On the 15th of February last, on his passage home from India, Brigadier General J. W. Morrison, in the 46th year of his age. This gallant officer is well known to Canada, as the hero of Chrysler's Farm. Returning to England, at the close of the war, severely wounded, he spent a few years in peaceful retirement; but his was not the spirit that could sleep when his country required his arm—young, ardient, and devoted to his profession, he sailed for India with his regiment, the 44th, in 1822, and there also added to his laurels, distinguished himself by various services, the most remarkable of which was the capture of Arracan. But a constitution naturally robust, and strengthened by temperance and activity, was insufficent to resist the effects of a baneful climate and continued fatigue of body and mind; attacked by a severe illness, he re-embarked for the land he was not to see again, and gradually growing weaker, expired without a sigh or struggle, in the arms of his afflicted wife and sister. General Morrison was at once the sincere and pious christian, the polished gentleman, and the accomplished officer: equally beloved and revered by those whom he commanded, his high rank was attained solely by distinguished merit; and, had his valuable life been prolonged, he would most probably in the course of it have acquired a reputation equal to that of the most illustrious of British heroes.—Communicated for the Montreal Herald.

POSTSCRIPT

(From the New-York Albion.)

On the 20th of May the Royal assent was given to a great number of Bills.—Among them we find the following:—The Upper Canada Election Bill; The Edinburgh and Dalkeith Rail-Way Bill; The American Steam Navigation Bill; Foreign Peerages Restoration Bill, &c. &c.

The King's Court.—Yesterday afternoon, at two o'clock, His Majesty held a Court, at His Palace in Pallmall, which was numerously attended. The following had the honor of being presented to His Majesty:—

Sir Edmund Stanley, late Chief Justice of His Majesty's Supreme Court of Judicature at Madras, on his return from India, by the Right Hon. Charles W. Williams Wynn, President of the Board of Control.

Lieutenant General Sir Henry Warde, K. C. B. to take leave, on his return to the West Indies.

Lord Stafford, by Mr. Secretary Peel.

Baron Cetto, the Bavarian Minister, was introduced to His Majesty by Mr. Secretary Canning, and conducted by Sir Robert Chester, His Majesty's Master of the ceremonies, for his Excellency to have an audience.

The Right Hon. W. H. Freemantle, upon his being appointed Treasurer of His Majesty's Household.

Lieut. Gen. Sir Edward Paget, on his return from India, and appointment to the Royal Military College.

Lieut. Col, Wm. Herries, Deputy Quarter Master General in the Mediterranean, on his being appointed a Military Commander of the Royal Guelphic order, upon which occasion His Majesty was graciously pleased to confer the honor of Knighthood upon him.

The Bishop of Landaff did homage before His Majesty, upon his being elected to that See. The Bishop of Leicester attended the ceremony as clerk of the closet, and also Mr. Secretary Peel.

John Adams, and Thomas Jefferson, late Presidents of the United States, are both dead.—It is a singular coincidence that these two persons died on the same day—the 4th July.

On Thursday last, at an early hour, His Lordship the Governor in Chief with the Countess of Dalhousie and Capt. Maule, A. D. C. embarked on board H. M. S. Menai, Capt. Stewart, for Halifax. His Lordship was accompanied to the King's Wharf by the Staff Officers' Heads of Departments, &c. The usual salutes were fired on the occasion. The Menai got under weigh and proceeded down the river with a fresh and favourable breeze. We understand, that His Lordship will be absent about six weeks.—Quebec Mercury.

VOL I. YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY, JULY 22, 1826. NO, 8.

BY AUTHORITY.

UPPER CANADA.

P. MAITLAND,
Lieut. Governor.

PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors, of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province; to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on Wednesday the Fifth day of July next, to be Commenced, Held, Called, and Elected, and to every of you

GREETING

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Twentieth day of May last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the Fifth day of July next, at which time, at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear.

NOW KNOW YE, that we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents enjoining you and each of you that on Monday the Fourteenth day of August now next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding our Forces therein, at York, this Twenty-seventh day of June in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-six, and in the Seventh Year of our reign.

P. M.

D. CAMERON, Secretary.

UPPER CANADA.

P. MAITLAND,
Lieut. Governor.

GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To all to whom these Presents shall come

GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the parts of this Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. We have thought fit to order and direct, and We do hereby order and direct that, until Our pleasure herein shall be further made known, it shall and may be lawful for all Our Subjects inhabiting Our Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada, freely to enter into Our Woods and Forests in such parts of Our said Province of Upper Canada, situate along the Banks of the River Ottawa, or upon the Banks of the Waters running into the said River and within a convenient distance from the same, as shall not have been Surveyed and divided into Concessions and Lots, and to Cut and carry away such Oak and Pine Timber as may be fit for the purposes of Exportation.

Provided always, nevertheless, That in consideration of the authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties herein-after specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Red Pine Timber, Four Pounds Three Shillings and Four Pence, being at the rate of One Penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Yellow Pine Timber, Two Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence, being at the rate of One Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commission under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places upon the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointed as aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has attained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons, properly authorized by or under Our Licence granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS Our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this third day of May in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-Six, and in the Seventh Year of Our Reign.

Executive Council Office,
York, 23rd March, 1826

NOTICE is hereby given, by ORDER of His EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, in COUNCIL, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a regular Council day.

JOHN SMALL.
C. E. C.

No. 9 1. f.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepard in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s. 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hunded Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant. It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessary expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

POETRY.

ON THE DEATH OF A CHILD.

"Calm thy sorrow-stricken heart, and smile away despair:
Think of the home thy child hath won—and joy that he is there!" Alaric A. Watts.

Dnoor not—nor bend thee o'er thy blighted flower
With mute, unhoping grief!—Vain—idle word!
The bitter fountains of thy soul are stirred,
And tears befit this dark and gloomy hour.
Yet mourn not thou as the uncomforted,
Whose sorrow is remorse,—for thou hast done
A parent's duty to thy little one,
And canst look calmly back on moments fled.
Nor is he wholly gone,—since thou canst call (Ever Love's memory hath this sweet aid power)
At will, the winning arts,—the beauties all
That were thy darling child's attractive dower—
Thus kindling hope and retrospection blended,
Mind thee of bliss begun—of sorrows ended.

ODE TO THE SUN.

(From the Greek of Dionisius.)

Hush'd be the breeze! ye wiles, be still!
Let silence rest on each hoar hill;
Mute be the birds on every tree,
Whilst tranquil sleeps the glassy sea,
And Echo, in the lonely dell,
In awe suspends her vocal shell,
For Phœbus, from the azure skies
Descends to bless our gladden'd eyes.
Hail! father of the grey eyed dawn,
Whose rosy chariot, swiftly drawn
By winged steeds, pursues its rounds,
Thro' heaven's interminable bounds:
Whilst, as thro' fy'st, thy golden hair
Floats graceful on the ambient air,
And from thy brows in ardent blaze
Flash fiercely thy resplendent rays;
Which, bursting forth with dazzling gleam,
Pour on the world their lucid stream,
And, glowing on the pendent earth
Awake the lovely day to birth.
In cloudless skies the starry quire,
Singing responsive to the lyre,
Dance featly to its dulcet strain,
Whilst Luna leads the jocund train,
And joys to see their bands so bright
In varied vesture richly dight.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE TALISMAN OF TRUTH.

How plentiful a source of misfortunes is an extravagant imagination! The pleasures which it procures to us, are much inferior to the sufferings we often experience from it. Although inward contentment, accompanied by outward circumstances of prosperity, forms the most happy state, an unbounded imagination may destroy this contentment, and render useless the most propitious favours of fortune. I have known some striking examples of this truth; I have seen a young man, in appearance, the most worthy of being envied, who nevertheless merited to be looked on with compassion.

Observe the method I took to convince him, that he was the author of his own misfortunes, and that it depended only on himself to know, and to remove the cause, of them.

He was very fond of oriental tales; I wrote a short one, somewhat in the Arabian style. Although that manner might not have been sufficiently sustained to gratify his high relish of the species of writing my story clearly conveyed the counsel I wanted to give him; and I will beg the reader's acceptance of it.

An Indian King, a descendant and favourite of the powerful Genii who preside over the destiny of the most distinguished mortals, had a son, long the sole object of his wishes, whose birth overwhelmed him with joy. He implored the auspices of the heavenly powers; two Genii instantly flew down in opposite directions, and stopped their flight in the court of the palace, amidst the acclamations and transports of the people for the happy event of the Prince's nativity. They were invisible to every body but the King, and appeared before him at the moment when the new-born infant was to be shewn, for the first time, to the grandees of the Kingdom.

By some unfortunate circumstance, these two Genii were rivals; for some reasons, mentioned in the ancient Tartarian tales, one of them always made a point of artfully opposing the undertakings of the other.

The Good Genius approached the child, and, after having shaken his golden wings over him, pronounced these words: "Beloved infant! I endow thee with all possible gifts of person and understanding; the knowledge of the sciences, the gift of languages, and every agreeable talent, that all men may admire, and all women adore thee; I add honour and riches! be the wonder of thy age."

"Yes," continued the rival Genius, advancing to the other side of the cradle, and blowing a feverish blast upon the forehead of the child, "yes, I confirm all these gifts; and I will add to them that of the most ardent and extensive imagination.—By that thou wilt embrace objects, the most distant assumed, under one interesting view and animate beings the least susceptible of life; by that, the language of thy tongue and of thy pen, shall glow with the brightest colours of poesy, and excite universal admiration; by that thou wilt form to thyself a new creation, a new order of things; thou shalt find charms and interest in a thousand objects, on which men of confined fancy look with coldness and insensibility. This, my gift, shall carry thy desires beyon the bounds of nature."

The father could not contain his joy, as he listened to such glorious advantages, announced to his child by two mighty powers, who would infallibly bestow them.—But the first Genius was grieved at what he heard: he understood the treacherous and double sense of his rival's words. In the benevolence of his spirit, he let fall a tear, unobserved, on the bosom of the infant.

Having seen his colleague depart, he approached the father, and taking from his arm a Talisman, gave it to him saying, "Forget not to put this stone into the hands of thy child, as soon as he shall have attained the age of reason; it is called the Talisman of Truth. Teach the young man to apply it to his forehead, whenever, transported by his extravagant imagination, he loses the sight of the possibility of accomplishing the desires of his heart."

The good Genius knew that the virtue of his present would enable the young prince to render abortive the wishes, and triumph over the persecution, of his evil antagonist.

The father took care to deposit the precious Talisman in a place of safety; but being surprised by death, he had no time to communicate to his princess, or any other person whatever, the information which the Genius had given to him, nor to indicate the place where he concealed the talisman.

The young prince arriving at the age of reason much sooner than ordinary, began to display the immense riches of his mind, and the talents with which he was endowed by the good Genius. From the first moment of his launching into the career of his studies, he astonished every body by the promptitude of his preception; his preceptors could hardly supply the voracity of his understanding, and the extent of his memory. At the same time he shewed the finest disposition for the polite arts; nothing more was requisite than to indicate them, by placing specimens before him; he would anticipate their principles, divine their riches, and instantaneously point out their characteristic exellencies. A sight so surprising excited the greatest admiration: the most scrupulous observers acknowledged the novelty of the phenomenon; and the multitude, struck only with the gracefulness of his figure, regarded him as a wonder.

But scarcely had he advanced beyond the state of childhood, and felt the first ardor of youth, when the fate pronounced upon him by the bad Genius was accomplished, and the fire of an excessive imagination was lighted up in his mind. By degrees his ideas became gigantic, and his desires immoderate: the excess of this gift, so agreeable when it is governed by reason, proved his severest torment. Nothing that he saw, nought of all that which surrounded him, could content or fill his mind: every thing appeared beneath him and his sensations; it was in his imagination alone that he found objects suitable to his extravagant conceptions: he disdained realities; they inspired him with disgust. Drawn aside by the force of this tyrannical imagination, it was not without constraint that he took a part in society, or could bear his existence in the face of the world: his ideas transported him so far beyond the limits of common sense, that nobody was able to follow him. He led an agitated and melancholy life in the midst of happy circumstances. This fatal fire consumed and preyed upon his health, and kept him in a state of continued suffering, difficult to be comprehended by those who were unacquainted with its cause.

He wandered about the apartments of his spacious palace; he sought its most retired corners where the statutes and monuments of his ancestors suggested ideas, which soon transported his imagination beyond the bounds of the universe. As in this situation he was contemplating on death, and the immensity of eternal existence, the last relics of his beloved father, which had been deposited at the foot of a sacred urn, containing his ashes, one day, through some secret inspiration, excited his curiosity. He determined to see and examine them; and among the sabres, the bow, the royal turban, and other precious remains, he was struck with the brilliancy of an unknown stone, richly set, and surrounded by these words: "My son, apply this stone to thy forehead: it is the gift of the good Genius who presided at thy birth; it contains a remedy for all thy ills."

The young man obeyed, and the touch, in an instant, dispersed the poisonous vapours he had inhaled from the blasting breath of the evil Genius. A sudden happy calm took possession of his soul; his extravagant ideas, his disordered and impracticable desires vanished, truth spread its clear and constant light over his imagination; the prince was restored to himself, and became sensible of his happy lot, and of the just value of those objects which ought to interest and affect him.

All his other endowments shone out now to his own glory, and the benefit of human nature. His imagination, moderate in comparison of its former excesses, but always lively and active, added charms to his sensations, and gave a new interest to his conversation. He now found his happiness to consist in adding to that of others; he loved his fellow creatures, and, in return, was cherished and admired by them.

CAPTAIN CLAPPERTON AND HIS FELLOW TRAVELLERS.

We are enabled to communicate to our readers some interesting. but melancholy, information respecting the African travellers. By letters received from Captain Willis, of the Brazen, transmitting his correspondence with Captains Clapperton, Houston, &c. it appears that, on the 5th December, Clapperton writes to say, that, through the intercession of the king of Badagry, he had obtained permission from the king of Hio to pass through his dominions; and that a proper escort of horses and guides were waiting his arrival; that he was to proceed the following morning, first crossing a lake near Papoe. He states that Hio is the Yariba of the Arabs.

On the 15th he writes from Jennah, a town in the Kingdom of Yaribe, describing the difficult and fatiguing journey they had made, chiefly through thick woods, but the country afterwards became exceedingly beautiful, the people kind, well dressed in cap, shirt, and trowsers, and in possession of numerous horses. He states that, from Jennah to Katunga, the capital of Yaribe, is about thirty days journey, and from thence only three days to the Niger Kowara; he adds, that Captain Pearce, Mr. Morrison, and their white servants, had suffered much from fever, but were getting better.

On the 24th Mr Houston writes from Jennah, to say that, in consequeuce of Dr. Morrison's severe indisposition, and after having advanced from Jennah about twenty miles, he was under the necessity of being sent back to the coast, but that the others were recovering. In a few days after their return to Jennah, Dr. Morrison and his servant both died.

On the10 th of Jan. Mr. Houston writes to his agent from Chiudo, saying, that he found, in his return from Jennah to Engua, that Captain Clapperton had been ill with fever, and his servant Richard the same, but that both were convalescent, and proceeding to their destination; and concludes by saying, there is no fear for Clapperton's health now; in a short time he will have accomplished what has been the object of other nations, that of having travelled from west to east of the great African continent. During the last five days we have been crossing the mountains of Kong, which, through the whole of that distance, are the most romantic and beautiful that can be imagined. We are now, I suppose, 2,500 feet above the level of the sea, in a fine atmosphere, the thermometer 89 to 90 deg. (we have had it 98 deg.) and in lat. 8 deg. 23 min. 30 sec. and half way to Katunga, at which place, as we now travel so much faster, we hope to arrive in twelve days. I shall see Clapperton across the Niger, and return with all haste. He is again quite well and as hard as a Fallatugh.

By a letter from Clapperton to Captain Willis, dated Engua, 28th December, he says, 'It is my misfortune that I have nothing to communicate but the worst of news. Poor Pearce died yesterday, and I buried him to-day as respectably as I could, all the people of the town paying the greatest attention while I read the funeral service over his remains.'

We have already mentioned that Dr. Dickson set out from the coast from Dahomey, accompanied by M. de Souza and Mr. James. The latter had returned on the 10th December, where they were received by the king and his caboccers with the greatest respect. Mr. Dickson had a fever, but on the 26th he was sufficiently recovered to attend an audience, when it was settled that he should have a safe conduct through his dominions and those of his allies, to a place called Shar, said to be seventeen days' journey from Dahomey, on the 31st. accompanied by 50 armed men and 100 bearers.—The king appointed a relation of his own as a guide and ambassador to accompany him on his journey,—a man who knew the country well, and who had travelled to Yariaba. The direction from Shar to Youry is a little to the eastward of north.

Hunt's character of Cobbett.—"I have often been asked, what motive Cobbett can have for writing such barefaced falsehoods that every person who reads them must cry shame at his baseness. I generally answer, that habit is second nature. Envy, hatred, malice, and all uncharitableness drive him thus to expose himself. I am in possession of certain facts, for which he will never forgive me. He cannot, however, accuse me of having offered to compromise with the Government, and denying it to all my friends, till it was proved by a letter in my own handwriting in a Court of Justice. He cannot accuse me of denying my own handwriting, and swearing that was a forgery, till it was proved to the contrary. He cannot accuse me of having deserted my friends, and fled from my country when she was in danger. He cannot accuse me of having raised large subscriptions all over the country, and refused to acknowledge the receipt of the money. He may lie and swear all sorts of things against me; but he will not dare to accuse me of having become a fraudulent bankrupt to cheat all my creditors. He will not dare to accuse me of having attempted to bilk my bail, nor of advising a political rival" (Hunt himself) "to bilk his bail and fly the country, merely that I might have the opportunity of saying, that he was as great a rogue and as great a coward as myself. "HENRY HUNT."

SUMMARY.

From the Buffalo Patriot, July 4.

Buffalo Harbour.—Twenty-two sail of lake vessels were collected in Buffalo creek on Sunday last, including several of the largest class, with one steam-boat.—Among them was one of about 50 tons burthen, which was built near Rochester, Monroe county, and arrived by way of the Erie Canal! Her spars were on board, fitted for the the lake service. On her arrival at Lockport she was found to be four inches wider than the locks, but by loading one side of her deck with grindstones, she was thrown down upon her side so as to pass in safety!

It is but a few weeks since boats built in Ohio, passed this place on their pay to their destination upon the Canal: and there is now a vessel in port, from the upper lakes, which after taking out her masts, is to pass through the Erie canal, to be ultimately employed in the trade of the North River. At the Detroit custom-house this vessel cleared for the port of New-York.

The Ohio Canal 332 miles long is stated to be rapidly progressing, at a lower rate than the estimated cost.

ENGLAND.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, Friday, May 19.

Mr. Secretary Canning moved that the house, at its rising, should adjourn to Friday next. Mr. Hume said he wished to bring before the house the subject of regulations now existing respecting promotion in the army, and he feared by the adjournment proposed he should be deprived of an opportunity. Mr. Secretary Canning said the house would meet on Friday, when the honourable member would be able to bring forward the business he proposed. Mr. Hume said he had been before disappointed on such occasions, by a certain knock at the door of the house.—(A laugh.) He wished the right honorable gentleman would gaurantee him a hearing. Mr. Secretary Canning said he could gaurantee the honorable member a house, but he certainly could not gaurantee him a hearing.—(Much laughter.)

HOUSE OF COMMONS, May 26.—EMIGRATION.

Sir John Maxwell rose to present a Petition from certain poor persons of Balkershaw, in the County of Renfrew, praying for a grant of money to enable them to emigrate. Before he brought up the petition he begged to ask the Right Hon. Secretary,—whether it was in the contemplation of Government to grant relief from the public purse, to the distressed portion of the community, and also whether they had any plan to promote emigration.

Mr. Secretary Peel, in reply to the first question, could only repeat the answer made the other night, by his Right Hon. Friend, to a similar question. With respect to the second question of the Hon. Member, he could only say, that a committee had been sitting on the subject, whose report had been just laid on the table. He had not yet had the opportunity of directing his particular attention to that report.

The Petition was then laid on the table and ordered to be printed.

ARMY HALF-PAY.

Mr. Hume said he was sorry at this late hour of the nigh. to detain the House, but he considered it very important that this subject should be submitted to their consideration. He thought the system of admitting Half-pay Officers to sell their commissions, extremely objectionable, as the expense entailed upon the public, was by that means made perpetual. The Hon. Gentlemen then alluded to a return which stated the number of promotions which had taken place since the year 1817 to the present time, and concluded by moving, "that an humble address be presented to his Majesty, praying that he may be graciously pleased to employ in his Army, as vacancies should occur, such persons as are now on half-pay, who are qualified to serve his Majesty, as well with intent to remove the nation from the burden at present imposed on them, as to reward those who have served in the late war."

Lord Palmerston, at this late hour of the night, could not enter in all the topics the Hon. Gentleman had alluded to; but if the Hon. Gentleman had thought no diminution had taken place in the expenses of the army, he was greatly mistaken.—The Gentlemen on the other side of the House were apt to talk of the unconstitutional state of a standing army, and the danger which might arise from it, but the only mode by which that could be guarded against, was to have the army composed of persons immediately connected with the state of the country, and to have no person in the army who are at all at variance with the constitution of the country. It had been said on other occasions, that merit was passed over for the purpose of promoting those who had nothing to recommend them but mere interest. The fact was that a junior officer was never allowed to purchase over a superior unless the superior was unable or unwilling to make the purchase, and then there could be no principle of justice which could operate as a refusal to the junior officer being allowed to purchase. He (Lord Palmerston) tho't it would be a very unjust thing if every vacancy was filled up by half-pay officers, and all the officers commanding the various serving regiments excluded from promotion till every half-pay officer was provided for. If the plan suggested by the Hon. Member was adopted, men would be holding situations in the Army totally unfit for services in consequence of age, infirmities, or family incumbrance. Regiments would have ensigns of 40 or 50 years old, with their wives and 10 or 12 children following the camp, and he would ask the Hon. Member what sort of an appearance such an army would make.

Mr. Hume having said a few words in reply, the motion was negatived without a division.

The report of the Select Committee on Emigration was brought up and laid on the table, after which the House adjourned.

London Corn Exchange, May 20.

Though the supplies of Wheat for this day's market were very moderate, sales are very difficult, millers being inclined to postpone their purchases till the bonded corn is released, and which may be expected in a few days, as both the Corn Bills have passed the House of Lords, waiting now only for the Royal assent. Oats, and all other descriptions of grain, participated in the general depression of the trade; but as factors would not submit to any abatement, sales of every article were very limited, and barely supported our quotations of this day week. The same may be said of Flour.

Liverpool Corn Exchange, May 30.

During the week we have had a large supply of oats, nearly the whole of which is Irish; of wheat and other articles, the import is extremely trival. There was a fair attendance of town and country dealers at to-day's market, but they were not eager buyers. Good wheat fully supported its price; but there being an overplus of oats; they were 1d to 1d lower than on this day week; so little was done in other articles, that we quote them without alteration. The bills now completed, will allow the wheat &c. now in bond, for consumption in a day or two, when its real value will be ascertained.

The accounts from the manufacturing districts were favorable; trade was reviving, and active benevolence was relieving the distresses of the unemployed.

It is at present arranged that his Majesty will leave town for Windsor on the 3d of June; and that after a short stay at the Cottage, he will return to town, and remain for a limited period, and perhaps, hold a levee. One is spoken of but not determined upon.

In London there has been considerable stir, but more particularly in the Colonial market, which has advanced. Considerable orders have been received for refined sugars, &c. (especially the former,) for the German and Mediterranean markets.—In the Manchester warehouses here, too, there is more stir; in short, things are slowly but gradually returning to their old standard.

Election Intelligence.—Mr. Hart Davis declines a re-election for Bristol. Sir J. R. G. Graham has accepted the invitation to stand for Cumberland Mr. Butterworth is canvassing Dover. Mr. Martin is opposed is Galway by Mr. Lambert of Creglare, who has the interest of the Marquis of Clanricarde. Mr. Spring Rice is opposed, though not with much prospect of success, by a Mr. Dixon, for Limerick.—The old members will be re-elected for Kildare; the same will probably be the case at New Castle. A Mr. Heathcote will be brought forward for New-Castle-Under-Line, who, if successful, will displace either Mr. Wilmot, Horton, or Denison; the latter gentleman was a short time since in Canada. The town and Council of Perth have declared for the Hon. Hugh Lindsey. Sir Wm. Congreve offers himself again for Plymouth. There will be a tremendous contest in Westmoreland between Lord Lonsdale and Mr. Brougham. The latter gentleman has never yet got into Parliament but through the medium of a rotten borough. The matchless orator Hunt, has the matchless impudence to oppose Sir T. Lethbridge for the county of Somerset.—Cobbet is driving away for Preston.

SCOTLAND.

There are (says the Glasgow Chronicle) some slight indications of a revival of trade among the manufacturers in town. There is more employment offered, but the rate of wages continues as low as ever. The carriers in the west country generally have been better employed this week, and on Thursday night the Girvan carrier took out more webs than he has done at any one time for a considerable period.

The Secretary to the Manufacturers' Relief Company in London has stated, in a letter to the Lord Provost of Glasgow, that in consequence of the numerous applications from Scotland, the committee have come to the resolution to withold any farther relief till they see what efforts have been made, or are likely to be made, in this country, for the relief of those in distress.

OFFICIAL DETAILS OF THE CAPTURE OF BHURTPORE.

We have received, this morning, the Calcutta Government Gazette Extraordinary of the 30th of January, brought by Capt. Blanchard, who commands the Marquis of Hastings East Indiaman, and who left Calcutta on the 3d of February, and arrived at St. Helena on the 6th April. It contains the following official despatch from Lord Combermere, giving all the particulars of the gallant operations of the army under his Lordship's command, before the hitherto supposed impregnable fortress of Bhurtpore, together with the returns of the killed and wounded. The late hour at which we received this interesting document, precludes us from doing more to-day, than simply to lay it before our readers.

(From the Calcutta Government Gazette Extraordinary.)

POLITICAL DEPARTMENT, Jan. 19, 1826.

'Captain Dawkins, A. D. C. arrived early this morning, bearing a despatch from his Excellency, the Commander in Chief, a copy of which is published for general information.

'Head Quarters, Bhurtpore, Jan. 19.

To the Right Honorable Lord Amherst, Governor General, &c. &c.

MY LORD,—I have the satisfaction to acquaint your Lordship, that the town and citadel of Bhurtpore fell yesterday morning, to the British army under my command.

'Since my despatch of the 11th inst. the whole attention of the engineers was directed towards the completion of the mines under the projecting bastions on the left, and the northeast angle on the right.

'On the 14th inst. a mine, under the bastion on the left, was precipitately exploded, and failed in its object. I, therefore, directed two more mines to be driven into that bastion, which were blown on the 16th, and with the aid of a days battering, an excellent breach was made.

'The explosion of the mine under the north-east angle, at 6 o'clock yesterday morning, was the signal for the storm, when the columns, composed of Brigadier-General M'Combe's Brigade on the right, and Brigadier-General Edward's Brigade on the left, advanced with the greatest order, gallantry and steadiness, and, notwithstanding a determined opposition on the part of the enemy, carried the breaches. In the course of two hours, though vigorously and bravely defended at every gate-way and bastion, the whole rampart surrounding the town, together with the command of the gates of the citadel, were in our possession; Major General Nicholls having moved his column to the left, until he met a detachment of his Majesty's 14th foot, commanded by Major Everard, at the Kombheer gate. The citadel was surrounded at about four o'clock.

'I regret to state, that the mine, having exploded in an unexpected direction, several men of his Majesty's 14th foot, at the head of the column of attack, lost their lives, and Brigadier General M'Combe, Brigadier Patton, and Captain Irvine, Major of Brigade of engineers, received severe contusions.

'Having directed Brigadier General Sleigh, commanding the cavalry, to prevent the escape of the enemy's troops after the assault, I am happy to say that he made such disposition of his forces, that he succeeded in securing Doorjun Sal, who, with his wife, two sons, and a hundred and sixty horse, only attempted to force a passage through the eighth light cavalry.

'I cannot compute the loss of the enemy at less than four thousand killed, and, owing to the disposition of the cavalry, hardly a man bearing arms, escaped; consequently, as to the surrender of the town, all the stores, arms, and ammunition, are in our possession, I may say, that the whole military power of the Bhurtpore state has been annihilated. The prisoners, after having been disarmed, were set free.

'I have the pleasure to acquaint your Lordship, that the conduct of every one engaged was marked by a degree of zeal which calls for my unqualified approbation; but I must particularly remark the behaviour of his Majesty's 14th regiment, commanded by Major Everard, and the 59th, commanded by Major Fuller; these corps having led the columns of attack, by their steadiness and determination, decided the events of the day. Two companies of the 1st European Regiment, leading a small column under Lieutenant Colonel Wilson, co-operating with Major General Nicoll's attack, behaved with equal gallantry. The 6th Regiment Native Infantry, commanded by Lieut. Col. Pepper, one wing of the 41st, by Major Hunter, the 23d, by Lieut. Col. Nation, the 31st by Lieut. Col. Baddely, the 60th by Lieut. Col. Bowyer, the Grenadier Company of the 35th, and Light Company of the 37th, which corps followed the Europeans in the assault, proved themselves worthy of the distinguished places they held, as did the Sirmoor Battalions, which covered the advance.

'I beg to acquaint your Lordship, that since I took the command of this army, I have received the most effectual support and assistance from Major Generals Reynell and Nicolls. The excellent dispositions made by them for the attack, as well as the manner in which they conducted it, entitle them to my warmest thanks, and I therefore beg most strongly to recommend them to your Lordship's notice.

'Brigadier MacLeod, C. B. commanding the Artillery, Brigadiers Hetzler and Brown, as well as every officer and private of the Artillery, performed their arduous and fatiguing duties throughout the siege, in the most exemplary manner, and will, I trust, meet with your Lordship's approbation.

'Brigadier Asbury, C. B. and the Engineer Officers, as also the Native Officers and privates of that valuable corps, the Sappers and Miners, and the Pioneer Corps, performed the harrassing duties allotted to them with a cheerfulness, courage and zeal, which demand my acknowledgments, and I beg to recommend them to your Lordship accordingly. The result of our operations proved the efficiency of the Brigadier's plans.

'The services rendered by Brigadier General Sleigh, C. B. commanding the Cavalry during the whole siege, have been most important, and I beg to recommend him, as well as Brigadiers Childers and Murray, C. B. to your Lordship's notice; and I cannot pass over in silence, the general, good and active conduct of the Cavalry, and the spirited manner in which they volunteered their services, when I conceived (before the arrival of the first European Regiment) that it might have been expedient to employ them in the storm.

'I must also bring under your Lordship's particular notice, Lieutenant Colonel Skinner, and the two Regiments of Native Regular Cavalry under his command, who have performed every service that has been required of them, in a manner which merits my entire approbation.

'To Brigadier General Adams, C. B. MacCombe, and Edwards, Brigadiers Whitehead, Patton, C. B. and Fagan, my acknowledgments are due for the manner in which they have so ably conducted the duties assigned to them, and I therefore recommend them to your Lordship's favourable notice.

'I received every assistance from Major-General Sir Samford Whittingham, and Lieutenant Colonel MacGregor, Quartermaster-General and Acting-Adjutant-General of the King's troops.

'The eminent and zealous services of Lieut. Colonel Wilson, and Lieut. Colonel Stevenson, Adjutant General and Quartermaster General of the Army, demand my warmest thanks, and I beg particularly to bring them under your Lordship's notice, as also the officers of their respective Departments.

'The arrangements made by Lieut. Col. Cunliffe, Commissary General for the supply of the army, were most efficient, and I have much pleasure in recommending him to your Lordship.

'I also request to bring to your Lordship's notice, Lieut. Col. the Hon. John Finch, my Military Secretary, and the officers composing my Personal Staff, from whom I received every possible aid.

'The situations in which Lieut. Col. Delamaine, 59th N. I., Lieut. Col. Wilson, commanding a detachment, Majors Hunter, 41st N. I., Pepper, 6th N. I., Lieut. Col. M'Leod, 59th, and Bishopp, of H. M. 14th, were placed, gave them opportunities for distinguishing themselves, of which they took every advantage. Captain Irvine, Major of Brigade of Engineers, also brought himself under my particular observation during the course of the siege.

'Major General Reynell and Nicolls, and Brigadier General Sleigh, have expressed their entire satisfaction with the assistance they received from the officers of their general and personal staff.

'The Returns of killed and wounded have not yet been received, but I am happy to be able to state that they are few, considering the service on which the troops have been employed. I however transmit a return of the officers who have been reported. I regret the service has lost three valuable officers in Captain Armstrong, his Majesty's 11th, Captain Pitman, his Majesty's 59th, and Captain Brown, of the 31st Regt. Native Infantry, who fell leading their men on the ramparts. Brigadier General Edwards, who was wounded, gallantly leading his brigade, is also, I fear, past recovery.

'I have sent this despatch by my Aid-de-camp Captain Dawkins, who will also take two of the enemy's standards, of which I request your Lordship's acceptance, and in referring to Captain Dawkins for any further information your Lordship may require, I beg to recommend him to your protection.

I have the honor to be, My Lord,
Your Lordship's most ob't. humble serv't,
(Signed) COMBERMERE.'

WAR IN INDIA.

(From a Boston Paper, July 5.)

The accounts received in New-York, via Bermuda and Antigua, that the Burmese had broken the armistice made with the British, in India, had fallen on the British army and nearly destroyed it, had taken its artilery, &c. appears to be corroborated by an arrival at Salem from St. Helena.—Capt. Endicott, from thence, informs, that about the 1st May several East India ships from India touched at St. Helena, the Captains of which informed him that the war between the British and Burmese had been renewed, in consequence of a detachment of the British army, ignorant of the Treaty of Peace, having attacked a Burmese division, and killed a number of their men. That as soon as this was known, the Burmese enraged at what they called a treacherous attack, fell upon the British, defeated them with great loss, completely annihilating three regiments, &c. Capt. E. received this information from officers who left India about the middle of February, nearly a month after the news of the treaty of Peace had been announced in Calcutta, and he further states that there was no doubt of its correctness at St. Helena.

Many of the above accounts were not so direct and particular, we should be led to conclude, that they related to the before known rupture of the amicable between the British and the Burmese, and to the reports then circulated, before the respected Peace (as stated in the official accounts, Page 240.) was concluded. If the accounts are a month later, they probably relate to an event not before known in the United States.

GREECE.

Trieste, April 16.—A vessel arrived from Zante, after sixteen days' passage, brings intelligence that Ibrahim Pacha left a feeble garrison at Missolonghi, and has set out for Morea with the remainder of his troops. The Turco-Egyptian fleet has set sail for Napoli di Romania. Two frigates and two brigs of this fleet attacked Missolonghi squadron on the 8th, which they met at the Archipelago. It appears that the garrison and inhabitants of Missolonghi capable of bearing arms, within the last few days amounted altogether to 3,200 men; but, besides these, there were reckoned 1,000 young women, 500 young men, between 10 and 18 years old, and 700 invalids and wounded. Two thousand armed men, having in the midst of them the women and children, made a sortie of the 23d; they were all slain, except forty men, who were taken alive and made slaves. The other 1,000 men who remained in the city, assembled the 700 invalids together, with the women and children, in the Church, which they blew up in the air, and then proceeded to share the fate of their compatriots, who fell in combatting the enemy.

The principal cause of this event is ascribed to a note of the Gallo-Egyptians, who, according to the account of a Greek emissary taken by them, placed, 500 Albanians bearing the Greek standard, on a height pointed out for that purpose, and who gave the unfortunate Missolonghites the signal for the sortie. They discovered their error too late; but seeing all hopes of safety lost, they set fire to a mine, which had been for a long time prepared, and were blown up together with the enemy, who pressed round on every side.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

St. Catharines, July 12, 1826.

WELLAND CANAL.

By referring to the last monthly Report of the Resident Engineer on this canal, to which we have been permitted access, we find the following result:—

Amount of excavation on the whole line, during the month ending the 16 inst. about 91,500 yards of earth, 1,525 yards of rock, and 10,000 yards of embankment.

Messrs. Oliver Phelps, & Co. have commenced laying up the timbers of 3 Locks, the foundation of which have proved remarkably favourable; and on examination of the pits in preparation, and those already completed, there can be no doubt but the foundation of every Lock will be equally secure which is considered a very important point.

It is expected the Harbour Lock will be commenced to-morrow, under the superintendance of Mr. Marshall Lewis, an experienced and approved artist, the timber for its accomplishment being all on the spot, and in readiness for the work. The pits for the two Locks below this place, will be finished during the present month; and from the forward state of the Harbour, we anticipate the pleasure of seeing vessels at St. Catharines before the close of the navigation the present season.—Farmers Jour.

Labourers Wanted.—We are informed that a scarcity of labourers prevails, at this time, on the Welland Canal; and that several hundred able bodied sober men are now wanted, to whom liberal wages will be given. The situation is healthy, there not having been more than three or four deaths by disease, as far as we can ascertain, on the whole line of the canal, since its commencement, and the price paid is from 10 to $15 per month. The men now employed generally enjoy good health.—Ib.

HIGHLAND SOCIETY.

On Monday, the 19th ult., the Highland Society of Canada held their anniversary meeting at Ranald M'Donald's Inn, Williamstown. Having finished the business of the day, they sat down at 5 o'clock to partake of the excellent dinner which awaited them, and to listen to the strains of the national music, and the national song, that for many hours, gave fresh energy to those social and patriotic feelings, which must ever warm the breasts of the sons of the "land of mountains, of valleys and of heroes," when they meet and drain the wine-cup together, on a distant shore.

The President the Right Revd. Bishop M'Donell, having, in consequence of indisposition, declined taking the chair, it was filled by John M'Gillivray, Esquire, and the following toasts were given during the course of the evening, by that gentleman, and drank with great animation:—

1. The King, 4 times 4.
2. Duke of York and the army, 3 times 3.
3. Duke of Clarence and the Navy.
4. The other members of the Royal Family.
5. The day we celebrate.
6. The memory of the heroes who fell at Waterloo, (drank in silence, standing.)
7. Parent Society, 3 times 3.
8. Our worthy Lieutenant Governor Sir Peregrine Maitland, Chief of this Society, 3 times 3.
9. Our Governor General Lord Dalhousie and the sister Province, 3 times 3.
10. The Right Revd. Bishop M'Donell, 3 times 3.

LOWER CANADA.

PROVINCIAL SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Quebec, July 6, 1826.

His Excellency the Governor-in-Chief has been pleased to make the following appointments, viz, Thomas Ainslie Young, Esq. Auditor-General of Public Accounts for the Province of Lower Canada.

Joseph Carrey, Esq. Inspector-General of Public Provincial Accounts for ditto. ditto.

Colonial Herriot of Drummondville is at present busy in soliciting a subscription in this town, for the purpose of raising a subscription for the relief of the poorer classes of sufferers, by the late calamitous fire which destroyed the greater part of that Town. We understand that D. Sutherland, Esq. and Capt. Freer have kindly lent their aid, and will receive the subscriptions of benevolent persons, who are disposed, and able, to assist their fellow creatures under such afflicting circumstances.—Quebec Mercury.

PRESENTING COLOURS TO HIS MAJESTY'S 81st REGIMENT.

Wednesday forenoon a military spectacle of great splendour and interest was exhibited at the Exercising Ground on the Common. The old Colours of the 81st Regt. under which that distinguished corps have fought for these 28 years, and which waved over them in the actions of Maida and Corunna,—fields from which they derived so much deserved renown, had become so defaced and worn, that the Officers deemed it necessary to procure a new pair. The ceremony of presenting them, agreeably to public announcement, took place this day; and the anticipation of witnessing this solemn and imposing sight, attracted to the spot a large and fashionable concourse of the inhabitants.

About 12 o'clock the three Regiments now in Barracks—the 81st, 74th, and the Rifle Brigade, were drawn up into a hollow square, one side of which remained open. The area thus formed was occupied by his Excellency Sir James Kempt, and staff, Admiral Lake, &c. The Carriage of his Excellency, at the hour above mentioned, drew up in front of the 81st Regiment, containing Mrs. Creagh, the lady of Col. Creagh, who had been requested to present the colours. Immediately afterwards the ceremony commenced by a prayer and an appropriate address, being delivered by the Rev. J. T. Twining, Chaplain to the forces. At the conclusion of this, the banners were placed in the hands of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, who in Colonel of the Regiment, and who immediately stepped up to the carriage and presented them to Mrs. Creagh, with the following words

"The Colours of the 81st. Regiment will come with peculiar propriety and grace from your hands, and I request you will do me the honor of presenting them."

Ensigns De Rottenburgh and Creagh then stepped forward, and Mrs. Creagh delivered to them and to the regiment the handsome address which is given beneath.

"In having the flattering honor conferred on me of presenting colours to a Regiment in which my tenderest affections and most friendly regards are centred, I feel difficult for me to give expression to all the feelings, which a ceremony so imposing and so deeply interesting to my heart excites.

"I cannot pray for more than that, while serving under these Colours, you may display the same ardour and invincible bravery which so brightly shone forth under your old colours at Maida, when the 81st, was so gloriously led to victory by its distinguished General.

"May Maida, Corunna, and the other glory-commemorating inscriptions on your colours be always present to your minds, and with the blessing of the ALMIGHTY ever lead and preserve the 81st, in the path of honor and virtue.

"Into your hands, my young friend, I present your King's colours; and into your charge, my beloved son, I give the colours of your Regiment" (At this part of the address Ensigns De' Rottenburgh and Creagh, who formed the party, advanced and presented with a banner) When your Country requires their defence, I, even as a Mother, cannot they never should be abandoned but in death; and may angels watch over them, and during your whole military lives, endeavour to emulate the splendid career of your illustrious General, and may you like him, be distinguished with the well merited rewards of a gracious Sovereign, and the thanks of a grateful country."

The two Ensigns having retired to resume their usual station in front of the regiment, Col. Creagh spoke in the following manner:—

"These colours which by the distinguished favor of His Excellency Sir James Kempt, have just been presented to the 81st in a manner so truly gratifying to my feelings, shall, I can promise, never be sullied by the 81st, I have the honor and happiness to command; and in the day of battle I trust they will ever wave as triumphantly as did our old colours, when the path of victory was pointed out to the 81st, by the General under whom we have now the good fortune to be placed."

The colours were then paraded round His Excellency and the fair donor, attended by the grenadier company, and the band playing appropriate music. The different regiments were then formed into line, and having marched round the exercising ground were deployed off to their respective barracks.

We have been informed that His Excellency has presented to the Regiment a very liberal sum commemorative of the honours of the day.—Nova Scotian.

The U. E. Loyalist.
YORK, U. C. SATURDAY, JULY 22, 1826.

A report has reached Boston, by the Ship "Packet" Captain Endicott, from St. Helena, 10th May, that the war in India was again renewed, in consequence of a Detachment of the British Army, ignorant of the Treaty of Peace, having attacked a Burmese division, and killed several of their men.—The report states, that Captain Endicott received his information from some British Captains, who left India, about the middle of February, nearly a month after the news of the Treaty of Peace had been announced at Calcutta.

If, however, so important an event, as the renewal of hostilities, from the cause assigned, had taken place, it appears but reasonable to suppose that the British Government would have received intimation of it immediately, and that we should have received the intelligence, as early as that conveyed by those who left India, so late as a month after the news of the Peace, during which period it cannot be supposed that any part of the British Forces could have remained ignorant of the events which had taken place at Bhurtpore, intelligence of which would be immediately communicated to the several divisions of the army.

The report it is to be hoped will prove to be incorrect.

To the politeness of a friend, we are indebted for a copy of the Bill, which was noticed while in its progress, in several of the English journals, under the designation of the Upper Canada Election Bill. We take the earliest opportunity of communicating its contents to our readers. It will be perceived that its provision, goes simply, to give the power to the Leg slature of this province, to pass, subject to the approval of his Majesty, acts of naturalization or all purposes, and those who dissented from the measure under discussion last year, because they considered that authority was not vested in the Legislature, will now have their minds quieted on that point. The Royal Assent was given to the bill on 20th May.

17th May, 1826.

A BILL

To amend so much of an Act of the 31 Year of His late Majesty, as relates to the Election of Members to serve in the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada.

Preamble.

WHEREAS An Act passed in the 31 year of the Reign of His late Majesty King George the 3rd, intituled, "An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the 14 year of His Majesty's Reign, intituled 'An Act for making more effectual provision for the Government of the Province of Quebec in North America, and to make further provision for the Government of the said Province;'" it is amongst other things enacted, That no person shall be summoned to the Legislative Council, in either of the Provinces of Upper Canada and Lower Canada, who shall not be of the full age of 21 years, and a natural born Subject of His Majesty, or a subject of His Majesty naturalized by Act of the British Parliament, or a Subject of His Majesty having become such by the conquest and cession of the Province of Canada, and it is thereby further provided, that no person shall be capable of voting at any Election of a Member to serve in the Legislative Assembly in either of the said Provinces of Upper Canada or Lower Canada, or of being Elected at any such Election, who shall not be of the full age of 21 years, and a natural born Subject of His Majesty, or a Subject of His Majesty naturalized by Act of the British Parliament, or a Subject of His Majesty having become such by the conquest and cession of the Province of Canada.

Naturalized persons to be summoned to the Legislative Council and to vote at Elections.

And whereas it is expedient, that persons naturalized by any Act of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, assented to by His Majesty, His Heirs, or Successors, should be enabled to be summoned to the said Legislative Council of the said Province of Upper Canada, and of voting at the Elections of Members to serve in the Legislative Assembly of the said Province, or of being Elected at any such Election, Be it therefore enacted, by the King's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament Assembled, and by the authority of the same, That all persons naturalized by any Act of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, assented to by His Majesty, His Heirs, or Successors, shall henceforth be and be deemed competent in the Law, to be summoned to the Legislative Council of the said Province of Upper Canada, and to vote at the Elections of Members to serve in the Legislative Assembly of the said Province, and to be Elected at any such Election.

Naturalization Bills not to have effect till they have received His Majesty's assent.

Provided nevertheless and be it further enacted, That whenever any Bill which has been passed by the Legislative Council and by the House of Assembly in the said Province of Upper Canada, for the Naturalization of any persons or person, shall be presented for His Majesty's assent to the Governor, or Lieutenant Governor of the said Province, or to the Person Administering His Majesty's Government therein, such Governor, or Lieutenant Governor, or Person Administering the Government; shall, and he is hereby required to reserve every such Bill for the signification of His Majesty's pleasure thereon; and no such Bill shall have any force or authority within the said Province of Upper Canada, until the Governor, or Lieutenant Governor, or Person Administering the Government, shall signify, either by Speech or Message to the Legislative Council and Assembly of the said Province, or by Proclamation, that such Bill has been laid before His Majesty in Council, and that His Majesty has been pleased to assent to the same: and no such Bill shall have any force or authority within the said Province, unless His Majesty's assent thereto shall have been so signified as aforesaid, within the space of two years from the day on which such Bill shall have been presented for His Majesty's assent to the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person Administering the Government.

The last Observer contains a letter from Mr. Lefferty, bestowing no small share of abuse and invective, on the Burlington Canal Commissioners, and at the same time accusing the House of Assembly with having wasted £2000 of the public money.—All this it is said has occurred, in consequence of their not having "attended to his advice," and not having "placed confidence in his statements"—his "prophetic statements!" As he is not pleased "at present," to give us the names of those who are called "greedy, griping, grinding and merciless," we, as well as the "sufferers" spoken of, however anxious we may be, or however great may be their sufferings, must wait with patience, until it shall please the learned gentleman, "to name them out"—The sufferers by the late War, we believe, have met with the attention, which the merits of their several cases, entitled them to. The Parliament of this Province has generously provided for those who have suffered in their persons, and the "Supplementary list" issued from time to time from the Receiver General's Office, of payments to be made on account of losses, shews most clearly, that the Government has not forgotten, to make provision for those who have suffered in their property. If this provision for persons, and property, be the "grinding" complained of, towards the sufferers during the late war, it is certainly the most extraordinary complaint we ever heard of.

Astonishment is expressed that Committees, of the House, should "swallow, no matter whether it be right or wrong, any thing, and every thing, that is thrown before them, without even a minute, or any examination, into its correctness." This is certainly a serious charge, which if true (and who can doubt the veracity of the writer, for he knows all about it) must convince every one as well as Mr. Lefferty, of the necessity of employing more competent persons to "examine and report upon all public documents," for as he justly observes "until such an appointment takes place, from the inattention of members, the House will be subject to reproach in nine cases out of ten." This "prophetic statement" should be attended to.

"Many may imagine, that I am an opposer of public improvement; and, that, because I opposed the purchase of the "mud turtle" last session I rejoice in the failure of the canal and the mismanagement of the commissioners; but no, knowing my virtuous feelings and patriotic sentiments, can vouch, that my first and only object, is to see my country great, powerful and happy"

The Editor of the Observer in his remarks on the Letter, seems to have forgotten the appeal that is here made to him—he has not vouched for a single word of it.—But we will do it.—We believe that Mr. Lefferty does not wish to oppose public improvements, and as to virtuous feeling, we believe he possesses it, in as large a share, as other men. We have heard of some acts of his, which for virtuous feeling, would do credit and honor to the most virtuous, but at the same time anxious as he is that his country should be "great, powerful, and happy," we must say, we think, he has been deceived by the "erroneous calculations" of those, who have pretended to point out to him, the method of making her all that he wishes.

It is not from such angry philippics, as the Letter, against men, publicly employed, in a first undertaking of the kind in the country, that any result, favorable to public improvement, can be expected—it is not by attempting to "keep odium" on them, in the discharge of a public trust, which we believe they are conscientiously discharging, that any good can be realised. Their task is not yet completed—when it is, we have no hesitation in saying, we believe, that they too, will be found to have been possessed of their share of virtuous feeling, and to have used their best exertions, for the promotion of the work, committed to their management. In these sentiments, we feel assured, Mr. Lefferty himself, if left to the free exercise of his virtuous feelings, will join us, and we cannot help expressing our regret, that he should, in an unguarded moment, have suffered himself, to have been so far led astray, as to send forth to the world, the Letter which bears his signature, in the Observer.

The subject of Emigration appears, to have particularly occupied the attention of the House of Commons, in England. A special Committee appointed, for the purpose of collecting information on the subject, has made a long report, but at so late a period of the Session, that there is not much probability of its being acted upon this year. From the interest which the subject has excited, it may be expected, that if Emigration to these Colonies should be encouraged by Government, it would probably be done on an extensive scale, and give a rapid increase to our population.

We understand that the Hon. and Right Reverend the Lord Bishop, intends visiting York this Summer, and that His Lordship may be expected here about the latter end of August, to remain for a few weeks, during which time His Lordship will hold an Ordination and Confirmation.

It affords us much pleasure to learn that the Congregation of the Protestant Episcopal Church, at Kingston, have received a munificent grant of £1,500 from Government, in aid of the funds, for building the new Church at that place.

Melancholy Accident.—On Saturday last, Geo. England Leonard, only son of Major Richard Leonard of Drummond Hill, aged nearly nine years, was unfortunately drowned from a canoe, in Chippewa Creek. He was a very fine youth, of a generous disposition and promising talents.

COMMUNICATIONS.

To the Editor of the U. E. Loyalist.

SIR,

As Mr. Samson's communication in your paper of the 8th inst. carries its own conviction, in a great measure, with it, I forbear to make those observations which it justly challenges, and although possessed of other evidence, I shall rest satisfied for the present, with requesting you to insert in the U. E. Loyalist the following certificate, which refers, not to the conversation, in which Mr. Samson made the admissions set forth in my former communication, but to a subsequent one on the same subject.

I am, SIR, Your ob't. serv't.

THOS. CAMPBELL.

I hereby certify that I was present at a conversation between Mr. Campbell and Mr. Samson of Belleville, in which Mr. Samson acknowledged a want of candor in that part of the letter to Lord Liverpool, which refers to the Church at Belleville, and particularly that portion of it which represents the congregation as consisting of fifty persons, who attend two or three times a year, and so far was he from maintaining that his statement "was correct in every particular," that he did not attempt to defend a single particular it contained.

JOHN GRIER.
Minister at Carrying-Place.
July 7th, 1826.

To the Editor of the U. E. Loyalist.

SIR,

In the Kingston Chronicle, "A Protestant of the Church of Scotland," has desired those who are in possession of his Pamphlet, to make certain corrections in it. I have the Pamphlet, and have made these corrections, (they were, however, pointed out to me before) and it now puts matters in a very different light.—For example, it now gives "36 to 40" as the Communicants "last year," at Bellville, instead of "12"—and "15" last time," at Bath, instead of "only 15 last year." These are trifling errors to be sure. The errata is, I hope, carefully forwarded to Lord Liverpool.

As to the mistake, in omitting to print something which was "neither an omission in the original composition, nor wilfield uncandidly," I must confess I do not understand it—perhaps the Printer can explain it. There is another matter too that requires explanation yet—The Protestant of the Church of Scotland, says, that the Clergyman of the Church of Scotland, who has not been settled five years in Kingston, yet numbered 114 communicants "last time." Now there has realy been so much blundering about "last year," and "last time," and "generally," that I am at a loss to know whether he means that at the last administration there were 114—or whether that is the number in the five years he speaks of. I should thank him to explain this, as I wish to understand the thing correctly.

Yours,

SENEX.

PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors, of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province; to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on Wednesday the Fifth day of July next, to be Commenced, Held, Called, and Elected, and to every of you

GREETING

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Twentieth day of May last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the Fifth day of July next, at which time, at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear.

NOW KNOW YE, that we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents enjoining you and each of you that on Monday the Fourteenth day of August now next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding our Forces therein, at York, this Twenty-seventh day of June in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-six, and in the Seventh Year of our reign.

UPPER CANADA.
P. MAITLAND,
Lieut. Governor.

GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To all to whom these Presents shall come

GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the parts of this Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. We have thought fit to order and direct, and We do hereby order and direct that, until Our pleasure herein shall be further made known, it shall and may be lawful for all Our Subjects inhabiting Our Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada, freely to enter into Our Woods and Forests in such parts of Our said Province of Upper Canada, situate along the Banks of the River Ottawa, or upon the Banks of the Waters running into the said River and within a convenient distance from the same, as shall not have been Surveyed and divided into Concessions and Lots, and to Cut and carry away such Oak and Pine Timber as may be fit for the purposes of Exportation.

Provided always, nevertheless, That in consideration of the authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties herein-after specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Red Pine Timber, Four Pounds Three Shillings and Four Pence, being at the rate of One Penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Yellow Pine Timber, Two Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence, being at the rate of One Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commission under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places upon the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointed as aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has attained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons, properly authorized by or under Our Licence granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS Our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this third day of May in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-Six, and in the Seventh Year of Our Reign.

Executive Council Office,
York, 23rd March, 1826

NOTICE is hereby given, by ORDER of His EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENAT GOVERNOR, in COUNCIL, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a regular Council day.

JOHN SMALL.
No. 9 1. f. C. E. C.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepard in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s. 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form. Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hundred Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant. It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessary expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

THE LOVERS.

And there they stood—loved—loving—lovely—pure,
As the first pair in Eden's sinless bowers;
As blest as though their rapture could endure
Through all eternity; they had no hours
Of sad foreboding:—happy, they were sure
Of future bliss:—that throne grew with love's flowers
They little knew or reck'd:—enough for them
That they possess'd bud—blossom—flower—and stem.

Yet they are parted—parted now for ever;
And time may lend its soothing aid to heal
His deep and bleeding wounds:—but, for her never,
Can that distracted bosom cease to feel
What it so long hath defied: they sever,
And woman's pride, or passion may conceal
The venom'd arrow rankling in her heart,
But pride, nor ire, can bid the barb depart!

Oh! there are times, in her deep solitude,
When memory will pourtray the scenes of yore,
And with its shadowy train of thought intrude
Upon a bosom bleeding at its core,
Where, but to glance, were to attempt too rude
A view of that which Hope will gild no more;
Whilst, over Fate's horizon, beams no ray
Through Sorrow's night, to tell the coming day.

Such is the usual lot of woman:—born
To love but once, and once, perhaps, to be Adored and worship'd; then resign'd in scorn
For some new shrine and lovelier deity:—
A ruler from his crown and kingdom torn—
A friendless captive struggling to be free—
Have known despair—but their's cannot excel
Her's who hath felt she lives to love too well!

LIFE.

If is in vain—
The heart must str ggle with its destiny.
Alas! the ideis which its faith sets up—
They are Chaldean ones, half gold, half clay.
We trust, we are deceived—we hope, we fear,
Alike without foundation: day by day,
Some new illusion vanishes, and Life
Gets cold and colder on towards its close—
Just like the years which make it: some are check'd
By sudden blights in springs; some are dried up
By fiery summers; others waste away
In palm monotony of quiet skies,
And peradventure these may be the best—
They know no hurricanes, no floods that burst
As the destroying angel rode each wave;
But then they have no ruby fruits, no flowers
Shining in purple, and no lighted mines
Of gold and diamond. Which is the best
Beauty and glory in a passionate clime,
Mingled with the thunder, tempest;—or the calm
Of skies that scarcely change—which, at the least,
If much of shine they have not, have no storm?
I know not which is best; but I do know
Which I would choose; give me the earth, the sky,
Of even, self-consuming lovliness—
Though the too radiant sun and fertile soil,
In their luxuriance, run to rankness, to waste,
And the green valley and the silver stream
Become a sandy desert. Oh! the heart
Too passionate to lighted energies
May rend its fate in sunny days like these—
How every Eastern tale recals its beauty,
Its growth of spices, and its grove of balm,
It is exhausted—and what is it now!
A wild and scorching wilderness—Alas!
For the similitude!

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE COTTAGER'S DAUGHTER.

A SKETCH.

MARY IRVING was the daughter of an humble cottager, who earned his bis daily bread by the labor of his hands and the sweat of his brow. She was his only child, the light of his old age, and the comforter that, in health, was the delight of his heart, in sickness, the minister of every restoring gift. All the village knew her for a dutiful daughter, and wondered not at the extreme fondness of the old man for his child. Now that her mother was dead, and her brother far away from the land of his birth, and the home of his infancy, having enlisted as a soldier early in life, where could a father's preference be bestowed more justly, than on one who sacrificed every thing to make him happy, and who seemed alone to draw delight from the silent smile that ever sat on his homely countenance. But alas! the spoiler came, and robbed this nest of domestic felicity.

Albert Jones was a young man, the son of a neighbouring farmer. He was a youth of a happy, light, and careless turn of mind, and possessed a warm, friendly heart, at least such was every one's opinion, and every one could not be wrong. But alas! every one was wrong in that instance, and the fatal termination of the whole told a fearful tale of human fallibility.

Albert Jones wooed Mary Irving, and pressed his suit with all the warmth and assiduity of a young enthusiastic lover. Having gained her heart, he soon won over the scruples of the her parent, he soon won over the scruples of the old man, who wished to see his daughter settled in life ere he departed hence; and his few white hairs, and his wrinkled brow, warned him that the period was not far distant.

Mary Irving became the wife of Albert Jones and every one said they were a couple made for each other; but the honeymoon was scarcely over and gone, ere Mary saw that her husband was far from what she had ever dreamt him to be.

Every village boasts its alehouse—every village has its due quantum of choice spirits, as well as its fiddler and every village has its little club that meets a' nights to discuss politics, and something stronger than small beer.—Here, then, did Albert Jones flourish, and here did his happy spirits kindle beneath the influence of spirits of a more exalting, and sometimes too, of a more humiliating nature. He had a heart formed to make a homely hearth happy, but early estrangement from such, it would seem, had poisoned the sweeter current of his mind, and turned the waters that might have flowed on in calmness, to enlighten and endear his domestic moments, to gall and bitterness.

Many an evening had Mary to sit up till midnight, waiting the return of her husband, and when he did appear, reeling with drink, and dissatisfied with every thing, she would wipe the tears from her eyes, but her heart forbade her to rail and be angry, she gave her gentle rebuke, hoped he might reform, and pitied him. Months passed on, but no change for the better on Albert Jones; and Mary felt herself a mother. She was delivered of a daughter; but instead of rejoicing at the circumstance with the fullness of a mother's joy, she was sad and downcast, for she saw nought but want staring her in the face, and trouble and distress around her.

The babe was but four days old, and the mother had not recovered from her weakly state, when, one evening, as usual, she was waiting the return of her husband, and was propped up in blankets in a chair by the side of the fire, for she could but barely move about. The night was cold and tempestuous. The rain was pouring down in torrents, as the wind, which had been blowing in the afternoon, had kept the clouds apart, had now gradually fallen and calmed. Mary Irving trimmed the lamp that stood by her side on a small oaken table, and stirred the fire into a more kindly and cheering light. She again threw herself back in the chair, keeping her eyes fixed on the warm glow of the fire, her thoughts involuntarily wandered back to the fireside of her father's cottage, and to the many happy evenings she had spent there. How different, indeed—how strikingly different were the two in comparison—she viewed home from that one that had watched over her infancy! But she still, amid all his imperfections, looked back to the days when he came as a lover, and sung the songs of Scotia's own delightful bard, and wooed, and won her simple heart. The fervour of a first love is too deeply felt ever to be erased or succeed by another; for the heart, young and untutored, riots on, and revels in the luxurious feelings that then haunt the mind and the soul. And she had felt all these, and though times were now different with her, indeed, yet still they shone in her chaste memory like the softened twilight that succeeds a brilliant sunset. She was indulging in such dreams, and endearing her husband, bad as he was and had been, more to her heart, when suddenly she was started from her musings by the door bursting open, and her husband reeling in worse than his wonted staggering forward to a chair. "You look worse to-night, Albert, than I have ever seen you," said Mary as she approached where her husband sat, and looked him kindly in the face.

"No wonder, Mary," said he, in broken accents, but softer than usual: "only look here —there's for you—see what John Williams has done," and pulling off his hat, the blood gushed out from a fearful wound in the back of his head. Mary screamed out with terror when she looked on the wound, and no wonder, it was an awful one. "Albert! Albert!" was all she could articulate; but Albert heard her not—he had fainted. She used every effort which, in her haste, her ingenuity could devise, but Albert was beyond the reach of human aid; by her screams she brought her neighbours to her assistance; the village doctor was procured, but too late to do any good; he was carried into his bed, and laid down for the last time. When Mary saw and felt that she was a widow, and that Albert had gone to his last account in that fearful condition, it was more than her poor brain could bear. They had barely laid him down, ere she started up suddenly from her chair into which she had thrown herself but a moment before, and bed, no one could tell why, to the cradle where her sleeping infant lay, and snatching it up, hurried out of the house into the rain and darkness. All present, pertrified by the suddenness of the action, and struck dumb and motionless by the portentous looks of the distracted mother, could only gaze on each other's faces in silent astonishment. However, when a few of them were again restored to recollection, they went out in search of her, and of course their steps were first directed to her father's cottage. There, in truth, they found her, but too late to proffer their friendly aid in consoling her distresses—she was past them all.

The old man had been roused from his sleep by a fearful knocking at the cottage door, and the voice of his child calling for God's sake to open; he had jumped from his bed, and unbolted the door, and lifted the latch, when Mary rushed in with her half-naked child in her arms, and flung it on the bed. She had then turned to her father, clasped her hands distractedly together—screamed, and fallen forward on the floor. Her father knelt down and half uplifted her—her eyes only opened once, but their expressions was wild and unearthly—Albert's name faintly passed her lips, and then her too-full heart had broken.

Three graves, side by side, lie peacefully together in the little church-yard of ——. Sometimes in the evening, a little girl, dressed in plain and homely apparel, enters there, and approaches them, and, fearless of the setting twilight, seats herself on the middle one, and weeps, as an orphan child weeps over the grave of its departed parents. She hears the whisper of the neighbours, and knows a little of her history, and has gleaned thus much from their friendly talk, that her father was not as he should have been; that her mother was the light of their home, and the delight of every one; and that her grandfather died with grief for the loss of his only child, and had left her the little that maintained and supported her among friendly neighbours.

AT HOME—NOT AT HOME.

WHAT magic is in these three words—positively—negatively! Ye who think that tomorrow will pay the promises of to-day, listen to the adventures which belong to these talismanic expressions.

The age which had succeeded the bubble-age was in its full bloom of bankruptcies and suspensions, when Timotheus Scribehake, Esquire, who had lived most principally during a long period by writing for the periodical press, worked as usual to get up for another double industry, to meet the pressure of the times; and sincerely hoped that no callers would call to interrupt him in his occupation. By the morrow he had contracted to furnish, for a Review that called itself first-rate, a paper on cash payments and the currency, which to finish required his utmost exertions. He would have said "not at home," but he had heard that denial of self was worse than self-denial; the former being an act of bankruptcy the later an act of Christian virtue. So, disregarding an order to that effect, Timotheus took the last day by the forelock, and was pen in hand betimes. Luckless wight! hardly had his good grey quill imbibed its first sip of ink, when in walked Mr. A. Jourdouy, the most worthy of innocent creatures. Mr. A. Jourdouy's conversation is of a very agreeable kind, though not particularly instructive. He tells you nearly all the news which have appeared in the newspapers of the preceding day, or even two days, if he is in a remarkably communicative key; and does it in so endearing a manner, that it is quite impossible not to be grateful for his indulgence. On the present occasion he was overflowing with kindness, and distilled the intelligence of half a week into the listening ear and tortured heart of Timotheus, who, at the end of two hours, saw his visitor depart with a sort of feeling as if the weight of a mountain were taken off his back, like Edwin of the Green, or Sir Topaz, in the fairy tale. Alas! his joy was brief: before he was re-seated, Dr. Chitty dropped in. Timotheus looked aghast—for though the doctor dealt in remedies, well he knew that there was no remedy for him in the doctor. He therefore was no remedy for him in the doctor. He therefore was no remedy for him in the doctor. He therefore illustration. In order to shew that the progressive ratio of the American navy will continue, it must be shewn that it depends upon unalterable and permanent principles. Now, the very contrary of this is notoriously the case—the American commercial navy grew up by a twenty years monopoly of the carrying trade; and for several years it has been stationary, or even retrograde. The Morning Chronicle itself will allow, that the ratio of its increase has prodigiously diminished within the last ten years. But without reference to the peculiar and extraordinary circumstances that favour the increase of the American navy, from 1793 to 1813,—American commercial navy, from 1793 to 1813,—it is not a fact that Great Britain has increased a million of tonnage upon more than a million and a half, while America has, in the first flush of trade, created but three tenths more than Great Britain has increased—a proof that Great Britain is the stronger and more stable and commercial country.

Be the trade great or small, whether national or individual, the principle is the same, and the increase is greatest in proportion upon the smallest term, the difficulties of our progress multiplying as we proceed. The reason is manifest; the power of progression in trade is limited by the objects of traffic; as we advance, these objects are successively occupied and our progress is of course retarded. We have considered the subject at this (somewhat too great) length, because the Courier, which attempts to answer the Morning Chronicle, has wholly mistaken the question; and, by adhering to the arithmetical argument in which he is bewildered, it affords a triumph to its adversary—a triumph to which, as we have shewn, the arguments of the Morning Chronicle are not entitled. If we are to allow of the arithmetical argument, adopted by both disputants, the American navy, having squared its tonnage to the first three years, might use it as a mount to something considerably more than would be sufficient to carry the solid contents of the Globe, as will be seen by carrying the progression a few steps forward; thus, if in 1792 the number be 300,000, and 1795, 900,000; in 1798 the number ought to be 8,100,000, in 1801, 652,000,000; do our readers want us to go farther to shew the value of arithmetical reasoning in upper circles of politics!

HOUSE OF LORDS—May 26.

THE GREEKS.

The Earl of Darnley said he had, on a former occasion, put a question to the noble Earl opposite on the conduct pursued by the French Government in the contest between the Greeks and the Turks. That conduct, he understood, was any thing but neutral, though the Noble Earl said that the French Government acted on a principal of neutrality. To him it appeared that their conduct in that instance was quite in character with their preceding respecting the Slave Trade. Vessels of war and munitions of war were fitted out in the ports of France, and sent off to the Pacha of Egypt. If this was to be called neutrality, he knew not what the word implied. British officers were deprived of their half-pay if they entered into the service of foreign belligerents, yet there were not less than a hundred and twenty French officers employed under the standard of the Turks, who were allowed to retain their half-pay. The Noble Earl, in conclusion, moved for copies of any communications received from His Majesty's Consul at Marseilles, relative to the fitting out of ships in that part for the service of the Pacha of Egypt.

The Earl of Liverpool protested against the motion as the most unprecedented one that ever heard, and brought forward without any previous notice. It was a motion calling upon their Lordships to take into their own hands the King's prerogative with regard to belligerent and neutral powers. He had never before heard a motion of the kind brought forward in that house, though he was ready to admit that special cases might arise to call for the interference of the Legislature. This, however, was not one of them. Neutrality was the great object of this country, and while we maintained peace, to use means towards reconciling the belligerents, if that was practicable. If he was right sure that interference now proposed, so far from doing good, would be productive of evil. He had already stated that the French Government professed to act on a policy of neutrality. None that might be found to have been by allowing officers to serve on neither side, or on both. In the war between the Swedes and Russians, both parties were commanded by British officers. He had heard that in the present contest, a Greek corps was commanded by a French officer of high reputation, so that the principle of allowing officers to serve was as fair towards the Greeks as Turks.—As to the policy of the French Government with regard to the Slave Trade, it had nothing whatever to do with this question.

The Earl of Darnley consented to withdraw the motion, but said he would take measures to ascertain whether the neutrality of the French Government was real or not.

The twenty-second Anniversary of the British and Foreign Bible Society was held on Wednesday, the 3d of May, at Freemason's Hall, which, as usual on former occasions, was filled at an early hour. If the regret of the Meeting last year was great at the absence of the reverend President of the Society, the Right Honorable Lord Teignmouth, on account of ill health, the satisfaction on seeing his Lordship take the chair on the present occasion, at 11 o'clock, was extreme. The noble President having opened the business of the day by a few appropriate observations, and communications having been made on the part of the Right Honorable the Lords Bexley and Rocksavage, both Vice-Presidents of the Society, expressive of their regret in being unable to attend, the Rev. Andrew Brandram, one of the Secretaries, proceeded to read the Report of the Committee. It took a general view of the operations of the Society during the past year, and gave a sketch of the blessings attending its exertions in every quarter of the Globe. Suffice it here to say that during that period the British and Foreign Bible Society has issued 110,963 Bibles, and 175,530 Testaments, making the aggregate number of copies of the Sacred Scriptures circulated by it during the 22 years of its establishment, 4,109,589.—The receipts of the Society for the last year were £36,766: 2: 9.

"Though no material improvement in the prices of Foreign Produce can be noticed this week, a steady and increasing consumptive demand is perceptible, apparently grounded on real wants and an improving state of trade in the Manufacturing Districts. The more prevailing opinions appears to be, that what is now experienced is the commencement of a gradual amelioration in commercial affairs, and that hereafter we may look forward to a slow but solid revival in business.

"Though the sales in Ashes this week are not very extensive, it arises more from the firmness of holders, than the want of buyers; judging from present appearance, this may be termed as the busiest week in the year. About 300 barrels of new Montreal Pots sold at 12s. and 100 barrels of Pearls, old at 24s. and new at 25s. and a few old New York Pearls at 24s. 6d. per cwt.

"The demand for Pine Timber, (though of small extent when compared with several past years') is gradually lessening our stocks, so that the quantity remaining to meet the new import will not much likely be any thing extensive. A Cargo of St. John's Pine sold this week at 7 1-2d. per foot.

"The supplies of free Grain coming forward are moderate, and all arriving sells readily from the Vessels, so that no accumulation is likely to take place. At no recent period has the stock of Wheat of domestic growth been known to be so trifling in this port, as it is at present; a few cargoes in store would comprise the whole, nor is the stock of Wheat about to be liberated under the New Acts considered to reach more than one-half to two-thirds the stock of free on hand at this period last year; hence it is now generally admitted, that the measures adopted by Parliament, for the admission of bonded grain to home use are founded on sound and judicious principles as any important advance (which under present circumstances might have been serious in its consequences) will probably be avoided; at all events, though the demand equals the supply, hitherto no improvement of moment has occurred. Sales are making in Foreign Wheat about to the following rates, 38s. 3d. to 38s. 9d., per 70 lbs. duty paid, and in American Flour at 27s. a 29s per barrel as in quality, and in Foreign Wheat imperfect since the 2d ultc. at 4s. 3d. to 4s. 6d. per 70 lbs."

RELIGION IN FRANCE.

The French papers are occupied only with two topics—the religious tumults at Rouen, and the debates in the Chamber of Deputies—the attack on the Missionaries at Rouen, and the attack on the Prince of the Clergy in the latter. On the 24th May the Royal Guard appointed to restore order at Rouen, were assailed by the populace with volies of stones, and the royal officers severely wounded. A body of the Guards and of the Gendarmerie then made a charge on the mob and dispersed it. The rioters again assembled, however, and insulted the military, threw bottles at them, filled with offensive liquids, and were again charged and dispersed, many of them being bruised or wounded. These disorders have now continued for more than a week, and on the 27th the Bishop on the departure of the party who excited them. What renders them more deplorable is, not only the violence of those who engage in them, but the bigotry of those who have provoked them. The Cardinal Prince-Archbishop of Rouen is extremely obnoxious from the interference which he lately attempted with the amusements of the people, by endeavouring to prevent the representation of the Tartuffe, and from an intolerant charge addressed to the clergy, which the ministry were obliged to suppress. Anticipating that in this state of the public mind, the appearance of the missionaries might occasion a renewal of disorder, and threaten to the peace of the city, the municipal authorities (as we are informed by a private letter) waited upon his Eminence, and requested him to countermand the mission. The archbishop haughtily rejected their petition, and thus turned against him the feelings of even the agents of Government.

The character and continuance of these hostilities against the Jesuits at Rouen, gave great interest to the speech of the Ministers for Ecclesiastical Affairs, on the 25th, and the eagerness with which his apology for the clergy was thrown head, induced him to renew his defensive explanations at the following sitting, when a vote of 24,205,000 francs (about £1,012,000) was proposed for the support of the church.

On the 25th of May, while the Chamber of Deputies were discussing the budget for 1827, Monsieur Alexis de Noailles proposed that three hundred thousand francs should be appropriated, under the direction of the foreign department, to the redemption of Greek Captives in the Levant. This motion was introduced with a speech of considerable length, from which we translate the following extracts:

[This honorable member did not think the expenses of the department of foreign affairs too great. Economy in that department might injure commerce. As to the complaints of speakers who demand that the ministry should make their policy known, he said that what the Chamber required of the ministry were not vain theories, but deeds. "He would not then attack them on these points: he would only speak of a particular interest.—(Movement of attention.)"

"The most afflicted of all nations," said he, "has implored the protection of Sovereigns: The Greeks, who are at issue with every species of calamity." —(Explosions of murmurs from the ministerial benches.) "I do not understand your murmurs: the Greeks are christians." (Tumultuous agitation.)

A Voice.—"They are schismatics."

M. de Noailles.—"The Greeks have invoked that intercession with some are pleased to call Holy: it has answered their requests by treating them as rebels. The knowledge of the evils by which Greece is overwhelmed, is extended throughout Europe; and the sufferings of that unhappy country have excited a general sentiment of commiseration.

SOUTH AMERICA.

From Brazil.—The brig Sylph, Farvin, has arrived at Baltimore in 39 days from Rio Janeiro, bringing advices to the 30th May.

The sales in Ashes this week are not very extensive, it arises more from the firmness of holders, than the want of buyers; judging from present appearance, this may be termed as the busiest week in the year. About 300 barrels of new Montreal Pots sold at 12s. and 100 barrels of Pearls, old at 24s. and new at 25s. and a few old New York Pearls at 24s. 6d. per cwt.

Affairs in the new Republic of Colombia are wearing a serious aspect. General Paez is making preparations for resistance and General Bermudez for defensive attack him. Civil blood therefore will be shed, before the arrival of Bolivar whose influence might prevent this lamentable issue.

From Calcutta.—By the Arrival of the Emerald at Boston, from Calcutta, the reports recently circulated of the renewal of hostilities between the British and Burmese are confirmed. The Emerald sailed on the 29th February, and at the latest dates from the scene of action, the British forces had gained some slight advantages over the Burmese. The armistice was a mere feint on the part of the latter to recruit and gain fresh strength.

We have since received the Boston Palladium of Tuesday. Its Editor has been favoured with Calcutta papers to Feb. 20, inclusive.

It appears the Burmese suffered the time in which the treaty of peace was to be ratified to expire, without taking that step, that the British thought the whole affair a trick, prepared to attack Rangoon. Jan. 19, took the city of Melloon, and advanced 12 miles beyond it. In the city they found the original treaty, which had never been sent to Ava, (another account says a copy had been sent)—the British took about thirty thousand rupees in money, a large magazine of grain, and a great quantity of military stores. The determination is to make peace only at the capital.

One of the papers states that the British obtained 90,000 laca of rupees among their booty at Bhurtpore

GREECE.

There is reason to hope a portion of the garrison of Missolonghi escaped. This hope is founded on the solicitude of the Turks to prevent any communication with the coast. Ibrahim had according to the Journal des Debats, given orders to kill all his prisoners, and even unarmed peasants, in order to complete the wonder he has been for the last two years of cars, that the Sultan had ordered him to send to Constantinople. It appears he could not make up this number at Missolonghi.

It appears, says the Smyrna Observer, that Ibrahim's intention is to convey his troops to the isthmus of Corinth, by ascending the gulf of Lepanto.—Thence his army may, in two or three days march, reach Napoli de Romania and commence the siege, while the fleet passing round the Peninsula, would undertake to blockade it. The Serakier will, it is said, march upon Athens and invest its citadel, combining his operations with those of the Pacha of Negropont. The position of Napoli, however, is strong, that it will not easily be carried. The citadel is impregnable and can only be reduced by famine.

A rumour is circulating in Paris, which, if it prove true, augurs ill for the cause of the calamity of Missolonghi. The greater part of the garrison is said to have succeeded in penetrating the assailing army, and saving the women and children that accompanied them. This precious remnant of an heroic population had arrived at Solona.

On the 15th of April, a fire broke out at the great Hungarian Market-town of Nagy-Koros. A high wind prevailing, and the fire having commenced in a stable in the middle of the town, where the houses were crowded together, it spread with such rapidity, that in a few hours above 1000 buildings were reduced to ashes, in spite of all the exertions of the inhabitants although it was the middle of the day.

RUSSIA.

The Frankport papers contain the following article, dated Augsburg, May 8:—"After three weeks dry weather, we had, on the 1st of May, a fall of snow nearly a foot deep; on the 3d the weather became milder in the country, and yesterday, after a sultry forenoon we had the first thunder-storm.—The very first flash of lighting struck a flock of sheep about three quarters of a mile from the city, and killed the whole flock, consisting of 170 sheep. The shepherd and his dog was not injured, though only a short distance from the flock. On the 1st of May a man was frozen to death, now, being in a state of intoxication, he was in the snow."

The Emperor Nicholas returned on the 11th of May to St. Petersburg, from his visit to the military colonies.

Extract of a private letter of the 22d of May, from Augsburgh:—"Advices from Vienna state, that the health of the Emperor continues unfavorable. A kind of consumption which cannot be overcome by art, undermines his constitution. This Monarch has been deeply affected by the fresh resistance offered by the Hungarian Diet, upon the occasion of the last reply made to that body by the sovereign authority. Several deputies of towns, and several Magnats, among whom the Count Karoly is mentioned, proposed to insert in the new Act to be presented to the court, an energetic reserve, in case the remedy to the abuses pointed out should not be consented to. This motion was rejected by the Diet, but it nevertheless produced a powerful sensation at Vienna."

According to the Journal de Rouen of the 26th of May, the disturbances in that town on the 24th was more serious than at first supposed. The mob pelted the armed force with stones, many of which struck the officers on duty. A detachment of the guards and Gendarmerie charged the populace, who fled in all directions. Shortly after barricades groups were again formed, the troops were hooted, and bottles of stinking liquids thrown upon them from the windows. The soldiers then charged the mob a second time, and unfortunately, the performance at the the theatre having concluded at the same moment, many persons coming from thence were knocked down and wounded. On the 25th the exercises of the Missionaries were over quietly, except at the Church of St. Ouen, where an explosion of petards took place. About twenty of the ring-leaders are in custody. The Mayor has issued an Ordinance, prescribing measures for the maintenance of the public peace.

The Commissioners appointed to examine the project for a maritime Canal from Paris to Havre having made a favourable report upon its utility and the means of making it serve for the defence of the kingdom, in a system of war in which steam vessels might become an important armament, the Minister of the Marine has ordered some ships to be fitted out, for a number of hydrographical engineers and officers of the Royal Navy to proceed to the mouth of the Seine, in order to make such observations there as are considered necessary to complete the resolution of the important questions connected with the subject.

The Journal de Constantinople, containing the feigned submission of the Turkish Divan to the declarations of the Cabinet of St. Petersburg, the Turks, it is said, gained time to victual the fortresses on the Danube, as it is now in the eve of breaking out. The Russian forces in Bassarabia, are also ready to enter upon a campaign.

FRANCE.

The Paris Journal des Debats, contains an account of the reduction of Missolonghi, transmitted to the Greek Committee at Paris by their Agent.

If the conduct of the French Government respecting the Greeks, is not in the degree to its nation, it must be admitted on the other hand, that the generous and active zeal, evinced by the public, is sufficient to redeem that disgrace.

The Ladies composing the third Greek Committee in Paris, not content with making collections through the city, execute works, the profits of which they destined for the relief of the heroic defenders of the cross and of independence. They have invited all other ladies to co-operate with them in this good work.

A Lady in Paris has sent to the committee, to be sold for the benefit of the Greeks, a box containing a collar, a crown, two ear-pendants of rows of pearl; a comb, a collar; a pair of bracelets, a cross and earrings of coral; a chain and a ring of gold—she would not disclose her name.

The Pupils of the College of Bourbon made a collection amongst themselves of 1000 francs in favor of the Greeks. They were punished by being deprived of the holiday granted to all the other Colleges on the day when the first stone was laid of the Monument of Louis XVI.

The collection made at Lyons in favour of the Greeks, by the ladies of that city, had produced on the 30th April, more than 25,000 francs.

The ladies of the city of Chalons-Sur-Saone were not long without following the noble example given them by the ladies of Paris; twelve of them have traversed the city for many days, with the object of contributing to the preservation of mothers and their children, and the succours of Christians.

The Greek committee at Paris have received positive information that Soliman Bey (the renegade Swiss) has evacuated Tripolitza, after having burnt it.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

From the Quebec Mercury.

Some time since we mentioned the arrest of four Indians for the supposed murder of a white man in the Township of New Ireland, the skeleton of whom was accidentally found. During the examination of the Indians before the Police Magistrate, one of them disclosed the circumstances of the murder; as there was no reason to suspect that there was two men murdered, and to ascertain more distinctly the place where a circumstance connected with the murder of a man whose skeleton was found—it was thought advisable to send the Indian who made the disclosure back with a guard to the spot, and it now appears, that while there he confessed that they had murdered both the white men (who there is reason to believe were of the United States) and that they sunk the other body in the Black Lake, on the borders of which the murders were committed. The Indian so sent has been brought back and is now in the jail of this city.

His Majesty's health was so good as to render it probable that he would be able to hold a levee in the beginning of June. The preparations for the approaching general election were carrying on with great activity. Mr. Sergeant Frith, who has some years ago Attorney General for Upper Canada, canvasses the city of Norwich, with what prospect of success we do not learn.

Extracts from a Mercantile letter, dated,

LONDON, 30th May.

"The timber trade does not improve with us, and as the stock on hand is large, (with a considerable proportion of ordinary qualities) it can hardly be expected to be better for some time. The state of the home trade generally continues very deplorable, every house engaged in country business suffering so dreadfully by bad debts. Money is certainly more plentiful, but there is an evident fear with most houses of large capital of investing it, therefore much is placed in the funds, which will not be thrown into trade until confidence is restored."

On Thursday last detachments of invalids, completed service men, &c. from the several Regiments and corps in these Provinces, embarked for England under the command of Major Coles, 76th Regt. on board the Parmelia Transport, Captains Kelsall and Whyte, of the 70th Regt. Captain Grubbe. Unattached Surgeon Flanagan, 76th Regt. and Lieut. Harvey 37th Regt. are passengers.—The Transport will sail this morning.

Herbert Cornwall, Esquire, lately of His Majesty 76th foot has received the appointment of Surveyor of the Customs at this port.

The Aurora, Capt. Dearness, arrived from Hull on Tuesday last, and now lying at the ballast ground was struck by lightning about 11 o'clock on Wednesday, during the heavy thunder gust. The Mainmast was shivered into a thousand pieces. The shock nearly threw the vessel on her beam ends and was extremely violent. A boy asleep in the main-top escaped unhurt. No lives were lost.

Large Serpent.—A gentleman of this city, in the habit of constant communication with the inhabitants of L'Assomption & its environs, has related to us the following novel circumstances, which he derived from the very proprietor of the land which was the scene of the occurrence.

About ten days ago, a woman, with three of her children, were gathering strawberries on the farm of one Vaillant, distant two or three miles from the village above mentioned. Meeting with little success, the children asked their mother's leave to go in a thicket close by, where they thought they might find the fruit in greater quantity. Leave being granted, they entered the wood; but had not been long out of sight before they reappeared running with all their might and in great affright as if flying from some danger. Being asked what had happened, they described, in their own imperfect way, that they had seen some living and monstrous thing on a tree. This account excited the mother's curiosity so strongly as to induce her, in spite of a feeling of apprehension, to return with them and see what it was. She accordingly accompanied them, but what was her dismay when she beheld an enormous serpent curled round a tree, its tail resting on the ground, and its head waving above the topmost foliage, as if looking around for, or watching the motions of some intended prey. It is not easy to imagine the terror of the little human groupe. Scarcely had they strength to retire and tell the neighbours what they had seen.—Montreal Herald.

The St. Lawrence Steam-Boat Company has, with the enterprize that distinguishes it, and more especially its principal member, resolved to establish a line of Steam Boats, one of which is daily to leave Quebec, and another this city, Sundays excepted. The following is an authentic list of the Boats and the days of their departure, according to the present intention of the Company: should it hereafter be deemed expedient to make any alteration, it will be duly noticed.

BUTTER.—Every farmer who is in the practice of carrying butter to market, during the warm season, knows the advantages of having it kept cool, (a ready sale and advanced price) but is frequently at a loss to effect this, especially if he live at a distance from town. Let him try the following method, by which, it is believed, he may present his butter in perfectly good condition, in the warmest weather; put up the butter, early in the morning (after having been kept in a cool place over night) in a wooden box, made perfectly clean and sweet. Inclose this box in another about two inches larger on every side, and fill the space between them with grass cut fresh with dew on, or wetted in cold water. A little care in simple things, in the aggregate, is often of no small service to the farmer; and here is a fair chance to exert it with success. The following receipt for preserving butter, given by Dr. Anderson, has been warmly recommended by those who have practised its directions;

"Best common salt, two parts: salt petre one part; sugar one part—beat them up together, so that they may be completely blended. To every 16 ounces of butter add one once of this composition. Mix it well in the mass and, close it up for use."

Dr. Anderson remarks, that he has found by experience, that the above mentioned composition not only preserves the butter more effectually from any taint of rancidity, but makes it also look better, taste sweeter, richer, and more morroway, than if it had been cured with common salt alone.

It is said, butter prepared in this manner will keep for years and cannot be distinguished from that recently salted. It should stand a fortnight or three weeks after having been prepared, before it is used.

Shubenacadie Canal.—This enterprise has been commenced. A body of workmen have been employed for this fortnight back under superintendence of Mr. Hall, in digging trial-pits upon the line of excavation, and the Directors have directed the subscribers to pay in an instalment of 5 per cent.

A gentleman informs us, that on Tuesday the 20th inst. a steam packet arrived at Annapolis from St. John's N. B. It is intended to run regularly between these ports, so that in this way the Boston line of steam packets is now connected with Novascotia.

The Cargo of the Trusty, from India is to be sold at Auction on the 12th of the next month. We are not sanguine that the Adventurers in this new undertaking will derive profit from it in the present instance, but we are encouraged to hope that they will not experience any loss. With the knowledge they have now obtained of the wants and resources of the places visited by the Trusty, arrangements for further commercial intercourse with them can be made without difficulty, and with more certain prospects of success. The Trusty, it will be recollected is a private trader to the East Indies built by a company of Merchants here.

A public sale of the Cargo of the Trusty, from Calcutta, will take place on Wednesday, the 12th July next, at Collins' Wharf. The cargo consists of the following Articles:—

Sugar, Rice, Indigo, Salt Petre, Ginger, Pepper, Cloves, Nutmegs, Cassia, Curry Powder, Red Saunders Wood, Soap, Drugs of various descriptions, Sugar Candy, Gums, Rottans, Goats Skins, Salted Hides, Coir Rope, Canvas, Twine, Hemp, Rugs, Paper, Salempores, Baftas, Gorrahs, Checks, Seersuckers, Palempores, and various other descriptions of Bengal Cotton Goods, Bandannas, or Choppa Romauls, Black and Check'd Silk Handkerchiefs, Nankins, Crapes, Sarsnets, Mull Muslins, also a few hhds. and qr. casks, old London particular Madeira Wine, which has had the benefit of the voyage to Calcutta.

MIRAMICHI, (N. B.) June 26, 1826.

Fires of great magnitude have been burning on the North and South-West branches of this River, all last week, and although they have been very remote from our settlement, the smoke has been so dense at times, as nearly to prevent our seeing the river, on one occasion, we were particularly struck with the strong resemblance which the River bore to its appearance the day preceding our great calamity in October last, and we doubt not but many persons imagined there was cause to dread a similar result.

In the North West, we understand, the fires have been greatest in the vicinity of the little Sevogle, were many excellent groves of timber were untouched by the axe of the Lumberer. In the South West, the forests nearly all the way from Cain's River to the Portage, we have reason to apprehend, have been destroyed.

The shipping are leaving the river very fast; another week or ten days will leave but few late arrivals, and we are happy to find that there will be a sufficiency of Timber for the usual fall fleet, but we can scarcely expect our average number of vessels to arrive, unless the times assume a more promising aspect at home; the present prices of timber can never pay the importer, even at the low freights which are given.

ST. JOHN, (N. B.) June 27.

By the arrival of the Steam Boat last evening from Fredericton, we learn that great fears were entertained on Sunday last, that another alarming Fire would take place in that town, the Woods in that vicinity, in consequence of the dryness of the Season, being all on fire, and the wind blowing directly on the town, whole leaves on fire and other embers fell in divers places. The firemen were all on the alert, and the Engines taken out, and most of the teams employed in supplying the town with water; but on Sunday morning a shower of Rain fell, which has for the present calmed their apprehensions.

PRINCE EDWARDS' ISLAND, June 15..

Quit Rents.—We learn from good authority that it is the intention of His Majesty's Government to insist on all arrears of Quit Rent due in this Island since 1816, to the present year, being paid up. Land will be received in payment at the rate of five shillings sterling an acre, from such as prefer that mode to paying in money.

EXCHANGE AT NEW-YORK.

Bills on London, 60 days	10 11 prem.

YORK, U. C. SATURDAY, JULY 29, 1826.

The Speech delivered in His Majesty's name, by the Lords Commissioners, prorouging the Imperial Parliament on 31st May, will be found in this days paper. His Majesty's Proclamation, dissolving the Parliament, is contained in the London Gazette of 3rd June, and the Writs for a new Election are made returnable on 26th July. Severe contests were expected to take place between the Candidates in some parts of the Kingdom.

The Election of Sixteen Representative Peers for Scotland was to take place on 13th June at Holyrood House.

The late English papers afford no news of any importance from the Continent—nothing authentic is heard of the Greek cause.

The account of a renewal of Hostilities, between the British and Burmese Armies is confirmed, though from a totally different cause, from that which was stated. That any part of the British Army could have been ignorant, that a Treaty of Peace had been proposed, and of the measures which had been taken in consequence thereof, appeared incredible, and was sufficient to have induced any person, at all acquainted with British discipline, to give but little credit to the reports which were in circulation, that three British Regiments had been annihilated. Major General Campbell's Despatch of the 20th Jan. from the Camp at Patanagoh which will be found in another column of our paper, gives a particular detail of the occurrences which led to the attack and capture of the entrenched City of Meloon on the morning of 18 Jan'y. The Duplicity of the Burmese has by this event received a severe check, and it is to be hoped that after the example they have received, that the enemy they have to deal with, is one, who is not to be imposed upon or trifled with, their future professions will be more strictly regarded, and that, Peace concluded in India, may shortly be announced. The British Army has undergone severe trials in this war, and a speedy termination of it, for the sake of our brave Soldiers, is much to be desired.

The new Steam Boat NIAGARA, (built at Prescott) John Mosier Captain, arrived here, on Monday last 24th inst. She proceeded the same day to Niagara, and returned on Tuesday afternoon, with a number of American Ladies and Gentlemen, making the "Northern Tour." This arrangement of visiting York twice on the route round the Lake will be continued we hope, as the number of persons travelling at this season of the year, having an opportunity of seeing York, will tend to enliven the Town. The Niagara is a handsome and well built Boat, with a powerful engine, and most excellent accommodations for Travellers.

The Wheat Harvest has commenced in the Home District, and generally we believe, to the West of York. It promises to be abundant, and the weather is extremely favourable for the Husbandman. The Hay Crops are secured, and have afforded a plentiful supply.

It is stated that all difficulties have been adjusted with the Canada Land Company—that they forego the purchase of any of the Clergy Reserves, and are to have a Tract of Land in the London District. If this report should be correct we may hope to see that fertile part of the country, acquiring a large accession to its population. If the Company pursues active measures, to bring their Land into immediate sale, we should think that part of their Capital would be judiciously applied, in taking Stock in the Welland Canal, which would afford their settlers an easy access to market with their produce, besides enhancing the value of their own remaining Lands. The London District is a remarkably fine portion of Country—well timbered, and watered, and worthy the attention of persons wishing to purchase.

The Hon. Chief Justice Campbell, and the Hon. J. B Macaulay, as Counsel for the Crown in the absence of the Solicitor General, on the Eastern Circuit—and His Honor Mr. Justice Sherwood, on the Western Circuit, left Town this week.

The Attorney General, proceeded to Niagara by land, on Wednesday.

The Editor of the Ex-Quebec Gazette, in a note on an article on "The Press in the Canadas," is pleased to make the following courteous remarks,

"In point of personality and abuse the Advocate might rank with several numbers of the newspapers published with the Government Gazette of Upper-Canada, with the Kingston Chronicle, the Montreal Gazette now published by authority, and successor in some respects to the Montreal Herald, and with not a few articles at various times in the Quebec Mercury. The aggression in personality and abuse was certainly on the part of the Presses, whose opinions generally happen to coincide with the colonial administrations; and it is worthy of remark that two of these papers (the Kingston Chronicle and the paper published by authority at Montreal) have almost openly approved of this foul aggression in violence and contempt of the Law."

In this delectable paragraph, "the newspaper published with the Government Gazette of Upper Canada," is certainly placed in a goodly company —but as an "aggressor in personality and abuse." If the Ex-Gazette means this complimentary language to apply to us, we think we can safely say he has ventured to make an assertion, which he is incapable of supporting with any thing like proof—It is but a short time, as this our ninth number only, will sufficiently evidence, since we commenced our Editorial labours, and we defy the Ex-Gazette, to point out a single instance, in which we have been the aggressor, in "personality and abuse." In our Editorial capacity, we have offered, and shall fearlessly continue to offer, our remarks on public matters, but a due sense of decorum, as well as respect for our readers, and ourselves, will always restrain us we hope, from making use of such personality and abuse, as is alluded to by the Ex-Gazette. We shall at all times, to the best of our ability, endeavour to gratify our patrons, with public information, and by offering such remarks, as may appear necessary; but we conceive, we should offer them an insult, if we even attempted to vitiate their tastes, by converting the liberty, with which we stand invested, as a Public Journalist, into licentiousness, by ranking ourselves, with the retailers of private scandal, and with whom, the Ex-Gazette would place us, if he means his noted remarks to apply to the paper, at present under our management.

We therefore publicly call upon him, distinctly to state, whether he means the assertions he has made, to apply to us or not—and if he does, to shew in which of our nine numbers he can find an instance, to support such assertion. If he means them not to apply to us, let him candidly say so, and not attempt by a shuffling conduct, to make an impression on the minds of the public, that the present "Newspaper published with the Government Gazette of Upper Canada," is guilty of personality and abuse, and that of the most worthless kind. If he means them, not to apply to a former "newspaper" let him promptly say so—Our other of these papers he must mean—to say that he means both, would be a pitiful subterfuge, and equally cruel and unjust towards a person, who has not now the same opportunity of repelling such assertions, as if they had been made at another time.—If he refuses to do us the simple act of justice, which we here call upon him for, we shall be content, to leave it to the determination of the publ c, to whom the charge of "personality and abuse," most properly att ches itself—to us—or to the Editor of the Ex-Gazette.

The Quebec Mercury, in noticing the article of the Ex-Quebec Gazette, on "The Press in the Canadas," contains the following remarks:

"The conduct of the Lieutenant Governor of Upper Canada upon this unpleasant occasion has been decided and strictly impartial, and has not given a shadow of foundation for the remarks, in which the Gazette indulges, on the abuse or power in the Colonies. Neither is the Gazette more fortunate in its assertion, that a disposition to suppress an independent press, has been manifested by the Executive in the Canadas. The solitary instance he adduces in which the government the interfere, and break up a seditious establishment, forms an exception, but in no degree warrants the charge he has brought forward. However arbitrary the suppression of the press in Lower Canada, in 1810, may be deemed to have been, still it had the sanction of the law in its favour, if it had not, why was not redress sought where it might, as it has in similar instances, have been obtained? And that it could have been obtained, the old Gazette is well aware, for it says that "it would be holding a very erroneous opinion of the British Government, and rejecting the evidence of facts to believe that such conduct, (an abuse of power by Colonial Governors,) can long be veiled or overlooked."

As the suppression of the Canadian in 1810, has been brought forward on this occasion, we have looked back to the files of the Old Gazette, for an authentic account of that transaction, expecting from the sentiments expressed in the Editorial article, we have given, to have found some expression of abhorrence, at a measure it now deems so hostile to the best liberties of the subject. We were disappointed—that singularly independent journal (which we believe is still held by the same proprietor who owned it at the period referred to, and who no doubt would not then have allowed the whisperings of self interest, any more than he would at the present time, to silence or deter him from discharging so important a part of a patriots duty, as that of countroling the illegal exercises of arbitrary power,) furnishes only the following meagre statement:

"On Saturday afternoon the printer of the Canadian Mr Charles Lefraneois, was arrested and committed to Gaol under a warrant of the Executive Council, on a charge of Treasonable practices."—(See Quebec Gazette, Thursday 22d March, 1810.) But neither in that nor in any after number, of the same year, do we find any expression of doubt as to the legality of the measures then pursued. We did however find very many numerously signed addresses, thanking His Excellency the Governor in Chief for the energetic and effectual means he had adopted for the preservation of His Majesty's Government in this Colony; and we gather also from some communications in the same Quebec Gazette, that the Proclamation of the Governor in Chief, which is styled an "affecting production," was ably expounded, and its views zealously seconded by the Catholic Bishop, Monseigneur Plessis, and the majority of the parochial Catholic Clergy, whose efforts "in many places had a powerful effect upon the good honest minded inhabitants, and brought many to a sense of that duty, which they had lost by the folsehoods of intriguing men." How then the suppressing an inflamatory and seditious paper, an act, which if the Quebec Gazette of 1810 is to be believed, called forth congratulatory addresses signed by very numbers of the inhabitants, which was eulogized by the Clergy, and which passed without any comment of disapprobation, from that immaculate model of political integrity, the Quebec Gazette, now so materially changed in its character as to be stigmatized by the same paper, under the same proprietor as an act against law; or are we to believe the assertions of the Quebec Gazette in 1826, in opposition to the facts it stated in 1810. We confess we are at a loss to reconcile these contradictions.

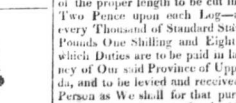
GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors, of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province; to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on Wednesday the Fifth day of July next, to be Commenced, Held, Called, and Elected, and to every of you



GREETING

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Twentieth day of May last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the Fifth day of July next, at which time, at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear.

NOW KNOW YE, that we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents enjoining you and each of you that on Monday the Fourteenth day of August now next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused those our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding our Forces therein, at York, this Twenty-seventh day of June in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-six, and in the Seventh Year of our Reign. UPPER CANADA.

P. MAITLAND,

Lieut. Governor.

GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To all to whom these Presents shall come

GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the parts of this Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. We have thought fit to order and direct, and We do hereby order and direct that, until Our pleasure herein shall be further made known, it shall and may be lawful for all Our Subjects inhabiting Our Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada, freely to enter into Our Woods and Forests in such parts of Our said Province of Upper Canada, situate along the Banks of the River Ottawa, or upon the Banks of the Waters running into the said River and within a convenient distance from the same, as shall not have been Surveyed and divided into Concessions and Lots, and to Cut and carry away such Oak and Pine Timber as may be fit for the purposes of Exportation.

Provided always, nevertheless, That in consideration of the authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties herein-after specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Red Pine Timber, Four Pounds Three Shillings and Four Pence, being at the rate of One Penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Yellow Pine Timber, Two Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence, being at the rate of One Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commission under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places upon the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointed as aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has attained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons, properly authorized by or under Our Licence granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS Our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this third day of May in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-Six, and in the Seventh Year of Our Reign. No. 9 1. f.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government have thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepard in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s. 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hunded Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant. It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessarry expenditure of Capital on the Lands alreaday Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprised in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

POETRY.

HOME.

The heart that feels as I have felt
When forced from kindred hearts to sever;
The idol Home, where youth has dwelt,
To leave—and leave, perhaps for ever:
Although no sigh may tell its woe,
Will throb with sorrow's deepest throe.

A Father's burning hand I wrung;
I kiss'd a Mother's pallid cheek,
But not a word escaped my tongue—
I felt too much—too much to speak:
That parting hour—that sad adieu,
Worlds would not tempt me to renew

My foot is on a foreign strand;
But let me wander where I will,
Can ne'er forget my native land;
My heart is with my kindred still:
My dreams by night, my thoughts by day,
Are of the loved ones far away.

SINCE O'ER THY FOOT-STOOL.

Since o'er thy foot-stool here below
Such bounteous gems are strown,
Oh! what magnificence must glow,
My God, about thy throne!
Be brilliant here these drops of light!
There the full ocean rolls how bright!

If night's blue curtain of the sky,
Studded with diamond stars investight—
Hung, like some royal canopy,
With glitt'ring diamonds fraught—
Be, LORD, thy temple's outer veil,
What glory round the shrine must dwell!

The dazzling sun, at noon-tide hour,
Forth from his flaming vase,
Flinging o'er earth the golden show'r,
'Till vale and mountain blaze,
But shows, oh LORD, one beam of thine—
What then, the day where THOU dost shine!

Alas! how shall these dim eyes, endure
That sun of living rays;
Or, how my spirit, so impure,
Gaze on its brightness pure!
Assist, oh LORD, assist my sight,
And robe me for that world of Light!
(Phil. Recorder.)

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE VETERAN'S REWARD.

If the French Revolution has presented to us horrors till then unexampled, it must be owned also to have furnished us with some striking traits of humanity and magnanimity. Many persons of both parties voluntarily risked their lives to preserve those of people, whom the unhappy state of the times compelled them to regard as enemies; and these acts of generous devotion were not uncommon even among the military, who, by their profession and the horrors they witnessed, might be supposed less susceptible than others of the soft feelings of compassion.

During the civil war, in a skirmish that had taken place between the Republicans and the Chouans, several of the latter were made prisoners. When the troop halted to take some refreshment, they stopped in a plain near a spring, and forming a circle, placed the prisoners in the midst of it. Their Captain, a very young man, who had but lately attained the command, seated himself at some distance upon the trunk of a tree, and taking some provisions from his knapsack, began to refresh himself. He perceived one of the prisoners speak to his lieutenant, and directly afterwards advance towards him. Delmont remarked as this unfortunate man drew near, that he had no other clothing than his shirt and trowsers, which were in rags and covered with blood, and that a linen bandage, also stained with blood, covered his forehead and his left eye.

The sight of so much misery sensibly touched the heart of the young officer; and he was still more moved when the young prisoner said to him, "M. le Commandant, I have saved the miniature of my wife: will you, when I shall be no more, have the charity to remit it to my mother, Madame Duplessis, at Lamballe? My wife and children reside with her." Tom utter'd moved to reply to this touching request, Delmont gazed upon him in silence; and he added in a tone of more pressing entreaty, "In the name of heaven no not refuse me! If you do, they must always suffer from their ignorance of my fate, for it is my intention to conceal my name from the court-martial. Thus they will have no means of ascertaining what has become of me; but if they receive the portait they will be certain that I would have parted with it only at the hour of death."

Delmont was still silent: in fact his mind was occupied between the desire of saving the prisoner and the difficulty, or rather the impossibility, which he found of doing it. Duplessis, believing that he had no intention to grant his request, became still more urgent: "In the name of God! in the name of all that is dear to you ——" "Say no more," cried the other abruptly, "the situation is a very disagreeable one, but still I will not refuse it." Taking the miniature as he spoke, he put it into his pocket; and added, "Will you eat a mouthful of something, and take a drop of brandy? it will refresh you."

"I cannot swallow," replied Duplessis: "a fever consumes me, and I am impatient to reach our destination, that I may escape from my misery." These words made Delmont shudder. He looked earnestly in the face of the speaker, and distinguished as it was with dust, sweat, and blood, there was something in the features so noble and touching, that he could not help resolving to risk every thing in order to save him. "Listen to me attentively," cried he: "I will give you a chance, which, if well managed, may preserve your life. Say that you came to tell me you could not continue to march, and I refused you any assistance. Go back to the same officer who allowed you to come and speak to me, and try to act so that he may solicit me to leave you behind with an escort, to wait for a voiture de reguestation. I will take care that no one shall kill guard you shall be drunkards; make them drunk, recover your energy and escape."

"Ah, my God! if it were possible! But you forgot I must have money to give them, and I have not a single sous."—"And unfortunately I have very little, only four assignats of five francs each; you will find them under this piece of meat," continued he, wrapping part of his provisions in paper; "be sure you are not seen in taking them out: go, and God speed you!"

Duplessis turned away without speaking; but the tears that started to his eyes were more eloquent than words. He followed Delmont's directions so successfully, that in a few moments afterwards the lieutenant came to tell the Captain, that the prisoner to whom he had given provisions, could not eat; and that a burning fever rendered him incapable of marching. Delmont replied with feigned harshness, that if the man could not go on it was better to shoot him at once.

"What!" cried the other indignantly, "shoot a man before we know whether he will be pronounced guilty or innocent by the court-martial! You cannot seriously mean it Captain."

"Pray then what would you have me to do with him? for you know I cannot remain here to watch him. Is it my business to prevent, and I cannot diminish the force of our troop, already too small for a part of the country like this, in order to leave an escort with this man."

"But look at the state in which he is. Three men would be quite sufficient to guard him, till we can get a voiture de reguestion, which no doubt we shall find to-morrow; and certainly, Captain, you will not say that you cannot spare three men?"

"Well," replied the other with feigned impatience, "you shall have it your way: but remember I tell you you are bringing me into a scrape. However, since you will not have it so, tell Corporal Gaillard and La Porte and Desmoulins to remain with him: we must now set out." The lieutenant did not wait for another order; he made the men carry the prisoner, who appeared to be dying, into a hut. Delmont recommended them to keep a watchful eye over him, for they would be answerable for him if he escaped; and he set forward.

As Delmont had foreseen, the General refused to approve his report, and ordered him to go himself the next day to present it to the commissary of the Convention. Before he waited upon the commissary, the three soldiers arrived without the prisoner. The corporal declared, that notwithstanding his appearance of illness, he had tried to escape in the night by a window, but the men being upon the alert, had all three fired at once; he fell dead upon the spot and they buried him there.

This tale was told so naturally, that Delmont could not even entertain a doubt of its truth: it cost him a great deal to dissemble the pang it gave him; but he dared not to manifest any regret, and talking with him his lieutenant and the three soldiers he went to make his report to the commissary, who, after hearing all the depositions, told him very roughly, that he had done very wrong to expose three brave soldiers of the republic only to convey a sick rebel more easily to be shot; that, however, as they had done their duty by shooting him as he attempted to escape, and had returned safely, the affair should be passed over, but that he might be certain, if such a thing occurred again, his conduct should be sharply inquired into.

The commissary finished with giving him a fresh order to march with his detachment: saying at the same time, "I believe you will be commanded, before your departure, to shoot the men whom you have brought with you. I am waiting for the order; and as soon as I get it, I will transmit it to you." My readers will believe that this was enough to quicken the motions of Delmont; in ten minutes he marched out with his detachment, without beat of drum, and they thus escaped the horrible office of executioners.

Delmont's detachment was ordered to march to ——: while on the road, he recollected the commission of the unfortunate Duplessis; and as he had to halt at Lamballe, he determined to fulfil it, though he felt an unspeakable reluctance to be the bearer of such news to a widowed mother.

When he presented himself at the house of Madame Duplessis, the servant who opened the door, supposing he was billeted upon them, said to him, "Citizen, my mistress cannot lodge you in her house; but she has arranged with the innkeeper over the way to receive you in her stead."

"It is not a lodging I want; I must speak to your mistress in private."

The poor girl turned as pale as death, and went with a look of terror to inform her mistress. Returning in a moment, she led Delmont into an upartment, where he found an elderly lady of very prepossessing appearance, and a beautiful little girl of four or five years old at her side. "I would wish my daughter to be present at our conversation, sir," said she: "go, Pauline, and seek your mamma."

Delmont would have stopped the child, but she disappeared in a moment; and before he could determine how to begin a beautiful young woman entered. She looked at him with great emotion: and the old lady then said, "This is my daughter. You have a commission for us, have you not?"—"Alas! yes, a sorrowful one."

"Ah! not so, best of friends, of benefactors—he is saved! Yes," cried the mother in a transport of gratitude, "I owe you my son's life. Agatha, embrace the preserver of your brother."

Both embraced him with tears of joy. The lovely Agatha brought her infant boy and her little girl, that they also might caress him to whom they owed a father's life. Ah! how delicious were those caresses to Delmont! never in his life had he experienced such pure, such heartfelt pleasure.

"But how is this possible?" said he at last; "did they not fire? they told me they had killed and buried him."—"My dear friend, they were so intoxicated that they would not have been able to kill a fly. God be praised he is now in safety and is recovering very fast. Ah! how I wish that you could see him! but that must not be. But now tell us, are you coming to stay at Lamballe?"—"No, I can only stop for to-night."—"Well, at least, for to-night you will stop with us;" and Agatha hastened to get an apartment for her friend.

We may easily believe he did not refuse their hospitality. They told him their whole situation without reserve. Duplessis had determined to emigrate with his wife and children; his mother resolved to remain behind, in order to preserve the family property. "I shall not repay your twenty francs," said Agatha to him, "nor will I take back my portrait: my husband has desired, that if ever I was fortunate enough to see you, I should tell you to keep it, and to beg you to regard it as that of a sister."

The next morning Delmont was forced to tear himself from this amiable and grateful family, whom he saw no more. Twenty years passed away, and found Delmont, at the time of the restoration, a disbanded officer, who lived with a widowed sister upon the produce of a little farm, which he cultivated with his own hands. One evening, an elderly man, of gentlemanly appearance, dismounted at the veteran's gate, and throwing himself into his arms, exclaimed, "God be praised, my dear preserver, that I am allowed to thank you once at least before I die!" It was Duplessis returned, so long an absence, to end his days in his native country. He had entered into mercantile speculations in England, had been fortunate, and was come back rich. I cannot congratulated him heartily and sincerely.

"And you, my dear Delmont, how is it that you are not more fortunate?"

"My friend, I do not complain; I have quitted the service with clean hands and a clear conscience:"—"And without promotion!"—"I have not sought it."—"No, but you have well deserved it: I am not ignorant of the wounds you have received in your various campaigns."—"I only done my duty."

Upon this point however the friends could not agree; but Duplessis soon dropped the subject, to talk with his friend upon his present situation. He found that he should soon be gratified to quit the farm he occupied, as it was about to be sold; he did not complain, but it was evident that he felt great reluctance to leave it.

"And what price," said Duplessis to him one day, when they were talking on this subject, "does the owner demand for it?"—"Twenty-three thousand francs (nearly one thousand pounds."") "That's lucky; for it is exactly the sum you have in Lafitte's hands."—"I you joke."—"No, indeed, I never was more serious: and so you will find if you draw upon him to that amount."—"But can you think that I shall rob you?"—"Not at all: the money is yours: it is the accumulated interest of your twenty francs."—"Impossible."

"I will convince you it is very possible and very true. It is my wife's plan, and this is the manner in which she has executed it. As soon as we were settled in England, she laid out your twenty francs in materials for embroidery and artificial flowers. She worked at these in leisure hours, sold them to advantage, purchased materials for more, and constantly gave me, every six months, the profits of her work, to place in the public funds. We lived retired; and she had consequently much leisure, and worked incessantly. During more than twenty years, this fund, at first so small, has been constantly increasing, till it has become the means of rendering your old age easy. But it is not enough that you are safe and the days and virtuous man should be easy; he ought to receive a public recompense for his services, and I bring you one. Means have been found to represent to the King, that your career has not been less distinguished by humanity than by valour; and he shows his sense of your services by presenting you with the cross of St. Louis, and the rank of half-pay of chef-de-bataillon.

The veteran threw himself into the arms of his friend. It would be difficult to say which was most affected. He still lives in the enjoyment of his noble reward of his humanity—need it be said that he makes a worthy use of it.

THE BOUNDARY BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND NEW-BRUNSWICK.

As this is one of the several important subjects now under discussion between Great Britain and the United States; and as it is, perhaps, the most important of all those topics from the lawless violence and outrage committed on the frontier last year, and other causes—we are induced to pay the subject some attention.

It is of course generally known that the Commissioners were appointed under the treaty of Ghent to ascertain and establish the boundaries between the British North American possessions and the United States, in conformity to the principles, and to the true intent and meaning of the treaty of 1783; and that these commissioners have been many years engaged in the laborious discharge of their duties. We shall confine ourselves to that commission acting under the 5th article of Ghent, and to that part of the boundary between the state of Main and the province of New-Brunswick.

The subject will be better understood by copying the 2d article of the treaty of 1783, which the treaty of Ghent intends to carry into effect. It is as follows:—

"And that all disputes which might arise in future, on the subject of the boundaries of the United ure, as the subject of the boundaries of the United States, may be prevented, it is hereby agreed and declared that the following are and shall be their boundaries, viz: From the north-west angle of Nova Scotia, viz: that angle which formed by a line drawn due north from the source of St. Croix river to the highlands, along the said highlands, which divided those rivers that empty themselves into the river St. Lawrence, from those which fall into the Atlantic Ocean, to the north-westernmost head of Connecticut river,' &c.

The British and American Commissioners had no difficulty in ascertaining the source of St. Croix river, nor in running a line due north as far as Mars Hill, but they differ essentially as the position of the highlands meant by the treaty, and which difference involves a territory of 10,000 square miles, together with the Madawaska and square miles, together with the Madawaska and some other settlements, hitherto supposed to be on the British side.

It is a fact that there are no very prominent highlands through the whole of this district of the country, but a broken, connected link of mountains be mont. The chain of mountains laid down in most of American maps, as designating the boundary line, does not exist; the compilers of those maps having made geography subservient to the treaty—not the treaty to geography. But there are highlands—that is to say, land sufficiently elevated to divide rivers flowing in opposite directions—between the sources of the two rivers the two parties have objectively affixed their lines of demarkation as described on the map; and the point at issue is, which were intended by the negociators of 1783. This point being ascertained, the whole matter is settled from the Atlantic ocean to the head waters of the Connecticut river, where there is a small piece of territory (about 200 square miles) in dispute, which neither party is very anxious about, and could be easily settled to quit the farm he occupied, as it was about to be sold; he did not complain, but it was evident that he felt great reluctance to leave it.

"And what price," said Duplessis to him one day, when they were talking on this subject, "does the owner demand for it?"—"Twenty-three thousand francs (nearly one thousand pounds."") THE BOUNDARY BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND NEW-BRUNSWICK.

As this is one of the several important subjects now under discussion between Great Britain and the United States; and as it is, perhaps, the most important of all those topics from the lawless violence and outrage committed on the frontier last year, and other causes—we are induced to pay the subject some attention.

It is of course generally known that the Commissioners were appointed under the treaty of Ghent to ascertain and establish the boundaries between the British North American possessions and the United States, in conformity to the principles, and to the true intent and meaning of the treaty of 1783; and that these commissioners have been many years engaged in the laborious discharge of their duties. We shall confine ourselves to that commission acting under the 5th article of Ghent, and to that part of the boundary between the state of Main and the province of New-Brunswick.

The subject will be better understood by copying the 2d article of the treaty of 1783, which the treaty of Ghent intends to carry into effect. It is as follows:—

"And that all disputes which might arise in future, on the subject of the boundaries of the United ure, as the subject of the boundaries of the United States, may be prevented, it is hereby agreed and declared that the following are and shall be their boundaries, viz: From the north-west angle of Nova Scotia, viz: that angle which formed by a line drawn due north from the source of St. Croix river to the highlands, along the said highlands, which divided those rivers that empty themselves into the river St. Lawrence, from those which fall into the Atlantic Ocean, to the north-westernmost head of Connecticut river,' &c.

The British and American Commissioners had no difficulty in ascertaining the source of St. Croix river, nor in running a line due north as far as Mars Hill, but they differ essentially as the position of the highlands meant by the treaty, and which difference involves a territory of 10,000 square miles, together with the Madawaska and some other settlements, hitherto supposed to be on the British side.

It is a fact that there are no very prominent highlands through the whole of this district of the country, but a broken, connected link of mountains be mont. The chain of mountains laid down in most of American maps, as designating the boundary line, does not exist; the compilers of those maps having made geography subservient to the treaty—not the treaty to geography. But there are highlands—that is to say, land sufficiently elevated to divide rivers flowing in opposite directions—between the sources of the two rivers way by the missiles of the mob who pelted them out of Shaddon gate. Barnes, the police officer, with a cocked pistol in his hand, said another person, got through the crowd but were glad to escape back. Without accomplishing their object. This victory elated the people, and when a party of the 55th regiment, preceded by a few artillerymen were brought up by the Mayor and Magistrates, they were assailed in the same manner, and after the riot act had been read were ordered to fire in their own defence. This fatal order was unfortunately shot four persons, who were not of the most guilty. Mary Burrell, a young woman of 22 was shot dead as she stood at her own door to Queen street; a boy of 15, named Skinner, was shot through the leg; a man named Robert Noble, who said he was seeking his children in the crowd, received a ball in his breast, and little hopes are entertained of his recovery. The last was a fine girl of 14, who was dreadfully wounded on the head, by a ball, which came through the shutter of the school in which she was sitting, the window having been closed by the mistress, whose name is Wemyss. It is said that about 40 shots were fired before the mob dispersed; but the above were the only casualties. Sir P. Musgrave was rescued and conveyed away by his friends, during the confusion.

A most wanton outrage was committed yesterday afternoon on the premises of Mrs. Conway, in Lord-street. When the procession of Gen. Coyne was going down Lord-street, at the close of the election, a flag of Mr. Huskisson's colour, edged with blue, (the General's colour) was flying from one of the room windows, on which some of the party threw a number of stones and other missiles, which demolished the glass in the whole of the windows.

The Hay harvest has commenced in this neighbourhood, several fields at Woolton, &c. having been cut last week.

Honduras Joint Stock Company.—A meeting of the share holders of this company took place on Monday, at Batson's Coffee-house, Cornhill, London. Mr. Wm. Clarke, the Chairman, stated, that 8910 shares had been issued on the 12th of April, 1825, of which 8025 had been subscribed by the directors before the 15th of July, at a loss to the company of £5200. It also appeared that a shipment of Indigo from Honduras had cost the concern £18,066 and was sold at a profit of only £7472; and that of £46,490, the original capital of the company, not more than £5760 was now available to the shareholders. It was consequently resolved, that the plan of the Honduras Company was an abortive scheme, and that the parties who promoted it should be held responsible for the whole amount of the deposits; that the meeting declined to recognize the accounts and proceedings of the self-elected directors and trustees.

Arctic Land Expedition.—Despatches have been received from Captain Franklin, of the Arctic land expedition, dated Winter quarters, Fort Franklin, on the great Bear Lake September 6. During the summer, three expeditions, under Captain Franklin, Lieutenant Back, and Dr. Richardson, were made preparatory to the great objects to be undertaken next year. The expedition under Captain Franklin went to the mouth of Mackenzie river, which he found to discharge itself into an open sea; there is one island near the coast, called by Capt. F. Garry's Island. From the summit of this island the Captain saw the sea to the northward all clear of ice or islands; to the westward he saw the coast to a great distance, in view of mountains at very lofty mountains, which he calculates were in longitude of 138 deg. west. The expedition would proceed early in the spring on its ulterior objects. The officers and men are all well and in spirits at the favourable circumstances which had hitherto attended their proceedings.

LONDON FASHIONS FOR JUNE.

(From La Belle Assemblee.)

EVENING COSTUME OF URLING'S LACE.—This beautiful specimen of Urling's unrivalled manufacture is worn over a white satin slip. The petticoat of this lace, fine as the threads woven by the fabled Arachne, is of the most superb pattern, it sprigs on a sort of tulle-net ground, of delicate texture. Three flounces of the same material, of a pattern exquisitely rich, ornament the border, and are set on, in slight festoons; over the upper flounce is a design of flowers and foliage, entwined in costly profusion, all in lace work, forming a fine completion of this charming dress. The corsage is of white satin, made to fit close to the shape; the sleeves are short, and are ornamented downwards with double jabots of Urling's lace, placed seperate, but very near each other. The hair is arranged in the newest style of fashion, in bows and curls, and adorned with strings of pearls, richly ornamented combs, and full-blown roses. A necklace of Egyptian pebbles set a l' Antique, in finely wrought gold, encircles the throat, and the ear-pendants are formed of long pear-pearls.

MORNING VISITING DRESS.—A high dress of gros de Naples, of a beautiful cerulean-blue; the border of the skirt ornamented with three flounces, pointed at the edges, and there finished by a delicate embroidery in chenille, and bound with a narrow rouleau. The body is quite plain and surmounted at the throat by a very full ruff of stiffened gauze with blond edging. A broad sash, the same colour as the dress, confines the waist, with two long ends, directly in front, the ends handsomely fringed. The sleeves sit almost close to the arm, and have mancherons of quite a novel kind; they are loose, but are made stiff and pointed, with one point fastened down with a small rosette; at the wrists the sleeves are elegantly fluted; the flutings are lengthwise and wadded, which gives to them a richly embossed appearance. A hat of white chip is trimmed with pink and canary yellow ribbons entwined; the strings twisted in the same manner, and fastening to the sash with a rozette composed of each colour; the hat is ornamented with a simple bow of two ribbons, on the elevated side, under the brim—for it is placed very much on one side over the left ear; each side of the crown is ornamented with light bouquets of corn-flowers. The shoes are of black satin and the gloves of yellow kid.

(From Ackermann's Repository of Arts, &c.)

DINNER DRESS.—Dress of Pomona green gros de Naples; the corsage made moderately high, and slightly full in back and front, and ornamented with folds of shaded grenadine, which diverge from a cameo in the centre of the crepe lisse tucker, pass under the bust, and meet in a bow behind. The sleeves are short and rather full, with sleeves en gigot in white crepe lisse over them, which are confined at the wrist with tartan bead bracelets, fastened by a cameo. The skirt has two rows of fluted lozenges in shaded grenadine; the longitudinal points connected with a broad flat band of gold coloured grenadine; beneath is a broad wadded hem or rouleau. The head dress is very large, and composed of shaded beregе or grenadine, with a profusion of white ostrich feathers on the left side. The hair parted in front and arranged in large curls. Gold earrings a la Flamande; gold chain and necklace. Circular reticule of ponceau velvet, edged with gold, and trimmed with British lace; strings of ponceau and white satin. Short white gloves, white satin shoes, painted gauze fan.

BALL DRESS.—White tulle dress worn over a "Haiti blue" satin slip; the corsage high across the bust, very full, and set in a band; the sleeves short and full, with a wreath of China roses down the centre, from the shoulder to the band round the arm. The skirt is decorated with cornucopias of blue and white satin, and a wreath of flowers, emanating from the top of each, falls gracefully, and unites with the point of the next cornucopia; a full puffing of tulle, over a rouleau of blue satin, terminates the dress. Ceinture of Haiti blue; the ends long, the one of white the other of blue satin ribbon, entwined, and brought across the opposite side, just above the border, and fastened with a bow and end of each. Head dress of blue gauze lisse; a bow on the right side, continued, by a broad plait of hair, which passes behind a small plait of rows, placed rather forward on the head; the hair in large curls. Pagoda ear rings of highly wrought gold; necklace and bracelets of the same; the latter outside the gloves, which are long and of white kid. Grenadine scarf, white satin shoes.

RENEWAL OF THE WAR WITH THE BURMESE.

TO GEORGE SWINTON, Esq.

Secretary to Government Secret and Political Department, &c. &c. &c.

FORT WILLIAM.

SIR—My despatch of the 31st ultimo, brought the operations of the army under my command down to that date, and expressed my sanguine expectations, that it would prove the last communication, which I should have to address to you relative to the war in this country.

These hopes have been unfortunately frustrated by the policy of a court apparently destitute alike of every principal of honour and good faith.

The signature of a treaty of peace, by the British and Burman commissoner, on the 3d instant, and the pledge on the part of the latter, that the same would be ratified by the king of Ava, within 15 days from that date, and some specific articles, as therein stated, carried into effect within the same period, has already been brought to the knowledge of the right honourable the Governor General in Council by the proceedings of the British Commissioners, recorded in their despatches, under date the 3d instant. All occurrences of a purely political nature since then, will now, in like manner, be furnished by the same authority. I shall, therefore, proceed to the detail of Military events resulting therefrom.

On the 18th, the day appointed for the return of the ratified treaty, &c. the commissioners finding that instead of a fulfillment of this promise, a further delay of six or seven days was solicited, under such equivocal circumstances, as left no doubt that a total want of faith guided their councils, it was definitively declared that their request could not be complied with, and a secret article proposed to them in which it was stipulated (together with the performance of others already agreed to) that they should evacuate the fortified and entrenched city of Melloon by sun-rise on the morning of the 20th: on their positive rejection of this proposition, they were told that after 12 o,clock that very night, (the 18th) hostilities would re-commence.—Deeming it of the utmost importance that no time should be lost in punishing duplicity of so flagrant a character, I ordered the construction of batteries and the landing of heavy ordnance from the flotilla, to commence immediately after midnight, and requisite arrangement to be made for an early attack upon Melloon. His lordship in council will be enabled to appreciate the zeal and exertion with which my orders were carried into effect under the direction of Lieutenant Colonel Hopkins, commanding the artillery, and Lieutenant Underwood, the chief engineer,(aided by that indefatigable corps the First Battalion of Madras Pioneers, udder the command of Captain Crowe) when I state that by 10 o'clock the next morning I had eight and twenty pieces of ordnance in battery, on points presenting a front of more than a mile on the eastern bank of the Irrawaddy, which corresponded with the extent of the enemy's line of defence on the opposite shore. I yet cherished hopes that the formidable appearance of our preparations would have induced them to make some further communications in the morning, instead of again risking the renewal of hostilities with troops of whose decided superiority they had so recently received the most convincing and humiliating proofs. In this I was disappointed. At day light I perceived that the preceeding night had been devoted by them to preparations equally laborious, and the construction of extensive and well planned works, with a view to the resistance on which they resolved.

At eleven o'clock A. M. (the 19th) I ordered our batteries and rockets to open their fire on the enemy's position; it was gallantly kept up, and with such precision of practice as to reflect the highest credit on this branch of the service.

During this period the troops intended for the assault were embarking in the boats of His Majesty's ships, and the flotilla at a point above our encampment at Patanagoh under the superintendence and direction of Captain Chads, of His Majesty's ship Alligator, Senior Naval Officer, on whom this charge devolved in the absence of His Excellency Commodore Sir James Brisbane, in consequence of extreme indisposition.

About one P. M. the desired impression having been produced by the cannonade, and every thing reported ready, I directed the brigade under Lieuteuant Colonel Sale, consisting of his Majesty's 13th and 38th regiments to drop down the river, and assault the main face of the enemy's position, near its south eastern angle, and Brigadier General Cotton, with the flank companies of his Majesty's 47th and 87th regiments, and his Majesty's 89th regiment, under Lieutenant Colonel Hunter Blair, his Majesty's 41st regiment, and the 18th Madras Native Infantry, under Lieutenant Colonel Godwin, and the 28th Madras Native Infantry, under Lieutenant Colonel Parlby, to cross above Melloon, and after carrying some outworks, to attack the northern face of the principal work.

Although the whole of the boats pushed off together from the left bank, the strength of the current, and a strong breeze from the north, carried Lieut. Colonel Sale's Brigade to the given point of attack, before the other columns (notwithstanding every exertion) could possibly reach the opposite shore; Lieut. Colonel Sale was unfortunately wounded in his boat, but the corps of his brigade having landed and formed with admirable regularity, under the command of Major Frith, of his Majesty's 38th regiment, rushed on to the assault with their usual intrepidity, and were in a short time complete masters of a work which, although certainly not so well chosen in point of position as others we have met with, yet had been rendered most formidable by labour and art, and at the same time such as to afford the enemy a presumptive assurance of security in their possession of it. This is fully evinced by the circumstance of the chief, with Memiaboo at their head, contrary to the Burmese custom in all such cases having remained within their defences till they saw the troops crossin to the assault.

When Brigadier General Cotton saw that the works were carried, by the 13th and 38th Regiments, he very judiciously ordered the Brigade under Lieut. Colonel Hunter Blair, to cut in upon the Enemy's Line of Retreat which was done accordingly, and with much effect.

Thus was accomplished in the course of a few hours from the recommencement of hostilities, forced upon us by perfidy and duplicity, a chastisement as exemplary as it was merited. Their loss in killed and wounded has been severe, and the accompanying Returns of Captured Ordnance, Ordnance Stores, Arms, and Ammunition, will sufficiently demonstrate how seriously they have suffered in these particulars; a species of disaster which their Government will, doubtless, more deeply deplore, than the sacrifice of lives, or the shame of defeat. Specie to the amount of about thirty thousand rupees, was found in Memiaboo's house, and a very ample magazine of grain, together with about seventy horses, have also fallen into our hands. It will prove highly gratifying to his Lordship in Council to learn, that advantages so important have been secured with so small a numerical loss, as is exhibited by the returns of killed and wounded; amongst the wounded I include with particular regret the names of Lieut. Colonel Sale and Major Frith, the latter having succeeded to the command of the column, on the Senior Officer being disabled, received at its head in the moment of success, a spear wound which I fear is of a very serious nature; Major Thornhill of his Majesty's 13th Light Infantry, was the third on whom the accidents of war threw the perilous distinction of leading these troops, and he conducted their movements to the close of the affair, in a style worthy of his predecessors in command.

In behalf of Lieut. Col. Hopkinson, commanding the whole, and of Lieut. Col. Pollock, commanding Bengal Artillery, and Captains Lumsden, Bengal Horse Artillery, and Montgomarie, Madras Artillery commanding the batteries, I have to solicit your recommenation to his Lordship's favourable attention. The Rocket Practice, under Lieut. Blake, of the Bengal Horse Artillery, was in every way admirable; of three hundred and four rockets which were projected during the day, five alone failed of reaching the spot for which they were destined, and uniformly told in the works, or in the ranks of the enemy, with an effect which has clearly established their claim to be considered a most powerful and formidable weapon of war.

The conduct of his Majesty's 13th and 38th regiments during the advance, and their gallantry in the storm, far exceeds all that I can write in their praise. I sincerely hope that I shall not long be deprived of the services of their two brave commanders.

Brigadier General Cotton's arrangements for intercepting the retreat of the enemy, and the movement of Lieut. Col. Hunter Blair to effect the same object, merit my warmest commendations.

To Captain Chads, of the Royal Navy, and every officer and seaman of his Majesty's ships, and the Honourable Company's Flotilla, I am deeply indebted for the able and judicious manner in which the troops were transported to points of attack and so near to a formidable work which they had to assail. I have the honour to enclose Captain Shads' report, together with the return of killed and wounded.

Lieut. Wilson, of his Majesty's 13th Light Infantry, Aid-de-Camp to Brigadier General Cotton, who will have the honour of delivering this despatch, was present during the whole affair, and is well qualified to give any further information which may be required by his Lordship on the subject.

I have &c.

(Signed) A. CAMBELL,
Major General.

CALCUTTA PAPERS.

In perusing a file of Calcutta papers to the 20th February, we find a full confirmation of the late report of the re-commencement of the war between the British and the Burmese. As before stated, the preliminary treaty was signed on the 3d Jan. and fifteen days were allowed for its ratification by the Burmese King, who at the same time, was to send to the British camp all the prisoners he had in possession, and pay five *lacks of rupees as an instalment and earnest of the crore stipulated to be paid as the price of peace. Hostilities were immediately suspended, and a friendly intercourse, games and feats took place between the late enemies. The Burmese negotiators expressed their full confidence that the treaty would be fully ratified, and all the conditions fulfilled in good faith; and it was not till within one or two days of the expiration of the limited time, that the British Commander, Sir Alexander Campbell suspected their duplicity. On the 17th January, the Chief of the Burmese commissioners requested to have the time prolonged for another fortnight This was peremtorily refused by Gen. Campbell, and the Burmese were told, that unless the terms of the treaty were wholly fulfilled before 10 o'clock, on the 19th, the attack of Maloun or (Melloon) would immediately take place. The Burmese having failed to fulfil the treaty, the British General was as good as his word. The cannonade began precisely at 10 o'clock, was continued with great effect, particularly the rocket fire, through the day, and at the close of it, the city was taken by assault, the Burmese leaving 500 dead on the field, 20 pieces of artillery, 120 gingalls (grass-poppers) 1800 stands of muskets, 20 tons of powder, a large quantity of munitions, and the military chest, containing 30,000 rupees. Among the trophies taken was the trunk of the Chief Negotiator, and in it the original preliminary treaty,which had ever been sent to the King to Umerapoora, for ratification. The craft of the negotiator being thus confirmed Sir Archibald immediately sent the treaty after him; and hopes were entertained at Calcutta, that when the King was made acquainted with the terms of it, that peace would ensue. One of the Burmese who was captured, attempted to excuse his Chief, by saying that the minister did not dare to send the treaty to his Master, but had sent the purport of it, in the form of petition, for His Royal approbation. At the last dates, the British were pursuing their march for the capital, and had advanced 12 miles, and it was said that no other negotiation would take place till the arrival of the army at Ummerapoora. The loss of the British was said to be only 14, but a Colonel and a Major were severely wounded, and a Lieutenant slighly.

The Burmese are said to have practised great art during the armistice to cajuole the British with presents and fair words; but they had a Scotchman to deal with. It is added that a reinforcement of 6000 men arrived in Maloun, the night before the attack, and that the King's brother, who led it in, was killed. A squadron of the British navy, under Com. Brisbane, co-operated in the assault, and made great destruction with the capture of the strong fortress of Bhurtpore; and the powerful army under Lord Combermere (30,000 strong, with an immense train of arullery) left disposable to settle other disputes. The war was said to have been undertaken to restore an infant Prince to his throne, held by an Usurper, his cousin. Before the invasion, the Usurper was invited to relinquish his usurpation, and was offered a suitable provision in the company's territories but refused.

☞ The India Gazette extra, of February 3d, contains despatches of his Lordship, giving returns of his losses, and the ordnance captured. It appears by them, that he had in his army, six regiments of cavalry, three regiments of arullery, and sixteen regiments of infantry, mostly naive. The total of the casulties in the attack of the place, was 580—viz.

Killed 103—wounded 466—missing 11. Three captains, Armstrong, Pitman and Brown were killed, and Brig. Gen. Edwards died of his wounds. The field officers wounded, were Brigadier Patton, Lt. Col. Natton, and Major Fuller and Hunter. By the return of the ordnance taken the strength of the city may be estimated:

Brass (one a 78 pounder!)	73
Iron (many of large caliber)	60
Total,	133

In his last despatch, dated Jan. 24, 1826, Lord C. says, since the fall of Bhurtpore, the whole of the fortresses within this Rajah have surrendered to and been occupied by the British arms without opposition. The inhabitants of Bhurtpore are returning, and resuming their avocations; and I am happy to say, the desolation caused by the storm is fast disappearing."

An immense booty was found in the palace of the usurper, estimated at 60 lacks (*$5,500,000.) The expenses of the war, and handsome presents to the army, are to be deducted from this treasure, and the residue, if any, given to the young Rajah, who will have besides an income of 50,000 dollars.

* A lack of rupees is equal to $50,000; and we believe a crore is 100 lacks.

† An pocket piece, and the Usurper's State Palankeen are to be sent to England.

THE BURMAN WAR.

News from the Army.

Our readers will peruse with much pleasure, we have no doubt, the following entertaining abstract from a journal kept by an officer in the Camp at Melloon.

During the cessation of hostilities pending the armistice, the Kee Woongee and Maha Sylwa, frequently came across from Melloon to visit the British Commander-in-chief. On the 15th, there was a horse race in camp; the Maha Sylwa's favorite charger against a horse of Major Jackson's. The Major won the race —the Maha Sylwa's pony as the stakes, became forfeited accordingly, but was not accepted of. This beginning of the sport attracted others to the scene, and various queer looking animals started, and many tumbles occurred. No accident of consequence, however, happened, and both the British and Burmese sportsmen parted at dusk delighted with the day's amusements. There being little or nothing to do, the diversion of shooting was permitted to our officers, who were out in parties from morning to evening, particularly the Madrasees, who evinced a most noble contempt for the heat and the sun. The encampment was surrounded by swamps and jeels, and there were a number of ague cases among the troops; but there was abundance of game as the mess tables of every corps in camp testified. The Maha Sylwa directed some officers to a famous place for wild hog, about five miles inland: but, our correspondent adds, such a mob of people went, that of course they were disappointed in getting good sport, although there is no doubt that the country abounds with them. Plenty of deer had been seen at different encampments; and until very lately it was supposed that there was no jackals in the country, but our troops latterly had annoying proofs to the contrary, and heartily wished the first supposition had been correct. The Bullock beef in camp was excellent, and the officers were enabled to obtain a sufficiency of vegetables, particularly yams, bangans, pumpkins, and some plantains. The officers rivalled in Camp was much wished for, as in the event of war, a cavalry arm was considered of the greatest importance. The distance from Prome to Melloon is about eighteen marches for Infantry.

At the conferences of the Commissioners, Mr. Mangles, the Secretary of the British Commission, could, from his attainments, learn, with such ability, and much to their satisfaction, as to receive the thanks of the British Commissioners.

On the 17th January, as on the next day the armistice was to terminate at 2 P. M. much anxiety prevailed in Camp on this subject; in which the Commander-in-Chief, we may believe, shared; we are informed that he possesses an excellent knowledge of the duplicity and intriguing character of these semi-barbarians, and doubts every word they utter, for which it must be confessed they have now afforded him sufficient cause. Up to 3 o'clock, P. M. there was no appearance of the prisoners, nor of the ratified treaty; but the Khee Woongee was heard to declare that he had heard officially from Ava, that the ratification had taken place, and that it and the prisoners might be expected hourly by water. Nay, he even said that if they did not soon come up, he himself, the Calling Mengbee, and Maha Sylwa, would deliver themselves up as hostages to our army,

The British Camp servants frequently crossed the river to Melloon, to buy fowls, &c. and were told by the Burmese that they now considered them as friends, and they would be treated them as such. "You have heard, I fancy, (says our correspondent) of Scandal Wharf at Rangoon; we have got a similar Wharf here, where we all meet in the evening to hear and talk over the news of the day. So I must leave off and await that of this afternoon. The 17th, I hope will be pacific; whether or not, you shall have it to-morrow."

Accordingly next day (18th) our correspondent's letter contains with the impressive words—

"Bella, bella, horrida bella cano."

During the evening of the 17th the Burmese Chiefs came across, and held a teazing unsatisfactory conference, or rather palaver, with Sir Archibald. The question lay in a nutshell, but they either evaded it or loaded it with inconsistencies and impertinencies to such a degree, as to require much temper to keep up terms of diplomatic courtesy with them.

On the Morning of the 18th, Sir Archibald sent them a message to the effect, that he would meet them on board the conference boat at 2 o'clock. After much shuffling on their part, the Calling-Menges shammed sick. However, they were given to understand, that if the ratified treaty, the prisoners and four lacs, were not forthcoming by 12 o'clock that night, hostilities would re-commence.

To this ultimatum no reply having been made, our batteries which had been got ready under night with surprising celerity, opened upon the enemy's works about 10 o'clock in the morning of the 19th, with great effect, and must have astonished the Burmese not a little. The rocket practice was described as both splendid and efficient. Our batteries continued playing until half past 2 o'clock, by which time the Fort of Melloon became almost too hot for the enemy. At the concerted signal, the storming party (which had previously been embarked on board the gun boats,) some distance above Melloon moved down across the river. As the wind and current were favourable they shortly reached the opposite shore, ascended the hill, as our correspondent writes, in beautiful style, and in twenty-five minutes from their leaving their own bank, Melloon was ours.

Our correspondent after mentioning the various booty that fell into the hands of our troops, writes—"But prepare to hear the most wonderful share of the booty—booty I shall call it, for such it proved to us by making us acquainted with their merits. The Treaty has been found, with the various other documents, just as they were delivered to them, never having been sent for ratification. Can you fancy any thing more perfect in the game of humbug than what they have played us!" Respecting the Rocket practice, our correspondent observes—"I see by the newspapers that the Rockets have been condemned at Mecrut'—I never was partial to the weapon, and even now know there is no dependence to be placed on it; but I must do it the justice to say, I never saw any thing so brilliantly splendid as the rocket practice against Melloon. The weapon was as true to its range as its best friend could wish, and to the enemy it was most destructive. No doubt this would always be the case were the rockets fresh and good.

With the circumstances of the taking of Melloon, our readers are already acquainted; we shall not therefore enter into further details on that head. About midnight of the 19th, a strong party of European Infantry, with a few of the Body Guard, and two of the Horse Artillery guns, went off to surprise, if practicable, a position about twelve miles from Melloon. After effecting this object (of which no doubt, was entertained) they were to continue their progress some miles further in advance, and sweep the country of its cattle, &c. after which they would join the main body, about 30 or 40 miles to the northward. The news in camp on the 21st, (and which was universally credited) was, that the Minia-boo, brother to the King of Ava, who was well known to be in Melloon directing every movement, but keeping himself aloof, was killed on the 19th by a shell. It was reported also, that although all the pacific documents had been found at Melloon, their substance had been forwarded to Ava in the form of a petition, from Minia-boo and the other Chiefs to the golden foot.

In consequence of the duplicity of the Burmese, it is not easy to calculate when the war may terminate. The probability is, that the Burmese sinews of war may now be considered as fairly cracked. The spirit of the people is broken, and nothing but the most unheard of tyranny of the Government could have kept up the struggle even so long. It cannot be the patriotism of the people, for they have no stakes in the government and serve it only by force. Sir Archibald, we presume, will never treat with the Burmese again, save in the court of the golden foot, in terms of the next treaty will of course receive a more peremptory character. Pegue will, we presume, be declared independent, and the Burmese be made to feel that they are indeed conquered.

YORK, U. C. SATURDAY, AUGUST 5, 1826.

London dates to 12th June have reached us—they contain but little news of importance. In our Summary will be found the most important items of Foreign Intelligence.—The Elections, in several parts of the Kingdom, were over, and many of the old members returned. An unfortunate occurrence took place at one of these, in which some lives lost—the particulars will be found in our preceding columns.

We have to apologise to our readers for having inadvertently omitted the Despatch from General Campbell, to which we referred them as being contained in our last weeks paper—it is given in this number.

From several papers we have this week compiled under the head of "Mercantile Intelligence," a list of Market Prices, up to the 12th June, from London and Liverpool, and to the latest dates from New-York, Quebec, and Montreal. Conceiving that such information may be acceptable to many of our readers, particularly to our Mercantile friends, we shall occasionally give a similar article.

On Monday afternoon last we were visited by a severe storm of thunder and lightning, accompanied with a heavy fall of rain. Its continuance was nearly an hour, and through the remainder of the day and night a great deal of rain fell, but with less thunder and lightning.

During the storm the flashes of lightning were extremely vivid, and the peals of thunder truly terrific. A willow tree in front of Mr. Denison's house was struck—the bark peeled off, and several panes of glass broke, in one of the front windows of the house. Fortunately none of Mr. Denison's family, or the persons occupying part of the premises, received any injury, though we are informed that one of them, was sitting near the window, in which the lightning splintered and scattered the glass about the floor.

On Tuesday there was a good deal of thunder and lightning, with showers of rain. The Harvest we hope has not suffered in consequence of this sudden change in the weather, and from the great quantity of rain which fell.

The atmosphere has since been cool and pleasant—the nights however are rather chilly.

The Albion contains an excellent article, on the subject of the boundary between New Brunswick and the United States, which we give this day under the "Colonial" Head. An accompanying map is given in the Albion, exhibiting the whole territory—shewing the tract of country in dispute, and the respective lines claimed by each party, from which it appears, that if the line claimed by the American Commissioner under the Treaty of Ghent, as that intended to be the boundary by the treaty of 1783, should be established, the communication between the British Provinces in America would be completely intercepted, by a tract of country estimated at 10,000 square miles intervening between them, and the navigation of the whole of the upper part of the River St. John cut off, the line claimed by the American Comissioner forming as it were a circle round the head waters of that River It cannot be supposed that such a circuitous boundary, was ever intended, or that the communication between the severeral British Provinces should be so completely intercepted. The disputed territory besides including several fine settlements, hitherto supposed to be on the British side, one of them made more than forty years ago, appears to embrace part of the route of the Mail, between Halifax and Quebec, which passes through it—this latter circumstance is not particularly noticed by the Albion, but it may be considered as of some importance.

Referring to the Address quoted in the Albion from the Legislature of New Brunswick to the King, it will appear, that the conduct of the Agents of the States of Maine and Massachusetts, has been extremely unjustifiable, and evinces a desire to acquire property, territory, and population, at the expense of national faith, and a breach of the positive understanding of the general Government of the United States, by exercising acts of sovereignty, over a territory, which, though now in dispute, has been in the actual possession of Great Britain for more than forty years, and before any definitive arrangement has been made respecting it.

The attempt to seduce British subjects from their allegiance cannot be too strongly reprobated. It is to be hoped however that the question, which is now before the two Governments, may soon be brought to such a conclusion, as will set the minds of the people at rest with respect to their possessions, and free them for the future from such insidious attempts.

Mr. G. Blanchard of the Royal Circus with his Company arrived in Town last night. The first Equestrian Performance will take place on Monday evening next, at the Mansion House.

The Right Hon. Charles Richard Vaughan, His Majesty's Minister to the United States, arrived in town a few days ago from Washington.—N. Y. Albion.

COMMUNICATION.

To the Editor of the U. E. Loyalist.

Sir,

I have read the certificate of the Rev. Mr. Grier, published at the request of the Rev. Mr. Campbell, in your paper: there is nothing in that certificate that I wish to, or can deny; I have already stated, that I considered that the letter to Lord Liverpool, was uncandid, Mr. Grier certifies to no more: I never defended the letter to Lord Liverpool,—my solicitude was about my own private correspondence, introduced in the letter, in a manner which misrepresented its real meaning, and I felt no anxiety about any thing more than to have its true sense fairly stated: this has been done,—and I am content;—the impression unfavourable to my probity made by Mr. Campbell's first letter has been removed, and that is all I desired. I would merely however, observe, that as Mr. Campbell has thought it necessary to search for certificates to support his assertions, that it is to be regretted he did not apply to the gentleman who was present at the more important conversation that occurred between him and me, previous to that spoken of by Mr. Grier.

Yours,
J. H. SAMSON.

PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors, of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province; to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on Monday the Fourteenth day of August inst. to be Commenced, Held, Called, and Elected, and to every of you

GREETING

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Twenty-seventh day of June last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the Fourteenth day of August instant, at which time, at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear.

NOW KNOW YE, that we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents enjoining you and each of you that on Thursday the Twenty-first day of September next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding our Forces therein, at York, this Tenth day of August in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-six, and in the Seventh Year of our reign.

GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To all to whom these Presents shall come

GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the parts of this Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. We have thought fit to order and direct, and We do hereby order and direct that, until Our pleasure herein shall be further made known, t shall and may be lawful for all Our Subjects inhabiting Our Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada, freely to enter into Our Woods and Forests in such parts of Our said Province of Upper Canada, situate along the Banks of the River Ottawa, or upon the Banks of the Waters running into the said River and within a convenient distance from the same, as shall not have been Surveyed and divided into Concessions and Lots, and to Cut and carry away such Oak and Pine Timber as may be fit for the purposes of Exportation.

Provided always, nevertheless, That in consideration of the authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties herein-after specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Red Pine Timber, Four Pounds Three Shillings and Four Pence, being at the rate of One Penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Yellow Pine Timber, Two Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence, being at the rate of One Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commission under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places upon the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointed as aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has attained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons, properly authorized by or under Our Licence granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS Our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this third day of May in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-Six, and in the Seventh Year of Our Reign.

Executive Council Office, York, 23rd March, 1826 }

NOTICE is hereby given, by ORDER of His EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENAT GOVERNOR, in Council, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a regular Council day.

JOHN SMALL.
C. E. C.

No. 9 1. f.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepard in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s. 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hunded Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant. It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessarry expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

NOTICE TO QUARRYMEN.

SEALED TENDERS, (Post paid,) will be received on or before the 11th of September next, by Hayden & Ford, at the Town of York, for the Quarrying and delivering a quantity of Stone, upon that part of the reserved Lot in the Town of Hamilton, District of Gore, for the new Gaol and Court House.

The principle part of the Stone can be quarried on the road about one half a mile from the Scite of the Building. Not less than Thirty Thousand Cubic Feet will be required by the 30th April next, the other part to be delivered during the Summer and Autumn following.

York, 22th July, 1826. 9—6

with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepared in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hunded Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant. It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessarry expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

POETRY.

THE CHIEFTAIN'S RUIN,

Or the Minstrel's Lamentation.

The moon fring'd with her silver beam
The ruins of Bean's deserted hall,
And ting'd with light the limpid stream
That flow'd by mould'ring fort and wall.

Sweet Nature slept 'mong the green hills,
That flung their shades o'er streams and dells;
And, save the dash of bubbling rills,
Not a sound on the ear there fell.

'Twas a splendid night!—no cloud afloat
On the face of the sparkling sky,
To mar the boundless light that shot
From planet and from galaxy.

Anon, along the weed-grown road,
A shadow moved; it seem'd to be
(As on with silent step it strode)
A thing of immortality.

A man approach'd,—though time had trac'd
Deep furrows on his manly brow,
The same proud air which first had grac'd
His figure, grac'd that figure now.

He gain'd the porch; awhile he stood,
And o'er the scene his eyes he bent;
Then turn'd them in a thoughtful mood
On ruin'd wall and battlement.

The hall he sought, where erst did throng
Chieftain and vassal, bind and lord,
Must'ring for foray, or for song,
And wassail at the festive board.

He spoke aloud in his native tongue;
The echoes knew the language well—
And vaulted hall and chamber rung
With the words of the sad minstrel.

"Oh what a shock! that the brave Bean,
Of all his race, should love to see
The bright star of his house and clan
Gone down to ruin utterly!

"Fifty long years have sped, since chief
And clans left home, to wander far
From the sweet hills of their father-land,
And spend their blood in foreign war.

"Aye in the battle's brunt, so proud,
Our banner wav'd,—our war-note peal'd!
Now chamois sleep in their mantan shroud
On many a well-fought battle field.

"My pipe! through burning sands we've toil'd;
Mid scenes that made the heart-strings wither,
We've cheered the soul, the heart beguil'd
Till deserts seem'd but tracts of heather.

"Of friend and chief, of all bereft,
While Bean bore the oppressors' chains,
My broken pipe! thou still was left
To soothe my spirit in its pains.

"Once, once! once more! shall the gath'ring soon
Ere I a[illegible]d with my kindred clay;
And gath[illegible]e shades of the Bean, around,
To bear the chieftain's soul away."

Then burst Pord Tiomaid on the ear;
Its Tuscluidh, Creamluidh, and the rest
Of its wild changes—music dear,
As the heart's blood, to Celtic breast.

But chang'd the music its bold tone
To a sorrowful strain and slow;
The first told of bright glory done,
The last spoke of ruin and woe.

It sounded like the midnight wail
Of the Cureach for the dead;
And with the last note that burst'd the gale,
The spirit of the bold bard fled!

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE HALF-PAY CLUB.

Half-Pay—Full-Pay.

Stanley—(yawning)—I'm sick of this inaction, and if something does'nt turn up—Will you take a touch among the Greeks, Magennis?

Mag.—Forbidden ground, my jewel.

Stan.—Sure of all miserable animals an officer on half-pay is most miserable!—What can he do? what is he good for? Neither law nor physic are open to him, and trade he despises, or is unfit for. To be sure, he may turn parson if he has interest, or farmer if he has capital. He may dabble in horse flesh too, if he understands it, or write with advantage, if he is literary. But most commonly an officer on half-pay, is an idle, useless being, incapable of exertion, and most profoundly ignorant of every thing but the profession he is discarded from. He is a burden to his friends and himself. His habits are any thing but domestic, and he cannot shake them off. Sometimes he lives in London, solitary among the million, unable to get into society, and vegetating in some garret he is ashamed to be seen in. About noon he steals out, accoutered in a black stock, and shabby laced surtout, a remnant of happier days; and after calling at the coffee-house to know if there are any letters or messages for him, he takes a turn upon the pave, carefully avoiding, however, the savory steam from George's, lest it should raise a rebellion in his stomach his pocket could'nt pacify. Next perhaps, he saunters to Tattersall's, and after cheapening horses, he well knows his next five years' pay would'nt purchase, he struts into the Park and contemplates the Achilles, looks big and pulls up his false collar as he decyphers the inscription.—Then suddenly recollecting that the air may sharpen an appetite already of the keenest, he returns eastward, and sneaks about half past five o'clock in some obscure eating house, where he dines for a shilling, flirts with the waiting maid, and doses over the newspaper. Thence he adjourns to Offey's, or the Cyder Cellar, and sulks out the rest of the evening over a cigar or a glass of Geneva, for both it would be too expensive to indulge in. At length, ennuye and overcome with spleen, he retires supperless to his solitary attic, finds his tailor's bill upon the table, and throwing himself upon his uneasy couch, dreams all night of duns, attorneys' letters, and the King's Bench; visions, alas! which, contrary to the usual mode of interpretation, are but too often verified. Such, Magennis, is the fate of many a fine fellow, who, hopeless of relief, and excluded from the only sphere he is able or ambitious to excel in, becomes careless of his person, loose in his principles, and vulgar in his habits:

'To honor lost—confirmed a perfect sot,
He knows no heaven beyond a portor pot.'

But reverse the picture—suppose the same individual still in the service, suppose him actually employed, useful to the community, and burning to distinguish himself. At day break—

Mag.—Sure the bugle rouses him—trela—trela—trela—la—la—la, and up he starts, boys, as keen as a huntsman, makes a toilet or no toilet, what matter! and snatches a hasty morsel, if he can get it. Then the confusion around, what's so delightful! Horses saddling, mules loading, arms jingling, and knapsacks packing! then the colonel hurries the adjutant, the adjutant hurries the officers, the officers hurry the sergeants, and the sergeants hurry the men. At length you fall in, reports are collected, the regiment moves into a line of march, and in ten minutes you're on the advance. Well, the morning's fine, the sun rises glorious, the air is bracing, the scenery novel, and the enemy near. There's hope in every step, excitement in every breeze; victory, like a sweet smiling vision, reigns in your imagination, and you resolve to die with honor or live with distinction. Presently you halt in some delicious spot, arms are piled, and the men ordered to cook while they've the opportunity. Immediately all is bustle, some run for wood, some for water, others unspend the camp kettles, and in a few minutes the fires are all on the fire. In the mean time you improve your toilet, spoke your cigar, and discuss the probability of an early engagement, or retire, may be, to some convenient nook and write to the girl of your heart, and the friends you've left behind you. Oh sudden, sudden—pop—pop, is heard. Oh! 'tis the sweetest music! and in a twinkling every man is on the alert—draws his sword or examines his priming. All is silence and expectation. You might hear a pin drop; the roar of musketry is repeated. You scarce draw breath, and your heart beats higher. Ah! who is this tearing down the hill yonder, with his blue surtout and waving plume! 'tis Lord F—— S——, the Duke's favourite aide-de-camp, on whom he chiefly relies, and in all great emergencies invariably confides. 'Tis no trifle he's the bearer of, you, brings him amongst you. You may see how it is by his gesture and action, and that brigade of artillery there rattling up to the front. Yes! the enemy are certainly driving in the paquets, and a general engagement is at hand. Arrah! make your will, boys! for by the blessing of heaven, you've all an excellent chance of being knocked on the head before nightfall.—'Forward in double quick!' cries the colonel—with all pleasure in life, my darling—and in a jiffy you gain the brow of the hill, and the Land of Steel lies before you. There's a scene! there's a prospect lads! talk of your lakes and your Temples, your Killarneys and your Blarneys! where's a coup d'œil, I'd like to know, equal to this? Every hedge bristles with bayonets; every height with cannon.—Forty thousand musquets already inundate the vale; immense masses are still pouring down, and every copse, field, pasture, and orchard, as far as the eye can carry you, groans with its iron harvest. Now stand to your arms, lads—stand to your arms! no nonsense, if you please, the flash from the battery opposite is the signal for sport, and by the powers—ah! that was a close shave! the shot missed you, 'tis true, but it has disabled the tall sergeant that covered you and gone smack through the colours. Faith! 'tis no affair of outposts now; the artillery on both sides have opened—bullets begin to whistle—there's a general tuning of instruments, and crash! the concert commences. Smother and confusion succeeds. Every man minds his own business, and never busies himself about his neighbour. Your position though gets mighty hot—them devils on the hill yonder have your range to a T. They rake you front and rear, the surgeon has no sinecure, I see, and something must be done. Ah! here's Wellington! heaven bless his long nose—he's an Irishman every inch of him—his eagle eye has caught your situation, and he flies like an arrow to relieve you. 'Now must charge, lads! three cheers and at 'em!' huzza! huzza! huzza! and down you rush by the powers; like an other Niagara—sweep the whole valley, and push within point blank of the assaulting battery! Now comes the tug, now comes the tug. Shots fly like hail, and men fall like rabbits. Grape and canister get mighty familiar with you, and in a short space you find yourself senior officer, with a shot through your sword arm, and the whole corps in confusion. Only rally 'em now and you're a made man; hurra, boys! let us see who'll be first in the battery, and the devil take the hindermost! Bravo! you've got the breast work; another push, and by St. Patrick—victoria! victoria! they run, they run! the whole army follow up your success—the enemy are repulsed in all directions, and a splendid victory is the consequence. His Grace thanks you publicly on the field—recommends you in the despatch—and in the next army-list you've the satisfaction of finding your name among the field officers, with a K. C. B. tacked to the end of it. Oh! who would not be a soldier, boys!

Aurora Borealis.—A writer in a late number of the London Mechanics' Magazine, has published a new theory of the Aurora Boreals, which has so long puzzled the philosopher. After speaking of the absurdity of the exploded or absurd theories of preceding writers, he refers to the observations of Mr. Fisher upon the subject, who accompanied Captain Parry to arctic regions; and it is to this work of Mr. F. that he says he is indebted for the suggestion of this attempt at an hypothesis. In his accurate accounts of the various haloes, arcs, paraselenæ, &c, which he saw in the dreary regions he visited, he tells us that he always observed, during their appearance, floating particles or crystals of ice, in the atmosphere; which was also the case when the sun first appeared after its long absence, which was visible, by refraction three days before it rose above the horizon. Now, considering the great refractive power of water, either in its fluid or congealed state, and the prismatic forms of its crystals, thus evinced in an immense degree in the formation of these meetoric appearances, and at the same time knowing the exhaling power of the sun, aided by the evaporation and expansion occasioned by volcanic and subterranean fires, which can raise vapour to almost any conceivable altitude, is it too great a stretch of imagination to suppose, that minute crystals of ice may be suspended at a great height in the atmosphere, sufficiently high even to be exposed to the sun's ray's, which of course pass obliquely over the globe, when the Arctic Circle is enveloped in the Earth's shadow? If this could take place, the rays might be refracted by clouds of the congealed atoms towards the North Pole, and cause the phenomenon of the Aurora Borealis; and towards the South in a less degree, proportionate to the supposed quantity of floating crystals in a comparatively warmer region, forming the Aurora Australis.

The visible phenomenon then, is here considered to be an atmospheric reflection of the refraction of the sun's rays through floating medium of chrystalized water. And according to this view of the case, the various momentary movements, extinctions, and re-illuminations of the phenomenon must be effected by the rising, falling, sudden crystalization, expansion, alteration of form, and aggregation of the minute crystals or atoms, varied infinitely by currents of wind, chemical and other causes unknown.

SUMMARY.

The French Government has sent a note to that of Spain, stating its intention not to prolong the convention, in virtue of which, she maintained troops on certain points of the Peninsula.

Mr. Secretary Canning's Poem on Greece, written while at Eton School, has been translated into Germah, and is sold for the benefit of the Greeks.

It is said that the Speaker of the House of Commons will be re-elected in the New Parliament, at the one more Session, and then be elevated to the Peerage.

The Duke of Northumberland has given a donation of £500 towards building a church at Hounslow.

Mrs. Opie, the once lively authoress, is now in London, done out as a Quaker, and attending the Yearly Meeting in Bishopsgate-Street. The John Bull calls her a fool, silly, and promises her an O Pie row if she does not return to her former pleasant ways.

Prince Leopold has left London, for the Continent.

The Honduras Company is abandoned.

The Government of the Netherlands have issued an order prohibiting recruiting for any power whatever.

London, June 10.—State of the Poll, (second day)—Thomson 927—Waithman 548—Wood 528—Ward 716—Venables 688—and Garret (the Lord Mayor) 280; the latter intended to quit the field.

In Southwark, the Poll stood—Calvert 1575—Sir R. Wilson 1479—Polhill 1092.

In Dublin it is stated that Mr. Grattan will be returned without opposition.—Col. Bakenham has retired from Westmeath.—In Waterford the contest will be between Mr. Stuart and Mr. Power. The Duke of Devonshire supports the latter.

It is calculated that more than 6000 acres of ground are cultivated as Gardens within 12 miles of London, employing 30,000 persons in winter, and three times that number in summer. The annual value of Cattle sold in Smithfield is estimated at £9,500,000—and that a Million a year is expended in fruits and vegetables.

The Tolls on the Erie Canal from 17th April to 17th July, amounted to $50,734.

The Schooner St. Clair and the Michigan, arrived at New York from Mackinaw, in the Michigan territory—having passed through the Canal—the distance is nearly 1000 miles.

There have been severe storms in several parts of the United States.

A party of Swiss Emigrants passed through Albany last week, on their way to Ohio.

Lady Strangford died at St. Petersburgh on the 26th of May. She was 38 years of age.

Von Weber is to be enterred at St. Paul's, and Mozarts requeum to be sung over him, by the principal singers in England.

The statement that Lady Halford was about to be created a peeress is contradicted in the Courier.

The city of Moscow possesses a phenomenon in music. There is a boy of six years old, named Vassily Latishef, who executes on the violin the concertos of Rode and of Maurer, with a perfection and force truly surprising.

It is reported that 21 British Fishing Vessels have been carried into France, for lowering their lines in French waters.

Interesting Astronomical.—Two brilliant planets, Jupiter and Venus, are now to be seen in the West after sunset. They will be in conjunction on the 22d August and will set nearly at the same time. A Washington Astronomer says—"As the like will not take place again for many years, Astronomers are requested to make some observations at some time before and after this unusual conjunction of two planets, one 400 millions of miles outside our path, and the other between us and the sun." Their united enlulgence will supply the deficiency of the absent moon.

Five stages, each containing eleven passengers, mostly strangers from the Southward, entered this city from Upper Canada, on Saturday evening, and nearly as many arrived on Sunday evening.—Montreal Herald.

Miss Edgeworth, in her excellent book, "Harry and Lucy," tells a story of a lady who made a pattern for a complete service of China, to China. The Chinese are much addicted to precedent, and, unfortunately, it happened that there was a crack in the pattern-plate: the flaw was exactly copied, and a beautiful and costly service of cracked plate was sent over to England.

We understand that a play called Alfred, from the pen of Mr. Knowles, author of Virginius Caius Gracchus, and William Tell, embracing some of the remarkable events of that Monarch's reign, has been accepted and paid for by the Committee of Management of Drury-lane Theatre, and will be produced early in the next season.

ENGLAND.

It appears that a very important alteration has been made in the Corn Bill, and that none of the Bonded Corn will be admitted into consumption until the 15th July next, and then only one half the quantity in store, say about 140,000 quarters of Wheat, and 100,000 ditto of Oats; the residue in August. This was expected to the Corn dealers. Several large contracts were made in Liverpool, last market day, deliverable next week. In consequence of what has occurred in the House of Lords, the Corn cannot be got out sooner.

It appears from the conversation betwixt Mr. Wilmot Horton, and Mr. Thomas Wilson, that all difficulties in regard to the arrangements with the Canada Company, are removed.

It is said that there are to be more changes in the next Parliament, than were ever known; not less than 170 new members are talked of.

We are happy to state that a little more activity pervaded our warehouses again this week, and they have been partially relieved of the immense loads of calico pieces, which have for several months encumbered them—not in some cases so as to endanger the safety of the building. Should the increased demand which took place at Manchester yesterday se'night, continue, we may expect in time better prices and more employment for the poor weavers. We are glad to see the retail provision and other shops more thronged with customers on Saturday, than for many months past, and hail this as another proof of a gradual amendment in the condition of our labouring poor.

We are extremely happy to state, that a good demand for cotton continues, and that we have a brisk ing accounts from Manchester of improvement.—We are glad to find that accounts from London and the Continent are of the same complexion.

At the Court at Carlton House, the 1st of June, 1826—present, the King's Most Excellent Majesty in Council; this day, the Most Noble James Marquis of Salisbury was, by command of His Majesty, sworn of His Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council, and took his place at the Board accordingly.

At the Court at Carlton House, the 29th of May, 1826—present, the King's Most Excellent Majesty in Council; His Majesty having been pleased to appoint Lieutenant General Sir Henry Warde, Governor of the Island of Jorbadoes, he this day took the usual oaths and appointed to be taken by the Governors of His Majesty's Plantations.

The King was this day pleased to confer the honour of Knighthood upon Lieut. Col. William Lewis Herries, Deputy Quarter Master General of His Majesty's Forces in the Mediterranean, Knight Commander of the Royal Guelphic Order.

The King has been pleased to direct letters patent to be passed under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, constituting and appointing the Right Honourable Charles Manners Sutton, William Wynn; Henry Earl Bathurst, Knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter, the Right Hon. George Canning, and the Right Hon. Robert Peel, His Majesty's three Principal Secretaries of State; Robert Banks, Earl of Liverpool, Knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter, First Commissioner of His Majesty's Treasury; the Right Hon. Frederick John Robinson, Chancellor of His Majesty's Exchequer; Arthur Duke of Wellington, Knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter; James Brownlow William, Marquis of Salisbury; John Baron Teignmouth; the Right Hon. John Sullivan; the Right Hon. Sir George Warrender, Baronet; Joseph Phillimore, Doctor of Laws; and William Yates Peel, Esq. His Majesty's Commissioners for the affairs of India.

Important to Emigrants.—In consequence of the gross frauds, which have been for some time, practised by porters and others who pretended they are authorized agents to procure passengers for vessels, upon the inexperienced and unwary, who come to this town for the purpose of going to America, it has been deemed expedient by the American Chamber of Commerce to inform the public of the legal proceeding against all such persons as shall in future be found to continue the practice. It is notorious that many persons prowl about the docks, and account any countryman they meet with, and on getting into conversation, finding he does wish for a passage, they present to be agents for a vessel bound to the very place the person wishes to go to, and make him pay the passage money, which they neglect to hand to the owners of the ship, and never enter the person's name at the custom house, as they are bound to do. The consequence is that the poor creatures go on board with their families, luggage, and stock of provisions for the voyage; but, upon getting to sea, their names are called over according to the muster roll entered at the custom house, and the individuals, whose names are not on that document, are sent on shore, and their extreme poverty prevents them from resorting to a legal mode of recovering their passage money. The American Chamber of Commerce having reason to believe that some frauds of this kind had been practised by two persons, Oliver and James Beckett, practising under the firm of Beckett & Co. of Strand street, they caused a proper application to be made on Monday to John Wright, Esq. by Mr. Radcliffe, the Attorney, assisted by the affidavits of the parties aggrieved, when a warrant was placed in the hands of Doughey the constable, for the apprehension of the Messrs. Becketts, and on Tuesday the parties appeared before Alderman Wright. The affidavits made by the several injured persons having been read, the defendants said they were merely the agents of the owners; the reason why Kenworthy's name was not on the muster roll, was because he had not paid all the passage money. Kenworthy's mother, who had paid the money to the defendants, and the whole sum agreed upon was £9 10, and no more. Mr. Alderman Wright said, that the defendants might avail themselves of their defence at their trial; he was of opinion that quite sufficient was stated to warrant the affidavits under them to find bail, to answer to any bill of indictment that might be preferred against them, themselves in £100 each, and two sureties in £50 each, and give 24 hours notice of bail. The defendants were then committed to prison, The Messrs. Becketts having found bail for their appearance at the Sessions, were released.

Orator Hunt, says the Sherborn Mercury of May 29, continues his convass with great activity. He entered Yeovil on Friday, in a one horse chaise with the four horses which are accustomed to convey his blacking-van through the metropolis, and having been refused, it is stated, admittance to the Mermaid Inn, he betook himself to the Three Cheverils. He dined at the Old Three Choirs, when the cloth was removed amused the farmers, for three quarters of an hour, with a statement of their grievances, the crimes of the Magistrates, and the total incompetency of the present Members. The "matchless" blacking manufacturer, however, is too well known in this neighbourhood to obtain more than a moderate portion of credence; and that portion will not be at all increased by the triumphant contradiction which his attempt to explain away the collection and expenditure of the country rate, from 1814 to 1818, has received at the hands of the Treasurer, Mr. Messiter. From this document it appears that, instead of the sum of £16,000 being accounted for during the period referred to, the expenditure exceeded the amount collected by upwards of £7000. The "matchless" candidate was expected to make his appearance at Taunton on Saturday, agreeable to the promise of Mr. Hunt and the Hero of Creecy well.

In the mean time, the friends of Mr. Dickson and Sir T. Lethbridge have not been inactive.

The Silk Trade holds up better than was expected. The employers feel pretty confident of being able to undersell the French in our own Market, should they bring any goods here next month. The result of this confidence is an increased and more certain employment for the silk weavers, and other persons connected with that branch of manufacture.

The demolition of Carlton Palace, will, it is said, commence soon after His Majesty's return to Windsor. The King is said to have prescuted the portico of the staircase to the United Service Club, to form part of the new house they are about to erect upon part of the site of the Palace.

Mr. Huskisson and General Gascoyne are elected for Liverpool—an attempt was made by the Shipwrights last night to get up Major Gascoyne, (the General's son) and Mr Bolton, but at the poll these gentlemen obtained but few votes, and in fact were neither of them solicitous of the honor proposed to be conferred upon them.

York City—Colonel Wilson and Mr. Wyvil have been elected without opposition.

State of the Poll at the following places, viz:

Preston, (3d day)—Mr. Stanley 1511—Mr. Wood 683—Captain Burn 63—Mr. Cobbett 52.

Southwark, (4th day)—Mr. Calvert 1511—Sir R. Wilson 1021—Mr. Polhil (the new Candidate, an anti-catholic) 1120.

There was a strong contest at the election for Parliament in Falkirk. The mechanics, and particularly the ship-wrights, opposed Mr. Huskisson on account of some of his measures, which they considered as oppressing in an unfriendly manner to themselves. On the day of election Gascoyne who was nominated by that party, was escorted into town by a procession of about 1500 persons, with flags, music, &c. the horses being taken from his barouche, and the carriage drawn by the people.

On Saturday afternoon Mr. Huskisson arrived in Liverpool, and on presenting himself in the Exchange area, was surrounded by a great crowd of citizens. At the great reading room they made a rush through the doors, filled the place, and welcomed him with cheers. At a call from the assembly, he addressed them, saying he had devoted his abilities to the service of the public, and if there were those who thought he had erred, he invited factures from India to the Eastern Isles generally them to the Hustings on Monday morning. In the evening he made two speeches before the Canning Club, offering them Mr. Canning's respects, and stating that that gentleman had refused all solicitations from Westminster to represent that city in Parliament. Mr. Huskisson also explained the principles by which he had been influenced in his vote on the combination laws, a subject which had been made the ground of opposition to him by the mechanics. We had not wished to prevent mechanics from agreeing on prices for their labour, but to deliver them from the terror and power of clubs and associations.

The scene at the Hustings on Monday was quite tumultuous; speeches were made on both sides, and frequent interruptions occurred in Mr. Huskisson's address, which was about an hour and a half long. The canvass resulted in the election of Mr. Huskisson and General Gascoyne.

COLONIAL TRADE.

PARLIAMENTARY RETURNS.

(From the Representatives.)

The Anti-Colonial phalanx of speculative theorists attempt by every species of chicanery and misrepresentation, to decry the value of our West India Colonies. They, cannot, however, deny the great amount of the exports from this country, but they assert that these exports are merely shipped to the West-India Islands as so many depots, from whence the articles are re-exported to the Foreign West-India Islands, or to the States on the Continent of South America. Those, acquainted with the nature of the shipments, known well that the statements are untrue, and that about four-fifths of the exports from Britain to her Western possessions are retained for their internal consumption.—Deceived by those whose interested machinations work to deceive, an Anti-Colonial leader, (Mr. Huskisson we think it was) last Session of Parliament moved for a number of Returns, in the expectation that these when produced would substantiate the assertions, and while they went to show the trifling nature of British exports consumed by her Colonies, were expected at the same time to prove the vast superiority of our trade to India and China, and comparatively the still greater superiority of the British exports to Hayti and Sierra-Leone, over the trade to the West India Colonies.

The account is for the year 1824.

British Exports consumed in Colonies		4,042,782

The Official value nearly covers freight and charges. But the "declared value," deducted as re-exported, is too large, because it includes not only the freight and charges, but the Merchants' profit of Annual; £800,000 is probably too much deduct for re-export, but even at that rate the value consumed in the Colonies will exceed £4,800,000!!

In looking at these official documents we perceive, at a glance, the proud superiority of our commerce with our calumniated and despised West-India Colonies. The exports to them exceed the exports to India, China, and the Isle of France, united, by £1,100,000, while the re-exports of British manufactures from India to the Eastern Isles generally exceed the re-exports from the West-India Colonies to the American Continent and Islands; and we believe we may add, that the exports to those West-India Colonies are much better paid than the exports to our Eastern Possessions. With regard to the boasted trade to Hayti, which Anti-Colonial scribes assert contains 950,000 inhabitants—a number equal to 1-6 population of all our West-India Colonies, and to which old Macaulay asserted this country exported goods to the amount of 3,661,241 dollars (800,000£) the declared value for 1824 stands only £545,372, not a tenth part of our exports to our own Colonies. So much for the boasted superiority and value of Haytian commerce to this country. The small Island St. Thomas takes as much from and pays us better.

The Mexican Mining Company held a meeting, which was called with the intention of confirming some of the shares, whose holders had not paid the last call. A correspondence with the secretary stated, that, having concluded for the purchase of the Mine of Gongoochin, and obtained the recognition of the Imperial Government, they had lately taken formal possession, and hoped to make returns in September. Arrangements also were nearly complete for working the Mines of Antonio Ferraro, little inferior to the former, which are said to be the best in the world.

The Anglo Chilian Mining Company lately held a meeting in London. The report stated that the prospects of the company were highly promising. They had obtained three copper mines at the expense of but a trifling outlay. They had heretofore purchased ore of the natives, and depended on British skill for smelting and refining it. The directors were sorry to see a disposition to abandon the concern. Affairs had been economically conducted; the disbursements had been only about £30,000, yet the last call had not been paid, and Commissioners had drawn bills upon them to an amount of £40,000 without notice. A cargoe of £30,000 worth of copper ore was shortly expected, and one of £35,000, worth of silver ore.

Foreign Intelligence.

ZANTE, April 27.

Dear ——, The intense anxiety we have been in here for two months as to the fate of Missolonghi has given way to the painful certainty of its total destruction, and we are sunk into gloom and despair. The heroic resistance for five years, insulated, unaided, and alone, standing in a passion against an empire, of a paltry lasting town, floating on a mud bank—inhabited by petty tradickers, buried in with mud, and defended by a few almost useless cannon, has kept up a succession of immense armies in check. But man is not omnipotent—heroes are not immortal, and the heroic bosoms that for years have stood the bulwark of their country are now cold as the heroes of Marathon and Thermopylæ.

Our news from the Morea is bad. There is great confusion at Napoli. The Fanariot Government of Condurioti, Mavrocornolo, Potelti, &c. are ousted; the Capitani are carrying all before them. Pietro Bey, the Mainote Chief, is named President, and a new Executive body is elected, in the interest of the military. But the victorious Arabs, intoxicated with continual success, and drunk with blood, are carrying fire and destruction through Eastern and Western Greece, in conjunction with the Albanians from Negropont and Zetuni.—The Greeks are also in despair and not without cause. Private hate, thirst of plunder and revenge possess all bosoms, and, entirely occupied with their civil dissentions, they take no heed of the rapid destruction of their country's hope of emancipation. Fortune, which proved such a staunch ally to the Greeks, is now deserting their banner; the Cross again bows to the Crescent.

E. TRELAWNEY.

From the Paris Etoile, June 2.

Constantinople, May 10.—The Turks expect with impatience, the promised consignment of the heads and ears of the christians of Missolonghi. It is added that five captains, taken prisoners by the Turks, are to be led in triumph through the city, and executed before the gate of the Seraglio, or, according to others, in one of the suburbs of the christians, either Pera or Galatea. The fall of Missolonghi has produced the greatest consternation at Hydra; the people oppose the departure of the Primates who intend to go to Piada, the new residence of the central government. At Napoli di Romania, where at first, they could not believe that the English had done nothing to save Missolonghi, the people abandoned themselves to despair, and curse all the Franks, whom they consider, without exception, as their mortal enemies, and to whom they attribute all the misfortunes which overwhelm Greece.

Colonel Fabvier is said to have repaired to the Morea, to encourage the principal captains who were there to hold out.

As for the negociations of M. Minziacky, nothing has passed since the result of the 9th, which is already known.

The Turkish Commissioners have not yet set out for the frontiers.

Bucharest, May 12.—The Berchlis set out for Smirna, where they are placed at the disposal of the Seraskier.

We are in daily expectation of the arrival of Hadi Effendi and Ibrahim Effendi, whom the Sultan sends as extraordinary commissioners. The Hospodar has already caused lodgings to be prepared for them. It is said they were to leave Constantinople on the 17th or 18th, which is the end of the delay fixed by the Russian ultimatum.

Paris, June 7.—The observer of Trieste says that the Turkish fleet quitted the gulf of Patras on the 6th May. It was reported at Patras that 14 vessels, laden with provisions, and coming from Alexandria, had fallen into the hands of the Greeks. Other news received by sea, states that the Turkish fleet was seen on the 8th, near Ipsara, and the Egyptian fleet some days before, near Navaria.

GREECE.

The National Assembly of Greece has issued a decree, temporarily vesting the civil and military affairs of the country in a commission of eleven Members.

Five sacks full of heads and ears of the Greeks who fell at Missolonghi, have been received at Constantinople. It was intended to exhibit four Greek Captains there alive, and kill them before the Seraglio, but they were seized and carried off on the road. It is supposed that the Captain Pacha's fleet will next descend upon Hydra and Spezzia.

A letter of the 29th of April, from Trieste, states, that since the fall of Missolonghi, all the Greek chiefs have redoubled their energy in calling their country men to arms. Ibrahim Pacha remains perfectly inactive, awaiting reinforcements from Alexandria.

London, June 10.—Cadiz and Gibraltar letters mention that several guerilla parties are now roving about the mountainous districts of Andalusia, bidding defiance to the local authorities. One of them lately carried off fifty horses belonging to the French Garrison in Cadiz, which were at pasture in the neighborhood of Chiclana. This party the next day attacked the Carthusian Convent, in the vicinity of Xeres, and compelled the monk to give them a supply of provisions and fresh horses. The chief rendezvous of these parties is the Serrana de Ronda. The French seem to take no notice of them; indeed, no political results can attend their existence, even if they were more numerous; for the greatest part of them are little else than banditti—men who have been driven to plunder on the high roads from hunger and despair. One party had entered the small town of Marcena, and levied a contribution on the inhabitants. The misery and wretchedness prevailing throughout all Spain could scarcely be credited, although the poor people have not yet arrived at that crisis of view, in consequence of the promising state of the next harvest, which bids fair to be abundant.

PORTUGAL.

We copy from the Baltimore American the speech of the Emperor of Brazil to his Senate, in which he abdicates the crown of Portugal, and takes it upon himself to confirm the regency, and to name his daughter Queen of the country, under the title of Her Majesty Donna Maria Second. He also urges the prosecution of the war against La Plata.

Speech of H. M. the Emperor of Brazil, delivered in the Senate Chamber, on the 6th of May, 1826, at the opening of the National Assembly.

August and most dignified Representatives of the Brazilian Nation—

For the second time I have the pleasure of presenting myself before you. I infinitely regret that it has not been opened on the day marked out by the Constitution, as the Government has contributed on its part as far as it could to avoid a postponement of the law.

On the 12th November 1823, I dissolved the Constituent Assembly, painful as it was, and from motives which are not unknown to you. I at the same time promised the project of a Constitution; this was accepted, and sworn to, and this day it is the political constitution which reigns in this empire, and in virtue of which this assembly is re-united.

The harmony which it is desired should exist among political departments, prevails in this constitution in the highest degree, and the whole Empire is tranquil, except the Province of Cisplatina. The continuation of this quiet, the necessity of the constitutional system, and the desire which I have that the Empire be governed by it, point at the harmony that should guide the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies, and also the government and both chambers; and that all may be persuaded that revolutions are the fruit of this system, but of those persons who under a shade seek to put in practice their own private ends.

The Cisplatina Province, as I have already said, is the only one not in a state of quiet, for they have revolted and entered into a contest to detach it, and who are now aided by the Government of Buenos Ayres, which is actually struggling against us.

The National honour demands that the Cisplatina Province should be maintained, for the integrity of the Empire is sworn to.

On the 15th November of last year, the independence of Brazil was recognized by my august father Don John the Sixth, of glorious memory, which was followed by that of Austria, England, Sweden and France, the same having been done long before by the United States of America.

On the 24th April of the present year, the anniversary of the embarkation of my father Don John Sixth, for Portugal, I received the unfortunate and unexpected intelligence of his death.

The most poignant pain has possessed my heart. Finding myself, therefore, the eldest heir to the King of Portugal Algarves, and their dominions, the course which I ought to pursue is presented to me suddenly. Grief and the sense of duty alternately occupying my soul; but putting all other considerations aside, I look to the interests of Brazil. Attending to my word, I shall sustain my honour; I am free to congratulate Portugal; and it would be indecorous in me not to do so. What would not be the affliction to me either my soul when seeing the congratulations of the Portuguese nation, without offending the Brazilian, and of separating them (although already separated) that they should never again be united!

I have confirmed the Regency in Portugal, which my father had created; I have given an amnesty; I have given a constitution. I have abdicated and ceded all the indisputable and irrefragable rights which belonged to the monarchical crown of Portugal, and the sovereignty of those kingdoms, to the person of my much beloved and dear daughter, the Princess Donna Maria da Gloria, now Donna Maria the second Queen of Portugal. This was proper for my honor and the good of Brazil. Thus some Brazilians, though incredulous, will know (what they ought to have known) that the interests of Brazil, and the love of her independence are strong in me; that I have abdicated the crown of the Portuguese monarchy, which by indisputable right belonged to me, only because at a future day it might compromit the interests of Brazil, of which I am the perpetual defender.

It will merit your most zealous care to provide for the education of the youth of both sexes, for the public revenue, and all other establishments, and first of all the formation of judicious laws, as well as the repeal of others directly opposed to the Constitution, that by this we may be guided and exactly regulated. The most part of the Senators and Deputies, who compose this assembly, must well recollect the evils which some nations have suffered, from a want of that respect due to the constituted authorities when these have attacked and menaced instead of being proceeded against according to law, and universal justice.

I well know that those my reflections, are not necessary before this assembly, composed as it is of such dignified Senators and Deputies; but they will serve as an assurance of the zeal, love and interest which I really take in the Brazilian Empire, and in the observance of its constitution.—Much more would I recommend, but I deem it unnecessary on my part.

CONSTITUTIONAL EMPEROR. and Perpetual Defender of Brasil.

SOUTH AMERICA.

The Baltimore Gazette of Friday contains part of a proclamation published at Carthagena, by Bormudez, on or about the 5th July, in which he denounces, in the most violent terms, the proceedings of General Paez.—Twelve thousand valiant soldiers, he says, are marching upon Venezuela, in command of the Liberator President. They are returning from Peru, and part of them had arrived at Panama.

Bolivar (he continues) returns to his country at the first moment that it is necessary to put an end to the ignominious evil, to the constitutional compact of Colombians. His name alone will disconcert the schemes of discord, and his wisdom will soon restore that order, without which it is vain to hope for liberty."

The general opinion in Carthagena was, that Paez would be condemned to death, and as President Bolivar was expected in two or three weeks, no doubt was entertained that tranquility would be restored in Venezuela.

UNITED STATES.

The late panic in New York appears to have subsided, and business has resumed its wonted course. Though there has doubtless been much individual suffering there, yet, on the whole, the public will have been benefited by the putting down of institutions that were doing business without the shadow of a capital, and more care hereafter be observed in granting of charters by our legislature. Of late, it has been almost a matter of course to grant all insurance companies, and manufacturing companies that were asked for, some of which, in one shape or another have succeeded in shaving the public to an enormous amount.—Albany Gazette.

In speaking of the Life and Fire Insurance Company which lately failed in the city of N. York, the Enquirer says, "numerous reports have been put in circulation in regard to the amount of paper which this Company has out. This amount has been stated to be two millions of dollars. We are informed, and we have no doubt correctly, that their paper runs out to about $500,000—they have on hand notes and other securities, amounting to about $700,000. We also understand, that some of the Directors will be by much the heaviest losers."—Ib.

It is calculated that the annual harvest of grain of all descriptions in Ohio, is more than fifty millions of bushels.

Travelling from the north to the South continues to increase. The boats are generally well filled. The Barge Lady Clinton, Capt. Seymour, yesterday landed between two and three hundred in this city, who are in pursuit of health, wealth and happiness.

Arctic Land Expedition.—Despatches have been received from Captain Franklin, of the Arctic land expedition, dated Winter-quarters, Fort Franklin, on the great Bear Lake, September 6. During the summer, three expeditions, under Captain Franklin Lieutenant Back, and Dr. Richardson, were made, preparatory to the great objects to be undertaken next year. The expedition under Captain Franklin went to the mouth of Mackenzie river, which is found to discharge itself into an open sea; there is one Island near its mouth, called by Captain Franklin Garry's Island.—From the summit of this Island the Captain saw the sea to the northward all clear of ice and islands; to the westward he saw the coast to a great distance, his view terminating in very lofty mountains, which he calculates were in longitude of 138 deg. west. The expedition would proceed early in the spring on its ulterior objects. The officers and men were all well and in spirits at the favourable circumstances which had hitherto attended their proceedings.

LOWER CANADA.

On Sunday last, a numerous meeting of Indians from Lorette, Lake of the Two Mountains, &c. was convened at Sault St. Louis, for the purpose of electing Chiefs. The Chiefs of the different tribes were splendidly decorated, one from Lorette wore the medals which he received from His Majesty while in England. After the business for which they assembled was finished, one of the resident Chiefs entertained a large party to a sumptuous dinner prepared for the occasion. A game, the name of which we do not recollect, was played by the different tribes, each of whom roughly contended for the palm. Though they are at other times restrained by their clergy from indulging in their favourite amusement of dancing on the Sabbath, they got permission on the present occasion. The ball room was thrown open at six o'clock, and dancing commenced soon after. The females appeared to great advantage being superbly dressed. The greatest harmony seemed to prevail and they appeared to be perfectly sober. British colours waved on several flagstaffs in the village.

Expeditious Travelling.—The steamboat Coaubly left the port of Quebec on Friday morning last at three o'clock, and arrived in the port of Montreal, at half-past 6 o'clock, on the following morning; left the port of Montreal on the afternoon of the same day at twenty minutes before 5 o'clock and arrived in the port of Quebec the following day at noon; left the port of Quebec at half-past 4 o'clock on Monday afternoon and arrived in the port of Montreal at 6 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon, performing the three trips including all stoppages and without the use of sails, in little more than three days and a half. This boat, we believe, has accomodations equal to any other boat in the river, though the rates of her passage are considerably lower than some of them.—Montreal Gazette.

THE THEATRE.—MR. KEAN made his first appearance at our Theatre on Monday evening, in his favourite character of King Richard III.—The reception which this gentleman met with, must have been highly flattering to his feelings. Every seat in the boxes had been engaged from Saturday, and so great was the anxiety to witness his performance, that numbers of persons were to be seen standing in the lobby of the Theatre, eagerly watching to get a glimpse of the representative of Shakspear's heroes.

Mr. Kean looked remarkably well, and the applause which he received was long and continued, he seemed to feel and acknowledge the warmth of his welcome.
—Canadian Courant.

SHUBENACADIE CANAL.—The tenders of Mr. Kidd, a gentleman from Upper Canada have been accepted by the Directors for cutting the 2nd section of this enterprise. Mr. Hall has been engaged to direct and superintend the work as Engineer. Operations will be commenced immediately after the arrival of his Excellency the Earl of Dalhousie.

HALIFAX, SATURDAY, JULY 8.

CONGRESS OF GOVERNORS.

It is said that the Duke of Manchester—Sir Howard Doughs—Governor Ready—Sir T. Cochrane—and several other Governors will be here at the same time with the Earl of Dalhousie. They are expected this month, with their respective suites. The meeting of so many of the first persons of distinction in the British Colonies, will quite change the character for dullness which has been bestowed upon summers in Halifax; and, indeed, from the Races, Regatta, and the numerous balls which are to be given in the course of the next two months, we may expect scenes of pleasure such as have seldom been equaled in this place.

The building of a Government-House has been commenced at Fredricton:—The Corner Stone was laid on the 1st inst. by His Excellency Sir Howard Douglas, who delivered a very appropriate Speech upon the occasion.—Halifax 12 July.

A letter dated Bras d'or June 20, states that May 29, lat. 47. long. 48, 30, ½ past 10, A. M.—the brig General Brock, of Jersey, Captain P. Lands, bound for Gaspé was run down by a brig unknown—3 of the crew got on board the strange brig, one went down with the wreck, and 14, including the master, and P. Duval, clerk to the house of Messrs. Janvrin, took to the long boat, without water or food, excepting a small Dutch cheese—saw the vessel founder instantly. In this truly dreadful situation, the unfortunate survivors were compelled to sustain themselves on the bodies and blood of those who fell victims to fatigue and hunger, until the 9th of June; when the master, mate and six seamen, were taken up by the brig Ann, of Liverpool, Capt. Forbes, subsequent to which, the master and three seamen unfortunately perished, notwithstanding the kindest attention. The mate and three remaining seamen were landed in a most deplorable state. Poor Duval expired on the 5th day after quitting the vessel, and the remaining wretches suffered his body to remain for twelve hours. Capt. Forbes treated the unhappy sufferers with the greatest attention, whilst on board his vessel; and the mate has nearly recovered, and proceeded from hence to Arichat; but the three poor seamen are not yet able to walk. The vessel that ran them down was a stout brig steering about E. S. E.

HALIFAX, JULY 11.

SYDNEY, June 21 1826.—The following circumstances relative to the loss of the General Brock, have been given by the Mate, who is now in this place, and which I beg you will insert for the information of those concerned. I am &c. P. H. CLARKE, Agent for Lloyd's.

On the 29th of May, at half past twelve, A. M the Brig General Brock, of Jersey, for Gaspé, was run down by a brig—there were 18 persons on board, 3 jumped on board the brig, and one was left on the vessel, Joseph Horner; the men who left the brig, were Thomas Mallet, James Perrims and Philip Parther; 14 took the long boat—they saw the vessel go down instantly in lat. 47, 50, N. Long. 48, 30, W. they were in the boat 10 days, during which period perished Philip Duval, a Clerk to Messrs. Janvrin, Francis Chevalier, (Cooper,) Philip Serrat, Clement Renoufe, Elies Nebrant, George Brown.—The five first days, they were without food or watter save a small Dutch Cheese; on the sixth day, cut and eat part of one who died the night previous, continued to subsist on human Flesh, and drank the blood with their own urine mixed with salt water, till the afternoon of the 8th June, when they were run down on, and taken on board the brig Ann of Liverpool, D. Forbes, master who took on board 8 persons including Captain Mate and six men, of whom died, Capt. P. Land, Edward Luce, Charles Myers, Francis Leman. The Survivors are the Mate Elias Laudans, Joseph Powel, John Dobart William Hughes who has suffered much from inaniti n, and the effect of cold feet they being frost-bitten, ulcreated, &c. they arrived at the Brass d'Or on the 19th June.

The Newfoundland School Society, during the two years of its existance, has sent out to that Island from Great Britain, 5 schoolmasters, 4 mistresses, and a monitor, who are now, by their united labors in daily and Sunday schools, dispensing the blessings of education among at least 1100 scholars, children and adults. The whole population of the island is estimated at 90,000.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

Some time in the year 1823, Col. John M'Kay an indefatigible mechanic, residing in Pictou, having observed in one of the public papers that a Gold Ceres Medal valued at £100 sterling offered by the Society of Arts, &c. in London, for the best method, verified by actual experience, for raising the stumps and roots of trees from off new land, immediately communicated the following plan which he had invented and which had been successfully used by several persons in Pictou. The Society approved of the same, and Mr. M'Kay received by the Henry Arnot, which arrived at Pictou from Liverpool a few weeks since, the Gold Medal with the 43d vol. of the transactions of the above society.—We have great pleasure in giving publicity to Mr. M'Kay's letter, and his plan of operation.

Pictou, Nova Scotia Dec. 15, 1823.

TO ARTHUR AIKIN, Esquire, Secretary to the Society of Arts, Adelphi, London.

SIR—In consequence of a notification in the Gazette of this Province, that the Society of Arts in London, have offered a premium to the person, who shall invent and discover to the society, the best method verified by actual experience, of raising out of the earth, and removing the stumps and roots of trees, which have been left after felling the timber. I have been induced to communicate to you the following mode; which I trust you will have the goodness to commit to the society. As in the clearing of woodlands, the extirpation of stumps and roots is the most laborious part of the process, it has of course been the subject of much attention, in this quarter of the globe. In British America the ordinary method of clearing land is to allow the stumps to remain for a number of years, according to the size; during this period the smaller fibres gradually decay, and the root itself is each year removed a little from its original position, by the intensity of the frost. When the farmer judges that time has so far produced a decay, as to render the removal of the stumps and roots practicable by the usual means, he pitches upon the spring of the year, when the soil has been loosened by the returning heat, and with the assistance of four or five men and a couple of pair of oxen he affects his purpose; the oxen are fastened by a chain to the top of a stump, and when the removal of it exceeds their strength, the men are employed in aiding them by leavers, or in cutting off the larger roots which are afterwards taken out by themselves. Here it may be observed that though the softness of the ground produces a considerable saving of power, there is much lost on the part of the oxen from want of a firm footing, and also in the lever, as a very small pressure forces its fulcrum into the soil; besides it frequently happens that the fulcrum by resting upon the roots deprives the lever of much of its power. The block and tackle have been sometimes employed but their use is both laborious and expensive. I at one time imagined that a purchase cart (such as is employed in His Majesty's Naval Yard) might be used with advantage. It is however is no respect different from the lever, and in the spring when the ground is soft the sinking of the wheels would render it inconvenient. The following is I believe the cheapest and most effectual method, which has yet been employed in this part of the world.

In 1821 I had purchased a field of ten acres, from which, in the course of the winter, I cut down and removed the timber as it was a natural forest. The trees of course were of various sizes, the largest I think were about thirty inches diameter. Having a ship's winch at that time in my possession, it occurred to me to use it for clearing my field, and the result far exceeded my expectations. With the assistance of four men I found myself able to raise on an average eighty stumps a day, and with them every root which could impede the progress of the plough; after they are removed from the bed, they must be in the ordinary way cleared of the adhering earth, collected into piles, and destroyed by burning. Mr. David Crichton, a gentleman of this place, encouraged by my success was induced to adopt the same mode, and in the space of six days cleared a field containing three acres, in which the timber was such as I have mentioned.—This method I am satisfied might be generally used with advantage, the expence of the whole apparatus does not exceed twenty pounds, and with moderate care would last as many years. In clearing my field I pitched upon a piece about the size of an acre, in the middle of which, I brought the winch and fastened it to the largest stump: from the barrel of the winch a chain proceeded which extended to the farthermost stump in the place, that was of the size usually attached to a winch when it is used in vessels. I had also provided myself with a number of shorter chains, having each a ring in one end and a hook on the other, by passing the hook through the ring, these were fixed to the stumps, nearest to that which the chain of the winch was attached; and when it was raised these chains were in succession hooked to the leader, so that the winch was employed without interruption till the nearest stump was extracted. In clearing my field five hands were engaged, two at the winch, two at fixing the chains, and one at the stump to be raised; when the stump was large those who attended the chains occasionally assisted in turning the winch. It would only further observe that, when the stumps are of a large size, what is commonly called a Snatch Block might be used to advantage.

I have the honor to be Sir, with great respect,
your ob't. servant,
JOHN M'KAY.

The U. E. Loyalist.

YORK, U. C. SATURDAY, AUGUST 12, 1826.

THE Packet Ship, Columbia, arrived at New York on 31, July, bringing London Papers to 13, June. A Supplement to the Albion contains a few extracts from them which we have copied. The list of members returned to the latest dates, to serve in the Imperial Parliament is given in our columns to day. There is no other news of any importance.

The new Steam Boat, Canada, Capt. Richardson, made her first trip, to Niagara on Monday last, and went out of the harbour in fine Style. Her appearance reflects much credit on her builder Mr. Joseph Dennis, and the Machinery, manufactured by Messrs. Wards, of Montreal, is a specimen of superior workmanship. The combined excellence of the model and machinery of this Boat are such, as will render her what is usually termed a "fast boat." The trip to Niagara was performed in four hours and some minutes. Her present route we observe is advertised from York to Niagara and the Head of the Lake.

In noticing this first trip of another Steam Boat, we cannot help contrasting the present means of conveyance, with those ten years ago. At that time only a few Schooners navigated the Lake, and the passage was attended with many delays and much inconvenience. Now there are five Steam Boats, all affording excellent accommodation, and the means of expeditious travelling. The routes of each are so arranged that almost every day of the week the traveller may find opportunities of being conveyed from one extremity of the Lake to the other in a few hours.

The Niagara and Queenston from Prescott, and the Frontenac from Kingston, once a week, and the Canada and Martha Ogden, between York, Niagara and the Head of the Lake every day, afford facilities of communication which the most sanguine could scarcely have anticipated at the period we speak of. Independent of these Boats it must be mentioned that the Cornwall on Lake St. Louis, makes a trip every day from Coteau du Lac, to Cornwall—the Dalhousie runs between Prescott and Kingston twice a week and conveys the Mail—the Charlotte and Toronto once a week from Presqu'ile Head of the Bay of Quinty; thus affording to every part of the Country the same advantages of convenient intercourse.

There are some of the evidences of improvement among us during the few last years, which require no comment—they speak for themselves, and it must be pretty evident from such facts as these, that those who can not, or will not see the progress we are making, must be wilfully blind.

Among the Public Edifices now erecting, and advertised as intended to be erected in Upper Canada, the following may be enumerated:—

A Gaol and Court House, and Protestant Episcopal Church at Kingston, in the Midland District.

A Gaol and Court House and Parliament House at the Seat of Government at York, in the Home District.

A Gaol and Court House at Hamilton, and a Church at Dundas in the Gore District.

A Gaol and Court House at London, in the London District.

The Buildings of the Law Society at York, it is said, will also be soon commenced, and applications are to be made at the next Session of Parliament, for a New Gaol and Court House in the New-Castle District, and for the erection of a Toll Bridge by the inhabitants of Kingston, to connect that Town with the Military and Naval Depots on Point Frederick and Henry.

The Steam Boat Niagara, Capt. Mosier, arrived in Port on Monday last from Prescott via. Niagara. On going on board it afforded us much pleasure to find that her cargo consisted in part of sixty Hogsheads of Leaf Tobacco for the Montreal Market, the produce of the Western part of the Province. The cultivation of this article of consumption is attracting the attention of the farmers in the western District, and a large quantity of it will be offered in the Market this year. The next Season it will be very much increased. The soil and climate of that part of the Province is represented as being well adapted to the growth of the Tobacco plant, and the enterprize which is exhibited to secure the advantages thus held out, gives fair promise, that the article will, before long, be added to the list of the staple productions of our country, and afford not only a sufficient supply for home consumption, but also form an important item in the schedule of Canadian exports.

The whole of the Desjardin's Canal Stock, is taken up, five per cent of which is paid in, and a meeting is called for appointing Directors on 16th

September next, immediately after which we understand the necessary steps will be taken for commencing the work. The Canal is intended to connect the Town of Dundas with the Burlington Lake, from whence a communication is afforded into Lake Ontario, by the Burlington Canal, through which vessels are now passing and repassing.

The late rains it appears have done some trifling damage to certain parts of the work on the Welland Canal. These have been rather industriously misrepresented by the Niagara Editor of the Gleaner, but have met with a reply from the most satisfactory quarter, as will be seen from the following extract, from the St. Catharines Farmers' Journal of the 24 inst. The subject requires no comment on our part, as Mr. Lewis's Letter contains an explanation of the whole affair, and shows that the Gleaner has made "erroneous calculations" in this respect, as well as some others, notwithstanding the boast of his "experimental knowledge."

"Mr. Heron says, in his last No.— To represent things as they really are, shall be our constant aim.' And in the same column we find the following article, which, we conclude, he intends as a fair specimen of veracity. The refutation, which appears below, was handed to us without solicitation:

'On the 21st inst. we had a copious fall of rain for a few hours. We have been told that the current produced thereby poured down from the Highlands through the 12 mile creek; that it overflowed the works there, and filled up the excavation made for the purpose of erecting the locks at the mouth of that creek, to the depth of 8 feet. One of the Managers stated to a gentleman of our acquaintance, that it would take $600 to repair the damage and pump out the water.'

Mr. Editor,

It is stated in the Gleaner of the 29th ult. that it would take $600 to pump out the water and repair the damage at the locks at the mouth of the harbor. I have contracted for the building of the lock at this place, and the damage sustained by me, did not exceed five dollars!"

Yours, MARSHAL LEWIS.

Mr. Blanchard of the Royal Circus, from Quebec, with his Company of Equestrian Performers, have been affording amusement to the people of York during the last week. The Performances have been such as to give much satisfaction, and entitle Mr. Blanchard to support during his short stay here, and as the opportunity of witnessing the extraordinary feats of horsemanship which are exhibited by the Company are of rare occurrence, we have no doubt many will be induced to visit the Circus, where they will find an ample entertainment provided for them by the attention of Mr. Blanchard.

Died,

On the 8th ult. at Londonderry, Ireland, Samuel Comming, at the advanced age of 112 years. He existed in 1781, in the 33d regiment of foot; and was one of the first selected gunners from that corps to the Royal Artillery, in which capacity he served 34 years. He was at the first battle fought in America, under General Cumberland; he also served in various other campaigns, with the most distinguished bravery, and was engaged in the suppressing of lord George Gordon's riot, in London. His having received pay under three kings, is a remarkable circumstance; and the amount of pension which he has received from Government, since his being discharged as unfit for service, is said to have been £1200 do.

POSTSCRIPT

Canada Land Company.—From information which we derive from a source in which we place the fullest confidence, we learn the following particulars of the arrangement ultimately made between His Majesty's Government and the Company. It appears that objections were made to transferring the Church property, Clergy Reserves, by sale to the Company; and it has therefore been agreed, that the Company shall take the Crown Reserves at their original valuation by the Commissioners; and in lieu of the Clergy Reserves, the Government cedes one million acres of unappropriated lands in the London District. One third of the purchase money the Government consents shall be expended for making and repairing roads, bridges, &c.; but whether for the benefit of the roads and bridges throughout the province, or for those connected with the Company's purchase merely, we are not certain. This is the posture of affairs as we now understand it to be, and therefore anticipate a speedy commencement of the company's plans, upon an extensive scale. We have reason to think that a land office for the sale of the company's purchases, in small lots, will be opened in New York, which would have the effect of drawing many British emigrants to Canada, who are frequently undecided as to the course they will steer on their arrival at this port.—*N. PROCLAMATION.

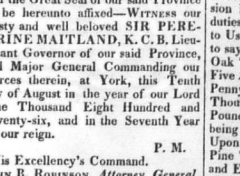
GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors, of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province; to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on Monday the Fourteenth day of August inst. to be Commenced, Held, Called, and Elected, and to every of you GREETING



WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Twenty-seventh day of June last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the Fourteenth day of August instant, at which time, at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear.

NOW KNOW YE, that we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents enjoining you and each of you that on Thursday the Twenty-first day of September next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this Tenth day of August in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-six, and in the Seventh Year of our Reign.

UPPER CANADA.
P. MAITLAND,
Lieut. Governor.

GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To all to whom these Presents shall come GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the parts of this Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. We have thought fit to order and direct, and We do hereby order and direct that, until Our pleasure herein shall be further made known, it shall and may be lawful for all Our Subjects inhabiting Our Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada, freely to enter into Our Woods and Forests in such parts of Our said Province of Upper Canada, situate along the Banks of the River Ottawa, or upon the Banks of the Waters running into the said River and within a convenient distance from the same, as shall not have been Surveyed and divided into Concessions and Lots, and to Cut and carry away such Oak and Pine Timber as may be fit for the purposes of Exportation.

Provided always, nevertheless, That in consideration of the authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties herein-after specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Red Pine Timber, Four Pounds Three Shillings and Four Pence, being at the rate of One Penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Yellow Pine Timber, Two Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence, being at the rate of One Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commission under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places upon the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointed as aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has attained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons, properly authorised by or under Our Licences granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS Our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this third day of May in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-Six, and in the Seventh Year of Our Reign.

Executive Council Office,
York, 23rd March, 1826

NOTICE is hereby given, by ORDER of His EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, in COUNCIL, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a regular Council day.

JOHN SMALL,
No. 9 1. f. C. E. C.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepard in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s. 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hunded Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant. It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may 'immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessarry expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

THE TREASURES OF THE DEEP.

BY CAMPBELL.

What hid'st thou in thy treasure caves and cells?
Thou hollow sounding and mysterious Main!
Pale glistening pearls, and rainbow color'd shells,
Bright things which gleam unreck'd of, and in vain,
Keep, keep thy riches, melancholy sea!
We ask not such of thee.

[untold!

Yet more, the Depths have more! What wealth
Far down and shining through the stillness lies!
Thou hast the starry gems, the burning gold,
Won from the toun thousand royal Argosies [Main!
—Sweep o'er thy spoils, thou wind and wrathful
Earth claims not those again!

Yet more, the Depths have more!—Thy Waves have roll'd
Above the cities of a world gone by!
Sand hath filled up the palaces of old,
Sea-weeds o'er grown the halls of revelry!
—Dash o'er them, Ocean, in thy scornful play,
Man yields them to decay!

Yet more! the billows of the Deptha have more!
High hearts and brave are gather'd to thy breast!
They hear not now the booming waters roar,
The battle thunders will not break their rest,
Keep thy red gold and gems, thou stormy grave,
Give back the true and brave!

Give back the lost and lovely!—those for whom
The place was kept at board and hearth so long!
The prayer went up through midnight's breathless gloom,
And yearning wakes yearning woke 'midst festal song!
Hold fast thy buried isles, thy towers o'erthrown,
But all is not thy own!

To thee the love of woman hath gone down,
Dark flows thy tide o'er manhoods noble head,
O'er youth's bright locks and beauty's flowry crown;
Yet must thou hear a voice—Restore the dead!
Earth shall reclaim her precious things from thee;
Restore the dead, thou Sea!

Enter Doctor.—Bows stiffly to the Company—lights his cigar, and seats himself apart

Magenis.—Come, tip us a song, Stanley.

Stan.—With pleasure.

Song.—Stanley.

Land of the olive! arouse ye! awaken!
Let the sons from their slumber ignoble be shaken!
Let the standard of freedom float light in the breeze
From famed Matagorda to proud Peyrenees!

Shall bigotry still in its fetters impose?
That hydra of discord—that source of thy woes!
Shall Gallia's base legions defile there again,
And Iberia with Albion have conquered in vain?

Oh! think of Mondnco, Lequitio, Barossa,
Estella, Busaco, Madrid, Saragossa!
Oh! think of Romana, the good and the brave!
Did he die a dastard! did he live a slave!

Then arouse ye! awaken! 'tis Mina implores!
Ay, Mina, an exile and far from your shores!
'Tis Mina commands, who has fought, who has slain,
Who has conquered before, who will lead ye again!

Mag.—Wa'nt Morcandotti at Cadiz, Magennis?

Mag.—To be sure, with F——, you know—her father, as it turns out. That Spanish girl who followed G——, was remark ably like her. Poor G——! he fell like a fine fellow as he was at Vittoria.

Chipcase.—You'd sharp work there!

Stan.—You may say that. It was the first affair of consequence I was concerned in. To be sure we had a slight skirmish at Ounnan on the 19th but nothing to speak of. On the 21st, however, things began to look more serious. We were ordered to leave our tents standing, and the baggage in the rear, a sure sign that work was cut out for us, and there would be wings upon the green before evening. It was then I began to reflect seriously on the profession I had chosen, and the responsibility it imposed upon me. I had now to discharge its most important duties, to fulfil them to the best of my ability, and above all, to face for the first time, that enemy I had so long, so ardently desired to encounter. To these other thoughts succeeded. Thoughts of home, kindred, friends. My mother's parting look came fresh in my memory, and when I reflected how soon its forebodings might be verified, I confess it unmanned me. A man may boast as he will, he may say, as I have heard many, that he would rather go into action than sit down to breakfast, but—

Mag.—All fudge, my darling, all fudge. No man ever went into the field yet, who did'nt feel a kind of a sort of so—He'll do his duty though, for all that

Chip.—To be sure, the desire for sport, you know.

Stan.—I seem to predominate, and it was under the influence of this feeling that I marched on with the most feverish impatience. Every minute seemed an hour, every league a donza, the shortest halt was tortuous, and I am sure I consigned the artillery to old Nick at least a thousand times whenever they delayed us. At length, after the most tedious march I ever made, we reached the wished-for point, and halted about nine in the morning on the heights above Gamara, a small village occupied by the enemy, and forming the extreme right of his position. Large masses of infantry were plainly distinguishable. We were now ordered to hide our numbers, while a Spanish brigade descended and dislodged the enemy, a movement I contrived to effect by making very anxious, as you may imagine, to scan the foe, and obtain a specimen of his powers. It was a pretty sight to see the skirmishers retiring gradually through the corn, turning every now and then to discharge their rifles, and at length amalgamating with the main body.

Chip.—Did the attack succeed?

Stan.—No, I should have been surprised if it had. The wonder is not that the Spaniards were so constantly defeated, but that they should in a single instance have succeeded. Individually, they're brave—

Mag.—Oh! as lions, Sir—as lions. Sure they only wanted arms, pay, clothes, and officers to make the finest troops in the world, Sir. In petty warfare now, they are just the thing, and as Guerrillas—poor Mina, here's better luck to him.

Chip.—Then the Dons were repulsed?

Stan.—They were, Sir, and, encouraged with great loss to the very verge of our position. A momentary triumph, however—the enemy had no reason to boast of it. Whether they had no idea we were up, or understood our numbers, I cannot determine, but certain it is, they seemed panic-struck at our appearance, and without waiting to exchange a single shot, or offer the slightest resistance, fled with as much precipitation as the Spaniards had before. Ere they could recover themselves, the post was won. We pushed them completely beyond Gamara and established ourselves.

Chip.—They rallied no doubt?

Stan.—Oh! almost immediately, Sir—almost immediately; and during the rest of the day made repeated and desperate efforts to dislodge us, but finding them vain, and that the centre and left wing of their army were in full retreat they desisted at nightfall, and left us in peaceable possession of our conquest. I can scarce define my feeling throughout the business. The charge from the heights was a perfect frolic, and I can say for myself I never enjoyed it—never Sir! our leading platoons, you must know, fell, from over-eagerness, into a hollow lane—six, six or seven feet deep, at least; those who followed fell upon them again, and so on, till the most whimsical confusion ensued. Luckily the enemy were too much alarmed to take advantage of it, otherwise the accident might have been more serious. Indeed, as it was, they sent a few random shots among us, but nothing to speak of.

Mag.—They showed you some sport though, I take it, when they attempted to regain the village!

Stan.—Aye, faith! there came the tug, Sir! beyond the length of my opposite neighbour, Tamana stood a small observatory pierced with loop holes, from which the French tirailleurs annoyed us exceedingly. Our company was, in consequence, commanded to dislodge them. Thrice we were beaten across to the very threshold of the building, and as often were we driven back with immense loss.—Fresh troops on both sides were continually brought up, incredible efforts were made, and the fight waged with unexampled fury. The commander in General, a tremendous fine fellow certainly, on a grey charger, and covered with orders. He was eminently conspicuous, and displayed the greatest gallantry. Poor fellow! twice we came to clear a passage for the artillery in the evening, we found him beneath a mountain of slain, cold inanimate, useless, bereft of honours, and condemned to rot. But still his brow was beat, his eye unquenched, his hand still grasped the bloody fragment of his sabre, and he was terrible even in death. You had sharper work though, on the right Magnosais; the affair at Gamara was a mere skirmish to it.

Mag.—Why, faith! I was disabled the first fire, and know mighty little about it. They put me up on a horse in the evening, I remember, and led me into the town, and such a scene!—Oh! murder! murder! sure if I were to live the thousand yeHrs the Spaniards were to reign now, I'd never forget it.

Chip.—Great slaughter I suppose?

Mag.—You never saw the like! bothered as I was my cursed wound troubled me—I could'nt help smiling it. There was wives by paira, and sisters, and cassons, and carriages and paspers, and cannon, and nusquets, and wine casks, and the Lord knows what beside, Sir, all mixed up together in the most diabolical confusion imaginable. Here you might catch a glimpse at one's mamma's scrawl, staring along from corpse to corpse like a hungry wolf. There the dead, the dying and the drunken lay in horrible confraternity; an intoxicated Englishman, perhaps, embracing a deceased Frenchman, holding a canteen to his livid lips, and cursing him for a milksop because he would'nt drink. Dollars too, were as plenty as black berries. Many a one's wife made her fortune that evening, and had reason to bless the good-looking day that King Joseph scampered off, and left his military chest behind him.

CAPTAIN FRANKLIN'S EXPEDITION.

The following is an extract of a private letter:—

Dear Sir,—I gladly embrace the opportunity of Capt. Franklin's despatch to make you acquainted, agreeably to your desire, with our progress in this country. I arrived here on the 10th of last month, and in a few days afterwards proceeded with a boat and crew to coast the northern shores of this Lake, for the purpose of ascertaining the most proper place for depositing a boat or canoe, to shorten the land journey of my small party next Season, should it be so fortunate as to reach the Coppermine by sea from Mackenzie's River. After an absence of nearly three weeks, I have cursorily surveyed the North-west, North, and North-east parts of the lake, which runs beyond the 67th degree of North latitude, and abounds in deep bays and arms, one of which, most happily for us runs to longitude 119. 04 W. in lat. 66. 53, within 70 miles of the nearest bend of the Coppermine River, and not above 85 miles from the junction of that stream with the Arctic Sea. Bear Lake is above 160 miles long, in a straight line; our present residence, which is at its South-Western extremity, being in latitude 65, 10. and longitude 123. 33. W., so that a land journey round its bays, &c. would exceed 300 miles, which will be saved by my party in a canoe being deposited at its eastern extremity next summer.

I have not obtained any certain information respecting the sea to the westward of the Coppermine River, nor the hostility of the Indians encountered in go several days' march to the north of this lake, having either seen it, or the Esquimaux which inhabit its shores From this circumstance I am rather inclined to suppose, that there is a Cape jutting out pretty far to the north, between the Mackenzie and Coppermine Rivers. If such a Cape exists, and is the land seen by Capt. Parry to the southward of Melville Island, or approaches near to it, may, by procuring accumulations of ice, interpose a serious obstacle to Parry's Ships, should they attempt the passage to the southward of Melville Island; but I do not apprehend that we shall be prevented from proceeding down the coast in a boat, if we are at all favored by the weather, and the channels which usually occur between the more fixed ice and the shore. Indeed, I am more than ever convinced that there is, in some season at least, a drift (if not every year,) to the north-east, of the polar wood which we found on the former voyage must have come from Mackenzie's River, there being no trees of that kind to the northward of Bear Lake nor on the banks of any River that flows into the Arctic Sea to the eastward. The Indians that have visited the Sea at the mouth of Mackenzie's River report that there is open water in some years only to the eastward, although it is four or five years since the last visit of the Esquimaux.

A poor woman who lived near Ballymote, having occasion to wash clothes in a river near her house, left an infant in a cradle under the care of another child about five years old: during her absence, the child of five years old, at the arm of the infant across, from which the blood was issuing profusely when the terrified mother returned; who, seeing what had been done, and smug with rage at the conduct of the child, struck the unfortunate boy the wash staff she held in her hand, and deprived it of life. Her madness was now changed into despair; and determined not to survive her children, she hastened to a lake, in which she flung herself, and was soon delivered from her earthly misery. Before any assistance could be afforded to the infant, it died from the excessive discharge of blood.

ENGLAND.

Mr. Randolph arrived at Liverpool on the 14th of June, and on the 15th accompanied Mr. Huskisson, with about 400 other gentlemen, on a steam boat excursion. Mr. R. appeared highly gratified with the attention which was paid to him. He sat near Mr. Huskisson, and conversed with him for some time.

The health of His Majesty was drunk with three times three, after which Mr. Huskisson's health was given, and was received in a manner which must have convinced him of the high estimation in which he is held by his constituents. Mr. H. spoke at length' and then turning thanks for the honor which had been done to him, adverted, in terms of the warmest praise, to the institutions of Great Britain; he then spoke of Cobbett, and said, that he considered that Cobbett had qualified himself for a seat in the British House of Commons, in the same way that some of the fair sex became qualified for a situation in a Magdalen Asylum.

The courier of the 17th says, many rumors are afloat as to the future lessees of Drury Lane Theatre, among others the name of Mr. Price of the New York Theatre is mentioned. But the editor says he has the authority of Mr. P. to state, that he has made no offer for the property.

Lethbridge, cried out, 'down with Hunt! down with the vagabond!'

Mr. Hunt then again attempted to read the letter, but again a clamour prevented him. The Sheriff, however, procured silence, having obtained the assurance that the whole of the letter should be read. Mr. Hunt then read the letter, which contained some insinuations against Mr. Messiter, and declared that from a variety of circumstances, that gentleman was not fit to be treasurer of the county. The letter was subscribed 'J. Knaggs,' and the moment it was concluded, the strongest indignation was expressed by Messiter's friends, and correspondng applause by Hunt's.

The Sheriff said the reason he had consented to have the letter read was, that he understood Mr. Hunt to describe it as a public matter, and as referring to the subject on which they were assembled.

Mr. Hunt said it had the strongest reference to what was going on in the county. Mr. Messiter having constantly a great deal of the county money in his hands.

Several of Mr. Messiter's friends rose the moment the letter was concluded, and asked Mr. Hunt for the letter.

'No, no,' said Mr. Hunt, 'I'll not let you see it; I know you to well; you have said fifty things against me, and I never asked for originals or for copies. [Loud shouts of disapprobation, and cries of 'its all a lie.'] I have no objection to let the Sheriff read the letter if he'll promise to return it to me.'

The Sheriff—Certainly; I shall return it to you.

Mr. Hunt then handed the letter to the Sheriff, who gave it to the under Sheriff to read.

Mr. Messiter said he had shown already, that all that the contemptible fellow near him had said was a tissue of falsehood.

Mr. Hunt—Aye, aye, now for the gentleman.— (Laughter.)

A gentleman who stood upon the table said, 'Hunt you ruffian, you know all you have been saying and writing is false. You know it Hunt; I'll go over the water with you, where you invited us yesterday.'

Mr. Hunt—Baa! baa! bam! [Roars of laughter.]

Mr. Messiter said it had been admitted that his accounts were as free from error as his accuser was destitute of honor and principle. [Cheers and hisses.] He denied any man to detect an error of one farthing in his accounts, although the contemptible fellow had endeavoured to set his levelling foot upon his character. [Cheers and groans.] Vouchers and certificates had been sent to him, and testimonials had been heaped upon him, to the effect that he had performed his duty with the utmost correctness. His accuracy had in fact—and he spoke in no exaggerated terms—excited the astonishment of all who had taken the trouble to examine his accounts.

Mr. Messiter—All this concurrence in the correctness of my accounts falls with tenfold force upon the head of this villainous fellow. [Loud tumult and roars of 'Hunt forever.'] I have just heard of this Kimcar; he was found guilty of a conspiracy, and confined in Ilchester gaol, where he became Hunt's pot companion, and they there fabricated the letter together which have no foundation.

Mr. Hunt desired Mr. Messiter to look to his rag shop, in allusion to his banking house, and made some other allusions of a ludicrous nature to the treasurer's profession.

Mr. Messiter said, in conclusion, that he despised Mr. Hunt's vengeance, and that he was not afraid to look in a rogue's face.

Mr. Hunt—Nor, indeed, had some experience when you used to sit with your brother Dick. [Laughter, groans and hisses.]

Mr. Messiter—In fact, it is like fighting with a sweep to contend with Hunt; a man gets besmeared all over; and if there is any one in the world more despicable, he ought to be sent to the devil. [Roars of Laughter; in which Hunt and all his party, and the Sheriff, and in fact every body in Court joined.]

Mr. Hunt—Now, my lads, give three cheers.

The Hunters gave them in the hist, and the moment their favourite left the Court, followed him, cheering loudly, and crying 'Hunt forever.'

The friends of the other candidates then gave three tremendous cheers for Mr. Dickinson and Sir Thomas Lethbridge, the Magistrates and the Sheriff. It is but justice to the Sheriff to say, that he has shown in every stage of this tumultuous affair, the most unbiasing impartiality.

The business of to-morrow is expected to be extremely interesting.

SOMERSETSHIRE ELECTION.

Ilchester, Tuesday June 20.

At five o'clock the poll-books were closed. The numbers which appeared upon the day's poll were, Dickinson, 208; Lethbridge, 653; Hunt, 84. The gross poll was as follows: Dickinson, 667; Lethbridge, 632; Hunt, 148.

Before the state of the poll was made known, a most extraordinary scene took place in the Courthouse.

Mr. Hunt drew a letter from his pocket, and said as Mr. Messiter, the Treasurer of the county rates, was present, he would read it for the information of the freeholders. He made several statements relative to the county rates and Mr. Messiter's conduct in his office, which were confirmatory of those statements. He could prove that the treasurer was not qualified to fill the situation he held, and this letter would prove the fact. [Loud tumult, and cries of 'read the name' 'give us the name Hunt.']

Mr. Hunt said they should have the name after they had heard the letter read. [The noise of disapprobation and tumult was overpowering.]

Mr. Messiter stood upon the table and said, 'I beg you will hear out this pitiful fellow and I shall answer him precisely.' [Laughter, cheers, and hisses.]

LIVERPOOL, June 17.

Our election, thank Heaven, is over, and the effervescence of popular feeling among the part of our townsmen, excited by the erroneous impressions which had prevailed respecting the conduct and opinions of Mr. Huskisson, in relation to the combination laws, is fast subsiding before the explanations that have been given.

We apprehend Mr. Huskisson's time has been much occupied, since the election, with the commercial affairs of his constituents. On Wednesday, after a very long discussion at the Ship Owners' Association, upon the present depressed state of the shipping interests of the country, they resolved on a deputation being appointed to confer with Mr. Huskisson and the other official gentlemen now in town; for which purpose Mr. Brocklebank, Mr. Wm. Smith, and Mr. Mortimer, were elected to represent the shipowners.

The Dukes of Lennox, (Richmond) Argyle and Montrose, the Marquis of Lothian, and Dumblaine, took the oaths of allegiance and supremacy, previous to voting at the election of Scotch Representative Peers.

The numbers at Preston, on the 21st June were:—Stanly 1470, Capt. Barrie 830, Wood 907, Cobbett 658. On the 6th day of the poll Cobbett proposed to coalese with Capt. Barrie, provided he would withhold the oath of supremacy from the electors—this was refused and the Cobbettites were outragious, but he continues to fall behind. Capt. Barrie is the acting Commissioner at the Naval Yard at Kingston, Upper Canada.

Liverpool, June 17.—Ashes, Canada pots 1st new, 32s. a 23s. 8d.; Canada Pearls 1st 24s. a 25s.; Wheat, Canadian old 70lbs. 8s. a 8s. 6d.; Flour, Canadian, duty paid, 30s. a 32s; Oils, elder oil 42s. 6d. at the arm of the infant across, from which the blood was issuing profusely when the terrified mother returned; who, seeing what had been done, and stung with rage at the conduct of the child, struck the unfortunate boy the wash staff she held in her hand, and deprived it of life. Mr. Wood also made a speech of some length. The only new feature was an attack on Capt. Barrie, for using in his processions the national naval flags, under whose triumphant undertakings he (the gallant Captain) fought and conquered the national enemy.

Cobbett stated, at eight o'clock, his intention to remove to a neighbouring seaport town, to count in every evening, and to expend no more money.

GREEK AFFAIRS.

AUSTRIA.

VIENNA, May 25.

The Turkish accounts of the capture of Missolonghi admit the correctness of a report, that the disaster to the Greeks was in a great measure owing to the misconduct of the Greek Naval Commanders, who preferred the more profitable, but piratical operation of plundering European ships, than attempting to relieve their suffering fellow-countrymen in the garrison.

The letter circulated by the Greek Agent in London, dated 17th February in which he announced, that there had been a change in the policy of Russia on the subject of the Greeks, and that she would co-operate with England in their favor, was equally deceptive as the numerous anonymous articles which have so often been palmed on the public sympathy and credulity. It is sufficient on this subject, to say, that the cause of the Greeks made no part of the Russian Ultimatum.

GREECE.

By the brig Trent, which arrived at New-York, on the 1st August, in 33 days from Havre, we were favoured with papers of that place to the 21st, and from Paris to the 18th June inclusive.

The Greek Committee at Paris, have received intelligence that the Greeks under the command of Ulcetas, entered Tripolitza on the 18th of May. The efforts of Ibrahim to succour that place, were wholly unavailing, and he had returned to Patras after suffering considerable losses.

Gen. Roche has addressed the Greek Committee at Paris the following documents:

Resolutions of the Eighth National Assembly at Epidaurus.

"His Excellency the British Ambassador at Constantinople, is requested to treat for peace between the Ottoman Porte and the Greeks, on the following conditions, viz:

1. No Turk shall be permitted to inhabit the Grecian Territory, nor to hold any property in Greece.

2. All the fortresses in the possession of the Turks shall be given up to the Greeks.

3. The Sultan shall have no influence on the internal organization of country, nor on the Clergy.

4. The Greeks to have a sufficient force for the safety of the interior, and a marine for the protection of its commerce.

5. That they shall be governed by the same regulations and enjoy the same rights in the Peloponesus, the continent of Greece, the islands of Ionica, Candia and the Archipelago, and in all the Provinces that have taken up arms, and that have been incorporated in the Greek Government.

6. That the articles mentioned in the present act, cannot be changed by the Ambassador, nor by the Commission named by the National Assembly to correspond with the Ambassador.

8. The Greeks shall preserve their own flag.

8. They shall have the right to coin money.

9. The amount of tribute shall be fixed, and the mode of payment be annual or be in full.

10. That a truce shall be granted. And in case of the refusal of the Porte to accede to these proposals, the commission may address themselves to any or all the powers of Europe to ask aid and protection, and may act as they shall judge most proper for the interests of Greece."

(Here follow the names of the Commissioners appointed under the resolutions.)

Prince Ypsilanti, under date of April 24th, protests against the above act of the Government. "In taking the resolution to ask the exclusive intervention of the English Ambassador to arrange the affairs of Greece, the National Assembly, (he says) departs from its duties, and is wanting in the object of its union. It was not to annul the independence of Greece, but to consolidate and perpetuate it, that the nation confided to you its full powers. Does the fall of Missolonghi frighten you?—confide as in the beginning of the struggle, to the well known bravery and patriotism of the nation. The brother of every Greek is a second Missolonghi. Do you need resources?—Appeal to the generosity of people—they will not be deaf. We need protection—claim it of every Christian nation; our actual situation, and theirs, guarantee us the desired aid. It is in critical junctures that great nations and true citizens show themselves. It is easy at all times to be a slave; but it is difficult to become free. To arms! if you wish peace, &c."

CIRCULAR.

Quebec, July 1st, 1825.

Sir—THE LITERARY SOCIETY OF QUEBEC, established under the patronage of His Excellency the Earl of DALHOUSIE, Governor in Chief, desirous of procuring information on the various topics within its scope, has the honor to request of you, at your leisure, any communication you may think proper to favour it with, from time to time, upon all or any of the subjects hereinafter stated.—And

First, in HISTORY

1. Do you know any think respecting the first settlement of Canada by the French, the number of the settlers, the time of their arrival, their general character, their condition with respect to property, the authority and encouragement under which they came, or any other circumstances attending the first attempt at colonization?

2. Is there any thing concerning any Governors preceding Mr. Mesy, the first Royal Governor? How long did they remain in office? What station or offices did they fill prior to their appointment here?

3. In what years were the first Forts built at Quebec, Montreal, Chambly, Niagara, (now Kingston) Niagara and Detroit?

4. What proportion of the first settlers appear to have attached themselves to Agriculture, and what proportion to Trade?

5. Can you communicate any facts which may throw light on the state of Commerce, in any particular portion of the country at different times, and especially at early periods; the number of ships, the amount of exports and imports for a series of years, the principal articles exported and imported, and from whence brought?

6. At what period do the common Manufactures appear to have been commenced?

7. What information do you possess respecting the state of the Militia in your District, especially in the early periods of its history, particularly their numbers, organization, and mode of equipment?

8. Is it in your power to furnish any, and what, information among the Indian Tribes which formerly inhabited your District, their numbers when first visited by the whites, their character, customs? &c.

9. Can you communicate any records that tend to elucidate the Ecclesiastical History of Canada? The names of the first Bishops, Curés or Ministers of the established Churches?

10. When was the first Printing-Press established in this Country?

Secondly, in GEOLOGY AND MINERALOGY.

Any information you may be able to give or procure, on the subject of Mineralogy and Geology, of that part of the Country you reside in, accompanying the same by characteristic specimens.—If your attention has seldom been given to enquiries of this nature, it will be sufficient, in affording the information, to particularize, 1st, Locality. 2d. If the Mineral in question be abundant or otherwise. 3d. Under what circumcances it occurs, as a rock or imbedded in one, or in an alluvial deposit, &c. If imbedded in a rock, a specimen of the rock should accompany the Mineral; as also specimens of any other Minerals which may be associated with it.

The Geological notices will be sufficient if they inform, 1st. Whether the Rock be stratified or not. 2d. If stratified, whether the strata be horizontal or dipping. 3d. If dipping, the approximate angle of the dip, and towards what point of the compass.

You are further requested not to withhold any fact connected with the subject you may be in possession of, under the supposition that your information is too scanty to merit attention, as the accumulation of such facts leads often to very important results. On the other hand, if your previous studies or enquiries have been directed to the subject, do not confine yourself to merely answering the foregoing queries, but be kind enough to afford the society the advantage of your remarks or observations. Packages containing specimens, and letters addressed to W. CREEN, Esq. Secretary to the Literary Society, Quebec, and marked in the corner "GEOLOGY," will be thankfully received.

Thirdly, in NATURAL HISTORY.

Such facts and remarks touching the Quadrupeds, Fish, Birds, Reptiles, Insects, Trees, Shrubs, Herbs, Mosses, and Fungi, which occur within the limits of your neighbourhood, or which may have fallen under your particular notice, and this favour will be much enchanced by forwarding, from time to time, any preparations or specimens which you may deem worthy of being added to our Museum.

Fourthly, in METEOROLOGY.

Accurate observations communicated in the following form, will be valuable contributions:

Place and Soil.
Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday.

War Office, June 9, 1826.

UNATTACHED.—The undermentioned officers having Brevet rank superior to their Regimental Commissions, have accepted promotion upon half pay, according to the general order of 25th April, 1828.

To be Lieutenant Colonels of Infantry—Brevet Lieutenant Colonel, W. Dunbar from 37th foot, J. B. Glegg from 49th foot.—Dated 1st June, 1826.

From the London Gazette, June 6.

OFFICE OF ORDNANCE, June 5th, 1826.—Corps of Royal Engineers—Second Lieut. E. Dumford to be first Lieutenant v. Kennedy removed—Dated 26th May, 1826.

GENERAL ORDER.

Horse Guards, June 2

Earl Bathurst, the Secretary of State for the Colonial Department, having communicated to the Commander-in-Chief the rules which His Majesty's Government have laid down for regulating the grants of land in the Colonies of New South Wales and Van Dieman's Land to persons proceeding thither as settlers, and his Lordship having suggested that it would be desirable to encourage officers of the army, and more especially those on half pay, to become settlers in that colony, by holding out to them superior advantages, in consideration of their services; his Royal Highness hereby makes known to the officers of the army, the regulations approved by His Majesty for carrying these, His Majesty's gracious intentions, into effect.

The rules under which lands may now be obtained without purchase, are as follow:—

That no free grant shall be made to any officer under the rank of Captain, nor to any officer who shall not produce satisfactory testimonials from the Commander-in-Chief's Office, of good conduct and unexceptionable character.

That in these cases a remission of quit rent shall take plade for a certain number of years beyond the average period which is prescribed in the case of ordinary settlers, according to the following scale:—

Officers who have served twenty years and upwards, to be exempted from all quit rent.

Officers who have served fifteen years and upwards, but short of twenty years to be exempted from quit rent for the first twenty years.

Officers who have served ten years and upwards, but short of fifteen years, to be exempted from quit rent for the first fifteen years.

In other respects the conditions on which the grants are made, to be similar to those which are now in operation in New South Wales, with certain modifications, respecting which, the officers who may be disposed to avail themselves of this arrangement will receive information at the Colonial Department.

The Officer to whom land is granted shall give some security that he, or his family, shall reside for at least seven years in the settlement and the grants shall not be allowed to be sold by him until he shall be reported to have expended upon it a capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time when his grant was made.

In the application of this arrangement to the officers of the army the following regulations are to be observed:—

Officers on full pay, who have purchased their commissions, or who have served twenty years, are to be permitted to dispose of their commissions in the usual manner, at the prices fixed by His Majesty's regulations, viz:—Lieut. Colonel 4,500*l.* Major 3,200*l.* Captain 1,800*l.*

Officers on half-pay, whether they have or have not purchased, and whatever may have been the period of their service, provided it be not less than ten years, to be permitted to sell their commissions for two thirds of the value fixed by the last regulation, (viz. Lieut. Colonel 3,000*l.*; Major 2,133*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*; Captain 1,200*l.*) and without being subject to any of the restrictions imposed by the regulations of the 25th April, 1825, excepting those which may apply to age, and health, and character. The surplus—(viz Lieut. Col. 1,500*l.*; Major 1,066*l.* 14*s.* 8*d.*; Captain 600*l.*)—one third of the value to be paid in such manner as His Majesty's Government shall direct; the price given by the purchaser, being in each case, the full value of the commission.

The officer who may avail himself of this offer, will be required to provide for his own passage, and that of his family to the colony, and out of the proceeds of his commission, to place in the hands of the government a sum equal to one third value of the commission, to be reserved for the cultivation of the land and which sum will be repaid to him upon his arrival in the colony, and upon his taking possession of the grants.

By command of his Royal Highness the Commander-in-Chief.

HENRY TORRENS,
Adjutant-General.

The U. E. Loyalist.

YORK, U. C. SATURDAY, AUGUST 19, 1826.

THE papers with the latest dates from England afford no news of importance—they are principally occupied with details of the elections, from which we have given some extracts.

We have been favored with the perusal of a Report made by the principal Engineer, Mr. David Thomas, of the progress of the work on the Welland Canal, from which it appears that nearly one half of the labor required at that important point, the Deep Cut, is completed, more than six hundred thousand cubic yards having been excavated. Two hundred and forty thousand cubic yards of excavation and embankment have been completed from the Deep Cut to St. Catharines, a distance of eight and a quarter miles, and the locks and waste weirs on this part of the Canal are in an advanced state, and will soon be finished. The line from St. Catharines to the harbour, about five miles, will probably be finished in two or three months, and enable vessels to ascend from Lake Ontario to that village. The work altogether appears to proceed without difficulty or obstruction, and the Engineer reports, from the experience had during its prosecution, that there is reason to believe that the Contracts may be completed, with few exceptions, at the stipulated prices.

The Steam Boat Niagara on her trip from York to Kingston, had her machinery injured, and has put into Bath to repair.

FIRE!—The dwelling house of Mr. Daniel M'Dougall in Grantham was destroyed by Fire on Saturday 30th ult.

We regret to hear that an accident happened last week to John Hamilton, Esq. the proprietor of the Steam Boat Frontenac. In stepping out of a Carriage at the Falls, he unfortunately broke his leg.

Fifty Dollars reward is offered for the apprehension of Daniel M'Millen, Owen Lynch, and Daniel M'Donald, three Prisoners who effected their escape from the Niagara Gaol on the night of 30th July.

The Cataraqui Bridge Company, at Kingston, held a Meeting on Monday 7th instant, when John H. Glover, Esq. as Chairman of a Committee previously appointed for making the necessary arrangements, submitted a Report, which being approved of, the Subscription Book was opened, and the Stock, £6000, in Shares of £25 each, was taken up in a short time.

The object this Company has in view is fully explained in the preamble of the Report, made by the Committee—it is as follows:—

"Whereas, it appears that the building of a Bridge from Kingston to Point Frederick, will conduce to the prosperity and advantages of Commerce and Agriculture, to the convenience of the community at large, as well as the benefit of those who may undertake the same, and the Government having graciously approved thereof—It is deemed expedient to Petition the Legislature of this Province, at its next Session, to Incorporate a Company, to be styled the Cataraqui Bridge Company, for the purpose of building a Bridge across the great River Cataraqui, from the town of Kingston to the Parade Ground at Point Frederick."

In consequence of the high and continued winds on Lake Ontario, during some part of the last month, the erection of the Piers at the Harbour have not progressed with the rapidity anticipated. They are, however, in a considerable state of forwardness, the main or eastern Pier being carried out about 125 yards, and is so far, nearly completed. The distance still to go, is 75 yards. The western pier is carried out 120 yards, to top water. The foundation and mitre-sills for the Harbour Lock are laid, and the timber principally in readiness to put up; and unless very unusual bad weather should set in, we can see no reason why the Harbour will not be completed to the depth of eight feet water, before the operations are interrupted by frost.

The Tow-path through the marsh at the mouth of the 12-mile-creek, (with the exception of about 15 chains,) is completed to the premises of Samuel Wood, Esquire, a distance of three and a half miles. And, in fact, the work in general is prosecuted with a vigor commensurate with its magnitude.

Hands continue scarce, although the wages paid are very high; and summer grain and hay command a great price; but we hope ere long to receive a good supply.

We understand the Arbitration to determine the value of land, or the amount of damages thereto, if any, by the operations of the Company, on the whole line of the Canal, from the Welland to Lake Ontario, will take place in this village on the 22d inst. agreeably to the provisions of the act.—Farmers' Journal.

We learn with regret, that the Lewiston Steam Mill, was laid in ashes on Monday evening last. We do not know the extent of the loss, nor whether the establishment was insured or not. The Mill had machinery sufficient to drive several run of stones, besides a double carding machine, and its destruction will be a great inconvenience to the north and east of Lewiston.—Black Rock Gazette.

COMMUNICATION.

York, (Upper Canada, 18th) July, 1826.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE U. E. LOYALIST.

SIR,

The second paragraph in the editorial remarks of the Montreal Gazette, of the 6th of this month, having reflected most unwarrantably upon the conduct of the Directors of the Bank of Upper Canada, I, as one of its Stockholders, and accidentally acquainted with the motives which have governed the proceedings of its Directors, (varied at times by influential circumstances,) cannot allow the insinuations which that paragraph has either incautiously or designedly obtruded upon the public, to circulate through the two Provinces, without attempting to neutralize the effect they seem intended to produce, and this by the simple recital of that all powerful of remedies fact, so never failing when applied to correct misrepresentation or misapprehension; but in order that both bane and antidote may have their respective qualities satisfactorily analyzed by those readers whom the subject may at all concern, it is essential that the cause of complaint, and the proposed effect of remedy, should be fairly opposed to each other, in order to judge of the plausability of the prescription. I must therefore quote the objectionable paragraph through the various stages of its disease, sentence by sentence, and to each shall presume to offer such a sedative, as may induce the writer of it to pause 'ere he in future insidiously attacks a measure which he cannot possibly have understood the cause of, and which not understanding, he certainly ought not in common fairness if he possessed one drachm of christian charity, to have given such an interpretation of, viz., that of being actuated by the filthy lucre of gain to inflict an injury upon others. But to proceed, the first sentence of the paragraph in question runs thus:—"The sudden determination of the Directors of the Bank of Upper Canada not to retire their Notes at Montreal, as usual, has inflicted great loss and inconvenience upon the people of this city and province, which nothing can compensate or stop but an immediate recal on the part of the Upper-Canada Bank, and the appointment of a person to receive and exchange its Notes within a given time."

Answer.—So far from its being a sudden determination, the measure in question has been in agitation for upwards of a twelvemonth, and the pros. and cons. for and against it, among many of the stockholders, have been as fairly though not perhaps as ably argued, as any John Roe and Richard Doe case that may have called into display the first orators of our Bar. The pros. for the measure very fairly represented the great and unnecessary risk which the redeeming of the notes of our Bank at any other point but that of issue, necessarily brought upon the establishment; and they recalled to mind the very serious loss which the Bank of Montreal had some years since sustained by the transmission of a supply of notes to this Upper Province.—They (the pros.) then referred to the charter which had legalized our Bank, and from it they very considerately argued, that as no redemption of notes was thereby required but from the Mother Bank and its established Branches, and as it had not yet been found expedient to form any such Branches, there could not be any reasonable claim for a superior privilege being granted to another Province, which was not, ejoyed by its own.—They still further consistently maintained, that as the original formation of the Bank of Upper Canada could have had scarce any reference to the wants or views of the Lower Province, being, in its origin, chiefly destined for the improvement of its own, (quoting, as a corresponding proof of the natuarl bias of such policy, the example of the Banks of Lower Canada) they considered it impolitic to continue any longer the risk of the transmission of specie, which was now constantly going from the Province, in, for the most part, at the Bank of Upper Canada, and have to be remitted to the Lower Province at the risk of the latter, and why a mutual confidence and corresponding risk should not be felt and acted upon by the Montreal Bank; it doubtless can, and it would be well if it did explain. Were not the pros. fearful of extending this letter to a length that might forbid its insertion, he thinks he could satisfactorily prove that the late decision of the Montreal Bank, imposing a discount upon the redemption of the notes of the Bank of Upper Canada, is inimical to the real interests of the Merchants of Montreal and Quebec, as the transmission of the Upper Province to those Merchants are great, and the Bank of U. C. would, I am persuaded, most gladly facilitate the means of liquidation; and were its notes to pass current at par in the Lower Province as those of the Banks of the latter do in the Upper, it might be tempted to extend its discounts, and thereby afford a greater facility to the inhabitants of Upper Canada to effect their remittances to the Lower Province; but which, by the late decision of the Bank of Montreal, it cannot now in common prudence venture upon doing.

2d Sentence.—"We cannot help adding that the determination in question was most improper and unjustifiable, after having permitted about £100,000 worth of the Bank of the Sister Province to have been circulated in good faith in Lower Canada."

Answer.—This assertion proves that the writer either rashly errs through the entire ignorance of the fact, or from lack of argument wilfully misrepresents it, in order to gull the public—the inference evidently intended to be drawn from it, is that Notes of the Bank of Upper-Canada, to the amount of about £100,000, were in circulation in the Lower Province at the time of the cessation to redeem those Notes at par;—Now I happen to know from good authority, that the amount of the entire issue of its Notes actually in circulation, (for those which lie dormant in the hands of its agents cannot fairly be included in the number nominally issued from the Bank) does not exceed the amount stated.—Have all these Notes found their way into the Lower Province? are there none in the various villages, and settlements of the Upper? None in the United States?

About one fifth of the number in circulation may perhaps have reached the Lower Province, but £20,000 is not £100,00, and facts should not be misstated in a matter of importance—and pray, (it may be asked,) how many thousand pounds worth of the Banks of Lower Canada were at one time in circulation in this Upper Province? and who ever called the good faith of those Banks in question, merely because they did not feel it their policy to redeem them in that Province?—Were any interests but their own consulted, in the package, after package which they continually forwarded to various agents in all parts of this Province, to put their contents into circulation? and this in many instances (as some people have said) in contravention of an old British Statute, which declares all such like issuing of Notes as illegal.

3d Sentence.—"It is true that the Montreal Bank and others take these Notes at a discount of one and a half per centum, but does not the public lose this one and a half per cent, and does not the whole transaction look very much like a job."

Answer.—The infamous and injurious insinuation conveyed in the above that the Bank of Upper Canada has made a job of the whole transaction, is scarce worthy of refutation; the writer seems himself to be half ashamed of the slander he is sending forth—he must know it to be false, and that if there be a job in the transaction on the part of any one, (which I am not so illiberal as to suspect) he must maintain, be inwardly convinced, that the actors in it, cannot be of this Province, unless he considers them fools as well as rogues, in as much as it is palpably contrary to the interests of both the Bank and the people of Upper Canada to depreciate the value of their own paper.

PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors, of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province; to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on Monday the Fourteenth day of August inst. to be Commenced, Held, Called, and Elected, and to every of you

GREETING

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Twenty-seventh day of June last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the Fourteenth day of August instant, at which time, at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear.

NOW KNOW YE, that we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents enjoining you and each of you that on Thursday the Twenty-first day of September next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this Tenth day of August in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-six, and in the Seventh Year of our reign.

UPPER CANADA.

P. MAITLAND,
Lieut. Governor.

GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To all to whom these Presents shall come

GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the parts of this Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. We have thought fit to order and direct, and We do hereby order and direct that, until Our pleasure herein shall be further made known, it shall and may be lawful for all Our Subjects inhabiting Our Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada, freely to enter into Our Woods and Forests in such parts of Our said Province of Upper Canada, situate along the Banks of the River Ottawa, or upon the Banks of the Waters running into the said River and within a convenient distance from the same, as shall not have been Surveyed and divided into Concessions and Lots, and to Cut and carry away such Oak and Pine Timber as may be fit for the purposes of Exportation.

Provided always, nevertheless, That in consideration of the authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties herein-after specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Red Pine Timber, Four Pounds Three Shillings and Four Pence, being at the rate of One Penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Yellow Pine Timber, Two Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence, being at the rate of One Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commission under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places upon the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointed as aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has attained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons, properly authorised by or under Our Licence granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS Our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this third day of May in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-Six, and in the Seventh Year of Our Reign.

Executive Council Office,
York, 23rd March, 1826

NOTICE is hereby given, by ORDER of His EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENAT GOVERNOR, in COUNCIL, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a regular Council day.

JOHN SMALL.

No. 9 1. f. C. E. C.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepard in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s. 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hunded Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant. It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessarry expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

POETRY.

THE GIPSY'S PROPHECY.

LADY! throw back thy raven hair.
Lay thy white brow in the moonlight bare;
I will look on the stars, and look on thee,
And read the page of thy destiny.

Little thanks shall I have for my tale,—
Even in youth thy cheek will be pale;
Look! by thy side is a red rose-crop,
One bud droops wither'd, so thou wilt be.

Round thy neck is a ruby chain,
One of the rubies is broken in twain;
Throw on the ground each shatter'd part,
Broken and lost, they will be like thy heart.

Mark you star—it shone at thy birth;
Look again—it has fall'n to earth!
Its glory has pass'd, like a thought, away,
So too, as yet scarcely, will thou decay.

Over yon fountain's silver fall
Is a moonlight rainbow's coronal;
Its hues of light will melt in tears,—
Well will they image thy future years.

I may not read in thy hazel eyes,
For the long dark lash that over them lies;
So in my art I can but see
One shadow of night on thy destiny.

I can give the but dark revealings
Of passionate hopes, and wasted feelings;
Of love that shall pass like the green sea-wave,
Of a broken heart, and an early grave.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE STEAM VOYAGE TO INDIA.

We have been favored with a paper, the contents of which will, we doubt not, be interesting to the perusal to many of our readers. It contains a short account of the proceedings of the Steam Ship Enterprise, commanded by Lieutenant W. H. Johnstone, R. N. on her voyage from London to Calcutta, being the first attempt to perform the voyage to India by Steam Navigation, with some remarks thereon which merit attention. The writer of the paper, it appears, without any idea of such a project being seriously contemplated by others, had devoted considerable time and attention to the consideration of the subject, and in Nov. 1824, being then at Alexandria, sketched a chart of the shortest possible route by which the voyage could be effected; and from that chart, the table of head-lands, courses and distances, appended to this paper, has been extracted. He happened to be at Calcutta when the Enterprise arrived there from England, and from the log of her proceedings at sea, the journal of Captain Johnstone, and particulars concerning the voyage, communicated to him by that gentleman, he compiled the following statement:

"The Enterprise was built in the River Thames, under inspection, expressly for the arduous and novel undertaking of a voyage to India, by steam. She measured 800 tons, and is 150 feet in length. She had two Engines, (by Henry Maudslay) each of 60 horse power. Three masts, with lug-sails, which were found, on trial at sea, not to answer, and Captain Johnstone altered them into 'square sails.' She was built and fitted with a poop, for the accommodation of passengers, and in every respect equipped as completely as the conjoint skill and practical knowledge of her commander, and the celebrated engineer before named could make her. After being visited and inspected by all ranks in London, and her outfit pronounced to be fitting for the arduous prospect, the Enterprise started from Deptford on the 2d of August, 1825, and proceeded down the River Thames to Gravesend, where, as usual, the crew were completed, their number being as follows:

Captain, Lieut. Johnstone, R. N.,	1
Chief Officer, Lieut. Frid, R. N.,	1
Second ditto, Mr. Jump,	1
Third ditto, Lieut. Hill, R. N.,	1
Surgeon,	1
Boatswain,	1
Carpenters,	2
Seamen,	12
	20
Cabin Steward,	1
Ditto Servants,	3
Captain's do.	1
Engineers,	1
Firemen,	6
Total of crew,	34

In addition to the above, there were, besides Mrs. Johnstone, who accompanied her husband; twenty-three passengers, including 3 ladies and 2 servants.

She left Gravesend and proceeded to Falmouth, where the coals for her voyage were to be taken on board. The weather, during this passage, was the most unfavourable that could be; at the same time it gave an opportunity of trying her behaviour—"blowing hard." She anchored at the Nore, and it blew heavy from the westward; a brig close her began to drive, when Capt. J. being apprehensive of driving also, got her steam up, and set the paddles in motion to ease her riding. After passing Dungeness, on the 6th August, going against a fresh breeze from the westward, with a channel sea, they were alarmed about ten o'clock at night, by a cry of "fire!" A bright red blaze issued from the deck, round the chimney, and presented an appearance of great danger. Capt. J. with admirable coolness and presence of mind, gave the necessary orders, and the fire was soon got under. It afterwards appeared that the fire must have originated from the ignition of some coals, in sacks, which had been stowed on the top of the boilers. An accident afterwards occurring to one of the screws, they ran into Seleen Bay, and anchored off Bagneer; and the accident having been repaired, in a few hours they again put to sea, and arrived at Falmouth on the 11th August. Having completed her coals to 320 chaldrons, and taken in stock, water, &c. she left Falmouth in the evening of Tuesday, 16th August, and with a light breeze at N. W. shaped her course for Cape Ortegal.

On the following day she was favoured with a fresh breeze from the N. W. which continued and increased till the 19th, when she passed Corunna.

Off the Burlings, on the 21st, the wind veered round to the southward, and soon commenced with a swell from the westward until the 26th, when she made the Island of Laugerotta; and at midnight, the wind veering to N. W. they made sail, and proceed to the eastward of the Grand Canary, sailing and steaming. On the 27th, at lat. 27 N. they lost sight of the Canaries, and fell in with the N. E. trade, for the first time. (It should be observed that this wind is usually met with in the latitude of Madeira or Canaries.) This trade was found to be moderate, blowing with little strength; but as the consumption of coals had been going on uninterruptedly for 11 days, Capt. J. wished to diminish it by every means in his power, and accordingly the fires were put out and all possible sail made.—It may be remarked here, that the working of the engine was so easy, and free from noise, that but for the occasional hissing of the safety-vale, the circumstance of there being a steam engine on board, would have been almost forgotten; nor does it appear that any annoyance was experienced from the heat of the fires. The trade wind did not favour her progress much; it was light, and continued so until the first September, when it fell calm. Capt. J. had calculated sailing through the N. E. trade, but now finding himself disappointed in that expectation, and clearly perceiving that a sacrifice of coals must be made in some part of her passage, he directed the fires to be again lighted in lat. 19 24 N. having made only 7 11 degrees in five days with N. E. trade, so completely light did it fall him.—They made good progress with steam until the 3d September, when it began to blow in squalls from S. S. E. with a heavy sea from the E. The weather was tolerably fine and clear until the 8th, when the wind got round to the S. E. again, and blew heavy. Being now near the shoals of St. Anne, to the southward of Madagascar, and not wishing to go to the westward again, the steam was got up, and they proceeded against a strong head wind and sea, at the rate of 6 1-2 knots. On the 11th they were enabled to carry the steam up, and make sail by the wind, then hanging at S. by. W. This appears to have been the first time she was properly tried close-hauled, and Capt. J. was delighted to find that she had good sailing powers, and would go seven knots, close to, with a moderate breeze. From this day until the 17th September, when they arrived at the Portuguese island of St. Thomas, the fires were lighted but once, in consequence of the wind falling light. The using of the coals through the N. E. trade was an unfortunate circumstance, as otherwise she might have proceeded direct from the S. W. Point of Africa to the Cape, unless prevented by the strong southerly winds after you get near the equator, which by the way, are not usual, except late in the season; at other times calms are generally experienced here.

On arriving at St. Thomas, Capt. Johnstone waited on the Governor, Don Joes Maria Xavera de Boito, who gave them every assistance in watering and transporting the coals from the tanks to other parts of the ship, in exception extremely laborious; nor would the Governor allow Capt. J. to pay any port dues, or be at any expense for his assistance. The Governor and his suite dined on board, salutes and other ceremonies were exchanged, and on the morning of the 20th September they left the island under steam, well pleased with their reception and treatment.

They proceeded due south, the wind blowing incessantly from S. S. W. with a heavy swell, and a current setting N. by E. 36 miles in 24 hours; so that wind, current, and swell, operating against the ship, might be estimated at two miles per hour; in fact, though she went 7 knots by log, the observations from day to day, seldom gave more than 125 miles per day, for distance made good. It is remarkable that this part of the sea is usually avoided by sailing ships, on account of the calms supposed to prevail; and though H. M. S. Ss. Albana, and some others, have made the eastern passage home from the Cape, they do not recommend it. Capt J. on leaving St. Thomas, calculated on having coals sufficient for 14 days, but soon found, from these head winds and opposing currents, that this would not be near sufficient to reach the Cape. Another object he had in view, to keep coals, that in case of getting becalmed, he might be able to steam to where a breeze prevailed. On reaching lat. 21 S. it became necessary to clean the flues, and the fires were put out; on the next day it was calm, and the day after they got the beginning of the S. E. trade, in long. 0. E. Sail was made on the larboard tack, and she came up gradually to S. S. W. and S. until they reached the tropic, after which the wind hung well to the eastward, enabling them to reach the limit of the trade in 26. S. seven minutes west of Greenwich. The engines were again resorted to, to reach the westerly winds that prevails in those seas, and after 36 hours steaming, in order to save coals, the fires were put out, and they steered towards the Cape, with a moderate northerly breeze, going 4 knots. Captain J.'s idea was to save his coals, in the event of meeting with continued calms about the Cape Land; and in fact there only remained at this time about three days' fuel. Very soon after the breeze favored them, and on the 9th October it had freshened up at N. by E. so favorably, that it might be called a "double-reefed topsail breeze;" and the Enterprise proceeded rapidly, at 9 knots for 20 hours, with the wind abaft the beam. On the 10th they were close-hauled again, with a southerly breeze, and this continued until the 12th, when the bay was made, and the wind fell light. In the evening the fires were lighted, and by midnight they were off the Table Mountain, and might have anchored in an hour; but as Captain Johnstone thought the inhabitants of the colony had disappointed if he went in, in the night, he lay by until the morning, and at 9 o'clock run in, the castle honoring him with a salute, upon his running in to the anchorage 13th October, 1825.

Captain Johnstone fully anticipated being able to make the rest of the passage in 32 days, and considered the delay as having arisen from the necessity of economising the coals, and estimates it to be equal to 20 days; of course, if an intermediate depot of coals was formed, this would be obviated.

At the Cape the Enterprise remained eight days; all these they were prevented from working two days by gales of wind, one day was given up for the public to view the ship, during which near 4000 people are supposed to have visited her; thus leaving five days, including the day of arrival, for taking coals on board; of these the same quantity as upon leaving England was taken in, say 350 or 380 tons, which, in the first instance, brought the ship on deep, that her speed was much retarded; and afterwards, when the coals in the engine room were used, it took nearly the whole time of crew to bring forward the coals from the tanks for use daily. It should be remembered that the consumption of her two 60 horse power engines, day and night; it averaged daily about 7 chaldrons of coals, and as a chaldron is 28 cwt. of course, there were 9 tons 16 cwt. to be moved every day; much labor, of course, was required, and perhaps some plan may be hit on to obviate this, as it was found very harrassing to the crew. It was found, on her passage, that in fine weather, her wheels of 15 feet diameter, revolved 25 times in a minute. On leaving the Cape, she drew 14 feet 7 inches, something less than when leaving Falmouth.

They started on the 21st October, under a stiff breeze at S. S. W. with a fair wind, which does not always appear to have favored them long, as on the S. E. soon after they left Table Bay, and blew strong; soon after, off Algoa Bay, they experienced another south-easter, and, as usual, the Cape bank current setting strong against them, with head winds and adverse currents, even steam must progress slowly. On the bank they fell in with the Hetherington, Indiaman, homeward-bound, standing to the westward, under a press of canvas; she gave the steamship three cheers in passing. Experience of the necessity of economy with regard to fuel, prevented Captain Johnstone going direct across the Indian Ocean, as a steam vessel easily might; and as he knew, on reaching the Bay of Bengal, the S. W. monsoon would be blowing directly down it, he made a circuitous route, in order to avail himself of his sailing powers as much as possible; in doing this, he did not arrive at the Island of Java, the 7th Dec. being the 47th day of departure from the Cape. A pilot was got, and the Enterprise anchored safely in Diamond Harbor 8th Dec.

On the 9th she arrived off the city of Calcutta, and was cheered by the whole line of shipping as she passed up. I think she did not excite so much curiosity and interest as might have been expected; but if she had been the first vessel that ever was seen, the people of Calcutta are so idle, too busy, or too sick to be much excited. However, certainly, several persons went to visit her, among others the Governor General Lord Amherst, Lady Amherst, Honble. Miss A——. The Bishop and the Judges of the Supreme Court went on board on the 20th December, and went down the river to Mr. Hanchely Point, and returned in the afternoon. A few days after, the arrangements for her sale to the Government of Bengal were completed, and she was sold for £40,000; a sum that will amply compensate her owners, and no doubt, produce several new steam ships for India.

On the review of her passage, it is evident to any one acquainted with the subject, that, first, the very worst season of the year was selected for her passage; secondly, that two more depots of coals, at least, are wanting, to enable the passage to be properly effected; and thirdly, it occurs to me, that the ship was not masted and rigged as she ought to have been. It appears highly probable, that profitting by the knowledge obtained on this voyage, and attending to the three points I have mention'd, the voyage may be completed in 75 to 80 days; but in less than that I should think hardly possible.

If the distances from point to point round the projections of Africa and Ceylon are measured, they will be found to be 1,200 miles; to get over this distance in 75 days, would compel you to make good nearly 150 miles per day; now when she stoppages, by taking coals on board three times, and the operation of head winds are brought into consideration, I think it must appear pretty clear, that if ever it is done in this time it will be by an unusual combination of skill, power, and enterprize, and that it will be equal to any undertaking of modern times.

At the same time that I am thus stating the difficulties that naturally present themselves, I am confident that it could be effected; and that if proper means are employed, it will be effected, though, perhaps, not with much profit to the adventurers, unless they should meet with such sale for their ship as the Enterprise did, and well merited.

VACCINATION.

(From the Quarterly Review.)

It is a prevalent opinion that vaccination affords protection only for a time; that its influence gradually wears out; and some have pretended to state how many years it lasts with undiminished force, how many years it gradually decays, and in how many it ceases altogether, leaving the constitution exposed to the attacks of the Small Pox. To prove that the protecting power of vaccination lasts only a few years, would be the hardest stone that has been thrown at the name of Jenner; but hitherto the charge has not been proved. That small pox after cow pox is more common now than formerly, and among those who have been vaccinated many years, rather than among those who have been vaccinated a few, proves nothing. If among a number vaccinated a few years ago, an equal number vaccinated long ago, a far larger proportion of the latter caught the small pox than of the former, this would go to prove the fact; but no such case has ever been made out. Let those who would abandon vaccination because it is not infallible, look the consequences of such conduct fairly in the face. Would they omit inoculation and vaccination, and expose the nation unprotected to the natural small pox, a disease which kills one fourth of those who catch it, and disfigures the countenances, or ruins the health of a crowd of the survivors?—or would they return to small pox inoculation, which renders the disease mild in those who are inoculated; but, by keeping up constant supplies of the contagion, spreads it continually among the uninoculated, and occasions a greater mortality than if inoculation was neglected?—or, lastly, will they continue vaccination, which affords perfect security from small pox in an immense proportion of instances—where it does not prevent it, deprives it of its danger, and permits a severe or fatal disease only in a few rare instances!

SUMMARY.

It is said a foreigner has got off with £200,000 worth of goods from Manchester, and gone into Hamburgh.

Policies had been opened at Lloyds to the amount of above £4,000,000 on specie from the Brazils, Buenos Ayres, Chila and Peru. The Hope, from Coquimbo, laden with gold and copper, is missing.

Money is expected to be plenty in England during the autumn months. The Bank of England in June had 12 millons sterling in its coffers.

The British Surveying Vessel Adventure, sent to Patagonia, Cape Horn and Terra del Fuego, has on board nine Chronometers.

The Seringapatam British frigate, arrived at Malta April 21, with 40 Pirates on board.

It is reported that Lord Cochrane sailed from Falmouth for Greece, in a vessel of 400 tons, and that there will be under his command two sloops of war from France, two steam-boats, one or two other vessels, and a frigate of 64 guns, built in the United States.

It is calculated that there are now 374 Episcopal Clergy in the United States; and that without and continued to serve in the Downs and at Portsmouth, and was subsequently (in 1809) appointed Commander in Chief at Newfoundland. His memory will long be regarded by his brother officers and the neighborhood in which he long lived.

The Bank of England has commenced opening branches. A bank was to be opened in Gloucester, on the 19th of July. Several other branch banks had been decided on, and among them, one at Swansea, one at Manchester, and another at Birmingham.

The meeting of the new Parliament is prorogued to the 24th of August—(the present month.)

The Earl of Chichester is dead. His remains were interred on the 13th July.

Liverpool Corn Exchange—July 18.—We have had small supplies of Grain, during the past week, but the trade notwithstanding continued heavy.

Meetings of a character likely to lead to breaches of the peace had been held at Manchester.

There were rumours of disturbances among the cotton weavers at Blackburn—that the magistrates read the riot Act, but were told by the people, that they valued neither them nor the military—they wanted work as the means of food, or a supply of food without work, and that one way or other they could have it!

A tract of mountain above Larne, Ireland, had been on fire for eight or ten days, and upwards of 100 acres of moss or peat, ten feet deep, had been consumed.

The Portuguese Ambassador had been received very coldly at the Court of Madrid, and the diplomatic relations with Lisbon were unsatisfactory.

Under the date of Pera, June 18, it is stated that the display of the standard of Mahomet having caused many of the rebels to leave there, the remainder, about 12,000 retreated to their barracks. Ali Pacha laid siege on them and set them on fire. The Chief then surrendered, and the others were put to the sword.

ENGLAND.

COURT OF KING'S BENCH.

LONDON, JUNE 13.

Doe ex-dem. Auchmuty and others v. Mulcaster and others.

This was an action of ejectment, brought to recover the possession of certain premises situate in the county of Kent, and of gavel-kind tenure. The Jury at the trial found a verdict for the plaintiffs, subject to the opinion of the Court, upon the following case:—Samuel Auchmuty had three sons, namely, Robert Nicol, Richard, and Samuel, and also four daughters, all of whom were born in the province of New York, before it was seperated from the mother country. Robert Nicol continued to reside, after the war broke out between America and England, within the British lines, and bore arms in aid of the Royal cause. In 1783 he came to England, and during his residence here he was made Secretary to the Board of Commissioners, appointed to settle the claims of British subjects in America, upon the termination of the war; and which commissioners sat in New York, to which place he returned in 1785, under and by virtue of this appointment. After the termination of the duties of that Board he settled himself in the United States, and married a lady who was also a British-born subject, and continued there till his death, which happened in 1812, leaving issue four sons, who were the present plaintiffs. Sir Samuel, the son (brother to Robert Nicol) died, seized of the premises in question, which were taken possession of by the defendants, who were his surviving sisters. The question for the opinion of the Court was, whether the plaintiffs, namely, the children of Robert, were entitled to recover that portion of their uncle's property which their father was entitled to as co-heir of his brother, the said Sir Samuel. If the Court should be of opinion that they were, then the verdict was to stand; but if not, then a nonsuit was to be entered.

The defence at the trial was, that as the plaintiffs were born out of the allegiance of the King of England, they were aliens, and therefore were not capable of inheriting property in this country.

Mr. Chitty now argued in support of the verdict, and contended that the conduct of Robert Nicol evidently showed that he never had renounced his allegiance to the King of England, which by an article in the treaty between this country and America, he might have done, by making his election within a reasonable time after the independence of the United States had been declared. But having continued a subject to the King, his children were, by the 7th Anne and 4th Geo. II, endowed with all the rights and privileges of British born subjects, and were therefore capable of inheriting property in this country as co-heirs of their father.

Mr. Abrahams, on the other side, contended that, as Robert, the father, had elected to settled himself in America after the independence of the United States had been recognized, his allegiance to the King of England was hereby terminated; and his children being all born out of that allegiance, they were, according to the definition in Calvin's case (Coke's Reports) aliens; and, if so, it followed that they were not inheritable, and consequently that the plaintiffs could not recover.

The Lord Chief Justice was of the opinion that the plaintiffs were within the Act of 4th Geo. II, and not within the exception of that Act, and that consequently they had a good right to inherit. The verdict therefore ought to stand.

Mr. Justice Bayley said this case was perfectly distinguishable from that of Doe Dem. Thompson v. Acland; 2 Barn. and Cres. 779. The treaty which was ratified between this kingdom and the United States gave those persons who, at the time of the war, adhered to that country, leave to put off their allegiance from this kingdom, and to assume a new allegiance to the new states. But if after that period the party continued holding allegiance to this kingdom that treaty did not entitle any one to be at liberty to change his allegiance at any future time. In this case Robert Nicol Auchmuty continued his allegiance to this kingdom after the treaty with America, so that he then stood in the situation of any person who should go into any other kingdom whatsoever. Now, if a party went into Italy, France or Germany, still his children, though born in either of those countries would be within the protection of 4 Geo. II cap. 21, provided he himself was a natural born subject. By the statute of Anne, it was required that both the father and the mother should be natural born subjects; but the subsequent statute of Geo. II made it only necessary that the father should be such. He was therefore of opinion that the verdict was right.

Mr. Justice Holroyd thought that, as in this case both the father and mother were natural-born subjects, the children were within the provisions of the 7th of Anne, as well as those of Geo. II. and that the verdict was right.

The verdict was consequently confirmed.

From the London Price Current, of June 20.

There is little alteration in commerce since our last report. From the Continent, the statements respecting the markets are rather unfavourable. The accounts from Manchester and Yorkshire state the manufacturers are rather improving, but the demand is still confined to the home trade.—In the markets of London there is no material change; they continue languid and uninteresting.

LIVERPOOL MARKET—JUNE 24.

We regret to state, that instead of an increased demand appearing for foreign produce, our markets continue in a languid state, and nearly every article is falling in price.

For Cotton Wool from Great Britain, betwixt the 3d and 17th June, was 3514 bags, and in the shape of Calicoes 9 Twist, from London Liverpool and Hull, was 10 16 bags.

The demand for Ashes has been confined to 143 bbls. Pot.

Corn Exchange.—At Tuesdays Corn market there was a slackness in the demand for Wheat and to have effected sales a reduction on previous prices must have been submitted to; the sales effected were to a limited extent. For Oats and Barley there was a good inquiry, the latter at an advance of 2d to 3d per bushel, the former at last week's prices. Beans, Peas, and Oatmeal, without alteration as to price, but in trifling demand. There was no change in the prices of American Flour, but somewhat higher prices could have been obtained The current price of Rye has been raised 3s. 7d per quarter,

LONDON, June 22.

The principles of free trade are beginning to alarm the importers of Irish provisions into Great Britain, for within the last ten days a considerable quantity of salted provisions has arrived from Hamburgh. As this trade is now open, however, this circumstance would be rather a benefit than a disadvantage, for the value of agricultural labour would then be assimilated in Germany to that in Great Britain, and the expense of production would consequently be nearly on an equality; but so long as wheat on the Continent is worth, only 25s. to 30s. and oats 7s. to 10s. per quarter, it is utterly impossible for the British grower of wheat and oats to compete with the foreigners in as an article rendered cheap on the Continent by the British Corn Laws themselves. Many reason exists for excluding from consumption in Great Britain Hamburg wheat sure-ly the same doctrine should exclude the importation of hams and provisions of Hamburg salted provisions. Trade should either be entirely free, or every interest in it should be protected. The Corn Laws should be repealed, or the commercial navy should receive protection.

LONDON, June 25.

His Majesty was in perfect health, and taking his usual rides from Windsor to Virginia Water, where he enjoys his aquatic excursions, and usually dines onboard one of the Royal Yachts on the Lake. His Majesty has been pleased to direct, by his order in Council, the fee hitherto demanded at the Admiralty from Officers of the Royal Navy, on obtaining leave of absence to go abroad, shall be discontinued in future. The Duke of York's health continues improving.

The Election for Preston had terminated, and Cobbett is, as was expected, left out. He made a speech on the Saturday preceding, which will be found in another part of this paper, and another at the termination of the election, in which he said "I despise Wood for reading the infamous book of wonders. At the Captain, (Barrie,) I knit my brow and bite my lip; at Wood I turn up my nose; at Stanley I stop my nose. So my friends, I care not which of them takes by bar, (booth, or ditch, as he has at other times called it.")

Cobbett in his Register, says that his right arm was so much pulled and shaken by the salutations of the people between Blackburn and Bolton, that he could not lift it up the next morning to tie his cravat!

Orator Hunt appears to have been as unfortunate as his quandam friend Cobbett, being left with a miserable minority.

Preston, June 26.—At the close of the election on Saturday, the Candidates addressed the electors as follows:

Mr. Stanley congratulated Mr. Wood on his probability of success with the same cordiality as he could Captain Barrie, if the latter gentleman should be elected; they were both gentlemen, and he should be happy to have either of them as a colleague.

Mr. Wood exulted in his expected triumph over the Tory Candidate and Tory principles; disclaimed all connexion with the band of armed ruffians, denied that he had given his consent to the introduction of the military, and promised to set in Parliament according to the wishes of the electors, should he be returned by them—an honor which he had no doubt of obtaining on Monday.

Captain Barrie.—Gentlemen, my voters have been prevented from coming up this day also—the usual tricks have been played against me. Nothing but foul play has been used against me during the election. I'll bring those who are guilty of it before a tribunal, (the House of Commons) which will upset their injustice. I am not driven from the contest. I do not yet despair of success. I'll not give up till the last moment. (Huzza!) I have never struck my colours to a foreign enemy on the water, and I'll not douce'em now to a radical on land—d—m me. (Huzza!)

Cobbett popped his head out at eight o'clock, and began to "cleave the general ear with horrid speech." I send you "a taste of his quality:"—

"Gentlemen—Mr. Stanley is a vain, paltry, empty creature, more silly than a green girl—I beg the girl's pardon—no girl is more silly—no girl can be so silly. Gentlemen, I have done much good to you by my coming; I have awaked your tyrants; I have bled them. I have made the silly Honourable throw £15,000 among you, and that's no joke; for though these Lords have too much land, they have not too much money. (Huzza!) I have tickled the Captain too; have made him dance to some tune; he must have pledged his half pay to keep open house for you, and now, like the other half pays in London, he must live on plates of beef and goes of gin for the next seven years. (Roars of laughter.) As to Mr. Wood, I could not draw any money out of him, for the poor devil had none to spend; but his father, Otty Wood, the miserly old sugar-baker of Liverpool, I have extracted from his pocket what a hundred horse power steam engine could not draw from him—I have made him spend £7,000. (Laughter.) These are what I have done for you, good gentlemen. But I have done more—I have kept out the Tory. Not that I like Wood either; I only dislike him least of the two; but you shall not be cursed with either one or other of them, gentlemen. The election is not worth a straw. I'll have it set aside next April, when I'll bleed your opponents again, and you'll elect for your repose-natives the only two who has the wish and the ability, the heart and the head, to serve you and his country—myself, gentlemen, myself." (Huzza.)

EARTHQUAKE AT BOGOTA.

A letter from Bogota, under the date of June 18, furnishes the following account of the earthquake recently experienced there:—

"We are all here in a state of great excitement and anxiety. Last night was the most awful one I ever passed. We were sitting at whist at the clock chimed a quarter to eleven; at that moment we were all sensible of the shock of an earthquake, not however violent enough to make any extraordinary impression, and pursued our game. About two minutes elapsed, when we experienced a most awful shock and tables thrown from one side of the room to the other—we ourselves could scarcely maintain our erect position, and were so perfectly paralyzed, that we never thought of getting out of the house; indeed any own belief was that the house must fall before we could possibly get out of it, and that it was therefore useless to move. The ceiling was coming down on us in large flakes, and the fall of a large mirror, by the concussion, which we took to be part of the house, added to our alarm. It was indeed appalling—never, never shall I forget it. It passed, having lasted 40 seconds. We then went into the streets where crowds were on their knees praying most fervently. A general rush was made for the square in which the palace is. There we found thousands collecting and collected. Women and men, just as they jumped out of bed, with the addition of a blanket thrown around them—most them in the agony of grief and apprehension clasping their children to their bosoms—fathers endeavoring to provide them with covering—groupes of females in every direction calling each other names to be assured that all were safe. Dismay and despair were general. No one would return home, and thousands passed the whole night in the square. Three o'clock, F. M. of this day was passed from making a round of the town to observe the extent of damages. Several houses are thrown entirely down—many are rent asunder from top to bottom. The cathedral, a splendid edifice, has one of its wings rent from the base to the tower. Scarcely a house in the city is without injury—mine has every one of its principal walls split in several places—dining room in ruins—the partition in my bed room has fallen in, and had I been in bed I should have been at least severely bruised. A servee shock has not been felt here until now since the year 1805. About six years ago, it is said there was a slight one; but no injury was done. It appears miraculous that only three lives were lost.—Many who are here, and were at Caracas during the great earthquake there, say that this shock was much more severe; but the houses being better built here, the injury has been less.

Half-past five.—I have been taking another survey, and was surprised to find that hundreds of families are sending beds and bedding into the plain, and erecting booths there for the night. All fear another shock.

17th, 12 o'clock noon.—The night has passed quietly and the alarm is subsiding.

EAST INDIES.

Extract of a Letter from an Officer on the Staff at Madras, dated March 20, 1826.

"Our recent news from Ava gives us reason to hope that the war will soon be brought to a favorable conclusion. The King would seem to have been kept greatly in ignorance of our successes, and our proceedings generally, and at the last accounts had sent to Sir A. Campbell to commence negotiations, Mr. Price, American Missionary, and Doctor Sandford of the Royal Reg't. and other prisoners of war, to know the terms on which we would conclude peace.—They had returned from the Head Quarters. Campbell had gained another victory and captured a strong position, where he meant to remain until the 12th, and should the ratification of the Treaty not then arrive, he declared his intention to advance, and not again halt until he had entered Umuerapoora, the capital.

Judging of the people and government from what has passed, we have no means assured that possession of the capital will insure success, but it will doubtless give us weight and consideration in the country, and in negociation. We all wish the war brought to a conclusion, for truly it is carried on with heavy disadvantages, and a great loss of lives from disease, not the sword."

GREECE AND TURKEY.

We find in a late Paris paper a letter from Mr. Eynard, an active member of the Greek Committee, of Paris, dated at Florence, June 4, in which he gives an account of the mission with which he was the agency, for relieving the distresses of the Greeks, since the fall of Missolonghi. Nine vessels entirely laden with articles of subsistence, had just sailed from different ports of Italy, and destined for the succour of those who were dying of famine along the whole Grecian coast. None had yet fallen into the hands of the Egyptians. Mr. Eynard had despatched, on account of the Greek Committee of Paris, 2,976,231lbs of flour, biscuit, corn and cheese, and 40,000 of lead. He was preparing to send 1,384,000lbs more of articles of subsistence, and 80,000lbs of lead.

The greater part of the garrison reached the mountains after having caused severe losses to the Egyptians. A great part of the women and children, who had escaped the death, were carried to Arta and Prevesa, where they were sold like animals.

A letter from the Archbishop of Arta, says—"These women and children are sold at a low price like small cattle: once transported to Egypt, they cannot be re-purchased. The islanders will do all in their power, but I call for your co-operation.—In the name of humanity and religion, take pity on these unfortunate beings—spare them from degradation and apostacy." Mr. Eynard, on the receipt of this letter, immediately sent 50,000 francs for the redemption of as many of these Christian slaves as possible.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

By the Don Quixote, Capt. Clark, arrived yesterday evening in 28 days from Havre, we have the London Courier, to the 13th, our regular files of Galignani's Messenger, from Paris, to the 14th, and Havre papers to the 15th of July, and give such extracts of our limited time will allow.

The contents are not very important in a commercial or political point of view. Some disturbances appear to have taken place among the Janissaries at Constantinople, which it was supposed might have a favourable effect upon the Greeks.

An article under the Paris head of July 10, contained in the London Courier of the 12th, says, that the French Government had received very important news from Constantinople, published in the Etoile of that day, that the Janissaries revolted at Constantinople on the 28th ult. against Sultan Djedid. It was reported among them that this new organization was by virtue of a decree of Soliman, yet, notwithstanding this, they took up arms. Sultan Mahmoud returned immediately from the country, caused the standard of the Prophet to be hoisted and summoned all the faithful to it. Eight thousand Topaches have assembled and turned their cannon against the Janissaries, who for three days defended themselves in the streets and in their quarters. All those who did not submit have been exterminated; on the 13th tranquillity was restored. It was not a moment interrupted at Para. Sultan Mahmoud has displayed a degree of energy and courage which was not possessed by his uncle Selime III, who perished in 1807, in an insurrection of the Janissaries against the establishment of the Nizan Djedid.

It is thought that this revolt will render the Divan more accessible to the representation of the great European powers, who require the cessation of bloodshed in Greece.

From the London Courier of July 13.

Petersburgh, June 24.

The Duke of Dovenshire, Ambassador Extraordinary from His Brittanic Majesty, had the honor, on the 19th of this month, to be admitted to an audience of her Majesty the Empress of the Castle of old Island of Veiagsine. His Excellency presented to her Imperial Highness Viscount Morpeth, M. Zollinsendi, Messrs. Fane, Dundas, Cavendish, attached to the Embassy, and M. Norton, Captain of the Gloucester.

On the same day, the Ambassador Extraordinary of Sweden, Marshal Count Sjoedenuk, obtained the same honor after presenting his credentials.—The persons attached to his embassy were also presented.

Count d'Eisedel, Envoy Extraordinary from Saxony, has also presented his credentials, and been admitted to an audience of her Majesty the Empress.

Count de Caramau, Colonel de Guise, Commander of a squadron, Count Caumont, captain of the Lances of the Guard, all attached to the Embassy Extraordinary of France, have also had the honor of being presented to the Empress. Lord Strangford, Minister Plenipotentiary from his Brittannic Majesty, has taken his leave of the Imperial Highnesses, on his departure for England.

His Royal Hishness, Prince Charles of Prussia, and suite, arrived at St. Petersburgh on the 19th inst.

The Janissaries are divided into 160 orias, or regiments, each estimated at 1000 men; 40,000 will remain as a permanent garrison at Constantinople, the remainder are dispersed through the Provinces of the Empire. The Corps of Janissaries, formerly the pride and strength of the Ottoman Empire, is now its disgrace. Taken from the dregs of the populace, addicted to every vice, they are without dicipline, and even without bravery—they are so slovenly that many are seen at reviews without musket or sabre.

The debasement of this corps may be ascribed principally to the manner in which it is recruited. Christians, Renegadoes, Jews, Pagans, all are occupied, who are in need of the wretched rank which the Sultan causes to be given to his comrades, for he is himself inscribed on the list of Janissaries.

From the Supplement to the Albion.

NEW-YORK, August 14.

The William Byrnes arrived yesterday from Liverpool, by which we have received London papers to the 7th July. The Don Quixotte has also arrived at Havre with Paris papers to the 14th and London to the 13th of July.

A dreadful insurrection has taken place among the Janissaries at Constantinople, in consequence of the determination of the Turkish government to introduce the European discipline into that Turbulent corps. The Sultan however rallied the Faithful around him, and succeeded in giving the insurgents a complete overthrow, destroying about 10,000.—The Corps of these refractory miscreants who have so long been a disgrace to the Empire, seems to be completely broken. Some of the papers state that the name of Jannissary is erased from the books of the Turkish empire.

Mr. Stanley and Mr. Wood have been elected for Preston.

Mr. Brougham has resigned the contest for Westmoreland. In his parting address to the Electors he regretted having made the attempt, and stated that he had done so only at the express solicitation of a party.

July 4.—[The Gazette contains a proclamation, dated the 1st June, declaring that it shall be lawful for British ships to import into any of the British possessions in the West Indies and America, from the dominions of his most Christian Majesty, such goods being the produce of those dominions as are mentioned below, viz.—Wheat, flour, biscuit, bread, meal, peas, beans, rye, saltpeter, oats, barley, Indian corn, rice, shingles, red oak staves or headings, wood, lumber, wood hoops, live stock, hay and straw, coin and bullion, diamonds, salt, fruit and vegetables fresh, and cotton wool.—All articles subject, on importation, to a duty ad valorem, and on which the amount of duty shall not, at the time of importation, exceed £7 10s. for every £100 of value.]

London, July 7.—Average price of corn in England and Wales, from the returns received in the week ended July 11, 1826:—Wheat 55s. 11d.; Barley 28s. 8d.; Oats 24s. 3d.; Rye 38s. 9d.; Beans 32s. 3d.; Peas 29s. 3d.

A bag of gold containing 70,000 francs, has been lost out of one of Mr. Rothschild's wagons, on its way from Paris to Calais.

Orders have been given in countermand of those previously given for evacuating the strong places in Spain held by the French troops. It is even said that the French forces will be greatly augmented, and twenty additional regiments collected on the Adour. A great quantity of powder has been sent to Pampeluna.

Reports were circulated of the death of Talma, the celebrated actor. He was very seriously ill by the last accounts.

A French Stock-broker, Mr. R, has absconded, and has left a deficit of 1,600,000 francs.

A large naval force has been ordered to the Levant.

M. Bellart, the French Attorney General, is dead.

The Duke of York has nearly recovered.

The Admiralty has granted convoys for the Archipelago trade.

There has been a serious riot in Dublin.—Some lives were lost.

Since the capture of Missolonghi, the Greeks have kept up an active correspondence with the Hon. Stratford Canning and Count Armenth. Hamilton, and they seem to fix their last hopes on England.

One of Lord Cochran's steam-vessels has arrived at Napoli de Romani. His Lordship was hourly expected, and it was rumoured that he was to be appointed High Admiral, and to proceed direct to the attack of Constantinople.

Turkey.—On the 16th June there was a serious revolt at Constantinople, amongst the Janissaries, in consequence of the new organization of the troops.—The Grand Mahomed came in great haste from the country where he then was. He caused the standard of the prophet to be unfurled, and called the faithful to rally round him. 8000 Topshis were soon collected, and directed their cannon on the Janissaries' barracks, entirely destroyed them in their quarters and in the streets in three days. On the 19th tranquility was restored. There was no disorders at Pera where the Franks reside. The Sultan displayed great energy.

Lasher accounts state that 60,000 (we suspect this is a misprint for 8000) Mussulmen rallied round the Sultan. All the Janissaries in the other parts of Turkey have been banished to Asia. Several thousand lives were lost in this sanguinary struggle.

Sir Stamford Raffles is dead.

There is a deficiency of half a million in the revenue of the last quarter.

The accounts from the manufacturing districts are still gloomy.

It is Dr. Southey, the poet, who was elected M. P. It was for Downton not Taunton, and he was returned by the patron Earl Radnor. Dr. S. has declined the honor in consequence of his limited income.

The Swallow packet sailed from Falmouth on the 10th July, for America.

The Greeks.—Lord Cochrane had sailed for Greece, and it was understood was to have command of much the most society over which Lord Cochrane had the Greek Naval Force. He has in his squadron six or three steam boats, one of considerable force. It will not be astonishing if the plan of this Admiral was in imitation of Carthage when she attacked Rome—viz. to go to her enemies territory. The following is the postscript of his to the Pacha of Egypt:—"I request you to address your answer to me at Constantinople, where I am going in a direct line, to arrange with the utmost dispatch some important business."

The latest news from the Greeks is of a better character. There was great energy and union amongst the Chiefs. Letters from Corfu, of the 6th June, from the Archbishop, state that all the attempts of Roschid Pacha to bring about an attack on Athens had been in vain. The brave soldiers of Missolonghi joined to another corps, had attacked him at Cravari, where he wished to pass, and forced him to return to Etolia, where he goes, it is said, to take his route for Thessaly and Eastern Greece, which would cost him a march of twenty-five days.

Fire at Liverpool.—A fire broke out in Limekin Lane, on the 8th of July at noon, in a cotton store-house. It was impossible to stop the flames, and they continued to rage until night. The estimates of the losses vary; the lowest £150,000 Sterling, nearly two thirds of which were insured. The houses of Aspinall, Rankin & Co., Joseph Leigh, Rilley, Flescher, and many others unknown to us, have suffered in the west end. They were driven by the wind had blown from the S. W. the vessels in the harbor could not have escaped destruction. Since the terrible conflagration of 1801, which destroyed all the stores, there has been no instance of equal calamity. The fire began in the building of Mr. Aspinall.

Fire at Cronstadt.—On the 21st of June, a great fire broke out at Cronstadt, which destroyed a great quantity of provisions prepared for the merchant vessels, and some wooden buildings including 24 stores, shops, &c. The ships were removed from the harbor for security. 1,200,000 boards, and immense quantities of hemp and potatoes were also destroyed.

COLONIAL.

Halifax, Nova Scotia, July 25.

On Thursday last the Mersai came to anchor about one o'clock, and immediately after, his Excellency the Governor in Chief, and her Ladyship the Countess, landed, and were received at the King's Wharf by his Excellency Sir James Kempt, G. C. B. and a numerous assemblage of the most distinguished strangers and respectable inhabitants; a guard of honor was also drawn up, the yards of the ships in harbour were manned, and the customary salutes were fired upon the occasion.

The following Address from His Majesty's Council, the Clergy, the Magistrates and other inhabitants of Halifax, was presented to His Excellency the Earl of Dalhousie, at the Government House, on Saturday last:—

To His Excellency Lieutenant-General the Right Honorable George Earl of Dalhousie, G. C. B. Governor-in-Chief, and Commander of the Forces in British North America, &c. &c. &c.

The arrival of your Lordship once more in this Province, affords to the inhabitants of the town Halifax, another opportunity of manifesting their loyalty and devotion to their most gracious Monarch in the person of his representative, the Governor General of British America.

To the exalted station and representative character which your Lordship fills, we yield with deference, and in your Lordship's clemency; but we trust that we may be permitted to unite with these higher sentiments of Loyalty and devotion, those feelings of ardent attachment to your Lordship, which your private virtues excited while presiding over this province during your residence among us.

We fondly recall the recollection of the happiness we enjoyed under your Lordship's administration. The zeal, ability, and integrity with which you discharged the arduous duties, entitled you to our esteem and respect, while the kind condescension and amiable affability which you displayed in private life, gained and riveted our affections. It is then with the most sincere pleasure that we welcome your Lordship once more to our shores, and we beg you to believe, that the welcome springs from our hearts.

Happy are we were while your Lordship administered the government of this Province; happy as we still are under the administration of your excellent and able successor; we should feel guilty of ingratitude if we did not avail ourselves of every opportunity of expressing our respect for those who devote their time, and their talents, to promote our welfare, and our attachment to that Gracious Sovereign, whose paternal regard for us has been so conspicuously manifested, in the selection of able and upright men to represent him in this distant part of his dominions.

We had not forgotten that when last your Lordship honored this town with your presence, we heard from your own lips that the Countess of Dalhousie should be the companion of your next visit. The fulfilment of this promise has been anxiously expected, and your Lordship has not disappointed our hopes.

The ease of manner and sweetness of disposition which, without compromising the dignity of her rank, formed the charm of that society over which her Ladyship presided, have left an impression of deep impression; and we delight in recalling those amiable qualities which won our admiration and secured our regard.

The return of her Ladyship, connected with such pleasing associations, could not fail, therefore, to impart to us the highest gratification, and we gladly avail ourselves of this occasion to give expression to those sentiments of feelings with which her memory is cherished among us.

We have the honor to remain, with every sentiment of respect and affection,

Your Lordship's most devoted Servants.

Halifax, 22d July, 1826.

ANSWER.

Gentlemen—It is my first duty to thank you in his Majesty's name, for the declaration of that loyalty and devoted attachment to our most gracious Sovereign, which you have expressed in your address. I know well the sincerity with which those sentiments are felt in Nova Scotia, and it is receiving such declarations of them that I feel most impressively all the honor of the high station in which his Majesty has placed me, and in which I am permitted to act as his representative. In my public capacity, therefore, this welcome is most gratifying and most acceptable.

But it is as a private individual, and as such only, that I now return with Lady Dalhousie, in person, my promise to you, uttered to my old friend Sir James Kempt. It is as such that I would express how that the cordial and effectionate regard which we have long felt towards the inhabitants and society of Halifax, has been in no degree diminished by our absence.

I recall with great pleasure the recollection of those years of my life which have been passed in Nova Scotia; and it always gives me infinite satisfaction to know that the welfare of this province is seriously promoted by my friend and able successor in the administration of the government.

The reception and welcome which you now add to former proofs of your unvarying approbation and attachment, will ever be remembered by us with the most lively feelings of gratitude.

DALHOUSIE.

Government-House, Halifax, 22d July.

HALIFAX JULY 26.

SHUBENACADIE CANAL.

This most important work has been commenced, and under circumstances which encourage the confident hope of its being accomplished in a short period. Yesterday forenoon His Excellency the Earl of Dalhousie, and His Excellency Sir James Kempt, accompanied by His Excellency Sir Howard Douglas, Rear Admiral Lake, Maj. General Sir James Keane, the Members of His Majesty's Council and Assembly, Officers of the Army and Navy, with a numerous assemblage of the inhabitants, proceeded on the road towards Fletcher's, as far as the portage between Dartmouth Lake and Lake Charles, where they were received by the President, Vice-Presidents, Directors and the Engineer, Mr. Hall, who escorted them to the spot selected for the ceremony of breaking the first ground—there we found drawn up a Guard of Honour, composed of the Flank Companies of Militia, under the command of Captains Black and Richardson, and Captain May's company of Artillery, with three Field Pieces—There were also present the Right Worshipful Grand Master, and different Masonic Lodges: formed into a square, within which was the spot selected for the excavation. On the appearance of His Lordship, a Salute was fired by the Artillery, and the band of the Rifle Brigade struck up "God Save the King,"—the Masons then formed an arch under which the Hon. President conducted His Lordship and the distinguished individuals by whom he was accompanied, into the square, where he delivered a suitable address.

In conclusion another Salute was fired by the Artillery, and the whole of this very interesting ceremony closed with the beautiful air, "The Meeting of the Waters," from the Bugles, and three hearty cheers from the numerous crowd of spectators, expressive of their warm interest in the success of the enterprize.

Their Excellencies and Friends, attended by the Officers of the Company, afterwards proceeded to the residence of Lawrence Hartshorne, Esq. where a collation was provided, of which they partook, and soon after returned to Town.

During the ceremony, the Canal Labourers, to the number of Sixty, were stationed on the line of operations, and as the Company left the ground, were observed most actively engaged in the excavation thus auspiciously commenced by the Governor General of North America, to whom, we are satisfied, the circumstance will always prove a source of no common gratification, as will every thing that tends to the advancement of the prosperity of this Province.

We are given to understand that should the necessary funds be obtained, there will exist no obstacle what ever to the opening of the whole Navigation from this Harbour to the Basin of Mines, by the 1st August 1828.

His Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor gave an elegant Ball and supper last evening, to a very large party—among whom were His Excellency the Earl, and Her Ladyship the Countess, of Dalhousie, His Excellency Sir Howard Douglas, Lady Douglas, the Misses Douglas, Rear Admiral Lake and Lady, Miss Lake, Major General Sir John Keane, Captain Sir William Wiseman, &c. &c. The scene was usually gay and animated; and the presence of Lord and Lady Dalhousie, whose visit to Nova-Scotia has afforded so much gratification to its inhabitants, added greatly to the pleasure of the evening.

St. John, (New Brunswick) July 5.

On Sunday 23d ult. the Lord Bishop of Nova-Scotia, consecrated St. George's Church. The consecration took place, as usual, before Divine Service commenced, and after having confirmed 102 persons, his Lordship addressed them from the pulpit in a most able and impressive manner.

YORK, U. C. SATURDAY, AUGUST 26, 1826

London dates to 19th July are received, from which we have made selections. The most important Foreign news is the account of an insurrection among the Janissaries at Constantinople, which it is stated may be productive of favorable consequences to the Greeks.

Trade in England does not appear to have entirely recovered itself. In some parts of the country there still exists a depression, and the accounts are rather of an unfavorable kind.

The June mail has brought out a copy of the Custom House Collection Bill, which makes some important changes in the trade of the country. The clauses which more immediately relate to these Provinces are given in our paper to day, and will be found to contain such provisions, as satisfactorily shew that every concession was made in our favor consistent with the great and general interests of the Empire.

We are indebted to the Albion for a Report of the important case, Doe ex dem. Auchmuty and others, vs. Mulcaster and others, decided in the Court of King's Bench, London 13 June, before the Lord Chief Justice—Mr. Justice Bailey, and Mr. Justice Holroyd. The Albion in noticing this interesting decision has the following remarks:—

"The present forms an exception to the law laid down by Chief Justice Abbott in the case of THOMAS ACTON, reported in our paper of July 10, 1824. We shall endeavour to state the distinction in the two cases. By an Act of Geo. 2d, children entitled to inherit property in England, must be the children of British subjects. Now in the case of THOMAS ACTON vs. Jas. Lawrence, the Father (Mr. Thomas) was an American subject to the crown of Great Britain, prior to the acknowledgment of the independence of the United States by England in 1783; but in the said James Lawrence having made his election to become a citizen of the United States, by remaining therein and exercising the privileges thereof as far as he thought proper, it was held by the court that he was no longer a British subject; consequently his daughter, Mrs. Thomas, having been born in 1784, one year after Great Britain had formally conceded the independence of the United States, she could not be considered the child of a British subject, and the Court gave judgment accordingly. In the case which we publish to-day, AUCHMUTY v. MULCASTER, Mr. Auchmuty made his election to continue a British subject by removing to England, accepting an appointment from the Government, and subsequently returning to the United States as a British functionary; consequently his children although born in the United States, are the children of a British subject, and entitled to inherit property in England under the statute of George II. notwithstanding they have become citizens of America and bear arms in the service of the United States. From these decisions, then, the law is now settled to be, that when Great Britain signed the acknowledgment of the Independence of the United States of America, she absolved all her subjects in those territories from their allegiance; and that by continuing to reside in those territories, they forever lost their rights as subjects made a tacit acknowledgment that they had transferred their allegiance to the new government."

It is only necessary to add that in this instance, the doctrine laid down in the former case, appears to have been preserved inviolate, each particular case being allowed to rest on its own individual merits. The distinction is so clearly drawn, that we consider it unnecessary to say any thing further on the subject, and refer our readers to the case itself, which we have no doubt will be read with much interest.

"In point of personality and abuse the Advocate might rank with several numbers of the newspaper published with the Government Gazette of U. C. about sixteen or eighteen years ago," &c.

There would then have remained no doubt, that with respect to the U. C. Gazette, he was speaking of a distant period, but from the manner in which it was mentioned with other papers of the present period, we are sure that it cannot be thought surprising that we should have made the error, which it seems we have fallen into. However, it is now explained, and we are perfectly satisfied, that the Editor of the Ex-Gazette, was, at the time of writing, "holding familiar converse with the dead," and by no means meant his allusions as having any reference to living men, or things of the present day.

The Honorable and Right Reverend the Lord Bishop arrived in Town on Thursday evening—His Lordship was accompanied by his Chaplain and Secretary, the Rev. C. Morgell, A. B.—The Venerable Arch Deacon Stuart of Kingston, and the Rev. Mr. Wenham of Brockville.

Sometime since, we noticed the attention shewn by H. M. Government to the military defences of the Canadas, we can now state, that an officer of high rank, in the corps of Royal Engineers, has arrived with special instructions to make preparations at Kingston, for carrying on such works of defence, as may be approved upon plans and estimates to be by him sent home for that purpose.—Quebec Mercury.

From the London Gazette, June 17.—76th Regt. of Foot—Captain E. R. Stephenson, to be Major, Vice Vilett, promoted; Lieutenant W. N. Hutchinson, to be Captain by purchase, vice Stephenson; Ensign H. C. Gordon, to be Lieutenant, by purchase, vice Hutchinson; and J. Thompson, Gent. to be Ensign, by purchase, vice Gordon; each dated June 17, 1826.

Unattached.—Major T. Vilett, from the 76th Foot, to be Lieutenant Colonel of Infantry, by purchase, dated June 17, 1826.

COLONIAL TRADE.

By the June Mail which arrived on Friday, a copy of the Custom Collection Bill has been received. We extract from it the following Clauses, which relate to the trade of these Provinces.

XXV. And whereas another Act was passed in the last Session of Parliament, intituled An Act for the registering of British Vessels, and it is expedient to alter and amend the same in manner herein-after provided; And whereas by the said Act it is provided, that if any Ship be built in Asia, Africa, or America, for any Owner residing in the United Kingdom, a Certificate therein mentioned shall be given for the Navigation of such Ship to the United Kingdom, whether by a direct or circuitous Voyage, and that such Certificate shall for such Voyage have all the Force and Virtue of a Certificate of Registry under that Act; be it therefore enacted, That such Certificate shall be in like Force for the Navigation of such Ship for any Voyages whatever during the Term of Two Years from the Date of such Certificate, if such Ship shall not sooner arrive at a Place in the United Kingdom.

XXVI. And whereas by the said Act for registering British Ships Provision is made for the entering of any Bill of Sale of any Ship or Vessel, or any Share thereof, in the Book of Registry at the Port where such Ship or Vessel is registered, or in the Book of intended Registry at any other Port at which she is about to be registered de novo; be it enacted, That such Entry in the Book of intended Registry, shall not be made until all the Requisites of Law for the immediate Registry of the Ship or Vessel in such Book have been complied with; and that such Entry be valid or certified on the Bill of Sale until the Registry de novo of the Ship or Vessels shall have been duly made, and the Certificate thereof granted.

XLIII. And whereas another Act was passed in the last Session of Parliament, intituled An Act to regulate the Trade of the British Possessions Abroad; and it is expedient to alter and amend the same in manner herein-after provided: And whereas by the said Act certain Goods are prohibited to be imported into any Port or Place in the British Possessions in America, except into some of the Ports in such Possessions called Free Ports, and enumerated or described in a Table contained in such Act; be it therefore enacted, That if any Goods shall be imported into any Port or Place in the said Possessions contrary to such Prohibition, such Goods shall be forfeited.

XLIV. And be it further enacted, That Rum or other Spirits, the Produce of any British Possessions in South America or the West Indies, when imported from any British Possession in America into Canada, shall not be deemed to be Foreign, nor be charged with Duty as such; and that the Duty of Sixpence the Gallon, imposed by the said Act to regulate the Trade of the British Possessions Abroad, upon such Rum or other Spirits, when imported into Canada from the United Kingdom, shall be payable over and above any Duty thereon there payable under any Colonial Law, any thing in the said Act or this Act to the contrary notwithstanding.

XLV. And be it further enacted, That all Masts, Timber and Ashes, brought by Land or Inland Navigation into Canada, and duly shipped and exported from thence, shall, upon Importation into the United Kingdom, be deemed to be and be imported as the Produce of some British Possession; and that it shall be lawful to bring into Canada, by Land or Inland Navigation, any Beef or Pork, to be there Warehoused for the purpose only of being exported to Newfoundland: Provided always, that Security shall be given to the satisfaction of the Commissioners of His Majesty's Customs, upon the First Entry of such Beef or Pork, that the same shall be duly conveyed to and Warehoused in some Warehousing Port, to be from thence exported direct to Newfoundland.

XLVI. And be it further enacted, That Wheat Flour which shall have been Warehoused at any Free Warehousing Port in the British Possessions in North America, and which shall be imported direct from the Warehouse at such Port into any British Possession in the West Indies or in South America, shall upon such Importation be liable only to a Duty of One Shilling for every Barrel of such Flour, instead of the Duty of Five Shillings now payable on the same under the said Act for regulating the Trade of the British Possessions Abroad.

LI. And whereas by the said Act passed in the last Session of Parliament, to repeal several Laws relating to the Customs; the several Acts, and Parts of Acts, therein particularly enumerated and referred to, passed prior to the last Session of Parliament, are repealed, or will, from and after the Fifth Day of July, One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-six, be repealed; and it is expedient to repeal also several Acts passed in the last Session of Parliament; be it therefore enacted, That the several Acts herein-after mentioned, passed in the last Session of Parliament, shall be and the same are hereby repealed; (that is to say,) an Act, intituled, An Act to reduce the Duties on Wine, Coffee and Hemp, imported into the United Kingdom; and another Act, intituled, An Act for further regulating the Trade of His Majesty's Possessions in America and the West Indies, and for the warehousing of Goods therein; and another Act, intituled, An Act to extend to the Island of Mauritius the Duties and Regulations which relate to the British Islands in the West Indies; and another Act, intituled, An Act to repeal certain Duties of Customs, and to grant other Duties in lieu thereof; to continue, until the Fifth Day of July, One thousand eight hundred and twenty-six, the Bounties on refined Sugar; and to alter the Bounty on Cordage.

POSTSCRIPT

CANADA LAND COMPANY.

A meeting of the shareholders of this company, which has received the sanction of Government, was convened yesterday afternoon at the London Tavern, Bishopsgate-street, for the purpose of receiving the report, and of arranging matters for the further prosecution of the company.

The chair was taken at two o'clock precisely, by Mr. Charles Bosanquet, who having stated the objects of the meeting,

Mr. Galt, the Secretary, proceeded to read the report. It stated among other things, that in consequence of the Directors not having been able, as was intended, to make a purchase of the Clergy Reserves, they had entered into an arrangement for purchasing with the consent of the shareholders, a tract of land in Upper Canada, consisting of not less than one million acres, and that, taking into consideration the fact, that the company would have to pay much less than if the Church lands had been bought, the Directors were fully convinced that the company would prosper. It therefore remained with the shareholders, whether the company should be carried on with the new arrangement, or whether it should be abandoned altogether? If the former proposition were adopted, it was intended to pay the dissentients (amounting to one-tenth of the whole number of subscribers) the sum of 10*l.* on each share in their possession.

On the question that the report be received,

Mr. Carruthers, a shareholder, wished to know whether the directors had the power of altering in the least degree, the manner of purchasing land in Canada, which, he understood, was fully provided for by the Deed of settlement; and whether the fact of paying £10 per share to each dissentient, did not in law dissolve the company?

The chairman stated, that the directors wished to have the concurrence of the shareholders, whether the company should be carried on under the news regulations, viz. that of purchasing the Crown Lands, not being able to obtain the Church Lands, on much better terms than if the original purchases had been completed. If the shareholders were of opinion that the new arrangements were not so good as the old ones, it would only remain for him and the directors to proceed to-morrow morning to Lord Bathurst, and say that the company would not enter into any purchase, unless the Clergy Reserves were included in it. For his own part, he thought that ultimately the company would be benefitted by the arrangement.

Mr. Wilson wished to know how the old company was to be got rid of, and a new one formed, without hurting the interests of the parties who had been original subscribers, and who had sold a portion of shares.

Mr. W. Williams said, it was impossible for the directors to take into consideration any thing done out of doors.

A long discussion here arose as to the legality of the proceedings of the directors, in entering into arrangements for the purchase of land not specified in the original prospectus.

Mr. Freshfield, the solicitor to the company, was of opinion that the directors were fully authorised in what they had done.

After some further conversation, Mr. Carruthers proposed that the deed, correspondence, papers, &c. should be submitted to Mr. Shadwell and Mr. Horne, for the purpose of having their opinion whether the directors had the power of altering the mode of the purchase of land. It having been seconded, was negatied.

The chairman then moved that the report be received, and it was carried unanimously.

The chairma nthen moved a resolution to the effect that when the charter should have been obtained, £10 on each share should be paid to the dissentients (1,095 in number:) that the directors be empowered to conclude the arrangements entered into for the purchase of the Crown Lands; and that, notwithstanding the payment of the dissentients, there would be no occasion for any further call on the share-holders for at least one or two years.

These resolutions having been carried, thanks were voted to the chairman and directors, when the meeting adjourned.

PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors, of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province; to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on Monday the Fourteenth day of August inst. to be Commenced, Held, Called, and Elected, and to every of you

GREETING

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Twenty-seventh day of June last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the Fourteenth day of August instant, at which time, at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear.

NOW KNOW YE, that we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents enjoining you and each of you that on Thursday the Twenty-first day of September next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding our Forces therein, at York, this Tenth day of August in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-six, and in the Seventh Year of our reign.

UPPER CANADA.

P. MAITLAND,
Lieut. Governor.

GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To all to whom these Presents shall come

GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the parts of this Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. We have thought fit to order and direct, and We do hereby order and direct that, until Our pleasure herein shall be further made known, it shall and may be lawful for all Our Subjects inhabiting Our Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada, freely to enter into Our Woods and Forests in such parts of Our said Province of Upper Canada, situate along the Banks of the River Ottawa, or upon the Banks of the Waters running into the said River and within a convenient distance from the same, as shall not have been Surveyed and divided into Concessions and Lots, and to Cut and carry away such Oak and Pine Timber as may be fit for the purposes of Exportation.

Provided always, nevertheless, That in consideration of the authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties herein-after specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Red Pine Timber, Four Pounds Three Shillings and Four Pence, being at the rate of One Penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Yellow Pine Timber, Two Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence, being at the rate of One Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commission under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places upon the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointed as aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has attained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons, properly authorized by or under Our Licence granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS Our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this third day of May in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-Six, and in the Seventh Year of Our Reign.

No. 9 1.1

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepared in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s. 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hundred Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant. It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessary expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

POETRY.

FOR MUSIC.

Is she fair as morning's shine?
One I know is fairer;
Rare as pearls beneath the brine?
She I'm sure is rarer.
Be her eyes like cloudless skies?
Even heaven can nought like hazel boast.
Streams her hair like sunbeams fair?
Dark locks o'er bright brows please me most.

Coral lips are common things—
But—the breath that parts them!
Starry looks one often sings,
But—the soul that darts them!
I have seen and sigh'd and sung;
Oh! have I ever felt before?
Thought that love lay on the tongue,
And now he stings my bosom's core.

Other smiles must chase away
Thoughts that sting too keenly &
Brightly still shine beauty's ray,
Though no more serenely.
Fill about the brimming glass,
To those we see no more we meet!
Smother Love, nor sigh, alas!
That one sad toast, and then 'tis o'er.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MY TRIAL FOR MY OWN MURDER.

"Run for officers;
Let him be apprehended with full speed;
I or fear he 'scape away: lay hands on him.
We cannot be too sure—'tis wilful murder!"—MIDDLETON.

I verily believe if my man could look into the Sybilline leaf of the future and catch a glimpse of the various vicissitudes and misfortunes with which we must struggle, he would turn sharply round, and seek the nearest course short of suicide, to rid himself of those trials which might shake his manhood: and so give up all the sunshine of existence to avoid its showers. Fortunately, however, man has not the privilege of foreknowledge, a faculty which few would have the courage to render service-able, which must soon convert into an engine of misery and affliction.

With what exquisite heart-throbbings we look backwards upon the first twenty or thirty years of our existence, and in retrospective enjoyment bend over these halcyon days (for we all have our halcyon days) with ever-new emotions, omnipotent nothing. I, indeed, have enjoyed days, and often and often have I gone through them with increased delight, when I have contemplated the vicissitudes and misfortunes at the commencement of this paper, and the personal observations I then made was drawn from me with reference to one misfortune of my life, perhaps, one of the severest, certainly the most singular, that can befal any man. I was doomed to suffer one overwhelming evil, which stands amidst the events of an otherwise happy life, like a barren and dreary spot, surrounded by the greenest verdure and the most fragrant flowers.

"Oh! the unerring hand of justice and retribution!" says the moralist, when his mind is elevated by hearing the detail of crime and wickedness. "the unerring hand of justice and retribution," says he—good man—" will sooner or later overtake the culprit:"—and, in truth, it not unfrequently happens that crime will cry aloud from its hiding place, with most miraculous organ." I am a moralist, and oftentimes has my mind been harrowed by the detail of crime and wickedness, and I too, have often exclaimed, "Oh! the unerring hand of justice and retribution!"—but my cry has now become—oh! the erring hand of justice and retribution!"

Justice has indeed been truly painted blind, and a very expressive portrait she makes in that way. If not realy blind, justice is certainly, in some cases, near-sighted or short sighted, as some people call it; and this same blindness, or short-sightedness of justice, very nearly placed my unfortunate neck within the grasp of the merciless legal halter. I cannot now endure the sight of a blind man or a rope —they are both images repulsive to my mind—even a field mown with hempseed, smells like poison to me.

In what language shall I attempt to explain (so as to be intelligible to my readers, or such of them as have been accustomed to live in quiet, at a respectful distance from the reach of ropes and halters,) the nature of that charge by which the bungling and erring hand of justice overtook me. The facts are almost incredible.—Perhaps—but no: I will put a truce to all surmise: I was accused, imprisoned, prosecuted, and all but condemned to the gallows—but I am innocent, in the face of the world, I solemnly protest. I am innocent—for my own murder!—Yes, gentle (and I now trust more gentler) reader, I, who am at this moment telling the painful story, have been actually accused, imprisoned, and prosecuted, and saw the halter swinging over my head, with a retributory menace, for the crime of my own murder.

A wanderer by nature, as well as by necessity, I had for many years been absent from my native country, seeking to gratify my love of variety, both in scenery, and society, and to amass, by my own diligence, those golden qualifications, without which a man stands but a poor chance of being looked upon in the world. The first of these objects I accomplished to my heart's content; but as to the second, I felt far short of my hopes, and returned very nearly as poor as I went; for except a few hundred pounds, invested in merchandize, I set my foot on British ground, with about fifty dollars and a few English coins, and these for safer custody, I carried in my pocket.

Necessity had taught me economy, and therefore, instead of indulging myself with the accommodation of a stage coach to make my way to the metropolis, I commenced my journey as an humble pedestrian. Having travelled in this way many miles, I stopped at a mean inn by the wayside to refresh myself, and was soon seated amongst the motley group of the usual hangers-on at such places of resort. Finding that, about two miles farther on the road, I should arrive at a small market town, where accommodation for the night of a much more convenient nature could be procured, I resolved, after having sufficiently rested myself, to make my way thither to seek a place of repose.

On producing my purse to pay the demands of my host, I took out casually two or three of my dollars, and laid them on the table. I was recluded by the boors of the village, who were attracted by the sight of coin so unfamiliar to their eyes; and to satisfy their curiosity, I shewed them my store, and explained their history and relative value. During this proceeding, a greedy-eyed, ill-looking fellow seemed to fix his eys on me and my purse, in a way not the most pleasing to me. Many men are fond of having their purses examined and admired by others; but I have lived long enough in the world to believe that no eyes are so fitting to examine such an object as those of its possessor.

I soon took my departure, and proceeded leisurely onwards to the place of my destination. The evening began to close; and on arriving at a dull part of the road, overhung by high banks, covered with furze and briers, I found myself in an instant stunned by a blow, administered by some one behind me, the effect of which soon disabled me from making any attempt to protect myself against further violence of my brutal assailant. I sunk exhausted and senseless.

When I recovered my consciousness, for I could hardly deem myself sensible, I discovered I was bleeding copiously from my nose, and lying in a wet ditch half drowned, apparently in my own blood, which made a great show, mingled with the water. A countryman was leaning over and humanely endeavouring to assist me. I felt in nearly a lifeless condition, although no actual fracture had succeeded the blow; and while my good Samaritan was deliberating what to do, I by motion and, to his apprehension, certainly dead; for I heard him say he wouldgo and find a doctor but he could do no good, for all was over with me.—For this humane purpose he left me just as he found me.

It was then nearly dark, and I resolved to rouse myself, and endeavour to pursue my walk for the short distance that remained. With considerable effort I roused myself from my muddy resting-place and found my clothes, which were none of the best, wet through and through, and being scarcely worth the carriage, I thought it better to leave them behind me, and soon equiped myself in another suit which I carried in my knapsack. I washed myself as well as I could, and put the best face on the on the matter. I recollected the ill-looking fellow, who had cast his amorous glances on my dollars, and singled him out as the perpetrator of the crime; but I was rejoiced to find that his obvious intentions were defeated, and I carried off my dollars in triumph, congratulating myself heartily on my narrow escape.

I pursued my walk to the market town, and soon arrived at the inn. I had scarcely taken my seat, still suffering from the blow I had received, before I overheard an indistinct conversation amongst several men, stationed at the other end of the room, accompanied by expressive looks, directed towards me. Knowing myself to be a perfect stranger in the place, this did not excite my surprise. The conversation soon became louder and more distinct, and, at length, I heard a strangely exaggerated story of my own murder. It was confidently asserted that a stranger had been robbed and murdered a short distance from the town, and that he had been found by a labourer in a ditch, with his skull fractured, his brains scattered about the road, and his pockets turned inside out. I listened to this marvellous history with great amusement, thinking how easily a strange story is made to pass current, grounded on the slightest facts.

Having taken some refreshment, I ordered my bed, and being an entire stranger, I chose to pay for both before I retired for the night, and again produced my purse, containing my dollars and other money. At this juncture an inquisitive looking old man came up to me and looked at my dollars, and then fixing his eyes on my face, turned round to his companions, and with significant gesture, whispered, 'there's blood on this man's face—he has got some dollars—where did he come from—who is he?" This excited a general sensation. A pause ensued, and all seemed at fault," as the sportsmen say. The inquisitive old man again approached me, and asked me in a significant manner, whether he did not just now see some dollars in my possession: I replied in the affirmative, and produced one or two. He turned bluntly round to his companions, and put his finger cunningly up to his nose. He then renewed the attack, and asked me where I had procured them? whether there were many to be met with in this country? and a variety of other questions, all of which I answered carelessly—not well pleased with the old man's impertinence.

He then, for the first time, observed aloud to me, with a look of scrutiny, that I had some blood on my face. To this I replied as coolly as I did to his questions, not choosing to gratify his curiosity and wishing to hear more of my own murder.

At this moment an addition was made to the company, by the arrival of a person who been my good Samaritan, who found and left me in the ditch. He was full of his subject, and came to relate the "full, true, and particular" account to his pot companions. He stated at length where and how he found a strange man in sailor's clothes, with his skull fractured, his brains scattered about the road, and his pockets turned inside out, and that he left him quite dead. He stated he went for assistance to the village doctor, and on returning found an inquiring at the little public-house to learn whether I had been there, he described my person and dress, and discovered that I had rested and taken refreshment there, and, moreover, that I had a great many dollars and English coin in my possession. Having made this statement, he returned to the spot where he left the murdered stranger; but, instead of finding him, he discovered, that, during his absence, the body had been stripped and removed, and, as he believed, buried, and the clothes were lying scattered about on the brink of the ditch.

All this was highly amusing to me, and I resolved to let the story roll on, like a snowball, increasing with every step, without affording any explanation, until it should have arrived at its climax.

Again I observed inquisitive looks cast on me, and the words 'dollars' and 'blood' were again whispered about. The old inquisitive man quietly left the room, and returned with on athletic bushy-looking man, who soon discovered himself to me as the constable of the parish; and without further ceremony, the old man gave me in charge to the constable, as being suspected of the murder. The constable proceeded to search me, and, on producing my purse with dollars, the old man who found the murdered stranger set up a shout, and charged the constable not to let me escape; and then fixing his eyes on the blood on my face, said, he was sure I was the murderer and robber, and he would tell all he knew upon his bible oath. I now found it was high time to speak in my own defence, lest the joke, which I had relished so much, should be carried too far; but I learnt, to my sorrow, that the joke had quite ceased, and that no assertion or explanation of mine could serve me one jot in proving my personal identity.

In consequence of this, therefore, was a safe lodgment for the night in the cage, in full sight of the whip-post and the county gaol.—Imagine my situation, ye who have been accustomed all your lives to be called honest men and women, and who have never known any thing of the inside of the gaol, or other place or durance, except through Mrs. Fry and Caleb Williams.

In this horrible condition I passed the night, deprived of my purse, of my dollars and other money, and with no other prospect before me than being treated as a criminal; yet I sometimes ventured to hope that I should be enabled to explain the true state of the case, and expulsate myself before a reasonable and intelligent magistrate.

The morning dawned upon me through the grates of the cage, and my solitude was soon broken by the arrival of the constable, the inquisitive looking old man, and my American friend. I was led out amidst an infuriated crowd, who were by no means sparing in their execrations, and was conducted, after much peril, into the presence of the Justice.

As my supposed crime was of a glaring and prominent nature, it was allowed to commence the business of the day. My accuser was placed before me, and in a blunt, straight-forward manner told his story—how he was passing along the road—how he found the stranger with a fractured skull, lying dead and covered with bruises and blood—how he spent no assistance, and, on his return, found the clothes scattered about, and the body removed. My own dollars, and my own blood on my own face, were given in evidence against me, the story was made complete in all its parts, and the investigation ended in my committal to the county gaol to take my trial at the next assizes, for the wilful murder of some person unknown, and the constable and his companions were ordered to make diligent search for the body. Shortly after my committment, as if all circumstances conspired against me, the people, after an active search, discovered, in the course of the day, the body of a strange person, almost in a state of nudity, in a canal, which ran along the back of the town, upon which the coroner sat in due form; and thus, to the satisfaction of my persecutors, a chain of evidence was made out sufficiently strong to put me on my trial.

Let those good people who preach so strongly in favour of the comfortable feelings arising from conscious innocence, and build so much on inward fortitude, and who join in the declaration of the poet, that "whatever is, is right"—let them place themselves for a moment in my situation—let them feel the horrors of a man, charged with his own murder, and unable to convince his judges that he is actually in existence. How obtuse are the intellects of many worthy people, who, in the hurry of pursuit of truth, bug to their hearts an image which, in reality, has assumed the garb of that rarely discovered personage!

Already I fancied in my gloomy reflections, that I heard the jury declare me to be guilty, and in my dreams I saw the judge put on the fatal black cap, and begin to pass on me the awful sentence of the law. Then I fancied I heard my last dying speech and confession chaunted about the streets, to be sold for a halfpenny, and pasted on cottage walls, and children taught reading and the necessity of virtue from the same paper. Then the borrowed M. P for Dover, aged 56.

Died on Saturday 5th July, at Mareham le Fen, after a severe and lingering illness, Mr. James Roberts, aged 74. In 1768, and the three following years, this gentlemen accompanied Sir Jos. Banks in the first voyage of Capt. Cook round the world, and in 1772 he again accompanied Sir Joseph in his memorable of supporting myself till the hour of trial.

From my childhood I had always accustomed myself to look on the gloomy side of things, and in this, my hour of distress, my brooding disposition was busier than ever. I sometimes began to question whether this was not all a dream, or whether I had not actually murdered, and whether my present sufferings were not part of my punishment for the sins committed in my life-time.

At length the assizes commenced, and in due course I was placed before the court to take my trial. Never shall I forget that moment. I was roused by it. My own convictions of my personal identity was complete; but would it avail me any thing? The story on which I had to depend was nothing in the face of the evidence to be adduced. Was such an improbable story to be believed? Should I be allowed to sit up myself as the murdered man, when the witness saw him lying dead, and the body was afterwards found in the canal? It was contrary to common sense, and would, of course, be looked upon as the desperate attempt of a hardened villain proving my personal identity.

In consequence of this, therefore, was a safe lodgment for the night in the cage, in full sight of the whip-post and the county gaol.—Imagine my situation, ye who have been accustomed all your lives to be called honest men and women, and who have never known any thing of the inside of the gaol, or other place or durance, except through Mrs. Fry and Caleb Williams.

ELECTION IN PRESTON.

The result of this election must be a manner of manoeuvering, Cobbett commenced the trickery on saturday, by causing Sir T. Beevor to be nominated a candidate. His objects were these—first, to keep second votes of the men from the other candidates; and secondly, to be able to bring to the poll two tallies successively, his own, and that which should come up in the name of Sir Thomas; but in this he was met by the other candidates who also nominated a friend each, and so were enabled to bring up two sets of voters in succession as well as Cobbett. On the close of the first day, several of the voters, after drinking and feasting with one candidate, and coming to poll in their entertainer's tally, suddenly turned over and gave their votes to another. Messrs Stanley, Wood and Barrie, complained indignantly at the treachery, and agreed to discontinuance by even though practice in their own favour. Cobbett also acceeded to the agreement. Yet, in the very next tally that came up to vote for Wood, one of the voters gave a plumper for Cobbett; Cobbett, forgetting his promise, ran down to the booth, thanked the man, shook hands with him, and told him he was a very honest fellow! This shabbyb breach of faith has excited in the other candidates the most direct and determined opposition to him. One of Cobbett's men having given a plumper to Wood, the latter observed to the voter, "You promised to vote for Mr. Cobbett?—" I did." "You joined his colours, and took drink?—" I did." "And after all that you desert him and vote for me?—" I do." "Well, I have your vote; 'tis as good for me as an honest man's vote, but I dont thank you for it. You're a shabby fellow!" This plain and manly act has procured for Mr. Wood the second votes of several of even Cobbett's supporters.

Twelve o'clock.

Cobbett has fulfilled the expectations; he has violated the agreement to poll by tallies, and insist upon the voters taking his votes as they came to the hustings. The business of the day commenced with the most tumultuous uproar on the part of the rabble.

Tuesday, Twelve o'clock.

The moment the mayor took his seat on the hustings yesterday, Cobbett came forward, and presented to him a written protest, against the mode of voting by tallies, (tens of voters at a time.)

The Mayor denied that he had introduced the mode of voting by tallies, it had been the standing custom of the borough. As to partiality he would face the charge in any court in Christendom.

Mr. Wood here confirmed the Mayor's assertion.

Captain Barrie, amid the confusion, denied that he had formed a coalition with any candidate. (Shouts of disprobation.) While he was on his legs, he would tell them an anecdote of Mr. Cobbett. That gentleman went to an elector and asked him for his vote, the elector told him that he had promised to give his vote to Mr. Wood and Mr. Stanley; after dinner Mr. Cobbett went to persuade him to break his promise; when Cobbett saw no chance of obtaining the vote, he said to the electors, "May starvation forever seize you."—(Shouts of disapprobation.)

Cobbett—Oh, don't mind Capt. Barry, my friends; don't you know that he is the noted Bob Barry, the celebrated dog fighter. (Laughter and renewed uproar.)

Mr. Wood again stepped forward, and confirmed Capt. Barrie's account of Cobbett having wished eternal starvation to an elector who refused to vote for him; the elector's name was John Singleton. (Applause and hisses.)

Cobbett—All the parties are opposed to me, because they know I have a majority of your votes. I am accused of having wished starvation to an elector who refused to give me his vote. I deny the charge; I never used the words; I never even frowned on an elector; my friends here who attended me on my canvass all know—yourselves know, that I never go among you without wearing a smiling face. (Applause.) The accusation is a lie, as great a lie as ever was uttered by even a Canada Commissioner. (From the crowd, "take that

FOR MUSIC.

Is she fair as morning's shine?
One I know is fairer;
Rare as pearls beneath the brine?
She I'm sure is rarer.
Be her eyes like cloudless skies?
Even heaven can nought like hazel boast.
Streams her hair like sunbeams fair?
Dark locks o'er bright brows please me most.

Coral lips are common things—
But—the breath that parts them!
Starry looks one often sings,
But—the soul that darts them!
I have seen and sigh'd and sung;
Oh! have I ever felt before?
Thought that love lay on the tongue.
And now he stings my bosom's core.

Other smiles must chase away
Thoughts that sting too keenly &
Brightly still shines beauty's ray,
Though no more serenely.
Fill about the brimming glass,
To those we see no more—no more!
Smother Love, nor sigh, alas!
That one sad toast, and then 'tis o'er.

MY TRIAL FOR MY OWN MURDER.

"Run for officers;
Let him be apprehended with full speed;
I or fear he 'scape away: lay hands on him.
We cannot be too sure—'tis wilful murder!"
Measure for Measure.

I verily believe if any man could look into the Sybilline leaf of the future and catch a glimpse of the various vicissitudes and misfortunes with which we must struggle, he would turn sharply round, and seek the nearest course short of suicide, to rid himself of those trials which might shake his manhood: and so give up all the sunshine of existence to avoid its showers. Fortunately, however, man has not the privilege of foreknowledge, a faculty which few would have the courage to render service-able, which must end in convert into an engine of misery and affliction.

With what exquisite heart-throbbings we look backwards upon the first twenty or thirty years of our existence, and in retrospective enjoyment bend over these halcyon days (for we shall [illegible] with ever-new emotions, omnipotent soothing. I, indeed, have enjoyed days, and often and often [illegible] them with increased delight, when the vicissitudes and misfortunes at the commencement of this paper, and the general observations I then made was drawn from me with reference to one misfortune of my life, perhaps, one of the severest, certainly the most singular, that can befal any man. I was doomed to suffer one overwhelming evil, which stands amidst the events of an otherwise happy life, like a barren and dreary spot, surrounded by the greenest verdure and the most fragrant flowers.

"Oh! the unerring hand of justice and retribution!" says the moralist, when his mind is clouded by hearing the detail of crime and wickedness. "the unerring hand of justice and retribution," says he—good man—" will sooner or later overtake the culprit:"—and, in truth, it not unfrequently happens that crime will cry aloud from its hiding place, with most miraculous organ." I am a moralist, and oftentimes has my mind been harrowed by the detail of crime and wickedness, and I too, have often exclaimed, " Oh! the unerring hand of justice and retribution!"—but my cry has now become—oh! the erring hand of justice and retribution!"

Justice has indeed been truly painted blind, and a very expressive portrait she makes in that way. If not realy blind, justice is certainly, in some cases, near-sighted or short sighted, as some people call it; and this same blindness, or short-sightedness of justice, very nearly placed my unfortunate neck within the grasp of the merciless legal halter. I cannot now endure the sight of a blind man or a rope —they are both images repulsive to my mind—even a field mown with hempseed, smells like poison to me.

In what language shall I attempt to explain (so as to be intelligible to my readers, or such of them as have been accustomed to live in quiet, at a respectful distance from the reach of ropes and halters,) the nature of that charge by which the bungling and erring hand of justice overtook me. The facts are almost incredible.——Perhaps—but no: I will put a truce to all surmise: I was accused, imprisoned, prosecuted, and all but condemned to the gallows—but I am innocent, in the face of the world, I solemnly protest. I am innocent—for my own murder!——Yes, gentle (and I now trust more gentler) reader, I, who am at this moment telling the painful story, have been actually accused, imprisoned, and prosecuted, and saw the halter swinging over my head, with a retributory menace, for the crime of my own murder.

A wanderer by nature, as well as by necessity, I had for many years been absent from my native country, seeking to gratify my love of variety, both in manners and society, and to amass, by my own diligence, those golden qualifications, without which a man stands but a poor chance of being looked upon in the world. The first of these objects I accomplished to my heart's content; but as to the second, I felt far short of my hopes, and returned very nearly as poor as I went; for except a few hundred pounds, invested in merchandize, I set my foot on British ground, with about fifty dollars and a few English coins, and these for safer custody, I carried in my pocket.

Necessity had taught me economy, and therefore, instead of indulging myself with the accommodation of a stage coach to make my way to the metropolis, I commenced my journey as an humble pedestrian. Having travelled in this way many miles, I stopped at a mean inn by the wayside to refresh myself, and was soon seated amongst the motley group of the usual hangers-on at such places of resort. Finding that, about two miles farther on the road, I should arrive at a small market town, where accommodation for the night of a much more convenient nature could be procured, I sat down, after having sufficiently rested myself, to make my way thither to seek a place of repose.

On producing my purse to pay the demands of my host, I took out casually two or three of my dollars, and laid them on the table. I was seduced by the boors of the village, who were attracted by the sight of coin so unfamiliar to their eyes; and to satisfy their curiosity, I shewed them my store, and explained their history and relative value. During this proceeding, a greedy-eyed, ill-looking fellow seemed to fix his eys on me and my purse, in a way not the most pleasing to me. Many men are fond of having their purses examined and admired by others; but I have lived long enough in the world to believe that no eyes are so fitting to examine such an object as those of its possessor.

I soon took my departure, and proceeded leisurely onwards to the place of my destination. The evening began to close; and on arriving at a dull part of the road, overhung by high banks, covered with furze and briers, I found myself in an instant stunned by a blow, administered by some one behind me, the effect of which soon disabled me from making any attempt to protect myself against further violence of my brutal assailant. I sunk exhausted and senseless.

When I recovered my consciousness, for I could hardly deem myself sensible, I discovered I was bleeding copiously from my nose, and lying in a wet ditch half drowned, apparently in my own blood, which made a great show, mingled with the water. A countryman, approaching, leaning over and humanely endeavouring to assist me. I felt in nearly a lifeless condition, although no actual fracture had succeeded the blow; and while my good Samaritan was deliberating what to do, I lay motionless, and, to his apprehension, certainly dead; for I heard him say he wouldgo and find a doctor but he could do no good, for all was over with me.—For this humane purpose he left me just as he found me.

It was then nearly dark, and I resolved to rouse myself, and endeavour to pursue my walk for the short distance that remained. With considerable effort I roused myself from my muddy resting-place and found my clothes, which were none of the best, wet through and through, and being scarcely worth the carriage, I thought it better to leave them behind me, and soon equiped myself in another suit which I carried in my knapsack. I washed myself as well as I could, and put the best face on the on the matter. I recollected the ill-looking fellow, who had cast his amorous glances on my dollars, and singled him out as the perpetrator of the crime; but I was rejoiced to find that his obvious intentions were defeated, and I carried off my dollars in triumph, congratulating myself heartily on my narrow escape.

I pursued my walk to the market town, and soon arrived at the inn. I had scarcely taken my seat, still suffering from the blow I had received, before I overheard an indistinct conversation amongst several men, stationed at the other end of the room, accompanied by expressive looks, directed towards me. Knowing myself to be a perfect stranger in the place, this did not excite my surprise. The conversation soon became louder and more distinct, and, at length, I heard a strangely exaggerated story of my own murder. It was confidently asserted that a stranger had been robbed and murdered a short distance from the town, and that he had been found by a labourer in a ditch, with his skull fractured, his brains scattered about the road, and his pockets turned inside out. I listened to this marvellous history with great amusement, thinking how easily a strange story is made to pass current, grounded on the slightest facts.

Having taken some refreshment, I ordered my bed, and being an entire stranger, I chose to pay for both before I retired for the night, and again produced my purse, containing my dollars and other money. At this juncture an inquisitive looking old man came into the room, looked at my dollars, and then fixing his eyes on my face, turned round to his companions, and with significant gesture, whispered, 'there's blood on this man's face—he has got some dollars—where did he come from—who is he?" This excited a general sensation. A pause ensued, all seemed at fault," as the sportsmen say. The inquisitive old man again approached me, and asked me in a significant manner, whether he did not just now see some dollars in my possession: I replied in the affirmative, and produced one or two. He turned bluntly round to his companions, and put his finger cunningly up to his nose. He then renewed the attack, and asked me where I had procured them? whether there were many to be met with in this country? and a variety of other questions, all of which I answered carelessly—not well pleased with the old man's impertinence.

He then, for the first time, observed aloud to me, with a look of scrutiny, that I had some blood on my face. To this I replied as coolly as I did to his questions, not choosing to gratify his curiosity, and wishing to hear more of my own murder.

At this moment an addition was made to the company, by the arrival of a person who been my good Samaritan, who found and left me in the ditch. He was full of his subject, and came to relate the "full, true, and particular" account to his pot companions. He started at length where and how he found a strange man in sailor's clothes, with his skull fractured, his brains scattered about the road, and his pockets turned inside out, and that he left him quite dead. He stated he went for assistance to the village doctor, and on inquiring at the little public-house to learn whether I had been there, he described my person and dress, and discovered that I had rested and taken refreshment there, and, moreover, that I had a great many dollars and English coin in my possession. Having observed, however, he returned to the spot where he left the murdered stranger; but, instead of finding him, he discovered, that, during his absence, the body had been stripped and removed, and, as he believed, buried, and the clothes were lying scattered about on the brink of the ditch.

All this was highly amusing to me, and I resolved to let the story roll on, like a snowball, increasing with every step, without affording any explanation, until it should have arrived at its climax.

Again I observed inquisitive looks cast on me, and the words 'dollars' and 'blood' were again whispered about. The old inquisitive man quietly left the room, and returned with on athletic bushy-looking man, who soon discovered himself to me as the constable of the parish; and without further ceremony, the old man gave me in charge to the constable, as being suspected of the murder. The constable proceeded to search me, and, on producing my purse with dollars, the old man who found the murdered stranger set up a shout, and charged the constable not to let me escape; and then fixing his eyes on the blood on my face, said, he was sure I was the murderer and robber, and he would tell all he knew upon his bible oath. I now found it was high time to speak in my own defence, lest the joke, which I had relished so much, should be carried too far; but I learnt, to my sorrow, that the joke had quite ceased, and that no assertion or explanation of mine could serve me one jot in proving my personal identity.

In consequence of this, therefore, was a safe lodgment for the night in the cage, in full sight of the whip-post and the county gaol.—Imagine my situation, ye who have been accustomed all your lives to be called honest men and women, and who have never known any thing of the inside of the gaol, or other place or durance, except through Mrs. Fry and Caleb Williams.

In this horrible condition I passed the night, deprived of my purse, of my dollars and other money, and with no other prospect before me than being treated as a criminal; yet I sometimes ventured to hope that I should be enabled to gain the true state of the case, and exculpate myself before a reasonable and intelligent magistrate.

The morning dawned upon me through the grates of the cage, and my solitude was soon broken by the arrival of the constable, the inquisitive looking old man, and my Samaritan friend. I was led out amidst an infuriated crowd, who were by no means sparing in their execrations, and was conducted, after much peril, into the presence of the Justice.

As my supposed crime was of a glaring and prominent nature, it was allowed to commence the business of the day. My accuser was placed before me, and in a blunt, straight-forward manner told his story—how he was passing along the road—how he found the stranger with a fractured skull, lying dead and covered with brains and blood—how he went for assistance, and, on his return, found the clothes scattered about, and the body removed. My own dollars, and my own blood on my own face, were given in evidence against me, the story was made complete in all its parts, and the investigation ended in my committal to the county gaol to take my trial at the next assizes, for the wilful murder of some person unknown, and the constable and his companions were ordered to make diligent search for the body. Shortly after my committment, as if all circumstances conspired against me, the people, after an active search, succeeded in discovering the body of a strange person, almost in a state of nudity, in a canal, which ran along the back of the town, upon which the coroner sat in due form; and thus, to the satisfaction of my persecutors, a chain of evidence was made out sufficiently strong to put me on my trial.

Let those good people who preach so strongly in favour of the comfortable feelings arising from conscious innocence, and build so much on inward fortitude, and who join in the declaration of the poet, that "whatever is, is right," may they place themselves for a moment in my situation—let them feel the horrors of a man, charged with his own murder, and unable to convince his judges that he is actually in existence. How obtuse are the intellects of many worthy people, who, in the eager pursuit of truth, long to their hearts any antic we may devise to gratify their curiosity, he returned to the spot where he left the murdered stranger; but, instead of finding him, he discovered, that, during his absence, the body had been stripped and removed, and, as he believed, buried, and the clothes were lying scattered about on the brink of the ditch.

All this was highly amusing to me, and I resolved to let the story roll on, like a snowball, increasing with every step, without affording any explanation, until it should have arrived at its climax.

How obtuse are the intellects of many worthy people, who, in the eager pursuit of truth, long to their hearts any antic we may devise to gratify their curiosity,

From my childhood I had always accustomed myself to look on the gloomy side of things, and in this, my hour of distress, my brooding disposition was busier than ever. I sometimes began to question whether this was not all a dream, or whether I had not actually been murdered, and whether my present sufferings were not part of my punishment for the sins committed in my life-time.

At length the assizes commenced, and in due course I was placed before the court to take my trial. Never shall I forget that moment. I was roused by it. My own convictions of my personal identity was complete; but would it avail me any thing? The story on which I had to depend was nothing in the face of the evidence to be adduced. Was such an improbable story to be believed? Should I be allowed to sit up myself as the murdered man, when the witness saw him lying dead, and the body was afterwards found in the canal? It was contrary to common sense, and would, of course, be looked upon as the desperate attempt of a hardened villain to baffle the ends of justice. I had no friends to speak to my character or condition—I was alone—friendless, and the public clamour loud against me. My own dollars were more eloquent than the prosecuting counsel.

My trial proceeded. Oh! how the opening speech went to my heart! The audience shuddered as they heard the glaring facts; and oh! what looks of horror and reproach were cast at me; prejudice, helping down the ears, was gaping with her myriad mouths. The witnesses gave their evidence with clearness and precision. The landlord of the little public-house, where I first stopped, was called to prove his having seen the dollars in the possession of the murdered man when at his house. During all the previous proceedings, this man had never before looked at me face to face; but when he was confronted with me, he gave an involuntary start, and seemed unable to utter a syllable. He fixed his eyes intently on me, and pointed to his own cheek, instead of answering out. "He is not guilty!"—Hearing this exclamation and seeing him point to his cheek, I remembered I had a large scar on my own, from a sabre wound I received years before; and when the witness had regained his composure, he proceeded to identify me as the person who came to his house, in a sailor's dress, with a purse of dollars, on the evening of the supposed murder, and asserted that I could be none other than the supposed victim of brutal violence. But the body found in the water—did it not bear like mine on the cheek? No—the witnesses who found it remembered it had not. Hope dawned on me warmly enough. I was called on for my defence, and told my tale simply and composedly, and my heart beat calmly.

The judge summed up the evidence to the jury, and directed, as usual, that if there was any doubt, the prisoner should be entitled to the benefit of it. The jury obeyed the direction of the Judge, and their verdict of " Not Guilty" alone afforded me the melancholy satisfaction of hearing sufferings not to be found amongst the destinies of any other man in the world.

Some ill-natured people, notwithstanding the verdict, still believed me to be guilty, but the majority called me innocent; and while the newspapers of the day were arguing pro and con upon the question, I slipped myself off to America, where I am now living in tolerable ease, and no one has ever since ventured to dispute the point with me, whether I am alive or dead.

SUMMARY.

The Right Hon. Stephen Earl of Mount Cashell, has been elected a Representative Peer of Ireland, in room of the late Earl of Ross.

Mr. Farquhar, who bought Fonthill, which has since tumbled down, died suddenly at his house in the New-Road on Thursday—he had long been labouring under the aneurism.

A small piece of ground in Lincoln was sold last week after the rate of more than £12,000 an acre; a most convincing proof of the wretched state of the country of its resources.

The net revenue of India in the years 1823-25, amounted to £20,528,763, and the charges on it to £19,767,818; the interest on the debt amounting to £1,431,237. The surplus last year against the revenue amounted to £749,891.

Died July 5, at his house in Bedford-square, after a few day's illness, Joseph Butterworth, Esq. late M P for Dover, aged 56.

Died on Saturday 5th July, at Mareham le Fen, after a severe and lingering illness, Mr. James Roberts, aged 74. In 1768 and the three following years, this gentlemen accompanied Sir Jos. Banks in the first voyage of Capt. Cook round the world, and in 1772 he again accompanied Sir Joseph in his voyage to Iceland. In 1765 he retired to Mareham Hoose, where he spent the remainder of his days in the society of his friends. Mr. R. was, we believe, the last survivor of those who accompanied Capt. Cook in his first voyage.

Herbert, the deserter at Bluitpore, has been charged, pursuant to the sentence of the court-martial, on the morning of the 30th January.

Some new regulations to be embodied, we understand, in an Order of Council, are in progress, by which foreign silks will be kept out of the market, or, at all events, a fair protection given to our own manufacturers for some time longer.

Another attempt was making, with prospects of success, to raise the steam vessel Comet, which was sunk, with a large number of passengers, near Greenock, last summer.

Mr. Brougham is again returned from Winchelsea, and curiously enough, with Lord Howick (Earl Grey's oldest son,) an unsuccessful candidate for Northumberland. Mr. B.'s brother, Mr. J. Brougham, also a Barrister, is returned for Tregony, along with Dr. Lushington.

Mr. Farquhar, the late owner of Fonthill Abby, died at London, July 7. His property is supposed to amount to more than a million sterling, and is to be divided between seven of his nephews and nieces.

A regular communication, by means of steam-packets, is about to be opened with Corunna, Lisbon, and Gibraltar, by the General Steam Navigation Company.

Madrid, June 22.—A notice was pasted at the corners of all the streets, informing that the king had issued an ordinance commanding all persons having books or manuscripts relative to Free-masonry, secret societies, in their possession, to deliver them up within a week, on pain of being considered guilty of high treason.

Liverpool, July 21.—In the present gloomy condition of things, Sir James Graham, of Netherby, a gentleman of great respectability and talent, has put forth a pamphlet, recommending a direct tax upon the funds; a project which, if the debt is to become inevitable, can never be resorted to without a dereliction of national faith and the principles of justice.

It was reported that Constantinople was in flames on the 24th of June, but the Paris Etoile of the 19th July, questions this report.

Accounts from Greece are of the most distressing character. Ibrahim Pacha traverses the Morea without opposition.

LIVERPOOL, July 22.

GREECE.—Letters have been received in this town from the Mediterranean, which states that several sail of vessels have been found in Alexandria, laden with stores and provisions, &c. for the Pacha of Egypt, has been captured. We rejoice to hear that among these ships there is one, on board of which the agents of the Pacha shipped a very large quantity of dollars.

Last week a nobleman, in the neighborhood of St. James'-street, had five pounds to pay for the postage of letters, in consequence of the privilege of franking having ceased by dissolution of Parliament.

Commodore Porter has sent in the resignation of his commission as a captain in the United States Navy.

It is said Com. Porter's pay and emoluments in the Mexican service amounts to $24,000 per annum.—It may be worth while for Congress (it requires 40) from the United States Republicanism for a Commodore to accept so much of the public money annually.

A Planing Machine, which will perform the labor of about twenty men with hand planes, to be put in operation by horse power, has been constructed by Mr. Herman Allen, of Randolph, N. C. A similar Machine was put in operation at the North Mills in Boston many years since by Mr. Bennock, now of Dedham.

The elegant bridge across Gauley river, called the " pride of Western Virginia." and which cost $18,000 was destroyed by fire in July, by an incendiary. It was 871 feet long, fully covered, and supported by stone piers of excellent workmanship.

The Orient White, the other of this year's tea ships, was to leave Canton on the 20th February, and is now due at Quebec.

A distressing fire occured in Drury Lane, London, on the morning of the 11th ult. Several houses were burned, one life lost and considerable property destroyed.

The heat in London, June 23, was 124 in the sun and 85 in the shade!

The evacuation of Spain by the French troops is contemplated. The pope is said to have made earnest representations to France in favour of the Greeks.

The English Admiralty has granted convoys to the Archipelago trade, and a large fleet was to sail for the Levant.

The weather has been intensely warm in Great Britain, and the crops are spoken of as generally fight. Thunder and hail storms did great damage in different parts of the country about the end of June.

The elections in Ireland have been attended with bloodshed. At the County of Kerry election six men were killed. The jury gave a verdict finding the orders of the Sheriff and Civil Authorities unnecessary and unjustifiable. At the County of Galway election a party of Lord Clanricarde's (a tory in law to Mr. Canning) fired on the crowd, and Jeremiah Sullivan was killed.

Twenty-seven young French officers have set out from Paris for the service of Greece under the command of Col. Fabvier. They were to be joined by fifty others from Marseilles. They find great difficulty in obtaining passports from the minister of the marine.

The elections to Parliament were completed, and an unusually large proportion of new members had been returned. The state of Trade does not appear to have improved.

Lord Ben calculated, we know not with what accuracy, that one hundred and thirty three Members of Parliament have been returned from England and Wales, that did not sit in the last Parliament.

ELECTION IN PRESTON.

The result of this election must be a manner of manoeuvring, Cobbett commenced the trickery on saturday, by causing Sir T. Beevor to be nominated a candidate. His objects were these—first, to keep second votes of the men from the other candidates; and secondly, to be able to bring to the poll two tallies successively, his own, and that which should come up in the name of Sir Thomas; but in this he was met by the other candidates who also nominated a friend each, and so were enabled to bring up two sets of voters in succession as well as Cobbett. On the close of the first day, several of the voters, after drinking and feasting with one candidate, and coming to poll in their entertainer's tally, suddenly turned over and gave their votes to another. Messrs Stanley, Wood and Barrie, complained indignantly at the treachery, and agreed to discountenance it, even though practis in their own favour. Cobbett also acceeded to the agreement. Yet, in the very next tally that came up to vote for Wood, one of the voters gave a plumper for Cobbett; Cobbett, forgetting his promise, ran down to the booth, thanked the man, shook hands with him, and told him he was a very honest fellow! This shabbyb breach of faith has excited in the other candidates the most direct and determined opposition to him. One of Cobbett's men having given a plumper to Wood, the latter observed to the voter, " You promised to vote for Mr. Cobbett?—" I did." " You joined his colours, and took drink?—" I did." " And after all that you desert him and vote for me?—" I do." " Well, I have your vote; 'tis as good for me as an honest man's vote, but I dont thank you for it. You're a shabby fellow." This plain and manly act has procured for Mr. Wood the second votes of several of even Cobbett's supporters.

Twelve o'clock.

Tuesday, Twelve o'clock.

The moment the mayor took his station in the hustings yesterday, Cobbett came forward, and presented to him a written protest, against the mode of voting by tallies, (tens of voters at a time.)

The Mayor denied that he had sanctioned the mode of voting by tallies, it had been the standing custom of the borough. As to partiality, he would face the charge in any court in Christendom.

Mr. Wood here confirmed the Mayor's assertion.

Captain Barrie, amid the confusion, denied that he had formed a coalition with any candidate. (Loud disprobation.) While he was on his legs, he would tell them an anecdote of Mr. Cobbett. That gentleman went to an elector and asked him for his vote, the elector told him that he had promised to give his vote to Mr. Wood and Mr. Stanley. Mr. Cobbett tried to persuade him to break his promise; when Cobbett saw no chance of obtaining the vote, he said to the electors, " May starvation forever seize you."—(Shouts of disapprobation.)

Cobbett—Oh, don't mind Capt. Barry, my friends; don't you know that he is the noted Bob Barry, the celebrated dog fighter. (Laughter and renewed uproar.)

Mr. Wood again stepped forward, and confirmed Capt. Barrie's account of Cobbett having wished eternal starvation to an elector who refused to vote for him; the elector's name was John Singleton. (Applause and hisses.)

Cobbett—All the parties are opposed to me, because they know I have a majority of your votes. I am accused of having wished starvation to an elector who refused to give me his vote. I deny the charge; I never used the words; I never even frowned on an elector; my friends here who attended me on my canvass all know—yourselves know, that I never go among you without wearing a smiling face. (Applause.) The accusation is a lie, as great a lie as ever was uttered by even a Canada Commissioner. (From the crowd, " take that Barrie") or a Liverpool sugar baker. (From the crowd, "take that Wood.")

Capt. Barrie—Mr. Cobbett, look towards me, turn your eyes here. What! you won't? you're ashamed at last—here's the man to whom you wished starvation—here he stands before your face—why don't you look at him. (Tumult and applause.)

Here Cobbett attempted to speak, but was overpowered by the uproar. The elector alluded to, Singleton, appeared at the hustings, and proved that Cobbett used the language imputed. Some of Cobbett's friends next declared, that they had attended Cobbett in his canvass, and never heard him use this language.—(Here the uproar became deafening, shouting, hissing, hooting, speaking, and squabbling.)

Cobbett—I stand in the law; I want law.

A voice—If you had had law and justice long since, you'd be now in Botany Bay.

Mr. Hall trusted the Mayor would not secede to Mr. Cobbett's protest, but adhere to the mode of voting (by tallies) which had been adopted on Friday and Saturday.

The Mayor—It appears, that since Mr. Cobbett was behind one poll on Saturday evening, he has spent Sunday in fabricating these charges and complaints; but I defy him. I dare him to make a charge against me in any Court in the kindom. I dare him to accuse me before the House of Commons. I shall accede to your request; the voters shall not be polled by tallies. But if the promiscuous manner of polling will give rise to any disturbance of order in this Court, I give you notice, that I have a military force at hand, whose presence if necessary, will be able to secure the freedom and purity of election. If I cannot effect a fair polling without the military, I will have them. I hope I shan't want them—they are the last resource to which I would resort for the preservation of the peace, and the freedom of election; but if they should be necessary, I will resort to them. (Uproar.)

Cobbett—I am very sorry you mentioned the soldiers, Mr. Mayor.

The Mayor—You want to intimidate me by the populace.

Mr. Cobbett—I do not want to intimidate you.

The Mayor—I will not be intimidated from my duty by you, or any other man. I warn you—you are known—your objects are known to me—proceed to the polling.

The polling then commenced; the electors voting four at a time for each candidate.

Just before the close, a friend of Cobbett's presented two protests to the mayor—from Cobbett, another from certain electors, complaining of the Mayor's having substituted the mode of polling by fours, in the place of polling by tens.

The Mayor—Mr. Cobbett may keep protesting against me as long as he pleases, but it will make no impression on me; put up the protests, I won't read them now; I'll look at them when they come before the House of Commons.

The several candidates and their friends then returned to their respective inns, with their usual forms, in military array, banners flying, bands playing &c.

At the opening of the poll this morning, Mr. Cobbett presented a fifth protest, complaining that, by the present rate of voting, the majority of electors would remain unpolled at the end of the fifteen days. He complained also of the bringing in of the troops.

The Mayor desired that he had sent for them.

The hustings presented, during the day, a scene of up confusion, and altercation, similar to that esterday. It was reported that Cobbett would not appear on the hustings after this morning, but his friends have since contradicted the report.

In the year 1644 the Revenue of the post office in England was £5,000. In 1653 it was 14,0000. In 1744, the gross produce of the island and foreign post office was £35,4924. Twenty years afterwards it was 432,948l. At the last account, the postage of the United Kingdom, Island and foreign, was 1,700,940l. having increased in a century and a half ninety fold.

The steam power employed is England, in 1820, was equal to the force of 320,000 horses, and it has much increased since. At the present time, on account of its new applications, and the improvements in the manner of employing it, it may perform the the work of nearly three millions of men. The machinery now in use enables one man to perform the work of 150. The lowest computation supposes 280,000 to be employed, the highest 350,000.—Hence the work now performed in this single branch a half century ago would have required 42,000,000 of men, and according to some 52,000,000. The wages of this last number of persons, at 18l. per annum, would amount to 750,000,000l. or a little more than thirteen times the annual revenue of England.

The power employed in the cotton manufactures alone, of England, exceeds the manufacturing powers of Europe collectively.

On Thursday (13th) the election of the sixteen representive Peers of Scotland took place. The following noblemen declared elected:—Marquis of Queensberry, Marquis of Tweedale, Earl of Errol, Earl of Hopne, Earl of Kellie, Earl of Elgin, Earl of Roseberry, Viscount Arbuthnot, Viscount Strathallan, Lord Saltoun, Lord Belhaven, Lord Gray, Lord Sinclair, Lord Colville of Culross, Lord Napier and Lord Bethaven.

July 18th.—Tuesday's Gazette contains an Order in Council, allowing to French ships the privilege of carrying all kinds of grain, flour, biscuit, bread, live stock, hay and straw, fruit and fresh vegetables, wood, staves, lumber, &c. the produce of the French King's dominions, into the British Colonies, in the West Indies and America, and to export goods from such British possessions to any country whatever. The order states that His Majesty has thought it expedient to grant those privileges to French ships, although France has not thought proper to grant reciprocal privileges to the British Ships with regard to her colonies.

LIVERPOOL, July 10.

On the 5th July the London Gazette contains an account of the capture of Melloon in India, by the troops under the command of Sir David Ochterlony, after a most obstinate resistance on the part of the enemy, who we are sorry to say committed great devastation on Col. Pepper's officers and men. Lieut. Col. Conroy had 1 sergeant killed by Col. Pepper some days before with (as was deemed) a sufficient force to take a stockade situated on the Eastern bank of the river Jitnun, which attempt proved unsuccessful, with the lost of Col. Conroy, a great number of officers and troops. We will be able to give details of the above melancholy events in our next, as we have only been permitted a cursory glance of the papers.

MANCHESTER.

It is our painful duty to observe, that there is yet no improvement manifested in the state of commerce or manufactures in this town, its neighbourhood, or the extensive district with which it is connected. Last Tuesday's market was the worst that has been known for a long time, and that for unpromising. Some Houses of rank have retired from their manufacturing pursuits; many factories have again limited their hours of labour; demand for goods become more circumscribed, money more scarcer, and confidence less In consequence, the want of the labouring class are urgent, and the disposition to quietness which has been so obvious in their general conduct, is gradually, we fear, undergoing a change. Delegates and emissaries are busily engaged in stirring up amongst them feelings of a hostile nature, and we have reason to presume, with no inconsiderable degree of success. Nocturnal meetings are held in various places; and on Wednesday night one of the description was silently obtained in the outskirts of this town. It was composed chiefly of the lowest description of Cleaworkers, in the neighbourhood of St. George's Road; but language of a very daring nature was used by some delegates, speaking on the occasion. A strong patrole of the military was immediately ordered out on duty; but no breach of the peace occurred.

About eight o'clock on Thursday evening, a multitude again assembled in St. George's Road for the purpose it was stated, of devising plans of a dangerous kind. In a very short time the assemblage had increased to from two to three thousand persons, but the greater part consisted of boys. A man who stated himself to be a delegate from Leigh, understand immediately proceeded to address the populace in the wild, inflammatory language, but in the midst of his harangue the cry of fire was spread throughout the crowd, and they instantly dispersed in various directions. The alarm was occasioned, we believe, by the approach of Major Eckersley and another officer on horseback, accompanied by one of the Bays; on seeing the multitude, they prudently returned towards New-Cross. Several hundred persons of the boys cloisley followed the officers, and grossly insulted them by hissing and hooting; but no attention was paid by them to this offensive clamour, and they proceeded up Ancoats-street, followed by a considerable part of the crowd, after remaining for a short time at New-Cross, began to retire, and by ten o'clock the streets were quite clear—it is proper to state, that whilst the meeting was being held, the Bays, and Field's, hundreds of men, residing in the neighbourhood, apparently destitute of employment, declined attending it, and only one sentiment seemed to prevail among them as to the folly and wickedness of holding such assemblies—Piquets of the Bays and Coldstream Guards patrolled the streets during the night, as also did a large body of special constables.

We are happy to add, that no further breach of tumult appeared yesterday. Detachments of the Bays patrolled the vicinity of St. Georges Fields at intervals and the special constables were on duty in the evening, but up to a late hour every thing remained perfectly tranquil.—Manchester Chronicle, July 15

London Corn Exchange, July 17.—We continue to be scantily supplied with Wheat, still quite adequate to the demand, the consumers buying from hand to mouth, regulating their purchases to their wants. The spring corn is extremely heavy this morning; in barley, beans, and pease, there was scarcely any thing doing, and even in oats the demand was very trifling; but our prices may be quoted as on this day week. In other articles there is no alteration. Wheat, 60s. a 66s.; rye, 30s. a 32s.; barley, old, 28s. a 34s.; grey pease, 42s. a 48s.

Liverpool Corn Exchange, July 18.—We have had small supplies of grain, &c. from Ireland, Coastways, or from abroad, during the past week, but the trade notwithstanding continued very heavy.—Wheat per 70lb. English 6s. 3d. a 9s. 9d.; Scotch 6s. a 8s. 3d.; Irish 5s. 6d. a 6s. 9d.; bonded, 4s. 4d. a 4s. 8d. Flour, American, per 196lb. sweet, U. S. 24s. a 26s.

LATEST NEWS.

The packet ship Wm. Thompson, Capt. Bowne, which sailed from Liverpool on the 20th ult. has brought regular advices down to that late date.

Commercial affairs were more gloomy, and much distress had again begun to be felt among the labouring classes of the manufacturers.

The New Parliament was prorogued till the 24th of August.

It was expected the wheat harvest would commence in the neighbourhood of Liverpool about the 25th July.

LONDON, July 18.

City two o'clock.—The sittings in Guildhall has passed over very quietly. The fluctuation this morning has scarcely exceeded an eighth per cent. and during the account not more than a per cent. A great deal of stock has been carried over to the next account at a 16th per cent. showing the opinions to be rather unfavourable for a rise. The present quotations are exclusively of the dividend, 77 1-3d for the five per Centum, which attempt proved unsuccessful, with the lost of Col. Conroy, a great number of officers and troops. We will be able to give details of the above melancholy events in our next, as we have only been permitted a cursory glance of the papers.

The last account of the state of Duke of York, was very flattering—" His Royal highness in mending fast." The Royal Duke was so much better, we are happy to say, as to be able to ride out on horseback in the morning, from Mr. Greenwood's villa towards Hampstead. Sir Henry Halford, after attending the Royal Patient, called on the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, to report the state of their Royal relative. The Princess Augusta and the Princess Sophia visited the Royal Duke yesterday. His Royal Highness transacted military business with Sir Herbert Taylor.

The quarrel between Mr. Lambton and Mr. Beaumont has been decided without personal injury to either. They met about three o'clock on Saturday, near Bamborough, and exchanged shots amid heavy rain, fortunately without bloodshed.

Dr. Burney states, in his Meteorological Report, that we had not so dry a spring as the present for twenty years.

Parliamentary papers relating the liberated Africans, located in the Colony of Sierra Leone, have been printed. They state that more than 20,000 slaves have been landed in the colony, and that during the last year upwards of 2,400 have been emancipated. They then state the disadvantages attending their present situation, and propose, as a remedy, that a certain number of persons should be sent from the West India Islands for the purpose of instructing those liberated Africans in the cultivation of cotton and coffee plantations, which might be formed in the Colony.

A singular instance of the instability of fortune was exhibited at the Mansion-house, London, on the 12th July. Among the other petitioners for relief appeared the Right Hon. Lady Erskine, widow of the Lord Chancellor of England. She was induced to the Lord Mayor's notice as an object of compassion by a chimney sweep: It appears that the allowance made to her is 10s. a week, but in order to get her to give up her youngest son, who is about 10, and in tatters, this small pittance was reduced to 9s a week. Several sums have been left for her at the Lord Mayor's, by charitable individuals.

The style displayed by the candidates at the elections in England, is chiefly unknown in our experience in America. The following extract is part of an account of the Dover election June 20.

"The successful and unsuccessful candidates severally addressed the assembly at some length and then joined their respective processions.

"Mr. Wilbraham's carriage had six beautiful grey horses, richly caparisoned, the riders in jockey caps and jackets of purple and yellow; the carriage was preceded by the town band and many elegant flags, and followed by a highly respectable body of freemen.

"Mr. Thompson's carriage was drawn by four horses, the drivers in jockey caps and jackets of blue, white and pink; band, and a great many flags. Procession quite of a motley description.

"Mr Butterworth's carriage was drawn by four horses, the riders in blue sashes. A fine band and several handsome banners preceded it, and it was followed by the small circle of friends who had handsomely stuck by him.

"Mr. Halcomb's procession consisted of 40 horsemen, who followed behind the band and colors; then came the carriage, drawn by four beautiful black horses, which were tastefully bedecked with ribbons red and blue, the riders in jockey caps. His carriage was followed by a coach and six, and four carriages of four, with the gentlemen of his committee and others; behind which was a train of his friends, respectable tradesmen, pilots and others, extending about half a mile."

FEMALE FASHIONS FOR JULY.

CARRIAGE DRESS.—A pelisse of gros de Naples, the colour of the Persian lilach; the pelisse is close fastened down in front, where a pointed ornament is carried down each side; the pelisse is bound round with narrow roulemez, and seperated over the fastening of the skirt by one large full-wadded roulean. Round the border of the skirt, about three inches above the shoe, is an ornament set on strait across, of an entwined roulean, forming a tire-bouchon. The body is made quite plain, and the collar remarkably narrow. Neither the ruff nor colerette is worn with this pelisse, but a row of large pearls encircles the throat. The bonnet is white, and of the new cotton manufactures, in imitation of chip, with a narrow vandyke band at the edge of the brim: it is handsomely trimed about the crown with scrolls of Japanese gauze, edged with white satin roulenux, and very slightly ornamented with Provence roses, one of which is placed under the left side of the brim; the strings are in a loop, and are of rich white ribbon, broad, and edged round with narrow blond. A parasol, of sea green, with a broad white fringe, completes the costume.

AFTERNOON HOUR DRESS.—A round dress of fine Jaconet muslin, with fine narrow flounces, set on very full, and pointed. The sleeves full, and in the chimisette style; the whole confined all the way up to the arm, at separate distances, by bands of embroidered muslin. An elegant pelerine of the same material as the dress, and richly ornamented with lace, is worn over the shoulders: it is left partially open in front, whence a falling kind of collar turns back on each side, forming an ornament something similar to a fanchy; this is also trimmed with lace: the carnage of the dress, however, is entirely concealed in front by this appendage: and though it seems to form a part of the dress, it is not of the cut that has been carried over to the waist. The hair is beautifully arranged in full curls, rather smaller than those which have of late so disguised the female countenance: a small cap is worn over it, of rich blond, with a large full blown rose or one side, and very long lappets depending over each shoulder. The cap is placed more forward than has been the case for this sort of head-covering for some time. The jewellery ornaments are ear-rings, necklace, bracelets, of pearls and rubies, set a l'antique.

SCOTLAND.

Scotch Burgh Elections.—Glasgow, Dumbarton, &c.—Monday, Mr. Campbell of Blythswood was unanimously re-elected for this district of burghs.

Linlithgow &c.—Mr. Adam Hay, Esq. Banker, has been unanimously elected Member for the Peebles district of burghs.

Culross, &c.—On Monday, Mr. Downie, of Appin, was again elected Member for this district of burghs. The election took place at Culross, being the returning burgh. The delegates from Stirling, Dunfermline, and Queensferry, voted for Mr. Downie, and those for Culross and Inverkeithing, for the Hon. Col. John Maitland, one of the Earl of Lauderdale's sons. A protest was taken against the vote for Queensferry, the last Election out of the Members and Town Council for which burgh is questioned in the Courts of law. If that election is reduced, Culross being the returning burgh will turn the scale in favour of Colonel Maitland.

Crail, &c.—On Monday, at Crail, after a severe struggle between the Lord Advocate and Mr. Bethune of Whittingham, the latter was elected for this district of burgis.

Lochmaben, &c.—On Monday, at Lochmaben, the returning burgh, W. R. K. Douglas, Esq. was unanimously re-elected member for the Dumfries district of burghs.

Lauder, &c.—On Monday, at Lauder, Col. Dalrymple was elected for the Haddington district of burghs.

Inverary, &c.—On Monday, at Inverary, T. F. Kenaedy, Esq. was unanimously elected for the Ayr district of burghs.

Arbroath, &c.—On Monday, at Arbroath, Mr. Joseph Hume was returned, without opposition, for the Aberdeen district of burghs.

Burghs of Kinghorn, &c.—Monday, Sir R. G. Ferguson, Bart. was unanimously re-elected to represent this district of burghs in the ensuing Parliament.

Perth, Dundee, &c.—The Hon. H. Lindsay has been re-elected.

Wigtown, Stranraer, &c.—Monday. —— Lowther, Esq. a son of the Earl of Lonsdale was elected for this district of burghs.

Montgomery.—The Hon. Col. F. W. Grant was was unanimously elected M. P. for the County of Moray, at Elgin, on Monday last.

Argyllshire.—The Election for the County of Argyll took place at Inverary upon Friday the 7th inst. when there was ninety-four freeholders present, of whom fifty-eight voted for Mr. Campbell of Jay, and thirty-six for Gen. Campbell of Lochnell.

Caithness Election.—On the freeholders of the county of Caithness met at Wick, on the 5th instant, to choose a representative in Parliament, Mr. Sinclair, of Ulbster, the late member, and the Hon. Captain Sinclair, having been proposed, the latter was ultimately returned by a majority of five. The contest was spirited and lasted from noon on the 5th till half past four o'clock on the morning of the 6th when the numbers stood 201 to 196. The freeholders of this county unanimously elected Lord Francis L. Gower, as their representative in Parliament.

Cromarty.—At Cromarty, on the 20th ult. after the usual formalities, and appointing Captain Mackenzie of Newhall, preses, Maj. Munro of Poyntzfield, proposed D. Davidson, Esq. younger, of Tulloch, as a fit representative for the county in Parliament, which was seconded of by Col. Ross, of Nigg, and Mr. Davidson was unanimously elected; after which he returned thanks in a neat and eloquent speech, for the honour conferred on him. The evening was afterwards devoted to harmony and mirth.

Ross-Shire.—Tain, June 28.—This day being appointed by the Sheriff for the election of a member of Parliament for the county of Ross, a considerable number of the freeholders assembled in the Council Room at Tain; and on the motion of Lord Count Roseberry, Sir James Wemyss Mackenzie of Coul, Bart. was unanimously elected. At six o'clock the freeholders and a large party of friends, amounting to upwards of eighty gentlemen, dined with Sir James at the Commercial Hotel.

Inverness, &c.—At Fortrose, on Monday the 3d current, Robert Grant, Esq. of Lincoln's Inn, London, was unanimously elected.

Perth, Tain, &c.—On the 3d current at Wick, Sir Vince Rosses, one of which is placed under the left side of the brim; the strings are in a loop, and are of rich white ribbon, broad, and edged round with narrow blond. A parasol, of sea green, with a broad white fringe, completes the costume.

AFTERNOON HOUR DRESS.—A round dress of fine Jaconet muslin, with fine narrow flounces, set on very full, and pointed. The sleeves full, and in the chimisette style; the whole confined all the way up to the arm, at separate distances, by bands of embroidered muslin. An elegant pelerine of the same material as the dress, and richly ornamented with lace, is worn over the shoulders: it is left partially open in front, whence a falling kind of collar turns back on each side, forming an ornament something similar to a fanchy; this is also trimmed with lace: the carnage of the dress, however, is entirely concealed in front by this appendage: and though it seems to form a part of the dress, it is not of the cut that has been carried over to the waist. IRELAND.

DREADFUL AFFRAY IN KERRY.

(From the Constitution, or Cork Advertiser.)

The contest pursued by the electors of Kerry, to see the determination was formed of the Hon. William Hare standing for the representation of that county, were all along of opinion would lead to very unpleasant consequences, if not the loss of life. This latter conjecture, we regret to say, was alarmingly realized on Sunday evening—when an unfortunate affray took place, in which a number of lives have been lost. The particulars are hurried off to us in a letter from a Gentleman, dated Tralee, ten o'clock, Sunday night, and are nearly as follows:—"On the above evening, the Honourable Major Mullins and a few other gentlemen, were proceeding to meet a party of Lord Ventry's freeholders, and were surrounded by an outrageous mob, one of whom had the audacity to throw a stone at them. This affair passed off, and a party of freeholders, in Colonel Crosbie's interest, came in by the Ardford road, and proceeded through the main street, with drum beating and banners flying, and immediately drew up in front of the Colonel's committee room, which is directly opposite to that of Mr Hare's. In a short time after, Lord Ventry's freeholders arrived, escorted by the Hon. Major Mullins and other Gentlemen, and protected by a large body of the Police, which was sent out to meet them. They accordingly came down the street, and this was the signal of an attack by the mob, who obliged the police to retire, and drove his Lordship's freeholders in all directions. The high Sheriff instantly repaired to the spot, and required the people to disperse—but they did not attend to his orders. He then read the Riot Act, but few even then would listen to his injunctions, and he was ultimately obliged to procure a party of the Rifles, whom he directed to fire with blank cartridge over the heads of the infatuated rabble. This forbearance, as we have been informed only tended to make them more formidable and determined in their outrageous conduct, and it was only when every effort to bring them to subordination failed, that directions were given to fire, and the consequence was that six men and a young girl were killed, and thirteen or four teen wounded. This is the information contained in the letter; but from what we can understand, the loss of lives is even greater. Matters up to the date of our letter, were all quiet.

Our correspondent opens his letter to state that a gentleman who had just arrived in Armagh, informs him, that he had left the town of Monaghan in as alarming state of riot. It having been understood that Col. Leslie intended to enter the town that day, a mob, about to the number of 1000 persons, assembled at the residence of Mr. Westenra's friends, met Col. Leslie's carriage, and committed a most violent assault on that gentleman and his servants, who escaped narrowly with life from the carriage, which was speedily demolished and scattered in fragments. Eighteen of the horse police came to the spot, but could make no head against the fury of the mob; the foot police then arrived, and fired, when three persons were shot, and several severely wounded.—The riot had not terminated when our correspondent's informant left town.

While in most places promises well as to quality, but as a general crop will be very deficient in quantity. Oats very bad as a general crop, and will be miserably short. Great alarm about this crop all over the country. Barley much better than the oats, but not to call a great crop. Potatoes, some sown early do well; but the late crops in poor ly-ground very bad. The produce on the whole is considered an average. Hay, a wretched crop, except in rich ground dropped early. No grass for pasture in any direction, and clover and turnips pains. This specimen of the manufacture of our enterprising friend James Crooks Esq. of Flamborough West, from whom we have received our supply, is such, as we have no doubt will insure to him that patronage which his exertions so justly merit.

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor and suite arrived in town from Kingston, yesterday morning, on board the Frontenac, and after remaining a few hours, proceeded to Stamford.

The Arbitrators, who have been chosen to assess the damages to, or the value of, lands necessary for the use of the Welland Canal Company, in their operations from the Welland to Lake Ontario, met yesterday at Jackes' Hotel in this village, together with the friends of each party, and commenced the discharge of their duties. We shall, probably, be able to lay before our readers the result of their deliberations, in our next.—Farmers' Journal.

Curious.—A friend handed us, this morning, a piece of wood, just found in digging a well in this village, 16 from the surface of the ground. It has every appearance of wood decayed under water, or in the mud, and can be easily picked to pieces by the hands. We hope some person, better acquainted with the subject, will examine these specimens, and the situation in which they were found, and favour the publick with the result of his reflections.—Ib.

Since the above was in type, a gentleman of this village sent us the following note:

Found, thirteen feet below the surface of the earth, on Simpson's job, Welland Canal, in the old salt lick, opposite St. Catharines, a deer's horn, with four branches.—Ib.

LAND AGENTS OFFICE,
At Peterborough in the Newcastle District,

FOR effecting sales of Lands, and affording information to Purchasers and Settlers.

AN Office for the above purpose is opened at Peterborough, where Schedules of Lands for Sale, with the terms and conditions on which the same will be disposed of, will be received, a Register of which will be kept, and immediate attention paid to their disposal, on reasonable terms. Persons desirous of making purchases, and those who come to settle in this part of the country, will have every information afforded them.

The advantages of such an establishment at Peterborough, situated in the neighbourhood of a well settled country, and the certainty it would afford to purchasers and settlers of acquiring immediate information to whom the particular lots of Land belong which they may be desirous of purchasing, and the terms on which they will be disposed of, are such, as it is hoped will induce those who have lands to sell in this District, to transmit the necessary information to the Subscriber.

All Communications to be Post-paid.

PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors, of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province; to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on Monday the Fourteenth day of August inst. to be Commenced, Held, Called, and Elected, and to every of you

GREETING

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Twenty-seventh day of June last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the Fourteenth day of August instant, at which time, at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear.

NOW KNOW YE, that we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents enjoining you and each of you that on Thursday the Twenty-first day of September next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

In testimony whereof, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—Witness our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this Tenth day of August in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-six, and in the Seventh Year of our reign.

GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To all to whom these Presents shall come

GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the parts of this Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. We have thought fit to order and direct, and We do hereby order and direct that, until Our pleasure herein shall be further made known, it shall and may be lawful for all Our Subjects inhabiting Our Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada, freely to enter into Our Woods and Forests in such parts of Our said Province of Upper Canada, situate along the Banks of the River Ottawa, or upon the Banks of the Waters running into the said River and within a convenient distance from the same, as shall not have been Surveyed and divided into Concessions and Lots, and to Cut and carry away such Oak and Pine Timber as may be fit for the purposes of Exportation.

Provided always, nevertheless, That in consideration of the authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties herein-after specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Red Pine Timber, Four Pounds Three Shillings and Four Pence, being at the rate of One Penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Yellow Pine Timber, Two Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence, being at the rate of One Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commision under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places upon the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointed as aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has attained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons, properly authorized by or under Our Licence granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

In testimony whereof, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—Witness Our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this third day of May in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-Six, and in the Seventh Year of Our Reign.

Executive Council Office, }
York, 23rd March, 1826 }

NOTICE is hereby given, by Order of His Excellency the Lieutenat Governor, in Council, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a regular Council day.

JOHN SMALL.
No. 9 1. f. C. E. C.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepard in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s. 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hundred Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant. It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessary expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

POETRY.

TO THE EVENING.

Come, Evening, with thy twilight beam,
And we will to some quiet stream,
And view the lengthened shadow stealing,
Of the dark eye of night revealing.
Come, Evening, from thy fairy home—
Come to my aching bosom, come!

The Orient hath called around him
His thousand lights, which now surround him:
Condensed beneath his flaming wing,
Ready at morn again to spring.
Then, Evening, from thy fairy home,
Come to my aching bosom, come!

The Moon will soon again be here,
With brow so bright and look so clear:
Her blush is but behind the hills,
Her virgin beam upon us steals.
Then, Evening, from thy fairy home,
Come to my aching bosom, come!

The dew springs like a silver snake,
Coiling round stream, and bower, and brake:
And on the warm enamoured gale,
I hear the night bird's tender tale.
Then, Evening, from thy fairy home,
Come to my aching bosom, come!

And when the rushing clouds of night
Absorb thee in their whirlwind arms;
While gazing on the pale moonlight,
Memory will linger on thy charms.
Then, Evening, from thy fairy home,
Come to my aching bosom, come!

Joint Stock.—The extract which we subjoin from the London Review, of a ghance back at the year 1825—is not inapplicable with us to the year 1826. The writer takes a view of Europe generally, and then reverts pleasantly to the foibles of John Bull.—N. Y. Pap.

"We now come to John, himself, and shall take a short review of what he has been doing in his favorite trade of money making, during the last year. Towards its beginning the fever of speculation, which had begun a little before, attained its height, and filled its widest circle of contagion. The wildest enterprizes, and the most extravagant projects, were every day started and adopted. The "golden age" was to be revived, fortunes were to be made without toil, and "joint-stock" formed the mist through which every thing was seen, and the talisman that rendered every thing practicable. We were to traverse the ocean with joint-stock steam—fly between town and town in gas-engine carriages, rolling on joint stock rail-ways—have our houses built by joint-stock bricks—our bread baked of joint-stock flour—our table supplied with joint-stock fish—our coffin seasoned with joint-stock cream—our children educated in joint-stock schools—our wives adorned with joint-stock pearls—our politics conducted by joint-stock journals—our medicines prepared by joint-stock apotheca-ries—our funerals conducted by joint-stock undertakers, and our bodies interred in joint-stock cemeteries.

Turkish Confidence in an Englishman.—The chaplain of the Seringapatam, passing through the bazar, was attracted to a Turkish shop, and shown a fine diamond, which had been part of the plunder of the unfortunate island of Scio. The Turk asked a considerable sum, but stated himself no judge of the value. "Are you," said he, "an Englishman?" He replied, "I am his interpreter, in the affirmative, and added, that he was an officer of an English frigate. "Then take the ring," said the Turk, "keep it a day or two; get some one to examine it, and judge by that means of its value—I have no apprehension that an Englishman will deceive me. The ring was taken and afterwards bought for £200 by the gentleman who was thus trusted, had never (that he knew of) been seen by the seller, nor could the latter have any knowledge of him, except, perhaps, that he really was an Englishman.

Power Looms.—Some estimates of the productiveness of these machines may be formed from the following facts:—One of these will perfect a piece of calicoe, fifty-two yards long, in two days. A girl of twelve years old, can superintend two machines—and thus be made instrumental to the manufacture of three hundred and twelve yards of calicoe in a week! There is a factory containing about 230 power looms in this neighbourhood, and which, therefore, can be made to produce near seven hundred pieces of calicoe in a week.—Macclesfield Paper.

Awkward Mistake.—On the 17th of May, 1820, Mr. Wood of Wittersham, in this county, enclosed the halves of two bank notes for £25, in a letter, intended for a person at Halifax, in Yorkshire; and considering the place to be of such importance in the mercantile world, he omitted the name of the county on the superscription. The letter was never received by the party to whom it was addressed, and Mr. Wood concluded, it was lost, applied at the Bank of England, where after some difficulty, he eventually received full value for the halves he had retained, and all thoughts of the lost letter and its contents had subsided. On Saturday last, they were returned to the owner at Wittersham, through the Post-office from Halifax, in North America, whither, of course, they had been sent by mistake.—Maidstone Gazette.

LONDON SOCIETY FOR PROMOTING CHRISTIANITY AMONG THE JEWS.

The eighteenth annual meeting was held May 5th, at Free-Masons' Hall.—Sir T. Baring, President in the chair. The report gave a view of the Mission to the Jews in different parts of the world. The funds, including legacies due, but not paid, amounted in the last year to £15,000. About 60 children of Jewish parents, upon an average, are receiving, in the schools of the society at Bethnal Green, a Christian education. Five students are training in the Seminary for the office of Missionaries. Two of these have already gone forth, and are now labouring with success in Palestine and India. In proof of the disposition of the Jews to hear the gospel, it was stated that 15 young men in Posen, and the neighbourhood, had given notice of their design to embrace Christianity. In Sarpsko, the Magistrate sent a paper among the Jews of the place to ask them whether they would permit the Missionary to preach to them in their Synagogue, and if they did to write their names. All the Jews of the place without one exception, signed the paper—nay! the Christian Missionary, delivered to them a sermon in the Synagogue from the place where they are accustomed to read the Law.—Professor Tholuck, in a letter, informed the society, that more than 100 Jews have been baptized in Berlin alone within one year.

[From a London Paper.]

SUCCOURS FOR THE GREEKS.—Some of the best friends of the Greeks have boldly asserted that large part of the great loans and donations which have been made in Europe in aid of the suffering Greeks, have been absorbed by the Managing Agents of the fund, by the Greek Rulers, and the Mock Patriots, who for sake of office and emolument have joined the Greek standard;—many of whom, it has been and can be proved have amassed large fortunes, and hold themselves responsible to no one!—while at the same time, the Greek soldier and mariner, and the starving and oppressed population, have not received a para where the one have received a pound;—And that it is these last who are continually crying, give, give! When this vile conduct has been exposed, the whole part have set up a yell of barbarism, Turk, and tyrant, at those who have the courage to expose their cupidity. One fact in proof of this cupidity is known to every one, which is, that not one of the receivers, in the last resort, of these loans and donations, has even published an account of his stewardship! It is high time that this gross iniquity was exposed to a generous community. It is not unknown to the public that a large loan, and subscription, have been obtained in England for the benefit of the Greeks, and placed under the direction of a Greek Committee. Of part of the appropriation of the money thus received, the following statement has been made:

Expended on six Steam-boats,	£122,000
Paid to Lord Cochrane, for disbursements,	39,000
Sent to America to build Frigates,	155,000
Paid to Gen. Lallemand,	1,250
Making a total of	£316,250

[Equal to $1,164,000.]

And what has been the result? One steam boat only out of the six has been fitted for sea; and for this boat over £150,000, of the money designed for the Greeks has been expended, and this boat is, the Lord knows where.—The others are in the docks, or on the ways; and the work has been stopped for want of more money! How the large sum sent to America has been expended, is known only to the patriotic Committee; but this is known, that no frigates have sailed from thence to aid the Greek cause in its extremity; and that there are reports in circulation, that jobbing is as well understood on the other side of the Atlantic, as it is in London;—that Mock Patriotism is not the growth of any particular soil, and that there are men in America, as well as in Europe,

"Who sigh and groan
For public good, but mean their own."

COMMERCE BETWEEN PRUSSIA AND THE WEST INDIES.

The great and important chances in the commercial system of the British Empire, by the relaxation and modification or provision of our ancient Navigation Laws have naturally excited among foreigners a degree of interest corresponding with the importance of the subject, and it may be desirable to communicate from time to time what foreigners have been induced to do or to propose in consequence.

In a letter, written by a Prussian in London to a friend in Berlin (written the 19th May, when the modification on the Corn Laws had been brought forward), we find the following passage:

"Last week Mr. Huskisson, when the change in the act of Navigation was spoken of, developed the principals on which treaties had been made with foreign powers; that it was unreasonable to allow America alone to trade with the English Colonies, and not grant the same liberty to Prussia, &c. Here are the chief advantages which may accrue to our ship owners and merchants from the liberal policy of the English Government will be fully considered, and that no petty opinions will keep them from adventuring in the new career which is thus laid open to them, I recommend to them to make themselves acquainted with the wants of the English Colonies, in order to derive all the advantages that may be reaped from the Act of Reciprocity. We are able to supply many articles in demand in those Colonies (which have hitherto been supplied by America) as good, as cheap, and in as considerable quantities. Jamaica and the other West India Islands could not export their sugar and rum, if they did not receive their pipe staves from America. Why should not pipe staves and Memel be equally able to supply the English Colonists with this article? Why should not the art of preparing wheat flour so as to keep well, be practised at Dantzig as well as at Philadelphia? A mission from this country for any of these two articles; but the watchful mercantile spirit (I acknowledge that it wants rousing among us) will soon find out others, in which we can vie with rival other countries, but soon excel them."

This letter having been published in a Prussian Journal, drew forth in about a fortnight afterwards, the following communication to the Editor of the Paper, which he lost no time in publishing.

"We are happy to say, in reference to the proposals of a Prussian in London, that a commencement has already been made by Silesia, which, with judicious management, due encouragement and perseverance, promises the most favourable results. The first essays of commercial enterprize from Silesia, to the British West India Colonies have proved highly encouraging. Our Silesian linens have found an advantageous market in Jamaica, and Silesian wheat flour, prepared with peculiar skill and care, has met with a good sale, even in South America, that it has been preferred to that from North America, known by the name of Richmond flour. In consequence of this encouraging beginning, a trading company has been formed, with a capital fixed for the present at half a million of dollars, which intends to export our produce and manufactures direct to South America. The land owner and the manufacturer are equally interested in this undertaking; and our monied men should be inclined to promote it, not only from patriotism, but for their own pecuniary advantage."

A farmer of Thoarout, in Flanders, was following a swarm of bees in the heat of the day; at length seeing the bees hanging on the branch of an ash, he presented the hive to them, but unfortunately the Queen Bee took her station on his face, and in a moment the whole of the bees followed their sovereign, and the unfortunate man was overwhelmed by this cruel species of attack. In a quarter of an hour he was dead. A person who was with him to assist in the operation ran away from him.

When they awoke in the morning, they found a memorandum stuck in the letch, which ran thus: "Ladies, when you leave your windows open at night please lock the drawers."

It is said that the Ministers have repeatedly expressed their readiness to listen to any measure that can be pointed out as likely to afford permanent relief, or alleviating the existing distress.—Globe.

REPORT

Of the Select Committee of the House of Commons, appointed to inquire into the expediency of encouraging Emigration from the United Kingdom, and to Report their Opinion thereupon to the House; and to whom the Reports of Sessions 1823, 1824 and 1825, on the state of Ireland, and the employment of the poor there; and also the Petitions and Memorials to the Crown and Parliament from persons desirous of Emigrating from the United Kingdom, were severally referred:

Your Committee are induced to consider that the following important facts have been established by the evidence which they have collected for the information of the House:—

First. That there are extensive districts in Ireland, and districts in England and Scotland, where the population is at the present moment redundant; in other words, where there exists a very considerable proportion of able bodied and active laborers, beyond that number for which there is employment, even when it can afford employment:—That the effect of this redundancy is not only to reduce a part of this population to a great degree of destitution and misery, but also to deteriorate the general condition of the labouring classes:—That by its producing a supply of labour in excess as compared with the demand, the wages of labour are necessarily reduced to a minimum, utterly insufficient in many cases to provide, if found it had caught fire from the intense heat of the sun and was burning for nearly a yard in length—Norwich Mercury.

The Belfast News Letter states that Gold ore had been found in the town of Lisburn, Ireland. The specimens, on trial yielded 1 1-2 per cent. of pure gold; the remainder consisted of silver, sulphur, &c.

Your Committee are induced to consider that the following important facts have been established by the evidence which they have collected for the information of the House:—

First. That there are extensive districts in Ireland, and districts in England and Scotland, where the population is at the present moment redundant; in other words, where there exists a very considerable proportion of able bodied and active laborers, beyond that number for which there is employment, even when it can afford employment:—That the effect of this redundancy is not only to reduce a part of this population to a great degree of destitution and misery, but also to deteriorate the general condition of the labouring classes:—That by its producing a supply of labour in excess as compared with the demand, the wages of labour are necessarily reduced to a minimum, utterly insufficient in many cases to provide adequately for the support of that population with those means of support and subsistence which are necessary to secure a healthy and satisfactory condition of the community: That in England, this redundant population has been in part supported by a parocial rate, which, according to the reports and evidence of former Committees specially appointed to consider the subject, threatens in its present tendency to absorb the whole rental of the Country; and that in Ireland, where no such parochial rate exists by law, and where the redundancy is found in a still greater degree, a considerable part of the population is left dependant for the means of support on the precarious source of charity, or is compelled to resort to habits of plunder and spoliation for the actual means of subsistance.

Secondly. That in the British Colonies in North America (including the Canadas, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward's Island) at the Cape of Good Hope, in New Holland, Van Dieman's Land, and this without any prejudice to the actual cultivators of the soil, there are tracts of unappropriated land of the most fertile quality, capable of receiving and subsisting any proportion of the redundant population of this country for many generations hither, means could be found at any time, present or future.

Thirdly. That while the English, Scotch and Irish emigrant taken before your Committee appears to establish the fact, that this redundant population is practically found to repress the industry, and even sometimes to endanger the peace of the country; the colonial evidence which has been taken by your Committee uniformly establishes the fact, that the industry and the safety of the Colonies will be materially encouraged and preserved by the introduction of this population. The unemployed laborer at home necessarily consumes more than he produces, and the national wealth is diminished in that proportion. When transferred to new countries, where the fertility of the soil or fertility is unappropriated, and where the rate of wages is consequently high, it will be found that he produces infinitely more than he consumes, and the national wealth will be increased by the change. If the Colonies are to be considered as integral parts of the nation at large.

If the foregoing positions be correct, your Committee feel justified in recommending the subject of Emigration to the most serious and deliberate consideration of the House, as one obvious and immediate means for correcting in some degree this redundancy of population, and for mitigating the numerous evils which appear to result from the same. But in the prosecution of their examination of this important and comparatively unexamined subject, they have not had either the time or the opportunity to perfect that scope of inquiry which would justify them in offering to the House any specific recommendations, with respect to the manner in which it might be convenient to make such any experiment of Emigration on an extended scale; they therefore propose to limit themselves to an exposition of the principles by which the examination of the evidence taken before them has been uniformly directed, and to a short enumeration of the points which have formed distinct objects of inquiry.

They have considered that no system of Emigration could be recommended to the attention of Parliament, which was not essentially voluntary on the part of the Emigrants, and which did not relate to that part of the community which may be considered in a state of permanent redundancy. They also consider, that it would be in the highest degree desirable that any expense incurred for the purpose of Emigration, to be contributed from national funds, should be ultimately repaid; to that no gratuitous expenditure should be necessary, except in cases which might justifiably be made exceptions to the general rule. It is true the Emigrations carried into effect in 1823 and 1825, under the superintendence of Mr. Peter Robinson, the details of which are to be found in the Appendix, were supported by Parliamentary grants of money, for which no repayment was pledged; but those emigrations were necessary for the purpose of experiment, and the justification of employing public money for that purpose was specially pleaded, on the ground of their being experiments which were necessary to precede any more extended scheme. The principal of those families, who would have been 142 men, 142 women, and 284 children; consequently the actual expense would have been £12,486, instead of £13,347, and in that case the whole expense to the Canadas would have amounted to £1,136. Various reasons have induced your committee to make their calculations at the rate of £20 per head; in making their calculations at so low a rate, they are peculiar relation to an outlay of national capital; but they proceeded to satisfy themselves with respect to the actual expenditure incurred in the Emigration of 1823, which, as an experiment, may be considered (as it have entirely succeeded,) and to ascertain whether an equal or a less expense incurred in subsequent Emigrations could be coupled with arrangements to supercede the necessity of any additional outlay for repayment. In illustration of the views which they entertain on this part of the subject, they beg to refer to the following extract from an original paper which was laid before them, signed by the Chairmen of the Employment of the Poor in Ireland which is given at length in the Appendix to this Report:—

"It is considered as unquestionable, that although this measure is not in the slightest degree necessary, that the poor man who offers his strength and energy as a labourer, but who finding no demand, or at least no adequate demand, for his services, is compelled to receive Parish relief" for the preservation of his own existence and that of his family, will accept this opportunity of bettering his condition, by laying the foundation for future independence, with respect to any gratuitous aid also of securing for the future the effectual prevention supplied by this measure for any accumulation of laborers whose services they may be incapable of remunerating."

"It is at once evident that this system of emigration could be made immediately applicable to Ireland and Scotland, provided that money was raised at first for the purpose, and that repayment by an annuity of £3 10 9 for sixty years, interest being taken at four per cent; and under the supposition that such an annuity could be raised, their inquiries were directed to the question, whether, supposing that the payment of such annuity for the first seven years were secured, the situation of the emigrant head of a family would be such as to enable him to undertake the charge of this annuity, and also of the order of the period, in liquidation of the debt contracted by him for his removal from the mother country to the Colony, and this without any prejudice to the expenses of production which any person should feel alarm, that under the operation of such a measure too great a proportion of the population might be abstracted, they may rest assured not only this measure is one which otherwise would continue gradually to it.

An examination of the evidence before your Committee will show that a large majority of the evidence is decidedly in favour of such a measure, both in favour of such a repayment being practicable, and that there would be little difficulty in collecting it, provided it were to be clearly explained that it was in the nature of a mortgage of a debt contracted, rather than in the character of rent for land.

It will also be found to be generally stated, that the grant of land to emigrants after the actual expiration of seven years, when the repayment by the terms of the proposition would commence, the improvement of his cultivation for seven years would have raised itself an adequate security for such repayment.

It may be necessary to mention in this place, that with respect to the sum advanced by the emigrant, your Committee have contemplated as the actual repayment of money to be transmitted to England, but a payment which should be applied in the Colony for purposes which it is now necessary to defray exclusively from the funds of the mother country. In pursuing the subject in this point of view, your Committee were not only influenced by the consideration of the advantage of securing a practical repayment of any money which might be supplied from the national funds for this national object, but also by the conviction that the industry of the emigrant would be more effectually stimulated and confirmed by subjecting him to the repayment of the greater part of the debt incurred, the particulars and nature of which debt could be distinctly explained to him previously to his being received as a candidate for emigration, and which debt, if it be duly analyzed, will not be found to differ in principle from any other debt which may be incurred by any individual for the object of bettering his own condition and that of his family.

Fourthly. That your Committee were then directed to the consideration, whether the payment of the annuity for the first period, namely, seven years, could be obtained from those parties as might have been specially benefitted by the removal of the redundant population. Your Committee feel it hardly necessary to observe that the cases of England, Ireland and Scotland essentially differ from each other in this respect. In England, no poor-rate affords an immediate fund which can be made applicable to the repayment of any expense incurred for emigration; the evidence of Mr. Hodges the Chairman of the West Kent Quarter Sessions, is so copious and satisfactory upon this subject, that your Committee have only to call the particular attention of the House to it; and although Mr. Hodges' observations are confined to a particular district in Kent and Sussex, it will be found that the principle will apply generally to any part of England where a redundant population is found to exist. In Scotland a poor-rate exists, but is regulated by local circumstances, and so varying in its practical execution, as to make it very doubtful whether such a fund is immediately applicable in the same manner as the English poor-rate is found to be.

In Ireland the case is entirely different; nothing in the nature of a poor-rate exists by law; and therefore voluntary consent on the part of the proprietors of land is the only contribution for the purpose of emigration, must there, as was in Scotland, be indispensable. In the case of Ireland, whether such voluntary contribution were made by the proprietors of land, to which individuals might be consentient, the principle of voluntary consent still remains necessary as part of the measure. Your Committee therefore beg to call the attention of the House to the following important evidence which they have received with respect to the state of that country. It will be found uniformly stated in that evidence, that the evils of redundant population in Ireland in consequence of the non-existence of a parochial fund for the support of the poor; all the attributes of the most unbounded pauperism are to be found there; mendicity, with all its train of evils, occasional outrage, habits of idleness, even in those full brown labour some demand exists, and a character of destitution and misery pervading all the lower classes of society. It is also to be observed, that a pecuniary point of view an indirect burthen is imposed upon that part of the country where a redundant population exists. Your Committee therefore points out that as a deliberate opinion of the proprietors of land in Ireland will be called to this subject, and that they may be induced to make voluntary contributions for the purpose of emigration, as a relief to the burthen which, though most legally imposed, are yet found practically to press upon them from the superabundance of the pauper population.

Your Committee at the same time as fully aware that neither the parishes in England or Scotland, nor districts or proprietors of land in Ireland, will be induced to contribute for this purpose, unless it can be clearly shown that they will derive both general and pecuniary, will be benifited by such contribution. Your Committee have no hesitation in expressing their opinion, that the general tenor of the evidence before them justifies the expectation that such benefit will be thereby derived.

There is, however, one special point of view with respect to Ireland, to which your Committee feel it necessary to call the attention of the House; it is that of a proprietor who is legally entitled to eject a redundant pauper population, which has been surreptitiously introduced into this property, but who, on the other hand, finds that his fixed rent interest and that of his family are materially involved in the removal of this population, shrinks from the exercise of his undoubted legal right, from his dread of the consequences which must attach to them from their removal.

In such a state of circumstances, which your Committee have reason to believe is not of unfrequent occurrence in Ireland, but appears to them the public advantage that would be derived from making such a measure on the part of an individual to be carried into effect, to the mutual benefit of the party dispossessed and of the party dispossessed; and they entertain the most confident expectation that a careful examination into this part of the subject, on the part of the Irish proprietors, will convince them that their own interests will be consulted by a contribution towards the expense of the emigration of such tenants.

With reference to this particular part of the subject, your Committee beg to advert to an Act passed in the present Session, intituled, "An Act to amend the Law of Ireland respecting the Assignment and Letting of Lands and Tenements." This Act was specially founded upon the evidence taken before the Committee on the state of Ireland, and has met with the entire concurrence of both Houses of Parliament. It provides against the recurrence of the evil which has been described in the preceding paragraphs. But the House will not fail to remark, that all the advantages that may be derived from this Act will be diminished, if not rendered absolutely nugatory, unless a well organised system of Emigration should be established concurrently with the measure itself. With respect to the disposition of the tenantry ejected, under such circumstances, your Committee have to observe that the uniform testimony they have received from the evidence, from the petitions submitted to them, and from other sources of information, has induced them to believe that the knowledge, which is now generally disseminated, of the advantages which the emigrants of 1823 and 1825 have experienced, will be sufficient to induce not only any passers now ejected under such circumstances, but all of the more destitute classes of the population in Ireland, to avail themselves with the utmost gratitude of any facilities which may be afforded for emigration. On this point your Committee beg to transcribe an extract from a letter addressed by Colonel Talbot, the founder of the Talbot Settlement in Upper Canada, to a member of our Committee, with respect to the emigration of 1823 and 1825:—'I accompanied Sir Peregrine Maitland last winter on a tour of inspection to the new Irish emigrant settlements, about 100 miles below York. I was anxious to see how they were getting on, and whether the scheme of transporting the poor of Ireland to this country was likely to prove beneficial or not, and was happy to find them doing admirably. Those people were sent out last summer, about 2000 souls, and did not get on their land until late in November; all of them that I saw had snug log huts, and had cleared on an average three and four acres, and I have every reason to think that they will realize a comfortable independence in the course of this year, and be of no further cost to the government; and it was unanimously their wish to have them expressing their gratitude for what was done for them."

To revert to the subject of the repayment, by the emigrants, of part of the expense incurred. Your Committee are fully aware that such payment could alone be made practicable under the circumstance of an adequate market being found for the agricultural productions of the colonies, arising from the cultivation of the land by each successive series of emigrants; they have, therefore, directed a very extensive examination into this portion of the subject of inquiry. The evidence of Mr. Uniacke upon this subject, as connected with the Fisheries, will be found to be very interesting and satisfactory.

Your Committee thought it of paramount importance to inquire whether the result of Emigration to an extended scale, carried into effect from year to year by fresh importations of emigrants, would not involve a material diminution of the value of that carried in each successive year, with reference to the numbers emigrating; and whether, in point of fact, a well organized system of emigration once established, would not carry itself on without gratuitous assistance, or at least with assistance reduced to a very small amount, as compared with its original amount. Their inquiries, therefore, have been especially directed to this point, and it will be found that the general tenor of the evidence is in favour of the probability of a material diminution of expense in each successive year.

Your Committee being fully aware that one popular objection is continually offered to any system of Emigration on an extended scale, is the argument, that the benefit would be only temporary, and that the temporary system would be rapidly filled up, felt it necessary to direct their inquiries to the consideration of such collateral measures, both of a legislative and executive nature, as they conceived tended to repress, if not to prevent, that tendency; they have therefore pursued their inquiries very extensively, and have been fortunate enough to collect very valuable evidence on this part of the subject.

Your Committee were also aware that a popular objection exists to Emigration, on the ground, that the numbers to be taken away for the purpose of producing any benefit, must be necessarily so great as to prevent the possibility of any practical measure sufficient for the purpose. Your Committe, therefore (without expressing any opinion whatever on this point), have directed their inquiries to this investigation, as comprising an element of primary importance in the consideration of Emigration as a national measure.

This part of the subject may be illustrated by the following hypothetical statement. If a district be admitted to require only nine hundred labourers for its adequate cultivation, and if a thousand are found to exist there, who are willing and can be employed, it is evident, whether the case be supposed to happen in England or in Ireland, that the fund for the remuneration of labour in that district is divided among a thousand instead of nine hundred persons; the consequence may and probably will be, that the whole one thousand will receive less than would be adequate to support them, and that they may all present an appearance of want and destitution; but if one hundred labourers be removed from this district, and by that operation the supply of labour be proportioned to the real demand, the wages of labour will necessarily rise, and the condition of the remaining nine hundred may be materially improved; and what is of more importance, the actual work executed by those nine hundred labourers, in their improved condition, may and will be equal, if not superior, to that which was executed by the whole one thousand in their state of comparatively unremunerated labour. The illustration of this subject, referred also may be made to the Report, printed in 1824, of the Select Committee appointed to inquire into the practice which prevails in some parts of the country, of paying the Wages of labour out of the Poor-rates, &c.

Your Committee observed in the Reports of the Committees appointed, in 1817 and 1819, to consider of the Poor Laws, that a strong opinion was expressed as to an extension, unlicenced by actual law, of the relief afforded to able-bodied paupers, under which much of the evils incident to the Poor Law system have been considered to rise; and they also it would be expedient to inquire in what manner and to what degree a well organised system of Emigration from England would facilitate the appropriation of the poor-rates according to their original application, as contended for by those Committees; and how far it might be found practicable to mortgage the poor-rates for the purpose of relieving the parishes from the superabundant population. They have therefore made particular inquiries on these points; and here they have again to advert to the valuable evidence of Mr. Hodges, who has shown that voluntary efforts have already been made for this special purpose; that within his knowledge, parishes have furnished money from the poor-rates for the purposes of facilitating Emigration; and that the emigrants, availing themselves of those facilities, had proceeded to the United States of America. Your Committee presume that it would be unnecessary to argue in favour of any determination of Emigrants in our own colonies, provided it can be shown that the expense necessary to be incurred will not be so great as that which is necessary in the removal to the United States.

An application was made to your Committee by the Columbian Agricultural Association, with reference to the subject of receiving Emigrants on the lands located to them in Columbia; and your Committee beg to refer to the evidence of Sir Robert Wilson upon this point.

Your Committee beg also to inform the House, that during the course of their investigation, they received an application from Mr. Chambers, a Police Magistrate, requesting to be examined upon the subject of that numerous class of persons in the Metropolis, chiefly under age, who are being thrown upon the streets in perfect destitution, soon resort to crimes for their support. A class so numerous, and whose case is so lamentable, deserves the attention of Parliament; and your Committee regret, which must be either left to the benevolence of charitable institutions, or of Parliament, to supply these funds for the first period of emigration, which, as already explained, the Committee are disposed to recommend should be furnished by the individuals specially benefited by the removal of the Emigrants.

They would also beg to refer to the evidence of Mr. Bodkin, the secretary to the Mendicity Society, upon this subject.

It will be observed from the examination of the evidence, that in the event of any general measure of emigration, the Committee have considered it suggested to the Committee, that several legislative measures might, under certain modifications, be introduced as auxiliaries to the object; such, for example, as an extension to an English loan, mortgage their poor rates for the purpose of forming a fund for the emigration of their poor; to enable tenants for life in Ireland and Scotland to charge their estates for the purpose; to enable parishes in Ireland and Scotland to effect a similar charge, subject to the consent of some definite proportion of the contributors; to provide some means for regulating the erection of cottages in those agricultural parishes were rates may be mortgaged for the purposes of emigration; to establish a Board of Emigration, with protectors of emigrants in the United States; that lands allotted to the emigrants as a security until the original debt be liquidated, such lien to be in the nature of a land tax redeemable at any time at a certain rate of redemption; to limit the number of ships in no case to exceed seven tests, during which one fourth of the wages received by the apprentice should be set apart by the master in liquidation of the expense incurred; that the indenture of the emigrant, such apprenticeships only to continue until that expense shall have been liquidated, and after that period the apprentice to be entirely free.

Your Committee beg finally to express their decided conviction, that the circulation of their Report, and of the Minutes of Evidence, throughout the United Kingdom and the Colonies, will enable any future Committee to make the inquiries, and the investigation, as comprising an element of primary importance in the consideration of Emigration as a national measure.

Salisbury Crags.—The Lord Provost has been honoured with a communication from Windsor, intimating that his Majesty had graciously condescended to express his desire for the future preservation of Salisbury Crags. In deference to the Royal wishes, arrangements have been determined on for putting an end to all further encroachment on this magnificent feature of our ancient city. It must be very gratifying to every lover of his country to observe so interesting an evidence of his sovereign's partiality for the metropolis of his Scottish dominions, and it cannot be less so to every man of sense, to see this splendid ornament of our city thus screened from farther injury.

A spirited attempt has been made to establish a communication by light coaches every half hour between Leith and Port Hopetoun by Queen Street and Castle Street. The undertaking commenced about a fortnight ago, and promises, we understand, to succeed remarkably well.

A considerable number of labourers are at present employed in levelling the ground on the Calton Hill to the east of the Miller's Knowe, preparatory to the commencement of the New High School; and on the summit of the hill, where the National Monument has been marked off, several labourers are clearing the ground, previous to that great building being begun.

The heat on Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, was quite oppressive, the thermometer in the shade being so high as 82. Yesterday, such was the heat, that the thermometer stood at midday at 27 in the shade. About eight o'clock P. M. a thunder-storm passed over the city, when the mercury sunk to 60. The effects of the drought have been seriously felt in the country. Most of the rivulets being dried up, and rivers, wanting so many of their tributary streams, were so diminished, that the grain mills and other public works on their banks were either shut up, or working only a few hours a-day, for want of water. The wells and ponds about contry houses were in many places dried up, and the farmers were consequently under the necessity of either carting their water for their cattle from a distance, or driving their cattle to the stream.

In consequence of the continued dryness of the season, and the almost unparalleled ebbing of the Clyde, the Salmon have suffered unitee beg to refer to the evidence of Sir Robert severely from the great quantity of salt that are discharged from the different public works, common sewers, &c. in the neighbourhood of this city. On Wednesday, the heat of the water, combined with the deleterious substances mixed with it, had a deadly influence on the finny tribe, Hundreds of salmon trout, braizes, perches, eels, &c., were floating on the surface on the water in an inert state, and the river was thronged with urchins between the Broomielaw and the new bridge, who easily made prey of the fish.—

In Borgue, and other parishes in Golloway, many of the farmers have to fodder their cattle twice a day; and it is pitiable to see the poor animals running routing after those who purvey for them, and devouring their rations as greedily as if the ground were covered foot deep with snow. The Dee, at this moment, is the purest piece of that fine river. Even such land bridge might be crossed dry-shod by a little child who had only newly began to walk.

The drought is so severe in the island of Bute, that the cattle are dying for want of water. It is so very scarce in some places, that the cows have to be driven for miles for every temporary supply.

DREADFUL CATASTROPHY.

A few minutes before six o'clock, on Wednesday evening last, a horrible accident occurred at the house of Michael Hoban, a respectable carrier of the Kells road, about half a mile from this city. Early in the morning, two drays belonging to Hoban, loaded with goods, arrived from Dublin, on their way to Waterford, and were laid down on the road side, near his door. Among the other parcels, there unfortunately happened to be a cask of gunpowder; through some accident that can never be known the powder blew up at the hour above mentioned, with a tremendious report, which shook the earth for a considerable distance around, and the report was followed by a black dense column of smoke. On visiting this scene of calamity, nothing could present a more frightful appearance. Two young men were blown to pieces, and their limbs scattered in different directions through the surrounding fields. Two other young men and a young woman were so dreadfully maimed and blackened by explosion, as scarcely to retain the appearance of human beings. These three were conveyed as promptly as possible to the County Infirmary, with scarce a hope of recovery. A young child, who was on the spot, escaped most providentially, without the slightest injury. Two houses were blown down, and quickly consumed to ashes. The drays, with their iron axles, were shivered to pieces, and large bales of cloth, parcels of silk stockings, quantities of tea, books, paper deal planks, and other articles that composed the loading of the cars, were scattered in fragments, and blazing in every direction, they presented an awful appearance. Soon after the accident happened, an inquest was held on the remains of Michael Hoban, jun. & John Dowling.—Verdict—" Came by their death by the accidental explosion of a keg of gunpowde The other sufferers were Patrick and Mary Hoban, who died soon after being brought to the Infirmary, and Martin Hoban, of whose recovery Dr. Pack entertains some hope.—

HAYTI.

We believe every one attentive to the subject has been convinced, that the course pursued by France with regard to the recognition of this Island, was calculated to inspire great distrust, and to defeat the very objects she had in view. A letter from Hayti to the Editor of the National Gazette, states that these effects have already been in a considerable degree produced. The insidious and unprincipled negotiations of the French ministry for several years, have rendered the government and the people quite distrustful of them, so that the expensive military establishment is still kept on foot, and the payment of the loan due to France will be withheld, partly from incapacity, and partly from indisposition to pay it. The writer then proposes, that France should make new terms: agree to lengthen the time of payment to thirty years, from five, and give up her exclusive privileges, which in reality, as he says, are almost null, as the Europeans carry thither only colonial produce, and other ships can adopt her flag.—*N. ONE DAY LATER FROM EUROPE.

The British ship Marmion, Captain Petrie, has arrived at Philadelphia, from Liverpool, bringing London papers to the evening of the 20th of July, Shipping Lists to the 20th, and Liverpool papers to the 22d, all inclusive. And the ship Exito, from Havre, for this port, has arrived in the Sound, bringing Havre papers to the 19th inclusive. We glean the following items of political and commercial intelligence, as collected from the above sources by the Philadelphia editors, and the morning papers of this city.

The distresses among the weavers of Spitalfields remains unabated; and at Manchester, large assemblages of people out of work continued to be frequently collected together. The military guards had prevented any outrages for a few days back, still the feelings of the populace in that and many of the adjacent towns were "assuming a more decided tone." A letter from Manchester of the 18th of July, says:

"The scattered groupes which were observed yesterday in our streets, apparently condoling with each other on the wretchedness of their prospects, seemed to have concerted together some new measures. About eleven o'clock, huntings were erected on the field of "Peterloo," and a mob of between 30 and 40,000 persons assembled in a very short space of time, all of the lowest description, and of both sexes, many of whom were armed with pikes and staves, not a few of which doubtless had lain in their rusts since the never-to-be-forgotten battle of Peterloo." Several other topics were attempted to be discussed by one or two speechifiers, but a party of the Queen's Boys made its appearance, and the mob quietly dispersed.

"The disaffected have chiefly consisted of persons from Macclesfield and Chorley; a Mr. Wood, of the latter place, an extensive manufacturer and an encourager of the power-loom has been marked out by the rioters, and on Monday the whole of his extensive works were completely destroyed. Our anticipations are gloomy in the extreme, as many of the manufactures who have kept hands at work for three days in a week have come to a determination of stopping altogether; the fund, too, for the relief of the distressed, is fast coming to an end, and a corresponding reduction of 'tickets' has taken place. Several families, who have been driven left Macclesfield and Chorley, and have come to Manchester, thinking themselves far safer in the latter place."

A Liverpool paper of July 22, contains no additional particulars in relation to the state of the manufacturing districts, but draws a most gloomy picture of the labouring classes generally, and seems to prognosticate nothing but misery and starvation. We have quoted below, a gloomy article from a Liverpool paper upon this subject.

The regular return of bankruptcies in England, for the half year, ending June 30th, was 489. For the same period in 1826, they amounted to 1827.

A great fire recently happened in the town of Sterling, Scotland. Not less than forty families were burnt out of their houses, and all their effects destroyed.

A report prevailed that Lord Cochrane had been appointed by the British government that no interruption would be given to the proceedings, provided he did not enter into a British port.

Two deaths (both men) had actually occurred in the streets of Dublin, from starvation.

The cholera morbus, which had prevailed in Dublin for two months, had lately had a very considerable increase. Its general prevalence is attributed to the filthiness of the city.

A serious riot took place at the fair of Killeedie on the 10th of July. Several persons were killed and injured.

A letter from Liverpool of the 23d says, "We are sorry to state our markets are again worse, and that in the article of sugar, the lowest quotations perhaps ever known, has appeared in the Gazette of the 14th."

Liverpool, July 22.

It is with sensation of the deepest sorrow we have to reiterate our former statements relative to the distress which in an unparalled degree pervades the manufacturing districts of this and the adjoining counties.

Accounts daily reach us of the increasing misery of the working classes, occasioned by the masters of the working classes, occasioned by the masters of the working classes, occasioned by the masters minating duty of ten per cent. upon the duties on the cargoes of American vessels entering the port of Halifax: being in conformity to His Majesty's Order in Council of the 21st of July, 1825—and the practice at present pursued in other colonies.

RUPERT D. GEORGE.

TRADE TO NEWFOUNDLAND, &c.

The [Halifax] Chamber of Commerce having received the following official opinion respecting the trade between one colony and another, submit it for the information of the public:

'British or foreign goods exported from the warehouse, are not liable to the duties imposed by acts passed previous to the 14 Geo. III, or by the 6 Geo. IV, ch. 114. although such goods may be exported to a port in another colony, not a free port; but if landed there without entry, or payment of duty, they are liable to seizure, and the parties to penalties. The bond by Sec. 42, is to prevent the goods, being relanded here. Certificates of the due landing of such goods to be transmitted to the Custom House here, through the Officer at the Head Port of the Province, where the goods may be landed.'

It is understood that British Colonial produce is not required to be warehoused at this port, when intended to be exported from hence to Newfoundland, or any other colony in North America.

P. E Island, August 1.

[Extract of a private letter from a proprietor in England.]

"The Colonial Office has again revived the demand of Quit Rent and though every one thought that the notice of remission up to 1825 was an abandonment of all arrears to that period, Lord Bathurst calculates the arrears back to 1816, and has proposed for the proprietors to pay the arrears of 10 years, and redeem the future Quit Rent at twenty years purchase, either in money or land, the latter valued at 5s. per acre.—These terms I think intolerable, considering what we have suffered from such men as have been appointed Governors, and Chief Justices, whilst the Province of Nova Scotia is exempt. I understand Lord Bathurst and Lord Melville and Sir J. Montgomery, that he had given directions to enforce pay in Nova Scotia, and that should no longer be an excuse. Lord Bathurst assured them that if the land, as opposed, were given up to the government as a compensation for Quit Rent, it should not be granted gratis, but should be paid for by the grantees, and that no part of it should be disposed of to the present inhabitants, but new comers, to guard against the present settlers quitting the lands they now occupy. The government have now come to a resolution not to grant any Land gratis in any of the Colonies. He was asked of his Lordship whether, if the proposed measure took place, the money obtained by the sale would be given up to the local government for the benefit of the Island; this proposition was decidedly negatived—It is said there will be great opposition made to the supplies granted for the Civil Government of the Colonies next Session of Parliament, that Ministers will not be able to carry the measure."

The same letter mentions that Robert S. Atcheson, Esq. son of the late Nathaniel Atcheson, has been provisionally appointed Colonial Agent for this Island.

The want of rain is every day more severely felt. Serious apprehensions are entertained for the fate of the grain crops, particularly oats. The hay harvest is nearly over and may be considered little short of a complete failure.

Alarming fires continue to range in the woods. Two houses near Cove-Head were consumed on Sunday morning. Several fences, hedges, cornfields and cattle have also been destroyed.

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, we understand, will not be out before the fall of the year.

His Royal Highness the Duke of Sussex, Grand Master of Masons, has been graciously pleased to appoint John Molson, Esq. Provincial Grand Master for the District of Montreal and William Henry, in the room of the late Hon. William McGillivray. His Installation will take place on Tuesday the 6th September next, at the Masonic Hall. Divine Service will be performed in Christ's Church, and a collection made in aid of the funds of the Montreal General Hospital.

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors, of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province; to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on Monday the Fourteenth day of August inst. to be Commenced, Held, Called, and Elected, and to every of you

GREETING

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Twenty-seventh day of June last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the Fourteenth day of August instant, at which time, at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear.

NOW KNOW YE, that we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents enjoining you and each of you that on Thursday the Twenty-first day of September next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

In testimony whereof, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—Witness our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To all to whom these Presents shall come

GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the parts of this Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. We have thought fit to order and direct, and We do hereby order and direct that, until Our pleasure herein shall be further made known, it shall and may be lawful for all Our Subjects inhabiting Our Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada, freely to enter into Our Woods and Forests in such parts of Our said Province of Upper Canada, situate along the Banks of the River Ottawa, or upon the Banks of the Waters running into the said River and within a convenient distance from the same, as shall not have been Surveyed and divided into Concessions and Lots, and to Cut and carry away such Oak and Pine Timber as may be fit for the purposes of Exportation.

Provided always, nevertheless, That in consideration of the authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties herein-after specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Red Pine Timber, Four Pounds Three Shillings and Four Pence, being at the rate of One Penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Yellow Pine Timber, Two Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence, being at the rate of One Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commission under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places upon the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointed as aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has attained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons, properly authorised by or under Our Licence granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

In testimony whereof, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—Witness Our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this third day of May in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-Six, and in the Seventh Year of Our Reign.

NOTICE is hereby given, by Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, in Council, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a regular Council day.

JOHN SMALL.

No. 9 1. f. C. E. C.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepard in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s. 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hundred Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant. It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessarry expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

POETRY.

CHRIST RAISETH THE WIDOW'S SON.

(By the Author of "Leisure Hours at Sea.")

12. Now when he came nigh to the gate of the city, behold, there was a dead man carried out, the only son of his mother, and she was a widow: and much people of the city was with her.

13. And when the Lord saw her, he had compassion on her, and said unto her, Weep not.

14. And he came and touched the bier: and they that bare him stood still. And he said, Young man I say unto thee, Arise.

16. And he that was dead sat up, and began to speak. And he delivered him to his mother.

Luke, Chap. 7.

The sun shone brightly down that day
On Nain's lofty walls,
And man, awhile, beneath its ray,
Forgot that they were thralls:
Loud peals of mirth were heard along
The wide extended plain;
And happy hearts breathed out in song,
Despite the Roman chain.

But oh! that morning rose on one
To whom it brought no joy,
The widow who had lost her son,
Her lov'd, her only boy:
And when the laugh and shout was past,
Or glad sights met her eye,
A hurried look around she cast,
And answered with a sigh.

The mother mov'd beside the bier—
No sorrowing work she spoke;
In silence fell the scalding tear
That told her heart was broke:
Yet oft her eyes she rais'd to heav'n,
As'if she strove to say—
"Bless'd be that Lord! 'tis he hath giv'n,
And he hath ta'en away."

Lone mourner, let thy sorrow cease—
There comes thro' yonder gate
One who can give thy bosom peace—
Thou art not desolate!
Yon Pilgrim, in poor weeds array'd,
For all thy woes can feel;
He comes—the wound that Death has made,
His powerful word will heal.

Thy God draws nigh! before his breath
The clouds of grief depart;
His hand shall burst the bars of Death,
And bind thy broken heart:
Weep not," he cries! "Young man arise!
Woman receive thy son!"
And all beheld with wond'ring eyes,
The deed a God had done.

MISCELLANEOUS.

MY NATIVE HOME.

The following lively and well-told-tale, is taken from "Scenes and Sketches of a Soldier's life in Ireland." The same author has published the previous part of his life, under the title of 'Recollections of an Eventful life,' and making allowances for a soldier's ambition to shine as a hero in literature, must have brought him a fairer share of honor than often falls to the lot of a private soldier.

'I had received several letters from my parents since my return, they were both well, and urged me to procure a furlough and go home to see them. It was some time before I could accomplish this; but at length it was effected, and having taken a seat on the coach, I set off on my journey home. On reaching Dublin I luckily found a vessel prepared to sail for Irvine, and securing a passage, I embarked next morning. The wind being favourable, we set sail and were soon fairly into the channel, holding on our course; the breeze continued steady all that day, and by night we ran a long way down the coast.

'Feeling little inclination to sleep, about midnight I came on deck; considering the season of the year, it was a delightful night; the moon shed her silver radiance o'er reposing nature, like the smile of a fond mother over her sleeping infant, and as I gazed on her, sailing through the blue expanse of heaven, with her attendant train of myriads of sparkling orbs, I felt my mind soar beyond this earth and all its concerns.

Whoever gazed upon them shining,
And turned to earth without repining,
Nor wished for wings to fly away,
And mix in their eternal ray?

While I leaned over the ship's bow, watching the moonbeams dancing on the glassy bosom of the deep—my ears soothed with the rippling of the vessel, as she urged her way through the waters, I felt as if shut out from the world, and emancipated from its laws and control. At sea is the place for reflection and contemplation—there the memory, as if secure in her privacy, unlocks and draws forth her secret treasures, and broods over them with minor care.

Before me the softened outline of the distant coast of Scotland could be seen, its rugged points bursting through the gauzy film with which they were enveloped; but the well-known rock of Ailso stood forth in bold relief, its giant mass towering proudly above the waves, alike defying their fury and the hand of time; the sight of that rock which the emigrant associates with the farewell to his country, called forth in my bosom a tide of recollections. When I last saw it, I was returning, as now, from one of my wild adventures in search of happiness and fame; the result of both were nearly equal—misery and disappointment: the last, however, had been the most severe lesson, and I now, like the prodigal son, retracing my way from a far country, where I had been glad (literally) to feed on the husks which formed the food of the swine.—My past life glided in review before my mind, and I could not help exclaiming, what a fool have I been! I have bartered every privilege which was my birthright, in the pursuit of vain dreams of ease and happiness; settling down in the misery and hardship I have endured; has not the last six years of my life been a blank, that period of time employed in my education at home, what might I have not been? but my doom is fixed, I have sealed it myself—there was destruction in the thought.

'That day I landed at Irvine, and resolved to pursue my journey homeward without stopping. As I travelled along, I felt that tumultuous fluttering and overflowing of the heart, that buoyancy of tread which every sensitive being must have felt on revisiting the land of his birth, after years of separation from all that was dear to him. The sun was setting when I reached the wood of ——, it had been the haunt of many of my childish wanderings; there I had often roved, unconscious of where I was going. My soul awed with the deep shade that the trees cast around, I trod as if on holy ground, while the ceaseless hum of its instinct inhabitants, mingled with the wail of the cushat, cherished the deep pensive feelings which the scene had excited in my bosom. It was here that I first learned to commune with my own heart, and in imagination first soared into the realms of faery. Near its margin was the stream on whose banks I have lain listening to its murmuring, my gaze fixed on the world, pourtrayed in its transparent bosom so beautiful, so bright I could scarcely believe it was not some world of spirituality, some realm of bliss. The scene was changed—winter had stript it of all its attractions—the blast howled through the leafless trees—and the stream that had meandered so sweetly through the verdant plain, was now roaring down its channel with impetuous force. The scene was changed; but he who looked on it was not less so.

Morning of life! too soon o'ercast—
Young days of bliss, too dear to lose—
Ah! whither have thy visions past
That brightened all my childish views?

For never yet when poets muse,
Or maiden's dream in bowers alone,
Were gloomier visions more profuse,
Ah! whither have those visions gone?

I was roused from one of memory's sweetest dreams, by the distant sound of bells—they were those of my native city; I had often heard them at the same hour, they spoke of woe, devotion, and joy, and scenes long gone by. In this softened state of feeling I entered the town, and heedless of the throng, I hurried on to the home of my parents—reached the house—threw myself in their arms, and the first tumult of feeling over I sat at the fireside, with my father on the one side and my mother at the other, gazing affectionately upon me, while I talked of all I had seen, and all I had felt.

Being tired of my journey, my mother suggested the propriety of my going to rest, and the same hand that had often smoothed my pillow, again performed that office. I could not help comparing my situation with the nights that I had lain exposed the storm, with the cold earth for my bed, and I felt a lively impulse of gratitude (worth a thousand formal prayers) to the Divine Being, who had watched me through every danger, and brought me in safety back to my home and my parents.

While my mind was occupied in these reflections, my mother again entered my chamber to see if I wanted any thing. 'Are you asleep James?'—My eyes were shut and I did not reply. She stood over me with a light in her hand, gazing on my weather-beaten countenance. 'My poor wanderer,' she ejaculated, 'what must you have endured since last I saw you—danger and death has surrounded you, fatigue and hunger attended your steps: but yet you have been kindly dealt with, mercifully preserved. I return thee thanks, thou Almighty giver of every good, for thy bounteous mercy to my poor boy.—O guide him to thyself!' She stooped to kiss my forehead—her warm tears fell upon my face, my emotions became too strong for concealment, and afraid that she had disturbed my sleep, she softly left the room.

Those who have felt the rude storm of adversity, and the endearing kindness of a mother, will appreciate my feelings.'

THE ORPHAN FAMILY OF THE LATE CAPTAIN JAMES MACKAY.

To the Editor of the Courier.

Sir—I am induced from your former great kindness to trouble you again with this most truly distressing case. The father of these children was an old officer, on the half-pay of the Royal Marines, who had once a good estate in Kent, but which from his too great liberality he mortgaged for above twenty thousand pounds. The mortgagees sold the property for less than the mortgage; this hastened his end, and he died in March 1825, leaving a widow with seven children totally destitute.—The late Captain James Mackay, of the 70th Regiment, immediately took the whole family under his protection, and with the assistance of a small subscription supported them. The widow soon after died of a broken heart, leaving, these seven children to the care of their uncle (since which one has died.) This truly good man (who had nothing but his pay to live on) was a father to them: but alas! worn out with disappointment, anxiety and grief, about the future provisions of these orphans, he died at Winchester, on the 6th July last. By his death these six children (four girls and two boys) are left without any means of support.—With a view to save these poor orphan's from a worse fate, Sir James Cockburn, the Rev. Archdeacon Cambridge, and myself, have undertaken to do the best we can for them, and our names have appeared as trustees, &c. for any money which may be collected for them. The father of these children was an old friend of mine, and was present at the battle of Trafalgar, and was afterwards present at the assassination of his own Admiral.

A silver Mine has, it seems, been discovered in Adams' estate, Jay. An attempt is making to form a company to work it. From the following certificate which we copy from the advertising part of the Baltimore Chronicle, it would appear that the ore is of considerable richness.—Baltimore Gazette, 1826. I do hereby certify that I have extracted out of 25 or 30 lbs of Ore, coming from the place of Thomas Barnes and Robert Wesly, 11 ounces of silver, which is made to the contraction amounted only to three dollars, and it is my belief, that the iron and lead containing in the Ore, will, if carried on, on a large scale, pay for the producing of the silver. J. H. OBERTEUFFER.

ENGLAND.

SUMMARY.

The Harvest.—The wheat harvest has commenced in the neighborhood of this city. The crop will be large and of most excellent quality.—Canterbury paper.

The wheat harvest has commenced throughout the West of England, and the accounts both of the quality and bulk of the crop are highly satisfactory. The plantation of hops at Orchard Portman, near Taunton, is in a remarkably thriving state.

The wheat harvest is now in a conduct general operation throughout Devonshire, and the produce is bountiful. Oats and barley are also abundant crops, except on light soils, where the want of rain has been most felt.

The wheat and barley harvest is now becoming general in this neighbourhood. Though the best grain, as we have already stated, is generally a failure, the wheat is fine: the produce will probably be little below an average crop. In some districts the rains has week proved very serviceable to the late sown barley.—Worcester Journal

The cotton weavers of Belfast have forwarded a memorial to Government, praying that Ministers would take their state into consideration, and grant them an opportunity of emigrating, before the inclemency of the winter adds to their sufferings.

The London Times, after speaking of the sufferings of the poor in England and Scotland, says, "Amidst this extensive national calamity it is useful to look to the measures of foreign countries with attention, to ascertain how far their state assimilates to our own. The danger to which England was exposed from the competition of the United States in the great article of cotton, is likely, we understand, to be averted, as most of the manufactories established in Rhode Island, and other parts of the Union, were by the last accounts, on the point of being abandoned, through the inability of the owners to work them to advantage. We are also assured that in scarcely any of the manufactories in different parts of Europe does much activity prevails."

At a late meeting in London of the members of the Royal Westminster Infantry for the gratuitous cure of diseases of the eye, it appears from the report of the Treasurer, that during the year, 1243 persons of all ages had been admitted to the benefits of that charity, and of that number 359 have been restored to sight by the different operations for cataract, some at a very advanced period of life, and some who were born blind. The whole number of patients admitted since the formation of the institution is 10,770.

The notices of the harvest are very favorable.—The papers from Canterbury, Devizes, Dorchester, Worcester, and Plymouth, all concur in stating that the wheat, oats and barley, are very fine, and the product bountiful; yet a knowledge of this fact does not appear to have had any effect on the price of grain.

An official report has been made to the Emperor of Russia on the Secret societies and alledged conspiracies said to have occasioned the rebellious explosion which signalized the accession of the present Emperor. The report of the commissioners, the manifestations of the conspiracy extended throughout the Empire, in almost every Province of which organised bands of reformers existed. The professed object was the establishment of a representative government.

The Chinese Wall.—According to a statement in the Morgenblatt, the celebrated Chinese wall was erected 214 years before the birth of Christ, against the Mongolese. It is 714 German miles long 14 feet thick, and 26 feet high; so that with the same materials, a wall, one foot in thickness and 23 in height, might be carried twice round the whole world.

Hydrocyanic Acid.—A Horse to whom seven drops of hydrocyanic acid were given, for the purpose of destroying him, and who appeared, in fact, to be dead, was, to the great astonishment of the spectators, suddenly recalled to life by the administration of a drachm of subcarbonate of ammonia.

The memoirs of a sergeant in the French army is written by a man of the name of Guillemard, who was drawn as a conscript in 1805, and one on board Admiral Villeneuve's fleet. He was the man who shot Lord Nelson in the battle of Trafalgar, and was afterwards present at the assassination of his own Admiral.

Sir Thomas Laurie, that the Corporation of London had paid £60,000 ($280,000) in benevolence, £40,000 ($190,000) in presents, &c. to distinguished characters, within the last 40 years.

Sir Walter Scott.—This gentleman has not been appointed to the lucrative office of King's Printer in Scotland. It is a patent place, and 13 years of the patent are unexpired.

During the Westmoreland election, 80 rounds of beef and 100 rounds of ham, were only two among the numerous items daily sent out from Lowther Castle. Two oxen, ten sheep, and a great number of lambs were slaughtered every day.

Sharks.—Some children were bathing on the coast near Whitehaven, when a shark seized and carried off one of them.

Fourteen Protestants in one day, at Shanagolden, in Ireland announced their creed, and embraced Catholicism amidst much pomp and ceremony.

The Orange processions in Ireland this year, have, in consequence of the exertions of the friends of peace and order, been kept down.

Signor Velluti has had a serious dispute with the female chorus signers of the London Opera House. He ill said to have a marked dislike to the female sex.

The tried Squabble.—Elliston, the actor, has been guilty of an assault on Pool, the dramatist, author of Paul Pry, &c. This second outrage was committed at Vauxhall. For the former he was fined £30, and the costs.

Emancipation.—It is calculated in the Dublin papers, that there will be a majority of 41 members favourable to Catholic emancipation in the new House of Commons.

Talma, the great actor, is said to be recovering daily though slowly. His complaint is what the physicians call ileus.

The Archbishop of Bordeaux is dead.

Death of the Marquis of Waterford.—It is with much regret we announce the death of this amiable and highly esteemed nobleman. In our paper of Thursday we stated that his Lordship was considered to be so much improved, as to render it safe for him to undertake a journey to Buxton. Lamentable, however, to relate, he was not able to proceed beyond Carmarthen, where he died on Sunday last. He was a nobleman of the most amiable disposition; and his death will be deeply and universally regretted. He is succeeded in his titles by his oldest son, the Earl of Tyrone, now Marquis of Waterford.—July 21.

RECRUITING DEPARTMENT, —HORSE GUARDS, JULY 15, 1826.—GENERAL ORDER.

The Commander in Chief directs that the Recruiting for the Infantry of the line, except the regiments serving in India, shall be conducted upon the following footing, until further orders, viz:

Regiments which are within 50 of their establishment of 740 rank and file, to enlist no recruit under five feet eight inches in height, and corps wanting more than 50 men of completion, to enlist no recruit below the standard of five feet 6 1-2 inches, until they arrive within 50 of their establishment, when they are to be reduced to the increased standard of five feet eight inches.

Commanding Officers of Regiment and Depots, will guide themselves by the directions herein communicated; and, according as their establishment may approach or fall short of completion, make application for such orders being given to their Recruiting parties, as may be necessary to fulfil the object of the present regulation.

By His Royal Highness's Command,
H. TORRENS, Adj Gen.

Whitehall, July 14.—The King, as a mark of his special favour towards Sir T. A silver Mine has, it seems, been discovered in Adams' estate, Jay. An attempt is making to form a company to work it. From the following certificate which we copy from the advertising part of the Baltimore Chronicle, it would appear that the ore is of considerable richness.—Baltimore Gazette, 1826. I do hereby certify that I have extracted out of 25 or 30 lbs of Ore, coming from the place of Thomas Barnes and Robert Wesly, 11 ounces of silver, which is made to the contraction amounted only to three dollars, and it is my belief, that the iron and lead containing in the Ore, will, if carried on, on a large scale, pay for the producing of the silver. BANK NOTES.

The London Gazette of July 18, contains the following account, published in pursuance of an Act of last Session:

An Account of the Total Number of Notes of the Governor and Company of the Bank of England, under the value of Five Pounds, which has been issued each and every week, from the 12th of June, 1826, until Saturday the 15th of July, 1826; and also the Total Amount of Notes under the value of Five Pounds, actually in circulation at the close of business on every such Saturday, pursuant to Act the 7th Geo. IV, cap. 6.

Mr. Price of the Drury lane and New-York Theatres arrived in the Corinthian.

All the papers are teeming with the distresses of the manufacturing districts.—We do not, however, observe any new features in them. They are all alike melancholy and afflicting.—N. Y. Mirror.

War Office, July 17, 1826.—Memoranda.

His Majesty has been pleased to approve of the 27th foot bearing on its colours and appointments, in addition to any other badges or devices which may have heretofore been granted to the regiment, the word 'Tournay,' in commemoration of the distinguished conduct of the regiment in the action fought near Tournay, on the 23d of May, 1794.

His Majesty has also been pleased to approve of the 50th foot bearing on its colours and appointments, in addition to any other badges or devices which may have heretofore been granted to that regiment, the word 'Bourbon,' in commemoration of the distinguished conduct of the regiment in the attack and capture of the Isle of Bourbon, in the month of July 1810.

LIVERPOOL, July 24, 1826.

Dear Sir—Our cotton market continues in a dull and drooping state. During the last few days several holders have pressed their stocks upon the market, which has produced considerable panic, and the sales made have been generally at a decline of ¼ per lb. on the currency of the previous week. To the weighty import from the United States, which exceeds what had been expected; the heavy stock in this port, (about 400,000 bags,) the unsatisfied consumption, and the unfavourable state of trade in the country generally, (which, contrary to the expectations of many, has increased of late,) the present depression may be in a great measure attributed. The sales for the week ending the 15th of the 21st inst. inclusive, amounted to 9280 bags, of all sorts, viz: 4420 American, 1440 Brasils, 210 Egyptian, 40 West Indies, and 170 East Indies.

The stock on hand of all descriptions is 300,000 bags. The import from the 14th to the 21st inst. was 26,298 bags, all except 323 from the United States.

The sales of other articles of American produce are 230 bbls. Montreal Pots of 1824 (by public auction, at 30s. 9d. and by private, 110 bbls. of 1825) at 21s. 6d. a 22s. and 40 bbls. Pearls, at 24s. a 24s. 6d.; 100 bbls. U. S. pots, (branded 1825) at 24s. 6d. and 20 bbls. old pearls at 26s. 6d.; 75 bbls. good Pearls at 26s. 6d.; 40 tierces, 23 half do. flice, of fine quality, at 19s. a 19s. a 3d. and 2 bbls. Bees Wax, at £12 per cwt.

MANCHESTER, July 21.

The state of the town and the neighbourhood is not such as to excite present alarm. The vigilance of the police, the humane attentions of these who administer the parochial funds and the general good sense of the labouring people, have defied the agitators. A meeting was held at Sockport last week, where the notorious Dr. Healy talked extravagantly, but the affort was abortive. The deleFrincipal Painter in Ordinary to His Majesty, and President of the Royal Acadamy, and in consideration of his having recently painted for His Majesty on the verge of death, was, to the great astonishment of the spectators, suddenly recalled to life by the administration of a drachm of subcarbonate of ammonia.

Foreign Intelligence.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

The packet ship Corinthian, Capt. Davis, arrived yesterday from Liverpool. She sailed the 24th, but brings in addition to previous dates, a London paper of the 24th, which she received on her passage from the brig Tuscan, Capt. Wood, bound to Boston; the latter having left Liverpool on the 27th. We give such extractes as our limited time will allow.—It will be perceived that there has been a further depression in the Cotton market, with no alleviation of the distress in the commercial and manufacturing community.

The Montano also arrived yesterday from Havre, bringing Paris papers to the 23d, and Havre to the 25th July. The information by them has been principally anticipated, and there is no material change in the markets.—New York Spectator.

SPAIN AND PORTUGAL.

LONDON, July 25, 1826.

We have received the French papers of the 22d, and the Etoil of the 23d, in due course, and subjoin some extracts. The Indicateur of Bordeaux, under the date of Madrid, 10th July, gives a sufficiently remarkable account of the conduct of the Court of Spain, on receiving the intelligence of the course about to be pursued by the Emperor Don Pedro, with regard to Portugal. Both the King and Don Carlos are said to have shewed marked displeasure on the news. All the Abassadors were successively invited to the palace. They were told that a deadly blow had been aimed at the King and Royal Family of Spain, by the Constitution conferred on Portugal. The example of a nation governed by such principles could not fail to prove highly dangerous, and would soon excite the Liberalist party in Spain to attempt similar schem—, and bring about new revolution. His Majesty was ventured to suggest, according to this account, that the European powers ought not to acknowledge the existence of any such Government in Portugal, adding, that for his own part he protested most solemnly against every step of the proceedings. After these discourses to the foreign Ambassadors, the King continued to keep the Palace in a state of confusion, by sending his Ministers backward and forward, apparently without any distinct object. Next day a Council was assembled, at which Rocaches was present, to deliberate on the best means of securing the public tranquility, and to suspend the intended journey of the King and Queen. The latter proposition was opposed by the Police Minister, who is reported to have said that he would answer for the safety of Madrid with his head.

A Madrid Evening—Letters from the Levant describe the very precarious state of trade in that neighbourhood, from the circumstance of the daring attacks of the Greek Pirates. It appears that His Majesty's frigate Sybille had suffered considerable in men, and officers in an attack upon a piratic fleet in the neighbourhood of Candia. The thing has now become of so serious a nature, as to call for the active interference of the British Government, for the protection of the trade in those seas, and for the punishment of the aggressors.

The Corn Market, shows scarcely more activity than the funds in operation to-day.—Wheat, from some cause, not explained beyond the fact that it will not be parted with at a lower price, shows an advance of 2s. per quarter. Oats, also, are a shade higher. Other grain the same as last markets, and very little doing.

Extract of a letter, dated Malta, 26, June.

"Business is nearly at a stand, and the constant piracies committed by the Greeks, will soon put a stop to all trade with the Levant.—The Sybille frigate arrived on Saturday, with about fifty men killed and wounded, two Lieutenants being among the latter, in attacking a band of pirates, near Candia."

The Burmese.—Any doubts that may be entertained as to the permanency of the present peace with the King of Ava, will be in a great degree removed by the following extract from the Madras Gazette Extra, of the 29th of March last.

"The treaty of peace ratified by the King and accompanied by the first instalment, twenty-five lacs of the pecuniary part of the price of it, was delivered to our Commissioners by a deputation of Ministers sent from the Golden Court to our headquarters at Yanadeow, 42 miles from Ava, on the 24th of Feb. when royal salutes were fired by our forces, and tokens of friendship exchanged between the two powers on the occasion."

The Boston Daily Advertiser, of the 31st ult. says, we learn by Capt. Nason, who arrived at quarantine yesterday, from Ponce, Porto, Rico, that on the 22d. July, an intended insurrection among the blacks, near that place, to destroy the white inhabitants, had been discovered, and the principal leaders apprehended.

It appears their intended plan was, to go in the night to the doors of the white inhabitants, as they passed on the road to Ponce, and give an alarm of fire, and when the white people came out of their houses, to murder them. They likewise intended, the better to carry their plan into effect, and to draw the whites out, to set fire to one or two of the estates nearest to Ponce, and then rush into the place and get possession of the arsenal, and the fire arms of the militia there deposited, then arm themselves, and destroy all the whites. They were discovered by one of the slaves, who informed his master. The authorities had taken up and examined a great many, and had found twenty four of the leaders, who would undoubtedly be executed when the Captain General, who was daily expected, arrived from the city of Porto Rico. It seems they had had this plot in view for five months previous.

IRELAND.

Distress in Ireland.—The distress in Ireland is not confined to the poor weaver: the highest trees of the forest are bending to the blast—those who have passed through a long life, with honour to themselves and solid advantage to their country, are obliged to yield to the heavy pressure of the times; names to-day and yesterday so mentioned which command every man's sympathy and respect: we trust the account exaggerates, and that men who should be happy and comfortable when almost about to retire from the transitory scenes of this world, will not be visited with the calamities to which so many have already fallen victims.

Mr. Alexander, one of the most extensive millers in Ireland, has stopped payment. The firm ranked amongst the most respectable in the city. We understand that the sum for which the firm has stopped, is close upon £200,000.

UNITED STATES.

The Baltimore American, of Monday, says, We understand that a letter has been received in this city, announcing the death of our minister to Colombia, Mr. anderson, at Carthagena, on his way to Panama.

The Portsmouth, N. H. Commercial Advertiser, of the 25th instant, mentions the following effects of the late rain:—"Over one hundred thousand quintals of fish on the flakes at Newcastle and Kitterry Point have been spoiled or much injured by the late rains.—The effluvia from those fish have pervaded all parts of this town.

A literary premium of one hundred dollars is offered at Albany, as follows:—"One hundred dollars to the person who shall write the best Essay, of Criticism, on the different spelling books now in use; to be awarded by the three following persons viz:—his excellency Governor Clinton, A. C. Flagg, acting superintendant to the common school, and T. Romeyn Beck, M. D. principal of the Albany Academy, who will examine the different Essays which may be submitted to them for inspection."

Such was the alarming prospect of the badness of the crops in the state of North Carolina, a few weeks since, that a number of the citizens of Raleigh county, sent a petition to the Governor praying him to call the council of state together, and advise with them on the propriety of laying an embargo, to prohibit the exportation of every kind from being exported out of that state during the present and ensuing season.

We learn from Captain Coffin, of the ship South America, from St. Salvador, that accounts had been received there of the action on the 5th of June which stated that the Spanish patriots were near Rio Grande, and that an action had been fought on the 20th of May, in which the Brazilian lost 500 men killed, by their own accounts. Buenos Ayres was closely besieged, and provisions in demand. General Brown had been successful in all the battles with the Brazilians.—Four British and two French vessels had been condemned at Montevideo for an attempt to force the blockade. A Portuguese ship of the line had arrived at Rio; and a ship of the line and a brig were daily expected from Chili, to assist the Buenerayreans; accounts have been received of their departure thence on the first of May.

Boston, August 21.

Canal between the Atlantic and Pacific.—Col. de Benaski has delivered to the President of the United States at Quincy, despatches from Colonel Williams, the United States Commercial Agent at Guatimala, giving intelligence of the ratification of the Contract made in June last, in New York, between the Central American Republic, and a certain company formed in that city, for the purpose of effecting a navigable communication between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, through Nicaragua; by the river St. John into the Lake of Nicaragua—from the western extremity of which is but 17 miles to the Pacific. The company at present is confined to New York, but is proposed to extend it through the Union, making it as much as possible a national concern, and to apply to Congress for an Act of Incorporation, by the name of "the Central American and United States Atlantic and Pacific Junction Canal Company," with a capital of five millions of dollars. The company with whom the Central American Government has made the contract, are to have the right of toll, and certain exclusive privileges, which are considered highly valuable; and which are due to those who embark in an enterprize, which having been known to be practicable, and been frequently talked and written about for a century or more, has never before been attempted in any country. It is also inferred that this important enterprize will form an exception to the numerous speculations which the Southern Regions have given origin to, and which are daily "falling into naught" in Europe.

GUATIMALA.

The New York American remarks, correctly, that no part of the new American States is less known than Guatimala (to use the orthography of Worcester's Gazetteer,) a State of the Federal Republic of Central America.—As it is in this part of North America that the contemplated Great Canal, which is to open a communication between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans is to be made, the following geographical sketches, obtained from a correct source, must be interesting:—

"Omoa, in 1802, had an Atlantic port for the trade of the city of Guatimala, and the State of Guatimala. It is situated on the south west side of the bay of Honduras, and about 60 miles from the bottom of the bay.—The margin of the bay is clothed with heavy timber; logwood and mahogany are the most valuable. The soil is fertile, and produces in great abundance all the tropical fruits. An officer of the treasury (called here the director of the public credit) informs me that they are about to introduce extensively the cultivation of black pepper in that region. It is ascertained from experiments, that the pepper produced in that quarter is of superior quality. This officer has promised me a specimen of the pepper, which I will send to the United States. On the 30th of April, I sailed from Omoa in a small schooner I had chartered, and in the evening of the 21st landed at Isabal, distant from Omoa about 150 miles. Isabal is situated on the south-west side of the gulf of Dulce, and within a few leagues of the bareau or bar of the gulf. The gulf is connected with the bay of Honduras by a river 200 feet deep and in some places not 500 feet wide.—The banks, in some places, are several hundred feet high, and nearly perpendicular, covered generally with lumber and shrubbery, of a luxuriant growth. The drawing more than seven feet water, have to unload at Omoa and the merchandize transported in lighters to Isabal. The only obstruction to the navigation, is at the mouth of the river Dulce where the vessel I came in, drawing five and a half feet water, struck on the bar between Omoa and Isabal are small towns. The climate on the coast of Honduras, and the gulf of Dulce, is hot, and at some seasons of the year very unhealthy. Foreign merchandize for this city, and the interior of the country, is transported from Isabal on mules and carts, and by Indians. Three hundred pounds weight is the common load for each mule; and each Indian carries about the same. The cargo, or pack, is suspended to a broad strap of raw hide, which goes over the forehead of the Indian, and rests on his back. The are beasts of burthen, and properly called head Indians. The distance from Isabal to Guatimala, is 210 miles. The country is an alternation of high mountains, mostly without timber, and valleys of rich land. The roads, or paths, are in a primitive condition. Notwithstanding the immense quantities of merchandsze transported along this track it is only wide enough to admit the passage of mules. The Andes are very high through this part of the continent. In the dry season, the want of water, clouds of dust, and the vertical rays of a blazing sun, render travelling disagreeable. I was eight days performing the journey of 210 miles from Isabal to Guatimala, and used reasonable industry. From my progress, you can form some idea of the badness of the roads. This city is situated in latitude 14 north, in a rich valley, and in a most delightful climate. Its elevation is estimated at 5000 feet above the sea. The inhabitants scarcely know a change of temperature during the year. There is one continual vernal season. The thermometer since my arrival has ranged from 67 to 75.—A gentlemen in another part of the city informs me, that his thermometer being exposed on one day stood at 30. Yet when the mercury was at that degree, the freshness and elasticity of the breeze was delicious. The weather reminds me of our sweetest May days. Within twenty leagues of this city there is every climate. Within six or eight leagues, and in view, is the great volcano, called here the Volcan de Agua, which by its eruptions destroyed old Guatimala, supposed to be 14 or 15,000 feet high, from which this city is supplied with ice. Within a few leagues from thence on the shores of the Pacific is the parching climate of Africa, under the equator.—This variety of climate affords an equal variety of productions. Hence are to be seen every day in this market the productions of all countries. In view, and distant about five leagues from this city, are the volcanos called Mactraton. Near them the earth is almost continually trembling. This is a celebrated watering place, much frequented for the medical qualities of the springs. The population of this republic is estimated at upwards of two millions.—The inhabitants of this city are variously stated at from 40 to 60,000. The streets are 56 feet wide, well paved with lime stone and a rivulet in the centre of each. The houses are all one story high, (except the churches) with thick walls, to resist the frequent earthquakes, plastered inside and out, white and covered with red tile. The gardens and yards are ornamented with flowers of rich hues with orange and lemon trees and the shrubbery common letrophie climates and with one or more fountains of pure water in each.

"Omoa, is a square in 240 feet rectangular and substantially paved, one side of which is filled up by the cathedral and its appurtenances —on the other three sides there are public edifices. In the centre of the square there is a magnificent fountain or reservoir. There is an uniformity, neatness and convenience in this city not to be met with in any other Spanish town, as I am informed. There are perhaps 40 churches and from 4 to 500 priests of the different orders, and several nuneries.—The Churches are splendid buildings and finished in the first style of architecture. It is said some of them cost more than two millions of dollars. Indigo and cochineal are the principal articles of export. The latter was not cultivated to any great extent until a few years ago. If my information is correct, there is no production of the earth which rewards labour so extravagantly as cochineal. From the great increase of its production, the prices must decline. The operation of the new government is infusing life into the immense natural resources of central America.

Loss of Ice in a River, Steam boat New-York.—We learn from Mr. A. M. Withington, a passenger on board the Steam brig New-York, Capt. Harrod, which left this port on Monday week for Eastport, that the boat took fire on Tuesday last and was entirely consumed. The fire caught on board of the Steam boat about 9 o'clock in the evening, and it was immediately discovered, yet such was the velocity of the flames, owing to the combustible matter near, that all exertions to stop it were fruitless; time enough only being allowed to secure even the baggage of the passengers, and neither of them learn but the letter bag was saved. In fifteen minutes time the boat was all on flames.—Fortunately this accident occurred when the weather was calm, the sea smooth, and when the boat was only about 15 miles distant from Petit Menan Light-house. The passengers were took to the boats, and by the aid of the keeper of the light were enabled to make a safe landing on the island at about eleven o'clock the same evening.

Vermont Gold.—A beautiful piece of native gold, weighing nearly 11 ounces was lately found in the town of Newlane, Vermont. It was picked up by a boy near a small brook, and was studded with crystals of quartz. We have been favoured by Mr. French of this city, with the perusal of a letter from a friend in that place, from which we extract the following particulars. "A mass of native gold weighing nearly 10 ounces, has been found in this village, upon the farm of Samuel Ingrain. In its general appearance it strikingly resembles the North Carolina Gold—specific gravity 16.5—considered worth 89 cents per pennyweight. It was found in the bank of a stream, which empties into the branch opposite this village." We have seen another letter which says that the inhabitants of the village "are about turning out on a grand search for more of the precious, metal, and every witch-hazle thereabouts has been subsidized for a mineral rod!" We understand that a gentleman in that neighbourhood is preparing a full and scientific description of gold, and the region in which it was found.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

Midland District Assizes.—The Assizes for this District commenced on Tuesday last the 5th instant. We perceived with regret, that His Honor the Chief Justice CAMPBELL was indisposed. His Honor addressed the Grand Jury in a neat and appropriate, but brief speech—brief, we are sorry to say, from a cause which we trust will not long continue, nor recur for a long period—the ill health of this worthy and respectable Judge. His Honor congratulated the Grand Inquest on meeting them for the first time in the new Court House. He observed that the Court House and Gaol was highly creditable to the District, and honorable to the Province—that it was undoubtedly the finest building of the kind in Upper Canada, and seemed an earnest of the growing improvement of of the Midland District. He observed that, though the catalogue before him was numerous, yet the offences of great moral turpitude were few. There appeared to be but one capital offence, and that was of a novel and singular character, viz. the return of a man from banishment. The other offences he saw, he was happy to say, were not of a very malignant character, though undoubtedly worthy of the serious consideration of the Grand Jury. That it was needless for him to dwell long on the nature of offences, which, in their capacity of Grand Jurors, must again and again have received their attention. That their duty consisted in examining with care and circumspection the evidence for the Crown, if a fair and probable ground of accusation appeared to exist, to send the prisoner before the Petit Jury, to pronounce his guilt or declare his innocence. His Honor feelingly adverted to the feeble state of his health, which denied him the pleasure of addressing them more at length—he said that fortunately, however, the necessity of a lengthy charge did not exist, which even if his health permitted it would be superfluous,

The charge being delivered, the Court adjourned until 10 o'clock next morning.—Kingston Chronicle.

From the Farmers Journal, Sept. 6,

THE ARBITRATION.

During the progress of the Arbitration which had been pending between the Welland Canal Company, and the different proprietors of lands through which the Canal passes, we have purposely refrained from making any remarks, on account of the great degree of feeling excited by those interested, on the subject. But we are happy to have it in our power, this week, to inform the publick, that the result is such, in our opinion, as will give general satisfaction. The names of the Arbitrators chosen, a list of which we have been obligingly furnished by one of the number, are as follows:—

ON BEHALF OF THE

Claimants.	Company
Thomas Butler,	Alexander Wood,
Abraham Nelles,	Samuel P. Jarvis,
Samuel Street,	James Black,
John Hill,	Crowel Willcox,
George Lacy,	Jacob Keefer,
George Ball,	Robert Nelles,
Marshall Lewis,	Grant Powell,
Richard Woodruff,	Thaddeus Davis,
James Durham,	Edward M'Bride,
George Shaw,	J. B. Macaulay,
Samuel Theale,	John Warren.
H. Mittleberger,
Wm. M'Clellan,

The Hon. THOMAS CLARK was appointed Umpire, and

J. B MACAULAY, Esq. Secretary.

They then proceeded to view the line of the Canal throughout, from lake Ontario to the River Welland, and on Wednesday evening last, got through with the examination of the various witnesses. On Friday they completed their labours, having assessed the value of all the lands required by the Company, and the damage to other property by their operations. Upwards of 400 acres are appropriated for the use of the Company, and the sum total awarded for the whole, including one suit, is £1,794." There were 35 applicants who submitted their claims to the decision of the Arbitrators; and we venture to say, that there has seldom been more business, of so complicated a nature, transacted by so great a number of judges (3) in a short time. Great credit is due to the gentlemen who suggested the plan or system adopted, by which they proceeded in their duties with much regularity and good feeling.

* We shall give a table of the items in our next.

KINGSTON, (U. C.) August 25th.

Colonel Wright of the Royal Engineers, and family, arrived in town on the 21st inst. from the Lower Province.

A company of the Royal Artillery, under the command of Major Wallace, landed here on the 25th from Montreal. They are to replace one of the companies that have been stationed at this post for some time and which, we understand, is to embark on the 26th for Lower Canada, under the command of Capt. Louis.

It will be seen by our shipping list that the second tea Ship the Orient, Capt. White, has arrived. This vessel left Canton 13th March, and St. Helena on the 22nd July, but brings no later news respecting the war in India.—Quebec Mer.

On Saturday last, the Honorable. East-India Company's quarterly Sale of Teas took place in front of their Stores, St. Andrew's Wharf, when the undermentioned prices were obtained for the different qualities set up:

During the last fortnight, the fire has made extensive ravages in many parts of the district; but more particularly in the Parish of Terrebonne and its neighbourhood. About 12 to 20 acres, chiefly large timber, with a grove of maple belonging to Mr. Auger, have been burnt, and several patches of oats, not quite ripe, have been considerably damaged. The loss of this gentleman's property is estimated between 4 and £500. Mr. Porteous has had several meadows burnt and fences destroyed. Messrs. Seguin and Fleming have also suffered considerable damage. The fire was arrested with much difficulty, upon the property belonging to the Hon. Roderick M'Kenzie, the creeks and wells being all dried up. The whole neighbourhood has presented a general conflagration.—Montreal Gazette.

MASONIC.—Yesterday a Grand Lodge of Free and Accepted Masons, was opened at the Masonic Hall in this City, Claude Denechau, Esq. Grand Master for the District of Quebec presiding, assisted by the Members of the late Grand Lodge of the District of Montreal and William Henry, and some the Grand Officers from Quebec. After the ceremonies of opening the Grand Lodge were gone through, the Right Worshipful Master proceeded to install John Molson, Esq. as Right Worshipful Grand Master of Free and Accepted Masons, for the District of Montreal and William Henry, in the room of the late Hon. William M'Gillivray, deceased. When the installation was over, a procession was formed, consisting of the Provincial Grand Lodge, Union, St. Paul's and Wellington Lodges, with a number of visiting Brethren, which marched to the Episcopal Church, at one o'clock, where an able and appropriate discourse was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Bethune. The Church was crowded with spectators, As well as by the Brethren, and after the sermon a collection was made in support of the Montreal General Hospital.

The Procession was escorted to and from the Church by a Guard of Honour, formed by the Grenadier Company of the 76th Regiment, and the excellent Band of that Corps, preceded playing masonic, and other music. The Independent Rifle Company, commanded by Capt. Bethune, also attended on this occasion; and, upon the whole, the procession had an imposing and most respectable appearance.

After the official duties of the day were over, the Brethren sat down to a sumptuous dinner, at six o'clock, prepared at the Masonic Hotel, in Mr. Tutin's best style.—Canadien Courant.

SHIPPING INTELLIGENCE.

Comparative Statement of Shipping, Tonnage, Settlers and Clearances, at the Port of Quebec, for the periods ending 31st August, 1825 and 1826:—

Years.	Vessels.	Tonnage.	Settlers.	Clearances.
1825	520	182,644	8,649	521
1826	512	134,291	10,040	462

Near 250 vessels arrived last year, after the first of September, and although a similar number are not now expected during the remainder of this season, it is very probable that the total, at the close of the navigation, will not be far short of 700.

The Jane, at Bordeaux, from Marseilles, on the 10th August, off the southern edge of the Grand (New'd.) Bank, saw a fleet of eight sail of frigates and smaller vessels of war, standing to the N. and E. they were telegraphing to each other but showed no national flag.

YORK, U. C. SATURDAY, SEPTEM. 16, 1826.

We have received a Supplement to the Albion, containing the latest dates from London, brought by an arrival at New-York. We have given an extract from it, but it will be found to convey no additional news.

Upwards of one hundred persons received the rite of confirmation from the Lord Bishop, in the Church on Sunday last. His Lordship preached on the occasion, and delivered an impressive discourse to the Candidates on the responsibility they were about to assume. At the conclusion of the service of confirmation, His Lordship again addressed the persons on whom he had laid hands, seriously exhorting them to the discharge of those Christian duties, which the solemnity they had gone through, so strongly imposed upon them.

A comparison drawn between the state of improvement in Upper Canada, and the State of New-York, if fairly made, will be found, considering the different dates of settlement of those two portions of country, to be in no respect discreditable to the former, and taking the ratio of improvement for the few years that have passed, as a data for those which are to come, it may be safely considered, that at the expiration of a given period, the result would perhaps be found, to preponderate materially in her favor. When the truth is told, this must be admitted—but certain persons there are, whose only aim appears to be, to make the comparison an odious one. Such persons endeavor to make us believe, that we are making no progress at all, and attribute the stationary position they would place us in, to the want of energy and zeal on the part of Government. The enterprize of the State of New-York, is constantly adverted to by these persons.—See, say they, that stupendous work the Erie Canal—have we achieved any thing like it in Upper Canada? The fact certainly speaks for itself, we have no such work among us—but is the Government to be blamed, if we have not?—is it not rather the fault of certain persons among ourselves, who, while they are forever complaining of the want of enterprise, and improvement, are among the very first to mar any useful project for promoting them? Had the views of the Government been properly seconded, we too might have had to boast of a stupendous Canal, from the River Rideau to Kingston. But if we are to have improvements they must be paid for—talk of taxation to pay for them, and you are told, that the country cannot bear the burthen; and yet these same persons would burthen the Government, with the unjust accusation, of want of enterprise and zeal for improvement. According to their wise conceptions, the Government must cut Canals—open communications, by land, and by water—and keep all in repair—how? with money? no—but by magic! And who ever heard of its being possible for any Government, in any country, to make improvements, without having the means to do so, placed at their disposal. If it can be shown, that De Witt Clinton, or any other Governor, in any part of the world, was ever enabled to carry on public works, without imposing public burthens,—then, and not till then, will we consent to be told that it can be done in Upper Canada, without having recourse to the same means. It is certainly absurd enough, to hear so much blustering, about the want of public spirit, and public enterprise, and yet to be told, that the people of one of the richest, and most populous Districts in the Province, are already so heavily burthened with taxes, that they are incapable of bearing a further imposition, for public works, essential to the welfare of the particular division of the country they reside in, and which, when compared with the stupendous works, expected to be performed by the Government without money, and without means, sink into utter insignificance.

If the resources of the Country, are not adequate to the task, and incapable of bearing the consequent burthen of paying for improvements, it would certainly be impolitic to exact them—and on the other hand, it is equally unjust to accuse the Government of a want of enterprize, in not furthering those improvements, which without those burthens, it must be incapable of carrying into effect.

With all its beauties and advantages, and it possesses many, Upper Canada, is not quite a fairy land, where the wand of the enchanter, can command Canals to flow, and Roads to open at pleasure. Money, labor, and unanimity, are required to accomplish these things here, as well as in other Countries.

With respect to the Rideau Canal, for the completion of which, a liberal offer was made by the Government, it is not necessary now, to refer to the objections which were made at the time, to accepting that offer, the most absurd among which, was that one, so industriously spread, that an attempt was about to be made, to mortgage the whole Province, for the purpose of cutting a military Canal. The Canal however will be cut it appears, and though we may in some measure benefit by the facilities which it will afford, all hope of deriving a revenue to the Province from it, is cut off—by whom? certainly not by the Government. It was their desire that we might have been the toll gatherers—we must now content ourselves to become the toll payers, and some few years hence, it may be viewed as matter of regret, that the zeal and interest exhibited by the Government, for the improvement of the Country, in this important respect, was not seconded in the manner that might have been expected.

York to Wit: }

SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein and Judge of the Court of Probate, within the said Province, &c. &c. &c.

TO PATRICK CONIGAN, late of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, and Province aforesaid, as Nephew and next of Kin of Bartholomew Conigan, deceased.

WHEREAS John McLean, of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, Yoeman, lately exhibited a petition in the said Court of Probate, setting forth that you the said Patrick Conigan, some years ago procured Letters of Administration from the Court of Probate aforesaid, to the Estate of the late Bartholomew Conigan, of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, Hawker and Pedlar, deceased. That you the said Patrick Conigan collected all the monies due to the said Bartholomew Conigan, but have left this Province and not discharged the Debts of the said Bartholomew Conigan, although he the said Bartholomew Conigan died possessed of ample property to do so. That the said Petitioner in the month of July one thousand eight hundred and twenty two obtained a verdict against you the said Patrick Conigan, Administator as aforesaid, for the sum of Seven Pounds ten shillings, on which the said Petitioner has since entered up Judgment. That the said Petitioner has never received satisfaction of the said judgment, and there being no property now remaining in this Province on which an Execution could be levied; Wherefore the said John McLean humbly prays that a Citation may issue calling on you the said Patrick Conigan, as Administrator aforesaid, to appear in the said Court of Probate on the First day of January next ensuing, and shew cause why you should not pay the said debt and do whatever the said Court my require in the Premises of the said Petition. Now therefore these are to Cite and require you the said Patrick Conigan, as Administrator to the Estate of the said late Bartholomew Conigan, deceased, on the First day of January next ensuing the date hereof to produce and exhibit into the Register's Office of the said Court of Probate, a true, full and perfect Inventory of all the goods, chattles, rights and credits which were of the said Bartholomew Conigan, deceased, at the time of his death, and make, or cause to be made, a true and just account of your Administration, and to shew cause why you will not pay the said debt for which the said John McLean has entered up Judgment against you as Administrator to the Estate of the said late Bartholomew Conigan, deceased.

Dated at York, in the Province aforesaid, this Eighth day of September, One thousand eight hundred and twent-six.

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors, of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province; to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on Thursday the Tentyfifth day of Sept. inst. to be Commenced, Held, Called, and Elected, and to every of you

GREETING

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Tenth day of August last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the Twenty-first day of September instant, at which time, at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear.

NOW KNOW YE, that we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents enjoining you and each of you that on Monday the Thirtieth day of October next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, the Twentieth day of September in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-six, and in the Seventh Year of our reign.

P. M.

By His Excellency's Command.
JOHN B. ROBINSON, Attorney General.
D. CAMERON, Secretary.

UPPER CANADA.

P. MAITLAND,
Lieut. Governor.

GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To all to whom these Presents shall come

GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the parts of the Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. We have thought fit to order and direct, and We do hereby order and direct that, until Our pleasure herein shall be further made known, it shall and may be lawful for all Our Subjects inhabiting Our Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada, freely to enter into Our Woods and Forests in such parts of Our said Province of Upper Canada, situate along the Banks of the River Ottawa, or upon the Banks of the Waters running into the said River and within a convenient distance from the same, as shall not have been Surveyed and divided into Concessions and Lots, and to Cut and carry away such Oak and Pine Timber as may be fit for the purposes of Exportation.

Provided always, nevertheless, That in consideration of the authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties herein-after specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Red Pine Timber, Four Pounds Three Shillings and Four Pence, being at the rate of One Penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Yellow Pine Timber, Two Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence, being at the rate of One Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commission under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places upon the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointed as aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has attained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons properly authorized by or under Our Licence granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS Our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this third day of May in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-Six, and in the Seventh Year of Our Reign.

P. M.

By His Excellency's Command.
J. B. ROBINSON, Attorney General.

Executive Council Office, York, 23rd March, 1826.

NOTICE is hereby given, by ORDER of His EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, in COUNCIL, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a regular Council day.

JOHN SMALL,
No. 9 1. f. C. E. C.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

ENOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepard in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valustion will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s. 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases mus apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make heir application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hundred Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant. It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessarry expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

JOHN SMALL,
No. 1.—tf. Clk. Ex. Council.

Upper Canada,
COURT OF PROBATE,
York to Wit:
} SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein and Judge of the Court of Probate, within the said Province, &c. &c. &c.

To PATRICK CONIGAN, late of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, and Province aforesaid, as Nephew and next of Kin of Bartholomew Conigan, deceased.

WHEREAS John McLean, of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, Yeoman, lately exhibited a petition in the said Court of Probate, setting forth that you the said Patrick Conigan, some years ago procured Letters of Administration from the Court of Probate aforesaid, to the Estate of the late Bartholomew Conigan, of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, Hawker and Pedlar, deceased. That you the said Patrick Conigan collected all the monies due to the said Bartholomew Conigan, but have left this Province and not discharged the Debts of the said Bartholomew Conigan, although he the said Bartholomew Conigan died possessed of ample property to do so. That the said Petitioner in the month of July one thousand eight hundred and twenty two obtained a verdict against you the said Patrick Conigan, Administsator as aforesaid, for the sum of Seven Pounds ten shillings, on which the said Petitioner has since entered up Judgment. That the said Petitioner has never received satisfaction of the said judgment, and there being no property now remaining in this Province on which an Execution could be levied; Wherefore the said John McLean humbly prays that a Citation may issue calling on you the said Patrick Conigan, as Administrator aforesaid, to appear in the said Court of Probate on the First day of January next ensuing, and shew cause why you should not pay the said debt and do whatever the said Court my require in the Premises of the said Petition. Now therefore these are to Cite and require you the said Patrick Conigan, as Administrator to the Estate of the said late Bartholomew Conigan, deceased, on the First day of January next ensuing the date hereof to produce and exhibit into the Register's Office of the said Court of Probate, a true, full and perfect Inventory of all the goods, chattles, rights and credits which were of the said Bartholomew Conigan, deceased, at the time of his death, and make, or cause to be made, a true and just account of your Administration, and to shew cause why you will not pay the said debt for which the said John McLean has entered up Judgment against you as Administrator to the Estate of the said late Bartholomew Conigan, deceased. Dated at York, in the Province Aforesaid, this Eighth day of September, One thousand eight hundred and twent-six.

POETRY.

THE BARON'S BRIDE.

"Row on—row on—more speed I crave;
Oh! quicker strike the oar;
Swift, bear me o'er the dark blue wave
Unto my native shore!

"'Tis there my long-loved Ellen dwells,
Whose vows are pledg'd to me;
Oh how the thought of meeting swells
My soul with ecstasy!

"I press the soil she moves upon,
I breathe the air she breathes;
She's dearer far than the fame I've won,
More priz'd than victory's wreaths.

"Ellen, thy Edgar flies to thee,
To meet from thy lov and
A balm for every misery
Endur'd in foreign land.

"What bars the lover's rapid way?
Why are his footsteps check'd?—
What moments this procession gay
With bridal favors deck'd?"

A maiden in the village train
An answer soon supplied:
"The lord of all this fair domain
To-day brings home his bride."—

Why now does Edgar start aside?
What strikes him with such awe?
Ah! in the list'ning lovely bride
He perjur'd Ellen saw.

Where are the hopes, which form the flowers
In childhood's path that spring?
Where are the joys that manhood's hours,
Speeded on rapture's wing?

All—all of these his heart had known
By Ellen had been taught:
The blow by which they were o'erthrown
With death to him was fraught.

One look he gave of wild despair,
His pure heart ceas'd to beat;
He sank, amid the waves fair
Then strewn beneath her feet.

Vain strove the false one from that hour
Smiles to her lips to call;
Worthless, she feels, are wealth and power,
And golden fetters gall.

Bright gems are mix'd with her silver hair,
Jewels her neck adorn;
But her brain is rack'd with dark despair,
Which grief her heart is torn.

Her glitt'ring gems, her robe of pride,
No gleam of peace impart;
They serve a wasting form to hide,
To shroud a breaking heart.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE SMUGGLER'S DAUGHTER.

A few weeks since business cause my attendance at the Admiralty. While waiting, in one of the anti-rooms, I heard myself accosted by name by a tall and elegant looking man standing near me. My eye rested on his figure, but memory refusing recognition at the gaze, I inquired his identity. My surprise was great at finding he was one of my dearest and earliest friends; and the start of astonishment, almost of pain, which his revelation elicited from me, I fear have communicated to him the knowledge of the withering havoc which sorrow had made on his person. Only five years had elapsed since our last meeting, and that period, when unmarked by unusual suffering or sickness, may pass over man while in his prime—and Captain Tancred was now only thirty-five—without leaving a record of its flight.

I had known him in boyhood: he had been the wildest, but the truest and most generous of my school companions. His presence had ever been the signal for some thoughtless freak or hazardous adventure. With a spirit fresh and buoyant as mountain air, exuberant health, and exhaustless vivacity, he was formed to be the idol of his associates. He seemed destined for happiness: he had every element of it in himself; and, utterly exempt from that contracting selfishness which binds up the sympathies of too many natures, he revelled in the joy of dispensing it to others. Left to the choice of a profession, he selected that of the sea: it seemingled best with his taste, for it afforded indulgence to his peculiar temperament, which, alway seeking after strong excitements, would even court danger in all its varieties. The very character of the element had charms for him: he loved its false unsubstantial surface, its engulphing depths, its perilous quicksands, the warfare of its waves, whose wild hoarse murmurs seem to warn man from their terrorities: they had terror in their sound, and that sound was music to his ears. Often when the tempest from above had lashed the ocean into fury, and it boiled forth its wrath in billows which threatened destruction to aught of human power that dared its ire, I have known him singly to embark in a little boat, in assersion, as he would say, of man's prerogatives, and to trample on the enemy which seemed to oppose his free agency over nature and her works.

At the termination of the maritime struggles, finding his very soul enervated at the prospect of indolent peace, he obtained the command of a revenue-cutter, and I parted with him in the full glow of health, on his departure for the coast of Norfolk to enter on his new service. Engaged in active pursuits, I had little opportunity for correspondence; but my heart often held communion with him, as he was the dearest friend it had ever known. An interval of leisure having occurred in my occupation, I had resolved on visiting him a few days subsequently to the period when chance again united us. And was it—could it be Tancred, the gay, the handsome, the volatile Tancred, who stood before me! His very voice seemed changed; his accents had now a mournful and dreary cadence, like the responses of a ruined cavern, and they were the echoes of a bare and shivered heart. There was still about him the exquisite polish of demeanor so often instinctive with high birth—for Tancred was nobly connected—which had always distinguished him; but the lofty bearing, the unquailing eye, the sunny smile was gone forever! At an interview which I afterwards had with him, he disclosed to me the events which had produced such a metamorphosis in his aspect and manner. The substance was as follows:

The signal-station which Captain Tancred commanded was situated, as I have said, on the coast of Norfolk. It was near a remote hamlet, and partook in an eminent degree of that dullness and insipidity which so often distinguish a country village. The localities exhibited no particular points of interest. The scenery was not of that elevated and picturesque character which, in many parts of England, rivalling in loveliness and grandeur the landscapes of Italy or Switzerland, might well content a people less migratory than ourselves with the native samples it displays of nature's power. What had none of this: the painter or the poet might have looked on it without the faintest glow of that kindling enthusiasm which rushes from the heart and thrills through the frame, at the sight of beauty in whatever guise displayed, unstructed, unaltered, by the sophistications of art—fresh, luxuriant, and perfect, the visible and tangible evidence of that unerring system of harmony and arrangement by which the Divine Ruler conducts the universe. The inhabitants, too, of W—— were generally uncultivated and illiterature. Education had there been tardy in its civilizing influence; and there was amongst the lower classes—the mass of the population—little of that amenity of feeling and manner which may in some measure atone for the absence of the higher mental qualities. The service in which Captain Tancred was engaged drew an almost entire line of demarkation between himself and his neighbours. He met them, and perchance the bow and curtesy of compelled deference were accorded; but there was neither glance, nor tone, nor word of sympathy exchanged. He was looked upon, by even those who stood unconnected with the illicit traffic which it devolved on him to oppose, with distrust and suspicion. He was one of those men, however, whose active and healthiness of temperament supply to themselves the deficiencies of place or people. Still there were moments when his customary employment failed of amusement, when even his love of adventure was gone, and upon him the eye of listlessness and dissatisfaction; when he would more gladly have enjoyed communion with living than inanimate nature. In one of these moods he wandered forth on the beach. It was at that hour

The moon was up, and yet it was not bright.

The sun was still in the sky, and the ocean blushed in the gorgeous beams which crimsoned the west. A thousand clouds floated round the throne of his expiring glory, as though they were anxious to form a canopy to meet his ascent and distant clime a trace of his splendor. A few stars were out to mark and guard the orbit of the timid moon, which, pale and more beautiful than all, seemed the type of purity and holiness in the universe, as she circumscribed her night and majesty of the scene around him. Who can look on the boudless deep, the unincarcerated air of creation! Who can think of the world, its empty distinctions, its feverish passions, its cruel pursuits, while gazing on that which are the poetry of heaven," and not feel his own insignificance in the scale whom he had worshipped with the idolatry of devoted love; who had laid on his bosom in the sweet confidence of pure affection, and to whom he had been the whole earthly sum of weal and woe! He put aside the golden hair, which was now clotted with gore, and kissed the marble cheek, whose whiteness was stained with blood. Her eyes were closed, yet on the lids lay a few glimmering tears, the latest memorials of human suffering. The little flower which he had that very morning presented to her, was yet hidden in her bosom. It was crushed and faded; but, worthless as it appeared to some, to him the world's riches would have seemed poor for the purchase of the holy relic. On inquiry it was proved that Denham, if his wayward moods, would often take his daughter to be his companion in his unlawful and dangerous enterprises. No reasonable motive could be assigned for such proceeding by others; it could only be traced to the natural tyranny of his disposition, or might find solution in the fancy that he sometimes expressed lest his daughter's state of unprotected loveliness might be invaded by insult. There was no contentatious parade of grief about Tancred; not a single tear did he shed over the grave, when it opened to receive his life's essence. But the blight had struck at his heart, withered up every blossom of joy, and blasted as with volcanic influence, the soft verdure of hope that had grown there. No amusement lured him of his woe, no occupation robbed him of one pang of recollection. "Memory ceaselessly plied the work of pain," and at the age of thirty-five he appeared before me, bankrupt of joy, with a shattered frame, haggard looks, and a wasted and decrepid heart!

SUMMARY.

Parliament has been further prorogued to the 24th of August.

A cabinet council was held on the 29th, at which all the cabinet ministers were present, and important business discussed. The king arrived in London the same day from Windsor, but was not landed without any escort. The Recorder of London was to report to His Majesty the names of the persons under the sentence of death in Newgate.

The Duke of Manchester, late Governor General of Jamaica, is to be the new Post Master General.

The Ex-King, Joseph Napoleon, has requested the King of Sweden to request the King of the Netherlands to permit him to reside with him in that country. The subject was referred to the King of France, who in a cabinet council decided in favour of the request.

By the last accounts the Ashantees are preparing again to attack Cape Coast Castle.

The trial of Mr. Wakefield, for the abduction of the rich heiress, Miss Turner, which was to come on at the Lancaster Assizes, is not now to be proceeded in: Mr. Turner having resolved not to appear against the prisoner.

The number of bankrupts had been decreasing for several days. The Gazette of the 28th contained only seven, and the three previous Gazettes but ten each.

Fifty-one young Frenchmen recently embarked at Marseilles to join the Greeks.

The Lord Lieutenant of Lancashire, in answer to the numerous applications which have been made to him from the Upper Ward, regarding emigration to Canada, has notified that government have had the subject under consideration; but it is not possible at present to afford any public aid, as no money has been voted by Parliament for that purpose.

At a recent meeting of the proprietors of the East India Stock, Col. L. Stanhope stated that above one million of guineas per month were expended in the Burmese war.

Letters from Badajoz announce that great numbers of persons are deserting to Portugal, even from among the officers. Orders have been given that passports shall not be granted for foreign countries, undoubtedly through fear that many would seek in Portugal a refuge under the new order of things.

The Goldsmiths' Company have given a splendid entertainment to His Majesty's Ministers at their Hall. In returning thanks for his health having been drunk, Mr. Huskisson said, we must expect a commercial country like this to feel the effects of the great changes going on in all parts of the world; but he felt confident that commerce would soon again flourish.

A Dublin paper states, that apprehension for the safety of the harvest and the late potato crops has now vanished. The rains have been general in every part of the kingdom. They did not come in time for the hay, and that is the only short crop.

The Morpeth Herald says it was reported that a number of French silk handkerchiefs were exposed for sale in the window of a most respectable draper's shop in that town, and, in a very short time, a considerable number of persons had collected round the door and windows, who did not hesitate to express their indignation at such a display. Their feelings, however, were set at rest by the proprietor, who assured them that the articles in question were the manufacture of the town.—So great is the similarity between these goods and the French, that the manufacturers themselves were deceived.

LONDON, July 31.

We are happy to perceive, from the concurring testimony of a number of provincial Journals in the manufacturing districts, that a decisive turn has taken place in the state of trade in that part of the country.

We sincerely rejoice to find that the reception of foreign goods in the London market has been exactly what we wished it to be—good feeling and good taste have combined to induce our countrywomen to prefer the manufactures of their own Britain, and the import duties upon French silks and continental trumpery, have fallen during the week to almost nothing.

A direct trade between the port of Leith and India is soon to commence. A vessel of considerable tounage is at present in the Harbour loading for Calcutta. It is the first enterprize of the kind from the east coast of Scotland.

The number of vessels entered inward, at the port of Liverpool, in the last sixth months, (from 5th January to 5th July,) is as follows:—Foreign, 114 —British 189—Europeans, 236—East Indians, 9— Total, 548—Irish, 1,589—Coastwise, 1,724.

The Duke of Devonshire arrived from Russia some days since, and is now in town, although he has not yet appeared in public. His Grace is in excellent health, and, we understand, means almost immediately to return to St. Petersburgh, to be present at the coronation of the Emperor Nicholas, which ceremony is to take place in September next. His Grace's return is solely in consequence of the postponement of the coronation of the Emperor which has been delayed by the death of the late and Empress Elizabeth.

True bills have been found by the Grand Jury, against twenty-seven persons charged with assembling in a riotous and disorderly manner, and by violence preventing a number of persons from approaching the hustings erected for taking the poll at the Preston election.

Mr. Murray has disposed of the property of the Representative to the proprietors of the New Times, with which paper it will be united.

A most successful system of cultivating turnips, is practised in Nottinghamshire and Lincolnshire; a powerful force manure is drilled in with the turnip seed, in order to force on the growth of the young Swedish turnip, which is naturally of slow growth, and therefore a long time in the power of the fly to destroy it.

A Lodge of Freemasons has been opened in the fort at Bombay, under a regular warrant of constitution from the Grand Lodge of England.

Flour has risen 2s. per barrel during the last quarter. This, we are informed, is entirely owing to the domestic demand. Six hundred barrels a day, are required for Philadelphia and its immediate neighborhood, so extensive has the home consumption become.—Phil. Gaz.

ENGLAND.

THE KING'S COURT.

Yesterday morning at a quarter past eleven o'clock, the King left His Royal Lodge, Windsor Park, in an open carriage, attended by the Lord Steward of the Royal Household. Part of the King's private carriages was in attendance at Mr. Greenwood's villa, and brought His Hajesty to the King's Palace, St. James, after remaining with his Royal Brother about three quarters of an hour. Shortly after His arrival at the Palace the King proceeded to hold a Court, which was attended by the Lord Chancellor, the Lord President of the Council, the Lord Privy Seal, the Secretaries of State for the Home, Foreign, and Colonial Departments, the Lord Chief Justice of the Ordnance, the First Lord of the Admiralty, the President of the Board of Control, the President of the Board of Trade, the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, the Master of the Horse, the Groom of the Stole, the Paymaster General of the Forces, the Bailiff of the Island of Jersey, the Judge of the Admiralty Court, the Minister to the Brazils, the Recorder of London, the Marquess of Huntley, Col. Browne, &c.

Sir Thomas Le Breton was presented by Earl Bathurst, on his appointment to the office of the Bailiff of the Island of Jersey, vacant by the death of the late Lord Carteret.

Lieutenant Colonel Henry Browne, Military Knight Commander of the Royal Guelphic Order, was presented to the King; upon which occasion His Majesty was graciously pleased to confer upon him the honor of knighthood.

John Stoddart, L. L. D. formerly King's Advocate of the Amiralty Court at Malta, was presented by Earl Bathurst, on his appointment to the President of the High Court of Appeal at Malta, and Judge of the Vice Admiralty Court; upon which occasion His Majesty was graciously pleased to confer upon him the honour of knighthood.

The Right Hon. Vesey Fitzgerald was presented, and kissed hands, upon his being appointed Paymaster General of His Majesty's Forces.

The Hon. William Gordon was presented by Mr. Secretary Canning, upon his being appointed Minister to the Court of Brazils.

The Marquiss of Huntley took leave of His Majesty.

The King held a Privy Council, at which Mr. Gordon was introduced, and sworn in a member, and took his seat the at board accordingly.

Mr. Grenville attended as Clerk of the Council.

At the close of the Privy Council, the Recorder of London was admitted into the presence of the King in Council, and made his report of the convicts capitally convicted at Justice Hall, in the Old Bailey.

His Majesty gave audiences to the Earl of Harrowby, Mr. Peel, Mr. Canning, the Duke of Wellington, and Viscount Melville.

The Earl Delaware and Sir William Keppel, were the Lord and Groom in waiting.

The Court broke up at half past 4 o'clock.

At ten minutes before five o'clock the King left the Palace, in his opening travelling carriage, on his return to the Royal Lodge. His Majesty departed by the Queen Adelaide's gate, where there was a large assemblage of persons, reaching to entrance to the Green Park, waiting for the gratification of beholding their beloved Sovereign. His Majesty returned their dutiful respects, of hats off, &c. by very graciously taking off his hat.

Linen Manufacture.—An account has been printed by order of the House of Commons, of the quantity of flax, hemp and linen, imported into the United Kingdom, and the quantity of linen cloth exported from it to all parts of the world; together with the real and official value of the latter, and the amount of bounty paid on its manufacture, in the year ended the fifth of January last. The quantity of hemp imported amounted to 595,090 quarters, the value of which was £405,415. Nearly the whole of this quantity—namely, 561,954 quarters came from Russia. The quantity of flax, dressed and undressed, amounted to 1,042,956 quarters, the official value of which was £2,092,-763. More than half of this amount, or 656,-772 quarters were exported from Russia. The number of yards of linen cloth exported to all parts of the world, was 52,026,144, of which 35,993,038 yards were of British, and 16,033,-146 were of Irish Manufacture. The whole of this immense export, however, took place from Great Britain alone, with the exception of about 2,500,000 yards. The official value of these exports was £2,676,995. But though Ireland does not export to foreign countries, the quantity of linen imported into England and Scotland amounted to 52,560,926 yards, and the value is estimated at £2,893,012. The Irish linen, therefore, imported into Great Britain, and retained for home consumption, after deducting the quantity re-exported, amounted to upwards of 36,000,000 yards. The bounty paid on British and Irish linen exported amounted to within a trifle of £300,000.

Amongst the conflicting accounts of the state of different parts of the Country, it is difficult to come to any very distinct opinion whether the distress with which it has been suffering be diminished or not. Every Country Paper, and almost every private letter from the Manufacturing Districts, contain statements at variance with those of the other, according to the bias or particular situation of the writer. It is the duty of us, who are placed at a distance from the scenes of distress which undoubtedly exist, and who are not liable to be influenced by any local circumstances or personal inconvenience, from the state of affairs in those distant districts' to weigh and compare the various accounts which come before us—to balance the circumstances under which each is written, and to draw as just a conclusion from these materials as our judgment will enable us to do. With such data we have endeavoured to look at the reports before us, and we think we are justified in the conclusion we have come to, that on the whole things are on the mend. We do not mean to assert that any material improvement has taken place, but that the elements of a better state of things are at work, and that a fair and rational hope may be entertained that a slow but gradual amelioration of existing evils will take place. In some particular branches of trade the distress assredly is in a great ey greater than ever, but our remarks are not founded on the particular state of individual interests, but upon a broad and comprehensive view of the whole of the manufacturing trade. This commencement of improvement, if we assume that our conclusions are correct, does not, we apprehend, arise from any sudden cause which is likely to operate expeditiously, we are to renew those periods of immense activity which prove in the end as fatal to the interests of the operatives and their employers, as they appear beneficial to them at the time. It is the gradual effect of circumstances which cannot fail, in the end, to restore a wholesome and an advantageous trade, though of a less extensive nature than that which was before carried on. The stock in hand from the cessation of the great exportation of former years, was thrown back upon the home consumption of the country, and consequently has supplied all the demands of that most immense and most advantageous branch of our trade. The stock being now reduced, the demands for home consumption, together with a revial, in some degree of the export trade, begin to be felt, and to this extent at all events, our Manufacturing interests must recover. When the distresses of other countries have also partially passed off, our exports will rapidly increase, more particularly, as we have reason to know, that the circumstances to which we alluded recently of the closing of Cotton and other Manufactories in foreign countries, are fully confirmed; and these two causes conspiring to give activity to our trade, cannot fail to put an end to a considerable portion of the misery which unhappily now exists. We must not, however, close our eyes against that distress at present—nor blind our reason so far as to bring ourselves to believe that we shall not still have a sea of trouble to wade through: but our argument, founded, on what we hope a fair consideration of all circumstances, is that the shore on the opposite side begins to be discernable land, though still involved in gloom and at a distance, affords a good hope of our again standing on "terra firma." In the mean time, it will be a difficult task for our Pilots to beacon out the channel through which we must pass: and the duty of all to assist and buoy up those who may be likely to perish in difficulties to be encountered. Much may be done by keeping alive hope, and encouraging resolution and patience. Support for a short period may renew a vigorous effort, and the land once reached, we shall see, in the errors of the past system, and in the stability of that which has been adopted, the incentive for, and the reward of, a continuance in principles of sound and leberal policy.—Sun.

STATE OF TRADE.

Manchester.—We are happy to have it in our power to state, that symptoms of improvement have at length manifested themselves in our market, and we sincerely hope, that we shall soon be enabled to congratulate our readers on the prospect of returning prosperity. We dare not, however, encourage ourselves in the belief that our difficulties are past, but we feel considerable assurance that we have seen the worst. A considerable stock of gray cloth noted this week has been so considerable as to produce an actual scarcity in some descriptions; and the stocks of calicoes in the hands of the manufacturers are in general very small. There are, we un terstand, considerable orders for yarns; but at present the prices offered are lower than our spinners are disposed to take. The early and promising state of the harvest will contribute not a little to the revial of trade. Though in this district we have little corn land, in some, and those manufacturing ones, in particular which we have been placed, the deficiency of the crops will be afforded the suffering poor, by employment for the next 8 or four weeks; and even in our own neighborhood, many families will obtain a livelihood by their labours in the field.—From many circumstances that have come to our knowledge, we believe that the return of better times is not distant as we had lately too much reason to fear, and we sincerely trust that they will arrive before our patient suffering poor shall have been urged by the profligate advice of wicked counsellors to depart from that course of patient endurance and peaceable demeanor which has so long distinguished them, and which has reflected so much honor on the character of English labourers.

Leeds. The desponding apprehensions which seem to prevail in London, relative to the all manufacturing districts of the country, and the Inquiries which have been made, have elicited, from different quarters, as to the probability of the distresses of the poor leading to disturbances, have induced us to inquire, rather minutely, into the real state of trade in the West Riding. We have now unfeigned pleasure, in consequence of being able to assure the public, that different branches of our woollen and worsted manufactures, neither the actual depression, nor the future prospects of business, are so gloomy as have been supposed.—There is at this moment, we understand from good authority, a brisk sale for woollen cloths, particularly for the coarser descriptions of coatings, But the best feature in this species of trade is, that all the transactions of a bonafide character, the result of orders arisng from absolute wants. We are also happy to say, that the working classes have in general some benefit from so promising an alteration. Within the last fortnight or three weeks, additional cloth weavers have been employed in Leeds and the neighbourhood; a great number of the mills are now working full time; and, in one, the hands on Monday commenced making seven days a week. We would not be understood, however, as intimating that any rapid flow of prosperity has yet set in, but we are justified in stating, that if things proceed in their present course for two or three months longer, the distress will have nearly vanished by that time in the woollen cloth districts. We wish it were in our power to represent the stuff trade revived in the same degree, or now presenting equally pleasing appearances for the future. There are still considerable numbers of hands in that line, especially weavers, unemployed, and the manufactured pieces fetch low prices. At the same time, we are informed that some improvement has taken place in the Bradford markets, during the past three weeks or a month.—The stocks in the warehouses are lessening daily, the stocks in the retail trade are supposed to be extremely low, and, on the whole, the manufacturers well more than now exists. We must not, however, close our eyes against that distress at present—nor blind our reason so far as to bring ourselves to believe that we shall not still have a sea of trouble to wade through: but our argument, founded, on what we hope a fair consideration of all circumstances, is that the shore on the opposite side begins to be discernable land, though still involved in gloom and at a distance, affords a good hope of our again standing on "terra firma." In the mean time, it will be a difficult task for our Pilots to beacon out the channel through which we must pass: and the duty of all to assist and buoy up those who may be likely to perish in difficulties to be encountered. It is said that Reschid Pacha, was recalled to Constantinople in consequence of the troubles.—The Greek government, on the 6th June, received notice of Lord Cochrane's coming; and Miaulis and Sactouri awaited him with 130 vessels, to give the Turks a decisive blow. The merchants of Smyrna hence refuse to send the Turks any more provisions.

Aiding the Greeks.—A Brussels paper received in London, confirms the report that the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, are endeavoring to re-establish themselves, and to act as a body in favor of Greece. It is probable that they will have indirect support from the French Government, for two of the French Ministers are knights of that order. These knights endeavored to raise a loan some time ago for the same purpose, through a Mr. Dearne, but it failed.

Letters from Rome received in Paris, state that the massacre at Missolonghi made so deep an impression on Leo. X, that it was in contemplation to address a letter in favor of the Greeks, to all the Christian Potentates.

PORTUGAL.

Great joy was testified at Lisbon on the arrival of their Charter. The army joined in the enthusiasm, and echoed the shouts of the people. Frequent Cabinet Councils held at Paris, are ascribed to the arrival of this now importation of American produce, and the effect it may have on the state of things in Spain. By this Constitution, the right suffrage is given to all persons over 25 years old, possessing an income of 100 milreas per annum. The Legislative power is given to the General Cortes, (with the sanction of the king) is be composed of a Chamber of Peers and a Chamber of Deputies; the former to be appointed by the king for life, the latter elective temporary.

The accounts from England are of rather a more favorable kind. An increased demand for some particular descriptions of goods seems to have taken place, but not to any very great extent. From many parts of the country the reports are still distressing, and there can be no doubt that the slight amelioration which appears to have taken place, is not such, as to warrant the belief, that it is in any degree proportionate to the general distress prevalent among the manufacturing classes.

It is however pleasing to learn, that the gloom is in some measure removed, and that the prospect of affording employment to the people is improved. The silk trade is stated to be in a flourishing condition, putting down all foreign competition, and affording full employment to the artisans in that particular branch of Commerce.

ADMIRAL LAKE, of H. M. Ship Jupiter, and Lady, Captain STEWART of the Menai, and other Officers of the Royal Navy, were passengers on board the Queenston on Tuesday last. They proceeded immediately to Niagara and the Falls.

In our last number, we alluded to the state of improvement in Upper Canada, when compared with that in the State of New York, and to all who think and feel properly on the subject, it cannot but afford matter of gratification to reflect, that in such a comparison, we have nothing to be ashamed of, and every reason to anticipate, that before Upper Canada shall have numbered, half the years, which that State has the advantage of her, the comparison will more than probably, leave a large balance in her favour. To some persons, however, these undeniable truths appear to be unpleasant, and we really cannot but pity the splenetic tempers of those, whose distorted views, lead them to contemplate the improvements made in other countries, as gigantic efforts of enterprise, while the mere mention of them in their own, is considered as unwieldy projects, and untoward measures. A Patriot, according to the distempered imaginations of such persons, is he, who takes unwearied trouble, and feels infinite delight, in magnifying the improvements of other countries, at the expense of destroying all hopes of improvement, in his own.—Staunch Patriots these!—The only misfortune is, that in spite of their zealous endeavours, and anxious desires to the contrary, we have been improving, and continue to improve, and it is evident to every man of common sense, who travels through the country now, and compares it with what it was ten years ago, that if the same degree of improvement is made for ten yees to come, when the settlement of the Province will not exceed 50 years, few countries in the world will be able to boast of having accomplished as much, in the same space of time. Ten years ago, the traveller passed through many parts of the country, a perfect wilderness, where now he will find thousands of industrious settlers—where instead of the silence that reigned in the solitary desert, the voice of the cheerful laborer is heard—and his eye meets with towns and villages filled with his fellow men. To him who delights in his country's welfare, and the general happiness of mankind, the consideration of these things affords matter of reflection, the most pleasing and satisfactory. To the Patriot, such as has been described, however, who takes no delight in such things, no feeling of pleasure is excited by such contemplations. That under a mild and equitable Government, such effects should be realized, is the bane of all his hopes—as long as the country remained solitary, and in its primitive state of wildness—unsettled and uninhabited, so long could he indulge himself in attributing want of enterprise to the Government. The sound of the settlers axe, levelling the forest, falls on his ear as a death knell—the hum of industry, in the midst of the loneliness he so much desires, is to him an unwelcome intrusion—he trembles at the thought of great projects—and a stupendous attempt, such for example, as a Canal from the River Rideau to Kingston, on whose banks he sees in anticipation, thousands of active beings, and a surrounding country teeming with population, confounds and utterly stupifies him. In despair he cries aloud Taxation!—Taxation!—beware of Taxation!—spend not your money in such stupendous works—cut no Canals—open no Roads—let your Gaols and Court Houses, and public buildings rot—if you go on making improvements at such a rate, what will become of my famous comparisons, or where shall I find food to satisfy my appetite, for abuse and invective against the Government, and all connected with it. Or if you will in spite of all my warnings to the contrary, submit to improve the country for your own good, at your own expense, you must not be surprised, if the due reproach should fall upon you, of having united yourselves to the views of the Mother Country—of having forwarded the intentions of Government, and of having aided and assisted them in rendering Upper Canada, one of the most prosperous and happy countries on the earth—and myself one of the most unhappy beings—for then "Othello's occupation would be gone."

But few such Patriots it is to be hoped, are to be found within the limits of Upper Canada, and notwithstanding the idle attempts of those who would endeavour to make the world believe, that we are a thousand years behind our neighbours in improvement, we can only say—Your efforts to paralise the good work which has already made so much progress, must end in your own shame and confusion. The people have sense enough to know, that he, who can see beauty and excellence, every where, except at home, is no very desirable inmate, and as truth developes itself, what his pretended anxiety on their account, arrises, not so much from a sincere desire to serve them, as from the fear of personal disgrace and exposure.

Now with respect to taxation in this country, and to shew that it is neither burthensome or oppressive, it is only necessary to inquire, what are the amount taxes paid ? and—How are they expended ?—To answer these questions in the most familiar manner, we will take an example, assuming it as an average throughout the Province. For this purpose we will suppose the property of an individual to consist of,

Valued by Law at

A House of 2 Stories,.....£ 30 0 0

50 Acres of Cultivated Land,.....	50	0	0
150 do. Uncultivated,.....	30	0	0
2 Horses,.....	16	0	0
4 Cows,.....	12	0	0
2 Oxen,.....	8	0	0
6 Young Cattle,.....	6	0	0
20 Sheep (not liable to assessment)	0	0	0
1 Pleasure Waggon,.....	15	0	0
Valuation,.....£167	0	0

At the highest rate of Assessment, in any District in the Province, viz, One penny in the Pound, (and some are lower) the taxes on this property would amount to,..... £ 0 11 11

Statute labor by Law 7 days at 3s 6d. 0 17 6

So that the whole of the taxes on the property enumerated above, would amount to one Pound, eleven Shillings, and five Pence —

To illustrate this still further—take the Assessment of the Home District for example, for the year 1825—The valuation of the property in which, for nineteen Townships, amounted to £361,867 13 0—the taxes collected for that year were £1191 7 9—the population was 17,900, making an average of about one Shilling and three Pence each, for taxes.

The next question is, how are these taxes expended ?—It may be answered generally, that not one farthing of them, goes to defray the expences of the Government—they are all expended within the respective Districts, where they are levied—The first of the above mentioned sums, or the 13s. 11d. in defraying the current expenditure of the District, and the latter, or the 17s. 6d. commonly called Road labour, which may either be performed in kind, or compounded for with the overseers of Roads, at the rate specified, is expended, on that particular division of the Road, on which the person paying the Assessment lives, is fact, in making a Road to his own door.—Now let any person look at the property enumerated—the amount of taxes paid on that property in the manner in which public taxes are expended—and then let him say what he thinks of the Taxation of Upper Canada! Let him then look at Upper Canada as it really is: its settlements, improvements, and public works—the progress it has made in little more than forty years, when it was a wilderness, and will he not be compelled to express his surprise, that in so short a period of time, without any direct taxes on the people, so much of general improvement has been effected. These facts, together with the liberal terms on which lands are granted by the government, may account, in a great measure, for the rapid settlement of the Province, which, taking it altogether, may be pronounced, by unprejudiced persons, as possessing as many advantages, and affording as reasonable prospects of acquiring independence, by perseverance and industry, as any country in the world.—Yet some there are—restless spirits—who unmindful of all these advantages, and incapable of duly appreciating them, would endeavour by false and unfounded attacks on the government, and indiscriminate abuse of all connected with it, to mislead others.—The people of this Province are, however, well aware of their sinister views—from former examples they are on their guard, against the delusions of the enemies of their peace.—They are happy—free—and contented—they know and feel these things, and we are well assured, that they will not suffer that happiness, freedom, and contentment, to be officiously meddled with, by any political quack, who may offer his nostrums for the cure of diseases, which exist only, in his own disordered imagination.

LOWER CANADA.

We understand that Letters have been received in Town, which state that the Honble. Mr. PEL-TON has returned from London without having effected any thing in favour of the Lower Canada Land Company; matters were not yet completely settled between Government and the Upper Canada Land Company, and the representations from the local administration of Lower Canada are said to have been adverse to the Lower Canada project. Besides the times in London were such as to leave little the prospect of the stock being then taken up.—Quebec Mercury.

The famous Morrel Magoon, who was found guilty of Forgery at the Court of King's Bench lately held at Montreal, has been sentenced to be hanged on the 27th October next.

Several thefts of an alarming nature have lately occurred in this city.

On Wednesday night last the shop of one Vezina in St. Rock Suburbs was entered and property to the value of about £100 carried away.

On Friday night while a young, gentleman, a stranger, resident in the Upper Town, was at the Theatre, cash to the amount of £100 was stolen from his Portmanteau.

There has lately been another discharge of hands from some of the Lumber Coves in the vicinity of this city, and business generally is far from being in a satisfactory state.—Ib.

ADDRESS OF THE HON. C. DENECHAU,

To his Masonic Brethren, at the Installation of John Molson, Esq. as Grand Master of the District of Montreal and Wm. Henry.

BRETHERN,

It is with feelings of unfeigned pleasure again I come among you, but those feelings are mixed with the deepest regrets when I call to mind the loss you have sustained in the death of your late R. W. and excellent Grand Master, the Honourable WILLIAM MCGILLIVRAY, who, as a Mason and a man, equally deserved our admiration and regard—Any panegyric that I could utter must fall short of what is due to his memory, and the fact of the Brethren (over whom I have the honour to preside,) having evinced their sorrow on the occasion by a general mourning, will bear sufficient testimony of his merits.

We have now met together for the purpose of installing a Provincial Grand Master, and in order to maintain the respectability of the Craft, it is necessary that the person appointed to fill that high and important station should be a man of distinguished consideration among you. It affords me therefore very great pleasure in informing you, that it has been the will of our M. W. G. M. His Royal Highness the DUKE OF SUSSEX to grant his Letters Patent, appointing our R. W. Brother, JOHN MOLSON, Esquire, Provincial Grand Master for the district of Montreal, the high office thus graciously conferred upon him, and qualified to maintain the dignity of the Craft. Permit me R. W. Brother to congratulate you on your appointment, and the respect and esteem which you enjoy, are the surest pledges that nothing will be wanting on your part to support our Honorable Fraternity.

The harmony that has existed among the Craft in the two districts since their division, is a source of much satisfaction to me, and must be gratifying to all.

It is brotherly love which combines and cements our Fraternity in the practice of moral virtue and the pursuit of scientific attainment. By this generous sentiment we are taught to divest ourselves of each selfish consideration and narrow prejudice, reconciling that we are united by a strict and endearing relation as creatures of the same God—Children of the same parents, and Brethren of the same solid tie. It is of the three great principles of Masonry, I have so often experienced this virtue, my Brethren, personally among you, that the remembrance of your Brotherly love and kindness to me will only be effaced when the Great Architect of the universe shall think fit, in His Divine Wisdom, to call me to himself.

In handing you the book of constitution, R. W. Brother, I need not remind you that another of our great principles is obedience to the Laws, one of the main pillars which supports the present flourishing happy and exalted state of the Craft. This is our characteristic quality, and the Canadian's Glory. Let us always bend with implicit obedience to the will of our Creator.—Let us always be scrupulously attentive to the sacred duties of life, zealous in our attachment to our native soil, and exemplary in our allegiance to our gracious King and Patron and the Government under which we reside, and never let us forget, that to the personal exertion, alone of our most illustrious Grand Master, Masonry owes all its present dignity and consideration.

In again taking leave of you my Brethren, my feelings are beyond expression, particularly when I recollect the many distinguished Honors and attentions you have conferred upon me during the many years I have been among you. Let me recommend you still to persevere in the cause and by your good conduct promote the interests of Masonry, continually bear in mind the basis of our institution. Fear God—honor the King—and love your neighbour as yourself, with these principles you cannot err. In the early ages, Masons became united by one community of love, harmony and concord, one common feeling was the individual and combined interest of its Members.—Emperors and Kings have allied themselves to Masonry, shall it not then deserve the respect of the world; will any set of men at this day shake the foundation of our Temple, which has existed now nearly six thousand years !—No my Brethren.—By Masonry the Laws are upheld, religion supported, morals respected, and every virtue which can dignify our nature is promoted and increased. Continue then my brethren, faithful to the trust reposed in you, cherish every kind and benevolent action that can assist human nature, and let this practice be the everlasting cement of our order.

May the supreme Architect of the universe protect and bless you all.

PROSPECTUS
A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER, TO BE CALLED THE GORE GAZETTE, OR
Ancaster, Hamilton, Dundas, & Flamborough ADVERTISER.

THE Public are respectfully informed, that a Newspaper, under the above title, will be published in the Village of Ancaster, in a few weeks, or, as soon as a sufficient number of Subscribers shall be obtained.

The benefits which are bound'y accruing to mankind, from the establishment of a Free Press, are so obvious, so universally perceived and acknowledged, that any attempt to demonstrate its utility, would be an imputation upon the understanding of the intelligent community, to whom this is addressed. Its advantages are so indisputable, that the propriety of erecting a new establishment of the kind can scarcely be doubted, where the population, wealth and enterprise of the country, are adequate to its support: and it is confidently presumed, that the fertile and rapidly improving section of Upper Canada, embracing the Gore District, and Districts adjoining, present at this time, all these essential pre-requisites, and affords a fair prospect of success, to a respectable and well-conducted Press.

Without going through the rounds of promises, usually made upon these occasions, but seldom realized, the Proprietor may be permitted to assure his Patrons, that the Gore Gazette shall be conducted upon principles of the strictest impartiality, neither influenced by feelings of party, nor warped by those of prejudice.—To make it amusing and instructive to the reader, and useful to the community in which he resides—to aid in calling forth and directing, to purposes of national utility, the latent energies of this fine country, will be the great aim and highest ambition of its conductor. In pursuing this object, he is aware, that he must depend upon the occasional contributions of his more intelligent, and literary friends, rather than upon any exertions of his own; but such contributions he has reason to expect, and they are earnestly and respectfully solicited.

All Religious disputations and discussions, upon points purely theological, will be excluded; but the unalienable right, of every sect, to a conscientious exercise of religious worship, will be maintained, and any infraction of that right, promptly exposed.

The most interesting articles of Foreign information, will be regularly given, from the latest arrivals; and the proceedings of the Colonial Legislature, together with those of the Imperial Parliament, which relate to this Province, will have an early insertion. The excellent Public Library, recently established in this village, will also enable the Editor to select, for his Paper, the most amusing and interesting articles, from the leading Periodical Works of the day.

As the success of a local Newspaper must depend, mainly, upon its advertising support, the Subscriber respectfully solicits the patronage of his advertising friends; to whose favours the strictest attention shall be paid.

The Gore Gazette will be issued from the Office of the Proprietor, every Saturday morning. Price—Twenty Shillings, Currency, per annum, payable half-yearly in advance. Advertisements will be inserted upon the terms usual in this Country.

Agents will be appointed in different parts of the Province, whose names will be given in the first number of the Gazette.

GEORGE GURNETT.

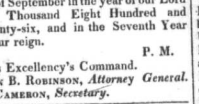
UPPER CANADA.
P. MAITLAND,
Lieut. Governor.

PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors, of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province; to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on Thursday the Tentyfifth day of Sept. inst. to be Commenced, Held, Called, and Elected, and to every of you

GREETING.



WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Tenth day of August last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the Twenty-first day of September instant, at which time, at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear.

NOW KNOW YE, that we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents enjoining you and each of you that on Monday the Thirtieth day of October next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To all to whom these Presents shall come

GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the parts of this Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. We have thought fit to order and direct, and We do hereby order and direct that, until Our pleasure herein shall be further made known, it shall and may be lawful for all Our Subjects inhabiting Our Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada, freely to enter into Our Woods and Forests in such parts of Our said Province of Upper Canada, situate along the Banks of the River Ottawa, or upon the Banks of the Waters running into the said River and within a convenient distance from the same, as shall not have been Surveyed and divided into Concessions and Lots, and to Cut and carry away such Oak and Pine Timber as may be fit for the purposes of Exportation.

Provided always, nevertheless, That in consideration of the authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties herein-after specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon every One Thousand Feet of Red Pine Timber, Four Pounds Three Shillings and Four Pence, being at the rate of One Penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Yellow Pine Timber, Two Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence, being at the rate of One Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commission under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places upon the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointed as aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has attained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons, properly authorized by or under Our Licence granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS Our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this third day of May in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-Six, and in the Seventh Year of Our Reign.

Executive Council Office,
York, 23rd March, 1826

NOTICE is hereby given, by ORDER of His EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENAT GOVERNOR, in COUNCIL, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a regular Council day.

JOHN SMALL.
No. 9 1. f. C. E. C.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepard in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s. 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 23 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hundred Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant.

It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessarry expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January, 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

COURT OF PROBATE, } MAITLAND, K. C.
York to Wit: } B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein and Judge of the Court of Probate, within the said Province, &c. &c. &c.

TO PATRICK CONIGAN, late of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, and Province aforesaid, as Nephew and next of Kin of Bartholomew Conigan, deceased.

WHEREAS John McLean, of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, Yoeman, lately exhibited a petition in the said Court of Probate, setting forth that you the said Patrick Conigan, some years ago procured Letters of Administration from the Court of Probate aforesaid, to the Estate of the late Bartholomew Conigan, of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, Hawker and Pedlar, deceased. That you the said Patrick Conigan collected all the monies due to the said Bartholomew Conigan, but have left this Province and not discharged the Debts of the said Bartholomew Conigan, although he the said Bartholomew Conigan died possessed of ample property to do so. That the said Petitioner in the month of July one thousand eight hundred and twenty two obtained a verdict against you the said Patrick Conigan, Administrator as aforesaid, for the sum of Seven Pounds ten shillings, on which the said Petitioner has since entered up Judgment. That the said Petitioner has never received satisfaction of the said judgment, and there being no property now remaining in this Province on which an Execution could be levied; Wherefore the said John McLean humbly prays that a Citation may issue calling on you the said Patrick Conigan, as Administrator aforesaid, to appear in the said Court of Probate on the First day of January next ensuing, and shew cause why you should not pay the said debt and do whatever the said Court my require in the Premises of the said Petition. Now therefore these are to Cite and peace you the said Patrick Conigan, as Administrator to the Estate of the said late Bartholomew Conigan, deceased, on the First day of January next ensuing the date hereof to produce and exhibit into the Register's Office of the said Court of Probate, a true, full and perfect Inventory of all the goods, chattles, rights and credits which were of the said Bartholomew Conigan, deceased, at the time of his death, and make, or cause to be made, a true and just account of your Administration, and to shew cause why you will not pay the said debt for which the said John McLean has entered up Judgment against you as Administrator to the Estate of the said late Bartholomew Conigan, deceased. Dated at York, in the Province aforesaid, this Eighth day of September, One thousand eight hundred and twent-six.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TIGER HUNTING IN THE EAST.

The following extract of a letter received by a gentleman in Liverpool from his brother, dated Bangalore, Jan. 3, gives a lively description of the sports of tiger hunting:—

"I did something, however, yesterday, which was a good commencement of the new year, for I commanded a party of the men who were ordered out to kill a tiger, which we obeyed, and put in execution in a very short time. I'll give you a description of the business. About six o'clock in the morning, when at the riding-school, I saw something swimming across the tank (alias lake,) a short distance from my house, and going towards some thick planted gardens on the other side, I thought it was a large black dog, or a black man so I sent on fitting stumps, but was soon surprised by one of officers runing to tell me it was a royal tiger, and that he was seen to lay down in the tank at the edge of the water. Several officers got ready and went over, but I was wiser than to follow, until I had got the Colonel to give me a firing party of sixteen men, with rifle cartridges; well, away we went, and had just got to the gates of the garden, when a shot was fired inside (though I had sent to tell them I was coming as quick as possible,) and soon after the royal beast popped out of the garden, and was shot at by two of the party, but not damaged. I mounted my horse, took a carbine from one of the men, and galloped off to try and keep him in sight and soon heard he was in another garden close to us. I dismounted formed my party in line, and beat down the hedge. A little dog of Ned's, which I am keeping for him, Bruin by name, was with us when we came to the corner of the hedge, Bruin gave tongue violently, and went barking into the hedge. I said, 'I am sure Bruin has him, look out,' and out he came with a glorious growl, I was the nearest to him, took aim at his head, and the rifle missed fire; he was first coming towards me, but altered his route, inclined to my right, received several shots from the party, and leaped right on the top of a man's shoulder. How surprised he looked in the air, with his mouth open, over the man's head! Down they came, and he left his hold, made at the hedge, and stuck in it for a short time, the men making at him all the time; another rifle which had been given me missed fire. I took another one, and went through the gate, and saw my friend laying down close to me, and starting me in the face. I took aim at his head, and bang me if the third rifle did not miss fire, though he was not five yards off.—He sprang at me. I leaped back, but was caught by my spurs, and came on my back; a lucky shot or two, however, turned my friend off me, and I just got up in time to seize another carbine, and send the ball just in behind his shoulder, which finished his business. The poor fellow he had clawed, as soon as he could get up, seized a spear, and had the satisfaction to run it into his neck as he was struggling. Luckily he has not received much damage, as he has only got a scalped part of his head, without hurting the skull; he had behaved gallantly all the time, for I had been obliged to order him to keep back, for he would get, if I had, and I was afraid he would be sprung upon. Thus ended our fight. I had him dead in the Colonel's compound (garden) in an hour after I was sent out. Several of the officers came up in time to get shots; one of them, who would not have been accused of cowardice in my bones, was up with my party all the time. Bruin, though, was the bravest person of the whole, he has immortalised himself; for not content with fetching the brute out of the lake, he stuck to his heels during the whole engagement, barking and trying to bite, though the thickest part of his body is not larger than the tiger's arm. I was much pleased with him, took him to Seringapatam, as he often calls him, escaped, and returned to the fight. I have gained credit with the men, for leading them up so steadily to the charge, which probably saved some lives, for they were in a crowd, but I would not let them, but brought them up in fine; and also for being the first to follow him up when he got through the hedge.—I am very glad we escaped so well, and particularly that I had an opportunity of trying my mettle, for it was the first time. Young Mackworth can get his skin, as it was he that fired when he was first put near the water. I have his head in salt water now, to get the flesh off, and a hind leg also. Mackworth cheated some of us this morning; he asked us to breakfast, and gave us what he called hare soup, which was so rich, we took only a spoonful or two; no wonder it is so, for it was made of the tiger. I dare say your Aldermen, who are so celebrated for their turtle soup, would have enjoyed it, if they had not known the mixture."

LIVERPOOL, August 1.

The House of Lords met on Tuesday, and after the Commons had, by their officers, appeared at the bar, the prorogation to the 24th of August was formally announced.

We are happy to be able to state, that things are beginning to assume a more favorable aspect. In Manchester, Nottingham, Leeds, and Preston, trade had materially revived, and many of the manufacturers were again called into employment.

Scotland and Ireland participate in the general distress. Several heavy failuers have taken place in Dublin. In France, and on the Continent generally, trade and manufactures are also in a state of depression.

CONGRESS OF PANAMA.—The Washington papers of Thursday, state that the American Congress of Deputies which assembled some time ago at Panama, has adjourned to meet in a village in the neighbourhood of the city of Mexico, and hold its sessions there. We understand says the Journal that Mr. Dawkins, the British Commissioner, upon the adjournment of the Congress returned to England. Both his Secretaries had died at Panama.—The Dutch Commissioners had gone to Vera Cruz, with the view of being on the spot, as is supposed, at the assembling of the Congress in the Territory of Mexico.—The Intelligencer of Saturday adds, that the shore of Panama is more fatal to the lives of visitors, than even the coast of Africa is to the whites. Speaking of the removal of the Commissioner of the King of the Netherlands to Vera Cruz, the editors say:—" But if he stay long there the fate of the two British Secretaries will almost certainly overtake him—the climate of Vera Cruz being as fatal to strangers as that of Panama. We are glad that the place of Assembly has been changed: for, now our Commissioners may attend the Congress without the apprehension of finding graves in a foreign land—of having their eyes closed by foreign hands, The lamented Mr. Anderson fell a martyr to the climate, and we should be sorry to expose any more of our valuable citizens to such hazards.'

The poor rates in Massachusetts have increased three fifths within twenty five years. There are 7000 paupers in that state, which cost the public $360,000 annually. Intoxication is stated to be the common source of pauperism.

ENGLAND.

From the London Sun of July 29.

POOR OLD COBBETT.

This precious disciple of Tom Paine has addressed a letter to Mr. Canning in his usual style, on the state of the country. The most amusing feature of this epistle, is the high tone which honest Iago assumes over the Right Honourable Gentleman, by saying, that all the measures which the Cabinet must resort to are the measures of Cobbett! and the moment these measures are adopted, then, says this modest man, " I am your master!"

After this bounce, down comes " the patriot" from his high estate, and humbly supplicates the Right Hon. Gentleman for a seat in Parliament! We give the following extract to illustrate the assurance of the Preston Candidate:—

" But, what puzzles me exceedingly is, the grounds upon which you reckon on escaping from being compelled, at last to acknowledge me your master. A stone tossed up into the air will not more assuredly find its way to the ground, than your system will find its way to a state of prostration. I must triumph over you. It is not in nature that I should fail. You can coin your body into sovereigns as easily as you can continue to pay the interest of the debt in full in a currency of gold. Trick after trick, contrivance after contrivance, may be put in motion; miserable respites may be obtained; delusion may still do something; but Lavender, the late London theif-taker; and Grimshaw, the Mayor of Preston can cause victuals and drink to go in abundance into the dwellings of the unfortunate weavers and spinners of Lancashire, as easily as you and your colleagues can pay the full interest of the debt in a currency of silver and gold.

" You do not believe this? Is it so? So much the worse for you if it be so; for your surprise and mortification will be the greater. We are now living amongst the last tricks and contrivances of the system. It is in the very nature of this system to produce, in the end, starvation in the midst of plenty. This is in the different windings of the lace, or large puffs of broad pink satin ribbon. A necklace of coral encircles the throat, and the slippers are of coral red silk.

The Steam Boat Comet.—This boat which had so long and so highly excited public attention and sympathy, has been completely hauled up on the beach—£780 in money had been recovered, the notes were wet, but not materially damaged. Several papers of value, leases, &c. were found in a good state of preservation. The vessel was a complete wreck; a considerable quantity of bones were found in the steerage, but the rest was a mass of mud and rubbish in the place, that it was impossible to say how many bodies there might be. The jacket of a very young boy was picked up, enclosing the ribs only, and no other part was visible. The body of a female was found on the quarter deck, so decayed that the dress only identified it to be that of a Miss M'Intosh. The copper boilers had collapsed in a surprising manner, and are useless as boilers. The sudden condensation of the steam, it was supposed, had produced a vacuum, and the pressure of the surrounding water on the outside caused this effect.

SUMMARY.

The Duke of Devonshire and Marshal Marmont will vie with each other in the splendour of their equipages and the magnificence of their entertainments to be given in honour of Her Emperor Nicholas, after the Coronation at Moscow. The Duke, however, who will be attended by the flower of the English nobility, is not likely to be out-done by the representative of Charles X, who, we understand is limited in point of expence by the King his master.

We understand that there were not less than twenty actions against the different hundreds of Lancashire, to recover compensation for the damage sustained by the destruction of power looms, &c. in April last. Most of these will be merely enquiries before the Sheriff, to assess the amount of damages; but several cases, we believe, will be defended, though, on what grounds, we are not informed.

" Conclusion, Sir, let me remind you that you have frequently said that you liked to see demagogues in Parliament; that you liked to see them there, because they soon found their level, and became insignificant. Now, Mr. Canning, let me put your sincerity to the test; you know (aye, as well as any man you know) of my late adventures at Preston; you know the infinite pains I have taken to get face to face with you; you know that of right the seat was mine; you know by what means I am for the present, kept out of it; if, then, you be sincere in your wish to have demagogues in Parliament, and a demagogue you have called me; if you be sincere in this, now is the time to show your sincerity! And the world says that something must be done: I have said, and I still say, that I would not be two months in the House, before I would submit to it a bill, calculated, in my opinion, to make the nation once more happy and free, and particularly to sweep away all the present embarrassments, dangers, and sufferings. My opinions, you know, are opposed to yours upon the subject; I am ready to face you in that assembly where you have at all times a decided majority; I am ready and willing to expose my bill to your view, if such risk there be, of being put down, laughed at, rendered the scorn of those whom I have hitherto so cordially despised. Come, then, if you and your colleagues have a manly sentiment in your minds come, I say, give me a seat: place me within reach of the lash that you have in store for demagogues; place me where I shall " find my level," and be sunk for ever! " Nay, answer me not with a fool-born jest;" and above all things, do not use the ridiculously hypocritical pretence that I am not a man that you wish to demolish. How gladly, alas! would you see that demolition! At any rate, whatever the fact may be, the public belief is, that you and all your colleagues, though you may wish me no harm, would feel much more comfortable than you do now, if you could hear that my bones were as dry as those of old Tommy Paine, who out-lived Pitt, after all the hectoring of the latter, and his threats against the former."

FEMALE FASHIONS FOR AUGUST.

Marine Costume.—A round dress of fine India muslin, with a broad trimming at the border, formed of lace, en jabots, placed on in bias; between the jabots an elegant embroidery, worked, worked on the muslin, in the pattern of vine leaves. The body is partially low, and en garze; the waist encircled with a belt of celestial-blue ribbon. Over the bust is a sort of collar cape, in two points, perceptibly seperated in front; these points are embroidered at the corners, and are trimmed round with lace: a chemisette tucker draws round nearly as high as the throat. The sleeves are moderately wide, with manchettes a la Psyche, of muslin, edged with lace; the wrists finished by a double range of antique points, and confined next the hand with gold bracelets, elsepped by an emerald broach. The hair is arranged in full curls and very short at the ears.—A hat of white gros de Naples is worn, without pither cap or cornette, and is fancifully ornemented with white gaze and blond; the crown adorned with large tulips of different colours. The strings of the hat are of celestial-blue ribbon, float loose. The necklace and ear-rings of amber.

Morning Dress.—A pelisse robe of jaconet muslin, embroidered down the sides in front, and round the bottom of the skirt, in a rich scalloped pattern; a double pelerine cape falls over the shoulders, and is worked in a correspondent manner; the body is plain, and made to wrap partially over in front. The sleeves are made nearly to fit the arm, and have a very broad scalloped ornament of embroidered muslin at the wrist, turned upwards. The head dress is a cornette, discovering but little of the hair, with lapets unconfined, of a very fine specimen of Urling's lace, of which there is a great profusion in the fabrication of this novel corsage. The bust is shaded in how by the different windings of the lace, or large puffs of broad pink satin ribbon. A necklace of coral encircles the throat, and the slippers are of coral red silk.

Foreign Intelligence.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

The packet ship John Wells, Capt. Harris, arrived at this port on Saturday, in 35 days from Liverpool, and the ship Hudson, Capt. Champlin, arrived yesterday in 36 days from London. By these arrivals the Editors of the Commercial Advertiser have received Liverpool and London papers to the 8th of August inclusive. We made a few extracts from the London papers this morning.

A letter from Tyneste, of the 6th July, says:—" There are still sad divisions among the Greek leaders, but I am disposed to co-operate with Lord Cochrane. They have altogether 25 sail (independent of the piratical vessels, the owners of which are declared by the Government of Hydra traitors to the State,) armed out of guns which they carry is only four hundred, as some have only one gun, and others only muskets, but the crews are upwards of fourteen thousand fine seamen, many of whom being draughted into Lord Cochrane's ships, will do much execution."

LONDON, August 8.

" City, 2 o'clock.—The business in our own, as well as in the Foreign funds, was considerable, accompanied with a general improvement in the early part of the morning, which, in the absence of any news and reports of any kind, was attributed to the state of the accounts and abundance of money; the market has since completely changed its appearance in consequence of some heavy sales of money stock; the quotation has since been 79 1-4, and at that price consols at present remain, sellers.

" Exchange Bills are 17 a 18, and New four per Cent. Scrip, 2 a 2 1-4; Mexican bonds are 45 at; Colombian, 35 1-2; Spanish, 9 5-4; 2 a 10 1-4; Greek, 13; Brazil Mine Shares, 54 pm.; Tlalpaxabus, 45 a 50 pm.; Castillo. 1-2 pm."

The successor to the Duke of Manchester, as Captain General and Governor of Jamaica, will not be appointed for some months.

Hamburgh papers to the 7th August had been received in London, in which an account was given of the ratification of a treaty between Russia and Sweden, determining the boundaries of Russia and Norway. The rivers Passoig and Jacob will hence-forth form the chief boundary.

Warsaw, July 28.—Prince Philip of Hesse Homberg, passed through this city on the 21st on his way to Moscow, as Ambassador Extraordinary from the Emperor of Austria, to be present at the coronation of the Emperor of Russia. He is accompanied by Maj. General Haugartz, the Chamberlain Count Esterhazy, Prince Schwartzenberg, Count Stadion, and Baron Pakassi.

FRANCE.

Paris Aug. 5.—We are informed that a French garrison of 5000 men is about to occupy the fortress of Badajoz; one of the two Swiss regiments in Madrid is to form a part of that garrison, and it will be replaced here by two regiments, one of which is to be cavalry.

This intelligence seems to confirm the report which has been for some time spread, that the Baron de Damas would have proposed to form a "cordon sanitaire" of French troops on the frontiers of Spain and Portugal. This proposition, the political and financial consequences of which are incalculable, does not appear to have obtained the assent of the majority of the council.

Accounts from Lisbon to the 29th ult. are received this morning. The new Constitution had given the greatest satisfaction to a vast majority of the people. The most important part of the news received this day, however, relates to the Treaties recently concluded between the Brazils and Portugal, and between the Brazils and Great Britain. It appears that Portugal, in addition to preferences in commerce, gains considerable pecuniary advantages in acknowledging the independence of her former American Colonies. Money to the value of two millions sterling, is to be paid at stated periods by the Emperor of Brazil to the kingdom of Portugal, and the former is also to undertake the payment of the dividends, and the liquidation of the principal, of the last Portugese Loan.

French funds.—Paris Aug. 4.—Rentes, five per cents, 109—100f. 15, 20, 15, 10, 15; Rentes, three per cents, 100—65. 95, 90, 66; Rentes des Naples, certif. fale. 84f. 25c.; Bonds of Naples, Comp. Rothschild & Co's, 99f. 50c.; Royal Spanish loan, 46 1-2.

The Brussels papers to the 5th inst. which reached us last evening, do not contain any political news whatever. M. Levac and M. Cocke Monmens, editor and proprietor of the Courier du Pays Bas, had been tried and found guilty of a libel on M. General Wauthier, the Governor of Brussels, respecting his conduct on the occasion of the disturbance at the Brussels Theatre on the 4th ult. M. Levac was sentence to pay a fine of 25 florins, and to be imprisoned for three months. M. Monmens to pay 100 florins, and to be deprived of civil rights for 5 years.

Two steam-boats were launched at Amsterdam, on the 3d, and two ingates were to be launched on the 4th instant.

The Allegemine Zeitung of the 1st inst. contains nothing important.

The question of Prize or no prize, of the treasure found at Bhurtpore, still continues to attract public attention at Calcutta. It is supposed that the amount ultimately to be distributed among the army, will not be near so large as was at one time expected.

His Excellency Lieut. General Sir G. T. Walker was sworn in, Commander-in-Chief and Member of Council at Madras, on the 3d March.

The Paris papers of Friday, and the Etoile of Saturday, which reached us last night, contain nothing new. The Etoile contradicts all the reports in the other papers of unpleasant accounts from Lisbon and Constantinople, the affairs of which Capitals entirely engross the attention of the good people of Paris.

The Etoile doubts, however, a piece of intelligence which we know to be, correct, and founds its incredulity on an assumed fact, which, we should rather suspect, will not prove to have any foundation. It disbelieves that Sir Wm. A'Court had passed through Madrid on his way to Solar de Cabras, because, "as Sir Charles Stuart has been recalled, England would have no Minister at Madrid." The Quotidienne also states the recall of Sir Cha's. and that he left England on the 17th ult.

The letters from Napoli di Romania came down to the 3d of July, at which date Lord Cochrane had not arrived.

The accounts from Constantinople are not of a latter date than those before published, namely 2d July, and contain few additional particulars.

RUSSIA.

St. Petersburgh July 19.—The Emperor and Empress will set out for Moscow at the end of next week. The coronation, it is said, will be on the 14th of August. About 5,000 copies of the Report of the Commission of Enquiry, have already been disposed of. On the day of publication 25, and in some instances 50 rubles, were paid for a copy. The number of criminals is 121, 77 of whom are in prison, except the Counsellor of State, Nicholas Turgenar, who is said to be in England.

His Majesty, by an order of the 28th ultimo, has given his liberty to Major-General Orlof, who is to return to his rank, but is dismissed the service, and declared incapable of holding any office in future; nor is he even to show himself in either of the two capitals.

Petersburgh July 22.—The continued obscurity of the atmosphere, caused by fires in the woods, has hitherto been a great hindrance to the navigation at Cronstadt; several vessels ready to sail, and others wanting to enter; have been obliged to lie to for several days, waiting for clear weather.

A Lisbon Mail has arrived this morning, bringing despatches from his Excellency Sir Charles Stuart to Mr. Canning, and from Vice-Admiral Lord Amelius Beauclerk to Mr. Croker; and by which opportunity we have received Lisbon Gazettes to the 29th ultimo, inclusive, and private letters to that same date; by the latter we are informed that the several authorities were to take the oaths prescribed by the Constitutional Charter, on the 31st of July. Every thing had been quiet, except at Chaves, where a slight disturbance had taken place, but of no consequence, and which was soon quelled. Our letters do not mention the change of Ministry spoken of in the French papers, so that we are left in uncertainty on that point.

A requisition in the following terms to the Lord Mayor is in the course of signature:—

"To the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor.

"We the undersigned Liverymen of London, whose names are hereunto subscribed, request your Lordship to call, as soon as convenient, a Common Hall of the city of London, for the purpose of taking into our consideration the propriety of presenting a petition to His Majesty, the King, beseeching that His Majesty would assemble Parliament in as short a time as possible, in order that measures may be adopted to put an end to and to affect a speedy and complete reform of the corn laws, and of all taxes on corn and flour imported."

The Churchwardens of Manchester, have refused to call a public meeting.

LONDON, Aug. 7.

The Wellington, Captain Evans, from Madras direct, has arrived off the Isle of Wight. She brings Madras papers to the 11th March, but they contain no intelligence of importance, from our troops in Ava. The steam-vessel Enterprize, which was ordered from Bengal in March, being probably detained at Rangoon to bring accounts of the arrival of our army at the Capital. A letter from Head-Quarters at Mellson, dated the 25th Jan. is spoken of as having been received in Calcutta, mentioning that Gen. Campbell had proceeded to reach Amerapoora, about the 20th Feb.

The letters from the army in the Upper Provinces are filled with accounts of the expected breaking up of the field force, and movements again towards cantonments. The principal business at Burtpore, and part of several curtains were blown up on the 6th of Feb. and it is left to the rajas to complete the ruin. The Rajah of Alwar has submitted to our conditions, having found it expedient to agree, which he saw the conquerors of Bhurtpore almost at his gates.

His Excellency, Lord Combermere, at the date of the last accounts, was shortly expected to return to Calcutta; a number of Officers attached to the Staff of the Army had returned. It was regretted at the Presidency, that the services of the gallant Commander-in-Chief were about to be transferred to another scene of warfare.

It publishes, however, a letter which Earl Bathurst addressed, on the 17th of July, to the Marquis of Hastings, Governor of Malta, informing his Excellency that, with a view of furnishing employment to a part of the population of that island, the officers commanding his Majesty's ship in the Mediterranean have been ordered to avail themselves on every opportunity to admit into the service, natives who may wish to enter it; and that commanding officers of regiments have been authorized to enrol Maltese recruits, in the proportion of five to every one hundred English.

By the Hudson from London, and the John Wells from Liverpool, we have received London papers to the 8th ult. and it is with sincere pleasure we learn that the distresses of the manufacturing Districts are sensibly diminishing. The operation is slow, but is nevertheless considered permanent, as it is known that the stock of goods upon hand is very small, which offers a substantial reason for the revival of trade.—*N. Y. Cobbet had attempted to present a petition to the King in person, but was refused. It is stated that he now intends to call a meeting of the people of the county of Middlesex, to get up a petition praying for reform in parliament, and a total repeal of the Corn Laws.

Portugal.—A rich and finely got up edition of the Portuguese Constitution, is in preparation at Lisbon. It is to be ornamented with a portrait of the Emperor, and a drawing of the Diamond, on board of which Sir C. Stuart came from Brazil, to Portugal. It will be distributed gratis to those persons who are bringing despatches from his Excellency Sir Charles Stuart to Mr. Canning, and from Vice-Admiral Lord Amelius Beauclerk to Mr. Croker; and by which opportunity we have received Lisbon Gazettes to the 29th ultimo, inclusive, and private letters to that same date; by the latter we are informed that the several authorities were to take the oaths prescribed by the Constitutional Charter, on the 31st of July. Every thing had been quiet, except at Chaves, where a slight disturbance had taken place, but of no consequence, and which was soon quelled. Our letters do not mention the change of Ministry spoken of in the French papers, so that we are left in uncertainty on that point.

The Portuguese Peers are so well pleased, that they assemble in a large room in Lisbon every evening, to have a debate. They are placed in which they practice speech-making.

Nothing has yet transpired respecting the despatch that has come from Madrid to Paris. It is said that the Courier brought the news of the quarrel that took place at Lisbon among the troops. The constitutional party, it is well known had the superiority, and the Ministry, in consequence, have not thought fit to publish what they have learned respecting it. All that is known is, that immediately after his arrival, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, visited the Baron de Villele, and that both of them set out immediately for St. Cloud.

The Minister from Brazil to Vienna, Viscount de Regende, who happened to be in London when the late news from Brazil arrived, set out immediately with the despatches, and autograph letters from Don Pedro to the Emperor of Austria.

Admiral Sir Henry Smith, the Marquis de Grimaldy, Baron Forester, and Viscount Chatmires had private audience of His Majesty.

In the night of the 19th July, the Chasseurs of the 7th Battalion of Infantry, in Garrison at Lisbon, which regiment is believed to be opposed to the present system, killed two chasseurs of another corps, whose opinions were different from theirs.

We have received at the Paris Papers of Monday, with the Etoile, dated Tuesday, in due course. Their contents are of some interest, with respect to the affairs of Portugal. It appears by the proclamation of the Princess Regent, and by several decrees from Don Pedro, dated Rio Janeiro, that active measures are forthwith to be adopted for the purpose of carrying into full effect some of the more important provisions of the constitutional charter.—The elections are to be immediately proceeded with, and a supplementary general one is to take place within a much shorter period than that specified by the charter.

A letter from Paris states that all the allied powers have sanctioned the new Portuguese charter, and have also notified the Spanish Government not to interfere in the affairs of Portugal.

Letters from the frontiers Spain, of the 22d July, state that at Saragossa the Liberals and Absolutists have come to blows, and when the accounts left, it was not known which party got the victory.

The diario de Barna of 22d July, states that some of Lord Cochrane's steam vessels had arrived, and he was appointed Commander in chief of the Greek fleets.

The accounts from the manufacturing districts continued favourable.

At Drury Lane, notwithstanding the absence of the new lessee, preparations for opening the campaign are going on with alacrity. Reynolds the dramatist is engaged to read and revise the new plays: Winston to superintend the household arrangements, and Wallack as stage manager. Liston, Braham, and Miss Stevens, are also secured; but Young and Vestres are not, as stated in the newspapers, to join the establishment, they have recently signed articles at Convent Garden, the former at a salary of £20 a night for two years. Macready sails for America the first week in September.

The treaty fixing the boundary between Russia and Norway, has at length been ratified. The rivers Passoig and Jacob will henceforth form the boundary.

Constantinople, July 3.—This city is far from being tranquil, since the great event of the 15th June. The Sultan, the Grand Vizier, the Officers of State, are encamped in a public square, and are protected by a powerful train of artillery, against such popular commotions as may manifest themselves. The Mufti and other heads of religion are incessant in their prayers; and all the insignia of the Mahometan belief are displayed around the Sultan, in order to enforce upon the people, that the changes that have been effected do not, in any respect, alter the ancient faith of the Prophet.

The news received from Adrianople and from Asia Minor speaks a great deal about the profound impression produced by the revoluton of the 15th. It appears that the men of religion, the Mufti, the Imans, are opposed to the new organization of the troops after the European mode, have been sadly effected by the massacres of the Capital. It is now the 20th day since the revolution, and the massacres are still going on.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

(From the Farmer's Journal, Sept. 20.)

More Natural Curiosities.—A very singular petrifaction has lately been discovered several feet from the surface of the ground, on Messrs. Bell and Grimth's Job, at the Mountain Ridge, Welliam's Canal, consisting of what is supposed to have been a Den of Snakes. They retain their natural shape, almost to perfection, and are entwined in a most singular manner, covering the surface of a flat stone of from 2 1-2 to 3 feet in diameter. The one we have seen, we are told, is designed for the Cabinet of Mr William Meritt, of St. Johns, N. B. who proceeded thence a short time since, on his retrnn from a visit to this part of our Province. What makes this curiosity the more interesting, is the fact that but a few years since, Snakes have been observed, during the first week days in the Spring of the year, to come out in immense numbers, in various parts of this country. In West Flamboro' we have heard that the inhabitants turned out at one time, and destroyed several hundred rattle-snakes in a day.

NIAGARA ASSIZES.

At the court of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery, for this District, holden at the Court-House in the town of Niagara, commencing on Monday the 4th inst. and ending on Saturday evening last, his Honour Judge Powell presiding, the following convictions were had, and sentences past, among many others of minor importance:

ADDRESS.

To the honorable and Right Rev'd Charles James, Bishop of Quebec, &c. &c. &c.

We, the Rector, Church Wardens and Congregation of St. George's Church in the Town of Kingston, respectfully present to your Lordship our congratulations on the event of your return to the Canadas, and at this time on your visit to your Diocese in the discharge of the duties and offices of your high and sacred appointment.

We assure your Lordship of our gratitude for the services performed by you for the Congregation at the time you were Visiting Missionary of the Diocese—We are thankful for the attention at that time manifested by your Lordship to its interests and prosperity, and your assistance in the arrangement for obtaining a supply of Tracts from the the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge.

Your venerable and lamented predecessor, who for many years presided over the Diocese, was zealous and successful in the establishment of a Church, which by its pure faith, sound doctrine, and primitive discipline, will extend and perpetuate the blessings of true Religion in this favoured land.

While we seriously deplore the loss we have sustained, we experience consolation and feel gratified for the selection and appointment of your Lordship to be the Bishop of the Diocese and the successor of him with whom you cooperated in the erection of churches, and in the advancement of their prosperity.

While we avail ourselves of the opportunity to offer the assurances of our confidence in your Lordship's ability and zeal to carry into effect all such plans as in your wisdom and under the Divine Blessing will diffuse the principles of the Gospel, and expand and extend interests of the people of this Colony, we cannot but express our deep regret that we are at present without a place of worship of our own, in which your Lordship might discharge the sacred functions of your Holy Office. We, however, hope that the edifice now erecting, and towards the completion of which our Gracious Monarch has deigned to favor us with his munificent aid, will be in readiness for your reception, when we shall next have the satisfaction of welcoming your Lordship among us.

Our prayers and best wishes accompany you in the discharge of your high and important office, hoping that you may continue in health and safety, and commending you to the guidance and protection of Divine Providence.

Kingston, 18th Sept. 1826.

HIS LORDSHIP'S REPLY.

To the Rector, Church Wardens, and Congregation of St. George's Church, in the Town of Kingston.

GENTLEMEN,

Accept my thanks for your congratulations. I begto assure the Rector, Church Wardens, and Congregation of St. George's Church, that every means within my power shall be exerted for the furtherance of their interests.

The manner in which my humble services have been acknowledged by you is gratifying to me; and the proofs you have given of your zeal, and attachment to the Church, in which I hold the station of our late excellent Bishop, afford me great satisfaction.

I congratulate you upon the prospect of possessing an edifice for public worship at once so commodious for the sacred purpose to which it is to be dedicated, and so ornamental to the Town; and, while I look forward with pleasure to my next visit, when arrangements may be made for the consecration of the Church we have the less reason to lament our present temporary inconvenience.

From what has been already done towards the reorganization of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, I anticipate very favourable results; and I take this opportunity of requesting you to support it to the utmost of your ability: confident as I am that nothing can be done more conducive to the best interests of true Religion in this Province.

I am happy in having your prayers and best wishes for my success in the important Office in which I am now placed, and I beg for a continuance of them.

You shall not be forgotten in mine; and I trust the Lord will prosper us.

C. J. QUEBEC.

Kingston, Sept. 13, 1826.

On last Evening an interesting Missionary meeting was held in the Wesleyan Chapel. After the opening prayer by the Rev. James Knowlan, C. A. Hagerman, Esq. was requested to take the chair, from which he delivered a short but very appropriate address on the object of the meeting. We regret that we have not room for, even a short sketch of the addresses delivered by the several Gentlemen who spoke on the occasion; and which were heard by a respectable audience, with deep attention and great delight. The following resolutions were passed.

Resolved, That this Meeting heartily approves of the Missions first established by the Rev. John Wesley, Dr. Coke, and others, and now carried on by the people called Methodists.

Resolved, That the state of the heathen world is such as to demand the sympathy, and call forth the exertions of Christians of all denominations, for the amelioration of their condition.

Resolved, That the effects produced by Missionary labors afford new demonstrations of the essential connexion which exists, between the influence of the Gospel, and the social, civil, and religious happiness of mankind; and that therefore, it is the duty of every Christian, according to his ability, to assist in sending the glad tidings of salvation to the Heathens.

Resolved, That as we feel fully convinced, that the efforts of Christians to promote the spiritual welfare of the word, will not be effectual without the Divine Blessing, we particularly request that Christians will unite their prayers for the more abundant outpouring of the spirit of God.

Resolved, That the following persons be requested to act as a Committee, with power to add to their number: Messrs. H. C. Thomson, Dean, Henry Smith, Counter, Talkein, Jenkins, and Whitley. And also, that the Rev. Messrs. Nowlan & Stinson be appointed Secretaries, and Mr. Frazer Treasurer.

Resolved, That the thanks of this Meeting are due to C. A. Hagerman, Esq. for his able conduct in the Chair.

On the above occasion the sum of Nine Pound Five Shillings was collected.

Confirmation.—Upwards of one hundred persons belonging to St. George' Church were confirmed by the Lord Bishop of Quebec this morning.—U. C. Herald.

An address from the Magistrates and Grand Jury of the District was presented to the Lord Bishop of Quebec this morning.—Ib

The following is an interesting extract of a letter from a Gentleman in Sandwich' to his friend in this city:—"On the 12 August, two hogsheads of Leaf Tobacco, were shipped at Amhersburgh, consigned to you, with a certificate from John Wilson, Esqr. Collector at that Port, of their being the growth of this Province. This Tobacco belongs to an industrious respectable Negro, to whom I sold some land, and who is one of a number of the same colour, whom I have advised to settle together and form a village; so far the undertaking is promising, and the owner of the two hogsheads in question, informs me that in a very short time he expected that at least 60 hogsheads of the same article, would be raised in this small settlement. These hogsheads are sent to you by my advice, by way of experiment and if the plan succeeds, the greater part of what is raised annually, will be disposed of in the same manner; the object at present is to raise money to pay for their lands—I believe the quality is good, if not the best. I wish you, therefore, to dispose of it to the best advantage, and after deducting your charges, let me know the nett proceeds. I wish it to be sold as early as possible, as these people are unaccustomed to, and therefore impatient of delay. I have sold nearly 1000 acres of land in small parcels, to a number of these poor fugitives, who have escaped from the most cruel and degrading of all conditions, slavery! Many of them are very worthless, but no wonder, when it becomes the interest of their oppressors to brutify them as much as possible. Reproaching one of them, for immoral habits, he observed, "we are in a state of slavery, obliged to lie to save our backs, and to steal to fill our bellies."—It is their intention after they have paid for their lands, to supply their wants in merchandise from Montreal.—Montreal Herald.

A mercantile friend has handed to us the following;

All the flour exported from Quebec ought to be kiln dried and branded as such; it would keep much longer and bring a greater price, and be in more rapid demand than it is at present.

All the Herring cured in the river St. Laurence ought to be gibbed—this progress would cost about 6d. per barrel, which would render them a valuable article of export in our West India trade.—Old Quebec Gazette.

The U. E. Loyalist.

YORK, U. C. SATURDAY, SEPTEM. 30, 1826.

It will afford our readers much pleasure to learn, from the extracts we have been able to give this week, that the accounts from England continue to be more promising, for the trade of the country. Some of the manufacturers, who had been under the necessity of suspending their operations, during the stagnation of business, have from the increased demand, resumed their labours, and are again affording employment to their workmen. The improvement which has taking place, is not represented as being very extensive, but the fact of its having in some degree, removed the apprehensions which were entertained, nott the certainty that it is increasing, must lead to the hope, that a more prosperous state of affairs, may be reasonably expected.

The Communication of our Correspondent A. Z. strikes at an usage of long standing in the country, and though the mode of conducting Funerals on the present plan, prevails pretty generally throughout the Province, the custom which has established itself among us, is often been objected to. In some places however, we are aware, that it is a'ready beginning to fall into disuse, and we have ourselves known many instances, in which the attendance of pall bearers has been dispensed with.—Elsewhere in some of the towns, are now made use of, and we think, that with little trouble, so necessary a convenience could easily be supplied here. The Sexton of the Church on receiving an assurance from the Congregation, that in all cases of interment a Hearse would be used, at a fixed fee, might be induced to provide one, for the purpose of conveying Bodies to the Grave, and the practice of following in Coaches, or other conveyances, would, with those who possessed the means, soon follow as a matter of course. The manner of conducting a solemnity, in which we are called upon to pay the last rite, to those we hold dear, is certainly a subject worthy of consideration—the more simple, solemn, and unostentatious this is rendered, the better. To obtain this end however, it is necessary that there should be an unanimity of opinion, to ascertain which, it would perhaps be desirable, that a meeting of the Parishioners should be held, for the purpose of making the necessary arrangements, for providing a suitable Hearse, on which occasion some general understanding might take place, as to the mode, in which interments should be conducted, and all have an opportunity of expressing their sentiments on the subject.

When the truth is told, and deductions made from facts are plainly exhibited to the public, the wants of every one must be given, that the taxes of Upper Canada cannot be complained of. Their amount as shown in our remarks on this subject last week, is comparatively so small in proportion to the property on which they are levied, and the manner of expending them, in itself so equitable, being wholly devoted to purposes beneficial to the persons paying them, that it would indeed be strange if they could be complained of. The complaint indeed turns out to be, not against those taxes which do exist —but against those, which do not exist—an old complaint enough. The protest is made against additional burthens.—We have before said and again repeat it—if the present taxes are considered as sufficient to answer the purposes of the country, there can be no necessity of adding to them—if on the contrary it is considered desirable to make improvements, beyond what the present rate of taxes would warrant, we think it must be clear to the mind of any reflecting man, that until the means are provided, those improvements, whatever they may be, cannot be carried into effect. Supposing for example, that the inhabitants of the Home District, should consider it as particularly advantageous, to cut a canal from York to Lake Simcoe, to be used for the conveyance of their goods and produce, instead of Yonge Street—can it be supposed that such a work could be carried into effect, without providing the necessary means for its accomplishment? especially when it is considered, that the present rates, which have existed ever since it was a District, are not more than sufficient, to defray its ordinary expences. Supposing then, that an individual, should, notwithstanding the generally acknowledged utility of such a work, address the inhabitants of the District in the following language—"As to the present taxes, we cannot in truth complain of them, they are not more than sufficient for the purposes for which they are collected—they are not oppressive—and I must confess, are expended in a beneficial manner so far as they go, although I have no doubt, that a canal from York to Lake Simcoe, would be a very desirable improvement, and of great benefit to the people—yet I protest against any additional burthens." If this protest should receive any attention from the people—what becomes of the contemplated canal? The answer is plain, and at once suggests itself to the mind of any man—the project must be abandoned, and all the advantages anticipated from it, must be relinquished. Apply this argument to the ordinary business of life—apply it to a District, or to the Province, generally, and the result must be the same—without the necessary means being provided, it is quite needless to talk of being able to accomplish any great undertaking.

We hope enough has now been said on this subject, to satisfy every person, that the clamour which has been attempted to be raised against the Government, of a want of zeal for improvement, is entirely destitute of foundation.—We shall therefore take leave of it, with the satisfaction, of having by the force of truth, extracted the confession, that with respect to taxation and money, there can be no complaint—and to the man who seeks to better his condition, we can safely recommend Upper Canada, as a Country worthy of his choice—having all the world before him, where to choose, he will find few countries, affording more real and permanent advantages where he may sow in peace—reap in joy—and partake of the fruits of his industry undisturbed, and unmolested—and where public improvement, keeps a steady pace with the public means—To those who expect more, we do not venture to recommend Upper Canada.

√ We have been informed that Lord Dalhousie, is now making a tour, on the route of the Canal, from the Rideau to Kingston, and that His Lordship is expected at the latter place in a few days. The operations on the Canal, it is said, will be commenced by the Government, early in the next season, and unostentatious this is rendered, the better. To obtain this end however, it is necessary that there Royal Engineers, and when completed, we have no doubt, will be a stupendous, and magnificent work. The Commissioners who surveyed the route of this Canal, in their Report to His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, speak of the country through which it will pass, in the following terms :—" The proposed Canal by the Rideau, would thus in connection with the improvements in Lower Canada, accelerate the settlement and prosperity of a large tract of our interiour country, which yields to no part of the Continent in point of fertility of soil, or salubrity of climate."

The opinion of the gentlemen composing this Commission, founded as it is upon actual observation, very fairly leads us to doubt the truth of the assertion, made by those, who we shrewdly suspect, have never seen that part of the country, and who in their zeal to retard public improvement, have represented the Canal as a Military project, across the rocks, between Kingston and the Rideau.

COMMUNICATIONS.

For the U. E. Loyalist.

To the Public.

When customs which have crept unaccountably into society, are found by experience, to have a tendency to demoralize the feelings, and in some instances to cause other serious evils, it is the duty of all well-wishers of the community, to expose their pernicious teudency, and to endeavour by fair reasoning, to cause them to be exploded. One of those customs which has lately forced itself upon my attention, and which forms the subject of the present address, is the manner in which the obsequies of the Dead are conducted in this Province; in discussing which, I propose contrasting it, with the mode practised by private families in that part of England with which I am most acquainted, and from that comparison, to appeal to the good sense of the public, whether, from the comments I shall presume to offer thereupon, the latter is not infinitely more congenial with the appropriate solemnity which so awful a performance, both rationally and religiously calls for, than the former.

In this province, (for I take it for granted the practice in this town and neighbourhood is adopted generally) when Death's ever-sweeping scythe has despatched a fresh victim to feed the insatiable ever-yawning grave, the relatives and connexions of this lifeless lump of clay, instead of silently and quietly adopting the most private mode, of performing the last sad melancholy duty of interment, feel themselves compelled, (from the want of sufficient resolution to deviate from the general custom) to follow the stream of example, and circulars are in consequce almost instantly printed off and despatched, to summons an infinite or scourse of persons to assemble at an appointed day and hour to form a procession, which may well be called a "mockery of woe," for the unhappy mourners placed conspicuously at the head of the lengthened files of followers, with hearts almost bursting from intensity of grief, are here exposed for perhaps upwards of a mile, to the idle gaze of the many passengers and occupiers of houses, which happen to be in the route.—Is this a situation in which the sufferers of the sorest of afflictions should be placed? So much for the outrage upon the feelings of those, who at such a time stand in so much need of every thing, that can soothe and soften—but this is not the only part of the performance to be condemned —the prelude to this procession (although perfectly in character therewith) has far too feast-like a display, to accord with the solemn occasion. In many instances, the rooms set apart for those invited are too small to contain them, and the entrance and approach to the house are occupied by the remainder. From a mistaken feeling of hospitality and attention, Trays of Cake and Wine are often carried out to those surrounders, presenting an appearance to any stranger who may be accidentally passing by, that some merry-making was going forward, and who, if not accustomed to such scenes, would be horror-struck with the idea that this was the Feast of Mourning. With this detail (not exaggerated) I proceed to notice other connecting parts which tend to place in a still stronger light, the demoralizing nature of the whole arrangement. From a desire to imstate the public funerals of the Mother Country—Pall-Bearers, here form an indispensable appendage to every one of these mournful Rites, of the middling and upper classes of society; and how many petty jealousies in the selection of the distinguished Six does this arrangement often generate? To say nothing of its hateful intrusion upon the absorbed feelings of the mournful family, by cruelly interrupting the naturally destined moments of grief, and forcing them to enter into a critical examination of their list of friends, in order that in making the selection, they may avoid giving offence to any who may have anticipated the distinction, and who might fancy themselves slighted if not thus distinguished. And then again, when, (on the day of sepulture) the Hats are called for, to decorate those Bearers with the insignia of office, how many whisperings, or at least internal sensations of surprize, are either said or felt by the assembled Followers, that such a one was selected, and another omitted.

Is this a time to tempt the infirmities of our nature, to wander from the contemplation of the uncertainty of all things here below, which upon so awful an occasion should take sole possession of our thoughts? Can any plausible reason be assigned for this absurd Pageantry at a nominally private funeral but that of mere custom? Is the happy or unhappy corpse at all benefitted in its passage to the grave, by having six persons to hold up the tassels of the pall? Will it add to the promised joys of the one, or diminish the destined sufferings of the other? If these queries and foregoing remarks, (and many more such like might be offered,) be not considered sufficient to cause the custom to be exploded, let me urge another point, which perhaps may be more sensibly felt, from the physical evil which must be acknowledged to have been frequently experienced by these unnecessary pall bearers. As Death waits not for times and seasons propitious to the conductors of these processions, it frequently happens that the most unfavourable weather occurs, on the day appointed for the funeral—sometimes a deep snow half thawed, at others a clay road as deeply saturated with wet, make these pall bearers internally regret the distinction conferred on them, for the only tolerable path at such a season, being scarcely wide enough for the bearers of the corpse, the unfortunate supporters of the pall are often unavoidably forced into a part of the road, which sets at defiance every attempt to escape wet feet, the origin of so many fatal disorders. How often have I seen among these supporters, men far advanced in years, thus exposed, and have known them to be confined to their houses for weeks, in consequence of this unnecessary exposure. Then again, pouring Rains and Rheumatic East winds, injuriously and equally affect both bearers, mourners, and followers, and thus, all this Pageantry of Death is often the cause of prematurely furnishing the Tyrant with additional victims. Had the melancholy funeral of yesterday I am so conducted, how many at this moment might have been seriously indisposed, from the pitiless rain which then fell?

Having thus, I hope, convincingly pointed out both the demoralising and physically injurious tendency of the existing custom in this Province, I proceed to describe the general practice among the great bulk of society in that part of England, with which I am best acquainted. There, when the afflictive hand of Death deprives a family of one of its members—none but the Relations and very near connexions ever take part in the funeral rites previous to the entering of the corpse into the church; no summons, (not even to the family Surgeon) no announcement of the time of interment, but to these relatives are ever taken place. On the day privately determined upon by the family for the burial, the body is quietly conveyed to its long home, either in a Hearse, or by bearers on foot, according to the means of the parties. In the former case the mourners in a coach, or coaches, as the number of the family may require; in the latter on foot, but in neither case are there rarely any attendants but what the Undertaker furnishes. If any friends or neighbours be desirous of attending the funeral service, they find out from the Clerk or Sexton, the hour appointed and repair to the Church, not processionally, but individually as they do on a Sunday to attend Divine Service. By the above considerate arrangement, the mourners, when conveyed in coaches, are not exposed to view until they alight at the Church door. And what objection can be offered against this rational custom being forthwith adopted here? If we have not yet Hearses and Mourning Coaches like those in England, we have other vehicles of conveyance, which answer the purpose, whereby exposure to the gaze of the multitude and to the vicissitudes of weather, may be in a great measure avoided. Let but a few individuals set the example, and it doubtless will be generally followed; and should any dread the sneers of some, who may uncharitably attribute the change, to the sole wish of avoiding the extra expense at present incurred, by having these unnecessary pall bearers, let them set those sneers at defiance, by giving a sum of money to the poor of the Parish, equal to the cost of their Hatbands Scarfs and Gloves.

Before I conclude, I cannot resist one more attempt to overcome a deep rooted prejudice in favor of that part of the present custom which regards the attendance of followers. The thoughtless many, estimate the respect in which the deceased was held, by the numbers of the Cavalcade.—Were these all voluntary upon the occasion, then indeed the conclusion might be correct, but when it is a notorious fact, that they almost entirely consist of Individuals, specially invited for the purpose, what then is the true result? why that the numbers in attendance depend not upon any estimation of the good qualities of the deceased, but upon the number of invitations which have been circulated, and how many of these attend the call with inward reluctance! Occupied during the busy hours of the day in their Offices, Stores, and Workshops, or employed in other avocations, the great searcher of hearts would discover the following mental soliloquy with a very great proportion of these boasted proofs of respect: "How provoking to be obliged to leave off what I am about; but I must go to this Funeral, or the family will think themselves slighted."

The truth of this, I am will persuaded is felt by many who dare not openly avow it. But on the other hand, when unnotified, and uninvited, the sorrowful friends and neighbours of the deceased (finding out from the Clerk or Sexton, the hour appointed) seperately assemble in the Church to bear witness of their regret, then and then only can it be relied upon as sincere.

Still more might be urged upon the subject, but to avoid tediousness, I forbear making further remarks, sincerely hoping that enough has been already advanced, to influence the minds of many to have resolution, to carry the desired change into effect. A. Z.

Died,

On the 13th instant, at the house of Saml. Merrill, in the Township of Kingston, Mr. John Bayne, a native of Scotland, (Inverness) aged 93 years.

At Kingston, on Sunday last, James, infant son of Mr. R. Tolbert aged ten days.

On the 23d of September, at Davenport, near York, aged 11 years, Harriett Mary, eldest daughter of the Hon. Lieut. Col. Wells—an exemplary pattern of a dutiful and affectionate child, whose chief delight was how to please and to obey—and since even the Divine Jesus yielded to the soft humanities of nature, by weeping for the death of Lazarus, his friend, which by the surrounding Jews was considered as a proof how much he loved him —well may his more earthly followers, the disconsolate parents of the dear departed, still more heartrendingly bewail the loss of a snatch tie, they loved as dearly. She lived and died universally beloved and regretted, by all who knew her.

By Faith, which blossom'd far beyond her years,
With corresponding Works, which stamped it with
The seal of Heaven, she died in humble confidence
Of soaring to the promis'd Realms of Bliss.—
The last sad Quiver on her dying lip,
Was like the playful smile of some delightful Dream.

ON THE DEATH OF MISS. H. WELLS.

Weep not! alas the thought how vain,
When sorrow rends the heart—
When ties of love are broke in twain,
Which death alone could part.
Oh! who could see thee Harriet sleep
In death's embrace, and yet not weep!
But these are tears that start,
From bitter agony for thee,
Which to console, were mockery.

Oh thou wert fair, and innocent,
Wert beauteous and wert kind,
And thy young looks, intelligent,
Spoke not a common mind;
And oh! those looks recorded well,
With music from thy lips that fell,
And round the heart entwined,
Bright hope illumed thy fleeting day—
Love shed on thee its warmest ray.

And by young hearts thy loss is mourned,
By hearts that held thee dear—
Down cheeks that joys bright smile adorned,
Rolls sorrows furrowing tear.
'Tis come th' accustomed hour of prayer,
A Father looks—thou art not there.
A Mothers anxious ear,
Va ely would list thy voice among
Her infant choir at evening song.

'Tis not for friends around thy bier,
To bid their sorrow cease;
But there is one can change the tear
To blessedness and peace—
Make streams of sorrow softly flow,
Can heal the mother's pang of woe,
And soothe the Sire's distress—
The Brother's bursting heart relieve,
And make it luxury to grieve. N. S.

PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors, of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province; to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on Thursday the Tentyfifth day of Sept. inst. to be Commenced, Held, Called, and Elected, and to every of you

GREETING

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Tenth day of August last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the Twenty-first day of September instant, at which time, at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear.

NOW KNOW YE, that we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby conceiving and by these presents enjoining you and each of you that on Monday the Thirtieth day of October next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, there to treat upon consideration of state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and thereon to do and [illegible] as necessary, and hereof fail not.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—Witness our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this Twentieth day of September in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-six, and in the Seventh Year of our reign.

P. M.

D. CAMERON, Secretary.

UPPER CANADA.

P. MAITLAND,
Lieut. Governor.

GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To all to whom these Presents shall come

GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the ports of this Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. We have thought fit to order and direct, and We do hereby order and direct that, until Our pleasure herein shall be further made known, it shall and may be lawful for all Our Subjects inhabiting Our Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada, freely to enter into Our Woods and Forests in such parts of Our said Province of Upper Canada, situate along the Banks of the River Ottawa, or upon the Banks of the Waters running into the said River and within a convenient distance from the same as shall not have been Surveyed and divided into Concessions and Lots, and to Cut and carry away such Oak and Pine Timber as may be fit for the purposes of Exportation.

Provided always, nevertheless, That in consideration of the Authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties hereinafter specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Red Pine Timber, Four Pounds Three Shillings and Four Pence, being at the rate of One Penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Yellow Pine Timber, Two Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence, being at the rate of One Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commission under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places upon the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointed as aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has attained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons, properly authorized by or under Our Licence granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS Our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this third day of May in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-Six, and in the Seventh Year of Our Reign.

Executive Council Office,
York, 23rd March, 1826.

NOTICE is hereby given, by ORDER of His EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, in COUNCIL, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a regular Council day.

JOHN SMALL,
No. 9 1. f. C. E. C.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepard in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s. 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hunded Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant.

It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessary expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desiro . to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

Upper Canada, York to Wit: } SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein and Judge of the Court of Probate, within the said Province, &c. &c. &c.

To PATRICK CONIGAN, late of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, and Province aforesaid, as Nephew and next of Kin of Bartholomew Conigan, deceased.

WHEREAS John McLean, of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, Yoeman, lately exhibited a petition in the said Court of Probate, setting forth that you the said Patrick Conigan, some years ago procured Letters of Administration from the Court of Probate aforesaid, to the Estate of the late Bartholomew Conigan, of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, Hawker and Pedlar, deceased, That you the said Patrick Conigan collected all the monies due to the said Bartholomew Conigan, but have left this Province and not discharged the Debts of the said Bartholomew Conigan, although he the said Bartholomew Conigan died possessed of ample property to do so. That the said Petitioner in the month of July one thousand eight hundred and twenty two obtained a verdict against you the said Patrick Conigan, Administrator as aforesaid, for the sum of Seven Pounds ten shillings, on which the said Petitioner has since entered up Judgment. That the said Petitioner has never received satisfaction of the said judgment, and there being no property now remaining in this Province on which an Execution could be levied; Wherefore the said John McLean humbly prays that a Citation may issue calling on you the said Patrick Conigan, as Administrator aforesaid, to appear in the said Court of Probate on the First day of January next ensuing, and shew cause why you should not pay the said debt and do whatever the said Court may require in the Premises of the said Petition. Now therefore these are to Cite and require you the said Patrick Conigan, as Administrator to the Estate of the said late Bartholomew Conigan, deceased, on the First day of January next ensuing the date hereof to produce and exhibit into the Register's Office of the said Court of Probate, a true, full and perfect Inventory of all the goods, chattles, rights and credits which were of the said Bartholomew Conigan, deceased, at the time of his death, and make, or cause to be made, a true and just account of your Administration, and to shew cause why you will not pay the said debt for which the said John McLean has entered up Judgment against you as Administrator to the Estate of the said late Bartholomew Conigan, deceased. Dated at York, in the Province aforesaid, this Eighth day of September, One thousand eight hundred and twenty-six.

ORIGINAL POETRY.

For the U. E. Loyalist.

MOONLIGHT.

'Tis night—the silvery moonshine falls around
The hill and vale and wave—the lofty trees
And their long shadows darkly o'er the ground,
And there they lie all motionless; no breeze—
No, not a zephyr's passing breath is there,
To stir a leaf—'tis quiet in the air;

And o'er the face of heaven, not a cloud,
Arrests the moon-beam in its distant flight,
The dim stars seem enveloped in a shroud
Of snowy radiance, in itself too bright
For starry ray or meteor gleam on high,
To shine as they are wont—so fair the sky.

And on the waters smooth the lunar ray
Glitters not, reflected by ten thousand waves
As when upon them ruffling breezes play,
And shining silvery all the surface heaves—
But one clear gleam, refulgent from the deep
Glows lone and radiant—as the waters sleep.

Soliloquy upon the lines which closed the contemplation of a recent Death, as inserted in last No. of the Scots Obituary.

And perhaps it was a Dream, a Dream of woe
Never ending tears, yet ever growing,
Increasing on, from day to day and year
To year, to countless infinity of time.—
Such are the Dreams of pious Christians, whose Prayer is about to leave this world of woe.
Faith in the Word of Promise, and firm
Reliance on the merits of the great
Atoning Sacrifice for Sin, banish
All fears: If conscience does not interpose
With sad remorse for duties left undone
And unrepented of; or, for Deeds of Injury committed, left unreconciled.
Hence Faith is vain, as holy Writ declares,
Unless by Works establishing its claim
To purity, true faith be manifest.
But what are Works alone, however good
With all the moral virtues that adorn
The character of man, lacking that Faith
Not from the want of means of knowing right,
As the pious Pagan at Heaven's Bar may plead,
But through the pharasaic pride of self-
Complacent righteousness, despising Grace.)
As vain, alas! the one, as light the other!
Both must go hand in hand, confirming each,
Or, (like as faith and hope, if charity
Be wanting) either is nothing worth.
When Faith is weak, though meant to be sincere,
Or Works too oft imperfectly be done,
The promised Grace must with more ardent prayer
Be duly sought for, not as a claim of Right, but as a Boon in mercy given,
To aid Man's frailty in his strife for Heaven.

MISCELLANEOUS.

INTERESTING NARRATIVE,
Of the late Slides from the White Mountains, in a letter from the Rev. Carlos White.

Hanover, N. H. Sept. 2. 1826.

Dear Sir—I have just returned from an excursion to the White Mountains, and shall now spend a day of rest in this village; giving you some account of the effects produced by the most destructive fall of rain ever known in this region. It happened on the night of the 28th August, which will be long remembered in this part of the country.

I left Hanover on Saturday last, in company with two gentlemen of my acquaintance from the city of New-York, and rode as far as Haverhill, where we all spent the Sabbath. The road over which we passed was like a bed of ashes two or three inches deep; and the country around as exhibited effect of a long drought.

On this fatal night, ago, over the southern part of New-England, did not reach the upper part of the valley of Connecticut River. On Monday morning it began to rain at Boverhill, and continued along our route for most of the day, but so moderately and at such intervals, that with the help of great coats and umbrellas we proceed on our journey as far as Bethlehem, 15 miles west of the White Mountains. As we approached the vicinity of the Mountains, the rain increased until it became a storm, and compelled us to stop at the middle of the afternoon.

The storm continued most of the night; but the next morning was clear and serene. The view from the hill of Bethlehem was extensive and delightful. In the eastern horizon Mount Washington, with the neighbouring peaks on the north and south, formed a grand outline far up in the blue sky. Two or three small fleecy clouds rested on its side a little below its summit, while from behind thus highest point of land in the United States east of the Mississippi, the sun rolled up rejoicing in his strength and glory. We started off toward the object of our journey, with spirits greatly exhilirated by the beauty and grandeur of our prospect. As we hastened forward and ascended on the road 5 miles to Rosebrook's Inn, and thence 6 miles to Crawford's, the establishment begun by Rosebrook's father, as described in the travels of Mr. Dwight. On entering this wilderness we were struck by its universal stillness.—From every leaf in its immense masses of foliage, the rain hung in large glittering drops; and the single note of a single unseen and unknown bird was the only sound that we could hear. After we had proceed a mile or two the roaring of the Amonoosuck began to break in upon the stillness, and soon grew so loud as to excite our surprise. In consequence of coming to the river almost at right angles, and by a very narrow road, through trees and bushes very thick, we had no view of the water, till, with a quick trot, we had advanced upon the bridge too far to recede, when the sight that opened at once to the right hand and to the left, drew from all of us similar acclamations of astonishment and terror; and we hurried ever the trembling fabric as fast as possible. After finding ourselves safe on the other side, we walked down to the brink; and, although familiar with mountain scenery, we all confessed that we had never seen a mountain torrent before. The water was as thick as it could be, without being changed into mud. A man living near in a log hut showed us how high it was at day break. Though it had fallen six feet, he assured us that it was still ten feet above its ordinary level. To this add its ordinary depth of three or four feet, and here at day break was a body of water 20 feet deep, and 60 feet wide, moving with the rapidity of a gale of wind, between steep banks covered with hemlock and pines, and over a bed of large rocks, breaking its surface into billows like those of the ocean. After gazing a few moments at this sublime sight, we proceeded on our way, for the most part at some distance from the river, till we came to the farm of Rosebrook, lying on its banks. We found his fields covered with water and with the flood wood. His barn and bridges all swept away, and the roads was so blocked up with logs, that we had to wait for the labour of men and oxen, before we could get to his house. Here we were told that the river was never before known to bring down any considerable quantity of earth, and were pointed to bare spots on the sides of the White Mountains, never seen till that morning. As our road, for the remaining six miles, lay quite near the river and crossed many small tributary streams, we employed a man to accompany us with an axe. We were frequently obliged to remove trees from the road, to fill excavations, to mend or make bridges, to contrive to get our horses and wagon along expeditiously. After toiling in this manner for half a day, we reached the end of our journey, not, however, without being obliged to leave our wagon half a mile behind. In many places, in these six miles, the road and the whole adjacent woods, as it appeared from the marks on the trees, had been overflowed to the depth of ten feet. In one place, the river, in consequence of some obstruction at a remarkable fall, had been twenty feet higher than it was when we passed. We stopped to view the fall, which Dwight calls "beautiful." He says of it, "the descent is from fifty sixty feet, cut through a mass of stratified granite; the sides of which, appear as if they had been laid by a mason in a variety of fantastical forms; betraying, however, by their rude and wild aspect, the masterly hand of nature.' This description is sufficiently correct; but the beauty of the fall was now lost in its sublimity. You have only to imagine the whole body of the Amonoosuck, as it appeared at the bridge which we crossed, now compressed to half of its width, and sent downward at an angle of 20 to 25 degrees, between perpendicular walls of stone. On our arrival at Crawford's, the appearance of his farm was like that of Rosebrook's, only much worse.—Some of his sheep and cattle were lost, and eight hundred bushels of oats were destroyed. Here we found five gentlemen who gave us an interesting account of their unsuccessful attempt to ascend Mount Washington the preceding day. They went to the 'Camp,' at the foot of the mountain on Sabbath evening, and lodged there with the intention of climbing the summit the next morning; but in the morning, the mountain was enveloped in thick clouds; the rain began to fall, and increased till the afternoon, when it came down in torrents. At five o'clock, they proposed to spend another night at the Camp, and let their guide return home, for a fresh supply of provisions for the next day. But the impossibility of keeping a fire where every thing was so wet, and at length the advice of their guide made them all conclude to return, though with great reluctance. No time was to be lost, for they had 7 miles to travel on foot, and six of them by a rugged path through a gloomy forest. They ran as fast as their circumstances would permit; but the dark evergreens around them, and the black clouds above them, made it night before they had gone half their way. The rain poured down faster every moment; and the little streams, which they had stepped across the evening before, must now be crossed by wading, or by cutting down trees for bridges, to which they were obliged to cling for life.

In this way they reached the bridge over the Amonoosuck near Crawford's just in time to pass it before it was carried down the current. On Wednesday the weather being clear and beautiful, and the waters having subsided, six gentlemen, with a guide, went to Mount Washington, and one his accompanied Mr. Crawford to the 'Notch,' from which nothing had been heard. We met again at evening and related to each other what we had seen. The party who went to the Mountain were five hours in reaching the site of the Camp, instead of three, the usual time. The path for nearly one third of the distance was so much excavated, or covered with miry sand, or entirely blocked up with flood wood, that they were obliged to grasp their way through thickets almost impenetrable, where one generation of trees after another had risen and fallen, and were now lying across each other in every direction, and in various stages of decay. The camp itself had been wholly swept away; and the bed of the rivulet, by which it had stood, was now more than ten rods wide, and with banks from ten to fifteen feet high. Four or five other brooks was passed, whose banks were enlarged, some of them twice to the extent of this.—In several, the water was now only three or four feet wide, while the bed of ten, fifteen, or twenty rods in width, was covered four miles with stones from two to five feet in diameter, that had been rolled down the mountains, and through the forests, bearing every thing before them. Not a tree, nor a root of a tree, remained in their path.—Immense piles of hemlocks and other trees, with their limbs and bark entirely bruised off, were lodged all the way on both sides, as they had been driven in among the standing and half standing trees on the banks. While the party were climbing the Mountain, thirty "slides" were counted, some of which began near the line where the soil and vegetation terminate, and covering a surface of they descended, were estimated to contain more than a hundred acres. These were all on the western side of the mountains. They were composed of the whole surface of the earth, with all its growth of woods, and its loose rocks, to the depth of 15, 20 and 30 feet. And wherever the slides of two projecting mountains met, forming a vast ravine, the depth was still greater.

Such was the report which the party from the mountains gave. The intelligence which Mr. Crawford, and the gentlemen accompanying him, brought from the Notch, was of a more melancholy nature. The road, through a turnpike, was in such a state, that they were obliged to walk to the Notch House, lately kept by Mr. Willey, a distance of six miles. All the bridges over the Amonoosuck, five in number, those over the Saco, and those over the tributary streams of both are gone. In some places the road was excavated to the depth of 15 or 20 feet; and in others it was covered with earth, and rocks, and trees, to as great a height. In the Notch, and along the deep defile below it, for a mile and a half to the Notch House, and so far as could be seen beyond it, no appearance of the road, except in one place for two or three rods, could be discovered. The steep sides of the mountains, first on one hand, then on the other, and then on both, had slid down into this narrow passage, and formed a continual mass from one end to the other, so that a turnpike will probably not be made through it again very soon if ever. The Notch House was found uninjured; though the barn adjoining it by a shed was crushed; and under its ruins were two dead horses. The house is entirely deserted; the beds were tumbled, their covering was turned down; and near them upon the chairs and on the floor lay the wearing apparel of the several members of the family; while the money and and papers of Mr. Willey were lying in his open box. From these circumstances it seemed almost certain, that the whole family were destroyed; and it soon became quite so by the arrival of a brother of Mr. Crawford from his father's six miles farther East. From him we learnt the valley of the Saco for many miles, presented an uninterrupted scene of desolation. The two Crawfords were the nearest neighbours of Willey.—Two days had now elapsed since the storm, and nothing had been heard of his family in either direction. There was no longer any room to doubt that they had been alarmed by the noise of the destruction around them, had sprung from their beds, and fled naked from the house, and in the utter darkness had been soon overtaken by the falling mountains and rushing torrents. The family, which is said to have been amiable and respectable, consisted of nine persons, Mr. Willey, and his wife and five young children of theirs, with a hired man and boy. After the fall of a single slide last June, they were more ready to take the alarm, though they did not consider their situation dangerous, as none had ever been known to fall there previous to this. Whether more rain fell now than had ever been known to fall before in the same length of time, at least since the sides of the mountains were covered with so heavy a growth of woods, or whether the slides were produced by the falling of such a quantity of rain so suddenly, after the earth had been rendered light and loose by the long drought, I am utterly unable to say. All I know, is, that at the close of a rainy day; the clouds seemed all to come together over the White Mountains, and at midnight, discharge their contents at once in a terrible burst of rain, which produced the effects that have now been described. Why these effects were produced now, and never before, is known only to Him who can rend the heavens when he will, and come down, and cause the mountains to flow down at his presence.

Yours, &c. CARLOS WILCOX.

Hanover Sept. 4. P. S.—We have just heard that the bodies of three adults of Mr. Willey's family, have been dug up, dreadfully mangled, from amid earth and rocks, about fifty rods from the house. We have also heard that many of the bridges and mills on the stream running South from the White Mountains, and forming the several branches of the Merrimack, have been swept away, and that much other damage has been done in that direction.

The Steam-packet, United Kingdom, which from its great burthern, immense mechanical power, and superb equipment, has excited such general curiosity and interest, sailed from Greenock on Saturday evening, at half-past seven, on her voyage round the North of Scotland to Leith. Its gallant bearing when afloat in the stream, was well calculated to support the credit which the unique character of the internal arrangements had obtained. Rarely has a finer vessel been seen. A great concourse assembled on the quays, to witness the departure of this proud specimen of the taste and skill of Clyde artizans. We learn that precisely one hundred individuals embraced the rare opportunity which the voyage presented, of inspecting the picturesque scenery of the north. In setting out, the weather was rather unpropitious, and continued so during part of Sunday, but Monday and Tuesday made ample amends, and rendered the excursion an extremely pleasant one. The United Kingdom arrived at New haven on Wednesday evening.—The United Kingdom is 1063 tons burthen, and has two engines of 100 horse power each.—Greenock Adv.

Self-Acting Piano Forte.—The Dublin Journal gives a long notice of the mechanism of an ingenious instrument of this kind, stating that it performs, with extraordinary effect, some of the most classical and difficult music, and that great difficulties have been surmounted by the inventors. It combines the most rapid and brilliant execution with distinctness and neatness, and they venture to affirm, that there are few players of the piano-forte that can equal it in these qualities. Its harmony is more perfect and more full than can be given by the fingers, the elements of chords having no other extent of its scale. he instrument not only plays the usual piano-forte part of a ve, but takes in also the subject of some parts the sword decrescendo and diminuendo are graduated with more precision than can be effected by means not mechanical, the time cannot be otherwise than perfectly equable throughout, except when pathos is to be expressed, the time can be retarded or accelerated in any degree. In short, this admirable instrument manifests all the capabilities of a living performer, and supersedes the quibling sterility of any mechanical agency. The mechanism is simple, it consists of a cylinder which turns on its axis, and is acted on by a coiled spring, and regulated by a fly wheel. On the surface of the cylinder a proper arrangement of brass pins is formed, each of which, in passing under a rank of levers, elevates one end of the required lever, and depresses the other. The depressed end pulls down with it a slender rod, which is connected by a slide with the tail of a lever, on the further end of which is the hammer which strides the string. The slide can be shifted further from or near to the axis, on which the hammer lever turns, and thus the stroke of the hammer is made feeble or strong to any required degree.—When wound up, the instrument will continue to play for a considerable time; and it is provided with a bunch of keys like the ordinary piano-forte, so that a person may accompany the instrument or play a duet with it, the effect of which is said to be beautiful.

Danger of Serenading.—Edinburg Police Court.—A genteel looking young man, who had excited suspicion by being found within the walls of a woodyard in Baillie Fyfe's Close, at an early hour the previous morning, was placed at the bar. According to his own account—and it had every appearance of truth—he had gone along with a companion, to pay his devotions to his sweet-heart, and had seated himself within her bearing on the top of a wall which overlooks the woodyard. Thus situated and being in a melancholy mood at not seeing the object of his affection, he gave vent to his feelings by chaunting, in a plaintive tone of voice—

"The moon had climbed the highest hill
That rises o'er the source of Dee," and coming to the words—

"Swet Mary, weep no more for me."

he gave his body an inclination, in conformity to a long and deep cadence, which had the effect of destroying his equilibrium, and he rolled over the top of a shed into the yard where he lay till he was found by the proprietors in the morning! None of the articles in the yard were found displaced or missing, he was liberated.

SUMMARY.

A Col. Fanshaw has been sent to Bermuda, to examine the defences of that island, and it is to be made a great naval depot, "in the event of a future war with the United States."

A warehouse, seven stories high, at the corner of Lydia Ann and Suffolk streets, Liverpool, fell down. Two children in the next house were killed, and several persons were buried in the ruins.

It is estimated that about a thousand young girls, milliners and mantua makers, perish a year in London, from the bad feeding, great labor, and want of rest they endure.

As a measure of relief for the suffering poor, the London Courier is in favor of emigration to Canada, to be undertaken by the government on a scale of magnitude that would ensure success.

It was unusually sickly at Liverpool, and other places, occasioned as was supposed by the extreme heat of the summer.

Mr. Wakefield's Trial.—The briefs for the prosecution are of an enormous size, occupying more than 200 sheets. Very high fees are given with the counsel on both sides. The Attorney General is to have 600 guineas, and Sergeant Cross and his other legal coadjutors about 100 each; Mr. Scarlett and Mr. Tindal 200 guineas; each.—There are at least seventy witnesses subpœnaed pro and con.

About 30 millions sterling have been expended on the Burmese war in India.

By a late fire at Copenhagen, nearly 400 buildings were destroyed.

Spain.—Ferdinand and his Cabinet are puzzled by the prevailing situation of affairs. It is even said that the King has been wrought on to promise a constitution to his own people. As he will be compelled to give it at last, he had better do it with a good grace at once; and indeed we have little doubt that he would do so, but for the influence of the satellites about him. He continues yet to dream of recovering his ancient dominions in South America.

Russia.—The Coronation was to take place at Moscow on 18th August.

India.—A rumour prevailed in the city this morning, of unfavorable news having been received from India, contained in a letter dated Veloor, March 14th. The postscript to to this letter states that our army under Sir Archibald Campbell had been entirely defeated. We need not add that this statement is utterly unworthy of credit. Madrass papers to the 14th of March have arrived, and letters from that Presidency of the 15th. The latter mention what is more entitled to belief, that Sir Archibald Campbell was advancing then on the Burmese capital, and that it was expected before he arrived there, terms of peace would be proposed.

More merchandise had been exported from Liverpool during the three weeks preceding our dates, than during any similar period this year.

The Earl of Winchelsea died in London on the 2d of August.

Paris Letters of August 9.

"The John Wells being detained, we may now state our cotton market keeps steady, and there is a fair demand to day. The accounts from Manchester of yesterday's market, are rather more favourable. There was but little done in yarns, but for goods there was a fair demand.

The number of power looms in the United Kingdom, is estimated at 57,000, which are capable of making 1,254,000 yards of cloth per day, or 1,741 yards a minute.

A London paper of Aug. 11, says, reports are in circulation in this city tending to depress the funds. The most prominent were, that Mr. Canning was to depart immediately for Paris on a mission—and disastrous news from India, said to have been received at Bourdeaux.

The Grand Turk is progressing in his measures to put down the Janissaries, many of whom have signified their obedience.

It is said there are cabals against the new order of things in Lisbon, though the enthusiasm of the inhabitants is so great that the Queen's party will probably be deterred from making any movements.

Thirty six of the St. Petersburgh conspirators have been sentenced to death; five only have suffered an ignominious end; they have been hanged. It is about sixty years since this punishment had been inflicted in Russia.

The sentence of the remainder had been commuted; most of them have been sent to the mines.

The Augsburgh Gazette has the following news from Constantinople of the 10th July:

"No material alteration has taken place in this capital since the departure of the last post. The accomplishment of the measure of government is prosecuted with activity, and tranquility has not been interrupted.

"The following is from Odessa the 13th July: The eyes of Russia are turned upon Akermann, where a conference for peace is to be opened between the Russian and Turkish commanders. It is hoped the Divan will not misunderstand the pacific spirit of the Emperor Nicholas.

A letter from Leghorn affirms, on the 19th, that Lord Cochrane's squadron was in sight of that port.

Paris, Aug. 8.—It is confidently asserted that the Duke of Belluno has given in his resignation as Major General of the guard. The Ministry, it is said, were employing every means to prevail on the Marshall to forge his intention.

There was not a single criminal, or one civil cause for trial at the Westmoreland assizes.

It is now ascertained, that including Mr. M'Intyre's children, the whole number who perished in the Comet may be set down at 63; while the survivers of this calamity, amounted to no more than thirteen.

The Russian Government has ordered that navigable canals shall be commenced, to unite, first, the Moskwa and the Volga; second, the Schekswa and the Northern Dwina, by which there will be a direct communication between the port of Archangel and that of St. Petersburg, and a road will be opened to the Baltic for native Merchandize; third, the Niemen and Vistula across the kingdom of Poland.

Accounts respecting the fair at Frankfort on the Oder, are favourable for English manufactures. The quantity of goods sold was great; the prices were, however, low.

A French provincial paper states that France is about to send 40,000 men into Spain, to overturn the Portuguese charter. This is contradicted by the Drapeu Blanc, which states that only 14,000 Spaniards are to march to the frontiers of Portugal.

Paris, August 9.

We have news from Greece to the 20th July—it is of a very unsatisfactory nature, for that country. The Greeks are less united than ever. The new government has less energy than the old. It is just removed to a small island, Boughy, opposite Napoli, which is still occupied by the Suliots and Albanians, who are not willing to deliver up the fort until they receive their arrearages.

Several villages of Attica have surrendered to the Turks.

Ibrahim is directing his attention to the Maines, which having never left the mountains to relieve the other Greeks, have never received any succour from them.

The latest intelligence from Constantinople is to the 10th July, at which time every thing was quiet at that capital, and the enthusiasm in favour of the new order of things generally prevalent, particularly among the Ulemas.

ENGLAND.

London Markets, August 9, 1826.

The commerce of the country continues progressively to improve; there appears a reaction also in the principal ports of Europe, the accounts yesterday from Russia, Hamburgh, Holland and Flanders were generally favourable as to trade, and as the markets of England continue firm at the late improvement, there will probably be a corresponding effect on the continent.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE.
BY THE RIVER.

We have been favoured with the Greenock Advertiser of the 18th August, from which we make the following extracts.—Quebec Mercury.

LONDON, Aug. 15.

His Majesty's natal day, Saturday, was celebrated at Windsor with great rejoicing. His Majesty completed his 64th year.—745 workmen employed at the Castle were regaled with a dinner by Royal command. A splendid Banquet was given by the King, at the Royal Lodge, to several distinguished personages.

The King's new Palace in St. James's Park is to be fire-proof, upon the plan of the late Earl of Stanhope.

The Duke of Wellington, who is Generalissimo and Inspector of Military Forces in the Netherlands, is expected in Belgia, whether he proceeds to ascertain if the fortresses on the French frontier are in a proper state. It is believed that his Grace, in his annual inspection, will visit Prince Metternich at Johannisberg.

Lady Byron arrived at Frankfort a few day ago.

The intended or imputed visit of Mr. Canning to the French capital, is the subject of earnest conversation every where. It is supposed to have reference to the politics of Spain.

The Greenock Advertiser contains Quebec dates to 12 July.

Several cargoes of Canadian Wheat had arrived in good condition, and the article was on the rise. The Lower Canada Wheat was spoken of as of superior quality to that of Upper Canada. The markets for Asnes and Timber continued extremely depressed. The timber sent to Ireland, particularly, had come to a very bad market, and the demand for freight to Canada was so low that few vessels would return hither from that of the Kingdom this fall.

From Liverpool Papers to August 10.

STATE OF TRADE.

We are extremely glad to state that the appearances of improvement which manifested themselves this week have continued down to the present time, and a much better feeling prevails amongst mercantile men. There appears to be in every quarter a decided stand against further depression; and on one or two articles a trifling advance has been obtained, though no material or general rise has been experienced.—Manchester Mercury.

BLACKBURN.—This town we are happy to say, has partaken of the favourable symptoms which appeared at Manchester on Tuesday week, and work has in consequence of the increased demand, been more freely delivered out to the Weavers than for several weeks previously.

The woollen trade both in Leeds and Huddersfield has undergone an alteration for the better within the last fortnight, but some of the accouts given of that improvement are highly coloured, and lead to false conclusions.—The number of unemployed is not perceptibly diminished, though many families, particularly the Irish, have left the West Riding, some of them in search of labour in the Agricultural Districts, and others on their return home.—Leeds Mer.

It is worthy of remark, that whilst the Lancashire Manufacturers are said to be in extreme distress for want of employment, harvest hands are so scarce in the fens of Lincolnshire that at Dorrington, shearers of Wheat were hired at EIGHT SHILLINGS per day, besides their ale.—Stamford Mer.

A dreadful accident occurred at Liverpool on the 7th August, a stack of warehouses, seven stories high, fell with a tremendous crash, some lives were lost, and property destroyed, to the amount of many thousand pounds.

On Monday, June 17th, the Duke of Devonshire paid his first visit of state to the Emperor of Russia, who received him at the Imperial palace of Crestoffske, about five versts from St. Petersburg. It was expected the Duke would proceed to Moscow, about the middle of July, whether the greater part of his baggage had already been forwarded.

It is rumoured in the higher circles that the order of the Garter vacant by the death of Lord Winchester, is to be given to the Duke of Devonshire on his return from Moscow.

CAPTURE OF BHURTPORE.

The following interesting extract of a letter relative to the capture of Bhurtpore, written on the 22d January last, by Capt. Grant, commanding the Palace Guards at Delhi, has been kindly transmitted to us by a much esteemed correspondent; and from the same source of information we are happy to find that our countryman, Lieut. Carmichael, of the 59th regiment, nobly distinguished himself at the fall of that celebrated fortress. He is represented along with Captain Davidson of the Engineers and ten men, as having ascended a breach before the storming columns moved off reconnoitering the defences beyond the breach and after throwing a few hand grenades among the enemy, returning with his report to the Commander in Chief. Lieut. Carmichael has since been promoted, and appointed Aid-de-camp to General Nicholls. We understand that Captain Carmichael has seen much service during the Peninsular war, and distinguished himself in a manner similar to the present, with the utmost bravery in the storming of San Sebastian. This promising young officer is a son of the late Mr. Carmichael, South Kintyra in Badenoch.

Extract of Captain Grant's Letter.

Our minds have at length been made easy by accounts of the downfall of Bhurtpore. It has long been a thorn in our side, and would have been the means of raising the whole country against us, I am persuaded, had we failed before it this time. The natives in the town here will not believe that it has been taken; and my royal friends in the palace are sadly disappointed at the turn affairs have taken, for they fully reckoned on our being beaten, and hoped to regain their former power by our downfall. But I question very much if their situation would be bettered by our removal. They pretend to be mightily pleased at our success. The old King has ordered a royal salute to be fired on the occasion, and the Heir Apparent gave me a shawl yesterday for announcing the fall to him—for he had no conception. The siege has been conducted remarkably well, though slowly; but considering the bad feeling of the natives towards us, it was best to risk nothing that time or patience could prevent. The success attimated has been most complete, and our loss by no means so great as was to be expected, or in proportion to the object gained. We have not yet had correct accounts of the killed and wounded; but I believe the outside of our loss is about thirty officers, and four hundred men killed and wounded.

The fortifications are represented as extremely strong. The walls were found so tough that our artillery could make no impression on them and recourse in consequence was obliged to be had to the slower but more secure operation of mining. The grand mine, which was charged with 14,000 barrels of gunpowder, and sprung on the morning of the 18th just before the storming party advanced, was heard here, at a distance of 100 miles, as the crow flies; and I am told was a most magnificent spectacle to those in camp—blowing up fragments of houses, stones, and earth—with numerous human bodies—to an immense height in the air. Our brave troops gained the tops of the breaches without a falter, or firing a shot, but had great difficulty in descending on the other side, owing to the stockades which the enemy had constructed. And here, I believe, the greatest carnage took place. The usurper was seized, trying to make his escape after the storm, and is now a prisoner in our camp. The young Rajah, for whom all this has been done, is also safe in our camp, and will be reinstated in his right—but I hope not before he has agreed to destroy the fortifications of his town, or we may have to act the same play over again at some future time."

ASIATIC NEWS.

BOMBAY, (INDIA,) April 12.

PERSIA.—Intelligence has arrived, of an order having been issued by the King of Persia, to his sons, who are in different provinces, requiring their attendance at the capital, accompanied by 25,000 men each, which will concentrate an army of 100,000. Abbas Mirza was also summoned to the same rendevous. The object of this military preparation, has not yet transpired.

The whole of Arracan, and the Province to the Setung river, are ceded to the English.

Accounts from Bombay mention the death of Bornajhe, a native merchant, supposed to have been worth many millions sterling. He was connected with the house of Forbes & Co.

GREECE.

Rear Admiral Rigny, commanding the French squadron in the Levant, has given an account of his capturing 14 pirate vessels on the Island of Xcgina.—At the moment he came in sight of town, with two frigates and a schooner, he unexpectedly discovered the brave Admiral Canaris engaged with a number of pirates, having threatened to burn one of their vessels, on account of the depredations they had committed. The robbers immediately fled, and Canaris came on board the French ships, to express his gratitude for their saving his life. Several piramas were burnt on the stocks, the inhabitants assisting; and the Admiral promised that one of his ships should frequently stop there to secure the place against the pirates.

The Austrian Observer speaks of a combined attack, by Reschid and Omer Pacha, against Thebes and Athens, whose inhabitants must have fled to Salamis. Col. Fabvier is now at Paros. Nothing is talked of in the Archipelago but the arrival of Lord Cochrane and ships and steam boats. The American squadron has assembled at Smyrna. The plenipotentiaries of the Porte passed the Danube on the 3d of July for Ackermann.

Portsmouth, August 5.

On Tuesday arrived the Roxborough Castle, from Quebec, in 36 days, and landed the Hon. J. Sewell, Chief Justice and Speaker of the Council in Lower Canada, and twelve other passengers. This ship commenced the new trade of importing Teas (on the East India company's account) direct from China into Canada, and has brought thence a cargo of timber and potash (on the owner's account) to England, but to a low bad market. The Tea adventure is considered a good one. The ship sailed the next day for the river.

SPAIN.

A Private accounts received from Madrid, state, that the Clergy have made a proposition to the King, that they will raise an army of 40,000 men, and pay them, provided they are permitted to select their own officers. The latter part was immediately refused. It is asserted at Madrid that the King is on the eve of issuing a Manifesto, the purport of which has not as yet transpired.

It appears the King of Spain still dreams of recovering his American colonies. The last news said to offer ground for hope, and he sends sending out reinforcements to Ad. Laborde, at Havana.—He has however no troops for the frontiers of Portugal.

TURKEY.

At Constantinople, the demolition of the dwellings of the Janissaries continued. In the other great cities of the empire, the Janissaries quietly submited to their dissolution. This fact was personally announced by the Sultan to his new troops, which already amounted to 40,000 men.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

The Lady of the Lake Steam boat was employed last week in making surveys of Lake St. Peter, under the directions of gentlemen appointed by the Montreal Board of Trade. The object was to ascertain the practicability of deepening the Lake, and the report we understand is favourable.—Brockville, Sept. 25.

The Steam Boat Toronto, is stated to have burst her steam conductor, which has prevented her accomplishing her usual trips down the river.

The Steam Boat Frontenac, made a trip to Prescott for the first time, last week, and landed several passengers at this place on passing, among whom was the Rt. Rev. Lord Bishop of Quebec, who has proceeded on a visiting tour to Perth, where he was to have preached and administered the rite of confirmation, yesterday. He is expected to be in this place to-morrow.—Recorder.

St Catherines, Sept. 27, 1826.

DEEP CUT.—Forage at this place continues very scarce, particularly hay and oats, for which extravagant prices are paid.—Farmers and others, who have any of those articles to spare, will do well to bring them on soon, as we are informed the operations of the contractors will cease, in a month or two, for the winter.

WILLIAM CROWTHER, Silversmith, of the village of Simcoe, London district, a native of England, committed suicide by hanging himself, as we are informed in a wagon-maker's shop a few rods distant from his own dwelling, on Sunday the 10th inst.—No cause is assigned for this extraordinary act, other than the sudden loss of his property, as he left an amiable and accomplished wife and several small children to mourn his untimely fate.—Farmer's Journal.

QUEBEC, September 19.

The Monarch arrived at this Port yesterday, sailed from Leith on the 11th August; but brought no papers. The Captain, however, reports that there was some mitigation of the prevailing distresses. He also states that the weather had been favourable for the harvest and crops were considered as good.—Old Gazette.

The Theatre.—Mr Kean has recovered from his late serious illness, and appeared last evening in the character of Sir Giles Overreach, in Massenger's comedy of "A new way to pay old Depts.

We understand that Mr. Kean is actually the Manager of the Dury-lane Theatre' the lease of the house having been made in his behalf by Mr. Price, in New-York.—Mercury,

TOUR OF HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR IN-CHIEF.—

The Earl and Countess of Dalhousie, attended by their suite, left town on Thursday morning last in two stages for St. Anns at the head of the Island, where they breakfasted at the house of Mr. Forbes. They then embarked on board of a very fine barge of 15 oars, called the LACHINE, prepared for that occasion, and manned by voyaguers dressed in proper costume. The barge among other flags bore one with the coat of arms of his Excellency. At about 12 o'clock, they arrived at the Indian village of the Lake of Two Mountains, where his Excellency and party landed under a salute from the guns belonging to the village. At the shore he was welcomed by the clergymen of the Mission established there, by the clergy of the neighbourhood, by the different chiefs of the Iroquois, Nipissing, and Algonkin Tribes, and by the traders, and other residents in the village. After visiting the church, and different parts of the mission, and after partaking of an excellent dinner prepared by the clergy of the place, the Governor and suite re-embarked under another salute. During the visit some of the orators made harangues in the Indian fashion, which were translated by Capt. Ducharme the King's Interpreter stationed there. British flags were displayed in abundance at the residences of the different chiefs, and at other parts of the village. About five o'clock the barge of his Excellency was perceived off the mouth of the North River and his approach was announced by signal guns in different parts of the country. At about half-past five, his Excellency and suite landed at a small landing place on the domain of the Seigneur Charles Christopher Johnson, Esqr., about two miles below the village of St. Andrews, where he was cordially welcomed by the clergy of the different persuasions, the magistrates, militia and other principal inhabitants of the neighbourhood. The Earl and Countess, in a private open carriage, were conveyed to the village, under an escort of volunteer cavalry; and, on arrival at St. Andrews, were received with a salute of 19 guns from some cannon placed along the banks of the river, and manned by a company of volunteer artillery under the command of Capt. Chapman. The Governor-in-Chief and party were conveyed to the house of James Brown, Esq., amidst the cheers of the inhabitants followed by a large cavalcade of gentlemen on horseback and in carriages. Opposite the house of Mr. Brown the whole Militia of the Seigniory were drawn up to receive his Excellency. A dinner and supper were then provided for the distinguished guests by Mr. Brown, at which were present, the clergy, magistrates, and respectable inhabitants of the neighbourhood. After the cloth was removed, an address from the inhabitants was presented to his Excellency by the Revd. Mr. Abbott, a copy of which we shall be enabled to lay before our readers in our next. On Friday morning the Governor and suite, left St. Andrews for Grenville, under an escort of the same volunteer cavalry as attended the day before. At Grenville, his Excellency breakfasted with the officers of the Royal Staff corps stationed there; and before parting, with the volunteer cavalry of St. Andrews, he declared his intentions of having them immediately embodied to be regularly inspected twice a-year. His Excellency was quite pleased, and deservedly so, with the cordial reception he received there, and the inhabitants felt gratified at knowing that his Excellency intends to renew his visit to their neighbourhood, as often as his official duties will permit.

Montreal Gazette.

The steam-boat Frontenac returned yesterday from Niagara, having notwithstanding the heavy north easterly gale on Saturday last, succeeded in landing the Chief Justice, and Solicitor General, at Coburg; and has brought down Admiral Lake, and the party which accompanied that officer, on his visit to the Falls. We understand that the Frontenac will now be laid up for the season.—Kingston Chronicle.

Our Steam Boats have of late been truly unfortunate. In addition to the catalogue of disasters already noticed, we have to state that the Toronto ran aground last night, in coming up from Prescott, but was got off without sustaining any material damage. The Steam Boat Queenston also ran upon a shoal near Reed's Bay, at the upper end of Wolfe Island some time in the course of last night, and Capt. Whiting has been obliged to come and obtain the Aid of the Frontenac, and of some boats to lighten his vessel and get her afloat. The wind has been rather heavy during the morning, and the Queenston is said to lie in an exposed situation—nevertheless, we trust she will not receive any serious injury.—Ib,

The U. E. Loyalist.

YORK, U. C. SATURDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1826.

We are indebted to the Quebec Mercury for dates to 18th August, brought by the Cherub to Quebec, 32 days from Greenock. The most important news, is that which relates to the Trade between the British West India possessions, and the United States of America. We beg leave to call the attention of our readers to the following paragraph, on the subject, taken from the London Courier.—

"Orders have been sent out to all our Colonies in the West Indies, to put in force the Act of the 6th of the King, in respect to their trade with foreign countries. By that Act the Ports of those Colonies are to be closed against the vessels of such States as do not place British shipping, trading between those Colonies and such States, upon the footing of the most favoured nation. The United States of America have declined to place our shipping upon that footing in their Ports; and, in consequence, their ships will not be admitted to entry in our West India Colonies after the 21st December.

This is considered as a fortunate event for British shipping, and as one of the results of the north of Europe will, in common with the British North American Colonies, benefit by this interruption to American trade, as the supply of flour, provisions and timber, hitherto furnished by the United States, must now be drawn from them.—(This is realeasing one step of free-trade policy.)

LONDON, Tuesday, 15*th August.*—The funds opened heavily this morning, not from any large supply of money stock, but from an apprehension of a misunderstanding between this country and the United States, relative to the suspension of the intercourse between the latter power and our Colonies. Sales of Consols were effected at 78 5-8."

The accounts from England, continue to represent Trade as improving.

HIS EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, arrived in town from Niagara on Tuesday last, and inspected the Troops at this Post. On the following day His Excellency left York and proceeded, we understand on a tour, by land, through the Western part of the Province.

With pleasure we state that the Steam Boat Queenston arrived here on Thursday last, without having sustained any serious injury in consequence of the late accident which happened by her getting a-ground near Kingston. The apprehensions which were entertained for the safety of this fine Boat are therefore happily removed. After getting off, she returned to Prescott, where the necessary repairs were immediately made, and brought up several passengers and a full cargo.

By the politeness of the Editor, we are favored with the fifth number of the Canadian Review and Magazine—Montreal September, 1826.

Among the articles it contains, the "Annals of Lower Canada for 1825," give a variety of useful and interesting matter. In the occurrences of the year is noticed the arrival of the first ships, the Moffat and Juliana, direct from India with 15841 packages of Teas. The duties on the Teas imported in these vessels is stated to amount to about £18,000, and the total value £300,000. The proportion of duties payable to Upper Canada on imports at Quebec is one fourth, so that on this article this Province will derive a Revenue of £3750, and supposing its consumption to be in the same proportion, the sum of £50,000 will be retained in the Province, which formerly went into the pockets of American smugglers. From the fact, however, that the population of Upper Canada is rather more than one third of that Province, the sum may perhaps be more correctly estimated at upwards of £60,000. The population of Lower Canada, from a census taken in 1825, was estimated at 420,679—that of Upper Canada for the same year, as far as the returns had been received, was 158,331.—When the proportion of duties payable to this Province, shall again become the subject of discussion, we agree in the opinion which has been expressed, that we shall be found to be justly entitled to one third of the amount.

The total amount of settlers for seven years, from 1819 to 1825 inclusive, landed at Quebec is stated to be 66,504—One third of these 22,801, it is supposed may be settled in Upper Canada—The remainder in equal proportions, to have remained in Lower Canada, or gone to the United States.

The Canadian Review appears to be devoted to subjects of general interest to the Country, and as a book of reference promises to afford abundant materials. The several articles it contains are written in a spirit of moderation highly commendable, and as a useful work containing much valuable information, it has our best wishes for its success.

To Correspondents.

The request of Erieus will be attended to next week.

We have been favoured with the sight of a letter from a gentleman in Quebec to his friend in this city, which states that accounts from Liverpool, to the 13th August, mention that the trade was more brisk, and money so abundant, that it could be procured on good security at 2½ per cent.—Montreal Her.

COMMUNICATION.

To the Editor of the U. E. Loyalist.

Sir,

I was some days since walking in a friends Garden, and enquiring the name of a flower, was told that it was called The Eternal Flower, from the long continuance and profusion of beauties which it yielded throughout the season. The name of the flower suggested to me the following lines, applicable to a late mournful event, which if you please, you are at liberty to insert in your paper.

On the death of a young, and beloved friend.

"She died in life's young summer"—
Just as the bud of Spring, had promise given
Of an Autumn, rich in the fruits of virtue—
That bounteous Flower, so pleasing to the sig
Transplanted now into the flowers of Bliss,
Safe from the chilling blasts of Time,
And nurtur'd by the Sun of Righteousness,
Shall bloom—in full luxuriance,
A Flower Eternal, in the Paradise of God.

In the Transport Layton.—Capt. Wm. Smyth, Lt. Donald McDonald, Ensign H. Madely, of the 68th Lt. Infantry. Ensign T. B. Shean, Asst. Sur. Robertson, of the 70th Regt. Ensign Eyre Stack, of the 71st Light Infantry. Lt. P. LePoer Trench, of the 76th Regt: 185 men, 8 women, and 5 children for the different corps in Canada; also 70 men, 20 women, and 113 children of the Royal Veteran corps, 2 men, 1 woman and 2 children of the Royal Artillery from Newfoundland for Europe.

The Army.

LIEUT. COL. FRANCIS BROOKE.

Lieutenant Colonel Francis Brooke, (who recently died at his house in Clonnerry, county Cavan, Ireland, after a severe and tedious illness,) entered the service, on the 29th April, 1791, as an Ensign in the 4th (King's Own) regiment of Foot, was promoted on 3d June, 1794, to a Lieutenancy, and obtained, on the 16th August, 1797, a company. He was advanced on the 14th August, 1804, to a Majority, and appointed on the 12th February, 1811, Lieut. Col. Commandant of the same corps. He had the honour to command the gallant King's Own, at Corunna, Badajos, Talavara, Albuera, Pyrenees, Nivelle, Nive, Salamanca, Vittoria, St. Sebastian, and Toulouse, and, after the surrender of Paris, he accompanied his regiment to America, with the army under the command of Major General Ross, and commanded it in the battles of Washington and New Orleans, at which latter place he was wounded.

Upon peace being made with America, the 4th regiment was ordered to embark for England, where they arrived in time to receive orders to proceed, without disembarking, to join the army at Brussels, then under the command of his Grace the Duke of Wellington; which, by forced marches, arrived on the plains of Waterloo to share the glory achieved there by the British arms. Lieut. Col. Brooke remained in the command of his regiment until the general peace, and consequently till the year 1818, when his gallant corps was ordered to the West Indies, he obtained leave of absence; and unfortunately left out of the army in 1820, after a most active and arduous service of 29 years and upwards. During the period of ten years that he had the honour to command that gallant regiment, he was looked up to and adored by his officers and all who knew him, and ever held and respected as a father to his men. As a proof of the estimation in which he was held by his own corps, they, upon his selling out of the army in 1820, presented him with a most costly and magnificent cup, as a token of their esteem and regard for him. His death, which took place in the 56th year of his age, is to be attributed entirely to the arduous services he underwent in the earlier part of his life. His memory will be recorded in the annals of his country, will be sacred to every British soldier that served under him, and enshrined in the fond recollection of a large circle of relatives and friends.

Mr. Barclay had but a few days previous to his last illness, returned from a journey to the Township of Auldborough, in the London District. He went to that place at the special request of a number of Scotch settlers, who wished to obtain his counsel and advice in making an application to the Church of their native land for a Clergyman of their own profession. On this fatiguing journey through an immense wilderness, travelling under a burning sun, it is supposed was laid the foundation of that complaint which terminated, in the vigour of life, the highly useful and pious labours of a man, "whose like," in all respects, we can scarcely hope to "look upon again."

As a public teacher, he stated and illustrated the general principles of christianity with much perspicuity and precision, and enforced the practice of all those duties which christianity inculcates by a winning and persuasive eloquence, peculiarly his own. He was particularly anxious to impress on the minds of his hearers the laws of brotherly love and kindness; and in all his conduct, he set a bright example of the precepts he taught.

His memory will be ever cherished with sincerest affection by his congregation, and all who knew him, as uniting, in an eminent degree, the amiable goodness of a christian with the manners of the perfect gentleman.—Kingston Chronicle.

POSTSCRIPT

The New York papers received by this Morning's mail have brought us London and Liverpool dates to 2d September, from which we make the following extracts.—

The London Traveller, has the following remarks on the West India Trade.

"Our new and more liberal system of free trade, has encountered more obstacles, than was anticipated. Mr. Huskisson's arguments, could effect a change in the policy of France; and the Government of the United States, has refused to admit British ships into their ports, on the same terms and on same duties as American ships from the same quarter. This is a jealous and illiberal policy on the part of America and has been met by an order of our Colonial Governors, to prohibit all intercourse with the United States, in American vessels, from the 1st December next.

The London Gazette announces that His Majesty has appointed lord F. Montague to be postmaster general, vice the Earl of Chichester, deceased.

The London Price Current of Aug. 22d, says—The accounts from all the ports of the continent continue favourable as to the revival of trade.—There is intense interest excited among the foreign merchants on account of the rapid advance in spring corn. Wheat is a fine crop, Barley middling, Oats very short, Beans and Peas a complete failure. It is there anticipated that the ministers will immediately issue an order in council permitting the importation of 500,000 quarters foreign corn, as authorized. This would give a great impulse to the trade of the country.

PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors, of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province; to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on Thursday the Tentyfifth day of Sept. inst. to be Commenced, Held, Called, and Elected, and to every of you

GREETING

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Tenth day of August last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the Twenty-first day of September instant, at which time, at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear.

NOW KNOW YE, that we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents enjoining you and each of you that on Monday the Thirtieth day of October next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding our Forces therein, at York, this Twentieth day of September in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-six, and in the Seventh Year of our reign.

UPPER CANADA.

P. MAITLAND,
Lieut. Governor.

GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To all to whom these Presents shall come

GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the parts of this Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. We have thought fit to order and direct, and We do hereby order and direct that, until Our pleasure herein shall be further made known, t shall and may be lawful for all Our Subjects inhabiting Our Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada, freely to enter into Our Woods and Forests in such parts of Our said Province of Upper Canada, situate along the Banks of the River Ottawa, or upon the Banks of the Waters running into the said River and within a convenient distance from the same, as shall not have been Surveyed and divided into Concessions and Lots, and to Cut and carry away such Oak and Pine Timber as may be fit for the purposes of Exportation.

Provided always, nevertheless, That in consideration of the authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties herein-after specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Red Pine Timber, Four Pounds Three Shillings and Four Pence, being at the rate of One Penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Yellow Pine Timber, Two Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence, being at the rate of One Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commission under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places upon the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointedas aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has attained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons, properly authorized by or under Our Licence granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS Our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this Twentieth day of September in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-Six, and in the Seventh Year of Our Reign.

Executive Council Office,
York, 23rd March, 1826.

NOTICE is hereby given, by ORDER of His EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, in COUNCIL, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a regular Council day.

JOHN SMALL.
C. E. C.

No. 9 1. f.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepard in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s. 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Lanc must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form; Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hunded Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant.

It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessarry expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

Upper Canada, } SIR PEREGRINE
COURT OF PROBATE, } MAITLAND, K. C.
York to Wit: } B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein and Judge of the Court of Probate, within the said Province, &c. &c. &c.

To PATRICK CONIGAN, late of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, and Province aforesaid, as Nephew and next of Kin of Bartholomew Conigan, deceased.

WHEREAS John McLean, of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, Yoeman, lately exhibited a petition in the said Court of Probate, setting forth that you the said Patrick Conigan, some years ago procured Letters of Administration from the Court of Probate aforesaid, to the Estate of the late Bartholomew Conigan, of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, Hawker and Pedlar, deceased. That you the said Patrick Conigan collected all the monies due to the said Bartholomew Conigan, but have left this Province and not discharged the Debts of the said Bartholomew Conigan, although he the said Bartholomew Conigan died possessed of ample property to do so. That the said Petitioner in the month of July one thousand eight hundred and twenty two obtained a verdict against you the said Patrick Conigan, Administsator as aforesaid, for the sum of Seven Pounds ten shillings, on which the said Petitioner has since entered up Judgment. That the said Petitioner has never received satisfaction of the said judgment, and there being no property now remaining in this Province on which an Execution could be levied; Wherefore the said John McLean humbly prays that a Citation may issue calling on you the said Patrick Conigan, as Administrator aforesaid, to appear in the said Court of Probate on the First day of January next ensuing, and shew cause why you should not pay the said debt and do whatever the said Court my require in the Premises of the said Petition. Now therefore these are to Cite and require you the said Patrick Conigan, as Administrator to the Estate of the said late Bartholomew Conigan, deceased, on the First day of January next ensuing the date hereof to produce and exhibit into the Register's Office of the said Court of Probate, a true, full and perfect Inventory of all the goods, chattles, rights and credits which were of the said Bartholomew Conigan, deceased, at the time of his death, and make, or cause to be made, a true and just account of your Administration, and to shew cause why you will not pay the said debt for which the said John McLean has entered up Judgment against you as Administrator to the Estate of the said late Bartholomew Conigan, deceased. Dated at York, in the Province aforesaid, this Eighth day of September, One thousand eight hundred and twen-six.

VOL. I. YORK, U. C. SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1826. NO 20.

ORIGINAL POETRY.

FOR THE U. E. LOYALIST.

O! WHY SHOULD I MUSE?

O why should I muse on the days that are past,
Since they bring to my mind disappointment and pain!
They once were my theme—but some rude ruffian blast
Hurl'd darkness and sorrow along in their train.
They once were my theme!—I could dwell with delight,
On the prospect of pleasure their vista display'd,
The hues of the rainbow were never more bright;
And I thought them too glorious ever to fade.

Young fancy had gilded those days with her beam:
They were rushy as then in futurity's womb:
They came—but their glory was naught but a dream:
They are numbered—and count on the score of my doom!

They are gone—but their ghosts, ever faithful to me,
At noon and at midnight disturb my repose,
Like the spectres of crimes unforgiven:—I'd flee.
But they trace all my steps with the malice of foes.

O! what was the blast that howled over the sky
That hung dark on those days? and why did their bloom,
That fame had touch'd, fade so soon, and why,
Did they, hapless, count on the score of my doom?

And why do their ghosts, as the ghosts of crime,
Still haunt the deepest abodes of my breast?
Or why do I fear to look back upon time,
Or feel that to me he has been unblest?

O draw not not my thoughts from their dark retreats
The death could be but a statement of shame,
Had folly or vice never guided my feet,
It were not my reproach these days to name.

This is my confession.—But why should you chide?
Go search in the depths of your own proud heart,
And there you may find what will soften its pride:
Nay perhaps will cause e'en yourself to start.

O! shrink not away!—for why should we shun
The knowledge of self?—it were death not to know!
Why trifle, when every revolving sun
Takes one from our number of suns below!

We live to our pleasure, and count not the cost,
Till bankruptcy thunders aloud at our gate!
Then we see every day—every hour that is lost
Falls heavy and dead in the scale of our fate.

With me then take the unsightly review—
I would fain we were spar'd—but the dark account,
Unless brought forth in a statement true,
May sink our bark with its fearful amount.

Then why should I ponder the days that are past,
Since bitterness only they bring to my mind?
It is this—that when summoned from hence at last,
A FRIEND to retrieve all my loss I may find.

ERIEUS.

Flour Pots for Rooms.—At the meeting of the Horticultural Society, on the 6th ult. a paper was read upon the subject of cultivating plants, in pots filled with moss only, and not mould. It appeared that the method to be pursued was, to fill a pot with coarse moss of any kind, in the same manner as it would be filled with earth, and to place a cutling or a seed in this moss. The Secretary was understood to say he was acquainted with the practice, and that it succeeded admirably, especially with plants desired to ornament a drawing room. In such a situation, plants grown in moss were stated to thrive better than if they were in garden mould, and to possess the very great advantage of not causing dirt, by the earth washing out of them, when watered. For transportation, plants rooted in moss are said to be better adapted, on account of their lightness; in short, the method was declared to be in all ways excellent. The principle of the practice seems to be this: that moss rammed into a pot, and subjected to continual watering, is soon brought into a state of decomposition, when it becomes a very pure vegetable mould; and it is well known that very pure vegetable mould is the most proper of all materials for the growth of almost all kinds of plants. The moss would also not retain more moisture than precisely the quantity best adapted to the absorbent powers of the root, a condition which can scarcely be obtained, with any certainty, by the use of earth.

Beautiful Extract.—A delicate child, pale and prematurely wise, was complaining, on a hot morning, that the poor dew drop had been too hastily snatched away, and not allowed to glitter on the flowers, like other happier dew drops, that live the whole night through, and sparkle in the moonlight, and through the morning, onwards to noon-day. "The sun," said the child, "has chased them away in his heat, or swallowed them up in his warmth." Soon after came rain and a rainbow; where-upon his father pointed upwards: "See," said he, "there stand thy dew drops gloriously re-set, a glittering jewelry in the Heavens; the cloven foot tramples on them no more. By this, my child, am I taught, that what withers on earth blossoms again in Heaven." Thus the father spoke, prefiguring words; soon after the delicate child, with the morning brightness of his early wisdom was inhaled, like a dew drop in Heaven.

Remarkable fact.—Christianity began its progress at Jerusalm; at the expiration of forty days after the death of Christ, it numbered about 120 followers, immediately after, 3000, and soon after 5000 more, and in little less than in two years, great multitudes at Jerusalem alone as well as throughout Judea. Mahomed was three years in making 14 converts, and of those, two were of his own family; and proceeded so slow at Mecca, where he had no establish religion to contend with, that in the 7th year, when he was compelled to flee to Medina, only 85 men and 18 women retired to Ethiophia. Within a century from the time of the ascention, Christianity, without any aid but that of preaching, pervade not merely Syria and Lybia, Egypt and Arabia, Persia and Melsopotamia; not merely Asia Minor, Armenia and Parthia, but a large portion of Europe. Islam, on the contrary, had no considerable success, until it achieved it by the sword in making Proselytes.

Mr. TULLY, of Islington, has constructed an achromatic telescope, the largest and most perfect yet made in England.

The object glass of the telescope is seven inches in diameter.

The glass was manufactured at Neuchatel, in Switzerland, and cost about £30; the grinding and adjusting of it by Mr. Tully, are valued at £200, namely, for the compound object glass alone. The length of the telescope is 12 feet; it is mounted in a temporary wooden case, and is supported on a frame moved by pulleys and a screw; it is easily adjusted, and is perfectly steady. The magnifying powers range from 200 to 780 times; but the great excellence of the telescope consists more in the superior distinctness and brilliancy with which objects are seen through it, than in its magnifying power. With a power of 240, the light of Jupiter is almost more than the eye can bear, satellites appear as bright as Sirius, but with a clear and steady light; and all the belts and spots upon the face of the planet are most distinctly defined. With a power of near 400, Saturn appears large and well defined, and is one of the most beautiful objects that can well be conceived. The great advantage which this telescope possesses over reflecting telescopes of equal size, is the greater degree of light, by which the most delicate object in the heavens is rendered distinct and brilliant. England had the honour of discovering the principle of the achromatic telescope; but our artists have ever had great difficulty in obtaining suitable glass for the purpose, and the excise laws have hitherto prevented proper experiments being made at our glass-houses. An establishment has recently been formed in Surrey, for the manufacture of glass for achromatic telescopes, under the superintendence of men of science, and with permission to make experiments without the interference of the excise.

Pitcairn's Island.—This little spot has lately attracted our notice in consequence of a letter addressed by John Adams, in behalf of the islanders to Mr. Bingham, American Missionary at the Sandwich Islands, in which he expresses the earnest desire of the inhabitants to be favoured with a minister of the gospel, and promises that if one can be obtained, his situation among them shall be as comfortable and pleasant as they have the means of making it. These islanders possess almost every thing that can render life really desirable—their numbers are too few, and their territory too distant and inconsiderable to excite foreign jealousy—they are free from the ravages of war, from robbery by pirates and freebooters,—their pacific disposition, and the influence of religious and moral principle prevent intestine commotion.—Perhaps no part of the world offers so quiet and happy a residence to a missionary, as this island. Indeed he would rather be the pastor of a people already christians, who would be no less disposed to profit by his instructions than even the best of congregations in our own land.

Vegetable Life.—An instance of the tenacity of vegetable life, occurred lately in the Royal Park at Bushey. A small portion of the ground was broken up for ornamental culture, when immediately several flowers sprang up, of the kinds usually cultivated in gardens; this led to an investigation, and it was ascertained that this identical plot had been used as a garden in the time of Oliver Crotwell, more than 50 years before—Month Mag.

SUMMARY.

The fortifications of Bhurtpore have been demolished; the principal bastions, and parts of several curtains were blown up on the 6th of February, and it is left to the rains to complete the ruin. The Putty Bourge, or 'bastion of victory,' built as the Bhurtporeans vaunted, with the bones and blood of Englishmen who fell in the assault under Lord Lake, is now laid low, and among the destroyers were some of those 'white men permitted to fly from her eternal walls,' who after a period of twenty years, returned to the assult to witness her towers and battlements crumbling to dust.—There is a Dutch proverb which says that 'early risers double time.'

The delay in the sailing of the steam boats destined to join Lord Cochrane, has not been occasioned, as is generally supposed, by the interference of the Government, but owing to some defects in the machinery.

Stupendous Canal.—Frankfort papers to the 4th instant have been received. They contain the project of a stupendous canal for connecting the Rine with the Seine at Paris, and communicating with the English Channel at Havre. Holland is another canal on a large scale is making from the Ha e to the North Sea at Schevenergen.

Brussels, July 31.—The great system of canalisation in the Netherlands continues to be more and more extended. A great navigable canal for merchantmen is now making between Gand and Scheverenergen, where there is an excellent establishment for bathing on the North Sea. By this means the beautiful town of the Hague will become a maritime and commercial city, and it will derive great advantage from a direct communication by sea with London, by means of steam boats. New canals are also making in Brabant and Guelderland. The canal of Liege, will unite with the Maes, with the Scheldt and the Rhine.

The late Bishop of Cloyne.—His Lordship has left four sons and one daughter. His eldest son is a captain in the East India Company's service; his second, Archdeacon of Tuam, Chancellor of Limerick, and Rector of Rathkeal; his third, Lieut. Colonel commanding the 55th Regt. the fourth Chanter of Limerick and Rector of Keal; his only daughter is married to the Rev. W. W. Mansell, Archdeacon of Limerick.

The amount of the gold in value, is from £450,000 to £460,000 it is in large bars, and is, we understand, the produce of the mines in Russia, which have of late been worked with so much success.—Courier.

Extraordinary Dispatch.—The reader will form some idea of the dispatch with which news is forwarded through the kingdom, when we state that the proceedings in Wakefield's case which took place in the Court at Lancaster, on Monday forenoon, were published in the Courier, evening paper, on the afternoon of the following day; and arrived in this town on Wednesday, having travelled a distance of four hundred and fifty six miles in about fifty-six hours including at least four hours in printing and dispatching the paper from town.—Preston Pilot.

Some of our readers may not be aware, that notwithstanding the permissive power given by Parliament to Ministers in the last session to admit foreign grain into this country, that power is confined entirely to wheat and wheaten flour, and does next extend to oats or other spring corn. The act is the 7th Geo. 10 chap. 71, and provides "That at any time after the end of the present session of Parliament, and until the first day January, 1827, or six weeks after the commencement of the then next ensuing session of Parliament, if it shall not then be sitting, it shall be lawful for His Majesty, by an order or orders by him issued, and by the advice of his Privy Council to admit to entries for home consumption, any quantity of warehoused wheat or wheaten flour, not exceeding 500,000 quarters in the whole, on payment of such duty, as shall be declared in any such order to be payable upon the entry of the same. ENGLAND.

TRADE WITH THE BRITISH COLONIES.

From the London Gazette, Aug. 18.

At the Court at St. James', the 27th July, 1826 —present, the King's Most Excellent Majesty in Council—

Whereas by an act, passed in the sixth year of the reign of His present Majesty, entituled, "An act to regulate the trade of the British possessions abroad," after reciting, that, "by the law of navigation, foreign ships are permitted to import into any of the British possessions abroad, from the countries to which they belong, goods the produce of those countries, and to export goods from such possessions to be carried to any foreign country whatever," and that "it is expedient that such permission should be subject to certain conditions," it is enacted, "that the privileges thereby granted to foreign ships, shall be limited to the ships of those countries, which, having colonial possessions, shall grant the like privileges of trading with those possessions to British ships; or which, not having colonial possessions, shall place the countries to which ships of any such country, and of its possessions abroad, upon the footing of the most favoured nation, unless His Majesty by his order in Council, shall, in any case, deem it expedient to grant the whole or any of such privileges to the ships of any foreign country, although the conditions aforesaid shall not, in all respects, be fulfilled by such foreign country;" and whereas, the conditions mentioned and referred to in the said Act of Parliament, have not, in all respects, been fulfilled by the Government of the United States of America, and therefore the privileges so granted as aforesaid, by the law of Navigation to foreign ships, cannot lawfully be exercised or enjoyed by the ships of the United States aforesaid: unless his Majesty, by his order in Council, shall grant the whole or any of such privileges to the ships of the United States aforesaid: and whereas, his Majesty doth deem it expedient to grant to the ships of the United States, such of the said privileges as are hereinafter mentioned; his Majesty doth therefore, with the advice of his Privy Council, and in pursuance and exercise of the powers and authorities in him vested by the said act of Parliament, declare and grant that it is and shall be lawful for the ships of the United States aforesaid, to import into any of the British possessions abroad, from the said United States, goods the produce of the United States aforesaid, and not enumerated in the table of prohibitions and restrictions in the said act contained, and to export goods from such British possessions abroad, to be carried to any foreign country whatever, provided always that such goods so imported, shall be subject and liable to the payment of the duties imposed and made payable under and by virtue of the said act of Parliament; provided also, and his Majesty doth further, with the advice aforesaid, declare that the privileges so granted as aforesaid to the ships of the United States, so far as respects the British possession in the West Indies, and on the Continent of South America, and so far as respects the Bahama Islands and the Bermuda or Somer Islands, and so far as respects his Majesty's settlements in the Island of Newfoundland, and the several Islands belonging to and dependent on those settlements, shall absolutely cease and determine upon and from the 1st day of December, which will be in this present year, 1826; provided also, and his Majesty doth further, with the advice aforesaid, declare that the privileges so granted as aforesaid, to the ships of the said United States, so far as respects the colony of the Cape Good Hope, and the Islands, settlements and territories belonging thereto, and dependent thereupon, and so far as respects the Island of Mauritius, and the several Islands and territories belonging thereto, or dependent thereupon, and so far as respects the Island of Ceylon, and the several islands and territories belonging thereto, and dependent thereupon, shall absolutely cease and determine upon and from the 1st of March, which will be in the year 1827; provided also, and his Majesty doth further, with the advice aforesaid, declare that the privileges, so granted as aforesaid to the ships of the said United States, so far as respects his Majesty's settlements in the Island of New Holland, and the several Islands and territories belong thereto, and dependent thereupon, and so far as respects the island of Van Diemen's Land and the several islands and territories belonging thereto, and dependent thereupon, shall absolutely cease and determine upon and from the 1st day of May, which will be in the said year 1827; provided also, that nothing in this present order contained, extends, or shall be constructed to extend, to infringe or interfere with the convention of commerce and navigation, concluded between his late Majesty King George III. and the United States of America, bearing date the 3d day of July, 1815; or the further convention of commerce and navigation, concluded between his said late Majesty and the United States of America, bearing date the 20th day of October, 1818;—or to prevent ships of the said United States from importing into any of the British possessions in Europe, or from exporting from such British possessions in Europe, any goods which, under or by virtue of the said conventions, or either of them, or of the several acts of Parliament made for carrying such conventions into effect, can or may be lawfully imported into or exported from such British possessions in Europe in the ships of the said United States. And whereas, by a certain act of Parliament, passed in the fourth year of the reign of his present Majesty, entitled "An Act to authorise his Majesty, under certain circumstances, to regulate the duties and drawbacks on goods imported or exported in foreign vessels, and to exempt certain vessels from pilotage," it is among things enacted, "that it shall and may be lawful so and for his Majesty, by and with the advice of his Privy Council, whether it shall be deemed expedient, to levy and charge any additional duty or duties of customs, or to withold the payment of any drawbacks, bounties or allowances upon any goods, wares or merchandize imported into or exported from the United Kingdom, or imported into or exported from any of his Majesty's dominions, in vessels belonging to any foreign country in which higher duties shall have been levied, or smaller drawbacks, bounties or allowances granted upon such goods, wares or merchandize when imported into or exported from such foreign country in British vessels, than are levied or granted upon similar goods, wares or merchandize when imported or exported in vessels of such country; and it is thereby provided, "that such additional or countervailing duties so to be imposed, and drawbacks, or allowances to be withheld as aforesaid, shall not be of greater amount than may be deemed fairly to countervail the difference of duty, drawback, bounty or allowance paid or granted on goods, wares or merchandize imported into or exported from such foreign country in British vessels, more or less, than the duties, drawbacks, bounties or allowances there charged or granted upon similar goods, wares or merchandize imported into or exported from such foreign country in vessels of such country; and whereas by an act of Parliament, passed in the fifth year of the reign of his present Majesty, entitled "An Act to indemnify all persons concerned in advising, issuing or acting under a certain order in Council, for regulating the trade to and from certain foreign vessels and to amend an Act of the last session of Parliament, for authorising his Majesty under certain circumstances, to regulate the duties and drawbacks on goods imported or exported in any foreign vessels," it is among other things enacted "that it shall and may be lawful to and for his Majesty, by and with the advice of his Privy Council or by his Majesty's order or orders in Council, to be published from time to time in the London Gazette, (whenever it shall be deemed expedient,) to levy and charge any additional or countervailing duty or duties of tonnage upon or in respect of any vessels which shall enter any of the ports of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland or in any of his Majesty's dominions, and which shall belong to any foreign country of which any duties of tonnage shall have or shall be levied upon or in respect of British vessels entering the ports of such country, higher or greater than are levied or granted upon or in respect of the vessels of such country; and it is thereby provided, that additional or countervailing duties, so to be levied and charged as aforesaid, shall not be of greater amount than may be deemed fairly to countervail the difference of duty paid in such foreign country upon or in respect of the vessels of such country; and whereas British vessels entering the ports of the United States aforesaid from the ports of his Majesty's possessions, in America or the West Indies, with cargoes consisting of the growth, produce or manufacture of the said possessions, are charged with a duty of one dollar per ton, for tonnage duties and ligh tmoney and a discriminating duty of ten per cent. is charged upon the cargoes of such vessels, to which vessels, of the United States, and cargoes of the same description, entering the ports of the United States from the ports of his Majesty's said possessions, are not subject; his Majesty, by virtue of the powers vested in him by the said Acts of Parliament, passed in the 4th and 5th years of his Majesty's reign, by and with the advice of his Privy Council, is pleased to order, and it is hereby ordered, that from and after the period aforesaid all vessels of the United States which shall enter any of the ports of his Majesty's possessions on the Continent of North America, with articles of the growth, production or manufacture of the United States, or which, until the 1st said day of December, 1826, shall enter with any such articles any of the ports of his Majesty's possession in the West Indies or South America, or in the Bahama Islands, or in the Bermuda or Somer islands a duty of 4s. 3d. sterling for each and every ton burthen of such vessel, equal, as nearly as may be, to the cents of the money of the United States and being the difference between the tonnage duty payable by vessels of the United States and British vessels entering any of the ports of the said United States from any ports of his Majesty's dominions in America or the West Indies; and further, an addition of 10 per cent. upon the duties set forth in the said Act of Parliament, passed as aforesaid in the 6th year of his Majesty's reign, on any of the articles therein enumerated, which may be imported into his Majesty's said possession son the continent of N. America, in any vessel of the said United States, or which, until the said 1st day of December, 1826, may be imported into his Majesty's said possessions in the West Indies or South America, or into the Bahama Islands, or into the Bermuda or Somer Islands, in any such vessels of the said States; such duties to be levied collected and applied in the same manner and to the same purposes as the duties levied under the authority of the said act of the 6th year of his Majesty's reign.

And the Right Hon. the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury are to give the necessary directions herein accordingly.

Edward Gibbon Wakefield, indicted at the Lancaster Assizes, for the crime of misdemeanour, for the abduction of Miss Turner, a minor, was on Monday, 14th August allowed by the court to traverse the case to next Assizes.

It is reported that government intends to propose to parliament to make silver a tender for the payment of sums not exceeding 25l.

Lieut. Bell, of the 58th Foot, was accidentally killed at Sandymount, while the men were practising ball-fighting at a target.

The Ship Harmony of Leith, Young, master, sailed from Tobermory on the 23d July, with 160 emigrants for Cape Breton, being the first of three vessels proceeding from that place with emigrants for the same destination.

The first vessel from Leith to India direct cleared out on Saturday 7th August, viz. the Louisa, Mackie, for Calcutta.

Whitehall, August 11.—The King has been pleased to appoint Frederick Montagu, Esq. commonly called Lord Frederick Montagu, to be His Majesty's Posmaster-General, vice the Earl of Chichester, deceased.

Parliament has been prorogued from the 24th of August to the 2d of November.

A number of vessels are fitting out at London, said to be destined to join Lord Cochrane.

The London, 110, now building in Plymouth Dockyard, with a round stern, on Sir Robert Sepping's plan is ordered to be completed forthwith. She will be one of the largest ships in our navy, and though only rated at 110 guns, she will carry many more. The Cerebus, 46, now on the stocks, is also to be finished with all possible despatch.

It is confidently stated that the Directors of the Bank of England have determined upon establishing a Branch in Liverpool.

A Liverpool paper of Sept. 2 says, "no well accredited intelligence respecting the affairs of Greece, has lately been received from any other quarter. Reports indeed, have been circulated in abundance, of the arrival of Lord Cochrane at Napoli, but they were like anticipatory rumours of a probable and unexpected event, rather than authentic announcements of the fact itself. In the mean time the most unpleasant sensation has been produced by the reported discovery of the inefficiency of the machinery, furnished for the equipment of the remainder of the steam vessels, constructed for the service, under his Lordship's orders. We participate most fully in the chagrin and disappointment, which such an occurrence must have caused, to every friend of freedom, and well wisher to the cause of the Greeks."

A letter from Trieste, Aug. 14, says:—"We expect, with impatience further accounts from Morea. The Captain of a ship arrived here yesterday from Constantinople, states, that on the 11th July, he heard a violent cannonade near the island of Samos, and had heard, afterwards, that the Capt. Pacha had attacked that island."

Liverpool, Sept. 2.

Corn Exchange.—There was a fair attendance at Tuesday's market, but owing to the late advance in prices, and the small show of fresh samples, both of wheat and oats, the business done was inconsiderable. For wheat there was a good inquiry, but few, if any, holders were inclined to make sales; some parcels to arrive have found purchasers at five shillings pr. bushel. With regard to the laws affecting the importation of Corn, it may be proper to remark, that, under the act of 1822, the ports are now shut and will continue so till the 15th November, against the importation for consumption of all kinds of foreign grain and flour; for Canadian wheat the ports will remain open until the expiration of the next session of Parliament, at a duty of 5s per qr. The ports are also open until the 15th November, to the importation from Canada of oates at a duty of 4s. beans 7s. peas 8s. per qr.

American flour, new, in bond, 24s to 25s per bbl of 196lbs. net; do. duty paid £1 12 a £1 14.

Canadian, free 27s to 29s.

That celebrated establishment, Peel's Coffee-house, was brought to the hammer, on Thursday, at Garraway's. The property comprises the premises in Fleet-street, held for six and a half years from mid-summer last, at a rental of £250 per annum, with the vendor's interest in and to an agreement for the extension of the lease to 21 years, from Christmas, 1826, subject to the purchaser's expending £500 in enlarging and improving the front of the house, and to insure. Included in the purchase are the files of nearly all the papers published in Great Britain, among which that of the London Gazette for nearly 60 years.—The whole comprised in one lot, was knocked down for 1,500.

SCOTLAND.

There is within these few days a rather brighter prospect of a revival in trade, than there has been for a long time past. The English merchants finding that goods are now as low as they can possibly be, are coming with some spirit into the market, and have made considerable purchases. This will enable the manufacturers to reduce their stocks, and in replacing them give employment to a number of the distressed, but patient operatives. Several manufacturing houses are about to increase the number of their workmen, and one or two have done so to some extent. In the beavier fabrics there is also a little improvement which it is hoped will continue.—Glasgow, August 22.

The public are not aware that Lieutenant George Lindsay, R. N. has laid before His Majesty's Ministers a proposal for employing the poor out of work, by means of recovering certain lands from the sea, along the coast of Great Britain, pointing out that the lands so recovered would soon of repay the nation for the outlay, and that the grounds afterwards might be held forever as belonging to the Crown, to pay part of the country's expenditure. We know such pleasure in stating from good authority, that his proposal has been honoured by a hearing, and trust that government will seriously consider it at the next meeting of Parliament.—Edinburgh paper.

IRELAND.

A Dublin paper says—"Distress, we are concerned to state, prevails to a large extent in this town, Cashel, New-Inn, and the surrounding country. Many places the people are living on one meal a day, and the food then consists of boiled nettles. Fever, Choleramorbus, and dysentary are very prevalent in town and country. In many places the people are living on bread made of pollen; but this also is rising in price. Water, too, is failing in many towns and in various parts of the country. Cattle are, every day, deteriorating in value, in consequence of the want of grass, and have already arrived at an unprecedented price. The most gloomy prospects are to be apprehended in consequence of the want of rain. Yet amidst this general want and distress, it is truly melancholy to observe that the masons in this town have refused to work, unless an increase of wages would take place.

The Dublin Evening Post of August 19, contains the following extracts of a letter, addressed by Mr. Parker, of Passage, to the Right Hon. Robert Peel. Mr. Parker has, at the request of Mr. Peel, opened a communication with Mr. Goulburn on the subject of his letter:

Passage West, July 31, 1826.

"Sir—The entire face of the country, not only physical but moral, is changed. A drought of general extent, and of unparalelled continuance, has desolated our once green fields, and has given to the parched land that arid hue, which is of periodical occurrence in warmer latitudes. The wheat crops resisted the blighted effects of drought but the wheat of Ireland would not feed one-third of its inhabitants. The early potatoes have most lamentably failed, being not one-tenth of the produce of last year. The late potatoes, which from the staff of life of the Irish poor, do not afford the slightest prospect of relief, as the seed in general, if not burnt up by the excessive heat, has been inactive in the ground for want of moisture. The oat, unfortunately affords no substitute, as this, of all culineferous plants, has suffered most. It may be considered totally destroyed, except on lands open to powerful irrigation, or within the influence of a mountain shade. The barley may be considered about one-third, of a general average, but it is entirely burnt up on high lands, affording no food to man or beast. It is not man alone that is likely to suffer from this awful visitation of Divine Providence. The cattle now in the summer months, exhibit symptoms of death from absolute starvation. The poor farmers, and those from the vicious system of our rural economy form the mass of Irish agriculturalists, have been obliged to cut all their grass, and many the green corn, to keep their cattle alive. These sources are now entirely exhausted; whilst the roots of the grasses, clovers, and vetches, are absolutely burnt up and will require a long continuance of rain to restore them to vegetation. No sustenance whatsoever can be expected from turnips, rape, or mangle wurtzel. In former periods of scarcity, the stoppage of the distilleries was a measure generally resorted to, but now the appalling appearance of the pastures renders it very questionable, as the distilleries afford food to thousands of cattle, and employment to many hundreds of human beings. The last crop I shall refer to is the flax. This staple article of Irish industry has participated in the almost general ruin, and which awfully affected the interests of our poor. On the whole, such a dreadfully alarming season has not occurred within the memory of the oldest man in Ireland. The question will be, whether the people of Ireland," may live, and not die," for death from hunger has overtaken, is overtaking, and will overtake, many of our fellow-creatures—whilst the very few resident gentry, from the non-collection of their rents, will be unable to employ or to support the poor!

Mr. Parker, after stating his opinion that private subscription will not meet the present exigency, proceeds thus: "The chief remedy I would submit to you is employment for the able, for employment is the best charity, the only beneficial way of feeding the starving man, and rural asylums for the infirm, aged, and destitute poor, I wish would, under God, prevent the demoralizing system of poor laws being introduced into Ireland. The asylums to be supported by a tax on absentees, and the acknowledged luxuries not now taxed."

The letter concludes thus:—

"As famine threatons to be sore in the land, it questionably becomes the first duty of Statesmen to avert its evil. Ireland does not possess internal resources at present, and, like the Israelites of old, we must look to foreign supplies of grain, and allow no export from the United Kingdom."

Foreign Intelligence.

Portugal.—The disaffection of the Portuguese troops, on the frontiers, appears to have partially ceased. Tranquility prevails in most of the provinces.

Sir Charles Stuart and family have left Lisbon for England. He was to stop at the Western Islands in his way, for purposes connected with the promulgation of the new constitutional charter.

The Infant Don Miguel has taken the oath to the Portuguese constitutional charte.

Peace in India.—We have the satisfaction of announcing, that hostilities between the Burmese and the British have terminated; and there is no probability after the bitter experience which the former have had, that the attempt will be renewed to evade the conditions of the treaty which has been ratified.

An overland despatch, dated Calcutta, April 7, arrived this morning at the India House, announcing that a treaty of peace, nearly similar to the former one was ratified, on the 24th February, at Yanbaboo, within four days' march of Ummerapoora, after some severe fighting. The first instalment had been paid. Sir Archibald Campbell had left the headquarters of his army, and had arrived at Calcutta. He was to return by the Enterprise, steam vessel, to Rangoon, to superintend the re-embarkation of the troops, about the 4th of June, at which period the second instalment would become due.

The following notification was posted at the Jerusalem Coffee House this morning:

An overland despatch has been received by His Majesty's Government from Bengal, dated Calcutta, April 7, via Bombay and Constantinople.

The Treaty of Peace between the Burmese and the English was ratified on the 24th February, upon the conditions of the preliminary treaty.

The Army under Sir A. Campbell had returned to Rangoon, and Sir A. Campbell was proceeding to Calcutta.

The Burmese cede to the English the provinces of Yeh, Tavoy, Mergui, and Tenasserim.

The King of Siam and his subjects are included in the stipulations of the treaty.

An accredited British Minister, with an escort of fifty men, is to reside at the Court of Ava, and an accredited Burmese Minister, attended by a similar escort, to reside at Calcutta.

The Burmese, by virtue of the Treaty, give up all claim to Assam, Cachar, and Jyntea, and acknowledge Gumbeer Singh, Rajah of Munnipore.

The British are to retain Arracan, Ramree, Chebuba, and Sandowey. The total amount of the indemnity to be paid by the Burmese, is one crore of rupees.

A commercial Treaty is to be entered into between both powers, stipulating for freedom of navigation, including the commerce in grain.

There was some severe fighting before the Burmese monarch acceded to the conditions.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

DISASTROUS EVENT.

We are sorry to learn, that on Monday last, in attempting to tow across lake Ontario, by the steam-boat Canada, from the river Humber to the Welland Canal Harbour, a large Raft, consisting of 15,000 feet of choice timber, belonging to the Lock Company, a strong south-west gale arose when about twelve miles out, and continued with such violence as to separate the raft in pieces, in spite of every exertion by those concerned to prevent it, which scattered in different directions, and floated off entirely at the mercy of the waves.

It is probable when we consider that western winds generally prevail at this season of the year, that this timber will drift ashore towards the lower end of the lake; and should this be the case, it is earnestly hoped that all those who may observe or fall in with any part of this valuable lot of lumber, will take measures to secure the same, and immediately give information to Mr. Oliver Phelps, the Company's Agent, at St. Catharines, U. C. either by mail, or otherwise, as may be most convenient.

 Editors of papers on the shores of lake Ontario, will confer a favour by giving the above an insertion.—Niagara Journal.

MAILING ROBBERY—Yesterday morning at half past one o'clock, a gang of robbers, consisting of ten or twelve, all armed, painted or masked, entered the house presbytery of Messire Masse, Curé, of Levy, through the windows. They seized the Curé placed him on a sofa, with a loaded pistol presented to his breast, and forced him to deliver up the key of his chest. It appears that they had previously obtained information of its situation and contents. They carried off all the money consisting of thirteen hundred pounds in gold, and five hundre pounds in dollars, without molestation. Early information having been given to the Police, no time was lost in taking judicious and effectual measures for their apprehension.—We noticed with pleasure that Captain Gugy's troop of Cavalry, under his immediate command, as also the companies of Volunteers of the Quebec Militia, offered their services, and were instantly dispatched by the Police, in pursuit of the robbers, in different directions, together with 200 men of the regulars of this garrison, who were accompanied by several Magistrates, and a number of respectable citizens, (the latter appointed Special Constables for the occasion,) having all the constables at their command. They succeeded yesterday in arresting three of the gang, and no doubt is entertained from the measures adopted, that the whole of them will be taken.

The three men which were arrested, were stripped and closely examined, when cash to the amount of £5 was found upon each of them; they had purchased wearing apparel and trinkets, (one of them a watch) to the amount of £15 each. One of them was observed to retain some remnants of paint or blacking on his face. They gave most contradictory and improbable accounts of themselves and their booty, so as to leave no doubt of their being concerned in the robbery.

The Troops and Militia were ordered to continue the pursuit for two days.

A General Militia order was issued directing the Commanding and other Militia Officers, to give every assistance in their power in apprehending those desperate offenders.

Cannon Foundry in Montreal Gaol.

A discovery was made yesterday that John Moore (one of the two soldiers of the 76th Regiment, who is confined for assisting Burke with tools to break Gaol) had melted the water pipes of Ward No. 2, made moulds, and cast the same mettle into six small cannons capable or carrying a pistol bullet; some of them are well executed, one completely finished, ornamented with the crown, marked G. R. and proved: the others were in progress, so as to form a complete Battery. Information has been given that they were intended to shoot the Gaoler and Sentry as soon as an opportunity should offer of making a sortie.

P. S.—Moore is stated to have been a troublesome and dangerous man in the Regiment, to which he belonged, to have made an attempt to blow up Fort Erie, and to have deserted to and from the Americans.

A few days ago, Comm'y. Gen'l. Turquand presented to Staff-Surgeon Stewart a very handsome and valuable Silver Cup, with the following superscription:—

"Presented by Comm'y-Gen. Turquand to

Dr. William Stewart, Surgeon to the Forces,

As a small but sincere token of esteem, for unparalelled care and attention exerted towards him in consequence of a fall from the Heights of Abraham,

On the 28th Oct. 1825, to which care, under the blessing of Providence, his recovery is attributable."

This Cup, with a very flattering letter, being handed to Dr. Stewart, he sent the following note.

QUEBEC, 29th Sept. 1826.

My Dear Sir,

I have received the Cup you have done me the honour to present, for which I beg you will accept my most sincere thanks; and be assured that such an acknowledgement from you, is most truly felt, and will be ever grateful to my feelings.

I am, &c. &c.

From the (Old) Quebec Gazette.

Mr. Woodehouse, Surveyor General of His Majesty's Customs, arrived here from Halifax via Boston and New York on Friday last, on his tour of inspection of the Department of H. M. Customs in the Colonies.—Mr. Woodehouse had a long interview with the committee of Trade of this city on Saturday. By the following copy of a letter written to Mr. Woodehouse and the substance of the answer, it will be seen that orders will be given to admit sum from Great Britain and Ireland at a duty of 6d sterling and 6d currency per gal, (Copy.) Quebec, 29th Sept. 1826.

Sir,—The brig Cherub arrived here on Saturday last, with a cargo of rum from Greenock, which the Collector of the Customs here refuses to admit to entry except on paying a duty of one shilling sterling per gallon, over and above the Provincial duty of sixpence currency—and on a strict perusal of the law, to which he refers, I consider the extra sixpence sterling, now levied by him, as an overcharge.

Your answer to the above will confer a favor, as the vessel now waits your decision

To JOHN WOODEHOUSE' Esq.
Surveyor General,
His Majesty's Customs.

I remain, Sir,
Your obdt. servant,
ROBERT SHAW.

Mr. Woodhouse stated in reply, that having no doubt but that the framers of the act in question only intended that the duty should be sixpence sterling and sixpence currency, will give orders to receive the entries accordingly at the Custom House.

Saturday morning, 30th Sept. 1826.

A man was reported the discovery of some chests of treasure near the mouth of Chaudière, where a French Frigate was sunk in the year 1759, before Quebec fell into the hands of the British Forces.—Steps have been taken to secure it for Government.

Active preparations are making by Lieut. Col. Bye, of the Royal Engineers, to commence the cutting of the Canal between Kingston and the Ottawa River as soon as possible. A number of men have been already engaged for this great national work, and many scientific persons now in this city are to proceed to Hull immediately, amongst whom are Mr. Burnet, son and successor to the late Mr. B. Engineer of the Lachine Canal: Mr. McKay, who so efficiently executed the Locks of that work, and Mr. Gibb, the draftsman, all men of undoubted abilities in their several professions.—Canadian Courant.

On the 27th ult. his Excellency the Governor-in-Chief accompanied by Colonels Bye and Durnford, R. E. the Hon. Capt, Byng and Capt, Stewart, R. N. and others of his suit laid the foundation stone of a Bridge, to cross the Ottawa at the Falls, which is found necessary to facilitate the works of the Canal. This ceremony was witnessed by a number of Gentlemen, and inhabitants from the surrounding settlements.—his Excellency has directed £1000 to be placed at the disposal of Col. Bye, for improving the navigation of the falls, so as to permit timber to pass in Cribs without breaking it up. When his Excellency with the Countess, and suit embarked in his barge, on his return, they were accompanied by a great concourse of spectators, who testified their gratification at the honor of a visit from such distinguished characters by loud cheers. His Excellency inspected the Troops at the Priest's Farm yesterday at two o'clock, and it is expected he will embark for Quebec this evening or to-morrow.—Ib.

YORK, U. C. SATURDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1826.

It is stated in the papers, that several cargoes of Canadian Wheat, had arrived in England, in good condition, and that the article was on the rise. It is mentioned at the same time, that Lower Canada Wheat, was spoken of as being superior, to that of Upper Canada. There can be no doubt, that the soil and climate of this Province, is quite as good if not better than that of L. Canada, for the growth of this article, and the difference in quality, if any, must therefore be attributed, to the want of proper attention in the choice of seed, and care in cleaning it properly for a foreign market. It is of the utmost consequence to the prosperity of the country, that this staple production, should bear a good character abroad, otherwise a decreased value must be the consequence. The subject is certainly worthy the attention of our Farmers, and we take this opportunity of suggesting the many benefits, that might be expected to result, from the formation of Agricultural Societies, where meeting with each other, an opportunity would be afforded, of communicating the most successful methods adopted for the cultivation of the different kinds of Grain—improving Stock—and of acquiring general information, on subjects connected with Husbandry.

It cannot be expected that in briefly adverting to to the subject here, we should attempt to point out all the benefits to be expected from such institutions. We must therefore content ourselves by observing generally, that in the Mother Country, the means which such Societies afford, not only of increasing Agricultural knowledge, but giving an impulse to the exertions of the Farmer, is fully demonstrated, and acknowledged, and that they receive a general support from all classes of society. In Nova Scotia, and we believe in New Brunswick, they have been established with much success. Lower Canada has followed the example. In the Districts of Quebec and Montreal Agricultural Societies have been formed, and from the Lower Canada papers, we observe, that premiums to a considerable amount, are offered to competitors, at an annual meeting, which is shortly to be held. In the United States such societies are numerous.

We should be pleased if some of our leading Farmers would take the subject into consideration, and call a meeting for the purpose of establishing an Agricultural Society for the Home District. We recommend it also to the attention of adjoining Districts, between whom it would produce a laudable competition, and serve essentially to promote the best interests of the country. Whatever prospects may be before us, of an increased demand for the productions of the country, we cannot hope to participate so fully in the advantages presented to us, unless those productions are sent to market, as good at least, as those of other countries. A general diffusion of the knowledge, of the most modern improvement in husbandry, may very properly be considered, as one of the means to be employed, in procuring that character for them, and the most effectual method of acquiring information on the subject, would we think be found, in the establishment and encouragement of agricultural societies, throughout the Province.

The American papers, with few exceptions, are silent on the subject of the late Order in Council with respect to the West India Trade. To Canada it is one of much importance, for if the United States should refuse to relax in their commercial policy towards England, which they are now called upon to do, on terms which they can have no cause to complain of, they must relinquish the profitable commerce they have hitherto enjoyed, in supplying the Islands with Provisions, Lumber, &c, and in furnishing which, they possessed so many advantages, by being near so good a market. The value and importance of this Trade to the United States, may be estimated from the remarks which we copy from the New York Enquirer. We give these remarks in full, because, besides stating the importance of the Trade, they shew that the present system was established, or rather persisted in, after the liberal one of Great Britain was adopted.

"During the last session of Congress Mr. Lloyd, of Mass. introduced a bill into Congress, the subject of which was to place the British trade and British tonnage in our ports on the same footing which she had placed ours on, in their ports. Mr. Lloyd supported that proposition in a speech full of argument and fact. It was rejected. The consequence of this refusal on our part, has been the revocation of the permission granted by the British government. The vessels and produce of the United States are excluded from the British colonies in all parts of the world. At the very lowest calculation a market of $6,000,000 of exports, and upwards of $3,000,000 of imports, is entirely closed upon us.

"The countries in the North of Europe and the British North American Provinces, will henceforth furnish the supply which has hitherto being our own. A rise in the prices of British colonial produce, and a fall in some of our own staples, must be the immediate result. How high will be that rise, how low that fall, or how injurious that exclusion, we cannot, at this moment, pronounce. It is a question of great magnitude, and we shall return to it in a day or two, and examine the grounds on which Mr. Lloyd's bill was rejected, together with the nature and probable extent of the injury their order in council will inflict on our commerce."—N. Y. Enquirer.

In the event, therefore, of an adherence on the part of the United States to the present commercial regulations, as far as we possess the means, this profitable trade would fall into our hands, the advantages of which, would tend materially to increase our ability, of supplying the necessary articles, to any extent that might be required, and afford a reasonable hope, that we should experience a very favorable change, in the commercial interests of the country. This together with the extensive improvements now in operation, and contemplated by the Government in both Provinces, would, in a great measure, remove the difficulties which our Trade, in common with that of other countries, has laboured under for some time past.

EMIGRATION.

The Albion affords us the following information respecting the Canada Land Company, taken from the September number of Blackwoods Magazine.

"The Canada Company having concluded their arrangements with Government, for the purchase of the Crown Reserves and a large territory in Upper Canada, might now enter into contracts with individuals, or with societies, disposed to settle in that healthy and fertile country.

"The Reserves are scattered in lots of 200 acres each, over all the located and cultivated townships in the province, extending from the river Ottawa to the St. Clair, along the banks of Lake Ontario and Lake Erie, about 500 miles, and consist of the rich est soil, under a climate in no respect inferior to that of the state of New York. The Territory is united on two sides with ranges of those townships, and is equally advantageously situated, having access to it by water along the other boundaries.

"The Company does not intend to send out settlers, nor to give encouragement to emigrants destitute of property, because undertakings of that kind may be done to greater advantage by individuals possessed of capital purchasing either detached lots or larger tracts, or by families uniting their means for co-operation and society.

The Company, when required, will partially clear lots, and build such houses as may be necessary for the reception of settlers. Their lands will probably be disposed of according to the following classes:

1. Lots prepared for settlement by clearing five acres, and building a cottage. Such lots to be disposed of at an annual payment of probably little more than 1s. per acre. If the house and clearing cost £50, that sum to be redeemed within a certain number of years by annual instalments.

2. Lots similarly prepared to be disposed of at a rent supposed of 2s. per acre on lease; but the purchaser to be allowed the option at any time within the first fifteen years, to purchase the lot at 20 years' value of the rental.

3. Lots to be sold for ready money, without improvements.

4. Lots to be sold payable by instalments in ten years, seven years, and five years, as may be agreed on.

5. Lots to be sold, with improvements, for ready money.

6. Lots to be sold, with improvements, payable by instalments.

7. Lots to be sold, with or without improvements, purchasers paying down a certain fee, or grassum; the land remaining subject to a small quit-rent or feu-duty.

A man, hired to agriculture, who arrives in Upper Canada with £100 may, in the course of a very few years, look forward to the enjoyment of comfort and independence as a proprietor of land, on which, according to the terms of his bargain, he may have but little or no rent to pay, assuredly few taxes, and neither tithes nor poor rates. With persons of this description the Company will treat on the most accommodating principles.

At the office and from the agents of the Company, either by personal application, or by letter (post paid), information will at all times be afforded regarding vessels bound for Canada, the rates of freight and passage, stores requisite for the voyage, and assistance will be given to parties when embarking, to protect them from unnecessary trouble and expense. A map of the Province is ready for publication, compiled from actual surveys, in which the districts, counties, and townships, are all exhibited; and those in which the Company have lands are carefully distinguished. At the offices of the Company, and of the agents, separate plans of each township, with company's lots therein specially marked, will be open for public inspection; so that emigrants, before finally fixing their departure, select any particular neighbourhood in the country, of which they may have acquired information, or where they may have friends already settled.

Emigrants who have money to take with them, will, upon paying it into the hands of the Company in London, or to their Agents at the out-ports, receive orders for the amount, payable either at Quebec, Montreal, Kingston, or York; and duplicates will, at the same time, be delivered, to be left in this country; so that, in case of accident, the amount may be recovered by the representatives of the parmed.

N. B.—The Company has not yet published any view of their intended proceedings; so that, altho the foregoing has been made up from conversations with gentlemen in the Company's office, it is not to be considered as the entire plan of operation which may be ultimately carried into effect, but only as an outline of the views on which that plan will be formed.

COMMUNICATION.

To the Editor of the U. E. Loyalist.

Sir,

On Friday evening a passenger on board the "Canada," on her way from Burlington Beach to Niagara, was seen by the the man at the helm to jump overboard. On the alarm being given, in an instant the sails were in, engine stopped, and boat lowered; into which I jumped, with two hands, and rowed a quarter of a mile in our wake, but I am sorry to say without success. On returning aboard his hat was found, as if deliberately placed near the gangway, whence he jumped. The hat is a new white one, and besides the maker's name, is written "Joseph Jewell Claridge, Jersy City." The hat contained a new red and yellow silk handkerchief, a pair of white cotton gloves, and three quarters of a dollar in silver. He was a good looking young man, well dressed, in blue coat, yellow waistcoat, black or blue pantaloons, and boots He had neither bundle or luggage, and came on board at Burlington Beach. I am inclined to think from all appearances, and the trifle of money left in the hat, that distressed circumstances had pourtrayed on a too sensitive mind, insurmountable evils, producing temporary derangement, during which, the barriers of nature were broken down, and he rushed in phrenzy before his Maker. Perhaps by your kindly inserting this, it may meet the eye of some relation or friend, to whom, on application, the little articles he left will be restored.

I am, Sir,
Your most ob't. serv't.

PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors, of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province; to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on Monday the Thirtieth day of October inst. to be Commenced, Held, Called, and Elected, and to every of you

GREETING

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Twenty-fifth day of September last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the Thirtieth day of October instant, at which time, at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear.

NOW KNOW YE, that we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents enjoining you and each of you that on Tuesday the Fifth day of December next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, FOR THE ACTUAL DESPATCH OF PUBLIC BUSINESS, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding our Forces therein, at York, this Twenty-first day of October in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-six, and in the Seventh Year of our reign.

UPPER CANADA.

P. MAITLAND,
Lieut. Governor.

GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To all to whom these Presents shall come

GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the parts of this Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. We have thought fit to order and direct, and We do hereby order and direct that, until Our pleasure herein shall be further made known, t shall and may be lawful for all Our Subjects inhabiting Our Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada, freely to enter into Our Woods and Forests in such parts of Our said Province of Upper Canada, situate along the Banks of the River Ottawa, or upon the Banks of the Waters running into the said River and within a convenient distance from the same, as shall not have been Surveyed and divided into Concessions and Lots, and to Cut and carry away such Oak and Pine Timber as may be fit for the purposes of Exportation.

Provided always, nevertheless, That in consideration of the authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties herein-after specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Red Pine Timber, Four Pounds Three Shillings and Four Pence, being at the rate of One Penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Yellow Pine Timber, Two Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence, being at the rate of One Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commission under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places upon the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointed as aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has obtained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons, properly authorized by or under Our Licence granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS Our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this third day of May in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-Six, and in the Seventh Year of Our Reign.

No. 10—13w.

Executive Council Office,
York, 23rd March, 1826.

NOTICE is hereby given, by ORDER of His EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENAT GOVERNOR, in COUNCIL, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a regular Council day.

JOHN SMALL.
C. E. C.

No. 9 1. f.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepared in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offered for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s. 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement.—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant; or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hunded Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land.—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant.

It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessarry expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprised in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of those general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

Upper Canada, } SIR PEREGRINE
COURT OF PROBATE, } MAITLAND, K. C.
York to Wit: } B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein and Judge of the Court of Probate, within the said Province, &c. &c. &c.

TO PATRICK CONIGAN, late of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, and Province aforesaid, as Nephew and next of Kin of Bartholomew Conigan, deceased,

WHEREAS John McLean, of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, Yeoman, lately exhibited a petition in the said Court of Probate, setting forth that you the said Patrick Conigan, some years ago procured Letters of Administration from the Court of Probate aforesaid, to the Estate of the late Bartholomew Conigan, of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, Hawker and Pedlar, deceased. That you the said Patrick Conigan collected all the monies due to the said Bartholomew Conigan, but have left this Province and not discharged the Debts of the said Bartholomew Conigan, although he the said Bartholomew Conigan died possessed of ample property to do so. That the said Petitioner in the month of July one thousand eight hundred and twenty two obtained a verdict against you the said Patrick Conigan, Administrator as aforesaid, for the sum of Seven Pounds ten shillings, on which the said Petitioner has since entered up Judgment. That the said Petitioner has never received satisfaction of the said judgment, and there being no property now remaining in this Province on which an Execution could be levied; Wherefore the said John McLean humbly prays that a Citation may issue calling on you the said Patrick Conigan, as Administrator aforesaid, to appear in the said Court of Probate on the First day of January next ensuing, and shew cause why you should not pay the said debt and do whatever the said Court my require in the Premises of the said Petition. Now therefore these are to Cite and require you the said Patrick Conigan, as Administrator to the Estate of the said late Bartholomew Conigan, deceased, on the First day of January next ensuing the date hereof to produce and exhibit into the Register's Office of the said Court of Probate, a true, full and perfect Inventory of all the goods, chattles, rights and credits which were of the said Bartholomew Conigan, deceased, at the time of his death, and make, or cause to be made, a true and just account of your Administration, and to shew cause why you will not pay the said debt for which the said John McLean has entered up Judgment against you as Administrator to the Estate of the said late Bartholomew Conigan, deceased. Dated at York, in the Province aforesaid, this Eighth day of September, One thousand eight hundred and twent-six.

ORIGINAL POETRY.

FOR THE U. E. LOYALIST.

WRITTEN IN THE SPRING.

You ask me why my looks are sad,
And how my brow can bear,
When all around looks bright and glad,
The somb'rous cloud of care.

You say the zephyr's sportive wing
Is on the sunny wave—
You say the balmy breath of spring
Revives the forest leaves.

You say the flow'rs are springing sweet,
And on the blossomed tree,
The woodlands gay musicians meet
And tune their minstrelcy.

You say in nature's looks around
That all is joy and glee—
That gladness flouts on every sound,
And none are sad but me?

I had a dream t'was all too bright
For Fancy to approve—
T'was filled with thoughts that bro't delight,
With looks I once did love.

But time passed by—the thoughts are fled,
The looks can charm no more—
And youth's fond hope of joy is fled,
And love's young dream is o'er. S. N.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE TEMPLE OF BUTTERFLIES.

The Chevalier de Boufflers, whom Delilld characterized as "the honour of knighthood and the flower of Troubadours," the erotic poet, the agreeable novelist, so long the delight of the salons of Paris, the true sage, who preferred the society of the Muses, and the happy independence without which it is difficult to obtain their favours, to the splendour of wealth or the glory of an illustrious name, was by turns an abbot, a colonel of hussars, a painter, an academician, a legislator, and, under all these characters, the most gay, careless, and witty of French cavaliers.

I was long acquainted with this highly gifted man. I saw him in 1720 at the beautiful estate of Chanteloup, near Amboise, whither the Duke de Choiseul, then an exile from the Court, attracted all the most distinguished men of France, whether for birth or merit. It was the focus of the most brilliant wits and beauties of the day. The Duchess de Choiseul, whose memory is still cherished on the lovely banks of the Loire, had a regard for the Chevalier de Boufflers which did her honour; he was her companion in her walks, in the chase, and still more frequently in her visits to the cottages of the poor peasants, to whom this accomplished and excellent woman constantly administered comfort and assistance.

Madame de Choiseul, who was in her youth extremely intimate with Buffon, had imbibed from that celebrated man a strong taste for the observation of natural objects. Her library contained a complete collection of natural historians, ancient and modern, she was particularly fond of the study of Reaumur, who, though he does not, like Buffon, describe the beauties of nature in a style of rich and varied eloquence, displays more patient and accurate observation.

This delightful and exhaustless study had inspired Madame de Choiseul with a new and fanciful idea. Opposite to the windows of her own room, she had erected a temple of gauze of antique form, and sheltered by an ample roof; during the summer she amused herself with the collecting in this airy palace all the most beautiful butterflies of the country. A limpid brook flowed through the floor of turf, and the scenes were feasted by the brilliant hues of the flowers, the refreshing coolness and the balmy perfume of the air.

The Duchess alone had a key of the Temple of Butterflies, which was peopled by the assiduity of the village girls of the neighbourhood. They strove, by presenting her with some new species, to obtain the privilege of speaking to their beloved and respected patroness, and they were sure to receive a reward proportioned to the beauty and rariety of their offerings, so that the banks of the Cher and the Loire, and the extensive meadows which skirt them, were full of young girls, with gauze nets in their hands, breathless with the chase of their frail and beautiful prey.

Boufflers was frequently a witness to the Duchess's assiduous cares about her favourite temple. "Chevalier," said she to him, with an agreeable smile, "I run no risk in introducing you among my butterbies, they will take you for one of themselves, and will not be frightened."

On one occasion, when Madame de Choiseul was compelled by illness to keep her room for some weeks, she gave the key of her temple to the Chevalier, who found ample compensation for the trouble of his charge, in the pleasure of receiving the country girls who daily came to recruit the numerous family of butterflies. He encouraged them to talk about their rural sports, their love affairs, and all their little secrets; so that he was soon master of the chronicles of all the surrounding villages. In this way he frequently caught ideas and expressions with which he afterwards adorned his poems.

It was, however, remarked, that Boufflers almost always preferred the butterflies brought by the prettiest girls; his scrutiny turned rather upon their charming features, their natural and simple graces, than upon the objects it was his office to select.—An engaging face, a graceful carriage, or a well-turned person, was pretty sure not to be rejected; he was not very rigorous in his examination, and he trusted that the same indulgence would be extended to him. Thus the beautiful temple declined in splendour; but fewer poor little girls went away disappointed; and the Duchess's bounty, passing through the easy hands of the Chevalier, was diffused more widely, and gladdened more hearts.

Among the villagers who came to offer Boufflers the fruits of their day's chase, he had frequently remarked a girl of about fifteen, whose large deep blue eyes, jet black eyebrows, rosy and laughing mouth, graceful and easy carriage, and sweet, penetrating voice, realized the most poetical descriptions of rural beauty. To crown her attractions, he found that she was the daughter of a forester of Amboise, and that her name was Alina. This pretty name was the title of a tale of his which had been greatly admired. It may be imagined what an interest he took in this innocent and ingenuous girl, with what pleasure he rewarded her in the Duchess's name, and how eargerly he took advantage of the pretext afforded by the beauty of any of her butterflies to double the gift, accompanying it with some notions due to genuine talent, embellished by wit and great knowledge of the world. The rage for M. Foubers and his fine minoature portraits, was universal. As he was anxious to obtain beautiful subjects, he was constantly told that he ought to paint the Countess de Lauterbach, who was described to him as a lady of French origin, and the widow of a Baravian general, who, at his death, had left her considerable, property, including a magnificent estate, situated on the banks of the lake, at a few miles distant from Lausanne. She was universally spoken of for her beauty, her grace, and above all for that obliging affability that wins all hearts. How many stimulants to Boufler's curiosity! Nor was it long ungratified. At a fete given by one of the principal inhabitants of Lausanne, the beautiful Countess of Lauterbach was present, and not only gratified all her expectations, but enchanted him by that inimitable grace which distinguished his countrywomen.

He was introduced to the Countess, who appeared struck by the sound of his voice, and agitated by some motion she strove to disguise. They entered into conversation, and Boufflers expressed the most earnest desire to paint from so fine a model. After a moment's reflection, the Countess accepted his offer; and as if struck by some sudden thought, fixed a day for Foubers to go to her house, at the same time expressing her pleasure at being painted by a French artist.

On the day appointed, an elegant caleche stopped at the door of his lodging, and conveyed him to the Chateau de St. Sulpice, situated on the banks of the lake, opposite to the superb Ampitheatre traced by the Alps on the horizon. Boufflers arrived; he crossed a spacious outer court, passed through a handsome hall, and entered a vast soloon, in which every thing announced opulance and the most exquisite taste. On one side of the room hung a full-length portrait of the late Duchess de Choiseul, seated near the Temple of Butterflies, with a volume of Bouffler's works in her hand. The Chevalier could not control the emotions which agitated him, and forced tears from his eyes. "What recollections!" exclaimed he involuntarily: "this Countess de Lauterbach must certainly be of the Choiseul family. I shall like her the better." Whilst he gave himself up to the these reflections, a chamberlain came to tell him that his lady would be occupied for a short time, that she begged M. Foubers to excuse her, and desired him to ask whether he would be pleased to walk in her plantation a la franchaise. Boufflers followed his conductor through a long suite of apartments all furnished with wonderful magnificence and variety. He entered an avenue of limes, and at the first turning, he saw, under the shade of some very large trees, a temple of gauze precisely like the Duchess de Choiseul's. The temple was filled with the most beautiful butterflies of every species, and over the door was an inscription in verse which Boufflers had formerly written over the entrance to the temple at Chanteloup, and even the hand-writing was so exactly his own, that he stood before it agitated, yet motionless with astonishment, and thought himself transported by magic to the banks of the Loire.—But his surprise was increased, and his emotion heightened, when he saw advancing towards him, a young girl of 14 or 15, in the dress of the villagers of Lorraine, whose features, shape, and gait, where so perfectly those of the girl he remembered with so affectionate an interest, that he thought it was she herself who stood before him, and whose deep rich voice met his ear. "Your servant, Monsieur de Boufflers," said she, with a graceful courtesy, and presenting to him a little gauze net; "what do you think of my butterflies? you are such a fine judge." What are you—angel—sylph—enchantress!" "What! do you not remember Alina, the daughter of the forester of Amboise, who used so often to bring you butterflies?" "Do I dream!" said Boufflers, passing his eyes, and taking the sweet girl's hand, he pressed it to his heart, and then to his lips: "Alina, lovely Alina!—it cannot be you!" "How! it cannot be!? Who then won the prize for the finest butterflies? Who received from the hands of the Duchess, a prize of 25 louis, and from yours his gold watch, which I promised to wear as long as I live, and which I have never parted with for an instant!" "I do indeed remember that cross—it is the very one! Never was illusion was so perfect—never was man so bewildered. Disdain, I entreat you, take pity on the confusion into which you have thrown me. Your elegance betrays you. No, you are not a mere country girl. Tell me then to whom am I indebted for the most delicious emotion I ever felt in my life? Whence do you come? Who are you?" "She is my daughter," cried the Countess de Lauterbach, suddenly stepping from a thicket, and throwing herself into the arms of Boufflers. "My kind protector—kind author of my happiness and of my good fortune—behold the true Alina, the wife and widow of Charles Verner, whose only daughter stands before you. Our emotion, however strong, cannot equal mine." "How, madam! are you that simple village girl?—Yes, yes, there are those large deep blue penetrating eyes—there is that expressive mouth—there is that enchanting smile; I could almost believe myself once more at one of the kind Duchess's receptions." Good and beautiful as you were, you had a right to become what you now are. But tell me how happened it that, for once fortune was not blind?—have the kindness to satisfy my curiosity; be consistent with the affection you bear Alina always had for me." "Listen then," replied the Countess, with confiding delight.

"Charles, in whom you took such a generous interest, having distinguished himself by repeated acts of bravery, obtained a commission shortly after our marriage. The war which broke out between France and Germany, called him to the field and I followed him. He afterwards rose to the rank of Colonel of Cavalry, when he saved the life of the Count de Lauterbach, commander of a Bavarian division, on the field of battle; but in this act he received a mortal wound, and with his last breath recommended his wife and child, then an infant, to the General's care. Count Lauterbach tho't that in no way could he so effectually prove his gratitude to his preserver, as by becoming the husband of his widow and the father of his child. After a few years of a happy union, he died of the numerous wounds he had received, leaving a large fortune and a revered and cherished memory. At the time of his death," added the Countess: "I knew that you had been compelled to quit France and to take refuge in Prussia: I left no means untried to discover the place of your residence; but your change of name, your travelling as a French painter, as you have so often done, always prevented me from accomplishing the most ardent wishes of my heart. Judge what was my emotion at meeting you the other day at Lausanne. I instantly determined to prove to you, in some degree at least my joy and gratitude; and taking advantage of my daughters age, and of her perfect resemblance to that of Alina who owed to you the hand of Charles Verner, and all that she has subsequently possessed or enjoyed, made use of your own colours; I copied the most beautiful scene of your elegant story which I have read so often —in short, I tried to bewitch you with your own enchantments."

"Ah!" exclaimed Boufflers, pressing the mother and daughter to his heart, "never shall I forget this ingenious delicacy; it is true, that the memory of the heart is indestructible in woman; and I see that the little good one may be able to do to the simplest village girl, may become a capital which gratitude will repay with interest."

SUMMARY.

The proprietors of one London evening paper mentioned in their reporters to give up a room, to the extent of £200. if, by expending that sum, they could convey the proceedings respecting Mr. Wakefield to town before the agents of any other journal.

A splendid banquet was given last week at the Tontine Hotel, Glasgow, to celebrate the fourth anniversary of the King's landing in Scotland—the toasts were loyal and numerous.

His Majesty has been pleased to confer the honour of a silk gown upon C. Pepys, of Lincoln's Inn, Esq. This mark of distinction has been long felt to be merited by the talents and sound judgement of the Learned Gentleman.

We understand that Alexander Macgregor, Esq. of this town, has been appointed manager of the branch of the Bank of England about to be opened in Manchester.—Liverpool Courier.

We have seen a model a ship constructed on a plan which, we are informed, is entirely new, and the invention of which is by Mr. W. B. Tonge; the invention is applicable to all kinds of naval architecture, and, we should imagine, to wood-joinery in general; it is said to prevent all corrosion of the iron work, and by this guarding against one great cause of leakage, and other accidents, is very important as a national point of view. Mr. Tonge is appointed to submit his invention to the Navy Board.—London paper.

The scene of the novel on which Sir Walter Scott's pen is now engaged, is, it is said, laid in Ireland.

We learn with satisfaction that four volumes of Sir Walter Scott's Life of Napoleon are already nearly printed, what will not industry and talent united accomplish! The work is to consist of six volumes: the first two are, we understand, preliminary; the last four devoted to the life: and the public will rejoice to hear, that the continued good health and steady habits of application of the author, give full and agreeable promise of the completion of this labour in good time.

A decisive step towards the long-talked-of operation of filling up the Old Dock, says the Liverpool Commercial Chronicle of Sept. 5, has at length been taken. It was entirely cleared of vessels on Thursday forenoon, and the whole space of the Dock and surrounding Quays is now uninterruptedly displayed to the eye, and presents a most singular appearance. It will probably, before many years elapse, have become the site of a magnificient square, with a splendid Custom-house in the centre. The last vessel which left the Dock was the schooner Uespatch. The ship Mulberry was the first that entered June 8, 1669.

Bible Selection.—The number of tracts issued by the London Religious Tract Society, last year, was 10,500,000; the publications in all languages, since the establishment of the Society, are estimated to exceed 100,000,000; since 1808, tracts have been printed in forty-two languages, and the receipts during the past year, in England and America, amounted to 1,600,000 dollars.

It appears from a table just published, of all the schemes and bubbles projected during the last two years, that they amounted in number to 243; that the amount of capital proposed to be subscribed on these schemes was £248,000,000; that the amount actually paid was £4,062,500; that the balance on the whole of these schemes, at the close of 1825, was £199,837,102. Numerous other schemes, to which equal publicity has not been given, are known to have been projected in a great part of the United Kingdom, and without exaggeration it may be inferred, though it may astonish dupes and directors, that the bubble mania, if carried into execution to its meditated extent, would have required, if it could have been procured, a capital of three hundred and fifty millions sterling.

Ayr, August 17.—While we have to regret the present unpleasant situation in which our weavers and trade in general are placed, we feel much pleasure in laying before the public the state of the export of coal at this port for the last quarter, say from 5th April to the 5th July last.

Foreign Intelligence.

FROM AFRICA.

Under date of Acra, July 16th we have the following intelligence, politely furnished by Capt. Daily, of the brig Argus arrived here yesterday.

The King of Ashantee still continues the war with the English settlements on the Gold Coast, to the detriment of all merchants, and of course to the vessels which visit that Coast. The King of Ashantee, with his army often or fifteen thousand men was at a place called Boom, in the Aquapim Country, about sixty miles from Acra. His intention was to attack the latter place; but, having been so slow in his movements since leaving Camassey, his capital, the English had collected a force equal to the enemy's, and superior in equipment, so that they did not fear his approach. Had he been expeditious in his march, he would have overrun all Acra before a force could been raised sufficient to withstand him. The natives between Acra and Ashantee, have all fled from before the army under the King of Ashantee, which, of course, has put a stop to trade; no gold or ivory coming to the sea-board, on what is called the Gold Coast.

Cape of Good Hope, June 2.—The news we have just received of the state of affairs in Great Bitain is very lamentable, but it is not near so bad as the state of this colony. We have almost, a famine in the land. Bread can scarcely be obtained for any price. The Burgher Senate have purchased immense quantities of corn, on account of the public, but what cost them from 80 to 90, they are selling at 280 rix dollars per load. The rain has happily just commenced, and if the farmers can obtain seed to put into the ground, perhaps we may have yet a harvest; but it is feared that the seed of last harvest will prove very bad. We have had no rain before these seven months. Cattle and sheep have been starving for want of grass.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

By the ship Cortes, Captain Sprague, in 38 days from London, and 32 from the Downs, we have received the London Courier of the 7th and 8th September, from which we make a few extracts.

We have also received our regular files of Paris papers to the 11th of September, by the Talma.

The London Gazette of the 1st of September contains His Majesty's proclamation, directing the Parliament to assemble on the 14th of November, then positively to sit for the dispatch of urgent affairs.

The Gazette also contains a proclamation permitting the importation of foreign oats, rye, peas and beans, whether warehoused or otherwise.

London, Sept. 7.

We have received, this morning, Lisbon Gazettes to the 27th ult., and their contents are of considerable importance. It appears, by an official statement, published in a supplement to the Gazette of the 22d ult., that the Portuguese capital had been the scene of a conspiracy, whose object was to proclaim a new King and a new Regency; but it is not mentioned in whose favour this treasonable enterprise was conceived.

London, Sept. 8.

"City, 2 o'clock.—Some heavy sales of Money Stock, soon after the opening of the market, lowered the price of Consols from 79 1-4 to 78 7-8, and 78 3-4 for Money; they have since rather improved, but not materially; their present quotation being 78 7-8 79 for the Account, with scarcely any think doing. Some unfavourable reports were in circulation, but not deserving the least attention.

When we announced the ratification of the treaty of peace with the Burmese Government, we mentioned that it had been preceded by some severe fighting.

By private letters from Calcutta, dated 5th March, it appers that on the 30th January, a force of between 400 and 500 Burmese, posted at a place called Watamachoote, were charged by a party of the Governor General's Body Guard, under Lieutenant Trant. About fifty of the enemy were either sabred or shot, and amongst them a chief of rank named Mongtoungbo. The remainder were dispersed.

On the 9th Feb. the enemy, in consiederable force, having ventured out of their stockades, and formed on the plain, were attacked by the force under Sir Archibald Campbell, and completely defeated, at a place called Paghamew, which was captured, together with 40 pieces of artillery and 90 jingals. Sir A. Campbell, with a small escort, is stated to have been at one time completely surrounded, but the enemy were speedily put to the route, and about 500 of them were either killed or drowned, being driven into the river at the point of the bayonet.—Our loss appears to have been extremely trifling.

We have received, this morning, the following advices from Rotterdam. They are of interest at the present moment, taken in connexion with our recent Order in Council, for the admission of certain descriptions of Foreign Grain.

"Rotterdam, Sept. 5.

"The news of the partial opening of the English ports for corn has caused a general advance here, and no article has started more than wheat, although that species of grain is not at present admissible. The rise was 5s. per quarter, and prime wheats would now cost on board ship here 37s to 41s per quarter. The freight is 3s by a Dutch vessel; 4s by an English vessel; but the preference even at that rate, is given to the latter. There are, however, few English vessels here at present, and shippers are consequently much embarrassed. Any considerable importation is not possible, for it appeared to be admitted on all hands, that of the different descriptions of grain, there is not more in the country than the quantity usually consumed by its inhabitants. However, high prices in England, will of course draw from hence more than can be spared, if we regard only the wants of our own people. The potatoe crop, upon which the poorer classes depend so much here, is likely to be very defective. The Exchange has declined three groots to-day, in consequence of the grain shipments.—The market for colonial produce has not been influenced, and prices remain much as our last.

According to an article in a French paper, the Janissaries in the Asiatic provinces are not disposed to acquiesce in the suppression of the body; and if the Sultan persists in his attempts to suppress them, it is probable a civil war will be the consequence. The Turkish empire, some conjecture, is on the brink of destruction—The poor Greeks, we would hope, will profit by the divisions and revolutions in their enemies' territory.

London, Aug. 18.—The Paris papers of Tuesday reached us last night. It is stated in an article in the Pilote, under the date of Madrid, 3d August, that the Queen of Portugal has been persuaded to embark on board a British ship of war, for the purpose of being conveyed to this country.

It would appear from the same article, that Spain had a strong inclination to levy an army against Portugal, but is unable to find means for raising a sufficient sum to meet the extraordinary expenses which would be thereby incurred.

Brussels papers reached town last evening. An article from Berlin, contained in these papers, asserts that when the Duke of Wellington was at St. Petersburgh, a treaty was concluded between Russia, Great Britain and Prussia, embracing all the great questions of general policy which at present engage the attention of all the cabinets, and on which a declaration of these three powers will be published immediately after the coronation of the Emperor Nicholas. The article goes to assume, that this declaration will embrace the affairs of America, as well as those of Europe, including the destinies of Turkey and Europe.

UNITED STATES.

It appears from a notice to the public in some of the city papers that a person in this city has secured a patent right to manufactory that can be attached to an ordinary steam boat for the sum of 600 dollars, which will break the ice in our rivers, and thus open a passage for tow boats between New York and Albany, &c. during the winter. The machinery is said to be simple, and can be detached at pleasure. It is calculated to tow vessels at the rate of six miles an hour, notwithstanding the ice is to be first broken. It will be a valuable invention if what is stated can be accomplished. We shall wait with patience to see it in operation.—Daily Advertizer.

The late arrivals in the United-States, give the most distressing accounts of the loss of shipping by the late hurricanes in the West Indies. Their effects have been felt along the whole coast of America as far north as the Grand Bank, where they have caused considerable damage to most of the vessels that have encountered them.

It is mentioned in the Michigan, Herald, that two contractors of Ohio Canal, on a section near Midtown, Butler county, had absconded.—These men had large contracts, and lately drew upwards of ten thousand dollars, and eloped, leaving upwards of an hundred honest men to buffet the billows of poverty, to whom this money was coming for work done.

About 6 o'clock on Thursday evening, as the steam-boat Congress was on her way to Whitehall, having shortly left Port Kent, and being under the shade of the mountain, the Phœnix came against her with such force, as to carry away the larboard wing, in which was the baggage room, and break a number of beams that support the deck. It was more than half an hour before the boats could get clear of each other, after which, the Phœnix towed the Congress into Port Kent. One woman, arrived at Liverpool, July 31. The last Quebec Mercury states that a person had reported to have found some chests of treasure, near the mouth of the Chandiere where a French Frigate was sunk in the year 1759, before the conquest of this country was completed by the British Arms; and also that steps had been taken to secure the money for Government. Various reports have arisen from this statements, some of which affirm that £250,000 have been recovered in French Gold, and others stating that the whole story is a fiction, invented by some of the characters connected with the robbery of Curé at Point Levi, who pretended to have found the money in their possession at the place above mentioned.—Canadian Courant.

"The symtoms of improvement in our markets still continue unabated, and extensive demand.—Pots at 22*s.* the opening price, but holders are not generally willing to accept these terms: Pearls at 23*s.* 6*d.* a 24*s.* It may be safely calculated that they have seen their lowest quotations. Wheat is in demand and will pay exceedingly well. At our corn markets on Tuesday, we had an extensive business doing. Wheat advanced 4*d.* a 6*d.* Barley 4*d.* a 6*d.* per 60lbs. Oats 4*d.* a 5*d.* per 45lbs. The harvest is generally secured in good order, but the markets are rising every where. Canada Wheat has arrived in good order, and that of fine quality is selling at 9*s.* a 9*s.* 2*d.* per 70lbs and is likely to advance. Lintseed has just been sold at 44*s.* per imperial quarter, and will be higher yet. In the lumber market there is a better feeling. Quebec Pine 16*d.* A cargo of deals &c. however, had sold very low; but as the low rates of freight, and high premium of insurance, will prevent most but regular traders from going out this fall, a considerable improvement may be anticipated.

The Durham Boat Mulcaster Thomas Chambers Master bound from Prescott to Montreal, with a valuable cargo of Ashes, Flower, Butter, &c. &c. &c. was upset in in the Cedar Rapids, on thursday last. The cause of this disaster was the breaking of the steering pin, which rendered the rudder useless, and the Boat in consequence became unmanageable. This was discovered when about the centre of the Rapids, and notice thereof instantly given; the Boat was suddenly thrown upon her beam end in which situation she remained for about five minutes; when the master cried out to all hands to take care of themselves, as she would either right herself, or be thrown bottom upwards, on striking the next shoal, which took place almost immediately, the whole of the passengers and crew, consisting of about 24 in number including the Pilot, were precipitated into the water, some gained a situation on the bottom of the Boat, and assisted in picking up the remainder, with the exception of James O Hara, a native of Ireland, who was on his way home, who imprudently jumped overboard before the boat upset, in expectation of being able to gain the land by the assistance of an oar, but was unfortunately drowned.—When the first alarm of danger was given a Woman on board named McInroe, sprang from the cabin, and partly ascended the ladder leading to the deck, but instantly returned for her infant child, with which she was swept overboard by the overflowing water, as was luckily for her, the companion of the cabin upon which she managed to obtain a seat, and with her child in her arms was providentially born through the remaining part of the rapids, until picked up by a canoe in perfect safety. About two thirds of the cargo has been got on shore, but all in a damaged state. The trunk belonging to O'Haro was found, it contains about £30 in cash and some clothing, which are in charge of Captain McMaster at Lachine. —Canadian Courant.

We mentioned last week the reported discovery of some boxes of treasure at the mouth of the river Chaudiere, off the wharf of New Liverpool. We now understand that the cases, if any such have actually been seen, are in all probability some boxes of Iron ballast, which were lost at that spot a few years ago, when a pleasure boat belonging to Mr. George Hamilton, was upset there; these will be but a cold reward to those who have been duckling and diving after treasure at this season of the year. On hearing of this reported discovery, a gentleman wittily observed, that it was not at all surprising if money should be found at the bottom of the river at New Liverpool, for there was no part of the St. Lawrence where so much money had been sunk.

Mr. Kean.—This gentleman set out on Saturday evening for Montreal, where he is to play three nights, and from which he goes to New York to sail in time to meet his engagements at Drury-lane, which commences on the first January next.

Last Friday evening, about thirty (the rooms at Paine's Hotel not accommodating more) of Mr. Kean's friends and admirers sat down to a sumptuous dinner given by them to this great tragedian. Mr. Kean's health did not permit him to appear until after dinner. A number of toasts were drank, Mr. Kean and other gentlemen sung several fine songs and glees, and the evening was passed in great hilarity and gratification. Mr. Kean's indisposition obliged him to retire twice or thrice in the evening, and he left the company early. Among the company were Capt. Sir Wm. Wiseman, Com. General Turquand, and several offices on the Staff, a number of the Quebec Bar, and some of the first Merchants. Mr. Kean addressed the meeting several times. Sir Wm. Wiseman, Mr. Vallières, and several other gentlemen also spoke.

London and Liverpool dates to 9th Sept. have reached us. The only intelligence they communicate in addition to that previously received, is, that the Imperial Parliament is to meet on 14th November.

On the subject of Colonial Trade, and the prospect of an adjustment, between the Governments of Great Britain and the United States, the Albion says, "that the subject is beginning to be inquired into by the American public and that the most confident expectations are entertained, by those having the best information, that some accommodation will be made prior to 1 Dec'r. If as the Albion says "the United States seem disposed to throw away" this trade, there can be no doubt that Canada will cheerfully avail herself of it. The alternative appears to be simple enough.—the Americans must place our shipping on the footing desired, or the order in Council will continue in force.—If they can bring themselves to this "accommodation" the matter is settled—if not they must be content to lose the benefits of the Trade.

The Court of Oyer and Terminer and Assize for the Home District, commenced its sittings on Monday last. The new District Court House was opened for the reception of the Court and the transaction of business—it affords ample accommodation for the purpose, and reflects much credit on the District.

THEATRE.

Mr. and Mrs. Judah, with a Corps Dramatique, have arrived in Town, and on Thursday and Friday evenings gave entertainments at Franks', where they have fitted up a Theatre. The estimation in which Mr. and Mrs. Judah were held in Montreal, and the liberal support they have met with in Kingston, will, we hope, entitle them to the patronage of the Ladies and Gentlemen of York. Miss Corbet singing is of itself an inducement to visit the Theatre—her "Robin Adair," in the dress of "No Song, No Supper," was given last night with a pleasing effect, and the humor of Mr. Frankland, as Lawyer Ambler, called forth continued laughter.

As the stay of the Company will be limited, we recommend a visit to the Theatre, to the lovers of rational amusement, where we have no doubt they will find Mr. and Mrs. Judah and Company at home, happy and well prepared to see them.

At the request of the Grand Jury, made to the Hon. Chief Justice Campbell, the Charge delivered at the opening of the present Assizes for the Home District, is published by His Lordships permission.

CHARGE:

Mr. Foreman, and Gentlemen of the Grand Jury:

After the lapse of so many years that the accommodation of the Courts for the administration of justice in this District, have been suffered to remain in a state (to say the best of it) not very creditable to the county, I with pleasure embrace this first opportunity to congratulate you on the prospect at length afforded us, of being speedily relieved from so indecorous a predicament. The building in which we are now assembled, and which is so near completion, appears to be well adapted for all the purposes for which it is intended—the arrangements are judicious, and on a scale of ample accommodation becoming the opulence and respectability of the Home District, and highly creditable to the committee of Magistrates who have planned and superintended the structure. The correspondence which in its vicinity assembled, and which is so near completion, appears to be well adapted for all the purposes for which it is intended—the arrangements are judicious, and on a scale of ample accommodation becoming the opulence and respectability of the Home District, and highly creditable to the committee of Magistrates who have planned and superintended the structure. The correspondence which in its vicinity assembled, and which is so near completion, I am happy to observe, is on a like liberal scale of extensive and well arranged accommodation, in which the health and comfort of the unfortunate persons, debtors and criminals, whose destiny it may be to occupy it, seems to have been properly attended to, so far as those important objects are consistent with the main dodges of the building—that of absolute security of the custody of the person—but as to its perfection in this latter respect, the Sheriff is the best judge, as having the whole responsibility, and therefore no doubt, has been occasionally consulted on that point. It appears to me however, that this Building should have long ere now been ready for the reception of the persons now confined in the old Gaol—should you think so Gentlemen, it will be your duty to enquire into the cause of the delay. The miserable state of the place in which those unhappy beings are confined, and some of them for a great length of time, has long been considered not only as insecure, but as extremely injurious to health. Any unnecessary continuance of imprisonment, in such a situation, is as repugnant to the dictates of humanity as it is contrary in the intention of the law—for however rigorous the punishment which our laws have assigned to the different degrees of crime—foul and unwholesome air, or rather unnecessary severity of treatment, forms no part of it—nor is recognised or allowed by our excellent constitution.

With regard to accommodations for the Court of King's Bench, I have much satisfaction in being able to announce to you, that His Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor, has not only appropriated a sufficient space of ground in a very desirable situation for the erection of a Provincial Court House, but has also been graciously pleased to intimate his intention, of taking proper measures for the appropriation of funds, for carrying that design into effect, and, I doubt not, in a manner suitable to the dignity and importance of that Court, as the King's Ordinary Tribunal in this Province—invested with all the powers, privileges and authorities, incident to His Majesty's Court of King's Bench in England; a Court which in former times was attendant on the person of the Sovereign, and in which he frequently presided to distribute justice to his subjects, and in contemplation of law, it still supposed to be present, as being represented by his Judges, to whom, in this absence of the whole judicial power, or rather to whom the Constitution in its more improved state in modern times, has wholly assigned that power, since, the King, if he were personally present, could not deliver no opinion or make any judicial decision, as was intimated to King James I, of England, when he took his seat on the Bench, and was the last that did so. The Judges of that Court being, ex officio, Sovereign conservators of the peace, and Supreme Coroners of the Kingdom—powers equally incident to the like situations in this Province. These are circumstances which I would not have thought necessary to obtrude on your attention, Gentlemen, on the present occasion, were it not to account for the extreme astonishment, with which all respectable strangers, as well as all persons of superior minds and intelligence in this Province, are invariably struck on viewing the mean and ruinous condition of the wooden Cottage in which a supreme Court of the nature and description I have stated, has been compelled to hold its terms, sittings, and assizes, during a period of thirteen years—a building not adequate in any one respect for the accommodation of any Court of Justice, but also in point of irreparable decay and delapidation, as to be unfit for human residence. Yet this indecent and long continued neglect, has taken place amongst a civilized people, distinguished, (while they remain) for loyalty and attachment to the British Crown and Constitution; and I feel warranted in saying that this view of the subject, and a serious consideration of the consequences naturally arising therefrom so degrading a predicament, unparallelled in any part of His Majesty's dominions, must have determined His Excellency speedily to remedy an evil fraught with much latent mischief, and to remove a stain on our Provincial character, which strangers might be apt to consider as indicating a want of due respect and attachment to our Government and Institutions—or at all events, as no very flattering mark of our sense of decency and common propriety.

Having said thus much on a subject which some may deem irrelevent on this occasion, but which I hope to be essentially connected with the due administration of justice in a British Colony, bordering on a democratic Republick, and peculiarly exposed to the introduction and prevalence of sentiments and opinions absolutely inconsistent with and destructive of, the fundamental principles of our constitution, I will now, Gentlemen, beg your attention to the more immediate business of the present Session, which, so far as appears by the Calendar before me, is not of unusual extent or importance, except in one instance, which is a case of Rape of unusual atrocity, there being no less than three men implicated in the commission of this act of brutal violence, to all whom it may prove fatal should the charge be supported by evidence, as stated in the calendar—but without that aggravation, the crime itself under any circumstances is of an abhorent nature, and is generally attended with most pernicious consequences, not only as regards the individual female upon whom it may happen to be perpetrated, and her immediate connections, but also as it regards the peace and happiness of society in general, which so materially depend upon the security and protection of the honour and even the delicacy of the female part of the community. It is therefore extremely important that charges of this nature should be strictly investigated, and when proved should be followed with examplary punishment—as nothing can have more dangerous tendency in society, than the disregarding or passing slightly over outrages of this kind, proved more than any other. The investigation of this offence, however, requires more than ordinary discretion and deliberation, since it is a charge easily made, but not easily repelled, even when innocent, —for the oath of the party ravished (when not materially discredited by collateral circumstances) is of itself sufficient evidence to convict the party accused—and for that reason it is usual on trials of this kind, to pay as much, if not perhaps more attention to corroborative circumstances than to the oath of the woman, which not unfrequently is prompted by motives of revenge—jealous resentment—disappointment of promised marriage—and very often by the urgent importunity and compulsion of Parents and friends, with a view to cover, or at least to mitigate the shame of detected incontinence, or to compel reparation by marriage or otherwise. The corroborative circumstances chiefly attended to in cases of this kind, are, the character of the woman—the promptitude or tardiness of her complaint—marks of violence indicative of struggle or determined resistance—the time and place of committing the alledged offence—denoting the probability or improbability of obtaining assistance in case of outcry.—You will observe that the first and most important of those corroborations, is and indeed reasonably ought to be, the character of the woman, particularly as to chastity,—but, Gentlemen, let me here caution you against falling into error in the opposite extreme, the only difference the good or bad character of the prosecuting female can make before us, is, that we will reasonably expect and require much stronger corroborative proofs in support of the oath of a bad woman, than we should require to corroborate the testimony upon oath of a woman of unexceptionable character,—for the most common Prostitute is as much under the protection of the law, as the most virtuous woman,—and the violation of her person by force and against her will, is as much a crime, and when satisfactorily proved as certainly incurs the highest penalty of the law in one case as in the other. A little reflection will soon convince you that it ought to be so, it would indeed be most dangerous to be otherwise, or that a woman's suspected, or even known incontinence should furnish any excuse, and far less any justification of a crime of this nature. In such case we should have no rule or limit to guide us, and instead of trying the criminal fact, our time and attention would be occupied to little purpose in ascertaining the exact degree of female chastity—to prevent which useless and even dangerous investigation, the law has wisely ordained that no woman shall be forced with impunity. The very particular nature of the testimony required by law to support this charge is its full extent, renders it advisable in most cases, to prosecute only for an assault with intent to commit it. In this respect however the Attorney General will exercise his own discretion, as he will indeed in all other cases he may have occasion to submit to your consideration, by bill of indictment. I have enlarged the more on this, as being the only case in the calendar, and also as being a crime of frequent occurrence throughout the Province—one instance of which, of singular atrocity, was brought before me on my last circuit. The trial, I have made on that subject, are only general principles, which you will apply to the particular case now to be submitted to your investigation.

There is a case in the Calendar for keeping a disorderly house—an offence of pernicious consequences in a small community, and particularly destructive of the morals of youth, and therefore to be strictly enquired into and severely punished, if proved. The other cases are common assaults, and several larcenies. One of the latter appears to be to a large amount, but whether simple or compound, does not appear by the Calendar, and is intended with fatal consequences to the parties accused, who appear to be Husband and Wife. Should the Wife have participated in this crime with the knowledge of, and under the control of her Husband, it will be your duty to find no Bill against her; but if it appear that she was the sole and uncontrolled actor in the felony, she must bear the consequences of her own guilt.

These are all the offences stated to me in the Sheriff's Calendar; there may however, be many other offences and misdemeanors submitted to your consideration, besides those of a misdemeanor preferred by the Law Officers of the Crown—complaints on oath by individuals—or as criminal occurrences within the knowledge of any one of you. Gentlemen; and if so, it will be your indispensable duty to investigate them in whatever shape they may present you, for you are the Constitutional Inquisitors of all offences committed in this District, from the highest crime to the lowest misdemeanor, and when satisfied that any such have been committed, and can ascertain by whom, it will be your duty to present the same to this Court, in order that a further and more thorough investigation may take place, finally to exculpate the guilt or innocence of the party accused. Amongst the ordinary subjects of inquiry on occasions like the present, are, neglect of duty of all persons in public trust for the use of the District—the extortion of such as may be entitled to fees of office—Public nuisances in streets, highways, or elsewhere, in any manner prejudicial to the health or convenience of his Majesty's subjects—keeping disorderly houses—engrossing, regrating, and forestalling the public markets, or selling unwholesome provisions—affrays—riots, and breaches of the peace—seditious and scandalous libels tending to breaches of the peace, or to contempt of the Government, or of Religious Institutions—profanation of the Sabbath, or any other open and notoriously vicious conduct, destructive of public morals, and offensive to the Community.

In the investigation of all those matters, whether felonies or misdemeanors, I doubt not that you are aware, you can only receive evidence on the part of the Crown or prosecution, but by no means on the part of the accused, which would in fact be trying the case in absence of the offender, and that too in secret, for you are sworn to secrecy—such mode of trial is altogether inadmissable by our laws, which require that all persons accused of any offence whatever, shall be tried publicly, and have an opportunity of examining witnesses for them, as well as cross-examining those against them.

From what has been observed, you will perceive that you are in fact the Constitutional Guardians of the peace, and good order of the Community whom you here represent; and that as such it is your especial duty strictly to enquire what offences are from time to time committed in your District, and by whom committed, in order that the offenders, whoever they may be, may publicly be put to answer for their conduct to another Jury.—Should you neglect to do so, strictly and imperatively, you will betray the trust reposed in you by the laws of your country—you will deprive your families and neighbours of their Constitutional protection, and expose them to the flagitious and daring depredations of the vicious and disorderly part of the community—and you also do that which I am sure is not your intention to do, you would be guilty of a criminal disregard and neglect of the solemn oath you have just taken, which requires you to present all things truly as they come to your knowledge. In doing so, however, you should be well satisfied by the ex parte evidence before you, that the party accused is, in your opinion, guilty of the offence charged against him, or at least that so strong a degree of suspicion of guilt attaches to him, as to render it necessary for the ends of public justice (which are the peace, protection, and good order of society) that the matter should undergo a more thorough and public investigation than you have the power or the means of giving it; but of that necessity you should be well assured, for although it is the Petty Jury that is finally to pronounce on the guilt or innocence of the accused party; yet our free constitution does not permit that the life, liberty, or reputation of any subject should be put in jeopardy, or surmise, or on slight or doubtful testimony.

Gentlemen, I need scarcely state to you, that in the administration of justice, our first and paramount duty in our respective situations, is, to divest ourselves of all bias or prejudice for or against any one on trial before us, but to govern ourselves altogether by the evidence, not suffering any previous impression made on our minds by common report or conversation to influence our proceedings here in any degree.

Having the honor of being acquainted with you individually, I feel confident that on this, as on all similar occasions, you will acquit yourselves, in a manner becoming your character as Gentlemen, and your duty as Grand Jurors.

Married,

At Halifax, (N. S.) 29th Augt. John Quirke Short, Esq. Deputy Inspector of Hospitals, to Mary Elizabeth, 2nd daughter of the late Depy. Asst. Comy. General Robertson.

Lieut. Governor.

PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors, of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province; to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on Monday the Thirtieth day of October inst. to be Commenced, Held, Called, and Elected, and to every of you

GREETING

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Twenty-fifth day of September last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the Thirtieth day of October instant, at which time, at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear.

NOW KNOW YE, that we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents enjoining you and each of you that on Tuesday the Fifth day of December next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, FOR THE ACTUAL DESPATCH OF PUBLIC BUSINESS, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

In testimony whereof, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—Witness our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding our Forces therein, at York, this Twenty-first day of October in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-six, and in the Seventh Year of our reign.

UPPER CANADA.

P. MAITLAND,
Lieut. Governor.

GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To all to whom these Presents shall come

GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the parts of this Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. We have thought fit to order and direct, and We do hereby order and direct that, until Our pleasure herein shall be further made known, it shall and may be lawful for all Our Subjects inhabiting Our Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada, freely to enter into Our Woods and Forests in such parts of Our said Province of Upper Canada, situate along the Banks of the River Ottawa, or upon the Banks of the Waters running into the said River and within a convenient distance from the same, as shall not have been Surveyed and divided into Concessions and Lots, and to Cut and carry away such Oak and Pine Timber as may be fit for the purposes of Exportation.

Provided always, nevertheless; That in consideration of the authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties herein-after specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Red Pine Timber, Four Pounds Three Shillings and Four Pence, being at the rate of One Penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Yellow Pine Timber, Two Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence, being at the rate of One Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commission under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places on the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointed as aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has attained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons, properly authorised by or under Our Licence granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

In testimony whereof, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—Witness our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this third day of May in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-Six, and in the Seventh Year of Our Reign.

Executive Council Office, } York, 23rd March, 1826 }

NOTICE is hereby given, by Order of His Excellency the Lieutenat Governor, in Council, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a regular Council day.

JOHN SMALL.

No. 9 1. f. C. E. C.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepard in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s. 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase,

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hunded Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant.

It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessarry expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

Upper Canada, }
Court of Probate, } SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C.
York to Wit: } B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein and Judge of the Court of Probate, within the said Province, &c. &c. &c.

To PATRICK CONIGAN, late of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, and Province aforesaid, as Nephew and next of Kin of Bartholomew Conigan, deceased.

WHEREAS John McLean, of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, Yoeman, lately exhibited a petition in the said Court of Probate, setting forth that you the said Patrick Conigan, some years ago procured Letters of Administration from the Court of Probate aforesaid, to the Estate of the late Bartholomew Conigan, of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, Hawker and Pedlar, deceased. That you the said Patrick Conigan collected all the monies due to the said Bartholomew Conigan, but have left this Province and not discharged the Debts of the said Bartholomew Conigan, although he the said Bartholomew Conigan died possessed of ample property to do so. That the said Petitioner in the month of July one thousand eight hundred and twenty two obtained a verdict against you the said Patrick Conigan, Administsator as aforesaid, for the sum of Seven Pounds ten shillings, on which the said Petitioner has since entered up Judgment. That the said Petitioner has never received satisfaction of the said judgment, and there being no property now remaining in this Province on which an Execution could be levied; Wherefore the said John McLean humbly prays that a Citation may issue calling on you the said Patrick Conigan, as Administrator aforesaid, to appear in the said Court of Probate on the First day of January next ensuing, and shew cause why you should not pay the said debt and do whatever the said Court my require in the Premises of the said Petition. Now therefore these are to Cite and require you the said Patrick Conigan, as Administrator to the Estate of the said late Bartholomew Conigan, deceased, on the First day of January next ensuing the date hereof to produce and exhibit into the Register's Office of the said Court of Probate, a true, full and perfect Inventory of all the goods, chattles, rights and credits which were of the said Bartholomew Conigan, deceased, at the time of his death, and make, or cause to be made, a true and just account of your Administration, and to shew cause why you will not pay the said debt for which the said John McLean has entered up Judgment against you as Administrator to the Estate of the said late Bartholomew Conigan, deceased. Dated at York, in the Province aforesaid, this Eighth day of September, One thousand eight hundred and twent-six.

FOR THE U. E. LOYALIST.

TO THE HOUSE OF MY FRIEND.

House of my Friend!—may no dishonoring stain
Pollute thy sacred walls;—may virtue bright
The blest direction of her course maintain,
And guide thy inmates in the ways of right:
May no intruding demon ever blight
Their mutual harmony, and love, and peace;
But meek Religion's pure, celestial light
Shine in each heart,—there grow, and never cease,
Till Heaven itself shall be the measure of increase.

AUTUMN.

From the Literary Souvenir, for 1826.

Sweet Sabbath of the year,
While evening lights decay,
Thy parting steps methinks I hear
Steal from the world away.

Amid thy silent bowers,
'Tis sad, but sweet to dwell,
Where falling leaves and drooping flowers
Around me breathe farewell.

Along thy sunset skies,
Their glories melt in shade;
And like the things we fondly prize
Seem lovelier as they fade.

A deep and crimson streak
The dying leaves disclose;
As on consumption's waning cheek
'Mid ruin blooms the rose.

Thy scene each vision brings,
Of beauty in decay;
Of fair and early faded things
Too exquisite, to stay.

Of joys that come no more,
Of flowers whose bloom is fled;
Of farewells wept upon the shore,
Of friends estranged or dead.

Of all that now may seem,
To memory's tearful eye;
The vanished beauty of a dream
O'er which we gaze and sigh.

MISCELLANEOUS.

OLD HEADS ON YOUNG SHOULDERS.

UPON one of my days of infant innocence I lined my cousin Proby's hat with birdlime, out of revenge, because he had broken the central ornament in a string of birds' eggs, which at that happy epoch of puerile simplicity, I had purloined from certain nests in Hadley grove. The poor lad found his beaver as immoveable as the plumed cap of the son of Mais; and much hot water and many screams were expended before it could be disjointed from his head. My mother was seriously angry; but my poor aunt Proby, mother to the victim aforesaid, as gentle a being as ever suffered a family to run wild upon the common of their own inclinations, exclaimed, "Well, well, never mind! he meant no harm: there is no putting old heads on young shoulders!"

My aunt's asseveration has, according to my subsequent experience, been qualified by two exceptions;—the one corporeal and the other mental. The Countess of ——, has a pair of very juvenile-looking shoulders with a very wrinkled head screwed upon their apex. If you walk behind her, she seems twenty-two: accoss her, vis a vis, and she mounts to sixty. In that respect she is like the law—very well to follow, but very ill to confront. The mental exception is one Smedley Jones, lately an articled clerk to an attorney—I beg his pardon, a solicitor—in Furnival's Inn, Holborn; but recently out of his time, and therefore qualified to kill game upon his own account. He wears black half-gaiters, and is a member of the Philonomic Society; exhibits much wisdom, little whisker, and no shirt collar; simpers; makes a gentle bow at the close of every sentence, with his chin touching his left collar-bone; criticises the new law courts; wears lead coloured gloves; affects a beaver with a broad brim; nods at the close of every sentence when the court of Exchequer pronounces a judgment by way of encouraging the three puisne barons; and carries his pantaloons to his tailors in a blue bag that they may pass for briefs. There is a lame clerk in the Three Per Cent. Consol Office at the Bank, with whom Smedley Jones appears to be on terms of considerable intimacy. I rather suspect that the motive of this conjunction is that the latter may obtain private information with respect to certain funded property, appertaining to certain widows and maidens, his attention to whom rises and falls accordingly. It is an unquestionable fact that whenever a young man rises, like Smedley Jones, upon his toes in walking; waltzes with every thick-ancled girl, that would otherwise be a wall-flower for the whole evening; looks benevolently downward upon his cheeks, sings a second in church, and boasts of belonging to no club, he may, to a certainty, be set down as one who means to let fly an arrow at Plutus through the Temple of Hymen.

It is quite edifying to meet Smedley Jones at a dinner-party. The first thing he does, on entering the drawing room, is to take up a book with an air of no common sagacity. If it happen to be Woodstock, he smiles with an aspect of compassionate disdain, and informs the bystander that he objects to historical novels, and that he prefers going to the fountain-head in Lord Clarendon and Bishop Burnet. Upon the appearance of the mistress of the mansion, he takes a seat by her on the sofa; but so near to its edge, that the slightest backward movement of that article of furniture would seat him where he ought to be. He smooths down the sandy coloured hair of the matron's accompanying offspring with an air of ineffable interest; enquires after dear Charles: hopes to see sweet little Emma: and ejaculates, "Oh, pray now," when mamma expresses a doubt as to her appearance. He then talks of the sea as beneficial to children, and recommends Worthing because it has no cliff. When dinner is announced, he looks sharply round for some female whose spine rather swerves from the perpendicular, aware that heiresses are seldom straight backed; tucks her lean arm under his, and manœuvers to sit next to her at table. Whilst in the act of descending the stairs, our proprietor of an old head upon young shoulders, takes due care that the tongue which vibrates in the mouth of it shall ejaculate, "What a capital house this is!" in accents sufficiently loud to be overheard by the master or mistress of the mansion. He dilutes his wine with water, to adapt it to his conversation; and enlarges upon the folly of the maxim, "a reformed rake makes the best husband." I have heard him tell, nineteen times over, the anecdote of his uncle Major Flush, who, thirty years back, at a dinner with Sir Phelim O'Four-bottle, poured his claret into his boots, aware that they would stand a soaking better than the coats of his stomach. This gives Mr. Smedley Jones an opportunity of observing how different things are at present; with an addition, that one glass of wine at dinner, and two after it, should never be exceeded by any man who wishes to render himself acceptable to the ladies. He belongs to a society for converting Captain Parry's Esquimaux, at the North Pole, from the errors of their ways. I have this fact from his own mouth, having had the misfortune to sit next but one to him at dinner, at old Spinsuit's, the Chancery barrister. The intervening individual was Miss Creek, of Upper Clapton, a white-visaged personage, whom the above mentioned clerk, in the Three Per Cent. Office, has introduced to his acquaintance. I rather think Spinsuit has been instructed to peruse and settle their marriage articles.

Miss Creek having retired with the rest of the ladies, my left flank was cruelly exposed. The old headsman accordingly brought his juvenile left shoulder forward, and occupied the vacant seat. He asked me if I did not think the Esquimaux at the North Pole, "Dark Heathens:" I answered not entirely so, because their whale blubber supplied them with oil for lamps. Mr. Smedley Jones stared at this, and added, that his meaning was that they were poor unenlightened wanderers. I rejoined, "true, but that's Apollo's fault!" Finding that he had a neighbour who was not to be dealt with metaphorically, he changed his course, and began to dilate upon his family-affairs, and informed me that his brother George was a clerk in the Post-office, where he expressed a hope that Mr. Freeling would push him. Finding, upon inquiry, that his brother George lodged at the last house in Cecil-Street, which overlooks the mud-bank of the river Thames, I answered, "I hope he will." I was then informed that Mr. Smedley Jones's brother Richard was a clerk in the brew-house of Sweetwort and Company; the junior part of which establishment, "sitting under the same minister" at Hoxton, had promised to push him. Finding too, that Sweetwort and Company were celebrated for their large vat, I again said, "I hope they will," which procured for me one of those amiable chin-dropping bows, which I have already depicted.—"For myself," continued my juvenile companion with the antique bust, "I have a clerk who is a cousin to one of the judges, who goes the home circuit next assizes; he knows something of the high sheriff, and that kind-hearted and noble personage (Mr. Smedley Jones is not sparing of adjectives to benefactors in esse or en passe) has promised to push me"—"Neck and heels out of court, into the High Street," thought I, "or his javelin-man will not be of my mind." A Captain Smithers, with a dull eye and a drawling voice, now offered his snuff-box to Mr. Smedley Jones; this the latter declined, with another of those amiable bows, to which I have faintly endeavored to do justice; and turning to me, observed that snuff-taking was a bad habit for a young man. "At all events," answered I, "he should wear a bad habit, or Scotch rapee will make it one." "Not but what I carry a box myself," continued Mr. Smedley Jones,—with a l ok that he meant for arch—"here it is;" so saying, he pulled out of his coat-pocket an oblong box, with an amber lid. "May I perish," thought I, "If it does not come from Geneva. We shall now be pestered with the regular orthodox series of quadrille tunes." When this machine had interrupted conversation for the usual period, and had "said its say," I was in hopes that we had done with it; "But soft! by regular approach—not yet." It was again wound up, and again set a-going, to gratify Theobald Spinsuit, who had bolted into the dining-room in quest of an orange. These little attentions gratify mothers, and are apt to procure the perpetrator a second invitation to dinner.

There now ensued a regular struggle between Mr. Smedley Jones's tongue and my taciturnity. He is one of those civil young men who must speak to their neighbors, whether they have any thing to communicate or not. I was accordingly asked what I thought of the Catholic Question. I had entertained no thoughts upon the subject. "Indeed!" was the reply. The next interrogatory to which I was subjected, was, "Who was the author of Junius?" I protested that I had never given the matter a moment's reflection. This, however, did not stop the subject, and I was condemned to listen to the usual harangue, with the words "Sir Philip Francis, Lord Chatham, Lord Shelburn, bound copy at bankers, and tall man at letter box"—emphasized after the accustomed manner. Then followed the banking system of Scotland, the Rev. Edward Irving, (whose watch I fear is still in pawn;) the death of the dowager Empress of Russia, Cranecopy, and Tooke on Currency. All which topics were by me, jointly and severally, returned ignoramus. Mr. Smedley Jones's battery here suffered a momentary pause: whereupon "Thinks I to myself!" now for my turn. "Since Nature has clapped an old head upon his young shoulders, Art shall insert a young head between my old ones. Fifty-one shall start the topics which twenty-one ought to have discussed."—Accordingly I asked Mr. Smedley Jones, to his no small dismay, what he thought of Mrs. Hemby's Cherry Ripe and the Lover's Mistake. I took it for granted that he had seen Paul Pry on horseback, at Astley's Amphitheatre. I animadverted upon Madame Pasta's Medea: was sorry that Signora Garcia had picked up a Yankee husband; and mentioned that I had seen Sir Thomas Beevor and Cobbett, in St. Paul's Churchyard, in the character of the Goose and Gridiron. It is thus that extremes produce each other. If twenty-one monopolizes all the sense at the dinner table, fifty-one must take to the nonsense or hold its tongue. "Sir," said the moralist of Boltcourt, upon an occasion somewhat similar, "he talked of the origin of evil, whereupon I withdrew my attention, and thought of Tom Thumb." I fear that Smedley Jones has by this time become almost as wearisome to the reader at second hand, as he was originally to the writer. I shall therefore conclude with this observation:—All monsters ought to be smothered: and wherever Nature puts an old head upon young shoulders, the sooner the one is knocked off the other the better.

A KITE CARRIAGE.

A curious experiment was made on Hounslow Heath a short time since, with a carriage drawn by kites, invented by Mr. Pocock of Bristol. Unfortunately for the trial, there was very little wind, but even under this disadvantage, the carriage, with six persons, was, it is stated to us, drawn by the kites at the rate of eight or nine miles an hour. Though their course was only within six points of the wind, they dashed gallantly through Houndslow; but were obliged to pull up at Brentford, on account of the contrary air and the narrowness of the street. The crowd collected where witness the phenomenon was immense; the stage stopped, and one Jehu expressed his delight that the kite carriage headed him for above a mile. It was a very warm day and the party stopped at a public house to take a draught of porter—and one of them called the ostler—"I be coming, sir." "Give our steeds a feed." "Where be they, sir." "Why up there." "Ah, you be telling it me now." They let their carriage move on a few yards.—"Why, sure enough, it is so. Missis! missis! come out and see how them there kites draws this here carriage." The old lady come out; she looked a person rather inclined to give an opinion than take one. She cast her eyes on the carriage, then on the kites, and then on the carriage again,

FOR THE U. E. LOYALIST.

TO THE HOUSE OF MY FRIEND.

House of my Friend!—may no dishonoring stain
Pollute thy sacred walls;—may virtue bright
The blest direction of her course maintain,
And guide thy inmates in the ways of right:
May no intruding demon ever blight
Their mutual harmony, and love, and peace;
But meek Religion's pure, celestial light
Shine in each heart,—there grow, and never cease,
Till Heaven itself shall be the measure of increase.

AUTUMN.

From the Literary Souvenir, for 1826.

Sweet Sabbath of the year,
While evening lights decay,
Thy parting steps methinks I hear
Steal from the world away.

Amid thy silent bowers,
'Tis sad, but sweet to dwell,
Where falling leaves and drooping flowers
Around me breathe farewell.

Along thy sunset skies,
Their glories melt in shade;
And like the things we fondly prize
Seem lovelier as they fade.

A deep and crimson streak
The dying leaves disclose;
As on consumption's waning cheek
'Mid ruin blooms the rose.

Thy scene each vision brings,
Of beauty in decay;
Of fair and early faded things
Too exquisite, to stay.

Of joys that come no more,
Of flowers whose bloom is fled;
Of farewells wept upon the shore,
Of friends estranged or dead.

Of all that now may seem,
To memory's tearful eye;
The vanished beauty of a dream
O'er which we gaze and sigh.

MISCELLANEOUS.

OLD HEADS ON YOUNG SHOULDERS.

UPON one of my days of infant innocence I lined my cousin Proby's hat with birdlime, out of revenge, because he had broken the central ornament in a string of birds' eggs, which at that happy epoch of puerile simplicity, I had purloined from certain nests in Hadley grove. The poor lad found his beaver as immoveable as the plumed cap of the son of Mais; and much hot water and many screams were expended before it could be disjointed from his head. My mother was seriously angry; but my poor aunt Proby, mother to the victim aforesaid, as gentle a being as ever suffered a family to run wild upon the common of their own inclinations, exclaimed, "Well, well, never mind! he meant no harm: there is no putting old heads on young shoulders!"

My aunt's asseveration has, according to my subsequent experience, been qualified by two exceptions;—the one corporeal and the other mental. The Countess of ——, has a pair of very juvenile-looking shoulders with a very wrinkled head screwed upon their apex. If you walk behind her, she seems twenty-two: accoss her, vis a vis, and she mounts to sixty. In that respect she is like the law—very well to follow, but very ill to confront. The mental exception is one Smedley Jones, lately an articled clerk to an attorney—I beg his pardon, a solicitor—in Furnival's Inn, Holborn; but recently out of his time, and therefore qualified to kill game upon his own account. He wears black half-gaiters, and is a member of the Philonomic Society; exhibits much wisdom, little whisker, and no shirt collar; simpers; makes a gentle bow at the close of every sentence, with his chin touching his left collar-bone; criticises the new law courts; wears lead coloured gloves; affects a beaver with a broad brim; nods at the close of every sentence when the court of Exchequer pronounces a judgment by way of encouraging the three puisne barons; and carries his pantaloons to his tailors in a blue bag that they may pass for briefs. There is a lame clerk in the Three Per Cent. Consol Office at the Bank, with whom Smedley Jones appears to be on terms of considerable intimacy. I rather suspect that the motive of this conjunction is that the latter may obtain private information with respect to certain funded property, appertaining to certain widows and maidens, his attention to whom rises and falls accordingly. It is an unquestionable fact that whenever a young man rises, like Smedley Jones, upon his toes in walking; waltzes with every thick-ancled girl, that would otherwise be a wall-flower for the whole evening; looks benevolently downward upon his cheeks, sings a second in church, and boasts of belonging to no club, he may, to a certainty, be set down as one who means to let fly an arrow at Plutus through the Temple of Hymen.

It is quite edifying to meet Smedley Jones at a dinner-party. The first thing he does, on entering the drawing room, is to take up a book with an air of no common sagacity. If it happen to be Woodstock, he smiles with an aspect of compassionate disdain, and informs the bystander that he objects to historical novels, and that he prefers going to the fountain-head in Lord Clarendon and Bishop Burnet. Upon the appearance of the mistress of the mansion, he takes a seat by her on the sofa; but so near to its edge, that the slightest backward movement of that article of furniture would seat him where he ought to be. He smooths down the sandy coloured hair of the matron's accompanying offspring with an air of ineffable interest; enquires after dear Charles: hopes to see sweet little Emma: and ejaculates, "Oh, pray now," when mamma expresses a doubt as to her appearance. He then talks of the sea as beneficial to children, and recommends Worthing because it has no cliff. When dinner is announced, he looks sharply round for some female whose spine rather swerves from the perpendicular, aware that heiresses are seldom straight backed; tucks her lean arm under his, and manœuvers to sit next to her at table. Whilst in the act of descending the stairs, our proprietor of an old head upon young shoulders, takes due care that the tongue which vibrates in the mouth of it shall ejaculate, "What a capital house this is!" in accents sufficiently loud to be overheard by the master or mistress of the mansion. He dilutes his wine with water, to adapt it to his conversation; and enlarges upon the folly of the maxim, "a reformed rake makes the best husband." I have heard him tell, nineteen times over, the anecdote of his uncle Major Flush, who, thirty years back, at a dinner with Sir Phelim O'Four-bottle, poured his claret into his boots, aware that they would stand a soaking better than the coats of his stomach. This gives Mr. Smedley Jones an opportunity of observing how different things are at present; with an addition, that one glass of wine at dinner, and two after it, should never be exceeded by any man who wishes to render himself acceptable to the ladies. He belongs to a society for converting Captain Parry's Esquimaux, at the North Pole, from the errors of their ways. I have this fact from his own mouth, having had the misfortune to sit next but one to him at dinner, at old Spinsuit's, the Chancery barrister. The intervening individual was Miss Creek, of Upper Clapton, a white-visaged personage, whom the above mentioned clerk, in the Three Per Cent. Office, has introduced to his acquaintance. I rather think Spinsuit has been instructed to peruse and settle their marriage articles.

Miss Creek having retired with the rest of the ladies, my left flank was cruelly exposed. The old headsman accordingly brought his juvenile left shoulder forward, and occupied the vacant seat. He asked me if I did not think the Esquimaux at the North Pole, "Dark Heathens:" I answered not entirely so, because their whale blubber supplied them with oil for lamps. Mr. Smedley Jones stared at this, and added, that his meaning was that they were poor unenlightened wanderers. I rejoined, "true, but that's Apollo's fault!" Finding that he had a neighbour who was not to be dealt with metaphorically, he changed his course, and began to dilate upon his family-affairs, and informed me that his brother George was a clerk in the Post-office, where he expressed a hope that Mr. Freeling would push him. Finding, upon inquiry, that his brother George lodged at the last house in Cecil-Street, which overlooks the mud-bank of the river Thames, I answered, "I hope he will." I was then informed that Mr. Smedley Jones's brother Richard was a clerk in the brew-house of Sweetwort and Company; the junior part of which establishment, "sitting under the same minister" at Hoxton, had promised to push him. Finding too, that Sweetwort and Company were celebrated for their large vat, I again said, "I hope they will," which procured for me one of those amiable chin-dropping bows, which I have already depicted.—"For myself," continued my juvenile companion with the antique bust, "I have a clerk who is a cousin to one of the judges, who goes the home circuit next assizes; he knows something of the high sheriff, and that kind-hearted and noble personage (Mr. Smedley Jones is not sparing of adjectives to benefactors in esse or en passe) has promised to push me"—"Neck and heels out of court, into the High Street," thought I, "or his javelin-man will not be of my mind." A Captain Smithers, with a dull eye and a drawling voice, now offered his snuff-box to Mr. Smedley Jones; this the latter declined, with another of those amiable bows, to which I have faintly endeavored to do justice; and turning to me, observed that snuff-taking was a bad habit for a young man. "At all events," answered I, "he should wear a bad habit, or Scotch rapee will make it one." "Not but what I carry a box myself," continued Mr. Smedley Jones,—with a l ok that he meant for arch—"here it is;" so saying, he pulled out of his coat-pocket an oblong box, with an amber lid. "May I perish," thought I, "If it does not come from Geneva. We shall now be pestered with the regular orthodox series of quadrille tunes." When this machine had interrupted conversation for the usual period, and had "said its say," I was in hopes that we had done with it; "But soft! by regular approach—not yet." It was again wound up, and again set a-going, to gratify Theobald Spinsuit, who had bolted into the dining-room in quest of an orange. These little attentions gratify mothers, and are apt to procure the perpetrator a second invitation to dinner.

There now ensued a regular struggle between Mr. Smedley Jones's tongue and my taciturnity. He is one of those civil young men who must speak to their neighbors, whether they have any thing to communicate or not. I was accordingly asked what I thought of the Catholic Question. I had entertained no thoughts upon the subject. "Indeed!" was the reply. The next interrogatory to which I was subjected, was, "Who was the author of Junius?" I protested that I had never given the matter a moment's reflection. This, however, did not stop the subject, and I was condemned to listen to the usual harangue, with the words "Sir Philip Francis, Lord Chatham, Lord Shelburn, bound copy at bankers, and tall man at letter box"—emphasized after the accustomed manner. Then followed the banking system of Scotland, the Rev. Edward Irving, (whose watch I fear is still in pawn;) the death of the dowager Empress of Russia, Cranecopy, and Tooke on Currency. All which topics were by me, jointly and severally, returned ignoramus. Mr. Smedley Jones's battery here suffered a momentary pause: whereupon "Thinks I to myself!" now for my turn. "Since Nature has clapped an old head upon his young shoulders, Art shall insert a young head between my old ones. Fifty-one shall start the topics which twenty-one ought to have discussed."—Accordingly I asked Mr. Smedley Jones, to his no small dismay, what he thought of Mrs. Hemby's Cherry Ripe and the Lover's Mistake. I took it for granted that he had seen Paul Pry on horseback, at Astley's Amphitheatre. I animadverted upon Madame Pasta's Medea: was sorry that Signora Garcia had picked up a Yankee husband; and mentioned that I had seen Sir Thomas Beevor and Cobbett, in St. Paul's Churchyard, in the character of the Goose and Gridiron. It is thus that extremes produce each other. If twenty-one monopolizes all the sense at the dinner table, fifty-one must take to the nonsense or hold its tongue. "Sir," said the moralist of Boltcourt, upon an occasion somewhat similar, "he talked of the origin of evil, whereupon I withdrew my attention, and thought of Tom Thumb." I fear that Smedley Jones has by this time become almost as wearisome to the reader at second hand, as he was originally to the writer. I shall therefore conclude with this observation:—All monsters ought to be smothered: and wherever Nature puts an old head upon young shoulders, the sooner the one is knocked off the other the better.

A KITE CARRIAGE.

A curious experiment was made on Hounslow Heath a short time since, with a carriage drawn by kites, invented by Mr. Pocock of Bristol. Unfortunately for the trial, there was very little wind, but even under this disadvantage, the carriage, with six persons, was, it is stated to us, drawn by the kites at the rate of eight or nine miles an hour. Though their course was only within six points of the wind, they dashed gallantly through Houndslow; but were obliged to pull up at Brentford, on account of the contrary air and the narrowness of the street. The crowd collected where witness the phenomenon was immense; the stage stopped, and one Jehu expressed his delight that the kite carriage headed him for above a mile. It was a very warm day and the party stopped at a public house to take a draught of porter—and one of them called the ostler—"I be coming, sir." "Give our steeds a feed." "Where be they, sir." "Why up there." "Ah, you be telling it me now." They let their carriage move on a few yards.—"Why, sure enough, it is so. Missis! missis! come out and see how them there kites draws this here carriage." The old lady come out; she looked a person rather inclined to give an opinion than take one. She cast her eyes on the carriage, then on the kites, and then on the carriage again, and clapping her hands on her sides, exclaimed, with a hearty laugh, "What a goose you are, Tom, it is not the kites that draw the carriage, there are men up behind them that pull it along!"

We understand that Mr. Pocock has been twenty years in perfecting his ingenious invention. He harnesses the winds, and makes them obedient to his command—all he asks is for them to blow. In a strong breeze he travels at the rate of twenty to twenty-five miles per hour. He can turn as he pleases, and stop the carring in an instant, though going down hill at the rate of twenty miles an hour. He can hand, reef, and steer, and manage his kites and Cab with almost as much facility as the seaman manages his sails and rudder: he can tack and shape his course as he pleases, if the wind be abaft the beam; that is, less than eight points, or ninety degrees.

This invention is not only an elegant amusement on land, but we think it susceptible of being usefully employed at sea. The deserts of Africa might be traversed by its aid, at a rate far exceeding the boasted speed of the dromedary. All that is necessary for its success is for "The stormy winds to blow-ow-ow."

A letter received in London from Genoa says—By the arrival of a vessel which left Cagliari on the 11th Aug. we learn, that a master has reported to his consignees that he had left Lord Cochrane in that bay, on board of a fine large steam vessel, as long as a frigate and that his Lordship had been there upwards of six weeks, waiting, it is said, for some ships to join him.

According to the report of the best informed brokers, the situation of business, as regards London, and with the exception of very few articles, has very materially improved within the last six weeks. That improvement may be stated on most of the principal articles of colonial produce, at about 15 or 16 per cent; in some cases perhaps more. The articles which has been almost the last in receiving the impulse given to commercial operations, is cotton.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 16.

Ashes.—4000 bbls. Pot and Pearl Ashes were sold at last week's rates.

Corn Exchange.—Tuesday's market was well attended by dealers. For both wheat and oats there was an improved demand, and sales to a considerable extent were effected at an advance of 1d to 2d on the former, and 1d to 3d per bushel in the latter, on the prices of Saturday. There was a fair business done in bonded wheat at prices varying little from those of last week.

14th Sept. 1826.—The settling day at the Stock Exchange was to-day, and the differences were considerable; not one failure of any moment took place. The last prices were—New 4 per cent 95; 3 per cent Consols, 79 1-8; Consols for 12th October, 79 1-4—buyers.

Flour and Wheat.—Since the arrival of the Cortes, with the intelligence of the partial opening of the English ports, flour has advanced in the New-York market from 25 to 37 1-2 cents per barrel. Sales of New-York City and Canal flour, have been made to some extent at $5 25. Holders are now asking $5 37 1-2. Canal flour comes in slowly, and there is but little Southern in the market. Sales of North River and Virginia wheat have been made this week at $1. The last sales of Genesee at $1 03 cts., and an advance on the latter is now required.

It has been discovered that the rotunda in the Capital of Washington, is capable of conveying sounds in the same manner as the famous Whispering Gallery of St. Paul's in London.

ENGLAND.

Despatches have been received at the Colonial Office, dated 18th June, from Mr. Warrington, British Consul at Tripoli. These despatches announce the arrival of Major Laing, at Timbuctoo. The date of his arrival is not stated, but from the time he left Fez, it was probable it took place about the begining of February. The next caravan which arrived at Tripoli from Timbuctoo will bring us further accounts from our traveller regarding his future movements. If he proceeded down the river Niger as expeditiously as he could we may soon expect to hear of his arrival in England. The reports of the dispersion of the caravan with which he was travelling, after it had left Twat, and which had reached this country through a respectable channel, are thus, we rejoice to say, falsified. Inured to the African climate, and arriving at Timbuctoo early in the dry season, we consider every danger to Major Laing as over. Two British travellers are at present in the heart of Northern Africa, to which they have advanced from opposite points. Later advices have been received from Clapperton than those which announced his arrival at Sackatoo, but by the arrival of the Despatch man of war from the coast of Africa (the Bright of Benin), some precious despatches from that traveller have been received, which are of considerable importance, as disclosing his route and progress to Sackatoo. On the 7th of March he was at Katungah, the capital of Yarba or Yarribi, a country bordering on Nye; from whence he was preparing to set out for Kiama, and from thence to Wauwa and Youri (distant four days journey from Wauwa); thus passing the places where our unfortunate countryman Park was lost. Kantangah is stated to be 30 miles east of the Niger. Important information he must of course have obtained there; but still more important information he of course obtained, and has no doubt generally transmitted to this country, in his advance to Kantangah, and in his further advance northwards; because in that route, and in the latter space, he must have crossed the Niger, and passed Nyffe at that point where some will have it that the Niger turns east to the Nile of Egypt, and others that it empties itself into an inland lake.

There is nothing in which the present age has more completely eclipsed the last, than in the improved modes of communication which are established, not only between distant parts of the world, but as regards the internal commerce and intercourse of this and other countries. To say nothing of the way in which the wonderful properties of steam have been applied to navigation, by which the uncertainty of the winds is made subservient to the powers of human invention, or of the magnificent roads which the late Ruler of the French Empire made to grow out of, and to promote his views of conquest and of civilization, it is sufficiently astonishing to look at home, and admire the extraordinary improvements which are every day taking place in this respect in every part of our own island. It is within the remembrance of many (and those not the oldest among us), when the journey to Bath occupied two days; and when to set off for Edinburgh or York was a much more serious affair than at present a journey to Geneva is. The first stage out of London was, within these twenty years, a miserable drag through mud and holes; and stage-coaches, which to go only a moderate distance were compelled to start before it was light, now accomplish long journeys in two-thirds of the time which short ones occupied. And this improvement is not confined to the roads communicating between the metropolis and other large places, but extends itself more or less, over the whole kingdom, and excellent cross-roads now exist between places which only a few years ago were apparently impenetrably separated. To one individual (Mr. MACADAM) the country is mainly indebted for this addition to its comfort and prosperity. It matters little that there are those who dispute with him the merit of the invention. It is he who brings a public benefit into action to whom the public is indebted; and that is unquestionably the case with Mr. MACADAM. Whatever difference of opinion may exist as to the propriety of its introduction into the streets of London, there can be no doubt but that its application to the roads elsewhere is one of the greatest improvements of the age. Though much has been accomplished, much remains in most parts of the kingdom to be done; and we are glad, therefore, to see it stated, that Mr. MACADAM is at this time in treaty with the trustees of the roads in some of the manufacturing districts, with a view of employing a large proportion of the now unemployed labourers, in exteuding the benefits of his incomparable system.—*Morn. BRITISH COLONIAL TRADE.

[Extract from an English Pamphlet.]

The clause in our Act of 1822, requiring that vessels of the U. States, entering our Colonial ports, and taking on board sugar, &c. should give bond, to return direct, and land the same in the U. States, was never acted upon; but it furnished an admirable excuse to the government of the United States for a retaliatory regulation, not like ours, impracticable and nominal, but substantial, and, to their shipping, most advantageous. It was enacted by Congress, that any articles, the growth, produce, and manufacture of the U. States, might be exported directly to any of the enumerated British Colonial ports in any British vessel coming directly from any of the said enumerated ports; but that a ship entering from England should not be permitted to take on board a cargo for the Colonies, or vice versa, entering from the Colonies to take a cargo on board for England. The effect of this regulation has been to throw nearly the whole of the trade between the U. States and the British W. India Colonies into the hands of the Americans, while, had no such restrictions been imposed, it would not only have been retained as an English trade, but the English shipping would have been able to command a large share of the direct trade between England and America.

The West India ships, combing the advantages of carrying three cargoes in one voyage, would have taken the bulky articles of coal, salt and crockery-ware, from England to the U. States, and delivering these would have carried lumber to the West India Islands at a cheaper rate, with the advantage of sugar cargoes home, than it would have been possible for ships of the U. States to carry those articles from England to America, or lumber from America to our West India Islands. The Americans are perfectly aware of this, and continue to enforce their regulation, though ours was never acted upon, and, by the 6th, of Geo. 4, has been repealed. The result to the planters is, that instead of getting their American supplies carried to them at a low freight by the ships that bring home their produce, they must depend upon American vessels, and as these generally return home in ballast, they must have such an outward freight, on the lumber, as will pay the whole expense of the voyage, while many of the English ships, (by which it might so well have been carried, at a very moderate freight,) are going out to the Islands in ballast."

LONDON FEMALE FASHIONS FOR SEPTEMBER.

Among the head-dresses are two beret-turbans, lately finished for ladies of distinction; they are of the true classical shape, without any kind of inner-lining: one is of etherial blue crepelisse; the other of white Japanese gauze: they are crossed over the crown star-wise, with satan ribbon, and ornamented on one side with elegant plumage. The newest home cornette is of yellow tulle and one blond, and is ornamented with lilac ribbon: another cornette is of white tulle and blond, trimmed with a richly-shaded ribbon; this is of a closer kind of shape than the yellow cornette, and is more adapted for déjeuné costume. A blonze cornette is often worn in morning drives; the border is of broad blond, and it is crowned with roses and leaves; over each temple is a small tulip of lively colours. A head-dress for the summer theatres is very becoming and appropriate: it partakes in from both of a cap and small turban, and is of pink gauze; it is sprinkled over with small roses; one temple, lying on the hair, is a rose and buds, of the damask tint; on the other, a bunch of those flowers called Venus's looking-glass. A home cap, made in the newest style, high in front, and infinitely tasteful, we much admired; it is made entirely of Grecian lace, mingled with rosettes of blue gauze ribbon.

An elegant marine bonnet is among the novelties in the hat department; it is of gros-de-Naples, the colour lavender, shot with pink; it has a ruche at the edge of the brim, composed of alternate divisions of pink and lavender colour: the crown is ornamented in a correspondent manner with a narrower ruche, arcades; bows of gauze ribbon, combining the two colours in chequers, are placed between and above the arches, and finish the bonnet. A bonnet of a similar shape, but rather smaller, exclusively for the carriage, is of pink crape, beautifully ornamented with scrolls of pink satin, superb of bouquets of roses, with their buds, white narcissus, double pink stocks, and white daisies.

White dresses barege scarfs, continue much in request: broad flounces set on in festoon, and headed with a ruche of fine thread tulle, from a favourite mode of trimming. Some ladies wear dresses of fine India muslin, with three rows of tulle ruches of a very broad kind and which form a very handsome ornament at the border; these dresses are made rather low, with the sleeves gigot; with antique points of lace at the wrists. In the old English style, Balls in the country are beginning to take place, now that the heat of the weather is more temperate; the style of the dress on these occasions, is as usual, simple. The dresses are of coloured gauze over white satin, and are trimmed with three ruches of gauze, fastened on one side by as many bows, as there are ruches. A sash of white ribbon, variegated with the same colour as the dress, is brought over the shoulders and front of the bust, in bracers; and one and hangs down on each side; these dresses are often worn by young ladies at evening parties. Gowns of coloured Italian net, are much worn in half-dress; they are bordered with two scalloped flounces, finished at the edges with a rouleau of satin, and of some striking colour, but yet with one corresponding with, and suitable to the dress; thus a salmon-coloured gown has flounces bound with a bright orange, bordering on scarlet; a celestial blue, with deep mazarine blue, &c.

A few pelisses of light-coloured gros de Naples, have lately made their appearance, and, as September advances, will certainly become more prevalent. The newest we have seen were finished by a foliage ornament down the front, which fastens close: the cuffs and collar of these leaves are spread over the bust, forming a kind of Brandenburgh ornament. The sleeves are full, en chemisettes, and are confined by bands at separate distances, all the way up the arm, till they nearly approach the shoulder. We have seen something like this sleeve in muslin dresses, but it gives an air of novelty to the silk pelisse, and looks well. The muslin canezou spencer is not so prevalent with our belles, as with those on the Continent; nevertheless, several ladies are seen in them and often with a skirt of coloured taffety, or gros de Naples.

The most approved colours are yellow, rose colour, lavender, etherial blue, apricot, and straw-colour.

A farting case.—At the Surrey Sessions on Monday last, Mary Susannah Dyeken, was found guilty of stealing a pair of shoes. The prisoner, with tears in her eyes, handed a petition to the court, which contained, among other things, the following statements:—"I have been left a widow, upwards of three years, with a family of six children, and for the last eight months have scarcely been able to obtain any employment, owing to the pressure of the times. On the 20th July, the little property I possessed was stolen from me, by a rapacious landlord for a few shillings of rent which I was in arrear. After being exposed several nights with no canopy but the heavens; no pillow but the step of a door, I at length procured an empty apartment, for which the kinds ones of my poor girls suggested the possibility of selling her hair that we might procure something to allay the cravings of appetite. She cut it from her head, took it and procured four-pence for it. Even this poor pittance, though but enough to procure a very meagre meal, was considered a blessing after fasting nearly two days. The cries of my children for food increased, and my heart, which bled for their slighest suffering in earlier days, was now tortured to madness by their accumulated misiries. Nature cried aloud within me—the appeal was irresistible—I rushed forth amidst my phrenzy and despair, and committed the crime which has placed me here, a wretched criminal and supplicant for mercy." The chairman, on reading this appeal, said, that if true, the case was a very lamentable one, and in consideration of the recommendation of the jury and prosecutrix, sentenced her to 14 days' imprisonment at Brixton.

Legal Decision.—The twelve judges of England have lately settled a curious point of law. A man had been convicted of stealing three chests of tea, which he obtained by personating the owner at the waggon office where they were delivered. His counsel objected that it was a fraud and not a felony. The question was argued before the twelve judges, who unanimously decided that the conviction was legal. The objection taken was, there was no felonious taking.

From the London Gazette, Sept. 1.—[This Gazette contains a Proclamation, directing the Parliament to assemble on the 14th of November, but positively to sit for the dispatch of urgent affairs. It also contains the following Proclamation relative to the relaxation of the Corn Laws, which, from its importance, we give at length.]

BY THE KING IN COUNCIL.

Court at Windsor, Sept. 1.

Whereas by the laws now in force for regulating the importation of corn, oats, and oatmeal may be imported into United Kingdom and into the Isle of Man, for home consumption, under and subject to the regulations of the several statutes in that case provided, whenever the average price of oats shall be at or above the price of 27s. per quarter; and peas may in like manner be imported, whenever the price shall be at or above 35s. per quarter; and by a certain Act of Parliament made and passed in the third year of His Majesty's reign, it is enacted, that whenever foreign corn, meal, or flour, shall be admissible under the provisions of an Act passed in the 55th year of the reign of his late Majesty, entitled 'An Act to amend the law now in force for regulating the importation of corn,' or under the provisions of the Act passed in the third year of the reign of his present Majesty, there shall be levied certain duties therein specified upon all such foreign corn, meal, or flour, when admitted for home consumption: and whereas by the weekly returns of purchases and sales of corn in the towns of England and Wales, it appears that the average price of oats and peas has at one time exceed the price of 27s. and 35s. per quarter; and it appears that the price of oats, as well as that of peas, is still rising, and that the crop of oats, and also the crop of peas and beans of the present year, have failed to a considerable extent, and that a deficiency in the crop of potatoes is also apprehended in some parts of the kingdom: and whereas, if the importation, for home consumption, of oats and oatmeal, and of rye peas, and beans, be not immediately permitted, there is great cause to fear that much distress may ensue—

And, under the acts aforesaid, no foreign grain of the above description, whatever may be the respective average prices of the same can be admitted entry, for home consumption, till after the 15th day of November in the present year, when the next quarterly average, by which the admission of such grain is regulated, will be made up according to the provisions of the said Acts; His Majesty, with the advice of his Privy council, doth order, and it is hereby accordingly ordered, that foreign oats and oatmeal, rye, peas, and beans, whether warehoused or otherwise, shall and may, from the date hereof, be permitted to be entered in the ports of the United Kingdom, and of the Isle of Man, for home consumption, provided the parties making entry of any such foreign oats, oatmeal, rye, peas, or beans, to give sufficient sureties, to the satisfaction of the Commissioners of Customs for the payment of any duties, not exceeding in amount the duties hereafter mentioned, in case Parliament shall authorize the levying and receipt thereof, that is to say—Oats per quarter, 2s; oatmeal, per boll, 2s. 2d.; rye, peas, and beans, per quarter, 3s. 6d. And his Majesty doth further order, that such permission shall continue in force from the date hereof, until the expiration of 40 days, to be reckoned from the day of the next meeting of Parliament, unless the Parliament shall previously to the expiration of the said 40 days make provision to the contrary. And the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury are to give the necessary directions accordingly.

C. C. GREVILLE.

LIVERPOOL CORN EXCHANGE, Sept. 5.—Wheat, old, 8s 9d, new 9s 6d a 9s 9d; Foreign, free, 8s a 8s 9d, in bond, 4 10 a 5; Canadian, free, 8s 6d a 9s.

Imported into Liverpool from 29th Aug. to 4th Sept. of Foreign wheat, 17,322 quarters.

The recent order in Council for the admission, forthwith, for home use, of oats, beans, peas, and rye, caused a complete panic on the Corn Exchange to-day. Free wheat was dull of sale at a reduction of 2d per 70lb. In bond was very heavy 1d per 70lb. decline, with the prospect of a further reduction.

IRELAND.

Dublin.—There has, within a few days, been a very considerable change in the weather. We have had nearly three days of rain in Dublin and its vicinity, and by the accounts received from several parts of the country, we are warranted in the inference, that the rain has been pretty general. The fields of course are exceedingly refreshed. The grass, which in the neighbourhood of this city appeared absolutely burnt up, and dry as a cinder, has suddenly put on a verdant mantle. It is now quite green, and gives the promise of an abundant season for after-grass. This is a great relief to the farmer, as it will enable him to send his hay to market, and the price of the latter commodity will decline. As to the grain, that is now beyond the reach of any change of weather. The oats, it is supposed, will not be a third of an average; barley is about half a crop; wheat, take altogether, is an average return. The rains may yet serve the turnips, and the other winter food for the cattle, and as to the potatoe crop, upon which people are naturally more nervous and anxious than any of the rest, being almost the exclusive food of our dense population, we hope, though we cannot expect a full return, that it is not yet in the desperate condition which was apprehended towards the close of last week. Potatoes have fallen, in the Dublin market from fourteen pence to ten pence per stone by retail. The fever still continues to rage with violence.

UNITED STATES.

British order in Council.—It seems we are threatened with the loss of a most valuable and increasing branch of our trade. How has this happened? Have those who direct the councils of this nation, unwisely neglected to embrace a favourable opportunity for enlarging our commerce with the West Indies, and abolishing all discriminating duties? Did not the British Government, actuated by a liberal policy, regulate anew their colonial trade, with foreign countries? And was not a measure on our part, corresponding in liberality, strenuously resisted by the President of the United States? These are questions which the American people have a right to demand when they suffer a valuable trade to be sacrificed to punctilio. The gentlemen who are denounced as engaged in a "factious opposition," because they deem the contract of union between Mr. Adams and Mr. Clay, an insulting defiance of public opinion; those factious oppositionists, consulting the true interests of their country and regardless of the individual interest of the President and his Secretary of State, made an effort in both houses to repeal our discriminating duties, and at once to embrace the advantages tendered to all foreign countries by Great Britain. The gentlemen who have the honor to be exclusively "administration men," wishing to afford their leaders every opportunity to acquire popularity, and valuing the success of their party more dearly than the interests of their country, opposed the measure, and thus have we lost the opportunity of placing our West India trade on a favorable and profitable basis. This postponing and sacrificing the interests of our country in order that, by some future and unexpected event, Mr. Adams and Mr. Clay might enjoy all the credit of negociating a treaty with Great Britain, securing to us privileges which had been voluntarily offered to all nations by her own acts of Parliament in June and July, 1825! Will the people of this nation be will not be held accountable for the consequences? But this is only one among the many evils of being governed by an unpopular administration. Not even the interests of the country is to be consulted when it encounters the wishes of state. Nor will the difficulties compel them to resort to every expedient to sustain a declining cause. For our country's sake, we wish these gentlemen happily through their new difficulties. We hope, that with all their reputation for diplomacy, assisted, too, by an acute and sagacious minister at St. James', they will succeed, after some months, perhaps years, of negociating, in obtaining all the advantages we might have conferred upon ourselves in December last, by an act of Congress of a single sentence, converting the illiberal and chaffering course pursued by our executive, and anticipating that Mr. Gallatin would be instructed to insist on further concessions, ministers have thought it expedient to encounter us with their own concessions, and reciprocating the proffered advantages to commence the negotiation de novo. We cannot blame British ministers for negotiating in the same bargaining spirit which we have exercised towards them—we have chosen our own course, and we must take the consequences. We hope a treaty will be made in anticipation of the Order in Council: but treaty or no treaty, how will Mr. Adams and Mr. Clay answer to the nation for the injury our commerce must inevitably sustain by the mere apprehension of its interdiction? Who will embark in a trade where there is a chance of its being so soon disturbed? From the present moment till a treaty be made, it will continue to be agitated, and no treaty will ever indemnify us for the loss we shall sustain. It will be long before this trade recovers from the effect of the Order in Council. As the Secretary of State has probably, by this time, finished his course of electioneering speeches and dinners for the summer, we hope he will direct his attention seriously to business. In the calm intervals of "conscience," we hope he will find time to adjust, at least, one of the matters in dispute with Great Britain. In this case, we rely upon his exertions; for we have little confidence in Mr. Adams. Nature has given him a belligerent temper, and where there is a choice of peace or war, he intuitively selects the latter. The history of our relations with Great Britain for ten years, that is, since they have been under his superintendence, satisfies us, that we have no hope of his ever terminating a controversy if he can help it. It is a singular fact, that while during ten years of his diplomacy, new questions have been constantly appearing, not a single disputed subject has ever been brought to a conclusion. We have now on our hands, the following questions:—boundaries, captured slaves, northwest coast, slave trade, renewal of the commercial treaty expiring in 1828, navigation of the St. Lawrence, &c. Gentlemen, you have enough to do with Great Britain, without inviting a controversy about the West India Trade. It is time this docket should be cleared. Let our chief magistrate keep cool, and our Secretary of State go to work industriously and seriously. No man in the nation, as all know, is better able to appease animosities and adjust old quarrels. Let him look to it. We shall congratulate the country, if we ever again obtain advantages equal to those which we have neglected to embrace; and the people will hold this administration accountable for all the consequences which may result from sacrificing the public interest to its own selfish ambition. We are not to risk the loss of a valuable trade, in order to secure the reelection of Mr. Adams to the Presidency.—New-York Inquirer.

The U. E. Loyalist.

YORK, U. C. SATURDAY, OCTOBER 28, 1826.

The latest English dates bring us no additional news. The order for the admission of certain kinds of Grain seems to have had the effect of producing a diminution in price—and dealers on the Corn Exchange have not ventured on purchases to any extent, from the apprehension that a further reduction will take place. Throughout England and Scotland, trade is represented as generally improving. From Ireland we are sorry to observe that the accounts are less favorable—Distress abounds there and disease is added to the calamity. At the latest dates the Fever in Dublin had not materially abated. The crops in Ireland however seem to have recovered in some degree by the late rains, and hopes are entertained that they will prove more abundant, than at one time they promised to be.

By private letters we are informed that His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland arrived at Amherstburgh on the 18th instant.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE COURT.

After a patient investigation of the case "The King vs. Joseph and Lilly Sherburn," the Jury on a short consultation returned into Court with their verdict—Not Guilty.

[William Smith the prosecutor in this case has sustained a loss of about £600 in specie.]

John La Pierre, convicted of stealing, was sentenced to one months' imprisonment.—It is creditable to the District that this is the only conviction during the present assizes. The Court terminated its sitting on Wednesday last.

1st Provincial Court House.—From the charge of the Chief Justice to the Grand Jury, given in our last number, the Public we have no doubt have derived much satisfaction in being informed, that His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor has granted lands, and intimated his intention, of taking proper measures for the appropriation of funds, for the erection of a building for the accommodation of our Provincial Courts of Justice. It is certainly due to the respectability of the Province, that such an edifice should be commensurate with the dignity, of the King's Tribunal, for which it is intended, and the indication of respect and esteem for our Government and institutions in providing suitable accommodations for the due administration of Justice, is very happily adverted to in his Lordship's charge.

Those who have been in the habit of attending our Courts must have felt the force and truth of the remark, that the administration of Justice, under the British Constitution, confers more privileges upon us as a people, than any system of Government the world has ever devised. The observances at these Tribunals, are, of themselves sufficient to produce a feeling of solemnity and respect, for the whole of their proceedings. The King's Commission, as the dispenser of Justice in the Land, is appealed to, by being read, as the authority from which all their functions are derived, and the ejaculatory prayer of "God save the King," may not improperly be considered, as an act of Gratitude, in which the whole assembly may be supposed to join, for the welfare of a Gracious Sovereign, who Commands his representative Judges to proceed to Justice between himself and his Subjects, and to do all those things which to Justice appertain,between,man and man.

Theatre.—Mr. and Mrs. Judah, and Company, have been unremitting in their endeavours to afford amusement to the public. During the present week several pieces have been presented, in which the characters were well supported. In Rob Roy, Mr. Judah gave an excellent personification of the Bold Outlaw, and the strength of attachment to her husband and his cause, in the hour of danger and misfortune, was well pourtrayed by Mrs. Judah, as "Helen McGregor."—Baillie Nicol Jarvie, was well sustained throughout by Mr Hart. In the after piece "Fire and Water," Mr. Frankland as Capt. Hurry, kept up the confusion of the Critical hour, with a great deal of spirit Mrs. Carnes and Mr. Kent gave some good songs—But one complaint can be made of Mrs. Brundage's dancing—her Strathspey's are performed in excellent style, but they are very short.

The Hunter of the Alps, on Thursday evening, appeared to give much satisfaction to the audience—the effect was much heightened by the winning and artless manner, and correct speaking, of Miss Sophia Judah, an interesting little girl.

The bill of Fare for this evenings' entertainment, promises an ample repast of Fun and Frolic—the guests we hope will be sufficiently numerous to give a bumper to the Company.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

QUEBEC, October 12.

The importation this summer of piece goods was, we understand, rather short, and very large sales of those arrived within a week or two have taken place at very fair prices. The importation of West India produce has, upon the whole, also been less than usual. The exportation of ashes will be considerably less than last year. That of wheat is comparatively trifling, but some is now in preparation for export. Much timber has been shipped and several hundreds of cargoes will remain on hand at Quebec at the close of the navigation. The persons concerned in its preparation and in rafting it down have generally experienced heavy losses, such as indeed will make some of them hesitate upon engaging in the business again. The wages of the raftsmen sometimes exceeded the whole price for which the timber was sold. Some expectation is held out that ship-building will again be undertaken next winter, and a few vessels are soon to be laid down, but it will probably be on a comparatively small scale.—They are now in the vicinity of Quebec but two vessels on the stocks intended to be launched this fall; four, which were abandoned on the intelligence of the great fall in the value of shipping in the home market last spring, are still in the same condition. The number which will be registered in the province this year will still, we suppose, be nearly as considerable as that registered last year, viz: 61.

The Lord Bishop of Quebec returned yesterday in the Chambly from his first visit of the diocese, having passed through a large portion of the two Provinces.—Quebec Mercury.

AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITION.

The eighth, annual Cattle Shew, exhibition and ploughing match, under the direction of the Quebec Agricultural Society was held on Thursday last, on Mr. Anderson's farm near Dorchester Bridge.

The shew of stallions was very inferior, and that of brood mares not equal to those of former years.

The shew of horned cattle was only middling, particularly with respect to the Bulls. The Milchs Cows were numerous and of good quality, and there were some very fine yearlings of different breeds.—This part of the shew was chiefly remarkable for two cows, a bull, a heifer and calf of the Ayreshire breed imported by Lord Dalhousie from Scotland. They were remarkably admired, and will no doubt, in time, materially improve the breed of milch cows in this Province.

A greater number of sheep were exhibited than usual, and among them several of the South Down, Leicester and Cumberland breeds, and other fine wooled varieties from the United States. These were principally owned by settlers at Valcartier and the country is chiefly indebted for their importation to A. Paterson, Esq. Merchant of Quebec.

The shew of swine was also good, offering in several varieties of the most approved breeds.

No new and improved agricultural implements were exhibited worthy of particular notice.

The shew of straw hats and bonnets made in the country was not extensive. The first bonnet made in imitation of Leghorn bonnets was produced by Mdlle. BLANCHET of St. Pierre Rivière du Sud. It was made of Timothy Grass, and was in every way perfect except in the colour and smoothness wich will be speedily acquired by a little experience. One or two straw bonnets made in the usual way were exhibited, of a quality very little inferior to the best imported.

The garden stuffs, fruits, &c. were as usual excellent and in great quantity. Several sorts of apples from seedings and from grafted trees, were exhibited, which shew that it only requires attention to the situation of the best sorts and careful culture, to furnish us with a sufficient supply of this fruit, of a quality full equal to any that can can be brought from a distance. Some very good and ripe white and black grapes raised in the open ground without any kind of forcing whatsoever were produced.

Five European Ploughs were entered for the ploughing match and twenty five Canadian. There was an evident improvement in the ploughing generally.

The weather being fine, a great number of spectators from the town and different parts of the country attended, few of whom will regret having given a day to the inspection and encouragement of agricultural industry.

HALIFAX, Sept. 27.

We rejoice to hear that our Agriculture is in a state of progressive improvement, and that the persevering industry of our population is overcoming difficulties, which, some few years since, appeared almost insuperable. The introduction of those useful institutions, Agricultural Societies, is also a source of gratulation, inasmuch as experience has amply proved that no greater service can be rendered to a country, than cultivating its soil and promoting its means of internal coummunication. By a well regulated industry, and vigorous exertion of our faculties, directed to one end, let us hope that the evils of which we now complain, will erelong, be partially, if not wholly removed.—*N. Upper Canada Gazette.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1826.

BY AUTHORITY.

The following Address was presented to His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, at Sandwich, on the 17, ult.

To His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, Knight Commander of the Most Honorable Military Order of the Bath, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

May it please Your Excellency.

We the Magistrates, Clergy, and others, His Majesty's dutiful and Loyal Subjects of the Town of Sandwich, and its vicinity, beg leave with the most profound respect, to congratulate your Excellency on your arrival among us, and to express our most sincere gratitude for the many and inestimable blessings which it is our happiness to enjoy under Your Excellency's mild and equitable Administration.

Your Excellency's journey through the Province at this time, adds another, to the many proofs we have already had, of that paternal regard, and earnest solicitude which your Excellency has, on all occasions, evinced for the interest of the people committed to your charge, and the welfare and improvement of the Province.

We rejoice to believe, that your Excellency in your progress through the different Districts of the Province has beheld, with paternal satisfaction, numerous results of that spirit of enterprize, and improvement, which has been so strongly excited, and so carefully fostered, by your Excellency's care, while, with exultation, we assure your Excellency, that the great public works in progress, and in contemplation, so highly useful to the Province, and so honorable to your Excellency, will remain lasting and noble monuments of the wisdom of your Excellency's administration.

Sensible, that it is the most earnest desire of your heart, to develope the numerous latent resources of the Province committed to your charge, permit us to express our warmest acknowledgements, for your Excellency's ready, and efficacious co-operation with the Imperial Government, in all its measures for the furtherance of the Commerce, and the advancement of the Agricultural interests of the Province, particularly for the encouragement given through your Excellency's representations to the Imperial Government, to the culture of Tobacco, which shortly promises to become an important branch of trade in the Western District.

The steady encouragement which your Excellency has given to Education, will make your administration dear to every one who desires the improvement of society, the diffusion of which, together with your Excellency's high example, will have a happy influence, on the morality, not only of the present, but of succeeding generations.

We deem it superflous to assure your Excellency of the most devoted attachment of the People of the Western District to our Most Gracious Sovereign, and our invaluable Constitution, sensible that under such a Sovereign, such a Governor and such a Constitution, we are really the happiest of mankind. We will ever be ready to shew our gratitude by zealously supporting a Government, anxious only for the good of its people.

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following Reply:—

Gentlemen,

The gratification which I have enjoyed in my visit to this interesting portion of the Province, has been very highly augmented, by the manner in which you have greeted my arrival amongst you; and I beg you to accept my warmest acknowledgments for your very loyal and affectionate address.

You do me justice in believing it to be my most earnest desire, to assist in developing the vast natural resources of this Province; an object which, I trust, will be most effectually promoted, as well by the great works which are contemplated by His Majesty's Government, as by those now happily in progress,

I congratulate you on the success which has attended your experiment of the culture of Tobacco, which we may confidently hope will become, at no distant period, an important branch of trade in the Western District.

I cannot but feel the favorable expressions in which you have so kindly adverted to my Administration of the Government, as an additional excitement to continue my exertions for the advancement of the general prosperity; and I beg you to be assured I shall always have the greatest satisfaction in forwarding, as far as in me lies, the interests of your loyal District.

The following Address was presented to His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor at Amherstburgh, on the 18th ult.

To His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, Knight Commander of the Most Honorable Military Order of the Bath, Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

May it please Your Excellency,

We, the undersigned inhabitants of the Town of Amherstburgh, beg leave to avail ourselves of your Excellency's arrival as a pleasing occasion to express our devoted loyalty to His Most Gracious Majesty, our beloved Sovereign, in the person of His Representative, the Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada.

It cannot but be extremely gratifying to us, to see your Excellency undertake so long and fatiguing a journey to visit this distant part of your Government, and we feel ourselves particularly favored by your arrival among us, as a proof of your Excellency's fostering care, in taking personal cognizance of our wants.

The rising prosperity of the Country affords undeniable and satisfactory evidence, that the zeal which your Excellency has ever manifested in encouraging improvements within this Province, has been well and succesfully directed. If this influence, so happily exerted in other parts, has not as yet been felt to the same extent in this District, we are conscious that the difference is chiefly, or entirely attributable to its remote situation. But we hope that your Excellency, being on the spot, may discern some means of bringing its latent resources into operation.

Under the happy auspices of your Excellency's administration, we cannot but look forward to a continuance of the blessings we enjoy, in common with the rest of His Majesty's subjects in this Province: and we sincerely pray your Excellency may long remain to reap the well merited fruits of your assiduous labours, by witnessing the growing prosperity of the people committed to your care, than which nothing can be more gratifying to a virtuous mind.

At the same time that we express our regret at the brief stay, which we are informed, your Excellency must necessarily make among us, we beg your Excellency will accept our unfeigned wishes for your safe return to the seat of your government, and to the bosom of your family. And with the most sincere desire for your future prosperity and happiness, we subscribe ourselves,

Your Excellency's most obedient, and devoted Servants,

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following Reply:—

Gentlemen,

I thank you heartily for this very loyal and affectionate address.

The satisfaction I have enjoyed in my journey to the Western parts of this Province, witnessing as I have the rising prosperity of the Country, and the manifest indications of its great natural resources, has been much enhanced by the cordial welcome which has attended my arrival in your District.

I am affected in a very sensible degree by the favorable terms which you have employed in adverting to my administration of the government; and the interest you have expressed for my welfare, damands my warmest acknowledgments.

Be assured, Gentlemen, that this portion of the Country has its due share of my solicitude: and it will always be extremely gratifying to me, to promote, by every means in my power, such measures as appear calculated to advance the prosperity of your remote but interesting District.

PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors, of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province; to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on Monday the Thirtieth day of October inst. to be Commenced, Held, Called, and Elected, and to every of you

GREETING

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Twenty-fifth day of September last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the Thirtieth day of October instant, at which time, at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear.

NOW KNOW YE, that we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents enjoining you and each of you that on Tuesday the Fifth day of December next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, FOR THE ACTUAL DESPATCH OF PUBLIC BUSINESS, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding our Forces therein, at York, this Twenty-first day of October in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-six, and in the Seventh Year of our reign.

UPPER CANADA.

P. MAITLAND,
Lieut. Governor.

GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To all to whom these Presents shall come GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the parts of this Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. We have thought fit to order and direct, and We do hereby order and direct that, until Our pleasure herein shall be further made known, it shall and may be lawful for all Our Subjects inhabiting Our Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, freely to enter into Our Woods and Forests in such parts of Our said Province of Upper Canada, situate along the Banks of the River Ottawa, or upon the Banks of the Waters running into the said River and within a convenient distance from the same, as shall not have been Surveyed and divided into Concessions and Lots, and to Cut and carry away such Oak and Pine Timber as may be fit for the purposes of Exportation.

Provided always, nevertheless, That in consideration of the authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties herein-after specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Red Pine Timber, Four Pounds Three Shillings and Four Pence, being at the rate of One Penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Yellow Pine Timber, Two Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence, being at the rate of One Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commission under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places upon the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointed as aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has attained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons, properly authorized by or under Our Licence granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS Our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this third day of May in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-Six, and in the Seventh Year of Our Reign. Executive Council Office,
York, 23rd March, 1826.

NOTICE is hereby given, by ORDER of His EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, in COUNCIL, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a regular Council day.

JOHN SMALL,
No. 9 1. f. C. E. C.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepard in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpor, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s. 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hunded Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant. It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessary expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR.

Upper Canada, } SIR PEREGRINE
COURT OF PROBATE, } MAITLAND, K. C.
York to Wit: } B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein and Judge of the Court of Probate, within the said Province, &c. &c. &c.

To PATRICK CONIGAN, late of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, and Province aforesaid, as Nephew and next of Kin of Bartholomew Conigan, deceased.

WHEREAS John McLean, of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, Yeoman, lately exhibited a petition in the said Court of Probate, setting forth that you the said Patrick Conigan, some years ago procured Letters of Administration from the Court of Probate aforesaid, to the Estate of the late Bartholomew Conigan, of the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, Hawker and Pedlar, deceased. That you the said Patrick Conigan collected all the monies due to the said Bartholomew Conigan, but have left this Province and not discharged the Debts of the said Bartholomew Conigan, although he the said Bartholomew Conigan died possessed of ample property to do so. That the said Petitioner in the month of July one thousand eight hundred and twenty two obtained a verdict against you the said Patrick Conigan, Administrator as aforesaid, for the sum of Seven Pounds ten shillings, on which the said Petitioner has since entered up Judgment. That the said Petitioner has never received satisfaction of the said judgment, and there being no property now remaining in this Province on which an Execution could be levied; Wherefore the said John McLean humbly prays that a Citation may issue calling on you the said Patrick Conigan, as Administrator aforesaid, to appear in the said Court of Probate on the First day of January next ensuing, and shew cause why you should not pay the said debt and do whatever the said Court my require in the Premises of the said Petition. Now therefore these are to Cite and require you the said Patrick Conigan, as Administrator to the Estate of the said late Bartholomew Conigan, deceased, on the First day of January next ensuing the date hereof to produce and exhibit into the Register's Office of the said Court of Probate, a true, full and perfect Inventory of all the goods, chattles, rights and credits which were of the said Bartholomew Conigan, deceased, at the time of his death, and make, or cause to be made, a true and just account of your Administration, and to shew cause why you will not pay the said debt for which the said John McLean has entered up Judgment against you as Administrator to the Estate of the said late Bartholomew Conigan, deceased. Dated at York, in the Province aforesaid, this Eighth day of September, One thousand eight hundred and twenty-six.

POETRY.

LINES, BY L. E. L.

No more, no more, why should I dream,
Dreams that I know are vain!
Why trust the future, when the past
I would not live again!

Affection,—'tis the glittering wealth
Of snow-work in the sun;
Pleasure,—the rocket's shining course,
Ended ere well begun.

Hope, the false music, luring where
The syren Sorrow dwells;
And Praise, a very mockery,
The chime of the fool's bells.

And yet, alas! for the fond time
When I believed all this,—
Although 'twas nothing but a dream,
At least the dream was bliss.

The heart is like those fairy rings,
Where all of green has died;
Yet there, they say, the fairy race
By moonlight went to ride.

We hold to that gay creed no more—
Gone is the elfin reign;
Yet, surely, such fair visions fled
Is more of loss than gain.

But thus it is, as years pass on,
Even with our own heart;
We see the visions, one by one,
Of early youth depart.

We gaze around—all is the same
O'er which our young eye ranged;
But—sorrow for the heart and eye!—
Ourselves, ourselves are changed.

MY AIN COUNTREE.

THE sun rises bright in France
And fair sets he;
But he has tint the blythe blink he had
In my ain countree.
O! gladness comes to many,
But sorrow comes to me,
As I look o'er the wide ocean
To my ain countree.

O! it's not my ain ruin
That saddens aye my ee,
But the love I left in Galloway,
Wi' bonnie bairns three;
My hamely hearth burn'd bonnie,
And smiled my fair Marie—
I've left a' my heart behind me
In my ain countree.

The bud comes back to summer,
An' the blossom to the bee,
But I win back—oh, never!
To my ain countree!
It's best to the high heaven,
Which will be leal to me;
An there I'll meet ye a' soon
Frae my ain countree!

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE BIRTH-DAY

"Then be it so, and let us part,
Since love like mine has fail'd to move thee;
But do not think this constant heart
Can ever cease, ingrate, to love thee.
No—spite of all this cold disdain,
I'll bless the hour when first I met thee,
And rather bear whole years of pain
Than e'en for one short hour forget thee.
Forget thee! No."

MRS. OPIE.

The bells of the church at N were ringing a merry peal, and the whole village was in a delightful bustle on the morning Arthur Normanville completed his twenty-first year. He was the only son and heir of Sir Robert Normanville, and, from his goodness of heart and urbanity of manners, was deservedly a general favourite with the tenants and peasantry in the neighbourhood.—Great preparations had been some time making to celebrate his coming of age, and a magnificent ball was to be given in the evening to which the nobility and gentry for many miles round were invited. Nor were the poorer classes forgotten, for they had an ample share in the strong ale and good cheer abounding on the occasion. Sir Robert had been a widower for some years, and all his hopes and affections centred in his son, who in truth was in every respect worthy of a father's love.

In early youth, Sir Robert had formed an ardent attachment to the beautiful Lady Emily Darrell. He had some reason to hope that his affection was returned; and, as his lineage and expectations on the score of fortune were unexceptionable, he apprehended no rejection from the lady's friends. Things were in this happy train, when the sudden death of his father rendered Sir Robert's presence necessary in the country, and it was two months before he again visited the metropolis. In that time, what a change had taken place! His beloved Emily no longer seemed to rejoice in his presence; but all her smiles and attentions were given to Lord Morton, who had during Normanville's absence professed unbounded admiration for the fair coquette. True, his fortune was more ample than Sir Robert's—but could he offer her a heart more true and affectionately devoted to her service? O, no! It is impossible to describe the distress of Sir Robert, when he learned that Lord Morton had actually made proposals for his fair enslaver's hand, and that the marriage was expected to take place immediately. Sir Robert resolved to set off for the Continent, but being detained two days at Dover, through tempestuous weather and adverse winds, the newspapers announced to him the union of Lady Emily and Lord Morton.

This early disappointment threw a sombry shade over the after-life of Sir Robert Normanville. Five-and-twenty years had now passed away, yet Sir Robert still remembered Lady Emily in all the beauty and freshness of her youth. She died five years after her marriage, leaving one child, a daughter. Some years after her death, Sir Robert met Lord Morton in London; but a cool bow of recognition was all that passed between them; and, as the former seldom visited the gay world, he saw no more of his Lordship, who had now been dead about two years, and the guardianship of his daughter transferred to her maternal aunt. Report spoke of her as being beautiful and amiable; and, as she was an heiress, she had no lack of lovers. Within the last year, however, she had most unaccountably refused several offers which had been made to her by suitors of rank.

Sir Robert Normanville's stately edifice was this evening a blaze of light; variegated lamps were tastefully disposed in different parts of the grounds, and the decorations of the ball room presented all that could gratify the eye and delight the senses. The company was numerous and splendid, and Sir Robert appeared to have lost his usual melancholy, and to share in the general festivity. The merry dance began, and Sir Robert gazed proudly on his son, whose polished manners and handsome person caused him many a smile from fair and high-born ladies. The delighted father had placed himself near to one of the windows in the ball-room, and was intently watching the graceful forms that flitted before him, when suddenly his eye was caught by the figure of a female with whom his son was dancing. Sir Robert involuntarily started; for the very figure of Lady Emily Darrell stood before him, as he had last beheld her, radiant in youth and loveliness.

"But this is mere illusion," mentally ejaculated the Baronet: "I know she has been dead these many years; and were she even living, could not look thus now." He looked again—still it was her very image, save that the face was rather paler, and the general expression of the countenance of a more pensive cast than the late Lady Emily's. Sir Robert seated himself, still watching the lovely and interesting girl, whose appearance had so much attracted him, until tears seemed to fade away, and the events of his youth to pass away before him. Lady Emily, his first love—the happy hours he had experienced in her society—her very look at parting were all remembered. His emotion became insupportable, and to conceal it he hastily left the room, and retired to a private apartment until he should have, in some degree, mastered his feelings. The quick eye of Arthur Normanville soon noted his father's absence, and, in part guessing the cause, he declined dancing, and descended to the library. On opening the door, he perceived his father standing near the fire-place. "You are not ill, I hope, my dear Sir?" said Arthur. "No! no! A momentary indisposition, which has now, I trust, passed away. Come, let us join our guests." "Stay, but for a few minutes," said his son; "I have a boon to beg of you, my dear father; will you grant it to me?" "But why now Arthur," said the Baronet; "some other time." "O, no, now; you shall know my reason hereafter; my happiness depends upon it." "This is your birth-day," said Sir Robert, "and I trust a happy day for me. I will not then refuse you what you ask—name it." "O, my dear father, how shall I tell you—there is a being to whom I have rendered all my heart's best affections! I hope—I think—she also beholds me with favour; but I wait for your sanction ere I shall tell her the fond hopes I entertain." "Who, and what is she?" said Sir Robert. "High-born and beautiful," replied his son. "Her name?" "Lady Emily Morton." The Baronet again involuntarily started, and sunk into a chair. "How came you acquainted with this lady?" he sternly inquired. "She was on a visit to Lady Dunallan at the same time with myself, and knows not the resentment you entertain against her family." "Is she here to-night?" asked Sir Robert. "She came with Lady Dunallan's party," said Arthur. "You knew of my desire never either to see or hear of the Mortons. and why not before apprize me of this?" "Pardon me, my dear Sir, that I have not done so, but I had heard Lady Emily was considered extremely like her mother, and I thought—I hoped—that from that cause you would regard her with favour." "Know you not, boy, that her mother deceived me?" "Alas! yes, but is she to blame for that? You loved that mother once, am I to blame for loving the daughter?"

The Baronet rose, and paced the room in great agitation. Suddenly stopping before his son, he said—"She is, indeed, like her mother, whom I remember even now too well. God grant that she may be unlike her in mind. I promised to grant your request—it is your natal day, too, and I would not have you say hereafter, that your father stepped between you and happiness. No! no! When I am gone, you shall not have cause to think harshly of your parent;" and the Baronet turned aside to conceal his emotion. "My ever kind father!" Enough!" said Sir Robert; "you shall introduce me immediately to the lady; if she be as good as she is beautiful, and your affection be mutual, you have my consent.

Six months after this period, the union of Lady Emily and Arthur took place, and the latter days of Sir Robert Normanville were soothed with the attentions he received from his beautiful daughter-in-law, and enlivened by the playful and endearing wiles of her children.

New Naval Power.—An article published in the Prince of Wales' Island paper, mentions an arrival in the part, which was certainly a novelty, and excited much attention. His Cochin Majesty's frigate Toy Lang, mounting 32 guns, commanded by Woyan Vaufang, and his Majesty's Brig Buolaung, Huong Kongston, commander from a cruize late from Singapore, arrived on a visit to the Island. These vessels were lately built under the superintendance of a Frenchman. The ship is a neat model of a vessel, measuring about 350 tons. The hull, masts, &c., are painted in a very fantastic manner.

Lord Cochrane is said, in the foreign journals, to be intent on restoring the Order of Knights of St John of Jerusalem; the Order formerly consisted solely of Catholics; but by the new proposals, Greeks professing the tenets of the Eastern Church, and a number of Protestants are to be added. The Grand Master is still to be of the ancient faith, and Lord Cochrane is to be appointed commander-in-Chief of the Military and Naval Forces,

SUMMARY.

Lord Gifford, Master of the Rolls, and a Peer of the Realm is dead. He was supposed to be the probable successor of Lord Chancellor Eldon.

Gen. Sir H. Calvert died, after a very short illness, at Drayton, in Buckinghamshire, on the 4th of September.—He was Lieutenant-Governor of Chelsea Hospital, and Colonel of the 14th regiment of Foot.

Large importations of corn are making at Leith. the wheat received there is principally from Dantzig.

His Majesty was in the enjoyment of the best state of health and spirits,

The health of the Duke of York was gradually improving at the latest dates.

It appears that an attempt at insurrection had failed in Lisbon. The conspirators have been secured.

Captain Parry.—We understand that this enterprising navigator is shortly to "splice the lables" with the accomplished Miss Stanley, daughter of Sir J. T. Stanley Bart. of Alderley Park, in this county.

Mr. William Pitt Canning, eldest son of the Right Hon. George Canning, has just been promoted to the rank of Post Captain in the Royal Navy.

The hull of the Comet was sold by auction at Gourock, on Wednesday, for £31. Her boilers, which were useless except as old metal, were exposed to sale at the same time, when 8d. per pound, amounting to about £400 was offered and refused. They have since been purchased at £500.

Windsor, Sept. 8.—Since Tuesday last his Majesty has been unable to enjoy his usual out-door recreations, owing to the unfavourable state of the weather. His Majesty enjoys good health and spirits, and devotes the greater part of the day to public business. There are no visitors at the Royal Lodge.

Sir John Lewis is appointed Captain of the Burham, fitting at Woolwich, for the flag of Admiral Fleming, who is to command at Jamaica, in the room of Sir L. Halsted, whose period of service is expired.

Subscriptions are going on amongst some agriculturalists, for the purpose of sending a persons to the Continent to ascertain at what price foreign corn can be grown and exported from the several kingdoms; and whether the return for such corn is made in money or goods. Other subscriptions are promoted for the employment of a person to examine Mr. Jacob's Report.

The King has subscribed £25 to Sir Richard Birnie's Poor Box, at the Police Office, Bow-street. The contents of this box are distributed by Sir Richard, when sitting in his official capacity, to miserable and helpless objects who are brought before him, many of whom have no claims for parochial relief. In this box are deposited the fines, &c. which complainants refuse to accept on the conviction of hackney-coachmen, and similar convictions, the professed object being to serve the public, and not to put the fines thus inflicted on the offending parties into their own pockets.

Mr. Henry King, the celebrated agricultuvist, of Alvesdeston, near Fovant, in Wiltshire, cut and carried his wheat crop this season, from five hundred and seventy acres, in nine days. The predecessor of this gentleman died a short time since the richest farmer in England, having acquired a fortune of £150,000.

It is said that an improvement is to be made in the packet communication with Jamaica, by the appointment of two vessels instead of one, to sail monthly. A packet once a month will also proceed regularly with letters for Mexico.

By the French laws, if a family have no children, and adopt the child of another, such adoption is regularly registered by the Civil Authorities, and the child becomes heir at law to the property of its new parents, and cannot be disinherited by any subsequent caprice of the parties, who are bound to support it in a manner suitable to their own rank in life.

Mr. Christopher Hely Hutchinson died at his house at Hampstead, on Saturday se'night —he was Member for Cork, and in Parliament a strenuous supporter of the Roman Catholic interests.

ENGLAND.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 16.

The importation of grain is proceeding with great activity at Leith. Within the last three weeks, about 8000 quarters of wheat, 5500 of oats, and 2000 of barley, have been entered. The wheat is chiefly from Dantzic, the oats and barley from Slesswick and Holstein, but a small part of the former is from Riga. Some inconsiderable import has also been made of peas.

It is a matter of gratulation, in times like the present, to state that the shipping interests of Perth are in the most lively and active condition.

The announcement of the opening of the ports for the importation of coarse grain, was received by the ringing of bells and other demonstrations of joy, at most of the manufacturing towns.

170 bbls. old Montreal Pots, 25s 6d to 25s 6d; 300 new, 25s 6d to 26s; 55 do. old Pearls, 24s 3d to 25s, and 25 new, 26s 6d to 27s.

We have received letters from the North, which speak in terms of high approbation of the policy observed by the Ministry, in partially throwing open the ports for the admission of foreign grain. Not only are the labouring poor in high spirits at the prospect of better employment for their ships, but all orders of the community hail with sincere satisfaction an era which promises incalculable benefit to the country. The monopoly in corn, has been too long accorded to the landholders; something, in times such as these, is due to the people, and ministers show their good sense by the promptitude and wisdom of their measures.—Sun.

The managers of the Greek cause in London promise to despatch the steamboats to Lord Cochrane, in three weeks: and a respectable committee has been appointed to examine into their transactions. We trust despatch, as well as fidelity, will characterise this new committee.

OPENING OF THE PORTS.

(From the Morning Chronicle.)

This measure will, we have no doubt, be productive of the most beneficial consequences. It will at once give rise to a considerable trade, and consequently create a considerable demand for all descriptions of manufactures.

(From the Times.)

We rejoice, amidst our mourning for so much of the calamity as is irremediable, that Ministers have looked the whole of it steadily in the face; and have as we hoped they would do, stated upon a becoming sense of their most solemn duty as an executive power, by feeding the people without law, rather than starving them in defiance of humanity. There can be little question that one principal objection of the early convocation of the Legislature, is to indemnify Ministers for this salutary exercise of their discretion. Of the readiness of Parliament to acquit them of all blame under such circumstances, and of the country to thank instead of censuring them, there can be not a shadow of doubt; and we shall but add on that branch of the subject, that had the case been less extreme, and the mission of foreign corn a matter of more direct choice, and of less positive necessity, we should ourselves have still been disposed to argue that Ministers had done their duty.

Murder at Carlisle.—On Thursday afternoon it was discovered that a woman named, Mary Brown had been murdered in a field at the southern suburb of the city of Carlisle. The perpetrator of the crime is, Philip Tinneley, a man who sold cotton balls, &c. in Carlisle market. Brown was a woman of loose character, and her husband, it is said, cohabits with another woman. Brown and his wife had lived separately for some time past, and she cohabited with Tinneley, with whom she had often quarrelled. On Wednesday last, Tinneley induced her to accompany him into the field, where he inflicted several mortal wounds upon her with a hammer. The poor woman fell under the blows, apparently dead; and Tinneley stood over her, with an intention of burrying the body, but she at this moment, opening her eyes, and looked upon him so reproachingly, that he shrunk from his purpose, and quitted the field. He then went fourteen or fifteen miles into Scotland; but, conscience stung, returned, and on Thursday afternoon repaired to the spot where he had left his victim, and was horror struck at finding her still living. He hastily retired from the scene of blood, and went to the house of some of his acquaintances, to whom he confessed the deed that he had done. The unfortunate woman was removed to her former lodging, where she died next morning at three o'clock. Timely was taken into custody on Thursday evening.

Widow of Mr. Fox and His Majesty.—A short time ago the widow of the late celebrated Charles Fox, happening to be in the neighbourhood of Windsor, was anxious to survey the Royal residence there; and with this view she addressed a note to the steward or some other officer of the Royal household, begging to know if strangers were admitted at that season to inspect the Castle. To this note, which bore the name and address of the writer, an answer was instantly returned, intimating that the intended visit of Mrs. Fox would be most agreeable at the Castle to the Lady accordingly set out, and on her arrival was received with the utmost courtesy by the household servants, who conducted her through the various apartments of the Royal residence, and omitted nothing which could gratify the curiosity or excite the interest of the visitor. Having finished her inspection, Mrs. Fox was about to take her departure, when she was requested by the the attendant to step aside into one of the private rooms for a few moments. After sitting a short time the King entered, and walking up to Mrs. Fox, with an air of the most condescending affability, took her by the hand, and expressed the high satisfaction he felt in having this opportunity of paying his respects to the widow of a late intimate and highly valued friend. Mrs. Fox was overcome at the Monarch's condescension; but the frank and easy manner of his Majesty quickly restored her to her wonted composure. He inquired minutely into her present situation and circumstances, and though informed by Mrs. Fox that she had not been left altogether destitute by her late husband, his Majesty kindly pressed upon her the acceptance of an annuity from his private purse of £500 per annum, which we believe, the lady now enjoys.

Dreadful Shipwreck—It is our painful duty to have to record more distressing accounts of shipwreck, near this fatal shore, than on any other part of the Yorkshire coast. The following are the particulars of the dreadful scene which occurred here on Wednesday last. The Esk, a Greenland vessel, bound to Whitby, came on shore during a tremendous gale of wind, about eleven o'clock at night, nearly a mile from Redear, and adjoining of Marsk. The life-boat was promptly obtained from Redear, and several individuals, at the imminent danger of their own lives, fearlessly hastened on board, and put off towards the vessel, with the hopes of thus saving some of their fellow creatures from a watery grave; but, after many fruitless attempts to gain the vessel, in which they were as frequently driven back by the boisterous billows, and not having sufficient hands on board the boat to manage her, they were reluctantly compelled to give up the hope of affording the wretched crew any assistance from that source.—The ill-fated vessel kept beating against the rocks, &c. until nearly five o'clock the next morning, when she parted completely in two, and the crew, consisting of twenty-seven persons, were instantly precipated into the foaming deep. Twenty-three of these unhappy beings soon found a watery grave. The Captain and three of the sailors were washed on shore; every attention was paid to them, and the sailors soon recovered, but the captain, on arriving within a few yards of the shore, was so severely struck by a log of timber which had floated from the wreck, that on being taken up on the beach, life was found extinct. The Esk had on board fifty tons of oil, seal-skins, &c. &c. Several of the casks containing oil have floated on shore and the vessel is now a complete wreck.—York Courant Sept. 12.

SCOTLAND.

GLASGOW.

The opening of the ports for the admission of foreign grain has given the public the highest satisfaction. It has revived the almost expiring hopes of the suffering artizans, and renovated their feelings of esteem and affection for the Government. The beneficial effects of this enlightened measure are already beginning to be felt. Oatmeal can be purchased cheaper; and potatoes, which were selling last week at 14d, are now selling at 10d a peck. Wednesday the carriers almost universally departed with more webs and better loads than they have done for a considerable time. Visible as the improvement of business is among the carriers, it is still greater among the coasting vessels. For eight days past the Broomielaw quay has exhibited a cheerful portion of the bustle and spirit which it used to display in prosperous times. Preparements are making of every species of commodity. On Sunday and Monday 45 vessels arrived, and scarcely half the number had been moored at the Broomielaw quay for twelve months past.—The weavers are gradually taking work at the low prices. In Campbellton, where there are between 40 and 50 weavers, there are few idle. Wages from 1s to 1s 3d per day of fifteen hours exertion. In that part of the highlands the crop of oats is abundant; and potatoes are extraordinary productive.—Fish sell for about one third of their price in Glasgow. Best wheat is selling there at 4s per gallon. The town abounds in malsters, and the price of malt is at present 44s per bell. Peat is the usual fuel; it sells for 2s 6d per cart. Coals are 13s per ton.—Glasgow Chronicle.

Paisley.—We are happy to learn that the report of the Sub-Committee this week shows that the number of new applications for relief is much diminished, as contrasted with many of the preceeding weeks, though it cannot be stated that there is a diminution of dependents on the funds.—Paisley Advertiser.

During the past week seven vessels have arrived at Perth with grain from the Baltic—The cargoes amount to 440 quarters of wheat, 1290 of Barley, and 5590 of oats. Two vessels had arrived previously, their cargoes nearly amounting to 2000 quarters of wheat. Five vessels more are daily expected. The importers have made a most fortunate speculation.

Oats fell 6s. a quarter in London market on Monday, and 2s. more on Wednesday, in consequence of the Order in Council permitting importation. The fall in Edinburgh market on Wednesday was 2s per boll.

On Saturday last, the carcase of a young bullock, which got apparently had been drowned, was cast ashore at the bay of Lace, where it was discovered soon after by a farm servant, who resides at ——, in the parish of Glenluce, and not far from the town of the same name. The finder congratulated himself on his good luck, and got the bullock conveyed to his own house. The neighbours who were soon informed of the circumstance, assembled round him in considerable numbers, and while the men folk were engaged in skinning and cutting up the flesh of the animal, the farm servants wife cleaned and boiled the head and feet, with view of making what is called "potted head." Of this dish her husband and fourteen others partook, but the effects were dreadful; for, before the lapse of two or three hours, the whole became alarmingly ill. The man who found the bullock, and who had partaken rather more freely than the rest, swelled to such a size that the body threatened to burst through his skin; and he died in the course of the day, after suffering the most excruciating tortures. Upon Sunday evening, the remaining persons were alive; but as most of them had vomited coagulated blood as black as pitch, the surgeons in attendance entertained, we understand, very serious fears for the result.—Dumfries Courier, Sept. 12.

IRELAND.

Last week a very remarkable circumstance occurred at Ferns. A boy entered a publican's shop, and offered for "half a glass of whiskey" a small copper coin, which he had found in the rubbish of an old wall in the Street.—Soon after some gentlemen entered the shop, to whom the retailer shewed the coin.—One of the gentlemen very liberally offered for it, in British currency, a "splendid shilling," fresh from the Mint. The offer was rejected. The gentleman tendered a crown, a pound, a sovereign, with no better success. As last the offer rose so high as twenty pounds! But this offer also the inflexible publican refused. The coin is said to be the fourth Queen Anne farthing, about the fate of which antiquarians have been so much interested.—Irish Paper.

AMERICAN CANALS.

[Extract from the evidence of H. J. Boulton Esq. Solicitor General of Upper Canada.]

Do you know the state of the Lake Erie American canal?—Yes I have been upon it.

It is completed?—Yes: I have a book, published by authority, giving a complete detail of it.

Is it in use now for trade?—Yes.

To any great extent?—To a very great extent; to an extent that no person could have anticipated.

Does it pay a good interest upon the outlay? An enormous interest; they calculate that it will pay itself in ten years. I have my information from the Governor of the State of New York, who was the prime mover of it.

Is there a tendency on the part of the Canadians to deal through that Canal with New York, in preference to dealing with Montreal? If it was not for the Canal that is now in progress to connect the two lakes together, I think the whole traffic from the Western part of Upper Canada would go to New York.

Do you think the completion of that canal will turn the tide of business to Montreal?—I have no doubt of it: I was last year in the state of Ohio, and in the Michigan territory, and I saw a great many people from Kentucky and the western part of Pennsylvania, and they seemed to be as anxious that their canal should be finished as their own Erie canal, because they should then send their heavy productions to Montreal; and I have no doubt that when the Welland canal is finished, a great deal of the American trade will come through it to Montreal; all the heavy articles must do so.

Are the committee to collect what there is rather a tendency on the part of the western portion of the United States to deal through Montreal, supposing that your canal is finished; or that there is a tendency on the part of the Canadians to deal through the Lake Erie canal, with New York?—I think there is no tendency on the part of the people to do either; I think the tendency of their minds is to send their produce to the best market, at the cheapest rate of transit.

Which would appear to be the tendency of commerce, down the St. Lawrence, or through the Lake Erie canal?—Down the St. Lawrence for heavy articles, and in some measure for others, because the American canal is very long, that the expense necessarily must be considerably more in transporting articles up on it from through the Welland canal and down Lake Ontario, and then to ship and unship thrice to our twice. By means of our canal, they can bring freight for near 1000 miles in the same vessel; whereas in using the American canal, they must unload it at Buffalo, where the Erie canal commences its course.

Is the Welland canal to be a ship canal or a boat canal?—A ship canal; it may with a little extra expense be made to carry very considerable shipping, but the intention of it is to make it carry ships 120 tons burthen, which is the full size of those that ordinarily navigate Lake Ontario and Lake Erie; 90 tons is as large a sized vessel as usually navigates those Lakes.

Supposing the canal to be completed in the manner contemplated within the Canadian territory, do you suppose that the navigation of the St. Lawrence to Montreal, the navigation of the Lake Erie canal to New-York, would be better outlet and inlet for the upper Lakes?—To Montreal decidedly; it is not only my own opinion, but it is the opinion of Governor Clinton, who has given himself more trouble upon the subject of canals than any man in the United States; he told me so himself, and I know that there is a very great anxiety excited in the people connected with the Erie American canal, by our progress, because they consider that we shall take away a very great part of their business, and there is no doubt of our doing so, because it is demonstrable that we can send things to the ocean much cheaper than they can by their canal, and the people on both sides of the water, whether they are Americans or Canadians, will send their commodities by that mode of conveyance which is cheapest.—Governor Clinton said to an acquaintance of mine, on seeing the project of our canal, 'It does not want any survey, it is only necessary to look at the map, and any man of common sense must see that it will be a most important operation for whoever undertakes it.

Do you know the period during which the Lake Erie Canal is frozen so as to impede commerce? The harbour in Lake Erie where the Welland canal begins, opens from three to six weeks earlier than the American canal; and the reason is this, that the outlet of the American canal to the western waters is at the eastern extremity of Lake Erie being a shallow lake with a very large surface, here is a vast quantity of ice accumulated in that lake every year: sometimes it is frozen entirely across, and they traverse it on sledges when they cannot even see land, as I have been told; the consequence is, that the ice is all collects at the outlet of the lake into the Niagara river, which is so narrow that it cannot escape, and it becomes stopped up. The lake comes into a small bay, as it were, and contracts very much before it comes to Buffalo, at a part called Point Abino, on our side of the water, and from thence downwards it is very much filled with ice in the spring of the year, and it is frequently six weeks before it is entirely free at the entrance of the Niagara river; so that by our canal we should be certain of taking a shipment of any kind of produce from the Michigan territory, and getting it to Montreal before they could get it to their canal at all.—That would be the case, generally speaking, every year.

Is the River St. Lawrence, from Kingston down to Montreal, navigable up the stream at any time? It is: I have seen large craft sail up the worst rapids very much to my astonishment.

Have you ever seen ships sail up the Long Sault? Not ships; but large boats, what they call Durham boats, sail up there.

Though you have seen such things, do you mean to state to the Committee, that it is a practised navigation for boats to come up the rapids?—Yes, but they are generally pulled or poled up.

By boats coming up the St. Lawrence with cargoes?—Yes, it is the constant mode of import.

How many days do they take?—I believe they come up in about four or five days; all the imports of Upper Canada come up those rapids, every hat and every coat that is worn.

Are they poled up?—Yes; they are craft from 5 to 30 tons; those of 30 tons are an American improvement; they are called Durham boats; I have seen those boats sail up the rapids that I could scarcely have credited if I had not seen it: they were empty.

Has steam been applied to that part of the navigation?—No; there are steam boats between all the rapids, but not up them.

Although you state that with regard to a comparison between the Canadian canal communication and the Lake Erie canal communication, the advantages during a particular period of the year are in favor of the Canadian canal, have you taken into your consideration the locking up of the St. Lawrence during so large a portion of the year altogether as compared with the Lake Erie canal?—I can not say that I have; but although in a comparison of the port of Quebec with the port of New York, the latter has much the advantage as a commercial emporium, yet from the nature of the transactions of that country, flour and many other exports are generally collected in the spring of the year, when the port of Quebec is open; and though New York has an important advantage over Quebec in the general course of trade, still I apprehend it is not so important in the ports of Canada, or the Western parts of the United States, because the habit of those countries is this: after harvest they house their grain, and they do not thresh it till the winter season, not only because they have no other avocations at that time, and nothing else to do during the winter, but because the grain threshes much more easily at that season; they thresh in the winter, and have it ground, and they have it ready to export in the spring, and it is not ready much before the port of Quebec is usually open. Staves, timber, and potash are also got ready for export during the winter; and I apprehend therefore, that Quebec is almost as good an outlet for these commodities (which are the three principal exports) as New York.

With respect to the navigation of the St. Lawrence, is not it almost a regular thing every year for the insurance to rise very much, sometimes before the frost begins at the mouth of the river?—I do not know any thing about it, but I should think it is very likely to be the case, because when they come into the gulf of the St. Lawrence in the spring of the year, they are liable to meet icebergs; but those icebergs are meet on the banks of Newfoundland sometimes; and I have known instances of the American packets, that go from New-York to Liverpool, falling in with them.

For what time do you suppose the Lake Erie canal remains frozen?—I apprehend it is not much used from about the middle of November, till the end of April, any where, nor until late in May, at its commencement in Lake Erie.

During what time do you reckon that the navigation between Quebec and Lake Ontario keeps frozen?—I am not so conversant with that as many other gentlemen, but I think early in May boats begin to pass up.

Then you could not answer as the state of freezing at Quebec.—The navigation is about a month or five weeks from this country to America, and they begin to arrive there at the latter part of April and the beginning of May. It will be seen with regard to the Welland canal, that produce going down Lake Erie in a schooner, would get to Ogdensburgh, which is the foot of the schooner navigation, much before they could get to Albany, and they go in one vessel, without unloading. Now the Americans, at the port of Oswego, are very anxious that our canal should be finished, because it will very much improve their port, as all the American shipping in Lake Erie, which is very extensive, (they have five vessels to our one,) would come immediately down our canal, and go to Oswego. But I would just mention, that I apprehend it will be necessary in order to give us the advantage of that trade for the British Parliament to make some regulation to enable the American ships to go through our canal without unloading, which I apprehend will be contrary to our present navigation laws. This regulation would be no detriment to us, and it would give us a great portion of their trade.

Does the American canal enter lake Ontario?—No; it does not come into Lake Ontario at all: they propose making a cut through, but at present they have finished very much increase their desire to do that.

It communicates with Lake Ontario by the navigation from Rochester.—Yes.

Did you collect from Governor Clinton, that the people of the United States are falling very much into our navigation with regard to Montreal?—They have always been so; but the Americans are very much leaving Montreal since they have got their canal finished: we used to have the whole export trade of the Genesee country, but the canal carries that trade very much away from us.

Could they not easily cut a canal on their side?—No: their side does not afford the facility. I understand they are endeavouring to counteract the almost ruin that our canal threatens to the western part of their canal, by making a railway, which they hope will be of some advantage; I do not think it will be of consequence when we get our canal once finished, provided we let their ships pass through without unnecessary restrictions.

How soon do you calculate that your canal will be open?—It is calculated that it will be opened in a twelvemonth; it will depend on some measure upon how the funds hold out. To show the great advantage of which this canal will be productive, I would state, that one gentleman in New York, who is acquainted with the subject of the American canals, and who is a great canal land-holder, and who understands that sort of thing very well, came and looked at the locality of it, and he subscribed £50,000 to it himself; he is the brother of the late governor of the State of New York; and the contractors for two of the most expensive parts, (who are Americans) have subscribed $25,000.

Is it done by private subscription?—Yes: and what brought me here, was to endeavour to get the remainder of the subscription taken up in London.

What is the total cost?—£180,000 sterling, £90,000 is subscribed; £70,000 of it in New York, and the remainder in Canada: we might have got the whole stock taken up immediately at New York, but we though it more proper to offer it to the London market, as it was considered a very profitable undertaking, and of which there can be no doubt.

Foreign Intelligence.

GREECE.

There is no news concerning Greece, except, as a general remark, communicated by some private letter, that things remained without alteration; and intelligence received from Mr. Eynard, in Switzerland, that the Greek fleet was off Hydra. Our last accounts stated that this island was to be made the strong hold of the nation.

PORTUGAL.

Nothing had transpired in this country, since the discovery and defeat of the late intended insurrection. The Portuguese official account of this plot reformed in terms to the "assistance promised the conspirators by the government of Spain."

It had been reported that a British squadron threatened to take possession of the Balearic islands.

It is gratifying to have to report a continued good demand for cotton, at rather improving prices. The sales amount to about 12,000 bags.

Cotton was brisk in London during the week ending the 14th September, and sales very extensive. 800 boweds 6½ to 7d; 20 Orleans 6⅞.

LONDON, Sept. 15.

On Tuesday last, the boiler of the Eclipse, Runcorn steam packet, during the progress of that packet here, burst; but we are happy to state that no farther injury was sustained by the passengers than a severe fright.

Drury-lane theatre opens on next Saturday. Mr. Hooper is announced for that evening in the part of Count Almaviva, in the Marriage of Figaro.

Fears are entertained for the safety of the Hamburgh steam vessel to London.

Paris, Sept. 11.—The Journal des Debats lies in its account of an English squadron being in the Mediterranean, for the purpose of taking possession of the Balearic Islands in case of a probable necessity arising out of some remonstrance of Mr. Lamb, the English minister at Madrid.—The Etoile.

Madrid, Aug. 31—Every thing here appears to announce an approaching change in the direction of affairs.—Constitutionel.

The French army is about to evacuate Cadiz, leaving only a barely efficient garrison behind.

Brigadier Rodil, the defender of Callao, has arrived in Europe.—The Quotidienne.

Napoli de Romani, 15th July.—Every thing in Greece remains in statu quo.—The enemy is inactive. Such is the news contained in the London papers.

Mr. Canning was expected to arrive in Paris on the 15th September.

It is mentioned in the papers of the 15th that the price of Stock continued to improve. Many speculators were abandoning the 3 per cents, and resorting again to the 5 per cents. Fives closed the day previous at 98f. 70c.—Three at 66f. 25c.

A military show was to be exhibited at the city of Metz, on the arrival of the Dauphin—the attack and capture of the Trocadero tower, at Cadiz, was to be represented at a review of troops.

A letter of the 25th August, from Moscow, states that the day for the coronation was not at that time fixed.

YORK, U. C. SATURDAY, NOVEMBER, 4, 1826.

From the general tenor of the accounts from England, it is satisfactory to observe that Trade continues to make gradual improvement. Prices have improved in some degree, and the increased demand for Goods, affords an opportunity of giving more constant employment to the workmen. The Harvest it appears is not an average Crop, and it is stated that the Corn Laws will again come under the consideration of Parliament, which is called at an earlier period than usual. The opening of the Ports has caused a good deal of accivity in the Corn market on the Continent. Some speculation is carried on in the American market, and Flour has advanced in New York.

As yet no further intelligence is received respecting the negotiation, on the subject of the Trade of the United States, but it appears to be confidently expected, that a satisfactory arrangement will be made.

The Late Hon. Samuel Smith, was one of that Patriotic band, who having preserved their allegiance to their Sovereign inviolate, during the revolt of the American Colonies, at the close of the contest sought an asylum in this Province, under the protection of that Gracious King, in whose cause they sacrificed their all. The example of such men deserves an honorable record, and we have no doubt, that it will be satisfactory to his associates in arms throughout the Province, if we attempt to give a Summary of an Eulogy on the character of Mr. Smith, in a Sermon delivered on Sunday last in York, by the Rev. Dr. Phillips, the substance of which we think we are correct in quoting as follows:

"It affords us much pleasure to recognize the virtues as a Soldier, a Senator, a Father, and a Friend. His youthful blood was shed in our Country's cause, and he nobly withstood the mad career of rebellion, to maintain the Standard of British Glory. His conduct in the high and distinguished Office of Administrator of the Government of this Province was marked with undeviating rectitude, evincing on all occasions, a firm attachment to the best interests of this happy and flourishing Colony. He was a zealous supporter of the Laws and Constitution of the British Empire, and a bright ornament of our Protestant Church—Paternal affection and solicitude were conspicuous in his domestic relations—and as a Friend, the individual feelings of those who knew him from his youth, many of whom are here present, who were his fellow associates in the arduous cause in which he was engaged, will bear testimony to his extreme kindness, and amiable disposition. As a Christian, the sincerity of his Faith, and pious resolutions, were manifested by his 'walking humbly with his God.'"

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, has returned to Stamford from his visit to the Western District. The Addresses presented to His Excellency at Sandwich and Amherstburgh will be found in this days Gazette.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

The Old Gazette of Thursday last notices, as an ex dit, a report "that Sir John Harvey, Deputy Adjt. Genl., will receive the appointment of Lieut. Governor of this Province, to sail for Quebec next spring."

The latest letters from Sir John Harvey, we understand, mention no such appointment though they speak of his intention of returning to this country early in the next year. We rather fear that brilliant as that Officer's talents are known to be, neither himself nor the Province are likely to be so immediately benefited by his return in that character, altho' his experience and judgment would eminently qualify him to discharge the important duties attached to the situation.—Quebec Mercury.

On Friday afternoon, His Excellency the Earl of Dalhousie, with the countess of Dalhousie, arrived from Sorel in the Swiftsure, to take up their residence for the Winter in the Castle of St. Louis.

This day at 2 o'clock His Lordship inspected the Detatchment of the Royal Artillery, in this Garrison, as well as the brigades of guns in its charge, on the private parade at the Barracks of the Corps. His Lordship also purposes to make the half-yearly Inspection of the 71st Highlands Light Infantry, on the Plains of Abraham, at 10o'clock to-morrow, and 79th Cameron Highlanders, at the same hour and place on Thursday next.—ib.

Rideau Canal &c.—We learn from a gentleman lately from the Ottawa, that a contract has been entered into by Mr. Wright, for clearing off the timber from the ground allotted for the Canal; a breadth of 200 feet on the North side of the Rideau. It had been contemplated to open the Canal on the South side of the River, but the Gentleman who owned the land on which the outlet of the Canal was to be located, positively forbid the Engineer to put spade into his land, before he should have remunerated him in a considerable sum for his property, which was received by the Engineer with the contempt it deserved. He immediately proceeded to explore a situation for the Canal on the North side of the River, where he found equal, if not superior facilities for accomplishing his object; leaving the Gentleman on the South side to enjoy his land in peace, if not to regret the impropriety of his demand, which has prevented his possessing the advantages which might reasonably be expected to accrue from having so important a work terminate on his premises, where a great portion of the business of the Canal must necessarily have been transacted. A Town is likewise in progress of survey near the outlet of the Canal, on a Crown Reserve. The front lots we understand are to be granted free to Half-Pay Officers and other, who have been in His Majesty's service who can or will build a good sized house of certain specified dimensions; to each town lot is attached a park lot, situated a short distance from the Town. Those who cannot afford to build as large as required, will receive grants of lots in the back streets where the proprietors may construct such buildings as may best suit their means and convenience.

The bridge across the Ottawa is likewise in a course of construction. It is located a little below the Chaudiere falls, where there are islands in the River on which some of the abutments of the Bridge will rest; at one place an arch of 200 feet will be required. The place in the rapids where the 1000*l.* ordered to be appropriated by the Governor-in-Chief is to be expended, is situated on the Upper Canada side of the Ottawa. It is thought that 1000*l.* will be sufficient to render the stream passable for Rafts. If this should be the case, great benefit will be rendered to persons engaged in the lumber trade, and an extensive field opened for speculation in that article.

Steam Boat Accident.—The Toronto whilst on her way to Prescott on Thursday last, when about two miles below this place, had the misfortune to have the Cross-Tree of her machinery give way, which put a stop to her further progress. She was towed into this port the following night by the Niagara. As it has been necessary to send that part of her machinery which failed to Montreal for repair, it will necessarily be some time before she can resume her usual trips.—Brockville Recorder.

Oswego and Welland Canals. The Welland Canal in all probability will be completed next fall. When finished, it will open a water communication for vessels, of from 150 to 200 tons burthen, from Oswego canal, which intersects the Erie canal, at this place and terminates at Oswego Village, which will be finished about that time. The distance of this Canal is only about 50 miles, and when completed will open a direct communication with Lake Ontario, where goods can be shipped on board a steam-boat and pass through the Welland Canal to any of the ports of the above mentioned lakes, in much less time than they possibly can be transported by way of the Erie Canal to Buffalo.

A notorious offender named Benjamin Johnson, has been committed to the gaol of this city since our last, on suspicion of being concerned in the robbery of Messire Masse, Point Levi. He was discharged at the termination of the last Criminal Term, the period of his imprisonment having expired. The following gold pieces were found in his possession. 2 doubloons, 2 half do. 4 quarter do. 11 half Joes, 1 quarter do. 1 double Louis, 3 single do. 6 20 Franc Pieces, 16 guineas, 7 half do. 10 half Eagles. There was also silver to the amount of 15*s.* 3*d.* found in his possession. There was another old offender in company with him when he was arrested, of the name of Zephyre Lanewille, who was acquitted last Term of bulglary. He has been committed to the House of Correction as a vagrant.—Montreal Gazette.

Montreal, 21st, Oct.

We have received the following account of an attempt to commit a robbery at L'Acadie. We do not vouch to the facts related, not knowing the person who sends them.—On the evening of the 6th inst. two fellows bearing between them a bag containing some apparently weighty article, called at the house of Mrs. Roy, and asked if she could give them lodging for the night as they had travelled far and were fatigued with their journey, Mrs. L. Roy told them of her inability to accommodate them, but informed them that by going a little further on, they would meet with a house of entertainment. They then asked permission to leave their bag, for which they said, they would call in the morning. With this request she complied, and the bag was carried into an adjoining room in which Mrs. L. Roy's son, a young man of about nineteen years of age, lay sick. About 10 o'clock at night, the sick lad thought he saw the bag move, and alarmed his mother, telling her that some living beast was in the bag, perhaps to play them a trick. The mother, however, believed that her son was labouring under the delusion of the imagination, and did not examine the bag. The son afterwards perceiving the bag stir again, got up, and seizing his father's gun which was loaded with small shot, discharged it at the bag. The family immediately rose on hearing the report of the piece, and proceeded to the room. He told what he had done, on which they united the bag, and found a man apparently lifeless, with his arm and thigh broken. He recovered his senses, however, and made an ample confession of the nefarious designs of himself and colleagues. About 2 o'clock in the morning, a scratching was heard at the door. Mr. L. Roy (who had previously collected some of his neighbors) proceeded softly to it, and opened it quickly, when a fellow entered. On seeing the door was opened by another than his accomplice, he instantly turned and fled along with his companion, who was outside the door, and all attempts to overtake them were without effect. The sufferer calls himself Labarge, and states that he belongs to Quebec. Our correspondent does not mention whether he has been given up to the law; but seems to think him well enough punished by the wounds inflicted by the shot.

Lieut. Governor.

PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councellors, of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province; to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York on Monday the Thirtieth day of October inst. to be Commenced, Held, Called, and Elected, and to every of you

GREETING

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Twenty-fifth day of September last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the Thirtieth day of October instant, at which time, at our Town of York, you were held and constrained to appear.

NOW KNOW YE, that we taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking and by these presents enjoining you and each of you that on Tuesday the Fifth day of December next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, FOR THE ACTUAL DESPATCH OF PUBLIC BUSINESS, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

In testimony whereof, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—Witness our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding our Forces therein, at York, this Twenty-first day of October in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-six, and in the Seventh Year of our reign.

UPPER CANADA.
P. MAITLAND,
Lieut. Governor.

GEORGE the FOURTH by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith:

To all to whom these Presents shall come

GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the parts of this Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. We have thought fit to order and direct, and We do hereby order and direct that, until Our pleasure herein shall be further made known, it shall and may be lawful for all Our Subjects inhabiting Our Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada, freely to enter into Our Woods and Forests in such parts of Our said Province of Upper Canada, situate along the Banks of the River Ottawa, or upon the Banks of the Waters running into the said River and within a convenient distance from the same, as shall not have been Surveyed and divided into Concessions and Lots, and to Cut and carry away such Oak and Pine Timber as may be fit for the purposes of Exportation.

Provided always, nevertheless, That in consideration of the authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties herein-after specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Red Pine Timber, Four Pounds Three Shillings and Four Pence, being at the rate of One Penny per Foot. Upon every Thousand Feet of Yellow Pine Timber, Two Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence, being at the rate of One Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commission under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places upon the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointed as aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has attained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons, properly authorized by or under Our Licence granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

In testimony whereof, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—Witness Our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of Our said Province, and Major General Commanding Our Forces therein, at York, this Third day of May in the year of Our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-Six, and in the Seventh Year of Our Reign.

Executive Council Office,
York, 23rd March, 1826.

NOTICE is hereby given, by Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, in Council, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a regular Council day.

JOHN SMALL.
No. 9 1. f. C. E. C.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepared in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2*s.* 6*d.*

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must, at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hunded Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant. It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessarry expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

POETRY.

A DIRGE.

Weep not for her!—Oh she was far too fair,
Too pure to dwell on this guilt-tainted earth!
The sinless glory, and the golden air
Of Zion, seemed to claim her from her birth:
A Spirit wander'd from its native zone,
Which, soon discovering, took her for its own:
Weep not for her!

Weep not for her!—Her span was like the sky,
Where thousand stars shine beautiful and bright;
Like flowers, that know not what it is to die:
Like long-lark'd, sinless months of Polar light:
Like Music floating o'er a waveless lake,
While Echo answers from the flowery brake:
Weep not for her!

Weep not for her!—By fleet or slow decay,
It never grieved her bosoms core to mark
The playmates of her childhood wane away:
Her prospects wither; or her hopes grow dark:
Translated by her God, with angels dwell,
She pass'd as 'twere in smiles from earth to Heaven:
Weep not for her!

Weep not for her!—It was not hers to feel
The miseries that corrode amassing years,
'Gainst dreams of baffled bliss the heart to steel,
To wonder and down Age's vale of tears,
As whist the wither'd leaves from Friendship's tree,
And on earth's wintry wold alone to be:
Weep not for her!

Weep not for her!—She is an angel now,
And tends the sapphire floors of Paradise;
All darkness wiped from her refulgent brow,
Sin, sorrow, suffering, banish'd from her eyes:
Victorious over death, to her appear
The mind's joys of Heaven's eternal year:
Weep not for her!

Weep not for her!—Her memory is the shrine
Of pleasant thoughts, soft as the scent of flowers,
Calm as on windless eve the sun's decline,
Sweet as the song of birds among the bowers,
Rich as a rainbow with its hues of light,
Pure as the moonshine of an autumn night:
Weep not for her!

Weep not for her!—There is no cause for woe;
But rather nerve the spirit, that it walk
Unshrinking o'er the thorny path below,
And from earth's low defilements keep thee back:
So, when a few fleet severing years have flown,
She'll meet thee at Heaven's gate—and lead thee on!
Weep not for her!

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE HORRORS OF SENSIBILITY.

THANK you Madam: that cambric handkerchief so kindly displayed for the occasion, almost induces me to say,—

"Ye who have tears, prepare to shed them now."

—And you, Miss—I thank you for the sympathy evinced by the production of your essence-bottle: and to you, Sir—what shall I say for your mute attention:—

"Beggar that I am—I am poor in thanks."

And now, Madam, with your permission, I will take my seat beside you, and proceed:—

I sometimes fear my worthy father went to his grave, without ever entirely forgiving me for having incurred the fatal displeasure of my aunt, although for many years after that unfortunate occurrence, I experienced repeated instances of his paternal regard. Until the age of fifteen I was educated at home, under the eye of my parents, when I was sent to a private school, where a "limited number" of young gentlemen were boarded and prepared for an entry to the great stage of life. The number was limited, and I soon discovered the reason to be, that my master's talents and influence were both so. Oh, how deep is the cup of human misery!—in this situation I met with a variety of afflictions too tedious for detail, while I endeavoured, with all the philosophy of the teens, to sit, as the poet says, "like patience on a monument." I could never bear to witness the sufferings of others, and my excessive sympathy always made them my own. Many times have I made a false confession of crime, when I have been as innocent as a robin, in order to take the punishment on my own shoulders, when it truly belonged to another boy, who was always a crony of mine, that he, poor soul, might not suffer, even justly.

On one occasion, I found the cook-maid and her lover whispering their endearments in the china-closet, and having at that early age conceived a wonderous idea of the sanctity and necessary privacy of such interviews, I quietly turned the key on them, forgetting that the meat would be burnt to a cinder for want of attention, while its fair guardian, good soul, was burning with affection for her lover, as well as with a desire to get out. My good intentions were defeated, and the unhappy pair, without a loop-hole left for escape, were soon discovered by the mistress, and the music of expostulation rung through the house. The meat truly required basting, but I, whose wants were by no means so urgent, had the precedence of the meat, and received a sufficient one at the hands of the sooty damsel, till I was moist to the skin, and the meat went to table as dry as a chip. Never shall I forget the look which she gave me as she passed the dining-room door—her eyes shot through me like the spit, and all because from a motive of pure and refined sympathy I had sought to add to the happiness of her and her swain. Unable to appreciate the delicacy of my motives the ungrateful girl always took the opportunity of calling me a meddling booby, and from that unlucky day I bore the ominous name of "sly boots," which clung to me like a curse wherever I went. I imagined every one who looked me in the face intended to assail me with that epithet, until after long usage I began to feel myself identified with it so completely that it became natural to be anti-social and scarcely knew whether I was deserving the hateful distinction or not. This circumstance, added to many others, at length roused my spirit, and I resolved, contrary to the admonitions of prudence and propriety, abruptly to bid them the place which had become so distressing to me. Did I seek refuge under the paternal roof?—No—that was no place for me: my presence there, under such circumstances, would have rendered still stronger the bitter feeling my father entertained towards the "vagaries" (as he called acts of sensibility) of such an addleheaded boy.

After wandering to as great a distance from these scenes as my narrow finances would allow of, I mixed among the motely group assembled at a village market, where I saw a brute of a drover belabouring an ox with a notted stick, until the creature was maddened wild with torture: my sensibility was roused, and in the fervour of my sensations, I stripped off my coat, and offered my own back as a propitiation for the sins of the poor beast, (I mean the ox, not the drover), and cried quarter for him. The mob cheered me, which I acknowledged loudly, and took me at my word, and I soon experienced practically what must have been the sufferings of the afflicted animal. The surrounding boors set up a wild shout, and the ox, alarmed at the force of being obliged to resume his part in the suffering duet, broke and dash forward, and by a forcible butt of his short horns, laid me senseless amongst the mob.

When I regained my erect posture and my senses, I imagined I heard a distant cry of "sly boots," and scarcely knew whether I was covered most with mud or with shame: such is, I was thickly bespattered with both; and when an unfortunate cur with a tin kettle tied to his tail ran howling by me, I fancied I was as miserable as he was, and even in the face of the requital I received from the ill-bred ox, I almost wished I could have exchanged situations with the dog, thinking I could have borne with true philosophy the running accompaniment which supported and relieved his vocal performance. A severe reflection soon brought me to my senses, and taught my sensibility to feel, "how sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless" ox; and after a long mental struggle, I brought myself to believe that the dog might have proved as thankless as the ox.

While I was standing in this condition, "the observed of all observers," a sedate looking gentleman, who was passing by, commiserated my appearance, and in a kind tone of voice inquired the cause of my misfortunes, seeing of course by the gentility of my dress that I was not acting in my proper sphere. After listening to the recital of my present adventure he beckoned me to follow him, which I did without hesitation, to his residence, where, after affording me the means of a sufficient ablution, he kindly took me by the hand and led me to the drawing-room where his wife and daughter were sitting.

After making a slight apology for bringing a perfect stranger into their presence, the worthy man presented me to them, and for the first time in my life, I felt by the blushes on my cheek, and other agitating sensations, that I was man enough to be sensibly touched with the beauty of the daughter, as well as by the frank mode in which she acknowledged the introduction of her papa's protege. She was then—(oh how vivid is the impression on my memory even now)—she was then just in the exquisite bloom of sixteen, lovely, gentle: what attribute did not my young fancy deck her with!

I was treated with a great degree of kindness by the whole circle; and without the imputation of vanity, I may say I believe I had some claims towards being what is called attractive, possessing a very comely person, and an easy, unembarrassed address, except when my particular feelings were called into play. In the midst of this family party, the old gentleman asked me a variety of questions as to my connections, family, and other matters: the story was painful—I could not tell part without telling all. Was I ashamed of my feelings or my conduct?—No:—still I could not readily explain a set of peculiar feelings, and relate their consequences, without the dread of incurring perhaps censure—but more certainly ridicule. I could not bear ridicule even single-handed in a tete-a-tete, much less could I bear it in the presence of a group, as I considered mistered by three at once, one of whom seemed all on a sudden to be of three times more importance to me than any other person I had ever met with. If I had remained silent, would not my worst suspicions that I was no better than I should be, therefore unworthy of the kindness I had experienced. Which is the severest, ridicule, or silent reprobation, which might grow up in contempt? All these reflections, and many more, crowded over and agitated my mind till I could scarcely breathe: and after some further deliberation, I yielded in self up to the chance of ridicule, for the sake of indulging my love of truth and frankness. I told my whole story, including a variety of incidents with which I have not thought fit to fatigue my reader, and concluded with the adventure of the amorous cook-maid, and my consequent flight. The result of all this was that I grew in favour, my feelings were duly appreciated: and the only thing which drew down censure, was the circumstance of my quitting my school, and omitting to return to my father's home.

I soon learnt that my worthy host was the village lawyer, and after having remained under his hospitable roof for several weeks, he advised me to communicate my situation to my father, and actually proposed to take me under his care, and educate me in his profession. My father came, and we were soon reconciled: all went on as I could wish, and my father seemed to congratulate himself on the occurrence of an accident which seemed to bid fair to be of use to me.

But to what trials was I exposed—not at the bar of justice—but at the bar of my peculiar gift of sensibility. I soon discovered that my every-day duty was completely at variance with my character. Day after day exhibited to my aching heart, the situations of many whose miseries and afflictions I felt as acutely as they themselves—but how could I alleviate them? I could not pursue my present course without seeing these things, and I could not see them without being cut to the quick; and on one occasion I sold my coat to buy bread for a starving family who had been turned out of house and home, on account of their inability to pay their rent. I was always poor, always overwhelmed with sympathetic suffering, and my chief happiness seemed to consist in rendering myself unhappy. Years passed on in this way, and how I endured them I know not.

But there was a load-star that bound me fast to my situation. That kind creature from the first seemed to understand my character.—Time had made us familiar; we read together, sang together, and no one ever dreamt of mischief any more than we did. My heart and soul were overcharged with deep emotions, I could scarcely comprehend the extent of what I felt, and she was equally ignorant of the nature of her own condition:—time pass ing strange: and thus we proceeded, till on one bright summer's evening, we were sitting under a spreading acacia tree in the garden reading Shakespeare's "Tempest," dividing the characters between us. At length we came to the scene between Ferdinand and Miranda, and as she proceeded with the part of Miranda, I saw her countenance change, the blood mantled in her cheek, and her voice grew tremulously soft. She paused where the poet did not contemplate a pause—she faultered where the poet was eloquent—and when she uttered the words

"I would not wish
Any companion in the world but you;
Nor can imagination form a shape
Besides yourself to like of—Oh!

her very heart seemed to be on her lips; she endeavoured to proceed, but the channel of utterance failed for a moment; at length she pursued the text,

"But I prattle Something too wildly"—

and then abruptly closed the book, and by her sudden motion dashed my cheek with a warm, eloquent tear, which from my cheek soon trickled down to my heart; she turned down the avenue, and I another; we read no more that day, nor the next, nor the next; we never read again in that book.

Time passed on, and the string which had discoursed such "eloquent music" was not touched again; each seemed afraid to wake the spell that had wrought so strongly, and each suspected the full chord with which that string would vibrate if touched again. I could not, dared not touch it; she ought not—delicacy forbade. Here my excessive sensibility cut my heart-strings.

If a boor glanced at her as she walked through the village, I felt disposed to cudgel him for his impudence. If an equal claimed her attention, and whispered his pleasantry in her ears, my spirit was up in arms: yet why? I had laid no claim to her—I had not the courage to secure my prize—I had not the fortitude to lose it. I was jealous where I had no right, I was confident where I had not the resolution to muse the dreams of hope into reality. Oh how bitter, how sweetly bitter was all this—the work of that sensibility—overflowing sensibility, source of all my woe, past, present, and future!

Oh, Isabel—Isabel! bright, bright vision;

"No more, no more, oh never more on me
The freshness of the heart can fall like dew."

Perished—perished forever: the vision and the heart, its freshness and its fervor!

And shall I linger over the sad story, which clings to me like a vampire, and drinks up my life-blood! Did she fade like a summer flower, pining in silent love, fetting "concealment like a worm i' th' bud, feed on her damask cheek"—did she sadly undermine the hours gone by when hope made her heart beat quickly, and imagination winged its way on fairy pinions—did she sink into her grave, the victim of unrequited love, blessing with her dying breath the name of him who feared to say he loved her? Oh my heart! Did she think of me for thee? No!—she eloped with her music master.

Shortly after this event my father died, and I became in my turn the possessor of the small patrimony on which I reside. I fled from the world and from society, wearing out myself in the living death or dying life which I described at the commencement of this sketch. I am a broken-hearted recluse—my Isabel, a widow with fifteen children.

SUMMARY.

The P. E. Island Register states that from the opening of the Navigation this spring till the 1st. October 202 vessels have cleared Outwards at their Custom House and 150 entered Inwards. In the corresponding period last year there were cleared 105—entered 80. This increase is attributed "to the abolition of the Custom House fees."

The Morning Herald of the 14th September quotes a paragraph from the Post, from which we are sorry to gather that His Royal Highness the Duke of Clarence, so far from having derived any benefit to his health from his visit to Germany, had on the contrary, for some time past been in a declining state.

The Depot of the 81st regiment of Infantry has arrived at Guernsey from Winchester.

Sir John Copley was yesterday morning sworn in as Master of the Rolls, and the Lord Chancellor is ordered, that all motions for injunctions should be made before the Master of the Rolls.—Sept. 16.

A very handsome Canadian Canoe, and several packages containing curiosities, were safely landed from the Shannon packet, at Falmouth, from Halifax, being offerings to His Majesty from Major General Sir John Kean. They were brought on Thursday by the Sir Francis Drake, and thence transhipped on board the Brunswick, for Portsmouth. The canoe is to be conveyed to Virginia-water, for the private use of his Majesty.—Sir John Keane and several other officers came home in the Shannon.—Plymouth Journal.

Whitehall, Sept. 15.—The King has been pleased to direct letters patent to be passed under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, constituting and appointing Sir John Singleton Copley, Knight, Master, Keeper of the Rolls and Records of the Court of Chancery, in the room of the Rt. Hon. Lord Gifford, deceased.

We can state upon authority, that it appears by the last accounts from Corfu, that Athens had not fallen into the hands of the Turks, as has been currently reported. The town has been deserted by the inhabitants, who have fled to the Islands, from apprehension of the advance of the Turks; but the Citadel is still garrisoned by a small Greek force, under General Gordon.—Courier, Sept. 15.

Copenhagen, Sept. 5.—The Naiad corvette, lately returned from the West Indies, has brought for account of Government, 160,000 piastres in gold, which are to be sent to London, for payment of the interest, and part of the principal, of the Loan contracted for in that city.—Great activity now prevails in the Royal Dockyards; two ships of the line of 80 guns, a frigate of 50 guns, and a brig of 16 guns, are on the stocks.

We have received the Paris papers of Monday in due course—The servile fears of Spain, with respect to the Portugues Charter, do not seem to abate. The Portuguese Ambassador at Madrid intended to give a grand fete, in honor of the political changes which had taken place in his country, but he was prevailed upon by the Spanish Minister to relinquish the design, as the sound of the festive string would vibrate if touched again. I could not, dared not touch it; she ought not—delicacy forbade. Here my excessive sensibility cut my heart-strings.

The proposed Congress at Panama is a subject of the imbecility of the Spanish government on the one hand, and of the audacity of faction on the other. A Foreign Ambassador is virtually prohibited from giving entertainments, in honor of certain events which had taken place in his country, lest the public peace of the Capital where he resides, should be disturbed, in consequence, and himself exposed to the rude indignities of the rabble.—Courier, Sept. 21.

Sir Walter Scott has, we have heard, sold his house in Edinburgh, the greater part of his furniture, and every thing that could be turned into money. He has left Scotland, and is now in London. He is writing, as most of our readers know, the Life of Napoleon Buonaparte: and he also writes, we are told, for any periodical publication of which the proprietors think his own, that will reward him adequately. The motive for his industry and economy are very praise-worthy. He has declared that he will pay every farthing he owes: and will not listen to one single farthing composition by his creditors. By the sale of his house and other means, all the persons to whom he stood indebted for less than £50 have been paid; and this distinguished author expects, ere long, to have paid upon he is indebted in a larger sum.—Courier of 21st.

Paris, Sept. 18.—The arrival of Mr. Canning has created some bustle here; the Right Hon. Gentleman is treated with as much homage as the sovereign of the strongest European State would be, were he to visit the French metropolis. His arrival was announced by telegraphic despatch, and the inquiries by the British and Foreign Nobility, at the Hotel of the British Ambassador, are extremely numerous. Yesterday Mr. Canning attended Divine Service in the room appropriated as a chapel at the Ambassador's. Lord Granville and several of the Nobility dined with him. Every thing is much to be regretted that the influence of the Commissioners for building new churches does not extend to this place, for a more inconvenient room could not be well imagined for a congregation than is in use for the English as a chapel. On most Sundays it is crowded to excess; but yesterday, wheth er from native curiosity to see the Right Hon. Secretary, or a wish to hear Mr. Canning's style of preaching, I will not take upon myself to say, but most certainly the room in question was inconveniently crowded with all the beauty and fashion in Paris. To-morrow the Baron de Damas, the French Minister for Foreign Affairs, gives a grand diplomatic dinner to Mr. Canning, to which all the Cabinet Ministers and Foreign Ambassadors are invited

The following is an extract of a letter from the Agent at Lloyd's, dated at ——, Rostock, Sept. 13, 1826—It is this moment reported, that the steamboat, plying between Dobberan and Copenhagen, has been burnt or blown up. There were on board many passengers from the former place, and amongst others, the Duke's physician. Dobberan is a watering place, near Rostock, and the summer residence of the Duke of Meckienburgh.'

It is stated in an article from Moscow, that the arrival of the Grand Duke Constantine in that city was wholly unexpected. The Emperor, we are told, considered it to be deserving an affair to send a specific invitation to his brother; but left it to his own feelings, whether to be present or not at the Coronation. The decision taken by the Grand Duke was certainly well judged, for by assisting at a solemn ceremony, which ratified, as it were, in the reassembled presence of Russian people, his own abdication of the Imperial Crown, he at once showed the sincerity and the voluntary character of that memorable act. In the account referred to, it is added, that Constantine renewed, personally, his oath of fidelity to Nicholas, when admitted to his presence.—Courier, Sept. 22.

N. M. Rothschild, Esq. on Wednesday, gave a splendid dinner to the Foreign Ambassandors, at his house in Piccadilly.

The Sheffield manufacturers have produced an alloy which they have named 'Peruvian Steel,' which is reckoned superior to the best Indian wootz of which the far famed Damascus blades are manufactured. The experiments of Messrs. Stodart and Farrady have greatly contributed to its invention.

Invasion of Russia by the Persians.—While all minds in the metropolis of Russia seem to have been wholly occupied with expected scenes of festivity, intelligence of an important nature has been received from the Persian frontier. Genera Yermoloff, who commands in Georgia, had sent despatches to his Government, to announce that the Russian territory had in several parts, been suddenly invaded by the Persians.

Whether the irruptions complained of were acts of individual misconduct, or encroachments deliberately resolved upon by the monarch of Persia, do not at present appear. The best authorities differ till very lately, subsisted between the Courts of Persia and Russia, and such, we believe, has been the case, with very slight exceptions, ever since the year of 1813, when, at the period of the invasion of Russia by Bonaparte, the war then in progress, between Russia and Persia, was happily brought to a conclusion by the good offices of the British Government.

The conduct of the Emperor Nicholas on this occasion has been marked by great promptness of decision. Indignant at the outrage he has sustained, General Yermoloff has been at once directed to clear the Russian territories from the force, of which it has been overrun, and at the same time he has demanded solemn satisfaction of the Schah of Persia, who is required, within five days, to depose and submit to exemplary punishment one of the chief who first entered the Russian dominions.

Preparations are making in the interior of the new Palace, building for the King, in St. James' Park, for the reception of the superb porcelain china, ormolu-pieces, and other portion of the furniture, fixtures, &c. from the King's palace, in Pall Mall. They are to remain in the Riding-house, &c. till the new Palace is ready to receive them.

The building of the London University at the upper end of Gowerstreet, may be said to have, fairly commenced; the ground is surrounded by a high fence, and the excavation is nearly ready for laying the foundation stone, which ceremony is, we understand, to be performed by a Royal Personage.—Morning Paper.

In the country, the people are beginning to get up their spirits a little, since the Order in Council was known for the admission of foreign grain; when the news of that circumstance reached Carnwath, the inhabitants closed the day with public bonfires and a grand illumination. There was only one poor widow in the whole village.—Glasgow Chronicle.

Portsmouth Sept. 16.—The Jasper, 10, Captain Blackwood, sailed this morning with fifteen tons of silver and copper for the use of the Commissariat Departments at Bermuda, Halifax, and Newfoundland. She will proceed from St. John's to the Mediterranean.

Vice-Admiral Sir Edward Codrington, is appointed Commander-in-Chief in the Mediterranean, in room of Sir Harry Neale, whose term of service expires in December next.

Manchester, Sept. 19.—I am happy to inform you that this String market day for our township manufacturers, they have advanced their prices on such goods as are finished, since they have given an advance of wages to their weavers. This, I hope, is only a prelude to a further advance, which must be the case soon, as it is not possible for any weaver to support his family out of his present earnings. The silk trade is likewise going on very well. One who takes out pieces by hire, to print on handkerchiefs, tells me he has as much work by him as will employ him for a month to come, although he took on three or four fresh hands last week.

The Branch Bank of England has not yet commenced business to-day. To-morrow is spoken of as certainly to do so. Very much doubt, however, prevails on the subject. Very considerable interest is felt as to the effects likely to be produced by the workings of this vast establishment.

The tendency to improvement in the manufacturing districts, appears to have sustained no check in the course of the week, has fortunately manifested no slight degree of acceleration. The woollen trade, which all along maintained itself better than the cotton, has pro ceeded in the race of improvement; and even the cotton manufactories are sensibly becoming more active. The warehouses of Liverpool are already considerably relieved; and the Branch Banks have by this time most seasonably come into operation in Lancashire, will assist the manufacturers by enabling them to avail themselves of the demand thus creat ed.

Re-union of the Methodists.—New Wesleyan Methodist Chapel.—This beautiful and truly magnificent edifice in Tiviot Dale was opened for divine service, on Sunday and Monday, the 10th and 11th last. Under the chapel two large rooms are prepared for the use of new children belonging to the Methodist Sunday School, and an additional gallery erected in the chapel for their accommodation during the hours of public worship. Public worship commenced at ten o'clock on Sunday morning. The Liturgy of the Church of England, which is to be regularly used as a part of the Morning service, was read in a most impressive manner by the Rev. R. Newton, after which the Rev. Dr. Clinch, LL. D. delivered a truly excellent sermon, in the course of which he stated the very great pleasure it afforded him to witness the introduction of the Liturgy in that place, and expressed his ardent desire that he might live to see it adopted, in every place where the Methodists have a morning service. The Rev. R. Newton preached in the afternoon, and the Rev. John Beating, A. M. in the evening. The whole expense of the building is estimated at £11,000 including the purchase of the adjoining land, which is to be used as a burial ground. Nearly £4000 had been previously subscribed towards the erection of this building, and notwithstanding the pressure of the times, the very liberal sum of £5500 was collected on the occasion.—Leeds Intelligencer.

Peveril, an opera, by Pocock, the music by Horn, will be one of the forthcoming novelties at Covent Garden Theatre. The character and incidents are taken from Sir Walter Scott's novel of Peveril of the Peak.

ENGLAND.

'Downing-street, Sept. 7, 1826.

'Sir—Parliament being summoned to meet on the 14th of November for the dispatch of business, I take the liberty of apprising you that on the opening of His Majesty's Government have in view at this meeting, are to obtain the sanction of Parliament to the measures which have been adopted for admitting certain kinds of Foreign Grain for Home Consumption before they would have been by law regularly admissible for that purpose, and to elect a Speaker, and complete the other formal proceedings incident to the opening of a new Parliament.

'I have the honour to be, Sir,

'Your faithful and obedient Servant,

'GEORGE CANNING.'

Corn Laws.—We understand that the plan meant to be proposed to Parliament by Ministers for the modification of our Corn laws, is to impose a duty on the importation of foreign grain of from 1s. to 20s. to be regulated by a rated scale, beginning at 1s. per quarter on wheat, when the average price in this country is 69s. and increasing to 20s. when it is as low as 50s. and continuing the latter duty to be perfectly free when it is 70s. or upwards.

Mr. Gallatin, the new American Minister, was presented by Mr. Canning to His Majesty, to deliver his credentials, at the Court held on the 1st September at Windsor.

From the Numbers of the 3d state that a considerable rise had taken place in the price of corn, particularly those kinds, the importation of which into Great Britain was anticipated. Oats had risen cent. per cent.

LIVERPOOL, SEPTEMBER 16.

Ashes.—600 Barrels Pearl and Pearl Ashes were sold at last week's rates,

Corn Exchange.—Tuesday's market was well attended by Dealers. For both Wheat and Oats there was an improved demand, and sales to a considerable extent were effected on the terms of 1d to 2d on the former, and 2d to 3d per bushel on the latter on the prices of Saturday. There was a fair business done in bounded Wheat at prices varying little from those of last week.

The Manufacturers of Bolton, England, have petitioned for a law to enforce an equalization of journeymen's wages in the cotton manufactures. Mr. Huskisson in reply, tells the manufacturers, that if it were possible to establish a minimum of wages against the British manufacturer, it would be obviously impracticable to force the same restraint upon the master manufacturers of other countries; the consequence of which must be an overwhelming advantage to foreigners in the general market, and a necessary dismissal from work of great numbers of English journeymen.

BY THE UNITED STATES MAILS.

EASTPORT, SEPT. 30.

British Colonial Trade.—We believe the real difficulty existing and which for some years past have prevented a free trade with the British W. Indies and North American possessions are not generally known. A former law of Congress authorised the President to open our ports to the admission of the vessels of any power on the same terms as our own vessels as to duties on cargo and vessel, provided the measure was reciprocated by such power, and that the products of the U. States on importation into the foreign port in a vessel of the United States should pay no higher rate of duties than if, such articles were imported in vessels of that power from the United States or from elsewhere—the words in italics were added to the bill by Rufus King on its second reading in the Senate, and have originated, we believe, all the difficulties in our intercourse with the trade in question. Our law in practice demands that Flour from the U. States to a British W. Indis Island shall pay no more duty than the same article from Quebec or any other British possession. The British Government we believe conceded to every part but this, and this they declined, considering the latter importtion as a coasting trade from one part to another of their own dominions; and we confess that we can see no more right in the demand on our part than we could discover in the refusal from the British, that Molasses from Demerara to Boston should pay no higher duty than that article pays from N. Orleans to Boston. We are aware that in all our recent commercial negotiations with Great Britain the several portions of the British Dominions have been treated by both parties as separate countries, and this probably was considered as authorising the same view of them in this case. But we cannot conceive of them in any other light than as being part and parcel of one great Empire, the trade between which is in fact a coasting trade so far as its exclusive use is of right claimed for its own vessels.

In the view we have taken of the subject it is to be hoped that it will be reconsidered by Congress, upon the ground assumed, if found unreasonable, given up and the trade opened to our citizens. Under the present laws of Great Britain it will be found of vast importance to our merchants and ship owners particularly to this State.

EMIGRATION.

The subject of emigration considered on the great scale presents some very interesting views with regard to the future history of mankind. The area of the dry land on the surface of the globe is pretty correctly fifty one millions of square English miles, of which 11,000, 000, or nearly one-fourth, may be considered as unfit for culture. The remaining 40,000,000, if peopled to two thirds of the present density of England, would contain 5,500 millions of inhabitants. Now the actual number of human beings on the surface of the earth, according to the most correct estimates, does not exceed one-seventh, or one-ninth of the number which it could support. In other words, there is room in the habitable parts of the globe for ten times as many individuals as are now upon it. Speculations about final causes are rarely satisfactory; but if we might hazard a conjecture as to the object of that tendency to rapid increase in the population of civilized countries, which now perplexes moralists and politicians, we should say that it indicates that the human race is yet but in the threshold of existence, and that the principle of increase is designed to impel the civilized portion of mankind to spread themselves over the earth, till the void which so great a part of its surface presents, is filled up. We throw out the idea, and leave others to attach what importance they please. But without entering into obstruse questions of philosophy, it is natural to ask, Why should England, Ireland, Germany, Italy, and other parts of Europe, be oppressed with redundant numbers of inhabitants, while there are millions of acres of fertile land in the other quarters of the world untenanted? The labourer, for whom there is not food and employment at home, is made miserable by his poverty, while he is a burden to his country. Transport him to the unoccupied lands of Canada or New Holland, and you at once improve his own condition, and deliver society of an incumbrance. In practice, however, the plan of carrying masses of surplus population to colonize distant countries, is attended with two grand difficulties. 1st. As regards the individuals, it unluckily happens that those who need to have recourse to emigration to mend their circumstances, are scarcely ever able to bear the expense of their own removal; and 2d, as regards the country, the difficulty is first, to carry away such a number as will give any relief to the overburthened community; and second, to prevent the void from being filled up, and the principle of increase from acquiring increased activity in consequence of the evacuation.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

The question of emigration will in the end resolve itself into one of expense. No one who reflects on the efforts which this country has made in the course of the last thirty years, can indeed imagine that the establishment of colonies on any conceivable scale is beyond the power of the nation; nor do we doubt that the resolution that there should be no pauperism among a well-bodied people in any part of the British Islands, could be carried into effect for a very small fraction of the expense which has been incurred in fruitless wars. A resolution of this kind would make the greatness of the nation be felt beneficially by those to whom it has hitherto sounded as an empty name. We should be happy to see it taken—but that it can answer as a speculation of pounds, shillings, and pence, we are not yet convinced. For it must be recollected that the payers of poor-rates are in part indemnified by the low price of agricultural labour, and that if in some cases they willingly pay to get rid of a part of their paupers, it will be very doubtful whether they will find it worth while to go to the expense of that complete riddance of them which can alone permanently improve the condition of the working poor. A commencement, however, has other duties beyond those which can be settled by the balance of a farmer's accounts. We have an abundance of fertile land abroad, and over-abundance of laborious but distressed people at home; and it would be disgraceful to renounce the idea of availing ourselves of our national advantages to remove individual misery.—London Globe.

Petition from the 'Liverpool Ship-Owners' Association.'

To the Right Hon. the Committee of His Majesty's most Honourable Privy Council for the affairs of Trade.

The Memorial of the 'Liverpool Ship-Owner's Association,'

HUMBLY SHEWETH,

That your Memorialists have a large capital invested in British Shipping.

That, from a variety of unfortunate events, it is no longer practicable to employ their vessels with any prospect of advantage; and unless some effectual mode of relief can be devised, the ruin of your Memorialist, and the extinction of that part of the British Commercial Marine of this country engaged in its foreign trade must inevitably follow.

That, from whatever causes the present unexampled state of distress may arise, it appears to your Memorialists, that there is no possibility of any amelioration of their condition, so long as the privileges which have been lately conceded to the shipping belonging to the Northren Powers are suffered to remain in force.

Your Memorialists consider it unnecessary to enter into any lengthened detail or argument, to prove the utter impossibility of the British ship-owner being able to maintain a successful competition with the ship-owner of the Northern States of Europe. The information lately obtained under the authority of his Majesty's Government, shews in too incontrovertible a manner, the disadvantages the former labors under, both as regards the construction and the navigation of his vessel; and your Memorialists would most humbly state, that the information they have received respecting the expenses of the cost and navigation of the ships of Sweden, Denmark, Norway and Russia, are even less than those mentioned by Mr. Jacobs.

Your Memorialists are informed, that shipbuilding is going on with great activity in the ports of the Northern Powers, particularly Russia; and they contemplate with the most serious alarm the approach of that period when the increase of the commercial navy of that empire will exclude our shipping from the trade of that country, as they are now, in fact, almost excluded from the trade with Prussia, Sweden, Denmark and Norway.

Your Memorialists are far from wishing to recommend any measures which might compromise the character of this country, and which deservedly stands so high in the estimation of foreign nations. They admit that the conditions of Treaties, however unfavourable the terms may be, must faithfully be performed. They are aware that the Swedish Treaty lately entered into is to remain in force for ten years; but as the most objectionable part of it appears to depend upon an act of Parliament passed 5th July, 1825, they humbly hope that his Majesty's Government will, as soon as the Legislative Bodies assemble, recommend an alteration in the Provisions of that act. This they recommend with the less hesitation, as the treaty seems to contemplate such an event, and because the advantages which the Swedish Government offer as an equivalent, can never, in the estimation of your Memorialists, be of the slightest benefit to the British ship-owner.

That your Memorialists consider the opening of the Ports of our Colonies to the shipping of foreign nations extremely impolitic, and fraught with the most injurious consequences to their interests. Peculiar circumstances might render a direct intercourse between our colonies and the continent of Europe necessary, but your Memorialists humbly conceive that it should have been exclusively confined to British shipping. The permission which is given to British vessels to trade with theirs, when it is considered how unimportant they are, is quite illusory; and, as regards the colonies of France, where this privilege alone could be of any value, this permission has not been conceded.

Your Memorialists would respectfully draw your Lordship's attention to the state of the Timber Trade of this Port. The reduction of the duty on foreign timber, and the very low rate of freight at which it is brought in Prussian and other foreign vessels, has reduced the price so materially, as to give it a decided preference over the timber of our North American Colonies; the consequence of which will be, the exclusion of British shipping from this important branch of trade, and the ruin of these Colonies, whose existence depends upon the export demand for their timber, and which is in fact their only product. Your Memorialists consider that our Legislature has done well altogether the duty on timber imported from British America, existing Treaties not permitting a return to the old wholesome system of discriminating duties; and they would respectfully recommend, to prevent the mischievous consequences which are likely to arise from opening the Ports of our Colonies to foreign shipping, protecting duties may be levied upon all articles imported in foreign bottoms—a protection which, under peculiar circumstances, your Memorialists consider the British shipowner entitled to.

LONDON, Sept. 18—City 2 o'clock.

There has been a great deal doing in both stock markets. Consols for Account have been sold as high as 80 1-2, and are now 84 1-4 3-4, with a firm appearance. There have been most extensive dealings in Bonds; they opened at 65 3-4, and rose to 66. There has been since a retrograde movement of 4 per cent.; the bonds falling to 62. The present price is 63, but are very feverish. Colombian after touching 88, fell to 86. Northern Bonds are nearly 1 per cent. higher than on Saturday.

We have received the Paris Etoile of Saturday. By an article (taken from the Universal Gazette) it is stated that Samos had surrendered to the Captain Pacha, but no authority is given for this statement. Portugal, by all accounts, is in a state of tranquility. The Spanish government have instructed their Ambassador at Lisbon to intercede on the behalf of the persons who deserted the Portuguese cause, and sought refuge in Spain; but nothing definitive is yet known regarding the fate of these people. The treaties between the two governments of Portugal and Spain for exchange of deserters without any conditions; this interference, therefore, on the part of Spain, sufficiently indicates the feelings of that government as it respects the recent changes in Portugal.—Perfect tranquility reigns throughout the Portuguese provinces, without even excepting Trassos Montes, against which had been directed the united efforts of all the intrigues of the Spanish and Portuguese Apostoliques.

The arrangements are nearly completed for the commencement of a tunnel through which the Liverpool Rail-Road is to enter the town.

Hamburgh, Sept. 7.—Corn Market.—Wheat.—Best red has been recently sold at 95 rix dollars and since even at 98 do. To-day, however, the buyers hesitate to give those prices, because the English ports are not open for the importation of Wheat, and they are therefore inclined to wait for the accounts.

Rye.—As the last English post brought the news of the opening of the ports, Rye has risen almost to the price of Wheat and the holders of the stock here are even backward in selling at the prices quoted.

Liverpool Corn Exchange, Sept. 19.—We have had but moderate supplies of either British or Foreign Grain during the week. Sales to a fair extent have taken place in Wheat, and the demand for Oats has been animated, and a daily rise in price the consequence. Beans are 1s. a 2s. per quarter dearer, and Oatmeal 1s. a 2s. per pack. In Flour there is no alteration. Speculators are on the alert to buy Wheat in bond, and several cargoes have been taken by them out of the importers hands, at our quotations.

London, Sept. 17.—Intense interest is excited as to the stocks of the new American states. It is now reported that Messrs. Barings' house (who are to pay the Mexicans Dividend,) will arrange for the payments of all the dividends of the new Republic.—One failure was announced yesterday at the foreign stock market, in consequence of the rapid advance in Mexican Stock, of which the defaulter, whose name is Smith, has been what is techuically termed, a Bear. This difference is not extensive.

Great impositions have been lately practised on a number of young men who were anxious to serve the cause of Greece under Lord Cochrane, by a man named John Campbell, who represented himself to be an officer in the Royal Navy, and an intimate friend of Lord Cochrane, whom he was about to join in aid of the Greek cause, and whose authority he had to grant commissions in the Greek army and navy, and to engage civil officers for the same service. A number of respectable young men accompanied by a solicitor, applied to the Lord Mayor for a warrant against Campbell, who is at present a prisoner in the King's Bench at the suit of one of his numerous dupes. The Solicitor stated that Campbell, in proof of his authority, showed the applicants a letter which he professed to have received from Lord Cochrane, and which bore a foreign post-mark of which the following is a copy.

Gibraltar, June 16, 1826.—My dear Sir—Yesterday I received your letter in a packet sent by Lord Cochrane. I am not sorry for your misfortune, as it is probably a judgment on you for not accompanying me to South America, where you would have got riches—sure to get honour. I offer you the same terms as I did before, and shall be most happy of your gallant assistance. No independent, noble minded man, can now succeed in England. Come my dear fellow and earn the laurels that are now blooming for you. Write me to the crown Hotel, Malta, and let me know if you will join me or not. I will keep an opening for you until I hear from you. In great haste, my dear sir—Your's,

COCHRANE.

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

Mr. Kean, says a London paper, has written to a friend to say that he will not come to England unless he can come in the capacity of patentee of Drury-lane; and if any person has made an offer to purchase, he declares his readiness to make an advance upon whatever offer has been made.

Mr. Canning, was partaking of grand dinners at Paris; the members of the diplomatic corps, were of the parties made for him.

War has been declared between Persia and Russia. It is said that the Russian Cabinet had been intriguing with the heir apparent; which being found out produced a rupture.

The Lord Chamberlain has refused to grant a licence for the performance of French performers in London.

The correspondence between Capt. Elliot and the Brazilian Admiral is published in the London papers.

A publisher by the name of Tonquet, in Paris, has been sentenced to nine months imprisonment and a fine of 100 francs for publishing the new testament, but excluding the mystery of the incarnation and miracles. It is said the Unitarians would all be so punished in France.

It is said that Russia and Turkey will remove all causes of hostility by agreeing to declare Greece independent, on its paying a yearly tribute to the Porte.

A Russian squadron of 11 sail, was lying at Elsinore, Sept. 11, waiting for orders.

The powder magazine at Ostend, which contained upwards of 60 tons weight of powder, exploded on the 19th ult. and killed upwards of 30 persons. About four millions of bricks were blown over the town, and a great number of houses shattered to pieces.

The population of Prusia is now 12,225,000, having increased in ten years 1,700,000

Six hundred wretched females, taken at Missolonghi, have been sold at the slave market at Alexandria. They averaged about 53 dollars each.

It is said that the Pacha of Egypt has offered a reward of 20,000 dollars to any person who may capture Lord Cochrane, alive.

From Manchester. Blackburn, Leeds, Huddersfield and Macclesfield the notices of the state of trade are rather encouraging. Prices of goods do not much improve, but as wages still keep very low, the manufacturer obtains a remunerating price for his fabricks, and employment is generally diffusing itself.

From the Liverpool Albion of Sept. 25.

The accounts from all parts of the country concur in giving very favorable reports of a reviving trade and extending employment for the people. The weather also has, of late, been so very favorable, as to dispel many serious apprehensions of a failure of the potatoe and turnip crops. A very little more confidence is all that is now wanted to give adequate extension to the industry of the country. Money is every where in great abundance, and the engagements of individuals are small, which betokens a new era.

State of Trade.—We are happy to state that business continues progressively to improve at Liverpool. The accounts from the manufacturing districts in this country as well as in Scotland are favourable, and speak of a gradual amendment in the demand for goods.

Manchester.—It is with great pleasure that we again report a steady amendment in trade.

Macclesfield.—We have but little to add to our last week's report of the state of trade. Slow, and almost imperceptible as the amendment is, it must be acknowledged that it brightens.

The Liverpool papers give some particulars of a severe gale on the English Coast on the 5th and 7th of September. Many vessels were driven on shore, others were sunk and all the passengers and crews were drowned. The several steam vessels which sailed for different ports, all rode out the gale in safety. One of them, the Manchester, made a passage direct from Dublin to Liverpool encountering a tremendous sea, but weathered the gale in safety.

The Emperor of Russia has instituted a Centorship of the Press.

IRELAND.

Navigable Communication between Kilkenny and the Ocean.—We are assured that plans for the formation of a navigable communication between Kilkenny and the Ocean are under the serious consideration of some leading members of the Government. It is said, that the most eligible and least expensive line would be by a cut to the Barrow navigation, somewhere between Newbridge and Graigue. We do not profess to be engineers, and therefore shall not presume to offer any opinion as to the line of the projected canal; but we may be permitted to say, the line suggested would open a direct water communication from Kilkenny with Waterford and Dublin, the chief port of export and import for this city, and be of essential importance to this part of the country.—Dublin Paper.

Foreign Intelligence.

EAST INDIES.

CALCUTTA, March 16.—It appears that Dr. Price was not honoured by a personal communication with the King, such intercourse, probably, being contrary to Burman etiquette; he received his instructions from the Lotoo, or Great Council, through one of the four Woongea, or Chief Merchants of whom if consists. The Minister expressed the Kings earnest desire to enter upon friendly relations of the most permanent nature with the British Government, should peace be concluded. The war, it seems has made a great alteration in this respect in Burmese feeling, and the incivility experienced by Messrs; Symes & Cox, in their public capacities need not again be apprehended. The capital of Ava will, probably, be as accessible to Europeans hereafter as that of any civilised nation. We understand that the Burmese are more reluctant to relinquish Arracan than any of the other province, on account of its being the land of their progenitors.

RUSSIA.

Coronation of the Emperor of Russia.

The ceremony of the coronation of the Emperor of Russia took place on the 22d ult. (Sunday 3d. inst.) at Moscow. That part of the Kremlin where the procession passed was entirely closed, and a scaffolding erected, the seats on which varied from twenty-five to seventy-five rubles. The ancient cathedral, which is very small, could not contain, at the utmost, above five hundred spectators, and of these scarcely one fourth was accommodated with seats. Discharges of artillery announced the completion of the ceremony to the multitudes, who were assembled without, and on their return the Emperor and Empress were greeted with loud and enthusiastic acclamations. The Grand Duke Constantine assisted at the ceremony, and walked in the procession. The city was brilliantly illuminated during three successive evenings. The venerable towers of the Kremlin were one entire blaze of variegated lamps. "The Courier states, that "the impression produced on the Russian nobility, by the magnificent and splendid entertainments given by the Duke of Devonshire, has been that of unbounded admiration."

RUSSIA AND PERSIA.

Constantinople, Aug. 24.

"The news here is certain that a war has broken out between Russia and Persia; and according to the present report. Rusaia seems to have sought this opportunity of employing her military. The court of Persia did every thing it could to defer the blow, but ineffectually. It has produced considerable sensation here, in consequence of the connection between the Grand Seigniore and the courts of Persia; and several persons anticipate that it will lead to a rupture between this country and Russia. This notion has become the more current in consequence of the bustle in the political departments, and certain interviews between the Russian envoy and the Grand Vizer, which are said to have terminated angrily. At present, however all is conjecture, excepting the fact of hostilities having commenced between Russia and Persia.

GREECE.

Letters from Napoli, state that the battle which took place between the Greeks and the plains of Parthenia, was fought on the 18th of August. The Turks lost 3000 men, and all their baggage and ammunition. The Greek loss was 500 men. Animated by this result, the Greeks marched to Tripolitza, where they are besieging Ibrahim, who, it is thought, will be compelled to fall back on its fortresses with the utmost haste.

The news from Smyrna, dated the 6th of Aug. state that they have learnt, by an extraordinary communication, that Samos had voluntarily submitted to the Captain Pacha, to whom six primates and a Bishop were sent as hostages.

Lord Cochrane was at Messina, where he expected the steam-vessels, which had not arrived so soon as he thought they would.

Zante, August 18.—All Greece is now in motion. This month and the next will decide her fate; and we hope that she will come out of the struggle triumphantly. There are no Turkish troops either in Thessaly or Epirus, and we hear of no new enrolment in any quarter.

The Greeks have burnt a Turkish frigate and two corvettes at Samos, and forced the barbarians to give up their attack on the island. Another division of 44 Greek ships had left Hydra to fight them at Smyrna.

It proves that the wound which Canaris received at Samos was very light.

About 100 Foreign Officers have been sent back to Europe by Col. Fabvier.

The following are some particulars of the recent defeat of Reschid Pacha. He sent 1500 men from the frontiers of Livadia and Beotia, most of them Cavalry, for Athens, 700 Rumeliots left that city in the night, fell upon them at 2 leagues distance, and after a great carnage forced them to fly, 3000 more Turks came on three days after; but Gouras, who was not present at the first battle, arrived, and by concerting a plan with the Greeks in Athens, made a simultaneous attack with them, and dispersed them with great loss. Another battle ensued at the Eagle's Rock; and the Turks having lost in all 1000 men, retired to Levadia, 200 families had returned to Athens from Egina.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

RIDEAU CANAL.

The following humorous letter is from an able and respectable engineer, who is engaged in the Rideau Canal. It gives an interesting account of the progress of that great undertaking.—We shall be happy to hear from the gentlemen occasionally.

Montreal Herald.

Falls of Chaudiere. (Ottawa River) Oct. 18.

Since I left Clamp's Coffee-house I have been quite in my element, plunging amongst woods and waters, exploring and engineering. On my wandering hither, I found that the Governor and my Commander Colonel Bye, had laid me out plenty of work to superintend.—What think ye of a bridge of stone over the Grand River, a union bride to connect Upper and Lower Canada; a more imposing situation for such a piece of architecture could no where be found. The arches are to curve between a chain of rocky islands directly over the magnificent and splendid falls of Chaudiere bohold but the scene, look at the mass of waters coming smoking over the shelving precipices, formed with the hardest horizontal strata of laminated limestone, down they tumble, in some places more than one hundred feet, into the caldrons or kettles beneath—where, instead, as you may imagine, of their furiously driving down the channel, they, in some instances, vanish fairly, work their way through the subterranean passages, and come up boiling white, half a mile down the river. It has been told me by one of my countrymen here, that a cow one morning tumbled into the little kettle, chaudiere, and came up again at Fox Point, ten miles down the river; and on my enquiring if she came up alive—he exclaimed, with all the Water Kelpie enthusiasm of his own old Scotland—"that she did sae, she came up rowting, and lived and fu' for years after." But, to lay joking aside, if we manage to build and finish it off as we ought, will surpass almost any other bridge in the world, as a wonderful superstructure. It is to have eight arches five of 60 feet span, two of 70 feet, and one of 200 feet over the big kettle, where sounding line hath not yet found a bottom—at 300 feet deep. One of these bridges of 60 feet span we are just finishing, and putting up the centring for one of the 70 feet arches materials are just for the lifting of the best quality—nature never was so kind—plenty of timber—plenty of stone—good abutments—the truth is, we build no abutments—but spring with the arches directly from the rocks themselves—the bridge will be about 30 feet wide—and as the spring floods of the Ottawa rise 24 feet we are obliged to raise the arches high to keep out of harm's way.

Our master mason is M'Kay, from Montreal, he who built the locks of the Lachine Canal, from the plans of poor Burnett the engineer—Mac is a good practical mason, and scorns to slim any work—this is to my liking—as I cannot suffer sloping and shuffling on any account. We are also busy forming a channel through the rapids, for the sake of the raftsmen—this is done by building two strong dams, and deepening what is called a dry snie can this word snie for a channel be French or Indian— I am inclined to think the latter. By the way the Indians here amuse me—often they come by the work, canoe on their heads, and there they will stand and wonder for a quarter of an hour sometimes together;—not so the Canadian voyageurs; they have no curiosity, but pass the portage without looking to right or left. The Indians are full of reflection, and some of them vastly clever, one in particular, a young man belonging to the Lake of the Two Mountains, who came thither as a guide to two officers of engineers from Lake Simcoe, drew out the whole line of the route travelled, and when shown to the engineers he had conducted, they agreed with him at once that the whole was executed most correctly—More so, I doubt, than many of our scientifics could do—for all I love the Canadians give me plenty of Canadian labourers—and Irishmen, but let them work apart—and wonders may be wrought—as to Jonathan I know not what to think—he comes liere guessing—and after he has pry'd about for two or three days, goes away and calculates we have pretty considerable of a work in hand—but it won't suit him—he wants to fill his pockets, he cares not how—but so long as a Scot is the Guager I'll be hanged if he shall.

We have laid out two villages, and all the lots are taken up—it surprises me to see the anxiety people have to become citizens here, 'tis a morning, sometimes I have almost me such Swarms, that I cry out with the goose in the fable, "that all the world and his wife are here. I love to oblige all, but I find that the more I oblige, I have the less thanks. There are no females here, except an old smoked Canadian, a wife—no other woman is to be seen, and there are 150 young men.

The grand entrance bay for the canal lies between the Falls of Chaudiere, and the Falls of Rideau. The land on both sides of this Bay, which is not more than 400 feet wide, rises high about 250 feet. To one side, Colonel Bye has proposed a Battery to be built, or Fort—and on the other his own house—in this valley the trees and brushwood are clearing out, and chateaus building. At the beach two large wharves are constructing on which to land Government stores. Not less than 500 yards from the shore the grand canal will have 6 locks, as the land rises quickly—which on coming up the river look beautiful as these locks will take in steam-boats of large dimensions—The weather keeps fine, and I do not think we shall have any snow at all this winter—at all events we mean to continue the works, be the weather foul or fair—we are set to it in earnest, and expect to drive the levels through as far as between Perth and Gananoque this fall—so much towards the Rideau Canal—and had we got over the Atlantic sooner, more of course would have been done.

LOWER CANADA.

Government have purchased the Grose Isle below the basin at Chambly, to erect fortifications and barracks on it. Workmen commenced cutting down the trees in the course of last week. It is understood that the old fort will be abandoned on the erection of the new and that the troops will be garrisoned on the island.

LARGE SHIPMENT OF SILKS.—Late on Saturday evening last a number of packages were shipped in the Waterloo steam vessel, from a small boat, just as she was leaving the harbour of Montreal. Two passengers came also on board at the time. Some silks were accidentally discovered by a gentleman, a merchant in Quebec, then a passenger on board, stowed away in a birth, and the goods excited suspicion. A person, formerly well known here, of the name of Charles Rivers, an importer of fashions and, who absconded two or three years ago, was subsequently observed on board of the boat, to whom these goods it was found belonged, and Capt. Franchère taking alarm lest the Waterloo might be seized, insisted upon landing him at Three Rivers. Information was conveyed to Mr. Kerr, the waiter and searcher there, and the goods were all seized. Their value is estimated at £2000. A person of the name of Waldron, an American, we are informed was also concerned in the affair, and was on board of the Waterloo. Rivers, it is said, has returned to the States.

Early Snow.—We have just been visited with one of those sudden changes from warmth to cold, so common in this country at all seasons. On Tuesday night it froze so that ice fully an inch thick was formed, and yesterday, even in situations exposed to the sun, the ice hardly thawed. In the evening the snow commenced falling, and the ground is to-day covered with it to the depth of two or three inches. On Tuesday snow fell in the parishes six or eight leagues to the south of Quebec. Carioles have been used in the vicinity of Quebec. Old Gazette.

We understand the sentence of death pronounced on Morril Magoon at the last Criminal Term for forgery, will not be carried into execution on the appointed day (to-morrow) he having obtained a month's respite. Jean Bouthillier was sentenced to be executed on the same day. We have not heard of his being respited.—Montreal Gazette.

We believe been informed that an attempt was made a few nights ago by some of the prisoners confined in the jail of this City, to make their escape. We hear that a woman was apprehended by the jailor, in the act of conveying tools to the prisoners, for the purpose of enabling them to effect their object. Benjamin Johnson, who was lately apprehended on suspicion of being concerned in the robbery at Pointe Levi, and on whose person a large quantity of Gold and Silver was found, is represented as being the chief leader in this attempt, as upon an examination of ward No. 1, where he is confined, it was found that he had cut through one bar, and had nearly succeeded in destroying another when he was detected.—When searched, there were found upon him two fine saws, and a file, with which it is supposed he cut the bars, as above mentioned.—Canadian Courant.

The U. E. Loyalist.

YORK, U. C. SATURDAY, NOVEMBER, 11, 1826.

English dates to the 25th September are received, but bring us no intelligence of importance. The object in calling Parliament together at an earlier period than usual is fully explained in Mr. Canning's Circular, which will be found in another part of our paper.

Severe Gales of Wind were experienced on the English Coast in the early part of September, and a good deal of damage has been done to the shipping. We have made ample extracts from the papers furnishing accounts from the manufacturing towns, from which it will be seen, that the utmost confidence is entertained of a returning state of prosperity.—In Scotland an evident improvement has taken place—but we are sorry to observe that the state of Ireland continues much the same.—Sickness is stated to prevail in many parts of it, and some apprehension is felt in consequence of the scantiness of the crops.

√ The Steam Boat Niagara, on her way from Prescott last week, unfortunately struck on a reef of Rocks off Poplar Point, about 50 miles from Kingston, where, at the latest dates, she was lying on her beam-ends in about five feet water. The Queenston brought her passengers up on Saturday last, and we are informed that owing to the exertions of Capt. Mosier, the greater part of her cargo has been forwarded to York. Yesterday a person who came from the Niagara stated that she had received no damage from the late gales of wind, and as she has weathered these, we sincerely hope that she may be soon got off, without much difficulty or injury.

Canada Land Company.—From an extract taken from the Albion, it will be seen that an Agent of the Company has arrived at New York, and by later dates from that place, we are informed that the Secretary Mr. Galt has also arrived. The operations of the Company we should suppose will commence in the Spring —as yet no official communication has been made to the public, with respect to the terms on which they intend to offer their Lands for sale. As several persons have made inquiry at our office on the subject, we take the opportunity of mentioning that the Crown Reserves leased to individuals by Government, are not, believe, included in the sale to the Company.

Rideau Canal.—From the accounts contained in the Lower Canada Papers, it is satisfactory to learn that this great National work is actually commenced, and that the most active operations will be carried on during the next season, towards its completion. It is impossible, at this moment, to anticipate the many benefits that will result to Upper Canada, from this undertaking. In connection with the Welland Canal, it will open a direct water communication, from one extremity of the Country to the other, and if the La Chine Canal should undergo the necessary alteration to make it correspond with the rest of the [illegible], the day is perhaps not very distant, when we may expect to see Vessels of large burden, passing and repassing, between Quebec and Drummond Island.

The evidence of Mr. Solicitor General Boulton before a committee of the House of Commons on the subject of Canals, which we inserted in our last number, corresponds with the opinion expressed in several of the American papers, that the Canada line of Canals, when completed, will afford superior advantages to the people of the Western Country, for the conveyance of Goods and Produce, to and from Market, and that the superiority of transportation in Canada, will give a preference to our route, over the Erie Canal.

The Welland Canal, having for its object the Commerce of the Western Country into Lake Ontario, from whence the St. Lawrence forms an outlet, may, in a great measure, be considered as an independent work, but will, notwithstanding, have its general character much enhanced, we should think, in consequence of the cutting of the Rideau Canal, inasmuch as an uninterrupted Navigation will be presented throughout, for Vessels of burden, which will save the loss of time, expense, and inconvenience, which would otherwise be felt, from the necessity of removing Goods, from one kind of conveyance to another, the great objection which at present exists, to the mode of transportation on the St. Lawrence.

We shall have much pleasure in noticing the progress of this great work, which will afford employment to hundreds of our labourers, and open a fine portion of country for Settlement. At present, we content ourselves with congratulating the country, on the many improvements which the undertaking will undoubtedly introduce among us, and reminding those who at one time so unjustly endeavoured to create a suspicion, that Government in making an offer, which would have enabled us to undertake it, on our own account, was actuated by a desire to have the whole Province mortgaged, for the purpose of cutting, what they were pleased to term "a Military Canal," that their unworthy insinuations have met with the best refutation, from the fact, that the Government, has undertaken it, at its own expense, on a most magnificent scale, without calling upon the country to render any assistance, in the prosecution of a work, which must be of incalculable advantage to the whole Province.

We are not a little surprised that some of the public journals, whose professions for the welfare of the Country are at times lavish enough, should observe so profound a silence on the subject of such improvements.

To Correspondents.—If JUVENIS will favor us with a personal interview, we will explain to him the reason why his Communication has not appeared.

THE CANADA LAND COMPANY.

We learn from London, that the Canada Company having received their charter, are now about to commence their operations. An agent has arrived in the Silas Richards, and Mr. Galt, the secretary and one of the commissioners for valuing the lands, is expected in the course of a week or two in this city, on his way to Canada, to organise the undertaking there.

It is understood that they will commence early in the spring to cut a road in the direction of their territory in the London district, and that a general survey of the whole of their possessions is about being made, with a view to immediate operations.—N. Y. Albion.

The sites of two Forts have been laid out on the lands lately purchased by Government at the Short Hills. One is called Wellington Heights, the other, Fort St. George.—Gleaner
