europe.—Yeſterday arrived brig Caeſar, captain Powers, from Liverpool, by whom we have London and Liverpool papers to the 23d May, but we have only time to extract the following:

LONDON May 21.

Accounts from Lord Wellington ſtate that his head quarters were at Almeida on the 8th, General Hull's brigade was at Caſtle Boon, and General Payne's at St. Pedro. The advanced corps of General Hull's brigade was within ten miles of the enemy's head quarters at Ciudad Rodrigo. General Crawford was at Gelegos, between Almeida and Ciudad Rodrigo. The Britiſh force amounted to 23,000 men, which would be reinforced with about 3000 more who were on their march from Lisbon. The Portugueſe troops are about 35,000 ſtrong, making together about 60,000 men.

The enemy are about the ſame number.—Ney having been joined by the diviſion of Regnier and Loiſon, and Junot being on his march from Aſtorga to join him with 10,000 infantry and 2000 cavalry.—10,000 more troops were to be drawn from Valladolid. Loiſon's diviſion was on the 5th on the right bank of Agueda.

The following is an extract of a letter from Cadiz:

"CADIZ, April 22.

"The French are very buſily employed in erecting numerous batteries in front of our advances here; and I have no doubt they will ſucceed in driving us from thence with conſiderable loſs, when their fortifications are complete.—Still I continue to think they will not get further. I imagine we will ſoon be obliged to move our ground or be ſhelled by a battery they have already completed, and which will reach over our encampment. We are hard worked, well fed, and conſequently, continue healthy.

"I am afraid the French are in poſſeſſion of much valuable information regarding our advances, &c. as all our killed were left at Matagorda, and Letebvre's pocket contains all his memorandums, and a valuable journal of his obſervations ſince here—his loſs is a lamentable one indeed, for us."

Extract of a private letter.

OPORTO, May 10.

"On the 24th of April the French approached the advanced guard under General Crauford, in the neighborhood of Ciudad Rodrigo, and drove in the piquets. During theſe operations, advices were ſent to Lord Wellington, at Viſeu, who immediately began his march with 22,000 Engliſh and 14,000 Portugueſe, to ſupport the diviſion under General Crawford. On the 26th he paſſed Almeida, and by the laſt accounts, which was of the 5th inſt. from head quarters, he was a few leagues to the South eaſt of Almeida. A reinforcement of 3000 men was hourly expected to arrive at the camp.

"The French, after threatening the vanguard in the manner ſtated, proceeded with their main body under the Duke of Elchingen, to the number of 30,000 men, and occupied the vicinity of Ciudad Rodrigo, which place had been long before ſurrounded by their piquets. Ciudad Rodrigo is ſtrongly fortified, amply proviſioned, and powerfully garriſoned, and is in no danger from any force that the French can at preſent bring againſt it, ſupported as it is by the neighborhood of the allied armies.—The French have made a ſhow of commencing the ſiege of that place, and for that purpoſe have brought all their heavy artillery from Salamanca.

"In this ſituation of things no apprehenſions are felt for the reſult of the preſent manoeuvres; but, on the contrary, great hopes are entertained of ſucceſsful iſſue. Lord Wellington's force amounts to 30,000 men in high ſpirits, with ſcarcely a perſon on the ſick liſt, and ſupplied with every neceſſary of war and ſubſiſtence. Beyond the number of 30,000 ſtated, the enemy has not 5000 troops eaſt of Burgos, and therefore can be in no condition to commence the ſiege of Ciudad Rodrigo in the preſence of the allied army, or to make an attempt upon that army reinforced as it progreſſively will be from the interior of Portugal.

"There has been lately no want of the eſſential articles of meat and flour in the Britiſh army. The cattle depot has always had 2000 bullocks, and the influx has been for ſome time ſo great, that they had not ſufficient space for the herds.

"You will be anxious to know the diſtribution of the Spaniſh forces near the Portugueſe frontiers.—O'Donnel, who has been much worſted at Merida, had, before the conflict, 8000 men. Romana has about the ſame number at Badajoz. The force of Balleſteros near Seville, may be 10,000. The French occupy Merida and its neighbourhood with 90,000 men, under Marſhal Mortier."

MAY 22.

The conſul general of Spain for the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, requeſts the editor to inſert the following communication:

LONDON, May 20, 1810.

The council of Regency of Spain and the Indies, in the name of his Majeſty Ferdinand the ſeventh, having diſcovered that it is the intention of the general enemy of mankind, to introduce into the Ultra Marine Provinces of Spain, ſpies and commiſſaries to diſturb the peace of thoſe eſtabliſhments, and having already been informed that this deſign is in part accompliſhed, with the iniquitous purpoſe of ſpreading through thoſe territories, diſorder, anarchy, and inſurrection; ſince his military forces are not extended to that remote part of the earth; and the ſaid council of regency obſerving that ſuch commiſſaries assembled in the United States of America, from whence, by ſtealth, and under various pretences, they proceed to the province of Texus, or embark for other Spaniſh independencies.

It is reſolved that no Spaniard, or foreigner, of whatever claſs or condition, or for whatever buſineſs, ſhall be allowed to land in any of the Spaniſh dominions of that country, without being provided with the proper paſsports from the places at which they embark, in the name of Ferdinand the 7th, and ſuch paſsports are correctly to deſignate perſons to whom they are given, and the object of their journey or voyage.

It is ordered, that the viceroys and military civil governors of the ſaid dominions, obſerve inviolably this ſovereign determination, and if by any of thoſe accidents which cannot be avoided, one of theſe commiſſaries or ſpies ſhould enter the Spaniſh territories, by land or ſea, it is commanded that he be tried immediately, and puniſhed with death, and that the cargoe and veſſel confiſcated without appeal, to his Majeſty Ferdinand the ſeventh. This edict is to be carried into execution with reſpect to all ſhips which may have on board any perſon or perſons not provided with the regular paſsport, and in the name of his preſent Majeſty, even although ſuch perſon or perſons be a native or natives of the ſaid dominions.

This public notice is given, that no individuals, either born in the country, or out of it, ſhould plead ignorance of the regulation; and that no means have alſo been taken to give it general circulation.

The princeſs Amelia, we are happy to learn, paſſed the criſis of her diſorder on Saturday, and the accounts of yeſterday ſtate, that her royal highneſs had a quiet night.

LIVERPOOL, May 23.

SPAIN AND PORTUGAL.

A conſiderable degree of activity appears now to be manifeſted both on the part of the enemy and the allies on different parts of the peninſula. In Leon, Aſtorga, after a tremendous bombardment, has ſurrendered to the French under Junot.—A great part of the garriſon eſcaped into Aſturias in the diſguiſe of peaſants, but the governor having refuſed to ſwear allegiance to Joſeph, on which condition he was offered to be continued in the command of the town, and 1000 men were ſent to France. One circumſtance very ſtrongly marks the ſpirit of the Spaniſh peaſantry. The governor, when he capitulated, enforced a ſtipulation that the troops of the enemy were not to be diſtributed in the adjacent country, aſſigning as a reaſon that he could not answer for their ſecurity among his indignant countrymen.

The army in Leon conſiſted of 12,000 men, of which number, after the battle of Aſtorga, 2000 were diſpatched to Aſturias and were defeated on their march by Porlier. Only 300 remained at Aſtorga, and the reſt, amounting to near 8000 men, marched towards Ciudad Roderigo, and we ſuppoſe have joined marſhal Ney, who threatens that fortreſs, which will now be the object of ſerious contention. To both parties is poſſeſſion of the utmoſt importance.—To the French, as it would favor their deſign upon Oporto and the North of Portugal, and force the allied army ſouthward; and to the Allies, as it is an intereſting point between the enemy's diviſion in Leon, and Eſtramadura. Ciudad Roderigo is, however, a place of conſiderable ſtrength, with a formidable garriſon, and though the French have brought their heavy artillery from Salamanca for the purpoſe of commencing the ſiege, it is not likely, were it even left to itſelf, ſoon to ſurrender.—But the movements of the armies indicate an approaching battle: Lord Wellington aware of the deſign upon Ciudad Rodrigo, had diſpatched general Crauford to cover it, and as it appears from advices from Oporto, as late as the 10th of May, the French approached his advanced guard and drove in the piquets. This movement has drawn Lord Wellington from Vizen, who, with 22,000 Britiſh and 14,000 Portugueſe, took the direction of Almeida, and on the 5th inſt. was advanced about three leagues ſouth eaſt of Almeida. The French army is commanded by Ney, and with the force under Junot, which has probably joined him, and which is ſaid to amount to 30,000 men. Other diviſions are, however joining him, and the probability of a battle will be determined by the reſpective proportion of force. If the two armies approach near in point of numbers we apprehend that the French will prove shy of fighting. They will probably linger until they are joined by powerful reinforcements, and add to their chances of ſucceſs by the ſuperiority of their numbers.

The inſurrections of the patriots are on the alert in the different provinces with various ſucceſs.—Romana had repulſed an attack upon Badajoz and O'Donnel ſhows that he only wants a more powerful and efficient force to do ſervice to his country.

Summary of Events.—The exchange of priſoners between this country and France has already commenced on an extenſive ſcale. Four cartels ſailed from Plymouth Tuesday the 15th, for Morlaix, with near 800 French priſoners on board, many of whom have been ſeveral years confined in this country. Theſe will be followed by many others, as faſt as the cartels return with our priſoners in exchange.

The reduction of the Daniſh iſland of Bornholm in the Baltic, it is underſtood, was the firſt object of the fleet under Sir J. Saumarez, and from the ſtate of its defences, it is ſuppoſed to have fallen an eaſy conqueſt.

New York, July 4.

Captain Reade, of the brig Hector, from Liſbon, which Port he left on the 22d May, informs, that the Britiſh troops in Portugal, amounted to 25,000 men, and that the Portugueſe army conſiſted of 60,000. That this force was divided into three diviſions, and was ſtationed to defend the paſſes on the frontiers of Portugal.—That ſeveral ſkirmiſhes had taken place between the combined Armies and the French, and ſome ſcouting parties of the French had been taken and ſent to Liſbon. No general battle had been fought, though one was daily expected.—The Engliſh and Portugueſe were fortifying Liſbon, and meant to defend it againſt the French to the laſt extremity. Troops were daily coming in from England—there were about four hundred Engliſh tranſports at Liſbon and more expected. The Portugueſe were in high ſpirits.

PROPOSALS

BY NAHUM MOWER & CHARLES KENDALL,

FOR

PRINTING AT KINGSTON, UPPER-CANADA,

A

WEEKLY NEWSPAPER,

TO BE ENTITLED, THE

Kingston Gazette.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE advantages derived from well conducted newspapers are so various, and so well appreciated, that arguments to prove their utility are deemed useless in this place. The want of such an establishment, in this part of Canada, must be generally acknowledged, so long as a large community continue to derive their information from abroad. To supply a deficiency so apparent, the editors advance to the present undertaking ; and if gentlemen of intelligence and respectability, in different parts of the Province, form a correct estimate of the public sentiment, their paper will receive a liberal portion of patronage, while conducted in a manner deserving support.

Avoiding, intentionally, a multiplicity of prominent, the editors will merely give a sketch of their projected course. It is intended that the KINGSTON GAZETTE shall be made the earliest possible vehicle of intelligence, both foreign and domestic. It will exhibit, from time to time, a Historical account of Parliamentary proceedings, and general regulations, as well as of the general concerns of the Province. The best information for the farmer, the merchant, and the mechanic, they will also endeavor to give. Various are the tastes to be consulted ; and though none may find the KINGSTON GAZETTE wholly adapted to his own, it is hoped that every correct reader may find something which will gratify his palate. Gentlemen of science and leisure, the divine, the moralist, the poet and the politician, are each respectfully invited to enrich our columns with their reflective pens, or with such occasional selections as may be most rare and interesting.

Should any thing further be required, it must be a statement of the political bias of the editors : a summary of which may be comprised in a few words :—Living under an enlightened government, mildly and generously administered, they will be the last to abuse the privileges it affords them. Their loyalty will never be lost, but it may be expected on as honest. It called on to scan the conduct of their rulers, they will be firm but decorous—and as the English law allows a generous latitude to men of their profession, it shall be their chief study that the liberty they possess does not degenerate into licentiousness.

CADIZ, May 20.

His Excellency Don Nicholas Mahy, on the 13th of April, ordered the van guard, under the direction of Brigadier Don Joſe de Meneſes, to advance for the purpoſe of reconnoitering more cloſely the poſition of the enemy, who was beſieging Aſtorga. On the ſame day the troops quitted their poſitions and lay that night at Riego and its vicinity. On the 14th they advanced as far as Fonrebandon, and the light troops to Robania, La Malarenga and Ardinuela. The Marine Sharp Shooters drove back a party of French who were in ambuſcade. On the 15th they were attacked by 200 horſemen and ſome infantry, of the enemy, whoſe fire they ſuſtained with gallantry, cauſing them ſome loſs: but apprehenſive of the approach of ſuperior force they retired. The roads were rendered impaſſible by the ſnow, eſpecially for the artillery: wherefore on the ſame day Gen. Meneſes retired to Riego, and from thence to his former poſition, in order to procure cloathing. The Fifth Company of Ribero, with another of the Marine, had a ſkirmiſh with the enemy at Fonſria and Briforces. The ſcouting parties from Ribero on that day regaled themſelves with the Frenchmen's proviſions, and afterwards ſet fire to their huts.

In the kingdom of Jaen, a great many companies have been formed, and harraſs the enemy very much. Some of them have intercepted many waggon loads of plate and brandy, and ſeveral droves of cattle.

The French in Catalonia deſert in ſuch numbers, that ſcarcely a day paſſes but from 60 to 100 of them join our forces, and each of them is immediately rewarded with 200 reals of Vellon.

The defenders of Cindad Roderiga, reſolving not to be inferior in glory to the heroes of Saragoſſa and Gerona, are anxious only for opportunities of teſtifying their patriotiſm, and accompliſhing their wiſhes of exterminating the French legions. In the ſallies they made on the 30th of April and 1ſt inſt. againſt the forces that appeared before that place, they ſucceeded in driving them from before their walls, with the loſs of 18 killed and wounded, taking at the ſame time ſome priſoners any many articles. It is very probable that in conſequence of the movement of the Anglo-Luſitano army, the modern vandals have relinquiſhed the idea of laying ſiege in form to Cindad Rodrigo; and that thoſe have retired, as it is reported, with precipitation two days after their entry into Aſtorga on the 29th ultimo. It is added that the garriſon of that place ſucceeded in making its eſcape.

TARRAGONA, April 18.

After the laſt advantages obtained by the army of Gen. O'Donnel over the French Marſhal Angereau, leaving the fortreſs of Barcelona, Gerona, and Figueras garriſoned with a few troops, collected the remainder of his forces, which it is ſaid, amounted to upwards of 12,000 men, and proceeded towards the frontiers. The Marſhal carried away with him all the valuable effects of the palace of the Captain General where he lodged. General Chabran, through a principal of honour ſeldom to be ſeen in the French generals of theſe times, reſtored the ſervice of plate, which he had been uſing, to its owner; but all the commanders and officers packed up with their baggage the articles of moſt value that they could find in the houſes where they lodged.—They are accompanied by a number of merchants, who, deceived by the rumours diſſeminated by the miniſters of Napoleon, that all was quiet in Spain, that the war was terminated, and that the French were in peaceable poſſeſſion of theſe inſulas, had come to eſtabliſh their commerce of ſilks, linens, and cotton in this province and that of Valencia.—It is not known whether they will remain in Catalonia or return to France, for as they are accuſtomed to diſſemble their intentions, no confidence can be repoſed in appearances; but what is certain is, that the principality is freed from the enemy as far as Hoſtalrich, and the public correſpondence is reſtored in every part of it.

The diviſion of the French army of Aragon which remains at Balagner and its vicinity, continues with the uſual depredations upon the ill fated inhabitants.—Doubtleſs its wiſhes were to form a junction with the French troops that were at Beus, and threaten Lerida; but as theſe troops were neceſſitated to retire, in conſequence of the able meaſures taken by Gen. O'Donnel, and to leave the diviſion of Balaguer quite expoſed, its expectations are fruſtrated.—We entertain the moſt ſanguine hopes of the happy iſſue of the movements of Gen. Ibarrola, who has marched towards Lerida with a diviſion in order to take or diſperſe the enemy.—ib.

From the Brazils.—Intelligence from Rio Janeiro is to May 25. There had been great rejoicings in conſequence of a marriage in the Royal Family.—The Portuguese Princeſs who has been united to the Spaniſh Family, is about 16 years of age, and of great perſonal accompliſhments. The officers of every American veſſel which arrives are immediately conducted to the Palace, and introduced to the Prince Regent—members of his family being frequently preſent. He is friendly to our countrymen—was gratified by hearing of the appointment of an Ambaſſador, and was impatient for his arrival. He had been more contented with his ſituation; but the general hatred of Bonaparte was as great as ever. —Boſt. Pap.

LONDON, May 21.

Advices have been received by Government, from Conſtantinople, which are ſaid to contain important intelligence relative to the deſigns of France againſt Turkey. The following letter from Mr. Adair to the Britiſh Conſul at Smyrna, will prove the falſehood of the report that French intrigues had induced the Porte to break her Treaty with us.

"CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 22.

"SIR—His Majeſty having been graciouſly pleaſed to permit me to return to England, I have to acquaint you that unleſs very unexpected events ſhould detain me, it is my intention to leave Conſtantinople, whenever the ſeaſon becomes favorable.

"I ſhould long ago have executed this intention, had I not perceived that the Peace between Auſtria and France, and eſpecially that article of the Treaty which carries the boundary of France to the Save, revived a hope in our enemies of engaging the Porte to break with G. Britain.

"France had inſiſted on having Croatia, evidently with a view of dictating the law at Conſtantinople.——That her firſt act of good neighborhood towards the Turks, would be to compel them, if poſſible, to go to war with us, no man could doubt. That ſhe would ſucceed, I never had the ſlighteſt apprehenſion; yet with the fulleſt reliance on the good faith and honor of the Porte, I did not think it right to quit the affairs of the Britiſh embaſſy in a moment of even apparent difficulty, nor to ſanction by any ſudden departure, the idle reports that had been deſſeminated, of approaching hoſtilities with this country.

"The event has in every way anſwered my expectation, the threats of France are diſregarded, every demand injurious to our friendly relations with Turkey has been rejected with indignation, and our enemies are themſelves convinced, that they will beſt conſult their own intereſt by abſtaining from a repetition of their offenſive propoſals.

"Under theſe circumſtances I quit the embaſſy, without fear for the ſtability of the peace, and with the aſſurance that this powerful Empire is determined to aſſert its independence to the laſt, to adhere to its treaties, and if neceſſary, to put forth its whole force to maintain them.

CHARLESTON, July 3.

Battle in Portugal.—Captain Brooks, of the Schooner Sally, arrived at this Port on Saturday from Madeira, informs us that the day before he ſailed, a Britiſh gun-brig arrived at that place in ſix days from Liſbon, with the intelligence that a great battle had been fought on the confines of Portugal, between the combined Britiſh and Portuguese army and the French; that the fighting continued 3 days—and that the French were compleatly defeated with great loſs. It was alſo ſtated that the French taken priſoners were many of them ſo completely worn out with fatigue and hunger, as to be unable to proceed on their march. It was likewiſe aſſerted that the French had been compelled to evacuate Madrid for want of proviſions, and that the Patriots had taken poſſeſſion of that city. A reinforcement of 9000 men that had arrived at Liſbon from England, remained on board the tranſports, the Portuguese aſſuring the commander, that the Britiſh troops then in the country, together with the Portuguese troops, were fully competent to defend the kingdom. The Portuguese are ſtated to be in high ſpirits, and to entertain the moſt ſanguine hopes of preſerving their country from French tyranny.

Great rejoicings had taken place at Madeira in conſequence of this victory over the French.

New-York, July 14th, 1810.

We learn by the ſchooner Weymouth Capt. Howland, in 30 days from Teneriffe, that a few days before his departure, two Spaniſh and one Britiſh 74, and a tranſport ſhip having on board, 800 French priſoners, arrived at Santa Cruz from Cadiz, which place they left about the 1ſt of June. They ſtated, that the Marquis de la Romana, with 80,000 troops, were on their march in the rear of the French army towards Cadiz; and that the inhabitants of that place were in high ſpirits, and under no apprehenſions of being obliged to ſurrender to the Fr.

We further learn, that the Seven Canary Iſlands were immediately to be placed under the vice-royalty of the Duke del Parque, who, with a number of troops were hourly expected at Santa Cruz.

It is further added by our informant, that ſo much were the inhabitants incenſed againſt the French priſoners at Port Oratavia, and the upper town, that they had embodied and threatened to maſſacre all they could find; and that two reſpectable French inhabitants of the place had been put to death by the populace. About 100 of the regular troops were called out and dispersed the rioters.

From a London Paper of May, 19.

Mungo Park.—We have the ſatisfaction to communicate the very pleaſing intelligence of the ſafety of Mr. PARK, whoſe ſuppoſed loſs, his family, his friends, and his country have ſincerely but prematurely deplored for ſeveral years. The event was confidered ſo certain, that a penſion was voted to Mrs. P. by the Houſe of Commons, in conſideration of her huſband's public ſervices, in a former ſeſſion of Parliament. This gentleman, as our readers will recollect, has been long and uſefully engaged in exploring the interior of Africa, and a ſanguine hope may be now entertained that his country will have the benefit of his laborious and hazardous researches. The whole of the ſuit attached to the enterprize, above fifty in number, with the exception of 3 are ſaid to have periſhed. The intelligence to which we allude, and which we hope ſoon to find fully confirmed, has been received by the ſhip Favorite, of London, Capt. Truman, arrived a Plymouth from Goree. Previous to the departure of that veſſel, information had been received at Senegal by a native of the Mandingo country, who accompanied Mr. Park, as far into the interior as Sego, and Sansanding, that he was alive in the month of January. Col. Maxwell, the Governor of Senegal, had in conſequence of this information, directed that a decked boat ſhould be immediately fitted out to proceed up the river Sengal, for the purpoſe of giving aſſiſtance to Mr. Park in his indefatigable exertions in exploring the continent of Africa. This account is further corroborated by a letter dated in March laſt, received from Sierra Leone, from Dr. Douglass, who writes as follows—

"Permit me to lay before you ſome information reſpecting Mungo Park, which I was favored with from an intelligent Mahomedan, whom I met at Goree, and who had acted as a guide to Mr. Park, from the time of his landing on the continent of Africa, to his embarkation on the Niger. He ſtates that the King of Sego had ſhown much favor to Mr. Park, and that the report of his aſſaſſination there was untrue. He had paſſed far along the Niger without any moleſtation whatever from the natives.——My informant could not recollect the date of his embarkation on the Niger, but thinks it muſt be about three years ago. Mr. Park had taken four months proviſions for himſelf and two followers, with whom he intended to proceed to the eaſtward, and onwards as far as the Red Sea. Some travellers who had fallen in with his guide, informed him, that about two or three months ſubſequent to Mr. P's embarkation, he had been ſeverely ſcorched in his breaſt by the burſting of a gun while firing at ſome birds, but that he paſſed Tombucto, in the night by water."

Pompeia and Oſtia.—The French papers ſtate, that in continuing to dig into Pompeia, near Naples, there has been found a grand edifice, adorned with columns, which was formerly one of the grand public buildings of the city.

"The clearing away the ruins of Oſtia has been interrupted for ſome time. One might expect, however, to make great diſcoveries if they were continued. This city, once ſo ſpacious and opulent, was almoſt entirely inundated by the ſudden riſing of the Tiber. Perſons may now walk upon the tops of the houſes, and find out whole ſtreets by following the direction of the tops.—Some houſes have been entered, and found to have been built in the ſame ſtyle as Pompeia. There is but one temple, the Temple of Neptune, ſituated on an elevation that has been entirely cleared of the ruins. The temple of Mercury, in which he is repreſented holding a purſe in his hand, is only part cleared away. It was here that a very fine Venus was diſcovered, equal to the Venus of the capitol.—But it was carried to England.

The following ſingular occurrence took place a few days ago, at the Royal Navy Aſylum, at Greenwich:—A female child, 5 years of age, was ſent anonymouſly to that eſtabliſhment, with an intimation that 500 in bank notes were ſewed up in the child's body clothes, which were accordingly found. The following account of the birth, parentage, and education of the little foundling was alſo given: the father was deſcribed as a ſeaman on board of a Britiſh man of war, and however unuſual, it appears that his wife, from ſome cauſe or other, was permitted to go to Sea with him.——The tar was killed in action, and the day after his death, his wife was delivered of a female infant under one of the guns, and almoſt immediately expired.——The child was taken care of by the meſſmates of its deceaſed parents, and fed with biſcuit and water, all of them acting the part of nurſes, by turns, and carefully removing it from hammock to hammock, when they were called upon duty.—On the ſhip's arrival in port, the ſol. above mentioned were collected among the ſhip's company, and the object of their bounty tranſmitted to the Aſylum.——The child, which is remarkably healthy, has been baptized Sally Truman.—— *Lon. DANVILLE, (Vt.) June 16.

Wonderful Caſualty.—On the 6th inſt. the day after the annual training, a number of the inhabitants of Glover, Barton and Sheffield, collected for the purpoſe of digging a ſmall drain at the north eaſt end of a Pond, which is 3 miles long, and to ſome places about 1 mile wide, ſituated principally in Glover, but a part in Greenſboro' with an intent to obtain a larger ſupply of water for a Mr. Wilſon's Mill, in Glover, which was fearfully ſupplied by a ſtream iſſuing from a ſmall pond a ſhort diſtance north of the one above mentioned.——It appears that the outlet of the large pond took a ſoutherly direction & formed a conſiderable branch of the river Lamoille, and lay ſomething in the form of a Bellows with the wideſt part north—and the outlet of the ſmall pond takes an oppoſite direction into Barton river to lake Memphramagog.

The adventurers began digging at the broad end of the pond calculating to cut only a ſmall channel to convey the water into the ſmall pond firſt, which would naturally take its courſe to the mill, for 4 miles diſtant in a northerly direction.——They dug the ditch about 6 rods long, 4 feet deep, and ſix feet wide, at the end of which was a rapid deſcent from ſixty to one hundred feet, and a more gradual but conſiderable declivity from thence to Barton river.—The water began to iſſue, and it was found that this ſlender bank which had reſiſted the waves for many centuries, was nothing more than a quickſand, except about 4 feet at the margin of the pond, which was compoſed of gravel and earth exceedingly hard. Immediately on the water making its way in a ſmall ſtream over the extremity of the bank, the ſand broke off, and in a few moments had gulled a hole near 60 feet deep and of conſiderable width, and this continued until the gulph extended within a few feet of the margin of the pond—when the miſs of water in the pond beginning to feel the force of this new outlet, made a deſperate effort, and at one ſweep drove near a half acre of the oppoſing bank, with all the timber ſtanding on it, with a tremendous crath over the precipice to the north, and in a few minutes cut for itſelf a channel from 10 to 15 rods wide and near one hundred and fifty feet deep to the bed of the pond, and the whole miſs of matters ruſhed at once down the deſcent towards Barton river.

On its reaching the ſmall pond its force was ſo great that it diſhed in an inſtant the whole of its water from its place, and purſuing the courſe of the outlet of that pond, in a few ſeconds reached Wilſon's mill, which it demoliſhed in an inſtant, taking in its whole courſe from the pond, the timber, &c. 10 or 12 rods in width and near twenty feet deep, diſtance of 6 or 8 miles in length—carried off all the bridges the whole extent of Barton river, and covered thouſands of acres of land from 4 to 16 feet deep, with loam, ſand and timber—totally deſtroying all the crops, intervales &c.

Happily no lives were loſt. Such unaccountable havoc perhaps never was made in ſo ſhort a time, and for ſuch a diſtance, by an event ſo ſingular. The damage is eſtimated at ſixty thouſand dollars.

Intelligence has received Ruſſelville (K.) that the province " of Weſt Florida will in leſs than two months, throw themſelves under the protection of the United States, if it is conſiſtent for them to be received—if not, under the government of Mexico. Conſultations are daily holding with the Gov. of Baton Rouge—none of the inhabitants are now afraid to approach him with propoſitions. They all equally deſpiſe Bonaparte's influence and find he has poſſeſſion of Spain."—Pittsburgh Gazette.

The Lancaſhire Giant!—In the Chapeltry of Hale, was born, in the year 1578, John Middleton, commonly called the "Child of Hale" who was remarkable for his largeneſs of ſtature and extraordinary ſtrength. It is traditionally reported there, that one of the Irelands took him to London, and introduced him to the preſence of King James the Firſt, dreſt up in a fantaſtic ſtyle.—Of his return from London, a portrait was taken of him, which is preſerved in Brazen noſe College, at Oxford; and Dr. Plot gives the following account of him:—John Middleton, commonly called the child of Hale, meaſured from the wriſt to the end of the middle finger, was ſeventeen inches; his palm eight inches and a half; and his height nine feet three inches, wanted but six inches of the size of Goliah."

PROPOSALS

BY NAHUM MOWER & CHARLES KENDALL,

FOR

PRINTING AT KINGSTON, UPPER-CANADA,

A

WEEKLY NEWSPAPER,

TO BE ENTITLED, THE

Kingston Gazette.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE advantages derived from well conducted newspapers are so various, and so well appreciated, that arguments to prove their utility are deemed useless in this place. The want of such an establishment, in his part of Canada, must be generally acknowledged, so long as a large community continue to derive their information from abroad. To supply a deficiency so apparent, the editors advance to the present undertaking; and if gentlemen of intelligence and respectability, in different parts of the Province, form a correct estimate of the public sentiment, their paper will receive a liberal patronage, while conducted in a manner deserving support.

Avoiding, intentionally, a multiplicity of promises, the editors will merely give a sketch of their proposed course. It is intended that the KINGSTON GAZETTE shall be made the earliest possible vehicle of intelligence, both foreign and domestic. It will exhibit, from time to time, a statement of Parliamentary proceedings, and internal regulations, as well as of the general concerns of the Province. The best information for the farmer, the merchant, and the mechanic, they will also endeavor to give. Various are the tastes to be consulted; and though none may find the KINGSTON GAZETTE wholly adapted to his own, it is hoped that every correct reader may find something which will gratify his palate. Gentlemen of science and leisure, the divine, the moralist, the poet and the politician, are each respectfully invited to enrich our columns with their respective pens, or with such occasional selections as may be most rare and interesting.

Should any thing further be required, it must be a statement of the political bias of the editors—a summary of which may be comprised in a few words:—Living under an enlightened government, mildly and generously administered, they will be the last to abuse the privileges it affords them. Their loyalty will never be loud, but it may be depended on as honest. If called on to scan the conduct of their rulers, they will be firm but decorous—and as the English law allows a generous latitude to men of their profession, it shall be their chief study that the liberty they possess does not degenerate into licentiousness.

NEW-YORK, July 24.

Late from the Baltic.—Captain Smith of the ſhip Projector, who arrived this morning from Revel, in the remarkable ſhort paſſage of 52 days, brings the ſame rumour which was received here yeſterday from Tonningen, that the Northern powers are preparing for a new coalition againſt France.

The recently adopted Crown Prince of Sweden is dead. It is the general belief that he was poiſoned.

The Britiſh have, within the entrance of the Baltic, a powerful fleet, under the command of Sir James Saumarez. It is ſaid to conſiſt of 40 ſhips of the line, 40 frigates, and a large number of ſmaller veſſels.

One thouſand ſail of Britiſh merchantmen lately paſſed up the Baltic.

BOSTON, July 18.

Laſt evening arrived here the brig Richmond, Capt. Johnſon, 42 days from Briſtol, England: who politely favoured us with London papers to the 2d June.

The news from Spain and Portugal is not ſo late as we have received direct.—The French papers continued full of accounts of French victories over the Spaniſh "rebels." On the 30th May, a fleet with reinforcements for Spain and Portugal, ſailed from Portſmouth.

An attempt had been made to aſſaſſinate the Duke of Cumberland, (5th Son of the King) in his ſleep, by an Italian valet, named Sellus. The Duke received eight or ten wounds from a ſword;—But wreſting it from the aſſaſſin, the latter ran into his chamber, and cut his throat with a razor, which occaſioned his immediate death.——The papers are filled with particulars of this horrid tranſaction.

Burdett remained in the Tower.—Parliament it was expected would be prorogued the 19th June, when he would be liberated. The papers are ſilent reſpecting him.

We find very little mention made of American affairs.——The Catholic queſtion in the Commons had been negatived 213 to 209.

The Duke of Albuquerque had arrived in London, Miniſter from the Spaniſh Regency.

The Britiſh King was at Court the 30. May, in good health.——The Princeſs Amelia was convaleſcent.——Mr. Windham lay dangerouſly ill.

July 17.

By Captain Hobbs of the ſchooner Regulator, arrived yeſterday, we received Halifax papers to the 3d inſt.

All the regular troops at Halifax have been ordered to Portugal. The 7th Regiment had ſailed, and the 23d was held in readineſs for embarkation.

LONDON, June 5.

"It appears from the Paris papers, to the 30th ult. that the expectations entertained by the Court of St. Petersburgh of a vigorous co-operation on the part of the Servians againſt the Turks, have been completely diſappointed. The Ruſſian corps that paſſed over the right bank of the Danube, has been obliged to return precipitately. Murat affects to make preparations for the invaſion of Sicily.

"Died, yeſterday, Mr. Windham, a diſtinguiſhed member of the Houſe of Commons. His death was occaſioned by receiving a blow on the hip, which gave riſe to an indolent tumour, which was followed by inflammation, and ended in a Typhus fever, the fatality of which no power of medicine could baffle."

From a London Paper,

The exchange of priſoners between this country and France has already commenced on an extenſive ſcale. Four Cartels ſailed from Plymouth on Tueſday the 15th for Morlaix, with French priſoners on board, many of whom had been ſeveral years confined in this country.

By arrangement, ſixteen French priſoners are to be given for every nine Britiſh, till the whole are regularly exchanged, it having been aſcertained that the number of the former in this country exceeds that of our countrymen in France; in that proportion.

By an arrival at New-York from Cadiz, accounts are received, that the communication between the beſieging army of Cadiz and Madrid was cut off. And that the Britiſh troops in Cadiz were preparing on the 2d of June to make a ſortie on the French, in conſequence of the news of their defeat on the frontiers of Portugal, expecting that the Britiſh and Portuguese army would attack the French troops beſieging Cadiz. ibid.

The following extract of a letter addreſſed to Mr. Percival by Lord Melville on the ſubject of the eſtabliſhment of a naval arſenal at North-fleet, preſents within a ſmall compaſs a ſtriking view of the progreſſive increaſe of the Britiſh Navy:

"The following ſhort ſtatement will remind you of the eſtabliſhment of the different Royal Dock-yards now exiſting in the kingdom. They are ſix in number, Deptford, Woolwich, Chatham, Sheerness, Portsmouth, and Plymouth.

Deptford was built in the reign of HENRY the VIII. under whoſe ſway Hiſtory tells us, this Country poſſeſſed the firſt fleet compoſed of ſhips of war, belonging to the King: although I have heard that ſome archives, recently diſcovered in the Tower, prove the exiſtence of a fleet of that kind in the reign of the preceding monarch, HENRY VII.

Woolwich Yard was formed under the auſpices of the ſame monarch.

Chatham was founded by Queen ELIZABETH, where the gun wharf now is, and where there was only one ſmall dock; but that being too confined a ſpot, it was removed about the year 1622 to its preſent ſituation

Sheerness was formed in the reign of CHARLES II.

Portsmouth by HENRY VIII. being the third Dock yard formed by him.

Plymouth by WM. III. about the year 1694, and in 1698 money was voted by the Houſe of Commons for completing it."

The progreſſive advance of our navy, will appear by attending to the following recital &c:—At the death of Henry the VIII in 1547 the tonnage was about 12,400, and on the 31ſt December 1809, it amounted to 800,000 Tons.

Thus it appears, that notwithſtanding the vaſt increaſe of our navy, not a ſingle dock yard has been added to it ſince the reign of William III. about a hundred and nineteen years ago, at which period the tonnage of the naval force of the kingdom amounted to nearly 160,000 tons; it is now near 800,000 tons, or about five times as large.

Univerſal Empire.—Between the middle and the end of the 16th century, Spain was beheld by the reſt of Europe, with as much terror and conſternation as France is now. The Spaniſh Monarch, Phillip II, who had a moſt inſatiable thirſt for conqueſt and unlimited dominion, then owned not only Spain, but alſo Portugal, the Seven United Dutch Provinces, the Dutchess of Burgundy and Milan, nearly all the Weſt India Iſlands, and the two vaſt empires of Mexico and Peru, extending more than 5 or 6 thouſand miles in length, containing immenſe mines of ſilver. Alſo, the Spaniſh ſoldiers and their military officers, were then reckoned amongſt the braveſt and beſt in the world. The prodigious Spaniſh fleet, called the Invincible Armada was fitted out by that monarch for the conqueſt of England, and appeared in the channel, in the year 1588; having on board about twenty thouſand land forces. There was beſides a great number of flat bottomed veſſels, prepared to transport into England an army of thirty five thouſand men, aſſembled in the Netherlands.—This fleet, (the Armada) conſiſted of a hundred and thirty ſhips, moſt of which were vaſtly large:—and when it was firſt diſcovered in the channel, it appeared in the form of a crescent or half moon, ſtretching at the diſtance of ſeven miles, from the extremity of one diviſion to that of the other. At that time it could hardly have been thought poſſible that Spain, ſo rich, ſo gigantic in power, ſo inſatiable in ambition, would in a little more than two centuries, be reduced to its preſent deplorable condition.

In the latter part of the 17th century, Louis Fourteenth, of France, ſtrove hard, and avowedly for univerſal Empire; and it ſeemed for a while as though all Chriſtendom would be forced to yield to his yoke. He was like the devouring wolf purſuing the timid ſheep—His conqueſt was rapid and extenſive.—Wherever he turned his arms, his enemies fell or fled before him in diſmay. After deſtroying a million, perhaps of lives, and laying waſte whole countries, this devouring wolf was driven back into his own den. He was fain, like a ſuppliant, to ſue for peace; and paſſed the remainder of his days in the gloom and chagrin of diſappointed ambition.

Afterwards there was diſcloſed another aim at univerſal empire; a moſt formidable combination of crown heads, which ſtruck with a panic the nations of Europe. It was the famous Family Compact, eſtabliſhed in the year 1762; when the ſeveral branches of the Bourbon Family, namely, the Kings of France and Spain, and the King of the Two Sicilies, firmly leagued together to ſupport each other, both in defenſive and offenſive wars. The object of this league was to enlarge and perpetuate the power of the Bourbons, and to bring the ſurrounding nations at their feet. See the aſtoniſhing iſſue! In leſs than half a century from the time this Family Compact was made, the Bourbons were ſtripped of their power and dignities, ſome of them cut off by the hand of the executioner, and the reſt either impriſoned or exiled, and rendered the moſt wretched of mortals.

There is now making another attempt at univerſal empire, more vaſt and formidable than the foregoing ones; but peradventure it may be brought to confuſion at laſt. If Bonaparte has greater power than any other mortal, yet there is a power above him—a power that may ſuddenly cruſh him at the moment of his higheſt exaltation. If he take never ſo much pains, and uſe never ſo much policy, to give deep and laſting root to his family and relations, if he divide amongſt them twenty crowns and diadems, yet they may ſoon fall, like the family of the Bourbons, who vainly thought that the Family Compact had rendered their power and glory perpetual.—The Europeans are a brave and hardy race, and will not, like the Aſiaticks, endure the yoke of ſlavery for a very long time.

Divine providence has made England, from time to time, the great inſtrument of baffling and defeating the projects for univerſal empire. The defeat of the Spaniſh Armada, by the Engliſh in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, gave a death blow to the gigantic power of Spain. Though the Engliſh navy was vaſtly inferior, both in number and ſize, it boldly attacked the Armada, captured ſeveral ſhips, burnt ſeveral others, and diſperſed the reſt; which meeting with a terrible ſtorm, not one half of them returned to Spain, and a ſtill leſs proportion of the ſoldiers and ſeamen. This terrible ſtroke to their naval power the Spaniards never recovered. In the reign of Queen Ann, at the beginning of the 18th century, England, or Great Britain, was the life and ſoul of the confederacy that humbled Lewis XIVth, and wreſted from him the dominions he had conquered.—At the preſent day, and for a ſeries of years paſt, the Britiſh navy is the impregnable mound between Bonaparte and univerſal empire.—Con. Courant.

Particulars of the attempt to Aſſaſſinate His R. H. the Duke of Cumberland.

A valet of his R. H. named Joſeph Seillis, an Italian, who was a confidential ſervant, and had lived 12 or 14 years with the Duke, concealed himſelf in a cloſet in his bed room at St. James's Palace, on the night of the 30th of May, for the purpoſe of aſſaſſinating him.—He was armed with a broad ſword and a razor, and remained quiet till a quarter before 3 o'clock, when he came to the Duke's bed ſide, who was in a profound ſleep, from which he was roused horribly, by two violent blows on the head, which were immediately followed by two others, accompanied by a hiſſing kind of noiſe. There was a lamp and taper burning in the Chamber, and by its light he perceived a letter, which lay upon his table, completely covered with blood. This immediately ſtruck him with the idea that there was a murderer in the room, and he accordingly ſtruggled as quick as he could out of bed.—At this moment a naked ſabre was dropt upon the floor, and he perceived the figure of a man flying into the yellow room, and eſcaping on towards the appartment in which Seillis ſlept. He went down ſtairs, aroused his page, and gave the alarm through the houſe of murder.——On returning up ſtairs, he found the ſword which had been dropped, was his own regimental ſabre and alſo found a pair of ſlippers belonging to Seillis. Seillis was one of his own valets, and had never incurred his diſpleaſure, nor could he imagine any motive likely to prompt him to this extraordinary attempt.

He ſeems, from the wounds received by his Royal Highneſs, to begun in a moſt ſavage manner, to have cut at his Royal Highness in different parts—for the Duke has the front of his leg cut, a wound in his arm, one on his forehead, and another on his cheek. Supposed to have been done by the razor, after he had cloſed with the aſſaſſin. He had alſo one of his little fingers nearly cut off. It was ſome time, as the villain cut at him with ſuch quickneſs, before he could extricate himſelf from the bed. A ſerjeant's guard immediately come to the door which was opened quickly by the Porter, and the guards ruſhed up ſtairs.——There they found the Duke faint with loſs of blood, which was ſtreaming from his wounds. After having conveyed him to his bed, they went in ſearch of the aſſaſſin, having taken care to prevent all poſſibility of his eſcape.—They ſearched the Duke's chamber and the cloſets without effect. But it ſeems as ſoon as he heard the Duke open the window and call for aſſiſtance, he retired to a water cloſet and cut his throat with a razor in ſuch a manner as nearly to ſever his head from his body. He was quite dead.

Meſſengers were inſtantly diſpatched for ſurgical aid, and to the Prince of Wales. The Prince came immediately, and as we have already ſaid, is gone to Windſor. His Royal Highneſs has been attended by Surgeon Home, and ſurgeon Keate who, upon inſpecting the wounds, have declared them to be by no means dangerous.

On his Royal Highneſs extricating himſelf from the attack of the villain, and getting out of his bed room, he exclaimed aloud to his valet, in waiting, repeatedly, "Neale, Neale. I am murdered! I am murdered!" Neale, who was ſleeping in an adjoining room, got up inſtantly; and the Duke informed him of the particulars, and ſaid the murderers were in his bed-room. Neale armed himſelf with a poker, and he and his Royal Highneſs proceeded along the paſſage; when Neale ſtepped upon the ſword with which the Duke had been attacked, which was one of the Duke's, and had been ſharpened within theſe few days.

Seillis had lived with the Duke about ten years, but had once left him and lived with Mr. Manners, the gentleman, we underſtand, of that name who married the Duchess of Roxburgh. He ſoon, however, returned to his Royal Highneſs's ſervice, and became ſo great a favourite of his maſter, than he and his family were accommodated with lodgings over the gate way, leading into the Kitchen-Court, from Cleveland row; from there was a communication with the Duke's ſuit of apartments. Here they were ſupplied with coals, candles, &c. from his Royal Highneſs's eſtabliſhment. His Royal Highneſs had ſo far extended his favors to this man, as to condeſcend to become ſponſor to one of his children, on which occaſion he prevailed on one of his royal ſiſters to ſtand with him. In conſequence Seillis became in ſome ſort an object of particular attention to all the branches of the Royal Family, from whom he and his children received many little preſents and marks of notice.

It has been aſcertained that Seillis ſlept for the laſt four nights in the room which he occupied when in waiting, although it was not his turn of duty, and his wife's apartments were contiguous. This deviation from his uſual practice having been mentioned to him, he excuſed himſelf by ſaying that ſome of the children were ill. He was ſeen in the Duke's bed room about eleven o'clock with ſome linen in his hand, although he had no buſineſs there, it not being, as we before obſerved, his turn to attend. In a cloſe in the room, there was alſo found a pair of ſlippers, which were known to be Seillis's, from which circumſtance it is inferred that he had conceaſed himſelf there for the purpoſe of effecting his horrid deſign.

No reaſon has been aſſigned ſufficient to account in the ſmalleſt degree for this accumulation of crime and ingratitude. It is ſaid that the deceaſed had been in a diſpute with one of his fellow ſervants, and it was left to the determination of His Royal Highneſs, who decided againſt him.

A humorous French writer, in deſcribing the peculiarities of the Engliſh, tells a ſtory of a man who was going down the Bird cage walk, in St. James's Park, to drown himſelf in the canal, but was ſtopped in his paſſage by the ſentinel, who refuſed to let him go on, though much entreated to do it. The other, enraged at his diſappointment, flew into a paſſion & exclaimed, that Engliſh liberty was loſt forever.

[London Paper.]

A dreadful gale of wind from the S. E. came on at Otſhosk, in Siberia, at the latter end of January, and which laſted for two days. The water of the Och ta, after paſſing through that city, empties into the ſea, was elevated twelve feet above its ordinary level, and carried over the tops of the houſes ſituated in the neighborhood of its banks.—The tempeſt coming on at night, between two and three hundred of the inhabitants periſhed in their ſleep. A tranſport belonging to the E. India Company, which the tempeſt had carried into the river, in 1808, was raiſed by the waves, and forced into the middle of the town. ibid.

We read in the Berne Gazette, that Guſtavus Adolphus IV. has refuſed the the annual penſion of 30.000 crowns which the States of Sweden had aſſigned him, and that this Prince will only enjoy his private revenue. He has requeſted it is ſaid, of Profeſſor Zeing, at Basle, to chooſe a Governor for his ſon.—ib.

PROPOSALS
BY NAHUM MOWER & CHARLES KENDALL,
FOR PRINTING AT KINGSTON, UPPER-CANADA,
A
WEEKLY NEWSPAPER, TO BE ENTITLED, THE
Kingston Gazette.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE advantages derived from well conducted newspapers are so various, and so well appreciated, that argument to prove their utility are deemed useless in this place. The want of such an establishment, in his part of Canada, must be generally acknowledged, so long as a large community continue to derive their information from abroad. To supply a deficiency so apparent, the editors advance to the present undertaking; and if gentlemen of intelligence and respectability, in different parts of the Province, form a correct estimate of the public sentiment, their paper will receive a liberal patronage, while conducted in a manner deserving support.

Avoiding, intentionally, a multiplicity of promises, the editors will merely give a sketch of their propofed course. It is intended that the KINGSTON GAZETTE shall be made the earliest possible vehicle of intelligence, both foreign and domestic. It will exhibit, from time to time, a Statement of Parliamentary proceedings, and internal regulations, as well as of the general concerns of the Province. The best information for the farmer, the merchant, and the mechanic, they will also endeavor to give. Various are the tastes to be consulted; and though none may find the KINGSTON GAZETTE wholly adapted to his own, it is hoped that every correct reader may find something which will gratify his palate. Gentlemen of science and leisure, the divine, the moralist, the poet and the politician, are each respectfully invited to enrich our columns with their respective gems, or with such occasional felections as may be most rare and interesting.

Should any thing further be required, it must be a flatement of the political bias of the editors—a fummary of which may be comprised in a few words:—Living under an enlightened government, mildly and generously administered, they will be the laft to abufe the privileges it affords them. Their loyalty will never be loud, but it may be depended on as hanest. If called on to fcan the conduct of their rulers, they will be firm but decorous—and as the English law allows a generous latitude to men of their profeffion, it fhall be their chief ftudy that the liberty they poffefs does not degenerate into licentiousneffa.

THE KING.

We are extremely happy, to ſay, His Majeſty enjoys excellent health, and looks well. He does not riſe quite ſo early as when he enjoyed good ſight; however, he is generally up about ſix o'clock, and proceeds directly after, with Colonel Taylor, to attend to the diſpatches from Miniſters and Publick Offices, which are brought every morning to Windſor by a Meſſenger, except when His Majeſty is in town.—A Corporal belonging to the company of which His Majeſty is Captain, in the Royal Horſe Guards (Blues,) attends him afterwards, to take his commands and report what is doing in the regiment. After this, His Majeſty joins the Company of the Queen, the Princeſes, the Royal Dukes who are at Windſor, and their attendants; they then proceed to a room in the Caſtle, ſet apart for a private chapel, where the morning Church ſervice is read by a Chaplain; afterwards the Royal Family breakfaſt together. Soon after ten o'clock, the King, and ſeveral of the Princeſſes, ride on horſeback, in Windſor Park, till twelve o'clock.

MR. WINDHAM.

The much lamented death of this accompliſhed ſcholar, orator, and ſtateſman, was announced in our paper of yeſterday. It is a moſt diſtreſſing recollection to his country and his friends, that his life has apparently been ſhortened by that quickneſs and vivacity of determination which governed all the actions of his life. We have ſtated, that in his efforts to ſave the valuable library of his friend Mr. North, he received a blow on the hip, which gave riſe to an indolent tumour. It was attended however, with no ſerious inconvenience to him, and ſcarcely accompanied with pain, but apprehending that it might be troubleſome, he conſulted all the moſt accompliſhed profeſſional men in town, and that ſeparately, on the queſtion of his ſuffering it to go on, or ſubmitting to an operation. Mr. Cline, Mr. Phillips, Mr. Wilſon, and others, advised againſt the operation. They concurred, though unknown to one another, in aſſuring him that there was no danger in avoiding the operation, but that there was much danger in undergoing it—that the knife was at all times to be uſed with awe, and never but where life was abſolutely at ſtake, or where the probable prolongation of life was to be made endurable by relief from pain. But other ſurgeons gave him an opinion, that the tumour might be ſafely cut out, and he inſtantly reſolved on the experiment. He would not even wait for any preparation of the ſyſtem. He had the beſt operator in London, ſelected, and the operation was done with the moſt perfect ſkill; no blame is imputed to the gentleman. But that which in the decline of life too often happens upon deep inciſions of the body, was ſoon perceivable—a morbid ichor appeared, followed by general inflammation, and ending in typhus fever, the fatality of which no power of medicine could baffle. He was ſenſible of his approaching diſſolution, and bore it with the moſt perfect equanimity. He made his will, and it is ſingular that ſeveral days ago he had the preſentiment that the anniverſary of the King's birth day would be his laſt. He has left no iſſue.

His hardy fortitude in ſubmitting to and enduring the painful operation that cauſed his death, was only to be equalled by his reſignation during his ſuffering ſince. In theſe times of peril and public calamity, the abſence of his talents and principles will truly be deplored by the whole nation. No man ſtood more high in the eſtimation of all parties for honor, honeſty, and patriotiſm, than Mr. Windham did; his enemies through life were only political ones, and their animoſities will be buried with him in the tomb, and not remembered in his epitaph.

The Engliſh and Portuguese in arms in Portugal are eſtimated at 100,000 men! But if correct, a great part of them are Portugueſe militia—and not of the beſt ſort.

Marſhal Maſſena, who now directs the operations of the invaders of Portugal it is ſtated will be created Viceroy of that Kingdom, in its conqueſt. This is probable—He already has the rank of Prince, and is a favorite of Bonaparte. He is eſteemed one of the firſt Generals of the age.

Every thing indicates the ſpeedy Conſolidation of Holland with the great Empire. The country is overrun with a ruffian feldiery, with orders to deſtroy every veſtige of Dutch Independence; and the trinket King which Napoleon ſat over them has been ordered again to repair to Paris, where a Senatus Conſultum will eaſily unking him, and leave no other duties than that of Conſtable of France.

The would be King of Spain, Joſeph, has issued a decree for calling the Courts, and has been making other arrangements in the kingdom, as if he really expected to enjoy the undiſturbed fee ſimple of it. But King Joſeph finds the oppoſition of his dear ſubjects no jo-king matter.

Revolution in Sweden.

LONDON, June 7.

An important piece of intelligence has been received from Sweden. The Crown Prince, the intended ſucceſſor to the Uſurper of the Throne of Guſtavus, is dead. He was reviewing ſome troops in the neighborhood of Helſingbog, when he ſuddenly fell from his horſe and expired. The Gottenburg papers attribute it to an apoplexy; the reports of private perſons aſſign poiſon as the cauſe, and that this was aſcertained on an examination of the body after his deceaſe. Men are apt to ſuppoſe than when Princes die ſuddenly, their deaths are occaſioned by violent means. We find, however, that the Crown Prince had been previouſly unwell, though the Stockholm Gazette of the 25th, four days before his deceaſe, ſtates that he had recovered from his indiſpoſition, and was able to continue his journey. Had poiſon been the cauſe, his death would have been more lingering. We ſhould not have found him able to review troops and ſit on horſeback only the moment before he died. His death has given great confidence to the party that eſpouſed the cauſe of the Son of Guſtavus, and a letter from a correſpondent mentions an inſurrection to have taken place in his favour at Stockholm.

The Theban, has been on a cruize alongth. French coaſt, and was off Boulogne when that place was viſited by the Emperor and Empreſs of France, a few days ſince, when a ſalute was fired from the batteries on the occaſion, at which time there were manoeuvering in the harbour about 20 brigs, two ſloops, ten luggers, and one ſhip bearing the Commodore's flag, and the Theban was within gun ſhot of the batteries, yet with this force they did not deem it fit to attack her.

BOSTON, July 28.

Laſt evening Capt. Vinal, in the Brig Enterprize, arrived here from Algizeras,

The French were in poſſeſſion of Malaga, the 13th June.

Capt. Vinal left Algeziras on the 19th June. On the 18th, 5000 Spaniſh troops under General Lacy, arrived there in Engliſh tranſports from Cadiz. Their object was ſaid to be an attack on the rear of the French invaders of Cadiz. Two privateers were ready for ſea at Malaga, and two others were fitting out.

We have accounts from Cadiz down to the 11th June. The Iſle continued to be defended with ſkill and vigor; & the fire of the French was returned with ſpirit. The allied defenders were not in want of any thing. No fears of the ſubjugation of the city for many months were entertained. The old Marſhal duke of Dantzic (Lefebre) commanded in front of Cadiz.

From Portugal—Our Glouceſter correſpondent yeſterday furniſhed us with Liſbon Gazettes to the 12th June. They do not ſtate any change of poſition in the hoſtile armies.——No battle had been fought; and the ſpirit as well as the diſcipline of the nation appeared increaſing. Ciudad Rodrigo was inveſted the 1ſt of June.

A letter from Portugal mentions, that to every regiment of the Britiſh, a battalion of Portugueſe has been added.

LATEST FROM PORTUGAL.

The brig Corporal Trim, Captain Elwell, arrived on Tuesday laſt, at Glouceſter, from Liſbon. She ſailed the 27th June. No new event had occurred; but a general engagement between the allied Engliſh and Portugueſe, and French armies, was ſtill daily expected. She arrived juſt as the mail was ſtarting, and no papers have been received in town. The Engliſh and Portugueſe troops occupy ſtations extending from the Douro to the Tagus. The whole line is under Lord Wellington, who alſo commands the centre; in which the main body of the Engliſh troops are poſted. The right is commanded by General Hill, whoſe flank extend to the Tagus, and who communicates with the Spaniſh Force, under the Marquis Romana, at Badajoz. Marſhal Beresford commands on the left, and is flanked by the Douro, and has under him the main force of the Portugueſe troops. A French account ſtated that Marſhal Ney had taken Cindad Rodrigo. But in a Liſbon paper of the 12th June, we find a copy of a diſpatch from the Spaniſh commander of that garriſon, to the Miſquis Romana, under date of the firſt June, which ſays, "according to all the advices which have been given me, it appears, that the enemy is preparing to carry on a formal ſiege of this place, which they are ſurrounding, for Marſhal Ney has been before the city ſince the day before yeſterday; and on the 28th all the troops from Salamanca, and adjoining places, marched with 30 pieces of heavy artillery for this place. We obſerve meovemnts in their camp, which indicate unuſal diſpoſitions; and they are making a line of circumvallation from one ſide of the river to the other. The only paſſage which remains open to us, is over the bridge of the fields of Arganham and Robledo. I have made the neceſſary arrangements to prepare this place for a ſiege, and ſreeing it of all uſeleſs mouths and cowards who might be detrimental. I truſt every thing will go well; and that we ſhall defend ourſelves becoming ſo juſt a cauſe, and the honour and patriotiſm by which we are animated."

The following is a more particular account of the ſituation of the reſpective armies:—

The Head Quarters of Sir Arthur Wellesley on the 10th June, was at Serolico, in the vicinity of Almeido; his force (wholly Britiſh) conſiſted of 16,000 men.

A diviſion of 1000 Engliſh, and 6000 Portugueſe, is poſted at Gavido, (on the South ſide of the Tagus) oppoſite the Abrantes, commanded by Maj. Gen. Hill.

Gen. Beresford's head quarters were at Vizeu, (in the province of Beira) his force, all Portugueſe, conſiſted of 24,000 foot and 4,000 horſe, Regulars and about 16,000 militia.

The French and combined armies on the 10th June, were about 6 leagues diſtant from each other, ſeparated by rivers and mountains.

The head quaters of Maſſena, three leagues diſtant from Cindad Rodrigo. The whole French army now on the frontiers of Portugal, is ſaid to conſiſt of between 70 and 80,000.

Maſſena, Gen. in chief. The other Generals are Loiſon, Junot. Ney and Regnier. The latter is above Badajoz with a diviſion of the Grand Army conſiſting of 12,000.

The day the Herachel put to ſea, part of the convoy of Britiſh tranſports, [with troops on board] arrived, the remainder were hourly expected.

[From tracing out the above poſitions on the map, it is evident that the time is approaching when a general attack will be made on the combined army, by the French; and ſuch is their ſuperiority of force, we cannot discover any proſpect to juſtify the former in hazarding an engagement.

LONDON, June 15.

Dutch papers arrived this morning to the 10th. They are not important. We hear of much activity in all the ports of which France has poſſeſſion.

Letters from France arrived yeſterday morning, by which it appears that Bonaparte has refuſed to grant any more Licences for the exportation of grain; but from what cauſe is not diſtinctly explained.

BOSTON, July 23.

Lateſt from Liſbon.—Capt Davis, of the General Johnſon, arrived here yeſterday from Liſbon, informs—That there had been ſeveral ſkirmiſhes between the outpoſts of the combined Engliſh & Portugueſe, and French armies, but no important battle had taken place though it was hourly expected. No apprehenſions were entertained that the French would get poſſeſſion of Liſbon.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 10

The Turks appear to recover from the ſtate of ſtupor in which they remained during former campaigns. BALTIMORE, July 25.

Capt. Fairchild of the ſchooner Caroline, arrived here yeſterday from Porto-Rico, reports that it was the intention of the Government of that Iſland to ſend off all the French Inhabitants as had been done at Cuba. Many of them were ſo well convinced of it, that they were making the beſt preparations they could to meet the cataſtrophe with the leaſt poſſible injury. A Spaniſh ſhip had arrived there from La Guayra, which had been ſeized and condemned by the government of the Iſland, which had declared the whole province of Caraccas in a ſtate of Rebellion.

HARWICH, June 6.

Civil Commotions in South America.

We learn from capt. ADMIRALTY OFFICE, LONDON, May 29.

Vice Admiral Sir James Saumarez has tranſmitted to John Wilſon Crooker, Eſquire, a letter he had received from Captain Reynolds of his Majeſty ſhip the Tribune, giving an account of his having, on the 12th inſtant, fallen in, off Mynda, on the coaſt of Norway, with four Danish brigs, two of 20 guns, one of 18, and one of 16, which, after ſevere action of two hours, made all poſſible ſail for the ſhore, and owing to the damages ſuſtained by the Tribune in her ſails, and the want of wind, eſcaped amongſt the rocks.

Eight men and one boy were killed on board the Tribune, and 13 men wounded. The loſs of the enemy is ſuppoſed to have been conſiderable.

Important Diſcovery.——The Rev. James Hall, has for ſeveral months paſt, been ſucceſsfully engaged in experiment, in procuring flax from broom. This is done by the following proceſs:—Steep the twigs, of the former year's branches, preferring the moſt vigorous ſhoots, for two or three weeks, more or leſs according to the heat of the ſeaſon in ſtagnant water, or boil them for an hour in water. This done the flax ſeparates from the twigs; and where there is no machinery for the purpoſe, it may eaſily be ſtripped off by children, or others, at any time when not quite dry; as hemp is pulled from the ſtalks.

What adds to the value of this diſcovery is, that not being cleared of the flax, and ſteeped ſome time in boiling water, the twigs, or wood, become tough and beautifully white, and are worth, at a medium, from a ſhilling to eighteen pence a pound, for making carpet brooms &c. When ſtripped from the twigs, the flax requires only to be well waſhed in cold water, then wrung and ſhaken well and hung out to dry, previous to its being ſent off to the paper manufacturer, &c. Profeſſor Davy has bleached ſome of it, Mr. Hall, who has alſo ſent it ſpun. The ſame gentlemen alſo obſerves, that the fibres of all kinds of mallows are particularly beautiful, eſpecially the malva-ſylveſtris. They are finer than Camel's hair, which they ſomewhat reſemble, and there is difficulty in procuring them.—Lon. Pap.

THE STAR OF TORONTO.

O deep was the gloom that our senses o'ershaded,
Like the darkness of night, not the brilliance of day;
Dear Gaiety drooping with care, and with sorrow,
For the STAR of TORONTO was far, far away.

But awake all you sounds sweetest rapture inspiring,
And Ennui give place to the throbs of delight;
See around us how quickly the gloom is dispersing,
For the STAR of TORONTO now beams on our sight.

PROPOSALS
BY NAHUM MOWER & CHARLES KENDALL,
FOR PRINTING AT KINGSTON, UPPER-CANADA,
A
WEEKLY NEWSPAPER, TO BE ENTITLED, THE
Kingston Gazette.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE advantages derived from well conducted newspapers are so various, and so well appreciated, that arguments to prove their utility are deemed useless in this place. The want of such an establishment, in this part of Canada, must be generally acknowledged, so long as a large community continue to derive their information from abroad. To supply a deficiency so apparent, the editors advance to the present undertaking; and if gentlemen of intelligence and respectability, in different parts of the Province, form a correct estimate of the public sentiment, their paper will receive a liberal patronage, while conducted in a manner deserving support.

Avoiding, intentionally, a multiplicity of promises, the editors will merely give a sketch of their proposed course. It is intended that the KINGSTON GAZETTE shall be made the earliest possible vehicle of intelligence, both foreign and domestic. It will exhibit, from time to time, a statement of Parliamentary proceedings, and internal regulations, as well as of the general concerns of the Province. The best information for the farmer, the merchant, and the mechanic, they will also endeavor to give. Various are the tastes to be consulted; and though none may find the KINGSTON GAZETTE wholly adapted to his own, it is hoped that every correct reader may find something which will gratify his palate. Gentlemen of science and letters, the divine, the moralist, the poet and the politician, are each respectfully invited to enrich our columns with their respective gems, or with such occasional selections as may be most rare and interesting.

Should any thing further be required, it must be a statement of the political bias of the editors—a summary of which may be compiled in a few words:—Living under an enlightened government, mildly and generously administered, they will be the last to abuse the privileges it affords them. Their loyalty will never be found, but it may be depended on as honest. It called on to scan the conduct of their rulers, they will be firm but decorous—and as the English law allows a generous latitude to men of their profession, it shall be their chief study that the liberty they possess does not degenerate into licentiousness.

June 20, 1810. MOWER & KENDALL.

CONDITIONS.

A gentleman who has juft arrived from Paris informs us, that the new Empreſs of France having fignified a wifh that her unfortunate predeceſſor in the affections of Bonaparte fhould not retain the fame imperial title fhe had herſelf received. Napoleon, with one hand, erafed from the Regiſter the rank ascribed to the repudiated Empreſs, and degraded her to the ſtation of a Princeſs of one of the ſtates of Italy, to which ſhe is now ordered to retire.

PROROGATION OF PARLIAMENT.

The buſineſs of Parliament was yeſterday finiſhed, and this day the Prorogation took place. The Commiſſioners appointed by his Majeſty for this purpoſe were the Lord Chancellor, the Earl of Liverpool, and Lord Walſingham. The following is a correct Analyſis of his Majeſty's Speech as delivered by his Commiſſioners, to both houſes of Parliament:

His Majeſty ſtates, that, the buſineſs of the Seſſion being concluded, he has thought proper to bring it to a cloſe. His Majeſty then congratulates both houſes upon the capture of Gaudaloupe, an event which for the firſt time in the Hiſtory of Great Britain, has deprived France of the laſt of her poſſeſſions in the Weſt-Indies; and alſo upon the ſubſequent capture of the Dutch poſſeſſions in the ſame quarter of the globe—acquiſitions which muſt inevitably deprive the enemy of all further means of annoyance to our daily extending commerce.

In the Speech to the Houſe of Commons his Majeſty thanks them for the ſupplies which they have ſo liberally granted for the ſervice of the year; and while he regrets the continuance of the arduous ſtruggle in which we are engaged, he congratulates the country on the daily increaſe of our reſources, and revenues, from the unprecedented extention of our commerce to all parts of the world—a circumſtance which happily renders the impoſition of new burdens of freſh taxation wholly unneceſſary.

His Majeſty next alludes to the modifications and regulations, reſpecting the revenues of Ireland, as having relieved that country from the preſſure of many burdens, without loſing ſight of a due regard to the neceſſary receipts from taxation.

His Majeſty thanks the Houſe of Commons for their liberal proviſion made for the Duke of Brunswick.

His Majeſty next congratulates both houſes of Parliament that Portugal has been reſcued from the graſp of the enemy by the ſtrenuous efforts of his Majeſty's army, aided by the exertions of the Portuguese nation—and that Spain, notwithſtanding the many reverſes of fortune ſhe has experienced, ſtill maintains her reſiſtance to the invader with an unabated ſpirit of zeal and perſeverance.

His Majeſty then aſſured both houſes of Parliament, that he deems it equally to the honor of his crown and the intereſts of his kingdom, to continue his firm and unshaken ſupport to both theſe loyal nations.

His Majeſty concludes by recommending the members of both Houſes of Parliament to exert themſelves, during the enſuing receſs, in their reſpective counties, in propagating a ſpirit of unanimity and concord, with obedience to order and the laws, as the only means of enabling his majeſty to give effect to his exertions in the continuance of the arduous ſtruggle in which we are engaged; and while his Majeſty thus exhorts both houſes of Parliament, he aſſures them that his conduct will ever be regulated by theſe dictates—a line of conduct wich his Majeſty's long reign, and the general loyalty of his ſubjects has convinced him, is beſt suited to meet the foreign enemy with effect.

Baltimore, Auguſt 2.

LATEST FROM SPAIN.

Capt. Luce arrived this morning from Corunna, (N. W. of Spain) ſays the report at Corunna when he failed, June 29, was; that the combined armies of Britiſh, Spaniſh, and Portuguese on the frontiers of Portugal, were 150,000 ſtrong and the French about 70,000; that Maſſena was waiting for reinforcements; which were on their march, that when they came up he would attack the allies.

The Engliſh had ſeveral times attempted to bring the French army to an engagement—but could not effect it, as the French continually retired. The allies would not purſue Maſſena, apprehending an ambuscade. The French army is reported to be very ſickly, and their lines frequently weakened by deſertion—the German and Dutch particularly desert from the french. Several of them came into Corunna, and were ſeen by captain Luce.

Salt could not be had at the Iſle of May for ſome time, on account of the loſs of their mules, &c. as before reported.

New York, Auguſt 8.

On Tueſday laſt, arrived at Providence, the ſhip Mary-Ann, cap. Ruſſel, in 38 days from Cadiz.—He left there on the 24th June, and informs, that the garriſon were in high ſpirits, and entertained no fear of the French being able to reduce the place. The garriſon conſiſted of 30,000 troops, of which 13,000 were Britiſh. Almoſt conſtant cannonade was kept up between the French in fort Matagorda, and the Engliſh and Spaniſh gun boats, and forts of the Iſland of Leon. The French were unable by their ſhot to injure the city. A few days before the departure of the Mary-Ann, an expedition conſiſting of 5000 Spaniſh troops, ſailed, ſuppoſed for Algeſiras. Flour was 20 dollars, at which price ſeveral cargoes had been ſold."

A letter from Alicant dated May 3, ſays—"It appears that the French have not forces in this country ſufficient to make the conqueſt and ſecure it." "The French Army in Granada and Andaluſia which came down on Murcia a few days ſince retired back to Grenada, after having accomplished their object of pillaging the place. We are perfectly quiet."

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in New-Haven, to his friend in Auguſta, Georgia, dated June 13th.

"I went yeſterday with Governor Strong of Maſſachuſetts, to viſit Whitney's GUN FACTORY near this place. It is ſituated on Eaſt River, at the foot of a mountain, and all its machinery is in the firſt inſtance, moved by two large wheels, the barrels are wedded in a furnace—ground by grindſtones—and bored with an iron screw augur, with as much facility as you would bore a pine board. Bayonets are turned, as the turner would make the round of a chair; and then ground into its proper ſhape with chiſſels.——Screws and locks are made with great eaſe, and (which is a great improvement) ſo conſtructed as to fit any gun whatever.——There is an axe, which being moved by a wheel, will cut the largeſt piece of iron.—Ram rods are turned as you would turn a rule. It is curious to ſee the whole machine ſet into operation by one wheel—and although one band carries them all, yet it is ſo happy contrived that one workman may ſtop his part of the machine without any interruption to the reſt; ſix guns are made in one day.

This is, I think, the moſt important eſtabliſhment of which our country can boaſt.—Mr. Whitney deſerves great credit, as every part of the machine was his own invention, and it was three years before he had compleated it."

Previous to the ſailing of the Pedlar from Palermo, a Britiſh frigate arrived there to convoy one of the Bourbon family to Spain.——[Probably the Duke of Orleans, who married a daughter of the King of Sicily, who is now in the way Napoleon wiſhes his wife.——The Duke of Angouleme, who married the daughter of the King of France, was recently on the point of leaving England for Spain, but was deterred by the requeſt of the Government.—It is probable the Spaniſh Regency conceive that the preſence of one of the Bourbon family will inſpire the people with additional confidence and enthuſiaſm; or it may be intended to declare him ſole Regent.]

Extract of a letter from a gentleman of this town, dated Smyrna, Feb. 16, 1810.

"About midnight I experienced a conſiderable ſhock of an earthquake, and while at dinner next day the ſhock was twice repeated. I have ſince learned that the ſame earthquake was felt, in all its terrific force, in the Iſland of Candia, (the ancient Crete)—That the greater part of the city of Candia, and of its fortifications, are entirely deſtroyed, and a deſtructive fire raging at the ſame time, added to the miſeries of the wretched inhabitants—that eight villages in the neighborhood of Candia are but heaps of rubbiſh, and many thouſand people buried in the ruins of their own dwellings, drowned in the ruin of water, or periſhed by the fire, for it ſeems as if all the elemens had conſpired in vengeance againſt this unhappy Iſland. The olive fields, are deſtroyed and the moſt luxuriant part of this beautiful Iſland exhibits at preſent but one wide waſte of ruin, diveſtation and death. The earthquake has been (as letters are received mention) felt in Cairo, Alexandria, Malta, Sicily and in all the Iſlands of the Archepilago, in many of which it has thrown down houſes, and done other damage."

We learn by the Portugueſe brig from St. Michaels, that, on the 24th of June, a ſmall village 21 miles from St. Michaels, called Cozas, was ſunk by an Earthquake, in which many families were ſwallowed up. Thoſe who escaped, fled to St. Michaels, where the ſhock was ſenſibly felt. Where the village ſtood there was nothing to be ſeen but water, which was agitated as if boiling. The inhabitants in the vicinity of Cozas fled to the mountains, being apprehenſive of another ſhock.—N. Y. Gaz.

Foote being at table next to a gentleman who had helped himſelf to a very large piece of bread; after he had taken a mouthful or two, Foote took up his bread, and cut a piece off. "Sir," ſaid the gentleman, "that is my bread." "I beg a thouſand pardons, ſir," ſaid Foote, "I proteſt I took it to be the loaf!"

The Triumph's boats, after the late hurricane at Cadiz, picked up near 700 boxes of quickſilver, which, for the purpoſe of being taken care of, were ſtowed in the different ſtate rooms and the hold; but the heat having cauſed the boxes to crack, ſeveral tuns of the ſublime fluid ran through the ſhip, and completely ſalivated the people; upwards of 300 of them were ſhifted into transports; ſeveral of them have loſt all their teeth—one man his tongue; and many others affected in ſo ſerious a manner, that it is feared they cannot recover.—The proviſions alſo partook of the pernicious influence of the quickſilver; and the Triumph is ordered to Gibraltar, to be cleared immediately.—London Paper.

CAUTION.

A family conſiſting of the father, mother and daughter, died laſt October, in the commune of Portels, from eating champignons, (muſhrooms) which they purchaſed from an old woman, who was in the habit of collecting them for ſale.

The old woman herſelf, though ſhe had eaten a quantity of the ſame kind of Champignons at ſeveral meals, experienced no diſagreeable conſequences. It was found, upon enquiry, that ſhe was intoxicated with four wine at all her meals, and the effect of vegetable acids in counteracting narcotic poiſon is known.—Both the perſons who died and the inhabitants of the place where they lived, aſſured the medical attendants that they had uſed the ſame ſpecies of muſhroom for food in former ſeaſons without any bad effects. The French naturaliſts ſuggeſt, that they might have contracted their deleterious properties from the ſtate of the atmoſphere. —Paris Paper.

Idleneſs.—Biſhop Taylor once told a lady of his acquaintance, who was negleCtful of her ſon's education, "Madame, if you do not chooſe to fill your boy's head with ſomething, believe me, the devil will."—The Spaniſh proverb has it—"the devil tempts every man, but an idle man poſitively tempts the devil."

It is a curious fact, that the remains of Lord Collingwood are depoſited in the very ſtone coffin which Cardinal Wolſey had prepared for himſelf.—It had remained, as lumber, in a room adjoining St. George's Chappel, Windſor, and for this laſt purpoſe, was given as a preſent by his Majeſty.—Lon. Pap.

From a Swediſh Paper.

A circumſtance has recently taken place at Fahlun, the capitol of Dalecarlia, in Sweden, which might figure with advantage in a novel. In working to eſtabliſh a new communication between two ſhafts of a mine, the body of a miner was diſcovered in a ſtate of perfect preſervation, & impregnated with vitriolick water. This body was quite ſoft but hardened on being expoſed to air. No one could identify the individual; it was only recollected that the accident by which he had been thus buried in the boſom of the earth had taken place fifty years ago. All inquiries as to the name of the ſufferer had already ceaſed, when a decrepid old woman leaning on crutches, ſlowly advanced towards the corps and knew it to be that of a young man, to whom ſhe had been promiſed in marriage, half a century ago. She threw herſelf on the body, which had the appearance of a bronze ſtatue; bathed it with her tears, and fainted with joy at having once more beheld the object of her affection on this ſide the grave. It is eaſier to conceive than to trace the ſingular contraſt offered by this couple; the one buried fifty years ago, ſtill anſwering all the appearances of youth, while the other, weighed down by age, evinced all the fervency of youthful love.

MISCELLANY.

COFFEE:—This fruit is a native of Arabia, and is ſuppoſed to have been the chief ingredient of the old Lacedemonian broth. The uſe of this berry was not known in England till the year 1657; at which time Mr. Daniel Edwards, a Turkey merchant, on his return from Smyrna to London, brought with him one Paſque Roſe, a Greek of Ragusa who was uſed to prepare this liquor for his Maſter every morning. The merchant, in order to get rid of a crowd of viſitants that this pleaſant beverage brought him, ordered his Greek to open a coffee houſe, which he did in St. Michael's Alley, in Cornhill, which was the firſt coffee houſe erected in London.

CROSS-WISE MARK:—In a former age of popiſh ignorance, when very few, comparatively, of the people of Europe could write their names, it was ordained that the illiterate when required to ſign or witneſs any written inſtrument, ſhould make the figure of a Croſs upon parchment or paper, as an avowal of their being chriſtians. Hence to the preſent day, thoſe who make their mark inſtead of writing their name, uſually draw two lines croſſwiſe, after that old popiſh cuſtom.—Not ſo harmleſs was the ſuperſtition of deciding cauſes by a mode of trial, called the judgement of the Croſs, which prevailed in Europe, ſeveral centuries ago. In that kind of trial we are told that the perſon accuſed of a crime, was to remain with his arms extended before a croſs for five or ſix hours, without motion. If he failed in ſuſtaining this trial, he loſt his cauſe, and was judged guilty.

FETICHE:—This remarkable ſnake which is made an object of religious worſhip, in Whydah, a kingdom of Africa, has a large, round, beautiful head, a ſhort pointed tongue, reſembling a dart, and a ſharp, ſhort tail. It is ſlow and ſolemn in pace, except when it ſeizes on its prey, when it is quick and rapid. It is tame and familiar; the natives and Europeans handling and playing with them, without dread or apprehenſion of danger. When the Engliſh firſt ſettled in Whydah, a ſailor juſt arrived, found one of theſe ſnakes in the magazine belonging to the factory, and killing it, threw it on the bank. The negroes, filled with rage and terror at the murdering of one of their gods, aſſembled all the inhabitants of the Province, and maſſacred the factors to a man; conſuming their bodies and goods in the fire they had ſet to their warehouſe.

FINGER OFFERING:—When the people of the Friendly Iſlands (in the Pacific Ocean) are afflicted with any dangerous diſorder which they apprehend may bring them to the grave, they cut off the little finger, ſuppoſing that it would be accepted as a kind of propitiatory ſacrifice ſufficiently efficacious to procure their recovery. There is ſcarcely one to ten among them who is not thus mutilated, in one hand or the other; and many have made an oblation of both their little fingers.

FIRE-SPOUTS:—Torrents of liquid fire have ſometimes burſt from the earth and overwhelmed the adjacent country, in a manner ſomewhat different from the common eruptions of volcanoes; and are called Fire Spouts. In 1783, three of them broke out in Iceland, in the province of Shapterfall. Signs of the eruptions were perceived on the firſt of June; the earth beginning to tremble, and a continual ſmoke or ſteam riſing from it. On the eighth of june the fire became viſible, and the atmoſphere was filled with ſand, brimſtone and aſhes, in ſuch a manner as to occaſion continual darkneſs. The 3 different fire ſpouts, in a ſhort time united into one, and rolled its billows of flame to high as to be ſeen at the diſtance of more than two hundred miles; the whole country for double that diſtance, being covered with a ſmoke or ſteam not to be deſcribed. The torrent of fire took its Courſe firſt down, and then up the channel of the river Skepta, and entirely conſumed or dried up its waters: at laſt coming to the hill, in which the river had its ſource, the fiery deluge roſe to a prodigious height, and overflowed the village of Buland, which was ſituated upon the top of the hill; conſuming the houſes, church, and every thing that ſtood in its way. It ſtill increaſed, ſpreading out in length and breadth for many miles, drying up other rivers beſides the Skepta, overflowing a number of villages, and converting a large tract of country into a ſea of fire. It continued its dreadful progreſs in different directions, till the thirteenth of Auguſt; after which the fiery lake no longer ſpread itſelf, but never-theleſs continued to burn for ſome length of time. The ſmoke reached as far as the Iſland of Great Britain, where, during the whole ſummer of 1783, an obſcurity prevailed throughout all parts of that Iſland; the atmoſphere appearing to be covered with a continual haze, which prevented the ſun from appearing with his uſual ſplendour.

When a motion was once made in the Houſe of Commons reſpecting the failure of the expedition againſt Holland, there was a talk of Mr. Dundas going out of office in conſequence. A converſation on this ſubject took place in the gallery of the Houſe, when one gentleman aſked another—Did you ever know a Scotchman quit his place? Yes, replied the wag, his native place. Rep.

PROPOSALS

BY NAHUM MOWER & CHARLES KENDALL,

FOR

PRINTING AT KINGSTON, UPPER-CANADA,

A

WEEKLY NEWSPAPER,

TO BE ENTITLED, THE

Kingston Gazette.

TO THE PUBLIC.

THE advantages derived from well conducted newspapers are so various, and so well appreciated, that arguments to prove their utility are deemed useless in this place. The want of Such an establishment, in this part of Canada, must be generally acknowledged, so long as a large community continue to derive their information from abroad. To supply a deficiency so apparent, the editors advance to the present undertaking; and if gentlemen of intelligence and respectability, in different parts of the province, form a correct estimate of the public sentiment, they paper will receive a liberal patronage, while conducted in a manner deserving support.

Avoiding, intentionally, a multiplicity of promises, the editors will merely give a sketch of their proposed course. It is intended that the KINGSTON GAZETTE shall be made the earliest possible vehicle of intelligence, both foreign and domestic. It will exhibit, from time to time, a statement of Parliamentary proceedings, and internal regulations, as well as of the general concerns of the Province. The best information for the farmer, the merchant, and the mechanic, they will also endeavor to give. Various are the tastes to be consulted; and though none may find the KINGSTON GAZETTE wholly adapted to his own, it is hoped that every correct reader may find something which will gratify his palate. Gentlemen of science and leisure, the divine, the moralist, the poet and the politician, are each respectfully invited to enrich our columns with the respective part with which occasional selections as may be most rare and interesting.

Should any thing further be required, it must be a statement of the political bias of the editors—a Summary of which may be compriled in a few words:—Having under an enlightened government, mildly and generously administered, they will be the last to abuse the privileges it affords them. Their loyalty will never be loud, but it may be depended on as honest. If called on to scan the conduct of their rulers, they will be firm but decorous—and as the English law allows a generous latitude to men of their profession, it shall be their chief study that the liberty they possess does not degenerate into licentiousness.

June 20, 1810. MOWER & KENDALL.

CONDITIONS.

Capt. Larcom's Narrative.—The Melancholy Catastrophe of the ship Margaret, which has brought an untimely death upon fo many of our friends, has ftrongly excited the fympathy of the public. From the common fate of the fhip's company, a confiderable number efcaped in the long boat foon after the diſaſter, and were fortunate enough to reach their native fhore. Captain Fairchild and others, who had thus returned, publifhed their account of the critical ſituation in which they left the wreck, which placed the friends of the unhappy ſufferers in agonizing ſuſpence as to the event—but ſtill, with conſiderable hopes from the ſoundneſs of the fhip, and the bouyant nature of her cargo. A ſmall portion, after ſharing for 17 days the dreadful ſufferings of the reſt of the crew, took the desperate chance to commit themſelves to the mercy of the ocean in the ſmall boat; by an almoſt miraculous preſervation, three out of the five arrived to land on Saturday, the 21ſt of July, and by their account, nearly extinguiſhed all hope reſpecting the remainder.—We gave our readers at the time ſuch particulars as we were able to obtain on the ſubject. We are now requeſted to publiſh the following more minute account, which being given under the hand of Captain Larcom himſelf, one of the fortunate ſurvivors, will be received with greater intereſt by the public.—Salem Gaz.

On the 10th of April, ſailed from Naples the ſhip Margaret, of Salem, with 46 ſouls on board, viz. 31 paſſengers, and 15 the crew of ſaid ſhip. Paſſed through the Gut of Gibraltar on the 22d April; nothing material occurred until the 20th of May, when being in latitude 40, N. and long. 39, 30, W. having ſtrong breezes at S. E. and E. S. E. and rainy weather. At 11, A. M. took in top-gallant ſteering ſails, and fore and mizen top-gallant ſails, jib and light ſtay ſail mainſail. At 1, P. M. 21ſt, fore top-maſt ſteering ſail haulyards parted and all hands were called to haul in the ſteering ſail, and take in ſail; but owing to the top maſt ſteering ſail being carried away, it carried away the top-maſt ſteering ſail boom, which brought both ſteering ſails into the water, and both were loſt. All hands employed taking in ſail, one man was on the main royal yard, furling the royal, and three on the main top gallant yards, and one in the main top, the reſt employed in clewing down the top-ſails, but finding the ſquall come on ſo heavy, were obliged to let fly the top ſail ſheets, the helm at the ſame time being hove hard to windward, with the wind on her larboard quarter—the came too againſt her helm, and when the wind got a beam ſhe began to capsize, and as ſoon as ſhe got her gun wale to the water, in an inſtant capsized, with her maſts and ſails in the water; one man was on the main royal yard, and three on the main top gallant yard, and four or five in the fore caſtle, unwell, and one in the cabin, who ſaid when he came out of the cabin the water was rushing down in ſheets as large as the companion way would admit, notwithſtanding, they all got on the ſhip's ſide. After cutting away the lanyards with our knives, we at length procured an axe, and cut away the maſts, and got a rope from the fore and mizen chains; all the hands then got hold of the rope, and (going as near the keel as poſſible,) by this means righted her, and found her full of water, her hatches, cabin doors and windows being open; at the ſame time the long boat and pinnace, and ſeveral water caſks, were drifting among the ſpars to windward; we then hove over the guns, anchors, &c. to lighten the ſhip, and endeavored to clear the wreck of the ſpars, rigging, &c. which lay beating againſt her; but our efforts were in vain as the ſtarboard lanyards were ſo deep under water that we could not come at them; three men then got into the ſmall boat (which was very badly ſtove,) who endeavored to tow the long boat out from among the ſpars; at the ſame time there were three men on the bottom of the long boat and on the ſpars, endeavoring to cut a paſſage for her, and in about two hours got the long boat along ſide of the wreck, and righted her, but found the pinnace in her ſo badly ſtove that it was impoſſible to repair her. The long boat had one of her buts ſtatted, and a hole in her bottom, on which account we were obliged to turn her bottom up again to drive the but to, and ſtop the hole. Mr. Samuel Crafts, of Derby, in Connecticut, ſtripped himſelf of his jacket and trowlers, and got on the bottom of the boat, and drove the but to, and ſtopped the hole in her bottom by nailing canvas and ſheet lead over it, which we got from the ſtern; we then righted her, and three men jumped into the boat to bale her out, which they effected in about fifteen minutes; eight more then jumped into the boat, and ſhoved off, for the purpoſe, as I then ſuppoſed of repairing her. Myſelf, with the aſſiſtance of ſome others, got the guard irons and waiſte cloths, and ſome pine boards, and all the tools and nails I could procure, and paſſed them into the ſmall boat to ſend to the long boat which was lying at about 20 or 30 fathoms diſtance, ſtill thinking they would lie by us.—Juſt before night, as the yawl was lying along ſide, taking in tools, nails &c. Mr. Barney who was ſetting on the tafferil, got into her, and went to the long boat.—About 12 o'clock at night they hailed us from the boat, and requeſted me to ſend them a cheſt and a cask of ſweet oil, which was made faſt on the ſtern, which I complied with. From that time to the morning they frequently told us to de ſiſt from hauling in the boat, or they ſhould be obliged to cut the painter; there was however, no one near the rope, nor was there any attempt made during the night to haul her up. The nex forenoon, the weather being moderate, three men were employed in the yawl, in procuring from the ſpars, a ſail, rigging, ſpars and oars for the long boat. About 12 o'clock as I was taking an obſervation, they obſerved to me, that as I had two quadrants and two compaſſes, I could ſpare them one of each.—I told them that if they would come under the ſtern I would give them one; but they declined doing that, and requeſted me to make them faſt on a board and veer it aſtern, which I refuſed to do. This was the firſt idea I had of their leaving us. I refuſed them the quadrant and compaſs on the idea that they would not leave us without them; but immediately on my refuſing them, they ſtept their maſt, and bent their ſail, and were all ready to get under way. Finding their intention was to leave us, ſeveral of the people on the wreck intreated them for God's ſake to come along ſide, and take ſome more in before they left them.—They refuſed to do this. Thoſe on the wreck requeſted them to come a little nearer, as they might ſend ſome word to their friends if the boat ever got home. They refuſed even to do this, and immediately hoiſted their ſail. Upon ſeeing this there was 3 or 4 jumped into the ſea, and ſwam towards the long boat, among whom was Mr. Crafts abovementioned who repaired the bottom of the boat at the riſk of his own life: they immediately cut the painter, and the two men in the yaul immediately jumped out of her into the long boat, and ſet her drift; at the ſame time ſome one on board the long boat held up a knife in a threatening manner, probably to make thoſe in the water underſtand, that they would keep them off at any rate: they then returned with the exception of one man who ſwam to the yaul, which was drifting to leeward, and with much difficulty got on board of her, and found one oar in the water along ſide: he then ſculled for the long boat, which was at that time ſailing very ſlow, and at the diſtance of nearly a mile from the wreck, apparently gaining upon them, when they manned their oars and pulled away from him; on which he returned to the wreck after being abſent about two hours.

Since my arrival captain Graves of Newbury port has ſtated to me that it was with great difficulty he got on board of the long boat from the yaul, ſeveral of them being oppoſed to it, although he had been very induſtriouſly employed in getting her from among the ſpars, &c. and in procuring articles for repairing her—he likewiſe ſtated to me that "had they known they ſhould have been picked up in 4 or 5 days, they might have taken ten more." It is my ſincere opinion, that when the boat left us, far from being incapable of holding more, ſhe required at leaſt one ton weight to put her in good trim. Although I never requeſted them to come along ſide to take more in, yet I ſtill wiſhed them to keep by us, in hopes that if we ſhould be fortunate to ſee any ſail the long boat might forelay them, and by that means preſerve the whole of us; and had they but ſtaid by us but two days longer, we ſhould in all probability have all been ſaved as on that day a large ſhip paſſed ſo near the wreck that we ſaw her hull; and the yaul, ſhattered as ſhe was, was dispatched to board her, but being ſmall, and a heavy ſea running, it was impoſſible to make much progreſs; they however got near enough to ſee the people on deck. To ſhow that it was the opinion of many if not all on the wreck, that the boat ought to have ſtaid with them, I merely mention that at the time of the boat's leaving the wreck, there were ſeveral young gentlemen who told them "they hoped ſome of them might get home from the wreck, to expoſe their vile conduct."

Left the wreck in the long boat, about 24 hours after the capsized, viz. William Fairfield, Robert Peele, Edward Richardson, and John Hayman, of ſhip Margaret; Alexander Thompson, Nahum Warren, William Graves, John Peck, Louis Barney, Z. Kemp, Joſhua Stafford, John Tyler, Rufus Wilkins, Jacob Schultz, and Alexander M'Kenzie.

After the departure of the long boat (Monday May 21) we immediately hoiſted a ſignal, by lathing one of the royal maſts to the ſtump of the mainmaſt, and hoiſted a cabin quilt about 30 feet above the deck. We then erected a ſtage by laying ſpars across the quarter rails, and laid a ſail on the ſpars, on which we were tolerably comfortably ſituated. all hands at the ſame time employed in ſecuring proviſions. On the 24th we caught a turtle, and we found in a cheſt a box of tinder, which being quite wet, we dried it in the ſun, and got fire; took the bell of the ſhip, and made fire in it, and with a baking pan cooked a good meſs of ſoup for 31 perſons.—We burnt ſome freſh tinder, and kept it dry as we could, but never could get fire afterwards.

In the courſe of ſix days we had ſecured 3 caſks of water, one barrel of wine, ſalt pork and beef, hams, potatoes, corn, bread, &c. ſufficient to have laſted us two or three months—and had the long boat been by us, we might have ſecured a great quantity in her: but unfortunately for us, on the 3d of June came on a heavy gale of wind, and in the courſe of the night the ſpars which lay along ſide (a heavy ſea running at the ſame time) beat away all the upper works, and at the ſame time our ſtaging went, and we loſt all the proviſions, excepting a little ſalt meat and about 3 gallons of wine; but if at this time we had the tools which the long boat took from us, eſpecially the broad axe, we might have been able to diſincumber the wreck of the ſpars, which undoubtedly cauſed the miſfortune of the upper deck's going.—In the forepart of the night there were 4 men in the yawl; but it blowing freſh, and the boat making ſo much water, two of the four were obliged to get out on the ſtaging, leaving two to ſteer and bale. In the morning it being a little more moderate, myſelf and two others took the yawl, and were employed in the forepart of the day in getting the people from the quarter deck to the bowſprit; directly after the quarter deck floated off, with the ſtump of the mizen maſt with it.

During the week our proviſions laſted, the company unanimouſly choſe captain Janvrin and myſelf to take charge of the proviſion, and deal it out as we thought proper.——I would likewiſe obſerve, that during the time I was with them, captain Janvrin prayed publicly before the company, and many of them ſeemed to pay great attention, eſpecially Meſſrs. Carpenter, Crafts and Price.

On the 30th, being pleaſant, myſelf with 4 others were employed in procuring ſpars and ſails to make a ſtage on the forecaſtle, which was done by laying the ſpars from the belfry on each ſide of the ſtump of the foremaſt to the bows of the ſhip, which made a tolerable ſtage for the whole company, and on which they were quite dry.

Nothing material happened till the 3d of June, when Green and Perry, of Salem died, overcome by fatigue and reduced by famine.—Our wine at this time being gone, and having but a wine glaſs of vinegar for each man, during every 24 hours, and not having had any water ſince the 28th of May, it being a calm day (on the 4th of June) we went to work to get a pipe of brandy, which we effected about mid-day, when many of the people, having previouſly drank much ſalt water, which had increaſed their ſufferings to a great degree inadvertently took brandy to quench their raging thirſt. The next day the following perſons died, viz. George E. A. Carpenter, clerk of the ſhip Hercules, of Salem; George Prince, clerk of brig Romp, Salem; John Brown, ſeaman of the ſhip Trent, Boſton; Iſaac Choate, cook of ſchr. Siren; Maybury Orion, of ſchr. Kite, Baltimore; John Jones, of do.; Henry Gill, ad mate, John Brackley, apprentice of ſchr. Urania, N. York; Samuel Crafts mate of ſchr. Ouſatonick, Derby Connecticut; Geo. Cogswell, of ſchr. Peace, Newburyport; Daniel Cahill, of the Margaret: Louis Joſias, apprentice of Capt. Fairfield; Hanlon Wilſon, cook of the Margaret; George Jones, ſhipped at Naples. Twenty four hours after this, Stephen Valpy, ſeaman of the Margaret, died.

On the 6th June the whole of the upper deck had gone, and every thing that was between decks had floated out, leaving us without any ſubſiſtence, excepting ſome pork and beef, which it was impoſſible to eat for want of water.

On the 7th June, finding we could be of no uſe to thoſe on the wreck, and having nothing but brandy to ſubſiſt on, being then in latitude 39, 12, N. and thinking that too far ſouth for the tract of Europeans, we tho't it beſt to endeavor to ſtretch to the Northward.—The morni g we left the wreck we went under the bowſprit and joined in prayer with Capt. Janvrin for our deliverance. At 10 we bade them a final adieu, having about 3 1 2 gallons of brandy and a little pork, leaving on the wreck the following perſons, viz.—Henry Tucker, ſupercargo of ſhip Francis, of Salem; Capt. Janvrin, maſter of ſchr. Syren, Newburyport; Benjamin Peele, ſeaman of the brig Victory, Salem; John Merrill, ſeaman of ſchr. Peace, Newburyport; Edmund Wingate, ditto; Nathaniel Sheffield of ſchr. Ouſatanack, Derby Conn.; Jacob Fowler, of brig Two Betſies, Beverly; Jas. Sinclair, of ſchr. Kite, Baltimore; Alexander Marſhal, brig Nancy-Ann, Newburyport; William Burrell, of ſchr. Syden, do.—When the yawl left the wreck, we had no ſuſtenance excepting the brandy, of which we took a gill in the courſe of twenty four hours, being obliged to drink our own urine to allay our thirſt. On the night of the 22d June, we had a conſiderable rain, and we caught water enough, by holding our handkerchiefs up and wringing them, to quench our thirſt partially, and to ſave two quarts. On the 23d. Treadwell overcome with fatigue, hunger & thirſt, breathed his laſt without a groan. On the ſame day we obſerved a number of ruder ſith around the boat, and making a dip net out of an hoop and ſome twine, caught plenty, and after drying them, we ate ſome of them, being the firſt food we had taken ſince leaving the wreck. From this to the 27th, we had ſeveral ſhowers, and caught water, ſufficient nearly to quench our thirſt, in which time I had eaten a ſmall quantity of ſalt pork with ſome of the fith; but as ſoon as our water was gone, I could eat no more.

On the 28th June, Layth died of hunger, thirſt and fatigue, we went out of the world without a ſtruggle or a groan. On the 29th, (the boat ſtill leaking ſo badly as to keep one man conſtantly bailing) there being a heavy ſea running, we had the miſfortune to loſe all our oars and the boat's maſt. Having nothing left to ſteer the boat with, and the laying in the trough of the ſea, and being in great danger of filling every moment, we loſt nearly all our remaining courage; however, we went to work to make a paddle to ſteer the boat with, by taking the yard from our boat, (which was made of the blade of an oar ſplit in two) and ſeized it together in its former place, and lained a ſtip of board to it for a handle; by which means we kept the boat before the ſea.

On the 30th June, about 3 P. M. (the boat being nearly half full of water) I was looking around between hope and deſpair, and to our unſpeakable joy, eſpied a ſail to the S. E. which, after looking ſome time, I thought was ſtanding from us. In about ten minutes I obſerved that ſhe was ſtanding on the wind to the N. N. W. and that ſhe would not fetch within two miles of us (we being to windward.) We were now almoſt in deſpair, having neither oars nor boat's maſt, and Mr. Very ſo lame that he could ſcarcely move; but he being in the ſtern of the boat took the paddle, and kept her before the wind, while Mr. Irvine bailed the boat, which was leaking very badly. I went to work to rig the ſail, and for that purpoſe took one of the boat's thwarts, and the Lord giving me the ſtrength, (for I had very little natural ſtrength left) I ſplit the thwart over the ſtem of the boat, ſe zed it together, and made a maſt ſix feet long; with a piece of board, I made a yard; and in about ten minutes got the ſail ſet, and was running before the wind to forelay the veſſel, which proved to be the ſchr. General Johnſon, of Glouceſter, from Lisbon commanded by capt. Stephen L. Dows, who received us on board his veſſel, and treated us with the tenderneſs of a brother, while we remained with him; giving us at firſt light food in ſmall portions, and increaſing the quantity, as we were able to bear it. And I deſire to expreſs my grateful acknowledgements, that ſo worthy a man was made an inſtrument, in God's hand, to be our deliverer.

This was the eighth ſail we had ſeen, ſince our ſhipwreck—four before we left the wreck, and four ſince. Our ſufferings and diſappointments, while on the wreck and in the boat, were as the reader will judge, inexpreſſible

Captain Davis received us on board his veſſel, in lat. 40 12 N. long. 45, 00 W.—The immediately hoiſted our boat on board th Gen. Johnſon, and found three of her buts ſtarted off, and the oakum ſo much out of her bottom, that when they caſt of the gripes (of which we had three) her ſtem nearly dropped off. In this ſmall and ſhattered boat, three of us had lived 24 days ſince we leaving the wreck, viz. John C. Very E. A. Irvine and myſelf; and on the 21ſt July we arrived ſafe at Glouceſter, and in a ſhort time, to our reſpective families, to the mutual joy of ourſelves and friends; and even ſtrangers ſeemed to look upon us as raiſed from the dead. May we each of us give God the glory, for ſuch ſignal deliverance, and devote the remainder of our days, in gratitude to his ſervice.

PHILADELPHIA, Auguſt 10.

From Portugal.—Arrived at this port yeſterday, ſhip New-Jerſey, Hutchinſon, in 40 days from Lisbon.—The Badajoa Diary received by this arrival ſtates, that on the 7th June the garriſon of Ciudad Rodrigo made a ſortier on their French beſiegers. A furious and ſanguinary conflict took place, and laſted from 6 in the morning till 6 in the evening, with various ſucceſs, when the French, unable to withſtand the ardour and impetuoſity of the brave Spaniards, took ſhelter in ſome thickets and woods, from which they were routed at the point of the bayonet, leaving 1000 men on the field.

New York, Auguſt 15.

By the Schooner Agenoria, we have received the proclamation of the Marquis of Somerveiis, Governor of Havanna, ordering the execution of Manuel Rodriguez Alemany Pena, a native of Mexico, convicted of high treaſon againſt his Majeſty Ferdinand 7th.

It appears that he arrived in Havanna, from Norfolk, a ſhort time ſince and was arreſted on his arrival, from ſome information which had been communicated reſpecting him. Papers, it is ſaid, were found in his poſſeſſion, which proved him to be an emiſſary of Joſeph Bonaparte.

The object of his miſſion is ſaid to have been the ſeparation of the people of Cuba from their allegiance to Ferdinand 7th. Monday the 31ſt July was appointed for the day of his execution.

The East India Company have preſented the Perſian ambaſſador with a moſt ſuperb Dirk, the handle ſet with precious ſtones, and the blade moſt ingeniouſly carved; the caſe to preſerve it is of crimſon velvet, the ſeams of which, are covered with narrow gold lace. Lon. Pap.

It was rumoured in Europe, early in June, that the king of Pruſſia was to be depoſed, and to retire on a penſion; and that the muſhroom of Weſtphalia was to connect with his dominions the pratimony of the houſe of Brandenburgh.

The diſmiſſal of Fouche, (now called duke of Otranto,) the French miniſter of police, has excited conſiderable ſurprize. That he is in diſgrace is rendered evident by the Paris papers, Napoleon having ſent him very cavalierly to Rome with the title of governor, and having appointed the duke of Rovigo (Savary,) his ſucceſſor, as Miniſter of police; but the cauſe of quarrel does not appear. Fou' in his anſwer to Napoleon's letter, accepts his new appointment, but seems to be very little pleased with it. Lon. Pap.

The article of tea, for the London market alone, gives employment to about 3,000,000 of the Chinese population, and to about 20,000 tons of English shipping besides adding three Millions annually, to the revenue of Great Britain.

ARTS and SCIENCES.

The Society for the encouragement of Arts, Manufactures, and Commerce, at their annual meeting in London, in May last, distributed in rewards to meritorious candidates, 9 gold medals, 14 silver medals, and 225 guineas.—The Society consists of 1500 members. The successful candidates were severally rewarded for having planted 30,000 large trees, 20,000 beach, and 10,000 fir; having gained 524 acres of land from the sea; for preparing from the fibres of the common nettle, thread and articles resembling flax, hemp tow, and cotton; for a screw adjusting plough; for an improved reaping hook; for extracting turpentine from fir of English growth; for various paintings; an improved threshing machine; for a mathematical dividing engine; a machine to ascertain the velocity of machinery; for a method of making every ship's boat a life boat; for constructing windows, so as to be cleaned and repaired within the house; for a compensation Pendulum; for spring crutches; for inventing implements, by which, persons who have lost their hands may usefully assist themselves, and other inventions and improvements. Alb. Gaz.

The Season—The last three weeks, torrents of rain have fell in this state; to so great and so long continued a rain at this time of the year, the oldest inhabitants are strangers. It is calculated that one third of the grain in Pennsylvania has been destroyed by it.—Up the Juniata, the harvest, we are told, was almost entirely lost. The waters of that river alone, which empty into the Susquehannah but about 14 miles above this, raised it to the banks—the other branches of the Susquehannah have kept it up ever since. Harris. times.

Latest Foreign News.

LONDON, June 26.

French papers to the 20th and Dutch to the 23d inſt. have arrived. Their contents are more intereſting than any of the continental journals which we have ſeen for ſome time paſt.——The eſcape or deſertion of General Sarrazin is officially announced, but no motives are aſſigned for ſo extraordinary a ſtep.—The Commander in Chief at Boulogne, ascribes the conduct of the General to inſanity; but this surmiſe ſeems to be very clearly refuted by the way in which the eſcape was managed, which does not betray the leaſt pre-diſpoſition towards mental derangement. The French official accounts of the General's eſcape differ in no material reſpect from the particulars I it which have already been publiſhed in this country.—Immediately on his flight being known, the requiſite precautions were adopted to fruſtrate any attempts that might be made by the Government in conſequence of the communications of General Sarrazin.

According to advices from Conſtantinople, a ſtrong apprehenſion prevailed in that capital of a ſcarcity in the Turkiſh provinces, and the interference of the Britiſh Government and the conduct of the Britiſh cruizers in the Levant, are aſſigned as the principal cauſes of ſuch privation.

The campaign has not yet commenced between the Turks and Ruſſians. Both parties are very backward in their preparations. The inactivity of the Ruſſians ſeems owing to the want of means; that of the Turks to the peculiarity of their military organization. There is, however, much appearance of battle in their Government. Some incapable and obnoxious officers have been removed, and pre-emptory orders have been ſent to the various Pachas to advance inſtantly with their reſpective quota of troops.—A Turkiſh liquadron of ſome ſtrength had ſailed from Conſtantinople.

The ſequeſtration under which the magazines and ſhipping at Stralſund have been placed, as was mentioned by the laſt Gottenburgh Mail, is now ſaid to have been carried into execution, in conſequence of a ſharp remonſtrance made by the French Government to the Swediſh Ambaſſador at Paris.

Some of the troops intended for Spain are ſaid to have received another deſtination.—They are ordered to the coaſt of Britany, where, according to rumor, a large force is to be collected. There is a great affectation of myſtery with reſpect to the ultimate deſtination of this army, but enough is ſuffered to tranſpire to indicate a project of invaſion of ſome kind.

July 5.

The laſt Paris papers ſpoke of an action between the royal navy of Murat and our naval force. How far this upſtart has reaſon to boaſt will be ſeen by an account which we have received from a friend engaged in the action. The force of our ſide was the Spartan, of 38 guns, and 258 men; on that of the enemy, 96 guns, and 1138 men, viz. a frigate 42 guns, a corvette of 28 guns, 2 brigs of 8 and 12 guns, and ſeven gunboats, with ſeven guns each. The frigate eſcaped dreadfully mauled, the corvette was diſmaſted, and one of the brigs was taken. We had 10 men killed, and 22 wounded; the enemy 154 killed and 316 wounded.—Captain Brenton was ſeverely wounded, but is now out of danger. It was one of the moſt glorious actions fought during this or any other war.—Courier.

London, July 2.

There was a rumor current yeſterday in the higher circles, which, if it be well founded, implies a total change of plan in the operations of our army in Portugal. It was ſaid that Lord Wellington, with the whole, or greater part of the Britiſh army, was to embark at Liſbon, for the purpoſe of proceeding to St. Lucar, and afterwards co operating with the garriſon at Cadiz, to raiſe the ſiege of that city, and expel the enemy from Andaluſia.—The defence of Portugal was in the mean time to be committed to the Portugueſe and Spaniſh troops, under the command of Marſhal Bereſford and the Marquis Romana.

NEW YORK, Auguſt 20.

Lateſt Foreign Intelligence.—By the arrival at this port on Saturday evening, of the ſhip Pacific, Captain Stanton, in 40 days from Liverpool, we have received from our Liverpool Correſpondent our files of the London Courier to the evening of the 5th of July, & Lloyd's Liſt of the 3d. We are alſo indebted to a reſpectable paſſenger for a regular file of the Traveller to the ſame date, and Gore's Liverpool Advertiſer. From theſe papers, we give this evening as many articles as our limits will permit. Addition extracts will be inſerted to morrow.

Strong ſuſpicions are entertained in London as to the real motives of General Sarrazin, who lately deſerted his poſt at Boulogne, and fled to England; and it is ſaid that, in conſequence of theſe ſuſpicions, he has been ordered to leave England.

It was reported in Liverpool, that a ſix months Embargo had been laid in France.

The harveſt in England was likely to prove better than had been apprehended. The exportation of grain from France to England had been prohibited by the French Government.

We hear, from Waſhington, that the diſpatches lately brought from Mr. Pinkney in the Tamahmah, have been forwarded to the Secretary of State,—but are quite unimportant:

That accounts are received from Paris, of the interceſſion of the emperor of Auſtria with Bonaparte in favour of Ferdinand VII, and that the Emperor would give him his ſecond daughter in marriage—provided Napoleon would reſtore him to the throne of Spain, or otherwiſe provide for him.

That Bonaparte meant to propoſe terms of Peace to England.

On theſe topics there was much ſpeculation; ſome pronouncing it impoſſible that Bonaparte could or would degrade his brother Joſeph to raiſe a Bourbon in his ſtead; others arguing the contrary, from the circumſtance of the monument decreed to Louis ſixteenth; that, if the young Empreſs and her family had obtained Bonaparte's conſent to that meaſure, they might carry their influence farther.

We will wait for facts, rather than form opinions on conjecture and rumour.—Baltimore Whig.

NEW YORK, Auguſt 21.

Lateſt from Cadiz.—Captain Roberts, in the brig Grower, arrived at Philadelphia on Sunday laſt, in 31 days from Cadiz, and informs, that it was reported and believed at that place, that the French General Soult, with 15,000 men, had the latter end of June attacked the advanced guard of 6000 men, under the command of General Crawford, on the confines of Portugal, and obliged him to fall back to the main body, with only 2,000 men. That the Town of Cadiz was ſtill ſafe, being well ſupplied with water and proviſions, and out of the reach of the enemy's ſhot and ſhells, tho' it was ſaid that the French were caſting Mortars at Seville of a larger calibre than any they had, with which they hoped to reach the town; that a continual fire was kept up by the French from Matagorda on the front ——, on Iſle Leon, from whence and the Spaniſh gun boats it was as briskly returned. That the Britiſh are in poſſeſſion and defend many of the advance poſts with great ſpirit.—That the battery at the cauſeway leading from the Walls of Cadiz to the iſland, was nearly completed, and was to be mounted with 70 or 80 pieces of heavy ordnance, from 24 to 32 pounders.—The allies are buſily employed erecting various other batteries on different parts of the Iſland of Leon. The French in the environs of Cadiz, are ſaid to be only 15,000 men.

BOSTON, Auguſt 18.

Lateſt from Liſbon.—Captain Trevett, from Liſbon, has furniſhed intelligence from that city to the 29th June. The following is copied from his memoranda:—

"Liſbon June 13.—The general and long ſtanding report of the deſertion of the French troops in great numbers, is repeated, and appears ſome meaſure to be true; as they are ſent to Liſbon, are daily coming into the city, and as ſoon as they arrive are put on board tranſports.

"Jun. 25.—Three Britiſh regiments embarked in flat bottom boats, and proceeded up the river. It is ſaid their deſtination is Leira, but people of information do not doubt they were deſtined for the frontiers.

June 29.—The report of the day is, that orders have been iſſued for the remainder of the troops to proceed up the river as ſpeedily as poſſible;—for the tranſports to be in perfect readineſs; and that a general action was like ſoon to take place between the combined armies and the French; and that the French had taken Ciudad Rodrigo; but this laſt was not believed."

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 26.

We have nothing new from our armies on the Danube. The Grand Vizier remains quiet at his head quarters, and his inaction is attributed to a ſevere illneſs under which he labours. His life being ſometimes deſpaired of the Grand Signior has haſtened to ſend him two ſkilful French phyſicians.

The preparations for war are immenſe; as it is underſtood that the Porte is reſolved not only to fight the Ruſſians, but alſo to drive the Wechabites from Medina and Mecca, which they ſtill occupy. The Wechabites after plundering thoſe two cities, greatly annoy the Mahometans in their Holy Pilgrimage, and threaten the neighboring countries. The Sultan has ordered the Pacha of Bagdad and thoſe of Egypt to aſſemble all their forces, and march againſt them. Several veſſels are fitting out at Suez, and other ports in the Red-Sea, for the tranſportation of troops. Every thing remains quiet at Conſtantinople; but bread continues ſcarce and extremely dear.

RAMBOUILLET. March 23, 1810.

Napoleon, emperor, &c,——

Conſidering that the government of the U. States, by an Act of the 1ſt of March, 1809, which prohibits all French veſſels the entrance into the ports, harbours and rivers of the ſaid United States, orders,

I. That after the 20th May following, veſſels bearing the French flag, which ſhall arrive in the United States, ſhall be ſeized and confiscated as well as their cargoes.

II. That after the ſame period, any manufactures and produce, being of the ſoil and manufactures of France, or of her colonies, cannot be imported into the United States, from any foreign port or place whatſoever, except under the penalty of ſeizure, confiscation, and a fine of three times the value of the ſaid merchandize.

III. That American veſſels are not permitted to go to any port of France, her colonies, or dependencies.

We have decreed and do decree as follows:

Art. I. All veſſels ſailing under the U. S. flag, owned wholly or in part by citizens or ſubjects of that power, which reckoning from May 20, 1809, ſhall have entered or ſhall enter into the ports of our empire, of our colonies, or of countries occupied by our troops, ſhall be ſeized and the product of their ſales ſhall be depoſited in the Redemption cheſt.

To the operations of this decree are excepted veſſels which ſhall be charged with diſpatches or commiſſions from the government of the ſaid United States, & which ſhall have neither bills of lading nor merchandize on board.

Signed NAPOLEON.

LONDON June 28.

It was very currently reported laſt night, that Miniſters had come to a determination to withdraw the Britiſh army from Portugal, and that report received ſome countenance from the circumſtance of a telegraphic communication from the Admiralty, received at Plymouth on Sunday, by which all the ſhips of war at that port, ready for ſea, were ordered immediately. Several went down in the courſe of that and the following day to Cawſand Bay, and the utmoſt activity prevailed in getting thoſe that remained ready for ſea. The deſtination of the ſhips that have ſailed, is to be the Tagus, and certainly we do not blame Miniſters for taking every precautionary meaſure that prudence can ſuggeſt. We have conſiderable doubts, however, whether they will adopt the reſolution of abandoning Portugal, before they have tried the fortune of a battle.

We have received ſome additional German Papers this morning, from which we have made a few extracts.—The moſt prominent features of their contents are thoſe which relate to the preparations going forward in Calabria, under Murat, for the invaſion of Sicily.

July 4.

Two Gottenburgh Mails have arrived this morning, by which we have German Papers to the 24th ult. An article from Berlin ſtates, that reinforcements of troops and artillery had been ordered to the coaſt in conſequence of the appearance of the Britiſh fleet in the Baltic.

Auſtria, it is now ſaid, is to be indemnified for her late loſſes in Illyria.——Reports of a great battle between the Ruſſians and Turks, in which the latter had the advantage, continue to prevail, but they reſt on a very ſlender foundation.——There appears at preſent little chance of a peace between the two powers. Ruſſia demanding as the price of accommodation, the ceſſion of Moldavia and Wallachia, to which the Porte refuſes to conſent;—and therefore the war muſt continue, unleſs the treaty between the Emperor Francis and Buonaparte ſhould open the eyes of theſe two infatuated powers to their true intereſts. By an article from Franckfort it appears, that freſh levies of the troops of Heſſe, Darmſtadt, Naſſau, and the Grand Duke of Frankfort, are levying, to ſupply the conſumption of their regiments ſerving in Spain, a melancholy proof of the waſting nature of the war which they are doomed to wage in that unhappy country. The Engliſh fleet is ſtated to have deſiſted from its attacks upon Malamocco and Chiozzi; but our cruizers are repreſented as ſo numerous in the Adriatic, that not a barge can ſail without running an imminent riſk of capture,

Extracts from Boſton Papers, of 16th Auguſt.

The London Gazette contains the official particulars of the capture of the Iſland of Maura, in the Adriatic, in letters from Sir John Moore, dated Meſſina, April 26. The principal fortreſs ſurrendered after a vigorous bombardment of 9 days, and the garriſon conſiſting of 714 men, were made priſoners of war.

The Duke of Oldenburgh, is now ſpoken of as the intended ſucceſſor to the throne of Sweden. He is a near relation of the Emperor of Ruſſia.

A few years ago a man lived at Allerton (Eng.) by trade a tailor, but who occaſionally could handle his fiddle as well as his needle. On his way home from whence he had been exerciſing his muſical talents for the entertainment of his muſical neighbors, in paſſing through a field about 3 o'clock in the morning, in the month of June, he was attacked by a Bull. After ſeveral efforts to eſcape, he attempted to ascend a tree. Not, however, ſucceeding in the attempt, a momentary impulſe directed him to pull out his fiddle, and fortifying himſelf behind as well as he could, began to play, upon which the enraged animal became totally diſarmed of his ferocity, and appeared to liſten with great attention.—The affrighted Joe Snip, finding his fierce and formidable enemy to much appeaſed, began to think of making his eſcape, left off playing, and was making off without even the ſlighteſt deſire to know who ſhould pay the piper. This, however, the bull would not ſuffer—for no ſooner had our Orpheus ceaſed his faſcinating ſtrain, than the bull's rage appeared to return with as much vigilence as before. He was glad therefore, to have recourſe a ſecond time to his fiddle, which as inſtantly operated again as a charm upon the bull, who became as compoſed and attentive as before. He afterwards made ſeveral attempts to eſcape, but all in vain; for no ſooner did he ſtop the fiddle than the bull's anger returned, ſo that he was compelled to continue fiddling away till ſeven ſix o'clock (about three hours) when the family came to milk the cows, by which he was relieved, and rescued from a tireſome and frightful ſituation.

He is perhaps the firſt man upon record who may really be ſaid to have fiddled for his life, and who has ſo truly fulfilled the Poet's idea, that "Muſic has charms to ſoothe the ſavage breaſt."

Brown, the honeſt democratic Collector at New Orleans, who lately robbed the Treaſury, and fled to Jamaica, arrived ſafely at London, where, it is ſaid, he was arreſted at the Theatre at the requeſt of our miniſter; and it is added, that he had delivered to Mr. Pinkney all the plunder which he had not previouſly ſquandered.—N. Y. Spect.

General Sarrazin was on duty when Napoleon and his New Empreſs were at Boulogne. After viewing the fortifications, and every thing intereſting in the town, they went to the heights to take a peep at the ocean. The Auſtrian Princeſs had a teleſcope in her hand and obſerving a veſſel cruiſing at ſome diſtance, the enquired what it was, and was informed that it was an Engliſh veſſel. Perceiving five others in the harbour, ſhe aſked what they were, and was told that they belonged to the Emperor. She then aſked why the five veſſels did not go and take that belonging to the enemy? At this moment Bonaparte, who had ſhewn a reſtleſs impatience, could reſtrain his feelings no longer, but ſnatching the glaſs out of her hand, exclaimed in the French language, with great impetuoſity.—"Becauſe the wind is not fair."—Lon. Pap.

A cow, the property of Mr. Watkins, farmer, at Bexley, in Kent, (England) had lately taken from her, a calf, with two heads, four eyes, three ears, two mouths, and two tongues.—N. Y. Spectator.

The Nutmeg.—It is a fact which ought to be known to all houſe wives, that if they begin to grate a nutmeg at the ſtalk end, it will prove hollow throughout; whereas the ſame nutmeg grated from the other end, would have proved ſound and ſolid to the laſt. The centre of a nutmeg conſiſts of a number of fibres iſſuing from the ſtalk, and its continuation to the centre of the fruit, the other ends of which fibres, though cloſely ſurrounded and preſſed by the fruit, do not adhere to it.—When the ſtalk is grated away, thoſe fibres having loſt their hold, gradually drop out, and the nutmeg appears hollow; and as more of the ſtalk is grated away, others drop out in ſucceſſion, and the hollow continues through the whole nut. By beginning at the contrary end, the fibres abovementioned are grated off at their core end, with the ſurrounding fruit, and do not drop out and cauſe a hole. Another circumſtance worth knowing is, that in conſequence of the great value of the oil of nutmegs, it is often extracted from the nuts that are expoſed to ſale, by which they are rendered of very little value. To aſcertain the quality of nutmegs, force a pin into them, and if good, however dry they may appear, the oil will be ſeen oozing out all round the pin, from the compreſſion occaſioned in the ſurrounding part.

LONDON, July 9.

Sweden is torn to pieces by intestine evils.—The Marshal of the sacrifice to the vengeance of the populace, on a supposition that he abetted the intrigues of France, to place the country under the domination of Denmark, as the Swedes have the most rooted hatred for the Danes, which nothing can eradicate. The general opinion is, that Bonaparte wishes to consolidate the two Kingdoms under one Crown, and after the odious business is accomplished, he will place Louis Bonaparte or some other of his family on the throne, as his great object is to have the command of the Sound. Our Ministers foreseeing that such is his object, will cause, it is said, a great blow to be struck in the North of Europe in the course of the summer, as Bonaparte has his eye upon the Swedish fleet. Another revolution is expected in Sweden, but no revolution can relieve that unfortunate country from his fangs.—The destiny of Holland is fixed, and it is now doomed to be governed by the military myrmidons of the French chief, to whom, however, the people are expected to give unavailing resistance.—A storm is gathering over the Turkish Empire, and expectations are entertained in the French Journals, that the present government will be speedily overthrown. These perpetual convulsions and revolutions never, however, better the condition of the poor.

July 10.

The basis of a cartel for the exchange of prisoners has been agreed upon. The last dispatch to Mr. Mackenzie communicated to him the terms upon which our government have acceeded.—This intelligence was bro't by Mr. Wyle, the Messenger, who arrived last night at Morlaix.

Letters of the 26th ult. from Gibraltar, assert that the Regency of Cadiz, feeling themselves secure from the attempts of the French to subdue that place, have deemed it expedient to send 5000 men to Algesiras, with a view to cut off, if possible, the retreat of the French from that part of the peninsula.

The same letters state, that the inhabitants of Madrid have several times attempted to extricate themselves from the oppression of the French in that city; but owing to the enemy's force being very great, without any kind of success.—Their spirit though restrained, is by no means subdued.

The brave General O'Donnel, partly from the severity of his wounds, and partly from disgust, has resigned his command.——The French had been repulsed in an attack upon Miguenesa, and General Doyle left Tarragona with a reinforcement of 2500 men, and a large supply of provisions for that place, that no apprehensions were entertained for his safety.—Soult, as well as Angereau, is said to have been disgraced, and recalled from his command. The Spanish army in the Centre was in a formidable state of reorganization, and shortly expected to present a formidable front to the enemy.

PORTUGAL.

The Treaty with the Prince Regent, consists of upwards of 70 articles, and is of prodigious length. In one respect the Portuguese negociators seem to have misunderstood their interests. Numerous privileges are given to the native ships of both Great Britain and Portugal, but those of Portugal are restricted to such vessels as are built either in Portugal or the Brazils, which limitation does not comprize more than two fifths of the shipping property of the Portuguese.

PROCLAMATION.

Amsterdam. July 3.

Louis Napoleon, by the grace of God and the constitution of the kingdom, king of Holland, constable of France. To all those who may see or hear or read these presents—health.

"Hollanders

"Being convinced that nothing more for your interests or your welfare can be effected by me, but on the contrary, considering myself as an obstacle which may prevent the good will and intention of my brother towards this country, I have resigned my rank and royal dignity in favor of my eldest son, Napoleon Louis, and of his brother, Prince Charles Louis Napoleon. Her Majesty, the Queen, being of right and according to the constitution, Regent of the kingdom, the Regency shall, until her arrival, be vested in the council of ministers.

"Hollanders

"Never shall I forget so good and virtuous a people as you are, My last sigh as well as my last thought, shall be for your happiness. On leaving you I cannot sufficiently recommend you to receive well the military and civil officers of France. This is the only means to gratify his majesty the Emperor, on whom your fate, that of your children, and that of your whole country depends. And now as ill-will and calumny can no longer reach me, at least so far as relates to you, I have a well founded hope, that you will at length find the reward for all your sacrifices, and for all your magnanimous firmness.—Done at Haarlem, July 1.

PROCLAMATION.

"Louis Napoleon, by the Grace of God, the Constitution of the Kingdom, King of Holland, Constable of France. Considering that the unfortunate state in which this country now is, arises from the displeasure which the Emperor my brother has conceived against me; considering that all endeavours and sacrifices on my part to support this stage of things, have been fruitless; considering lastly, that it cannot be doubted that the course of the present state of things is to be attributed to my having been unfortunate enough to displease my brother, and to have lost his friendship, and that I am therefore the only obstacle to the termination of the incessant differences and misunderstandings:

"We have resolved as we have by these letters, published by our free will, do resolve to resign as we do from this moment resign, the royal dignity of this kingdom of Holland, in favor of our well beloved Son Napoleon Louis, and in failure of him, in favor of his brother Charles Louis Napoleon. We further desire, that according to the Constitution under the guarantee of his Majesty the Emperor our brother, the Regency shall remain with her Majesty the Queen, assisted by a Council of Regency, which shall provisionally consist of our ministers, to whom we commit the custody of our guard, under the command of Lieut. General Brouno, second in command, who shall render their service to the Minor King of this Kingdom; and that the great officers of the Crown, as well as the civil and military officers of our household, shall continue to render their customary services to the same high personage.

"The present act done and concluded, and signed by our hand, shall be transmitted to the Legislative Body, and then deposited copies shall be taken, and these letters be published in a legal manner, and in the customary form.

(Signed) "LOUIS NAPOLEON."

Gallant Action in the Mediterranean.

(Letter from an officer to his friend in London.)

His Majesty's ship Spartan.

MALTA, May 16 1810.

My Dear Friend,

Aware that an old messmate (particularly a once Spartan) will derive some gratification from the particulars of our recent glorious contest, I willingly avail myself of the first conveyance to enable you to participate in the feelings of your old shipmates—On the first instant we in company with the Success, chased into Naples a frigate, corvette, brig and cutter. On the 2d, on a supposition on the part of our truly gallant captain (Janlee Brenton) that these fair weather birds would never put to sea whilst menaced by two British frigates, he ordered the success (being a junior ship) to part company; the manoeuvre succeeded, and in the morning following, at day light, the enemy's squadron was with pleasure descried standing towards us in a regular line of battle. It was not in our nature to run? but agreeable to our usual system, as well as their astonishment, we made sail for them; and being aided by a light breeze, were enabled about 40 minutes after seven, to commence against "fearful odds," what our gallant brother tars on this station, as well as the conquered foe, acknowledge to have been one of the most brilliant actions ever fought by a British frigate. The battle took place off Naples, and commenced within pistol shot by the French frigate Ceres, of 42 guns, the being the leading ship of the enemy's line, and after a truly trying, yet thank God, glorious contest of two hours and ten minutes (during which time the awful scene was witnessed by his mock Majesty Murat, and the whole population of the proud city of Naples) we succeeded in capturing the brig L'Espervior, by our brave fellows boarding her in face of the enemy's whole force, who were like unto ourselves almost torn to pieces.——When we had approached this "host of foes," sufficiently near to be distinctly heard, we welcomed them with three cheers which was propoled by our gallant captain, and given by our brave tars with heartfelt sincerity for the honor of our beloved country, and our glorious profession.

"From the officers whom we have taken prisoners, we have been assured that our cheering tended forcibly to unnerve their seamen, as it taught them to believe we had, in the first instance, decided on death or victory! Our loss has been severe—ten brave fellows killed, and twenty two wounded; yet when I refer to the annexed; unprecedented superiority to which we were opposed, you must think with me, that the heroic Britons could never have fallen on a more glorious occasion. Among the killed I have to deplore the death of that gallant youth Mr. Robinson, master's mate, whom you, as an old Spartan, must recollect; and in the list of wounded the name of our truly heroic and distinguished captain unfortunately stands conspicuous. He was dangerously wounded by a grape shot, about the middle of the action, whilst fearlessly standing on the capstan, and by his judicious manoeuvering and gallant example, imbibing a confidence of success in every officer and man around him.—He was wounded in the left side, and has since suffered almost incessant pain with becoming fortitude; but I am happy to add, he is now pronounced out of danger, and the ardent prayers of his officers and brave crew, continue to be offered up with seamanlike sincerity, for his speedy restoration to the service of his country, with whom his zeal, ability and heroism must ever stand unrivalled! and by whom if genuine merit wants not admirers he will, no doubt be amply rewarded. He has already received the thanks of Knighthood and of Merit, from his Majesty the King of the two Sicilies, which, no doubt, will be followed on the part of our good Sovereign (God bless him) by the Order of the Bath, and an adequate pension to support it. We have just learnt by a flag of truce, the enemy's loss to have been severe beyond precedent; 154 killed, and 316 wounded.

Your's truly,
JAMES DUN, Purser.

English Force.—Spartan, 38 guns, 258 men.—French Force.—Ceres, 42 guns, 300 men; Fame, 28 guns, 280 men; Espervoir, 8 guns, 98 men; Actilla, 12 men and 120 guns; 7 Gun boats, 7 guns, with 40 men each 280.

Court of King's Bench—Monday, July 9.

WM COBBETT.

This being the day on which the court was to pronounce its judgement on the above defendant, the avenues at a very early hour were all crowded, and the throng so unusual and prodigious, that the Chief Justice was obliged to order the avenues to be cleared, it being with the most extreme difficulty that even the prisoners could contrive to get into the body of the Court.

At length they appeared, and the Attorney General prayed judgement against Wm. Cobbett, T. C. Hansard, John Budd, and Richard Bagshaw.

Mr. Justice Grose first addressed the prisoner, Cobbett: he signified to him that he was convicted of a most foul and wicked libel—A libel, the tendency of which was to create dislike of their duty in the Local Militia of the country, and disgust to our service in the foreigners employed therein, and through them to bring disgrace on the government, and to paralize the energies of the state. The learned judge observed, that the opportunity and the season that the defendants had selected, were those, when an enemy, the most ferocious, was at the very moment threatening our shores; an enemy whose military government had laid prostrate the surrounding states, and who marked his way with spoliation and plunder; yet this was the enemy who was stated by the prisoner to use his soldiers better than the soldiers of this country were used, and whose government was compared with the government of this country, and asserted by him to afford more comforts and protection to its soldiery than were afforded to the soldiers of this country. The malignancy of this poison was therefore considerably increased by the time and the season when it was spread throughout the nation. The defendant, had a fair, patient, and impartial trial, he had the fullest opportunity of removing from the minds of the jury any doubts which they might entertain, if any doubts they could have of the guilty and deleterious libel that he was charged with. But the defendant neither did nor could exculpate himself in their eyes, and they decided upon him with proofs most convincing of the fulness and wickedness of his guilt. If it could not be imputed to him that his objects were only to distract the government and to embarrass the state, then it could not be denied that objects, if not as dangerous, at least as base, could not be removed from his intentions, namely, that of uniting hopes for the degenerate purposes of base and unworthy lucre and profit. This then, itself, was an offence of the deepest die, and such as the court was imperiously called upon to visit with a heavy hand.

It was much to be lamented that a man who had the experience of the defendant, should, after all that passes in life, so constantly before his eyes, grow worse, and as he increases in years, increases in malignity. It was also lamentable that the numerous examples made of libellers, had no effect upon him; but that knowing the fatal consequence of such conduct, he still perseveres in spreading the poison of most destructive malignancy through the nation. A check must be put to such mischief, the state must be governed, the army must be satisfied with them, the foreigners in our service must not be traduced when they are labouring in common with the whole of our military system, to support the dignity and protect the safety of the empire; and the military system must not be moved to a disgust of the service in which they are employed. For these reasons the court holds itself called upon to exercise its authority this day. The learned Judge averted to the libel, noticing the most prevailing features of it, and then in an emphatic manner proceeded to pass the following

SENTENCE ON WM. COBBETT.

"The sentence of the Court is, that you, Wm. Cobbett, do pay a fine to the King of 1000l. that you be imprisoned in his Majesty's goal of Newgate for the space of two years; that at the expiration of that period, you enter into a recognizance to keep the peace for seven years, yourself in the sum of 3000l. and two sureties in the sum of 1000l. each. And further that you be imprisoned till that recognizance be entered into, and that fine paid."

His Lordship then proceeded to pass the sentence on the other three prisoners. T. C. Hansard to be imprisoned in the King's Bench prison three months, and to give security to keep the peace—himself in 4 500l. and two sureties in 200l. each.

Budd and Bagshaw were sentenced each to two months imprisonment in the same place.

Salem. August 21.

We have a Gibraltar paper of the 7th of July, which contains many translations from the Spanish papers, and among them an account from Tarragona of a visit to that city from a Prince of the House of Bourbon: it was mentioned with rapture. He had proceeded for Cadiz. The Duke is a soldier, for they say he gained victories at the age of 18—Notwithstanding the reverses of the Spaniards in Catalonia, the French were still greatly annoyed in that province by numerous independent parties.

THE SPANISH CORTES.

The Council of Regency of the Kingdom of Spain and the Indies, desirous of giving to the whole world a sincere testimony of its ardent wishes for its welfare, and of their anxiety for the salvation of their country, has determined, in the royal name of the King our lord Don Ferdinand VII. that the general Cortes, ordered to be convoked, shall assemble without delay, and for this purpose, that the elections for these deputies, who have not been appointed, immediately take place, as those who are already appointed, and who may hereafter be appointed, are to assemble in the Island of Leon, in the month of August next; and the greatest part of the members being already in that Island, they will commence their sessions immediately on the day appointed.—In the mean time, the council of regency will be employed in examining and overcoming several difficulties, so that this convention may have full effect.

BOSTON, Aug. 27.

From Gibraltar.—Arrived yesterday, schr. Industry, Captain Harris, 31 days from Gibraltar. Captain H. has furnished us with Gibraltar papers to the 21st July; but they afford us no political news of any novelty. The accounts from Spain and Portugal, make no mention of the reported battle between the French and Portuguese; the however, confirm our previous accounts of the unhealthy condition of the French armies in Spain; of the continued and successful incursions of the Spanish peasantry, and of the increasing hatred which is manifested against the French in every quarter.—A Spanish gentleman, arrived at Gibraltar, from the environs of Seville, states, that the French were attacked near Sevill, from the 28 to the 6th July, by the division of Bellesfores and Capon with great success;—that great numbers of dead and wounded were seen carrying into Seville; and that when he came away, the firing of cannon and musketry was still continued.—The papers also state that King Joseph had returned to Madrid, and had dismissed from his life guards, all the Spaniards who had been employed about his person.

From Alicant. July 1.—"There is no news of much importance here, except the French, who were going towards Tortosa, having retired to Lerida, where they left a small garrison, and are gone to Tarragona; from whence a considerable body of troops have marched, supposed towards Madrid, to repair their loses in Castile and Navarre.—This place is putting in a most respectable state of defence, and it is thought that in a short time the works will be in such a situation as to be able to give the enemy a great deal to do, should they attempt to attack us, of which there appears no immediate probability."

Philadelphia. August 31.

From Cadiz. July 28.—By the ship Mariner, Myrick, arrived this morning, advices are received from Cadiz to the 28th of July, at which time no occurrence of importance had taken place.

Fifteen thousand of the British and Spanish troops were encamped beyond the walls of Cadiz on the Island.

Nothing is said of the defeat of General Crauford's division—and the account of that action, received by a vessel which left Cadiz on the 15th of July, is said to be incorrect. Flour had fallen in price, to 12 dollars, and was of dull sale.

A distant cannonade and bombardment were continued between the French and the garrison, but with little effect on either side. —Pol. & Com. Segister.

Quebec (L. Canada) July 31.

On Saturday arrived in this town from S. America, Don Joseph Gonzales, Spanish gentleman. We hear that he had a fun-government on the summit of one of the Andes and that he is travelling to shun the troubles of tempestuous times, particularly at a moment when the sovereignty of the country is in a manner the object of a scramble. This gentleman makes mention of ancient buildings on the top of the Andes, constructed of stones of such a magnitude as to pass the comprehension of man by what means they could been raised to such an altitude. The descent from the seat of his government to the plains, was 4 four days journey.

Latest Foreign News.

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.

Latest from England.—By the ship Fanny, Captain Osgood, in 46 days from Liverpool, we have received our files of London papers to the 10th of July; and by a respectable merchant we have been favored with the Courier of the evening of the 12th. The following are all the articles of intelligence these papers contain:

LONDON, July 12.

We mentioned yesterday the arrival of dispatches stating that an expedition has been undertaken from Cadiz, under general Lacy, to get in the rear of the French besieging army. Private letters add, that the general with about 5000 men, landed at Algeziras, and making a forced march, got to the mountainous district of Ronda, a distance of about forty miles. The enemy had no expectation of so bold and rapid a movement. They fled as soon as the Spaniards came in sight of them, leaving behind them 3000 stand of arms, ammunition and provisions.—The arms were immediately distributed among the mountaineers of the Ronda, and the force of the Spaniards was increased from 5 to 14000 men. From Ronda he meant to proceed to Chiolana, and thus throw himself in the rear of the enemy. Whilst the Spaniards made an attack upon them in front from the Isla de Leon. In the mean time another expedition was to be undertaken from Cadiz, and to be landed at Port St. Mary.——The result of these operations would, it was hoped, be the raising of the siege of Cadiz.——The enemy are not supposed to have more than 20,000 men employed in the siege.

These are the main facts stated in private letters. They contain besides a variety of articles, mentioning the success of the Spaniards in the desultory and harrassing warfare which they are carrying on in every part of Spain.—Bonaparte who was not to leave a village in arms against him by Christmas last, is now as far from the conquest of the Spaniards as he was at the commencement of the conflict.——Well may Spain be called the miracle of Europe—The most degraded and impotent state has made the most successful resistance to the overwhelming power of France. The length of the contest proves that the true spirit of liberty is abroad in the country. It is in vain to tell us that the Spanish army is composed of armed ragamuffins, that ruh like cattle into the field, and run away at the first fire of the enemy. If they do "run away, it is evident they live to fight "another day;" for they return and return till there seems no end of putting them to flight.—The battles of Aspern and Wagram were more bloody and magnificent, it is true, than any of the actions that have been fought beyond the Pyrennees, but the war in Germany that crushed the House of Austria into irretrievable insignificance was only an episode to the war in Spain.—There Bonaparte met the collected strength of his antagonist in the open field, and demolished it at a blow; here, where death or victory is equal glory, he has to contend with a people whom he may destroy, but whom he cannot subdue without their own consent; treason and corruption therefore must carry on the conquest which the sword has only begun, and gold must accomplish what steel cannot. Whatever may be the issue, the contest has been glorious to Spain, and exemplary to the whole world.

There is a report in circulation of the escape of the King of Sweden. Upon receiving intelligence from his friends in Sweden, he is said to have determined upon retiring immediately, & endeavoring to regain his Throne. His escape from Switzerland was not known till four days afterwards, and he is reported to have reached the Baltic coast in safety, and embarked on board a British vessel.—Nay, according to some accounts, he is at this moment on board Admiral Saumarez's ship.—The Queen of Sweden and her children have been confided to the care of the Duke of Baden.—The last part of this rumour makes us doubt the whole. The King of Sweden, tenderly attached to his family, would not leave them in the hands of a Prince, who, however willing, is not able to protect. It was on the territory of Baden that Bonaparte seized the Duke D'Enghien.

Exchange of Prisoners.—So much interest must naturally be excited both in this country and France, relative to the Exchange of prisoners, that it is not surprising the public expectation on this subject should have outrun the facts. It is very true, as our cotemporaries have stated, that a negociation for that purpose was some months since commenced; but we can venture to say, that the discussion between the two governments has not yet reached that state which can authorize the expectations so confidently expressed of its speedy and successful termination.

The negociation still continues, and it is much desired, for the sake of humanity, that it may be brought to a satisfactory conclusion. Nothing of conciliation, & even concession, as far as it is justifiable and consistent with national honor, will, we trust, and believe, be wanting on the part of the British government; but before the friends and relatives of the prisoners, and the detained in either country, flatter themselves with assurances of the speedy release of those persons, they should recollect that it may be doubtful whether the other party to the negociation brings into it the same conciliatory temper, the same moderate pretentions, or even the same anxious desire for its completion, that will, we trust, be found to have marked the conduct of the British Government.

Sir Richard Keats is appointed to the command of the British squadron in the Bay of Cadiz. The whole Navy of England, abundant as it is in talent and enterprise, could not have furnished an Officer better qualified for this particular service. Sir Richard has peculiar claims to the confidence of the Spaniards.

A ship arrived yesterday from the French coast, which she left four days ago. According to the advices brought by her, Bonaparte had enacted a law which inflicted the penalty of death against any subject of France who should after a certain period, visit England.—The prohibitory decree against the exportation of grain has been extended from L'Orient to Bordeaux.

We must observe, however, that the above information ill accords with the recent information received from Mr. Mackenzie, in France: that Gentleman is said to have written to a relation, that his mission goes on smoothly: that he was every where well received; and that he expected shortly to be called from Morlaix to Paris.

The following extract is from an Alicant paper of the 14 inst:

GENERAL ORDERS—FOURTH DIVISION.

"Head Quarters, Eiche, June 12.

"SOLDIERS,

"Our flying parties have obtained on the 9th, considerable advantages in the town of Galera. Our cavalry, to the number of 120, was attacked by 230, of which 80 were killed and 90 made prisoners. Individual acts of valour have been performed, which shall be rewarded accordingly: but among these we have to notice Don Gasper de Bobadella, Captain of the Regiment of Cavalry of Farnisco, who with his own hand killed one of the enemy's officers, who, in the act of offering him protection, returned the generous offer by a stroke of his sword. The defenders of Cegorla, to the number of 360, were attacked on the 4th instant by 1600 foot and 600 horse. The superiority of the enemy obliged them to retire from that town; nor had they courage to follow our valiant soldiers.

"These actions are only the preludes of others more important, in which we are to distinguish ourselves; to destroy and teach the enemy that the Spanish nation will not cede in valour to any nation in the world.

"FREYRE."

"Note—In Yesterday's Diary it was announced that the army of the centre had received orders to advance its head quarters:—this information is not only untrue, but devoid of any foundation, and must have originated in a mistake. In order to do away any bad effect that such false report might occasion to the prejudice of the army, the public are informed accordingly."

The American vessel, Wheeler, is arrived a Falmouth from New York, with a cargo of wheat and flour.

We received this morning some Dutch papers, and German papers and letters to the 30th ult. The latter states that General Molitor's division has on a sudden been ordered to march from Hamburgh to Spain.

"A few days ago General Count Molitor received a Courier from Paris with orders for his whole division to break up from Hamburgh and the Hanse Towns and their territory for Spain. In consequence of this order, the four battalions of infantry and two regiments of cavalry composing the garrison of Hamburgh, broke up on the 29th, directing their march towards Holland. It is impossible to express what reluctance the French Officers and Soldiers have for going to Spain; they took upon such a march as no better than a march to the other world.

"Yesterday five companies of French infantry, coming by forced marches from Travemunde and Lubec, entered Hamburgh, and now form its temporary garrison. In the course of next month the whole division of Morand, near 20,000 men strong, is expected in the Hanse Towns.

"Several private letters from the South of France, received by people in the wine trade, from Marseilles, Nismes, &c. speak of a considerable defeat which the French army is said to have suffered in Spain, but they are silent as to the particulars. French troops have also been ordered from Germany to Holland, in every part of which country, the inhabitants have shewn the most manifest marks of discontent, and betrayed symptoms of insurrection. Private letters from Paris state, that Count Metternich will not leave that place till the middle of July, previous to which the treaty between France and Austria, relative to Turkey, will be arranged & ratified. "Vienna, June 18.

"One of the unfounded rumours here is, that Peace has been already concluded between Russia and the Porte. The Pressburg Gazette mentions the report, that the Russian Gen. Jossafew, has twice defeated the Turks prisoners.

"Our Court Gazette contains the following paragraph:—'Among the long series of groundless and random aspersions, from and about Austria, by which many public papers fill up their empty space, is also to be remarked one by which great part of East Gallicia is ceded to the Dutchy of Warsaw for another equivalent.'—Correspondent.

"An army of 80,000 men is now going to Hungary and the Turkish frontiers, with 150 pieces of cannon."

"The report that our army has undertaken an expedition to Sicily, and landed there on the 23d May, is not confirmed.

"According to the latest accounts in our Court Gazette, his Majesty our King, on the 30th May accompanied by Gen. Cavignac, and other persons, went from Monteleone to Trope. The head quarters were to be removed to Nicosfero.

"At Monteleone, the Sovereign, together with the Generals Gremer and Caviganac, had been employed in making arrangements for the better supply of the troops with provisions, so that the inhabitants might not suffer—Considerable transports of provisions from Naples have already arrived at Pizzo, and other ports of Calabria.

"His Majesty has expressed himself extremely well satisfied with the disposition and conduct of the inhabitants in Calabria.

"Naples, June 9.

"A convoy, consisting of a large number of transports, laden with artillery, ammunition, and other military stores, and escorted by five gun-boats of the royal navy, set sail from Pichatura for Bagnara, and arrived at 9 o'clock in the latter place. The enemy's flotilla having been informed of the departure of the convoy immediately got under weigh for Bagnara, but the convoy had already reached a safe station under the guns of our batteries. The enemy's flotilla began, notwithstanding, an attack on the convoy, but were compelled to steer off, with the exception of one gun-boat, which remained off Bagnara, to observe the convoy. His Majesty had no sooner been informed of this circumstance, than he ordered a detachment of grenadiers to embark on board of seven or eight fishing vessels, and drive the above gun-boat from her station. The grenadiers accordingly attacked her with so much gallantry and spirit, that she would undoubtedly have been taken, but for the arrival of two other English gun-boats, under the protection of which she effected her escape.—Utrecht Courant of July 8.

"Laybach, June 8.

"The Russian army has crossed the Danube on three different points, and has already pushed on as far as Tzimowo.

PORTUGUESE PAPERS.

Yesterday we were favored with Lisbon papers to the 5th July.

No news had occurred of any interest. Ciudad Rodrigo continued its brave defence, and was said to be keeping up a very destructive fire on the besiegers, and had made several desperate sallies. On the 26th June, Ld. Wellington, with a view to menace the French besiegers again established his head quarters at Almeida; while Marshal Beresford took post at Trancoso (near the Duero.) We do not perceive that the French had advanced from any point; and it was stated Massena was waiting the arrival of the fourth corps, previous to his making an attack on the British and Portuguese lines. The allied troops were well posted and supplied. Reports stated that the French troops were very sickly, and that there were 6000 in the hospital at Salamanca. Deserters were continually arriving from the French posts, principally Germans.—The Spanish had active partizan corps in many of the provinces.—Bost. Cent.

Further Selections from late London Papers received by the Fanny.

LONDON, July 12.

The reported rigorous regulations by the French Government, against the very limited personal intercourse that subsists between that country and this, are confirmed by letters from Paris of the 4th inst.

They also communicate the following explanation of the decree lately passed, respecting maritime trade:—

Imperial Decree of 2d July.

"The prohibition of grain (established by the Decree of the 22d July) from the Island of Schowen to L'Orient, extends itself also to vessels provided with licences.

"No grain may be exported between L'Orient and Bordeaux but by French ships, which shall at the same time, be obliged to take half their cargoes of wine or brandy.

"Foreign vessels provided with licences, which may enter the ports of France, shall not be allowed to make any further use of the same.

"The coasting trade is reserved exclusively, according to the old laws, to French vessels; of which the crews must consist of French masters, and three fourths French sailors."

Lately, when Louis Bonaparte and his wife were at Paris on the occasion of Bonaparte's marriage, Louis lived at his mother's hotel, and his wife at another. Her children have always been considered as the children of Bonaparte, and not of Louis. Hence Louis, in resigning the crown, says, "I give it up to you, Napoleon Bonaparte, and your's—that is, to your son who passes for mine, and to my wife, by whom you had this son." A most curious family!

The principle article contained in the French papers, from which we make extracts this day, is the account of an alarming fire, which broke out in a temporary ball room, during a fete given to Bonaparte and his empress by the Austrian Ambassador, Prince Schwartzenburgh. The conflagration commenced by a wax candle coming in contact with a thin muslin curtain which spread the flames, notwithstanding every effort to extinguish them, till the whole edifice, which was of wood, paper and canvass, was in a state of general conflagration. Notwithstanding the confusion, the company had all got out of the room into the gardens, without the loss of a single life; but unhappily the material affection of the Princess Pauline of Schwartzenburg (wife of Prince Joseph, the ambassador's brother) who presided at the fete, became alarmed on missing her daughter and this Lady rushed again into the flames in search of her child, and unhappily perished.—She left 8 children, and was far advanced in a state of pregnancy! This is the only fatal accident that occurred during this woefully terminated festivity. The papers also contain some details respecting General Sarrazin; but not of a nature to cast any light on his mysterious visit to this country.

The commercial arrangements between this country and Portugal, were yesterday finally concluded, and are expected to be published in the Gazette of to-morrow evening.

The visit to the Duke of Orleans to Cadiz, and his Royal Highness's conference with the Junta of that place, have given rise to a report of a design to appoint him sole Regent of Spain.—His Royal Highness's character, as well as his high rank in the Bourbon family, but above all his recent alliance by marriage with the Royal family of Sicily, which is the prior branch of that of Spain, are so many reasons which mark him out as a fit object for that elevation; but we know, that when Prince Leopold of Sicily offered himself sometime since to Spain, the proposition was not countenanced.—It is probable that the visit of the Duke may not have had any political object, and that the conferences may have been mere affairs of compliment. The Duke went from this country to be married to a Sicilian Princess; and we believe his presence on the Spanish coast is occasioned by a visit to his mother, who has resided on the Mediterranean coast of Spain, ever since she was delivered over by the revolutionists. Her Royal Highness is we believe, at present in Minorca.

Bonaparte, who loves no one, is himself not the object of affection, even in his own family.—We are the differences between him and Louis—Lucien has not been upon terms with him for years, and has constantly refused every dignity offered him—Joseph hates him—Jerome is the only one who lives in any intimacy with him—but he is often the object of the coarsest and most violent treatment.

This morning we received some more French and Dutch papers. The following are the only articles worthy of notice:—

Vienna, June 16.

The Persian Ambassador from Paris arrived here to day. The French ambassador yesterday received a Courier from Constantinople, who afterwards continued his route for Paris. The reports of peace between Russia and the Porte have vanished.—Letters from Semlin, which, however, cannot be relied on, state, that a courier dispatched by the Russian General Issajew, who arrived on the second of June at Belgrade, brings intelligence of a victory gained over the Pache of Widden. According to the same letters, it is believed 18,000 Servians will join the Russian army.

Philadelphia, August 28.

Private Correspondence, communicated for the Register.

Cadiz, June 23.

"I herewith send you a file of Cadiz papers, which may, in some measure, enable you to form an opinion of the state of this country, which, in my view, has much improved within a few months.—It is true, whenever the French appear, in large bodies, the country apparently submits, but the people are seen to rise on the first opportunity, and put to death all those who are active in the French service, while the Guerilla, or partizan parties, keep the enemy in constant alarm, cutting off all parties, and punishing with death (and destruction of property) all their countrymen who engage in the service of the French. I have just heard from a gentleman who escaped a few days ago from Seville, that they (the Patriots) entered that town a short time ago, and carried off two hundred horses intended for a Spanish regiment in the French service; and as a proof that plunder is not their object about the same period they carried away all the cattle belonging to a traitor, whilst their neighbors estate remained unmolested.——The French have raised, clothed and armed, at Seville, 13,000 men; and the above gentleman tells me, that scarcely 1,500 remain, the rest having deserted to their friends, with their clothing and arms."

The London papers state, that several of the Princes are extremely angry with Mr. Cobbett, in consequence of his harsh animadversions on the German troops.—The profits of Cobbett's Register, rose him clear 1,4000 sterling per annum—equal to 17,760 dollars.

It is stated in a late London Paper, that 12 of the principal brewers of the city of London, from the 5th of July, 1809, to the 5th of July, 1810, brewed one million three hundred and one thousand five hundred and twenty barrels of beer.

Commerce of Canada.—From the 10th to the 16th of August, 45 European vessels arrived at the Port of Quebec, with full and valuable cargoes; and from the 1st to the 16th of the same month, 97 ships and brigs cleared out for Europe.

London, July 17.

A letter from Lisbon dated July 5, fays —"Ciudad Rodrigo is besieged with great activity, and it has endured for feveral days a tremendous bombardment. It is, doubtless, the object of the French, to induce Lord Wellington to change his ground; but his Lordfhip's determination is rather to let it fall, than be drawn from his advantageous pofition.—The French have not increafed in numbers and yet they are ftill extremely deficient in provifions. Bread is very fcarce with them. Our army wants nothing but what the French poffefs—numbers.

Another letter from Lisbon, dated July 4 fays :—"Ciudad Rodrigo is closely inveſted by Ney, with an army of 25,000 men—10,000 of them are on this fide the Aguadai and the remainder are poſted to the North. The garrison makes desperate ſallies, particularly that on the 26th ult. in which we are told the French loſt near 700 men. It is impoſſible to get any proviſions into the town, but fortunately at preſent none are wanted. The Spaniards behave like heroes; and although the place muſt ſurrender, it will coſt the enemy very dear. His object is to draw off Lord Wellington into the plain."

July 19.

No official account have been received of the fall of Ciudad Rodrigo, but it is believed to have been taken on the 5th. It is ſaid that an order from the head quarters of the Britiſh army, directing every man fit for actual ſervice to be immediately marched to the frontiers, had reached Lisbon on the 7th.—In conſequence the remains of the 83d regiment, together with two regiments of militia, conſiſting of about 2,500 men, were preparing to march. The garriſoning of the city was to be entruſted to the Toradores, amounting to 5000 young gentlemen, ſons of perſons of property, who have been trained as ſharp ſhooters.

The Ruſſians continue their progreſs in Turkey, and the capture of the ſtrong fortreſs of Siliſtria has opened Bulgaria to their armies—the next province is that which contains the capital, and if Bonaparte interfere not, and ſay to the Preſect of Peterſburg, "It is my pleaſure that you go no further," the Ruſſian arms under the weakeſt of her monarchs, will realize the deſires, and accompliſh the policy of Catharine, and the deſcendents of the barbarous Dukes of Ruſſia will ſit down upon the Throne of Conſtantine.——And this will be congenial with the ſpirit and events of the times, in which we have ſeen a Mediterranean Mulatto wade his way to the Throne of the moſt poliſhed people upon the Continent, and "the eternal City" conquered, and added to the dominions of this modern Alaric.

It will ſurpriſe us, however, if he ſuffer Alexander to complete the conqueſt of Turkey, and make himſelf maſter of Conſtantinople.—From the Boſphorus to the Baltic, from the Atlantic to the Black ſea, he will endeavor to enlarge his Empire, and having already extended it over as large a ſpace almoſt as was occupied by the arms of Charlemagne, he will attempt to effect what Charlemagne could not or did not effect, and add the City of Conſtantinople to his other poſſeſſions—He or his parasites have ſondly be ſtowed upon him the appellation of the modern Charlemagne—perhaps it may be ignorance or blindneſs on our parts, that prevents us from diſcerning many features of reſemblance between them. There is one, however, which is very ſtriking, in drawing the character of Charlemagne, Gibbon ſays: the ſedentary reader is amazed by the inceſſant activity of mind and body;—and his ſubjects and enemies were not leſs aſtoniſhed at his ſudden preſence, at the moment when they believe him at the moſt diſtant extremity of the Empire; neither peace nor war nor ſummer nor winter, were a ſeaſon of repoſe; and our fancy cannot eaſily reconcile the annals of his reign with the geography of his expeditions."

July 24.

The reports of Louis having proceeded to Tonningen, for the purpoſe of taking a paſſage to America are unfounded. Letters from Holland of ſo late a date as Friday, mention, that it was aſcertained the Ex King had gone to join his brother Jerome at Caſſel.

We have ſatisfaction to announce, that notwithſtanding the reſtraints attempted to be impoſed on the trade of the Baltic, a fleet of 240 ſail has arrived from that ſea.

Our laſt letters from Malta contain the following melancholy article of naval intelligence which we truſt, may prove, if not unfounded, at leaſt conſiderably exaggerated:—"A few days ſince, juſt after the hands of his Majeſty's ſhip Repulſe, of 74 guns, capt. J. Halliday has been piped on deck, a vivid sheet of lightning paſſed along it, and ſtruck near 100 men inſtantaneously dead! We have not heard of the leaſt accident betalling any other ſhip on that ſtation."

Miniſters have entered into an engagement for eſtabliſhing a permanent expreſs between London and Holyhead—the diſtance of 279 miles is to be performed in 27 hours, at 9d per mile, or about 2000l. per annum. The mail performs the ſame journey in 42 hours, making a difference of 15 hours in favor of the expreſs.

Major General Sir Ewan Baſilie, lately returned from India, had the honor of preſenting to the Prince of Wales, a couple of curious Mouſe Deer, the contraſt of the American Deer in point of ſize and delicate form. These beautiful little animals are not more than 12 inches high, and a perfect ſpotted deer in all reſpects. They were bred on the Thibet mountains, and arrived in perfect health laſt week at Charlton Houſe.

Bucharest, June 8.

The fortreſs of Turkey was carried by ſtorm on the 1ſt inſt. by the Ruſſian General of Cavalry Von Saſz. Upon this occaſion, a number of ſtandards, 11 pieces of cannon, and all the magazines fell into the hands of the Ruſſians. Count Sievers, Lieut. Genl. Prince Wuarmkoy, and Major Miſchow, particularly diſtinguiſhed themſelves. General Saſz is at preſent in front of Rudſchuck, the ſurrender of which is expected every moment.

St. Peterſburgh, June 24.

The day before yeſterday, Te Deum was ſung here for the late victory over the Turks, and for the reduction of Siliſtria; 67 ſtandards and colours were carried at the head of the troops on the parade.

The particulars of the taking of Siliſtria are ſoon expected to be made public, and we are alſo in expectation of intelligence of a general engagement with the Grand Vizier's army, which according to the poſitions of both armies, appears to be inevitable.

June 26.

On the 22d of this month, Te Deum was ſung in all our Churches, on account of the capture of the fortreſs of Siliſtria. The keys of the gate of that important fortreſs were brought here on the 21ſt inſtant, by a courier. When the Pacha, who commanded in Siliſtria, was ſummoned, he returned for anſwer, that they would rather ſee the moon drop from the ſtars than witneſs his ſurrender; but on the 12th of June, after a heavy bombardment, which laſted three hours, and during which time, 3000 bombs, and red-hot balls were thrown into the place, he found himſelf compelled to ſurrender the fortreſs. On the 14th inſt. the Ruſſian General in Chief, Count Kamensky, put himſelf in motion for Schumla; a corps of the army has been detached to Sciſtria.

Extract of a letter from Bucharst, dated June 8.

"Count Kamensky, who is at the head of an army of 100,000 men, in Wallachia, Moldavia, and Bessarabia, has opened the campaign in a moſt brilliant manner, and in a way that does him infinite honor. The Ruſsians have paſſed the Danube, and entered Bulgaria. They have rendered themſelves maſters of all the important places which are at the mouth of the Danube."

Vienna, June, 26.

For ſome days paſt, there has been a briſk exchange of couriers between Vienna and Paris.——The frequent interviews of the Miniſters of both nations, and the repeated ſittings of the Privy Council, lead to a ſuppoſition that affairs of the greateſt importance are on the tapis. It is reported that his Majeſty has received important diſpatches from Paris, the contents of which are moſt ſatisfactory with regard to our Monarchy.

It is confidently aſſerted, that our government has made repreſentations to that of Ruſſia, on the ſubject of the meaſures lately adopted in Wallachia reſpecting the Auſtrians reſident there. Another object of theſe objects is ſaid to be the reſtitution of our commercial relations with that province, to their former footing.

June 27.

The Ruſſian army has obtained a great victory over the Turks, on the right bank of the Danube, near Siliſtria.—The Grand Vizier had repulſed Mount Hemus, and fallen back to Adrianople. The ſurrender of Siliſtria is probably the cauſe of this movement.

July 1.

Letters from Wallacia, ſtate, that the Ruſsians gained another deciſive victory, on the 16th of June, over the Turks. Ismael Bey, and Prince Kalimachi, with 4,000 men, are ſaid to be taken priſoners. The Turks beſides had 10,000 killed and wounded. The Ruſſian corps that croſſed the Danube, ſome time before at Hirſowa, make a great progreſs.

London, July 24.

The reinforcements going out to Lord Wellington, we underſtand, amount to 10,000 men. It is thought that in the event of the Britiſh army being obliged to evacuate Portugal, it will not return to England, but be landed upon ſome other part of the peninſula.

Three hundred houſes were on the 9th of May, deſtroyed at Newhaſel, in Hungary, by the exploſion of a powder magazine.—Eighty perſons loſt their lives, and nearly 200 were dug out of the ruins alive, but mutilated and dreadfully bruiſed.

The Diario of Tarragona of the 8th ult. contains a Proclamation, announcing the arrival of the Duke of Orleans, which has been tranſlated into French, and Italian, in order to its circulation in the enemy's armies. It is in the following terms:—

Arrival of the Duke of Orleans in Spain.

"Since the infamous tranſaction at Bayonne, a town of Spain poſſeſſes for the firſt time a Prince of the auguſt Houſe of her Kings.—Tarragona has received him with the greateſt enthuſiaſm.—On every ſide are conſtantly heard vivas, and the moſt ſincere and loyal acclamations, ſuch as the preſence of a relative of Ferdinand VII. ought to excite.——An immenſe multitude haſtened to meet this auguſt Prince, beſtowing on him their benedictions and good wiſhes. Tarragona is proud of this honour, and could only be conſoled for loſing him ſo ſoon by the hope that the nation in general, and Catalonia in particular, will ſoon reap the fruits of the zeal with which this gallant deſcendant of ſo many Sovereigns is animated for our cauſe. Frenchmen, Officers and Soldiers, who perſecute him in ſpite of yourſelves (for he is alſo yours who, born to obey only the laws of a legitimate Government, muſt deteſt a vile Uſurper, who attempts to metamorphoſe brave men into robbers and murderers, into the baſe inſtruments of his crimes and tyranny.——French Soldiers, who, touched with the voice of a generous nation of a people faithful to their God, their King, and their promiſes, would unite with us under the ſtandard of the unfortunate Ferdinand VII. you have now, in the perſon of the Duke of Orleans, a protector, friend, and parent, connected with the Government of Spain. You, who have not been the firſt to repair to us, by this honorable deſertion, haſten now, and rely doubly upon us.—Rely on a Bourbon, who, bleſſed by Heaven, and aided by you, will reſtore you to your ancient virtues—to that chivalrous renown in war, and urbanity in peace, which formerly cauſed you to be beloved in thoſe very places where the monſter who governs you has rendered you the objects of too juſt a horror. May thoſe days once more return! and may peace, the celeſtial fruit of our efforts, be reſtored to our auguſt temples, to our families, our property, and to all Europe!"

BOSTON, Sept. 3.

Latest from Liverpool.——Early yeſterday morning arrived in this port, the ſhip Lothair, capt. R. Glover, in 34 days from Liverpool, having London papers to the 28th of July, and Liverpool to the 30th.

A report had prevailed that the Emperor Bonaparte was about viſiting Spain; but by the laſt accounts he was firſt expected in his new province, Holland.

Bonaparte is again making every preparation in his power to fit out a large naval force, from the ſeveral ports of France and Holland, and is ſuppoſed to calculate on the aid of Ruſſia, Sweden and Denmark.

The Queen Regent of Holland has not aſſumed her authority. With this unfortunate woman, her brother, the abandoned deſpot of Europe, had long indulged in an inceſtuous intercourſe; and for this purpoſe ſhe was kept neat him and abſent from her huſband. But ſince the Emperor's laſt marriage, ſhe has been forbidden his preſence;—and gone to Plomiers, where report ſays, ſhe died ſuddenly. Another account ſtates that ſhe was ſick, and believed herſelf poiſoned by ſome of her late paramour's emiſſaries.

An important battle has been reported to have taken place between the Ruſsians and Turks, terminating in the defeat of the latter. It is certain, ſay the Engliſh papers, that Turkiſh Couriers have arrived at Paris, and it was ſuppoſed for the purpoſe of ſoliciting the mediation of the Emperor.

London, July 28.

"Government have received the following intelligence. Captain Maurice of the Arathuſa, having on the 25th ult. had a communication with the Junta of Gallacia and Aſturias, took on board his ſhip and other veſſels, 500 Spaniards, under a Spaniſh general, and ſcouted the whole coaſt of Spain from Bayonne to Cape Ortegal. He deſtroyed two hundred Frenchmen, ſpiked 100 pieces of cannon, and took Cantano, but was unable to make himſelf maſter of Caſtras. All this was effected with the loſs of a man. The Spaniſh force we took on board was increaſed by 300 Spaniards who were reſcued from the enemy during this daſhing expedition.

Extract of a letter from Rotterdam, July 28.

"All young men in Rotterdam are going for ſoldiers. The Department for Foreign affairs will be done away, and the Naval Department receive that name. All the new officers of State are to be French.

French "Parental affection."——The French provincial government in Holland has already given a proof of that "parental affection" which according to Campagny's letter, the inhabitants of Holland are to derive from the annexation of their country to France. The fiſheries from which thouſands derive their ſubſiſtence, are ſubjected to a code of regulations dictated by the groſſeſt ignorance, or moſt unfeeling tyranny. According to one of theſe, a French ſoldier is to be put on board of every boat going to fiſh, of which the maſter is ſuſpected of engaging in clandeſtine trade; and if he ſhould be taken, a general embargo is to take place throughout Holland.

Several perſons who have arrived from the Dutch coaſt, in the courſe of the laſt two days, ſtate that Bonaparte was ſhortly expected at Amſterdam. His viſit was ſuppoſed to be for the purpoſe of inſpecting the armament before its departure.

Accounts from Holland ſtate, that the conſcription for the ſupply of the quota of troops to be furniſhed by Holland, and the recruiting for the National guard, which meaſures were to have been carried into execution immediately, had been poſtponed at the requeſt of the Hollanders, until the commencement of the new year. The Royal Guard conſiſting of 5000 men, had been marched from Amſterdam into France, from whence it was to proceed with all convenient ſpeed to reinforce the armies in Spain. Great anxiety has been expreſſed by Bonaparte, that the Dutch navy ſhould be put in a condition for ſervice, but little progreſs had been made in the buſineſs. The fleet at Antwerp, of about eleven ſail of the line were not ready for ſea, and five ſail of the line at Maydenburg, which was to have been equipped by the firſt of this month, were not nearly completed. Three of them were without maſts, and no timber was at hand to ſupply the deficiency. Seven men of war, however, riding in the Amſtel, were manned, rigged and fitted out, and were to be placed under the command of Admiral De Winter, who was at Amberdam, making arrangements for the future management of the marine.—The Prince of Placentia, and the Duke of Reggio, were alſo at the ſame capital, and were engaged with great aſſiduity in the formation of plans for the internal government of Holland. The Douaniers on the coaſt had been nearly doubled, and in every ſituation where a plank could be floated, these Cuſtom Houſe Agents made their appearance.

A Liverpool paper of July 25th, after deſcribing the late meaſures of Bonaparte, deſtroying every veſtige of national character and government among the Dutch, adds the following juſt and intereſting obſervations:

"The hatred of Bonaparte will be gratified; but the only happineſs the Dutch will receive from this event, will be the loſs of their commercial character, and the aſſumption of the military one. Their commerce is to be annihilated; a fleet, fifty ſail of the line, is to be equipped out of their ruined reſources before the examination of another year; the Dutch ſeamen here to be employed in merchant veſſels, will be tranſferred to ſhips of war, and a naval and military conſcription preſs the force of the country into the actual ſervice of their new Emperor, to diſpute with Great Britain the Sovereignty of the Sea." Such is her happineſs—the happineſs of ſtarving and bleeding for a tyrant, who has not ſcrupled to ſay how much he hates them!

"Thus fall the fair famed United Provinces.—After exiſting for near three centuries in a ſtate of independence, purchaſed by the rivers of blood and life of the moſt devoted patriotiſm, giving birth to ſome of the moſt illuſtrious warriors, ſtateſmen and philoſophers; exhibiting to the world the wonderful effects of commerce nurſed by the political freedom, in raiſing an inſignificant ſpot of ground, not ſufficient in its produce for the maintenance of its inhabitants, to the rank of a firſt rate power; often having taken an active part during that time in the great concerns of Europe, and been courted or feared by its moſt powerful ſtates, they now ſink, without a ſtruggle, into the vortex of French ambition conquered leſs by force than by their own diviſions, the influence of republican principles and of republican religion; thus opening the door to French intrigue from which they have never been able to diſentangle themſelves."

NEW-YORK, September 7.

The London Courier ſtates that a general conſternation prevails throughout every part of Holland. As ſoon as the fact of the annexation was communicated, every thing bore the moſt diſmal aſpect, and a melancholy gloom prevaded every countenance. The funds inſtantly dropped 15 per cent. with every proſpect of a ſtill greater depreſſion immediately taking place.

The former reports from Holland reſpecting the ſecret departure of Louis, is repeated in letters received yeſterday from thence. The manner in which it was affected was thus repreſented:—His Majeſty was at Amſterdam on the 1ſt inſt. and tranſacted the buſineſs of government as uſual. In the evening he departed for his palace at Haerlem, where he had appointed a ſecret party of friends to meet him.—The company broke up between 11 and 12 o'clock; ſoon after which he is ſaid to have left the palace on a private door, accompanied by a general officer of the name of Travers, and a man ſervant. A plain carriage waited for them in the adjacent wood, into which they entered and drove off. From that time no accounts had been received reſpecting the royal fugitive. It was however the general opinion among the Dutch, that he proceeded to Tonningen.

Four new ſhips of the line have been added to the Britiſh Navy within the laſt ſeven days viz. the Queen Charlotte,, of 120 guns, lately launched at Deptford; the Impregnable, of 90 at Chatham; the Conqueſtadore, of 74, at Buckler's Yard, and the Conqueror, of 74 at Portſmouth.—The keels of four other ſhips of equal dimenſions and force, are ordered immediately to be laid on the ſame ſlips.—London paper of July 21.

The Moniteur of the 9th inſt. mentions the death of the celebrated Montgolfier (the firſt who diſcovered the principles of aereoſtation and aſcended in a balloon,) at Balaric, where he went for the benefit of the baths, on the 26th of June, in the 70th year of his age.—Lon. Pap.

PORTUGAL.

LISBON, July 28.

Letters from Almeida of the 25th advise, that the Fort Conception was evacuated because it could not be of any use to the enemy. On the 21st instant there was some skirmishing at the advanced posts, and we took eleven prisoners. Part of Regnier's division has joined Massena, but the rest still remain in the neighborhood of Coria.

We learn by letters from Manzanera of the 5th inst. that the celebrated Mina lately attacked and defeated a column of French troops in Rioja, and took 690 prisoners.

Letters from Badajoz of the 23d instant state, that the enemy lost a great number of his men through desertion on his retreat through the said province, and that a detachment of Spanish cavalry had entered Truxillo.—Lisbon Gazette.

July 29.

Regnier has crossed the Tagus at Almeida, in order to join Massena. General Hill, has also crossed at Valla Velha, to join Lord Wellington. The French have invested Almeida on the Spanish side. General Crawford has had an affair with a very superior body of the enemy, in which he lost 270 men, and 15 officers; five of the officers were killed, and ten wounded; our men behaved gallantly, and destroyed many of the enemy. The Seventh Regiment, full 1000 strong, all uncommon fine men, landed here from Halifax yesterday; they came in the Milan, Swiftsure, and other vessels.

Badajoz, July 21.

The rear guard of the division of Regnier left Truxillo on the night of the 17th; passed the Tagus at the Olmarez on the 18th.

The corps which it had placed in Caceris and Montanche, which likewise crossed the Tagus the same day, took the road to Calcadadi Orspiza, which the artillery and part of the troops that had entered, had already left for Talavera de la Reyna, saying that they were going to Madrid.

The enemy has left no troops in Almaraz, and they have rendered useless the boats by which they passed.

On the 18th marched by Perales, a body of cavalry and infantry, of the division of Regnier, which on the day before had passed the night in Coria, which, the moment it left it, was entered by another corps. It is said that 5000 men passed in boats at Alconeta, the rear guard of which was attacked at the time of its passage by the party of Bustamante, who killed a number of men.

General Hill likewise passed the Tagus at Villa Velha, and has his head quarters at Castello Branco. The French who were in the kingdom of Granada, and Cordova, are uniting in Andujar: and those who were in Seville, and the County of Niebla, in San Lucar, de Alpechin, Umbzete, Espalina, Mairena, &c.

The Spanish parties who are pursuing the enemy, are in Almaraz and Mirabete.

Braganza, July 15.

The enemy continue to make demonstrations as if they intended to pass the Douro at Lagaaga and Frelixo; though perhaps the true point of attack may be different.—Kellerman is endeavoring to unite his division at Benevente.

Cadiz, July 13.

On the 29th of last month the enemy evacuated Cuenza, and retreated to Ayles by the way of Tarauvon.

LONDON, July 30.

Paris and German Papers have arrived to the 23d—They inform us that another victory has been gained by the Russians over the Turks.

The intelligence from Spain continues to proclaim the unbroken spirit and active efforts of the Patriots. They have lately made several attempts upon the city of Leon, and Astorga; and though the enemy boasts of having defeated them in every encounter, yet, they unwillingly acknowledge the perseverance and courage which pervade every part of that noble nation.

Bonaparte is expected to visit Amsterdam immediately after he has celebrated the anniversary of his birth at Paris. He has ordered his son by Madame Louis Bonaparte to be sent from Holland to Paris. It is this young gentleman for whom the Duchy of Berg is destined if Bonaparte's system should last, (good Days ever at!) till he is old enough to take upon himself the reins of government, Louis himself is wandering from place to place. From Neundorff he went to Cassel, reluctantly as we understand. He had intended to proceed to the Coast, in hopes of having an opportunity of making his escape.—Finding however this impracticable, he went to Cassel, the residence of his brother Jerome. We shall probably hear of him no more. Bonaparte will order him into confinement; and in one of the state prisons in France he may be destined to linger out the remainder of his life.

By a gentleman who left Rotterdam, on Tuesday, we have some interesting details of the situation of the new territories of France North of the Maese. Besides the Royal guard of Louis, all the Dutch troops in Rotterdam, Haarlem, Utrecht, and some other places, had been marched into France on their way to Spain. The number might be estimated at between 12 and 15,000. About 2000 officers of police were to be appointed with special powers and authority, at any time to enter the dwellings, warehouses, or other buildings of the natives, for the seizure of all property suspected to have come from this country. Temporary regulations were in progress to prevent any of the inhabitants from quitting the city without giving previous notice of the object and direction of their journey.

The Gazette of Saturday contains the interesting dispatches from Captain Mds. and Aylmer relative to the successful scouring expedition along the Spanish coast, from St. Sebastian to St. Andero, in co-operation with the Spanish General Porlier, in which the whole of the enemy's batteries were destroyed, and their cannon spiked. We cannot too strongly recommend a vigorous perseverance in this species of warfare, as eminently calculated to harrass the enemy, and render their conquests of little or no avail, provided the Spaniards duly cultivate the advantages which they cannot fail to derive from them. Speaking of the present important exploit, Captain Mends says—"Having by our landing at Santona induced the enemy to abandon several positions in the interior, as well as on the sea-coast, in order to collect a sufficient force to prevent our continuing in possession of that place, I shall be happy to find that the armies of Asturias, and of the Mountains of St. Andero, have been put in motion, during the absence of the French, which was the principle agreed upon between the Junta of Asturias and myself, but as yet I have no information on that head."

Latest from England.—By the fast sailing ship Robert Burns, Captain Parsons, which arrived this afternoon in 30 days from Liverpool, we have received London papers to the 11th of August.—From which, the following extracts are given:

LONDON, Aug. 2.

Dispatches from Sicily.—This morning Col. Bunbury, belonging to the Staff of the British army in Sicily, arrived at Ld. Liverpool's office, in Downing-Street, with the agreeable intelligence that the attempts made by the French and Italian army on the shores of Calabria, to invade Sicily, had been almost totally frustrated. Their fleet of transports has been dispersed by the gallant exertions of our tars on that station; seven vessels have fallen into our hands, with 3000 troops on board, and several have been driven on shore & destroyed.

August 11.

We received this morning letters from our Correspondent at Lisbon, and papers to the 30th ult. and accounts from Lord Wellington's head-quarters to the 26th. They are extremely interesting: though no battle had taken place—It was the general opinion, however, that it could not be delayed many days. Our army is in the best health and spirits, abundantly provided, and anxious to meet the enemy. Massena seemed to be concentrating his whole force in front of Lord Wellington. He is waiting for Regnier's division which breaking up from Truxillo, had crossed the Tagus at Ville Velhe about the same time, with Gen. Hill, who was on his way to join Lord Wellington. Our private Correspondent mentions a report prevalent at Lisbon on the 29th, of his having flanked Regnier, but adds that the report had not been confirmed. We are not accurately acquainted with the strength of these two corps. It was said that General Hill had 15,000 men, and Regnier 26 000. If that be the fact, the former will no doubt make all possible haste to join the main army, without attempting to flank or attack Regnier. The latter on the other hand, might be expected to attempt flanking the former, and thus interpose between him and the main army. But if he has any such intention, he does not seem likely to execute it, if the two Generals crossed the Tagus about the same time, for the distance from Alcantara to Castel Branco is much greater than the distance from Villa Velhe to Castel Branco.

London, Aug. 4.

Some more transports with troops, have sailed for Lisbon, to join Lord Wellington's army. It is said that his Lordship has requested a reinforcement of 20,00 men before he ventures an engagement with Massena. We do not, however, think that much credit is due to this rumour.—The report of a general action on the 19th and 20th is now entirely exploded.

August 6.

Some German papers have been received this morning, from which we have made some extracts—among them is a letter from Paris, which states that the Ex-Minister of Police, Fouche, the Duke of Otranto, has fixed his residence at Aix in Provence, in France.—It thus appears that his appointment to the government of Rome was merely nominal, and that he has actually fallen into disgrace. The Ex-King of Holland is expected to remain in Bohemia for some time. He calls himself Mr. De St. Lea.

We have received Paris papers to the 29th ult. and Dutch to the 3d inst. The latter contains an official account of the fall of Ciudad Rodrigo. It surrendered at discretion at the moment when the enemy were preparing to storm the place. So far the report differs from the former accounts, which state that the French had offered terms of capitulation, which were accepted. The governor apprised that Lord Wellington would take no attempt to relieve it, would have surrendered sooner, but was prevented by the habitants. The loss of the besieged, including the citizens and garrison, is estimated at upwards of 2000 killed and wounded. The loss of the French is not mentioned.

The Russians are said to have been defeated in a general engagement with the army of the Grand Vizier.—Reports to this effect were prevalent at Vienna and Temeswar, but they are of too vague a character to command much credit.

August 9.

Parliament is prorogued to the 1st November.—Unless some extraordinary business should occur to render an earlier meeting necessary, a further prorogation is expected to take place; and, as in case of the two last Sessions, it will not meet until the latter end of January next.

We have received Paris papers to the 3d inst. Bonaparte and his Empress remained in the vicinity of that city, where he divides his time between pleasure and business. The report of his intended visit to the Spanish peninsula has died away, and the task of driving the English into the sea in that quarter, will no doubt be left to his generals. That in the execution of this task, however, they proceed but slowly, might be inferred from the Paris papers, had we no other authority. They do not contain a single line respecting the affairs of Spain and Portugal, a pretty plain proof that nothing has occurred since the fall of Ciudad Rodrigo, which French ingenuity could prevent, or French gasconade magnify into an advantage.

The Emperor of Austria has effected an almost total change in his Cabinet Council: Count Zichy is to be at the head of the martial department. He possesses the entire confidence of his Sovereign, and was principally instrumental in effecting the change, which is stated to afford great satisfaction to his people.

August 10.

It is stated in private letters, that during the last month, no troops had passed through France in the direction of Spain. The general opinion at Paris was, that the war in that country would be much protracted. New orders had been given for the speedy equipment of the fleet in the Scheldt and the Texel.

Much observation has been made on a proposed arrangement for commercial intercourse between Great Britain and France; and it has been said, that a gentleman has just arrived in London from the Chamber of Commerce at Paris, to facilitate such a purpose.

It is said that the enemy are making vigorous preparations at Boulogne and the other ports from thence to Cherburgh, and that a number of vessels are constructing on an entire new principle, for the conveyance and exercise of heavy artillery.

It is said that an officer of some rank lately deserted from Massena's army, and that the information which he gave was so important, that Lord Wellington thought it right to send him to England, and he is at present in London.

Extract of a letter from Cadiz, dated July 10.

"Nothing of importance has occurred in this place since my last, excepting the small and repeated attacks on the enemy, which have been all favorable to the patriotic arms, among which the following is worthy of notice. It being known that the great Napoleon was casting mortars at Seville of an uncommon size, to throw shells into Cadiz, a party entered Seville on a very dark night, penetrated as far as the Cannon Foundery, spiked a great number of guns, destroyed all the moulds, blew up a powder magazine, and then retired with great tranquility. Another party entered Madrid by the gate called la Puerta de Recoletos, surprised the French guard that was stationed there, who were all made prisoners; they proceeded as far as the street of Alcala, and returned without having sustained the least loss."

From the London Gazette, August 11.

DOWNING STREET, Aug. 11.

A dispatch of which the following is an extract, was this morning received at Lord Liverpool's Office, addressed to his Lordship by Lieutenant General Viscount Wellington, dated Alvarez, July 25, 1810.

The cavalry attached to General Crauford's advanced guard remained in the villages near the Fort of La Conception till the 21st inst. when the enemy obliged it to retire towards Almeida, and the Fort La Conception was destroyed.

From the 21st till yesterday morning, Brigadier-General Crawford continued to occupy a position near Almeida, with his left, within 800 yards of the Fort, and his right extending towards Junca.—The enemy attacked him in this position yesterday morning, shortly after day light, with a very large body of infantry and cavalry, and the Briga. Gen. retired across the bridge over the Coa.

In this operation I am sorry to say that the troops under his command suffered considerable loss.

The enemy afterwards made three efforts to storm the bridge over the Coa, in all of which they were repulsed.

I am informed that throughout this trying day the Commanding officers of the 43d, 52d, and 95th regiment, Lieut. Col. Beckwith, Lt. Col. Barclay, and Lieut. Col. Hull, and all the officers and soldiers of these excellent regiments distinguished themselves. In Lt. Col. Hull, who was killed, his Majesty has lost an able and deserving officer.

Brigadier General Crauford has also noticed the steadiness of the 3d regiment of Portuguese chasseurs, under the command of Lt. Colonel Eder.

Since yesterday the enemy here made no movement.

Copy of Gen. Crauford's Report, inclosed in Lord Wellington's Dispatch of the 25th July.

CARVALHAL, July 25.

My Lord.

I have the honor to report to your Lordship, that yesterday morning the enemy advanced to attack the right division between 3 and 4000 cavalry, a considerable number of guns, and a large body of infantry. On the first appearance of the heads of their columns, the cavalry and brigade of artillery attached to the division advanced to support the picquet, and Capt. Ross, with 4 guns, was for some time engaged with those attached to the enemy's cavalry, which were of much larger calibre.

As the immense superiority of the enemy's force displayed itself, we fell back gradually towards the fortress, upon the right of which the infantry of the division was posted, having its left in some inclosures near the windmill, about 800 yards from the place, and its right to the Coa, in a very broken and extensive position, which it was absolutely necessary to occupy, in order to cover the passage of the cavalry and artillery through the long defile leading to the bridge. After this was effected, the infantry retired by degrees, and in as good order as is possible in ground so extremely intricate. A position close in front of the bridge was maintained as long as was necessary, to give time to the troops which had passed to take up one behind the river: and the bridge was afterwards defended with the greatest gallantry, though I am sorry to say with considerable loss, by the 43d and part of the 95th regiment. Towards the afternoon the firing ceased; and after it was dark I withdrew the troops from the Coa, and retired to this place. The troops behaved with the greatest gallantry.

(Signed) R. CRAUFURD.

To Lord Viscount Wellington, &c.

Those returned as prisoners and missing were taken in charge of the enemy's cavalry just after our cavalry and guns had begun to retire.

New-York, Sept. 19.

The British frigate Venus, with Mr. Jackson and suite on board, sailed from this port yesterday for England.

On Friday arrived at Philadelphia, schr. Daphne, Lark, from Lisbon, which he left the 24th of August, at which time there were no further accounts than already mentioned. A large fleet of ships of war and transports, lay in the Tagus. A general action was expected on the 16th, being the birth day of Bonaparte, who had given positive orders to Massena to be at Lisbon by the 30th August, and be crowned King of Portugal.

Latest Foreign News.

New York, September 25.

London dates, one day later than those mentioned in our last, were received last evening, by the ship Remittance, capt. Maddox, in 30 days from Liverpool.—As little as this arrival furnishes in addition to our former stock of foreign intelligence, it gives a brief article, which, if it prove to be true, cannot fail to excite a lively emotion throughout this country. We allude to the assertion that "an Envoy from the U. States, to succeed Gen. Armstrong, has arrived in France." It has often been said that General Armstrong was extremely desirous to return to his native country, and had communicated his wishes to our Government. Under ordinary circumstances, therefore, that a successor to him should be appointed, that he should leave this country, and arrive in France, would all be deemed, "a mere matter of course business." But, situated as our affairs with France were, at the time the new Envoy must have left this country, it is really a matter of surprise, that the executive should have so far forgotten the interest and dignity of our country, as to send higher a new Agent of any grade. And when we add to this the secrecy with which the affair must have been conducted, it becomes, indeed, a subject of suspicion and alarm.

Spanish affairs.—On this subject, the London Courier of the 17th of August, gives the following interesting remarks:—

"The last view taken in the Moniteur of the operations of the French armies in Spain, was by no means in that style of boast and confidence to which we have been accustomed. Bonaparte no longer takes up the pen himself, as he was wont, to write upon the affairs of Spain. He never was so backward before in inspecting and directing military operations in person. He seems not to like to turn his eyes towards Spain, and instead of approaching that country, or going to Bayonne as was announced, we find him preparing for a journey to Amsterdam. But to Great Britain the struggle of the Patriots becomes more and more interesting, and assumes every day a greater aspect. It stamps upon Spaniards a deeper character of honour, and upon the Banditti of France a deeper character of shame. At the beginning of the contest when Spain had large armies, she sunk below our expectations.—Her ardour brought her too early into the field, he novel situation originated serious faults, and her untried leaders betrayed her.—That the heart of Spain was good, under these circumstances, subsequent events have proved. We now no longer hear of traitors, they have been unmasked by the ordeal of danger; the confidence of the military is restored, and the meets every danger with an undaunted eye, with the look of resolution, and the tone of defiance. If indeed any thing could break the spirit of the people, they have been put to the test. In the field they have sustained little but defeat, in the cabinet they have been paralized by imbecility and dissensions, individuals have betrayed them, one British army has been driven out of the country, a war which took off the pressure of the invaders force was terminated in his favour, and the subsequent peace with Austria let loose upon them all his legions. As a consequence the heretofore unassailed southern Provinces were penetrated, the passes of their protecting mountains were forced. Cadiz itself invested, and every Province so interfered with hostile divisions as to intercept communication, and prevent all unity of effort.—Yet under all these adverse circumstances, hope still allures them by its promises, the manly spirit rises above its pressures, and the want of co operation is supplied by partial and individual exertions. On no part of the peninsula can the eye be placed, where the consecrated word of patriotism does not gleam upon the usurper. Cadiz rests secure in its defence and courage.—In all the south eastern provinces the enemy finds it necessary to increase its forces: in Gallacia and Asturias armies are organizing, and even in the very centre of the country, within the precincts of the new government, in the very rear of the French army, innumerable flying bodies intercept his convoys and obstruct his communications. The numerous intercepted letters of French Generals, lately published, are in proof of the activity of this kind of warfare, and the too confirm by their statements the harrassed state of their own troops, and the universal hatred the Spanish bear them.

This is the present state of Spain, and it speaks its own praise. How far it augurs ultimate success, is a distinct consideration. Bonaparte has no choice between entire conquest and dishonor; his whole military fame, the very preponderance of France, is involved in the contest. Before he will relinquish, he will bury half his army in the soil. He is at peace too with the Continent, the greater part of his immense military establishment is disposable, and we accordingly find that he is pouring in his reinforcements.

"But there is a reverse representation which is more pleasing and not less just to contemplate.

If we admit, for argument sake, that the British army will be under the necessity of embarking, it may not at least be forced to that measure immediately. The main army of the French will be drawn to the shores of Portugal, but their rear will be endangered by the Gallician army, and it any great activity be found in the officers of that army, they will have in that instance the power either of diverting a part of Massena's force, or of seriously endangering it.—But suppose that we allow Portugal is abandoned, and the principal places in Spain all occupied by the French, even then the subjugation is not complete.—The work is in fact but half done. The fortresses in Spain, if defended with equal spirit to that shewn in many places will not be achieved in a day. A laborious warfare is still before the enemy, and his very marches, in so many places intersected by mountains and strewed with defiles, cannot be made without continual fighting and daily loss. The geography of the country is in the favor of patriotic defence. Nature itself comes to the aid of the Spaniard, and invites him by the difficulties she presents to invaders to take his stand upon her shelving rocks, and to guard the passes which she has scarcely opened.——But when all these objects are attained, and if they be attained it will be by an awful waste of life, what will Spain be rendered but a vast garrison, too large to be defended at every point, and at some always exposed to surprise or direct attack:—The heart of the people will be still Spanish. No power can make it French.—The antipathies of six centuries, deepened by recent unparalleled injuries into deadly hate, are not to be overcome. Spain cannot be covered by French troops, and where French troops are not in overwhelming numbers, there, experience has taught us, Spanish troops will be found. There the inhabitants will fly to arms. The very oppressions of the French will multiply the number from those very places which they may possess themselves of. Their contributions will reduce numbers to poverty, and poverty will produce desperation; their conscription laws will be enforced, and the youth of Spain, seeing no alternative between fighting in a foreign country to promote the ambitious projects of the enemy, and fighting at home to avenge the miseries inflicted in their native land, will not hesitate on their choice.—Constant and long continued warfare must, therefore, be the result of the utmost success of the French. How many hopes arise of this result. The dissatisfaction of the French soldiery, the desertion of the foreigners in their pay, the rapid reduction of the French armies, now opening in different parts of the coast for the co-operation of Great Britain, the possibility of new military events taking place in the mean time on the Continent, and the general relaxation of the military strength of France."

London, August 14.

Dispatches were received this morning at the Admiralty, from Sir C. Cotton.—We understand they state, that the Dey of Algiers has declared war against France and that all English ships taken by the Algerines are to be restored immediately.

Fresh disturbances have broke out in the Tyrol.

August 18.

A Gottenburgh mail arrived this morning—The King of Denmark has offered himself as successor to the Throne of Sweden—an offer at which the Swedes are disgusted.

"Stockholm, July 30.

"I informed you in my last, that his Danish Majesty had offered himself as successor to the Crown Prince; engaging in the event of his succeeding to the crown to make this capital his principal residence. Since then a paper has been circulated with much industry, pointing out the advantages which would entue from an union of the three crowns of Denmark, Norway, and Sweden. Although the sophistry of this paper should not be too palpable to make it rejected by every good Swede, yet the recent example of the union of Holland to France, and the benefits which have followed in consequence, would be an inducement ample enough for us to resist, by every means in our power, a connexion so abhorrent to those loyal and patriotic policies which we have ever displayed."

August 20.

A conspiracy against the life of Bonaparte is said to have been discovered at Breda, and two of the principal persons engaged in it arrested.

It is understood that Sir Francis Laforey is to succeed in the command at the Leeward Islands, in the room of Sir Alexander Cochrane, recently appointed Governor of Gaudaloupe.

Paris, August 9.

Copy of a letter from the Minister of Foreign Relations to Mr. Armstrong.

"Paris, August 5.

"Sir—I have laid before his Majesty the Emperor and King, the Act of Congress of the 1st of May, extracted from the paper of the U. States, which you had transmitted to me. His Majesty could have wished that this act and all other acts of the United States, that may concern France, had been always officially notified to him.

"The Emperor applauded the general embargo laid by the U. States on all their vessels, because that measure, if it has been prejudicial to France, contained at least nothing offensive to her honor. It has caused her to lose her colonies of Gaudaloupe, Martinique, and Cayenne. The Emperor did not complain of it. He made this sacrifice to the principle which determined the Americans to impose the embargo, and which inspired them with the noble resolution of interdicting themselves the use of the sea, rather than submit to the laws of those who wish to become its tyrants.

"The act of the 1st of March removed the embargo, and substituted for it a measure which must have been particularly injurious to the interest of France. That act, with which the Emperor was not acquainted for a considerable time after, interdicted to American vessels the commerce of France, whilst it authorized a trade with Spain, Naples, and Holland, that is to say with countries under French influence, and denounced confiscation against all French vessels that should enter the ports of America. Reprisal was a matter of right, and commanded by the dignity of France, a circumstance upon which it was impossible to make any compromise. The sequestration of all the American vessels in France was the necessary result of the measure taken by Congress.

"At present the Congress treads back its steps. It revokes the act of the 1st of March. The ports of America are open to French commerce, and France is no longer interdicted to the Americans. In short, the Congress engages to oppose such of the belligerent powers as shall refuse to recognize the rights of neutrals.

"In this new state of things, I am authorized to declare to you, Sir, that the decrees of Berlin and Milan are revoked, and that from the 1st of November they will cease to be in force, it being understood that in consequence of this declaration the English shall revoke their Orders in Council, and renounce the new principles of blockade which they have attempted to establish; or that the United States conformably to the act which you have just communicated, shall cause their rights to be respected by the English.

"It is with the most particular satisfaction that I inform you of this resolution of the Emperor. His Majesty loves the Americans. Their prosperity and their commerce enter into the views of his policy. The independence of America is one of the principal titles of the glory of France. Since that epoch, the Emperor has felt a pleasure in aggrandizing the United States; and all circumstances whatever whichcan contribute to the independence, the prosperity, and the liberty of America, will be regarded by the Emperor as conformable to the interests of his empire."

Vienna, July 21.

Several mercantile houses in Bucharest and Orsowa have received letters which confirm the news of the bloody battle, which lasted 16 hours, between the army of the Grand Vizier and that of the Russians, at four leagues distance from Schumla. The Turkish cavalry, commanded by English officers, decided the victory. There is every appearance that the Russian army will again retire towards the Danube.

Boston, Sept. 22.

The Henry from Lisbon, (on quarantine) left that place the 14th August. The reports then current there were, that a battle had been fought in which the allied troops had gained another advantage, and that about 1000 French prisoners were on their way to Lisbon; that the French were on the retreat, but from what cause was not stated—they were reported to be in great want of provisions; and an intercepted letter from Massena stated he had 24,000 sick in his hospitals:—That deserters from the foreign battalions in the French service, were continually arriving at Lisbon; and a French lieutenant who came in had been apprehended as a spy, examined and released.

Charleston, Sept. 14.

The following anecdote is extracted from a very interesting account of the late insurrection in the Tyrol, by Major Muller, one of the deputies from that country to our Government; "Among the prisoners who were taken at Wegschaide, was the son of Commandem Spechbacher, only 12 years of age, who, when ordered by his father to retreat, would not comply till he had shot the Bavarian General, who was riding along the front of his army. The youth and bravery of this boy having attracted the notice and admiration of the enemy's officers, he was presented to the King of Bavaria, who asked him, "will you shoot any more Bavarians?" The youth with all the bluntness and intrepidity which characterize his country, not only replied in the affirmative, but added, "and you too, if you come to the Tyrol."

LONDON, July 24.

We extract the following interesting paper from Mr. Lewis Goldsmith's Secret History of the Cabinet of Bonaparte.

SECRET TREATY OF TILSIT *

"Art. 1. Russia to take possession of Turkey in Europe, and to pursue her conquest in Asia as far as she think proper.

"2. The Dynasty of the Bourbons in Spain, and of the Braganza family in Portugal shall cease to exist; Prince of the Blood of Bonaparte's family shall be invested with the Crown of those Kingdoms.

"3. The temporal authority of the Pope to cease; and Rome and her dependencies to be annexed to the Kingdom of Italy.

"4. Russia engages to assist France with her marine for the conquest of Gibraltar.

"5. The towns of Africa, such as Tunis, Algiers, &c. to be taken possession of by the French, and at a general Peace, all conquests which might have been made by the French in Africa during the war, are to be given as indemnities to the kings of Sardinia and Sicily.

"6. Malta to be possessed by the French, and no peace ever to be made with England, unless that Island be ceded to France.

"Egypt to be occupied by the French.

"8. Vessels belonging to the following powers only, shall be permitted to navigate in the Mediterranean, viz. French, Russian, Spanish, and Italian; all others are to be excluded.

"9. Denmark is to be indemnified in the North of Germany, and by the Hanse towns, provided the consent to give up her fleet to France.†

"10. That Majesties of Russia and France will endeavour to come to some arrangement that no power shall in future be permitted to send merchant ships to sea, unless they have a certain number of ships of war.‡

"This treaty was signed by Prince Kourakin and Prince Talleyrand."

* The public cannot expect from me that I should inform them how, and by what means I was put in possession of this important document; however, in that quarter where it was necessary to substantiate my assertion by proof, I have found no hesitation in doing it.

† See my last publication, in which there are some facts relating to the intentions of France, with respect to the Danish fleet; and I must here observe, that whilst Bonaparte was thus holding out to Denmark indemnities in the North of Germany, Alquier was sent on a mission to the King of Sweden, who was then in Pomerania, offering Norway to his Swedish Majesty, if he would make a peace with France.

Lifbon, Aug. 22.

Head Quarters, of Lagofa, Aug. 16.

His Excellency Marfhal Beresford, Commander in Chief, has already made known to the army the brave conduct of a part of the regiment of cavalry, No. 12, under the immediate orders of Field Marfhal Silveira; his Excellency has now the fatisfaction to announce that that General has juft made prifoners in the Caftle of Puebla de Senabria, of the Swifs battalion, No. 3, compofed of 400 men, which had taken refuge there in order to efcape his attacks in the open country.—The enemy commanded by Gen. Serras, fuperior in force, advanced in order to fave that battalion which was befieged by the militia of Tras-os montes, and a part of that regiment of cavalry, but thofe brave militia animated by the example of their commander, the Field Marfhal Silveira were unintimidated, and the enemy by approaching obtained only the mortification of witneffing the furrender of their battalion, which took place in their fight.

Such was the refult of the intelligence and judgement with which Field Marfhal Silveira projected this enterprize, and of the valor and prudence with which he executed it. It has fhewn that the militia of Tras os Montes are not unmindful of the glory of their anceftors, and that they are determined to emulate them; they remember the year 1762, when the peafantry of that province engaged a corps of regular troops of the enemy, and compelled it to retreat.

Braganza, Aug. 12.

After the furrender of Puebla de Sanabria, our troops made their retreat in fight of the enemy, who purfued us upwards of a league and an half, without our fuftaining any lofs.

Badajoz, Aug. 15.

The official account of the action of the 11th inft. has not yet been publifhed in this city; but we learn from credible perfons tha. Ballefteros having advanced with his divifion of from 3 4000 men to purfue the enemy in his retreat, the latter to the number of 6000 foot and 800 cavalry, attacked him, between Benvenida and Villa Garcia, and preffed him very hard, when General La Carrara arrived, who extricated him and repulfed the enemy. The refpective lofs of both fides is unknown; but all agree that of the French was moft confiderable. They received on the fame day a reinforcement of between 5 and 6000 men, and on the following day advanced as far as Zafra. The Spanifh army concentrated itfelf in the points of Feria, Zafra, Salvatera, &c. in this laft place the Marquis Romana has his head quarters.—To day it is faid that the French were retiring from Zafra towards Lerena, and that the Spanifh army was advancing.

Auguft 17.

The Spanifh head quarters are now at Zafra, and the enemy has retreated to Santa Olalla and Monaflerio. The action of the 11th inft. was warmly contefted. Mendizabal had the chief command of the two divifions of Ballefteros and La Carrera; the former had his hat fhot through by a mufket ball; La Carrera's horfe was killed by a thruft of a bayonet; the Count de Montijo's horfe was wounded by a ball which fhattered one of his hands. The lofs of the enemy was greater than that of the Spaniards; but the amount of either is not certainly known.

Ofma, in Old Caftile, July 18.

Although this province is entirely occupied by the enemy, it was never fo full of enthufiafm as at prefent; the Partizans increafe in number every day, and not even large detachments of the enemy can pafs unmolefted; they complain bitterly of the want of tranquility, and already defpair of quietly poffeffing the province. The Caftilian partizans alone conlift of 800 horfe.

LONDON, Aug. 27.

For fome time we have had fevaral accounts relative to the progrefs of the late unfortunate King of Sweden, thro' different parts of Germany; and fome perfons went fo far as to fpeculate on his reftoration to the throne of his anceftors. A late account brought from the vicinity of the Elbe, but for the authenticity of which we cannot vouch, mentions, that Guftavus, in confequence of having ventured to the fhores of the Baltic, was feized by order of the Tyrant, and put into a ftate of imprifonment.—Whether this account is true or not, we have no hefitation in laying, that the idea of his being fent back to rule over Sweden is abfurd, and inconfiftent with every principle of policy on which Bonaparte has uniformly acted.

The Neue Zeitung brought by a veffel from Heligoland, confidently aflerts, that the treaty recently concluded between Bonaparte and the Emperor Francis, obliges the latter to place at the difpofal of his fon-in-law, a body of troops not exceeding 50,000 men, which may be employed in any part of the Continent, as the exigencies of the war may require.

The German papers mention one curious fact, which ought not to be fuppreffed, as fhewing clearly the intrigues of Bonaparte to influence the election of a fucceffor to the Swedifh Throne; the Orebro Gazette is under the fuperintendance of M Morville, a native of France, and who was placed in that fituation at the particular requeft of the French Conful. This is the paper which contained the encomium on Gen. Bernadotte.

On board the Mediterranean fleet, which is about to fail from Portfmouth, there are about 6000 troops, deftined as reinforcements for the Peninfula, Sicily, &c.

The vaft amount of the loffes fuftained by the French armies in Spain and Portugal, may be tolerably eftimated by the following fact:

A gentleman lately returned from Paris, faw the 8th corps of the French army (one of thofe granted to Maffena to make up the 70,000 additional troops required by that General, previous to his taking the command of what is called by the French (the army of Portugal,) paffed in review before Bonaparte.

It paffed in at one gate of the Thuilleries where Bonaparte was, and out at the oppofite one. It formed a complete army of 40,000 men, of which 10,000 were cavalry. There were two divifions of infantry of 15,000 each with all the adjuncts of a train of artillery, pontoons, bread waggons and thofe various troops of fappers, artizans, &c. invariably attached to the French armies.

Bonaparte was fo minute in his infpection that when a particular pontoon came up, drawn only by four horfes, the reft, of fourteen in all, being drawn by fix, with led horfes, to each, he immedietely halted the corps, and afked the caufe of this deficiency. —He was told that one horfe had got lame, and that his companion was taken away with him. "Then, faid Bonaparte, let the deficiency be fupplied from the led horfes—that is the ufe of them." This was accordingly done, the march was refumed till the whole paffed under the eye of the Emperor.

Within two months, however, this corps, thus full and complete in every particular, had fuffered fo much by want, fatigue, ficknefs, and defertion, in the bare march into Spain, that in the firft return fent to the War Office at Paris, from the frontiers of Portugal, its effective ftrength was ftated only at 31,000 making a deficiency of 9000; and fubfequently, when it manœuvred between Lord Wellington's army and Ciudad Rodrigo, it was rated only at 26,000.

Allowing a reafonable deduction for detachments, &c. (though this being a fighting corps intended for field fervice, it would of courfe be as little as poffible diminifhed in that way) there would be a reduction of a full fourth from the original ftrength. Allowing however, that the return of convalefcents may make up a conliderable portion of this deficiency, yet when we conlider that this corps had left Paris only three months before, in a perfect ftate, and had not fought a battle, the inftance prefents a portion of a mafs of lofs, not lefs aftonifhing than true. The French foldiers do not hefitate to avow, that they conlider Spain as a grave; their march to that country is looked upon as a procefion to execution.

The corps of the Duke of Brunfwick Oels, quartered at Mallow and Fermoy, have received orders to embark immediately at Cork for Portugal.

Auguft 30.

Two Gottenburgh mails arrived this morning — It is confidently ftated, in accounts from Orebro, where the ftates are aflembled, that the choice of a fucceffor to the prefent King of Sweden will fall upon Bernadotte. Other accounts are in favor of Duke Frederick Chriftian of Halftein Auguftenburg, eldeft brother to the late Crown Prince. The object of the journey of the Ex-King of Sweden to Berlin, was to procure the fucceffion for his fon, the Prince Guftavus; but he received no encouragement. King Louis of Holland was fo ill at Topitz, in the early part of the prefent month, as to be confined to his chamber. The Dutch Vice Admiral, Bloys Van Treiflong, accompanied his Majefty to Topliz, and remained there on the 13th inft.

The St. Petersburgh Court Gazette contains an account of fome actions between the Turks and Ruffians, before Schumla, in the latter end of June.

An article in the Swedifh papers, dated Gottenburgh 20th Aug. fays—

"Intelligence has been received here, that the Prince of Ponte Corvo (Bernadotte) has been elected Crown Prince."

We have received Paris Papers to the 21ft inft. The Moniteur of the 20th contains two decrees of Bonaparte, relative to the nomination of a Council of Marine, to aflift the minifter at the head of that department.

The Elizabeth cartel arrived on Tuefday at Dartmouth, from Morlaix, with two American gentlemen, charged with difpatches from General Armftrong to Mr. Pinkney.

There is to be but one newfpaper in every department in France, the Seine excepted —and is to be under the orders of the Prefect.—Great freedom of diflcuflion, of courfe may be expected,

Some important commercial information was yefterday received from the coaft of France, in letters dated the 28th inft. They mention that the ports of depot, or ports into which importation is to be permitted, are limitted, by an order of Bonaparte, to five: namely, Oftend, Rouen, Rochelle, Nants and Bourdeaux. Ten licences were known to have been iffued for the admittance of veffels into thefe ports; but on the condition that their return cargoes conlift of half wines or brandies. The new licences, in addition to the articles allowed to be imported, by the old, extend this privilege alfo to all kinds of indigo, cochineal, nutmegs, cloves and cinnamon. Sugar and coffee will be objects of particular licences: the advantages refulting from the importation of which, will, it is fuppofed, be exclufively conferred on the United States, in cafe of an arrangement with that Government.—The Commiffary at Oftend was lately arrefted and conveyed to Paris, on an accufation that he had afforded too much facility to trade.

Another decree has been iffued by the Danifh Government, for the purpofe of placing additional fetters upon commerce. The following are extracts from our Swedifh letters:

Gottenburgh, Aug. 20.

"About 4000 French have left Hamburg to march to Stralfund. It is thought that this meafure is owing to orders received from the Emperor of France, that fuch a force fhall attend the election of a new Crown Prince of Sweden."

Another letter affigns a different occupation for thefe troops:

"Gottenburg, Aug. 20.

"The 4000 men advancing upon Stralfund from Hamburg, are gone for the expreis purpofe of feizing all the Engliih property in the former."

Boflon, Oct. 3.

A private letter from a Spanifh General of integrity and courage ftates that at no time have the affairs of Spain been viewed by him in fo favorable a point of view as at prefent. He fays, that if Lord Wellington, with the Anglo Portuguefe army, can maintain their pofitions, and if the Engliih make a formidable exertion in favor of the Peninfula, it may yet be faved. The people are every where well difpofed, and if they can only obtain nine or ten millions of dollars from South America, and a proper fupply of arms from England, he has no doubt of their ultimate fuccefs.—[Boflon Gaz.

Since our laft we have received from an intelligent correfpondent in Lifbon, a circumftantial account of the ftate of affairs in that kingdom, to the 18th Aug. and a file of Lifbon papers.—No new war event had occurred at that time. Maffena had not made his attack on the Engliih army; he was even faid to be advancing backwards into Leon. Scarcity of provifions and a great fick liit, were faid to be the caufes. Lord Wellington's army was ftrong, and well fupplied; but remained in the high-lands. Deiertions from the French armies continued.—On the frontier of Gallicia, 400 Swifs furrendered to a Portuguefe General, the official accounts of which are publifhed. The tears of the early conqueft of Portugal had subsided; and hopes were entertained that Spain would yet rid herfelf of her maurauding invaders, Alexandria, Oct. 11.

By captain Dodge from Lisbon, we are verbally informed that at the time of his failing, the two armies in Portugal were very near each other, their out poits within each others call; but it was very doubtful whether an engagement would take place this feafon. If it fhould the fate of Portugal would be decided. The Portuguefe and Engliih were in good fpirits. Provifions among the French troops extremely fcarce; and defertions not unfrequent. It was reported that a part of the French had left Cadiz to join the army in Portugal.

Boflon, Oct. 12.

The Cadiz papers of Aug. 17 and 19, contain intelligence from the province of Arragon to the 25th of July. On the 13th the Spanifh General Villacampa, difiodged the French from Daroca where they had 900 infantry and 120 cavalry, belonging to the corps of Gen. Verges. On the 16th, at Carinena, Villacampa had an obftinate conteft with the enemy, which refulted in his falling back to Ahulante, loling again Daroca. The French repreient this as a total deftruction of the patriot General's troops; but this is denied, and they affert they ftill are in force before Carinena; that their head quarters are at Calatayud, and that they cut off all communication between the French at Daroca & at Saragoffa.—The Spaniards acknowledge the lofs on the 16th of 50 killed, 80 wounded, and 193 prifoners; and affert that the French had 490 killed, and many wounded.

A body of Spanifh troops have furprifed the French garrifon of Euija, and made 200 prifoners. The whole lofs of the French in in Arragon in July, as then known, was declared to be 426 killed, 222 prifoners, and a great number wounded and deferted; among the wounded was a General.

Bonaparte's General Verges has levied a contribution on Teruel, of provifions and ftores, and afterwards retired to Saragoffa.

Intelligence from the province of Valencia is to July 26. Military affairs had taken place near Motella, Vanivana, &c.

In Caftile, on the 5th, 6th and 7th of July, there were conteits before Siguenza, and the Spaniards retired on the latter day to Medinaceli. The French are fortifying Siguenza.

At Tarragona, July 23, the Provincial Congrefs was in feffion, deviling means for raiiing refources, augmenting the armies, &c. A daily account of its proceedings was publifhed.

Cadiz, Aug. 16,

The Supreme Council of the Regency for Spain and Indies, have named Viceroy and captain General of Grenada, Field Marfhal Don Benito Perez, Captain Gen. of Chili. Marfhal the Marquis of Medina; Governor and Commander General of Carthagena of the Indies, Brigadier General Don Joleph Davilay, and Governor and Intendant of the Province of Upper Tucuman, the Colonel Don Manuel Remon.

New York, Oftober 19.

Very late from Portugal.—Laft evening arrived within Sandy Hook, the faft failing fhip Cincinnati, Cockrin, in the remarkable fhort paffage of 22 days from Lisbon.

Capt. C. came up in a Pilot Boat, and informed us, that he left Lifbon on the 26th of September—that on the 22d, advices were received there of the Junta of Badajoz having removed to Elva in Portugal, that the Britifh army had arrived at Lifbon from Cadiz, leaving only a sufficient force to garrifon the place and that 10,000 French troops had entered Badajoz.

Capt. C. further ftates, that the American Conful, Mr. Jarvis, was to fail from Lifbon for the U States, in 5 or 6 days, that no general battle had been fought between the allied Britifh and Portuguefe armies, and the French; nor was fuch an event expected to take place, as it was generally supposed, the Britifh army would very soon leave Portugal

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Charleiton to his friend in this city, dated October 8.

"We were laft night called out of our beds about half paft 11 o'clock with the alarm of fire: the wind blowing heavy from E. by N. to N. by W. The fire was difcovered behind the old Church, oppofite Mr. Corbett's, in one of thofe old huts, and continued without ceffation till 9 o'clock this morning.—It has fwept off every houfe but two or three from the old Church to the north fide of Amen-ftreet, inclufive, down to Union-ftreet continued, now called Motte-ftreet, both fides of which are laid wafte.

It proceeded northerly, croffed Queen-ftreet into Union and into Broad-ftreet; from Cheapeiide to Kitt and Lukens on the bay, but one houfe ftands.—Lodge Alley totally deftroyed, and a great part of Calmers Alley. In faft fuch a fcene has never been witneffed in Charleiton fince the great fire of '98.

[And her letter ftates the number of buildings deftroyed, to be between 4 and 500.

From a London paper of July 3.

"We are informed from unqueiionable authority, that upwards of 50,000 bales of calimes, muslins, and silk, have been fhipped from the India Company's Bengal Warehouses, in New Street and Bithop gate ftreet, and are now on their paffage to France, to be exchanged for corn."

Gen. Maffena, in his offi ial account to the French government of the furrender of the Spanifh city, Ciudad Rodrigo, fays "It is impoffible to form an idea of the ftate to which the city was reduced. Every thing is battered down and ruined. Not to much as a ingle houfe is ftanding." What an excellent man Joleph Bonaparte muft be, to be willing to get a throne through fuch means and conlequences! What loving fubjects he muft enfure himfelf! [Boiton paper.

Some time ago, there was a woman who lived in Glamyngianihire, South Wales, whoie husband, with the little fortune he got with her bought a small farm; he had hardly clofed the purchase, when death clofed his eyes; however not intimidated with this, the widow married a second husband, who sowed it, he likewise died, and the tried a third, who reaped it, but death soon snatched him away; the then married a fourth who threfhed it, but he alfo followed the fate of his predeceiors; and fhe then married a fifth hufband, with whom fhe enjoyed the produce of it. All this happened in leis than 18 months.

On Wednefday laft died, in Horfham goal, aged 82 years, Simon Southward formerly of Boxgrove, near Chicheiter. This singular character was a miller, which occupation he followed with induftry and attention, till about the year 1766, when by a ftrange fpecies of infanity—he fancied himfelf Earl of Derby, King in Mann; aflumed thofe titles, neglected his buiiness, and became very troublefome to many of his neighbours. In February 1767, he was arrefted for a fmall debt, at the fuit of the late duke of Richmond, and was conveyed to the old goal at Horfham, from which he was removed, the firft prifoner after its completion to the prefent goal; from which he was releafed after a captivity of forty three years, four months, and eight days, on Wednefday laft by the hand of death! Simon Southward was in ftature, about fix feet, exceedingly well made, and had a commanding countenance; his manners were generally affable, and his deportment polite; he was, however, when offended, exceedingly wrath, and with difficulty pacified, particularly when his ire had been occafioned by doubts about his aflumed dignity. He fuppofed himfelf a ftate prifoner, and would accept of no money or clothes which were not prefented to him as coming from the king his coufin. His dreis was generally a drab coat of a very ancient cut, and a cocked hat with a black cockade. Simon was always addreiled as well by the governors of the gaol as by his fellow prifoners, and viiitors, "My Lord!" and to no other denomination would he ever reply. He had been fupported for a number of years paft, by a weekly ftipend from the parifh of Boxgrove, which was paid to him by Mr. Smart, as above defcribed, and which his lordihip expended on neceiiaries with the ftricteft economy; but could icarcely ever be prevailed upon to receive a meal or other favor, except under the defcription above ftated. He was buried at Boxgrove.

From thence, too, the ſupplies herſelf with yarn and linens.

"She has rendered herſelf independent of Ruſſia for tallow, partly by the ſubſtitution of oil, and partly by the uſe of the inflammable gas. From the coal which is employed in the production of this gas, the extracts pitch, tar, roſin, and a ſort of turpentine; and ſhe has diſcovered that the fiſh of her own ſeas will furniſh her with as much iſinglaſs as the may require.

"In her ſilk manufactories, the raw materials of India and China is found capable of being uſed without the intermixture of any other; and her clothiers have been equally ſucceſsful with Britiſh Wool.

"With reſpect to exportation of her own produce, the European blockade affects Great Britain ſo little, that her manufactures are ſcarcely ſenſible of it. Such is the prodigiouſly increaſed and increaſing demand for her goods throughout India and America.

"In fact it is proved beyond a doubt, by the moſt authentic public documents, and by the teſtimony of the moſt intelligent and impartial traveilers, that the induſtry, the commerce, the public revenue, and credit of England, not only have not ſuſtained any diminution, but have increaſed in a manner hope is taken from the Continent of becoming able to eſtabliſh a navy, military or commercial, capable of contending with that of England.

It is by no means the merchant alone who ſuffers by theſe multiplied and complicated reſtraints. Every perſon connected, however remotely, with commerce, or who has directed any portion of his capital or induſtry to any of its various branches participates in the calamity; and by the operation of theſe meaſures, in teſtraint of freedom, we ſee the very ſources of wealth and proſperity one after another, dried up.—Thus perſons of every deſcription, monied men, manufacturers, brokers, clerks, agents of every kind, perſons connected with the ſea, ſhare owners, packers, carmen, and perſons of other occupations, whoſe bread he takes from them, thoſe who were employed by the manufacture of clothing, furniture, &c. in ſhort, the whole of the numerous ſet of perſons who ſubſiſt upon the wages of the labour which the rich have been accuſtomed to require from them, ſenſibly feel the interruptions of the circulations of commerce, and are already involved by it in different degrees of diſtreſs. Nor is the agricultural part of the community by any means exempt from this diſtreſs; the huſbandman in vain looks for thoſe conſumers who heretofore flocked to him with ready money, to purchaſe his wine, and the other produce of his ſoil.

"It cannot be wondered at that in ſuch circumſtances, the countryman is diſheartened from ſowing his fields, and planting his vineyards, and that this neglect of cultivation ſhould prejudice, for years, the productive powers of the ſoil. It would be eaſy to enlarge upon theſe topics; but ſurely enough has been already ſaid to prove, that the Continent cannot continue to ſupport the ſtagnation which has taken place in the ordinary intercourſes of life.

"But more than this, how is it to be imagined that nations can continue to pay taxes, impoſitions and contributions, when the channels of income have been cloſed? It was a wiſe obſervation of Victor Emanuel of Savoy, "Nobody complained of a ſingle great, but of a very equitable diſtributed tax, which propoſed throughout the whole kingdom, becauſe it at the ſame time afforded means of increaſing its commerce, which had before been thought all."

"Thus then it is to the interruption of [illegible] we muſt aſcribe the extraordinary [illegible] which the Continent of Europe [illegible] to the other, at preſent [illegible] which a continued peace [illegible] [illegible] countries of the Continent [illegible] [illegible] ful cry of war is not im[illegible] [illegible] feel themſelves oppreſſed [illegible] ſtrength; they are with[illegible] the parent, without [illegible] All perſons who have [illegible] emigrate to England [illegible] thoſe to whom [illegible] how many have [illegible] ſufferings?

29th—Almeida fell into the hands of the enemy on the 28th; until the 26th, the enemy made no general movement. In the night between the 25th and 26th, the grand magazine of powder in Almeida blew up, and there were some other explosions of powder, in consequence of bombs thrown by the enemy. That accident destroyed half the town, and killed many artillerists, and it is probable that a considerable part of the garrison was also destroyed. All this caused such a general consternation, that the governor for want of powder was obliged to treat with the enemy on the 27th. He demanded that the garrison should join our army, and that the inhabitants should also be permitted to leave the place; but Massena refused those conditions and threatened to repeat the fire if they did not surrender prisoners of war. In fact the firing was repeated that night. The place surrendered in the morning of the 28th, after the garrison had expended the rest of their powder. The enemy offered them the choice of entering into the service of the Emperor, or being sent to France as prisoners. There was not a single man who did not prefer going to France as a prisoner. This is a noble example, and does much honor to the nation, especially when we consider that the greater part of them were militia. All this information we have obtained from prisoners, who were afterwards taken.—Thus was Almeida lost by an accident, and not through the fault of the garrison, or the valor of the enemy. That event could not have happened but for the coincidence, as extraordinary as it was unforeseen, of the mistake of the explosion and the state of the atmosphere for exactly the two days of the firing: for otherwise Lord Wellington would have known that extraordinary circumstance, which made it necessary that the place should be immediately relieved, (which he could not suppose to be the case without such an occurrence) and having already advanced with his whole army on the preceding days, it was probable that he would have obliged the enemy to raise the siege.

A Sonnet on Health, written by a Gentleman recovering from a long and dangerous illness.

HAIL sacred Goddess, whose inspiring mein
Diffuses pleasure o'er the care worn soul,
Where'er thy much desired form is seen,
Earth's greatest blessing animates the whole.
Thy sacred form, inspires the feeble brain;
Thou string'st each nerve to harmony divine;
And dost what wisdom, an endearing train,
Accosts thus now reviving form of mine,
Eight-stop hope's cheering and enlivening ray;
Chases all the misty darkness of despair;
Awak'st again to quick revolving day;
And bid's the body once again be fair.
Thenceled in thy blest robe, life's paths we onward try
And cheerily purse our way until decreed to die.

LETTERS FROM AN AMERICAN LOYALIST IN UPPER CANADA, TO HIS FRIEND IN ENGLAND; on a Pamphlet Published by JOHN MILLS JACKSON, Esq. entitled, A VIEW OF THE PROVINCE OF UPPER CANADA.

A Note of thanks, accompanied with some communications and friendly remarks.

THE Subscriber in this public manner, returns his sincere thanks, to all those Gentlemen and Ladies who have repeatedly aided him in his humble attempts to do good, by Printing and disseminating useful books.

Public notice is hereby given, that a variety of small books and entertaining pieces for children, are left in the care of Mr. ADAMS, at his Book-Store in York.

The terms are good. The poor may have them gratis, and the rich may call into the GRATIS BOX whatever they please, which shall be faithfully applied to printing more. The poor are however invited to bring what Rags they can spare towards making paper cheaper.

The simple plan of instructing little children in the elements of useful science, which any one may see and have explained, by calling at Mr. Cameron's the Printer, or at the place above mentioned, promises great utility to the public: especially to numerous little children in the new settlements.

Thousands of little children, it is hoped, will this winter subsist themselves in wilderness wholly new and highly entertaining, as well as useful to me. To make amusement and instruction mingle together in the above way, is the object above hinted at.

To make the path to the first of science and of the temple of honor, easy and delightful to children, is an object not unworthy of the highest orders in society. For even the Saviour condescended to come from Heaven to be the teacher and redeemer of this fallen guilty world. And he commands all his followers to imitate him in doing good, assuring them that these most humble attempts to do good, shall not go unrewarded. With sentiments of respect, I am the public's most devoted servant,

JOHN MGILL,
Agent for Purchales.
York, 5th Octr. 1810.

A Character of Sir JHN MOORE.

SIR JOHN MOORE was indeed an eminent man. His official dispatches alone, in the absence of other proofs, would convince discerning readers that he poſſeſſed powers of no ordinary caſt. Whether he narrates, argues, or details, the energies through out his letters an eaſe, a clearneſs, a marchleſs facility of expreſſion, which could only reſult from a correſponding diſtinctneſs and a facility of conception. They are evidently the production of one, who, while a variety of complicated affairs preſs upon his attention, without an effort, comprehends, diſentangles, arranges, and retains the whole; who perceives inſtantaneouſly the exact tendency and bearing of every nascent circumſtance; and by whole penetrating glance what is intricate ſeems ſtrait. Moſt remarkable ſtill than the maſterly freedom of his ſtyle, is the careleſs ſecurity with which he expoſes the feats within his knowledge, and his opinions founded on theſe facts; regardleſs of any poſſible effect of his communications as to his own private intereſts or reputation; forgetful of the aſcertained ſentiments of the individuals whom he addreſſes; forgetful that he is himſelf a party to the tranſactions which he deſcribes; one object, and one alone, occupies his attention—that of unfolding fully what he sees diſtinctly and feels ſtrongly. Such abſolute ſeſtitude of deſign could belong only to a great and upright mind.

But it was not in his correſpondence alone, public or private, that he diſcovered this ſuperiority to perſonal and ſelfiſh conſiderations; his manners, his diſcourſe, the whole tenor of his life, were of the ſame manly and unaffected ſtrain. Neither in the ſociety of his friends, at the council on the parade, nor in the field, did he ever either aim at exhibition, or ſtoop to diſguiſe: he allowed himſelf to be ſeen as he was.

It is not eaſy to appreciate the poſitive benefits which the Britiſh army derived from the talents and exertions of Sir John Moore. Repeatedly, in the face of danger, he animated his countrymen by his example, and led them on to victory: yet conſpicuous as were his ſervices in the act of combat, they were ſurpaſſed in utility by the effect of his inſtructions and ſuperintendance in the hour of preparation for active warfare. His life, as it has been ſtated from authority, was ſpent among the troops. The whole force of his abilities was unremittingly employed in deviſing and executing meaſures for promoting the comforts and advancing the efficiency of the ſoldiery. The camp at Sandgate, where he had the opportunity of carrying through, and exemplifying fully the effect of his plans, will long be recollected as exhibiting the perfection of military economy and diſcipline. It was a ſchool of unrivalled repute for officers as well as men. To have ſerved there, is a recommendation to a candidate for employment. Inſtructions of ſuch a nature are not confined to the individuals who receive them; one imparts to another what he has been taught; the precept and example are diffuſed through an increaſing circle; and it is impoſſible to tell where the benefit ſtops. Sir Arthur Wellesley is now purſuing the French with troops eſſentially improved, at leaſt, if not formed, by Sir John Moore.

Some may doubt whether merits of the above deſcription are alone ſufficient to characterize the great General. Perhaps they are not—and yet it would be [illegible] the higheſt order. The opportunity for providing and displaying the full extent of his talents by one of thoſe brilliant atchievements, called victories on a large ſcale, was not afforded to Sir John Moore;—thoſe, however, who knew the ſtrength of his natural abilities; who were aware of his familiar acquaintance with every branch of the art of war, acquired by extenſive reading, profound reflection, and conſtant practice:—thoſe who witneſſed the finiſhed perfection wherewith the important military operations at various times entruſted to his execution were performed; who marked his preſence of mind & commanding glance in the field; who ſaw that he uniformly roſe with the occaſion; that danger only excited and gave ſcope to his powers; that every enterprize which he undertook was beneath his genius; that every difficulty which he did encounter ſhrunk from before him; they diſtinguiſhed him from the officer of mere induſtry; fondly anticipated a period that ſhould rank him with the Turennes and Marlboroughs of hiſtory, or the equally illuſtrious military names of the preſent day; and ſtill think that life alone was wanting to his fame.

I forbear to dwell upon the many virtues that adorned the private character of Sir John Moore; on his filial and paternal piety; his habits of temperance and activity; his ſincerity; his humanity; his kindneſs to friends and dependants; his liberality. One excellence, from its great connection with his public merit, ought to be more particularly adverted to—the unſullied purity of his views and conduct in whatever regarded his own intereſts. He abhorred the moſt diſtant ſemblance of what was mean or ſelfiſh. At any moment he would have ſacrificed, without heſitation, his fair proſpects, rather than ſeek command or emolument by ſolicitation and intrigue. The decent correctneſs of behavior which ſome content themſelves with aiming at, is not otherwiſe than laudable; but the principles and motives of ſuch perſons can no more ſtand in compariſon with the nice and delicate feelings of honor which ruled the practice of Sir John Moore, than the ſickly white of the painter will the luſture of falling ſnow.

Nature, which beſtowed ſuch care in the formation of his intellect and heart, had not withheld from the more trifling advantages of a graceful form. His perſon was, in a high degree, manly, elegant, and commanding; his features were fine, and ſtrongly indicative of that calm intrepidity which marked his character. I never looked in a face which told ſo intelligibly that the mind was inacceſſible to fear or weakneſs. A ſtranger, contemplating his countenance, would have ſaid,—that man is impoſſible to alarm.

I hardly know whether I am writing with the view of conveying a notion of his worth to thoſe who are perſonally acquainted with it; or, of awakening pleaſing recollections of his talents and virtues in the minds of friends. For either purpoſe, in faſt, this ſketch is too imperfect. I am rather indulging my own feelings, by recalling to my thoughts the varied excellencies of this accompliſhed ſoldier; whom I ſhall ever claſs with the diſtinguiſhed few, the magnanimi heroes, whoſe exertions and endowments redeem the failings of their ſpecies, and ſucceſsfully aſſert the dignity of human nature.

New york, Oct. 29.

London dates to September 9th have been received at Boſton by an arrival there from Plymouth. The following articles are given from them in the Boſton papers:—

London, Sept. 4—9.

A communication from Gottenburg, dated the 27th ult. contains the reſidence of the Pruſſian Court, ſtate that the inhabitants were in daily expectation of the arrival of a French garriſon, to take poſſeſſion of the ſhipping there. One of the letters obſerves, that Alex. Berthier, Prince of Neufchatel, was expected to be raiſed to the Throne of Pruſſia, and the family of Brandenburg to be reduced to a private ſtation.

The following is the extract of a letter from Paris, dated the 31ſt of Auguſt—

"Fouche, once the terror of France, is now a cloſe priſoner at Marſeilles. He was arreſted at Aix, which was his Senatorerie."

It is ſaid that the Ex Empreſs is implicated in Fouche's fall, as that Lady had been on a viſit to the diſgraced miniſter at Aix.

London, Sept. 5.

The fall in the price of Engliſh cloth is perhaps the greateſt ever known.—The finer ſorts from Wiltſhire which laſt year were ſold at two guineas per yard, are not now worth 28s. and at ſome late ſales at the Auction Mart, ſome of the beſt Yorkſhire cloth did not fetch above 4s. per yard; ſo beneficial has been the late importation of Spaniſh wool.

Conſtantinople, (Turkey) July 14.

The Multi has ſent all his plate to the mint in imitation of the Grand Seignor and Grand Vizer. A contribution of 3,000,000 of piaſters has been impoſed on the Greeks, Armenians, and Jews reſiding in Turkey.

At the entrance of the Seraglio four horſe tails are placed as a ſign that the Grand Seignor is going to take the field.

A letter, dated in London, Aug. 20, from an intelligent gentleman, to his friends in Boſton, ſays, that two gentleman had arrived that evening at Dartmouth, and brought diſpatches from general Armſtrong to Mr. Pinckney; and in a ſubſequent letter, dated Sept. 3. ſays, "Yeſterday I ſaw the two gentlemen who arrived a few days ſince, at Dartmouth, from Paris, with diſpatches to Mr. P. Their tale is gloomy. They know nothing of the releaſe of any American property, and ſay, that general Armſtrong had no hopes of ſuch an event, at leaſt, for the preſent. And further, the only condition on which the decrees of Milan and Berlin will be reſcinded, is a compliance on the part of England, with what the Duke of Cadore ſays, in his letter to general Armſtrong, is "bien entendu." So that notwithſtanding the poſitive aſſertion that they are repealed, and will ceaſe to be in force after the 1ſt of November, it is very doubtful whether they will be repealed at all."

Liſbon papers to September 8th have been received at Boſton by the Dromo. A letter from that place ſays, "what military operations are to take place the preſent ſeaſon, muſt not be long delayed; is the rainy reaſon will otherwiſe render an armiſtice till February almoſt indiſpenſible."

The papers ſay, that in Catalonia the Marſhal Ibarrolla has routed a corps of 3000 French, which failed from Barcelona, cauſing the loſs of 213 killed and wounded, and many were made priſoners.

A battle took place near Soria, in which the French loſt 400 men.

The Spaniards have intercepted ſome French diſpatches, the contents of which induce a belief that Spain was to ſhare the fate of Holland. They mentioned the appointment of French Governors to Spaniſh Departments.

Captain Crowell, arrived at Boſton from Valencia, informs, that the French had about 10,000 men within eight miles of that place——that they were waiting for reinforcements from the army which was before Tortoſa, when it was believed they would attack Valentia, where the Spaniards however had ſixteen thouſand ſoldiers.

A battle [illegible]

Late accounts from Europe mention that there had been much hard fighting between the Turks and the Ruſſians.

That Bonaparte has given inſtructions reſpecting the licenſed trade, by which licenſed veſſels, loaded with articles uſeful for the marine may enter France from Hamburg, Lubeck, or Bremen, even if they have ſpoken Britiſh veſſels, or landed ſome of their cargo in England; and export wine, brandy, French manufactures, but no grain or flour.

That the king of Pruſſia is to diſband one half (24,000 of his troops.

FROM HAYTI.

Captain Atkinſon arrived laſt night from Goñaives, contradicts the account of Petion having gained a victory. He ſays that on the contrary Chriſtopher has taken every fort at the Mole, except St. George—that two of Petion's fleet had been ſunk in port at the Mole, and a third driven on ſhore—that Chriſtophe has now nine ſail of armed veſſels.—Markets bad—coffee ſcarce.

It is at length aſcertained, that a ſmall Britiſh force had been landed in Florida, and that the Britiſh have taken formal poſſeſſion of Penſacola.—Aurora.

The houſe of Aſſembly of Jamaica have awarded to Mr. D. Fraſer, of St. Jago de la Vega, a premium of 200 pounds ſterling, for his ſpecimens of hemp made from the ſtem of the plantain and the leaf of the penguin trees.

New York, November 2.

One of the Pilot Boats which went down yeſterday, came up this morning and brought up the letter bag of the extraordinary laſt ſailing ſhip India, in 30 days from Liverpool. The India has made her voyage out and home in 27 days. We underſtand that papers have been received as late as the 28th of September, but we have not been ſo fortunate as to obtain a ſight of them. We learn verbally that the King of Sweden is dead, and that it was expected Bernadotte would ſucceed him. Markets in Liverpool for American produce on the decline—Wheat 14s 14s. 6 falling, cotton from 12 1-2 to 16d. according to quality.—Naval ſtores enquired for at 26 to 28s.—Turpentine 17 to 18s. 6d. per ct.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

From a London paper of the 24th Sept. received per the ſhip Lucies.

London, Sept. 24.

Arrived at Falmouth the French cartel ſchr. Eliza, from Morlaix, which place left on the 14th inſt. She landed at Fowey, on the 17th, Mr. Ridgeway, American Conſul at Antwerp, his family and ſervants paſſengers. Mr. Ridgeway was charged with diſpatches from General Armſtrong to Mr. Pinckney. General Armſtrong has left Paris, and expected to embark for America at Bordeaux, about the 17th of September.

It is ſaid Mr. Pinckney has received official intelligence of the negociations between France and America having been broken off. This news was poſted at Lloyd's, and occaſioned conſiderable buſtle.

London, September 13.

Our accounts from Spain which are to the latter part of Auguſt, ſay that great apprehenſions exiſted at Madrid, of a plot of the Spaniards to ſeize king Joſeph. A patriot party was ſaid to have riſhed at one time as far as the gates of the city. In conſequence, it is aſſerted Joſeph is to return to France, and Spain to be divided into four parts, and given to the French generals Sebaſtiani, Soult, Junot, and Belliard; Maſſena to have Portugal. An expedition of 3300 Spaniſh troops ſailed from Cadiz, Aug. 23. It was reported they had been landed at Moguer.

Liverpool, Sept. 12.

[illegible] ſail for an expedition againſt Sicily. The Engliſh have taken or deſtroyed more than 300 of the former and 30 of the latter.

General Crawford, it is ſaid has reſigned his command in Portugal.

Twenty ſail of the French flotilla are ſaid to have eſcaped from Boulogne harbor, and the remainder are ready for ſea.

Further European News by an arrival at Boſton.

The releaſe of American property in France, and its dependencies, was ſo far from being certain, that the idea of its relinquiſhment was totally abandoned.—The hatreds in England were conſidered as unuſually abundant.—A French decree of Sept. 12. orders the payment in Holland, on colonial produce, of the duty of 40 or 50 per ct. ad. val. It alſo offers to inhabitants a fifth part of all the property, which may be found concealed.—Freſh reinforcements are immediately to be ſent to Portugal; the 71ſt and 92d Highlanders, are ordered to be in readineſs for embarkation.—All the ſhips at Plymouth have been ordered to be victualled for five months, for foreign ſervice. One of the Paris papers hints (alluding we ſuppoſe to the miſcarriage of the Empreſs,) that the expectation of all loyal Frenchmen had been blighted by an untoward accident which lately befel the Empreſs Louiſa in deſcending the ſteps of her chariot.

Invitations have been ſent to Bernadotte, both by the Emperor of Ruſſia and the King of Denmark to do them the honor to paſs through their territories on his way to Stockholm. The route is a little circuitous, no doubt, but the direct road from Straſund might expoſe the crown Prince to ſome perils which he has no taſte for encountering. Alexander and the king of Denmark muſt feel great pleaſure forſooth in doing the honors of their capitals to the future king of Sweden. In this election they may read their fate. Now we hear again of the erection of Poland into a kingdom, of the reſignation of the king of Pruſſia, and the poſſibility of a northern league againſt France is removed, by placing a creature of Bonaparte in the line of ſucceſſion to the throne of Sweden. The northern powers are thus divided, and ſhould Pruſſia be ſeized upon by the ſame gralp, then Denmark, however mortified her king may feel at the election of Bernadotte, will complain in vain. She will be ſurrounded by French viceroyalties, ſeparated from Ruſſia on whom ſhe could lean, and become capable of being reduced to any ſtate the French may with.—Alexander will be no more than an inſignificant diſtant monarch, whoſe name will ſcarcely be pronounced in the South of Europe, and the king of Denmark himſelf will hold his crown only by a precarious ſubmiſſion.

London, Sept. 11.

The following was yeſterday poſted up at Lloyd's.

"By accounts from the Baltic, it appears that Dantzic was, on the 23d ult. occupied by French troops, and ſeven row-boat privateers were fitting out from that Port to cruize againſt the Engliſh ſhipping."

September 12.

Some of the private letters from the Peninſula mention that the French have determined to retire from before Cadiz——Certainly the ſmall progreſs they have hitherto made, and the formidable preparations which have been made to receive them, are not calculated to induce them to be very [illegible] in their hopes of ſucceſs.

[illegible] of a bay near Ferrol. As the enemy however, fired at us from heavy batteries, our loſs we lament to ſay, was conſiderable, two officers killed, two wounded, and 36 ſeamen killed and wounded. This Spaniard, with three others, had been captured by a French privateer; it is ſtated, that the other 3 are alſo re captured.

The Tonnant is taking on board at Portſmouth the 50th regiment for Liſbon.

A detachment of the 20th dragoons is alſo embarking for Sicily.

Yeſterday forenoon a large party of German troops paſſed over Weſtminſter bridge on their way to Chatham. Ten tranſports are expected to ſail this week from Chatham, with German troops for the Weſt-Indies.

The Gold medals intended for the field officers who have fought in the different battles in Spain and Portugal, we underſtand, will be delivered from the Mint tomorrow, immediately upon which the diſtribution will commence.

It affords us the higheſt gratification to learn from all parts of the country, that the fineneſs of the wheat crop has exceeded the moſt ſanguine expectations, & that in conſequence it has fallen in this 12s per coomb. Norwich.

Liſbon, Aug 10.

His Excellency Marſhal Bereſford has tranſmitted to the Sup. Council of Regency, an Eagle taken in Puebla de Sanabria, from the Swiſs battalion made priſoners of war in the ſame place.

PROCLAMATION BY L. WELLINGTON.

"The time which has elapſed during which the enemy has remained on the Frontiers of Portugal muſt have proved to the Portuguese nation what they have to expect from the French. The inhabitants of ſome villages have remained in them, confiding in the promiſes of the enemy, and hoping that by treating the enemies of their country, they might conciliate and mollify them, and inſpire them with humane ſentiments, that their property would be reſpected, their females preſerved from brutal violation, and their lives ſecured.

"Vain hopes! the inhabitants of theſe ſubmiſſive places have ſuffered all the evils which a cruel enemy could inflict; their property has been plundered, their habitations burnt, the women atrociously violated, and thoſe whoſe age and ſex did not provoke the brutal violence of the ſoldiers, have fallen victims to the imprudent confidence which they placed in promiſes made only to be broken.

"The Portugueſe muſt now ſee than no other means remains to avoid the evils with which they are threatened, but a determined and vigorous reſiſtance, and a firm reſolution to obſtruct as much as poſſible the advance of the enemy into the interior of the kingdom, by removing out of his reach, all ſuch things as may contribute to his ſubſiſtence or facilitate his [illegible] portion of the country as is poſſible. command will protect as large a ble, but it is obvious that the people alone can deliver themſelves by a vigorous reſiſtance, and preſerve their goods by removing them out of the reach of the enemy. The duties therefore that bind me to his Royal Highneſs the Prince Regent of Portugal, and to the Portugueſe nation, oblige me to make uſe of the power and authority with which I am furniſhed, and compel the careleſs and indolent to make the neceſſary efforts to preſerve themſelves from the danger which threatens them, and to ſave their country.

"In conformity with this I make known and declare, that all magiſtrates and perſons in authority who ſhall remain in the villages or towns after having received orders from the military officers to remove from them, and all perſons of whatever claſs they may be, who ſhall maintain the leaſt communication with, or aid and aſſiſt in any manner the enemy, ſhall be conſidered as traitors to the ſtate, and tried and puniſhed as ſuch, an enormous crime requires.

"WELLINGTON.

Dover, Sept. 10

Mr. Powell, the American Secretary of Legation, returned to this place this afternoon, the French having refuſed him permiſſion to land at Calais, the veſſel was fired at, but the commandant came off, and ſaid, if the veſſel attempted to enter the harbor ſhe would be ſunk if ſhe then proceeded to Bologne, & was ſailing into the harbor, when a heavy fire of ſhot and ſhells was opened upon her, and it was only by a precipitate retreat, that the veſſel and crew eſcaped without injury.

Plymouth, Sept. 10.

Arrived the American brig Union, from America, bound to London, with cotton, oil, and other merchandize, captured by a Fr. privateer, and re captured by the Poictiers of 74 guns.

Sept. 11.

Came in a ſhip belonging to London, from Mogadore, with ivory and gold duſt, taken by a Fr. privateer, and re-captured by the Shannon, 44. Capt. Burke.

Falmouth, Sept. 10.

Arrived the Duke of Kent Packet, Capt. Cotesworth, with mails from Cadiz, in 15 days paſſage. On the 23d ult. His Majeſty's ſhip Jaſper, Baſiſk and Hardy Gun brigs, failed from thence with a detachment of Spaniſh ſmall veſſels, having on board 3000 Sp troops. They were accompanied by ſome Engliſh gun and flat bottom boats, under the command of Cap. Cockburne, of His Majeſty's ſhip Implacable, 44 guns; their deſtination was not publicly known. On the 13th ult. the Myrtle and Tuſcan ſloops of war, with tranſports, ſailed from Cadiz, with the 79th and 88 h regiments, and a troop of horſe on board for Liſbon. On the 24th His Majeſty's ſloop Ganymede, with the Mediterranean fleet under convoy, appeared off Cadiz, and were joined by ſeveral merchant veſſels for England. Alſo arrived this day the Princeſs Elizabeth packet, Capt. Kidd, with immediate battle taking place. The Portugueſe troops were daily improving, and much confidence placed in them ſhould the enemy make an attack.

London, Sep. 7.

Lord Wellington has tranſmitted to miniſters an intercepted letter from Napoleon to Maſſena. This letter, of which the original has been ſent, is evidently an anſwer to one from Maſſena, in which he had been ſoliciting a reinforcement of at leaſt 40,000 troops. In his reply Napolean expreſſes himſelf to the following effect——

"As to the reinforcement you demand, it is impoſſible at the preſent moment, to ſend you ſo many troops. As ſoon as it is practicable, you ſhall have every poſſible aſſiſtance. In the mean time, you muſt bring the Engliſh to a general action. If you are victorious, the Peninſula is our own. If you are defeated, which is not unlikely, you will at any rate ſo weaken the enemy, as to furniſh yourſelf with the means of retreating to advantage.

In conſequence of this letter, of the genuineneſs of which Ld. Wellington was perfectly convinced, a reinforcement of 4000 men had been ordered to be detached from Cadiz to co-operate with his Lordſhip, and theſe troops were daily expected at the date of his laſt dispatches.

Sept. 11.

It is ſaid that Miniſters have determined to eſtabliſh a qualified ockade of the Baltic, in conſequence of the new ſituation of affairs in that quarter. It is underſtood that orders were ſent out on Friday, by a faſt ſailing veſſel, inſtructing Sir James Saumarez, to permit the egreſs of all privileged ſhips; but to ſuffer no veſſel whatever to paſs into that ſea, either by the Sound or the Belt. About ſix hundred ſhips are already there, and the Ruſſians have conſtructed in their own ports, including thoſe of the North Sea, upwards of 300 ſhips, ſo that if egreſs be permitted, there will be ſufficient tonnage for the produce of the Baltic this year. Ninety ſhips paſſed Gravesend on Saturday morning from the North Sea.

Every ſhip of war fit for ſervice, and other armed veſſels have been ordered to be got ready to put to ſea, as ſoon as poſſible. All the poſt captains, of 10 years ſtanding are to be appointed from frigates to ſhips of the line, which will advance ſeveral maſters and commanders a ſtep. The naval exertions of the enemy has called forth the moſt active exertions on the part of the Admiralty.

Anecdote of the late Dr. FRANKLIN.

Soon after the eſtabliſhment of his paper, Anno 1728 a perſon brought him a piece which he requeſted him to publiſh in the Pennſylvania Gazette, now the oldeſt news paper in the United States. Franklin deſired that the piece might be left for his conſideration until next day, when he would give an anſwer.—The perſon returned at the time appointed, and received from Franklin this communication: "I have peruſed your piece and find it to be [illegible] and defamatory—ped myself up in my great coat and laid down upon the floor, and slept till morning, when another loaf and mug of water made my breakfast,—From this regimen I feel no inconvenience whatever. Finding I can live in this manner I have formed a determination never to prostitute my press to the purpose of corruption and abuse of this kind, for the sake of gaining a more comfortable subsistance."

Professor Leslie of Edinburgh, has discovered a new mode of producing artificial cold Without any expenditure of materials he can, by means of a simple apparatus in which the action of certain chemical powers is combined, freeze a mass of water, & keep it for an indefinite length of time in a state of ice. In an hour he has thus formed a cake of six inches in diameter, and three quarters of an inch thick; with very little trouble, he can produce a permanent cold of 9 degrees of Fahrenheit, below the temperature of the air, and might easily push it to more than 100 degrees.

THE fubfcriber in this public manner, returns his sincere thanks to all those Gentlemen and Ladies who have repeatedly aided him in his humble attempt to do good, by Printing and disseminating useful books.

Public notice is hereby given, that a variety of small books and entertaining pieces for children, are lef. in the care of Mr. ADAMS, at his Book-Store in York.

The fimple plan of introducing little children in the elements of ufeful science, which any one may see and have explained, by calling at Mr Cameron's the Printer, or at the place abovementioned, promises great utility to the public; especially to families of little children in the new settlements.

Thousands of little children, it is hoped, will this winter amuse themselves in a manner wholly new and highly entertaining as well as ufeful.—"To make amusement and inftruction friends," is the object kept in view by the plan above hinted at

To make the path to the field of science and to the temple of honor, easy and delightful to children, as an object not unworthy of the highest orders in society. Meffengers fnied on Sunday and Monday for Mr. M'Kenzie at Morlaix. We suspect nothing can be done to bring the negociation for the exchange of prifoners to a succesful termination.—One demand is made after another, and every fresh acquiescence is fuc eeded by a fresh demand—he prifoner is alternately the prey of hope and difappointment; joy and fear.—Our Government have learn, fent a pofitive and final answer to the laft dispatches—if the French refufe, Mr. M'Kenzie will come home.

An Englifh frigate attempting to land her crew at Rumbaes, near Christianfand, relinquished the attempt on the approach of our division.—Intelligence from Norway says the Danish gun boats have captured 34 Englifh merchantmen.

Banks of the Elbe, Sept. 1.

The Englifh fleet continued to cruize between Texel and Corke. Small parties occafionally land and do much mifchief. An Englifh liquor cruizer is Leghorn roads, and obftructs the coafting trade.

Vienna, Aug 26.

On the 4th Aug a bloody affair took place near Rudelshuck, in which the Turks loft 700 killed; the details have not reached us.—The report that Rudschuck had been given up was premature, as well as the reported convention of a peace between the Ruffians and the Porte. Several regiments of auftrian cavalry have marched for the frontiers of Wallachia.

To day and yefterday it is afferted, on authority of the Greek Merchants that the Turks have gained a considerable advantage over the Ruffians.

Naples, Auguft 13

All things proceed in the beft manner for the invasion of Sicily, the injury done to our flotilla by the enemy laft month being repaired.

Hamburg, September 1.

By the treaty with Italy, Bavaria is to acquire fomewhat more than half the Tyrol.

RUSSIA AND TURKEY.

No new events of great importance have occurred. The Grand Vizier has received considerable reinforcements, and the Grand Seignior is on his march, and has advanced to Adrianople at the head of his army. Hence it is concluded at Vienna, Aug 25, that Ruffia will be obliged to give up its enterprises against Schumla, and it is doubted whether Gen. Kamenski can maintain himfelf on the right bank of the Danube.

It is alfo ftated, that the Sophi of Persia, has ordered two corps of his arms to advance, one toward Georgia, the other towards the Caspian Sea, to co-operate with the Turks.

September 22.

Government this morning received dispatches from Corunna, dated the 8th inft. which ftate, that throughout the whole of the north of Spain, the fpirit of infurrection againft the French had once more become general.—The French troops were dying daily in great numbers for want of food, and numerous desertions were taking place.—Expeditions were fitting out at Corunna against Santona and Santander, and no doubts are entertained of their fucceſs, from the patriotic fpirit of the inhabitants having been again roused.

The lateft accounts from Lord Wellington's army are dated from Oporto on the 5th inft. where letters had been received dated two days fubsequent to his Lordfhip's laft dispatch announcing the furrender of Almeida. At the above date the Head-quarters were ftill at Celerico, and the army in its former positions. Skirmiſhes and affairs of poſts daily took place, but nothing more important was immediately expected.

By a Portugueſe brig of war, arrived at Plymouth, a report has been brought to this country, that the enemy have been defeated in a general engagement in Portugal; but the date is not ftated or any of the particulars.

This forenoon arrived two Gottenburg mails, the contents of which are rather important.—The king of Sweden continues fo much indfpofed that there is fome probability that the lately elected crown Prince will foon affume the reins of Government.——A treaty of Alliance, offenfive and defenfive, between France and Auſtria, is talked of, and a war with Rſſia is mentioned as its primary object.

September 24.

Advices received at the Admiralty on Saturday, from Oporto, being of the 5th inſtant, are of two days later date than thofe before published. No change had taken place in the poſitions of the Britiſh army, but ſkirmiſhes between the different out poſts were daily occurring, and the patriots were mutually harafſing each other. This certainly founds very ominous of a general engagement.

Dispatches have alſo been received from Corunna, under date of the 9th inſtant. They deſcribe the population in the North o Spain as in a high ſtate of animation againſt the enemy. It is added, that an expedition was ſhortly going out at Corunna againſt Santona and St. Andero. The French in Galicia have, however, received reinforcements.

A Gottenburgh mail arrived on Saturday. Th Swedifh papers afford nothing new; but foon after the arrival of the mail the following notice was poſted at Lloyd's:

"Gottenburgh, Sept. 10.

"We have juſt learnt that our ſo a convoy of thirty-five ſail from England, bound to the Baltic, twenty one have been loſt, with all their crews, few days ago, not far from Marſtrand.

The diſtreſs occaſioned by this ſad fhting information was in ſome degree relieved by the following addition, which was ſtuck up towards the cloſe of the day:

"The Reynard, and Sheldrake ſloops of war ſailed from Sheerneſs on the 31ſt Aug. with a fleet for Gottenburgh. On the 16th inſt. at 3 A. M. they experienced a gale of wind be arrived at Gottenburgh, and ſome of the ſhips had gone into Marſtrand, and the neighbouring ports."

The Corunna Diaries are filled with intereſti g details of ſkirmiſhes in almoſt every part of Spain, in which the Patriots are generally ſucceſsful, ſo far as the intercepting of convoys or couriers is concerned.——Some more intercepted correſpondence between the French Generals has been publiſhed by the Junta of Gallicia. The Spaniſh government has publiſhed a Royal Decree or Proclamation, prohibiting all perſons in the military or civil ſervice from writing any intelligence to their friends or others reſpecting the movements or intentions of the Patriots.

The Earl of Ormond has compounded with Government his hereditary office of the Butler ge of wines in Ireland, ſuppoſed to produce 12,000l. per annum, for the ſum of 200,000l. he intereſt of which is to be ſecured in perpetuity to the ſucceſſors of that antient title.

September 25.

A reſpectable American Houſe yeſterday received letters from Paris, ſtating in poſitive terms that Lucian Buonaparte had embarked on board the American ſhip Hercules at Leghorn, and it was preſumed that the deſtination of the veſſel was the United States. He is accompanied by his wife and family, with a retinue, conſiſting in the whole of forty perſons; and he had obtained, it is added, paſſports from the Emperor to facilitate his deſign. By a gentleman who has arrived from France, this information is in a great degree confirmed, and we learn that it had long been the intention of Lucian to quit the eſtearn hemiſphere, where he could only be ſecond to his brother, whom he conſidered to be ſubordinate, and to be indebted to him for the Imperial Diadem he wears. It is reported that Lucian had amaſſed an immence treaſure, conſiderable of which he has depoſited on board the ſhip in which he takes his farewell of Europe.

All the American property confiſcated in the ports of France, Holland, Italy, and Spain, as well as the ſhips conveying it, had been ſold, and the proceeds placed in depoſit.—Theſe was however not the leaſt ground to believe that Napoleon would on the 1ſt November next, repeal the Berlin and Milan degrees, as propoſed in the offcial letter of the French Miniſter of Marine to Gen. Armſtrong.—This ſuggeſtion was treated as it had been conſidered in England, merely as an illuſive oſtentation of a pacific diſpoſition, for the purpoſe of inducing the Unites States to take meaſures hoſtile to Great Britain.

This Gentleman alſo ſupports the rumor of the peremptory recal of Junot Belliard, and M'Donald, they having fallen under the diſpleaſure of the Emperor, in conſequence of ſome repreſentation by the Prince of Eſsing.

September 26

Paris papers to the 19th inſt. arrived laſt night. The principle articles which they preſent are two reports from Maſſena to Berthier, containing ſome further details reſpecting the fall of Almeida. From one of theſe it appears, that 1200 of the Portugueſe militia which, by the terms of the capitulation, were to have returned to their homes, have by their own conſent been taken into the French ſervice!—The ci-devant Portugueſe Commander, the Marquis D'Alourna, was the agent employed by Maſſena to corrupt the Portugueſe priſoners

Some of the private accounts received by the Gottenburg mail of yeſterday, are highly intereſting. It appears certain that Na- it appears equally certain that the King of Denmark has given a peremptory refuſal, What will this lead to?

That Napoleon has planned the ſubjugation of all the Northern Powers, or what amounts to the ſame things, to ſet aside the preſent refigning families, and to elevate his own creature to their ſovereignties, has long been apparent to thoſe who have ſtudied his character and actions. Will the refuſal of the King of Denmark to permit the paſſage of the troops through Holſtein alter his views? We think not.—Indeed, by the accounts brought by this mail, this appears already to be the caſe.

One of the letters obſerves, that Frederick William, oppreſſed with the humiliating ſtate of independence to which he was reduced, had actually propoſed to Napoleon to reſign his Crown; to which meaſure, it is ſaid, the French ruler was not prepared to accede.

FROM SOUTH AMERICA.

Popayan, Aug. 10.—At half an hour after one in the evening of Thurſday, 2d Auguſt, about forty or fifty men impriſoned in the city gaol of Quito, under ſentence of death, for having borne arms in the revolution of the 10th of Auguſt laſt, like lions, ſeized upon the keeper and guards of the priſon; they wound and ſlay many; and taking poſſeſſion of their arms, clothe themſelves in the dreſſes of the ſlain—then running to the barracks, attack the guard, who were but few, (being the dinner hour) are killed; they ſeize upon their arms, and in a ſmall ſpace of time enter the interior, where they killed Capt. Lloveno, Don Nicolas Galup, and Don Joaquin Villafpela, Captain of the battalion, and any of the ſoldiers. But as theſe brave youths were not feconded, they were at length overcome and killed. Thus the undertaking remained unaccomplished. The order had previouſly been given for the execution of every priſoner without exception, and indeed was effected on twenty. The patriots immediately ſallying forth, compoſed of the Limenian ſoldiers, on horſe and foot, put to death every one they met, men, women and children.

In this confuſion, the Biſhops and Prieſts came out, endeavouring to appeaſe the tumult which was now riſing beyond control. The people being intimidated, the town was given up to be lacked by the ſoldiers; their ſtores, ware houſes and dwellings were emptied. In the houſe of Don Lewis Cifuentes they obtained 12,000 dollars. The well aſſorted ſtore of Don Manuel Bonilla was entirely deſtroyed, as well as thoſe of many others, to the amount of 250,000 dollars.—Theſe events took place the ſame evening. The city being garriſoned by the artillery and troops in the night, no occurrence took place; but on the following day was publiſhed by beat of drum (as well to reſtrain the exceſſes of the troops, who ſtill continue to riot in murders, rapes, and all the horrid outrages of a barbarous ſoldiery lacking a populous city) as to give notice that as the ſaid priſoners were the origin of this diſorder, they ſhould government thought proper to form a junta of the eccleſiaſtical and ſeculars, conſiſtoo, with the aſſiſtance of his excellency the Biſhop. In that junta was reſolved on, the decree abſolving all thoſe inculpated, as well for the 10th of Auguſt of the laſt year, as for the preſent aſſault; and ordering the troops to retire to Lima. But this laſt order was not complied with; for on the following day the troops were ſtill combatting the people.

BOSTON, Oct. 11.

Cadiz papers to the 10th September were yeſterday received.—They are replete with narratives of war events in ſeveral of the Spaniſh provinces, attended with various ſucceſs.

Yeſterday afternoon Capt. Divis from London, politely favoured us with papers to the 21ſt September.

King Murat had finiſhed his farce of the invaſion of Sicily, and had returned to Naples.

The election of Marſhal Bernadotte as Crown Prince of Sweden, it was ſaid, had occaſioned a ſtrong ſenſation in Ruſſia.

On the 30th of Auguſt, orders were given at Tonningen for the ſeizure of all American veſſels found there.

From Cadiz.—Mr. Wild, who arrived here yeſterday from Cadiz, informs that the Salſette Britiſh frigate, of 38 guns, Capt. Bathurſt, had arrived there from Malta, and brought a report that Lucian Bonaparte (who has reſided for years near Rome) had thrown himſelf, with his immenſe property into the hands of the Engliſh at Malta.

Account of a Reſidence in MADRID, and Journey from thence to LISBON; by a BRITISH Officer.

[The following account was received by a General Officer in this town, who has been ſo obliging as to communicate it to us. It appears to us intereſting, as containing ſome particulars, both reſpecting the attack on Madrid, and the preſent ſtate of Spain, which may not be generally known to our readers.]

Liſbon, 6th March 1808.

I accompanied my regiment to Spain, but left it at Talavera della Reina, in conſequence of a ſevere attack of my old enemy, the jaundice, and the ophthalmia. I was not above two days at Madrid, when I was obliged to confine myſelf to bed, ſuffering ſevere pain in the leg I bruiſed at Shorncliff, which had not annoyed me when on the march. In conſequence of the defeat of Caſtanos, my regiment which was to have paſſed through Madrid, went to L'Eſcurial. The Spaniſh army under Don Jaun was a few days after defeated at Somo-Seria, and ſuch was the rapidity of the enemy's movements, that the city was inveſted and ſummoned, before any one was aware of his being within ſeveral leagues of it. On its non-compliance it was bombarded for three days, and the fire as briſkly returned by the inhabitants, though without the ſupport of a regular force; the women, by their courage and example, ſtimulating the male nobility to deeds of valor. The French were defeated with great ſlaughter in their attack on the gate de Atochi, and two generals, Grandmaiſon, and La Bruyere, killed, the latter by a woman.—The enemy penetrated in to the Retiro, which they retained poſſeſſion of all night, and next morning the town capitulated. Before, however, it was entered by the French, the Marquis de perales, ſuſpected of treaſon, was recognized in diſguiſe, murdered, and dragged through the ſtreets Two others ſhared the ſame fate, one of them for diſtributing cattridges filled with ſand. Napoleon and his brother remained at St. Martins, two leagues from Madrid; 15,000 troops entered, and 35,000, under Marſhal Deſaires, filed off towards Eſtremadura.

point of being apprehended.—Houſekeepers were obliged to give in a return of all perſons reſiding with them and daily and nightly patroles ordered to take up all perſons ſuſpected, and unable to account for themſelves. The inhabitants, on account of the frequent aſſaſſinations of French ſoldiers, were ordered, after ſunſet, to carry their cloaks ſuſpended on one arm, and not to carry knives, on pain of death. Six perſons were afterwards hanged, for no other reaſon than having knives found on their perſons.

Jan. 18, left my bed for the firſt time ſince the 22d of November, having been attended during that period by a phyſician and two ſurgeons. On the 19th, I was ſufficiently ſtrong to walk out, and employed myſelf till the 23d in reconnoitering the ſtrength of this garriſon, in obtaining as much information as poſſible, and in planning my eſcape, which I on that day effected in the diſguiſe of a peaſant, with only four dollars. King Joſeph, the day before, made his public entrance in great pomp, but was very ill received; neither could I perceive any Spaniard take off his hat, nor hear a ſingle acclamation, except from General Oudinot and Belliard, he hind whom I had taken poſt. I left Madrid about three o'clock, with a couple of wallets (which are there called Foreas,) wer my ſhoulders, and blanket over my coat; took with me a groom of Lord William Bentinck, he directed my courſe towards Salamanca, where I knew my regiment had previously been. I frequently paſſed detachments of cavalry and infantry, afterwards L'Eſcurial and Guadarama, which were full of troops. At the latter place I was obliged to conceal myſelf in a wood contiguous to the great road till about three thou ſand paſſed. I had afterwards to paſs a chain of poſts, ſeveral of which were not many hundred yards from me; then croſſed with precipitation the great road, ſtruck to the left, and loſt myſelf in the mountains. In the houſe where I ſtopt for the night, I found a Spaniſh artilleryman, (wound ed at the battle of Bayles,) whom I perſuaded to accompany me to the army: next day, on entering a village called Naval Paſcal, the artillery man having fallen behind, I was purſued by the inhabitants, armed with pikes, ſticks, and ſtones. They believed me to be a Frenchman, and in ſpite of every argument I could use I would have been murdered, but for the timely interference of the vicar, who, on leaving him, gave me a letter of recommendation to the Alcalde of the next village. I perceived Segovia on my left, and on entering Aldas Cades, ſaw a party of the enemy eſcorting three Spaniards, whom they were going to ſhoot. Being then within ſix leagues of Salamanca, I was informed that the French were in poſſeſſion of that place, and their out poſts were very near me. I conſequently turned to the left, with the intention of going to Cividad Rodrigo, where General Cueſta, it was ſaid, was reaſſembling a freſh army. I again loſt myſelf in the mountains of Eſtremadura, and was almoſt ſtarved. Many days I wandered from eight in the morning till ſix in the evening, without ſuſtenance; and frequently, when with difficulty I had gained admittance into a houſe, I was obliged to play on the flagelet to induce them to give me ſomething to eat. Generally, however, after a few hours, and when they were convinced that I was an Engliſhman, they became very kind and offered me every thing they had. On my reaching Zeaareal, about ſix leagues from Cividad Rodrigo, I was informed of Sir Robert Wilſon being at an advanced poſt five leagues diſtant. I therefore haſtened to Martin del Rey, and, to my inexpreſſible joy, found part of his legion there. He acquainted me that my regiment had embarked, and adviſed me rid, copies of which he transmitted to Mr. Frere at Seville, and Sir J. Cradock, who has alſo forwarded one to Lord Caſtlereagh.

On the evening of my arrival at Liſbon, I waited on the commander in chief in my peaſant's dreſs, when, about five o'clock, I was unexpected ly aſſaulted by an ill looking fellow, who ſeized me by my neck, crying out juſtitia. I was immediately ſurrounded by a number of men with pikes, and followed by a crowd, who conducted me to a dark place reſembling a priſon. Then, as they became groſsly familiar, I could not forbear threatening them with my ſtick, which was immediately forced from me, and a number pointed at my breaſt. Under pretence of my carrying a knife they pinn'd me againſt a wall, & proceeded to ſearch my perſon, which manoeuvre they performed so roughly, as to force the buttons from my pantaloons. They then conducted me to the Intendant General of Police, who escorted me to the houſe of the Juge de diſtrik. There I was ſtript to the ſhirt, and then ſent under a freſh escort to the General's, who recognized and liberated me, after I had been a priſoner five hours. That I might not be again inſulted, I ſlept at the General's, and next morning, under the protection of an orderly dragoon, rode to the ambaſſador's (Mr. Villiers) at Belem, who politely offered me clothes of every deſcription, and has ſince made a formal complaint to the Regency, of the hardſhips I experienced. I found here three officers and an hundred men of my regiment, and there are ſo many men and officers of other regiments, that we are formed into two fine battalions. It is ſaid the troops here are immediately to take the field; for what put poſe I know not, as we are too weak to reſiſt any ſerious attack on the part of the enemy. Another report is, that the army will immeaſately return; in which caſe, detached officers will of courſe, not be allowed to go home.

DUKE OF ORLEANS.

Letter from the Supreme Council of Regency of Spain and the Indies, to his Serene Highneſs the Duke of Orleans.

"MONSEIGNEUR,

"The Spaniſh nation rofe againſt the unjuſt aggreſſion of Bayonne—It ſwore unanimouſly to preſerve its independence or to die for its legitimate ſovereign, Ferdinand the VIIth. Neither the reverſes of our armies, nor the fortune of the tyrant have been able to weaken our conſtancy. Love for the country, for religion, and the king, animate our hearts, and we never ceaſe to animate them, becauſe the ſentiments of honor and of loyalty can never emigrate from this land of heroes. Your highneſs deſires to defend the cauſe of his auguſt houſe, and to fight in the Spaniſh armies. There was a time when circumſtances fruſtrated this generous wiſh; but now that theſe obacles are removed, the ſupreme council of regency intreat your highneſs to come and take command of the army in Catalonia. The enthuſiaſm of the illuſtrious and brave inhabitants of that province will be increaſed by ſeeing a prince, the relation of our good king, ſhare with them the fatigues of war, and lead them, under the bleſſing of Providence, to immortal victories. Your magnanimous anceſtors have gained triumphs in Catalonia, the memory of which ſubſiſt. Your highneſs will preſerve theſe laurels in all their verdure. The enterprize is terrible, the conflict painful, the enemy obſtinate. But the Spaniards have an ardent love for their lawful ſovereign, a determined hatred of the uſurper, an enthuſiaſtic inclination for independence. The people will aid you conſtantly, and prove, that no prince ever defended a cauſe more noble and juſt, with ſoldiers more determined to ſaved France, ſave the throne of your anceſtors, reſtore order in Europe, and proclaim upon the ruins of tyranny, an immortality, the triumph of virtue. But at any rate your highneſs will have fulfilled the duties of your auguſt birth. Princes are the natural defenders of the rights of the people. We rejoice that it has fallen to our lot to manifeſt to your highneſs our attachment to your perſon, and our adminiſtration for your he oic qualities. God guard your life for many happy years.

"Royal iſle of Leon, May 4, 1810."

THE late Mr. Hill, author of Crazy Tales, was with all his wit and humour, often oppreſſed with unpleaſant hypochondriac affections. In one of theſe fits, at Shelton caſtle, in Yorkſhire, he kept his chamber, talked of death and the eaſt winds in tynonymous terms, and could not be perſuaded by his friends to mount his horſe, and diſſipate the blue devils by air and exerciſe. Mr. Sterne, who was at this time one of his viſitants, finding that no reaſon could prevail againſt the fancies of his friend, bribed an active boy to ſcale the turrets of the caſtle, turn the weathercock due weſt, and faſten it with a cord to that point. Mr. Hill roſe from his bed as usual, oppreſſed and unhappy, when caſting his eyes through a bow window to the turret, and ſeeing the wind due weſt, he immediately joined his company at breakfaſt, ordered his horſe to be ſaddled, and enlivened the morning's ride with his facetious humour; execrating eaſterly winds, and launching forth his praiſe of weſtern breezes. This continued for three or four days, till unfortunately, he cord breaking which faſtened the weathercock, it turned at once to the eaſterly poſition, and Mr. Hill retreated to his chamber, without having the leaſt ſuſpicion of the trick which his coſſin Shandy had played upon him.

PYTHON, the orator of Boeotium, as Leon ius fell ow citizen relates, was remarkably corpulent. When a tumult had one ariſen among the people, in oration in which he endeavored to perſuade them to peace and reconciliation, he expreſſed himſelf thus:—You ſee, fellow citizens, of what a ſize I am, but my wife is ſtill larger than myſelf. Yet when we are on good terms, the commonweal ord will hold us. When we disagree, the whole houſe is not large enough to contain us."

Myrmecides wrought out of ivory a chariot with four wheels and as many horſes in ſo little room, that a little fly could cover them all with her wings. The ſame man made a ſhip, with all the tackling to it, no bigger than that a ſmall bee might hide it with her wings.

A farmer at Cheſter, overhearing a converſation of two of his neighbors, in which they expreſſed much faith in dreams, took occaſion to tell them with great ſecrecy, and ſtrict injunction not to mention it, that he had dreamed there was a large ſum of money buried in a dunghill in his field, and promiſed them a ſhare in the booty, if they would help him ſearch for it. It was agreed to carry the dung out upon the land, for better certainty of information. They brought their carts and went to work; but not finding the expected prize, one of them expreſſed a perſuaſion that it muſt be under the ground where the dung hill lay, and was proceeding for it, when the farmer told for the due performance of the Contract.

Foreign Intelligence.

LONDON Sept. 19.

Meffengers failed on Sunday and Monday for Mr. M'Kenzie at Morlaix. We suspect nothing can be done to bring the negociation for the exchange of prifoners to a succesful termination.—One demand is made after another, and every fresh acquiescence is succeeded by a fresh demand—he prifoner is alternately the prey of hope and difappointment; of joy and fear.—Our Government have seen, sent a positive and final answer to the last dispatches—if the French refuse, Mr. M'Kenzie will come home.

September 20.

Orders were received on Monday at Plymouth, for every ship of the line ready for sea, to be immediately victualled for five months.

Copenhagen, Aug. 28.

An English frigate attempting to land her crew at Rumbaes, near Christiansand, relinquished the attempt on the approach of our division.—Intelligence from Norway says the Danish gun boats have captured 34 English merchantmen.

Banks of the Elbe, Sept. 1.

The English fleet continued to cruize between Toulon and Corfu. Small parties occasionally land and do much mischief. An English squadron cruizes in Leghorn roads, and obstructs the coasting trade.

Vienna, Aug 26.

On the 4th Aug a bloody affair took place near Rudschuck, in which the Turks loft 700 killed; the details have not reached us.—The report that Rudschuck had been given up was premature, as well as the reported convention of a peace between the Ruffians and the Porte. Several regiments of Auftrian cavalry have marched for the frontiers of Wallachia.

To day and yesterday it is afferted, on authority of the Greek Merchants that the Turks have gained a considerable advantage over the Ruffians.

Naples, Auguft 13.

All things proceed in the beft manner for the invasion of Sicily, the injury done to our flotilla by the enemy laft month being repaired.

Hamburg, September 1.

By the treaty with Italy, Bavaria is to acquire fomewhat more than half the Tyrol.

RUSSIA AND TURKEY.

No events of great importance have occurred. The Grand Vizier has received considerable reinforcements, and the Grand Seignior is on his march, and has advanced to Adrianople at the head of his army. Hence it is concluded at Vienna, Aug. 25, that Ruffia will be obliged to give up its enterprises against Schumla, and it is doubted whether Gen. Kamenski can maintain himself on the right bank of the Danube.

It is alfo ftated, that the Sophi of Persia, has ordered two corps of his army to advance, one towards Georgia, the other towards the Caspian Sea, to co-operate with the Turks.

September 22.

Government this morning received dispatches from Corunna, dated the 8th inft. which ftate, that throughout the whole of the north of Spain, the fpirit of infurrection againft the French had once more become general.—The French troops were dying daily in great numbers for want of food, and numerous desertions were taking place.—Expeditions were fitting out at Corunna againft Santona and Santander, and no doubts are entertained of their fuccefs, from the patriotic fpirit of the inhabitants having been again roused.

The lateft accounts from Lord Wellington's army are dated from Oporto on the 5th inft. where letters had been received dated two days fubsequent to his Lordfhip's laft difpatch announcing the furrender of Almeida. At the above date the Head-quarters were ftill at Celerico, and the army in its former pofitions. Shirmifhes and affairs of poft daily took place, but nothing more important was immediately expected.

By a Portuguefe brig of war, arrived at Plymouth, a report has been brought to this country, that the enemy have been defeated in a general engagement in Portugal; but the date is not ftated or any of the particulars.

This forenoon arrived two Gottenburg mails, the contents of which are ratherimportant.—The King of Sweden continues fo much indifpofed that there is fome probability that the lately elected crown Prince will foon affume the reins of Government.——A Treaty of Alliance, offenfive and defenfive, between France and Auftria, is talked of, and a war with Ruffia is mentioned as its primary object.

September 24.

Advices received at the Admiralty on Saturday, from Oporto, being of the 5th inftant, are of two days later date than thofe before publifhed. No change had taken place in the pofitions of the Britifh army, but fkirmifhes between the different out-poffs were daily occurring, and the patriots were mutually harafling each other. This certainly founds very ominous of a general engagement.

Dispatches have alfo been received from Corunna, under date of the 9th inftant. They defcribe the population in the North of Spain as in a high ftate of animation againft the enemy. It is added, that an expedition was fitting out at Corunna againft Santona and St. Andero. The French in Galicia have, however, received reinforcements.

A Gottenburgh mail arrived on Saturday. The Swedifh papers afford nothing new; but foon after the arrival of the mail the following notice was poffed at Lloyd's:

"Gottenburgh, Sept. 10.

"We have juft learnt that out of a convoy of thirty-five fail from England, bound to the Baltic, twenty one have been loft, with all their crews, few days ago, not far from Marftrand.

The diftreffs occafioned by this alarming information was in fome degree relieved by the following addition, which was ftuck up towards the clofe of the day:

"The Reynard, and Sheldrake Sloops of war failed from Sheerneefs on the 31ft Aug. with a fleet for Gottenburg. On the 16th inft. at 3 A. M. they experienced a gale of wind be arrived at Gottenburgh, and fome of the ships had gone into Marftrand, and the neighbouring ports."

The Corunna Diaries are filled with interefting details of fkirmifhes in almoft every part of Spain, in which the Patriots are generally fuccefsful, fo far as the intercepting of convoys or couriers is concerned.——Some more intercepted correfpondence between the French Generals has been publifhed by the Junta of Gallicia. The Spanifh government has publifhed a Royal Decree or Proclamation, prohibiting all perfons in the military or civil fervice from writing any intelligence to their friends or others refpecting the movements or intentions of the Patriots.

The Earl of Ormond has compounded with Government his hereditary office of the Butlerage of wines in Ireland, fuppofed to produce 12,000l. per annum, for the fum of 200,000l. the intereft of which is to be fecured in perpetuity to the fucceffors of that antient title.

September 25.

A refpectable American Houfe yesterday received letters from Paris, ftating in pofitive terms that Lucian Bonaparte had embarked on board the American fhip Hercules at Leghorn, and it was prefumed that the deftination of the veffel was the United States. He is accompanied by his wife and family, with a retinue, confifting in the whole of forty perfons and he had obtained, it is added, paffports from the Emperor to facilitate his defign. By a gentleman who has arrived from France, this information is in a great degree confirmed, and we learn that it had long been the intention of Lucian to quit the eftearn hemifphere, where he could only be fecond to his brother, whom he conceived to be fubordinate, and to be indebted to him for the Imperial Diadem he wears. It is reported that Lucian had amaffed an immence treafure, confiderable of which he has depofited on board the fhip in which he takes his farewell of Europe.

All the American property confiscated in the ports of France, Holland, Italy, and Spain, as well as the fhips conveying it, had been fold, and the proceeds placed in depot.—Thefe was however not the leaft ground to believe that Napolean would on the 1ft November next, repeal the Berlin and Milan degrees, as proposed in the official letter of the French Minifter of Marine to Gen. Armftrong.—This fuggeftion was treated as it had been confidered in England, merely as an illusive oftentation of a pacific difpofition, for the purpofe of inducing the Unites States to take measures hoftile to Great Britain.

This Gentleman alfo fupports the rumor of the peremptory recal of Junot Belliard, and M'Donald, they having fallen under the difpleafure of the Emperor, in confequence of fome remonftration by the Prince of Esling.

September 26

Paris papers to the 19th inft. arrived laft night. The principle articles which they present are two reports from Maffena to Bertbier, containing fome further details refpecting the fall of Almeida. From one of these it appears, that 1200 of the Portuguese militia which, by the terms of the capitulation, were to have returned to their homes, have by their own consent been taken into the French fervice!—The ci-devant Portuguefe Commander, the Marquis D'Alourna, was the agent employed by Maffena to corrupt the Portuguefe prisoners

Some of the private accounts received by the Gottenburg mail of yefterday, are highly intereftin[illegible] it appears equally certain that the King of Denmark has given a peremptory, refusal, What will this lead to?

That Napoleon has planned the subjugation of all the Northern Powers, or what amounts to the same things, to set aside the present refigning families, and to elevate his own creature to their fovereignties, has long been apparent to thofe who have ftudied his character and actions. Will the refusal of the King of Denmark to permit the paffage of the troops through Holftein alter his views? We think not.—Indeed, by the accounts brought by this mail, this appears already to be the cafe.

One of the letters observes, that Frederick William, oppreffed with the humiliating ftate of independence to which he was reduced, had actually propofed to Napoleon to resign his Crown; to which measure, it is said, the French ruler was not prepared to accede.

FROM SOUTH AMERICA.

Popayan, Aug. 10.—At half an hour after one in the evening of Thurfday, 2d Auguft, about forty or fifty men imprifoned in the city gaol of Quito, under fentence of death, for having borne arms in the revolution of the 10th of Auguft laft, like lions, feized upon the keeper and guards of the prifon; they wound and flay many; and taking poffeffion of their arms, clothe themfelves in the dreffes of the ftain—then running to the barracks, attack the guard, who were but few, (being the dinner hour) are killed; they feize upon their arms, and in a fmall fpace of time enter the interior, where they killed Capt. The city being garrifoned by the artillery and troops in the night, no occurrence took place; but on the following day was publifhed by beat of drum (as well to reftrain the exceffes of the troops, who ftill continue to riot in murders, rapes, and all the horrid outrages of a barbarous foldiery facking a populous city) as to give notice that as the faid prifoners were the origin of this diforder, they fhould government the right proper to form a junta of the eccleftaftical and fecular Caubidos, with the affiftance of his excellency the Bifhop. In that junta was refolved on, the decree abfolving all thofe inculpated, as well for the 10th of Auguft of the laft year, as for the prefent affault; and ordering the troops to retire to Lima. But this laft order was not complied with; for on the following day the troops were ftill combatting the people.

BOSTON, OCT. 11.

Cadiz papers to the 10th September were yefterday received.—They are replete with narratives of war events in feveral of the Spanifh provinces, attended with various fuccefs.

Yefterday afternoon Capt. Davis from London, politely favoured us with papers to the 21ft September.

King Murat had finifhed his farce of the invafion of Sicily, and had returned to Naples.

The election of Marfhal Bernadotte as Crown Prince of Sweden, it was faid, had occafioned a ftrong fenfation in Ruffia.

On the 30th of Auguft, orders were given at Tonningen for the feizure of all American veffels found there.

From Cadiz.—Mr. Wild, who arrived here yefterday from Cadiz, informs that the Salfette Britifh frigate, of 38 guns, Capt. Bathurft, had arrived there from Malta, and brought a report that Lucian Bonaparte (who has refided for years near Rome) had thrown himfelf, with his immenfe property into the hands of the Englifh at Malta.

Account of a Refidence in MADRID, and Journey from thence to LISBON; by a BRITISH Officer.

[The following account was received by a General Officer in this town, who has been so obliging as to communicate it to us. It appears to us interefting, as containing some particulars, both refpecting the attack on Madrid, and the present ftate of Spain, which may not be generally known to our readers.]

Lifbon, 6th March 1808.

I accompanied my regiment to Spain, but left it at Talavera della Reina, in confequence of a fevere attack of my old enemy, the jaundice, and the ophthalmia. I was not above two days at Madrid, when I was obliged to confine myfelf to bed, fuffering fevere pain in the leg I bruifed at Shorncliff, which had not annoyed me when on the march. In confequence of the defeat of Caftanos, my regiment which was to have paffed throuh Madrid, went to L'Efcurial. The Spanifh army under Don Juan was a few days after defeated at Somo-Seria, and fuch was the rapidity of the enemy's movements, that the city was invefted and summoned, before any one was aware of his being within feveral leagues of it. On its non-compliance it was bombarded for three days, and the fire as briskly returned by the inhabitants, though without the fupport of a regular force; the women, by their courage and example, ftimulating the male nobility to deeds of valor. The French were defeated with great flaughter in their attack on the gate de Atochi, and two generals, Grandmaison, and La Bruyere, killed, the latter by a woman.—The enemy penetrated in to the Retiro, which they retained poffeffion of all night, and next morning the town capitulated. Before, however, it was entered by the French, the Marquis de perales, fufpected of treafon, was recognized in difguife, murdered, and dragged through the ftreets Two others fhared the fame fate, one of them for diftributing cartridges filled with sand. Napoleon and his brother remained at St. Martins, two leagues from Madrid; 15,000 troops entered, and 35,000, under Marfhal Bessieres, filed off towards Eftremadura.

point of being apprehended.—Housekeepers were obliged to give in a return of all perfons residing with them and daily and nightly patroles ordered to take up all perfons fufpected, and unable to account for themselves. The inhabitants, on account of the frequent assassinations of French foldiers, were ordered, after funset, to carry their cloaks suspended on one arm, and not to carry knives, on pain of death. Six persons were afterwards hanged, for no other reafon than having knives found on their perfons.

Jan. 1ft, left my bed for the firft time since the 22d of November, having been attended during that period by a physician and two surgeons. On the 10th, I was sufficiently ftrong to walk out, and employed myfelf till the 24th in reconnoitering the ftrength of the garrison, in obtaining as much information as poffible, and in planning my escape, which I on that day effected in the difguife of a peafant, with only four dollars. King Joseph, the day before, made his public entrance in great pomp, but was very ill received; neither could I perceive any Spaniard take off his hat, nor hear a single acclamation, except from General Oudinot and Belliard, behind whom I had taken poft. I left Madrid about three o'clock, with a couple of wallets (which are there called Foreas,) over my shoulders, and a blanket over my coat; took with me a groom of Lord William Bentinck, & directed my course towards Salamanca, where I knew my regiment had previously been. I frequently paffed detachments of cavalry and infantry, afterwards L'Escurial and Guadarama, which were full of troops. At the latter place I was obliged to conceal myfelf in a wood contiguous to the great road till about three thousand paffed. I had afterwards to pass a chain of poffs, several of which were not many hundred yards from me; then croffed with precipitation the great road, ftruck to the left, and loft myfelf in the mountains. In the houfe where I ftopt for the night, I found a Spanish artilleryman, (wounded at the battle of Baylen) whom I perfuaded to accompany me to the army: next day, on entering a village called Naval Pascal, the artillery man having fallen behind, I was purfued by the inhabitants, armed with pikes, fticks, and ftones. They believed me to be a Frenchman, and in fpite of every argument I could use I would have been murdered, but for the timely interference of the vicar, who, on leaving him, gave me a letter of recommendation to the Alcalde of the next village. I perceived Segovia on my left, and on entering Aldas Cades, saw a party of the enemy efcorting three Spaniards, whom they were going to shoot. Being then within six leagues of Salamanca, I was informed that the French were in poffeffion of that place, and their out poffs were very near me. I consequently turned to the left, with the intention of going to Cividad Rodrigo, where General Cuefta, it was said, was reassembling a fresh army. I again loft myfelf in the mountains of Eftremadura, and was almoft ftarved. Many days I wandered from eight in the morning till fix in the evening, without fuftenance; and frequently, when with difficulty I had gained admittance into a houfe, I was obliged to play on the flagelet to induce them to give me fomething to eat. Generally, however, after a few hours, and when they were convinced that I was an Englishman, they became very kind and offered me every thing they had. On my reaching Sexatesia, I bout fix leagues from Cividad Rodrigo, I was informed of Sir Robert Wilfon being at an advanced poft five leagues diftant. I therefore haftened to Martin del Rey, and, to my inexpreffible joy, found part of his legion there. He acquainted me that my regiment had embarked, and advised me rid, copies of which he transmitted to Mr. Frere at Seville, and Sir J. Craddock, who has also forwarded one to Lord Caftlereagh.

On the evening of my arrival at Lifbon, I waited on the commander in chief in my peafant's dress, when, about five o'clock, I was unexpectedly affaulted by an ill-looking fellow, who feized me by my neck, crying out Juftitia. I was immediately surrounded by a number of men with pikes, and followed by a crowd, who conducted me to a dark place resembling a prifon. Then, as they became grofsly familiar, I could not forbear threatening them with my ftick, which was immediately forced from me, and a number pointed at my breaft. Under prefence of my carrying a knife they pinn'd me againft a wall, & proceeded to fearch my perfon, which manoeuvre they performed so roughly, as to force the buttons from my pantaloons. They then conducted me to the Intendant General of Police, who escorted me to the houfe of the Juge de diftrict. There I was ftript to the fhirt, and then sent under a freth escort to the General's, who recognized and liberated me, after I had been a prifoner five hours. That I might not be again insulted, I fupt at the General's, and next morning, under the protection of an orderly dragoon, rode to the ambaffador's (Mr. Villiers) at Belem, who politely offered me clothes of every description, and has since made a formal complaint to the Regency, of the hardfhips I experienced. I found here three officers and an hundred men of my regiment, and there are fo many men and officers of other regiments, that we are formed into two fine battalions. It is said the troops here are immediately to take the field; for what purpofe I know not, as we are too weak to reaft any ferious attack on the part of the enemy. Another report is, that the army will immediately return; in which cafe, detached officers will of courfe, not be allowed to go home.

DUKE OF ORLEANS.

Letter from the Supreme Council of Regency of Spain and the Indies, to his Serene Highneſs the Duke of Orleans.

"MONSEIGNEUR,

"The Spanifh nation rofe againft the unjuft aggreffion of Bayonne—It fwore unanimoufly to preferve its independence or to die for its legitimate fovereign, Ferdinand the VIIth. Neither the reverfes of our armies, nor the fortune of the tyrant have been able to weaken our conftancy. Love for the country, for religion, and the king, animate our hearts, and will never ceafe to animate them, becaufe the sentiments of honor and of loyalty can never emigrate from this land of heroes. Your highneſs desires to defend the cauſe of his auguſt houſe, and to fight in the Spanifh armies. There was a time when circumftances fruftrated this generous wifh; but now that thefe obacles are removed, the supreme council of regeney intreat your highneſs to come and take command of the army in Catalonia. The enthuſiasm of the illuſtrious and brave inhabitants of that province will be increafed by feeing a prince, the relation of our good king, fhare with them the fatigues of war, and lead them, under the bleſſing of Providence, to immortal victories. Your magnanimous anceftors have gained triumphs in Catalonia, the memory of which fubſiſt. Your highneſs will preserve thefe laurels in all their verdure. The enterprise is terrible, the conflict painful, the enemy obſtinate. But the Spaniards have an ardent love for their lawful fovereign, a determined hatred of the uſurper, an enthuſiaſtic inclination for independence. The people will aid you conſtantly, and prove, that no prince ever defended a cauſe more noble and juſt, with ſoldiers more determined to ſlaved France, ſave the throne of your anceſtors, reſtore order in Europe, and proclaim upon the ruins of tyranny, an immortality, the triumph of virtue. But at any rate your highneſs will have fulfilled the duties of your auguſt birth. Princes are the natural defenders of the rights of the people. We rejoice that it has fallen to our lot to manifeſt to your highneſs our attachment to your perſon, and our adminiſtration for your he oic qualities. God guard your hie for many happy years.

"Royal iſle of Leon, May 4. 1810."

THE late Mr. Hall, author of Craig Ta es, was with all his wit and humour, often oppreſſed with unpleaſant hypochondiac affections. In one of theſe fits, at Shelton caſtle, in Yorkſhire, he kept his chamber, talked of death and the eaſt winds in tynonymous terms, and could not be perſuaded by his friends to mount his horſe, and diſſipate the blue devils by air and exercise. Mr. Sterne, who was at this time one of his viſitants, finding that no reaſon could prevail againſt the fancies of his friend, bribed an active boy to ſcale the turrets of the caſtle, turn the weathercock due weſt, and faſten it with a cord to that point. Mr. Hall aroſe from his bed as uſual, oppreſſed and unhappy, when caſting his eyes through a bow window to the turret, and ſeeing the wind due weſt, he immediately joined his company at breakfaſt, ordered his horſe to be ſaddled, and enlivened the morning's ride with his facetious humour; execrating eaſterly winds, and launching forth in praiſe of weſtern breezes. This continued for three or four days, till unfortunately, the cord breaking which faſtened the weathercock, it turned at once to the eaſterly poſition, and Mr. Hall returned to his chamber, wondering at having the leaſt ſuſpicion of the trick which his couſin Shandy had played upon him.

PYTHON, the orator of Byzantium, as Leon his fellow citizen relates, was remarkably corpulent. When a tumult had one ariſen among the people, in oration in which he endeavored to perſuade them to peace and reconciliation, he expreſſed himſelf thus:—You ſee, fellow citizens, of what a ſize I am, but my wife is ſtill larger than myſelf. Yet when we are on good terms, the commonweſt bed will hold us. When we disagree, the whole houſe is not large enough to contain us."

Myrmecides wrought out of ivory a chariot with four wheels and as many horſes in ſo little room, that a little fly could cover them all with her wings. The ſame man made a ſhip, with all the tackling to it, no bigger than that a ſmall bee might hide it with her wings.

A farmer at Cheſter, overhearing a converſation of two of his neighbors, in which they expreſſed much faith in dreams, took occaſion to tell them with great ſecrecy, and ſtrict injunction not to mention it, that he had dreamed there was a large ſum of money buried in a dunghill in his field, and promiſed them a ſhare in the booty, if they would help him ſearch for it. It was agreed to carry the dung out upon the land, for better certainty of information. They brought their carts and went to work; but not finding the expected prize, one of them expreſſed a perſuaſion that it muſt be under the ground where the dung hill lay, and was proceeding for it, when the farmer told

ADMIRALTY OFFICE, Sept. 22.

Copy of a letter from Sir Richard Goodwin Keats, K. B. Rear Admiral of the Red, to J. W. Croker Esq. dated on board his Majesty's ship the Implacable, in Cadiz Bay, the 30th Aug.

Implacable, Cadiz Bay. Aug. 30.

SIR,

My dispatch, No. 15, will have informed their Lordships of the sailing of an expedition from this port on the evening of the 22d—I have now the honor to transmit the copy of a letter I have received from capt. George Cockburne, of this ship, detailing the particulars of a descent and successful attack made on a strong corps of French troops posted at the town of Moguer. The expedition returned into Cadiz yesterday, with a few prisoners and some volunteers for the Spanish army, having driven the enemy from Moguer and the adjoining coast with considerable loss, and a bout forty killed and wounded on the part of our ally

I have received, Sir, through his Majesty's Minister at this place, a copy of a letter from his Excellency M. de Bardaxi, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, bringing expressive of the sentiments of satisfaction and gratitude felt by the Council of Regency at the able and distinguished co operation afforded Gen. Lacy on the expedition by capt. Cockburne, the officers and seamen under his command; and it becomes my duty to mark, in the strongest manner, how sensibly I feel the public service has been benefited by captain Cockburn's able, cheerful, and zealous services.

I have, &c.

His Majesty's sloop Jasper, in Huelta River, Aug. 25

SIR,

I have the honor to inform you, that in purfuance to your orders, I failed from Cadiz on the night of the 22d current, with the veffels and boats you were pleafed to place under my command, for the purpofe of co-operating with the Spanifh armament under the orders of General Lafy. On the night of the 23d, being about four leagues to the fouthward of the entrance of this river. I received intimation from the General that he wifhed to land without further lofs of time on the coaft then abreaft of us, as it would enable him to get to Moguer (where the French army was fuppofed to be) confiderably fooner than he could do by water; the whole fleet being accordingly directed to anchor as clofe to the fhore as they could with fafety. I began about ten o'clock to difembark the troops; and the whole of them, as well as their horfes, &c. being fafely landed, between one and two o'clock, the General commenced his march, keeping along the beach, and being attended by eleven of our flat boats (under Lieut. Westphal, of the Implacable) for the purpofe of tranfporting the army across a large branch of the river, which (after our landing) we were informed interfected the way to Moguer, and extended a very conliderable diftance into the country.—This precaution having, however, prevented their being delayed in the flighteft degree, the army got to Moguer (a diftance of twenty-two miles from the point of embarkation) about eleven o'clock yesterday morning, and the French army being there (according to the information) attempted to regain what they had loft and in their turn made feveral defperate attacks on the Spanifh advanced line; but being worfted in every attempt by the valour and ftea dinefs of the Spanifh troops, they retreated a the clofe of day, and will, I fear, owing to their being principally cavalry, fucceed in getting to Seville. General Lacy will, however, I believe, follow them as long as he fees any chance of deftroying them; and on his return from purfuing them will reimbark an return to Cadiz, or St. Lucar, as circumftances may authorife.

The lofs of the Spaniards during yesterday was but trifling; that of the French has not yet been afcertained; but I law feveral of them lying dead in the field, and about 12 of them were taken prifoners, who fay they were about eleven hundred ftrong.—The cheerfulnefs with which the Spanifh troops bore the fatigue of marching 22 miles, after being without reft for three fucceffive nights, and their readinefs and valour they difplayed in the action that enfued, has excited my highefl admiration, and made me more fanguine than ever in the hope, that fuch people in fuch a caufe muft ultimately fucceafulul. The inhabitants of this neighbourhood alfo mea fcarcely lefs enthufiaim than the army come to their deliverance; and the manner in which they have greet d our arrival amongft them, fufficiently proves their attachment to their legitimate government, and their deteftation of the French ufurpation.—I cannot, Sir, clofe this account of the tranfactions of the Spanifh army with out paying my humble tru fincere tribute of admiration of Gen. Lacy, who has proved himfelf worthy of commanding fuch men, and appears by his coolnefs, judgment, and active bravery, to be peculiarly adapted for fuch fervices as that on which he is now employed. It is now, Sir, a pleafant duty incumbent on me, to affure you that nothing can exceed the good conduct of the officers and men you have placed under my orders; and I muft beg leave particularly to mention to you the unremitted affiduity I have received from Captain Dantell, of this fhoup, and from Lieut. Westphal (1st of the Implacable,) who by his conduct on this fervice has added to the many claims he already has to my particular notice and recommendation.

I have, &c.

Bonaparte in Search of a Wife.—A letter from Petersburgh (says the London Courier of September 12) pofitively affirms, that so far back as October 18 8, during the interview with Alexander at Erfurth, Bonaparte offered, and was promised in marriage, a Ruffian grand duchefs. It was not until entreaties and menaces, had failed to obtain the aflent of this Princess, that he turned his views to the Houfe of Auftria. Several letters have paffed between the Imperial Brother and Sifter on this fubject: one of these (we underftand the laft) we lay before our readers, in the language, verbatim, in which it has been tranfmitted.

LETTER

"SIRE—I implore the generofity, the humanity of the moft juft of princes, of the moft beloved of brothers, and (permit me to add) of the deareft of the dr.——These epithets are fincere; they are due to your Majefty, whom will fhall always be a ready law to me in every thing where my conference does not reproach my fubmiffion, and where difhonour (pardon, Sire, it I fear) would not be the confequence of obedience. I remember too well the ardure of my dearert, ever to give pofterity a caufe of judging me unworthy of my anceftry. As to the intended wife of a Napoleon, I repeat, Sire, my trembling heart would break before I unprincipled despot, who has by turns profeffed himfelf a demagogue, a leveller, a Jacobin, a republican, an Atheift, a Deift, a Mufulman, and a Chriftian? Will he, who mocks a divinity hefitate to trample upon the moft juft claims of woman?

But excufe, Sire, the warm effufions of a provoked innocent mind, that has not yet learnt to diguife what it feels. Though not fuperftitious, I am inclined to conider as ominous, the very offer of an Imperial affalin to marry the daughter and grand-daughter of affaffinated Emperors. If wrong, condescend, Sire, to ascribe my conduct to its real cauſe—to an alarmed virtue, that never will, on any confideration, proftrate itfelf before any guilty favorite of an unjuft fortune.

(Signed) CATHARINE."

"St. Petersburgh, Jan, 25, 18 9.

QUEBEC, Nov. 1.

GOVERNOR CRAIG'S ROAD.

This bold enterprife is finifhed—Seventy five miles of road have been cut through primitive foreft—completing a good carriage way from Quebec to Shipton, in the diftrict of Three Rivers. It is generally fifteen feet wide, hee from all ftumps and other embarraffments, and conneeted and embellifhed by 120 bridges of different dimenfions. Of thefe 24 crofs large ftreams, and the one built over a branch of the Becancour river, called Craig's Bridge, is of excellent workmanfhip.

This grand paſſage to the townfhips will give to the city of Quebec fome hope of independence, in procuring the neceffary fupplies for its growing population. Hitherto reftricted to the produce of a ftinty neighbourhood and unfkilful huſbandry, we have always had to look for fupport to the upper diftricts. Other and more abundant refources are now laudenly opened, and the firft grand ftep towards the formation of a productive vicinage fuccefsfully executed.——Craig's road leads to richer lands, and every furious onward, is fo much nearer the fun. The univerfe does not contain a traft of country, more beautifully diverfified by hill, dale, lake, plain, or more advantageoufly watered by brooks, rivers, and not unfrequently by lakes. The ufual limits of a farm will, in almoft every inftance comprife fome fection of a ſtream, and it would be difficult to feleft any portion of foil incapable of yielding the ordinary and more ufeful grains.

Several hundred head of cattle have already arrived here by this road; and have filled with defpondency the pretty, yet rapacious beef and mutton factors, who have kept us in a ſtate of perpetual fuppliance and occafional famine. Quebec is difenthralled. New facilities will be given to commerce; and profperous foils unfolded to all thofe, who know how to prize the noble independence and fubftantial advantages of an agricultural life. We do not hefitate to call this work the moft important local event, fince this became a Britifh province. And furely, if Rome conferred on her military roads of lefs difficult conſtruction, the title of Æmilian and Flaminian ways, in honor of the projectors of them; we may with lefs pride, tho' with more reaſon, honor this new created and magnificent avenue, with the name of the great benefactor who projected and commanded its execution.

It is but juſtice to ſay, that the troops, both officers and men, exceeding 400 in number, engaged in this work, anſwered the high expectations entertained of them. They performed their talk with cheerfulneſs, notwithſtanding the many inconveniences to be encountered in a wilderneſs. And it is not a little remarkable, that the main detachment, under the command of Lieut. Col. Robertſon, has returned without the loſs of a [illegible] by deſertion or diſeaſe.

of huſbandry, by a Mr. Dabordieu, of Reading, England, nephew to counſellor Simpſon of New York. It is called the Patent Manly's Expedition Plough, is made for ſix guineas, is wrought by three horſes, ploughs three acres in a day, and, with the ſaving of rollings, harrowings, &c. in ſix days work (at eight hours to the day) makes a difference of four days and four hours in favour of the new plough. The comparative ſtatement is for complete preparing an acre of ground, which requires ſix days with the old plough, and but one day and four hours with the new.

SINGULAR OCCURRENCE.

Thomas Thomas, a journeyman taylor, who lodged at a houſe of call, the Black Prince, in Chandos ſtreet, Covent-garden, being informed one day laſt week, by his apothecary, that his malady was apparently of quick progreſs, and of fatal iſſue, expreſſed a wiſh to make a will, for the diſpoſition of his ſmall worldly affairs, and in it directed that his body ſhould be opened (in the preſence of Mr. Wood, the landlord of the publick houſe,) in order that the faculty might, from inſpection of the viſcera, aſcertain the nature of his complaint, which was in fact a common pulmonary conſumption; being dehrous to comply with the injunction of the deceaſed, the body was opened, and the landlord, however, reluctantly attended the operation—It was ſcarcely performed when the landlord, a ſtranger to ſuch exhibitions, was ſeized with ſickneſs and vomitting, and, on reaching the bar was prevailed upon by his wife to take a glaſs of brandy and water. In a few minutes he was obliged to be carried to bed, never to riſe again. On Friday ſevennight, the third day from the attack, he died in a ſtate of delirium, not from contagion, or a predilpoſition to diſeaſe, but ſolely from the impreſſion made upon his mind by the anatomical performance, which, he obſerved, exceeded in horror any thing he had ever beheld.—Lond. pap.

SWIFT, in his journies on foot from Dublin to London, was accuſtomed to ſtop for refreſhment, or reſt, at the neat little ale-houſe on the road ſide. One of theſe, between Dunchurch and Daventry, was formerly diſtinguiſhed by the ſign of the three croſſes, in reference to the three interſecting ways, which fixed the ſite of the houſe At this, the dean called for his breakfaſt—but the landlady, being engaged with accommodating her more conſiderable cuſtomers, ſome waggoners, and ſtaying to ſettle an altercation which unexpectedly aroſe, keeping him waiting, and inattentive to his repeated exclamations, he took from his pocket a diamond, and wrote on every pane of glaſs in her beſt parlour room:

TO THE LANDLORD.

There hangs three croſſes at the door:
Hang up your wife, and ſhe'll make four.

The following anecdote will ſhew, in a ſtriking manner, the influence of faſhion, (and in this inſtance, a moſt ridiculous faſhion,) over the human mind.

A gentleman of large fortune fell violently in love with a lady, much inferior to him in point of property, but far his ſuperior in intellectual talents. He addreſſed her for ſome time with a zeal becoming her merits. But at length ſhe told him ſhe never could conſent to marry him till ſhe had required a ſacrifice, which the feared would be infinitely too great for him to make. If it be half my eſtate, ſaid he, it ſhall cheerfully be laid upon the altar of love. That, ſaid the lady, is but a trifle to what I am about to demand. If you would have the whole of my fortune, and myſelf for your ſlave, replied the ſuitor, I will not demur.—It is more than all that, ſaid the fair damſel.—Name your terms, name your terms! cried the impatient be obeyed. The ſacrifice is ſtill greater than all this, ſaid the lady. For compaſſion's ſake then, cried he in deſpair, tell me what it is! It is no leſs than this, ſaid ſhe, that you ſhave off your monſtrous whiſkers, that I may have the pleaſure of beholding your face!—My whiſkers! cried he in aſtoniſhment! my whiſkers! O heaven! No, madam, be it known to you, I will not part with my whiſkers, to obtain the heart and hand of any daughter of Adam now exiſting on the face of the earth.

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE.

The immortal bard, William Shakeſpeare, was born at Stratford, in Warwickſhire, in the year 1564. His father who was a wool dealer, and in circumſtances not very affluent, was obliged to withdraw young Will. very early from a free ſchool to which he had been ſent in order to have his aſſiſtance towards ſupporting the reſt of his numerous family. Upon his leaving the grammar ſchool, he betook himſelf to the employment in which his father had been bred; he married young, and might perhaps have continued in the occupation of buying and ſelling wool, all his life time, but for an inſtance of miſconduct which obliged him to abſcond. He had aſſociated himſelf with ſome young men of a pr ffigate character, who inſtigated him to join them in ſtealing deer from a park of Sir Thomas Lucy. To avoid the puniſhment that threatened him from the proſecution of this mi deed, young Shakeſpeare fled to London; where, being a ſtranger, deſtitute both of money and friends, and pinched with hunger, he took his ſtand at the play-houſe door. At that time, neither coach nor chaiſe was known in England; the lords and gentlemen were accuſtomed to ride to the theatre on horſeback. with their ladies and daughters behind them on pillions. [Queen Elizabet uſed to ride out in a pillion behind her ſecretary, Burleigh.] Shakeſpeare ſtanding at the play houſe door, took the horſes of the gentlemen who attended the plays, and from the few pence which they beſtowed upon him, he was relieved from hunger His diligence and fidelity in this occupation, were remarkable; and as he had ſome more buſineſs than he was able to attend to perſonally, he hired two boys to ſerve under him. It was not how ever, his deſtiny to continue long in this mean employment; for ſome of the players accidentally converſing with him, were ſo ſtruck with the brilliancy of his wit, that they recommend him to the managers of the play-houſe; where being admitted at firſt in a very low ſtation, he ſoon diſtinguiſhed himſelf, though not as an excellent actor, yet as the moſt captivating of writers.

Human Life—How generally employed.

The length of man conſiſts of about 96 years. One third of the whole is devoted to ſleep, viz. thirty-two years. Sickneſs, infants, and a thouſand other accidents, take up at leaſt one fourth, that is 24 years. And note two numbers, and the ſum is 56 years.

Item—2 hours of ſtudy, and various other occupations, per day, make about 8 years; and 4 hours of meals, meditations, and ſtrolling cares, 16 years; half an hour per day for priests, cattles in the air, &c. will give 2 years; an hour and a quarter for ſhaving dreſſing, &c. 5 years; and ſome three hours additional for ſocial enjoyment, amount preciſely to the 32 years.

Item—3 hours per day to eat and drink, make 8 years; which being added to the different portions of time deſtined to the above mentioned, will make about ſeventy nine years. One year remains to be diſpoſed of.—How will it be employed? Tom Lowe can beſt tell.

GREAT VICTORY OVER THE FRENCH IN PORTUGAL.

LONDON GAZETTE EXTRAORDINARY.
MONDAY OCT. 15. 1810.

Downing-Street, October 14 1810.

A dispatch, of which the following is a copy, was received this day at the Earl of Liverpool's office, addressed to his Lordship from Lieutenant General Lord Viscount Wellington, K. B. dated Coimbra, the 30th Septr. 1810.

MY LORD,—While the enemy was advancing from Celerico and Francoso upon Viseu, the different divisions of militia and Ordenanza were employed upon their flanks and rear: and Col. Trant, with his division, attacked the escort of the military chest and reserve artillery, near Tojal, on the 20th inst.—He took 2 officers and 100 prisoners, but the enemy collected a force from the front and rear, which obliged him to retire again towards the Douro. I understand that the enemy's communication with Almeida is completely cut off; and he possesses only the ground on which his army stands.—My dispatches of the 20th inst. will have informed you of the measures I have adopted, and which were in progress to collect the army in this neighborhood, and if possible, to prevent the enemy from obtaining possession of this town. On the 21st the enemy's advanced guard pushed on to St. Combadão, at the junction of the rivers Criz and Dão; and Brigadier General Pack retired across the former, and joined Brigadier-General Crawford at Matagoa, having destroyed the bridges of these two rivers. The enemy's advanced guard crossed the Criz, having repaired the bridge, on the 23d, and the whole of the 6th corps was collected on the other side of the river; & I therefore withdrew the cavalry through Sierra de Busaco, with the exception of three squadrons, as the ground was unfavorable for the operations of that army.

On the 25th, the whole of the 6th and the 2d corps crossed the Criz, in the neighbourhood of St. Cambodao; and Brigadier General Pack's brigade retired to the position which I had upon for the army on the top of Sierra de Busaco. These troops were followed in the movement by the whole of the corps of Ney and Regnier, (the 6th and 2d) but it was conducted by Brigadier General Crawford with great regularity, and the troops took their position without sustaining any loss of importance. The 4th Portuguese Cacadores, which had retired on the right of the other troops, and the piquets of the 3d division of infantry, which were posted at St. Antonio de Cantaro, under Major Smith, of the 45th, were engaged with the advance of Regnier's corps in the afternoon, and the former shewed that steadiness and gallantry which others of the Portuguese troops have since manifested. The Sierra Busaco is a very high ridge about two miles from its termination, to the convent and garden of Busaco. The Sierra of Busaco is connected by a mountainous tract of country with the Sierra de Caramula, which extends in a north easterly direction beyond Viseu, and separates the valley of the Douro.—On the left of the Mondego, nearly in a line with the Sierra de Busaco is another ridge of the same description, which is called the Sierra de Murcella, covered by the river Alva, and connected by other mountainous tracks with the Sierra de Estrella. All the roads to Coimbra from the eastward, lead over one or other of these Mondego, and was it was evident that he intended to force our position, Lt. General Hill crossed that river, by a short movement to his left, on the morning of the 26th, leaving Colonel Le Cor, with his Brigade on the Sierra de Marcella, to cover the right of the army: and Major General Fane with his division of Portuguese cavalry, and the 13th light dragoons in front of the Alva, to observe & check the movements of the enemy's cavalry on the Mondego. With this exception, the whole army was collected upon the Sierra de Busaco, with the British cavalry observing the plain in the rear of its left, and the road leading from Mortagoa to Oporto, thro' the mountainous tract which connects the Sierra de Busaco with the Serra de Caramula.

The eight corps joined the enemy in front on the 26th, but he did not make any attack on that day.—The light troops on both sides were engaged throughout the line.

At 6 in the morning on the 27th, the enemy made two deliberate attacks upon our position, the one on the right, the other on the left of the highest point of the Sierra. The attack upon the right was made by two divisions of the 2d corps, on that part of the Sierra occupied by the 3d division of infantry. One division of French infantry arrived at the top of the ridge, when it was attacked in the most gallant manner by the 88th regiment, under the command of the Hon. Lieut. Col. Wallace; and the 45th regiment under the command of the Hon. Lieut. Col. Meade, and by the 8th Portuguese regiment, under the command of Lieut. Col. Douglas, directed by Major General Picton.—These three corps advanced with the bayonet, and drove the enemy's division from the advantageous ground which they had obtained.—The other division of the 2d corps attacked further on the right, of the road leading by St. Antonio de Cantaro, also in front of Major General Picton's division.—His division was repulsed before it could reach the top of the ridge, by the 74th regiment, under the command of the Hon. Lieut. Col. French, and the brigade of Portuguese infantry, under the command of Col. Champelmond, directed by Col. Mackinnon. Maj. Gen. Lieth, also moved his left, to the support of Maj. Gen. Picton, and aided in the defeat of the enemy on this post, by the 3d battalion Royals, the 1st and 2d bat. 28th regiment.

In those attacks Maj. Generals Leith and Picton, Cols. Mackinnon and Champelmond, of the Portuguese service, who was wounded. Lieut. Col. Wallace, the Hon. Lieut. Col. Meade, Lieut. Col. Sutton of the 9th Portuguese regiment, Major Smith 45th regiment, who was unfortunately killed, Lieut. Col. Douglas, and Major Birmingham of the 8th Portuguese regiment, distinguished themselves. Major General Picton reports of the good conduct of the 9th and 21st Portuguese regiments, commanded by Lieut. Col. Arentschild. I have also to mention in a particular manner the conduct of Capt. Dansey, of the 88th regiment. Major General Leith reports the good conduct of the Royals, 1st bat. 9th & 2d bat. 38th regiment, and I beg to assure your Lordship, that I never witnessed a more gallant attack than that made by the 38th, 45th, and 8th Portuguese regiments, on the enemy's division which had reached the ridge of the Sierra.

On the left, the enemy attacked with three divisions of infantry of the 6th corps, that part of the Sierra occupied by the left division, commanded by Brig. Gen. Crawford, and by the brigade of Portuguese infantry, commanded by Brig. General Pack.—One division of infantry only made any progress towards the top of the hill, & they were immediately charged with infantry, which was in reserve, was moved up to support the right of Brig. Crawford's division, and a battalion of the 19th Portuguese regiment under the command of Lieut. Col. Mackean, made a gallant and successful charge upon a body of another division of the enemy, which was endeavoring to penetrate in that quarter. In this attack Brig. Gen. Crawford, Lieut. Col. Beckwith of the 95th, and Barclay of the 43d, and the commanding officers of the regiments engaged, distinguished themselves.

Besides these attacks, the light troops of the two armies were engaged thro' out the 27th, and the 4th Portuguese Cacadores, and the 1st and 16th regiments directed by Brig. Gen. Pack, & commanded by Lieut. Col. de Rego Bonito, Lieut. Col. Hill, and Major Armstrong, shewed great steadiness and gallantry.—The loss sustained by the enemy in his attack on the 27th, has been enormous.—I understand that the General of Division Merle & General Maucun are wounded, and General Simon was taken prisoner by the 52d regiment, and 3 Colonels, 33 officers and 1250 men.—The enemy left 2000 killed upon the field of battle, and I understand from the prisoners and deserters that the loss in wounded is immense.—The enemy did not renew his attack, excepting by the fire of his light troops, on the 28th but he moved a large body of infantry and cavalry from the left of his centre to the rear, from which I saw his cavalry in march on the road which leads from Matagoa over the mountains towards Oporto.

Having thought it probable that he would endeavor to turn our left by that road, I had directed Col. Trant, with his division of militia, to march to Sardan, with the intention that he should occupy those mountains, but unfortunately he was sent round by Oporto by the General Officer commanding in the North, in consequence of a small detachment of the enemy being in possession of St. Pedro de Sal; and, notwithstanding the efforts, which he made to arrive in time, he did not reach Sardan till the 28th at night, after the enemy was in possession of the ground.

As it was probable that in the course of the night of the 28th, the enemy would throw his whole army upon that road by which he could avoid the Sierra de Busaco and reach Coimbra by the high road to Oporto, and thus the army would have been exposed to be cut off from that town, or to a general action on less favorable ground; and as I had a reinforcement in my rear, I was induced to withdraw from the Sierra de Busaco. The enemy did not break up in the mountains at 11 at night of the 28th and he made the march expected. His advanced guard was at Avelans, in the road from Oporto to Coimbra yesterday; and the whole army was seen in march through the mountains; that under my command, however, was already in the Low Country, between the Sierra de Busaco and the Sea; and the whole of it, with the exception of the advanced guard, is this day on the left of the Mondego.

Although from the unfortunate circumstances of the delay of Colonel Trant's arrival at Sardan, I am apprehensive that I shall not succeed in effecting the object which I had in view in passing the Mondego, and in occupying Sierra de Busaco, I do not regret my having done so. This movement has afforded me a favorable opportunity of shewing the enemy the description of troops of which this army is composed; it has brought the Portuguese levies into action with the enemy for the first time in an advantageous situation;—and they have proved that the trouble which has been taken with them, has not been thrown away, and that they are worthy of contending in the same ranks and in all those which we have since made the whole army have conducted themselves in the most regular manner. Accordingly all the operations have been carried on with ease, the soldiers have suffered no privations, have undergone no unnecessary fatigue, there has been no loss of stores, and the army is in the highest spirits. I have received, throughout the service, the greatest assistance from the General & Staff Officers. Lieutenant General Sir Brent Spencer has given me the assistance which his experience enables him to afford me, and I am particularly indebted to the Adjutant and Q. M. General, and the officers of their departments, and to Lieut. Col. Backhurst, and the officers of my personal Staff—to Brig. Gen. Howarth, and the artillery and particularly to Lt. Col. Fletcher, Capt. Chapman, and the Officers of the royal engineers. I must likewise mention Mr. Kennedy, and the officers of the Commissariat, which department has been carried on most successfully.

I should not do justice to the service, or to my own feelings, if I did not take this opportunity of drawing your Lordship's attention to the merits of marshal Beresford. To him exclusively, under the Portuguese Government, is due the merit of having raised, formed, disciplined, and equipped the Portuguese army, which has now thrown itself capable of engaging and defeating the enemy.—I have, besides received from him, upon all occasions, all the assistance which his experience and abilities, & knowledge of this country, have qualified him to afford me.

The enemy has made no movement in Estremadura, or in the northern provinces, since I addressed your lordship last. My last accounts from Cadiz are of the 9th inst. I enclose a return of the killed and wounded of the allied arms in the course of the 25th, 26th, 27th, and 28th inst. I send this dispatch by my aide de camp, Captain Burgh, to whom I beg to refer your Lordship for any further details, and to recommend him to your Lordship's notice.

I have the honor to be, &c.
WELLINGTON.

The precise loss of the British army is 97 killed, and 434 wounded—of the Portuguese, 90 killed, and 512 wounded. The dispatches state, that the enemy is now in possession of no more ground in Portugal than his troops occupy.

The lots of the French in killed, wounded, and prisoners, is stated at 10,000, some accounts say 15,000. The British cavalry had not been engaged, but it is reported they had got between the French army and Almeida.

In addition to the foregoing, private accounts state, that before the Gleanor had sailed for England, it was reported, that the French had been lo pelled with the pursuing army, that 16,000 men, with one General and 37 officers, had surrendered; and it was also rumoured that the French had no bread for 2 or 3 days previous to the action.

Dispatch from his Excellency the Marshal commander in chief to his Excellency Don Miguel Forjet a Porjes.

Most Illustrious and Excellent Sir,

I have the greatest satisfaction in announcing to your Excellency, for the information of his Royal Highness, that the combined army under the orders of his Excellency the Marshal General Lord Viscount Wellington, has defeated the enemy's army commanded by Marshal Massena, in the action which the latter made upon our position on the heights of Busaco. As his Excellency the Marshal General will give, to be laid before his Royal Highness, all the details relative to the movements and dispositions, which led to this brilliant victory, I shall confine myself to what respects the particular conduct of the troops of his Royal Highness, who covered themselves with glory, and shewed themselves worthy emulators of their companions in arms the English army, and worthy heirs of the glory of their ancestors.

The enemy's advanced posts having on the 25th arrived at the foot of the mountains upon which we were posted, they took a position on the same day, during the which the whole force of the

The 9th and 24th brigades under the orders of col. champelmond and after he was wounded, of Lieut. col. Sutton. The 9th regiment commanded by Lieutenant col. Douglas. The 1st and 16th battalions of the line, and the 4th battalion of chasseurs under the orders of Brigadier General Pack.

The 1st and 19th brigades of chasseurs No. 1, under the orders of Brigadier General Coleman. The battalions of chasseurs No. 1, and 3, with the English light division, and the 6th battalion of the line, 9th light division, and the 21st line brigades of the Portuguese army, commanded by Brigadier General Campbell. The 1st and 19th brigades of artillery commanded immediately by Major Arentschild, and two or three posted more to the left.

The only difference that there was in the conduct of all these troops consisted in the opportunities that were offered to each corps to distinguish itself. This may be called a glorious day for the Portuguese army, its troops having acquired by their conduct, the admiration, and the full confidence of the English army. The conduct of the 8th regiment under the command of Lieut. col. Douglas, and in which Major Birmingham distinguished himself, did much honor. That regiment with two English regiments, dislodged the enemy with the bayonet from the heights, which they kept, & gained, and made them pay dear for their momentary advantage. The 9th and 21st regiments merited the complete approbation of Major General Pakenham, whose praise is due to colonels champelmond, Lieut. Arnt. Beattie, who commanded the brigade after the col. Sutton who commanded the brigade after the col. Sutton was wounded, and Lieut. col. John Mason of the 9th regiment, commander of the 21st regiment.

Brigadier General Pack deserves my thanks as the troops under his orders, and their commanders Lieut. cols. Hill and Lord de Rego, and Major Armstrong. The conduct of the battalion of that from, No 4, deserves to be particularly mentioned, for the steadiness they shewed in the attack, as for the confidence with which they sustained the fire of the enemy for the whole day. The 1st battalion of that from No. 4, commanded by Lieut. col. Jorge d'Avilez behaved extremely well, and that officer merits every eulogium. The battalion No 3 under the command of Lieut. col. Elder, particularly distinguished itself, and in discipline and valor, cannot be excelled. The 7th and 19th brigades of Brigadier General colonel [illegible] of chasseurs No. 2, also deserves the highest praise for their conduct, as also their commanders, colonels Palmerium and Jose cardoza de Menezes Sottomaior, and Lieut. col. Nixon; and particularly five companies of the 19th regiment, under the immediate orders of Lieut. col. Mackean, made an attack with the bayonet on the enemy, which is particularly mentioned by all the officers of the army, who witnessed it, as an admirable for the discipline and bravery that they exhibited.

The battalion of chasseurs No 6, Brigadier-General campbell's brigade, and commanded by Lieut. col. Sebastian Pinto, likewise behaved very well, and deserves my thanks.

The brigades of artillery of the 9th and 6th under the immediate orders of Major Arentschild, also greatly distinguished themselves, by supporting with [illegible] the whole [illegible] the fire of 14 pieces of artillery, [illegible] greatest of men to the enemy, dismounting three of their guns, and blowing up two of their waggons of ammunition. Two other brigades of artillery also came into action. The officers and soldiers of those corps are worthy of being represented to his Royal Highness, for good and excellent conduct, which has ever been the honor to veteran soldiers, for by the confession of all the English officers they display'd equal valor and discipline. With respect to the troops who were not immediately engaged, I observed on them the most attentive desire to measure themselves with the enemy, and from appearances they will shortly have an opportunity. But from such conduct as the Portuguese troops displayed in the battle of Busaco, affided by the well known bravery of the English army, we cannot but anticipate a favorable result of the present contest, and that the enemy will pay dear for the devastation and cruelties which they have committed in Portugal.

I cannot omit this opportunity of acknowledging the important services, which on every occasion I have received from the talents and zeal of the Quarter Master General of the army, colonel D'Urban; and I have every reason to be satisfied with the Adjutant General Brito Mamiho, and with my Military Secretary, Brigadier Lemos, who accompanied me during the battle; and also with the whole of my staff.

I annex a return of the loss of his Royal Highness' army in the battle of the 27th—that of the enemy must have been immense from the accounts of their prisoners and deserters, and from the enemy abandoned afterwards, when they made a movement on the left. They left upon the field of battle more than 3200 killed, and several Generals were wounded. The General of Brigade Simon was taken prisoner, and the officers whom we took, say that the Generals Merle, Lacuhe and Grandoge were wounded.

God preserve your Excellency.——Head Quarters, at Coimbra, 30th Sept. 1810.

The following address to the citizens of Rome, was dated from Fontainebleau, and privately distributed two days after he failed: but was immediately suppressed by an official order:

"To the Romans."

"In the bolom of retirement, occupied with no other cares than those of contributing to the happiness of my family and my neighbors and talking on Rome's claim to territory, I have pure refined bliss which a mind devoted to a love of the arts can enjoy, I was affided by the ruthless hand of despotism, rendered still more heavy in its being that of a brother; I still more galling, as he owes his life and his honors to my intrepidity.

"This infernal mandate was, that I should repudiate an endeared wife, and defert those children whom nature identifies with my existence: that I should afcend a throne created by the most horrible perfidy, and unite my efforts to defpoil and fubjugate the yet unconquered part of the globe.

"citizens, I had no choice between unconditional fubmiffion and immediate flight. I did not believe falkind. May your chains at leaft open you; or rather may you foon crafe to bear any, by the intervention of that omnipotent vengeance, which fooner or later punifhes ufurpation, tyranny, and oppreffion

LUCIEN BONAPARTE.

LONDON, Sept. 29.

On the 27th, the two line of battle ships and a frigate that were blocked up in Cherburg, made their escape, when the Dannegal and Revenge were a few miles off that port. They were watched by two of our sloops of war. Information of this was yesterday received at the Admiralty, and orders were sent to Plymouth for 3 sail of the line to follow them. The Hero and the Mars were also ordered from Spithead to cruize off Cherburgh; from the state of the weather there is every chance of their being taken.

The exact amount of the naval force which the enemy have already equipped in the Scheldt, is 13 sail of the line, 2 frigates, 2 corvettes, and sixty gun vessels. Sir Edward Pelew it watching them with 11 sail of the line.——Commodore Owen commands a detached squadron of frigates, gun boats &c. in shore.

Our friend Mr. ——, arrived from France, last Saturday. He says that Bonaparte has become very unpopular with those old revolutionists, to whom he is chiefly indebted for his supremacy. It was reported, that Sieyes, Barras, Gregoire, Lanjuinois, Roedeter, Reubel and Fouche had been arrested, and that Josephine and her daughter, the late Queen of Holland, were placed under a guard, and nobody permitted to converse with them. The general opinion was that Bonaparte would not be suffered to tyranize over mankind many months longer.

OCT. 1.—The Gazette contains dispatches from Sir Ch. Cotton, including a letter from Capt. Blackwood, senior officer of the in shore squadron off Toulon—by which it appears that on the 24th July six sail of the line and 4 frigates came out of Toulon harbour to join a frigate which had been driven by our boats into Bandol, and endeavour to cut off the Eurydus and Sneerwater. Capt. Blackwood, supported by the Ajax and Conqueror advanced to their support notwithstanding the great disparity of force, and by his undaunted bravery disappointed the enemy, who retired into port after exchanging a few broadsides with our ships, thus acknowledging that three British men of war, one frigate and brig, were more than equal to six French ships of the line, one 3 decker, and one frigate.

OCT. 3.—Lucien Bonaparte is certainly in the hands of the English, not as a prisoner, but as a supplicant for our protection. From Rome he proceeded to Cagliari, where he delivered himself up, with his family, to Mr. Hill, the British Minister, who has sent them to Malta, as a place of greater safety.

The Lively frigate, capt. M'Kinley carrying the flag of Rear Admiral Boyle, is lost off Malta, but the officers and crew are all safe.

Oct 5.—Accounts have been received from Buenos Ayres to the 2d of August, which state, that Liniers had raised a considerable force against Monte Video. They allege, that the town Liniers, on his return from Buenos Ayres to Cordova, was made prisoner at Sacramento. His dispatches were immediately taken from him, and he was lodged in the citadel of Monte Video.

October 6.

Extract of a letter from Malta, dated August 25.

"Lucien Bonaparte and his family, Madame Bonaparte and his family, Madame Bonaparte and his family, one daughter, and a relation, altogether upwards of forty persons, were brought here on the 23d inst. by capt. Barnie, of the Pomone frigate, who found them on board an embarked at Civita Vecchia, in the Roman States, about 3 weeks ago. He gives out, that as he had refused to divorce his wife, become King of Rome, and marry his daughter (about 15 years old, and now here with the rest of the family) to Ferdinand VII. of Spain, he has been exiled from the Continent of Europe, and that he intended proceeding to America.

"Gen. Oakes waited on him yesterday forenoon, and informed him, that, as he withed to land, he should be provided with accommodations in Fort Ricasoli, where both himself and family would be treated with every attention, but that of course he could not but be considered as a prisoner of war. He is, we learn, to remain here until directions from Government, at home shall be received about him."

Lisbon, Sept. 15. Several arrests have taken place here during the week, and many of the people arrested, it is said are to be sent off in a Portuguese frigate. Among them are the following names:

Mr. Ratsam, a French merchant, & member of the board of trade.

Vandelli, a principal of the house of trade, & member of the same board.

Semfrayo, a nobleman.

Judge Mascarenha.

Cambrido, employed formerly by a late defaulter, who lived in his house.

Dutrurcq, a Frenchman.

Mordan, an English merchant.

Matchioness D'Alvito.

Jerome Estaves and son, of the police office.

Dr. Almeda, a physician in the first practice.

Brencam, a merchant much respected.

Pellegrini, a painter, not long since in London.

Martell, Estaves, & Joseph Saldana.

The subsequent paragraphs are extracts from some of our letters—

"Lisbon, Sept. 15.

"Lord W. has taken up the line of positions he probably all along intended after the fall of Almeida, and hunger will, I fancy, keep the French from advancing. Several great and rich, but suspected men, have been taken up as parties of the enemy. It is said they are to be sent to the Brazils; some merchants figure away in this throng."

"The British army, not including the Portuguese, now amounts to a full 35,000 men, without the late arrivals. Further reinforcements are expected in our harbours daily, so as to increase it to 40,000, and then we need fear little.

"The French force directly opposed to ours does not exceed, so far as we can learn, above 50,000.

"Lisbon, Sept. 15.

"On the 29th ult. a general massacre of the British was to have taken place; he conspiracy extends thro' the country; at Funiar, Coimbra and other towns in the interior, depots of arms have been found. In consequence of the number of prisoners confined, I have just learnt from good authority, that the Regency expect a rescue, and which was to have taken place, or may take place, this night—it was arranged in this manner: this day the Cathedral, it being the anniversity of the expulsion of the French from Lisbon, turned out a grand procession of Priests, &c. This evening they are to go round again—About 6 o'clock the rebels were to be clothed in British uniforms, and which have this day been found; the priests were to be fired on, in order to make the populace engage that it was by the British soldiers; others were to cut off as many as they could find, and others to release the prisoners confined at a small insulated fort near Bertiz.

"In order to be on our guard, officers are ordered up to the castle, where our men are quartered from their billets in town. The bulness of the rescue must either take place to night or to morrow, as those prisoners are to be embarked for the Brazils on Monday. It is a most vile conspiracy; letters were removed to Coimbra, and the enemy's in the neighbourhood of Viseu.

"The French have a large body of cavalry at Azette, and our advanced parties are about six miles in front of Coimbra. There we shall make a stand and as the position is strong, I do not think a battle will ensue, as the French will not risk an attack.

"The force of the French on their new ground is not known, but before our army quitted the neighbourhood of Coa, the enemy was reckoned to be 60,000 strong. All the operations on our part have been admirably conducted. Regnier has 20,000 men on the Tagus. The desertions continue but fewer than before, as Massena has mostly Frenchmen with him."

German papers of the 23d of Sept. speak of a triple alliance between the three great powers of the Continent. Denmark absolutely holds out against the French entering Zealand.

Letters from Heligoland to Oct. 1, treat all apprehensions from the French as ridiculous. The Turkish armies have increased confiderably. A conspiracy has been detected in Portugal to betray the British; the conspirators chiefly noblemen and monied people, common people remain patriotic—from 1 to 200 conspirators to be transported to Africa or Cape de Verde. The blowing up of the magazine at Almeida was a part of this plot, which was to have placed Lord Wellington's army between two fires, Massena and the tories in Lisbon, which city was to have been conflagrated, as a signal for a massacre.

"Lisbon, Sept. 15, P. M.

"A most sanguinary plot has been discovered.—Above 100 of the most respectable inhabitants are apprehended. On the 29th of this month a general massacre of the British was to have taken place—the conspiracy extended throughout the country! The Priests turn out with the people as a guard since the explosion. Several thousand stand of arms and secreted uniforms was discovered.

Accounts from Smyrna state, that such is the enthusiasm in the present "war of religion," that many of the Asiatic Pachas furnish more troops who voluntarily take the field at the head of their respective contingents."

A letter from an officer on board the Royal William:—

"Spithead, Oct. 2—2 P. M.

"This morning an officer from the American brig of war Hornet, came on board.—Says they were informed at Havre (France) which port they left yesterday, that Wellington had defeated Massena—that Gen. Armstrong had left France. Great despondency at Havre in consequence of the reported defeat."

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.

Letters from London state, that Mr. Pinkney feels entire confidence, if the Berlin and Milan French decrees are declared to be revoked on the 1st November, the British orders in council will immediately be declared to be null and void.

Captain Cunningham, arrived at Baltimore in 40 days from Gottenburgh, informs, that when he sailed it was reported, that the King of Prussia had abdicated his throne.

BOSTON, Nov. 10.

From Cadiz.—The accounts are to the close of 8 piembers. That city continued to bid defiance to the attacks of artillery of its French invaders; and had sent succours to Portugal.—The predatory warfare was kept up in all parts of the peninsula; and the hope was not extinct of the eventual expiration of the modern Moors.

The Great Spanish Convoy demolished on the Isle of Leon, the 24th Sept.—The event was announced by a general salute, and had spread general joy. The French batteries were daily bombarding Cadiz; but the fire was returned.

...mended by J. Perrond, Capt. Wolfe, in his letter on this subject, observes,

"The capture of this privateer is of great importance to the British trade; she has the best crew I ever saw composed of strong, healthy, active, steout young seamen, and her commander a very clever experienced officer, a Lieut. de Vaisseau, brought up in the French navy prior to the revolution, and received the order of the Legion of Honor from Bonaparte, for the havoc he made in the East Indies being capt. of the Belona privateer upwards of nine years, and came to Europe captain of the Cannonierre; he tried us on every point of sailing, but thanks to a gale of wind we caught her, having run 134 miles in 13 hours.—She is a very superior sailer, and has headed the Aigle ever since her capture; was chased by four different vessels, but left them with the greatest ease; she is nearly new-strong built, and copper fastened.—Captured on the 14th Aug. the Englith brig Unity, from Newfoundland bound to Lisbon, loaded with fish.—on the 24th, the American barque Augustus, from New Orleans, bound to Liverpool, loaded with cotton, &c.—London paper.

The Spanish papers are filled with accounts of actions and skirmishes, in which much is loft, but in which the patriots are represented as always successful.

A Paris paper of the 8th of Oct. contains an account of Murat's attack upon Sicily—of his landing with some detachments of Sun-Stephano—of his dislodging the enemy of that place amid the cries of Vive le Empereur! And after all, he thought it prudent, having completely failed, to order the return and disembarkation of his troops.

Sir Home Popham, in the Venerable, has gone to Corunna, to assist the Spaniards in an expedition. Several transports are to follow, with troops, stores, &c.

Lucien Bonaparte was expected in England in the Pomona frigate, from Malta, with his family. He will have his choice of remaining there, or of coming to the U. States.

Mr. M'Kenzie still remained at Morlaix. It was feared no negociation for the exchange of prisoners could be effected with the French.

The Princess Amelia was very ill at Windsor on the 12th.

The safety of Mungo Parke, it is said, is ascertained by the arrival of the ship Mary Anne, Clifton, at Plymouth from Senegal. Accounts to the 16th of Aug. had been received at Senegal, mention that M. Parke had been a Tombuctoo in the latter end of May. This enterprising traveler had been seriously indisposed, and much disabled in constitution.

In consequence of the persevering intercession of the agents of the French Emperor, the Danes had conceded so far to their importunity, that 500 of their troops were to be admitted into Zealand progressively, until the whole force intended to be conveyed to Sweden, should have passed through Islhind: and it is added, that under a pretence whatever, more than the 500 specified should at any time remain in the Islands.

DEFEAT OF THE TURKS.

Official account of the Russian Army.

"The General in Chief, Kamerkov, having left Lieut. General Count Langeron before Rudschuck, marched on the 5th September, against the enemy; he arrived on the 6th, in the evening, with the army, forming five columns in the vicinity of the Turks and ordered a general attack to be made on the following day. It began at ten in the morning, and at seven at night the Turkish army was no more; a position which seemed impregnable, entrenchments defended with the utmost obstinacy, nothing could withstand the gallantry and perseverance of the Russian troops; that memorable day covered them with fresh laurels. As soon as the attack began, Major General Hamnibis attacked the left flank, near the Danube. In the mean time the Major Gen. Kutusoff arrived from the other side of the Danube, and engaged another Turkish army which had been formed there. In this manner the enemy saw his entrenchments surrounded by our troops without withstanding his hopeless situation and a very brisk cannonade kept up on our part, he continued to defend himself in the most obstinate manner. An attempt made against the left flank having proved unsuccessful, the General in Chief, in order to bring the matter to a close, adopted the measure of ordering Count Kleenskov, General of infantry, to open a heavy cannonade, and detach immediately after twelve battalions to carry the entrenchments by assault, while he on his side detached Major Gen. Sabanajeff with ten battalions to take the enemy's camp in the rear.. This General soon after entered the Turkish camp, and this unexpected attack executed with the utmost rapidity, decided the victory. A great part of the enemy's horse took to flight, and was purfued by our cavalry, who killed a large number of them. The General in Chief without the leaft lofs of time, ordered Major General Sabanajeff to lead on part of his troops against the laft and ftrongeft Turkifh entrenchments but obferving that the darknefs of the evening prevented the troops to act, he poftponed the attack until the next morning, and ordered the troops to retreat. During that time Col. Berlier attacked the enemy's flotilla, captured fome veffels, and funk a great number, and dispersed the reft.

During the night, the Turks finding themfelves furrounded, fent an officer to capitulate, and, foon after furrendered at difcretion. The whole camp, all the arms, baggage and artillery, 173 ftand of colours, and upwards of 5000 prisoners, having fallen into our hands. Among the prifoners is Achmet, a Pacha of three tails, the Commander of the flotilla, a Pacha of two tails, and a great number of officers of diftinction. The Seraskier Couchand Hali Archa, was killed. All the entrenchments & their environs were covered with ftain Turks. The enemy's lofs in killed exceeds 5000; our lofs is trifling. Thus was an army of 45,000 men dispersed and deftroyed in one hours time."

The late King of Sweden was at Memel on the 17th ult. it was faid, on his way to Finland through Ruffia to endeavour to excite a movement in his favour. A letter from Koningsberg, of the 28th ult ftates that he had hired a boat at Villau, for the purpose of being conveyed to Sweden but his intention was discovered, and he was arrested by the police officers when about to embark. It is added that he was immediately fent off under a ftrong guard to Riga.

From Lifbon—Captain Forbes who arrived at New York, informs that an embargo was laid on Lisbon the day he failed, – that there had been no action since that of the 28th of Sept.—that Gen. Maffina, after his defeat, had been reinforced with 30,000 men—that Lord Wellington had been joined by Romana, with 12,000 troops, and had occupied a very command ing position—and that a general engagement was daily expected.

Lifbon Gazettes of the 6th of Oct. ftate, that official accounts have been received from Lord Wellington, dated Leira the 2d of Oct. His Lordfhip prefented his fituation at that place; but it did not appear that the French had yet advanced towards Coimbra. On the 3d the French occupied the mountains between Mondago and Vouga. They left no troops in Beira Alta. Their communication was actually cut off as well by the Spanifh peafantry, as the militia corps under the orders of General Bacellar and thofe of Silveria. The French were not only in want of provifions, but military ſtores, and they muſt fight with thofe they brought with them, as they could get no fupplies.

An intercepted letter from Maſſena to Berthier, is published in the Lisbon gazette made an attempt to turn the left wing of the combined armies and that by a bold push to get between it and Lisbon cut in this they were foiled by the active vigilance of Lord Wellington, who by a prompt and rapid retrograde movement, thwarted their intentions in which of the French had fucceeded they would have been enabled to occupy the immenſely ſtrong chain of batteries the Britiſh have erected from the Tagus acroſs to the ſea. and thus have made them ſelves maſters of this place by a fine manœuvre.

A great battle now appears to be unavoidable and as the Portuguefe troops have been fairly proved in the late action at Buſaco, a glorious reſult is anti ipated.

The head quarters of Lord Wellington on the 6th Oct. were at Villa Franca, and on the 6th at Mafra 35 or 40 miles from Lifbon, where he intends to receive the French to determine the fate of Portugal The line of defence is formed from thence to Alverca. Thus the army is ſituated from the ſea to the banks of the Tagus. Some prisoners were brought in yeſterday, among them General Simon badly wounded. Maſſena has declared that after ſtriking the firſt blow he would not ſtop until he had driven the Engliſh into the ſea.

The French force is eſtimated at from 75 to 80,000 men; the combined forces are nearly equal; ſo that ſomething dreadful and deciſive muſt take place in a day or two. Laſt night all the large boats and lighters were put in requiſition, and ſent up the river ſaid to be for tranſporting the ſick and heavy baggage.—The head quarters of the French army are at Batalha

THE CANADIAN PATRIOT'S HYMN

SHOULD e'er fierce Wars red torrents flow,
And tinge with blood our fertile plains,
With joy canadian hearts would glow
That dauntleſs ſhill would be our ſtrains;
Our Sires ſtand view with noble pride,
Their ſons acquiring Wreaths of Glory,
Heroes in Victory's arms who died,
But they would live—would live in ſtory,
canadians e'er our Hymn ſhall be,
Our King, our country and our Liberty.

And ſee where ſmiling Liberty appears, cheering each brave and patriot foul;
Uberta now her ſons diſarms,
turning the haughty corſican's controul:
Deep ſinks the Tyrant in deſpair,
His curſt ambition now is higher'd,
No more for him ſhall Britain's crown ſhall wear, ſince patrio. Nations are united;
Spaniards like ours, your Hymns ſhall be,
Your Native Realms, Your King and Liberty

And long may each canadian feel
In freedom's cauſe his heart beat high,
For Home and for our ſovereign's weal,
In glory's crimſon field to die;
And fore lone Maid's crown ſhall bred the tear,
Some much lov'd Pair with forrow bending
O'er her lamented Warrior's bier,
Who died heroic and long defending,
Yes, Warriors yes our Hymn ſhall ever be,
Our country, King, dear Love and Liberty

SUPPLEMENT to the YORK GAZETTE, for December 12, 1810, No. 24.

Died on Friday laſt, at his houſe in this town, Mr. John Henry Kahman, one of the black ſmiths to the Indian Department.

An Iriſh gentleman, having a party to meet at a tavern, exclaimed on arriving (finding the room empty) "So I am firſt after all." The waiter informed him that he was miſtaken; that his friends had been there, but were gone. "Very well, (returned the Hibernian) then I have made no miſtake, for as they were all here before me, ſurely I was right in ſaying, I was firſt after all.

A jack-tar, growing ſick of his buſineſs, deſerted his ſhip, went into a foreign try, and hired himſelf to a farmer. He was immediately ſet to plowing with a yoke of oxen and an old mare, named Jin. The ſailor being wholly unacquainted with the management of the tacks, ſheet and bow lines of his craft, and accuſtomed, in his firſt attempt to put about, miſſed ſtays, and, by turning the yoke, threw Jin and the oxen all down in a heap together. Jack, frightened with the confuſion, bawled out for help. The farmer inquired what was the matter. "Matter! (Matter enough, by G—" replied Jack: "the larboard ox has got the ſtarboard ſide—old Jin has got foul in the rigging, and they are all going to the devil ſtern foremoſt."

In a great ſtorm at ſea, when the ſhip's crew were all in prayers, a fellow ſhuffled into a violent fit of laughter; when being reproved for his ill timed mirth, and aſked the reaſon of it, "why," ſays he, "I was laughing to think what a biſſing the boatſwain's red noſe will make, when it comes into the water!"

"Ciet money, honeſty if you can—but get money."

A few days ſince there died in a neighbouring ſtate a valuable merino—an artful fellow obtained poſſeſſion of the ſkin; and after preparing one of your common ſheep for the purpoſe, neatly ſowed it on—and then ſold it for fifty dollars. The cheat, however, was ſoon diſcovered, and the ingenious maker of merinoes conducted to his winter lodgings free of expence.—Baltimore Paper

Foreign Intelligence.

LONDON, Oct. 5.

By the Pitt, arrived at Portsmouth, we have received letters from Madras, of which the following is one:

"Madras, May 6.

"The Pitt goes to England direct as a packet. You will perceive we have taken Amboyna, and I hope our present expedition against Bourbon, and ultimately the Mauritius (for which a second expedition will be immediately prepared) will be equally successful. The troops at present going from hence consist of the 69th and 86th regiments, flank companies of his Majesty's 12th and 34th regiments, under Lieut. Col. Campbell, 12th and 6th N. I. and a portion of artillery. They are to take possession of the Isle of Bourbon, preparatory to a combined attack with a force from the Cape, on the Isle of France. The entire force going against the Mauritius is 5000 from India and 3000 from the Cape. Mr. Farquehar goes with the expedition, to be governor of the anticipated new conquest. Besides the expedition against the Mauritius, another is on foot to reduce Java and Batavia, and in short, every place where an enemy's flag now flies. The navy will make their fortunes, for all the Dutch possessions are rich in accumulated treasures of every kind. Admiral Drury's share, for Amboyna alone, is estimated at 50,000l. The property taken there is valued at 300,000l. There are 300,000lbs. weight of cloves of the best quality. Two days after the fall of the place, a ship of 1000 tons arrived from Samarang, laden with rice; from the extreme scarcity of provisions, the cargo was sold at 6 dollars a big. Things seem to be quiet here, but I apprehend the flame is only smothered. I hope the court of directors and board of control will devise some wise measures, or they will throw all again into confusion. Gen. Hewett is arrived here from Bengal. He was sent for by Lord Minto. The Bucephalus frigate, and Hesper sloop, are both arrived from England. We expected a commander in chief by the former ship, and are surprised none came. Capt. Hoare of the Hesper, is removed into the Blanche, and Capt. Henry Drury commands the Hesper. As the Cape ships are often confounded with the squadron in India, I send you the names of the latter. Ruffell, Belliquex, Cornwallis, Clorinde, Piedmontese, Phaeton, Cornelia, Fox, Doris, Chiffone, Bucephalus, Modeste, Psycue, Caroline, Dover, Drake, Procris, Blanche, Dalhei, Barracanta, Samarang, Hecate, Hesper, Diana, and Sylva.—Total, 2 ships of the line, 16 frigates, 6 sloops, a brig and a cutter."

October 13.

One of the German papers contains the following article, respecting the last moments of the late Queen of Prussia.

"The King was at Charlottenburg, when he received intelligence of the alarming symptoms which the queen's disorder had assumed, and he immediately set off for Hohenzieritz, accompanied by his two sons, the hereditary prince, and prince William; he arrived at 5 o'clock in the morning, and the queen, who, in the expectation of his approach, rallied her almost exhausted faculties, received him with a degree of tenderness and sensibility which diffolved every heart in tears; her reception of her children was equally affecting, the king was compelled to retire to give vent to his affliction; as soon as he collected him cramps subsided, but her oppressions increased; and it was now that the became aware of her approaching dissolution.—She defired the opinion of one of her physicians, conjuring him to be candid in his report:—he answered, that that very moment was the crisis of her fate, and that should the survive it, he doubted not of amendment.—She appeared at once refigned and comforted—but the hour of death was come—another cramp seized her, when, with uplifted eyes she exclaimed, "Oh my God, my God, do not forsake me!" and soon after, "Jesus shorten my suffering!" The prayer was heard, and the breath which gave it utterance was her last. Her hands were locked in those of her husband's, and her diffolution tho' sudden, was apparently less painful, than from the nature of her disorder was apprehended. About an hour after her death, two more of her children, Princess Charlotte and Prince Charles, arrived. The Princess of Orange and the Princess of Hesse sister to her Majesty, arrived during the day from Berlin, and Hohenzieritz became a scene of general lamentation. On opening the body it appeared that the seeds of death had been for several years struggling for maturity. The funeral procession was in the highest degree impressive and magnificent. Mr. Iffland, the manager of the Berlin Theatre, had by permission, placed fifty choristers at the Brandenburg gates, who sung the choral, 'Jesus my confidence,' &c. Before the Royal Palace was likewise fifty choristers, who sung the choral, "How fleeting is the time of man;" and all the Members of the National Theatre were assembled in the portico, where under the direction of Mr. Wener, Director of the Royal Chapel, they sung the choral, "O how blessed are ye pious," while, as the royal hearse entered the gate, discharges of artillery and the dismal sound of the knell marked the procession."

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.

Latest from Europe.—The ship Portsmouth, Capt. Dawson, has arrived at Baltimore, in 22 days from London. The intelligence by this arrival is of confiderable importance. Dispatches from Lord Wellington, dated the 20th of October were received in London on the 25th, announcing the capture of the important city of Coimbra, together with 5000 French troops, by the Portuguese militia. There had been no general engagement between Maffena and Lord Wellington. The alarm in Lisbon, occasioned by the approach of the contending armies, had subsided. The British troops were in high spirits. The situation of the French army is represented as extremely perilous; and the expectation a Lisbon, as conveyed in letters to London, was, that Maffena and his troops would receive a speedy and signal defeat.

Coimbra is situated on a mountain, in the province of Beira. It ftands near the river Mondego, not far from the sea coast, about 90 miles north of Lisbon, and 60 south of Oporto. It was founded by the Romans 300 years before the Christian ara; and was, at the commencement of the present troubles in Portugal, a very rich and important city, containing 18 colleges, in which were 4300 ftudents; 9 churches; 8 convents, and 12 or 15,000 inhabitants.—The possession of this city was of the highest importance to the French, as it cut off all intercourse between Lisbon and Oporto: and it is now of equal value to the combined armies, as it reftores that intercourse, and gives to them the command of the whole sea coast between those two important posts.

Mr. Jackson, the late British minister to the United States, arrived at London on the 19th ult.

The following remarks, on the relative fituation of the French and the ving been within sight for twenty-two days, without an engagement. The great talents of Maffena, and the presumed ftrength of his army, would lead us to expect a general action at once, if he is really very superior in numbers; as his fituation muft be fingularly diftreffing. His convoys with supplies harraffed in the rear by a body of forty thousand militia, under Gen. Silviera and Col. Trant, the great extent of his land conveyance, both of ammunition and provifions, (being 380 miles from Bayonne, and 220 from Madrid) in an unfriendly country, surrounded with enemies; these circumftances muft soon oblige the French General either to give battle upon terms advantageous to the English, or to retire for the purpofe of additional reinforcements. Lord Wellington, on the other hand, ftrongly poffted and abundantly fupplied, is in no hurry to rifk a general action, confcious that a Fabian policy, by the mountains and faftneffes of Portuguefe Eftremadura, is the moft deftructive warfare to be adopted againft the wily Hanibal of modern Europe. If Lord Wellington, attacks Maffena, the craft of the latter may overcome the bravery of the former; if he only fortifies an attack, the chance is that the bravery of his army will render him fuccessful; in which case Maffena's want of provifions will force upon him a precipitate retreat; such desperate fighting as is without example on the annals of modern warfare; or a capitulation of his whole army. This latter idea, is, however, a presumption, only to be realized, in the event of a decided victory on the part of Lord Wellington; and Maffena's inability to retreat for want of supplies."

The ship Alfred, Captain Patch, arrived at Gloucester on Thursday morning, in 31 days from Lisbon, and furnishes the following intelligence:

Lisbon, Oct. 12.

The movement of Romana, and every thing, indicates that the march of the allied army to the weft of the Peninsula, is the result of a plan which has been well calculated.

Oct. 15.

A dispatch is received from Lord Wellington, dated at Head Quarters, Ajuda, Oct. 12. He mentions the march of Romana to join his army; that detachments of troops under Colonel Wilson and Col. Trant, with the inhabitants of the country who had risen, were annoying the rear of the French army; that they had already entered Bastaco and Coimbra; and that all the north of Portugal was tranquil.

October 19.

The Anglo Portuguese army has been confiderably reinforced since the battle of Baffaco. It has concentrated its forces and formed entrenchments. It has been joined by the Spanish forces of Equerda. On the contrary, the army of Miffena is diminifhing every day, and his troops are discontented in consequence of the privations they are obliged to endure. Every day renders his fituation more critical, and will foon reduce him to the necessity of fighting under great disadvantage, or of retreating.

Ajuda, Oct. 15.

Dispatches have been received from Gen. Miller, at Coimbra.—That city was taken poffession of on the 8th.—The garrifon of the French, and the wounded amounted to 4000. The prifoners were sent to Oporto, and dispositions are made for the defence of the city.—Col. Wilson with an advanced guard of cavalry arrived on the 10th at Condeixa. Maffena is at the foot of the Sobral, extending his line to Alenquer.

Madrid, Sept. 12.

It has been ordered that in future a Spanish officer or soldier fhall be received into the service of King Joleph.—This has been always the opinion of Napoleon.

Sardinia, Sept. 4.

When Lucien Bonapare arrived here he called himfelf Lorenza Fabricio, a Roman merchant; but he was foon known. The Russian Minister withheld him to land, but the British Minister fucceeded, and he was sent to Malta.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.

Latest from Portugal.—The last sailing ship Canton, Brown, arrived at this port yesterday from Lisbon, which port the left on the 2d of November. The verbal intelligence received by her, is, That Mr. Jarvis had appointed Mr. Greene to be his successor as American Consul at Lisbon; that 12 fail of the line of battle ships, several frigates, and sloops of war were left at Lisbon, and five more were daily expected; that several gun boats and brigs were lying about 20 miles up the Tagus, opposite the town of Villa Franca, which was in poffeffion of the French; that skirmishes were daily taking place between the French and a party of English sailors who when on shore occupy the town of Alcondra, about a mile from Villa Franca: that French General Maffena, was killed about the 25th of October by a shot from one of the gun-boats; that the French and English piquets were within hail of each other; that General Romana has joined the Earl of Busaco (late Lord Wellington) with an army of 10,000 men; that Colonel Trant has retaken Coimbra and made 5,000 French prifoners, many of whom were wounded in the late battle at Busaco, and some of them had arrived at Lisbon and were to be sent to England. 500 transports were lying in Lisbon Roads.

Capt. Brown informs us that on the day he sailed, it was reported that the French were retreating, and that all was quiet at Lisbon.—Mer. Ad.

Late from the Mediterranean.—The thooner Eclipfe, failed from Smyrna the 16th Sept. and the Caffle the 17th in co. with the brig Expectation, capt. Kirtis, with whom he parted on the night of the 10th, off Serigo.—On the 24th, about a degree to the westward of Malta, experienced a hurricane, which blew with great violence for an hour.—26th, fell in with the armed ship Lewis, Lawrence, of Boston, from Smyrna for Liverpool, with whom we kept company 10 days.—Capt. Lewis informs us that on the 26th Sept. he spoke a brig 4 days from Malta, the capt. of which informed him, that, by the moft recent accounts from Sicily, the French had not attempted to land on that Island, but were waiting for a favorable opportunity with a large force on the Calabrian shore, fay 70,000 men.—On the morning of the 8th Oct. the Rock of Gibraltar being in fight, made fail and left faid ship, at the fame time discovered several vessels ahead, standing up the Mediterranean, which appeared to be a convoy; at meridian, one of the ships, a frigate gave chace to us, and at 4 miles distance, or upwards, fired several shot, but perceiving she did not come near us, we flood on, and she hauled on a wind for the convoy.—On the morning of the 10th of Oct. off Cape Spartel, fell in with a British frigate, who after coming within half a mile of us, the bore away without speaking, apparently for Cadiz.

About the firft Auguft 4000 Janezaries with the Governor of Smyrna, at their head, left that city and neighborhood to join the army of the Grand Seignor which had previously marched from Conftantinople to oppofe the Ruffians, faid then to be within 200 miles of that city. News was foon time afterwards received at Smyrna that the two armies had met, and that the Ruffians received a check. Nothing further refpecting the campaign when I left Smyrna.

voured by the owner, with London Papers to the 23d ult.

The Times of the 22d Oct. ftates, that on the Friday preceeding, Mr. Jackson, late Envoy Extraordinary to this country, arrived at Portsmouth in the Venus. He landed immediately under a falute.

It appears by dispatches received from Lord Wellington, received from Lisbon, in the remarkable short paffage of 4 days, that Maffena was in a moft critical and dangerous fituation. The Portuguefe militia, under Col. Trant, had furprized the French at Coimbra, where they captured 5000 men. Lord Wellington was poffed in front of the French army, in his ftrong lines with his right at Villa Franca. He had been but faintly molefted in taking this position. Maffena's was inferior in number, and its retreat without the loss of baggage and artillery, was fuppofed impoffible, while famine would probably arreft their retreat. Every circumftance indicated the policy of Lord Wellington to be what is emphatically called Burgoyning the French.—The next news we may confidently expect to contain their furrender or deftruction. The alarm among the merchants at Lisbon, had subfided in consequence of this favorable ftate of affairs, and they were determined to wait the event with confidence.

London, October 22.

The anxiety produced by the retreat of the allied army, and the rapid and confident advance of Maffena, was almoft wholly removed by intelligence which arrived on Saturday. Dispatches were received from Lord Wellington (brought by the Apollo frigate, after an uncommon quick paffage of four days from Lisbon to Spithead,) the substance of which was circulated in the following bulletin:—

"Dispatches have been received from Lord Wellington & Mr. Stuart, of the date of the 13th inft, by which it appears that the allied armies had reached within their lines; their right being at Caftanbero and Vallafranca, and their left at Torres Vedras, on the 7th inft. They had not been molefted in their retreat, but fome affairs had taken place between the cavalry of the two armies, in which the British and Portuguefe cavalry diftinguished themselves.

"The Marquis de Romana was on his march with a part of his army to join Lord Wellington. On the 13th he was expected at Montemier.

"The rains had begun on the 8th; the British army is represented as being protected from them in the villages and under huts. The French army is feverely expofed to them.

"Colonel Wilson had occupied the position of Busaco with a Portuguefe brigade on the 6th, and it was reported that Colonel Trant had entered Coimbra on the 7th, and had taken the French garrifon, with their wounded prifoners."

The important event alluded to in the laft paragraph, of the bulletin, merely as a rumour, is fortunately put beyond all doubt by concurring advices from Corunna and Oporto. At the firft of these towns the fact was announced in a Diario Extraordinario on the 14th inft. a translation of which appears in a subsequent column. Several letters were alfo received from Oporto, confirming the official communication transmitted to Corunna, from which we felect the following as being the moft explicit and circumftantial:

"Oporto, October 9.

"We have great pleasure in acquainting you that we have received a very pleafing and important piece of intelligence, by the arrival of Major M. Crohen, from Coimbra this morning, viz. that the division of the army under the command of Colonel Trant, had entered that city laft Sunday evening, and after fome refiftance, took is faid the French rear guard left Coimbra laft Thursday; and a rumour was alfo current there that a battle had been fought at Leyria, in which the enemy had been worfted, with the loss of 8,000 men. We hope that this daihing and brilliant affair at Coimbra is the forerunner of others equally important."

Another Letter, fame date.

"Since writing you this morning, I have juft learned that our governor (Trant) had taken 3000 prifoners at Coimbra, having entered that city with only the militia of his district, about 6000. They will all arrive here on Friday. We have taken all the medicine chefts, furgeons, &c. and about 50 officers are among them; but Col. Pamplona, the Portuguefe traitor, who was appointed governor by the French, escaped.—We are all, as you may naturally fuppofe, very much elated—the bells are ringing, and every demonftration of joy is fhewing. The militia entered Coimbra on Sunday evening at five, and the few cavalry immediately took poffeffion of the bridge—the infantry difperfed all over the city, and took the French by surprize. We loft 20 men and Col. Serpe, of the Pennafiel Portuguefe regiment, was wounded in the arm; Col. Trant had feveral fhot's fired at him but efcaped. The French, by their own accounts, plundered Coimbra moft cruelly, and the deftruction of property there was very great. The officer who brought this account declares, that he never witneffed fuch horrid scenes."

Other letters mention, that upwards of 20,000 Portuguefe militia were on the march from the left bank of the Duoro for Coimora. The division of Col. Wilson, is ftated in the bulletin, to have occupied the position at Busaco on the 6th (a fact not noticed in the Oporto letters,) and on the 7th that of Trant obtained poffeffion of Coimbra by a moft brilliant coup de main. General Miller's division we learn by a letter from Oporto, under date of the ninth inftant, arrived at Coimbra after the retreat of that town, and immediately croffing the Mondego, pufhed on to Condeixa in the rear of the French army. Of the divifion under generals Silveira and Bucellar, we have no accounts.

Corunna Extraordinary Diary of Saturday, Oct. 14.—OFFICIAL.

The Spanifh Conful in Oporto, charged by his Excellency the Capt. Gen. of this kingdom, with the communication of all notices relative to the actions and movements of the combined army, and of the French in Portugal, communicates as follows in a letter dated the 7th:—

"On the 1st there was another action near Coimbra, and I was credibly informed that it was glorious for our arms. On the morning of the 3d, a nother firing was heard, which lafted five hours. The inhabitants of the country north of the Mondego and Figueyra have croffed to the other fide by the order of Lord Wellington, who on the 30th wrote to captain Bemiel, of his Majefty's brig Efpipe, telling him to order the tranfports to fail from that port (Figueyra,) becaufe he fuppofed the French would go there by land days. I have been informed by a Portuguefe veffel, on board of which Cap. Bradford is going Penifhe, that Lord Wellington had iffued a proclamation defiring them not to leave their homes, for that every thing went on well, and that he had taken three French Generals prifoners.

The French were three days at Coimbra until the 3d, and in the evening of that day one divifion of them arrived within three leagues of Figueyra. All the inhabitants fled, not knowing whether they were Englifh or Portuguefe, but fuppofing them to be French.—Our army has retired to a good poftition.

"The Englifh Gen. in this place, Coimbra to occupy their positions; and that the French followed them, leaving a ftrong garrifon at Coimbra, which, with 4000 of his militia, furprifed this garrifon, and took them prifoners, with all the fick and wounded. Gen. Miller arrived with his corps of Militia, very foon after the action, and remained at Coimbra. It was reported that he was to march next day in purfuit of the enemy. Trant was on his march to Oporto with his prifoners, to the number of 5000, to embark them for England. It was expected at Oporto, that in a fhort time the whole of the enemy's army would be deftroyed, as they could receive no reinforcements, and their communications were completely cut off."

Carthagena, Sept. 18.

The fecond expedition of General Sebaftiani to the kingdom of Murcia, has not been attended with better fortune than the firft, which took place in April laft. The army of General Blake occupied the lines from the Port of Cadena, by Alcantarilla to Ancora, covered the citadel and country of Murcia.—All the peafantry of the kingdom, from the age of 16 to 60 ran to its defence.—Three thoufand Valencians, infantry and cavalry, with two pieces of artillery, flocked from Oretrueda. The Murcians were ready to inundate their delightful fields, and make all imaginable facrifices to oppofe the progrefs of the enemy, who after arriving on the 24th Aug. at Caprilla and Alhama, dared not to advance; our advanced parties round his in the neighbourhood of Alcantarilla, Lebrilla, and Alhama, and in the fkirts of the Siena and Carrafhot, on the 28th and 29th; and on the 30th General Sebaftiani commenced his retreat upon Talana and Lorca, which he likewife evacuated on the morning of the 2d Sept. The city of Lorca, and other places through which the French retreated, were totally facked and deftroyed. In Talana they hung a prifoner on an elm tree, and in Lorca they murdered more than 20 perfons among them were a prieft and three monks. The profanation of the churches and other religious places were, as ufual, horrid and innumerable.

It is in general the opinion, that the enemy will not attempt to penetrate into the vicinity of Murcia. The peafantry are ardent in their wifhes to fight, and they can combat with infinite advantage.

The inhabitants abandon the places through which the French pafs, and Sebaftiani can remain no longer in doubt concerning the difpofition and courage of all the province.

Terrible Explofion.—The following intereiting article is copied from the London Courier of October 2.—

WESTMINSTER, Sept. 11.

The following are the details of the unfortunate catastrophe which happened in the city of Efmich:—

About half paft eight o'clock, on the evening of the 1ft of September, a French waggon, drawn by nine horfes and loaded with fourteen cases of powder, cartridges, and grenades, arrived at the gates of this city, and entered it; in fpite of the difficulties which arose, the waggons continued their route, although it was remarked that one of them fmoaked; it hardly arrived at the market place, oppofite one of the inns, when it caught fire with so great an explofion, that it was heard at Erfort, twelve leagues diftant. In a moment the neighbouring houfes were on fire; every perfon who was near them was fhattered to pieces. The limbs of feven cannoniers, who escorted the waggon, and of the horfes were fcattered in the ftreets.—Two young married people, who were fitting in front of their houfe, were crushed to pieces by an enormous free ftone, which the explofion hurried upon them. M. Counsellor Dorr has been burnt, and feveral perfons have been found dead in his houfe. Capt. Schenck, perceived the conflagration, he precipitated himfelf into the ftreet, and was fave; his family and Miss Sophia Eichel fell a victim to the flames. In another houfe, Seffert, an advocate married about three weeks, was fitting at the fide of his young wife, on a couch near the window which looked into the ftreet, the explofion ftruck the wall and the top of the houfe, and, by a miraculous phenomenon, the couch fell from the fecond floor into the ftreet and the married couple were quite free from danger, but all the others perifhed in the flames. The conflagration lafted until the afternoon of the next day, although there were more than an hundred pumps at work, and a prodigious number of perfons affembled from all points to render affiftance. There are about forty houfes burnt. The windows in all the houfes of the city have been broken, and there are very few houfes where the hangings of the rooms have not been damaged. The number of perfons killed are already known to amount to more than fifty. It is prefumed there are more than eighty perfons mortally wounded or very much maimed.——Some people have been killed in endeavoring to extinguifh the flames. The man who had the care of the caftle called Wartbough having drawn away about forty filled with cumbuftibles, when, one of them being too hot, burft and killed him. At a fhort diftance from the waggon which caufed fo much diftrefs, there was second explofion of 15 quality loaded with powder; all before the explofion, it fell back.——A little further there were six others of the fame kind; if they had immediately followed, as is cuftomary, all the city would have been in one heap of ruins. It is impoffible to paint the consternation amongft the inhabitants. The number of families who have loft their fortunes is very confiderable.——The greater number is in mourning, or has to mourn over fome unfortunate one who is wounded.

Foreign Intelligence.

Late and interesting

FROM SOUTH AMERICA.

[Communicated for the Philadelphia Gazette.]

The lateſt intelligence from the river Plata, received at Rio Janeiro was down to the 11th September, brought by the Britiſh ſchooner Mislotoe,dispatched with advices of recent events, information of the exiſting ſtate of affairs, and for freſh inſtructions to the Britiſh commanding naval officer there, for his government under circumſtances equally unpleaſant and critical.

The Junta of the Province of Paraguay, purſued a bold and vigorous policy, untempered by lenity. Liniers and two of his principal adherents, were condemned and executed on the 26th of Auguſt ; they were accuſed of designs ſubverſive of peace, and treaſonable.—Liniers was extremely popular, and the Junta had too much reaſon to apprehend that the diſcontented would ſeize any opportunity which might offer of rallying under his command, and oppoſing under his direction, the patriotic views of the new government.

One of the firſt ſteps of this government had been the organization of a ſmall army, (aid to amount to about 4000 men, and which they immediately marched into the interior of the province ; the city of Cordova, (large and populous) which had at firſt declared againſt the Junta, ſurrendered without oppoſition—the inhabitants waiting only for the favorable opportunity of evincing their patriotism and love of freedom. Liniers and his adherents had made this their ſtrong hold, but were obliged to abandon it with precipitancy—they were purſued by a party of cavalry, ſeized and carried to Buenos Ayres. From Cordova this army purſued its march weſtward, and by the laſeſt accounts, it had been as yet completely ſucceſsful in effecting the views of the government, cauſing its authority to be acknowledged, and seizing and diſperſing its opponents.

The provinces of Peru and Chili, it was ſaid, had declared themſelves independent.

On the weſter band, the government of Monte Vi'deo, and the people on the ſouthern banks of the river Plate, oppoſed the Junta of Buenos Ayres and its meaſures, declaring them to be in rebellion to the legal authorities of Spain. They had gone ſo far as to ſend their whole naval force to blockade Buenos Ayres.

The armament conſiſting of one frigate and 6 or 7 ſmaller veſſels, arrived in the outer roads of Buenos Ayres, on the 3d September ; they had not as yet proceeded to any hoſtilities but declared their deſign of blockading the port, for which purpoſe they had ſolicited the aid and concurrence of capt. Elliot, commanding a ſmall Britiſh frigate (the Paſcupine,) who declined giving a poſitive anſwer, wiſhing no diſtruſt to receive inſtructions from higher authority.

The Miſletoe was remanded to Buenos Ayres, with deſpatches, and ſailed on the 3d October, Admiral de Courcy, with the Foudroyant, of 84 guns, was to ſail with the ſame deſtination on the 4 h. The deſign of the Britiſh Admiral, (gained from the beſt authorities,) was to preſerve neutrality, to avert if poſſible, the calamities of civil war, but eſpecially to ſupport the Britiſh commercial flag, and to inſure to it free egreſs and ingreſs into thoſe ports, whole government was willing to admit them. This and ſupport, and had entered into a correſpondence with the Britiſh ambaſſador at the court of Brazil. From the latter they had received a reply, cautiouſly evaſive in its terms, at the ſame time containing wiſhes for their ſucceſs in all legitimate proceedings.

The deſigns of the Brazilian government were perfectly ſecret, ſome movements of troops to the Southern frontier had been made, but whatever be their views, they muſt ſubmit to the guidance of the Britiſh cabinet, and on the meaſures of the Britiſh government depend, whether or not, the provinces of South America are to obtain a free government, with an arduous and ſanguinary ſtruggle.

From a London paper of Oct. 20.

A ſucceſsful ſortie has been made by ſome Engliſh and Spaniſh troops, who fell upon the French in an unguarded hour, and deſtroyed moſt of the works they had raiſed to annoy the immediate vicinity of Cadiz.—They afterwards returned to the city with very trifling loſs.

Letters from Carthagena and Alicant, the laſt to the 2d inſt. contain the ſpirit-ſtirring intelligence, that the yellow fever has re appeared there.—The advices ſay, that between the 28th and 29th Sept. 180 perſons died in conſequence of it, and that half the inhabitants had quitted the city to avoid the contagion. We alſo learn, that Sebaſtiani has retired with the greater part of his army from Valencia into Murcia, and that General Blake has raiſed a force of 25 thouſand men to reſiſt him ſhould he approach.

On the day of the brilliant affair of Buzaco, the whole of the French army amounting at leaſt to 70,000 men, were under arms. The whole of their poſitions was perfectly viſible from ours. The right of the enemy was commanded by Marſhal Ney, with the generals of diviſion, St. Simon, Loiſon, and Macan, under him. St. Simon, as appears from the Gazette, was wounded and taken priſoner ; and according to the report of priſoners and deſerters, Macan and Loiſon were alſo wounded. The left of the French was commanded by Regnier, with the French Generals Merle and Grand Gouvet, both of whom are reported to be wounded.

The 8th corps, under Junot, was drawn up in a column of reſerve ; the cavalry, amounting to nearly 10,000 men, did not arrive.

The Britiſh army was under arms at three o'clock A. M. A little before day light, Lord Wellington arrived near General Craufurd's poſition on our left. The ground was rocky, and he was obliged to diſmount. Soon after the firing began on the left, and ſhortly followed an heavy firing on our right ; upon which Lord Wellington obſerved—" this is the true attack," mounted his horſe, and rode off to the right. When he reached it it was day light, and he ſaw the French troops near the heights. He immediately ordered the 88th and the other corps of that brigade to charge, and moved another regiment to outflank the enemy, who then retired in the moſt diſorderly manner. Their advance was very regular and ſpirited. The ſecond attack was alſo repulſed, and then Lord Wellington let off to the left, but before he could reach it the French had been repulſed, and the action was at an end.

Shortly after the termination of the action, the French occupied a village in front of our left, and within range of our guns. A meſſage was ſent to the commanding officer, repreſenting that it was contrary to the uſage of war for an enemy to occupy a poſition which it was evident he could not maintain, and which would therefore only occaſion an uſeleſs effuſion of blood ; he was in conſequence requeſted to withdraw, which he refuſed. A few guns with ſhrapnels, were then immediately opened upon the village, which We copy the following from a morning paper :—" The Duke of Orleans, who was appointed by the Regency to the chief command in Catalonia, demanded of the Cortes an audience for the confirmation of that appointment. The audience was refuſed, and he was ordered to quit the territory within 24 hours. A Sicilian man of war had been prepared to convey him to his command on the eaſtern coaſt. Notice was given to the Sicilian Captain, that his ſervices would not be required, and a Spaniſh frigate was provided for his Highneſs, in which he failed for Sicily on the 1ſt Octoher. In the ſhort interval, prior to his departure, a guard was aſſigned him, which was ordered on no account to leave his perſon.

His Majeſty has been pleaſed to confer the moſt honorable order of the Bath on Major General (Field Marſhal) Beresford. The uſual notification will probably appear in this night's Gazette.

The Courier ſtates the force of Ld. Wellington's army at 34,000 Britiſh, 25,000 Portugueſe—Theſe are independent of the Spaniſh corps, of which no account is made. Gen. Cotton commands the cavalry. The infantry is formed into diviſions, which are commanded by Gen. Spencer, Lieut. Gen. Hill, Major Gen. Picton, Maj. Gen. Cole, Maj. Gen. Leith, and Brig. Gen. Crawford. Maſſena's army, the battle of Bufaco, is ſtated at full 70,000, which has ſince been reinforced by 15,000 men.

Lord Wellington makes no mention of this reinforcement ; and ſtates, that on the 17th, Gen. Silveira had not received any intelligence of the march of troops in Caſtile ; from which quarter reinforcements muſt come, if from any.

Beſides the Portugueſe, the Engliſh have two or three parties which harraſs the French rear. The garriſon which Lord Wellelley left at Peniche have made ſeveral priſoners.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.

There was a ſevere gale at Cadiz the 9th of October, which continued till the 11th ; many veſſels parted their cables, but none went aſhore.

The ſchooner Polly and Priſcella, Captain Cook, of providence, parted both her cables, and on driving through the fleet carried away her main boom.—Captain Cook, after he was clear of the ſhipping, made ſail to bear her back again, but not being able to make his main ſail ſet by the wind, kept dropping to leeward, and in paſſing the French fort they fired at him and the firſt ſell in every direction round the veſſel ; and he with his crew took their ſmall boat and left her. Admiral Keats, commander of His Britannic Majeſty's ſquadron in Cadiz bay, ſeeing the ſituation of the veſſel ſent a number of boats, who took poſſeſſion of her before the had got on ſhore, and got her ſafe back again. He then ſent her papers to Mr. Hickly, the American Vice Conſul at Cadiz, and requeſted him to give them up to the captain again.—N. Y. Gaz:

Capt. Quiner, who arrived at Marblehead, from Port au Prince, ſailed Oct. 6 : —He informs, that, Criſtophe had entire poſſeſſion of Cape Nichola Mole :—that he had a battle with Petion's forces, in which Gen. Eveillard was killed ; that an inſurrection had taken place Jeremie, where there were 1500 embodied, and ſome ſkirmiſhes had taken place—that a ſevere gale had been experienced near Aux Cayes and Jeremie, and had cauſed great deſtruction among the ſhipping : that the brig of war Flambeau, belonging to Petion, had drifted on ſhore at Archaia, was entirely loſt and a number of men perihed :—That Criſtophe was capturing all veſſels bound to Petion's dominions, and obliged them to ſell their cargoes—and that it was expected Criſtophe would block-

The interference of a few well diſpoſed people, at length induced the contending parties to agree to meet publicly, this evening, at Mr. Grayson's No. 287, Water-Street, and to argue the merits of the controverted ſubject. Mr. Baron gave notice that at the appointed meeting, he would prove that a " Democrat is an animal of infernal origin, and has in the U. States of America no conſtitutional right to exiſt."

NORFOLK, Nov. 12.

Hurricane at Havanna.—By the ſchr. Fly, capt. Gould 9 days from Havanna, bound to Baltimore, put into Hampton Roads, we underſtand that there had been a ſevere hurricane at Havanna. The particulars which we have not, are from a letter which we have ſeen, and from the verbal information of a paſſenger.

The gale commenced on the 23d of October, and increaſed to the 25th, when it blew with a violence heretofore unknown in that port.—Thirty ſail of veſſels were entirely loſt, and forty-three driven on ſhore. The ſloop Liberty of this port was loſt, and the ſchr. Munroe, alſo of and from this port, drove on ſhore, and with her cargo, much damaged. The ſhip Friendſhip, of New York bound to Baltimore with 800 boxes of Sugar and a quantity of Coffee, veſſel and cargo loſt. The ſhip Betſey of and bound to Philadelphia, loaded with Sugar went entirely to pieces. The ſchr. Enterprize, Samuel Williams, maſter, bound to this port with a cargo of Sugars, drove on ſhore, veſſel much damaged. The gale was ſo ſudden and ſevere through the Iſland and in the neighboring ſeas, as a number of veſſels which went out about the 15th and 16th Oct. had returned indiſtreſs. There lately happened in the neighbourhood upon the Oder an event, which is conſidered as an infliction of the divine vengeance.—A woman, conceiving that her huſband, who was a ſoldier in the Pruſſian ſervice, had been killed in the battle of Jena, in 1806, married another man. It turned out that her huſband had been only wounded and taken priſoner by the French.—A cure was ſoon effected, and the ſoldier, on recovering, joined one of the Pruſſian regiments which at that period entered into the pay of France. After ſerving upwards of three years in Spain, he was diſcharged, and returned ſuddenly to his native country.—On reaching his old habitation he appeared to be greatly rejoiced to find his wife alive.—She received him, according to the ſtatement of ſeveral young perſons who were at the door when the old ſoldier arrived, with every mark of affection ; which ſo long an abſence might naturally be ſuppoſed to produce. It is probable that the did not avow the new matrimonial connection ſhe had formed. After partaking of ſome refreſhment, and giving a ſhort account of his adventures and eſcapes, he complained of being quite overpowered with fatigue. His wife adviſed him to retire to reſt, which he did. She immediately conceived the horrid purpoſe of inſtigating her new huſband to diſpatch the unwelcome viſitor in his ſleep. After a ſhort interval paſſed in the ſack, and one of the legs was prepared. The woman ſet about ſewing up the rent, and in her hurry and confuſion, ſewed in at the ſame time the ſkirts of her accomplice's coat. Having reached the bank of the river and making a great effort to precipitate his load as far into the ſtream as poſſible, he was dragged from the elevated ground he had choſen, into the river with the corpſe. He contrived, partly by ſwimming, and partly by treading the bottom, to keep his head above water, for ſeveral minutes. The woman not conſidering how important it was to keep ſilent at this critical moment, fill d the air with her cries, and brought to the ſpot ſeveral peaſants, who at the hazard of their own lives, extricated the drowning man from his perilous ſituation.—Inſtead of ſubmitting to lodge a ſu ſtance attached to him was great, but much greater when they found that it was a dead body.—On inſpection there appeared ſuch marks of violence about the throat, as not to leave any doubt that the man had been murdered. The man and woman being charged with the crime, made a full confeſſion, and were immediately configned to the officers of juſtice, and committed to priſon.

From a Paris Paper.

The hiſtory of the dog of Macarta is known to every one. A ſimilar circumſtance lately took place in the vicinity of Toulouſe.—A ſoldier, returning from Spain, loaded with plunder, was ſo elated by the proſpect of ſo much treaſure, that he could not refrain from expoſing it to the view of every perſon who happened to be ſpending his evening at the inn where he put up for the night. The hoſtels obſerving the folly of his conduct, directed the waiter to call him out on ſome pretence, and put him upon his guard. She remonſtrated with him on the impropriety of expoſing his property to the view of a numerous and mixed company, moſt of whom were ſtrangers to her, and that there might be among them reſpectable perſons, yet there might alſo be ſome thieves. On however that might be, the adviſed he gueſt to be more circumſpect, and declared that, in the event of his being robbed of his property in any way, ſhe would not hold herſelf reſponſible for his loſs after the caution ſhe had felt it her duty to give him.—" Poh ! Poh !" ſaid the veteran, " give me my dog, I want no better companion, he and I will make any gang of robbers, who may be bold enough to make the experiment, repent of their temerity."

He got up at an early hour next morning, and ſet out on his journey, accompanied by his faithful dog. Before he left the town hall an hour he was attacked by three ruffians, and ſtabbed before he could even put his ſelf in a poſture of defence. The dog ſeeing his maſter weltering in his blood, darted at the aſſaſſin, ſeizes him by the throat, brings him to the ground, and worries him. The accomplices of the robber, who inflicted the wound, terrified at the ferocity of the dog, climbed a tree, in the hope that the dog would preſently quit the ground and leave them at liberty to depart.—In this they were deceived ; at the break of day the gens d'armes in going their rounds paſſed that way —they hear a perſon call for aſſiſtance —ſee a dog in the act of barking furiouſly—deſcry two men perched on a tree ſoliciting protection, pretending that the dog was mad, and would not ſuffer them to proceed without the hazard of becoming the victims of his fury, like the unfortunate traveller whoſe corpſe lay at a few yards diſtance.—But this mad dog appeared to have no enmity to any except the refugees ; the gens d'armes order them to come down, which they did ; the traces of blood are diſcovered, and the

From the determined hoſtility of the dog, the incoherent ſtory of the men, and various other ſuſpicious circumſtances, they are apprehended.—Within thirty yards of the tree, the gens d'armes find two dead bodies ; the faithful dog runs up to that of his maſter, licks his face, and began to bark with more violence than before. The gens d'armes examine the body of the old ſoldier, who had been ſtabbed to the heart with a dagger, which they found covered with blood, the other body bore evident marks of the death being occaſioned by a dog. The dog and the priſoners were conducted to Toulouſe ; there was no other witneſs, but the evidence of guilt was ſufficiently ſatisfactory from a coincidence of circumſtances tantamount to poſitive proof. The dog was remarkably gentle, and ſuffered himſelf to be careſſed by any one, and did not appear to be the leaſt irritated, except on the approach or in the preſence of the aſſaſſins of his maſter, from flying at whom he was with difficulty he could be reſtrained.

The two culprits were put upon their trial, and after a minute inveſtigation of the evidence, which was circumſtantial, but ſo complete that not a ſingle link of the chain was found deficient, the court pronounced them guilty of the murder, and immediately paſſed ſentence of death upon them.

In the interval between the paſſing of the awful ſentence of the law and the execution of it, the unhappy convicts made a full confeſſion of their guilt, and acknowledged the juſtice of their condemnation.—What is yet more remarkable, the dog, when let loole, would run to the priſon where the aſſaſſins were confined, remain there until taken away by force, and being liberated on the day the ſentence was to be put in force, followed them to the place of execution.

This narrative (ſubjoins the editor) proves that if brutes are mere machines they are admirably conſtituted to receive the impreſſions of the dog in particular, to participate in common with man, the qualities of ſympathy and revenge, which it were injuſtice to withhold.

From a London Paper of Oct. 14.

The French Government, it would appear, though determined not to comply with the demands of the Americans, was yet deſirous of inducing General Armſtrong to forego his intention of leaving that country, by holding out expectations of the exiſting differences being adjuſted. A private letter from Paris of the 9th inſtant, ſtates that the following explanations on points which had previouſly been under diſcuſſion, were communicated in a note ſent to Gen. Armſtrong by the Duc de Cadore :

1. That all American ſhips which ſhould arrive in French ports between the 1ſt of November next, ſhould be comprehended under the Berlin and Milan Decrees, and not under any other exiſting decree.

2. That the Decree of the 23d of March, 1810, was revoked the moment the French Government heard of the ſuſpenſion of the Non intercourſe Act.

3. That American ſhips which could ſuffered their flag to be diſtributed by ſubmiſſion to the Britiſh Orders in Council, ſhall without difficulty, be admitted into the ports of France, with the liberty of clearing out again.

4. That the Emperor will give inſtances to the American ſhips, this being the only foreign flag favored with them.

5. That American ſhips, loaded on French or American account, will be admitted into French ports.

It is further ſtated, though from a knowledge of the capacity of the French Ruler, we cannot believe the conditions would be fulfilled, that the French Government had intimated its intention to reſtore the American property ſequeſtered in conſequence of President's Message.

Wathington City, Decr. 3, 1810.

The Preſident of the United States this day communicated by Mr. Ed. Coles, his private Secretary, the following meſſage to Congreſs :

Fellow Citizens of the Senate, and of the Houſe of Repreſentatives,

The embarraſſments which have prevailed in our foreign relations, and to much employed the deliberations of Congreſs, make it a primary duty in meeting you, to communicate whatever may have occurred in that branch of our national affairs.

The act of the laſt ſeſſion of congreſs " concerning the commercial intercourſe between the United States and Great Britain and France & their dependencies," having invited in a new form, a termination of their edicts againſt our neutral commerce, copies of the acts were immediately forwarded to our miniſters at London and Paris ; with a view that its object might be within the early attention of the French and Britiſh governments.

By the communications received through our miniſter at Paris, it appeared that a knowledge of the act by the French government, was followed by a declaration that the Berlin and Milan decrees were revoked, & would ceaſe to have effect on the firſt day of November enſuing. These being the only known edicts of France, within the deſcription of the act, and the revocation of them being ſuch that they ceaſed, at that date, to violate our neutral commerce ; the ſtate preſcribed by law, was announced by a proclamation declaring that the ſecond day of N vember.

It would have well accorded with the conciliatory views, indicated by this proceeding on the part of France, to have extended them to all the grounds of juſt complaint, which now remain unadjuſted with the United States. It was particularly anticipated, that, as further evidence of juſt diſpoſitions towards them, reſtoration would have been immediately made of the property of our citizens ſeized under a miſapplication of the principles of the decrees, commonly called the conſtruction of a law of the United States.—This expectation has not been fulfilled.

From the Britiſh government no communication on the ſubject of the act has been received. To a communication from our miniſter at London of the revocation, by the French government, of its Berlin and Milan decrees, it was answered that the Britiſh ſyſtem would be reinquiſhed as ſoon as the repeal of the French decrees ſhould have actually taken effect, and the commerce of neutral nations have been reſtored to the condition in which it ſtood, previouſly to the promulgation of thoſe decrees. This pledge, although it does not neceſſarily import, does not unfavorably with on of relinquiſhing, along with the orders in council, the practice of thoſe novel blockades which have a like effect of interrupting our neutral commerce. And this further juſtice to the United States is the rather to be looked for inaſmuch as the blockades in queſtion, being not more contrary to the eſtabliſhed law of nations than inconſiſtent with the rules of blockades lotmerly recognized by G. Britain herſelf, could have no alleged baſis, other than the plea of retaliation, already as the baſis of the orders in council. Under the modification of the original orders of November 18-7 into the orders of April 18-9, there is indeed ſcarcely a nominal diſtinction between the orders and the blockades. One of thoſe illegal blockades bearing date in May 1806, having been expreſsly avowed to be ſtill in force, and to be in effect, comprehended in the orders in council, was too diſtinctly brought within the purview of the act of Congreſs, not to which the ſubject was to be regarded.

On the other important ſubjects depending between the United States and that government, no progreſs has been made, from which an early and ſatisfactory reſult can be relied on.

In this new poſture of our relations with thoſe powers, the conſideration of Congreſs will be properly turned to a removal of doubts which may occur in the expoſition, and of difficulties, in the execution of the act above cited.

The commerce of the United States with the North of Europe, heretofore much vexed by licentious cruizers, particularly under the Danith flag, has latterly been viewed with freſh and extenſive depredations. The meaſures purſued in behalf of our injured citizens not having obtained juſtice for them, a further and more formal interpoſition with he Danith government is contemplated. The principles which have been maintained by that government in relation to neutral commerce, and the friendly proſeſſions of his Danish Majeſty toward the United States, are valuable pledges in favor of a ſucceſsful iſſue.

Among the events ariſing out of ſtates of the Spaniſh Monarchy, our attention was imperiouſly attracted to the change, now doping itſelf in that portion of Weſt Florida, which had of right appertaining to the United States, had remained in the poſſeſſion of Spain ; awaiting the reſult of negociations for its eſtabliſhment by treaty. The Spaniſh authority was ſubverted ; and a ſituation produced, expoſing the country to ſundry events which eſſentially affect the rights and welfare of the Union. In this conjuncture, I did not delay the interpoſition required for the occupancy of the territory Weſt of the river Perdido ; to which the title of the United States extends, and to which the laws, provided for the territory of Orleans, are applicable. With this view, the proclamation of which a copy is laid before you, was confided to the governor of that territory to be carried into effect. The legality and neceſſity of the meaſure purſued, aſſure me of the favorable light, in which it will preſent itſelf to the Legislature ; and of the promptitude in which they will ſupply, whatever proviſions may be due the eſſential rights and equitable intereſts of the people hereafter into the boſom of the American family.

Our amity with the powers of Barbary, with the exception of a recent occurrence at Tunis, of which an explanation is juſt received, appears to have been uninterrupted, and to have become more firmly eſtabliſhed.

With the Indian tribes alſo, the peace and friendſhip of the United States are found to be eligible, but the general diſpoſition to preſerve both continues to gain ſtrength.

I feel peculiar ſatisfaction in remarking that an interior view of our country preſents us with grateful proofs of its proſperity and increaſing proſperity. To a thriving agriculture, and the improvements related to it, is added a highly intereſting extenſion of uſeful manufactures ; the combined product of profeſſional occupations, and of houſehold induſtry. Such indeed, is the experience of economy, as well as of policy, in theſe ſubſtitutes for ſupplies heretofore obtained by foreign commerce, that, in a general view, the change is juſtly regarded as of little more than a recompence for thoſe privations and ills reſulting from foreign injuſtice, which furniſhed the general impulſe required for its accompliſhment. How far it may be expedient to guard the infancy of this improvement in the diſtribution of labor, by regulations of the commercial tariff is a ſubject which cannot fail to ſuggeſt itſelf to your patriotic reflections.

It will reſt with the conſideration of Congreſs, alſo, whether a provident, portant and bulky productions of our own soil. The failure of equality and reciprocity in the existing regulations on this subject operates, in our ports, as a premium to foreign competitors; and the inconvenience must increase, as these may be multiplied, under more favorable circumstances, by the more than countervailing encouragements now given them by the laws of their respective countries.

While it is universally admitted that a well instructed people alone can be permanently a free people; and whilst it is evident that the means of diffusing and improving useful knowledge from so small a proportion of the expenditures for national purposes, I cannot presume it to be unreasonable, to invite your attention to the advantages of superadding, to the means of education provided by the several states, a seminary of learning, instituted by the national legislature, within the limits of their exclusive jurisdiction; the expense of which might be defrayed, or reimbursed, out of the vacant grounds which have accrued to the nation within those limits.

Such an institution, though local in its legal character, would be universal in its beneficial effects.

By enlightening the opinions: by expanding the patriotism; and by assimilating the principles, the sentiments and the manners of those who might resort to this temple of science, to be redistributed, in due time, through every part of the community; sources of jealousy and prejudice would be diminished, the features of national character would be multiplied, and greater extent given to social harmony. But above all, a well constituted seminary, in the centre of the nation, is recommended by the consideration, that the additional instruction emanating from it would contribute no less to strengthen the foundations, than to adorn the structure, of our free and happy system of government.

Among the commercial abuses still committed under the American flag, and leaving in force my former reference to that subject, it appears that American citizens are instrumental in carrying on a traffic in enslaved Africans, equally in violation of the laws of humanity, and defiance of those of their own country. The same just and benevolent motives which produced the interdiction in force against this criminal conduct, will doubtless be felt by Congress, in devising further means of suppressing the evil.

In the midst of uncertainties, necessarily connected with the great interests of the United States, prudence requires a continuance of our defensive and precautionary arrangements. The Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy will submit the statements and estimates which may aid Congress, in their ensuing provisions for the land and naval force. The statements of the latter will include a view of the transfer of appropriations in the naval expenditures, and the grounds on which they were made,

The fortifications for the defence of our marine frontier are completed, and furnished with ordnance. Those for the security of the city of New York, though far advanced towards completion, will require a further time and appropriation. This is the case with a few others, either not completed, or in need of repairs.

The improvements, in quality, and in quantity, made in the manufactory of cannon; and of small arms, both at the public armories, and private factories, warrant additional confidence in the competency of those resources, for supplying the public energies.

These preparations for arming the militia, having thus far provided for the objects contemplated by the power vested in Congress, with respect to that great bulwark of the public safety; it is for their consideration whether further provisions are not requisite, for the other contemplated objects, or organization and discipline. To give to this great mass physical and moral force, the efficiency which it merits, and is capable of receiving; it is indispensible that they should be instructed and practised in the rules by which they are to be governed. Towards an accomplishment of this important work, I recommend for the consideration of Congress the expediency of instituting a system, which shall, in the first instance, call into the field, at the public expence, and for a given time, certain portions of the commissioned and non-commissioned officers. The instruction and discipline thus acquired would gradually diffuse through the entire body of the militia a partial knowledge and promptitude for active service, which are the great ends to be pursued. Experience has left no doubt, either of the necessity, or the efficacy, of competent military skill in those portions of an army, in fitting it for the final duties, which it may have to perform.

The corps of Engineers, with the Military Academy are entitled to the early attention of Congress. The Buildings at the Seat, fixed by law, for the present Academy, are so far in decay, as not to afford the necessary accommodation. But a revision of the law is recommended, principally with a view to a more enlarged cultivation and diffusion of the advantages of such institutions, by providing professorships for all the necessary branches of military instruction and by the establishment of an additional Academy, at the Seat of government, or elsewhere. The means by which war, as well for defence, as for offence, are now carried on, render these schools of the more scientific operations an indispensable part of every adequate system. Even among nations whose large standing armies and frequent wars afford every other opportunity of instruction, these establishments are found to be indispensable, for the due attainment of the branches of military science, which require a regular course of study and experiment.—In a government happily without the other opportunities; seminaries, where the elementary principles of the art of war can be taught without actual war and with a scrupulous regard to internal safety. In no other way probably, can a provision, of equal efficacy for the public defence, be made at so little expense, or more consistently with the public liberty.

The receipts into the Treasury during the year ending on the 30th of September last (and amounting to more than eight millions and a half of dollars) having exceeded the current expenses of the government, including the interest on the public debt. For the purpose of reimbursing at the end of the year, 3,750,000 dollars of the principal, a loan, as authorized by law, had been negociated to that amount; but has since been reduced to 2,753,000 dollars; the reduction being permitted by the state of the Treasury; in which there will be a balance, remaining at the end of the year, estimated at 2,000,000 dollars. For the probable receipts of the next year, and other details, I refer to statements which will be transmitted from the treasury, and which will enable you to judge what provisions may be necessary for the ensuing year.

Referring for future occasions, in the course of the session, whatever other communications may claim your attention, I close the present, by expressing my reliance, under the blessing of Divine Providence, on the judgement and patriotism which will guide your measures, at a period particularly calling for united councils, and inflexible exertions, for the welfare of our county, and by assuring you of the fidelity and alacrity with which my co-operation will be afforded. JAMES MADISON.

THE YORK GAZETTE.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 26.

The period having arrived which requires an annual reiteration of the Editor's sentiments of gratitude, and the renewed tho' feeble manifestation of the sense he entertains of the favors so uniformly and liberally shewn him, he now presents his unfeigned Public acknowledgements to his friends, and the seasonable compliments feverally.—The retrospect of the passing year in its general and individual features, the Editor with becoming feelings views with no common emotion:—Added to objects of immediate application to ourselves, we may satisfactorily review the general state of Health enjoyed; and the ordinary plenty produced from Agricultural labours and a favorable Season. Neither in our private Granaries, nor in our public Cemeteries are caufes of apparent private want, nor public mourning exhibited.—The local abundance of useful and needed Articles of Foreign Manufacture, miniflers to general convenience, and will repay the Perfons engaged in their vending.—From Europe the general intelligence is of pleasing complection, and intereefting tenor; the perfect health of our beloved Sovereign is noticed; [a venerable KING who reigns triumphant in the hearts of His United People, His united Kingdoms triumphant in [illegible] tuguese and Spanish, and are contending for laurels (no vain) on the Peninsula, against the maniac hordes and enemies of every liberty. The most recent accounts from thence afford a happy presage of the glorious result to be anticipated in the righteous cause in which such Herculean exertions are now making.—Sicily animated by British example, and disabled by the powerful bulwark we oppose, will apparently remain invincible to the attacks of the enemy, and retain her Sovereignty.—The system of dismemberment concerted and acted upon by France and Russia, and the immense preparations for defence and repulse making in the Turkish Empire, render it impossible to predict in what manner the Sanguinary contest may end; yet, as but one general sentiment seems to prevade the mass, we may consistently suppose that it will not be inglorious to the Turkish arms.—Of France and the Continental Scourge, what sways its Iron Scepter, a speculative opinion only can be given but from the latent groans of innumerable victims to his view the incestuous crimes with which he stands charged, the repudiation of his wife, the dethronement and exile of his brother, the enormities which characterize his crimson history, the gushing wounds of bleeding Europe—little can be wanting to complete the height of his iniquity; and it cannot be presumptuous to assert, that a Divine and signal vengeance shortly awaits him. Of our relative situation with the American States, little need be said—an amicable termination of any supposed difficulties must evidently take place. In Spanish America, it is hoped the Emissaries of disaffection will meet with discomfiture. From the Brazils, latterly, we have received no particular intelligence. In Germany and its neighboring kingdoms, no new events of public importance or interest have recently occurred.—From our Oriental concerns generally, the information is of agreeable tendency: and from the actual operations in train and successfully commenced, the Isle of France &c. will in a short time be added to the list of our captures. (The Island produces the best Ebony in the World, and Indigo abundantly: and it has been constant matter of surprise to the Editor that it should have been suffered so long to exist as a nursery of robbers who have preyed upon our Indian Commerce extensively.)

As no Almanac for the ensuing Year is published by the Editor, a diary in ordinary, and matters of common expediency to be known in their seasons, will be given weekly in the Gazette.

Foreign Intelligence.

NEW-YORK, December 28

Latest from the South of Europe.

—By the schooner Bash, Smith, from Gibraltar, we have received papers of that place to the 24th ultimo—extracts from which appear below. It is with concern we perceive by these papers, that a fever of a most destructive nature rages in the unfortunate city of Cadiz. The official reports as given of its ravages, are appalling. These we shall hereafter publish. The deaths for the month of October amounted to 2,000. The last reports of Nov. 6, represent the fever as having assumed a milder appearance, the number of deaths and new cases daily considerably diminished. The same disorder prevails at Carthagena and had reached Gibraltar, where great precautions were used to prevent its entering the garrison.

Alicant, Oct. 24.

The sickness at Carthagena is raging, warfe and worse. The number of deaths there amount to from 80 to 85 a day.

Gibraltar, Nov. 10.

The Cochrane's victorious career in the Mediterranean, still continues. Every day brings us accounts of the capture of some of the enemy's vessels, numbers and date of which we have not the means, are fast approaching the highest degree, & surpassing the most sanguine expectations. The allied forces amount to full 25,000 men, and have all the necessaries of life in abundance. Maffena's, on the contrary, full thort of 50,000, and for want of bread, muft chiefly live upon Indian corn, cooked in various ways, the use of which has produced fluxes among them. Nay, it is probable, that even this article will thortly grow scarce in their camp, as they are matters of no other part of the country than what it actually covers, and muft employ whole divisions as foraging parties whenever they are to extend their excursions 4 or 5 miles beyond it. Under such circumstances, desertion, as might be expected, is considerable; no fewer than one hundred men come over to our army every day; and in one instance, a whole battalion deserted in a body, with but one exception than one serjeant. Indeed it is confidently believed by Wellington, that the fatal evil which can befall Maffena, is the loss of his artillery and heavy baggage; and in consequence of the flattering prospects, the Government paper is falling in discount.—Phil. Gaz.

From Cadiz.—Capt. Fleming, of the Camilla, arrived at Philadelphia, informs, that the French had completed their batteries, and were firing red hot shot, which obliged the British squadron to haul into 5 fathom water. It was expected that the last of the ships would be with drawn thortly, and their place supplied with small vessels. The French had two divisions of gunboats in Gadiz Bay, amounting in all to 90 which had come round from San Lucar, with mortars of a new and peculiar construction on board. One of these divisions had in under way on the night—but on their coming in, in open bay, in view of the British squadron, and without one boat in the attempt.—These things prove that there is great remissness some where. The gun boats, when necessary, retire under the guns of the French batteries, where they are perfectly safe, and can run out on occasionally into the bay to annoy. It was supposed there were 30,000 French troops before Cadiz.

Notwithstanding all this, the Spaniards continued in the best spirits, and their batteries, which were occasionally playing on the French, frequently and much executed some on their part the damage.

Cadiz, Oct. 24.

The fever continued to be great scourge of the best inhabitants, but Cadiz could not be taken.

The final event of things in Spain and Portugal, is yet uncertain. Perhaps Napoleon has not calculated so correctly as Lewis then [illegible] did.—When one of the ministers of that monarch advised him to invade Spain, the king replied. "Remember the old proverb—that he who goes to Spain weak, will be beaten and he who goes there strong, will be slayed."

From Mexico.—Capt. Lopez, arrived here from Campeachy, informs, that a native of Denmark, in the pay of Ferdinand, who had arrived at the Island of Good Event, from New-York, had been arrested as a Spy, and executed at Merida on the 12th November.—There being no hangman in the place he was first conducted under the gallows, and then shot with his back turned to the fire of soldiers, as a mark of disgrace.—Freeman's Journal.

Captain Lopez, arrived at Philadelphia on Monday from Havanna, informs, that a sanguinary battle took place in Mexico, last November, between the army of Ferdinand VII. and the army of the insurgents, in which the latter were totally annihilated, having loft between 6 and 7000 in killed and prisoners. The authority of king Ferdinand is completely reestablished in Mexico.

LONDON, Nov. 3.

Upon the death of Princess Amelia yesterday, which, happened about 12 o'clock, the centries about the Lodge were doubled to keep every thing quiet, and the death of her royal highness was not generally known and believed in Windsor, till about 3 o'clock.

Death of the Princess Amelia.

The sufferings of this amiable Princess have at length reached their termination, and she has been called to receive the recompence of her piety and patience "in another and a better world." It will afford some consolation to our readers to hear, that her last moments were entirely free from pain; she departed without the least struggle or convulsion, those who were in attendance upon her did not think her last moment was arrived—she died as one dropping gently and calmly to sleep.—The great affliction of knowing her Royal Highness was no more, had been spared her, during a long and painful illness.

However we may regret the early death of this truly amiable Princess, every reflecting and feeling mind must derive consolation from the consideration that she has at length been released, from sufferings to which no human aid could afford relief, and which, from her patient endurance of them, she better prepared her for that heavenly abode which her virtuous spirit doubtless now enjoys.

Her Royal Highness was the youngest child of their Majesties.

She was born Aug. 7th, 1783, and was from early youth of a very tender and delicate constitution, being frequently attacked with fevere indispositions. In her person she was tall and slender, and her air was noble, graceful and prepossessing. Nature had imprinted her mark on her countenance, and caused it's lines over her cheeks. In her manners she was so mild, elegant and affable, as to win every heart.

November 7.

The frequency of her indispositions prevented her from studying as deep as her elder sisters, yet she cultivated the fine arts with great success. In music and painting she was proficient.—She met with few rivals on the Piano-Forte, and displayed a classical taste both in her selection and execution of pieces.——A model of filial piety, her love for her father was revealed in all her actions, and was so tenderly expressed a few days before her death, as to occasion the unfortunate illness under which he still continues to labor. Dignified, though condescending; benevolent, without ostentation; lively, though a prey to sickness, which usually quenches the spirits as well as the health of youth; she was beloved by all those who lived with in the sphere of hearing of her virtues. Some symptoms of the illness which yesterday terminated her existence, having revealed themselves early, her Royal Highness tried the effects of sea bathing, and derived much benefit from that practice.——Her favorite amusement was that of riding, in which she was conspicuous for her elegance and skill. Exercise, however, and all the resources of medical art could but delay the fatal hour. Her disorder began to gain ground in an alarming manner upwards of two years ago, and when the first Jubilee of his Majesty was celebrated, she was lying on the bed of sickness, with but little hopes of recovery.—Towards the middle of last summer, however, the regained strength enough to sit up in her apartments, and to take a short walk into the garden. About a month ago her Royal Highness was attacked with St. Anthony's fire, which brought on a relapse, which has afforded her an opportunity of displaying the noble Christian faith and fortitude, during weeks of prolonged agony, uncheered by any ray of hope. During the last few days her strength had been rapidly wasting away, and she closed her eyes, as we have already stated, as in a kindly sleep.

The remains of her Royal Highness will be interred about the end of next week, and in the mean time the Theatres and other places of public amusement will be closed. A general deep mourning will commence to morrow se'nnight, and be continued six weeks, after which the usual changes of half mourning, &c. will take place.

November 8.

The Bulletin respecting his Majesty was yesterday given, for the first time, in due form of State at St. James's Palace.

Two bags of letters arrived this morning from Anholt.——Some Swedish and German papers have been received by the same conveyance, which state that the Russian Ambassador at Stockholm had dispatches from his Court, announcing the surrender of Rudschuck on the 14th of September. Two days afterwards, according to private letters, Schumla surrendered. This had given the Russian Government hopes of bringing the Negociation with Turkey to a favorable issue.—It was hoped too that Turkey might be disposed not only to conclude Peace, but enter into an offensive and defensive alliance with Russia. In the present state of affairs, we know of no better policy they could adopt.

November 7.

This morning accounts were received of the death of the Earl of Dartmouth, Lord Chamberlain.

There was a rumour at Stockholm, when the last accounts came away, that the unfortunate Gustavus had been assassinated on the way between St. Petersburgh and Riga.

Advices had reached Gottenburgh from St. Petersburgh, stating, that the French Minister had applied for permission to march 25,000 troops through the Russian territories into Sweden.

The Bulletin yesterday we lament to state, was much less favorable than the Bulletin of the preceding day; but medical men, we understand, say that as the malady is not unusual, so have a relief might follow a calm and tranquil one.—After several sleepless nights nature becomes exhausted; but a few hours sleep seem to be sufficient to give her strength to endure the fatigue of several successive nights of restlessness. In the course of yesterday leeches were applied, which it was hoped, would abate the irritation.—A groom arrived from Windsor last night, whose account was that his Majesty remained much the same as when the Bulletin was sent off in the morning.

A great number of persons made inquiries yesterday at the Palace, and were evidently much affected at finding the Bulletin to be to different from that of the preceding day.

SECOND EDITION.

The Bulletin of to-day is, we rejoice to say, more favourable than yesterday. It is as follows:

"Windsor Castle, Nov. 7.

"His Majesty has more sleep last night, and continues full as well as in any part of yesterday.

"H. R. REYNOLDS.
"H. HALFORD,
"M. BAILLIE,
"W. HERBERDEN."

As some of our readers may not have received the paper containing yesterday's Bulletin, we re publish it to day.

"Windsor Castle, Nov. 6.

"His Majesty has passed the night with very little sleep, and is not better this morning.

"H. R. REYNOLDS,
"HENRY HALFORD,
"M. BAILLIE,
"W. HERBERDEN."

After the return of the Chancellor of the Exchequer from Windsor, on Monday, a Council was held at Whitehall. The result, we find by the following extracts from the gazette of last night, was an order for the preparation of a form of Prayer to the Almighty, for the restoration of his Majesty's Health, which, in the infinite mercy of Heaven, we truft will be graciously and indulgently heard:—

"At the Council Chamber, Whitehall, the 5th of Novr. 1811, present, the Lords of his majesty's moft honorable Privy Council.

"It is this day ordered by their Lordfhips, that his Grace the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury do prepare a Form of Prayer to Almighty God for the reftoration of his Majesty's health."

Stockholm. Sept. 21.

"Gen. Van Suchtelen, the Russian Minister here, has received dispatches from his Court, which announce the arrival of a Courier from the army in Turkey, with intelligence of the furrender of Sudschuck, on the 27th ult. Private letters from St. Peterfburg, of the 8th inft. ftate that Schumla capitulated two days afterwards. These important fucceffes had excited ftrong hopes in the Russian capital, that the negociations which Gen. Kaminsky had been previously inftructed to communicate, would be brought to a favorable conclusion; fome indistinct rumours are alfo alluded to in these letters of an offensive and defensive treaty with the Port being in contemplation. His Majefty has been indispofed for fome days."

Constantinople, Sept. 8.

"The following extract from a report received from the Grand Vizier has been published in his capital: "At the beginning of the month Rieziel [Auguft the Ruffian army which besieged Rudschuck, formed into two columns, commenced at feven in the morning a general affault on the out works and bastions of the forrrefs. At firft the enemy found means to penetrate into the works, but was immediately repulsed by Aly Pacha, and Bosnak Aga, with immenfe lofs. All the ditches were filled with his ftain, and the number of heads cut off amounts to 4000. A General, feveral Majors, many other officers, and 250 rank & file have been taken prisoners; Ulais Pacha, who commanded one of the wings, detached to relieve the fortrefs, fell in at Bele, in the vicinity of Rudschuck, with an enemy's corps compofed of 7000 men, attacked and routed the Infidels with great flaughter. The Turkish fleet in the Black Sea has been driven back by the ftrong currents which generally prevail in that feafon, to the mouth of the channel of Conftantinople."

LONDON, Nov. 2.

The Hope merchantman arrived at Plymouth on Tuesday from Gibraltar, from whence failed on the 11 inft. with from twelve to fifteen veffels under convoy of the Rummy cutter. She brings advice that two transport veffels with German deserters from the French army had arrived at Gibraltar from Cartha'ena with the plague on board. The Whitby was fuppofed to be one of the transports, on board of which the Maffer and 31 of the crew and paffengers were dead, and in the other transport 17 had died. The commander of the garrison of Gibraltar had in consequence interdicted all communication with Spain for the fpace of forty days.

The King of Denmark had at laft been conftained to reduce his military eftablishment to the number, it was ftated, of 30,000, a measure of neceffity, on account of the impoverished ftate of his finances, which his Miniffer had long advised, but which the King could not before be prevailed on to adopt, and it was conjectured that he at laft was induced to it by irreffiftable and imperious command.

The ports of Denmark continued hut to the Importations of Colonial Produce.

A private letter from Riga, dated 6th ult. fays, that M. Kamphaufen, who condemned the Teneriffe ships, has been dismissed from his office. This is considered a proof, the Emperor Alexander's determination to break with Bonaparte. There is another report, however, which, if true, would be more decisive of intention, namely, that Count Mofkow, who since the peace with France has been in disgrace, is again receive into favour.

The fuspicions fo generally entertained of the late Crown Prince of Sweden having been poisoned, appear to be well founded. A goldsmith at Stockholm have lately been fent for by the Royal Chancery to inspect some plate, having been implicated in the conspiracy; and the perfon who administered the poison is mentioned as having received 6000 rix dollars for perpetrating the crime, with which fum he has fucceeded in escaping out of the Swedish territories.

LOND. N. Oct. 28.

We underftand, by letters from the Cape of Good Hope, that the eftimated value of the property taken at Bourbon, is between 3 and 400,000l.

OCT. 31.

The building adjoining St. George's chapel, Windsor, called Cardinal Wolsey's Chapel, was sometime since inhabited with lumber, although it had been ungarnished that his Majefty intended to have a vault made there for the interment of the remains of his family; however, within these few days the number has been taken out, and windows put in. On Friday as fome labourers were employed in digging an archway in Cardinal Wolsey's Chapel, they discovered a coffin, the wooden one of was decayed, but the leaden one was in a very good ftate of preservation. The inscription on it could not be made out. On opening it, the contents proved to be a woman wrapped up in waxed canvass, about 50 lbs. and a child, in a very high ftate of preservation, in spirits. It was supposed to be the Queen of Edward IV. and the child her youngeft daughter. I was kept open till Monday, when it was obliged to be soldered up.

FROM ST. DOMINGO.

Captain Sanborn, arrived in town on wednesday evening laft from Aux Cayes, (via Vineyard) ftates—That a rupture had taken place between Prefident Petion, and Gen. Riguad, Commander in Chief of the army of the South, in consequence of the election of the latter to the Presidency for the next term (of 4 years); & the former refuse to give up the chair to the General.—That Petion was at Miragoane with a body of troops; and that Riguad had moved about 3000 men to meet him. Earthquake.—Extract of a letter dated, "St. Michael (Azores) Aug. 24.—One of these dreadful phenomena never witnessed in your country, has plunged many in unspeakable wretchedness and affliction, and continues to occasion great terror to all the inhabitants of this island. On the 11th of August, at ten P. M. eight shocks of the earthquake were felt at intervals of a few minutes for four hours. During this time the inhabitants, under the influence of alarm for their perfonal safety as well as property were running to and fro in the greateft distress. Between two and three a dreadful rocking was experienced throughout the whole island, feveral houfes, unable to refist violence, were thrown down, and many others were greatly damaged; and fuch perfons as fought safety in the open air, were daftied to the ground. Hitherto the calamity had been confined to its effects; and though great injury had been sustained, we had to congratulate ourfelves on the lofs of a few lives, but we were yet to witnefs a most dreadful fpectacle. On the 12th, mid-day, a hollow rumbling sound was heard, the clouds gathered, and the wind was hufhed into silence; the rocking returned, and in a few minutes after the village of Vozas, situated on a plain, comprising 22 houfes, was swallowed up, and in the fpot where it ftood, a lake of boiling water gufhed forth. Many of the unfortunate inhabitants, who had previously retired to the elevated ground, beheld the fight with a degree of horror a amazement which enchained their faculties; their whole property swept away in a few minutes, and in the place where their once beautiful gardens and flourishing orchards ftood, nought now appeared but a vaft expanse of water! About 32 perfons, it is calculated, have loft their lives by this awful and calamitous event, and cattle and property to a considerable amount destroyed. A great degree of alarm continued to pervade the whole Island, as on the east side an office has been discovered, resembling the crater of a volcano, and out of which flames occasionally burst through. Hitherto they have been unaccompanied by any ejection of volcanic matter."—Lon. Pap.

The immediate cause of his Britannic Majefty's indisposition is said to arise from the following affecting incident.——The Princess Amelia, wishing to leave her royal Father some memorial of her duty and affection, caused a ring to be made, in which was inserted, under a crystal, a lock of her hair, and on the inside her name, with the inscription "remember me." On his Majefty's making its usual daily visit, he approached the princess's bed, and held out his hand to her as was his cuftom. Her royal highness embraced this opportunity to put the ring on her father's finger without saying a word. His Majefty was perceived to be extremely agitated by this affecting occurrence.—ib.

NEW YEAR's LESSON.

IT has been common for people in this country, on New Year's day, to congratulate each other with mutual wifhes of a happy new year; and the Monitor, taking the hint from this ancient cuftom, will offer a few remarks and leffons of advice, which if well obferved, will tend to render the year, that we are beginning animproving, and consequently a happy portion of our lives.

Begin the year with an impartial review of paft life, and with a fincere and firm refolution to rectify whatever has been amifs.

Regulate your e.. ding to your income fmall, carefully ftudy economy, and let induftry fupply the deficiency. If you are one of the Ton, or a leader of fafhion, try for once, to make good morals fafhionable. If you have been trusted to any confiderable office, consider that your example will tend either to purify or to pollute the manners of others; and that, if you fet an ill example, you will be anfwerable even for its remoteft consequences. If you are rich, open your heart to deeds of charity and benevolence. Extend a liberal hand to the children of need, that the bleffing of fuch as are ready to perifh may come upon you. Devote from the furpluffage of your income fomething for the education of the children of the poor, who would thankfully rife up and call you bleffed.

In a word, ftudy to be good and do good. Let every day be marked with deeds of virtue; and then, on the laft day of the year, peaceful reflections will foothe your mind for even if death fhould intervene before the sun fhall perform another annual revolution, the teftimony of a good conference will be better than the foft ftuff down to your pillow, and will fupport you in the laft ftruggles of nature.

IMPORTANT REPORT.

Extract of a letter to the Editors, dated Newburyport, Jan. 2.

"Mr. Titcomb, (merchant) arrived in town this day from Portland, where he came by water, from Nova Scotia. Spoke Dec. 27, ship Hunter, bound to Nova Scotia, then 27 days from Liverpool, informed that the King was dead; that there had been a battle in Portugal between the left wing of Maffena's army and the combined army, in which 2000 of the French were killed, 450 Engliſh, and 200 Portugueſe, including ſeveral Engliſh officers. Mr. T. ſays the maſter of the Hunter appeared to be an intelligent man."

Capt. Graves, who arrived yeſterday from Ruſſia informs, that there had been a change in the Ruſſian miniſtry favorable to the Engliſh.

The Sound was conſidered block aded; the Engliſh not allowing any veſſels to paſs, except under convoy of their veſſels.

We are informed that Mr. Mortier, Britiſh charge de affairs, has proteſted in form, and handed an able memorial to government, againſt our taking poſſeſſion of Weſt Florida.—N. Y Mer. Advr.

From the Alexandria Daily Gazette.

MR. EDITOR,

I ſend you an extract of a letter which I lately received from a correſpondent in England, on whom, as to information and candor, I can place the moſt explicit confidence. How far he may be deceived I know not; yet who can doubt but Napoleon, who has been guilty of the moſt unheard of ingratitude and baſeneſs, is prepared to engage in any crimes, however diabolical, by which his plans of aggrandizement may be promoted? He who could repudiate his wife Joſephine, by whoſe influence he was raiſed from wielding the trailſpike of a piece of artillery, to that of the leaver of Archimedes, even to the ſhaking of the univerſe—he who could be guilty of ſuch baſeneſs to his brother Lucien, who had ſaved his life in the council houſe, at the eminent hazard of his own, ſurely could recognize no barrier in the law of nations, nor feel any qualms of conſcience in diſregarding the law of God? My correſpondent obſerves—

"Amongſt the moſt extraordinary acts of that extraordinary man is that private letter of which no doubt you have heard, from him to our king. Happy, however, for the cauſe of humanity, it was rejected by his Majeſty. This, it appears, was his overture:—To marry an Engliſh Princeſs; to furniſh his Majeſty with French and German troops ſufficient to conquer the United States, which ſhould be commanded by the Duke of York, as King of North America; that Spain and Portugal ſhould be guaranteed to France; that Ferdinand the 7th ſhould be eſtabliſhed in his South American dominions; that Malta, Sardinia, Sicily, &c. ſhould be the ſubject of a future diſcuſſion."

It is but fair to premiſe that a government who has rejected ſo infernal a ſcheme, has, ere now, apprized our Executive of it; and if ſo, why is it withheld from the people.

The citizens of Charleſton have lately been greatly alarmed by mad dogs. A negro boy died of hydrophobia, on the 20th ult. and a general ſlaughter of all dogs running at large was ordered.

NEW YORK, December 31.

Lateſt from Liſbon.—Captain White, who arrived this morning, left Liſbon on the 18th of November, and informs us that, previous to his ſailing, letters had been received there ſtating that Marſhal Soult had left Seville with 12,000 men, to join Maſſena. No general battle had been fought, nor had any change taken place in the poſition of the hoſtile armies.

Weſt Florida.—On the 27th of November the Legiſlature of Weſt Florida, choſen under the new conſtitution, met at St. Franciſville, and elected Fulwar Skipwith, Eſq. Governor. On the 29th the new Governor delivered his firſt ſpeech to the Legiſlature; and on the 3d of December, he iſſued a proclamation to the people of that Territory, congratulating them on the early atchievement of their independence, and urging them to be obedient to the new laws of their country and to ſubmit promptly & cheerfully to all ſacrifices neceſſary to ſecure their freedom.

Governor Claiborne arrived at the Cantonment of Waſhington, on the 28th of November. Some of the troops proceeded immediately, and the remainder were to follow without delay, to take poſſeſſion of Weſt Florida in the name of the U. States. Gen. Hampton was hourly expected at the Cantonment to take command of the army.

For the amount of theſe particulars, together with the following extract, we are indebted to the Editors of the New York Gazette, by whom they were received from their Baltimore Correſpondent.

SOUTHERN FRONTIER.

NATCHEZ, December 3.

Weſt Florida.—A gentleman from Penſacola and Mobile, direct, informs that both thoſe poſts were in an excellent ſtate of defence, and well filled with troops—that governor Folch was at Mobile where he was expecting a reinforcement from Havanna, when he intended advancing for Baton Rouge—that colonel Kemper in the ſervice of the Convention, was on the Alabama River, with 300 men, where he will probably remain until he receives reinforcement; the ſtandard of independence had been reared by Major Kennedy, in the vicinity of Mobile, where the cauſe has many friends.

In conſequence of deſpatches from colonel Kemper, a detachment of 1,500 men, with a ſuitable train of artillery; under the command of colonel Kirkland, marched from St. Franciſville for Penſacola, on the 24th ultimo.

By a gentleman from New Orleans, which place he left on Monday laſt, we learn that whilſt he was at Baton Rouge, the ſquadron of gun boats which failed a ſhort time ſince from this place, paſſed and exchanged a ſalute with the fort.—Great military preparations were going on in Florida, from which our informant ſuppoſed ſome enterprize of conſequence was in contemplation.

The following is an extract of a letter from a gentleman of reſpectability in Lexington, (Ky.) to his father in Cincinnatti, dated Nov. 30.

"We found out a plan of inſurrection among the blacks, on Wedneſday laſt. The troops of cavalry and light infantry are on duty, with 18 rounds of ball cartridge each man. About thirty have been apprehended, ſome of whom will be hanged. Every thing is in confuſion. You may gueſs our taſk is hard to be on patrol in the wind, rain and ſnow."

Extract of a letter to a gentleman in Baltimore, dated Buenos Ayres, Sept. 6, 1810.

"Liniers, at the head of a party at Cordova (an interior town of the vice kingdom) had aſſembled a force of about 400 men, in oppoſition to this government. Twelve hundred men were ſent from this to oppoſe them, and on their approach, Liniers' troops deſerted & joined the oppoſite party. The conſequence was, that Liniers, Concha, the governor of Cordova, a judge, and col. Allende, were taken priſoners. As ſoon as the Junta here were informed of it, the priſoners were without trial, ſentenced to death. Caſtille, one of the Junta, with 50 men, was immediately diſpatched to Cordova, to ſee the ſentence executed; and in four hours after his arrival there, the whole five were ſhot. The interior of the country generally is favorable to this government; and it is ſuppoſed the late proceedings at Cordova will quiet all oppoſition."

NORFOLK, Dec. 24.

Mexico.—A letter from the capital of that kingdom of the 15th of November, whoſe contents have been read to us, ſtates, that an inſurrection had taken place in the province of Guanaxato. The inhabitants were headed by a pariſh prieſt, and three captains of the army, who ſucceeded in bringing over to them ſome regiments of the troops of the line, and to thoſe were joined a great number of the people, principally of the lower claſs, ſtimulated by the hopes of plunder. Having become formidable by their numbers, they commenced their operations by attacking the town of Guanaxato, whoſe inhabitants defended the place with the moſt determined bravery, and fell victims to their gallant defence.—The inſurgents carried the town, which they plundered, committing great exceſſes in the deſtruction of property. Emboldened by this, and ſome other partial ſucceſſes, ſubſequently obtained, they marched directly upon the capital, in the expectation of being joined by the populace. In this, however, they were diſappointed; all claſſes of people in the metropolis, enliſted under the orders of the viceroy, who adopted the moſt prompt and effectual meaſures for ſuppreſſing the inſurrection, and puniſhing its authors. Having diſcovered their error, the inſurgents endeavored to retire from before the capital, but in their retreat they were attacked by general Callijas, in the town of St. Geramino Acutio, twenty-nine leagues from Mexico, completely defeated and diſperſed. The inſurgents loſt all their artillery, camp equipage, ammunition, &c. a number were killed, and the number of priſoners was very great; the leaders narrowly eſcaped being taken.

The writer of this letter concluded in theſe words:—"Reſt aſſured that although it will take us ſome time to overtake all the diſperſed parties that are now flying from the hand of juſtice, theſe banditti will never again excite any alarm, and that the public tranquillity of this kingdom is now better ſecured than ever, under the prudent management of our moſt excellent viceroy, whoſe ſervices claim the gratitude of his country."

We have been politely favoured with the following account of a very ſhocking affair which has recently occurred in the neighbourhood of Fincaſtle, Virginia.

Two men that were carrying negroes to New Orleans for ſale, having encamped near Fincaſtle, were aſſaulted by the negroes with clubs and beat to death, and their bodies they concealed in a hole, where they remained until the negroes were apprehended, and brought back from a neighbouring county, when one of them made a full confeſſion of the whole affair, & gave directions for finding the bodies of the deceaſed.—Upon ſearch being immediately made, they were found, ſo much mangled by hogs and other vermin, that it was impoſſible to aſcertain more than they were the remains of human bodies. The offenders are now in Fincaſtle jail.

BOSTON, Dec. 31.

From the Exchange Coffee-House Books,

"An officer, belonging to a French privateer, who left France the 30th Sept informs, that they had on board, ſigned by the Emperor, not to capture any American veſſels bouu to England, after the 2d Nov. He alſo adds, that he underſtood all the veſſels of war had the ſame orders."

Capt. Hopkins, arrived here yeſterday, from Riga, which place he left, Oct. 15, and paſſed thro' the Belt on the 7th Nov. At Riga, he was applied to by the late King of Sweeden, for accommodations on board his veſſel, and a paſſage to ſome place of ſafety; but being full, could not gratify him. Capt. H. was afterwards informed, that he ſucceeded in getting on board the Britiſh ſhip of war Victory, then lying in Wingo Sound, and bound for England. The Crown Prince, (Bernadotte) had arrived at Stockholm, and was to be crowned in April. The deſtination of 30,000 French troops for Sweeden, to croſs over as ſoon as the ice ſhould make the ſound paſſable for them, is confirmed by this arrival.

To prevent Chimnies from taking fire, though they are never ſwept or burnt, and conſtantly uſed.

The pargering mortar (ſo called by maſons) for plaſtering the inſide of chimnies, mixed as it generally is with lime and ſand, made into mortar; let there be a pickle made of ſalt and water, nearly as ſtrong as that you uſe with meat, And the mortar wet with it inſtead of pure water; ſalt, ſand and ſea water, where it can be had, will anſwer the ſame end to mix with lime and horſe dung. Chimnies plaſtered with this compoſition, on on every damp or rain will grow moiſt, and the ſoot will fall off without any inconveniency. This may be relied on, and the expenſe is ſo trifling, that no one ſhould heſitate to do it, for it can do no harm at all events, and it may ſave houſes and towns.

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 1.

This day at half paſt 2 O'CLOCK, His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, accompanied by Brigadier General Brock, left the Government Houſe, to open the Seſſion of the Legiſlature; and was pleaſed to deliver the following Speech to Both Houſes.

His Gentlemen of the Legiſlative Council, And Gentlemen of the Houſe of Aſſembly:

WHEN Europe is deſolated by the Calamities of War, and Nations with their Kings, degraded and oppreſſed; whilſt in other Countries, Life and Property, are held at the will of the Conqueror, and Liberty is but an empty name; you Gentlemen are called together, by a Kind and Gracious Sovereign, not for the purpoſes of ambition or of power, but peacefully to conſult, and to promote your own Happineſs!

Undeſerving of ſuch Bleſſings muſt thoſe ſubjects be, who under theſe circumſtances, are not deeply impreſſed with thankfulneſs to God, and Loyalty to the King!

Your paſt conduct, Gentlemen, bears ample Teſtimony, to your Loyalty.

Thus animated, you will with zeal perform, that important taſk committed to your care; and your knowledge of this widely extended Province, will enable you to direct that zeal, to its proper objects, and effectually to promote the comfort, and the proſperity of your fellow ſubjects.

I think it proper on this occaſion, to call your attention, to the expediency of continuing for a limited time, an Act paſſed in the forty-ninth year of His Majeſty's Reign, to Ratify and Confirm the Provisional Articles of Agreement, entered into between this Province, and that of Lower Canada.

Gentlemen of the Houſe of Aſſembly;

Having communicated your wiſhes with reſpect to the eſtabliſhment of a regular Poſt in this Province, to be ſubmitted to His Majeſty, I am now enabled to inform you, that this ſubject, is under particular conſideration.

I have directed the Public Accounts to be laid before you, not doubting, but that you will conſider them with your accuſtomed care and attention.

Hon. Gentlemen of the Legiſlative Council And Gentlemen of the Houſe of Aſſembly:

Thus gratefully acknowledging the advantages and the Privileges which we enjoy; let us remember, that their continuance, greatly depends upon our own conduct.—It is by removing from our minds Partiality, Prepoſſeſſion, and Prejudice, that we can hope, either as Legiſlators, or as Individuals, to be of real benefit to the Community!

Baniſhing, then, every thing from our thoughts, that can weaken or divert our attention from the love of our Country, let us now cordially unite in the enacting of ſuch Laws, as may beſt tend "to the Peace, Welfare, and good Government of this Province."

In the Evening an entertainment was given by the Governor, to Brig. General Brock, the Members of the Legiſlative Council, and the Houſe of Aſſembly, the Officers of the Garriſon and the principal gentlemen of the Town and neighborhood.

With the moſt heart-felt ſatisfaction we have to announce, that, by by the arrival of a gentleman, immediately from Kingſton, accounts had reached that place, of the rapid recovery of our beloved SOVEREIGN, from His recent illneſs:

—— Of the diſcomfiture of the French in their attempts on Sicily—Of a ſucceſſful irruption of the Spaniards into France:—And of the retreat of Maſſena, in the greateſt diſtreſs. We regret that the gentleman had not the paper in his poſſeſſion, as from it we might have extracted the principal particulars of this intereſting and flattering intelligence—on its receipt, an immediate extra Gazette will be iſſued.

BURNED, in this Town, on the night of the 30th Inſt. a dwelling houſe; which with the loſs of the principal moveables of the Tenants, renders a contribution for their relief not unacceptable.

THE DYING HUSSAR.

Written ſoon after the celebrated Battle of Marengo in Germany, in Auguſt, 1800.

In far fam'd Marengo's crimſon ſtain'd plain,
Where unnumber'd the Warriors they fell,
There pity wept over the Tombs of the ſlain,
And with bleed did the rivulets ſwell;
O'er his once noble ſtreed in deſpair,
Laid a bleeding and dying Huſſar.

Where the Battle rag'd hotteſt he fought,
And Death met each inſtant his view,
He Glory and Fame had o'er fought,
Child of his brave heart never knew;
When night did the combat debar,
On the ground laid the dying Huſſar.

"O ſwift!" cried the youth "now my life ebbs away,
"No longer I'll Glory purſue,
"My eyes ſoon forever will cloſe out the day,
"To the World bid a final adieu;
"Honor now dims her once brilliant ſtar,
"That fir'd the heart of the youthful Huſſar!

"Ah! Gracious Heaven—'tis my comrade indeed,
"The friend of my boſom I ſee,
"O! at the ſight how my heart it does bleed,
"To behold the ſad corſe ſo near me,
"Of the friend and the partner in War,
"Of the once gay and cheerful Huſſar.

"When firſt from the Foe I received my death wound,
"I ardently wiſh'd you'd ſurvive,
"For I knew that a Guardian then would be found,
"To ſave, for my children and wife,
"Ah! I feel that the moment's not far,
"When again thou'lt behold thy Huſſar.

"To my God and my King I humbly reſign,
"What to Earth I valued moſt dear,
"My Wife and my Sons—who till that true mine,
"Yet I ſtill at the thought ſhed a tear,
"To leave them a prey to ſorrow and care,
"Bereft of the help of their deareſt Huſſar."

To thoſe who have read that beautiful little Poem of Campbell's "The wounded Huſſar," it will be needleſs to obſerve, that the above bears not the leaſt reſemblance to it either in the incidents or the Poetry. It would not be juſtice to the "Wounded Huſſar" to compare it with the "Dying Huſſar."

Died, at the Houſe of Mr. William Cornell (Scarborough,) on the 24th Ult. Jacob Clayton, a native of Germany, and an old inhabitant of this Town.

AN OPEN COUNTENANCE.

An open countenance I love;
It marks th' ingenuous honeſt heart.
Fraught with each virtue from above,
Devoid of guile and worldly art.

"An open countenance!" (quoth Pat)
Is that the thing you prize ſo dear?
There's Peg Mullony, fair and fat,
And with a mouth from ear to ear!"

[From a German Paper.]

According to accounts from Illyrian Karenten, a terrible rain ſpout deſcended in the nights of the 27th and 28th of Auguſt, at Hermajor and its vicinity, threatening deſtruction to the whole village. The water flowed into the market place and its neighborhood ſo high as to penetrate the windows of the firſt floors. Many perſons ſaved themſelves in the ſecond floors, and others on the roof; ſuch as could reach neither periſhed in the floods. More than 60 perſons were hurried away by the torrent, many of whom were alive and called piteously for aſſiſtance, which no one could afford. All the bridges and 12 houſes were waſhed away, and a great number of cattle periſhed in the fields.

From St. Peterſburgh.

The brig Rover, Groves, which arrived below yeſterday, brings a report from St. Peterſburgh, that previous to the 12th of Octobe, there had been ſome important changes in the Ruſſian miniſtry, ſaid to be leſs favorable to the exiſting ascendency of French politicks.—Boſt. Gaz.

Latest Intelligence.

Washington, Jan. 5.

Our information from the Mobille, on our southern frontier, is down to the 12th of December.

Kemper and his officers have returned to their homes; Col. Kemper, John Caller, and J. P. Kennedy have been arrefted and bound over by the civil authority of the United States.

On the evening of the 30th ult. an attack was made on a small body of Kemper's men, about thirty in number, by the commandant at Mobille, with about one hundred Spaniards, &c. The commandant furprized them about 11 o'clock at night, getting between the centinels and thefe few troops before he was difcovered. Kemper's party was completely routed, 4 or 5 killed, 3 wounded, and 7 taken prifoners, with their little all of military ftores. The Spaniards loft two men killed and four men wounded.

New York, January 8.

General Miranda.—We have been favored with the perufal of a very interefting letter from Caracas, dated the 17th ult.—from which we are permitted to copy the following ftatement of the manner in which Gen. Miranda was received on his return to his native country:—

"I avail myfelf of the opportunity of a veffel going to New-York, to inform you of the ftate of things here. General Miranda arrived a few days fince, and was received by his countrymen with all the enthuiaftic affection, which his long devotion to the emancipation of their oppreffed country fo juftly entitled him to. A great number of the firft citizens went down to Laguayra, to efcort him to his native city; which he entered about noon on Thursday laft, mounted on a beautiful white charger, and accompanied by the governor, and a numerous cavalcade of gentlemen of the firft diftinction, followed by an immenfe crowd of citizens of all ranks, who greeted the return of their long abfent countryman with every teftimony of joy. The general looked well, and feemed much affected at the generous reception he received from his fellow citizens. His reception by the Supreme Junta was equally cordial; after which he proceeded to the houfe of Don Simon Bolivar, late a deputy in London, and brother to the deputy at prefent with you, where he received the congratulations of all the perfons of diftinction in Caracas. His arrival has fpread general joy, and encreased, if poffible, the public fpirit here in favor of the freedom of the country. Every thing goes on well, in fpite of the machinations of the enemies of South American liberty. The people have completed their election of the deputies who are to form the provincial congrefs; which will meet in about a month more. In a little time South America will become an interefting fcene, to the view of other nations; and I truft alfo a benefi ial field for their induftry. Her refources for all the purpofes of her own fupport and happinefs, as alfo for carrying on an important trade with other nations, are great; and, with a free government, will be highly advantageous to the reft of the world."

Latest from Portugal.—Laft evening arrived at this port, the brig James, Wells, from Lifbon, which port fhe left on the 24th of November, and at that time no general battle had taken place between the allied and French armies.

Capt. W. and his paffengers informed us, that the French army left Villa Franca on the 15th of November, and 12 hours after General Stewart's divifion went in fearch of them.—It was the opinion in Lifbon, that the French army intended to crofs the Tagus, or go into winter quarters.

From Laguira.—Capt. Pindar, of the Fairy, informs, that on the 5th of December, arrived at Laguira, H. B. M. fhip Sapphire, from Plymouth with the two delegates from Caracas, with news favorable for the new government.

On the 9th arrived H. B. M. brig Avon, from Curacoa, having on board the famous General Miranda, direct from London, by the packet. He was received at Laguira with great eclat, and faluted by the batteries and veffels in the harbours. Before Captain Pindar left there, he was appointed Commander in Chief of the Military Department; and he had ordered 500 troops to reinforce the army at Coro, as the anti-revolutionifts ftill were holding out in favor of the old Regency, and the armies there were headed by French officers.

Dec. 17th, a fchooner with a flag of truce arrived off Laguira, after having boarded and quit her again; they fired fev'ral fhot from the fort, three of which ftruck the veffel, but he did not learn what damage was done. She was from Old Spain, with difpatches.—N. Y. Gaz.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 7.

From Portugal.—On the 30th ult. the fchr. Cumberland, Wheaton, 38 days from Lifbon, with merino fheep for this port, parted her cables near the Brandywine fhoal in Delaware bay when fhe ran afhore in the mud near Lewiftown, and it is no doubted but fhe will be got off. The mate was killed by a ftroke of the handfpike in attempting to weigh the anchor while laying in the Brandywine.

A paffenger in the above veffel reports, that Maffena and the French army in Portugal took up their retrograde line of march on the 16th of Nov. from their fortified camp in front of the combined army. Lord Wellington immediately detached 14,000 troops in purfuit, and the next day, the 17th, purfued with his whole army; that it was expected a general action might take place about the 22d of Nov. if Maffena was not too weak. Lord Wellington was laid by the beft accounts to be 36 miles from Lifbon, in purfuit of Maffena.—The French army loft a vaft number of dead horfes in their encampment, moft of whom died for want of provender, the French having not had for fome time any grain for man or beaft.—He fays 500 prifoners taken from the French were fent into Lifbon. It is alfo faid that Maffena iffued a proclamation fetting forth, previous to his retreat, that as a violent contagious diforder was raging at Lifbon, he thought it moft prudent for the fafety of his army, to draw them further off from that city. The months of Oct. and Nov. had been very difagreeable at Lifbon, from the great falls of rain in thofe months.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.

Latest from Portugal.—Laft night arrived at this port, the fhip General Colburne, from Lifbon, from which fhe failed on the 28th of November (4 days later than our former advices) and at that date no battle had been fought.

Capt. Prince informs us, that the whole of the French army had fallen back about 13 miles, and part of them had croffed the Tagus. Lord Wellington had fent about 30,000 Britifh troops in purfuit of them.

Capt. P. was at Villa Franca on the 15th Nov. a few hours after the French left there, and ftates, that they, the French, had deftroyed every thing they could lay their hands on.

A regiment of troops arrived from Halifax a fhort time before Captain P. failed.

Capt. P. further ftates, that all the boats from the tranfports had been fent up to Villa Franca to carry the Britifh army across the Tagus—that the French army were very fhort of provifions.

Alexandria, Jan. 5.

We are favoured with news papers to the 11th Nov. inclufive, by the politeneis of Mr. Sampayo, who arrived yefterday in the fchooner Maria, from Lifbon, which are now in tranfiation, and will be communicated in our next.

We announce with pleafure that the great caufe in which Spain and Portugal are engaged, looks more and more promiling, and the beft informed men in Lifbon anticipate an auipicious refult to their glorious ftruggle.

The combined army under Lord Wellington retains its triple fortified camp and enjoys excellent health with an abundance of provifions of every fort. Lately they received beef from the tranfmontaine country, of which, for a time after Maffena's approach in front of the allied army, Lifbon had been deprived.

The French General's firft pofition ftretched from Villa Franca, on the Tagus, to the fea. Lately he has drawn in his right wing, and took up a new pofition along the banks of the Tagus. It was fuppofed in Lifbon, that Maffena was bufily engaged in preparations to erect a bridge acrofs the Tagus. In this way only can the French general retreat, there being no provifions of any fort left in the country of the Tagus. In this way alfo, only can he gain fubfiftence, which every day becomes fcarcer in the camp of the French.

Lord Wellington perceiving the enemy's intention, had thrown over the Tagus two regiments of dragoons, and three of light infantry, which had effectually ftopped the marauders and foragers from the French army, which heretofore ufed to pafs the Tagus in boats, and collect provifions from the fettlements near its banks.

Mr. Sampayo offers as an indubitable fact, that the French troops are generally infected with the dyfentary. The diſeaſe broke out on their advance, in conſequence of the ſoldiers indulgence in eating grapes and drinking new wine. The ſame diſorder neceſſarily continues, as green Indian corn is ſubſtituted for bread; all of the laſt article brought with the laſt army being conſumed.

Deſertion very much prevails, to which Maſſena has lately drawn into his rear all the new troops, replacing them with his veterans.

Cavalry, as well as infantry, come in with their horſes, arms and equipments. Judging from theſe ſpecimens, the French horſe are in low condition, and what is ſurprizing, without ſhoes, no ſupply of that article being brought with the army, and the ſhoes with which the horſes commenced the march being worn out.

From this and other circumſtances it is probable that Maſſena, after ſtunning the Engliſh left at Buſaco, has no doubt but that Wellington in wounded retreat without delay, and therefore purſued with ardour, leaſt his adverſary ſhould the little wealth of Liſbon ſhould eſcape.

This miſcalculation has plunged the French army into the extreme perils and diſtreſs which it now encounters, and from which it is ſcarcely poſſible to be extricated.

New York, January 10.

Rumour of the morning.—A letter received in town from Malta, ſtates, that one American property lately ſeized at Tunis, had been reſtored, and the recent difficulties amicably adjuſted.

The ſame letter ſtates that 4 French troops had effected a landing in Sicily; that 2000 of them, together with 6 gun boats, were taken; and that the remainder of the expedition made their eſcape in the night.

It was rumoured at Philadelphia yeſterday morning, that the whole of Maſſena's army had been taken or deſtroyed.

Alexandria, Jan. 7.

The brig Helen, from Liſbon, has juſt arrived. On the 30th of Nov. the time of her ſailing, the grand armies remained in ſtatu quo. Maſſena fell back about the middle of the month, when Lord Wellington followed; but on a junction of Marſhal Soult with Maſſena, his Lordſhip returned to his entrenched camp, where he is under no apprehenſions of any force that Maſſena can bring againſt him."

Extract of an official letter from Cadiz dated the 20th of November:—"After the ſucceſs of our arms in the vicinity of Palamos, which have already been announced in the public gazettes, they have acquired new glory in the fields of French Serdana, where a body of our troops from the army of Catalonia, penetrated by Pinguris, diſlodged the enemy from the poſitions, they occupied, put them to a ſhameful flight, and purſued them to the very walls of Mont Luis, taking all their artillery, ſome priſoners, and leaving five hundred killed on the field of battle. The diviſion of Senor Milans, which penetrated by the left, burnt thirteen towns in the French Province of Rouſſillon."

LONDON, NOVEMBER, 15.

We are concerned to ſtate that at the ſquadron under captain Mends, after landing the troops under Gen. Polier near St. Andero, encountered a ſtorm, in which the Magdalena Spaniſh frigate, and a brig went to pieces, and of 700 perſons on board 660 periſhed.

A captain of a veſſel has juſt reached London, from Holland, who left it on the 8th inſt. He ſays, that a meaſure yet more rigorous than the law of Conſcription had been adopted, and that all males between 18 and 22 years old, without exception, were draggedfrom the armies, from the families of the higheſt rank to the loweſt. The Decree of the 18th ultimo, reſpecting ſuffering Colonial Produce, had not been then carried into effect.

The King of Sweden landed yeſterday at Yarmouth, from the Tartarus frigate, under a ſalute of 12 guns. On reaching the beach, he was received with three ſuch hearty cheers as perhaps he never before heard, and ſuch an impreſſion had they upon his Majeſty, that ſtead of gratitude were obſerved to trinkle down his cheeks. He was received by Lord Gardner, the Port Admiral, whole carriage was in waiting, and into which his Swediſh Majeſty got, and, preceded by the Weſt York militia, with colours flying and band playing, he repaired to the Eagle Inn, to take refreſhment, previous to his ſetting off for London. He was dreſſed in ſcarlet, wore a ſtar on his left breaſt, and looked remarkably well.

November 17.

A gentleman landed at Deal yeſterday from Dieppe, which he left on Thurſday.—There was no news either from Spain or Portugal.

It was reported that an unſucceſsful attempt had been made to aſſaſſinate Bonaparte.

From the Cornwall Gazette Extra.

TRURO, Wedneſday, Nov. 14.

"The Walſingham Packet is arrived at Falmouth in nine days from Liſbon; by her we have received the following letter from an Officer in Lord Wellington's army:—

"LISBON, Nov. 3.

"Since my laſt, movements of conſequence have taken place. Our line of defence has been continually gaining ſtrength, by works and by men. In the letter, the Marquis Romana's ſupply of about 10,000 make a prominent figure: and every eye ſeems confluent of ſecurity, if not ſucceſs.

"The deſerters come in as uſual upon every poſſible occaſion; and thoſe who ſtraggle in ſearch of plunder, are almoſt ſure to be caught. How Maſſena finds himſelf, neither he nor any that he is cut off in his rear, his flanks on the ſea and the Tagus, by which are in our poſſeſſion—he is apparently in a priſoner at large, waiting the iſſue of the conſumption of what he poſſeſſes, to ſurrender to his antagoniſt. Thus ſituated, his efforts ſeem to be to croſs the Tagus into Algarva and Alentejo, the two Southern provinces of Portugal, and moſt abundant in grain; but our gun boats guard the paſs, and wait with ardent expectation the launching of this promiſed bridge acroſs the Tagus, near Santarem. As to the forcing of the Tagus, near Azenhuja, as talked of in the Coffee Houſe, it is a miſtaken idea, eſpecially after the firſt rains, already paſſed, it is over quicksands, changing every ſeaſon.

"If, with the few boats they poſſeſs (moſtly too old to be removed) aided by pine timber, they can throw a paſſable platform acroſs, it will be moſt fervently greeted, every inch, by artillery, already placed for its deſtruction, and enfiladed by our Jack Tars.

"Maſſena, thus ſituated, is, down to Leyrida ſurrounded by a force, if not equal to attack him, too ſtrong for him to attack; for an attempt to do ſo, would lay him open to Lord Wellington.

"The time is moſt critical, moſt precious. If ever an army was engaged, like a bird, it appears to be the French. Mark, on their right wing they have the ſea, on their left the broad and rapid Tagus, in their rear are Generals Silveira and Wilſon, and Colonels Trant and Miller, and in front Lord Wellington. Move which way ſoever he may, his rear will be expoſed to immediate attacks as well as his front.

"You ſhould be informed, that the whole depot of ſupplies at Figuier were ſhipped away, and the ſtores at Thomar, not removable, were burnt and deſtroyed, before the French entered it.

"This day a convoy and large army eſcort ſhip are coming in with troops, &c. on board.

"We are all in high ſpirits, and wait the iſſue with confidence. Our army is abundantly ſupplied; ſcarce an article wanting."

Seville, Sept. 30.

This day was tried a newly invented mortar, a peculiar invention of the French, by which they hoped to give brilliant proofs of their having invented a ſure inſtrument to bombard the city of Cadiz.—It was fired twice, but from it, leſs was to be apprehended than from the common one.—In fact, the defects of this monſtrous piece of workmanſhip are numerous.—It is ſo difficult to be moved, that it benumbs the limbs of thoſe who are employed in working it; it is extremely inaccurate in its direction; and if charged with 30lb. of powder, the reſult is, that it cannot be all inflamed, but a conſiderable portion of it remains in the front of the piece without taking fire, and it throws an exceeding heavy bomb conſiderably ſhorter than the ordinary ones. Five others, which were to have been ready in the courſe of the Month of October, have been countermanded. The hoſpitals are full of French ſoldiers; their number exceeds 2,000, and their deaths are from 20 to 25 daily. The French garriſon conſiſts at preſent of about 500 men, and among them are ſeveral invalids. We know, through a very authentic channel, that a party of cavalry has intercepted in a part of the Sierra Morena, named St. Elena, a convoy of conſiderable value, which came from Madrid, deſtined for the Duke of Dalmatia. Part of the eſcort was entirely defeated in the actions, and part taken priſoners.—We are juſtly led to think, that this ſtamp it was of the utmoſt importance, as much by the regret which the ſubaltern officers have manifeſted at the news, as by the great endeavors made by their generals to keep it concealed.

CASTROPOL, (a the Aſturias.) Oct. 16.

The action of Bennet, which at the commencement of this year conſiſted of 15,000 men, is now reduced to between 6 and 7,000. The Aſturians have nearly the ſame force;—but beſides this, they reckon upon 4 or 5,000 men from Gallicia, who are come as auxiliaries to drive the Vandals from that principality. The armed peaſants with equal courage fight againſt the enemy.

Latest from Gibraltar.—Capt. Vermilly, of the brig Swiftſure, who arrived laſt evening, in 42 days from Gibraltar, informs us, that Lord Blayney, with a detachment of 1800 men had made an attack on Malaga, in which he and 5:0 men, were taken by the French.—The remainder of his troops eſcaped over the mountains, and returned to Gibraltar. The French troops at Malaga were diſguiſed in Spaniſh uniform, and made no oppoſition to the landing of the Britiſh detachment. Lord Blayney ſuppoſing, from the appearance of things, that Malaga had again fallen into the hands of the Spaniards, proceeded without heſitation, to greet his friends on the occaſion; nor was he undeceived until he found himſelf and 500 of his troops priſoners of war.

MALTA, 15th OCT. 1810.

The Hercules, Capt. Weſt is ſtill here—Lucien Bonaparte is detained, until an anſwer is received from England reſpecting his deſtination—all his property is reſtored to him by the captain and crew of the frigate Pomona.

BATON, Jan. 11.

Latest from Haiti.—Capt. Cattet, from Port au Prince, (St. Domingo) ſailed Dec. 7. Some time previous, Rigaud and Petion had fallen out. The former collected troops at Aux Cayes and the latter at Port au Prince. They marched and met at Petit Guave, where a reconciliation took place; and they paſſed ſome days in feaſting with each other, when they both returned to their reſpective ſtations. Rigaud is to retain a government. Petion had at Port au Prince about ſix thouſand troops, and in attack from Chriſtophe was ſoon expected. He brought with him a diſpoſition to co-operate with his army, the iſle of the place was apprehended, as there was no naval force there. Chriſtophe's ſquadron was ſaid to be at St. Marks. A flag of truce had arrived from the Black Emperor, and it was reported the brought overtures of accommodation; but it was not known what anſwer had been returned.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 14.

Capt. Wallace from Oporto (mentioned in our laſt) informs that a mail arrived from Liſbon at that place by land about the 3d of Dec. thoſe previous, ſince the battle of Buſaco, having been ſent by ſea; ſo that perhaps to appertance a trifling circumſtance, yet as the poſt muſt have come over the ground lately occupied by the French, thro' Coimbra, &c. it proves at leaſt that country was freed from the invaders and the intercourſe completly opened.—He alſo mentions that there were 8000 French priſoners in Oporto, including the 4 or 5:0 taken at Coimbra.—This proves that Trant and the Portugeſe have not been idle on Maſſena's rear, while we were watching the combined armies. If we add the above 8000 to thoſe ſent to Liſbon by capture and deſertion, and thoſe Maſſena muſt have buried ſince the capture of Almeida, we may conclude on juſt grounds, that he brought 7 or 80,000 men, that he has not carried out more than between 40 or 50,000.

THE YORK GAZETTE

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 6.

The following Addreſſes were preſented to His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, on the fifth Inſt. in Answer to His Excellency's Speech at the opening of the present Session of the Provincial Legislature.

To His Excellency FRANCIS GORE, Eſquire, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY.

WE His Majeſty's moſt dutiful and Loyal Subjects, the Legislative Council of Upper Canada, in Provincial Parliament Aſſembled; do reſpectfully offer to your Excellency our thanks for your Speech at the opening of this Session of the Legislature.

When we contemplate the ſituation of Europe, deſolated by the Calamities of War, when Life and Property are held at the will of the Conqueror, and where the name of Liberty is used only as a maſk to promote the purposes of Ambition, and of Power: We gratefully acknowledge the advantages which we in this Province poſſess in being thus called together, by our kind and Gracious SOVEREIGN to conſult and to promote our own happiness.

With thankfulnes to GOD, and Loyalty to our KING, we will with Zeal endeavour to fulfil the important Task committed to our care.

We will pay that attention to the expediency of continuing an Act paſſed by this Legislature, for ratifying and confirming the Provisional Articles of Agreement entered into between this Province and Lower Canada; which every recommendation from your Excellency calls for at our hands.

Whilst thus gratefully acknowledging the advantages and privileges which we poſſeſs, we are fully ſenſible that their continuance depends upon ourſelves; We will therefore endeavor, by banishing Partiality, Prepoſſeſſion, and Prejudice from our minds, cordially to unite in the enacting of ſuch Laws, as may beſt tend to the "peace, welfare and good government of "this Province," and ſhall diveſt our minds of every partiality, prepoſſeſſion, and prejudice, except ſuch as Loyalty to the KING, Attachment to the CONSTITUTION, and Love of our COUNTRY may inſpire!

(Signed)
SAM. STREET, Speaker.
Commons Houſe of Aſſembly,
Saturday, Feb. 2, 1811.

To which His EXCELLENCY was pleaſed to give the following Anſwer:—

Gentlemen of the House of Aſſembly.

I thank you for this expreſſion of your Loyalty, and perſuade myſelf that in declaring your Prejudice in favor of our KING, our Conſtitution and our Country, you faithfully deliver the ſentiment of thoſe you Represent.

5th February, 1811.

May it pleaſe your Excellency,

WE His Majeſty's moſt dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Commons of the Province of Upper Canada in Parliament aſſembled, beg leave to return you our warmeſt Thanks for your Excellency's Speech at the opening of the preſent Seſſion; being conſcious of the purpoſes for which our KIND and GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN has called us together, and taught by the awful example of the calamities of War, which deſolate Europe, and of Nations with their Kings degraded and oppreſſed: We fully feel the urgent neceſſity, which behoves us peaceably to conſult, to promote our own happineſs, and preſerve that real Liberty we enjoy: underſerving indeed muſt we be, under ſuch circumſtances, were we not deeply impreſſed with Thankfulneſs to GOD, and Loyalty to our KING.

If our paſt Conduct, as your Excellency has been pleaſed to expreſs, bears ample Teſtimony to our Loyalty, we truſt it will remain unimpaired by our future.

We ſhall zealouſly endeavour to promote the comfort and proſperity of our fellow Subjects, by directing our attention to thoſe objects, which from our knowledge of this widely extended Province, may appear to us to lead thereto.

Agreeable to your Excellency's recommendation, the expediency of continuing for a limited time, an Act paſſed in the forty-ninth year of His Majeſty's Reign, to ratify and confirm the Provisional Articles of Agreement, entered into between this Province and that of Lower Canada, ſhall come under our immediate conſideration.

Your Excellency's information reſpecting the eſtabliſhment of a regular Poſt in this Province, demands our grateful acknowledgments, and is a further proof of your unremitting attention to the intereſts of this Province.

When we receive the Public Accounts, they ſhall, as uſual, undergo an inveſtigation with care and attention.

Gratefully acknowledging the advantages and privileges we enjoy, and conſcious that their continuance greatly depends upon our own conduct, we ſhall cordially unite with your Excellency, and the other branch of the Legiſlature, in the enacting of ſuch Laws, as may beſt tend to the "peace, welfare and good government of "this Province," and ſhall diveſt our minds of every partiality, prepoſſeſſion, and prejudice, except ſuch as Loyalty to the KING, Attachment to the CONSTITUTION, and Love of our COUNTRY may inſpire!

Paſſed the Legiſlative Council
February the 4th, 1811.

To which His EXCELLENCY was pleaſed to return the following Anſwer:—

Hon. Gentlemen of the Legiſlative Council,
