Kingston, May 19, 1828. 1-tf.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the Inhabitants of the County of Prince Edward, intend petitioning the Legislature at its next Session, for the erection of said Country into a separate District.

Hallowell, May 15, 1828. 1-tf.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident on any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 13th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot. Bursar, King's College.

Extract from the Order of Council, bearing date 13th April, 1819, above referred to:—

"That upon the renewal of any Lease for the whole or part of the term of twenty-one years, a Rent of One Pound Fifteen Shillings be reserved as Rent for the first seven years of the renewed term in addition to the increased Rent, payable for the last period of Original Lease, adding One Pound Fifteen Shillings at the end of each period of seven years."

23rd May, 1828. 1-tf.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 15th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot.

JOSEPH WELLS, Bursar, King's College.

Extract from the Order of Council, bearing date 15th April, 1819, above referred to:—

IN consequence of a Despatch which has been received by His EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, from His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, the Inspector General has, by direction of the Government, instructed the several Collectors of the Customs, that all Goods which may be lawfully imported into this Province, by Land or Inland Navigation, may be admitted to Entry at the several Ports of Entry, upon security being given, to the satisfaction of the Collectors of the Customs, for the due delivery thereof, at some free Warehousing Port, appointed, or to be appointed in either of the Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada.

NOTICE.—An application will be made at the next Session of the Legislature for an alteration in the Police Laws of the Town of Kingston.

Kingston, May 19, 1828. 1-tf.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the Inhabitants of the County of Prince Edward, intend petitioning the Legislature at its next Session, for the erection of said Country into a separate District.

Hallowell, May 15, 1828. 1-tf.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 13th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves-bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot. Extract from the Order of Council, bearing date 13th April, 1819, above referred to:—

"That upon the renewal of any Lease for the whole or part of the term of twenty-one years, a Rent of One Pound Fifteen Shillings be reserved as Rent for the first seven years of the renewed term in addition to the increased Rent, payable for the last period of Original Lease, adding One Pound Fifteen Shillings at the end of each period of seven years."

NOTICE.—Application will be made at the next Session of the Legislature, for a Grant of money to make a waggon road from Pier Point on the North side of Rice Lake through the Township of Otanabee to Peterborough Bridge.

23rd May, 1828. 1-tf.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 13th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot. Bursar, King's College.

23rd May, 1828. 1-tf.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 13th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot. JOSEPH WELLS.

Bursar, King's College.

York, 1st February, 1828. 31*tf.*

Extract from the Order of Council, bearing date 13th April, 1819, above referred to:—

"That upon the renewal of any Lease for the whole or part of the term of twenty-one years, a Rent of One Pound Fifteen Shillings be reserved as Rent for the first seven years of the renewed term in addition to the increased Rent, payable for the last period of Original Lease, adding One Pound Fifteen Shillings at the end of each period of seven years."

IN consequence of a Despatch which has been received by HIS EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, from His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, the Inspector General has, by direction of the Government, instructed the several Collectors of the Customs, that all Goods which may be lawfully imported into this Province, by Land or Inland Navigation, may be admitted to Entry at the several Ports of Entry, upon security being given, to the satisfaction of the Collectors of the Customs, for the due delivery thereof, at some free Warehousing Port, appointed, or to be appointed in either of the Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada.

NOTICE is hereby given, by ORDER of His EXCELLENCY the LT. GOVERNOR, in COUNCIL, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a Regular Council day.

NOTICE.—The Council of King's College, having had the Crown Reserves, within the Home District, properly inspected and reported upon, so that they are enabled to form a judgment of their value from actual examination, will now receive offers from the present occupants of the respective lots, for the purchase of them in fee simple.

The general terms of payment proposed are one tenth to be paid down, and the remainder in nine equal annual instalments, with interest—any proposal for other terms of payment, cannot be acceded to unless sanctioned by the Council.

Such offers only will be accepted as equal or exceed twenty shillings Currency per Acre, and these may be addressed, Post-Paid, to the Hon. Col. Wells, Bursar of Kings College at York.

It is to be clearly understood, that the College Council only afford an option to buy, which the occupants of improved Lots may avail themselves of or continue to hold as Lessees as they may prefer.

It is expected that offers will be made before the first day of August next.—As soon as the reports of the other Districts shall be completed, a similar notice will be given with respect to them.

NOTICE.—An application will be made at the next Session of the Legislature for an alteration in the Police Laws of the Town of Kingston.

Kingston, May 19, 1828. 1-tf.

IN consequence of a Despatch which has been received by HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, from His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, the Inspector General has, by direction of the Government, instructed the several Collectors of the Customs, that all Goods which may be lawfully imported into this Province, by Land or Inland Navigation, may be admitted to Entry at the several Ports of Entry, upon security being given, to the satisfaction of the Collectors of the Customs, for the due delivery thereof, at some free Warehousing Port, appointed, or to be appointed in either of the Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 13th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot.

JOSEPH WELLS,
Bursar, King's College.

York, 1st February, 1828. 3*tf.*

Extract from the Order of Council, bearing date 13th April, 1819, above referred to:—

"That upon the renewal of any Lease for the whole or part of the term of twenty-one years, a Rent of One Pound Fifteen Shillings be reserved as Rent for the first seven years of the renewed term in addition to the increased Rent, payable for the last period of Original Lease, adding One Pound Fifteen Shillings at the end of each period of seven years."

NOTICE.—The Council of King's College, having had the Crown Reserves, within the Home District, properly inspected and reported upon, so that they are enabled to form a judgment of their value from actual examination, will now receive offers from the present occupants of the respective lots, for the purchase of them in fee simple.

The general terms of payment proposed are one tenth to be paid down, and the remainder in nine equal annual instalments, with interest—any proposal for other terms of payment, cannot be acceded to unless sanctioned by the Council.

Such offers only will be accepted as equal or exceed twenty shillings Currency per Acre, and these may be addressed, Post-Paid, to the Hon. Col. Wells, Bursar of Kings College at York.

It is to be clearly understood, that the College Council only afford an option to buy, which the occupants of improved Lots may avail themselves of or continue to hold as Lessees as they may prefer.

It is expected that offers will be made before the first day of August next.—As soon as the reports of the other Districts shall be completed, a similar notice will be given with respect to them.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 13th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot.

JOSEPH WELLS,
Bursar, King's College.

York, 1st February, 1828. 37tf.

Extract from the Order of Council, bearing date 13th April, 1819, above referred to:—

"That upon the renewal of any Lease for the whole or part of the term of twenty-one years, a Rent of One Pound Fifteen Shillings be reserved as Rent for the first seven years of the renewed term in addition to the increased Rent, payable for the last period of Original Lease, adding One Pound Fifteen Shillings at the end of each period of seven years."

NOTICE.—The Council of King's College, having had the Crown Reserves, within the Home District, properly inspected and reported upon, so that they are enabled to form a judgment of their value from actual examination, will now receive offers from the present occupants of the respective lots, for the purchase of them in fee simple.

The general terms of payment proposed are one tenth to be paid down, and the remainder in nine equal annual instalments, with interest—any proposal for other terms of payment, cannot be acceded to unless sanctioned by the Council.

Such offers only will be accepted as equal or exceed twenty shillings Currency per Acre, and these may be addressed, Post-Paid, to the Hon. Col. Wells, Bursar of Kings College at York.

It is to be clearly understood, that the College Council only afford an option to buy, which the occupants of improved Lots may avail themselves of or continue to hold as Lessees as they may prefer.

It is expected that offers will be made before the first day of August next.—As soon as the reports of the other Districts shall be completed, a similar notice will be given with respect to them.

Sherif's Office,
Niagara, 2 July, 1828.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended; and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 15th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot. JOSEPH WELLS,
Bursar, King's College.

York, 1st February, 1828. 37tf.

Extract from the Order of Council, bearing date 19th April, 1819, above referred to:—

"That upon the renewal of any Lease for the whole or part of the term of twenty-one years, a Rent of One Pound Fifteen Shillings be reserved as Rent for the first seven years of the renewed term in addition to the increased Rent, payable for the last period of Original Lease, adding One Pound Fifteen Shillings at the end of each period of seven years."

NOTICE.—The Council of King's College, having had the Crown Reserves, within the Home District, properly inspected and reported upon, so that they are enabled to form a judgment of their value from actual examination, will now receive offers from the present occupants of the respective lots, for the purchase of them in fee simple.

The general terms of payment proposed are one tenth to be paid down, and the remainder in nine equal annual instalments, with interest—any proposal for other terms of payment, cannot be acceded to unless sanctioned by the Council.

Such offers only will be accepted as equal or exceed twenty shillings Currency per Acre, and these may be addressed, Post-Paid, to the Hon. Col. Wells, Bursar of Kings College at York.

It is to be clearly understood, that the College Council only afford an option to buy, which the occupants of improved Lots may avail themselves of or continue to hold as Lessees as they may prefer.

It is expected that offers will be made before the first day of August next.—As soon as the reports of the other Districts shall be completed, a similar notice will be given with respect to them.

23rd May, 1828. 1-tf.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years on terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 18th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot. JOSEPH WELLS,
Bursar, King's College.

York, 1st February, 1828. 37*tf.*

EXTRACT from the Order of Council, bearing date 19th April, 1819, above referred to:—

"That upon the renewal of any Lease for the whole or part of the term of twenty-one years, a Rent of One Pound Fifteen Shillings be reserved as Rent for the first seven years of the renewed term in addition to the increased Rent, payable for the last period of Original Lease, adding One Pound Fifteen Shillings at the end of each period of seven years."

NOTICE.—The Council of King's College, having had the Crown Reserves, within the Home District, properly inspected and reported upon, so that they are enabled to form a judgment of their value from actual examination, will now receive offers from the present occupants of the respective lots, for the purchase of them in fee simple.

The general terms of payment proposed are one tenth to be paid down, and the remainder in nine equal annual instalments, with interest—any proposal for other terms of payment, cannot be acceded to unless sanctioned by the Council.

Such offers only will be accepted as equal or exceed twenty shillings Currency per Acre, and these may be addressed, Post-Paid, to the Hon. Col. Wells, Bursar of Kings College at York.

It is to be clearly understood, that the College Council only afford an option to buy, which the occupants of improved Lots may avail themselves of or continue to hold as Lessees as they may prefer.

It is expected that offers will be made before the first day of August next.—As soon as the reports of the other Districts shall be completed, a similar notice will be given with respect to them.

An Act to secure to and confer upon certain Inhabitants of this Province, the Civil and Political Rights of Natural Born British Subjects.

[Assented to by HIS MAJESTY in Council, 7th May, 1828.]

WHEREAS it is expedient to remove by law doubts that may have arisen as to the Civil Rights and Titles to Real Estate of some of the persons hereinafter mentioned, and to provide by some general law for the Naturalization of such persons not being by law entitled to be regarded as Natural Born Subjects of His Majesty, as are actually domiciled in this Province.

Be it therefore enacted, by the King's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of, and under the authority of, An Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, entitled "An Act to repeal certain parts of An Act passed in the fourteenth year of His Majesty's Reign, entitled, 'An Act for making more effectual provision for the Government of the Province of Quebec, in North America,' and to make further provision for the Government of the said Province; and by the authority of the same. That all persons who have at any time received Grants of Land in this Province from the Crown, and all persons who have held any Public Office in the Province under the great seal or Privy seal of the Province, or under the sign manual of the Governor, Lieut. II. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all persons actually domiciled in this Province on the first day of March, one thousand, eight hundred and twenty-eight, not being of either of the descriptions of persons before mentioned, who shall have resided, or shall continue to reside therein, or in some other part of His Majesty's Dominions, until they shall have been Resident Inhabitants of His Majesty's Dominions for the space of Seven Years continually, without having been during that time Stated Residents in any Foreign Country, shall be deemed and adjudged, and taken to be, and so far as respects their capacity at any time heretofore, to take, hold, possess, enjoy, claim, recover, convey, devise, impart or transmit, any Real Estate in this Province, or any right, title, privilege, or appurtenances thereto, or any interest therein, to have been Natural Born Subjects of His Majesty to all intents, constructions and purposes whatsoever, as if they, and every of them, had been Born within this Province: Provided nevertheless, that no one of the persons described in this Clause (except females) who at the passing of this Act has been resident in His Majesty's Dominions Seven Years continually as aforesaid, shall be entitled to the benefits of this Act, unless within three years from and after the passing of this Act, if at the said passing of the Act, he shall be of the age of Sixteen years or upwards, (or if he shall not at the said passing of the Act be of the said age, then within three years after he shall attain the said age) he shall take and subcribe the Oath in the Schedule to this Act annexed, marked (A.) or being of those persons who are allowed by the laws of this Province to Affirm in Civil cases, shall make Affirmation to the same effect, before the Register or Deputy Register of some County in this Province, and that no one of the persons described in this Clause, who has not been Resident as aforesaid Seven years continually in His Majesty's Dominions, shall be entitled to the benefits of this Act, unless within Three years after he shall have completed a stated Residence of Seven years continually, as aforesaid, in His Majesty's Dominions, (if at the completion of such Residence he shall be of the age of Sixteen years or upwards, or if at that time not of that age, then within Three years after he shall have attained that age) he shall take and subscribe such Oath, or make such Affirmation.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any person who shall wilfully Swear Falsely, or make false Affirmation in making said Oath or Affirmation before the Register, or his Deputy, under the Provisions of this Act, shall be deemed guilty of Wilful and corrupt Perjury, and that every such person shall on conviction thereof, Forfeit all the privileges and advantages which he would otherwise by such Oath or Affirmation have been entitled to under this Act, but that the rights of others in respect to Estates derived from or held under such persons shall not be thereby prejudiced.

VII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That a Copy or Extract from any Book of Registry, made under the authority of this Act, of the whole entry made in such Register, with respect to any person whose name is recorded therein, and certified by the Register or by the Secretary of the Province for the time being, or their respective Deputy or Deputies, shall be deemed and taken to be sufficient evidence of the Naturalization of the person therein described.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That whenever any Register shall transmit any Book of Registry to the Secretary of the Province, as hereinbefore provided, he and his Deputy if he shall have a Deputy, shall, at the end of such Book of Registry, verify the same on Oath, to be taken before some one of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace, in which the said Register and his Deputy shall severally depose that, to the best of his or their knowledge and belief, such Book of Registry forms a true and correct record of the statements made to him or them by the several persons therein described, and which they severally verified by Oath or Affirmation taken before him or them.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That after the first day of January, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty, no further Oaths shall be administered or proceedings had for the purpose of being Naturalized under this Act.

X. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person, to whom it shall belong to attest the truth of any such Record, shall neglect or omit to attest the same in manner aforesaid, he shall forfeit and pay the sum of Two Hundred Pounds, to be recovered by information in His Majesty's Court of King's Bench; but such omission shall not prejudice the right of any person who may have taken the Oath or made the affirmation required by this Act, or preclude him from receiving a Certificate or Extract, according to the Provisions thereof.

XI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That a general Alphabetical List shall be made and kept by the Secretary of this Province, and by the several Registers, of the Surnames and Christian names of all persons whose names and descriptions are recorded in the several Books of Registry, referring to their place in such Books respectively, and that such List and Books shall be open at all times to inspection during the hours of business in such Office, and that any person desirous of searching in the said List or Books shall pay to the Officer keeping the same One Shilling for each person whose name he shall desire to search for.

XIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person, not entitled to be regarded as a natural born subject of His Majesty, who, at the time of the passing of this Act, was domiciled in this Province, shall die before the period limited by this Act for his taking the Oath according to the provisions thereof, such person shall be nevertheless deemed to have been a natural born subject of His Majesty, so far as regards the taking, holding, imparting and transferring of any real Estate by Grant, Marriage, Dower, Devise, or Inheritance.

XIV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That nothing in this Act contained shall be taken to repeal or in any manner alter or affect any Statute passed by the Legislature of this Province, respecting the qualification of voters for Members to serve in the Assembly of this Province, or the eligibility of Members to serve in the said Assembly, or in any manner to affect or interfere with a certain Act of the Legislature of this Province, passed in the fifty-fourth year of his late Majesty's reign, entitled, "An Act to declare certain persons therein described Aliens, and to vest their Estates in His Majesty," or with any proceedings had thereupon, or to repeal any Laws now in force in this Province for the Naturalization of Foreigners.

XV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the passing of this Act, no person shall be disturbed in the possession, or shall be precluded from the recovery ofany Lands Tenements, or Hereditaments, in this Province, on the ground of his or her being or having been an Alien, or on the ground of any person from or through whom he or she may claim being or having been an Alien, provided the person against whom such disability shall be so objected, being a female, was resident in this Province on the twenty-sixth day of May, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-six, or being a male, was resident in this Province on the said twenty-sixth day of May, and was then actually under the age of Sixteen years.

XVI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases where any person claiming to hold as next entitled on account of any person nearer in the line of descent having been an Alien, shall, in virtue of such claim, have taken actual possession of any Real Estate before the said twenty-sixth day of May, and have made improvements thereon, and also, in all cases where any person claiming to hold as next entitled on account of the person nearer in the line of descent having been an Alien, shall have actually sold or departed with, or shall have actually contracted to sell or depart with his real Estate before the said twenty-sixth day of May, no person being at that time in adverse possession of the same, the provisions of this Act shall not extend to render invalid any right or title to such Estate, but such right or title shall be taken and adjudged to be as if this Act had not passed.

A.

VIII. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That whenever any Register shall transmit any Book of Registry to the Secretary of the Province, as hereinbefore provided, he and his Deputy if he shall have a Deputy, shall, at the end of such Book of Registry, verify the same on Oath, to be taken before some one of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace, in which the said Register and his Deputy shall severally depose that, to the best of his or their knowledge and belief, such Book of Registry forms a true and correct record of the statements made to him or them by the several persons therein described, and which they severally verified by Oath or Affirmation taken before him or them.

IX. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That after the first day of January, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and fifty, no further Oaths shall be administered or proceedings had for the purpose of being Naturalized under this Act.

X. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any person, to whom it shall belong to attest the truth of any such Record, shall neglect or omit to attest the same in manner aforesaid, he shall forfeit and pay the sum of Two Hundred Pounds, to be recovered by information in His Majesty's Court of King's Bench; but such omission shall not prejudice the right of any person who may have taken the Oath or made the affirmation required by this Act, or preclude him from receiving a Certificate or Extract, according to the Provisions thereof.

XI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That a general Alphabetical List shall be made and kept by the Secretary of this Province, and by the several Registers, of the Surnames and Christian names of all persons whose names and descriptions are recorded in the several Books of Registry, referring to their place in such Books respectively, and that such List and Books shall be open at all times to inspection during the hours of business in such Office, and that any person desirous of searching in the said List or Books shall pay to the Officer keeping the same One Shilling for each person whose name he shall desire to search for.

23rd May, 1828. 1-tf.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 18th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot. JOSEPH WELLS,
Bursar, King's College.

York, 1st February, 1828. 57tf.

Extract from the Order of Council, bearing date 15th April, 1819, above referred to:—

"That upon the renewal of any Lease for the whole or part of the term of twenty-one years, a Rent of One Pound Fifteen Shillings be reserved as Rent for the first seven years of the renewed term in addition to the increased Rent, payable for the last period of Original Lease, adding One Pound Fifteen Shillings at the end of each period of seven years."

HIS MAJESTY'S RECEIVER GENERAL, gives notice, that the half yearly Militia Pensions, in advance to 31st December next, will be paid at his Office, on application. The necessary Affidavits and Powers of Attorney will be required in Duplicate.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 15th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot. JOSEPH WELLS,
Bursar. King's College.

York, 1st February, 1828. 37*tf.*

Extract from the Order of Council, bearing date 18th April, 1819, above referred to:—

"That upon the renewal of any Lease for the whole or part of the term of twenty-one years, a Rent of One Pound Fifteen Shillings be reserved as Rent for the first seven years of the renewed term in addition to the increased Rent, payable for the last period of Original Lease, adding One Pound Fifteen Shillings at the end of each period of seven years."

NOW THEREFORE KNOW YE, that no orders will from henceforth be made by our Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or Person administering the Government of our said Province for Granting or Leasing of any of our Lands in the said Province of Upper Canada except with respect to such privileged persons as are entitled to receive from us free Grants of Lands in the said Pro-

WHEREAS a Barn in the Township of Hamilton, in the District of Newcastle, the property of Mr. B. M'Keyes hath offered a reward of Twenty-five Pounds, for the discovery of the offender, and hath besought His Majesty's Government to aid his endeavors, by offering a pardon to any person implicated in the perpetration of the said crime, other than the principal felon.

NOW KNOW YE, that a free pardon will be granted to any person not being the actual incendiary or his immediate procurer who will give such information as may lead to the conviction of the person or persons guilty of this most heinous offence. Given under my hand and seal of office, at York, this Twenty-first day of September, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-seven, and in the Eighth year of His Majesty's Reign.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 18th April, 1818, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But if is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot. IN consequence of a Despatch which has been received by His EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, from His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, the Inspector General has, by direction of the Government, instructed the several Collectors of the Customs, that all Goods which may be lawfully imported into this Province, by Land or Inland Navigation, may be admitted to Entry at the several Ports of Entry, upon security being given, to the satisfaction of the Collectors of the Customs, for the due delivery thereof, at some free Warehousing Port, appointed, or to be appointed in either of the Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 15th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot. Extract from the Order of Council, bearing date 18th April, 1819, above referred to:—

"That upon the renewal of any Lease for the whole or part of the term of twenty-one years, a Rent of One Pound Fifteen Shillings be reserved as Rent for the first seven years of the renewed term in addition to the increased Rent, payable for the last period of Original Lease, adding One Pound Fifteen Shillings at the end of each period of seven years."

By His Excellency's Command.

J. B. ROBINSON, Attorney General.
D. CAMERON, Secretary.

In consequence of a Despatch which has been received by His Excellency the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, from His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, the Inspector General has, by direction of the Government, instructed the several Collectors of the Customs, that all Goods which may be lawfully imported into this Province, by Land or Inland Navigation, may be admitted to Entry at the several Ports of Entry, upon security being given, to the satisfaction of the Collectors of the Customs, for the due delivery thereof, at some free Warehousing Port, appointed, or to be appointed in either of the Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada.

His MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 13th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot.

JOSEPH WELLS,
Bursar, King's College.

York, 1st February, 1828. 87tf.

Extract from the Order of Council, bearing date 13th April, 1819, above referred to—

"That upon the renewal of any Lease for the whole or part of the term of twenty-one years, a Rent of One Pound Fifteen Shillings be reserved as Rent for the first seven years of the renewed term in addition to the increased Rent, payable for the last period of Original Lease, adding One Pound Fifteen Shillings at the end of each period of seven years."

THE inhabitants of the London District intends petitioning the Legislature at the next Session of Parliament for an Act to be passed to remove the District School from Vittoria to the town of London. 17

THE inhabitants of the County of Middlesex intends petitioning the Legislature at the next Session of Parliament for an Act to be passed for the improvement of the Dundas Street, from Oxford to the Town of London. 17

IN consequence of a Despatch which has been received by His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, from His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, the Inspector General has, by direction of the Government, instructed the several Collectors of the Customs, that all Goods which may be lawfully imported into this Province, by Land or Inland Navigation, may be admitted to Entry at the several Ports of Entry, upon security being given, to the satisfaction of the Collectors of the Customs, for the due delivery thereof, at some free Warehousing Port, appointed, or to be appointed in either of the Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 18th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot. JOSEPH WELLS,
Bursar, King's College.

York, 1st February, 1828. 37if.

Extract from the Order of Council, bearing date 18th April, 1819, above referred to:—

"That upon the renewal of any Lease for the whole or part of the term of twenty-one years, a Rent of One Pound Fifteen Shillings be reserved as Rent for the first seven years of the renewed term in addition to the increased Rent, payable for the last period of Original Lease, adding One Pound Fifteen Shillings at the end of each period of seven years."

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 13th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot.

JOSEPH WELLS,
Bursar, King's College.

York, 1st February, 1828. 37tf.

Extract from the Order of Council, bearing date 13th April, 1819, above referred to:—

"That upon the renewal of any Lease for the whole or part of the term of twenty-one years, a Rent of One Pound Fifteen Shillings be reserved as Rent for the first seven years of the renewed term in addition to the increased Rent, payable for the last period of Original Lease, adding One Pound Fifteen Shillings at the end of each period of seven years."

NOTICE is hereby given, that the Inhabitants of the County of Norfolk will Petition the Legislature at the next Session of the Provincial Parliament, for the Grant of a sum of Money to construct a Canal, to admit the passage of Vessels and Steam Boats through the Isthmus of Long Point, in Lake Erie, near the Main Land—and also for the erection of a Pier and Light House thereat—in order to open and improve the Navigation along the British Coast; and to afford to Ships and Vessels navigating the said Lake, ready access to safe and commodious Harbours in the River and Bay of Long Point.

September 15*th,* 1828. 19

IN consequence of a Despatch which has been received by His EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, from His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, the Inspector General has, by direction of the Government, instructed the several Collectors of the Customs, that all Goods which may be lawfully imported into this Province, by Land or Inland Navigation, may be admitted to Entry at the several Ports of Entry, upon security being given, to the satisfaction of the Collectors of the Customs, for the due delivery thereof, at some free Warehousing Port, appointed, or to be appointed in either of the Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 13th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the Inhabitants of the County of Norfolk will Petition the Legislature at the next Session of the Provincial Parliament, for the Grant of a sum of Money to construct a Canal, to admit the passage of Vessels and Steam Boats through the Isthmus of Long Point, in Lake Erie, near the Main Land—and also for the erection of a Pier and Light House thereat—in order to open and improve the Navigation along the British Coast; and to afford to Ships and Vessels navigating the said Lake, ready access to safe and commodious Harbours in the River and Bay of Long Point.

September 15*th,* 1828. 19

IN consequence of a Despatch which has been received by His EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, from His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, the Inspector General has, by direction of the Government, instructed the several Collectors of the Customs, that all Goods which may be lawfully imported into this Province, by Land or Inland Navigation, may be admitted to Entry at the several Ports of Entry, upon security being given, to the satisfaction of the Collectors of the Customs, for the due delivery thereof, at some free Warehousing Port, appointed, or to be appointed in either of the Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of Lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 13th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot.

WHEREAS we have nominated, constituted and appointed PETER ROBINSON, Esq. to be our Commissioner for the sale and management of Crown Lands in the Province of Upper Canada, giving and granting unto the said Peter Robinson, full Power and Authority to do, perform, and execute all such matters and things as may be necessary in due execution of the said Office, and requiring and commanding him to examine and Report upon the state and condition of our Reserves and waste Lands in our said Province of Upper Canada, which we have thought fit to place under his care and Superintendance, and to follow such orders and instructions as he may receive from the Commissioners of our Treasury or our High Treasurer for the time being, or from any one of our Principal Secretary's of State, or the Governor or Officer administering the Government of the said Province of Upper Canada.

NOW THEREFORE KNOW YE, that all persons desirous of purchasing any of the Lots in our said Province called Clergy Reserves for the purpose of actual Settlement and actual Cultivation, may apply to our said Commissioner, who has full authority to enter into Contracts or sale, with such limitations and according to such instructions as he shall from time to time receive from us or from our Governor, Lieutenant Governor or Person administering the Government of our said Province, with the advice of our Executive Council for the affairs thereof.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these Our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of Our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS, Our trusty and well beloved, SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. P. M.

By His Excellency's Command.
J. B. ROBINSON, Attorney General.
D. CAMERON, Secretary.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 13th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot.

JOSEPH WELLS,
Bursar, King's College.

£100 REWARD.

UPPER CANADA.

By His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, K. C. B, Lieutenant Governor of our Province aforesaid, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS, a young Man named Isaac James, Son of Ezekiel James, of the Township of Uxbridge, in the Home District, of this Province, was found dead behind a log heap near the road side, in the Township of Whitchurch, on the thirtieth day of September, instant, and from several gun-shot, and other wounds inflicted upon his person, no doubt can exist of his having been barbarously murdered; and from his having left home, six days previously, in company with JOHN CHRISTIE, whom he was conveying, with his Wife and Family to York in a Waggon, and the said JOHN CHRISTIE, with his Family having absconded with the Waggon and Horses, there is every reason to believe that the said JOHN CHRISTIE, hath committed the attrocious act.

NOW KNOW YE, that the above Reward will be paid to any person who shall apprehend the said JOHN CHRISTIE, and cause him to be brought before any Justice of the Peace of this Province, to be dealt with according to Law.

Given under my Hand and Seal of Office, at York, this Thirtieth day of September, in the Year of our Lord One Thousand, Eight Hundred and Twenty-eight, and in the Ninth year of His Majesty's Reign.

B.—JOHN CHRISTIE, some times calling himself WELMAN, is thus described:—About 5 feet 6 inches high, tolerably stout, dark eyes and hair, but of a fair complexion, full face, apparently from 25 to 30 years of age, and a native of Ireland.—When he left home, he had on a dark coloured dress. His Wife is a middle sized woman, with black hair, blue eyes, and thin face, much marked with the small pox—his eldest child, a son, about three years old—the younger, a daughter, about a year old, both red hair, fair skin, and full freckled faces. The Waggon which was stolen with two Mares, was a good one, with a white linen cover—one of the Mares about 16 hands high, dapple grey, with dark legs and face;—the other an iron grey, about 15 hands high; each about 6 or 7 years old.

VOL. 8. NO. 22.

Upper Canada Gazette.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 23, 1828.

BY AUTHORITY.

To His Excellency SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

We the undersigned, Magistrates, Clergy, and other Inhabitants of the District of Newcastle, in congratulating your Excellency on your recent elevation to the Government of our Sister Province of Nova Scotia, are constrained to acknowledge that our sentiments of unfeigned satisfaction at this mark of His Majesty's favor towards your Excellency, are checked by feelings of deep regret, that the connection which has so long subsisted between us is now about to be broken.

We have witnessed much in your Excellency's administration to assure us that the welfare of this fair portion of His Majesty's dominions has engrossed your earnest care and active exertions, while the test of experience and time declares how successfully they have been applied. Nor are we without causes of equal regret, in the prospect of your departure from this Province, in the loss of your Excellency's valuable example afforded us in your private walk as a Christian and a Gentleman.

Although the tongue of calumny (for the most worthy are not exempt from its maledictions) has attached accusations to the public career of your Excellency, and although the rashness of political zealots may have deluded the unwary into an unjust belief of their truth, we beg leave to proffer to your Excellency the acknowledgement of our conviction, that your desire and labors have been to merit the approbation of your Sovereign and to advance the interests of this Province.

Our beloved Monarch to whom we owe and feel the affection of grateful subjects has evinced the strongest mark of confidence in your Excellency, by appointing you to a higher trust and a more exalted charge. While this testimony of His Majesty's approbation declares that your Excellency's past services in the field of glory are not forgotten: it manifests also, that your Civil services are as well appreciated.

That this flourishing portion of His Majesty's dominions, may escape the evils which the base intrigues of a turbulent faction would bring upon it, we believe, to be your Excellency's earnest wish and prayer. And we beg leave to assure your Excellency, that we will struggle against the dissemination of their delusive doctrines, by unaltered affection for our Constitution and determined loyalty to our King.

We entreat the Almighty's blessing on your Excellency and your amiable family, and pray that you may experience in every land the hearty affection and sincere good wishes which the loyal and the worthy amongst the subjects of His Majesty in Upper Canada so generally and so justly entertain.

JOHN CLARK,

Hamilton, 15th Oct. 1828.

Answer to an Address of the Inhabitants of the Newcastle District, presented to Lieut. Governor SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, on the occasion of His leaving the Province.

GENTLEMEN,

The Address from the Magistrates, Clergy, and other Inhabitants of the District of Newcastle is received by me with very much pleasure; and I am much indebted to you, Gentlemen, for your kindness in attending to present it in person.

I beg you will in return convey my assurances that the duties of any situation that may be committed to me by my Sovereign, will never prevent my feeling the most anxious solicitude for the happiness and prosperity of Upper Canada. After a long administration of this Government, it is truly gratifying to me to receive from so large and respectable a body of the people a manifestation of friendly feeling so warmly and kindly expressed.

When I assumed the Government of this Province, I could not but consider it my obvious duty to pursue that course which appeared to me best calculated to promote your true interest, and to maintain against every encroachment the excellent Constitution which it is your happiness to enjoy.

I was never so unmindful of the experience afforded under all forms of Government, and in all Countries, as to imagine that I could secure the applause of those persons whose designs were inconsistent with those great objects—but I contented myself with the assurance that the approbation of my Sovereign, the satisfaction of my own conscience, and the gratifying acknowledgements of the virtuous and intelligent, must attend an adherence to the right course. I have therefore persevered, as I was bound to do, through evil report and good report, and I take my leave of you and of this Province, with the reflection that I have sacrificed no principle to the vain hope of appeasing the clamor of the unreasonable—that I have laboured much and anxiously to procure peace and security for those who have been artfully misled, to defame and suspect the measures of my Government. It would be a source of deep and painful regret, if at any time your happiness as a people should be found to be diminished by a departure from the principles of the British Constitution, that such a departure could be traced to any act done or suffered by me while I had the honor of representing my Sovereign amongst you.—To be unable to cherish this reflection, would in my mind, be poorly compensated, by having purchased the silence of evil tongues from whose attacks no man in a public station can procure an exemption by honorable means.

For the people of this Colony I shall ever entertain the most sincere regard. I have constantly represented them to His Majesty as deserving His utmost confidence and care; and when I observe the munificent Grants and the extraordinary exertions devoted by the Mother Country to your improvement and protection, I am happy in the belief, that my representations have not been doubted or disregarded.

I have particular pleasure, Gentlemen, in comparing the present state of your District with the appearance it wore ten years ago. I pray that your prosperity may increase, and that you may enjoy it in tranquillity.

PROCLAMATION.
UPPER CANADA.

P. MAITLAND,
Lieutenant Governor.

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, defender of the Faith, &c. &c. &c.

GREETING:

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Tenth day of September last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the twenty-ninth day of October, instant, at which time at our Town of York you were held and constrained to appear.—NOW KNOW YE, that we, taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking, and by these Presents enjoining you and each of you, that on Thursday the Fourth day of December, next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our said Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province, to be hereunto affixed.—WITNESS our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B., Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding our Forces therein, at York, this twenty-first day of October, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-eight, and in the Ninth year of our Reign.

P. M.

By Command of His Excellency.

IN consequence of a Despatch which has been received by His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, from His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, the Inspector General has, by direction of the Government, instructed the several Collectors of the Customs, that all Goods which may be lawfully imported into this Province, by Land or Inland Navigation, may be admitted to Entry at the several Ports of Entry, upon security being given, to the satisfaction of the Collectors of the Customs, for the due delivery thereof, at some free Warehousing Port, appointed, or to be appointed in either of the Provinces of Upper or Lower Canada.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 18th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot.

Upper Canada Gazette.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1828.

BY AUTHORITY.

To HIS EXCELLENCY SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

We His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the undersigned, Clergy Magistrates, and other Inhabitants of the District of Gore, understanding that your Excellency is about to retire from the Government of this Province, are desirous—previous to your departure—to offer our congratulations upon His Majesty's increased confidence in your Excellency, in promoting you to a situation next to the General Government of the British North American Colonies; and to express to you the high sense which we entertain of your Excellency's conduct as Lieutenant Governor of this Province, which has been blessed with so many marks of the fostering hand of the Parent State since your Excellency has presided over it.

We have hailed with grateful feelings the beneficence of the best of Sovereigns in the various imperial grants so auspiciously made to secure to us and to our posterity, the proud advantages of British Subjects, as well for the purpose of fortifying our frontiers as for opening and improving our internal communications: in which we recognize your Excellency's favourable representations to His Majesty's Government, on those subjects so intimately connected with the true welfare of this Province.

We are not unmindful of the great improvement in this Province since your Excellency's Administration of its Government, in laying open to actual settlement, so many Townships, which were previously in a state of nature, and in which we now enumerate so many fellow subjects from the Mother Country.

We are also sensible that your Excellency's Administration has always been marked with that mildness which Religion and virtue inculcate; and we are satisfied that it has been your Excellency's constant desire to administer equal and impartial justice alike to all His Majesty's Subjects.

We beg to offer you our assurances of unfeigned respect, not only as the Representative of our beloved Sovereign but as a Soldier and a Christian; and to Lady Sarah Maitland, whose examplary piety and domestic virtues commands our highest admiration; and wherever your Excellency and family's lot may be cast, our best wishes are, that you may enjoy happiness and prosperity.

REPLY.

Gentlemen,

I am very much alive to the kindness which has prompted you to take leave of me before my departure. And I am happy in the occasion it presents to me, of seeing you assembled, that I may express to you the good wishes I most cordially entertain for your happiness.

My administration of this Government has extended to a period longer than usual and now that the duties of another station are about to separate me from you, it affords me the most lively satisfaction to feel, with how much sincerity, I can assure you of the interest which I shall ever take in your welfare, and of the grateful recollections which my intercourse with you has impressed upon my mind.

To His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

May it Please Your Excellency,

We, the undersigned Inhabitants of the Town of York, and its vicinity, beg leave to approach your Excelency upon the eve of your departure from this Province with feelings of the highest esteem and respect for your Person and Government, and with sincerest assurances of our conviction, that your Excellency's administration of this Government, longer indeed than that of any of your predecessors, has been uniformly marked with that zeal for His Majesty's Service, and impartiality towards all classes of His Majesty's Subjects in this Colony, that your residence amongst us will be cherished in the grateful recollection of an affectionate and loyal people.

Under a Constitution essentially British, where free discussion forms so important a feature in the frame of political society, it is hardly to be expected, that any person could have so long filled the high and important station which your Excellency is now about to relinquish in this Country without encountering a portion of that opposition, which is incidental to our free institutions, and without at the same time being the principal object of those acrimonious animadversions, from which even the more exalted station of our Gracious Sovereign is not exempted; but independent of the success which has attended your Excellency's labours in the public service, and the increasing prosperity of the Colony, which each successive year of your administration has witnessed; your Excellency must enjoy the satisfaction of feeling, that your promotion to the Government of Nova Scotia affords the amplest proof that these exertions and that conduct, to which we pay our humble tribute of approbation, have been as justly appreciated, by our most Gracious Sovereign, as they have been by very candid and well disposed Inhabitant of this Province.

It cannot but afford peculiar gratification to your Excellency to contemplate the rapid advancement in our trade, commerce & agricultural improvement; and to ovserve the vast increase in our population, during the ten years you have presided over our interests and promoted the developement of our resources, and the present prosperity of the people of this Province affords an irrefragable evidence of the wisdom and justice of your Excellency's measures.

While we feel grateful to your Excellency for your exertions in advancing the temporal welfare of the Inhabitants of this Colony, we are confident we shall not offer to your Excellency an unwelcome testimony of our admiration of the steady, uniform, and truly Christian example you have set in the discharge of your Religious duties, which, under Providence, are the best foundation upon which to build our hopes of doing good to our fellow men.

To Lady Sarah Maitland, whose dignified, mild and amiable deportment, must ever endear her to any society that may be so fortunate as to be graced by Her presence—we also beg leave to express our most affectionate and sincere regard, and we are confident that we do but speak the sentiments of those who have so often experienced the kindness and benevolence of Her Ladyship, when we assure Her, that the numerous objects of Her Ladyship's bounty will long continue to pray for the health and happiness of a benefactress so active in works of charity.

In taking leave of one who has so long and so faithfully represented our beloved SOVEREIGN, permit us to express our earnest hope, that your EXCELLENCY and family may, by the blessing of Providence, enjoy in your new Goverament, that happiness and prosperity which are the fit rewards of public virtue and of private worth.

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following

REPLY.

GENTLEMEN,

After having long administered the Government in this Province, it is most gratifying to me to receive from so large and respectable a body of the Inhabitants of the Capital, the expression of such sentiments as are embodied in your Address.

In the discharge of the duties committed to me by my Sovereign, I have never felt that it was not less due to the happiness and best interests of the people, than to my own reputation as a public Officer, and as a man, that I should firmly and steadily adhere to that course which I believed to be right. Acting upon this principle, I have shared with you, and with every sincere well-wisher of the country, the common duty of maintaining our excellent Constitution against injurious innovations; and I neither expected nor desired to avoid participating with you in any of the consequences, which, by the exertions of the discontented, and unreasonable, may be made to attend, at least for a season, the most upright and consistent course of public conduct.

I have observed with pain, and not without astonishment, the credit which sometimes seems to have been given abroad to the most flagrant misrepresentations respecting this Province—misrepresentations alike injurious to the interests and the character of its inhabitants; & in very many instances so grossly and evidently false, that I have wondered not less at the apparent absurdity of such attempts, than at their unexpected success.

In regarding the possible effects of misrepresentation, I have never ceased to declare to His Majesty my readiness and my wish at any moment, or in any manner, to account for every act of my Government; and if this opportunity of explanation has in no instance been presented, I must take it for granted, it is because it has in no instance been thought necessary.

I have great pleasure, Gentlemen, in reflecting upon the present very improved state of this Colony, and in observing the extremely rapid growth of this Town. I pray earnestly and sincerely that your welfare and your hapiness may continue and increase.

I thank you for your very kind congratulations upon the appointment which I have recently received—and you must permit me to add the thanks of Lady Sarah Maitland to my own, for the friendly wishes you have expressed, and to assure you that we shall always hold in grateful recollection our intescourse with the Inhabitants of the Town of York.

Address of the Gentlemen and principle Freeholders of the Town and Township of London:—

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

Being apprised that your Excellency has been promoted to the Government of Nova Scotia, we cannot permit you to depart hence, without some expression of feeling, by which the Loyal Province over whose destinies you are now to preside, may form some judgment of the way in which your services have here been estimated. The present we consider as a peculiarly appropriate time for the expression of our sentiments.—Your Excellency has now nothing to bestow, and we of course nothing to expect; it will therefore be impossible for the most fertile minded asperser of your Excellency's administration, to impute to us other motives, than those of the purest disinteresiedness,—of the most perfect attachment to your Excellency's person and government.

For ten years we have lived under the mild and equitable administration of your Excellency—for ten years we have witnessed, with the attention of men having a deep interest at stake in the welfare of the Province, the unwearied exertions of your Excellency for the advancement of its prosperity, and the happiness of its people—and although we have during this period not unfrequently heard of oppression, of misrule, of public wrongs, and private grievances, we believe they have existed only in the imaginations of men, who, either to attain popularity, or to gratify some less laudable propensity, endeavour to infuse into the public mind a spirit of hostility to the existing authorities of the Country.—The people feel, (notwithstanding the industry of the discontented and the disaffected) that they are living in the perfect, the undisturbed, unfearing possession of every blessing of our enviable Constitution.—"They sow in hope, and reap in gladness."—They arise with the smiles of the morning and lie down beneath the shadows of night "none daring to make them afraid."—They see the Country once an uncultivated desert, now unfolding its fertile bosom; and by the abundance of its productions, their toils are compensated, and their wants supplied.—They witness also the many and important operations which are progressing for the improvement of their internal navigation; and whilst they proudly anticipate the day, as almost at hand, when the once isolated Barque of the Western Lakes, shall proudly swell its spreading sails upon the bosom of the ocean, bearing the productions of their farms to distant lands, they cannot help thinking (notwithstanding all they have heard to the contrary) that under your Excellency's administration, the Province is rising to great commercial, and agricultural importance. It is therefore impossible that we, who are likely to derive so great advantages from the measures recommended and adopted by your Excellency, and entertaining as we do the highest esteem for your Excellency's private character could now abstain from assuring your Excellency that we deeply regret your departure from this Province.

Permit us therefore to bid your Excellency a grateful and affectionate farewell; and believe us when we say, we shall ever feel as happy to hear of your political advancement as we have always been of your domestic happiness.

London, Oct. 1828.

JOHN EWART,
RICHD. TALBOT,
F. TALBOT,
J. S. HARRISON,
WM. HARDY,
WM. HALE.
[And Fifty-one others.]

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following

REPLY.

GENTLEMEN,

I have received your affectionate Address with much pleasure, and I duly appreciate the generous feeling which prompts you at the moment of my departure, to do justice to the motives by which I have been actuated during my administration of this Government.

That the Inhabitants of the Township of London cannot be too grateful for the blessings that surround them, is forcibly impressed upon my mind, by my recollection of the appearance which that Township presented to me when so few years had elapsed from its first settlement. I need scarcely remind you however, that it is not by the excellence of climate and soil that the prosperity or the happiness of a community can be ensured; a disposition to appreciate justly the advantages they enjoy, and to acquiesce contentedly in the arrangements necessary to social order, are required to render the political condition of any people permanently happy.—If the feelings which you have so warmly and so kindly expressed do not universally prevail, and if the efforts to which you allude for exciting discontent among a people who have so much to be grateful for, have been partially successful, I can but attribute it to that want of general knowledge of the truth, which renders a portion of the best disposed population always too easily accessible to the designs of the ambitious and the turbulent.

I rejoice with you, Gentlemen, in the cheering prospect of rapid improvement which Upper Canada presents.

In departing to assume the duties of the Station to which my Sovereign has been graciously pleased to advance me, I shall bear with me a grateful recollection of your kindness, and the consciousness that I have in no act of my Government suffered any other motive to prevail with me than an anxiety to discharge my duty by promoting your best interests.

To His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects resident in Stamford, beg leave to express their gratification at His Majesty's appointment of your Excellency to the command of Halifax and its dependencies; which they hope and trust may be to your advantage in as great a degree as the honor has been intended by their Sovereign.—In the expression of this sentiment they have been actuated by the impression that your Excellency's best endeavours have ever been exerted for the general good and welfare of the Province, and the recent dedication of the Church in this Village and consecration thereof to the service of God, will ever secure that impression on their minds, when they consider the very great trouble and interest you took in the accomplishment of so desirable an object.—Your subscriptions towards its formation as well as the great expence you were put to in the decoration thereof, &c. add to which the example of your Excellency, your Lady and Family, in all religious duties, acts of benevolence and charity, cannot fail to inspire this community with such becoming and moral conduct, as is essential to their best interests and well being of society; and they earnestly hope that this mark of His Majesty's approbation will ere many years have passed, be followed by your assuming the supreme command of these Colonies, and then they may have the heartfelt satisfaction of again offering you their congratulations—which is humbly submitted.

GENTLEMEN,

I receive very cordially your kind congratulations on the appointment graciously conferred upon me by my Sovereign.

Duly as I appreciate the honorable distinction, I cannot but feel painfully the necessity, it of course, imposes on me of bidding farewell to a neighbourhood to which I, and every member of my family, have learnt to be warmly attached, and from which, while I confess that we shall depart with reluctance, I must also add, that we shall not depart without many pleasing and grateful recollections.

I was much gratified in having it in my power to assist your laudable exertions to supply the want of an additional place for public worship, by the erection of the Church, which I am happy to have seen completed. And I have observed with lively satisfaction a very general disposition among you duly to frequent divine service in your respective congregations.

In thanking you for the kind manner in which you have expressed yourselves in the latter part of your Address, you must permit me to assure you, that wherever may be my future destination, fervent and lasting will be my wishes as well for your personal welfare, as for the general happiness and advancement of your Country.

To His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General commanding His Majesty's Forces therein &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

We, the undersigned, Inhabitants of the Village of St. Catharines, and its Vicinity, understanding that your Excellency is about to leave this Province, to assume the more important Government of Nova Scotia, to which it has pleased our Most Gracious Soverign to promote you—cannot omit the present opportunity of tendering to your Excellency our assurances of the high sense we entertain of the interest which your Excellency has ever manifested in the welfare and prosperity of this Colony.

Among the many Public Works, commenced during the administration of your Excellency, for the Improvement of the Province—the Welland Canal now drawing towards its completion, and in which we feel a deep interest, will of itself afford a lasting monument of your Excellency's zeal in promoting the best interests of this Colony; and we feel fully sensible that to your Excellency's favourable recommendation of this great undertaking are the Provinces indebted for the means of accomplishing it; and we most sincerely hope your Excellency will live to witness the beneficial effects that must result from its completion.

We wish your Excellency and family every happiness, and solicit your acceptance of our assurances of our highest respect and gratitude.

GENTLEMEN,

I receive with great satisfaction this Address from the Inhabitants of the Village of St. Catharine's and its Vicinity.—To you, Gentlemen, my warm acknowledgments are due for the trouble you have kindly taken to present it to me on their behalf.

May I request you to convey to them my thanks for their good wishes, and the manner in which they have adverted to my administration.—I have certainly never ceased to feel most forcibly the desire of advancing to the utmost of my power the improvement of the Country, and it is truly gratifying to me that my exertions on this point have been so kindly appreciated.

It has afforded me sincere pleasure to witness the great work suggested by an Inhabitant of your Village so prosperously advancing. It has not wanted my best recommendations nor my earnest wishes for its successful and early completion, which I hope the recent assistance received from His Majesty's Government will suffice to render certain.

Allow me to assure you, that my removal from this Province to a more extensive command, will not impair the interest I take in your welfare, nor be suffered to obliterate my sense of the kindness and attention I have experienced during my residence in your Vicinity.

To His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

Our most gracious Sovereign having been pleased to promote your Excellency to the Government of Nova Scotia, we the Inhabitants of Bastard, and other Townships in the District of Johnstown, beg leave to address your Excellency before giving up the Government you have so long administered with credit to yourself, to the satisfaction of His Majesty's Government, and of all true friends to the Provincial Government.

Having always approved of the Government of this Province as happily administered by your Excellency, we cannot but deplore your departure.

The improvements suggested by your Excellency, some of which have been commenced and others carried into execution, evince the great desire of your Excellency upon all occasions to promote the interest of those over whom your Excellency was appointed to govern. The last ten years have been most fruitful in improvements, a new District has been formed, many Settlers have been introduced into the Province, Roads opened and made, and Canals commenced, for all which we shall ever hold in grateful remembrance the administration of your Excellency, more particularly for the interest manifested by your Excellency in the improvement of the Navigation between Kingston and the Ottawa, by which the people in this section of the Country are more immediately benefitted than most of our fellow subjects, and we shall ever pray that your Excellency may continue to enjoy the confidence of His Majesty's Government so long as your Excellency shall desire a public situation, which we hope and trust you will live to enjoy for many years.

GENTLEMEN,

I have received with much pleasure your affectionate Address.

My recent visit to the great Work to which you allude, and by which you cannot fail to be exceedingly benefitted, has confirmed my opinion of its vast importance to the Province, and I shall anxiously desire to hear of its successful completion.—In yielding my best exertions to advance the welfare of Upper Canada, I have but fulfilled the gracious intentions of my Sovereign, and you may be assured, Gentlemen, that the interest which I take in the happiness and prosperity of the people of this Province, will not cease with my residence amongst them.

I beg to offer my best wishes for your welfare and happiness.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

We His Majesty's dutiful and Loyal Subjects, Inhabitants of Perth and its Vicinity, beg leave most respectfully to approach your Excellency, and offer our unfeigned sorrow and regret at your contemplated departure from the Government of this Province, which you have so long, so ably, and so impartially exercised.

We cannot but feel sensible that the advancement of your Excellency to the Government of Nova-Scotia and its dependencies, is a just tribute and a special mark of approbation from our beloved Sovereign, for the faithful and equitable discharge of the important trust committed into your Excellency's hands, when His Majesty was graciously pleased to invest you with the Government of this Province.—It becomes us on the present occasion to express our decided conviction (without indulging in any species of flattery) that your Excellency has through innumerable difficulties fulfilled the gracious intentions of our beloved Sovereign, that your Excellency has conducted the administration of the Government of this Province, in a manner conducive to the best interest of its inhabitants, and that you have steadily upheld the honor of the Crown without infringing upon the rights of the people, which even those few who opposed your Excellency's administration must confess.

Under this impression and conviction, and convinced as we are, that every act of your Excellency's administration has been for the real benefit of the Province confided to your charge, that we feel ourselves called upon to offer to your Excellency the unfeigned acknowledgements of a grateful and loyal people, warmly attached to the Person and Government of our most gracious Sovereign, and personal regard for your Excellency.

Your Excellency is now about to leave us, permit us to express ourselves according to the dictates of our hearts, and emphatically say that we part from your Excellency with regret.—But you must leave us, your Sovereign commands your services in another part of His dominions—go then, and in the exalted station your Sovereign has committed to your care, discharge the Government of Nova Scotia as you have done that of Upper Canada, with fidelity, with honor, and with impartiality.

We now bid your Excellency farewell—may you, LADY SARAH MAITLAND and family, have a safe and speedy voyage, and may you continue to enjoy uninterupted happiness and prosperity.

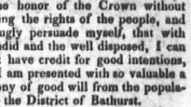
Answer to an Address of the Inhabitants of Perth and its Vicinty, presented to Lieutenant Governor SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, on the occasion of His leaving the Province.

GENTLEMEN,



I have received the affectionate address of the Inhabitants of Perth and its Vicinity, with much satisfaction. The mark of my Sovereign's approbation which He has been graciously pleased to bestow upon me, in appointing me to the Government of Nova Scotia, is enhanced in value by your kind congratulations.

The circumstances under which the District of Bathurst was settled at comparatively a late period, have led me to mark its rapid and satisfactory progress with particular interest, and in my recent tour along the course of the Rideau Canal, I have had equal reason to admire the wonderful capability of improvment which the Country presents, and the unbounded munificence and the provident care displayed by the paternal Government in the great work which I had the pleasure to visit.

I cannot but fear, that however zealous and honest have been my endeavours to discharge my public duty, I must nevertheless have failed to deserve in their extent the terms of unqualified approbation which you have in so cordial a spirit applied to my conduct, in the administration of the Government.

It has certainly been my desire to uphold the honor of the Crown without infringing the rights of the people, and I willingly persuade myself, that with the candid and the well disposed, I can not but have credit for good intentions, when I am presented with so valuable a testimony of good will from the population of the District of Bathurst.

In the name of LADY SARAH MAITLAND, I thank you for your kind wishes towards herself and my family, and you may be assured, that in whatever station I may be placed, I shall ever sincerely rejoice to hear of your happiness and prosperity.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1828.

BY AUTHORITY.

Government House York,
1st July, 1828

HIS EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR has been pleased to appoint Thomas Kirkpatrick, Esquire, of the Town of Kingston, to be Collector of the Customs for the Port of Kingston, in the room of C. A. Hagerman, Esq. resigned.—Commission dated 24th June 1828.

To HIS EXCELLENCY SIR JOHN COLBORNE, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

We, the Clergy, Magistrates and other Inhabitants of the Town of York, approach your Excellency, with our congratulations upon your arrival in this Province to assume the Government rendered vacant by the advancement of our late Lieutenant Governor, who is about leaving us, bearing with him the sincere respect of every virtious mind, and the gratitude of all well wishers to this Province.

We receive your Excellency as the Representative of our Gracious Sovereign, endeared to us by numerous benefits, and we reflect with pride and satisfaction on the reputation which your Excellency is known to have acquired in the glorious contest which has immortalized the British Arms, and which has conferred on those who bore a distinguished part in it, a claim to the gratitude and respect of their countrymen.

We sincerely hope that your Excellency and family may find your residence in Upper Canada agreeable in all respects, and we assure your Excellency, that it shall be our anxious wish, to contribute to your comfort and happiness.

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following

REPLY.

Gentlemen,

I receive with satisfaction your Address, and from the Loyalty and character of the Inhabitants of Upper Canada I feel confident that it will long continue prosperous and happy.

I thank you for your kind congratulations, and look forward to my residence among you with the greatest interest and pleasure.

To His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General commanding His Majesty's Forces therein &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

We His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Magistrates, Graud Jury and Bar, of the District of London, in General Quarter Sessions assembled, beg leave most respectfully, on your Excellency's retirement from this Province, to assure your Excellency, that during the ten years of your administration of the Government we have witnessed a zeal and constant care on the part of your Excellency, to promote general Education in all its branches, to develope and cultivate the resources and capabilities of the country, & to improve its moral and political condition by every means in your power.—And to assure your Excellency that this course has not failed to become deeply impressed on our minds, and to secure to your Excellency our most unfeigned and sincere regard.

To assure your Excellency, that we are fully sensible of the deep interest your Excellency has taken in settling, on the best foundation that circumstances would admit, the financial difficulties which we formerly experienced with our sister Province of Lower Canada; and are not unmindful of the advantages which the Province has derived from the extinguishment of the claims which His Majesty has most graciously allowed to the Aborigines for immense tracts of country within the Province, which under the wise and judicious superintendance of your Excellency, have been Surveyed and put under Settlement with Emigrants from our Mother Country to a very growing extent, without adding to the public burdens of the Province, by which our extensive settlements are becoming consolidated, and our physical strength increased.

To assure your Excellency of the high sense of gratitude we feel in return for the successful efforts your Excellency has made in improving the internal communications of the Province by Canal Navigation, and the construction of Harbours upon the Lakes, or Inland Seas, by which the Province is bounded. We cannot withhold from your Excellency the just meed of praise for the deep interest your Excellency has taken in representing the Province so strongly to the favorable consideration of the Imperial Government as to procure the large grants so lately made by the Legislature of the Mother Country for the completion of the Welland Canal, the Rideau Canal, and the erection of Fortifications for our defence.

To assure your Excellency that the equity, moderation and firmness, by which your administration has been distinguished, has not passed unobserved by us. Nor can we permit this last opportunity to pass without assuring your Excellency, that the tender and unremitting regard which you have constantly paid to the settling and securing upon a firm basis, the civil rights of all such of His Majesty's subjects as were liable to question, is duly appreciated by us, as well as by all the intelligent and well disposed with whom we are acquainted.

We wish your Excellency, Lady Sarah and family, many years of happiness and prosperity.

In General Quarter Sessions of the Peace, London 14th, Oct. 1828.

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following

REPLY.

Gentlemen,

I have received your affectionate Address with much pleasure.

It cannot but be gratifying to me when about to enter upon the duties of a new Government to find my endeavours in this Province to fulfil the gracious intentions of my Sovereign, so kindly and so generally acknowledged, that I may venture to assure myself that they have met with a reasonable measure of success. In remarking the very rapid advancement in the Settlement of your District during my administration of this Government, I cannot fail to remember, and I am sure I need not remind you, how much it is to be ascribed to the perseverance and exertions of a distinguished friend of yours who is now absent from the Province.

The general measures for the improvement of this Province to which you have adverted in terms of approbation were sincerely designed to promote your welfare, and I trust they have not failed to do so. In justice to myself, however, I cannot forbear to add, that my wishes have extended further, and that my judgement has suggested to me other important improvements which the Executive Government alone could not accomplish.

I take my leave of you, Gentlemen, with every friendly feeling for your welfare, and you must permit me to thank you in the name of Lady Sarah Maitland for the kind mention you have made of her.

To His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

We, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal Subjects, the Magistrates and Inhabitants of the Township of Grimsby, beg leave most respectfully to approach your Excellency, to express the deep and unfeigned regret we experience from the knowledge that your Excellency is soon about to leave the Province, in order to assume the reins of Government in another part of His Majesty's dominions.

Fully sensible of the many advantages which the Upper Province has received from your Excellency's administration, and duly appreciating the benefits which have emanated from the wise and judicious measures which have characterized your Excellency's Government, we should be indeed wanting in gratitude did we not deeply deplore the departure of your Excellency from our prospering and happy country.

At the same time, however, we beg your Excellency to be assured, that we do most sincerely congratulate your Excellency on the appointment which is has pleased our Beloved Sovereign to confer upon you, and though we cannot but regret the loss of your Excellency's presence among us, we rejoice at the Royal discrimination which has called your abilities to a higher sphere of action.

We would beg your Excellency to convey to Lady Sarah the very deep sense we entertain of Her Ladyship's amiable character, and while we look forward with no small degree of regret to the deprivation we are but too soon to experience, we would trust that the bright example she has afforded, will be long cherished in the hearts of those by whom her virtues have been properly appreciated.

Commending your Excellency, your noble Consort and family, to the protecting care of a Kind Providence, we respectfully intimate our wishes that the journey to your present destination may be agreeable and prosperous, and we pray to Almighty God that in every station, your Excellency and family may be enabled to enjoy the choisest gifts which Heaven can bestow—health and happiness.

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following

REPLY.

Gentlemen,

I have received the affectionate Address of the Inhabitants of Grimsby with much pleasure.

Your kind congratulations upon my appointment to the Government of Nova Scotia, and the terms in which you have spoken of my administration of this Government, are proofs of a friendly feeling, on your part, which I highly value.

You must permit me to add the sincere thanks of Lady Sarah Maitland to my own for the good wishes you have so candidly expressed, and you may be assured, Gentlemen, that no change of situation or circumstances can diminish the interest we shall always take in your happiness and prosperity.

To His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

May it please your Excellency,

We the undersigned, Inhabitants of the Town of Kingston, beg leave to approach your Excellency to express our regret at your departure from this Province, over which you have presided so many years with such signal ability and credit to yourself, and advantage to the public. In thus offering our humble tribute of approbation to your Excellency's administration of the Government of this important Colony, we cannot but embrace this opportunity of manifesting to your Excellency, the deep sense, which we, in common with our fellow subjects in this portion of the Dominions of our Sovereign, entertain of the many and great benefits that have resulted to this Province from the wisdom of your Excellency's administration of the Government.

The eminent and conspicuous part which your Excellency bore, under the great Captain of the age, in acquiring for your Country the Glory that irradiated the Banner of England, on the splendid though sanguinary fields of Spain, and the still more brilliant and gorgeous field of Waterloo, and by which the Military character of England has been elevated to the first rank among the nations of the earth, did not pass unnoticed by our most gracious and beneficent Sovereign. At the general tranquillity that was restored to the world, by the last most noble and gigantic effort of British valour and skill, the acknowledged talents of your Excellency pointed you out as eminently fitted for the most important duties; and your Excellency soon received a noble testimony of your Sovereign's estimation of your great and important services in the field of glory, in your Excellency's appointment to the Government of this valuable appendage of the British Crown.

Your Excellency's arrival amongst us was hailed with joy: nor have the expectations that were then formed of your private and public character, been at all disappointed; but on the contrary, great as even those expectations were, we have much pleasure in assuring your Excellency, that they have been more than realized.

The arduous duties which have been imposed upon your Excellency have been fulfilled to the public advantage. We observe with exceeding pleasure the great and rapid advances which this Province has made in population and general improvement, during your Excellency's administration. To that administration we are indebted for the commencement and progress of one of the most stupendous works the world can boast of. And under the same Government we have seen nearly the completion of another magnificent and important commercial work, the success of which is mainly attributable to your Excellency's protection, countenance, and support. Upper Canada will never cease to associate the names of the Rideau and Welland Canals with that of your Excellency.

In particularizing some of the vast advantages that have been derived from the administration of your Excellency, we purposely abstain from noticing the minor benefits that have resulted to the Province, though many of them have been of great interest and general importance.

We cannot take leave of your Excellency without offering our most sincere and hearty wishes for the welfare of your Excellency and of your amiable and distinguished Consort and family. Nor can we refrain from the expression of our high gratification, that, since it has pleased our most gracious Sovereign to sever the ties which have subsisted for ten years between your Excellency and this Province, your Excellency has received so eminent a mark of our beloved Monarch's approbation as has lately been conferred upon your Excellency in your elevation to the second command in the Colonies of America.

By such an unequivocal proof of the estimation in which your Excellency is held by His Majesty, the sorrow that we experience at the departure of your Excellency is somewhat alleviated: and we are the more reconciled to your departure when we reflect that your Excellency's present removal is but the prelude to still further honors from His Majesty, and to more substantial proofs of His approbation and favor.

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following

REPLY.

Gentlemen,

I have received with much pleasure your affectionate Address.

Though not a native of this Province I have had scarcely less satisfaction than yourselves in observing its very rapid improvement.

To do every thing in my power to hasten its advancement was the duty committed to me when I assumed the Government; and with the proof recently afforded to me of the continued confidence of my Sovereign, and hearing so cordially expressed to me the friendly feelings of yourselves and of so many others of our fellow subjects in this Province, I indulge the hope that my efforts have not been ineffectual. I must be permitted, Gentlemen, on the part of Lady Sarah Maitland, to thank you very sincerely for the good wishes you have expressed, and you may be assured, that we shall ever receive the most lively satisfaction in hearing of your prosperity and happiness.

To His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

May it please your Excellency,

We His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, Inhabitants of Brockville and its Vicinity, beg permission to express our deep regret at your Excellency's anticipated departure from this Province;—a regret which we are bound to feel on looking back to the commencement of your Excellency's administration, and comparing the state of the Province then with what it is at the present.

From the encouragement given to Emigration at home, and the facilities afforded by your Excellency's Government to Settlers on their arrival, the population within the past ten years has become nearly doubled—upwards of thirty Townships have been organized and settled—an entirely new District has been formed, and its boundaries (recently comprising only an uninhabited wilderness) now maintain an industrious and contented population surpassed in loyalty by none of His Majesty's subjects.

The encouragement afforded by your Excellency to every public undertaking calculated to advance the welfare of the Province, deserves to be most gratefully acknowledged.

To your Excellency's approval of the design and recommendation of it to the Imperial Government, we owe the successful progress of the Welland Canal—an undertaking of such magnitude and importance as might not otherwise have been accomplished for many years, and could never have been projected on a scale commensurate with public utility; but which we have now the expectation of seeing speedily and satisfactorily completed.

The Rideau Canal, we are aware, is an undertaking likewise, which, from the first, met with your Excellency's support, and has been prompted by similar recommendation, while other measures which have been proposed, calculated to improve the Navigation of the St. Lawrence, and to facilitate internal communication throughout the Province, have been cherished by your Excellency's approbation.

These and many other facts are well known to public fame, and interwoven with the History of Upper Canada, and the perfect conviction, that in every act of your Excellency's administration, the real benefit of the Province, and the welfare of its Inhabitants have been intended, calls forth from us the sincere expression of our gratitude.

For your Excellency's personal character and private worth we have ever felt the utmost respect, and we cannot speak too highly of the example which these conjointly, with the unostentatious benevolence and distinguished virtues of Lady Sarah Maitland, have held up to public imitation; an example, some effects of which, we doubt not, will be found imperishable.

But while on these accounts we regret your Excellency's departure, we cannot do otherwise than offer our cordial congratulations to your Excellency on this mark of your Sovereign's approval, an evidence of the esteem in which your conduct as His Majesty's Representative has been held, afforded to us by your promotion to the Government of Nova Scotia.

In taking leave of your Excellency it is our hearty prayer, that with Lady Sarah Maitland, and the rest of your family, you may have a fortunate passage to the place of destination, that you may live for many years continuing to enjoy the approbation of our most gracious Sovereign, and blessed with the loyalty and affection of the people confided to your authority.

REPLY.

Gentlemen,

I receive your affectionate Address with much pleasure.

Though my residence in this Province was of course not to be permanent, I have taken more than a temporary interest in its advancement. It is probable that no portion of the British Dominions has exhibited within these ten years so rapid an improvement as I have had the pleasure of witnessing in Upper Canada, and at the moment of my departure, I rejoice in the assurance so abundantly afforded to you, that our Gracious Sovereign justly estimates the value of this prosperous Colony, and will not fail to confirm by every means, the security, and to promote the happiness of its Inhabitants.

In taking my leave of you, first, I beg you to accept my thanks for your kind congratulations upon my recent appointment, and my sincere assurances that I derive much satisfaction from the terms in which after a long experience of my administration of this Government, you have been pleased to express yourselves towards me.

I must be permitted to thank you on the part of Lady Sarah Maitland, in your kind mention of Her, and we unite in best wishes for your happiness.

PROCLAMATION.

VOL. 3. NO. 26.

Upper Canada Gazette.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1828.

BY AUTHORITY.

Government House, York, 13*th Oct.*, 1828.

HIS EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR has been pleased to grant a Licence to Truman Raymond, Gentleman, to practice Physic, Surgery and Midwifery, he having been resident in this Province and practising in the said branches before and during the late war, and complied with the provisions of the Statute 8, Geo. 4, cap. 3.

To HIS EXCELLENCY SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

May it Please your Excellency,

We, the Magistrates of the District of Niagara, in Quarter Sessions assembled, together with the Clergy, Gentry, and other inhabitants of the Town of Niagara and its vicinity, beg leave to express to your Excellency our sincere regret at the announcement of your approaching departure from the Province. We are deeply sensible that during every period of your Excellency's Government you have been actuated in your public measures by a paternal regard for the interest of the Colony committed to your charge, and by a desire to discharge with zeal and fidelity, the trust reposed in you by His Majesty's Government, from which the Province has reaped innumerable and permanent benefits.

We feel gratified for the distinction conferred on our District by your residence amongst us for several years past; and beg to assure your Excellency that while humanity, benevolence and piety are respected and valued by us, the high example afforded by your Excellency and your Noble Lady, will be cherished in our recollections.

However we may feel and regret the loss we are to sustain in your removal, we beg your Excellency to believe us truly sincere in our congratulations, in the proof given by His Majesty of His due sense of your merit, in your appointment to a higher office; and in our wish that Providence may grant to your Excellency, Lady Sarah and Family a long continuation of health to enjoy the recent mark of honor and distinction, conferred by our Most Gracious Sovereign upon your Excellency.

[And one hundred and twelve others.]

REPLY.

GENTLEMEN,

I receive your affectionate address with sincere satisfaction.

You do me but justice in believing that it has been my anxious desire, during my residence in this Province, to discharge with fidelity the trust reposed in me by His Majesty. That trust involved deep responsibilities, of which it was my duty to be ever mindful; and as I naturally considered not as the least of those responsibilities the obligation incumbent on me to endeavour to afford an example in private life which might tend to the best interests of society, the testimony which you are so kind as to express in this respect as well as in others, is pleasingly grateful to me.

You must permit me, Gentlemen, to thank you cordially on behalf of Lady Sarah Maitland for the very kind mention you have made of her. Our residence in the District of Niagara has not failed to attach us warmly to a part of the country where we have received much kindness, which many circumstances have concurred to render agreeable to us, and which we shall not cease to bear in our grateful recollection.

To His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, K. C. B., Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

May it please your Excellency,

We, the undersigned, Inhabitants of the Talbot Road and its vicinity, in the County of Middlesex, London District, with all the sentiments of respect and esteem, which your Excellency's administration of His Majesty's Government in this Province, and your uniform conduct, have excited in our minds, beg leave to express to your Excellency our regret at your departure from this Province.

Although many of us have not the honour of being personally known to your Excellency, yet your high character for all that distinguishes the man and the Christian, is well known to, and appreciated by, all of us.

We conceive that the present prosperous state of the Province, when compared with what it was on your Excellency's assumption of the reins of Government, renders it unnecessary for us to advert particularly to the measures of your Excellency's administration, yet having observed the principles from which they have proceeded, we take the liberty of expressing the high sense we entertain of the integrity, zeal and attention, which have constantly marked your Excellency's unwearied exertions to promote the welfare and the interests of the Province, and the happiness of the people.

Without adverting to the misrepresentations which have sometimes been made of your Excellency's administration, and which we most heartily condemn, we feel it our duty to assure your Excellency, that we thoroughly appreciate the unremitting zeal and kind regard for the general welfare, which have induced your Excellency to make use of your interest with the Government of the Mother Country in obtaining many favors and benefits which His Majesty has been pleased to confer on us in common with our fellow subjects in this part of the Province, and we tender our assurances that His Majesty has not in any part of his dominions, subjects more inviolably attached to his Sacred Person and Government than the inhabitants of the Talbot Road and its vicinity.

With sincere and fervent wishes for the health and happiness of your Excellency and of Lady Sarah Maitland and family, we most respectfully bid your Excellency farewell.

St. Thomas, 21*st October*, 1828.

REPLY.

Gentlemen,

I very sincerely thank you for the many expressions of kind and friendly feeling towards me which are contained in your Address.

It could not fail to be gratifying to me on the eve of my departure from you after so long administering the Government of this Province, to be assured that so many of the intelligent and loyal inhabitants of the country are sensible that I have been ever influenced by an anxious desire to promote the welfare and happiness of the community over which I have presided—and that my endeavors have met with such a measure of success as to have secured to me their warm approbation, and affectionate acknowledgments.

I am aware, Gentlemen, that the King has in you subjects sincerely attached to His Majesty's person and Government—and I have ever been gratified in representing you to His Majesty as truly deserving of His favor.

I beg to assure you, Gentlemen, that Lady Sarah Maitland, appreciates as I do very highly, your good wishes—and permit me to add that we shall ever receive tidings of your prosperity with the most lively satisfaction.

To His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

May it please your Excellency,

On the eve of your Excellency's departure to assume the Government of a neighbouring Colony, we the undersigned Inhabitants of the Town of Amherstburgh and Vicinity, in the Western District of Upper Canada, beg leave to convey to your Excellency this expression of our sense of the striking advancement of this Province in wealth and prosperity, during the happy period of your Excellency's administration.

The various important works undertaken since your Excellency's arrival in this Colony, connected with the improvement of its internal communications, of which some are already completed, and others are in a course of rapid progress, fully attest the judi zeal and fostering support of your Excellency, manifested in reiterated recommendations to the local Legislatures and no less effective representations to our generous parent state.

To enumerate the many benefits and results flowing from the enlightened policy of an administration that has subsisted for ten years, would be tedious, as well as superfluous.

In your Excellency's present destination we behold that line of policy stamped with the perfect approbation of our most gracious Sovereign.

Before concluding, however, we beg leave to allude, in a more particular manner, to one or two topics immediately affecting ourselves, which entitle your Excellency to our gratitude.

An early instance of the bounty of Government was extended to us through the medium of your Excellency, by a Grant in fee simple, to the respective possessors, of all the Town Lots, previously held under no title valid in Law.

And more recently, when the culture of a new and valuable staple was begun in the District, we have undoubted authority for believing that your Excellency's recommendations were strongly and successfully urged to procure its admission on highly advantageous terms, into the English market.

In conclusion, we pray your Excellency to accept of our best wishes for a safe journey to your new Government, and for your Excellency's future welfare.

Amherstburgh, 22nd Oct. 1828.

J. Bte. Mercure.
[And Fifty-nine others.]

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following

REPLY.

Gentlemen,

I am much gratified by your cordial Address.

It has in truth been my anxious wish to remove every obstacle to the advancement of your District, and I shall be rejoiced to learn that the works now in progress have not contributed to that object less effectually than was hoped.

Your kind recollection of a benefit, it was fortunately in my power to confer on the Inhabitants of Amherstburgh in the early part of my administration, afford me much pleasure, and I must request you to believe, that my departure from this Province, will not abate my good wishes for your welfare.

CANADA COMPANY'S OFFICE,
GUELPH, 21st Oct. 1828.

Sir,

I beg leave on behalf of the Canada Company, to offer to your Excellency the most respectful acknowledgments for the favourable manner in which every application or the business of the Company has been received and considered.

In no instance, even where explanation was necessary, has your Excellency declined to accede to any request, and any official transactions with the Members of your Excellency's Government, have always been entertained with attention and completed with despatch.

On the occasion therefore of your Excellency's departure from the Province, I should be failing in my duty were I not to acknowledge, that the Canada Company is indebted to your Excellency for important obligations.

I have the honor to be,
Sir,
Your Excellency's
Most obt. hum. Servt.

It will give me much pleasure to learn that the undertakings of the Company, produce in their results all the benefits to the association and to the Province, that can have been anticipated from them.

Upper Canada Gazette.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1828.

BY AUTHORITY.

ERRATUM.—The appointment of Truman Raymond, Gentleman, to practice Physic, Surgery and Midwifery, contained in the Gazette of 20th instant, should be dated 13th November, instead of 13th October.

To His Excellency Sir John Colborne, K.C.B., Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

May it please your Excellency,

We His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects the Inhabitants of York and its Vicinity, beg leave to congratulate your Excellency upon your safe arrival amongst us, and to assure your Excellency that we shall feel it a matter, both of duty and of pleasure, to promote your Excellency's exertions for the peace, happiness and welfare of the Province.

We cannot conceal from Your Excellency, without a sacrifice of candour, that there are many very important subjects which have deeply affected the feelings of the People; but we are solicitous to regard the accession of your Excellency to the Government of this Province, as the commencement of a new era, in which your Excellency, above the prevailing influence of political dissensions and unhappy advice, will prove our Constitutional Benefactor, and realize the paternal wishes of our most gracious Sovereign to bless His People, with mild, just, and conciliatory principles of Government.

We further beg leave respectfully to tender to your Excellency, our sincere wishes for the health and happiness of Lady Colborne, and family.

W. W. Baldwin,
T. D. Morrison,
John S. Baldwin,
John Ridout,
M. Scollard,
Angus McDonell.

[And One Thousand Four Hundred and Thirty-four others.

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following

REPLY.

Gentlemen,

I receive your Address with satisfaction; and I sincerely hope, that with your aid and exertions, we shall no longer hear of the political dissensions to which you allude; fully aware, that should they ever prevail in this Colony, whether they proceed from misconception, or from the pertinacity and selfish views of a few individuals, the interests of the people will inevitably be sacrificed, the beneficent intentions of our Sovereign frustrated, and His paternal care prove unavailing.

Accept my best thanks for your kind wishes, and congratulations on my arrival in this Country.

To His Excellency SIR JOHN COLBORNE, K.C.B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

May it please your Excellency,

We His Majesty's faithful and loyal subjects, the Ministers of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Canada, in our annual conference assembled, respectfully beg leave to offer your Excellency our most cordial congratulations on your Excellency's appointment to the Government of this Province, and on your safe arrival amongst us. We hail it as a propitious event, and it affords us peculiar pleasure to present to the representative of our gracious Sovereign, our assurances of loyal attachment to His Majesty's mild and beneficent Government, and to the Constitution of our Country. We shall ever consider it among our most important duties as religious teachers, to inculcate the principles of fidelity and obedience to the Government and lawfully constituted authorities of our highly favoured Country. And we assure your Excellency that these feelings of conscientious attachment to the British Government, cherished by us as Christian Ministers, and dear to us as British Subjects, pervade and animate the people of our pastoral care. As the Ministers and representatives of an Anglo-Canadian Church unconnected with either the Civil or Ecclesiastical authorities of any Foreign Country, we rejoice that by the kind and merciful providence of God we form a part of the British Empire,

We pray Almighty God, that your Excellency may be guided and assisted in discharging the arduous duties of your Government, and that your residence among us may be equally gratifying to yourself and beneficial to the best interests of the loyal inhabitants of this Colony—that under your Excellency's wise and equitable administration and fostering care the general interests of the Province may prosper, and the benign influence of religion and education be widely diffused, and that our civil and religious liberties, the strongest bonds of perpetual union between this Colony and the Mother Country may be established on the best and surest foundations.

We request that your Excellency will be pleased to accept of our expressions of personal respect for your Excellency, and best wishes for the uninterrupted health and prosperity of your Excellency and your family.

By order of the Conference,
(Signed,) WM. CASE,
Superintendent, Pro. Tem.
JAMES RICHARDSON,
Secretary.

Ernest Town, October 1828.

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following

REPLY.

Gentlemen,

Your loyal Address I receive with great satisfaction; and in thanking you for your kind wishes, I must observe, that the labors and zeal of Ministers with your pious sentiments and intentions, cannot fail being profitable in a Colony where the temptations are many, the Pastors few, and the flock scattered; particularly, living as you do, under the Government of a Sovereign, solicitous, that all should be equally protected in the conscientious discharge of their religious duties.

P. M.

J. B. ROBINSON, Attorney General.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 13th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot.

JOSEPH WELLS,
Bursar, King's College.
York, 1st February, 1828. 3*tf*.

Extract from the Order of Council, bearing date 13th April, 1819, above referred to:—

"That upon the renewal of any Lease for the whole or part of the term of twenty-one years, a Rent of One Pound Fifteen Shillings be reserved as Rent for the first seven years of the renewed term in addition to the increased Rent, payable for the last period of Original Lease, adding One Pound Fifteen Shillings at the end of each period of seven years."

Executive Council Office, York, 23rd March, 1826.

NOTICE is hereby given, by ORDER of His EXCELLENCY the LT. GOVERNOR, in COUNCIL, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a regular Council day.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that they could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 13th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot. Extract from the Order of Council, bearing date 13th April, 1819, above referred to—

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding our Forces therein, at York, this Twenty-first day of February, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-eight, and in the Ninth year of our Reign. P. M.

By His Excellency's Command.
JOHN B. ROBINSON, Attorney General.
D. CAMERON, Secretary.

HIS MAJESTY having granted certain of the Crown Reserves to the Corporation of the King's College in exchange for an equal portion of lands heretofore set apart for the foundation of an University, the Council of King's College are proceeding to take such measures with respect to these Reserves, as may render them productive for the purpose intended, and at the same time afford every opportunity to the persons legally occupying or holding a Lease of any of the Reserves, to make such arrangements as will best suit their wishes and interests.

They are procuring an accurate inspection to be made of the situation and circumstances of every Lot, and have directed their Agent, when he finds any person actually resident upon any of the Reserves which he is directed to visit, to leave with such person a copy of this printed paper, by which he will understand, that if he is the Lessee of the Lot, or has gone upon it and made improvements under any proper authority, that the Council of King's College will pay every respect and attention to the interest and claim of such person, that hey could with any justice have expected of the Government; and in particular, that whenever the Council is prepared to dispose of any of the Reserves under the circumstances above mentioned, the person having a claim to consideration, will have the choice, either to renew his Lease for twenty-one years upon the terms held out by the original Lease from the Crown, as specified in the subjoined Order in Council of the 13th April, 1819, or he shall have the refusal of the Lot, if the Council desire to sell it, in preference to any other purchaser, for such price as the Council are willing to accept.

But it is to be understood, that if the party chooses another Lease, there will be no pledge given for any renewal at the end of twenty-one years, the Government never having afforded any assurance beyond the Grant of a second term; but in such case, the conditions on which the party can be allowed to continue to occupy it, will, no doubt, be settled with a due regard to every reasonable claim on his part—the back rent due upon the first Lease must be paid to the Government before the Council will have it in their power to treat with the Claimant.

It is further to be understood, that, with respect to Lots which have been leased, but never improved or occupied, unless the back rent shall be paid to the Receiver General before the 1st January, 1829, the Council will not feel themselves bound to consider the interest of the Lessee in disposing of the Lot. JOSEPH WELLS,
Bursar, King's College.
York, 1st February, 1828. 87*tf.*

Extract from the Order of Council, bearing date 13th April, 1819, above referred to:—

"That upon the renewal of any Lease for the whole or part of the term of twenty-one years, a Rent of One Pound Fifteen Shillings be reserved as Rent for the first seven years of the renewed term in addition to the increased Rent, payable for the last period of Original Lease, adding One Pound Fifteen Shillings at the end of each period of seven years."

NOTICE.

And whereas tors as the property of Absentees and unpaid, for Six Months in the Upper Canada Gazette, previous to the Sale of the Lands. THE LOYALIST

VOL. I. NO. 1.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY JUNE 7, 1828.

Miscellaneous.

MAY DAY.

Up and away! 'tis a holiday!
Come lads and lasses, with merry faces,
To the May-bowers;
Behold the grass is prancked with daisies,
The banks with flowers.
The sun is flinging on waters glancing
His early light;
The birds are singing, and branches dancing,
At the glad sight
Come, let us rush in the maze of boughs,
And meet at the May-pole to dance and carouse;
He that is first shall be Jack in the Green,
And the forwardest lass shall be crown'd our Queen.

Gaieties and Gravities.

The youth, the smile, the music of the year
Am I. The Mirror of the Seasons.

The games of May-day are the most natural and delightful of all the ancient pastimes. It is "an holiday dependent on the rubric, or the musty fables of monks or saints;—it is a jubilee of nature's own appointing, when the earth, dressing herself up in flowers and green garlands, calls aloud to her children to come out into the fields, and participate in her merry-making." The sports of the day were formerly shared by all ranks of people; and Stow informs us, that Henry VIII. and his beauteous queen used to rise with the sun on May morning, to partake of the May-day sports, and afterwards diverted with shooting birds in the woods, and in rustic festivity consumed the evening. Shakspeare says, it was impossible to make the people sleep on May-eve, and that they rose early to observe the rite of May.

In London, the May-game pageants were supported with great spirit; the citizens used to sally out in the morning at Maying, and return with the spoil of the fields and woods, accompanied with archers, morris-dancers and other shows. Every parish, and sometimes two, used to join, and have their May-pole; one was erected in the middle of the street, before the church of St. Andrew Undershaft, of such height, that it over-topped the steeple; and hence it was that the parish, which was originally called St. Andrew only, acquired the addition of Undershaft. A lord and lady of the May were chosen to preside over the sports:—

"The May-pole is up,
Now, give me the cup,
I'll drink to the garlands around it,
But first unto those Whose hands did compose
The glory of flowers that crown'd it."

"One can readily imagine," says Mr. Irving, "what a gay scene it must have been in jolly old London, when the doors were decorated with flowering branches; when every hat was decorated with hawthorn; and Robin Hood, friar Tuck, Maid Marian, the morris-dancers, and all the other fantastic masks and revellers, were performing their antics about the May-pole in every part of the city." On this occasion we are told Robin Hood presided as lord of the May,—

"With coat of Lincoln green, and mantle too,
And horn of ivory mouth, and buckle bright,
And arrows winged with peacock feathers light,
And trusty bow well gathered of the yew;"

whilst near, crowned as lady of the May, Maid Marian—

"With eyes of blue
Shining through dusky air, like stars of night,
And habited in better forest plight—
His greenwood beauty sits, young as the dew."

And there, too, in a subsequent stage of the pageant, were—

"The archer-men in green, with belt and bow,
Feasting on pheasant, river-fowl, and swan,
With Robin at their head and Marian."

One "evil May-day," however, occurred, and never again did May-morning come wreathed to the citizens in its usual smiles. In consequence of an insurrection that broke out in London on May-eve, 1517, the sports of May-day were long suspended; nor were they ever after more than partially resumed. The "great shaft of Cornhill" was not once erected after that event; and thirty-two years later was broken in pieces, at the instigation of a fanatic priest, who insisted that the inhabitants had made an idol of it, by santing it along with the church.

Without being bigoted to admirers of the rough and riotous sports of antiquity, one cannot help regretting that the innocent and tuneful festival of May-day has fallen into disuse. In Scotland, Wales, Ireland, and, indeed, most countries, some traces of May-day customs still prevail; but as to Jack in the Green, it is too great a burlesque of the old pageant to be here tolerated.

But although the festivities with which our ancestors hailed the opening of this month have sunk into neglect, Nature has not forsaken her festivities. She still scatters flowers, and revels in dews; she still loves her leafy garniture, and the burst of unoppressive sunshine; for, though we moderns may abandon the customs of our forefathers, and may even deny to May those joyous attributes with which they delighted to invest her; though we complain of cold winds, dull days, and frosty nights, cutting down flower and leaf, and have them too, yet is May a gladsome month withal. Vegetation has made a proud progress; it has become deep, lavish, luxuriating, and nothing can be more delightful than the tender green of the young leaves. Primrose still scatter their millions of pale stars over shady banks, and among the mossy roots of beech; and, once more amid the thickly springing verdure of the meadow, we hail the spotted and golden cowslips.

Towards the close of the month, the mind, which has been continually led onwards by the expansion of days, leaves, and flowers, seems to repose on the fulness of nature. Every thing is clothed. The Spring actually seems past. We are surrounded by all that beauty, abundance, and verdancy, which mingle in our ideas of summer. Butterflies take their wavering flight from flower to flower, and dragonflies on the banks of rivers. Cattle, fed to satiety, repose in meadows golden with crowfoot; and sheep-washing is begun, or over, in many places. The mowing-grass presents a mosaic of the most gorgeous pink intermingle hues, or is white with waving umbels. A passing gale awakens a scene of lively animation. The mossy foliage of trees swings heavily; the boughs of the hawthorn wave with all their loads of fragrant bloom, and the snowy, umbelliferous plants toss on the lea like foam on a stormy ocean.

Cottage gardens are now perfect paradises; and, after gazing on their sunny quietude, their lilacs, peonies, wall-flowers, tulips, and crocuses, with their yellow tufts of flowers, now becoming as common at the doors of village cots as the rosemary and rue once were, one cannot help regretting that more of our labouring classes do not enjoy the freshness of earth, and the pure breeze of heaven, in these little rural retreats, instead of being buried in close sombre alleys. A man who can, in addition to remuneration for the labour of his hands, enjoy a clean cottage and a garden amidst the common but precious offerings of Nature, the grateful shade of trees and flow of waters, a pure atmosphere and a radiant sky, can scarcely be called poor.

If Burns had been asked what was the greatest luxury of May, we suppose he would have quoted from his "Cotter's Saturday Night,"

"If heaven a draught of heavenly pleasure spare,
One cordial in this melancholy vale,
'Tis when a youthful, loving, modest pair
In others' arms breathe out the tender tale,
Beneath the milk-white thorn that scents the evening gale."

THE LOVE OF COUNTRY

THE love of fame has been called "the universal passion"—as justly may the love of country be styled the universal sentiment. The latter is, indeed, more deserving of an epithet implying ubiquity than the other, for there is no region where humanity can exist, that it is not found to flourish—no soil so barren, or sky so inclement, where this vigorous feeling is stunted in the human breast; nor is there any state of society, however barbarous or obscure, where it does not operate like an imperishable instinct. It even appears to grow more intense in proportion as a country labours under natural disadvantages; but the reason is, that where physical circumstances make it difficult for man to sustain his existence, the dangers, the toil, and the incessant activity of rude enterprise, which occupy and support life, produce hardihood of mind and body, which give to all the affections a more decisive energy than they can have, where greater opportunities of repose and luxurious enjoyment soften down the human character, more or less, from the excellence of its wildly elastic tones, and impress upon it the traits of languor and enervation. Thus, we find, that in the boisterous and inclement regions of the north, where the savage procures a precarious livelihood by braving the dangers of the ocean, beset with shoals and whirlpools, in a frail skiff, or tracks his prey by the light of the moon over a howling wilderness of snow—there the patriot passion, as it has been called, binds the heart of the native fondly to rocks and eternal barrenness, making nature, in her most terrible circumstances, appear to his eye, when present but still more to his memory, when far away, desirable and lovely.

So strong and unalienable is this sentiment, that the Lapland savage, if placed in the midst of security and enjoyment in the most blooming portion of the temperate zone, would turn from the pleasures that surrounded him, and sicken with desire for the solitudes, the storms, the dreary nights, and perilous adventures which rise upon his mind with the charmed and mournful recollections of his country. Hence it is, that the inhabitants of mountain regions are much more sensibly affected by any circumstance which reminds them of their native land, while sojourning in a foreign soil, than the natives of plains and flat countries. They are a race inured to hardier habits, to severer exertions, and altogether to a bolder and more manly line mode of life than the inhabitants of places more easily brought under the power of cultivation. The sublime scenery, too, by which they are surrounded—the precipices, the torrents, caverns, glens, and all the grandeur of the eternal mountains—the mists that suddenly come on, covering all things like a rolling ocean, and as rapidly dispersed before a flood of light—the gorgeous and gloomy vicissitudes of clouds—the thunder pouring its supernatural voice, answered by a thousand echoes—the storm that, collected within the deep defiles, rushes with headlong fury towards the champaign—all these, and more, that speak the wildest emotion of nature, fill the mind with a kind of poetic fervour, that makes local attachments more fascinating than they can become from the influence of more regulated and milder associations. This poetic feeling, added to the buoyancy of fine spirits, arising from that elastic health which temperance, toil, and a pure atmosphere inspire, gives the mountaineer more enterprise and imagination than other people. That enterprise tempts him to leave his country, but imagination soon calls him back to its wonted precipices or unfortunate, in distance or health, society or soil, to the sound of a wild air, which he heard among his native hills, penetrates his soul like the wailing of his country. It carries him in remembrance to those majestic summits where his infancy was rocked amid the war of elements—to the torrent whose gushing melody he loved—to the blossomed heath over which he bounded in the chase; and the green and lonesome dell where he reposed from his fatigue—his panting dog beside him. Such recollections arise in the bosom of the Swiss adventurer, when that wild and melancholy strain, the Ranz des Vaches, reminds him, in the midst of civilized countries, and of populous cities, of that rude home to which his heart is bound by this mysterious charm of nature, and he flings off all artificial ties to regain once more the scenes of simple pleasures and stern independence

"——as the child whom scaring sounds molest,
Clings close and closer to the nurse's breast;
So the loud torrent and the whirlwind's roar,
But bind him to his native hills the more."

Impressions, sometimes as strong, but always powerful, are produced upon the mind of the Scotch or Irish Highlander in distant climes, when a favourite Highland air brings to his imagination those "banks and braes," which a fond fidelity to the name of country have dearly consecrated, by a sort of religious remembrance.

It is not the power of music—it is not the eloquence of song that does this, though it has been so stated; but it is that powerful influence of association, which music, heard in early life, in the midst of scenes that exert over us something like a moral enchantment, calls into action, touching the purest chords of our affections, not by the mere power of sweet sounds, but by the train of circumstances connected with them, awakening a sad and delicious memory.

HELPLESS INFANTS

MAN comes into the world the most helpless and dependent of all creatures. And, certainly, no object of suffering is so calculated to touch all the tender chords in our bosom as a defenceless child, cast upon the wide world, deprived of the fostering hand of parental tenderness, and destitute of a friend to guide its steps, relieve its wants, and wipe away its tears!

Providence seems to have garnished our nature, occasionally, to suffer in such distressful circumstances, to elicit all the softest emotions we possess; and it is impossible to resist the appeal without doing violence to ourselves. For here it is helpless misery, without one energy to relieve itself;—it is simple misery, uncased by vice or folly;—it is extreme misery, heightened by every circumstance that can interest the heart, that demands our commiseration. Surely then, we shall not be alike deaf to the claims of humanity—the cries of wretchedness—the sympathies of our nature—and the voice of providence;—but, shall rather seize with pleasure the opportunities afforded us, of ameliorating the condition of the helpless and miserable; and thus answer one of the noblest ends of our existence. And, if our wealth, our influence, and our talents are thus employed while the season of action continues; in circumstances of distress, and periods of suffering and incapacity, which alike await the whole of our race, we may delight ourselves with the reflections of a venerable patriarch: "When the ear heard me, then it blessed me; and when the eye saw me, then it gave witness to me: because I delivered the poor that cried, and the FATHERLESS, and him that had none to help him. The blessing of him who was ready to perish came upon me, and I caused the WIDOW'S heart to sing for joy"

HIS MAJESTY'S LEVEE.

On Thursday March 27 his Majesty held the first Levee for this season, which excited considerable interest among the Nobility and gentry, many of whom travelled a considerable distance, in order to be present at it. The fineness of the weather attracted considerable numbers about the Palace at an early hour. The Marshalmen, the Under Porters, the Gentlemen Porters, the Sergeant Porters, the Pages, &c. attended at the palace in their respective uniforms. The King's guard, with their state colours, with the band of the third regiment of Foot Guards in full uniforms, marched into the Palace Courtyard at one o'clock; about the same time a Captain's Guard of the Life Guards, preceeded by their magnificent band, took up their station in the open space in front of the Palace at the South end of St. James's -street; the two bands performed alternately during the afternoon. At So early as 12 o'clock, several carriages had arrived at the palace; the gates were not thrown open till one o'clock, and the company immediately began sitting down, and continued so to do till past three, without any intermission. A party of the Yeoman Guard, headed by Mr. Monck, the Exon in waiting, were stationed in the Guard-room, in their Coronation uniform. A party of the Honourable Corps of Gentlemen at arms lined the Presence Chamber.

We understand that the Duke of Wellington suffers no Treasury Minute to stand over; they are all answered on the day when they can make consistent with the despatch of the general business, and Mr. Herries has submitted to the Duke of Wellington, a plan for the simplification of the public accounts, which will also be productive of economy. It is said that a Board of Accomptants, consisting of Mr. Baring's house, and a third individual, are to sit in the Comptroller's office, to examine into the details of the Treasury office and those of the other public departments, with a view to their simplification and reduction.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.—The work of retrenchment has already commenced at the War Office. It has been customary hitherto to employ the office messengers in folding the various forms after they are received from the Stationary Office, into double and treble folds, envelopes, &c. as may be required by the clerks for their greater convenience, and for expediting business. For this duty they were paid a certain sum in addition to their regular salaries, for working during extra hours. Lord Palmerston, however, has issued an order that from the 27th of March, they are to perform the work of folding, &c. without extra pay, each man taking a week's duty in turn. Although this change may at first view appear insignificant to those who are not acquainted with the business of of the office, it is one of considerable importance as it affects the regulations.

On Friday, the Finance Committee was engaged from twelve to four, examining Lord Palmerston, respecting the War-Office, the payment of the troops, agency, &c. On Saturday the Sub-Committee was employed in ascertaining the amount of half-pay, pensions, and allowances, now payable on the military and civil branches of the service.

It is reported that the Committee of Finance has presented a strong remonstrance against the intended removal of the Victualing Department from this to the Gosport side of the harbour, as a measure which must be attended, immediately or remotely, with an immense expenditure of public money—it is said £ 400,000,—in a manner uncalled for by the public service.—Hampshire Telegraph.

The Finance Committee, and also the Metropolitan Police Committee, will sit in the Easter holidays, for the purpose of preparing their Reports, which are expected to be presented to the House of Commons soon after the recess, It is understood that both Committees have made great progress in their labours.

The Finance Committee adjourned on Wednesday last until Tuesday, the 15th inst. They have examined into the principal branches of the Navy, Army and Ordnance, of what may be called the effective force, with the view of being able to report to the house after the recess. They have not yet taken up the subject of dead weight, half-pay and pensions, which form so very heavy a part of the public charge, and which will require to be dealt with so as to prevent the ruin which must overtake our finances, if from year to year that charge is to increase as her direct commerce shall pay in Brazil the duties of import and export, and the duties of every kind, only according to the rates levied on the direct and national trade of the most favored nation, rates which by other treaties are for the most part fixed at 15 per cent. instead of 24 per cent. on all merchandize imported for consumption.—The Hanseatic Republics not having put any restriction on the indirect commerce of the Brazils, and the Brazilian Government not being able, in the present state of her commercial relations, to grant to the indirect commerce of these republics the same latitude and a perfect reciprocity, it is agreed that the said indirect commerce shall in the mean time be restricted, and shall only extend to nations whose direct commerce is, or shall be, favored in the Brazilian ports by particular treaties.

The purport of which the Duke of Wellington is to be examined by the Finance Committee, relates, as we hear, to the ordnance works going on in Canada. It is therefore as late Master General of the Ordnance, and not as First Lord of the Treasury, that his attendance is required.

We have just seen a letter from the celebrated Author of "The Ayrshire Legatees, &c." to his friend, Sir A. HALLIDAY, dated from the Office of the Canada Company at Guelph, U. C. the 16th of January. As this letter gives a very favourable account of the commencement of a new City, which may yet be the Capital of a mighty Empire, we have a pleasure in laying before our readers that account in the Author's own delightful style.—London Star.

"CANADA COMPANY'S OFFICE,

"GUELPH, U. C. Jan. 14. 1828.

"On last St. George's Day, I had the axe to the foot of one of the stateliest trees I could find in the depth of a tract of the Canada Company's land, and laid the foundation of a town, to which, in honour of the Royal Family, I gave the name of their patronimic. It stands on the banks of a beautiful fast flowing stream, which I have called the Speed, in our noble land of rivers. And now that the woods have been cleared, the situation has proved exceedingly beautiful. The rise of the place has no parallel, even in the States of New-York. The population already amounts to upwards of 1000 souls. Catholic, Episcopalian, and a Presbyterian Church are being erected; a handsome school-house, and upwards of 100 dwelling houses of the inhabitants. "The cry is still they come." The approach to this hereafter metropolis to be, is one of the most Babylonian avenues probably in the known world. It is an open glade, cut through the forest, about 150 feet in width, the trees on each side being from 120 to 150 feet high, seven miles in length, presenting an effect, on entering it, hardly conceivable. An American post-boy, on entering it with me, pulled up his horses, and looking back, exclaimed, "What an almighty place!"

"But it is not mere to tell you this that I wrote you at this time; I am greatly desirous to foster loyal and British feelings in the settlement; and acting upon the rule of 'Train up a child,' &c. I wish you would take occasion to mention this to the Duke of Clarence, as the Royal Highness that it might have good influence on the minds of the rising generation, were his Majesty to send a bust or portrait of himself, to be placed in the school-room; indeed my wish is to get as many portraits of the Royal Family as I can, for that purpose, the endowment of the school, as the settlement proceeds, renderings it probable that it will one day become a seminary of some importance."

IMPORTANT COMMERCIAL TREATY.

From a London paper.

We expect to have, in a few days, a copy of the treaty between the Brazils and the Hanse Towns—meanwhile, we insert a copy of the sixth article, as particularly interesting to British commerce, and likely to afford employment to some of our ships, which are unable to obtain freights.

This article provides that the vessels of favoured nations—that is, of nations having treaties with Brazil—are to be allowed to carry the produce of that county to Bremen, Hamburg and Lubeck, and to take in return any goods from those entrepots of Germany.—Now England and France are the only nations so circumstanced.—France has not enough of vessels for her own trade. Not one French vessel entered Hamburg last year, while between 500 and 600 English arrived there. This article, in fact, concedes the indirect trade of the north of Germany and Brazil, to British shipping.—Brazil the most productive country in America. It may be asked, why did the Hanse Towns ask for this boon, and the Brazils grant it? The cause is evident. Neither the Hanse Towns nor the Brazils have shipping enough for this trade. The object of the former is commerce rather than navigation, (although she might nationalize by her flag for this trade, if she chose to lend her flag, which is evidently not her policy,) to encourage the depots at Bremen and Hamburgh, those trading bazars of Northern Europe;—while Brazil feels that whatever attracts wealth and facilitates the introduction of it into her own country, eminently promotes her prosperity. We have reason to know, that the feeling was to benefit the British shipping; and the Hanse Towns from their perpetual intercourse with England, and from the large British Capital involved in the Hanseatic trade with this country (one third of that with Europe,) naturally lean to those who support them. In short both parties feel that the one is necessary to the other, and the Hanse Towns, having an opportunity, did not forget their old friends.

The shipping of the Hanse Towns does not exceed 300 vessels—that of Great Britain exceeds 20,000.—The advantage gained is a reduction from 24 to 15 per cent on goods imported into, and exported from Brazil.

Sixth Article of the Brazilian Treaty.—"All merchandize whatever, without distinction of origin, imported from the ports of Lubecck, Bremen, or Hamburg, into Brazil, or from Brazil into these ports in Hanseatic vessels, or in vessels belonging to a nation favored in Brazil will scarcely sleeping. At twelve o'clock on Thursday, both prisoners were brought from their cells to the drop, in front of the Gaol. Walsh attended by the Rev. E. Brenan and Lacy by the Rev. John Baldwin,—to the exhortations of the Clergyman, both gave the greatest attention. They were led pinioned to the drop, more than usual precaution having been taken to surround the gaol, and said that they submitted to their fate—they forgave all that had a share in their prosecution, and called upon the people to pray to God to forgive them their sins, and grant them a happy death. The rope was then placed round their necks, the caps placed upon them, and every person but the criminals withdrew from the drop. An attempt was made by the executioner to withdraw the bolts, which being in some degree in the machinery failed—part of the drop remained standing, but that part on which Walsh stood gliding from under him, the body was immediately suspended, and the wretched man was instantaneously launched into eternity. Lacy was less fortunate and a half, suffering all the pain of strangulation, for although the drop was by great exertion made to fall, and in a few minutes ceased to live. The bodies remained hanging for the usual time—they were then placed on the car, and removed under an escort of the Scots Greys to Cashel Infirmary, for dissection. There they were stripped, and the clothes of the criminals were handed to Connel, when it was ordered they should be burned. The crowd who witnessed the execution conducted themselves with the greatest propriety, not a word nor a murmur was heard but occasionally the silence was disturbed by the shrieks, and cries of the wife of Walsh, who was with the greatest exertion that the father of the unhappy man Lacy was prevented from approaching close to the place of execution.

Yesterday morning the trial of John Keogh and Patrick Keogh brothers, was proceeded with. They were charged with having conspired with Lacy and Walsh, to murder Daniel Mara. The brother of the prisoners, Thomas Keogh, was examined. They were also charged for the same crime; but owing to the small attendance (about 120) of jurors, and the number of challenges that were expected, the trial of the latter was postponed till to-morrow.

The Solicitor General addressed the Court and Jury in a very able and powerful speech. He commented upon the apathy of those who had to act as Jurors in not giving their attendance, and told them that the magistracy, gentry, and all classes should begin to do their duty—the Government had performed its part and it would expect them to do theirs After explaining the parental wishes of Government on this subject, the learned Solicitor entered on behalf of the Crown into the details connected with the murder of Mara, and showed the conspiracy to commit the crime as far as affected the prisoners at the bar, and explained how systematically they had, previous to the murder, prepared the minds of Cody, Keogh going to Tuffica, and telling the murderers while waiting to slay Mara in the grove; That he was going there for a pair of shoes for his mother—and John Keogh going to the forge, where he, in his examination, he admitted he had been the day Mr. Chadwick was murdered—Paddy Keogh, too, was represented as a particular friend of the late Daniel Mara, and that he had been drinking with the unfortunate man the very Sunday before his murder. No doubt or casualty had happened between the parties, and it was the chosen friend of Mara who prepared the plot against his life, for no other offence, than that his brother told the truth.

The witnesses that had appeared on the former trial were then called to substantiate the evidence of Fitzgerald and Ned Ryan, of Ballymorres, the approvers.—The two Maras who were in company with the brother of the unfortunate man, appeared on the table, and Captain Wilson who had examined the prisoners. The Police Serjeant who apprehended Jack Keogh stated that when he first questioned him about this business, Keogh said he knew very well they would be looking after him, but he defied them.

For the defence witnesses were called to prove the prisoners were at their respective places, Thurles and the forge, at the time the murder was committing

At a quarter to eleven Judge Moore addressed the Jury, who at a late hour this morning brought in a verdict of guilty against both prisoners. As it was Sunday morning when the verdict was found, the Judge postponed passing sentence until Monday.

Yesterday, a man named Leonard was tried before Serjeant Lefroy, and convicted of murder. The unfortunate man fainted while sentence of death was passing upon him.

inquired whether any, and what proceeds had taken place since January, with reference to the negotiations between the United States and Great Britain on the subject of the Commercial intercourse between the United States and the British West Indies.—Mr. Huskisson replied, that there had been no ulterior communication on the subject between the two governments. He could assure the gentleman that H. M. government was actuated by the most friendly feelings towards America. In a few days certain credentials would be laid before the House, and with the ratification lately received from America relative to regulating the question of the North West Boundary, and other points of moment.

In a discussion which took place on the 22d, on the Corn bill, a motion to amend by substituting the bill of last year, was rejected by a majority of 144.

Canada.—Mr. Huskisson postponed his motion for a select committee to inquire into the present state of civil government in the Canadas, until the 25th.

Ireland,

CLONMEL ASSIZES

EXECUTION OF PATRICK LACY AND JOHN WALSH.

Clonmel, April 5.—It was an early hour on Tuesday morning, (four o'clock) that sentence of death was passed on those men, for the barbarous murder of Daniel Mara,—They were conducted under a strong guard of the Scots Greys and the Infantry stationed in this town, to the gaol—where they were attended by the Rev. Edward Brenan. Upon being led to their cells, both threw themselves on their knees, and from that moment began to prepare themselves for the awful and certain death that in a few hours awaited them. At this late hour they continued in the last moment—seldom partaking of the slightest nourishment, and scarcely sleeping. At twelve o'clock on Thursday, both prisoners were brought from their cells to the drop, in front of the Gaol. Walsh attended by the Rev. E. Brenan and Lacy by the Rev. John Baldwin,—to the exhortations of the Clergyman, both gave the greatest attention. They were led pinioned to the drop, more than usual precaution having been taken to surround the gaol, and said that they submitted to their fate—they forgave all that had a share in their prosecution, and called upon the people to pray to God to forgive them their sins, and grant them a happy death. The rope was then placed round their necks, the caps placed upon them, and every person but the criminals withdrew from the drop. An attempt was made by the executioner to withdraw the bolts, which being in some degree in the machinery failed—part of the drop remained standing, but that part on which Walsh stood gliding from under him, the body was immediately suspended, and the wretched man was instantaneously launched into eternity. Lacy was less fortunate and a half, suffering all the pain of strangulation, for although the drop was by great exertion made to fall, and in a few minutes ceased to live. The bodies remained hanging for the usual time—they were then placed on the car, and removed under an escort of the Scots Greys to Cashel Infirmary, for dissection. There they were stripped, and the clothes of the criminals were handed to Connel, when it was ordered they should be burned. The crowd who witnessed the execution conducted themselves with the greatest propriety, not a word nor a murmur was heard but occasionally the silence was disturbed by the shrieks, and cries of the wife of Walsh, who was with the greatest exertion that the father of the unhappy man Lacy was prevented from approaching close to the place of execution.

APRIL 7.

Thomas Maher was arraigned on Monday for conspiring to murder Daniel Mara—Counsellor Hatchell moved on behalf of the Prisoner, that he might be allowed to withdraw the plea of Not Guilty, and plead guilty—to this motion the Solicitor General on the part of the Crown assented.—The prisoner was then placed at the Bar, and on his arraignment pleaded guilty—the Solicitor General moved the Court that sentence of death might be recorded against the prisoner, but not pronounced.

APRIL 9.—William Grace, James Daniel, and Michael Lobe, were placed at the bar, and pleaded guilty, to the charges against them for having conspired to procure the murder of Daniel Mara—sentence of death was recorded against them.

Peery Grace for the same offence was then placed at the bar, and after a very able address from the Solicitor General, and witnesses nearly the same as on former trials had been examined, the Learned Judge addressed the Jury, who returned with a verdict of guilty against the prisoner.

Upon the Jury returning their verdict, the Solicitor General moved his Lordship that sentence of death should be pronounced on this prisoner the next day.

Judge Moore—I shall be so.

Prisoner—I have one request to make, that your Lordship will give my body to my parents.

Judge Moore—I cannot do so.

Prisoner—Then I give my body to my father.

Judge Moore—I will explain it to you.—After conviction, your life, your property, and your body belong to the Crown.

Prisoner—Well, Lord have mercy on my soul.

Judge Moore—Remove him.

On Monday sentence of death was recorded against Michael and Patrick Higgins and Daniel Gleeson, who were convicted of shooting at James Beaumont with intent to kill him.

Patrick Ryan, for the murder of James Conway near Ardmayle, was tried and acquitted.

On thursday, Michael Stapleton was tried and convicted of a highway robbery, and of entering with intent to murder Patrick Ryan—he was sentenced to be hanged, and no hopes of mercy held out.

On Saturday, after some minor cases were tried before Mr. Sergeant Lefroy, Rich. Leonard and John Quinlish were indicted for the murder of Darby Treacy, near Roscrea—Quinlish was acquitted, and Leonard found Guilty of the murder; the dreadful sentence of the law was immediately pronounced in the most awful and impressive manner, and the unfortunate man was affected to fainting. On Monday evening he was executed in front of the gaol, and his body given to the Surgeons of the County Infirmary for dissection.

The clothes of the murderers, Lacy and Walsh (executed on Thursday) were burned in the gaol on the following day. About 190 prisoners remain yet for trial.

CORK ASSIZES.—April 9.

MOST ATROCIOUS MURDER.

John Unjacke and James Cody, were given in charge for the murder of Michael O'Neill, at Templevalley, on the 16 of March. There were two counts in the indictment. In the former John Unjacke was charged as the principal, and James Cody, in aiding and assisting; in the latter, James Cody was charged as the principal, and John Unjacke as aiding and assisting.—The death of the deceased was stated to have been caused by several gunshot wounds, received on the breast.

A number of witnesses were then examined, and the following confession of one of the murderers, after some legal argument, was handed in and read :—

CONFESSION OF JAMES CODY.

"The voluntary declaration of James Cody, of Knockrouse, in the County of Waterford, and now about seventeen years of age.—I, the said James Cody do declare, that about a fortnight ago, I mentioned to John Unjacke, of Knockrouse aforesaid, that we would not have any luck until we knocked Mick Neil's brains out. I further declare that I, accompanied by the said John Unjacke, went repeatedly on the nights within the last fortnight, to the house of Michael Neil, late of Templevalley, for the purpose of shooting the said Michael Neil, with whom we had several quarrels, and that we were prevented from so doing by having his children about him near the fire, and that we saw through the window, and that on the evening of the 16 March instant, I proposed to the said Unjacke that I would bring him the gun for the purpose of shooting the said Michael Neil, to which Unjacke assented; that I accordingly brought him the gun early in the night of said day, and gave it to him the said Unjacke, at the gate at the end of the little road above said Neil's house, and that we both went to the rear of said house, where there was a window, through which Unjacke looked in; upon which I retired through a hedge, and threw myself among some briars for the purpose of hiding myself where I remained, when the said John Unjacke fired a shot upon which I ran away, and did not see Unjacke again until we met at his house in about half an hour after that, I ate my supper, we went to bed and remained there until nine or ten o'clock next morning when we heard Michael Neil was killed."

JAMES CODY,

Present—J. B. KETSON.

The case for the Crown having closed, Mr. O'Connell called some witnesses on the part of the prisoner, after which the Jury retired for about twenty minutes, when they brought in a verdict of Guilty.

EXECUTION

April 5.—This day, at about a quarter past one o'clock, the sentence of the law was carried into execution, at the front of the County Prison, on John Unjacke and James Cody, found Guilty on Thursday, of the murder of Michael O'Neil. The relationship of the parties to each other, made this a shocking and distressing case. The culprits had been brother in law to the man they murdered; and the prosecutrix, on whose testimony they were convicted, was widow to deceased, and sister to Cody, and sister in law to Unjacke, (sister to his wife). Their rank was that of decent farmers. About 12 o'clock, their friends were admitted to them to take their leave, and this scene was a sad one, as regarded Unjacke. He had to bid farewell to his mother, his brother and sister his wife and his infant child of five days old. The child was here baptised, the brother and sister standing sponsors. When christened he took the babe and kissed it, and said, "when you are able to speak, your mother will teach you to pray for your unfortunate father."—The wife remained with him after the others had retired, and her conduct was calculated to excite one's admiration. She addressed him, and most edifyingly spoke with him all the while stifling her own sorrow. At length she had to take her last brave, which she did, preserving herself until she left his presence. Unlucky made no declaration further than that he forgave the world. Cody declared he was the cause of all. They now moved up stairs leading to the gallows, the Rev. Mr. O'Connor by the side of Unlucky, and the Rev. Mr. Drinan with Cody. On coming in view of the awful apparatus, Unlucky looked stedfastly up to it, but in no degree gave way. He ascended to the platform with a firm step, which firmness, continued to him to the last. The silk ropes lately arrived to the City Sheriffs, were used with them; but in consequence of their being found short, a stool was obliged to be put under them, to give them something of a fall. Unlucky took hold of Cody's hand as soon as the cap was drawn over his face, and the Rev. Mr. O'connor took Cody's other hand. On Mr. O'Connor taking away his hand, when he was about to descend the ladder, he called out for his hand again or he should fall; he was shaking terribly. Mr. O'Connor again took him by the hand, which he held until it dropped from him. Unlucky was a decent looking young fellow, 24 years of age. Cody was rather a stupid boy, aged 17.—There was a vast number of spectators.

CITY COURT. April 5

Jeremiah Lynch and Michael Neale, for a conspiracy to burn the house of Industry, and on a second count for burning the house of Industry.

After the examination of three witnesses, one of whom saw Neale put a burning rag into some hemp. The Learned Judge informed the Jury that the prisoners were not capitally indicted. If they had been indicted for burning the place, it would affect their lives. If Lynch ever agreed to burn the place, he was guilty; but if there was no agreement to burn the place, they must be acquitted, because there could have been no conspiracy Guilty—sentence not passed, but his Lordship said it should be the heaviest the law would permit.

The assizes closed on Tuesday.

Daniel Hyland, convicted of horse-stealing, was sentenced to be executed. He was tried for the same offence 17 years since, and had stolen 60 horses.

Wm. Turrant, who had pleaded guilty to the charge of manslaughter, for the murder of his wife, was also brought up and sentenced to be transported for life.

Frederick Johnson, a soldier in the 22d regt at Kinsale, has confessed having been engaged with two others to the murder of the late Mr. May Lee, of Wells, Surgeon and Accoucheur, eight years since.

Foreign Intelligence.

Letters from Bucharest of the 13th March say—"It is reported here to-day that a division of the Russians encamped near Reni on the Danube, and have taken possession of several Turkish vessels, and captured some provisions."

Accounts from Vienna of the 9th of April, are to this effect: Government this day received intelligence from the frontiers of Transylvania, which are not, however, official. The news is that the Russians had crossed the Danube with 18,000 men, near Galatz, and destroyed at Moszius all the Magazines and Depots of the Serashier of Selistria. The reports caused the Bank actions to fall to 1003 & 1002.

CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES.

Paris, April 14.

The Minister of the finance made the following speech:

"All the States of Europe want peace—all want to preserve it—nevertheless the affairs of Turkey have caused the relations of several powers to become complicated and to this fact France ought not to remain a stranger.

"It is not while some of the States are already in arms, and when other powers are so immediately, that we can repose, while events are passing, with a tranquility unaccompanied by any precaution. We ought to prepare ourselves to act up to all the conditions of conservative policy.

"Every thing justifies the King in hoping that the acts of the different Powers, whether combined or isolated, will have but one object, that of fulfilling treaties, of securing the general tranquility, and maintaining that just equilibrium which is indispensable to the repose of Europe. It is only with these views that His Majesty has recommended us to call on you for the necessary means for providing a suitable force by land and by sea.

"Private interests will experience no alarm on account of measures dictated by prudence, and by the general interest. They will find new reasons for confidence in their security, from the care which the Government will take of its dignity, the first condition and the first pledge of the peace and prosperity in the country.

"The King, Gentlemen, has commanded me to present to you the project of a law, which I now shall have the honor of reading:

"Art. 1. The Minister of Finance is authorised to inscribe in the great book of the public debt of France to the amount of four million of rentes, at 5 per cent., the interest to commence from March 22, 1828, the produce of which shall be applied to the extraordinary expenses which may be authorised in 1828, in the form preserved by Article 152 of the Law of the 25th March, 1819.

"Art. 2. An account shall be furnished in the Session of 1829, of the realization, and of the application of all or part of this loan. The rentes on which it is to be raised, can only be disposed of by public competition, upon to competition in the forms followed for the alienation of the rentes disposed of by the Treaty of August 9, 1821.

"Art. 3. The annual sum of 40,000,000, fixed by the law of the 25th March, 1817, for the sinking fund, and the funded debt, is raised to the sum of 40,400,000 francs, to commence from the same date,—March 22, 1828."

"Paris, April 16.—We have just received, by express, a Letter from Vienna of the 7th of April. The report in the capital is of a movement of the Russian Army in advance. Decidedly, the first corps, which are composed of the 8th and 14th divisions, are to pass the Pruth on the morning of the 14th. A Proclamation from the Emperor is announced to the army which is preparing to receive him.

The Courier of the 18th has the following article:—

"Despatches from St. Petersburgh were yesterday received by Prince Lieven. They are said in the city to announce the passage of the Pruth. There has not, for weeks past, been any doubt that the Russians would cross the Pruth as soon as the weather permitted them. Whether they cross it in ten days or sooner it is of little moment. It is the passage of the Danube that will be of the most importance, and we trust that the Emperor will pause before he takes this last step, the consequence of which is looked forward to with such anxiety, by all those powers which are desirous of preserving the peace of Europe."

LATEST FROM ENGLAND.

By the arrival at Boston on the 19th instant of the Packet ship Amethyst, from Liverpool, whence she sailed on the 21st ultimo, London dates to the 20th and Liverpool to the day of her sailing have been received.

It was said a measure would soon be proposed to Parliament, by which the Roman Catholic question would be put at rest, in a manner to satisfy moderate men of all parties.

No news have been received of the passage of the Pruth; and hope was felt of the possibility of an accommodation. Austria and Prussia, it is said, unite their voices with those of the Allies, to induce Turkey to consent to the independence of Greece; and their efforts are the more likely to be successful, because Russia, by a peace with Persia, is enabled to turn her enormous and undivided force against the Ottoman Porte.

The peace between Russia and Persia has put money into the coffers and added two provinces to the vast empire of the former power. They are to be called the province of Armenia. Russia has also the main chain of the Ararat Mountains, and all the rich salt mines.

According to an article from Odessa, of the 22d March, in a German Gazettee, war has been declared against the Porte. This however does not allude to any fresh declaration, but to a reply, published in St. Petersburgh, to the Turkish Manifesto, and which was considered a sufficient indication of the intentions of Russia.

More than 100 transports of different nations had been placed at the disposal of the Russian Government, and were taking in provisions at Odessa for the army.

The Paris papers continue to speak of an expedition to Algiers or the Mores, but the London Courier discredits the report, and states that the activity in the military department is to raise the army to its full peace establishment of 240 or 250,000.

Mr. Stratford Canning is said to be certainly going on a Foreign Mission, as soon as he receives his final instructions. He is expected to proceed first to Corfu.

The recall of the Prussian Envoy, M. de Militz, from Constantinople, is confirmed. He has incurred, it is said, the displeasure of his sovereign, in consequence of his having suffered Turkey to believe that if she declared war against Russia, she might expect the support of other powers. It is supposed that the Austrian Minister will also be recalled from Constantinople, in order to afford the most public evidence that the Austrian Cabinet is influenced by the same policy as the Prussian.

The accounts from Alexandria, states that Egypt continued to enjoy the same tranquility as before the late events. It is believed this state of things will continue as long as the present Pacha lives, who, being a man of extraordinary firmness, will, it is said, if possible, prevent the people from committing any excesses against the Franks.

There is no longer any doubt of the fate of Major Laing and Capt. Clapperton, the enterprising but unfortunate travellers in Africa, both have been murdered. It appears that Maj. Laing was severely wounded by robbers in the territory of Toualt. He however was able to reach Timbuctoo, where he had scarcely arrived before the Foulahs, a horde which reigns over the immense deserts of Central Africa, came to the number of 30,000, and demanded Maj. Laing, to put him to death; to prevent, as they said, Christian nations from receiving such information as might enable them to penetrate into, and enslave the countries of Africa. His host, however contrived Major Laing's escape by night, escorted by servants who were supposed to be faithful. One of them, unfortunately, had been bribed by the Foulahs, and not only delivered his trust into their hands but gave him the first stab, under, which he fell. Clapperton was murdered at Sakatoo, the residence of the Sultan, notwithstanding the kind reception he received from the ruler on his first visit.

The Earl of Dalhousie, present Governor of the Canadas, is again said to be going to India as Governor.

Sir Walter Scott was in London at the latest dates.

The King was to hold a drawing room on the 22d, and soon after was to give a juvenile ball.

The Duke of Cumberland, King of Hanover, was shortly expected in England.

Mademoiselle Sontag was drawing crowded houses at the Opera house.

The Madras Courier says, "the Mahah Rajah had been, by dint of intimidation, induced to affix his signature to an unconditional surrender of himself and country to the British Government.

There is no intelligence from Portugal of the least importance.

The Courier states that orders have been despatched from England to Portugal, for the evacuation of the forts at the mouth of the Tagus, which it has been supposed to be the intention of the British to hold for the present.—This will be sad news for the Constitutionalists.

STILL LATER FROM ENGLAND.

London papers to the 28th of April, have been received at Boston. Their contents are not important.

A tax on foreign wool is proposed in Great Britain, and two members of Parliament have given notice of their intention to submit a motion to that effect: they will be strongly opposed by the manufacturing interests.

A British forward to with such anxiety, by all those powers which are desirous of preserving the peace of Europe." frigate had sailed from Plymouth, to cruise off the Island of Ascension and the Cape de Verde, in search of the piratical brig which lately plundered two British merchantmen.

The London Courier contradicts the accounts of the murder of Major Laing and Clapperton, and says they have no other foundation than a report to the same effect, inserted in the Paris Etoile, 15 months ago.

Considerable alarm had been excited at Leeds by intimation that the Landed Interests was about to make a formal application to obtain the imposition of a duty on Foreign wool, for the protection of the home grower. The manufacturers were extremely jealous of the overwhelming influence of the landed interests of both houses of Parliament.

Another date of Odessa. March 31, it is said, "Every body here considers the war with Turkey as entirely decided upon. The vessels freighted by our government have sailed for the Crimea to take in troops and ammunition, and convey them to the mouth of the Danube.—However, it was thought that the passage of the Pruth would not take place before the latter end of next month."

It was affirmed at St. Petersburgh that the bases of the Russian intervention were fixed and determined between the three Allied Courts, in such a manner as to leave the treaty of the 6th of July subsisting in all its force. It was publicly said at St. Petersburg, that after the occupation of Moldavia and Wallachia, positive proposals for an arrangement would be made, and that the Russian army would halt on the banks of the Danube.

PARLIAMENTARY RECOLLECTIONS.

No. 1.

It is not my intention in these "recollections" to enter into any thing like a detailed history of the Parliament of this Province, nor have I laid down for myself any fixed plan for relating those parts of its proceedings, to which I may have occasion to allude. The transactions more immediately connected with late events, are those which at the present moment may be deemed of the greatest importance, and these have attracted my attention in a particular manner. In referring to them, it will be necessary for me to allude to the votes and conduct of "honorable Members," but in doing so, I disclaim all "bitterness of invitcive." Some have erred, from a want of better judgment, and a more extensive knowledge and experience in "affairs of State." Of some it would be worse than useless to argue, that such an apology can be offered for them—and of others, the best comment that can be made upon their conduct, will be found, when ere long, they shall again meet the people, to render an account of their Stewardship.

On the eve of an approaching Election, it becomes the duty of all who have a right to exercise the invaluable privilege of the elective franchise, to review the conduct of those, whom on the last occasion they honored with their suffrages, and into whose hands they placed the well being of the Country; and if on an impartial review of the manner in which they have discharged the highly responsible trust committed to their care, it should appear, that either from an unbending opposition to useful measures, they have been instrumental in retarding the improvement of the country—or from party views, in which more of self is mixed, than a desire for the general welfare, obstacles have been thrown in the way—unimportant and frivolous—then it is, that it becomes the duty of the Elector, to consider maturely, whether, by again extending his suffrage to the same persons, or such as are actuated by similar views, he is making a discreet use of his elective franchise, or promoting as far as his individual voice can do it, either his own interest, or the general welfare of the Province.

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1828.

Our latest dates are from Liverpool, to 28th April, but they do not contain any very important news. In the House of Commons, Mr. Huskisson's motion on Canadian affairs, was postponed to 25th April.

On Tuesday last His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor arrived in the Queenston from Kingston, where His Excellency reviewed the Troops in that Garrison. On Wednesday His Excellency inspected the 68th Regiment at this Post, and was pleased to express His approbation of the high state of discipline, observed in this distinguished Corps. On the following morning His Excellency embarked on board the Canada, for Stamford, under a salute from the York Garrison.

His Majesty's Schooner Cockburn, bearing the broad Pennant of Commodore Barrie, entered this port on Monday last, and on landing at the Garrison, the Commodore was received by a Salute, which was returned from the Schooner. The Yacht Bull/rog was in company with the Cockburn.

Commodore Barrie proceeds by land to Lake Simcoe, and thence on a tour of inspection at the several Naval Depots on the Lakes.

During the last week, several families of Emigrants arrived from Great Britain by the Spring Shipping at Quebec, have reached York. The new schooner George the Fourth, landed nearly one hundred persons, beside those which have been brought up by the Steam-Boats and other vessels. We bid them welcome to our shores, and although we are aware, that many privations, and difficulties must attend them, in making a Settlement among us, we would nevertheless cheer them with the hope that, the endurance of these for a time, inseparably connected as they are with their new mode of life, will eventually terminate to their advantage, and that of their families, and that patient and persevering industry, in so where more likely to be crowned with success, and comparative comfort and independence, than in Upper Canada. While on this subject, we cannot refrain from alluding to the very reprehensible conduct of the Master of one of our Lake Schooners, who regardless of the consequences to several families who had taken passage from Prescott for York on board his vessel, landed a body of Emigrant Settlers, on Gibraltar point, during the last week, instead of putting them with their baggage on one of the Wharves in the harbor, in consequence of which, women and helpless children were exposed during a whole night, to the violence of a tremendous Storm of Rain, without any shelter, and from ignorance of their situation, unable to get to the Town. On Tuesday morning, the Schooner Catharine, Capt. Campbell, relieved them from their uncomfortable situation, and landed them safely in York. The owner of the Vessel, whose commander has acted in this unjustifiable manner, will we are satisfied, on the circumstances coming to his knowledge, take such steps, as will prevent the recurrence of such conduct.

"The Stranger," with his family, seeking a home among us, is entitled on every account to all the comfort and attention which it may be in our power to offer him, and as this is the first instance, so we hope it may be the last, when he shall have occasion to complain of their having been withheld from him.

A shocking occurrence took place in the Streets of this Town on Wednesday night last. A man by the name of Nowlen, an Irish laborer, was shot by Charles French, a Journeyman Printer, who discharged a pistol at him, the contents of which lodged in Nowlan's body. Medical aid was promptly rendered to the unfortunate man, who, after suffering a good deal of pain, died in about eighteen hours after receiving the wound. It appears that Nowlan and French were both in the Theatre on Wednesday night; and, after leaving it, according to the dying man's declaration, he was met in the Street, at about midnight, by a person who asked him if his name was Nowlan, and on replying in the affirmative, a pistol was discharged at him by this person, whom he believed to be Charles French.—Some previous misunderstanding and quarrel, seems to have taken place between the parties, but on the present occasion Nowlan declared to a Magistrate, that he had not given any provocation.

On Thursday Morning, a Warrant for the apprehension of French was issued from the Police Office, but he was not to be found in the Town. A Constable then proceeded in search of him into the Country, but did not discover him. In the course of the morning however, he appeared at the Police Office, in company with Mr Wyman, and stated, that he had accompanied Wyman without resistance, and made a voluntary surrender of himself, admitting on his Examination, that he was the person who discharged the Pistol at Nowlan, but not with an intent to kill him, and that the fire-did so, in consequence of some previous provocation, and assault upon him by Nowlan, and from the circumstances that he suspected that Nowlan at the time, had on his person, a pair of tongs or something of the kind, with which he intended to do him some injury.

In the course of examination it appeared that French had obtained the pistol from a young man by the name of William D Forrest, who was seen with it in his pocket in the Theatre, in company with French. Forrest was then brought up for examination, and stated that he had lent a Pistol to French, which had previously been given to him by one Gosling to take care of, but that he was not aware of its being loaded.

Under these circumstances the sitting Magistrate Alex. Mac Donagh Esq. committed French finally and Forrest for further examination on Friday morning.

At this moment the Coroner's Inquest is sitting upon the body of the deceased, (Nowlan,) and if their verdict is returned before making up our columns, we shall communicate further particulars.

In making arrangements for the publication of a new paper, we have had a respite of one short week, from our Editorial labors.—During this time, the Editor of the Observer, has thought it the most fitting opportunity, to allude in a most extraordinary manner, to some remarks we offered, weeks since, on Mr. Wilson's Address at the Gore Election Meeting.

In the extracts we made from that address, nothing applying personally to the Observer, is to be found; and his calling upon us to account for Mr. Wilson's language in some parts of it, where he has thought proper to speak in other than general terms, is perfectly absurd.—Mr. Wilson is answerable himself, for his own language, to any person who may take offence at it—we have nothing to do with it. Of some of the general expressions in his address, we have no hesitation in again repeating, however it may ongle the Observer—that "they are not proper than circumstances warrant."

But when a foolcap is thrown into the crowd, he who picks it up, and places it on his head, must expect to be laughed at, and truly the Observer has been in marvellous haste, to make it fit himself on this occasion, and now complains, that we are to blame for it.

As to Mr. Wilson's ideas of "Carey selling himself to the Government" we took no notice of them, and for the best reasons in the world. We were quite satisfied that it had too much good sense, to purchase a useless article, and that if it were even otherwise, it has too high a sense of what is due to its own dignity to descend to such a traffic.

With respect to the "documents" which the Observer says were taken out of his hands to be printed at our Office, from the "Upper House," we shall tell him once for all, that however willing we may be to extend the common courtesies of business to others, we shall not at any time hesitate to consult the interest of our own establishment, by fair and honorable means, and that we have never used any other, Mr. Carey well knows.

"How beautiful is truth."—This motto was some time since adopted by the Editor of the Colonial Advocate—but however he may assent to its beauty, as an abstract maxim, in practice he appears to honor it "more in the breach, than the observance."—In one of his last numbers, we find the following exemplification of what we are saying.—He is publishing a thing he calls "The Legislative Black List of Upper Canada," and determined to let no occasion pass, which he thinks may afford him an opportunity of prejudicing the public mind against us, he boldly asserts to the world, that the following is a vote of the House of Assembly, on an Election, at which we acted as Returning Officer:—

"No. 18. Vote on Mr. R. STANTON'S conduct.

"2 Resolved, that the conduct of the Returning Officer, in refusing to allow Marshal S. Bidwell, Esq. to be polled at the said Election, was an illegal assumption of power, in violation of his duty, and a high breach of the privileges of this House, as well as an infringement of the rights of the whole body of Electors of this Province.—Carried by a majority of 25."

Thus it stands in the Colonial Advocate.—Now for the illustration of the favorite mode of its veracious Editor.

The Election alluded to, is we have no doubt in the recollection of most persons, and that the Returning Officer, adjourned the Poll, (for a Poll was granted to Mr. Bidwell, notwithstanding the Advocate's assertion to the contrary, and upwards of five hundred votes, entered for him in the Poll-book) over the Good Friday and Sunday, which intervened during the week.—The Election was subsequently declared illegal, and the Resolutions passed was as follows—mark how different from that given in the advocate—no doubt as the Truth:—

"Resolved that in the opinion of this House, the conduct of the Returning Officer, at the late Election for the incorporated counties of L. and A., in adjourning the Poll from Thursday to Saturday morning and from Saturday to Monday in the week following, was improper and illegal, and consequently a breach of the privileges of this House, and in as much as no proof has been offered to this House, that the conduct of the said Returning Officer was corrupt and malicious upon that occasion, no further notice will be taken of it."

It may not be improper to add, that in the same Session in which this Resolution was passed, a Law was also passed, declaring that in future, Sunday, Good Friday, and Christmas, should be excepted, in the event of their occurring during an Election, the best evidence that could be given, that although there was a fault in the election, it was strictly speaking, not be attributed to any malpractice in the Returning Officer, but rather to a defect in the Law, which had not before excepted even Sunday.

We cannot better close this article, than with the same words, which commenced it, and by recommending a more practical observance of them to the Advocate.—" How beautiful is Truth."

The appearance of the first number of our paper, under the new arrangement, is such as we hope will prove satisfactory to our readers. We can assure them, that we have not spared any pains, on our part, to render it acceptable to them. A very considerable addition to our expenses, will necessarily be incurred in the publication of such a paper; but we trust, that our endeavors will be fully compensated, by punctuality on the part of those, whose support can alone enable us to continue those endeavors. We take this opportunity of returning our thanks for the liberal patronage which has heretofore been afforded us, and for the addition which has been made to it, in the names of several new Subscribers.

To Correspondents.—Northumberland is in type and will appear in our next.

His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland and suite arrived in town yesterday in the Queenston from Niagara. This forenoon the General inspected the Royal Artillery; and on Monday morning previous to his departure in the Queenston, will, we understand, review the 71st Highland Light Infantry, the second division of which landed on Point Frederick this morning from Lower Canada, under Captain Grant.—Kingston Chronicle.

Fatal Accident.—On Saturday evening as a party of persons were engaged in raising the frame of a barn in the Township of Oakland, one of the bents fell and killed one of the party, named Hugh Malcolm, brother of Mr. Finlay Malcolm of that neighbourhood. The deceased has left a Widow and several small children.—Cure Gazette.

Domestic.

We are sorry to notice from the following extract of a letter, dated Liverpool 16th April, from a respectable house there to a gentleman in this city, that complaints are now made of the careless inspection of flour, and of the manner in which it is shipped. This would make it requisite on the part of the Board of Trade to investigate this evil, and we doubt, not but that from the spirit and intelligence, which they have devoted to matters connected with the Trade, they will be enabled to devise some remedy as efficacious as has lately been done to improve the character of Canada ashes.

The advantages which are supposed to result from the inspection of the important produce of the country being confined to single individuals, instead of being open to undue competition, would lead us to suggest that the inspection of flour, and also of all kinds of salted provisions packed for exportation should be placed under the direction of one chief inspector, responsible for the acts of such assistants or deputies, as he may find it convenient to employ.

"We could wish that more attention were paid in shipments of flour to this Market—the barrels appear to be often shipped without proper cooperage, and what is worse they are often grossly deficient in weight. Your inspectors should be obliged to weigh every barrel—a matter very speedily done where all should be above a certain weight."—Montreal Gazette.

Canadian Ashes.—We are indebted to a correspondent for the copy of the following resolutions passed by the Bleachers of Manchester, on a subject of vital interest to this country. The bleachers are practical men, evidently not swayed by unworthy prejudices. Their wishes have been anticipated by the proceedings of the Board of Trade here—proceedings which, we trust, will prevent the British Merchant from being "compelled to have recourse to State's Ashes."—Montreal Herald.

Manchester, April 1 1828.

At a Meeting of the Bleachers, held this day at the Windmill Inn, J. H. Ainsworth, Esq. in the Chair it was resolved—

That the Bleachers sustain great loss and inconvenience from the very impure state of the Canadian Ashes, and that in consequence, they are compelled to have recourse to States Ashes.

That viewing the evil consequences resulting not only to themselves, but as the Colony and Merchants trading there, they are induced to recommend to the inspectors a more strict attention to the general quality of the Ashes, and likewise to the assortment of them, "seconds," having been frequently found of equal quality with some branded "firsts."

That the Chairman be requested to communicate with the inspectors upon the subject.

That copies of the above resolution be printed and forwarded to the several inspectors and other persons interested.

J. H. AINSWORTH, Chairman

The Montreal May sale of Teas took place at the Warehouse of the Agents, of the Honorable East India Company, on Saturday last. Of 3847 chests and boxes that were offered, upwards of 3000 were sold at an advance of 1d per lb. on the upset price. The demand was steady; but the number of buyers or the eagerness to purchase; were so great as was to be expected from the late rise in price, of teas in the New-York market.

To Emigrants, who are desirous of sending to England, Ireland, or Scotland for their friends.—Packets, for steerage passengers only, to sail on the 5th and 20th of every month, from Liverpool for New-York.

The Ships composing this Line, are all of the first class, Copper-fastened and Coppered, of about 400 Tons burthen, and as fast Sailers as any Packets in the Trade. They have superior accommodations, being very lofty between decks; are commanded by experienced Masters, whose best endeavors will be to promote the comfort of passengers; and the appointed day of sailing will be strictly adhered to.

The facility and convenience of this establishment to persons residing at a distance, by saving them much delay and expense too often attending the uncertain and protracted departure of a transient Vessel, will, it is hoped, be duly appreciated, and command such a preference and support as will insure its continuance and success.

To Irish Emigrants, this Line is especially recommended, on account of the easy and frequent communication between the Irish Ports and Liverpool, by means of Steam-Boats and Smacks; and to all, it will extend the peculiar advantages of a connexion with respectable Companies upon the Hudson River and the New-York Canals, by which is secured the readiest and cheapest conveyance to either of the Canadian Provinces.

Those who wish to send for their Friends, can procure them a safe and expeditious passage, by applying to William Gamble, Esq'r. York; John Macaulay, Esquire, Kingston; or —— Morris, Esquire, Brockville, Upper Canada.

FOREIGN LANDS

SPEAK but of foreign lands—and see
The child of nature wand'ring free;
The wild-wood hunter fearless preys
On through the trackless wilderness,

And shuddering trace the lonely path
The desert lion leaves in wrath;
Or feast the soul with all that lies
Lovely and strange beneath the skies.

We think upon a foreign land—
What wild luxurious scenes expand!
The broad deep river, like a sea;
The untrodden wood's immensity;

The green and quiet tracks of rest
That hide within the forest's breast,
That stillness so profound and dread:
No'er broke by human voice nor tread:

We see the gorgeous flowers, that none,
Save the lone Indian, looks upon!
And hear the bird with wild-cry wake
The night-hush of the fawn-brake.

'Tis thus—yet foreign lands and seas
Wake other, deeper thoughts than these:
For where is he who hath not lost
Some dear one on a foreign coast?

Oh, many a noble heart is laid
To moulder in the forest's shade;
The palm-tree rears its glorious crest
O'er many a loved one's place of rest.

River, and sea, and flowery isle,
Radiant with Spring's eternal smile
Have had their prey, have rent the ties
Of home born, heart-link'd sympathies

Alas! for this Affection pales,
The eye grows dim, the spirit fails,
Till foreign lands become a sound
That stirs the bosom but to wound.

Lower Canada.

It is now generally considered certain that His Excellncy Sir FRANCIS BURTON has given up all thoughts of returning to this Province. We are sorry to understand that the illness of one of his sons is given as the cause.

It is also, we believe, generally understood, that information has reached this Province, in recent letters, of the entire approval on the part of His Majesty's Government, of the late measures adopted by the Executive, in consequence of the adherence of the House of Assembly to their own choice of Speaker, in opposition to the constitutional right of disallowance vested in the GOVERNOR-IN-CHIEF.—We see not how it could be otherwise.

Under these circumstances, and the pending inquiry supposed to be going on in England, the Province will not we hope be deprived of His Lordship's services here for some months, notwithstanding his honorable and weighty appointment in India.

HIS EXCELLENCY SIR JAMES KEMPT, G. C. B. Lieut. Governor of Nova-Scotia, is daily expected in this city. This distinguished Officer, accompanied by Lieutenant-Colonels Fanshawe and Lewis, R. E. who lately arrived from England, proceeds up the country, under a Commission from Home, for the purpose of estimating the additional sums which will be required for the completion of the public works already begun, and to be commenced in this Province.—Official Gazette.

An Elegent Standard has been received from England for the Troops of Quebec Cavalry, which His Lordship the Governor-in-Chief intends to present to the Corps on Sunday next the 14th inst. This distinguished honor has been obtained by the zeal, unremitting attention and good feeling evinced by the gentlemen composing this very spirited Corps, certainly the most desirable for a young man to enrol himself in.—Quebec Mercury.

SHIPPING INTELLIGENCE.

The Princess Royal, at the entrance of the Gulf, spoke the Catherine and Ann, bound to Miramichi. This vessel had fallen in with a wreck off Cape Superb, Cuba, from Bristol to Quebec: out of seven hands in the boat at the time she left the wreck, only two then survived, one of whom died soon after getting on board; the other (Benjamin Orchard) had been severely frostbitten—by which he learnt that they had been ten days in the boat, during which period, being unprovided with any article of subsistence, they were compelled to the painful necessity of satisfying the irresistable cravings of nature, by living on the bodies of such of their unfortunate companions as had alternately sunk under the weight of their sufferings. The boat of the St. Catherine and Ann on nearing that in which were these unfortunate men, were unable to discover any living being in her, the survivors being so much reduced by their sufferings as to be scarcely able to move. Orchard was with difficulty enabled to raise his head above the gun-wale of the boat, just as his shipmates, unable to bear the horrible sight of the mangled bodies, were about to return to their vessel. Capt. Townsend boarded the Catherine and Ann, and conversed with Orchard, who was under the care of the Master, and receiving every comfort and attention which it was in his power to afford him. The Superb, soon after the boat had left her, went down.

The General Graham received damage by ice, and was obliged to throw part of her cargo overboard

Bark Friends, from Hull, has been ashore near Point-des-Monts and received damage.

The Rebecca, from Greenock, is ashore on Goose Island, with loss of anchors and cables, and is not yet off.—The Steam-boat John Molson went down yesterday afternoon for the purpose of towing her up.

The second Mate of the Æolus, and remainder of the passengers and seamen left on board that vessel have arrived in Quebec in the Maids. Becket. The Ship sunk about two hours after her bow was stove in.

The Mate, upon the Brig Spencer, of Shields, in the Gulf about 14 days since—Her boats were out and she appeared to be sinking fast

The Princess Royal saw two vessels ashore on Sable Island. Ann, Emerald and Rebecca, all from London, have gone into Rivière-du-Loup to load.

The Rebecca arrived last night in tow of the John Molson.

Murder of Nowlan—Verdict of the Coroner's Inquest.—Yesterday afternoon the Jury returned their verdict on the Wilful Murder against Charles French, as principal, and William D. Forrest, and James F. Gosling, as accessories before the fact, and the parties stand fully committed for Trial, at the ensuing Assizes, which take place in October next.

The deceased, Nowlan, was interred yesterday after noon at 5 o'clock.

The Albion just received, announces the arrival of the Corinthian, from London, with dates to 30th April.

The news from the East seems to have assumed a more definite character. The Russians at the last dates had not crossed the Pruth, but there was every indication of their doing so the moment spring (which it appears has been quite backward in Europe) should open

The Bill to repeal the Test and Corporation Acts passed the House of Peers on the 28th of April, and was returned to the House of Commons for their concurrence to the two amendments. Those amendments are not of a nature to create opposition, as they have met the full concurrence of Lord Holland and the friends of the Bill in the Upper House.

Corn Laws.—In the House of Commons on the 29th of April, Mr. Grant brought up the report on the Corn Laws Bill.

Mr. Hume, during the debate, in alluding to the present duties on corn, pronounced them ruinous to the farmer, if not to the manufacturer.

He then offered a Resolution to fix the duty at 17s. till July 1829, after at a decreasing rate till 1834, and after which the duty should be fixed at 10s. per quarter, except grain from Canada. After debate the House divided,—For the original Resolution, 139; for Mr. Hume's Resolution, 37—majority 112.

The exports and imports of Great Britain have much increased. In 1826 the value of the exports were £36,309,836 of which upwards of £40,000,000 were of British Manufacture. In 1827 the exports were £61,082,695 of which upwards of 21 millions were of British Manufactures.

The Bowery Theatre in New-York has been destroyed by fire—supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

THE MONASTERY OF LA TRAPPE.

C'est ici que la mort et la verite
Elevent leurs flambeaux terribles
C'est de cette demeure, au monde inaccessible
Que l'on passe a l'eternite.

AMONG the most elegant and accomplished in the reign of Lewis XIV. was the Marquis D'Estrees. His merit had procured for him a high post at court, which he honourably filled. By relieving the oppressed, and succouring the needy, he became conspicuous for his noble and generous soul, and was generally beloven or envied according to the hearts of his admirers. It may naturally be supposed that, enjoying such a high situation, he would not want many nousinal friends, but among the few that respected him for his virtues alone was the Chevalier Raviller. A similarity of disposition and unity of sentiment had created and perfected the most ardent friendship between them. Though enjoyments than in its intrigues, and in each other's society found that felicity, which minds enlivened by virtue and friendship can alone enjoy; until a fortuitous event had nearly separated them for ever.

The Marquis D'Estrees was accustomed to give audience to his petitioners every morning, before he attended his duties at court. It was the morning of the anniversary of a splendid victory which had been obtained by the French arms, when a lady desired an interview She was habited in deep mourning; a veil, thrown over, partly hid her face, but the beautiful symmetry of form, her easy and engaging manners, and the sweet melodious tone of her voice, when she addressed her auditor, was too imposing and fascinating not to strike one of a less ardent imagination than was the marquis. The beautiful Angelica de Marsollier (for such was her name) stated her petition to be for her mother, the widow of a French officer of distinction, who fell in contest which that day so proudly commemorated. Rich in honour and bravery alone, the gallant soldier had left his wife and daughter but a scanty subsistence; and they not possessing friends sufficiently powerful to obtain the pension due to the rielicts of such a distinguished officer, they were reduced to comparative indigence, and therefore solicited his influence.

The next day D'Estrees had prepared the desired pension, and with a heart warmed by doing again to behold the lady who had created such unusual sensations in his breast, he hastened to deliver it.

In a small house in the suburbs of Paris, more conspicuous for its neatness than magnificence, he found the widow and daughter of the brave Marsollier. The true piety and interesting conversation of the former, joined to the matchless charms and that excellence of mind which if possible eclipsed those of the latter, bewildered the ideas of the marquis so much, that, at moments, he was ready to believe himself in the presence of beings of a superior order. Their gratitude to their benefactor, however soon showed them to be a level with himself, and before his departure he requested and obtained leave to renew his visit. Every subsequent one became more delightful, and he had the happiness of finding himself beloved; but in the midst of his enjoyments a spectre still remained in the bosom of the happy lover—it was his friend he felt for that he wished to enjoy with him part of his felicity; he therefore introduced the Chevalier Raviler to their little party. Fatal meeting—never had the heart of the chevalier felt the potency of love till he beheld the lovely Angelica; honour, friendship, and reason, bade him not harbour such feelings, but admiration quelled all other sentiments, and lulled its victim to sleep, and he was not roused from his lethargy till he heard the nuptials of his friend fixed for a distant day. It was then the chevalier found that other sentiments than admiration filled his breast—he found that he could not endure the misery of seeing the charming Angelica belong to another—no, not even to the friend that he loved best on earth. There was then only one way for him to redeem his honour; he immediately fixed his resolution, and the next day he had retired to a villa he possessed, at a little distance, there to remain in privacy till he could conquer his feelings. But the conflict of his mind, joined with other circumstances, soon produced a violent fever. Viewing himself within the grasp of death, he sent for his friend, to inform him of the cause of his seclusion, beg his forgiveness, and die in the possession of that friendship which he had prized so much whilst living.

The marquis had arrived, and was giving his friend all the comfort his agonizing feelings would allow. A thought struck him—it was to save his friend; he hastily quitted the house. Every one was filled with curiosity. The chevalier, though rather re-enlivened, was evidently better since their interview; astonished at the abrupt departure of his friend, and anxiously expecting his return, he lay counting the slow hours as they passed

After a long interval of suspense the marquis returned; his whole frame seemed agitated: his countenance had undergone a visible change, a deathlike paleness overspread his features, which were animated with a kind of enthusiastic feeling when he beheld the situation of the chevalier His right hand held that of his betrothed, he led her to the couch of the invalid, and informed her then, for the first time, of the cause of their friend's illness, and with a trembling voice continued, 'I here release you, too lovely Angelica, from all the ties that exist between us, to resign you to the possession of another; to conquer the warmest wishes, is what I could never have been capable of had not the life of our friend demanded it. You cannot help esteeming one, whose sufferings for you must create compassion in your tender breast; love him for my sake, for his own.' He placed her powerless hand within that of the chevalier and before either could reply rushed out of the apartment.

Every fine or noble feeling was in those days carried to the most romantic pitch. This sacrifice of friendship, therefore, awakened every faint ember in the breast of the chevalier; he combated, as well as he was able, the afflicted Angelica, who had fainted, when the marquis fled. He promised to use every means to cause his speedy return, than which nothing now would give him more happiness; and assured her that he would rather die than profit by the disinterested sacrifice of his friend. Messengers were immediately sent to his residence, but of no avail; the marquis remained unheard of.

The recovery of the chevalier was quick; as soon as his strength permitted him, he renewed the search, and visited the different seclusions where he suspected his friend to have retired to; but every means he used proved fruitless, and he returned to Paris to see the lovely Angelica, like a tender lily, blighted and drooping, overcome with the furious blast, drop into an untimely grave.

Another votary had embraced the monastic life. It was the Chevalier Raviller; overcome by his misfortunes, he determined to retire from the world, and had therefore bequeathed most of his estates to charitable institutions, and entered the monastery of La Trappe. The austerities of this place were so great, that the inmates, prohibited from all kind of conversation with each other, and generally keeping their eyes fixed on the ground they trod, were seldom known to each other, though often persons of the same place and family had immured themselves within its walls. The abbot alone knew the names and fortunes of its inhabitants, and the grave-yard told the family and history of the departed. The monastery and surrounding scenery were, as they then existed under the abbot and reformer of the order, Monde Rance, calculated to strike the mind with solemnity and fill it with the most gloomy sentiments Situated in a long and steep valley, in narrow and so thickly wooded as to be almost impervious to the rays of the sun, and interspersed with several lakes, whose waters were of a dark and dismal hue, on all sides nothing was visible but hills rising one beyond another, extending in endless continuity as far as the eye could reach, and completely covered with dark forests, without the least apparent vestige of human footstep having ever trod them, the path, or rather track, to it being almost imperceptible till pointed out by the guides, and leading through a maze of the most intricate turnings and windings, and through every diversity of rise and fall. The abstinence, spirit of self mortification, and religious exercises which the monks of this place practised, were truly wonderful.

The chevalier had passed his noviciate, and become a brother of the order; he had assumed, upon his entry, the name of Armand. In the austerities of religion his mind was more composed, and he became exemplary for his humility and self-denial.

A year had now nearly elapsed since his entry, when the death of a brother was announced, and the prayers of each deceased for his soul. At his grave the abbot enlarged on the deep piety of one of the most devout brothers of their order. A few days afterwards Brother Armand happening to pass through the burying place came to a new grave-stone, which had been erected over the body of the lately deceased. His eye ran over the inscription—it told the fate of Don Cyran Marquis of Estrees.

A monk, happening to go earlier than usual into the grave yard observed a brother extended on the grave of the Marquis D'Estrees. On approaching he found him lifeless—it was Brother Armauld. The abbot having attended the confessional of both, knew their histories, but, as was usual in such cases, secreted it, that it might in no manner impede their religious duties; He ordered the body of the deceased brother to be placed near that of his friend, and one stone to relate their names and friendship.

And it shall in every such case, be the duty of the appraisers of the United States, and of every of them, and of every other person who shall act as such appraiser, by all the reasonable ways and means in his or their power, to ascertain, estimate, and appraise the true and actual value, any invoice or affidavit thereto, to the contrary notwithstanding, of the said goods, wares, and merchandize, at the time purchased and place from whence the same shall have been imported into the United States, and the number of such yards, parcels, or quantities, and such actual value of every of them, as the case may require; and all such goods, wares, and merchandizes, being manufactures of wool, or whereof wool shall be a component part, which shall be imported into the United States in an unfinished condition, shall, in every such appraisal, be taken, deemed and estimated, by the said appraisers, and every one of them, and every person who shall act as such appraiser, to have been at the time purchased and place from whence the same were imported into the United States, of as great actual value as if the same had been entirely finished. And to the value of the said goods, wares, and merchandize, so ascertained, there shall, in all cases where the same are or shall be charged with an ad valorem duty, be added all charges except insurance and also twenty per centum on the said actual value and charges, if imported from the Cape of Good Hope, or any place beyond the same, or from beyond Cape Horn, or ten per centum if from any other place or country; and the said ad valorem rates of duty shall be estimated on such aggregate amount, any thing in an act to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided, That in all cases where any goods, wares, or merchandize subject to ad valorem duty, or whereon the duty is or shall be by law regulated by, or be directed to be estimated or levied upon, the value of the square yard, or any other quantity or parcel thereof, shall have been imported into the United States from a country other than that in which the same were manufactured or produced, the appraisers shall value the same at the current value thereof, at the time of purchase before such last exportation to the United States in the country where the same may have been originally manufactured or produced.

Sec. 9. And be it further enacted, That, in all cases where the actual value shall be appraised, estimated and ascertained, as hereinbefore stated, of any goods, wares, or merchandize, imported into the United States, and subject to any ad valorem duty, or whereon the duty is regulated by, or directed to be imposed or levied upon the value of the square yard, or other parcel or quantity thereof, shall, by ten per centum, exceed the invoice value thereof, in addition to the duty imposed by law on the same, if they had been invoiced at their real value as aforesaid, there shall be levied and collected on the said goods, wares, and merchandize, fifty per centum of the duty so imposed on the same goods, wares, and merchandize when fairly invoiced: Provided always, That nothing in this section contained shall be construed to extend beyond the Cape of Good Hope, a duty of fifty per centum, for a variance between the bona fide invoice of goods produced in the manner specified in the proviso to the eighth section of this act, and the current value of the said merchandize, in the place where the same may have been originally manufactured or produced: And further, That the penalty of fifty per centum, imposed by the thirteenth section of the Act, entitled "An Act supplementary to, and to amend the act, entitled, 'An Act to regulate the collection of duties on imports and tonnage, passed the second day of March, one thousand seven hundred and ninety-nine, and for other purposes," approved March first, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-three, shall not be held to apply or attach to any goods, wares or merchandize, which shall be subject to the additional duty of fifty per centum, as aforesaid, imposed by this section of this Act.

Sec. 10. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury, under the direction of the President of the United States, from time to time, to establish such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with the laws of the United States, as the President of the United States shall think proper, to secure a just, faithful, and impartial appraisal of all goods, wares, and merchandize, as aforesaid, imported into the United States, and the proper entries of such actual value thereof, and of the square yards, parcels, or other quantities thereof, as the case may require, and of such actual value of every of them: And it shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Treasury to report, to a Stockwoman very shortly, some what conceited and illiberal, and most wonderfully addicated to the "pleasures of rational conversation," arrives in New-York, determined to be dissatisfied with every thing she finds there, and if possible, to get a husband: she has with her to protect and suffocate "learned in the law," from the gude town of Edinborough, the Sheriff Thereper by name; Squire Peabody is a Vermont Justice, Deacon, and a Militia Colonel, very cunning, very impudent, very easy and very absurd. He and the old Scotch Lady, it appears, have conflicting claims upon certain large estates in Scotland, which by some fatality are left with out an occupant. There is yet another pretender to the "begging estate," in the person of a Mr. Tompkins, who is in love with Peabody's daughter Octavia Ruth, and not indifferent (which is, we believe, the established phrase,) to her.—The incidents of the farce consists of the devices of Mrs. Clatterpenny to circumvent her rivals, which however are all defeated in the end, and Mr. Tompkins is pronounced the true and rightful heir. Mrs. Clatterpenny has a son whom Peabody wishes his daughter to marry, so long as he believes the old lady to be the successful claimant; and of course, there is the usual allowance of tyranny on the part of the old gentleman, and complainings on that of the young one—at last, however, the squire's objections are completely removed, when he finds that the aspirant to his daughter's hand is to be the heir, and the piece ends with the satisfaction of the young couple, and the disappointment of the fortune seekers."

Wm. BERGIN.

York, 8th January 28th, 1828. 41tf.

THE MARMORA IRON WORKS.—The sale of these Works has been postponed until further notice.—But, the Wares of the Establishment are offered for sale at 25s. per Cwt. for all heavy Castings, Potash-Kettles, &c.—and at 27s. 6d. per Cwt. for Sugar-Kettles, Hollow Ware, Stoves, &c. delivered at Kingston and Wilton. Flour, and Potash will be taken in payment, at the Current price in that Market—or a discount of 5 per Cent made for Cash.

Among the advantages which purchasers and dealers in the articles, would derive from giving a preference to the Castings of these Works, are the following:—

First—The Wares are fully of a better quality, in regard to manufacture than those got elsewhere.

Secondly—They are offered for sale at prices, at least 25 per Cent under the rate at which the same kind of goods can be laid down in Kingston from Montreal, without taking into consideration the risk of transport.

Thirdly—From the very superior quality of the Metal from which the Wares are Manufactured, and from the experience already had, by many who have used them for a length of time.—The Subscriber is warranted in saying, that they are by no means so liable to Crack in the Carriage, or other Ware of similar Establishments, known to the people of this Province.

Lastly.—The receiving payment in the Produce of the Country, should be considered, an advantage (when combined with the other circumstances above enumerated), of sufficient importance to buyers, to secure a preference for the consumption of a Provincial manufacture, of superior quality and comparatively low price.

The undersigned in the name of Peter McGill, Esquire, the present Proprietor, who has expended large sums, in perfecting the Establishment, since it came into his hands—having, as he thinks, clearly shown, that it is their interest, appeals to the Patriotism of the Merchants, and others of this Province, to give aid, support, and countenance to so great and praiseworthy an undertaking. The support required, is simply, to give a preference in their purchases to the Manufactures of Marmora, which are articles of daily necessity and consumption—both good and cheap, instead of sending to the United States, and Lower Canada, for Articles of a similar description comparatively of inferior quality, and higher prices

THE KING'S BIRTH-DAY.—GRAND DRAWING-ROOM.

From the Court Newsman.

Yesterday, April 23, (St. George's day,) being the day appointed by His Majesty for the celebration of his birth-day, the usual demonstrations of respect were observed throughout the Metropolis. The bells of the different parish churches continued ringing merry peals during the day; the standard of England was hoisted at the public buildings and at the steeples of the Churches. The day was observed as a holiday at all the Public Offices. The Courts of law were merely opened as a matter of form, it being the first day of term. The General Postmen appeared in new uniforms. About ten o'clock the bands of the three Regiments of Foot Guards assembled at the Parade in St. James's Park, in their state uniforms, and performed several delightful pieces of music together,—the number of wind instruments, amounting to nearly one hundred, producing a very fine effect. Soon after the Guard was mounted, the state colours were brought out. All the men were dressed in new regimentals. Notwithstanding the unfavorable state of the weather, there was a numerous assemblage of respectable company to witness the parade. After the mounting of the Guard, the military proceeded to relieve guard at St James's Palace, accompanied by the three bands. In the flag-yard of the palace, the concourse of people was immense, and it was with some little difficulty that the Soldiers effected an entrance. The bands then struck up, "God save the King," and continued playing 'till near twelve o'clock; among the pieces were the Coronation Anthem of Handel, the Overture to Tancredi, and several airs from Stanislaus.

At one o'clock the Park and Tower Guns fired a double Royal salute.

The King had appointed twelve o'clock for holding a Drawing-Room, which owing to the length of time which had elapsed since the last was held, excited considerable interest throughout the country.—great numbers have travelled a considerable distance in order to be present. Crowds of people assembled about all the avenues leading to the Palace. About half-past one, a detachment of Life Guards took up their station at the bottom of St. James's-Street, and a detachment of Royal Horse-Guards in the Court-yard adjoining Malborough-House, each with their respective bands in their state dresses; the King's Guard and their band were in the flag-yard; the bands played by turns during the afternoon. About twelve o'clock there were two rows of Carriages in St. James's-Street, filled with Ladies anxious to see those who were going to the Drawing-Room: the chain of Carriages with company having soon then reached some way up St. Jame's-Street. By a quarter before one o'clock the chain had extended nearly to the top of Bond-Street, although it was then three deep from their station at the Palace gates would be opened, which took place about half-past one. The Marshalmen and Under-Posters appeared in new clothes. The Pages appeared in state uniforms. The Yeomen Guard, under the command of Sir John Cope, the Exon in waiting, appeared in their Coronation costume. The Hon. Corps of Gentlemen at Arms, lined the Presence Chamber and the entree, under the command of the Earl of Hereford, their Captain. Two Non-commissioned officers of the Royal Horse-Guards, in their cuirassess, were stationed on the first flight of stairs. The company continued arriving at both doors without intermission, until near three o'clock.

On no former occasion was there so great a display of elegant dresses, more particularly as regards the magnificence of the ornaments of diamonds and other jewels worn by the Ladies.—Among the most splendid were those worn by the Duchess of St. Alban's, who, in addition to a diamond tiara, had a stomacher of diamonds.

The Duke of St. Alban's appeared in his uniform of Grand Falconer of England, by virtue of which office His Grace has the privilege of the entree.

The Marchioness de Palmella, Princess Esterhazy, and the Duchess of Northumberland, Countess d'Aleadia, and Princess Lieven, had also splendid displays of diamonds.

It being a gala day, the Knights of the different Orders wore their respective insignia, and there were several of the company whose breasts were covered with ribands and stars, particularly Prince Esterhazy, Marquis de Palmella, the Duke of Wellington, the Duke of Devonshire, Viscount Beresford, and Lord Hill.

Among those who came in State, were, the Austrian, Russian, French, Spanish, and Portuguese Ambassadors, the Duke of St. Alban's, the Duke of Devonshire, the Lord Chancellor, and the Speaker of the House of Commons.

At a quarter before two, the Duchess of Kent arrived in state, with her suite, in two carriages; her attendants were Baroness Spaedth, Sir John Conroy, and General Wetherall. Her Royal Highness alighted at the principal entrance and was received by the band of the 3d Regiment, playing "God save the King." Soon after, the Duke and Duchess of Clarence arrived in state; their Royal Highnesses were attended by Lady Isabella Thynne, Col. Higgins, and Mr Carry. The Royal Duke appeared in his Field-Marshal's uniform, wearing several orders; Prince Leopold also immediately afterwards arrived in a Field-Marshal's uniform; and attended by Sir Robert Gardiner. Shortly after, the Duke and Duchess of Clarence came in state, in two carriages; their attendants were the Marchioness of Westmeath, Colonel Fitzclarence, and Sir Charles Pole. His Royal Highness appeared in the uniform of Lord High Admiral.

The King entered his closet about two o'clock, dressed in a Field-Marshal's uniform, where he received the congratulations of his Royal Relatives.

The Duke of Cumberland entered the Palace by the Private entrance, and appeared in the Regimentals of the Regiment of Royal Horse-Guards, for the first time since his appointment as Colonel of that Regiment. His Royal Highness carried the Gold Stick, as commander of the Regiment, and was accompanied by his son, Prince George, who appeared in the Regimentals of the Tenth Hussars. The Duke of Cumberland was presented to His Majesty on his appointment to the command of the Royal Horse-Guards.

The King then received those who have the Privilege of the entree. The Rev. R. W. Jelf, Preceptor to His Royal Highness Prince George of Cumberland, was presented to His Majesty by the Duke of Cumberland. Princess de Polignac, the French Ambassadress, had her first audience of His Majesty; Her Excellency was introduced by the Earl of Dudley, and conducted by Sir Robert Chester, His Majesty's Master of the Ceremonies.

Countess d'Alcudia, the Lady of the Spanish Minister, was presented to His Majesty; as also Mrs. Lawrence, and the Lady of the American Charge d'Affaires.

The Baron de Marcuard, Minister Plenipotentiary and Extraordinary from the Court of France to that of Lisbon, was presented by the Prince de Polignac, the French Ambassador.

La Comte de Ville Flor and the Marquis de Frontura were presented by the Portuguese Ambassador.

Madmlle. Falck was presented by Madame Falck the Lady of the Dutch Ambassador.

His Majesty then proceeded to the Throne-room, and took his station in front of the Throne, and received the numerous and brilliant presentations. Earl Roden was the Lord in waiting, and Colonel Whately the Groom in Waiting.

At Half-past four the King retired.

The dresses of about 200 Ladies are described in the London papers.

Imperial Parliament,

HOUSE OF COMMONS, 21st April.

CIVIL GOVERNMENT OF THE CANADAS

Mr. Secretary HUSKISSON observed, that considering the lateness of the hour, the comparative thin attendance of the Hon. Members, and the importance of the subject—the present state of the Civil Government of the Canadas—which he had intended then to bring under the consideration of the House, he did not think himself justified, under all these circumstances, in proceeding with his motion for a Select committee of Inquiry, of which he had given notice. He therefore proposed postponing the question till he could avail himself of the assistance of several Hon. Members who, he understood, were desirous of taking part in the discussion, but who were not then present. With this view he should bring the subject before the House on Friday, and then gave notice to that effect.

Mr. HUME gave notice, that, on the same day (Friday,) he should present a petition from the inhabitants of Upper Canada, on the subject (as was understood) of the Civil Government of the colony.

No notice of Mr. Huskisson's motion or of the petition to be presented by Mr. Hume, is taken in the Report of Parliamentary proceedings in the Courier of the 26th: the House adjourned on the 25th, at a quarter to one after a long debate on the Corn Laws.

Summary.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS—APRIL 25.

The demand for Ashes last week was somewhat better than for the two or three weeks before. The sales amount to 950 barrels Montreal pot, a 30, and a few at 30s. 6d. for new, and 25s. 9d. a 27s. 6d. for old; and of Montreal Pearl, 40 barrels were sold at 29 a 30,

The N. Y. Morning Courier, speaking of the Tariff Bill observes:—"

"The best proofs we shall be able to obtain, whether smuggling is carried on or not, and to what extent, will be to mark the importations into Canada: British ships will have active employment, and British manufactures will doubtless find an excellent market there. The excessive duty will defeat the very object that the Tariff is intended to accomplish. But it is unnecessary to predict results; a few years' experience will show the effects of the most injurious bill that ever received the sanction (in this country at least) of an enlightened body of men."

Colonial-Office, April 17.—The King has been pleased to appoint Major-General Nathaniel Blackwell to be Governor and Commander-in-Chief of the Island of Tobago.

ARMY.—Detachments of the 15th, 66th, 68th and 79th Regiments, were under orders to embark from Cork for Canada.

The Sunderland Ship-Owners.—The Ship-Owners of Sunderland have been getting up a memorial to the Board of Trade, on the distressed state of Shipping. It is very numerously signed.

In the House of Commons on the 25th, the resolutions of Ministers respecting the Corn Laws, were taken up in Committee and adopted,—140 to 56.

The Br. Finance Committee has decided, 11 to 8, to discontinue the Office of Lt. Gen. of the Ordinance.

It is contemplated in England to make silver a standard of currency, and a tender, as well as gold.

The London Papers mention that the U. S. have ordered four Companies to the Eastern disputed Territory.

On Tuesday, Lieutenant Barnham, two Sergeants, & forty rank and file of the 15th Regiment marched into Limerick, from the depot at Clare Castle, on route to Cork, to embark for Quebec to join the Service Companies.—April 19.

The Napoleon brought from England three exceedingly fine horses. They were sent by Sir Isaac Coffin, to the Massachusetts Agricultural Society.

Lady Harvey, formerly Miss Caton of Baltimore, and sister to the Marchioness of Wellesley, was married on the 26th of April to the Marquis of Carmarthen.

GEOGRAPHY.—The geographical society of Paris offers a gold medal, value 1000 francs, to the traveller who shall make the most important geographical discovery in 1828; and, in addition to this, he will, if a foreigner, be received as a correspondent of the society, and, if a Frenchman, as a member.

The import of British goods into New York for eight months, ending 1st April, amounted to 42,902 packages. In the same period the preceding year, the import was only 27,543.

FORGERY.—A forgery was detected in London on the 15th April, which occasioned much excitement. A Mr. Fernham, confidential clerk of the house of Ward, committed it. It appears that he enjoyed in right of his wife, an income of £5000, and received a large salary besides. His gambling propensities, however, involved him in embarrassments, which led him to commit crimes, one of which he will undoubtedly be compelled to expiate by an ignominious death. He was indicted for forging a bill of £5000 on the house of Rothschild.

CORN LAWS.

The House of Commons on the 22d of April, had under consideration the Corn Laws. The bill of last year fixed the pivot price of 62 shillings for the quarter of Wheat, but resolutions now introduced, fix it at 65 shillings. After considerable debate, Mr. CALCRAFT moved that the resolutions of the last year be substituted for those on the table. The motion was seconded, and a debate ensued, when the House divided. For the original motion 202—for the amendment 58. The House rose, reported progress, and obtained leave to sit on Friday, April 25.

The Thames tunnel had been emptied of the water, and the shield examined, with the view of continuing the excavations; it was found without injury; but on Sunday the leak again gave way, and the tunnel was gradually filled with water.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, 25th April.—Mr. Moore presented a petition from the Corporation of Dublin against the Catholic Association. Mr Spring Rice seconded the bringing up the petition, which was ordered to be printed.

CORN LAWS.—The House went into Committee on the resolutions respecting the Corn Laws.—The Chairman reported progress and asked leave to sit again on Monday the 28th April. So far the Ministry carry all before them on this question.

Confirmation of the postponement of hostilitres.—We are able to state from positive information, that the March of the Russian army across the Pruth, is postponed specifically to the 14th of May, in order to give to the Porte the full period of thirty days to deliberate on the ultimatum of Russia, and to weigh the representations of England, France, Austria, and Prussia, all of which States have formally announced to the Sultan that he will forfeit all claims to their alliance and protection, if he refuses to accede to the terms proposed to him by the parties to the treaty of London. Upon all that we have stated above our readers may place the most implicit confidence.

Dublin Evening post, 29th April,

The Chanticleer, Capt. Foster, is to proceed on a voyage of discovery to the South Pole. Capt. Foster accompanied Capt. Parry in his last voyage, but was not in his boat excursion towards the North Pole.

The case of De Rivieres vs. the Royal Institution from Lower Canada was heard before the Lords in Council, on Saturday 19th instant.—Courier, April 21.

Terrible Occurrence.—The Wheeling Gazette of the 13th instant, received at our Office last night, contains the annexed paragraph:—

Steam-Boat Disaster.—At the Canadian Reach, about six miles below Louisville, sometime last week, the boiler of the Steam-boat Car of Commerce bursted, and fifty-seven persons were killed and wounded.—Bell.

The Steamer Atlas arrived at New-Orleans on the 5th inst. having burst her boiler at the Balize, by which accident the Engineer was so severely scalded that his life is despaired of.

The Florence Gazette gives the following extract of a Letter from Zante, March 23:—"The delay allowed to Ibrahim for the evacuation of the Morea having elapsed without any result, and subsequent intelligence making it evident that he had, on the contrary, received orders to remain, and that reinforcements had been despatched to him, it appears that the ships of the Allied Powers will closely blockade the ports of Patras, Navarino, Modon, and Coron."

The re-establishment of the National Guards in Paris was under consideration. The Ministers were divided on the subject, and it is said some of them had threatened to resign if the project was adopted.—Gen. Lafayette stated in a debate on the 29th, that he was oldest veteran of those Guards.

A slight shock of an Earthquake, was felt at Lisbon on the 10th of April.

The French Parliament has given a Pension to the sister of Lt. Bisson, who blew up his vessel to prevent her falling into the hands of the Greek Pirates.

The new Library Hall of the British Museum is adorned with splendid pillars of POLISHED GRANITE, surmounted by alabaster capitals.—The Hall is 200 feet by 40, & contains 70,000 volumes.

Foreign Intelligence.

Corn Exchange, London, April 30.—The Wheat trade was uncommonly dull this morning. Hardly any sales were effected.

RUSSIA, and the affairs of the East.—Up to the 12th April the cold continued to be so extremely severe in the Russian Capital, that it was supposed the Navigation of the Neva would not be open before the first week in May. This is the real cause of the apparent tardiness of Russia in commencing active operations.

A Letter has been received in London, from Odessa, of the 7th of April. No movement had taken place since preceding advices, among the Russian Troops, indicative of an immediate intention of crossing the Pruth.

A London paper of April 29, says, "the Steam-Boat has arrived this morning from Hamburgh, with letters and papers of Friday last. Various warlike reports were in circulation respecting Russia, and among the rest it was affirmed that the 17th had been fixed on for the departure of the Emperor to join the Army.

On the 15th April, the Greek Admiral Miaulis appeared in the Channel of Scio with the Hellas, two Greek Brigantines, and a few smaller vessels, and it was supposed he would throw considerable difficulty in the way of any communication between the Turkish Garrison and their countrymen on the Asiatic coast.

Letters from Bucharest, of April 2d, say that the arrival of the Russians was every moment expected there.

The French Troops have evacuated Pampelona, and are about to evacuate St. Sebastian. After this, Cadiz and Urgel will alone remain in possession of France.

SPAIN.—The French and Spanish Governments are said to have had some warm discussions lately, respecting the evacuation of the Spanish Territories. France insists upon being paid the sums due to her, or upon keeping Cadiz and the Seu d'Urgel; Spain persists in demanding the complete evacution, and, according to a private Letter in the Courier Francais the Minister of Finance insists—

"That France is the debtor of Spain, for he has sought among the archieves the parts of a Treaty, concluded between Napoleon and Charles IV. which was signed at Paris on the 10th May, 1806, by M. Mollier, the Minister of the Treasury of France, & M. Yzouierde, our Minister Plenipotentiary at Paris. It would appear from this document, charged with the recovery of several debts, had received a sum, many millions above what is due, and signed by the French Government. Among these debts there are certain Bills of Exchange on the American Colonies, amounting to fifty million of Francs; sums which according to M. Ballisteros, have been received by the French Government, and of which no account has been given to the Spanish Government."

PORTUGAL.—The news from this country speaks only of dissentions, party rancour and scenes of blood. Addresses from the towns, &c. continued to come in, in favour of absolute Government. A band of Guerrillas was traversing the country in Trasos Montes, and had committed some acts of violence.

CHINA.—We have received, says a London paper the Malacca Observer and Chinese Chronicle to the 25th of September last. It appears from the news which it gives from little Bucharia, that notwithstanding the official accounts published in Peking, the Chinese Empire is in a perplexed position. The Grand Army, as is called, seems to have undergone a severe loss; 40,000 men, it is stated, were slain. The force of the rebels was stated at Canton to be from 400,000 to 500,000 men. It was reported at Malacca that the Emperor of China had granted independence to the Tartar tribes.

"The Chinese of the South," it is added, "have a high idea of the power of the Russians, no doubt, cherish insatiable ambition, and their Agents are ready, every where, to aggrandise the autocrat; but still we suspend our judgment.

"The disaffected in China are looking, we believe with interest to the Bucharian rebellion, a little more fire, and the whole of China will be in a blaze."

From the fact that two vessels had been permitted to leave Constantinople for the Archipelago, it was concluded that the feelings of the Porte were pacific towards Great Britain.

Bucharest, April 12.—The fear of an approaching invasion by the Russians has so gained ground, that (especially in consideration of the vicinity of Rudschuck, from which the Turks may pay us a visit in one night) many families of the Bajors are preparing to go to Transylvania.—Some have already set out. We have no recent news from Constantinople.

GREECE.—Ibrahim, having demolished the fortress of Tripolizza, has set out to raze that of Patras, after which he is to depart for Egypt. It is said that the squadron coming from Alexandria, has been much injured by a storm, twelve ships having been upset; others took refuge in the ports of the Morea, and fell into the hands of the Greeks, who sent the crews to Candia. A Turkish frigate, having refused to attend to the orders of the French frigate L'Armide, was sunk after a battle of two hours; The nature of these orders is not mentioned.

The people of New South Wales have petitioned for a legislature, equal representation and trial by jury. They state their number at 55,000—35,000 free English the residue convicts. Government returns give the Br. population at 49,000—only 15,000 free.—The annual revenue of the government was about £60,000, and the produce of land and labour was supposed to exceed £200,000. Mr. Huskisson said there was a bill relative to New South Wales soon to be discussed before the house, and then he would be prepared to shew that the privileges asked for by the petitioners, so far from proving a blessing to the colonists in their present state would involve them in all possible mischief and confusion. A Majority of the colonists were convicts.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

SPAIN.—Advices from Madrid are to the 20th of April. Nothing is known of their majesties since they arrived at Sabadell. The miserable condition of the road to Lerida is sufficent to account for the slowness of their voyage.

The following is an extract of a private letter 12th of April from Lisbon: "the officers and men of Silveira have nearly all returned to Portugal, in small separate detachments. The Marquis de Chaves and five or six other principal leaders have not yet returned. Great preparations are making for the celebration of the birth-day of the Queen Mother. Our finances, as it may easily be believed, suffer from our critical situation. The Minister of the Finances has sent in his resignation thrice. Forced loans are spoken of. Bank Actions, whose original value was 500 milreas, and which rose to 700 are now at 400. The Prince Regent is said to have signed a decree for the recal of all our Ministers at Foreign Courts, except the Baron de Pedra Seca, Ambassador at Vienna."

THE RUSSIANS'—No movement of the Russian army had been made upon the Pruth. A letter given in the Augsburgh Gazette, dated Bucharest, April 10, says—"Although there have been rumours of the Russian troops moving on the 15th, there was nothing remarked on the 6th in the Russian cantonments, which would indicate such an early departure. Some pretend to have certain intelligence that 20,000 men will pass the Pruth and that the military operations will be limited to the temporary occupation of the principalities, but these are only rumours, for as yet nothing certain is known.

A letter of the 7th inst. from Jassy, contains the following intelligence:—" We learn from the left bank of the Pruth, that all the regiments of the Bessarabian army are being reviewed in succession. Adrianople is thronged at this moment with Turkish officers of different ranks The forces collected in the plains round that city present an imposing appearance. The Chiefs employ their utmost influence to maintain discipline among the troops. It seems that a misunderstanding has broken out among the Asiatics and the Arabs of the Yemen, and that it has been necessary to make some signal examples, in order to keep in check the Asiatics, who thirst for plunder. The number of Ottoman troops sent to Servea leads to the conclusion that the Turkish government begins to entertain distrust of the conduct that Austria may pursue when the Russians shall have crossed the Pruth."

Gore's Liverpool Advertiser of the 1st says, the packet ship Silas Richards, Capt. Holdridge, arrived at this port early on Saturday morning, after the astonishingly quick passage of 17 days from New-York, including the day on which she left the city, and which is seldom considered as a day in the calculation of passages. In fact, the passage may be said to have occupied sixteen and a half days only, the Silas Richards having been off the port late on Friday night.

The Ships composing this Line, are all of the first class, Copper-fastened and Coppered, of about 400 Tons burthen, and as fast Sailers as any Packets in the Trade. They have superior accommodations, being very lofty between decks; are commanded by experienced Masters, whose best endeavors will be to promote the comfort of passengers: and the appointed day of sailing will be strictly adhered to.

TO IRISH EMIGRANTS. this Line is especially recommended, on account of the easy and frequent communication between the Irish Ports and Liverpool, by means of Steam-Boats and Smacks; and to all, it will extend the peculiar advantages of a connexion with respectable Companies upon the Hudson River and the New-York Canals, by which is secured the readiest and cheapest conveyance to either of the Canadian Provinces.

PARLIAMENTARY RECOLLECTIONS.

No. 2.

The Alien Question.—There never was perhaps more misrepresentation put afloat, and with an assiduity deserving of a better cause, than on this question. I have often wondered that any person could be long deceived about it, and in no instance have I yet met with a man, who on having it fairly explained to him, but was satisfied that some permanent measure was absolutely necessary, which should for ever set at rest, a question which involved, the security of property and rights, of a class of persons, whose conduct entitled them to consideration.—When the Government at first proposed a method for doing this, it was objected to, on the ground, that there was no necessity for it, and according to the declarations of some Honorable Members, there was not an Alien in the country, unless indeed such a character might be found among some of the discharged Soldiers, whose bravery and good conduct had been rewarded by grants of Land from the King. As the question had been agitated however, and some conclusive measure recommended by the British Ministry, it was conceded that a law of some kind, as much for the sake of appearance as any thing else, was necessary,—and what was proposed?—Mr. Bidwell's Law, of which so much has been said,—containing the famous declaration, which would have made any subject of His Majesty, by wholesale "that all persons whose fathers, or paternal grandfathers, were born in the United States previous to 1783, are British Subjects, to all intents and purposes." A declaration this embracing almost every man, who calls himself an American Citizen. How he, or those who voted with him could reconcile to themselves the propriety of such an enactment, passed by a Colonial Legislature, and which if accepted would have interfered with the general national policy, I am at a loss to conjecture.—The simple fact, that American Citizens, are not British Subjects, was kept out of view, by being buried under heaps of law,—and it would in my opinion have been a strange anomaly to have seen the Courts in England, deciding on the Law in one way, while in a Colony under her control, a contrary mode of decision was adopted, and that contrary mode sanctioned too, by the Imperial Government. The absurdity must be apparent to every one, and under such an extraordinary declaratory law, proceeded and acted upon under such circumstances, together with the far famed address of those who advocated it, for encouraging English Emigration to the United States, it would not I think be too great a stretch of the imagination, to suppose, that a stranger might be induced to doubt the reality, of a Province thus situated, being a colonial appendage to the British Crown. "The faithful Commons," making a solemn declaration on the dotrine of Allegiance which would embrace almost every man living in a foreign country, at the very moment when the Government are most assiduously employed in endeavoring to devise means, for the removal and settlement of thousands, and tens of thousands of their own country men, may indeed be looked upon as strange proceedings.

But the question has been so often and so fully discussed, that I feel it unnecessary to add any thing further in this number.—The Advocates of the declaratory Law, have eaten their own words—they now admit that something more is necessary, and although they have from time to time quarrelled with the mode, the fact, yet remains the same, notwithstanding the blast of triumph which they have sounded to cover their retreat, from the untenable position they had assumed. The country is unanimous, and public opinion in spite of their efforts to the contrary, will give that credit to the Government, which their honest and sincere endeavors entitle them to

MR. EDITOR,

I saw a piece in the Canadian Freeman, signed by Newcastle, speaking of the propriety of erecting a Harbor at a place called Burnham's Harbor, in preference to erecting one at each of the other places, viz.—Port-Hope and Cobourg. Mr. Newcastle gave very good reasons as far as he went, why Burnham's Harbor was preferable; but he came far short of the length which he might have gone, with respect to preference which may be given that place; and in the first place, he might have pointed out how easy it is to cut a Canal from Port-Hope into Burnham's Harbor, the distance not being more than two miles, at the most, and the principle part of that distance is almost, or quite a marsh, and no Lock would be required, because it might be taken out so near the mouth of the Creek at Port-Hope, as to be perfectly on a level with the Harbor, and might be made a Stop Lock, so that Schooners might run up to Port-Hope village, and thereby be as convenient for the village, as if a Harbor was made at the village itself, and the distance which Cobourg or Henry's Mills are from the Harbor spoken of, is perhaps three miles, and is perfectly level, and the whole distance marsh and swamp, and a Canal of Sloop Navigation might be cut from the Harbor into Henry's Creek, below his Mill, and as it would be perfectly level with the Harbor, no Lock would be wanted, and by means of this Canal, the harbor spoken of, would be as useful to Cobourg as if made at that place where it can not be made,—so that it is abundantly evident that one Harbor can serve both places, more especially as nature has done so much to have it so.—If I was asked why there would be no lock wanted, I would answer, that the level of the Lake proves those three places to be on a perfect level, so that the plan which I would suggest would not only accommodate Port-Hope and Cobourg, but would render the Land on the whole line of the Canal very valuable, and would cause the owners through whose land it would pass, to feel liberal and interested in this plan. One more observation I would make in favor of this plan, and that is, three such streams as Smith's Creek, Henry's Creek, and a Creek called Russels, united in the harbor, would make one stream of such magnitude, as to almost, if not quite, keep the entrance of the harbor open, so that taking all these reasons into consideration, the plan which I would adopt for obtaining the improvement which is so much wanted, must appear very feasible.

Mr. Editor,—It is because the observations in the Freeman did not go so far as they might have done, that I offer these few remarks to the public, through the medium of your useful and widely circulated paper.

NORTHUMBERLAND.

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, JUNE 14, 1828.

There is no later news from England—We have continued such extracts from the latest dates received as appear most interesting

By Proclamation of His Excellency the Lieut. Governor, contained in last Thursday's Gazette, the Provincial Parliament is prorogued, to Saturday 19th July next

It was very confidently anticipated, that under the Law passed during the last Session, the affairs of the late Bank at Kingston, would have been finally settled, to the satisfaction of all parties, for although opposition was offered to some parts of it, it was generally considered, that the provisions of the bill were such, as would most effectually close the concerns of an institution, which had unfortunately been the fruitful source of much unpleasant discussion, and that this would have been accomplished, without any additional calls upon the Stockholders, a due regard being paid, as far as was practicable, to the interest of the Creditors

In substance, the Law provides for the collection of debts due to the institution, and when collected, for their equal distribution among its creditors, a limited time being appointed, for the presentation of all claims, subsequently to which, they should be of no further avail. From our own knowledge of the affairs of the late Bank, and under all the circumstances of the case, it appears to us, that the Law was one, which while it saved the Stockholder from making further advances, would have ensured to the Creditor, if it had been carried into operation the certainty of a proportionate dividend on his debt, according to the assets which might have been realized, and that under such equitable provisions, the Law, would have been considered a desirable one by all parties. We have every reason to believe that such is the general impression on the public mind, and it is therefore with the more regret we learn from the Kingston papers, that in consequence of a misunderstanding between the Commissioners appointed by the Stockholders and Certificate holders; as to the appointment of a third person, to constitute their board, the Law has failed, and that the affairs of the Bank must unavoidably remain another year, in their present unsettled state. The disappointment and uncertainty, to the Creditors, who fully promised themselves a Settlement of their demands, after so many years delay, is certainly to be regretted, and to such of the Stockholders as are really anxious that an institution, with which their names are connected should be brought to a close, the disappointment will no doubt be equally great.

"The Kingston Bank Bill.—We regret to learn that this Bill is consigned to the "tomb of the capulets." The Commissioners appointed by the Stockholders and Certificate Holders, it would seem, could not agree respecting the appointment of a third Commissioner, and the Bill has, in consequence, fallen to the ground."—Chronicle.

We are not sufficiently acquainted with the localities of that part of the Country, to express any opinion upon the merits of the plan proposed by our Correspondent "Northumberland." What he suggests however appears to be desirable, as more than one place would be benefitted by it, and might beside lead to a termination of that rivalry, which however commendable in other points of view, is to be regretted when it interferes with the progress of improvement. We have always been of opinion that the more we can multiply harbors, on our Lake Coast the better, and if the project of "Northumberland" should be one, in which the people of his neighborhood generally concur, and should result in the construction of harbors, at Coburg, Burnham's Creek, and Port-Hope, although near to each other, we can see no possible objection to the plan.

A most unjustifiable attempt having been made to cast an odium upon the Police Magistrates of this Town, in relation to the discharge of their duty, on the late melancholy occasion, in which the unfortunate Nowlan was killed, we think it proper to inform the public of the facts of the case, as they relate to the conduct of the Police. It will be remembered, that on the morning following the murder, an investigation was immediately entered into at the Police Office, and from the examinations taken, but a few hours had elapsed before Charles French was fully committed for trial, and W. D. Forrest, for further examination on the following day. Why that further examination did not take place, and why as matters terminated, there was no necessity for it, we shall now explain. At the time of the committal of French and Forrest by the Magistrate, and when the further examination was ordered on the following day, Nowlan was still living—before the time appointed for that further examination, however, Nowlan died, and as is usual on such occasions, and agreeable to the Laws of the Country, another authority steps in, and takes upon itself the weight of investigation, as to the manner, and the persons by whom, the death has been caused. On the following morning therefore, instead of an examination before the Police Magistrates, the death of Nowlan, had rendered the whole matter cognizable by the Coroner, who duly summoned his Jury, and proceeded to a full investigation of it, calling before them all such witnesses, as he could procure, or who from information, he might have received, were supposed to know any thing relating to the transaction. After a full hearing of all these witnesses, the Jury returned their verdict, as has been before stated, and the parties were fully committed for trial. After such a committal the proceeding against them, is thus far final, they cannot again be brought up, until they are placed upon their trial, and further examinations, as it respects them, are therefore altogether out of the question. If any individual can give information with respect to any other person, we have not the least doubt, that on making it known at the Police Office, he will be attended to.

With respect to this transaction, we unhesitatingly say, that the most immediate steps were taken for apprehending the parties implicated, and that there is not the least ground, for casting a shadow of blame on any of the public functionaries. The best evidence of this is, that in the course of a very short time the actual perpetrator of the murder, was fully committed to prison, and one of the accessaries in safe custody, and that before forty-eight hours had elapsed, a full investigation had been made by a Coroner's Jury which resulted in the final committal of three persons, against whom evidence had been adduced.—Thus the matter now stands.—The Coroner's Jury, after mature deliberation, and the examination of several witnesses, have pronounced their verdict. Previous to the death of Nowlan, it is manifest, that every means in the power of the police, were exerted, and with success, for apprehending the person who had inflicted upon him a wound, which would more than probably prove fatal—and that subsequent to his death in consequence of that wound, the Coroner as the proper authority was equally prompt in the discharge of his duty, and that a Jury summoned under his authority, after hearing all the evidence, have considered it necessary to the ends of justice, that two other persons implicated with French, should be put upon their trial.—That evidence therefore does not attach suspicion to any other persons—if any information can be given that will do so, we again repeat, that equally prompt measures will be taken for having them proceeded against.

FIRE.—About 3 o'clock on Friday morning last, the inhabitants of this Town were aroused from their beds, and called forth amidst the gloom of a severe thunder-storm, to witness the awful sight that lofty and spacious mansion, known as the "Merchant's Exchange," the property of Mr. Robert Cannan, and kept by Mr John B. Connolley. Unfortunately, when the people had gathered in sufficient numbers to form any plan of operations, the flames had made such progress as to render their utmost exertions unavailing. The fire, it appears, must have first caught in the third story. A stranger was admitted in very late, some time after the house was closed for the night, and shewn into a room in the third story by the landlord himself, who left him with a candle burning preparing for bed. It is supposed that this individual fell asleep and left his candle burning, which has communicated to the bed-clothes, and himself perished in the flames. This conclusion is rendered the more probable, as the unfortunate man has neither been seen nor heard of since.

The furniture and bedding was principally preserved, which in a great measure owing to the prompt and timely assistance of Captain Melville, and the troops under his command.—There was a smart shower of rain during the first stage of the fire, to which providential circumstance, more than any other, may be attributed the preservation of some surrounding buildings. We are not informed whether the Merchant's Exchange was insured or not.

The 1st Regt. of Lincoln Militia, paraded yesterday on the Commons near Fort George. After the rolls were called, the Regiment formed a hollow square, when a beautiful Stand of Colours was presented them by Colonel Leonard, who accompanied the ceremony with the following appropriate remarks:—

"First Lincoln Militia! I have a pleasurable duty to perform in delivering to you your Colours—They are the gift of your Officers, a strong earnest of their zeal and regard for the credit and honour of the corps. Look at them, and let every individual resolve with his life to defend them.—In fighting for them you will fight for your rights as British subjects, your dearest interests in the defence of your families, your properties, and the honour of the Crown under which you serve; and should they ever be displayed before an invader of your shore, I feel confident you will uphold that high character by which you were distinguished in the campaigns of 1812, '13, and '14.

Look at Niagara, on your Regimental Colour, and tell it your sons, that that honourable badge was gained by your steady resistance to a foe who made boast that he would conquer Canada and divide your farms amongst his followers.

Officers! on you much depends—be bold and forward in action. And Men! support your Officers, and I will venture to say these Standards will never be polluted by the touch of an enemy."

Previous to dismissing the parade, the Colonel expressed his entire approbation of the orderly conduct of the officers and men, and hoped all the officers would, at the next general training, appear properly clothed and equipped.

An excellent dinner was prepared for the occasion by Messrs. Gray & Kinney, in the spacious uncescpied tavern-house of Mr. John Willson, to which about 50 officers and guests sat down. Several appropriate toasts were given, and the day passed off with much good humour and true British feeling.

Lower Canada.

The Storm.—On Thursday morning after a sultry day, the wind veered round to the eastward, and during the night blew a perfect hurricane which has since continued, and the tides being at their highest, considerable damage has been done to the wharves, stores and caves throughout the port during last night and this morning. The reports from the Coves on the St. Lawrence this morning were distressing, booms broken and timber of an immense value set adrift, the greater part of which will probably be lost to the rightful owners.—A small brig, the name has not yet reached us, was cast on Mr. John Campbell's wharf, the shipping, however, generally have sustained less damage than might have been expected.—The tide this morning rose higher than it is recollected to have done in the memory of the oldest inhabitants, and covered most of the wharves in front of the town, that of Mr. Atkinson being at the eastern extremity and most exposed to the fury of the waves, is considerably broken, and a large quantity of coal, more than 200 chaldron, was swept from it. On other wharves flour and ashes have been damaged by the water.—Along the basin of the St. Charles and on the line of St. Paul Street, there has also been much damage done, the water in several places flowed over the street and filled most of the cellars. In the front of the King's wood yard, the sea-wall has been injured and the footways for a considerable distance washed up. The sea broke freely over New Dorchester Bridge, and inundated the road and meadows on the North shore of the St. Charles, carrying the timber from Messrs. Gowan & Co's. booms for some distance into the fields. The greatest sufferer in this quarter, was Mr. Dalkin, whose extensive rope house was washed away, broken into three distinct portions and floated to different parts of the sujoining meadows; fortunately he had taken the precaution to scuttle the ship which, recently stuck on the ways, when launching, or it would probably have been thrown so far on the shore as to be irremediably lost. In addition to this outline of the ravages sustained, which it is to be feared will hereafter be filled up with yet more distressing particulars, the following accidents have been reported to us, an individual was drowned yesterday off Goudie's wharf, another in the Cul de Sac, a boat with four seamen capsized at the Mouth of the St. Charles and all hands lost; it is also said that a pilot boat with six or seven hands was lost, and a raft broken with several persons on it near Cap-rouge, the two last reports not having traced them to any certain source may, we hope, prove incorrect. Great apprehensions are entertained for the safety of several large rafts expected in the port, some of which it is feared may encounter the storm in all its fury on Lake St. Peters. The wind had somewhat abated, but has risen again.—Quebec Mercury.

Presentation of a Standard to the Quebec Troop of Cavalry.

On Sunday last His Excellency the Governor-in-Chief presented a Standard, which his Lordship had caused to be procured in England, to the Quebec Troop of Volunteer Cavalry. The ceremony took place on the exercising ground on the Plains of Abraham, and was attended by the Countess of Dalhousie and most of the fashionables and gentry of Quebec, and by far the most numerous concourse of Spectators remembered to have been collected on any similar occasion. The parade was formed at about 5 P. M. The Volunteer Companies being on the right in the following order:—First the Cavalry, next the Artillery, and the Rifles on the left. Then the Regulars, the Royal Sappers and Miners on the right, the Artillery, the 15th Regt.—and the 66th on the extreme left. Shortly after the line was formed His Excellency accompanied by the Officers of the General, and of his personal Staff, entered into the square on horseback, opposite to the centre, and was received with presented arms and the accustomed honors due to his rank. These paid, he proceeded to the right of the line attended by his suite and passing down the front returned to the right by the rear, and took his station in the front of the Volunteer Artillery. His Excellency then directed that Captain Gugy, with the Cornet of the Troop should be called to the front, and also Captains Price, of the Volunteer Artillery, and Walker of the Rifles, who having come forward His Excellency addressed them as follows:

Colonel Bell, Captain Gugy, Captain Price and Captain Walker,—I have long felt it a duty incumbent on me to express to you the satisfaction with which I have observed the formation of the three Corps, of Volunteers, which you severally command, and I have taken this opportunity and this mode of performing an act of justice due to you all. I have seen your exertions and your perseverance, and I now consider these Corps as the foundation of a system of Yeomanry in Canada which may yet render distinguished service to your King and Country.

This beginning made, I have been anxious to present to each of these Corps some mark of my personal approbation, which might at once testify to the past, and incite to continued perseverance in this spirited undertaking—I have obtained a Standard for the Troop of Cavalry, but the custom of the service does not admit of any military badge being carried either by the Corps of Artillery or Riflemen: I have felt it necessary thus to explain the only reason, why I did not present the same compliment to each of you.

To you Gentlemen, who command these Corps, I feel particularly obliged, and I beg to present to you the only public mark of my approbation in my power to offer,—a commission of advanced rank in the militia of the Province, except of that commission, of Major, with my warmest thanks for the support you have given me, in this object of my wishes for the public welfare.

And now Major Gugy—in presenting this Standard to the Troop of Volunteer Cavalry of Quebec, I beg their acceptance of it, in the distinct understanding, that it is a gift from the Governor, as an individual desirous to encourage perseverance and union of sentiment, in the duties for which you are associated.

You must bear in mind and still look forward to the highest honour "PRESERVATION OF HIS MAJESTY THE KING," this Standard is only meant to point the path by which to attain that object of the ambition of all soldiers.

May all happiness and success attend you Gentlemen and the Corps which you commands.

His Excellency having received the Standard in that silence prescribed by Military etiquette, and with the two other Majors the Commissions, which His Lordship had been pleased to deliver to them, they severally returned to their respective Corps, when Colonel Bell expressed the sense entertained by the Volunteers of the honor conferred upon them in a speech of which the following is the substance:

My Lord Dalhousie,

I beg leave to offer thanks for the high honor which your Lordship has been pleased to confer on the Volunteer Corps under my command.

Under the auspices of your Lordship these Corps have been brought forward, and from the very distinguished manner in which you have this day publicly approved of their conduct, I cannot but feel proudly conscious that they have deserved the approbation of your Lordship, who is so fully capable of appreciating the good intentions of a loyal people, who will ever be found ready to protect the rights of their Beloved Sovereign, and I say it my Lord (with the firmest confidence,) that there is not one amongst us in whose heart sentiments of gratitude and attachment to your Lordship will ever cease to exist.

I again request your Lordship to accept from myself, the Officers, Non-Commissioned Officers and Privates our most sincere thanks for the very distinguished honor this day conferred on us.

His Lordship returned opposite to the centre and the line wheeled into column and marched past in ordinary and quick time, which done, they again formed line upon their original ground, opened ranks and presented arms, the Band playing "God save the King." His Excellency received the salute and having retired, Colonel Nichol, 66th Regt. Commandant of the Garrison, ordered the ranks to be closed, and the Troops to march to their private parades.

The day was unusually fine, and the whole ceremony went off remarkably well; the Volunteers made a very military appearance, and marched with great regularity, the Troop of Cavalry attracted general attention, they are well mounted, and their appointments are strictly uniform.

The Standard with which they have been honored is of rich crimson silk, surrounded with silver fringe, with handsome bullion cords and tassels from the head of the standard staff; in the centre of the colour bears a double G. R. richly embossed in gold embroidery and surmounted by the Crown, also embroidered and in its proper colours, it is a very handsome military standard and is worthy of the noble donor. We feel warranted in saying the honors which His Lordship has bestowed upon the Quebec Volunteers are proudly felt by every individual composing those public spirited Corps.

Poetry.

THE OMNIPRESENCE OF GOD.

[From the Spirit and Manners of the Age.]

Thy guiding finger, Lord, I view,
Trac'd in the midnight planet's blaze,
Or glistening in the morning dew;
Whate'er is beautiful or fair,
Is but thine own reflection there.

I hear thee in the stormy wind,
That turns the ocean wave to foam;
Nor less thy wond'rous power I find,
When summer airs around me roam;
The tempest and the calm declare
Thyself—for thou art every where.

I find thee in the noon of night,
And read thy name in every star
That drinks in splendor from the light
That flows from mercy's beaming car:
Thy footstool, Lord, each starry gem
Composes—not thy diadem.

And when the radiest orb of light
Hath tipp'd the mountain tops with gold,
Smote with the blaze, my weary sight
Shrinks from the wonders I behold;
That ray of glory, bright and fair,
Is but thy living shadow there.

Thine is the silent noon of night,
The twilight eve—the dewy morn;
What'er is beautiful and bright,
Thine hands have fashion'd to adorn:
Thy glory walks in every shere,
And all things whisper, "God is here!"

POSTSCRIPT

By the Canada we have received from New York " The Albion Extra" with dates to 5th May—we give such a Summary, of its contents, as time, and limits will admit.

ALBION OFFICE, NEW YORK, JUNE 7 3 P. M.

" By the St. George, last night from Liverpool, we received the Debate in the House of Commons on Mr. Huskisson's motion relative to the affairs of Canada. By great efforts and some considerable expense we are enabled to forward the Debate entire to our subscribers this day. His Majesty's Government, it will be seen, approves of the conduct of Lord Dalhousie. Our report is taken from the Morning Herald."

Mr. Huskisson introduced his motion on the subject referred to, in a long Speech,—an unusually extended debate took place, which we shall endeavor to give entire next week. At the conclusion of his Speech the Rt. Hon. Gentleman moved " That a Committee be appointed to take into consideration the Civil Government of the Canadas, established by 31 Geo. 3, Ch. 31. and report their observations and opinions to the House."—After debate the motion was agreed to, and the subject referred to a select Committee.

THE EAST.—The news from the seat of expected hostilities presents nothing of importance; indeed there seems to be nothing official from any quarter and we may say with great safety that matters remain in statu quo. One thing, however, is positive, namely, that the Russians have not yet advanced.

It is reported in a London Sunday Paper, that Sir James Kempt will succeed the Earl of Dalhousie, in Canada.

Captain Clapperton—The following particulars of the death of Captain Clapperton, R. N. we have just received from the mouth of Joseph Lander, his servant, who attended him in his last moments.

It was on the 13th of April, 1827, at six o'clock in the morning, that this intrepid traveller breathed his last, at the City of Stockaton, about 18 days' journey from Timbuctoo. His illness lasted 82 days. The complaint by which he was lost to the world, was dysentery. He appears to have been perfectly aware of his approaching fate, was quite resigned to it, and died in the arms of his servant, without a struggle. The Captain was 38 years of age.

Major Laing was reported to have perished in December 1825. This is fully refuted, as a letter was received by his wife at Tripoli, dated February 1826, from a village but a short distance from Timbuctoo. In that letter the Major apologised for his brevity, which, he added, was caused by a severe sabre wound which he had received on the back of his right hand.

The Earl of Huntington, who had been confined by illness at New York, for some time, sailed in the Packet Ship Wm. Thompson, on the 1st instant, for Liverpool.

MR. ARCHBOLD closes the YORK THEATRE, for the season this evening. Independent of the amusement which Mr. Archbold and his Company have offered, on this, as well as on a former occasion, to the inhabitants of York, the general conduct of the Company under his management has been such, as we are confident ensures to them, their best wishes, for their future welfare and success in their profession.

BOTANY & ZOOLOGY OF BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

Preparing for publication, under the authority of His Majesty's Government, The Plants of British Nor h America, which have been collected by Dr. Richardson, Mr. Drummond, and the other officers of the Land Arctic Expedition, under the command of Captain Franklin, R. N. By Wm. Jackson Hooker, L. L. D. &c

The Botanists of Captain Franklin's Expedition having brought home upwards of 2500 species of Plants, they have been placed in Dr. Hooker's hand for publication: and as the country in which they were gathered includes an extent of no less than 27 degrees of latitude, and 70 degrees of longitude, comprehending all the varieties of climate of the British North American possessions, it has been deemed most advantageous for science, to form the materials into as complete a Flora as possible of those countries, by adding the specific characters of the Plants noticed by authors, and descriptions of undescribed species existing in various extensive herbaria, to which the author has access: the whole to be accompanied by numerous figures.

To be printed in 4to, uniformly with the Narrative of Captain Franklin's Second Overland Journey through Canada and the Hudson Bay Company's Territories, and of the Shores of the Arctic Sea; to which, with the Zoology of those countries, by Dr. Richardson, it may be considered as an Appendix.

In illustration of the above work. Mr. Drummond Assistant Naturalist to the Expedition, will publish—Fasciculi of Dried Specimens of about Three Hundred Species of Mosses.

II.—A Sketch of the Zoology of the Northern Parts of British America; being notices of all the Quadrupeds, Birds, Fishes, and insects, seen during the late Expedition, under the command of Captain Franklin. With Descriptions and Figures of the New and Rare Species, and lists of the Animals described by Authors as inhabiting those Countries, but which did not come under the notice of the Expedition. By John Richardson, M. D. F. R. S. F. L. S. &c. Surgeon to the Expedition; with the assistance of several eminent Naturalists.

To be printed in 4to, uniformly with the Narrative of Captain Franklin's Second Overland Journey through Canada and the Hudson's Bay Company's Territories; to which, with the Flora of those Countries, by Dr. Hooker it may be considered to be an Appendix.

The Miser's Prayer.—Among a variety of curious papers of John Ward, of Hackney, Esq., M.P., (who being convicted of forgery was expelled the House, and, in the year 1727, stood in the pillory,) there was found a few days ago a paper in his own handwriting, which we think may very properly be entitled the Miser's prayer.—"O Lord, thou knowest that I have nine houses in the City of London, and likewise that I have lately purchased an estate in fee simple in the County of Essex: and I beseech thee to preserve the two Counties of Middlesex and Essex from fire and earthquakes; and as I have a mortgage in Hertfordshire, I beg of thee likewise to have an eye of compassion on that County, and for the rest of the Counties thou may'st deal with them as thou art pleased! Oh Lord, enable the Bank to answer all their bills, and make all my debtors good men. Give a prosperous voyage to the Mermaid Sloop, because I have insured it; and, as touch hast said that the days of the wicked are but short, I trust in thee that thou wilt not forget the promise, as I have purchashed an estate in reversion, which will be mine at the death of that prodigate young man Sir J—— L——. Keep my friends from sinking; and preserve me from thieves and house-breakers: and make all my servants so honest and faithful that they may attend to my interest, and never cheat me out of my property night or day."—Ward was suspected of joining in a conveyance with Sir John Blunt, to secure fifty thousand pounds of that Director's Estate forfeited to the South Sea Company. The Company recovered the fifty thousand pounds against Ward, but he set up prior conveyances of his Estate to his brother and son, and concealed all his personals, which were supposed to be one hundred and fifty thousand pounds. These conveyances being also set aside by a Bill in Chancery, Ward was imprisoned for many years.

LANCASTER ASSIZES, MARCH 20.

Jane Scott, aged 21, was put to the bar, charged with the wilful murder of her mother, Mary Scott, by administering poison to her on the 15th May last.

It may be recollect that this prisoner was tried last summer Assizes for the murder of her father, and was acquitted. As the evidence against her on the second indictment was precisely the same as that which had been offered on the trial of the first, it was generally doubted whether a second trial would take place. The prisoner, however, was this morning put upon her trial, and Mr. Justice Bayley, who had tried her upon the first indictment, changed places for the day with Mr. Baron Hullock, who presided on this occasion, in the criminal court.

Mr. Brandt, in a short speech, declared to the Jury the offence imputed to the prisoner, and the evidence by which he intended to support it. He observed, that since the last Assizes a principal witness for the prosecution had died, and he should therefore offer in evidence the depositions made by that witness on the Coroner's Inquest had been held over the deceased.

Jane Dickinson proved the death of Hannah Cragg.

Hannah Cragg's deposition was then put in and read. It was to the following effect:—That she was intimate with the deceased; they lived in Preston, and Jane Scott, their daughter, lived with them. On Sunday, 18th May, I took tea with them. On Monday the 14th, Jane Scott came to my house. She said, 'Oh, Mrs. Cragg, my mother is dead. I said, 'she is not dead.'—Jane said, 'yes she is, and my father is holding her up.' She then went away. I followed her. I found Mrs. Scott in the kitchen very ill. I then went to look for John Scott, and found him in the yard vomiting. I got him into the house.—Mrs. Scott said, 'we have been poisoned, we took some porridge, and were ill directly after.' Jane was in the house at the time, and heard her mother complain. Jane said she would be quit of the porridge. And she went into the pantry and came out with a basin of porridge in her hand. Mr. Scott said, 'hold her to fetch Dr. Brown. Jane went out with the basin in her hand, and soon after returned with the basin empty. He then went to take care of it, and let it bide just as it was. She took it into the pantry. Soon after Dr. Brown came, the patient died, and forbid David Graham.

David Graham examined—I am the son of the late Mrs. Scott. I was at their house on Saturday, 12th of May; they were then in good health. Jane came to my house on Monday the 14th May, between eight and nine in the evening, with a woman of the name of Ellsborough. She said, "he, David! my father and mother are dying." I ran to their house as fast as I could Mr. Brown surgeon, was there applying, the stomach-pump. I said to the prisoner, " ho Jane, how can you for shame come into the room where they are." She flew at me, and swore at me, and I put her out of the room Prisoner then said that she would poison my wife. My mother died at ten minutes before three o'clock the next morning.

Cross-examined—The prisoner was in a great passion when she spoke to me. I once broke her arm. That was nine years ago. I was tipsy at the time, and threw her from me. She has been subject to fits for the last three years. I do not know that she leaves her she is dull for some hours. I do not know that she had a fit the Friday before. She was on good terms with my mother for aught I know

Mary Ellsborough examined—I have known the prisoner for the last five years. On the 14th of May last in the evening, she came to my house very much agitated. She said, " Do you know where Dr. Brown lives? Fetch him, fetch him" She told me that her father and mother had been ill ever since they had taken some porridge; and then she said, " Curse the porridge, I have thrown them into the canal." She then had a basin in her hand, and asked me to smell at it.—The basin seem'd clean.

Cross-examined—I know the prisoner has been subject to fits.

Thomas Emmet—I am a druggist at Preston. About two months before the death of the deceased, the prisoner came to my shop, and asked for a quarter of a pound of arsenic. She said she wanted it to poison some rats. I hesitated at first, till she told me she lived at a shop in Bridge-street. I think she said her name was Jane Scott. I gave her the arsenic. She came again in about a fortnight, and asked for three pennyworth more as she had not had quite enough before. Three or four days previously to her apprehension, she bought an ounce and a half more. She said that she wanted to mix it with some whitewash to kill bugs. I told her that it was a deadly poison, and cautioned her about it I told her that the best way of giving arsenic to rats was to mix it with meal and sugar.

Cross-examined—I know that arsenic is very extensively used in Preston for the purpose of killing rats and bugs. Within the last year, I have sold as much as 20 pounds for that purpose.

Thomas Walton—I am a constable at Preston. On Monday, the 16th May. I examined the house of the deceased. It had not the appearance of having been whitewashed. I found no arsenic.

George Richardson—I am acquainted with the prisoner Jane Scott. I saw her on the Thursday night before the death of her mother she beckoned me into her father's house. There was another girl there. She said, that her mother was gone out, and I must keep her company. She wished the other girl to go, as she had something to say to me. I told the girl she need not go, as we had nothing particular to talk about. The girl went away in a short time. The prisoner then said to me, " Now, George when must we be married?' I said, I was not going to marry, for I had nothing, and she had nothing. She said, that all the furniture in that house and the other house was hers any day that she had a mind! She said, that her father had signed every thing over to her; she could have it any time. I said, that was nothing to me. She said that she would fetch the paper and show me. She went into the shop and fetched a paper. I read about a line of it but could not understand it. She then took it back.—Her name was at the top of it. I can read, but not write.

Cross-examined—Part of the paper was printed and part written. It is something about tobacco and snuff.

From the further examination of the witness there seemed reason to believe that the paper shewn him had been a license to deal in different articles.

James Shorrocks—I have known the prisoner for four or five years. I saw her on the Sunday before her mother's death at the Three Tars public house in Preston. I told me that her father and mother were very badly. On Monday evening, about eight o'clock, I saw her again. I was standing looking at a fight, when she called me out of the crowd. She said " I have just been watching George go to her dandy-shop to Betty Watson's, perhaps thinks to make a fool of me, but I'll make a bigger fool of him." She then said she must go to supper, and told me to stop until she came back. I waited about twenty minutes, when she came again. She said "oh, Jem, my father and mother are sure to die." I said " we are all sure to die." She said " Yes, but not so soon as them." She then said, " I am going to Manchester next week, and when I come back I shall be a lady." She said, my father and mother have three houses, and they have signed all over to me; and when I come back we'll sell one of them and the shop, and go to Liverpool, and set up some business " She said that nobody should be at the wedding but me, because I was such a nice lad.

Mr. Brown—I am a surgeon, and reside at Preston. On the 14th of May I went to Scot's house about half past nine at night. The prisoner and Mary Bilsborough fetched me. I found the deceased sitting in a chair and vomiting. She was supported by Hannah Craggs. She said, " We both began to be ill immediately after taking our porridge." The prisoner was present. I made use of the stomach pump on the deceased, and then she was put to bed. I asked for the pan in which the porridge had been made The prisoner brought it. There was then a small quantity of porridge in the pan. I directed the pan to be set aside and not to be meddled with; I said that aloud. I did not particularly address the prisoner, but she was in the room.—After the patients had been put to bed, I inquired for the pan. It was shown to me by the prisoner. It had been washed out. I asked who had done it, and prisoner said she had washed out the pan in order to boil some water for the stomach pump. I inquired after the basin, and she said that she had emptied it unto the canal. I expressed my surprise that she should have gone so far. The canal is fifty or a hundred yards from the house. Mrs. Scott died on Tuesday morning; I examined the body that day. The body was much discoloured, and a muddy fluid proceeded from the mouth. The body was opened; the coats of the stomach were much inflamed. The contents of the stomach were conveyed to my house.

Mr. Slater, assistant to Mr. Brown, proved that the contents of the stomach had been delivered to him by Mr. Brown, and conveyed under witness's inspection to Mr. Brown's house. The fluids afterwards analysed were the same delivered to him by Mr. Brown.

Mr. Brown's evidence continued—The fluids were analyzed by me and Dr. Moore. I applied four or five tests. The results were such as I expected. The precipitations were subjected to the action of heat, and arsenic was produced. I have no doubt that the deceased died by poison.

Dr. Alexander Moore, a physician, residing at Preston, stated, that he had assisted the last witness in analizing the contents of the stomach of the deceased. I came to the same conclusion, and have no doubt that the deceased was poisoned.

This was the case for the prosecution.

The prisoner, when called upon for her defence, said in a faint voice, "I recollect nothing about it."

The Jury retired for about a quarter of an hour, and then returned a verdict of Guilty.

The prisoner, who throughout the trial had preserved an apparent coolness, burst into tears when the fatal verdict was announced, and besought the Court to transport her, and save her life.

Mr. Baron Hullock passed the sentence of the law, which directed the prisoner to be executed on Saturday (last.)

The learned Baron was much affected, and was once or twice obliged to pause in the course of his address. The unhappy woman was then removed from the bar.

CONFESSION OF JANE SCOTT.

On Thursday evening the sister of this unhappy woman visited her in the gaol in the presence of the matron. She received her sister with apparent coolness, and the interview was by no means of the nature anticipated. The sister was much affected at her awful situation, and implored her to endeavour, by prayer and repentance, to obtain the forgiveness of her many sins, and particularly by confessing if she knew any thing relative to the sudden death of her (sister's) child, who had attained the age of eighteen months about two years ago. The wretched woman then replied, "then I will tell thee all about it. When you quarrelled with me, I took the child out for a walk, and one of revenge to you I gave it some laudanum, and killed it." The child died very shortly after it was brought home by the prisoner, and it was supposed at the time that the child had died in a fit, and even up to the time of the prisoner's committal to part-icride. The unhappy woman also confessed, that shortly after this she formed the resolution of poisoning her own illegitimate child (as a young man had promised to marry her,) a fine boy about four years old: that she went to the Doctor's at Preston, and procured an ounce of white powder (arsenic,) and at tea time, she said Tommy was sitting at the table, and he cried: she then kissed him and made him quiet; that she then mixed the arsenic with some treacle, and gave it him all! That she then set him down in his chair, and took her seat opposite to him, and watched him until what she called the glass came over his eyes, and he died shortly after. The thing made a stir at the time, but the wretched woman said that she was not taken up about it, although many persons said that all was not right about it. The prisoner stated that she had been brought up in a Sunday school, and since the age of fourteen had led a most dissolute life; that at the age of fifteen she was seduced. She admits that her father and mother behaved always with kindness towards her, and that they endeavoured to keep her out of the streets; that she had robbed them of their property continually, and that she had robbed them, before their eyes, of the poison, to a state of great distress. The unfortunate woman stated that, on the afternoon previous to the administering the arsenic to her parents, she had met George Richardson (a young man that she desired to marry), and the boy Sorrocks, who gave evidence against her on her trial; and that they went to a public house and drank a quantity of ale, which Richardson paid for, and they then went away. That she met them again in the evening and paid them two shillings, which she had robbed her father of. That she left them at eight o'clock and went home, and took the arsenic that she had in her pocket, and mixed it first in hot water, and then mixed the meal with it, and made it into porridge, and gave it to her mother and father. They partook of it, and, as soon as she found they were poisoned, she ran for Mrs. Craggs. She admits the justness of her sentence; and also admits her crimes to be numerous. When she had confessed these horrible details to the Rev. Mr. Rowley, he asked her how she came to conceal them so long? She replied that she had done so because she thought she would get off.

She has never quitted her bed since her conviction, and seems to labour under a great degree of mental agony.

GRAND CARAVAN,
OR A LIVING ANIMALS.

THE largest ever seen in this country will be exhibited at Mr. Howard's Steam-Boat Hotel, in this town, on Monday June 23d inst. until the Saturday evening following. The Animals comprising the GRAND CARAVAN, are as follows:—No. 1, Great African LION. This is not only the largest, but from his flowing mane, and superior Carriage, is considered the finest of his species in America.—No. 2, LIONESS—the most beautiful animal that has ever been seen in captivity—yet the most courageous. The Lioness, when she has young ones to nourish, will combat with fury, even the most powerful animals that interrupt her; the Tiger or Elephant would, on these occasions, in vain attempt to oppose her. When pursued by mankind, she is only to be conquered by the powerful weapons they bring against her.—No. 3, South American TIGER, whose ferocity is well known to travellers.—No. 4, JAGUAR, from South America.—5, The celebrated CAMEL.—6, Beautiful LEOPARD.—7, CATAMOUNT.—8, The JACKALL, or Lion's Provider.—9, ICHNEUMON, Egyptian Animal, famous for destroying Crocodile's eggs and young reptiles, and formerly worshipped by the Egyptians. 10, Black WOLF, taken at the Silver Lake.—11, Grey WOLVES, male and female.—12. A ring is fitted for his performance.—21, The SAILOR, who never fails to divert the audience with his pleasing performances.—22, BARBARY APE.—23, Sports of the Ring.—24, MONKEY from Guinea. HOUSE OF COMMONS May 2.

CIVIL GOVERNMENT OF THE CANADAS.

Mr. Secretary HUSKISSON rose and said that the subject to which he was about to call the attention of the House was one involving and bearing upon interests, and upon feelings which were remote, and less exciting in comparison to that subject, which was lately before the House; but, nevertheless, it was a subject of very great importance—[Hear, hear.] The question to which he was then endeavoring to induce the House to concur in, in sending for an investigation to a Select Committee was this, whether those appendages of the Crown of this country—the Canadas—were well and usefully administered? Whether the prosperity and settlement of those Provinces were well suited to the one million of inhabitants that resided in those Colonies, and well suited to those relations which ought to exist between Colonies and the Mother Country? If it should be found that the system of administration now established could not any longer answer these views—if it could not go on, or be altered without the aid and authority of Parliament, it would then be the duty of Parliament to see to the matter, after due inquiry and investigation—and to make such improvement as the state of these Colonies required. If there was any imperfection in the present system of administering in these Provinces, it did not therefore follow that fault was to be imputed to any one.—The constitution of these Colonies was introduced and settled by the greatest characters that lived in this country. But if we by the present characters that lived in this country. But if we could not be matter of surprise if imperfections arose in the course of time, and if we now began to discover omissions which must be supplied. It was but right those should call to mind the first principles upon which the constitution of those provinces was established. It was fit to remember the pledges and the engagements that were made and given to the first settlements; and, as far as they will admit, to introduce such a system of legislation as would best advance both. And he would say, that there was no difficulty in examining fairly and deliberately, the present system of Government in those provinces, as compared with the constitution that was given them by this country, by the Act of Parliament, 1791, which we were at liberty to vary at our pleasure, as it was always reserved to Parliament to alter what was established, as well as to establish what should be thought useful. But here he found that power was not only reserved for Parliament by the Act, but also in the declaration of those who introduced that Act. There was nothing here to be opposed against the introduction of any alteration that might appear to be required, even in those parts as the lands reserved for the Clergy. [Hear, hear.] Parliament was at full liberty to alter the constitution of these colonies in such way as was required for the advantage of that community to which it was applied. There was not any doubt left on the Parliament of this country had in it the supreme power to deal with that constitution as they should think proper. Setting aside for the present the excited feelings and troubles in these Provinces, it was consistent for us to use the authority of Parliament, and to apply it to the modeling of a better system for that community, if found expedient; and he was sure that whatever decision Parliament came to, these Colonies would receive and acquiesce in. And it would be for us to carry on the Government of the Canadas, with increased benefit to them, and with strength and security, and increased advantages to the Mother Country. He was anxious to save the time of the House, and for that reason would not enter into details of the changes of the Canadas since they came to the Crown of Great Britain. The House was aware that these Provinces were ceded by France to the Crown of Great Britain in consequence of a convention with that country in the year 1763, and that there was no stipulation or obligation on the part of this country, with respect to the revenue to arise on the subsequent administration of their Government, but to be dealt with as with all other new conquests annexed to the Crown. These Colonies were settled for far as they were settled—in the year 1760, and the population was then thin, and confined to certain Districts on the banks of the River St. Lawrence, and chiefly to the two towns of Montreal and Quebec. The number of French in the whole were then only 65,000. On that very limited population as a stock, it was thought wise by the Government of France to ground the whole of the feudal system as it then existed in France in all its deformity. While the young and limited population was in its full vigour, and full of success, the French Government grafted on it the system of Civil Government of France—not the law of primogeniture in respect to succession to landed property, but what were called the "customs of Paris." The Lords, poor as they were, holding immediately of the Crown, gave out portions of the seignory to other Lords, who again gave out to others some of these lands, all which were subdivided into such small parts as not to be capable of further severance, and so these lands descended ever since; so that now these subdivisions of property became of the greatest difficulty. In less than a century this course of succeeding to property was going on. It was no longer ago than this morning that I read in a Canada Newspaper an advertisement offering for sale 1,300th part of one of these Lordships. [A laugh.] But it was a common thing to see and hear of a third of a seventh of a half of a sixth. By another advertisement, but not of a sale, a fifth part of a fourth part of a fifth part of a sixth of a seignory. By another, he saw the eleventh part of a fourth of a fifth of a sixth. By another, he saw the eleventh part of a fourth of a fifth of a sixth. By another, a forty-fourth part of a fifth part of a sixth part, and so on in such a way as made it quite impossible for any one to know what suit or service, or fines, he was to owe. Each possession owed various services—like corn to be ground at such a man's mill, with numerous other rights, liabilities, and duties, all of a most vexatious description. It was impossible to say on what tenancy any man held his land. That was the civil administration established by France in the Canadas, in 1760.—In the year 1763, when these Provinces were ceded to the Crown of Great Britain, the King of England invited his subjects to settle in the Canadas, and promised to give them all the advantages and protection of British laws. From that period to the year 1774 the British laws continued to be introduced into these Provinces, and Courts of Justice were established after the British manner; and all things were managed within that period according to Proclamations issued from the Government of the Mother Country. Then the one branch of the Provincial Legislature had no effect. In the year 1774 there Colonies were first mentioned in that House, for the purpose of getting in and ge-calling all declarations issued as Legislative arrangements, and at the same time to introduce the administration of British Criminal justice. The Act then passed recalled all ordinances, declarations, and regulations, by which these Colonies were then governed. It established the French laws, as far as they related to the rights and successions to property, and the administration of Civil Law, as it appeared in France. The same Act, however, provided for the establishment of the Criminal Laws of England; so that these Colonies had from that time the French Roman Civil Law and the English Criminal Law. From the year 1763 the Crown of Great Britain proceeded to to make grants of Land, which were given in free and common soccage, except the seigniories which he before mentioned. But still these grants so made remained under the administration of the Roman Civil Law of France, as before established in Canada. That was, the lands were granted in free and common soccage, but the lands were granted in this country; but, as to all civil rights, these lands were subjected to the French laws—to the year 1774 it was thought right to do something to conciliate the people of Canada, and attach them to this country. With that view the oppressive duties laid on by France were ordered to cease, and in lieu of them, other duties of an easier and more tolerable nature were imposed, and the produce of these newly-imposed duties were to be applied to defray the expense of the administration of justice in Canada.—So that, in the year 1774, two considerable boons were bestowed on the Canadas. One of these boons was the restoration of the laws before the conquest and the recognition of the established religion. This latter was a boon which, he trusted, would never be disturbed. [Hear, hear.] The other boon was the securing to these Provinces the application of the taxes and duties to the establishment of a Civil Government, as he came to that important Act, passed in this country in 1778, which, although it was not enacted expressly, for these Colonies, yet was necessary to be stated in this place. He alluded to the famous Declaratory Act by which this country relinquished the power to tax America, and allowed all duties arising from regulations relating to Commerce among themselves to be long to the Colonies themselves. It was true that there was a doubt whether that Act applied to the Canadas; but as that state he had described, the laws continued to be administered until, in 1791, Mr. Pitt introduced into that House the Quebec Act—an Act which attracted more notice at that time and the separation of political friendships among the great men in that House than from any importance in the Act itself. By that Act this country gave to the Canadas a popular representation. By one of the provisions of that Act the right to and control over all duties arising within the Colonies, were reserved to that Assembly to dispose of, and all power in that respect was relinquished by our Government. The Right Hon. Gentleman then explained the operation of that Act, and explained the constitution of the Legislative Assembly created by it.—The Provinces were divided into Districts, and these were to send Representatives in proportion to their inhabitants, without any provision for a future change. The provision was made permanent by the Act, which he conceived a great error. By what means and by what circumstances, and by what course of progress, differences grew up between the local Legislature and the Executive Government, it would not be necessary for him to trace or enter into; but it was sufficient for him to state the controversy which at present existed between the parties. The Assembly of Lower Canada claims the right of appropriating to what branch of the Civil service, and in what proportion it pleases, whatever income may be received. On the other hand, it is maintained that the Crown possesses over that revenue that discretion of appropriating in its wisdom that portion of the revenue to whatever branches and to whatever purposes might be deemed necessary. And he believed that there was no lawyer in this country, bred up under the Constitution of England, either in Canada or elsewhere, who could deny that it belongs to the Crown to appropriate the revenue to the Administration of justice in the Canadas and to the establishment of Civil Government. But on the other hand, the Assembly holding the public purse, and having a power over the public revenue, withhold these supplies, in order to enforce that unreasonable assumption on their part—a course which would be subversive of all Constitutional Government, and which must evidently end in anarchy and confusion, if the controversy be not speedily arranged. The Assembly of Lower Canada, unfortunately, rested on their supreme rights inflexibly, in opposition to the local Government. This was the state to be deplored, as it indicated a bad feeling on the part of the Representatives of the people towards the executive Government in the just exercise of those rights inherent in all executive Governments. By proceeding in this disastrous course, the public Representatives cannot ground their conduct on any justification whatever. He did not stand up to press on the House of Commons of England the necessity of holding just rights where just rights exist, and also the necessity of exercising a strict control over public expenditure; but let the House for a moment consider that any obstruction to the appropriation of the public money required by law, must tend manifestly to distress and disorganize the Government of that country, who are responsible for the proper administration of the public funds. But what must be the result of this controversy as to the provinces themselves? The unfortunate controversy arrested every thing which was indispensably necessary for the maintenance of the administration of the laws —preventing every thing necessary for the Government to adopt in the proper exercise of its functions—all improvement was at a stand-still, and was either neglected or postponed—education was altogether overlooked, public buildings neglected, and, in short, he would not state that anarchy yet existed, because the Government was sustained by the King's representative, but it was not making that progress in improvement in all those arts which were essentially necessary for the happiness of a State, and suffering in direct proportion to the length of time this unhappy controversy existed. He entered into this statement in order to show the House what the result of these unhappy differences must be, and also to show that time passes, and events have come to that crisis, at which he was warranted in calling on Parliament to interpose its authority and influence for the purpose of laying those feuds, and of establishing the representation, on such a system as might give a fair share of that representation to all parts of the provinces, and establish such an administration of the public revenue as may render them available to the improvement of the country and its inhabitants, to which purpose the revenues ought to be legitimately appropriated. On the one hand, it would be desirable to give the Legislative Assembly a power to direct the whole application of the revenue in that particular channel which, in their wisdom, they may consider the most beneficial for the improvement of the Province. On the other hand, it was also desirable to invest the executive Government with that control over the immediate application and dispensation of the public revenue in a manner conformable to the exercise of Government over the Civil List. In this view of the subject he did not consider the opposition as fatal defeat, from any man who was born an Englishman. It ought also to be a fundamental law, and the first which ought to prevail in any country—namely, that those who are connected with the administration of the executive Government should be dependant on, and subject to, the revision of the Legislative Assembly. But, at the same time, though it might be advisable to give the Assembly a power by which narrowly the conduct of the Executive, still that very supervision necessarily brought the two bodies into more or less collision.—a circumstance which ought by all means to be guarded against. He, therefore, would not contend with the Legislative Assembly of the Canadas how far they could exercise a discretion over particular funds or taxes, but he thought the Executive ought to have the appropriation of the public revenue, so far as would be necessary to supply a Civil List, as it were, for the remuneration of the officers of the Government. The remainder of the public revenue he would leave to the benevolent consideration of the Legislative Body. In justice, however, he must say, that the King's Government, in the subject of that control over the public revenue, never hesitated to lay before the Assembly of the Provinces the particular account of the appropriation of the permanent revenue. From these accounts it appears, that there was no misapp to say that they were to hold these opinions, and to have this control—they who received their protection from this country, and derived all their improvements from it? Their interests were inseparably involved in our interests: and he disclaimed any feeling of jealousy existing. He wished to see those colonies prosper and flourish, and, to use the language of the Right Honourable Gentleman opposite, to view them as the germs of future Englands, to perpetuate our national character and institutions to the latest posterity. He thought that the proposed Committee would effect a great deal of good; and its labours would tend, he was sure, to advance the prosperity of those colonies; but he did not think that those objects would be effected by making French Canada our Canada. He hoped that the debate of that night would forever set at rest an opinion that there existed any intention to abandon those colonies. There existed no jealousy on our part. The Government of this country had but one object in view—namely, their prosperity; and he was sure that the sentiments of the British Parliament would greatly tend to tranquillize public feeling in those colonies. The present state of the law of real property in those colonies led to endless disputes, and required a remedy. As to the question of religion, he did not wish to enter upon it; but he thought it was a subject which required the temperate and serious consideration of the Committee. There were many other details which he would not then enter into, which would come before the Committee; and it was under these circumstances that he gave his support to the motion of his Right Hon. Friend.

Mr. STANLEY said, that he felt great difficulty in offering himself to the house at that time of the night, particularly after the clear statement of the Right Hon. Gentleman opposite, and the able speech of his Right Hon. Friend (Sir James Mackintosh,) which was so replete with argument, wit, and statesmanlike views, so that a very narrow ground was left for him to go upon. He thought the House, in discussing this subject, ought to divest itself of all partiality and of particular interests, and should in their deliberations consult alone the interests and welfare of all his Majesty's subjects in these colonies, and endeavour to make them look up to this country as the one with which their interests were indissolubly connected. He thought that the House were, by the present motion, called on to become arbitrators between the rights of Government and the complaints of the people of Canada. The Right Hon. Gentleman was calling on the House by his motion to do that which the Government could much better do than the house. He thought that the question regarding real property had been too much argued in the House, as if it was intended to abolish the law affecting the real property of the French Canadians. He did not think that such was the intention of the Right Hon. Gentleman. He thought there was no intention to trench upon the Rights of the Roman Catholics in Lower Canada—(Hear,) or their civil rights, which they had enjoyed from the year 1763, and had been secured to them by subsequent Acts. He thought there was a time when the laws of French Canada might have been merged into the institutions of this country; but the time was gone by;—after the Proclamation of 1762, by which the English law was introduced into Upper and Lower Canada in all its parts; at that time it became necessary to summon a legislative body to hear and determine certain cases, according to the forms of English Law. When the members of it assembled, they were found to be all Catholics; and as they could not take the oath prescribed by the Test Act, so no legislative body was formed. He would suppose two thirds Canadians and one third English; and he could very well imagine, from the influence which the English possessed on account of their nation and education, that they would induce the Canadians to vote with them in every measure which they disposed to carry. He therefore thought it would be much better that their concerns should be regulated by the King and Council of this nation, than be governed by an assembly from which they themselves might be said to be excluded. He would pass by the Act of 1774 without making any observations, because he considered the Act of 1791 was the ground-work of the present motion, and he confessed that it was with regret that he saw this country interfered with the internal regulations of the colonies, either as respected the representation of the State, or the financial departments of the country. He could not, however, refrain from doing the Noble Earl who was at the head of the Government in that Colony (Earl Dalhousie) the justice of observing, that he (Mr. Stanley) felt convinced that that Noble Earl, if he had not had the good fortune to give satisfaction to the petitioners, had acted in conformity with the instructions he had received from Government, and in conformity with what he considered the Constitution of the country. One great misfortune in that Colony was, that, by the Act of 1791, it had no House of Lords, no aristocracy, to give its influence and aid to the other branches of Government, and the natural tendency of the French law prevented the growth of that aristocracy, to the absence of which might be attributed many, very many of the evils now complained of. This might be inferred from the fact that the Legislative Council were ranged on the side of the Government to oppress the people, and in raising those feelings of discontent which led them to make common cause with each other. The Legislative Council, he was fully satisfied, was the root of all the evils which had oppressed that country for the last ten or fifteen years.—These complaints were not of yesterday's growth, but had arisen at the moment, but of evils of long standing, which demonstrated that there was something wrong in the Constitution of the country, and in the system generally by which it was managed. The petitioners also complained of being subjected to many grievances by the interpretation put upon the Tenures Act an Act by which the original holders of land, under the French laws, became tenants of the Crown on paying a compensation, and they then considered themselves as holding their property under the protection of the laws of England. This was a point which had occasioned much discussion; and, as it was a question which involved property to a large amount, and greatly excited the popular feelings, it ought to be the subject that ought to be determined by an Act of Parliament, and not to be left to the decision of the Noble individual against whose Government so many complaints had been made. The religious establishment of the colony was also a subject which, from its great importance, demanded much serious attention; and here he could not avoid saying that he considered the present line of policy pursued by the authorities of the colonies repugnant to the spirit of the Act of 1791. It was contrary to the meaning of that Act, that a system of religious exclusion should ever have been acted upon; and he felt equally convinced that it was the intention of that Act that the inhabitants of that colony should never have to look across their boundaries and see any thing to envy in this country which they did not possess. He trusted that the petitioners had made out a case which would induce the House to look into their complaints; and he hoped that, in a question where the interests of a million of persons were involved, this country would prove not a step-mother, but a kind mother. He would refer the House a line of liberal and friendly policy. He would refer the House to what had passed as respected America, and it would see that, after all the quarrels and bloody wars; which were founded in justice on the one hand, and oppression on the other; it had risen into independence; and from the subsequent course pursued, our friendship had been continued with the United States, and every Englishman who now visited that country, was received with the utmost kindness and hospitality. He trusted, if ever the situation of the Canadians was such as to induce them to seek the same from this Government, that before that event took place, such a course of conciliatory measures would be adopted as would keep up a lasting friendship between the two countries.

Mr. HUME was of opinion that the grievances of his Majesty's present Government were principally to blame for having occasioned those grievances which the Canadians complained of having suffered for the last ten years. He, however, admitted that the Right Hon. Gentleman was bound to yield to the unanimous wishes of the Canadians, and to grant them those just rights which they had been so long deprived of. It must be evident that a committee must be wholly under the power of the Government; and, although all the responsibility would rest with them, it was from his Majesty's Ministers alone that a remedy could be looked for. These complaints of mismanagement were not confined to the Canadas alone; they were extended to all our colonies, with the exception of Nova Scotia; and it was, therefore, evident that our system of foreign management was any thing but conciliatory, and strongly called for the interference of the House. He begged also to say a few words on a Bill of the last session, which, he believed, relative to the Clergy Reserved Lands, and on that occasion it was understood that the measure was not intended for the advantage of any particular sect, but for the benefit of protestants generally; but it was impossible not to see that, the Charter passed on the 15th March, his Majesty's Ministers had not given a decided preference to one particular sect. He had reason to believe that the Royal ear, and that of his Majesty's Ministers, had been poisoned by the statements made by the Rev. Dr. Strachan, who had grossly misrepresented that the Methodists were hostile to Government, which statement had been made a pretence for advancing the interests of the Church Establishment, to the exclusion of all other sects of protestants. In answer to another assertion of Dr. Strahan's, that a large portion of the Assembly were members of the Church of England, it was stated that the members of the Protestant Episcopalian Church bore a small proportion to the other Christians, and they who composed the Assembly, twenty-seven had agreed to the resolutions. He differed entirely from the late Under Secretary of State, as to the statement he had made in the House. If we could not make the Canadians support our alliance it would be better for us we should separate. Unless each country were mutually benefitted, it was impossible the colonies could be of any advantage.

Mr. WARBURTON said that, having been requested by the Assembly of Upper Canada to support their case, he would make one or two observations. He hoped, that no legal subtleties would find their way into this Committee. To show that legal subtleties had caused a great part of the discontents, he would mention that the principal and most ancient landholders were those who had received grants of lands as having been American loyalists. It was discovered, by a decision of the House of Lords, that, they had not qualified as aliens under the Act of George II. they were not subjects to his Majesty. He hoped the Government would advert to the predicament in which all the principal landholders in the Upper Province were placed by such a subtlety. It ought to be one part of the duty of the Committee to set at rest all doubts which might be entertained as to the titles of these much injured individuals

Mr. S. WORTLEY said he thought the Right Hon. Secretary of State for the colonies had stated a case; but he protested against the great differences between the Government and the Colonial Legislature being made one of the subjects for the consideration of the Committee. He wished to know from the right hon. Secretary of State for the Colonies whether it was not the intention of Government to bring before the Committee the state of the Civil Government of the Canadas, putting out of sight, as much as possible, the disputes at present carried on. He was anxious to put the question in this point of view that he rose to address the House.

Mr. BAKING said he considered this question as one of the most important that could occupy the attention of Government. When the late Right Hon. Secretary for the Colonies talked of attempting to Englishise these Frenchmen, he was not surprised at a petition of 80,000 individuals. These colonists would not continue attached to us if we did not arrive at some system of conciliation. The petitioners complained that they could not constitute their own confidence Without that it was impossible. All the questions about Wallachia or Moldavia, or the grand Seignor, sunk into insignificance, compared with this question of the Colonies. He rejoiced in the appointment of a Committee, as a proof of determination on the part of the Government not to abandon the Provinces.

Mr. W. HORTON explained.

Mr. HUSKISSON, in reply, said he had purposely abstained from adverting to the conduct of Governor Dalhousie. He thought that the still higher situation which, in all probability, that Noble Lord would soon be called on to fill, would be the best proof that he had not incurred the disapprobation of his Government. He had been asked whether he meant that the Committee should apply itself to the evils which had grown out of the system of Government, and to quarrels between public functionaries. He should certainly have thought that the wording of the motion would have taken away all doubt as to what was his intention in that respect. As Mr. Pitt had been mentioned, he would read a short extract from a speech of his own on this subject. He said, "If the Legislature is not prepared to consider it at first, it must be recollected that it is subject to revision, and that it might easily afterwards be altered.—There was nothing to hinder the Parliament of Great Britain from correcting any faults that might hereafter appear in the Constitution." Having stated that, he thought he had stated sufficient to satisfy the House that we were not going to try the disputes as to Lord Dalhousie's conduct. He should not at that late hour attempt to follow all the observations made by the different Gentlemen who had addressed themselves to the Subject; but he would beg leave to say a word or two in reply to some remarks made by the Right Hon. and Learned Gentleman opposite (Sir J. Mackintosh). The part of the Right Hon. Gentleman's speech of which he principally complained was where, acting rather as an advocate than a statesman, he recommended—in which recommendation he was joined by the Hon. Member from Aberdeen—that instead of the appointment of a select Committee, the matter should at once be put an end to by conceding all that the population, by its petition to which 67,000 signatures anexed, could demand. Now with regard to the 87,000 signatures, he did not deny the number, but he thought it argued a great defect in the legislation of the Colony, that, out of that large number of signatures from whatever discriptions of persons they proceeded, (the Right Hon. Gentleman had stated that a large proportion of them were heads of families)—out of the whole number not 9,000 were written. All the rest were marks. This appeared to him to be a strong proof how little the Legislature had attempted to forward the interests of those committed to its care. The Right Hon. Gentleman, as well as others, cautioned the Government against attempting to govern those provinces by force. (Mr. Huskinson) assured the Right Hon. Gentleman, and all who felt any apprehensions on this head, that nothing was more distant from the view which he entertained of the great interests now under consideration. He felt that to govern those provinces by force or constraint, if even it were desirable, was impossible; and to govern them by any improper influence was equally undesirable and impossible. Whatever course he would ed the Select Committee to take, or whatever course he should himself take in the situation which placed him in responsible con ection with the Colonies, should be directed by a desire to do w at was proper for their Government, and, at the same time, to do it in a manner which should not excite animosity or distrust, but should create such feelings as would still more closely cement the connection subsisting, and which he hoped would ever subsist, between the mother country and her dependencies.

The Motion was then put and agreed to; and it was ordered that the petition should be referred to the Select Committee.—(Cheers.)

The leading French papers also hold the same pacific tone.

GREECE.

There are extraordinary contradictions between the accounts relative to the Morea in the German and French papers received in the English capital. The former represent Ibrahim as making preparations to evacuate the Morea in consequence of the remonstrances of the Allied Powers; the latter assure us that the time allowed Ibrahim to evacuate the Morea having elapsed, the Allied Fleets are to keep the ports of Modon, Patras, and Navarin, in the strictest blockade. Some troops, sent from Alexandria to reinforce Ibrahim, appear to have proceeded no farther than Candia.

PORTUGAL.

The latest accounts from Lisbon, through Oporto, to the date of the 21st, from the latter place, state, that Don Miguel has evinced signs of a better disposition; that he had ceased to be under the influence of the Queen mother, having wholly separated, and gone to reside at the place of Bemposta, while the Queen remained in that of Queluz. The obnoxious Bastos had been removed from the office of Intendant of Police, and an individual of more moderate character, of the name of Barrata, had been appointed in his stead.

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, JUNE 21, 1828.

Summary.

On the 2d of May, the Bill for the repeal of the Corporation and Test Acts, which had been returned from the House of Lords with some slight amendments, was taken up in the House of Commons, and after a few explanations, the amendments were concurred in. The Bill now only wants the Royal sanction to become a law. The following is the test as now required by the bill, instead of the Sacramental Test:—

"I. A. B, do solemnly, and sincerely, in the presence of God, profess, testify, and declare, upon the true faith of a Christian, that I will never exercise any power, authority, or influence which I may possess by virtue of the office of ——, to injure or weaken the Protestant Church as it is by law established in England, or to disturb the said Church or the Bishops and Clergy of the said Church, in the possession of any rights or privileges to which such Church, or the said Bishops and Clergy, are or may be by law intitled."

In the House of Commons on the 5th, Lord Milton presented a petition from different persons against any additional duty on Foreign Wool. He said that great alarm was excited in the country, and he thought the time was now come when his Majesty's Ministers ought to make a declaration on the important subject; he understood this declaration was to be made to-night, and he should therefore not trespass any longer on the House. Mr. Charles Grant said that his Majesty's Ministers had come to the resolution that a tax could not be imposed on Foreign Wool, without injury to the manufacturing interests, and he had now to inform the House that it was not the intention of his Majesty's Government to impose any duty on the articles.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer has announced to the House of Commons the fixed determination of the government to give to the country the security of a currency founded on the precious metals, and to carry the law for the extinction of small notes into full effect.

The Times says, "we understand that the late arrivals from Bengal have brought about £300,000 in silver, and that a large sum in addition, making to the amount of more than £1,000,000 sterling, may shortly be expected from the same quarter."

The London Sun states that Sir Walter Scott has engaged to furnish two tales and a poem for the London Annual, called the Keepsake and that he is to be paid "the almost incredible sum of one thousand guineas" for this contribution. At the late Burlington Festival, Madame Catalani received six hundred guineas for a few bravuras—Genius, talent, and mature skill deserve to succeed in this way, not less than ability and reputation at the bar, or sagacity and dexterity in strokes of trade.

We have read the two Religious Discourses of Sir Walter Scott, in the beautiful London copy. The first is entitled, The Christian and the Jewish Dispensations Compared; the second, The Blessedness of the Righteous. Both are truly sensible and pious, but we are particularly pleased with the latter.—Nat. Gaz.

Foreign Intelligence.

AFFAIRS OF THE EAST.—The London Courier places the fullest reliance upon this view of the present state of affairs, and adds the following, from the Frankfort paper of April 26th:—

It is again reported that the Cabinet of St. Petersburgh has assured the European Courts that its military operations are by no means intended with any view to an increase of territory; but solely to induce the Porte to fulfil all the stipulations of the Treaty of Akerman. It hopes that the occupation of Moldavia and Wallachia will suffer to convince the Divan that Russia will never depart in the smallest degree from her demands, and to compel it in this manner to satisfy those demands according to the Treaty. The Russian troops will then remain in their new positions till either those demands are complied with, or it becomes evident that even this measure is not sufficient to induce the Porte to adopt another system.

The latest news received from the East of Europe, now the great object of attention, will be found in the extracts we have made from the papers received by the last Mail. Nothing decisive appears to have yet taken place.

HIS EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, arrived in Town on Wednesday morning last, from Stamford, by the Canada.

The friends of internal improvement, will read with pleasure, the extract we have made from the Montreal Gazette, from which it appears, that Mr. Merritt the Agent for the Welland Canal, who is now in London, has made a most successful beginning in disposing of the remaining Stock. The Stock list being honored with the names of some of the most distinguished and influential persons in England, affords the most reasonable hope that little difficulty will be found in disposing of the rest of the shares. We understand that Mr. Merritt has made other arrangements, which will be productive of benefit to the Company, and we sincerely hope, that the exertions of those who have persevered in furthering the interests of this truly great work, will at no very distant day, be fully rewarded, in the accomplishment of their patriotic wishes.

From the Parliamentary Debate which took place in the House of Commons, it will be seen, that until the Select Committee make their report, it is uncertain what measures may be adopted with respect to the Canadas.—Our readers will easily perceive that some of the Speakers have evinced any thing but an intimate knowledge of the true state of affairs. The King's Government approves in the most unqualified manner of the Administration of Lord Dalhousie's Government. Mr. Hume it would seem, has already received information, by means of the secret correspondence he formerly recommended in his Letter to Mr. Randal, and his ear having been poisoned, and his judgment prejudiced, we cannot be surprised, that he should make assertions, which if he had taken pains to be more correctly informed, he would never have ventured to utter.

Amateur Theatre.—On Monday evening the Comedy of "The Poor Gentleman," with the Frace of "High Life below Stairs," was performed by the Gentlemen Amateurs of York, to a crowded and fashionable house. Where all exerted themselves to please, and with success, it may be considered unnecessary to speak of the excellence of particular characters. The evenings entertainment was much to the satisfaction of the audience, and was enlivened, by the performances of an excellent band of music, in the Orchestra, relieved at intervals by the Key Bugles of the 68th Regt. stationed in an adjoining room, who performed some of their most delightful airs, and for whose attendance we are requested to present the thanks of the Gentleman Amateurs to Major Winniett the Commandant of the Garrison.

The Turf.—On Saturday last, "the Garrison Purse of £10"—owners of Horses paying an entrance of Ten Shillings each, was run for on the Garrison Race Course. The day was uncommonly fine, and pleasant, and the course was thronged with a large assemblage, in Carriages—horsemen, and pedestrians, to witness the sport of the day. At one o'clock the Bugle sounded "to Horse," and in a few minutes the race commenced, between the following Horses:—

Best of Heats, once round.

Dr. McCagnes,	C. G.	Diamond.	1	1
Mr. Dunns,	G. G.	Blue Peter.	2	4
Mr. Campbells,	B. G.	Highlander.	3	2
Mr. Stegmans,	B. G.	Skinner.	4	3
Mr. James,	G. G.	Billy Button.	5	5

The race was won with ease by "Diamond," coming out several lengths a head.

A Match Race, for a Purse of Twenty-five Dollars, made up on the Ground, entrance One Dollar each, was then run for. Nine horses entered, and after a most beautiful start, was well contested, between Mr. Sherwood's "Fidget"—and Mr. Thompson's "Fly"—the former winning the race, by scarcely half a length.

It will be seen by a Notice in this days paper, that on Tuesday next, a Town Purse, is to be run for, on the Race Course. Four Horses are already entered.

At the opening of the present term of the Court of King's Bench, on Monday last, their Honors, Mr. Justice Sherwood, and Mr. Justice Willis, being present, before proceeding to the ordinary business, the latter rose, and addressed to the Bar, a written opinion, upon the Constitution of the Court. In the course of this address, which was delivered at great length, reference was made to several enactments, both of the Imperial and Provincial Legislatures on the subject of Courts of Judicature, from which and other authorities quoted, he stated it to be his opinion, that in consequence of the absence of the Hon. the Chief Justice, (who has obtained leave to proceed to England) the last term, (Easter) previous to which His Honor had departed, was not legally holden, and that the present sitting under the same circumstances could not possess legal jurisdiction. The manner in which the leave of absence to the Chief Justice, as well as to many other Officers, holding situations in the Provincial Government, had been granted, he stated to be his opinion, from information obtained at the Council Office, was not only irregular, but illegal, and that the incumbents in consequence of that illegality had forfeited their Offices. We understood the learned judge to say, that no Officer could depart from the Colony, without forfeiting his Office, unless upon leave obtained from the Governor and Council, whereas he understood the usual course to have been for leave to be granted by the Governor only.

His Honor having delivered the above opinion, as to the legal constitution of the Court, expressed his regret that he had at all entered upon the discharge of his Judicial functions, without having previously acquainted himself more particularly on the subject. He stated to the Bar, that although he felt much regret in being compelled to take such a step, he yet felt it an imperious duty, to declare under that opinion, the incapacity of the Court to proceed legally to the discharge of the business before it, under which impression, he must decline sitting on the Bench; adding however, that he should attend to such ordinary matters, as might be transacted, before a Judge in Chambers.

Mr. Justice Sherwood, said that he would not take upon himself to pronounce an opinion on the subject, as there was nothing before the Court, which called upon him to do so—it might be considered as an extra judicial opinion:—Adhering therefore to the uniform practice, under similar circumstances, he should not hesitate to proceed with the ordinary business of the Court, adjourning it from day to day as occasion required. Mr. Justice Willis objected to any adjournment, urging his opinion that as the Court was not at present legally constituted in consequence of the absence of the Chief Justice, its functions could not be exercised, and that any proceedings would be null and void.

Mr. Justice Sherwood then stated, that he was aware from the address which had been delivered, by his brother judge, that such was his opinion, but that he nevertheless felt himself competent to pursue the course he had mentioned. If that course notwithstanding the practice which had hitherto invariably prevailed, should prove to be incorrect, he should regret it extremely, but he felt it to be of too much consequence to the business of the country, to take upon himself to vary from it, without the interference of a higher authority. Judge Willis then left the Bench, and the Court after the transaction of some ordinary matters, was, under the direction of Mr. Justice Sherwood adjourned to the following day, and has since continued its sittings before his Honor alone.

Without expressing any opinion on a question of so much consequence, we shall only state our regret, as to the manner in which it has been agitated, and particularly after more than Thirty years unvarying practice, during which time, it has not unfrequently occurred that the sittings of our Courts have been held, during the absence of some of their Officers—Judges as well as others. If that practice has been incorrect, it appears to us that it would have been most desirable, not to have disturbed it, unless through the intervention of a higher power, capable of remedying the evils resulting therefrom; for it must be obvious that such objections after the lapse of so many years, are calculated, seriously to affect the interests and business of the country, and to render the present, as well as many of the former proceedings of our Courts liable to doubt and uncertainty, without providing that relief, which would imperiously be required, should those objections be well grounded. To the country it is of the most serious import, as it may tend to produce delays and disappointments to suitors now in attendance, and under plea of illegality in former proceedings, to open afresh those differences, which all supposed were settled. We are not surprised however that it has been made the occasion by those, who do not suffer any opportunity to escape them, of speaking disrespectfully of Institutions, which of all others it is necessary for the well being of Society, that the public should regard with respect and veneration—but how can this be expected, when one Public paper seizes such a moment, to attach to the Court of King's Bench of the Province, the epithet of "imaginary Court," & another by odious comparisons, insinuates that "even handed justice" has not hitherto been dispensed to His Majesty's Subjects, by the Judges of the Land.

FOR THE LOYALIST.

REVIEW of MR. E. REYERSON'S Letters to the HONORABLE & VENERABLE ARCHDEACON STRACHAN, &c. &c.

No. 1.

With every respect for the institutions of the Athenian Lawgiver whose advice Mr. Reyerson honors with so unqualified a regard, I cannot but entertain a much higher veneration for the wisdom of him who said, It is an honor for a man to cease from strife: but every fool will be meddling.

The deplorable excitement which has so long raged throughout the Province, I believe every true lover of religious peace will regret to see thus renewed; and that it should, after its manifest decline, and close approach to extinction, be fostered again into life by one whose obvious and avowed duty it is to be a preacher and promoter of peace and good-will—by one who is a leader in a religious body who are, by no means, the humblest pretenders to meekness and forbearance—will create, I am assured, as much surprise as sorrow. To that religious denomination I have no hesitation in yielding the tribute of merited praise; and would have it understood, however severely I may animadvert on the indiscretions of this their champion, that my respect for their body generally has been, in a great measure, maintained by their character for unobtrusive quietness. It is, therefore, unfortunate that they or any of theirs should expose themselves to the charge of rekindling this mischevious controversy—a controversy which the public, entirely disgusted by is long continuance and violent warmth, had fondly hoped was hastening to its conclusion. Indeed zeal, where there was a conscientious exercise of it in this matter, became exhausted by its own early violence: malignity and hate had emptied their quiver of every poisoned shaft; but our epistolary hero, careless, I suppose, of the blessings of tranquility, carefully picks up these recoiled weapons and aims them anew at their much insulted, yet deservedly respected object. His intrusion is the more unpardonable from the fact avowed by Archdeacon Strachan in his Speech before the Legislative Council, that the controversy which gave rise to all the subsequent clamor, was entirely with the Kirk of Scotland, and solely concerning the Clergy Reserves.—If, in the course of the contest, other denominations were alluded to, the notice was of that indirect and incidental kind which—especially after the explanations of Doctor Strachan—does any thing but justify the forwardness and presumption of Mr. Reyerson. That the matter was so regarded by the friends of the Church of England, is evinced by their patient silence during the silly, rancorous and venomous tirades which had been so long issued, from every quarter, against that Venerable Establishment—from the Letter of the amiable Bishop of Quebec to his Clergy and their Congregations which recognizes that point alone as the legitimate subject of contention—and last of all from the very full, and satisfactory explanations of the calumniated Archdeacon himself. Under such circumstances, a composition like the "Pastoral Letter," is not perhaps out of place, though it could be wished its style and temper were more correspondent to those of the Bishop of Quebec's Letter;—but who would look for? who, in such a state of the case, would not reprobate the intrusion of such a polemic as Mr. Egerton Reyerson? who, with a proper knowledge of the subject, after a full acquaintance with all the merits of the controversy, would not hoot at so unreasonable, so unhallowed an interrupter of the almost restored tranquility? Our man of craft and quotation, however, deserves as much credit for his boldness as he shall meet with reprehension for his overweening vanity. This he will perhaps dignify with the name of a laudable ambition, in a youthful aspirant for influence and fame. So was the ambitionm of that Erostratus, who, foreseeng no other very promising method of gaining a name with posterity, set fire to the celebrated Temple of Diana at Ephesus. And I dare affirm, our hero's aspirations will be equally successful—he will get a name, I doubt not; and this, after some illustrations which will bring its full honor to light, we shall leave him without envy, to enjoy. I repeat, he deserves some credit for his boldness—for after long playing off his antic dodge beneath a mask, he suddenly throws off the troublesome disguise and claims, in propria persona, the reward to which, from the entertainment afforded, he conceives himself entitled. Perhaps, too, he may have anticipated the effect which a similar nudation in More's "Veiled Prophet," produced on the shocked beholders of the disguised loathsomeness: be this as it may, he has come forth with arms in his hands—powerful enough in the hands of their right owners, the Authors of the Homilies, Bp. Watson, Dr. Paley, &c. but when buckled upon our hero, presenting a spectacle about as ludicrous as that of some awkward stripling in the antique coat and hosen of his grandsire. He has fearlessly thrown down the gauntlet; he has anticipated "opponents;" and he begs, with his usual humility, that these would imitate his own dangerous vanity, by first proclaiming by herald, their name and race, and pretensions. However his present opponent, as he shall use no enchantment in his vizor—the days of magic being over—begs leave to offer himself to the combat under a mask.

Our man of literary prowess, amongst other "anomalies," intimates a practice which our Constitution is yet a stranger to: the fact of a Grand Jury forming the indictment against a person merely answering for himself before a Legislative Court. I verily believe a sophism was meant; but unhappily, before its mature production, it became metamorphosed in the crucible of our hero's fancy, into a mysticism—a splendid bubble—a beauteous nothing! Here then, as there is neither the means by pertinancy in this paragraph, we need say no more; but if it was his desire to inform the world—all gaping, no doubt, for literary sustenance from this pro-di-gi-ous benefactor, that it is neither right nor proper for any man to make explanations in the manner Dr. Strachan has done before his Legislative Colleagues;—after ruminating on his sage opinion, we shake our heads in despair of acquiescence and go on our way consoling ourselves for our stupidity and ignorance by the remembrance, that this principle of Mr. Reyerson's is violated every day by such influential bodies as the Lords and Commons of England. We must conclude, too, that if these transgressors of Mr. R's. judiciary ethics have not always been so successful as Dr. Strachan in effecting a triumphant vindication in the minds of their compeers, it speaks all the better for the cause of the respected Archdeacon. And with what force must our elegant belle-lettre writer, with all his effrontery, call Dr. S's. an exparte statement, when the other side of the question had been previously worn thread-bare—when his own respectable patrons,—the U. C. Herald and Colonial Advocate were, on no occasion, free from the libellous theme? Under these circumstances were not the Legislative Council as competent to judge of Dr. Strachan's integrity and consistency, as Mr. Reyerson with exactly the same data, is warranted in controverting them.

Mr. R. makes much ado about conscience: great possessions beget proportional scepticism; yet we are not sceptical enough to doubt the superior potency of other stimulants with him. However, subscribing with him to M. Locke's definition of conscience, we beg to ask to whom the "errors of judgment" on which Bp. Watson so happily dilates, are more properly applicable—to one who professes himself quite "feeble and inexperienced;" or to the person whom the said "feeble" being admits, from his private virtues and public labors, to be entitled to his "cordial good-will?"

Mr. R. alludes, with a show of concern—la udable peacemaker!—to the unparalleled religious excitement in the Province. His convenient conscience will not, of course, remind him that he is, at this very moment, stirring up the embers of that wide conflagration. Sometimes, however, in case he reverts to Dr. Strachan, the vexations repugnance to be uniformly guided by his salutary laws.

Mr. R. speaks of public opinion—let me advise him to beware of it; for if he seeks that of the intelligent public, he invites his unequivocal condemnation as an arrogant, pert, and ignorant intruder—but to use it in his own sense, not in Dr. Paley's: a "little leaven," such as was the Agrarian Law to the turbulent plebeans of Rome—such as radical reform to some of the wits of the "Row;" and such as ecclesiastical tyranny, &c. to so congruous a mass as the American Methodist population, will produce, no doubt, a prodigious fermentation. Dr. Paley was decidedly too wise a man even to insinuate that a season of wild and tumultuary excitement is the time to judge of the legitimate powers of public opinion. It is easy to awaken, in the turba mobilium, a ferment as wild and sudden as the conflagration which the application of a fire brand to stubble would produce—but public opinion, in such a state of agitation is hardly to be assumed as the judicium or vox naturæ which our critic would make it. Let it settle and deposit the sediments of its commotion; and perhaps we shall discover as great a change in its sentiments as was manifested by the capricious Athenians after their rash condemnation of the excellent Socrates and patriotic Phocion.

If a varying health permit, Mr. Reyerson shall hear again from a wholesome

The Righ. Revd. the Lord Bishop of Quebec, will set out on a diocesan visit to Upper Canada on Monday or Tuesday next.—QUEBEC MERCURY.

We have it from an authority upon which we place the utmost reliance, though we state it not in any Official capacity, that SIR JAMES KEMPT has received the express command of his SOVEREIGN to enter upon the duties of this Government on the departure of LORD DALHOUSIE.—The daily expected visit of SIR JAMES KEMPT to this Province is totally unconnected with the immediate assumption of the reins of Government, but relates solely to the examination of the works on the Rideau Canal.—It is not stated that he will assume the command till the ensuing winter.—Montreal Gazette.

Last night the Government Brig Chebucto arrived from Halifax, having on board Lieutenant-General Sir JAMES KEMPT, G. C. B. and G. C. H. accompanied by his Aide-de-Camp, Captain Hamilton. His Excellency the Governor-in-Chief arrived here in the Steam-boat Canada, about half-past two o'clock yesterday afternoon, under a salute from the battery on the Island St. Helens. POSTSCRIPT.

THE HONORABLE D. CAMERON, arrived this morning from England.—The Bill entitled "An Act to confer on certain Inhabitants of this Province, the Civil and political rights of Natural Born British Subjects," of which Mr. Cameron was the bearer to England, has received His Majesty's Assent.

We have kept our paper open to the latest moment, waiting the arrival of the mails, and are again indebted to the attention of the Editor of the Albion, for a Postscript, with dates to 12th May.

Albion Office, Saturday, 14th June, 3 P.M.

The Birmingham has this moment arrived from Liverpool. She brings London Papers to the 7th of May.—We copy the following from them:—

The French papers state that Spain has ceded the Balearic Islands to France.—Herald.

It is evident that it is not the treaty of Ackermann, which Russia now aims at, but the total overthrow of the Ottoman Empire. Immense Military preparations are making.

The New Times of the 12th says, that the Russians do not intend to confine themselves to the occupation of the Principalities, but will push on to the Capital. It then adds, "The fact is that Russia has ceased to cast a veil on her intentions, and they are as plainly known in Paris as in London." Three hundred thousand men will march against Turkey, which the Sultan will oppose with a miserable rabble of one hundred thousand.

The Catholic Question has been debated two nights in the House of Commons, and adjourned to the 12th.—Mr. Peel opposed the Question vigorously. Consols 85 ⅞.

An attempt has been made to induce Don Miguel to assume the Crown—he has not yet, however, done so. The Russians have not yet marched.

The King has signed the Corporation and Test Acts Bill.

Sir James Kempt has arrived at Montreal.—A Detachment of 68th Regt. from England, has also arrived at that place.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY JUNE 28, 1828.

Poetry.

SONG.

By Mrs. Hemans.

If thou hast crush'd a flower,
The scent may not be blighted;
If thou hast quench'd a lamp,
Once more it may be lighted;
But on thy harp or on thy lute,
The string which thou hast broken,
Shall never in sweet sound again
Give to thy touch a token!

If thou hast loos'd a bird,
Whose voice of song could cheer thee;
Still, still he may be won
From the skies to warble near thee;
But if upon the troubled sea
Thou has thrown a gem unheeded,
Hope not that wind or wave shall bring
The treasure back when needed,

If thou hast bruis'd a vine,
The Summer's breath is healing,
And its cluster yet may glow
Through the leaves their bloom revealing;
But if thou hast a cup o'erthrown
With a bright draught fill'd—oh! never
Shall earth give back that lavish'd wealth
To cool thy parch'd lip's fever!

The heart is like that cup,
If thou waste the love it bore thee,
And like that jewel gone,
Which the deep will not restore thee;
And like that string of harp or lute
Whence the sweet sound is scatter'd;—
Gently and gently touch the chords
So soon for ever shatter'd!

Miscellaneous.

AFFECTING HISTORY.

EXTRACTED FROM A LETTER FROM SMYRNA.

On entering a Hotel in Smyrna we found the landlord in a fiery dispute with two English Gentlemen, who had just landed from a French Brig in the Bay. One was a fine-looking young man of about four or five and twenty, but apparently in the last stage of emaciation and disease; and his companion, rather more robust, was endeavouring to persuade the Italian host to give him quarters in the Locanda. This however, he obstinally refused, on the plea of the young Gentleman's illness, who was reclining, as we entered, on a sofa, in a state of enfeebled exhaustion, with sunken cheek and lustreless eye; while the dispute was proceeding, and the landlord with expressive gestures unfeelingly pointed to his miserable appearance, and urged that as a few days must terminate his existence, he should not only have the annoyance of his death and interment, but his establishment would lose its character, by the suspicious climate of Smyrna, by an inmate having expired in it. It was with difficulty that the elder gentleman procured permission for him to remain on the sofa whilst he went to seek more hospitable quarters for him; he succeeded however, and in the evening the invalid was removed to a house near St. Catharine's Gardens, where he stretched himself on the bed from which he was never to arise, as he expired on the following day. The parties of his story, as they were related to us by his companion, combined with the circumstances of his death, contained something particularly melancholy and romantic.

His name was W——, and his father, a gentleman in opulent circumstances, is still resident in Dublin, where he was originally destined for the profession of medicine. In the preparatory studies for which he had made considerable advancement. It happened that the hospital in which he was in the habit of attending clinical lectures, and where a considerable portion of his time was spent, adjoined a private establishment for the care of insane patients, and the garden of the one was separated from the grounds of the other by a wall of inconsiderable height. One day, whilst lingering in the walks in the rear of the hospital, his ear was struck with the plaintive notes of a voice in the adjacent garden, which sang the melancholy Irish Air of "Savourneen Deelish;" curiosity prompted him to see who the minstrel was, and, clambering to an aperture in the dividing wall, he saw immediately below him a beautiful girl, who sat in mournful abstraction beneath a tree, plucking the leaves from a rosebud as she sang her plaintive air. As she raised her head and observed the stranger before her, she smiled and beckoned him to come to her; after a moments hesitation, and reflection on the consequence, he threw himself over the wall and seated himself beside her. Her mind seemed in a state of perfect simplicity; her disorder appeared to have given her all the playful gentleness of childhood, and, as she fixed her dark expressive eyes on his, she would smile and caress him, and sing over and over the song she was trilling when he first heard her. Struck with the novelty of such a situation, and the be auty of the innocent and helpless being before him, W—— stayed long enough to avoid detection, and then returned by the same means he had entered the garden, but not till she had induced him to promise to come again and see her.

The following day he returned and found her at the same spot where she said she had been singing for a long time before, in hopes to attract his ear again. He now endeavoured to find out her story, or the cause of her derangement, but his efforts were unavailing, or her words so incoherent as to convey no connected meaning. She was, however, more staid and melancholy while he remained with her, and smiled and sighed, and wept and sang, by turns, till it was time for him to again bid her adieu. With the exception of those childlike wanderings, she betrayed no other marks of insanity; her aberrations were merely playful and innocent: she was often sad and melancholy, but oftener lively and light-spirited.

W—— felt an excitement in her presence which he had never known before; she appeared to him a pure child of Nature, in the extreme of Nature's loveliness. She seemed not as one whom reason had deserted, but as a being who had never mingled with the world, and dwelt in the midst of its vice and deformity in primeval beauty and uncontaminated innocence and affection. His visits were now anxiously repeated and as eagerly anticipated by his interesting companion, to whom he found himself almost involuntarily, deeply attached, the more so, perhaps, from the romantic circumstances of the case, and the secrecy which it was absolutely necessary to maintain in the whole affair, so that no ear was privy to his visits and no eye had marked their meetings. At length, however, the matter began to effect a singular change in the mind of the Lady, which became every day more and more composed, though still subject to wanderings and abstraction; but the new passion, which was daily taking possession of her mind, seemed to be eradicating the cause, or, at least, counteracting the effects of her malady. This alteration was soon visible to the inmates of the house, and the progress of her recovery was so rapid as to induce them to seek for some latent cause, and to watch her frequent and prolonged visits to the garden; the cause was, that at the next meeting an eye was on them which reported the circumstance of W——'s visit to the superior of the establishment: an immediate stop was then put to her return, and the Lady's walks confined to another portion of the grounds. The consequences were soon obvious; her regret and anxiety served to recall her disorder with redoubled vigour, and she eagerly demanded to see him. A communication was now made to her parents, containing a detail of all the circumstances, her quick recovery, her relapse, and the apparent cause of both; and, after some conferences, it was resolved that W——should be invited to renew his visits, and the affair be permitted to take its natural course. He accordingly repaired to the usual rendezvous, where she met him with the most impassioned eagerness, affectionately reproached his absence, and welcomed him with fond and innocent caresses. He now saw her as frequently as before, and a second time her recovery was rapidly progressing, till at length she was so far restored that her parents resolved on removing her to her own home, and the accordingly bade adieu to the asylum.

There were here some circumstances which W——'s companion, related indistinctly, or of which I retain but an imperfect recollection; and he who could alone have informed me of them was gone to his long home before I heard his singular story. It appeared, however, that, after some farther intercourse, he was obliged to be absent from Ireland for some time, and during that interval, the progress of her mind to perfect collectedness continued uninterrupted; but her former memory seemed to decay with her disease, and she gradually forgot her lover.—Long protracted illness ensued, and her spirits and constitution seemed to droop with exhaustion after their former unhealthy excitement, till at length, after a tedious recovery from a series of relapses, her faculties were perfectly restored; but every trace of her former situation, or the events which had occurred during her illness and residence in Dublin, had vanished like a dream from her memory, nor did her family ever venture to touch her feelings by a recurrence to them.

In the mean time W——returned, and eagerly flew to embrace, after so long a seperation, her who had never passed from his thoughts and his remembrance. Her family felt for him the warmest gratitude and affection, from the consciousness that he had been the main instrument in the restoration of their daughter, but the issue of this interview they awaited with the most painful suspense. She had long ceased to mention his name, or betray any symptom of recollecting him; he seemed to have passed from her memory with the other less important items of her situation, and this moment was now to prove to them whether any circumstance could make the stream of memory roll back to this distracted period of her intellect. From the shock of that interview W——never recovered. She received him as her family had anticipated; she saw him as a mere uninteresting stranger; she met him with calm, cold politeness, and could ill conceal her astonishment at the agitation and despair of his manner, when he found too truly that he was no longer remembered with the fond affection he had anticipated. He could not repress his anxiety to remind her of their late attachment, but she only heard his distant hints with astonishment and haughty surprise. He now found that the only step which remained for him was to endeavour to make a second impression on her renovated heart; but he failed. There was still some mysterious influence which attached their minds, but the alliance on her part had totally changed its former tone, and when she did permit her thoughts to dwell upon him, it was rather with aversion than esteem; and her family, after long encouraging his addresses, at length persuaded him to forego his suit, which with a heavy hopeless heart he assented to, and bade her adieu for ever.

But the die of his fortune was cast; he could no longer walk heedlessly by those scenes where he had once spent hours of happiness, and he felt that, wander where he might, that happiness could never return. At length, to crown his misery, the last ray of hope was shortly after shaded by the marriage of his mistress.* W—— now abandoned every prospect at home, and, in order to shake off that melancholy which was gathering like rust around his heart, went to the Continent; but change of scene is but a change of ill to those who must bear with them the cause of their sorrow, and find within that aching void the world can never fill. He hurried in vain from one scene of excitement to another; society had no spell to soothe his memory, and change no charm to lull it: "Still slowly passed the melancholy day, and still the stronger wist not where to stray;" at length he joined the cause of the struggling Greeks, and his name has been often and honourably mentioned amongst the companions of Lord poisoned shaft; but our epistolary hero, careless, I suppose, of the blessings of tranquility, carefully picks up these recoiled weapons and aims them anew at their much insulted, yet deservedly respected object. His intrusion is the more unpardonable from the fact avowed by Archdeacon Strachan in his Speech before the Legislative Council, that the controversy which gave rise to all the subsequent clamor, was entirely with the Kirk of Scotland, and solely concerning the Clergy Reserves.—If, in the course of the contest, other denominations were alluded to, the notice was of that indirect and incidental kind which—especially after the explanations of Doctor Strachan—does any thing but justify the forwardness and presumption of Mr. Reyerson. That the matter was so regarded by the friends of the Church of England, is evinced by their patient silence during the silly, rancorous and venomous tirades which had been so long issued, from every quarter, against that Venerable Establishment—from the Letter of the amiable Bishop of Quebec to his Clergy and their Congregations which recognizes that point alone as the legitimate subject of contention—and last of all from the very full, and satisfactory explanations of the calumniated Archdeacon himself. Under such circumstances, a composition like the "Pastoral Letter," is not perhaps out of place, though it could be wished its style and temper were more correspondent to those of the Bishop of Quebec's Letter;—but who would look for? who, in such a state of the case, would not reprobate the intrusion of such a polemic as Mr. Egerton Reyerson? who, with a proper knowledge of the subject, after a little acquaintance with all the merits of the controversy, would not hoot at so unreasonable, so unhallowed an interrupter of the almost restored tranquility? Our man of craft and quotation, however, deserves as much credit for his boldness as he shall meet with reprehension for his ever-weening vanity. This he will perhaps dignify with the name of a laudable ambition, in a youthful aspirant for influence and fame. So was the ambitionn of that Erostratus, who, foreseeng no other very promising method of gaining a name with posterity, set fire to the celebrated Temple of Diana at Ephesus. And I dare affirm, that the hero's aspirations will be equally successful—he will get a name, I doubt not; and this, after some illusrrations which will bring its full honor to light, we shall leave him without envy, to enjoy. I repeat, he deserves some credit for his boldness—for that long playing off his antic tricks beneath a mask, he suddenly throws off the troublesome disguise and claims, in propria persona, the reward to which, from the entertainment afforded, he conceives himself entitled. Perhaps, too, he may have anticipated the effect which a similar mudation in More's "Veiled Prophet," produced on the shocked beholders of undisguised loathsomeness: be this as it may, he has come forth with arms in his hands—powerful enough in the hands of their right owners, the Authors of the Homilies, Bp Watson, Dr. Paley, &c. but when buckled upon our hero, presenting a spectacle about as ludicrous as that of some awkward stripling in the antique coat and hosen of his grandsire. He has fearlessly thrown down the gauntlet; he has anticipated "opponents;" and he begs, with his usual humility, that these would imitate his own dangerous vanity, by first proclaiming by herald, their name and race, and pretensions. However, his present opponent, as he shall use no enchantment in his vizor—the days of magic being over—begs leave to offer himself to the combat under a mask.

Our man of literary prowess, amongst other "anomalies," intimates a practice which our Constitution is yet a stranger to: the fact of a Grand Jury forming a presentment against a person merely answering for himself before a Legislative Court. I verily believe a sophism was meant; but unhappily, before its mature production, it became metamorphosed in the crucible of our hero's fancy, into a mysticism—a splendid bubble—a beauteous nothing! Here then, as there is neither meaning nor pertinancy in this paragraph, we need say no more; but if it was his desire to inform the world—all gaping, no doubt, for literary sustenance from this pro-di-gi-ous benefactor, that it is neither right nor proper for any man to make explanations in the name Dr. Strachan has done before his Legislative Colleagues;—after ruminating on his sage opinion, we shake our heads in despair of acquiescence and go on our way consoling ourselves for our stupidity and ignorance by the remembrance, that this principle of Mr. Reyerson's is violated every day by such influential bodies as the Lords and Commons of England. We must conclude, too, that if these transgressors of Mr. R's. judiciary ethics have not always been so successful as Dr. Strachan in effecting a triumphant vindication in the minds of their compeers, it speaks all the better for the cause of the respected Archdeacon. And with what face can our elegant letter-writer, with all his effrontery, call Dr. S's. an exparte statement, when the other side of the question had been previously worn thread-bare—when his own respectable patrons,—the U. C. Herald and Colonial Advocate were, on no occasion, free from the libellous theme? Under these circumstances, were not the Legislative Council as competent to judge of Dr. Strachan's integrity and consistency, as Mr. Reyerson with exactly the same data, is warranted in controverting them.

Mr. R. makes much ado about conscience: great possessions beget proportional scepticism; yet we are not sceptical enough to doubt the superior potency of other stimulants with him. However, subscribing with him to M. Locke's definition of conscience, we beg to ask to whom the "errors of judgment" on which Bp. Watson so happily dilates, are more properly applicable—to one who professes himself quite "feeble and inexperienced;" or to the person whom the said "feeble" being admits, from his private virtues and public labors, to be entitled to his "cordial good-will?"

Mr. R. alludes, with a show of concern—laudable peacemaker!—to the unparalleled religious excitement in the Province. His convenient conscience will not, of course, remind him that he is, at this very moment, stirring up the embers of that wide conflagration. Sometimes, however, in case he reverts to Dr. Strachan, the unoffending cause of this causeless clamor—the well-meant and approved zeal of the most worthy man, Mr. Reverson, will sometimes excite a very violent ferment. Your favorite Solon will furnish you, indeed, with a satisfying instance; for however much the inconstant Athenians may have respected his condemnation of neutrality during the reign of party-spirit, they exhibited a most vexatious repugnance to be uniformly guided by his salutary laws.

Mr. R. speaks of public opinion—let me advise him to beware of it; for if he seeks that of the intelligent public, he invites his unequivocal condemnation as an arrogant, pert, and ignorant intruder—but to use it in his own sense, not in Dr. Paley's: a "little leaven," such as was the Agrarian Law to the turbulent plebeians of Rome—such as radical reform to some of the wits of the "Bow;" and such as ecclesiastical tyranny, &c. to so congruous a mass as the American Methodist population, will produce, no doubt, a prodigious fermentation. Dr. Paley was decidedly too wise a man even to insinuate that a season of wild and tumultuary excitement is the time to judge of the legitimate powers of public opinion. It is easy to awaken, in the tuba mobilium, a ferment as wild and sudden as the conflagration which the application of a fire brand to stubble would produce—but public opinion, in such a state of agitation is hardly to be assumed as the Sanctissimum ex rar natura which our critic would make it. Let it settle and deposit the sediments of its commotion; and perhaps we shall discover as great a change in its sentiments as was manifested by the capricious Athenians after their rash condemnation of the excellent Socrates and patriotic Phocion.

If a varying health permit, Mr. Reyerson shall hear again from a wholesome

It is evident that it is not the treaty of Ackermann, which Russia now aims at, but the total overthrow of the Ottoman Empire. Immense Military preparations are making.

The New Times of the 12th says, that the Russians do not intend to confine themselves to the occupation of the Principalities, but will push on to the Capital. It then adds, "The fact is that Russia has ceased to cast a veil on her intentions, and they are as plainly known in Paris as in London." Three hundred thousand men will march against Turkey, which the Sultan will oppose with a miserable rabble of one hundred thousand.

The Catholic Question has been debated two nights in the House of Commons, and adjourned to the 12th.—Mr. Peel opposed the Question vigorously. Consols 85 ⅞.

An attempt has been made to induce Don Miguel to assume the Crown—he has not yet, however, done so. The Russians have not yet marched.

SONG.

By Mrs. Hemans.

If thou hast crush'd a flower,
The root may not be blighted;
If thou hast quench'd a lamp,
Once more it may be lighted;
But on thy harp or on thy lute,
The string which thou hast broken,
Shall never in sweet sound again
Give to thy touch a token!

If thou hast loos'd a bird,
Whose voice of song could cheer thee;
Still, still he may be won
From the skies to warble near thee;
But if upon the troubled sea
Thou has thrown a gem unheeded,
Hope not that wind or wave shall bring
The treasure back when needed,

If thou hast bruis'd a vine,
The Summer's breath is healing,
And its cla-ters yet may glow
Which the deep will not restore thee;
But if thou hast a ring o'erthrown
With a bright draught fill'd—oh! never
Shall earth give back that lavish'd wealth
To cool thy parch'd lip's fever!

The heart is like that cup,
If thou waste the love it bore thee,
And like that jewel gone,
Which the deep will not restore thee;
And like that string of harp or lute
Whence the sweet sound is sever'd;—
Gently, oh! gently touch the chords
So soon for ever shatter'd!

EXTRACTED FROM A LETTER FROM SMYRNA.

On entering a Hotel in Smyrna we found the landlord in a fiery dispute with two English Gentlemen, who had just landed from a French Brig in the Bay. One was a fine-looking young man of about four or five and twenty, but apparently in the last stage of emaciation and disease; and his companion, rather more robust, was endeavouring to persuade the Italian host to give him quarters in the locanda. This however, he obstinatly refused, on the plea of the young Gentleman's illness, who was reclining, as we entered, on a sofa, in a state of enfeebled exhaustion, with sunken cheek and lustreless eye; while the debate was proceeding, and the landlord with expressive shrugs unfeelingly pointed to his miserable appearance, and urged that as a few days must terminate his existence, he should not only have the annoyance of his death and interment, but his establishment would lose its character, in the suspicious climate of Smyrna, by an inmate having expired in it. It was with difficulty that the elder gentleman procured permission for him to remain on the sofa whilst he went to seek more hospitable quarters for him; he succeeded however, and in the evening the invalid was moved to a house near St. Catharine's Gardens, where he stretched himself on the bed from which he was never to arise, as he expired on the following day. The parties of his story, as they were related to us by his companion, combined with the circumstances of his death, contained something particularly melancholy and romantic.

His name was W——, and his father, a gentleman in opulent circumstances, is still resident in Dublin, where he was originally destined for the profession of medicine, in the preparatory studies for which he had made considerable advancement. It happened that the hospital in which he was in the habit of attending clinical lectures, and where a considerable portion of his time was spent, adjoined a private establishment for the care of insane patients, and the garden of the one was separated from the grounds of the other by a wall of inconsiderable height. One day, whilst lingering in the walks in the rear of the hospital, his ear was struck with the plaintive notes of a voice in the adjacent garden, which sang the melancholy Irish Air of "Savourneen Deelish;" curiosity prompted him to see who the minstrel was, and, clambering to an aperture in the dividing wall, he saw immediately below him a beautiful girl, who sat in mournful abstraction beneath a tree, plucking the leaves from a rosebud as she sung her plaintive air. As she raised her head and observed the stranger before her, she smiled and beckoned him to come to her; after a moments hesitation, and reflection on the consequence, he threw himself over the wall and seated himself beside her. Her mind seemed in a state of perfect simplicity; her disorder appeared to have given her all the playful gentleness of childhood, and, as she fixed her dark expressive eyes on his, she would smile and caress him, and sing over and over the song she was trilling when he first heard her. Struck with the novelty of such a situation, and the beauty of the innocent and helpless being before him, W—— stayed long enough to avoid detection, and then returned by the same means he had entered the garden, but not till she had induced him to promise to come again and see her.

The following day he returned and found her at the same spot where she said she had been singing for a long time before, in hopes to attract his ear again. He now endeavoured to find out her story, or the cause of her derangement, but his efforts were unavailing, or her words so incoherent as to convey no connected meaning. She was, however, more staid and melancholy while he remained with her, and smiled and sighed, and wept and sang, by turns, till it was time for him to again bid her adieu. With the exception of those childlike wanderings, she betrayed no other marks of insanity; her declarations were merely playful and innocent; she was often sad and melancholy, but oftener lively and light-spirited.

REPEATED

Byron at Missolonghi. After his Lordship's death he still remained in Greece, but his constitution was too weak to permit him to be of active service as a Palikari. He had, therefore, taken a post in the garrison, which held possession of the castle and town of Navarino, in the Morea, and wounded in the acticon at Sphacteria, in the summer of 1825. The unskilful management of a native surgeon during his confinement in the fortress, previous to its surrender to Ibrahim Pacha, and a long and dangerous fever from the malaria of Pylos, combined with scanty diet and bad attendance from his Greek domestic's, united with his broken spirit to bring on a rapid consumption. It was under these circumstances that Mr. R——, who now accompanied him, had found him at a village in the district of Maina, and had since paid him every attention in his power. By cautious management and gentle voyages he had brought him to Hydra, where he was enabled to procure him a passage in a French vessel, from whence he hoped to find a British ship to land him in England, where his last moments might be watched by friendly eyes, and his bones rest with his fathers.—The particulars of his inhospitable reception here I have already recounted; but we at last saw him fixed under the care of an old French officer at Smyrna, who engaged to pay him every requisite attention, till he should depart for Europe or for a nother world.

The following day we called to see W——, but we found that human sympathy would soon cease for him; the step of death was already on his threshold. The surgeon of H. M. S. the Cambrian had been to see him, but all prospect of his surviving had fled. The fatigue of his removal from the vessel, his exposure to the sun in the boat whilst landing, and his annoyance at the inn, seemed to have hurried down the few remaining sands of his glass; and he felt himself that time was drawing to a close with him. H—— was perfectly collected, and as fully as he could, was given his last directions to his friend, who had so generously attended him; he spoke much of his family, and gave particular messages to each, pointing out to R—— the various little tinkets he wished to send them as dying memorials of himself; a ring which he still wore on his finger, and which bore the inscription "To the memory of my dear mother," he desired might be buried with him, together with a locket which was suspended from his neck, and contained a lock of raven hair: he did not mention whose. But words could not paint the expression of his countenance, nor the sad sublimity of his voice, when, for the last time, he feebly grasped the hand of his affectionate friend, thanked him for all his former kindness, and bade him his last mortal farewell; he shortly after sank into an apparently painless lethargy, from which he never aroused himself. It was evening before he died; there was not a breath of wind to wave the branches of the peach-tree around his window, through which the sun beams were streaming on his death-bed, tinged with the golden dyes of sunset. It was in a remote corner of Smyrna, and no sound disturbed the calm silent progress of death; the sun went down at length behind the hills; the clear calm voice of the Muezzin from his tower, came from the distant city, and again all was repose. We approached the bed of W——, but his soul had bade adieu to mortality; he had expired but a moment before, without a sigh and without a struggle.

The remains of poor W—— were interred in the English burying-ground, The few travellers at the moment in Smyrna attended, and the Janissaries of the Consul preceded the coffin, which was borne by four soldiers, covered with an English ensign. In a solitary corner of the cemetery, beside a group of cypresse, his grave was dug by the attendants of the British hospital; and his last remains rested by those of his countrymen who have fallen victims to the climate of the Levant.* Mr. Arundel, the chaplain to the factory, read the service of the church over his tomb; and perhaps it never was pronounced under more melancholy circumstances, beneath the calm bright sky of Asia, on an eminence which looked down on the bustle of the city, but was far removed from its din and clamour, and disturbed by no sound save the sigh of his friend, the hum of the glittering insects fluttering in the sunshine, and the hollow rattle of the clay on the receptacle of the wanderer's dust.

THE TURKS.

The Turks have a manly and prepossessing demeanour; being generally of a good stature, and remarkably well formed in their limbs. The men shave their heads, but wear long beards, and are extremely proud of their mustaches, which are usually turned downwards, and which give the other features of the face a cast of peculiar pensiveness. They wear turbans, sometimes white, of an enormous size on their heads, and never remove them but when they go to repose. Their breeches, or drawers, are united with their stockings, and they have slippers, which they never put off but when they enter a mosque, or the house of a great man. Large shirts are worn, and over them is a vest tied with a sash; the outer garment being a sort of loose gown. Every man, in whatever station he is, carries a dagger in his sash. The women's attire much resembles that of the other sex, only a bishop's mitre, instead of a turban, Their hair is beautiful and long, most by black, but their faces, which are remarkably handsome, are so covered when the walk out, that nothing is to be seen but their eyes. The ladies of the Sultan's Haram are lovely virgins, either captives taken during war, or presents from the Governors of Provinces. They are never allowed to stir abroad except when the Grand Signior removes; and then they are put into close chairs, signals being made at certain distances that no man may approach the road through which the ladies pass, on pain of death. There are a great number of female slaves in the Sultan's Haram, whose task it is to wait on the ladies, who have, besides, a black eunuch for their superintendant.

There are three Colleges in Turkey where the children of distinguished men are educated and fitted for state employments. The children are first approved by the grand Siguior before they are allowed to enter these seminaries; and none dare come into His Majesty's presence who are not handsome and well-made. Silence is first taught them, and a becoming behaviour to their superiors; then they are instructed in the Mahometan faith, the Turkish and Persian languages, and afterwards in the Arabic. At the age of twenty-one they are taught all manner of manly exercises, and above all, the use of arms. As they advance to proficiency in these, and other useful arts, and as Government places become vacant, they are preferred; but it is to be observed, that they generally attain the age of forty before they are thought capable of being entrusted with important state affairs.

Those who hold an office under the Grand Signior are called his slaves; the term slave, in Turkey, signifying the most honorable title a subject can bear. The Grand Signior is commonly supposed among his own people, to be something more than human; for he is not bound by any laws except that of professing and maintaining the Mahometan Religion. A stranger desiring to be admitted into His Majesty's presence, is first examined by proper persons, and his arms taken from him; he is then ushered before the royal personage between two strong supporters, but is not even then permitted to approach near enough to kiss the the sultan's foot.* This custom, which is observed by every sultan, originated in the following manner:—Amurath I. having obtained a great victory over the Christians, was on the field of battle with his officers viewing the dead, when a wounded Christian soldier, rising from among the slain, came staggering towards him. The King, supposing the man intended to beg for his life, ordered the guards to make way for him; but drawing near, he drew a dagger from under his coat, and plunged it into the heart of the great king, who instantly died.

In Turkey, no man marries a deformed wife for the sake of a fortune, as with us; beauty and good sense, to their credit be it spoken, are the only inducements to matrimony among the Turks. But they are an indolent people, and are much averse to improving their country by commerce, planting, or building; appearing to take delight in letting their property run to ruin. Alexandria, Tyre, and Sidon, which once commanded the navigation and trade of the whole world, are at present in the Turkish possession, but are only very inconsiderable places. Indeed, observes a judicious author, it is well for us that the Turks are such an indolent people, for their situation and vast extent of empire, would enable them to become formidable to the rest of the world, if they attended to it. They appear to possess very little genius or inclination for the improvement of arts and sciences, although they live in countries which were once in the possession of the classic Greeks; but seem to prefer a slothful mode of life to an active one, continually sauntering away their time, either among women, or in taking coffee and smoking. Being men of great taciturnity, they very seldom disturb a stranger with questions; and a person may live in their country a dozen years, without having twenty words addressed to him, except on important business. They seldom travel, and have very little wish to be informed of the state of their own, or any other country; when a minister of state is turned out of his place, or strangled (which is a frequent custom,) they coldly observe that there will be a new one, without inquiring into the reason of the disgrace of the former. The doctrine of predestination prevails, and they therefore think it wicked to endeavour to avoid their fate; frequently entering houses where they know the plague is raging.

All religions are tolerated in Turkey, though none are encouraged by the Mahometan faith. The Christians have churches, which the Turks not frequently convert into mosques for their own use; nor will they suffer any new churches, or temples, to be built, without extorting an exhorbitant fine from the poor Christians. The high-priest of the Mahometan religion is called the mufti; he is invested with great power, and his seal is necessary to the passing of all acts of state. But any individual, who pleases to take the habit, may be a priest, and may leave the office when he is weary of it; for there is nothing like ordination among them.

* The ceremony of kissing the foot, as well as the hand, of a sovereign, is yet observed in the east.

THE MARMORA IRON WORKS.—The sale of these Works has been postponed until further notice. But the Wares of the Establishment are offered for sale at 25s. per Cwt. for all heavy Castings, Potash-Kettles, &c.—and at 27s. 6d. per Cwt. for Sugar-Kettles, Hollow Ware, Stoves, &c delivered at Kingston, and Wheat, Flour, and Potash will be taken in payment, at the Current price in that Market—or a discount of five per Cent made for Cash.

Among the advantages which purchasers and dealers in the articles, would derive from giving a preference to the Castings of these Works, are the following:—

First—The Wares are fully of a better quality, in regard to manufacture than those got elsewhere.

Secondly.—They are offered for sale, at prices, at least 25 per Cent under the rate at which the same kind of goods can be laid down in Kingston from Montreal, without taking into consideration the risk of transport.

Thirdly.—From the very superior quality of the Metal from which the Wares are Manufactured, and from the experience already had, by many who have used them for a length of time.—The Subscriber is warranted in saying, that they are by no means so liable to crack, as the Carron, or other Ware of similar Establishments, known to the people of this Province.

Lastly.—The receiving payment in the Produce of the Country, should be considered, an advantage (when combined with the other advantages & circumstances above enumerated), of sufficient importance to buyers, to secure a preference for the consumption of a Provincial manufacture, of superior quality and comparatively low price.

The undersigned in the name of Peter McGill, Esquire, the present Proprietor, who has expended large sums, in perfecting the Establishment, since it came into his hands having, as he thinks, clearly shown, that it is their interest, appeals to the Patriotism of the Merchants, and others of this Province, to give aid, support, and countenance to so great and praiseworthy an undertaking. The support required, is simply, to give a preference in their purchases to the Manufactures of Marmora, which articles of daily necessity and consumption—both good and cheap, instead of sending to the United States, and Lower Canada, for Articles of a similar description comparatively of inferior quality, and higher prices.

England.

The Following is a List of the Committee, on the Canada Question:—

Rt. Hon. W. Huskisson,	W. B. Baring,
Rt. Hon. C. Wynne,	J. E. Denison,
T. F. Lewis,	T. H. Villiers,
Rt. Hon. S. Bourne,	M. Fitzgerald,
Sir N. Tindal,	T. Lewis,
Sir J. Macintosh,	Archd. Campbell,
Rt. Hon. W. Horton,	J. A. Fazakerley,
Rt. Hon. V. Fitzgerald,	T. Wallace,
Hon. E. Stanley,	Viscount Sandon,
Hon J. S. Wortley,	H. Labouchere.
Lord F. L. Gower.

The Catholic Question was brought forward in the House of Commons, on the evening of the 8th May, by Sir Francis Burdett. The Baronet's opening Speech occupies eight columns and a half of close print, in the Courier. He concluded by moving "that the House resolve itself into a Committee to consider the state of the laws affecting His Majesty's Roman Catholic Subjects in Great Britain and Ireland, with a view to such a final and conciliatory adjustment as may be conducive to the peace and strength of the United Kingdom, to the stability of the Protestant Establishment, and the general satisfaction and concord of all classes of His Majesty's subjects." The motion was seconded by Mr. Brougham.—The Solicitor General followed in opposition to the motion, and Mr. Spencer Percival and Mr. M. Fitzgerald supported it. Mr. O. Moore spoke against the motion, and having concluded his remarks, the debate was adjourned over to the evening of the 9th.

On the 9th, the debate was renewed, and several Gentlemen spoke, the principal of whom were Sir James Mackintosh in favor of the motion, and Mr. Secretary Peel against it. The debate was then again adjourned over to the 10th.—The House is very full, and it is calculated that the division will be very close.

The report that Lord Palmerston has been appointed Governor of Jamaica, is contradicted.

The following is the close of Mr. Huskisson's Speech on the Canada Debate, as given in a contemporary paper, to that which we copied from in our last.

"Shall we give up such a possession without even a challenge? Or, shall we, as was done in the case of another part of America once, also belonging to France, I mean, Louisiana—shall we make it a matter of pounds, shillings, and pence? England has not fallen so low.—(Cheers.) Canada is bound to us by the recollections of highly honourable valour, both naval and military.—(Hear, hear.) It is a trophy too glorious to part with in either of the ways I have alluded to. Canada cannot but be maintained by every means in our power; we are bound, if we wish to bear untarnished our honour, to give Canada protection to the last extremity. That, then, is not a view of the subject we can for one instant entertain. It is a country too, let it be remembered, where there are none of those unfortunate distinctions which prevail in others of our colonies—there is no division of castes, no slavery—the people are, I may say, almost as one family, united by the most intimate of connections with this country. England is the parent of many colonies, one of which now forms one of the greatest and most flourishing empires in the world: by that, and others, we have carried our language, our free institutions, our system of laws, to the most remote corners of the globe. What we have thus planted, we are taking root. And what we now foster as colonies will be, no donbt, one day or other, themselves free nations, the communicators of freedom to other countries. If I am told, that for this we have made great sacrifices, I say, be it so; for, in spite of these sacrifices, England remains, for its extent, still the most powerful, most happy nation that does or ever has existed. I say, moreover, that we should be well paid for all the sacrifices we may yet be called upon to make, if we are to add to the rich harvest of glory we have already reaped, by being the parent of countries in which the same happiness and prosperity that has distinguished this country will, I trust, for many ages to come be enjoyed. That will be our reward for establishing our superfluous population not only in America, but in other quarters of the world. What can be a prouder feeling for Englishmen than that England has done its duty to the world, by attempting, and successfully, to improve it? Whether Canada is to remain for ever dependent on England, or is to become an independent State—not, I trust, by hostile separation, but by amicable arrangement—it is still the duty and interest of this country to imbue it with English feeling and benefit it with English laws and institutions."

NAVAL INTELLIGENCE.

Portsmouth, May 10.—The Joseph Green transport, Lieut. Robinson agent, arrived on Monday from Malta, with returned stores and invalided soldiers. She left that island on March 13, in company with the Onyx transport, Lieut. Decourdeux, which vessel is on her passage to England, with the remainder of the Cambrian's crew.—We learn little from this vessel, beyond the disposition of the squadron at the period she left Malta. The Warspite, 74, was at Egina; the Riflemen, Wolf and Musquito, sloops of war, were at corfu; the Revenge was on the coast of Morea; and the Isis, with three bomb-vessels and two sloops of war, were off the island of Candia; the Galatea and Philomel were still at Egypt. The French Ambassador to the Sublime Port was on board L'Armide, 50, and was employed, with a small squadron of corvettes, giving protection to ships of all countries to traversing among the Greek Islands. The Russian Squadron were not yet refitted, their ships were in bad order, and on board the flag ship, the Azoff, a considerable degree of discontent prevailed arising from the mode in which Admiral Heyden had distributed the Emperor's medals for the good conduct of the Russian sailors in the Battle of Navarino. This discontent amounted to a mutiny of such a desperate character, that it was the intention of the disaffected to have blown up the ship; the plot was detected, a short time only previous to its intended execution, by the information of one of the ringleaders. A Court Martial had been held, and nine of the mutineers were condemned to death; to put which sentence into execution, the Azoff was about to proceed a short distance to sea. It was understood Ibrahim Pacha had suspended operations against the Greeks in the Morea.

THE LATE DRAWING-ROOM.

From the Age.

The numerous Presentations of young and beautiful women at the Drawing-room, on Wednesday, exceeded any previous assemblage since our gracious Monarch has been enthroned. We regret that our limits will not allow us to print a list of the bright galaxy, but we cannot resist noticing a few of the leading stars, whose soul subduing eyes and lovely forms gave a lustre to the Court which on this occasion realized the florid description of Eastern romance. Among the most conspicuous of the fair daughters of our Nobility who attracted attention both by their persons and dresses, we observed the beautiful Ladies Charlotte and Emily Butler, the sisters of the peerless lovely Countess of Belfast: the Misses Sheridan and Foster, Miss Croker, Lady E. Strathaven, Lady A. Fitzclarence, Miss Elphinstone, and Lady Louisa Lascelles. The King is said to have expressed himself quite delighted at the display of beauty and fashion.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS—May 16, 1828.

ASHES—At a public sale on the 12th inst. of New-York Ashes, only 80 bbls. of Pearls found purchasers at 31s.—The whole of the Pots, 77 bbls. were sold at 30s. 6d. for stained to 32s. 6d. for sound, per cwt. Montreal Ashes are very flat. Tar, 1700 bbls. from New-York were offered yesterday by auction, but only 200 bbl. were sold at 11s. a 11s. 3d. per bl. Turpentine, no sales. Rice is also dull this week.

Summary.

The King, with that graciousness and delicacy which mark his conduct, having heard that the two hundred pounds were essential to the emancipation from difficulty of Mr. Haydon, the artist, was pleased to send for the picture of the Mock Election to St. James's.—The King kept the picture and sent Mr. Haydon the five hundred pounds. It is the manner and consideration with which a favour is conferred which double its value and importance.

The Brunswick and Shields Rail-road is ten miles in length, three and a half of which the waggons (five hundred and twenty-six in number) are moved by horse power, on the remaining six miles and a half, by six stationary engines, one of six horse power, one of sixty-eight ditto, two of twelve ditto, and two of twenty-four ditto. Men employed—twelve drivers, six engine men, six assistant ditto, eight inclined plane men—in all thirty-two; horses twelve. These twelve horses and thirty-two men, with the assistance of six engines, and various mechanical contrivances, convey, per diem, from the pits, and put into the hold of a ship, without waste or breakage, nine hundred and fifty-two waggons of coal, each weighing 2½ cwt, at a cost, on an average, of £7 10s. per day, including horses, wagons, engines, and the wages of thirty-two men to attend them.

New Brunswick.—A long letter is published, from Lieut. Col. Cockburn, on the important subject of Emigration to the Provinces. The opinion is expressed that the numerous grants of land already made in Nova Scotia, will preclude the possibility of finding any disposable tract adapted to the purposes of extensive Emigration. Of the total amount of land, at present at the disposal of the Crown, within the Province, and which was estimated at 3,780,000 Acres, no one tract can be found containing more than 40,000 Acres fit for cultivation. Were Emigrants, however, sent out in small numbers, some parts of the yet unoccupied land would afford them considerable settlement. After a careful examination of both provinces, the writer at last expresses his conviction, that New Brunswick affords a much finer field for extensive Emigration than Nova Scotia.

The Finance Committee are still occupied, we believe, with the Ordnance. There has been a division of 11 to 10 on the question of trigonometrical surveys. The expense does not exceed 8 or 1. 4,000 a-year; and the majority have decided, that it is better to permit this not very extravagant outlay, than to forego the advantage of the most authentic and scientific maps which have ever appeared in the kingdom. The point is not a very important one, but the earnestness with which the necessity of even so small an item has been discussed, affords a very fair test of the general zeal and sincerity which animate the Members of the Committee.—Times.

The Duke of Cumberland took his seat in the House of Lords on Thursday. His Royal Highness was accompanied by his son, Prince George. The young Prince, on entering the House, with much naivete threw himself on the Woolsack, beside the Lord Cancellor to whom he addressed a number of questions regarding the mace, the seals of office, and their splendid depository. His Lordship, in the most urbane manner, pointed out their various uses, apparently much to the satisfaction of the young Prince. He is a fine intelligent-looking boy, about nine years of age.

Nathaniel Snelson, who robbed the Bank of Virginia, at Petersburg, and who was seized in England and brought to this country, was convicted on the 30th ult and sentenced to the penitentiary for three years, but recommended to the mercy of the Executive.

It is rumoured that the Finance Committee have directed their attention to the Commission for the Claims on Spain. These Commissioners (four in number) have, it is said, £ 1500 per annum each a house, secretary, clerk, &c. The establishment commenced about the time of the Cortes being recognized; and the claims of the English merchants are nearly as far advanced as at the period we have alluded to. It is understood, however, that the Duke of Wellington has lately made some very strong remonstrances to Spain on the subject.

The head of a hippotamus, with all the flesh about it, in a high state of preservation, has recently been brought to England, as a present to the King. This amphibious monster was harpooned while in combat with a crocodile, in a lake in the interior of Africa. The head measures four feet in length, and eight feet in circumference. At one time it was not uncommon in the Nile, but now it is no where to be found in that river except above the cataracts.

His Majesty's ship Regent, of 100 guns, is to be forthwith fitted out for the conveyance of the Lord High Admiral in his proposed tour of inspection. It is expected that his Royal Highness will proceed to Ireland in the first instance.

The Duke of Cumberland intends remaining a month longer in this country. His Royal Highness will shortly review his regiment, the Royal Horse Guards, which is now stationed at the barracks in the Regent's Park. The Duke of Wellington will give a grand entertainment to his Royal Highness at the end of this month, (May.)

We understand that the Rev Edward Irving, the celebrated Minister of the Scotch Church in London, has recently addressed an elaborate letter to the King, on the subject of the repeal of the Test and Corporation Acts, and entreating His Majesty to withhold the Royal Assent thereto.—Times.

It is now rumoured that Lord Palmerston goes out as Governor of Jamacia, and that Mr. Spring Rice succeeds his Lordship as Secretary of War.—Bell's Messenger.

Vis-count Goderich gave a grand dinner on Thursday at Pembroke House, Privy Gardens, on the occasion of the christening of his only son, to whom his Majesty stood sponsor by proxy.

A rumour is in circulation that a matrimonial union between the Princess Victoria and the Prince George of Cumberland is in contemplation.—Morning Herald.

Nuremburg, May 1.—The most remarkable circumstance at the Easter fair this year is the magazine for Russian manufactures, which are brought for sale from Moscow. From early in the morning till late in the evening this magazine is crowded with people, some attracted by curiosity, others to purchase. The articles brought for sale are silk of all kinds, calicoes, and, above all, nankeens, the quality exceeds all expectation. These articles, in fact, afford the most positive and unequivocal proof of the astonishing progress which the Russian manufactures have made within a few years, and they are much superior to all similar manufactures both in the quality and the quantity of materials employed, and in the goodness of the work manship. On account of this perfection, they cannot, indeed, be sold at the ordinary prices. The only thing in which they were at present defective is elegance and novelty in the patterns, and in this respect they will long remain inferior, particularly to the English and French manufactures.

The Finance Committee have turned their special attention to the various Consulship, &c., and have ordered accounts to be laid before them of the names, and places of residence, of Consuls-General, Vice-Consuls, &c., in 1826 and 1827; of their salaries and allowances, and distinguishing, if practicable, the amount received by such Consuls, &c. in fees: also, of the number of British ships, amount of the tunnage, &c. cleared for the countries, ports, and dependencies, under such Consulship, during the last three years.—Bell's Messenger, May 4.

The last year's amount of tax on sugar in Ireland was 430,000 pounds.

If we extempt the period of the visit of the Allied Sovereigns in 1815, the town was scarcely ever known to be so full as at this time; as a proof of it, the receipts of the Two-Penny Post Office are said to be one-fifth greater than they were a twelvemonth ago."

Foreign Intelligence.

IMPORTANT FROM PORTUGAL.

A telegraphic despatch, from Bayonne announced, on the 10th ult that Don Miguel had been proclaimed King, without any opposition in Coimbra and several other towns.—The Courier remarks that he is a traitor to his niece, the legitimate Queen, Don Pedro having ABDICATED on March 8th in favour of his daughter, Donna Maria, charging Don Pedro, as his Lieutenant and Regent of the kingdom, with the execution of the decree.

RUSSIAN DECLARATION OF WAR.

The long threatened crisis has at length arrived: The die is cast; and the Muscovite advances upon the Ottoman. The Russian Declaration of War is received; and the Manifesto by which it is accompanied, will be found below. Wittgenstein's army crossed the Pruth on the 26th or 27th of April, and is in full march towards Constantinople. While the large naval armament of Sebastopol co-operates on the side of Varna, the corps of General Paskovitch, flushed with its recent triumphs in Persia, is to advance through the southern frontier of Turkey. But this is not the only important operation with which the war is expected to commence.—The Russians, it is said would cross the Danube about the same time into Bulgaria, and push forward as rapidly as possible, supporting their main army by a landing near the Gulf of Verona. The State Papers issued on this occasion possess all that diplomatic tact for which the Russian Cabinet, under Count Nesselrode, has been always distinguished.

EXTRAORDINARY SUPPLEMENT TO THE RUSSIAN STATE GAZETTE.

BERLIN, May 4.

We have received to-day from St. Petersburgh the following official document:—

MANIFESTO OF HIS MAJESTY THE EMPEROR.

"By the Grace of God, we, Nicholas I. Emperor and Autocrat of all the Russias, &c. &c.—The Treaty of Bucharest, concluded in the year 1812 with the Ottoman Porte, after having been for sixteen years the subject of reiterated disputes, now no longer subsists, in spite of all our exertions to maintain it, and to preserve it from all attacks. The Porte, not satisfied with having destroyed the basis of that Treaty, now defies Russia, and prepares to wage against it a Bellum ad internecionem; it summonses its people in a mass to arms—accuses Russia of being its irreconcilable enemy, and tramples under foot the Convention of Akerman, and with that all preceding Treaties.

"Lastly, the Porte does not hesitate to declare that it accepted the conditions of this peace only as a mask to conceal its intentions and its preparations for a new war. Scarcely is this remarkable confession made, when the rights of the Russian flag are violated—the vessels which it covers detained—and the cargoes made the prey of a rapacious and arbitrary government. Our subjects found themselves compelled to break their oath, or to leave without delay a hostile country.—The Bosphorus closed—our trade annihilated—our southern provinces deprived of the only channel for the exportation of their produce, are threatened with incalculable injury. Nay, more! At the moment when the negotiations between Russia and Persia are nearly concluded, a sudden change on the part of the Persian government, checks the course of them. It soon appears that the Ottoman Porte exert itself to make Persia waver, by promising powerful aid; arming in haste the troops in the adjoining provinces, and preparing to support, by a threatening attack, this treacherous hostile language. This is the series of injuries of which Turkey has been guilty, from the conclusion of the treaty of Akerman up to this day, and this is unhappily the fruit of the sacrifices and the generous exertions by which Russia has incessantly endeavoured to maintain peace with a neighbouring nation.

"But all patience has its limit. The honour of the Russian name—the dignity of the empire—the inviolability of its rights, and that of our national glory, have prescribed to us the bounds of it.

"It is not till after having weighed in their fullest extent the duties imposed on us by imperative necessity, and inspired with the greatest confidence in the justice of our cause, that we have ordered our army to advance, under the Divine protection, against an enemy who violates the most sacred obligations of the law of nations.

"We are convinced that our faithful subjects will join with our prayers, the most ardent wishes, for the success of our enterprise, and that they will implore the Almighty to lend his support to our brave soldiers, and to shed his Divine blessing on our arms, which are destined to defend our liberty, religion, and our national honour.

"Given at St. Petersburgh, the 14th (26th) April in the year of our Lord, 1828, and the third of our reign.

[Signed) NICHOLAS.

COUNT NESSELRODE."

Constantinople, April 11.—When the declaration of Russia, respecting the Hatti Scheriff of the 20th of December was received here, the Dragomans of Austria and the Netherlands went to the Palace of the Porte, to acquaint the Reis Effendi with the instructions they had received. It seems that the most urgent remonstrances were made to the Porte to prevent a catastrophe, the effects of which would be felt in all Europe The Reis Effendi is said to have turned a deaf ear to all these representations, and merely to have answered—"That the Porte did not seek war, but it desired peace, and had given Russia no reasons for its declaration, which seems to be chiefly founded on the Hatti Scheriff addressed by the Porte to its subjects, (one of the Reis Effendi) thought that every body was master at home, and might there take such measures as he pleased without giving an account to any body; that he had therefore express orders from the Sultan to declare, that it was contrary to the honor of the Ottoman Porte to suffer laws to be dictated to it by foreigners; and that the Turkish nation would rather defend its rights with the sword, than endure a humiliation; that the Porte, besides, was but too well convinced that concessions on her part would not lead to any satisfactory result; and that the pacific sentiments of Russia, which had been so highly praised, had by no means manifested themselves on this occasion."

Frankfort, May 6.—The Greek papers contain various decrees of the President of Greece, relative to the finances and to the organization of the military force. All the Greek troops are divided into regiments consisting of two battalions, & ten companies, amounting to 1100. Every officer and soldier has a certain quantity of bread, according to his rank, and monthly pay.

France.—Paris papers to the 14th of May, had reached London.

The Moniteur contains a Royal Ordinance for the levy of 60,000 men of the class of 1827.

The Messager des Chambres has a long article relative to Don Miguel, in which it defends the conduct of the French Government against the Quotidienne; it calls the attempt of Don Miguel an usurpation, and says, "We can affirm that the resolution of the Cabinet has been unanimous on this subject, and positive declarations recognised the rights of Don Pedro; stating at the same time, that they would consider as an usurpation every attempt of Don Miguel to assume a Crown, which is to be placed upon another head. The character of such an attempt explains the order given by the Courts to their respective Ambassadors to quit Lisbon in case the young Prince should assume the title of King of Portugal."

The Messager then observes, that these orders have emanated from the Cabinets, which have placed the policy of Europe on the basis of legitimacy.

In the Chamber of Deputies on the 13th, there was a very interesting debate on the Loan of eight millions, on which the Minister of Foreign Affairs made a speech showing the necessity of this measure, on account of the important modifications which have occurred in the foreign relations, and dwelt particularly on the war between Russia and Turkey, observing that the respective situation of the three Powers with respect to Turkey, now requires some mutual explanations on the mode of executing the Treaty which is common to them all. "All that we are allowed to say at this moment is that the allies of the King declare that they are resolved, like him, to keep their engagements, and to attain the objects laid down by the Treaty of 6th July."

M. Bignon opposed the loan, which he considered unnecessary. He considered the notions that Turkey was in danger of being overthrown by Russia as exaggerated.

The Minister of Marine, in reply, declared that France was not directed, as had been insinuated, by any influence coming from the banks of the Thames or of the Neva; "but" said he "Europe is not at peace; it was therefore our duty to enable France to appear in the attitude which becomes it, if it is to interfere in the struggle." The discussion was not terminated.

PORTUGAL AND FRANCE.

Paris, May 10.—A telegraphic despatch from Bayonne, dated May 10, announces—

"That Don Miguel has been proclaimed King without any opposition at Coimbra, Aveiro, Setubal, Villafranca, Vizeuna, and many other towns.

"Lisbon is tranquil, and Oporto was very calm on the 28th of April.

"The present intentions are immediately to convoke the three Orders."

We believe—we are certain—that, in case the Infant should really cause himself to be proclaimed Absolute King, his Majesty's Minister, who is accredited only to the Prince Regent, was immediately to cease his functions.

The Moniteur contains a Royal Ordinance for the levy of 60,000 men of the class of 1827.

Communications.

FOR THE LOYALIST.

REVIEW of Mr. E. REYERSON'S Letters to the Honorable & Venerable Archdeacon Strachan, &c.

No. 2.

The exordium of Mr. Reyerson's second Letter promises that the person to whom that and its brother Epistles are addressed has allowed some very bad passions to get the dominion over him: in short, the "heat" of our gentleman's moderation so prettily pleaded in Letter No. 1, seems "somewhat changed from its primitive aspect;" and (I regret I cannot compliment his) his style seems to degenerate with his temper. That Epistle set out with a show of reverence for the personal character of his antagonist: in this, the inconvenient hypocrisy is dismissed; and "violent prejudice, implacable hatred and gall—embued shafts" seem now to fail and him in the sentences of our pugnacious letter-writer. But to turn to his statements:—

He notes a most condemnable inconsistency in his Venerable opponent because he had, on one occasion, declared "that the Members of the Church of England are, in his belief, the most numerous of any religious body in the Province; and on another, that he never knew the number of Members belonging thereto!" How must we shrink before that searching intelligence! how reverent that unparalleled acuteness! Is it not possible, I would ask this logician, whether we may not be pretty well convinced—so far at least as to believe, that the Members of the Church of England bear that superior proportion without knowing their exact numbers? Have we various methods of ascertaining their comparative strength besides an individual computation. When we see two Regiments of Soldiers drawn up before us, we can perhaps pronounce which is the more numerous of the two without being at the pains of numerical calculation. If, too, one should happen to ascertain the whole population of a Township or District, and recollect into what a number of religious denominations it is usually divided; if then, he ascertained its unity sketch by the strength of his own religious society and compared it with the whole population thus subdivided, he can arrive, with tolerable correctness, at the conclusion, whether that be the most numerous religious class or not. And if, with a general acquaintance with the country, we have reason to think a similar calculation applicable to the whole of it, perhaps the inconsistency which Mr. R. affixes to the character of Dr. Strachan will be quickly withdrawn.

The next inconsistency detected by Mr. Reyerson is this: that Dr. Strachan asserted, on one occasion, "a very general disposition in the people to build Churches, &c. and a very prevalent desire among them for the establishment of a regular Minister; and on another, that where Churches are erected, the persons that give regular attendance at their ministrations are so few as to greatly alarm every friend to Religion." Really, Mr. Reyerson, I can discover no moral impossibility in the existence of both facts—no self-contradiction in the assertion of both positions. As to the first, Mr. R., with all his audacity, will hardly venture to contradict its truth; for it is a well known fact, an attested fact that such a disposition does exist, to an extent much beyond the hope of its speedy gratification. And why does the complained of scantiness of attendants at divine worship ensue? Is it from hostility to the Church of England; from any feeling opposite to that which prompts the very general anxiety for possessing a Church and Minister? Or is the existence of two similar facts, such as those in which Mr. R's. sagacity discerns so palpable a contradiction, an anomaly in the history or experience of mankind? Do we never discover an hostility betwixt the professions and the practice of men—a contradiction betwixt their hopes and the conduct which alone can lead to their realization?—a warfare betwixt their better judgment and the passions which sway them? It is one of Mr. R's. duties as a preacher of the Gospel, to strive to close this Kangeroo breach, and end this prevalent struggle; but he has a very exaggerated part of his duty yet to learn if he knows not of the existence of such a conflict in the breasts of mankind—such a dissention, indeed, in the individual man. However, causes of a local nature will be found, in the present instance, to magnify the deplorable consequences which flow from the frail constitution of humanity: the scattered nature of the population frequently affords a good reason for the scantiness of attendance at divine worship, especially, as is often the case, where the scarcely established settler has not the conveniences wherewith to convey his family to the house of God—the large number of those who have grown up without any knowledge of Religion and in whom it is difficult to conquer an habitual indifference to her ministrations—the unhappy jarring betwixt sects wherein whose opinions there exists no concord, and whose conflicting tenets produce a dispossition, whether of entire apathy or tumultuary enthusiasm, very unfavourable to the growth of a well-directed culture—all these afford inimical to the fruits of a well-directed culture—all these afford inimical to the fruits of a well-directed culture—all these afford a good reason for the discouragements which the Missionary must sometimes encounter. And why is this circumstance introduced by Dr. Strachan? Is it not to manifest the labor that is to be done—the extent and difficulty of the duty to be fulfilled? Is it not stated in order to call forth renewed attention to the subject, and to promote by an increase in the number of the labourers, those benefits which the efforts of a few can but imperfectly realize—to ensure the advantages of concentration in the religious strength of the people by a wider diffusion of the means of access to her ordinances? But to insinuate, in the face of common sense and notorious truth, that this betokens the decline of that Church's influence or warrants the conclusion that her Clergymen are not respectable, is only worthy of a scribbler, so reckless of character as Mr. Egerton Reyerson himself

But there is another inconsistency noted in the same paragraph: that "the Church of England is rapidly increasing, and, that sectaries are increasing on every side" Those words, I discover no contradiction in them, without violence to reason, in a country like this be supposed to be increasing at the same time. That the Church of England is increasing, wherever it is planted; wherever there is access afforded to its Ministrations with a zeal which the denial or doubts of Mr. Reyerson will never affect; and that sectaries are increasing, where the Church is not planted, is a circumstance very natural.—Every new settlement, every press spreading the British Greater need, then, had Dr. Strachan to express more than the solicitation with opinions any thing but favorable to the political and Religious Institutions of England." Why? because, as was before stated, sectarianism is gaining ground, to the disadvers from the U. States, and the emigrants the most of those who are flocking in. On the latter Mr. Reyerson promises to remark by and by—I may promise, too, some remarks on his remarks: in the mean time, we find that Dr. Strachan is correct.

Again, the assertion that "the Church of England is founded upon a rock," and that "to take away the Reserves would annihilate the Church," are assumed as contradictions. Although I do not apprehend that any sensible man will be at the pains to put in array the sophistry at subject to be as well to remind this lapidus iunenis that, in the one case the Church is spoken of as regards her internal excellence and strength—in the other, as respects her outward establishment Having the bonds of Scripture for its foundation, the Church, it is humbly presumed, can have nothing to dread from any earthly vicissitude; but take away the Reserves, and it will lose its influence as an Establishment—the benefit of its alliance with the State will be, in a great degree, lost—the of its political influence will be lowered.

We see, then, how "fair and honorable" Mr. Reyerson has been in thus garbling the statements of Dr Strachan—selecting detached sentences from various Pamphlets—huddling them together with all the care which the desire of misrepresenting truth and belying integrity could prompt. But all this flagitious disingenuousness will not do:—a few words of explanation will suffice to annihilate the whole fabric—to scatter the puny sophistry and detect the base inferences of Mr. Reyerson, and reveal, in brighter lustre, the integrity, the honor, and the consistency of Dr. Strachan.

In speaking of the Archdeacon's Charts for 1826 and 1828, Mr. Reyerson introduces an illustration, designed to militate against Dr. Strachan, which I readily adopt to give credibility to his statement. In the town of Fredericton, N. Brunswick, were inspected that for 1826 there were 300 houses—a statement contested by some;—and if in 1828 there were alledged to be 400, which none could presume to deny; I would ask any one man, with whom reason exists or common candour, whether that increase did not afford a very satisfactory evidence that the first statement could not have been very incorrect. If it were so, the indisputable certainty of the last would be a sufficient answer at all in favor with Mr. Reyerson's argument. As for the insinuations about the effects of wealth and influence in producing that increase, they are, in this instance, somewhat preposterous. It would be absurd as absurd to suppose that a Governor in Canada would effect, by his own means and agency, the erection of 100 houses in the town of York in two years, as to think that any one man, by his personal influence and exertions, could, in the same space, augment the congregations of the Church of England from 58 to 102.

We utterly deny Mr R's. assertion that the statements regarding the Church of England were the causes of the contrary statements he generally deplores: it was because other denominations did not think themselves fairly represented that all the clamor arose But on this I need not touch, at present, as the whole has been ably and satisfactorily explained by Archdeacon Strachan—by his love of unprovoked and unfounded slander. But we call upon him—solemnly challenge him, to make good his base insinuations or we shall hold him up, for the rash and false assertion, to the scorn and reprobation of the world.

As for Navy Point, Purdy's Mills, &c.—I am authorised to say that at Navy Point there is service, in a convenient place, every Sunday to which the inhabitants around have access—at Purdy's Mills, where a Church is building, once a fortnight—at Etobicoke, as often,—at New-Market a Church will be built as soon as the prospect of the establishment of a Clergyman there is ensured—and in Markham, those of the Lutheran persuasion evince a willingness to enrol themselves with the Church of England. These facts as well as the preparations for churches at Woolwich and Dundas would, in the mind of any reasonable and ingenuous person, remove all disposition to make a card at the trifling inaccuracies in Dr Strachan's first Chart regarding them; whilst those preparations would overrule the Archdeacon in adducing them as at least, an example of the tendency of the people towards the Church of England; for I doubt not, it can be made to appear that disinclination for that Church was not most of those places, there is cause for believing that service has occasionally and for some time, been performed, according to the usages of the Church of England.

The remaining part of Mr. R's. second Letter needs no comment.

PARLIAMENTARY RECOLLECTIONS.

Closely connected with the subject alluded to in my last, (the Alien Question), is the Mission of Mr. Randall to England. By dint of misrepresentation as is now well known, and by creating a needless alarm among a certain portion of the people, a Petition was got up, and the means which were used to obtain signatures to it, were such as might have been expected from a party who felt all the soreness of defeat. To give the matter something of the appearance of public opinion, Public meetings were pretended to be called, at which however none but the friends of the measure were invited to be present. Even friendly meetings were but thinly attended, and in most instances where one or two persons capable of fairly explaining the subject were to be found, at the risk no doubt of being called meddling intruders, it was with difficulty that signatures could be procured—conviction was produced—the assemblages melted away, until it was found necessary by the party, to adopt other means for accomplishing their object.—Travelling Agents were then despatched from house to house, and by exciting groundless suspicions in the minds of some of their inmates, a certain number of names were obtained—"tythes" were to be introduced—a system of Military rule was to be established—the people were to be robbed of their farms—stript of their possessions—and their rights and privileges levelled with the dust.—Such, were among the misrepresentations used, to induce the credulous but well disposed Yeomanry of the Province, to put their names to a petition, containing the grossest libels against a Government, under whose protecting care they had enjoyed all the blessings which Liberty can confer, and whose only desire was, to confirm to them and their posterity that Liberty, in such a manner, as should for ever place it beyond all question or doubt or question. Mr. Randall was the bearer of this precious document pompously announced to the world, as having the signature of fourteen thousand persons annexed to it. Those who were in the secret, were fully aware of the number. The Bills reserved for His Majesty's pleasure were suspended, and other instruction's sent out, differing in form, but not in substance from those previously received. These latter instructions, state most positively, that no such declaratory provision, as had been proposed by Mr. Bidwell could be entertained, and yet the note of triumph was raised, and Mr. Randall extolled as a Patriot. If it were calmly asked, whether Mr. Randall's mission, had effected the darling object of his party, and to which they clung with so much fondness, by having it conceded, that "all persons whose Fathers or paternal Grand-fathers were born in the United States of America, previous to the year 1783, should be considered as British Subjects, to all intents and purposes"—what must be the reply?—Has Mr. Randall's mission accomplished this, the great end and aim of those who have been anxious to prevent the question being settled.—Certainly not.—Do not the facts of the case remain precisely as they did, before Mr. R. crossed the Atlantic.—Can any variation in the principles of the measure be discovered.—None.—Whence then, the cause of pretended triumph unless to create a belief that something important had been done, and to gild over the proposal which was made of rewarding Mr. Randall with a vote of public money, by taxing the whole population, for having, on the signatures of the one fiftieth part, of that population, and in the instance of some two or three persons, styling themselves the "Central Committee of Upper Canada," gone to London and back again, for the only purpose of "keeping the question open."

As I am not disposed to quarrel with modes and forms so long as principles are not compromised. I hope the question is now in a fair way of being closed.—My object is to place the matter in its true light, and to convince the great body of Electors, that attempts have been made to mislead them, and to shew, that the advocates of the famous declaratory law, notwithstanding their retreating notes of triumph, have not succeeded, even with the patriotic exertions of Mr. Randall, in having a Law passed which would have opened a door so wide, that the Citizens of the United States might have passed through it, into Upper Canada, as British Subjects "to all intents and purposes."

FOR THE LOYALIST.

PORT-HOPE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

A year having elapsed since the commencement of Port-Hope Sunday School, it becomes the duty of the Managgers to draw up a brief report of their proceedings and progress during the period

The Institution began under auspices not the most favourable, and many persons hostile to every benevolent attempt, predicted its speedy dissolution; but the Managers had counted the cost, and knew that by diligence and perseverance they would, under the divine blessing, surmount every difficulty. With scarcely any funds, and the duty of teaching, &c. devolving on two or three individuals, including T. T. Orton, Esqr. Superintendant. 65 scholars have been taught, 100 Tracts and some books & a large number of verses of the Scriptures, and Hymns, have been by the Scholars committed to memory. The School is opened by singing and prayer, and a general lecture on the duties of Morality and Religion, suited to the capacities of children, is given by the Superintendant; but no particular Creed is inculcated, the Institution being open to all denominations.

The Managers feel a pleasure in being able to state, that the consequences of these exertions is very apparent in the behaviour of the Scholars; and they cannot but indulge the hope, that the seed thus sown, will at some future period, yield a plentiful harvest. They will at all events feel themselves amply rewarded, should the instructions now given be the means of preventing even one individual from pursuing the beaten path, which both Scripture and reason authorise us to believe, will end in everlasting banishment from God, and from the glory of his power.

With regard to parents it may be observed, that "train up a child in the way he ought to go, and when he is old he will not depart from it," is an axiom which generally holds good. Every man who is destitute of religion has his price, i. e. he can be purchased to the commission of any act of wickedness, by giving him what in his view, is an equivalent for that act; but he who has been early instructed in the Being and attributes of God, the immortality of the soul, and the doctrine of future rewards and punishments, and who acts under the influence of those views, cannot be thus purchased; since nothing can be offered equal to the eternal loss of the Soul. Religion, when cordially embraced, affords also the yet more powerful principle of love to God and Man, impelling its possessor to an abhorrence of vice in all its various forms, and to the performance of every thing excellent in the different relations, and departments of life. It regulates every passion, and extends it benign influence to the thoughts and interests of the heart. Who then would not wish to see the universal spread of this Religion? and what more likely to effect it, in conjunction with the preaching of the Gospel, than Sabbath Schools judiciously conducted? It is to be hoped, that parents of every denomination, who feel interested in the present and eternal welfare of their offspring, and who wish to guard them against the fatal errors and ruinous principles of Infidelity, will use their influence to secure the advantages of such institutions, wherever they are established.

By Order,
ALEXANDER DAVIDSON,
Secretary.

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, JUNE 28, 1828.

The Official declaration of War by the Russians, against the Turks, so long expected, is received—The armaments on both sides are of the most formidable kind, but in point of numbers the Russians have decidedly the advantage—their discipline too, is said to be superior. The conflict, ere this has commenced, and we may daily look for important news, from the seat of war.

A Detachment of 68th Regiment, under the command of Lt Smith, lately from England, arrived here on Tuesday last, by the Queenston.

A Town Purse of £10, made up for Horses, in York and its vicinity, was run for on the Garrison Race Course on Tuesday Three entered, and the Race, was well contested between Mr. Dunn's Mare, and Dr. McCaugc's Horse, the latter winning, coming out the two first heats about a length ahead. The Mare was the favorite before starting, and with weight for age, it was thought by many on the ground, that she could have beaten her opponent. This may perhaps lead to another trial of speed and bottom between these two fine Animals. Among the means for promoting the spirit which has evinced itself, for improving the breed of our Horses, the proposal for establishing "Fall Races," for which purpose notice of a Meeting will be found in this day's paper, will we have no doubt be success ful.

The New Steam Boat "Alcipe," lately built at Niagara, owned by Robert Hamilton Esq and under the command of Captain MacKenzie, late of the Frontenac, with a number of Ladies and Gentlemen on a party of pleasure, made her first entry into our harbor, on Thursday last—She is a fine model, and fitted up in a most elegant and convenient manner for passengers. She commences her regular trips we understand next week, and under the command of Captain McKenzie, so well known for his skill and experience as a Seaman, and for attention to his passengers, we have no doubt, the Alcipe, will be found a valuable acquisition, to the regular communication which is now afforded by means of the several Steam-boats plying on the lake, and that she will receive a share of that public patronage, which is so deservedly bestowed upon the owners and Commanders of other Boats, whose public spirited exertions, are deserving of the highest praise.

The following remarks were made by his Honor Mr Justice Sherwood, to three Gentlemen of the Bar, on Wednesday 18th instant in reply to a written application made in open Court by them, for his individual opinion on a question, directly impeaching his own right, to sit and preside as a Judge of the Court, in which he then was:

"You are desirous I should express an opinion from the Bench on the present state of this Court, but it appears, to me any opinion of that kind would be extra-judicial. No one but His Majesty's Representative has any right to ask for the opinion of a Judge, where no cause or regular motion according to the practice of the Court, is pending before him; and he has the right, only, so far as a Judge is a Constitutional adviser of the Crown.

Being a Judge of this Court I consider it my duty to repair to the usual place of holding the Court of King's Bench, during the terms prescribed by the Laws of the country. If my Brother Judges are not there, I have no authority to inquire whether their reasons for being absent are legal or illegal As I stated to the Bar on Monday,—I think it incumbent on me to preside in Court and attend to such business as the Law of the land, the King's Commission, and the established practice of both the Courts of King's Bench in England and this Province, render it the duty of a Judge to perform. It is my sincere wish that all causes and motions regularly pending in Court, should be postponed to receive further consideration of a plurality of Judges, and individually I am desirous of taking no step which my official obligations do not imperatively require. As professional men you cannot expect me to assign any reason for sitting in this Court during this term, more than any other term. The act of holding this Court, I imagine, sufficiently indicates the decided belief of the Judge that, he is doing his duty, and no superior tribunal has ever declared the course now pursued to be erroneous. Should any such decision occur, I will adhere with the greatest respect to any new rule laid down by a superior tribunal, for the guidance of the Court Any thing short of this can never have the legal effect of controlling the decisions or settled practice of a superior Court of Record."

We have authority to state, that the Executive Council after a long deliberation upon the singular situation in which the Administration of Justice is placed, by Mr. Willis withdrawing from the Bench, have reported to the Lieutenant Governor, the necessity of his Removal from Office, in order to admit of another appointment being made, until the decision of His Majesty shall be known.

His Excellency having concurred in this course, a new Appointment will be forthwith made.

(From the New York Albion of June 21.)

The Welland Canal.—We are happy to announce that his Majesty's Government, with a liberality which characterizes all its actions, has determined on lending £50,000 to effect the prompt completion of this great work. This information we derived from a perfect source, and we believe it can be relied on, as we have implicitly relied on. Why, then, we ask, should the Province of New Brunswick despair of similar assistance, when it sets about in real earnest, the project of its own canal from the Bay of Fundy to the Bay of Chaleur.

A pension of £3000 per annum has been voted in the House of Commons for the family of Mr. Canning, which it is to be lamented, stands in need of such assistance. The proposal was agreed to, 166 to 54.

We observe by the London Courier of the 12th ult. that Mr. A. C Buchanan (brother to H. M. Consul at New-York) has been appointed Resident Government Agent for Emigration at Quebec

The Right Reverend, the Lord Bishop of Nova Scotia, and the Honourable Judge Halliburton, arrived in town a few days since from Nova Scotia, via Boston. The Rev. Prelate and Judge H. we understand intend to proceed to Canada.

DEATH SONG OF THE LAST DELAWARE INDIAN.

I will come! I will come! to the land of the just,
To the feasts of the brave will I come!
The warrior must rest from his toils in the dust;
For the Great Spirit calls to his son.

Shall the last of the Delawares shrink from his end?
At his death, shall the Mohican fear?
When the Great Spirit calls on his son, to attend,
Mid the chiefs of his tribe to appear.

The word of my father have honoured and kept,
And the wish of my mother obey'd;
Has the truth in the Delaware's soul ever slept?
Was the trust of his tribe e'er betray'd?

I have slain the Maqua's! the Maqua's I have slain!
And the scalp of the Mingo I won:
I heeded not danger, and I turn'd not from pain,—
But the Delaware's journey is done.

I will come! I will come! to the land of the just,
To the feasts of the brave, will I come!
The warrior must rest from his toils in the dust;

AGRICULTURE.

The following has been obligingly handed to us by an eminent Agriculturist. The Editors of Newspapers are respectfully requested to give it circulation for the information of the public.—Star.

SALINE MANURE.

The following is the mode recommended to be adopted in preparing the Saline Manure.

Let a platform of any kind of Mould or Earth, the richer the better, be formed, about six inches thick, twelve feet wide and as long as may be necessary for the extent of land to be manured, at one end of this let the first load of lime, fresh from the kiln, be placed about four inches thick, let the lime be then, not only slacked, but moistened, with a solution of rock salt, or any common salt, in water, at the rate of 6 lbs. of salt to each barrel of lime, pouring the solution, or pickle, gradually and evenly on the lime, as the latter is found to imbibe it, carefully avoiding to let any of pickle escape from the lime, as it may thus fail to come within its influence and be thrown away, then spread the lime, placed on the platform near the first, and treated in the same manner, when the entire platform is thus covered, begin again with a second layer of lime, slack, moisten, and spread, and cover it as the first, until it be also finished, and proceed in the same manner with a third and fourth layer, if the mould be not collected in one place, but deposited in a long row, as then the earth will be more convenient, and equally advantageous. When the whole is covered with earth let the heap be cut down and well mixed, in which state it may be suffered to lie until a short time before it is used, when it should be again turned. The proportion of water in which the salt is dissolved, depends on the state of the earth or mould; if the latter be wet, twenty gallons of water impregnated with 6 lbs. of salt, is sufficient for each barrel of lime, if it be dry, half a hogshead of water to that quantity of salt and lime will be necessary. Forty barrels of lime treated in this manner is a full dressing for an acre of potatoes. The quantity of earth we have used was about eighty single horse loads to the acre, but if there be much difficulty in collecting it, from forty to fifty loads may be sufficient. The compost should be prepared at least two or three months before the time of using it and if the expence be no material objection, one or two additional turnings in the interval would be desirable.

Of the efficacy of this manure for potatoes, we have already had satisfactory evidence. That it will be found of equal value in its operations on the subsequent crops, may be inferred from the durability of the effects of soap ashes, to which in its most essential ingredients it is similar, and that it may be directly applied with advantage to the other tillage crops we also anticipate, from the well known effects of soap ashes in such applications, to those farmers who are so situated, as to be debarred from all other adventitious manures except lime, the advantage of being able to supply themselves abundantly with a cheap substitute, and we trust, of superior value to any of them, is incalculable.

Every ton of this saline compost contains 4 stone of muriate of lime, and each ten contains one fourth of pure lime, if free from stones, &c.

SALT FOR HORSES.—The use of salt for horses, is becoming general in some parts of the South of France. It is given to riding horses to the extent of 3 oz. per day, and for horses used for Agricultural purposes to the extent of 6 oz; with this condiment mixed with their corn, they become fat, and are healthy.

SHIPPING INTELLIGENCE.

The Capt. of the Rokeby, saw the Tea-ship at Basque Islands, on Friday, but does not think she was ashore.

The report of the Tea-ship being ashore on Basque Island rests on the authority of one pilot who was told it by another. The truth of the report is therefore questionable.

To sail a bout the 16th of May, from Cork, for Quebec, the Ship Thomas, of 1000 tons with passengers.

The Robert Fulton, at New-York, 3d inst. from Belfast, in lat. 45, long. 38, on the 16th May came up with the Brig Union bound to Quebec from Aberdeen, which had sprung a leak the day before and was sinking; after taking the Captain and crew on board, the union went down almost immediately

The Bark Jane, of Plymouth, Eales, bound to Miramichi, struck a piece of ice 11th May off Cape St. George, and sunk almost immediately. The master and crew arrived at Miramichi

St. John, (Newfd.) May 1st.—Extract of a letter from Capt. James McCarty, of the Schooner Betsey and Nancy. "The third day after I left Halifax, at meridian, I saw a Ship bearing N. N. W. distance forty two miles, and after a strict look out, supposed her to be in distress, the wind N. N. W. at 11 P. m. came close to her and found no person on board; after a strict examination I went on board, set all hands to work and trimmed her upright; made sail and took her into Burin, and here I have her safely moored. She is one of the finest ships that ever came into this harbor, nearly new, her name is the Superb of Bristol, bound as I find to Quebec,—her cargo consists of a few hampers of porter, some cheese, iron, chains, boxes of tin, and salt, and loaf sugar, bun damaged. [The survivor of the boat's crew which unfortunately drifted from this vessel, arrived at Miramichi, was to have his legs amputated from their having been frost-bitten.]

Varieties.

A hard case.—A Tradesman applied at Marylebone Office on Tuesday, to know what he should do with a troublesome blacksmith, who occupied the cellar of his house? Mr. Griffith—"Turn him out." Applicant—"That is the very thing I want to do; but how is it to be done?" Mr. G.—"Give him notice to quit." A.—"I have a dozen times, and he takes no notice of it." Mr. G.—"Double his rent!" A.—"That will answer no purpose, for he does not pay the present." Mr. G.—"Take his goods." A.—"He has nothing but tools, and those we can't distrain." Mr. G.—"It's altogether bad." A.—"Yes, and when he is offended he stops his chimney-flue, and fills the house with smoke." The Magistrate could give no further advice, and the applicant went away disappointed.

The ruins of the New Brunswick Theatre, it appears, are likely to be still the subject of a contest. The King claims for the deodand; the ground landlord, it is said also claims; and in consequence of the bankruptcy of Mr. Carthers, Messrs. Barnes and Tourton, the Auctioneers, have been valuing the materials and property, by order of the commissioners.

TERRIBLE EARTHQUAKE.—Papers received by the last arrivals at New-York give accounts from Madras, of the destruction of Kolitaran, where a thousand persons were buried beneath its ruins. The same convulsion had shivered a mountain to pieces, which falling into the river Rowee, caused the country to be inundated to the distance of 100 coss round. Three thousand workmen were employed in cutting a channel through the mountain, and great apprehensions were entertained of the injury, likely to be sustained by Lahore, whenever the river should force its way through the channel.

IT WAS computed that no fewer than thirty thousand victims perished from cholera, in Amherst, Rahore and the Camp.

NEW INVENTION.—Mr. Pliny Weller, of York, Livingston co. has invented and put in operation, a machine for making barrel staves which takes them from the log, and prepares them for the truss-hoop. It will with the attendance of a man and boy, dress 3000 staves per day—A day's labour in the usual way is, we understand, 200. The value of this invention in a country where so many barrels are used, must be immense.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY JULY 5, 1828.

PREFACE.

THE following Review was drawn up for the No. of the Christian Sentinel published this month, but circumstances rendered it impossible to include it.—It will appear in the No. to be issued in July. In the mean time, feeling that, in its present shape, it requires the apology of haste, and that incudi reddere is a task which it is out of our power to undertake, we are anxious to lay it before the public at once.—We should be sorry also to permit any needless retardation in the steps of a controversy which we heartily desire to see brought to its close. It is for these reasons that it is now as a separate pamphlet for distribution in proper quarters, in anticipation of its appearance in the Sentinel.

6th May, 1823.

REVIEW, &c.

CONTROVERSY, in itself one of the most distasteful to us of all possible occupations, is an employment in the prolongation of which we never would needlessly engage, and if the Letter of the Bishop of Quebec to the Clergy and Congregations within his Diocese, were perfectly fresh in the recollection of our readers, we should regard it as a needless prolongation of controversy, to notice the present reply to it; for we do conceive, after an attentive and, we trust, a candid perusal of this publication, that if the two are compared paragraph by paragraph, the Episcopal Letter will be sure to remain unanswered throughout, and to stand in its unabated strength.

But we believe that an interval of full five months has elapsed since the appearance of the former pamphlet, and such ideas as would be now formed of its contents from the manner in which it is noticed by the divines of the Church of Scotland, would, in our humble opinion, be most essentially different from the results of a reference back to its own pages. We do not mean that it is intentionally made to appear different; nor do we mean in any manner whatever to speak disrespectfully of the present performance—far less of its authors. We believe that they have only failed to answer the arguments of the Bishop, because they cannot be answered—only see them in a discoloured light, because if they had seen them truly, they must have surrendered more perhaps than in the present state of this unhappy difference, can be expected from human prejudice.—But although the Bishop has apparently conceived it by no means necessary to put forth the whole strength of the case of his own Church, we should hardly desire anything more than such a reference back as we have mentioned, if we thought that it would be faithfully and candidly made, wherever the recent Pastoral Letter finds its way. This patient and pains-taking examination of the merits of the question, is, however what we cannot expect to be exercised.

Without dwelling, then, upon the circumstance that whereas the Episcopal Letter was simply official address to the Clergy and Congregations, issuing from Ecclesiastical authority, recommending a certain line of conduct in a certain trying conjuncture, as well as exhibiting a certain view of the claims of the Church, this publication, which professes to come forth in the same character, should, in accordance with its contents, have rather been announced under the name of Strictures upon the Letter of the Bishop of Quebec,—we proceed to our task; and the first subject of our animadversion, is the most unexpected intimation which has been ventured upon, that the English Clergy are the aggressors—that they are chargeable with unprovoked violence and hostility, and that to them it is to be ascribed whatever acrimony has been engendered in the contention!

Upon this point we need occupy but little time.—We shall only remark, 1st, that such a reflection was wholly uncalled for, and 2dly, that it is pointedly contrasted with what those who are the subjects of it have fairly deserved.—First, It is uncalled for, because the Bishop's Letter contains no charge nor insinuation whatever that the Ministers of the Church of Scotland are the authors of any of the calumnies and scurrilities which have been trusted against the Church of England. We are far from ruling any such construction as qui capit, ille facit—but if the origin of that spirit of rivalry which unhappily exists, and the manner of its developement on either side should become the subject of discussion and enquiry, we are bold to say that it is not the Church of England that will suffer by the facts to be elicited; and here, we leave this particular question to rest till it is again stirred by other hands.

But secondly, the reflection is pointedly contrasted with what those who are the subjects of it have deserved;—for although in the Bishop's own words "our own defenders may occasionally have been betrayed into some heat or impropriety," we basic from a variety of quarters that the dignified and Christian moderation of the Church of England in general, persecuted as she has been by the tongue and pen, in the quarrel raised against her, has every where produced a strong favourable effect upon men of thinking minds. For some years she may truly say that she has "lain among the children of men whose teeth are spears and arrows, and their tongue a sharp sword."—A seemingly organized system of attack,—a bitter persevering and often unscrupulous as well as artful hostility has been at work to pull her down, and to possess the minds of men against her, at home and in the colonies—but her proceedings, as a whole, and with very slight exceptions, have been those which become the disciples of a Master who "when he was reviled, reviled not again," and although wounds have been inflicted upon her and calumnies has been felt, her conduct in the trial has greatly tended to repair what her enemies have made her to lose!

Duxit opes animumque ferro

The next point to notice is the intimation that the Bishop's integrity was concerned to undo public impressions produced by statements too favorable to the Church of England, and bearing hard upon other religious denominations.

The authors of the Pastoral Letter had not seen Archdeacon Strachan's speech delivered in the Legislative Council of Upper Canada, when they animadverted in the manner which they have here done, upon his Chart published in England.—It may be sufficient to refer them now to that speech for satisfaction as to the justice of their remarks upon the Chart.—But it would at any rate, have been rather a singular piece of knight-errantry on the part of the Bishop, while he was compelled to stand, like the Jews in the days of Nehemiah, building with one hand the walls of his own Zion, and holding a weapon in the other, to sally forth as a volunteer in defence of other communities, where there was no call for his interposition.—The Bishop's letter was written, we believe, with a knowledge that Dr. Strachan was preparing his own vindication, but, be this as it may, his Lordship's mind was rather too full of the noble work of defending a Church whose character was assailed, when it was misrepresented, whose comparative numbers understated in such a way that, (to take one example out of many) her representation in the representative body of Upper Canada were affirmed in the British Parliament to be two instead of about twenty,—to permit him to feel his integrity implicated if he did not labour to rectify supposed errors sent abroad which made for her advantage.

—There does not breathe a man upon the earth more completely elevated above all shade of unfair or indirect proceeding to serve his purpose, than the Bishop of Quebec; but if ever there was a work of supererogation in the management of human affairs, he would surely have performed one, under all the circumstances of the case, in affecting to regard any opinions prevailing upon the relative pretensions of different religious bodies, as needing his correction, in order to prevent the Church of England from being unduly exalted.—The Bishop has enough to do in this way on the other side of the question. The Ministers of the Church of Scotland are much deceived if they continue in the belief that the statements of comparative numbers, which they have themselves concurred in sending home, in faith of their correctness, are in all instances incapable of contradiction and exposure.

In the same page of the Pastoral Letter it is said that the Archdeacon of York made a recent attempt to "deprive the Ministers of the Church of Scotland of the due support of Government," and in page 9, it is declared to be "the policy avowed and recommended by the Clergy of the Church of England to WITHHOLD SUPPORT from ALL other denominations."

The best commentary upon the correctness of these allegations will be found in certain extracts from the speech of Doctor Strachan himself, and from the Bishop's letter which was before the eyes of these writers at the time:

"Nor have I ever missed an opportunity, when in my power, of being useful to the Clergy of the Church of Scotland, or of treating them with respect, kindness, and hospitality.—It has always been my wish to see a reasonable support given to them, because they belong to a Church which is established in one portion of the Empire * * * * * and to this end I have at all times adopted the leading men of both Churches to make respectful representations to His Majesty's Government for assistance, leaving it to ministers to discover the source from which such aid might be taken."—Archdeacon Strachan's Speech page 22.

"His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor of the Province, represented in the strongest manner to His Majesty's Government the propriety of making some provision for the Clergymen in communion with the Kirk, and also the Roman Catholic Clergy resident in Upper Canada, a reference was made to me on that subject while in London in June, 1826.—I explained, as well as I could, the recommendations made by His Excellency in respect to both Churches" The Archdeacon proceeds to state that a delay being suggested till the Reserve-question should have been disposed of, he himself represented that there were four respectable gentlemen in the Province who might be inconvenienced in the mean time, and who deserved the protection of Government, and that an appropriation was ultimately made of which three gentlemen are now reaping the benefit.—Ibid, page 24.

Let us turn to another authority:

"There are privileges not conceded at home, enjoyed here by the branches of other Churches established in Europe, of which I should be the last person on earth to wish them deprived.—In some instances, I should be heartily glad that the benefits extended to individuals of these Churches should be greater than they have yet been made."—Bishop's Letter, page 5.

We have reason to know that similar sentiments have been expressed in representations made at home by the English Clergy of these Provinces collectively.—But what is the sentiment of their Scottish Brethren?—Are we to understand from this and other passages of their pamphlet, that they do not wish to withhold the support which will be afforded by the Reserves from all other denominations than their own, even one which happens unfortunately to be in pre-occupation of these Reserves?—Do they mean to leave other religious bodies to suppose that their object in this contest and "the policy which they have avowed and recommended" has been to procure a general division of the Reserves among all parties?—If not, what is the difference between the two Churches, as the views which they respectively entertain affect the various OTHER denominations.

In the Episcopal Letter, all questions arising from differences of a nature purely religious, are kept wholly out of view.—This example has not been followed by the Scotch Ministers.—They have taken occasion to express their belief that their Church is the more Apostolical of the two.—That they should indulge such a persuasion is natural.—It is natural that the English Clergy should do the same.—We have no intention of pursuing the question here—but as it has been started on the other side, we will simply say that no ground of enquiry can possibly be chosen upon which the Church of England can be more perfectly ready to "meet all comers" than this.

"We wonder," say the Presbyterian Eirians, in page 4, referring to the arguments in pages 5 and 6 of the Bishop's letter, "that a fact so obvious as the existence of two equal† and inde-

* This word is not here used to express a communicant, as it is sometimes taken upon this continent, but simply denotes a professed adherent.

It would be perfectly endless to follow and expose all the misstatements industriously made through the channel of the public papers, on both sides of the Atlantic, in order to injure the interests of the Church of England, but even where there are no direct mis-statements, the cause of truth may be almost equally prejudiced.—Thus, an article replete with violence and falsehood, which appeared in the London Times of the 6th of February, and at second hand in the journals of these Provinces, is fortified by an extract from certain information furnished and signed by two of the Ministers of the Church of Scotland in Upper Canada, stating the comparative numbers of Episcopalians and Presbyterians in a particular tract of country which happens to consist in a great measure of Scotch Settlements, and to have been always destitute of the Episcopal Clergyman, and this is set before the English public as a sample of the population!—A Protestant wishing to magnify the proportion of Protestants in the world, might with about equal fairness, adduce Great Britain as a specimen, from which to judge of the whole.

In the returns of population in Nova Scotia, according to a Census recently taken, the Church of Scotland is made in the Newspapers to exhibit 37,225 members, and the Church of England 28,600.—From what we know of that Province we feel convinced, but are willing to be corrected if we are wrong, that by far the greater part of those ranked under the banner of the Church of Scotland are Dissenters from that Church.—The College at Pointon, which is a kind of nursery of Ministers, is certainly under the auspices of Scotch Dissenters.—In a similar way, even the Independents and American Congregationalists whose principles of Church Government are fundamentally different from those of the Presbyterian Church, are amalgamated here with the Presbyterians, to share in the meditated spoils of the Church of England.

† The Churches of Scotland and Rome.

‡ We do not cavil at this expression, although we certainly regard the Church of England as being upon a distinct footing every where out of Scotland, because the rights of the Church of Scotland as an establishment in North Britain are precisely equal to those of the Church of England in the Southern division of the Island.

pendent religious Establishments in Great Britain should not have formed itself upon the attention of his Lordship."—

Let us hear the Bishop himself:—

"At the time of the Union * * * * its own Ecclesiastical privileges were carefully secured to Scotland within the bounds of that kingdom."—Bishop's Letter, page 6.

"Although the Presbyterian Church is established in Scotland, the circumstance of its establishment there, so far from proving by any argument, for it is there according to what we conceive to be implied in the very nature of a religious Establishment, exclusively established, and it will hardly be denied that another established here, pre-occupies the ground.—Id. Ibid.

The subject of wonder is a little changed. The wonder is that persons passing remarks upon the pages which contain the foregoing extracts should have represented the Bishop as having entirely lost sight of "so obvious a fact as the EXISTENCE of two equal and independent Establishments in Great Britain."—His Lordship, indeed draws some obvious consequences from this obvious fact, which failed, it appears, to "force themselves upon the attention" of the other party. He not only remembered the existence of these two establishments, but he remembered that they do not Exist as Establishments Conjointly within the same limits—He remembered that, in either case, where one exists in the character of an Establishment, the other is excluded from the possession of that character.—

If the principle of Dr. Paley* were admitted, in which the Presbyterian Divines next proceed to avow their concurrence (" that the Established Religion ought to be that which is professed by the majority of the governed,"—it would follow that Christian Powers, who are ordained by Almighty God to be the "nursing-fathers and nursing-mothers" of the Church, must not only afford protection, which they plainly ought to do, to the religious and liberties of all their subjects, but must solemnly become parties to the propagation of whatever corruptions or errors may happen to obtain in the predominant belief of the country—Religion is the Truth or the supposed Truth of God, and an Established Religion is in a manner recognized as Truth.—

It would also follow from the admission of the same principle, that the Established Religion is to be changed according to all the fluctuations which may happen in the respective preponderance of different systems of Faith. Different religious parties may exist in something like equal numbers under the same Government, and, from a variety of causes affecting either population or opinion, the excess of one above another may at one time be upon this side, at another upon that;—the privilege, therefore, of establishment must be shifted backwards and forwards accordingly.

We do indeed regard it as a very undesirable state of things that a great provision should exist for any Religion professed by a small number of the inhabitants of a country, and still less if it operates as a burthen† upon the disciples of another system. But it has been shown from calculations made at different times, which we cannot now afford to exhibit in detail, and, in the words of the Bishop's Letter,(p. 8.) "the reserves, according to the fairest computation which can be made of what they are likely to yield, will be far from constituting an immoderate provision for such a body of the clergy of the Church of England, as the wants of the people, (if she is freely encouraged to take root), will absolutely require."—And in Lower Canada, where the reserves do not amount to one fourteenth of the conceded lands of the province, although a considerable body of Protestant Clergy must be required within the part which contains no reserves, it is must be anticipated that they will yield an inadequate provision for their purpose. (To be continued.)

* This, we cheerfully admit, is a very great name, but we presume that our Presbyterian brethren are not above all points ad verecundiam in spite of Doctor Paley.

† This, however, is only in appearance the case with respect to any part of the tithes secured at home to the Church of England.—Nothing, we believe, is more decidedly ascertained than that where the Farmer pays no tithe, or only what are called the small tithes, to the Church, he generally pays either a higher tithe to the lay-impropriator, or an increased rate of rent which more than makes up the difference.—The tithes, therefore, constitute in fact a deduction from the estate of the landed proprietor, and amount to the same as a Reservation of Lands.—Add to this that a vast proportion of the tithes themselves is not now in the hands of the Church.

‡ At this moment three-fifths of the English Clergy in Lower Canada are situated within the Seigneurial tracts.

MILLS AT PETERBOROUGH.—The Grist-Mill and Saw-Mill which have been lately erected by the Government at Peterborough, in the District of Newcastle, will be exposed to sale by Public Auction at Peterborough on the 10th day of September next, at 11 o'clock, A. M. The terms of payment will be,—one third of the purchase money to be paid within one month after the sale, one third at the expiration of one year, and the remaining one third at the expiration of two years from the day of sale, with interest.

The Mill site is most valuable, comprehending a Tract of about 86 Acres. The Grist-Mill has two runs of Stones in operation, and is well fitted for Merchant work, having manufactured more than 1,200 Barrels of Flour this Summer.—The Saw-mill is also in operation.

From the peculiar situation of these works being at the head of the Navigation of the Otanabee River, and in the midst of a very flourishing settlement, the Establishment will be most valuable to any person possessing Capital. It cannot be disposed of for a less sum than £2,000 Currency, but will go to the highest bidder above that sum, without reserve.

A plan exhibiting the situation of the mills, and the Land appropriated for their use can be seen at this Office; and every information obtained by writing to the Honorable PETER ROBINSON, York.

TO THE FREE AND INDEPENDENT ELECTORS OF THE TOWN OF NIAGARA.

GENTLEMEN,—

Repeated solicitations, and a sincere desire to become instrumental in promoting the prosperity of this Town, have induced me, even at this late period, to become a Candidate for your suffrages at the approaching Election. I was in hopes that the necessity of my doing so would have been superseded by the nomination, on your part, of some other individual, not less able, and equally zealous to serve you faithfully. In truth, Gentlemen, I feel that in now coming forward I am acting against my own individual interest: but impelled by the powerful consideration that I am bound to accede to the solicitations of my Fellow-Townsmen, I cannot forbear.

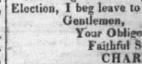
Although I cannot boast of being a native of this place, I am proud to say I am a CANADIAN, and a descendant of one of the oldest inhabitants of the Province. Here have I commenced my professional career, and here I hope to end my days with the pre-eminent satisfaction of having discharged my duty faithfully to God and to my country.

You cannot but agree with me in opinion, Gentlemen, that this is a crisis of vast importance, especially to this place. It behooves you therefore to send into the Assembly one who will guard your dearest rights, and exert every nerve in furthering the interests, not only of this place, but also of the Province at large.

For my own part I must stand before you, Gentlemen, resting solely on my own merits, whatever they may be, and on the sincerity of my intentions, to strive to be of real service to you.

Should you think proper to clothe me with the distinguished honor of being your Representative, time will shew you that I have not only a heart to desire, but likewise a mind to promote your welfare.

Reserving further explanation until the day of Election, I beg leave to subscribe myself,



Gentlemen,
Your Obliged and Faithful Servant,
CHARLES RICHARDSON.

Miscellaneous.

TALES OF ANTIQUARY.

THE COFFIN-MAKERS OF EISENACH.

'They who have known Eisenach for many years past, must remember a tall wooden pillar, standing near it's entrance, on the road from Langensalza, bearing a carved and painted black 'scutcheon, surmounted by a baron's helmet and mantling, and charged with the effigy of a hideous red-haired dwarf, in a very ancient German habit, employed in making a coffin, over which he was looking with malicious joy, holding up a nail, and pointing to a scroll above him, on which was inscribed the words,—'Only seven are wanting!' Below the shield could be traced, by good eyes, the name of Adelicha Stark; though his story, and the date of its events, were entirely obliterated; yet as it was certain that every visitor to Eisenach used particularly to inquire about that strange armorial ensign, old Singsmahn, the Lutheran Clerk, used generally to satisfy them by the following story; which is the more curious, as it seems to contain an allusion to smoking, at the least two centuries before it became general in Europe.

"In the earlier days of Eisenach," he would say, for every body knows that it is a town which existed even before the time of the great Friedrich Rothbart, "there used to live in it an idle fellow named Adelicha Stark, commonly called though the principality der Landstreicher, or the Vagabond, because he was one of those individuals who, though they are continually padding the hoof after employment, always pray heartily that they may never find it. Frocho Stark, the father of this hero, was as industrious a woman as ever lifted an axe in the prince's forest-lands; but neither advice, nor example, his mother Trudchen's entreaties, nor his uncle Striebel's stick, could make him any thing else than Adelicha the Vagabond.

"But it is not to be thought that idleness alone was the cause of his not taking to work; no, truly, for he always asserted that it was simply his being too clever.—There was not a man in all Thuringia who knew so many wild stories and songs as Adelicha; and the consequence was, that he was as much in request at the Bierhebenkes, that he could at last do little else but wander from one to another, where his time and his legends were recompensed by black beer, straw, and potatoes. It is not wonderful that such a life should at last clothe him in a jerkin of rags, with a pair of nether-stocks of the same silk, which procured him the new surname of 'the Ragged Storyteller;' whilst his constitution being daily undermined, it was usual to say of him when he was seen seated in his glory on the ale-house bench,—'Ah! there's Stark the Landstreicher knocking another nail in his coffin!'

"But so delighted was Master Adelicha with this kind of life, that there was no man more contented, and very few so merry. Having nothing of his own, all that was given him was gain; and whilst he was telling his stories, if he could but get some generous traveller to bestow him a flask of better wine, he not only made them happy, but became so himself in spite of his nakedness. However, to speak heaven's honest truth, as a biographer should do, this love of 'a jolly full bottle' was at once the spring and continuance of his ruin, and he ever liked a Kegel-platz, or bowling-alley, better than a Church; and Wenzel Malzmann, the publican, better than Lorenz Puchertext, the priest. Dame Trudchen had nothing to answer for concerning him, since her advice was equally unceasing and useless; and one of her principal arguments against his intemperance was grounded on the effect which it must have upon his health, and was expressed in in the common proverb, 'Adelicha Stark, Adelicha Stark, you're knocking another nail into your coffin.

"It is said to have been in the beginning of winter, after a long conversation, concluded with this ancient saw, that Adelicha set off to Malzmann's to decide upon a brewing which was that evening to be tried in full conclave. There were to be Claus Brommell, the charcoal-burner, and Karl Krauseneck, the game-herd, and little Valten Schivill, the swine-keeper, and I know not how many others, all good men and true, to pass the night with him; for he had promised to regale them with some of his best stories, and as he could not command a truss in the stable he was not expected back till the morning.

"I never heard whether it were by the strength of the getranke, or the astonishing nature of Adelicha's tales, but it is said that about midnight, his host and his companions were all fast asleep, some on the floor, and some on the bier-bank remaining immoveable under the roughest means which he used to wake them. A loud voice was now heard without, calling on host, house, and ostler, for shelter and provender, and Adelicha, after again stoutly though vainly kicking and shaking his friends, resolving that Wenzel should not lose a customer for the want of a little exertion, took up the lanthorn and opened the door, where he saw a remarkably short and stout man leading an immense black horse, to which he bore somewhat of the proportion of a bear's wholey to an elephant. It was a strange-looking night abroad, for whilst the distant prospect lay beneath a most beautiful moonlight sky, the planet itself was veiled by a dark purple cloud which hung like a curtain half drawn up, immediately in front and over the house, the rays of golden light falling in streams from beneath it. Adelicha at first started a little at the traveller, but as he spake in a blunt and good-humoured voice, he lighted him first to put up his horse, and then ushered him into the Bier-schenke.—'How's this, mine host?' sain the stranger, looking at the slumbering peasants, 'is your ale so potent, or do ye always slumber thus soundly?' I trow that I called lustily at the door, and my horse stamped and snorted loud enough to have waked half Eisenach.' 'In good truth,' answered Adeliche, 'I know not what ailes them all, for it can hardly be the score of ale-cans that we've emptied. We met here to-night to take a draught of a fresh brewing with our host Wenzel,—that's he in the goatskin jerkin lying across yonder table,—and I'd been telling them some old tales of the Nibelungen; but about midnight, as I guess, they all fell asleep, and though I shook them soundly when I heard you call, there was no moving them any more than a full hogshead!'—'No,' returned the traveller, tossing one off a bench on to the ground, and kicking another out of his way, 'they won't wake at present, I'll warrant you; for they've been driving another nail in their coffins!'

"'Again Adeliche stared at his guest, whom he now observed to be dressed in a more ancient habit than any he had ever yet seen; his face had a singularly ugly and sarcastic expression, whilst a profusion of red hair, and immense pointed ears, like a satyr's, did not greatly improve it. But though Adeliche might have some odd thoughts about the traveller, his frank and good-humoured manner soon gave him confidence, which increased when he drew from his pouch some excellent provisions and wine, and invited Adeliche to sit down and partake with him. It proved a noble feast to our story-teller, who endeavoured to requite it by several of his most interesting romances; at the end of which the stranger said,—'You tell these tales bravely, though I've heard them before, and methinks you might be better employed; for the song and the bier-kanne do but drive another nail in your coffin! But you speak of the Nibelungen-Land, I promise you there's some other things to be found in few people wot of.'—'So I should guess,' replied Adeliche, 'since nobody knows where it is; for some tell us it's in Norroway, and some say it's in Burgundy.'—'Be it where it may,' rejoined the traveller, 'I came thence not an hour past. But you've played the host mightily well to-night, and I've a liking for you; now this odd thing I brought from the Nibelungen-Land, and, if you use it rightly, 'twill make you tell a better tale than you ever yet heard of.' The stranger again felt in his pouch, and produced a short bent tube of some kind of yellow metal, having a large bowl and cover at one end, to which he put a lighted match, and then passing the instrument to Adeliche, continued,—'There, put the silver bit in your mouth, and suck away as you would with a reed in a Rhenish-cask.'

"'The simile was so perfectly adapted to Adeliche's understanding, that he soon became acquainted with the strange-looking tube, which seemed to inspire him with a feeling of delicious intoxication; and for awhile he thought himself in Paradise, clothed like a prince, and formed like an angel. Then, as he continued to inhale the fine grains of the burning perfume, he thought that a vast cloud of smoke arose from it, which conveyed him in his own shape and dress, along with his short companion, to the side of a mountain, in a wild forest, which echoed with the deafening sound of ten thousand hammers.—Whilst he was looking round him at the perfect solitude of the spot, and wondering where the workmen were concealed, the traveller said to him.—'Well, how like ye the Nibelungen-Land? this is the Knocking-Hill—and yonder,'—he continued, pointing up to a terrific-looking cavity, at a great height, in a very precipitous part of it, 'Yonder is the goat's gateway; climb up it, and you'll see that which you won't forget for one while.'—'I get up there!' exclaimed Adeliche; 'why there's not room on the rock for a goat to set foot on! and for climbing to it, we could as soon mount the steeple of Eisenach outside!'—'Try man, try,' returned his companion; 'that perfume of mine has made you stronger than you think for;' and so Adeliche set out cautiously and slowly, and at length stood safely before the goat's gateway.

"'Upon looking in, he saw a vast caven lighted by immense lamps of brass, and containing some thousands of persons, shaped and habited like his conductor, all employed in making coffins; some being engaged in cutting them out, and others in joining them, the nailing of which produced a tremendous noise, to which the caven replied with its countless echoes. When he was able to look more steadfastly, he saw that each coffin was marked with some person's name, and that as they were finished they seemed to be sent on a passage in the wall at the end. He next observed that some of the names were familiar to him; and he felt a strange sensation of fear, when he read those of Velten Schwil, Karl Kranesnech, and Wenzel Malmsone his host, on coffins that were nearly finished; from which he half began to think that their heavy sleep would never have a wakening. But he also observed that there were other coffins scarcely begun, and on one of these he read the name of Andreas Beyspiel, a hearty old shepherd, renowned throughout Thuringia for his temperance and piety. His age was not certainly known, but some said he was more than an hundred, yet he looked as youthful as if he were only a quarter of it.

"'Whilst Adeliche was making these remarks, one of the most malicious-looking dwarfs in the whole crew, whose work was almost finished, called out to him.—'Ho! honest friend, art there? wilt buy thee a coffin now? here's a sound one with the name upon it,' continued he, showing him the lid, which had 'Adeliche Stark' fairly graven upon it. 'Do't know, now, that I've been these seventy years making this for thee? and I've often heard my mother say thou wert driving a nail in thy coffin, when thou wert off to the Bier-schenke.' 'And art thou making that black box for me?' said the trembling Adeliche. 'Aye,' said the dwarf, 'I shall send it home to you when it's finished, and somehow the owner don't lived many hours afterwards. I had a round three hundred nails to drive into it at first; I hammered in one for every night you were carousing with your mates; and now,' added he, holding up a large nail and speaking in a solemn voice, 'only seven are wanting!' Adeliche heard no more, for whether it were the vapours of the perfume in his head or the dwarf's terrific words, he knew not, but he fell backwards, and on his recovery found himself alone in the forest, as wretched and ragged as ever.

"With the most perfect recollection of all which had passed, he wandered on through the wild woods, till he reached an iron-forge belonging to a baron of Lower-Saxony, and as he had not a single coin in his pouch, and probably but a short time to live, he offered himself in a sort of desperate fit to blow at the furnace. In these old days there were no bellows, and so one of the smiths used to blow through an iron pipe; and whether this occupation gave him more breath, or temperance and labour made him more healthy, he could not tell, but he certainly began to look quite another man. He now wore a good coarse suit of clothes, and got together a little money; while his personal appearance was such as made the coffinmakers, though he never forgot them. It was clear to Adeliche, that these dwarfs could be no other than the ancient inhabitants of Germany, who were driven into the forests and mountains, when Attila, king of Huns, overran the country about the year of God 450. They are said to have taken with them all their great riches and wonderful secrets, and to be still living in the Nibelungen-Land; but how true that may be I can't pretend to say. One thing, however, Adeliche had learned from their companionship, and that was the making of wooden bellows, by placing one box over another with a tube at one end, and then shutting them forcibly together. He made these somewhat in the form of coffins, and they raised so furious a blast, that many believed he had a familiar fiend confined in a box to blow for him as long as he lived. However, that was all a mistake, but Adeliche told his secret only to the baron and his fellows, who kept it so well, that to this day the name of the inventer is doubtful; though it is acknowledged that wooden bellows were first used in the Hartz Forest.—Schluter says, that the Bishop of Bamberg devised them; Andreas Reyher gives the credit to Klaus Schelhorn, a miller of Schmalebuche; and Calvor makes it out that Ludwig Pfannenschmidt, bellows-maker to the Hartz, first brought them out of Thuringia, which seems to trace them to the descendants of Adeliche Stark. When the baron died, he bequeathed the iron-forge to Adeliche in recompense for his invention, by which, and by the discovery of a golden wedge or two in his furnace, doubtless sent him from Nibelungen-Land, he grew so rich, that he bought an estate in native country, and set up the pillar and escutcheon to record his story. He died perfectly hearty somewhere about the age of 137; having repeated his fortunes to his great-grandchildren, and always closing his narrative with 'Idleness and the sankard drive the makers of our coffins, but temperance and labour will build us a palace.'"

Summary.

Captain Basil Hall, and his Lady, have taken passage in the Packet Ship Corinthian, which sails for London on the first of July.—Captain Hall has been engaged for about a year in an expensive tour through a large portion of the United States and Canada.

We find in the London Morning Herald the following notice:

"Mr. Cooper, the celebrated author of the Pilot, the Prairie, the Red Rover, &c. is said to have in the Press a work of an entirely new character. It is to be called "Notions of the American, picked up by a travelling Bachelor."

We learn that Messrs. Carey, Lea & Carey have put this new work of Cooper to the press, and their edition of it will soon be issued.—Nat. Gazette.

The London papers state, that it is reported that the Finance Committee is about to recommend the reduction if not the abolition, of that distinguished body of men, the Royal Horse Corps. This is an idle rumour—a more efficient corps or one maintained with stricter economy, cannot be formed. The expense of the Staff of their present force, 8,000 men, does not exceed that of four Regiments of the line. We know also the utility of augmenting this force has been urged on the Committee, with the view to their garrisoning wholly the Naval Arsenals—rendering it unnecessary to be made in proportion in the household troops and heavy Dragoon Regiments.

New approach to Glasgow from the North-West Roads.—We hear it is intended to open up a Grand Approach to this City from Drymen, Balfron, Milngavie, and other towns to the northwest. The new line of road commencing into town to the north of from the Garscube road, a little above Dalsholm, about half a mile beyond Bonnevville. The new road will proceed down the romantic banks of the Kelvin, passing under one of the arches of the Great Aqueduct Bridge, and from thence through the lands of Garebraid or Balgray, Kelvinside, and one or two other properties, till it reach Woodside Cotton Mills, and from thence communication will be made to all the great streets leading into the west end of the city. It is unnecessary to point out all the advantages of such a desirable communication, not only in point of taste, but utility.—Glasgow Paper.

The long pending match between the London and Edinburgh Chess Clubs, is still going on. It is about four years since the match was begun, and four games have been played with equal success. The fifth is now playing, and the pieces are reduced to three, and the pawns to five, on each side; but we understand that the London club have it in their power to take a bishop without any immediate loss to themselves. In this situation it may be presumed that the fate of the game and match is no longer doubtful.

Dreadful Circumstances.—On Monday an inquest was held at the Prince of Wales Tavern, Buxton, on the body of James Parker, aged 17 years. It appeared that, on Sunday last, the deceased and several of his friends visited Mr. and Mrs. Barham, in the Woodbine Fields, at Bixton. The deceased observing a gun in the corner of the room, expressed a wish to examine it, but before he did so, the deceased's uncle examined it; he snapped it twice, and, as it missed fire, concluded it was not loaded. Mrs. Barham then took up the gun, and, pointing it at the deceased, jocularly said, "Now, mind yourself, Jem, I know how to let it off." At that moment the gun went off, and the charge which was powder and small shot, struck the deceased between the eyes, and the contents lodged in his head. The deceased took in his chair a corpse. Mrs. Barham, in a state of distraction, exclaimed, "Oh, my God! my God! what have I done?" and fell into violent hysterics, in which she remained several hours, and up to Tuesday was insensible as to the fate of the deceased.—It appeared that Mr Barham had brought home the gun to shoot birds in the garden; he was from home when his friends called, and had no recollection of having left the gun loaded. Verdict, Accidental Death; but the gun ordered to be forfeited as a deodand to the Lord of the Manor.

A meeting of the holders of Mexican and South American bonds took place on Thursday at the City of London Tavern. The object was to enquire or request the assistance of Government in procuring the payment of bonds, and resolutions to that effect were entered into.

Saturday, being the anniversary of the birth-day of Sir Robert Peel, Bart. M.P. Secretary For Ireland, a grand entertainment upon the occasion, to his numerous brothers and sisters, and their children, amounting in number to fifty. Sir Robert came from his seat in Staffordshire, for the express purpose of meeting them. The worthy baronet presented them each with a silver medal, on one side of which was a bust of himself, and on the other an inscription notifying the event on which it was commemorated—viz. the day on which Sir Robert completed his seventy-ninth year. The worthy baronet was in the enjoyment of excellent health, and heartily participated in the festivities of the day.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, May 6.

Mr. WILMOT HORTON presented a petition from the weavers of Hamilton, praying for aid to emigrate.

[CANADA.]

On the motion that the petition be laid on the table.

Mr. W. HORTON said he would take this opportunity of stating that in the language which fell from him in the discussion on the Canadas, a few evenings since, he had no intention of wounding the feelings of the late member for Coventry (Mr. Ellice.) He (Mr. Horton) certainly felt himself rather hardly dealt by—nor did he expect that gentleman who promised to support the measure of the union of the Canadas which he had brought forward in 1822, would have subsequently not voted against it, but have accused him personally of a wish to take the house by surprise in so doing. This charge he most distinctely denied.

Sir J. MACKINTOSH wished to know the extent to which this retraction applied? The right Hon. gentleman had used very strong language also towards him (Sir J. Mackintosh.)

Mr. W. HORTON said that he would give the most distinct answer to the question. He admitted that strong words should not used in this house, or indeed at all they should be used elsewhere. He believed from what he was told, that the right hon. gentleman meant to support the measure which he brought in some time since for the regulation of the Canadas; and if he were now prepared to say, that he would then have given his support to that measure, he (Mr. W. Horton) would say, that he regretted the use of any warm expressions which had escaped him.

Sir J. MACKINTOSH said, that he never relinquished, or intended to relinquish, his opposition to the measure of the union proposed in 1822. He opposed it on the grounds of being taken by surprise, and the improper time chosen to bring it on. As far as recollection could give assurance, he never gave up his purpose—but he believed that in consequence of what had happened between him and Mr. Ellice, in the presence of most respectable persons, that such an impression might have been conveyed to the right hon. gentleman.

Mr. W. HORTON said, that six weeks before the bill was brought in, he was informed that the bill had been in the hands of the right hon. gentleman, and that it had his full support. He wished to throw the blame on no party, but he had to do justice to himself; he made no accusation, and he begged that to be particularly understood. He had no doubt the misconception had existed but decidedly not on his part.

Sir J. MACKINTOSH said, that further explanations of misconseptions would lead to no practical utility—True, the bill was placed into his hands, and either on former occasions or now, all he meant to say was, that the measure of 1822 was objectionable to him, and that he objected to it.

Mr. LABOUCHERE said that no blame could attach to the right hon. gentleman (Mr. Horton,) nor did he by it express wish to accuse any party of taking the house by surprise.

Mr. BARING expressed a hope that what had fallen from him the other evening, would not be taken as personally offensive to the right hon. gentleman (Mr. W. Horton,) for whom he had a sincere respect. His observations were directed to the measure of 1822, as objectionable in itself, and as being brought in by the government of the country, and not by the right hon. gentleman.

ENGLISH CANALS.—The following tables, exhibiting a list of the principal Canals in England, with their original and present value, and their productiveness will be found very interesting—It will be seen that they are all considerably above par, and that, in one of them, the Loughborough, a share is worth as much as the original cost of forty shares. We see no reason why similar results should not follow from well planned and judiciously conducted works of the same character in this country.

Foreign Intelligence.

"The Russian Armies have crossed the Pruth—they will cross the Danube, and are now in full march for Constantinople. Instead of 40,000 men, who would have been sufficient to invade Wallachia and Moldavia, 250,000 are in motion. The Black Sea is covered with Vessels. Odessa is filled with provisions and warlike implements. The sword is unsheathed, and at the head quarters of the Russian Commander in Chief alone must the Turks acknowledge their submission to the Treaty of Ackerman; to the Treaty of the 5th July, and to the promise of paying the expense of the war, if they wish to arrest the torrents which threaten to overwhelm them."

A letter from Vienna states that the Emperor of Russia passed through Riga on the 23d of April on his way to Warsaw.

A letter from Bayonne, says: "We are assured that, according to a new arrangement between France and Spain, the fortresses of Jacka, Seo d'Urgel, and Cadiz are to be evacuated. The Courier who was the bearer of this intelligence, arrived at Bayonne on the 6th inst. with dispatches for the King at Saragossa, and others for Madrid and Cadiz."

Portugal.—The advices from Lisbon are no later than per the former arrival. We have a few additional items however, such as they are.

It is said that Don Miguel, some time since, wrote to his brother Don Pedro, stating that party spirit had reached its greatest height. He told him that the great mass of the people had rejected the charter, and that public opinion called for an absolute King—that it considered Don Pedro deprived of his rights, as he had renounced the crown—and that he (Don Miguel) daily received petitions pressing him to take it. In consequence, he implored his brother to approve the national wish, in informing him that he would probably be compelled to adhere to it, in order to restore tranquility to Portugal.

The greater part of the municipal officers who were not disposed officially to require the usurpation of the throne by Don Miguel, have been turned out of office by the populace and replaced by the party-men.

News from Braya states that two faithful regiments who were expected to have been surprised in a church, have taken a position opposite that city to the cries of "long live Don Pedro."

The Brazilian Minister at Paris has delivered to the French Government a formal protest against Don Miguel's usurpation.

A letter from Algiers, dated on the 2d May, says the Algerine naval force was entirely dismantled. The frigate and four corvettes which suffered so much in the encounter with the French Blockading squadron are represented to be in a bad condition.

W. B. ROBINSON.

New-Market, 1st Feb. 1828.

Lower Canada.

On Monday the annual Charity Sermon was preached in the Cathedral Church of this city, in aid of the Diocesan Committee of the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, and of the National Schools. The Children to the number of 212, occupied the Benches of the middle Aisle, and forms placed on each side of the reading desk. They exhibited an interesting spectacle, and sung an appriate Hymn, in a simple and pleasing manner, instead of the usual Psalm or Anthem by the Choir. Upon this particular occasion, which promotes their common benefit, the children of all the Protestant denominations are very generally in the habit of attending the Cathedral (with the consent of their parents or others who have authority over them) although it was well known to be the principle adopted and faithfully adhered to, by the conductors of this charitable Establishment, not merely to leave them without constraint to attend their respective places of worship and the Sunday School attached to them, but to ascertain by communication with their friends or the teachers in these institutions, that they do bona fide attend them, and are not idling away their Sabbath, under the pretence of not conforming to the Church of England.

The Sermon was preached by the Archdeacon of Quebec, & the Collection amounted to £63 12 8. The Hon. the Chief Justice, Col. Sir T. Noel Hill, Deputy Adjt. Gen. Col. Dunford R. E., and Captain Fraser, were kind enough to perform the task of carrying round the plates.—Quebec Mercury.

THE DEBATE.

From the Quebec Gazette.

It were well to recall to mind, what has been the prevailing system of the party in opposition to this Government. Has it not been throughout to misrepresent the Colonial Executive as guilty of acts, subversive of the Constitution, acts emanating not its own authority alone, not supported by any instructions from His Majesty—of violations of law, of oppression towards the people—of conduct which only required to be made known to the benificent Monarch to obtain redress—only needed to the public at home, and at once receive the most unqualified reprobation. Such have been their constant misrepresentations, reiterated in every shape and variety of calumny. On this basis was the Petition framed, and on this basis was the most violent & passionate and malicious impeachment of the Executive, than of a temperate demand for the redress of known and undeniable grievances. Let the Canadian reflect how these oracles of the people, these false Prophets, at the shrine of whose supreme wisdom all the information of the country was to fall prostrate—how far, we say, have they redeemed their pledges! How often have they not represented that a favorable ear would be lent, both by the Ministers and the Monarch, to the prayer of their Petition! That the march of their Delegates from the British Shore to the Colonial Office, and thence to the House of Commons, would be one of succe s and triumph to them—of defeat and retribution to their opponents! How often have they displayed their eagerness for the supposed recal, with disapprobation, of the Governor-in-Chief,—how many premature paragraphs have they not sent into the world, announcing to their Canadian readers the agreeable intelligence! How often have they not expressed their admiration of the wisdom of Ministry and of Parliament—their confidence in the Colonial Minister in particular, who until now has based their opinion the fit and worthy friend and conquer of their idolised Canning? What a series of delusion remains to be exposed! The above forms but a small part of the system, persevered in with a resolution and activity worthy a better cause. How stands the case now upon their own showing? The Son of the Delegate "allows that Mr Huskisson approves the "Governor and the Government!" He coolly, and unblushingly avows to the Canadians, whom he has been assisting, hoping for to enslave, that he has no blame whatever attaches to the Colonial Executive, the acts of which are approved by the imperial Government! A greater instance of Editorial hardihood we never witnessed. What! a word of explanation is not vouchsafed to the people, who were taught to distrust and disobey their Governor, by the writings and the instrumentality of this Editor! Not a single word of argument to show the grounds of his mistake—nothing but low wretched abuse of the Minister himself! If any thing can bring about a re-action in the minds of the people, it must be the detection of this conduct on the parts of the Factious papers—the systematic poisoning of the public mind of which they have been so notoriously guilty.

The Colonial Executive being thus exonerated by the approbation of the Secretary of State, as we foresaid it would be in a late number, and saved harmless by its own qualities of firmness and probity, from any unmerited abuse and calumny of these writers; we may be allowed to smile at the turn things have taken, and at the dilemma into which the patriot Faction have plunged the Province, the interests of which they have for so long professed to consider their exclusive protection. To accuse every person and every department of ignorance, has long been usual with the two Editors to whom we have above alluded: all in their views must submit to the charge, when they differ with their gifted monitors. Thus Lord Dalhousie was ignorant—Mr Robinson was ignorant—Mr. Huskisson is ignorant! How the Colonies have been managed we know not from them—but this is sufficient to tell the Canadians, they were "fools and madmen." Lord Bathurst first manifested the inviolability of the permanent fund—the Assembly told him he no thing knew about the matter—the Law-Officers of the Crown, on whose opinion he grounded his Despatch, were pronounced "ignorant"—Mr. Robinson, now Lord Goderich, took the same view, ergo was equally "ignorant"—but Mr. Huskisson is the greatest ignoramus of all, because he boldly challenges any Lawyer forver to controvert the opinion of the inviolable right of the Crown to the permanent Fund! Such are the dicta of the oracles from whom the poor deluded people derive the information, on which they are to form their judgment. Well may those who look to this source for it be pronounced "incredulous!" of all that we can say of this important subject—or whose magic powers of persuasion have actually converted Mr Huskisson from a liberal and enlightened Statesman to a "fool and a madman!" must expect to be looked upon as the enchanters of old were regarded, and shunned with fear and trembling. It is impossible not to smile at this amusing view of "ignorance" on one side, and precocious wisdom on the other. Let the House of Assembly and the Ring beware, or the brand will be on them. It is the yoke under which they must pass.

The next point on which these two Editors have disseminated the grossest delusion, is touching the inviolability of the Act of 1791, commonly called the Quebec Act.—This they have all along studiously represented to the Canadians as above the authority of the imperial Parliament, as if the power which made that Act a Law could not alter, amend and repeal it. In the course of last winter we had occasion to remark on that Bill, when we showed that Mr. Pitt only meant it as an experiment—that it did not work as he intended and expected, and in fact that his experiment failed. Two great errors were made in that Bill, errors which could not but, in the course of time, ruin what was decidedly good. The first was the division of the Province of Quebec, and the second, the permanent effect of some of it clauses. The dilemma to which the Petitions, and the writings of these Editors have reduced the Province, is this, that they have brought on the very thing they least expected and wished, namely, the recisal of the Constitutional Act by the Parliament which made it.

To conclude, it is proved by circumstances known at length, we hope, to the whole Province, that the public have been deceived by these two papers, the Ex-Gazette and the Spectator, on three very material subjects. They have progno sticated disappointment, where full satisfaction has been given—they have supported the assumption by the Colonial Assembly of that Fund which properly belongs to the Crown, and which the Crown will never give up—and they have brought about an indifference to the public welfare, which ought to perform the task of carrying round the plates.—Quebec Mercury.

Yesterday a very numerous concourse of people assembled on the Champ de Mars to witness the interesting ceremony of the presentation of new Colors to a new set of Militia. The 79th Highlanders Highlanders, and of a Standard to the troop of Royal Montreal Cavalry, under the command of Major Gregory. The weather which had been unsettled and unfavourable in the morning, cleared up towards 11 o'clock, and became quite propitious for the events of the day. The 79th, the Royal Montreal Cavalry, and the Rifle Corps assembled on the Parade at about one, when His Excellency the Governor-in-Chief attended by his Staff, Col Ramsay, A. D. C. and suite arrived on the Parade. Immediately on passing in front of the line formed by the three Corps already mentioned, he was received with a general salute. The 79th Regiment then formed three sides of a square, the Cavalry and Rifle Corps being drawn up in rear of one of the sides) and the new Colors having been unfurled, the Rev. B. B. Stevens, Chaplain to the Forces, offered up an appropriate prayer to the God of Battles, which we are sorry, we cannot at present lay before our readers,—but may do so in our next. After this impressive prayer, Mrs Col. Douglas, placing the colours in the hands of her gallant husband, addressed the Regiment in nearly the following terms:—

"I have this day the honor of presenting to the 79th Regiment a new set of colors. I need not say how well, and how gloriously, the Regiment have supported those which are now decayed with age, which, like veteran Warriors, have been shattered in their country's cause. So the ladies of the Regiment are desirous embla zoned on the colors which I now present to you.—Take them to your hearts! and while the breasts of Soldiers can glow with honorable zeal for their beloved country, I am confident, the 79th Highlanders, will ever protect these with a devoted valour, worthy of their native land—their steady courage and firm fidelity to their beloved and best of Sovereigns."

Col. Douglas having placed the colors in the hands of Lieuts Thomas Cameron and Lachlan Cameron, then replied in the following address to his Lady, Lord Dalhousie and the Regiment:—

"It affords me great pleasure, having this ceremony pass through your hands, and I thank you very much for the handsome manner in which you have performed it.

My Lord, in my own name and that of the 79th Regiment, I beg to return your warmest thanks for the kind support you have this day given us, and to assure your Lordship that every individual of the Regiment feels most grateful for this additional favor to the many, which we have already received at your Lordship's hands.

Soldies! On this great anniversary I am proud to receive these new standards, and to your keeping and protection, I, with confidence, commit them, feeling assured from the experience of many trying and difficult occasions how safe the precious deposit will remain in the hands of men, who, I exultingly say, have ever conducted themselves in the most gallant and intrepid manner. Receive them 79th; continue to signalize yourselves for order and regularity in quarters, as you have ever done for courage in the field, and be assured your reward will be the favor of your Sovereign and the esteem and good will of your fellow citizens."

Lord Dalhousie shortly answered that so long as the 79th did their duty, he would always feel proud in doing honor to that Regiment.

The new and old colors were then marched round the square, the band playing and the Regiment representing arms. The Grenadier Company under Capt. Fraser then marched off with the old colors to the Government House and shortly after returned.

After the ceremonies relating to the 79th were thus completed, His Lordship advanced to the front of Royal Montreal Cavalry and Rifle Corps, when he addressed Major Gregory, Captain Bethune and their respective corps as follows:—

Major Gregory,—I have already often expressed to you the pleasure with which I have seen the Montreal Troop of Cavalry, and I feel myself now fully justified in declaring the state of the troop in appointment and in discipline equal to any I have ever seen in England. I think the excellent state of the troop does great honor to all the individuals composing it, as well as to yourself who commands it. As it is probable I shall soon be called to His Majesty's service elsewhere, I am desirous of leaving in your hands some mark of my approbation in my official character as Governor of the Province. I am to present to you, as most appropriate, and most conducive to the public service, a troop standard. Receive it, as the means myself, as the rallying point, and inducement to persevere, until a future Governor may obtain for you the approbation of your Sovereign.

I have equal pleasure, Captain Bethune, in approving the zeal, perseverance, activity, and public spirit, which you have formed the Company of Ridemen, and I would have presented the same compliment to your Company. The custom of the service, however, does not admit of it, and I can substitute only one mode of acknowledging your services, by recommending to you a commission of Major in the Militia of the Province.

Be assured then Gentlemen of the satisfaction with which I now see the troop and company and which, present or absent, I shall henceforth feel in your welfare.

Major Gregory then replied as follows:—

"My Lord Dalhousie—I beg leave to return thanks for the very high honor which your Lordship has this day conferred upon the Montreal Troop of Cavalry under my command. In so great and honourable a mark of distinction bestowed by your Lordship, under whose administration we have been re-organised, and brought to the state of respectability, of which, your Lordship has this day been pleased to express so flattering approbation, will ever be bore in greatful remembrance by all the Members of the Corps, in whose hearts, my Lord, the deepest and warmest sentiments of gratitude, esteem and attachment to your Lordship will never cease to exist. Once more, my Lord, I beg you will accept from myself and my whole corps, our warmest and most heartfelt thanks."

The standard having been taken by Cornet Gillespie, the troop wheeled into line.

The whole of the corps then marched round twice, and passed in review before His Lordship. We are happy to say that he was pleased to express his satisfaction, at the neat and correct appearance of the various corps which he had inspected.

The Cavalry marched off the ground and His Lordship continued to review the 79th Regiment, who went through the various movements and manœuvres of Regiments of the line, with a correctness, promptitude and accuracy, which did them great credit.

The colors of the 79th are similar to the late trophies, and glitter with the emblazonments of their gallant deeds in arms.—The standard presented to the Cavalry, is of rich crimson silk, with gold fringe and gold bullion cords and tassels from the head of the standard staff; the centre of the color bears a double G. R. richly embossed in gold embroidery, and surmounted by the Crown, also embroidered, and in its proper colors.

The concourse assembled on this occasion was—doubly interesting on account of its being the anniversary of the eventful day of Waterloo, in which the 79th distinguished itself—has been computed at 6,000, a number never before assembled on the Champ de Mars.—Montreal Gazette.

We are happy to learn that some preparatory steps have been taken by the Bishop of Quebec for procuring an old vessel of war from the Admiralty, to be used as a Floating Chapel for the sailors of this port, as has been done in several instances at home. The number of seafairing people and others connected with the shipping and navigation who would, it is hoped, benefit by such a provision, is very large, and when it is considered that many of them have no other opportunity than when in port for attending the public administration of Divine Ordinances, and even these comparatively small, facilities of attending them in the Churches on shore, the expediency of such a measure will be sufficiently apparent, and we are sure that all parties will join in heartly wishing success to the application to His Lordship.—Quebec mercury.

THE CANADAS.

The Earl of Rosebery presented a petition which he trusted would claim the particular attention of the House, as it concerned no less than 60,000 individuals, who were natives, or descendants of natives, of this country, but now inhabitants of Lower Canada. The petitioners complained of a partial administration of the laws in the colony, but particularly that such a code as was promised by the Royal Proclamation in 1763, and subsequently confirmed by an Act passed in the 14th of the late King had not been ceded to them. This latter Act had been confirmed by an Act of the 6th of His present Majesty; but notwithstanding great efforts had been made by persons of interest to make the laws of the colony agreeable to the French laws instead of the English laws; the petitioners therefore prayed that a competent description of Courts of Jurisdiction might be established.—Laid on the table.

FOR THE LOYALIST.

REVIEW of Mr. E. REYERSON'S Letters to the Honorable & Venerable Archdeacon Strachan, &c.

No. 3.

In almost every line of the elegant specimens of Epistolary writings which call forth these strictures, we discover a progressive advancement in the petulancy, arrogance, and self-conceit of their author. This enviable character unfolds itself pretty fully in the opening sentence of Letter No, 3, which bursts upon us in all the repulsiveness of uncontended impertinence and vanity.

Through a very prolix paragraph, this Gentleman has rung some dozen changes upon the words "advice;" but having unluckily got hold of the wrong key, he renders them, to those who are sensible of the error, most grating and tedious indeed. No man, in his senses, would suppose it the meaning of the Archdeacon of York that he had formally proffered the advice by the purport of which, from whatever quarter it came, the Methodists of this Province appear to have been subsequently guided. It will immediately occur to any one as the meaning of the Archdeacon that these had detached themselves from the American Conference, not in consequence of, but, as he himself expresses it, in conformity with his advice; that they had adopted an arrangement which he, in common perhaps with a thousand others, had ever wished and hoped and recommended. Such an opinion, I believe, has not been unfrequently expressed from various quarters, and that of Archdeacon Strachan, on the subject, is evidently promulgated:—perhaps, then, Mr. Reyerson being a great respecter of public opinion (vid. Letter 1.) will admit that even the declared sentiments of Dr. Strachan, thus reiterating the public voice, have had some weight.

As to the treatment of the Wesleyan Missionaries, of that perhaps by and by; but I shall stop a moment to notice that Mr. R. seems to allow the love and maintainance of unity to be a test of loyalty. By his rule, exercising he has been so extremely active in various occasions, in disturbing the public harmony—we must conclude himself rather disloyal. This, however, I do, by no means, assert as a matter of fact; it is merely deducable from his own logic—a species of logic, by the way, which once threw one of its advocates into the singular predicament of acknowledging his own stupidity. The syllogism, with which the logic of that reasoner was quite coincident, I believe, ran thus—"A man is an animal: a horse is an animal; therefore, a man is a horse."

In the course of the third, I meet with the following startling sentence:—"and about the Kirk of Scotland—you say nothing but evil of them." Be this as it may, Reverson have, at last, "returned evil for evil," as is plainly evinced by the Pastoral Letter, and more particularly by a Religious Miscellany published under their auspices;—nevertheless I must require Mr. Reyerson to point out what evil he had said of them, inasmuch as the Archdeacon, a little after, clearly declares what good he hath done to them. As to the methodists—if we are to assume Mr. Reyerson as a specimen—they, too, have not shown the forbearing spirit which our religion requires; for this their champion, actuated too, by the advice of friends—hollow counsellors they must be—has begun and is proceeding in a strain of the grossest calumnies that can disfigure the character of man. I cannot see, however, that aught asserted by the Archdeacon, in objection to other denominations, is yet refuted; nor can I discern any thing worse spoken by him of the Methodists than that there was a cause to fear, from the number of Teachers from the U. S. and especially from their religious connection with that country, that principles were propogated from that quarter by no means friendly to the Civil and Religious institutions of England. Under such circumstances, what does it signify whether four-fifths of the Methodist Preachers are British Born, or whether they emigrated from Grim Tartary, as long as they exist in connection with a foreign head? Birth, in such a case, is purely an adventitious circumstance, little likely to preponderate, in influence, over the feelings of a more intimate acquaintance. The abandoned parent cannot expect to meet with the reverence and affection yielded to the safeguarding nurse: the protection of the one, being unfelt, cannot claim the love and obedience which the bounty of the other, constantly experienced, must necessarily secure. That such has been the operation of the present connection has been very lately manifested by the introduction of certain Indian converts from this Province into the United States—that they may there confess the gratitude they feel for the instrumentality of Missionaries from that country in effecting among them so salutary a change: there to pay the usual acknowledgements to the greatness of that rising people;—and to be taken indirectly from the attachment due to our Royal "father" whose temporal benificence they enjoy, to yield a more ardent love to the nation through whose bounty they believe themselves to have received the first experience of spiritual joy. But now that the connection is wholly or partially dissolved, the necessity of any further reprehension on that score is precluded; and while Archdeacon Strachan preserves his character for charity and candor unimpaired, he as candidly avows that those objections will be removed by their adoption of the arrangement he has so long desired and so earnestly recommended.

In a succeeding paragraph we find what amounts to the lie direct given to Archdeacon Strachan; and to add to the meanness as well as impudence of its author, it is couched in language previously used by the Archdeacon—with happy effect we must admit—respecting certain assertions of Mr. Morris. And why did Dr. Strachan thereby deviate from his common tone of peculiar mildness and forbearance?—Because, Mr. Morris had charged him with an individual abberation from common honesty—had accused him, in very unequivocal terms, of uttering a wilful falsehood; but in this case, the charge which provokes Mr. Reyerson's ire being a general one, the individual who makes so uncourteous a retort, only exposes himself to ridicule and scorn. This enviable character is fully than had been previously aroused by the other's humor.

In respect to the friendly offices of the Methodists towards the Clergy of the Church of England in lending them the use of their Chapels, &c. I trust the latter are always willing to shew them any individual kindness or courtesy, although it is not in their power to reciprocate this civility. I dare say Mr. Reyerson very well knows that according to the system of the Church of England, the trust of sacred edifices is vested in other hands—a circumstance which, coupled with others, must preclude the possibility of returning a favor the sense of which—as I hope it always is—can only be manifested by gratitude and thanks. I believe nothing has ever occurred to disturb the concord and good will which, when they come in contact, generally exists personally, betwixt the Clergy of the Church of England and those of the Methodist persuasion; although the attitude not only of defence but offence assumed by Mr. Reyerson would indicate the existence of adversaries on the other side so insidious and hostile as to warrant the companionship of a brace of pistols and dagger! He insinuates that such marauders are abroad as public "highwaymen"—one of whom, however, turns out to be nothing else than a dignitary of the Church of England for whose private worth and public labors Mr. R. professes a cordial regard!

Although, as already stated, the suspicion of disloyalty as attached by Archdeacon Strachan has not been altogether void of foundation; yet that Archdeacon has never intimated that any of the Methodists is inimical to good government. On the contrary, to those of that denomination, not connected with the United States, viz.—to the Wesleyan Methodists, he pays the deserved compliment. So far too—like the wily Arianyses of old—from seeking a division amongst them, he plainly reprobates the unhappy schism which have led to their recal from Upper Canada—which produced their separation from, & destroyed the benefits of their influence upon, the American Methodist Teachers.

In noticing Mr. Reyersons peculiar vaunting about the signal virtue of patriotism, we fear his loyalty, in all the branch into which, under the British Government, it is diversified: we have cause to apprehend, from his own conduct and writings, that though his amor patriæ may reverence the Throne, it would hardly restrain him from a violation of the Altar.

MONITOR.

June 26th, 1828

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, JULY 5, 1828.

There is no later intelligence from Europe.

Absentee Taxes.—The beneficial effects of the Attorney General's Assessment Law, are beginning to develope themselves, as will be seen from the statement of the Treasurer of this District, published in our columns to-day, of Absentee Taxes now in his hands, and payable to the several Townships according to law. The total sum collected amounts to upwards of Six hundred Pounds, and judiciously expended will no doubt be of great service to the Roads. It is to be regretted that the measure proposed by the Attorney General, during the last Session of Parliament, for the improvement of the principal Highways throughout the Province, was not carried into effect, as we are certain that it would have been found of great benefit to the country. We have reason to believe that this is the general feeling of the people on the subject. From year to year, during the last Parliament, the promise was held forth, that the state of the highways should receive serious attention; but to the astonishment of almost every person, when a plan the least objectionable of any that had ever been proposed, was submitted for consideration, it met with unlooked-for opposition,—Nothing was done, and the sums now collected under the Assessment Law, will come as a very reasonable relief, to many parts of the Province.

The General Accounts of the District and Town Police, are in our possession, and will be published next week.

On coming into Town, a few days ago, a paper was put into our hands—and the first words which caught our eye "Alarming crisis"—induced us to suppose, that War had been declared, or that the plague was raging in that place.—On looking a little further however, we discovered that some of the old hands, who are fond of crying "Wolf, whenthere is no Wolf"—had been getting up the old song, to a new tune, and the words "Petition against the old song, to a new tune, and the words "Petition against the Government"—banished all the impressions, which for a redress of grievances"—banished all the impressions, which at first had taken possession of our mind. The names of some forty persons, were appended to this paper, the greater part of whom, we venture to say, if they were asked, why they signed it, or what grievances they had to complain of, would be as much puzzled to give an answer, as of yore, were the signers of a petition, on a similar occasion, when the "Wolf" cry was raised by the notorious Gourlay, and who on being asked to "specify particulars"—replied that, they dealt only in "generals," and could not complain "particularly" of any thing, but that Mr. Gourlay would no doubt be able to explain, as he was the "Master Manufacturer"—and they only the workmen, under his employ.

The paper we allude to, was a requisition to the Sheriff of the District, to call a meeting "at this alarming crisis"—(what a fright we are in!)—"to Petition for a redress of Public Grievances"—general enough!—The worthy Sheriff, however, feeling no alarm himself, very properly declined leading the sanction of his Official situation, to create any in the minds of others. On all former occasions, the "Wolf" gentry have not considered it necessary to make such a requisition—and why they should make this an exception from their former practice, we can only imagine, by supposing, that if they succeeded in raising the cry of "Alarming Crisis" Officially, under the sanction of the name of the Sheriff, it would tell better, and serve to keep up appearances.

As much disappointed in this object as they have been, that the country is not to be left without the administration of Justice, they have changed their plan of operations, and a meeting is called to-day by themselves, for a purpose varying in some measure from that, which they "requested" the Sheriff to call.

A word of advice to the Canadian Freeman, if the rage he is in will admit of his being Counselled.—He has libelled the gentleman he would pretend to serve.

To say that Mr. Willis, is "degraded"—is for aught we know, and may be for aught Mr. Collins knows, as untrue, as it is disrespectful. The "conscientious discharge" of his duty the Freeman tells us, has caused Mr. Willis to decline sitting on this Bench. He has a right to the conscientious exercise of his opinion, beyond all doubt, but if it so happens, that others who are equally entitled to the same right, differ from him in that opinion—can it be supposed that the Government would be acting in such a manner, as to consult the most important interests of the Country, if under such circumstances they suffered a state of things to arise, which would put a total stop to the administration of Justice. And when to avoid this, such steps are taken, that while "conscientious opinions" are not interfered with, the Country is not deprived of that which is essential to it, and without which, incalculable mischief must inevitably result—can the Freeman, take upon himself to assert that any degradation is offered to the person, whose removal becomes an act of necessity, in order that the business of the country may go on. It is as we before said, disrespectful towards the person of whom it is spoken.

But perhaps, the Freeman's rage is kindled, from the disappointed hope, that an embarrassment might probably have been produced and that the Administration of Justice, would be suffered to slumber, heedless of the consequences which would be inflicted on the country from such a state of things.

That such a result should not take place, has been the care, we suppose of the Government, and while it is effected without interfering with the conscientious opinion of any person, leaving their correctness to be determined, by those who alone have the power of deciding, we are convinced that the Country will feel indebted to the Government, for having judiciously and temperately exercised, a branch of its prerogative, without having done which, it must have been subject to the greatest inconveniences.

We feel it quite unnecessary to add any thing further on the subject at present—in our next we shall be able we trust to inform our readers of the proceedings of this days meeting.

We have to acknowledge the receipt of the two first numbers, of the Independent Examiner, published at Perth in the Bathurst District, by Mr. John Stewart.—It is pleasing to observe the progress which is making in this flourishing settlement. It is now only a few years, since the "hardy veterans," who chiefly compose its inhabitants, first set themselves down in the wilderness, deprived in a great measure of many of the comforts and conveniences, to which they had been accustomed—Persevering industry has overcome the obstacles, of their new mode of life, and a population of more than twelve thousand, souls are reaping the abundant fruits of their former toils.—The establishment of a Press among them, forms an era, in the history of their settlement, on which we congratulate them, and to Proprietor, we most heartily wish success.

By a notice from the Crown Office, inserted in the Official Gazettee, the Courts of Assize in the different Districts, this year will be as follows:—

Poetry.

STANZAS.

[BY MRS. HEMANS.]

Crown ye the brave! crown ye the brave!
As through your streets they ride,
And the sunbeams dance on the polished arms
Of the warriors, side by side;
Shower on them your sweetest flowers,
Let the air ring with their cheers,
For they come from a far and foreign land,
The standard of war to raise!
Crown ye the brave! crown ye the brave!
They have heard, with proud disdain,
That a tyrant seeks your beautiful land
To bind in his iron chain;
And now they come, with hearts and arms,
To the land that will be free,
With their blood to give in the cause of those
Who fight for their liberty!
Crown ye the brave! crown ye the brave!
As they wend them from the shore,
For many of those who ride gaily now,
Ye never shall look on more;
Amid the battle's fiercest rage,
Unnoticed and unblest,
Wo for the forms on the bloody field,
Tost will sink to endless rest.

Domestic.

We have the authority of private letters from W. H. Merritt, Esq. dated May 18, to his friends in this village, received in town this morning, (June 21) forwarded by the Hon. D. Cameron, who has just returned from London, stating that "the Treasury Department have decided on loaning the company £50.000." And further, Mr. M. confidently adds, that he "will be able to procure subscribers for the remainder of the stock on hand, and in six weeks, if all be well, will return home. The company then will be possessed of funds to the amount of £90,000, which will enable us to finish the canal as it should be."—Canal Intelligencer.

Accident at Brantford.—On Saturday evening last, a part of the floor of the second story of Mr. Jackson's Mill, in Brantford, in which story, about 5000 bushels of Wheat was stored, gave way; and let down about 2000 bushels at once, which broke the lower floor and part of the floom, and caused a rush of water, by which about 300 bushels of the wheat was carried into the stream and entirely lost, and about 1000 bushels damaged. The entire loss which Mr. Jackson will sustain by this accident, will be from £100 to £150.

A young man named Jno' J. Culver, son of Mr. Gabriel Culver of Long. Point, was found dead on Thursday in a field near his fathers residence, having been, as the neighbours suppose, struck dead by lightning—but from the circumstance of the day being perfectly clear and unclouded, but excesively hot, we should rather suppose his death must have been the effect of a Coup de Soleil.—Gore Gazette.

(From the Kingston Chronicle, of 28th June)

On Wednesday evening last, His Excellency Sir James Kempt, accompanied by Col. Fenshaw, Col. Lewis, Col. By, Col. Gore, Captain Hamilton, Capt. Savage, arrived in Town from the Ottawa. by the route of the canal, on a tour of inspection of the public works in this province.

It gives us great pleasure to learn that Sir James Kempt highly approves of the line and route of the Rideau Canal.

Dinner to Lord Dalhousie.—On Thursday the 19th inst. the Inhabitants of Montreal gave a splendid dinner to His Excellency the Earl of Dalhousie, as a mark of respect for his Lordship's public conduct and private virtues during his stay in the Canadas. John Richardson, Esquire, in the chair.

Melancholy Accident.—We regret to learn, that on Sunday the 16th. inst. as William McKelvy, Mr. & Mrs. Roberts, Mrs. Myers, and her child, (a little girl 3 years old) were proceeding down Barber's Creek, a short distance below Soper's Mills, in Darlington, in a small skiff, on the intention of going on board the Schooner Maria, which lay at anchor about half a mile from shore, the skiff upset, and all on board perished, excepting Mr. Roberts, who, with difficulty effected his escape. The creek where the accident occurred, is only about 30 feet in breadth, and about 10 feet deep. The bodies were all found within half an hour after the accident took place.

TO THE FREE AND INDEPENDENT ELECTORS OF THE COUNTY OF YORK.

Gentlemen,

FROM the very liberal and highly flattering support I received at the last Election for the Counties of York and Simcoe, I was induced at the close of the Poll to declare my intention of offering myself at the next Election, as a Candidate for your suffrages.

As the time for that Election is now fast approaching, I beg leave to acquaint you with my determination to redeem the pledge I then gave you; and although I am well aware that there are many other individuals as well, if not better, qualified than myself, who may tender you their services, yet from the disinterested assurances of esteem tendered me at the last Election, together with the unsolicited encouragement I have lately received, it is with some flattering hopes of success I now come forward to solicit your support; and I can assure you, in case my expectation of being elected to the honorable and responsible situation of one of your Representatives in Parliament for this County shall, by your unanimous support, be realized, it will be my business to devote my time, and the humble abilities with which I am blessed, to the welfare, prosperity, and best interest of my fellow-subjects and my country.

I have the honor to be,
Gentlemen,
Your very obedient servant,

POSTSCRIPT

(From the N. Y. Spectator of June 30th.)

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

The Packet Ship Silas Richards, Capt. Holdredge arrived yesterday afternoon from Liverpool, having sailed on the 24th ult, her regular day, and we are furnished with London papers to the 23d, inclusive. They mention no occurrence of importance.

It was reported that M.. Huskisson, Mr. Charles Grant, and Lord Palmerston, had resigned their seats in the British Cabinet,—The Morning Chronicle of the 23d, says—

"Lord Palmerston, we understand, denies the truth of the report, as far as relates to himself. But, we believe, we can take it upon us to say that Mr. Huskisson has tendered his resignation. We know nothing beyond this, so that it is possible his resignation will not be accepted. It is possible that Mr. Charles Grant will regulate himself by Mr. Huskisson; but we are not aware that he has yet taken any decided step."

"London, May 23.

Conversation was wholly engrossed yesterday by reports of a change in the administration, not from any difference of opinion relative to the Catholic Question, but out of the course pursued by Mr. Huskisson and Lord Palmerston, in reference to the East Redford Disfranchisement Bill.

The Select Committee on Canada affairs has only been empowered to report its observations and opinions. It met on the 6th, when the Right Hon. Frandland Lewis was chosen Chairman, and the days of sitting appointed. Mr. Gale was heard on the 8th, and his examination had not closed on the 14th. The Delegates had not yet been called before the Committee.

PORTUGAL.

Extract of a Letter from Lisbon, May 10.

By the Challenger, which sailed yesterday, I sent you the famous decree of the 3d instant, only published on the 6th, by Don Miguel, summoning the old Cortes according to the old law of the country, whereby Don Miguel has forfeited his head, as well as his allegiance to the King his brother Don Pedro; for this is a formal and authentic act of rebellion.—He acts no longer in the name of the King, but entirely on his own accord and responsibility.

OFFICE OF THE LOYALIST,

York, Saturday, 12th July, 1828.

The bustle of Election week, and the consequent almost total suspension of ordinary business which unavoidably took place in our Office, as we believe it did with almost every other occupation, compels us to offer our apology to our readers for the non-appearance of our paper this week.—Our next will be issued on the regular day, when we shall give a more detailed account of the occurrences of the week—in the mean time we shall briefly advert to them for the information of our readers.

The Election for the Town of York commenced on Wednesday morning last,—William B. Jarvis, Esquire, Sheriff of the District, Returning Officer.

As Candidates—

John B. Robinson, Esq. was proposed by Alexander M'Donell, Esq., seconded by Mr. Robert Meighan.—Mr. Thomas D. Morrison was proposed by W. W. Baldwin, Esq., seconded by Mr. Joseph Cawthra.—The Candidates having addressed the Electors, and a Poll being demanded, on a shew of hands, the Returning Officer proceeded to take the votes.—At the close of the Poll, on the first day, the result was—

for Robinson, 56
Morrison, 49

On Thursday, at about 5 o'clock, the Poll was closed when the votes stood as follows:—

Robinson, 110
Morrison, 93

Majority 17, in favor of Mr. Robinson.

The Returning Officer having declared John B. Robinson, Esq. to be the Member Elect, the usual honors were paid him, by his electors and friends, Chairing and Cheering him through the Town, with colors flying—music playing &c.

Yesterday a public Dinner, was given to the Attorney General, by his Electors and friends, in honor of his re-election as Member for the Town.

At 6 o'clock nearly one hundred persons were assembled at Howard's Hotel, where the entertainment provided for them reflected the highest credit, on Mr. Howard.—After the cloth was removed, several loyal and appropriate Toasts were drank. On the Attorney General's health being given, which was drank with three times three—he returned thanks in an appropriate Speech, in which he stated the motives which had governed his public conduct as a representative of the people, and the explanations he gave on several important subjects, were greeted with thunders of applause.

The Hon. Wm. Allan acted as President, and Grant Powell Esq. as Vice President, on the occasion.—At about 12 o'clock the party broke up, after an evening spent in the utmost harmony and good humor.

We are happy to add, that while the most strenuous exertions were used by the friends of both the Candidates, the Election, during its continuance, was not interrupted by any thing that interfered with a spirit of good feeling, on either side, and now that the honorable struggle for the honorable situation is decided in favor of one, whose faithful discharge of his public duties, has again secured to him, by an increased Majority, since his previous election, the representation of the Town, we are convinced that our fellow-Townsmen, who share with us the triumph, will not, in the exultation of victory, be unmindful of evincing it with temper and moderation. For ourselves we rejoice at the issue, but with the close of the poll we close all those feelings which may be supposed to produce any thing like warmth during the contest: and we do so in the fulness of the conviction that the valuable services of our Representative, rewarded as they have been on the present occasion, by the support of many new friends, will have a further addition to their number, when he shall at a future time present himself for the suffrages of his Townsmen.

We have seen with utter astonishment in the Observer of 7th instant, an account by the Editor Mr. John Carey, of a Meeting held in York, on the Saturday previous, for the purpose of petitioning for a redress of grievances, and presenting an address to Judge Willis—an account so grossly false in almost every particular, that it is due to the character of the Country to declare the truth.

It is stated by the Editor of the Observer, that the Meeting was numerously attended—that from 7 o'clock until 12, there was a continued stream of Pedestrians, Horses and Waggons filled with Farmers, pouring in from all parts of the Country—that, there were not less than 1000 persons present—that a great number of persons addressed the Meeting on the dismissal of Judge Willis—that a procession went from the Meeting to Judge Willis' quarters, headed by all the Editors of Papers—12 Members of the Bar—5 Medical Gentlemen—47 Officers of Militia, and Eleven Magistrates, and that 500 persons within an hour signed the Petition."

The plain truth is—that a Meeting was called, by a very inflammatory and unwarrantable placard, for the purpose of discussing Judge Willis' removal from Office—much industry was used to procure a numerous attendance of people of the Town and country, but the attempt was a perfect failure—no person walking through the Town from 7 to 12 would have discovered any unusual number of persons assembled. About 12 or 1—from 200 to 250 persons were assembled in the Market Place—not more than are often collected by any accidental or unusual occurrence—the number never was greater, and of these a great proportion were mere spectators, neither partaking in feeling or conduct with those who called the Meeting—and many of them boys.—There was absolutely no influx of Strangers.—Of those who attempted to address the Meeting, scarcely one individual was suffered to be heard, but such as spoke in favour of it, several of those named attempted to do so, but were not allowed.—Three Editors out of four in Town did go from the Meeting to Judge Willis' among them was the Editor of the Observer.—5 Members of the Bar—2 Physicians—if there were any Militia Officers, besides one or two who haranagued the Meeting we did not observe them, though it is possible there might be 2 or 3.—Not one Magistrate.—This is true—the rest of the Statement is an impudent barefaced falsehood.

It was evident, that the whole movement was prompted by a desire to influence the Election in the Town, which was to commence on the Wednesday following, and that it was any thing but respectable either in its conduct or result. How far this object was attained, is best proved by the result of the Election.

The Editor of the Canadian Freeman, while evidently desirous of producing the same impression with respect to this Meeting, has certainly been more guarded in his appreciation—he tells us that such a meeting "was never before seen in York." This is true, but not in the acceptation which he would have attached to it—For confusion—irregularity—and want of common decency towards those who attempted to address the meeting "on the other side of the question"—such a meeting truly "was never before seen in York"—no—nor any where else we believe. We are told too that "Farmers from 30 to 40 miles distance" were present—how many?—we are not told—were there 20—we doubt it much. How many "Farmers," in Town the night before, left it the morning of this famous meeting, to attend to their "Hay Harvest?"—a great many.

But the manner in which we are obliged to post these remark to Press, prevents us at present saying any thing further on the subject—We shall however not lose sight of it, in our next.

We add such items of English and Domestic News, as appear most important.

Accident.—A Seaman on board the Canada, was seriously hurt, by a fall from the Mast on Wednesday last.—His Arm is broken, besides other injuries received in the fall. We are happy to learn however, that he is in a fair way of recovery.

GREAT BRITAIN—REPORTED CHANGES IN THE MINISTRY.

On the 22d of May, London was full of reports of a change in the Administration; and stating that Lord Palmerston and Mr. Huskisson had both resigned; another, confirming the resignation to the latter Minister only—and a third, that both these personages are said to have been absent from the Lord Mayor's dinner. It is believed that Mr. Peel has taken offence at the votes given by Mr. Huskisson and Lord Palmerston upon the East Retford Disfranchisement Bill, and especially against Mr. Huskisson, in which the advocates of Mr. Peel accuse of having spoken on one side and voted on the other. It is added that the Right Honourable Gentleman will be succeeded in his office of Secretary of the Colonies by Mr. Goulburn, and that Mr. Herries will be the new Chancellor of the Exchequer. This rumour has obtained considerable credit; but nothing official has transpired on the subject. Some of the Cabinet Ministers were opposed to each other in the Division. The question whether the franchise should be removed to a great City, or to a Hundred in the County of Nottingham might seem, prima facie, not of itself to be of such vast importance. But the issue of the debate and the division have given rise to strong rumours of a resignation or resignations. The Courier says; "Deeply, indeed, should we lament their confirmation; because we trusted the greatest cordiality existed, and because the country would thereby be deprived of the services of men of talent, at a time when such services were so necessary."

Foreign Intelligence.

From the Gazette de France, May 21.

Bucharest, May 21.—It is understood that, on the 7th of this Month, the Russian troops will begin to occupy the Principalities, and the Hospodars, who have received orders from the Porte, on the approach of the Russian armies, to retire out of Turkish dominions, and not into those of Austria, as they are said to have wished, will probably go to Constantinople. Count Palen, who is appointed Civil Governor of the Principalities, will reside at first at Jassy, and in the sequel go to Bucharest. The Russian Emperor is expected at Jassy on the 24th May. Count Wittgenstein has the chief command of the whole Army; Count Woronzo commands one wing, and Count Peter Pahlen, all the Cavalry. The Turks are, indeed, carrying on their preparations with activity, but they will hardly be able to oppose the superior force with which they are threatened, the general mass in the Russian Army that the war will be ended in one campaign, and that the Turks will speedily be induced to yield. But the Manifesto drawn up in Constantinople, and of which some persons already pretend to know the contents, should seem to give a greater idea of the defensive resources of the Turks. It is reported to announce no less a design than to drive back into their own limits the Christians who dare to attack Islamism, and to enter the Turkish Territory under Russian colors, and, sword in hand, to throw off the yoke of the burdensome conditions which of late years have been extorted from the Sublime Porte, under various pretexts and forms, every musulman is called upon to hasten and place himself under the banners of the Prophet, and defend, with various arm, his holy Religion, and the destruction of which it had suffered, and to represent the Treaty of Akerman as forced upon it. The Turkish Fortresses, which, at the time of the conferences at Akerman, were retained by the Russians, contrary to all justice, are alledged as proof of the rapacity of those dangerous neighbors, which, however, will not be able to subdue the courage of the Ottomans.

PORTUGAL.

It is fully confirmed, that the students and inhabitants at Coimbra, have proclained "Don Miguel the First, Absolute King of Portugal," In the night there was a spontaneous illumination of the whole city, and a great many students, and numbers of the people went about singing the Portuguese Hymn in the streets, and crying, "Long live his Majesty Don Miguel, the first absolute King of Portugal, the Empress Queen, and the Loyalists."

On the 25th Don Miguel, Absolute King, was proclaimed at Aveiro with the greatest solemnity, and amidst the rejoicings of all the inhabitants.

The Municipality of Oporto, proclaimed Don Miguel on the evening of the 29th ult. but the garrison of the same city, as well as that of Braga, have declared in favour of Don Pedro.

The public funds have fallen nine per cent. since the arrival of Don Miguel, and still continues to decline.

On the 25th of April the British troops began to leave the Fort St. Julian. There are no English troops in the Tower St. Lorenzo; and the last of the British army has consequently left Portugal—worse off than they found it. "The people will not be dragged out to freedom." The London Courier makes use of the following language, in closing its account of the transaction:

"For Don Miguel and his traitorous Ministers, no terms of reprobation can be too strong—no punishment too severe. In their treason there is nothing daring or dazzling. Some conspirators have had in view the release of their country from domestic oppression or foreign tyranny; others have had for their object the restoration of legitimate rights, which have been violated. But this treason has every thing low and base—immoral and irreligious, Religion has been insulted by the profanation of a solemn oath sworn at her altars. The confidence of a Sovereign has been abused—the ties of blood despised—the rights of a child and female trampled on, and that female his near relative, who had been promised him in marriage. It is treason not to support or restore the freedom of the people; but to destroy it, and to revive the ancient and odious despotism, under which the will of the monarch was every thing, and the people nothing."

The Welland Canal.—We mentioned the other day the success which had attended the first exertions of Mr. Merritt, to procure subscriptions for completing the Welland Canal which is to connect Lakes Ontario and Erie by a navigable channel round the Falls of Niagara. And the stockholders will no doubt be pleased to learn, that we have now before us a letter from Mr. M. dated the 21st ultimo, which gives the most encouraging prospects of his ultimate success in filling the subscriptions. He has already authorised the President of the Company to draw for £9,000£, and it is certain that his Majesty's government will give the undertaking every support it requires. To secure its completion they have recommended a loan of 50,000£, so that the object may be considered as effected.

To my brother Electors of the County of Lincoln:

Having viewed, with pleasure and satisfaction, the vast and important services which WILLIAM HAMILTON MERRITT, Esq. has rendered the country, by his unwearied exertions in favour of internal improvement, I think that no mark of our regard can be more honourable, either to him or ourselves, than to return him to our next Provincial Parliament, at a time when he is absent in England, exerting all his energies in our favour. He is the father of the Welland Canal: last winter he obtained one hundred thousand dollars from the Parliament of Lower Canada, and now has obtained nearly £400,000 more, to be expended amongst us. These are considerations which point him out to me as the fittest person we can name, for one of our Representatives, in which sentiment I hope a large majority will be found to join.

A FREEHOLDER of the N. B. A meeting of the inhabitants is requested at the Village of St. Johns, in Thorold, to take this matter into consideration, on Wednesday next, at 12 o'clock, at Mr. Dougal's Inn.—Farmers' Journal.

Contrary to the opinions which we entertained, and last week expressed relative to Captain Matthews, he has again presented himself as a Candidate for the Representation of Middlesex.—Gore Gazette.

The General Election.—The electioneering campaign is carried on in this district with a considerable degree of spirit—but at the same time with becoming moderation and decorum.

C. A. Hagerman, Esq. having been elevated to the Bench, declines offering as a Candidate at the approaching contest. The candidates for the Town now are, Donald Bethune Esq. and Mr. John Strange.

The election for the county of Frontenac will take place in front of Langwith's Tavern, in the second concession in this Township, on the 21st inst.—John Kirby, Esq. returning officer. The Candidates, are H. C. Thomson, Esq. Capt. Mackenzie, and Mr. Thos. Dalton.

The election for Lennox and Addington will take place near Fralick's tavern on the 21st inst.—Allan Macpherson, Esq. Returning officer.

The Lord Bishop of Quebec arrived in Town on Thursday last from the Lower Province, on a visit to the distant parts of his Diocese. His Lordship will consecrate St. George's Church in this place to-morrow. Service to commence at 11 o'clock A. M.—K. Chronicle.

THE LOYALIST

VOL. I. NO. 6.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY JULY 19, 1828.

Of the argument advanced by the Bishop which are next noticed by the Presbyterian Ministers, they pronounce one to be "utterly unavailing,"—another "equally feeble"—a third to be "not more happy"—and a fourth to be "a mere begging of the question."—pp. 4, 5, and 6 of the Pastoral Letter.

Voyons un peu.

"His Lordship should have recollected,"—this refers to his argument in favour of his alliance of church and state drawn from the incorporation of the civil with the religious polity of the Jews, and the control of their Kings over the ordinances of worship,—"that the dispensation of Moses was abrogated and superseded by that of the Gospel."

We rather incline to a belief that his Lordship had not forgotten this circumstance.—We see no reason to conclude that he entertains the opinions of the old Judaizing Christians —But, obviously, do the Presbyterian divines intend to maintain that because the Gospel is in certain points "contrasted" with the law, no analogy is to be instituted in any point between them!—that the Jewish Church is not a type of the Christian!—that nothing in Christian communities whether of a civil, religious, or legislative nature is founded upon principles drawn from the Old Testament!—that, where circumstances admit of its fair adaption to the existing order of things, no precedent can be taken, no argument deduced from the declared will and established system of the Almighty under the old covenant! As well might we argue on the other side that because the Redeemer of the world declares that he came not to destroy but to fulfil the law, therefore it is actually in all its parts now in force.

The Bishop, coupling the precedent of the Jewish Church and the example of direct regulation and control of religious matters by royal authority, subsequently to the original institution of the Mosaic Ritual, with some prophetic intimations that Christianity should be fostered and protected by the state, argues, generally, in favour of the principle of an alliance of church and state.—Is it any answer to this argument to say that the Government of the Jewish State was a Theocracy, and the Mosaic dispensation extraordinary and miraculous?—These circumstances could only diminish the necessity of such an inference as we read of on the part of the Ruling Powers upon earth, in a way neither extraordinary nor miraculous, but such as it is competent to men of modern times to exercise.—Viewing the subject in this light, we might argue that if such an interference was permissible then, it is a fortiori permissible now.

But it is a remarkable feature of this controversy that the Church of Scotland, founding her whole claim upon the circumstance of her being established in one portion of Great Britain, avails herself of arguments against some exclusive claims of the Church of England, which, if they have any force at all, are subversive of the principle of religious establishments altogether.

When the Christian church ceased to be persecuted and the ruling powers of the Roman Empire became Christian, it was natural and right that the church should be recognized and protected by the state, and established in mutual relations with the civil power. This subject is placed in so clear and convincing a light by Archbishop Magee, in a charge from which extracts have been given in a former number of this work, that we think it can hardly fail of affording satisfaction with respect to the general principle itself.—The Bishop in his letter refers to the first establishment, (in this sense of the word), of Christianity.—So far from being implicated as it is attempted here to represent him, (Pastoral Letter p. 5.), in whatever errors of principle the Christians thus enjoying establishment were guilty of in the whole course of that age, he expressly adverts (p. 6) to "changes and abuses which grew out of" the connection with the Roman Empire.—The Pastoral Letter has, therefore, failed, if it was the object to leave upon a reflection upon the sentiments expressed by the Bishop.—The only other inference to be drawn from the remarks which its authors have made upon this passage is a general objection to religious establishments, and one, consequently, which is fatal to the very grounds of their own pretensions.

So again with respect to the reformers.—the Bishop points out that the above-stated principle was recognized at the Reformation. But, say the Presbyterian divines, the reformers were exceedingly wrong in their notions of religious toleration.—In this reasoning is intended to weaken our confidence in the general principles of the Reformation, by saying that because the reformers were wrong in one point, we cannot trust them in another; the Church of Rome is much obliged to its authors.—And if it is intended to furnish an inference that the fallibility of the reformers, as shown in the article of religious toleration, was equally seen in the provisions made for the establishment of religion, the authors must again be left to reap the benefit of their own argument.

The arguments drawn by either party from the Act of Union may be seen in the upper part of page 6, in each of the two publications.

Now whether the Bishop has proved or has not proved his point—whether the authors of the Pastoral Letter have failed or have succeeded in shewing that the King and his Government and the Imperial Parliament have been all grossly violating the plainest rights of Scotland within these provinces,* for half a century together, and the Scotch acquiescing all the time in such a wrong,—still, as the Bishop has at least attempted to prove his point instead of assuming it, it is surely a mistaken use of words to say that his talking of the prior establishment of the Church of England, is a mere begging of the question, because, according to an opinion which he had first nominated, no right existed to give the footing to that establishment which has been conferred upon it.—Neither do we conceive that it can appear more warrantable to any person who turns to page 7 of the Bishop's letter, to say, (Pastoral Letter p. 6.), "by which, we presume, is meant the Church of England." No presuming is very necessary to discover what church the Bishop speaks of, as having been established by the King of England and his Parliament; and the previously existing establishment of the Church of Rome is expressly noticed in his argument.

The language of Mr. Fox in the debate upon the act which sets apart the reserves, appears to be incorrectly understood by the authors of the Pastoral Letter, (p. 6.) Mr. Pitt spoke of the establishment of an Episcopal See, most evidently as part of the same plan; and it was accordingly formed. Mr. Fox, in reply, determined, of course, to differ from his antagonist at all hazards, declared his opinion that it ought to be a Papish or a Presbyterian, not an establishment of the Church of England!—never, it would seem, contemplating the possibility of two co-ordinate establishments within the same limits.

In the same page of the Pastoral Letter it is said that "the Scottish inhabitants of the Colony were not apprised of the views" of the Church of England with respect to the reserves, till the appearance of a certain advertisement by authority of a clergy corporation:

Let us put a case.

A has an estate, devised to him by will and secured to his heirs by entail.—While he is a minor, he is a ward in Chancery and the estate is managed by other hands, upon a clear understanding that it is his.—As soon as he is of age, the title-deeds are put into his hands, and the power conveyed to him to manage his own property.—It is not long before he gives certain notifications to the tenants.—Soon after this, B, forming another branch of the same family and residing where the property of A is situated, having had the means of informing himself of the nature of all the previous transactions—starts up for the first time and says that he has a right to a share of this estate. He endeavours to find flaws in the title of A, and because in one part of the will the benefit of the family who were to be benefited in the person of A, is mentioned in a way conceived to be capable of an application to its other branches,—although without a hint of the existence of B, and although the following clauses and all other proceedings connected with the subject, decisively fix the intention of the will upon one particular branch and that alone, namely upon A,—he regards the exclusive claim of A as an usurpation, and declares that he was "never apprised of the views" of A upon the subject, till he was made acquainted with them by means of the notifications issued to the tenants.

We have dealt so long upon these prominent points that we must endeavour to condense all that we have yet to say, and even if we should overlook entirely some of the arguments of the Pastoral Letter, we shall only follow the much more marked example of its authors who have wholly passed by several of the strongest points in the case made out by the Bishop, particularly in the lower half of page 7 of his Lordship's letter, and the top of page 8.—They are possibly ready with answers still.—We are ready also, as we humbly conceive,—although sorely unwilling to proceed in the contest,—to meet all and every argument which we may now omit to notice in the Pastoral Letter.

The authors, in page 8, departing (which we do not question their right to do,) from the example of the Bishop, make their remarks upon the internal administration of the Church of England. But had they as extensive an acquaintance with the state of things in these new countries as their brethren of that church, they would never form an estimate of the number of persons who belonging, or have attached or are truly attaching themselves to the system of the Church of England, from the proportion who have actually become Communicants.—Persons who have always belonged to that church, have lived perhaps in the wilderness in long disuse of the regular ordinances of religion, and do not soon recover the habits which make them acceptible of such high preparation as is requisite for a proper participation in the Lord's Supper. And all the heterogeneous materials of which new settlements are frequently composed,—persons whom the Ministers of the Church of England will never be deterred by any misapplied charge of a rage for proselytism, from seeking to "gather together in one" where they are found as "sheep having no shepherd,"—all these remaining to be formed and moulded, cannot at once communicate in a church whose ministration nevertheless they often thankfully accept, in the planting of which they cheerfully bear their part, and whose cordial members they and their children ultimately become.

It is also recommended by the authors of the Pastoral Letter (page 8), that if there are, as the Bishop has stated, large congregations of the Church of England unsupplied, more judgment and care should be exercised in distributing the services of her pastors.—But in the Church of Scotland itself, can Ministers removed about at pleasure from one station to another as local expediency may seem to require?† Has there never been, in any one place, a concentration of the ministerial force of that church while remote Scottish settlers have been unprovided?—The commentary upon the Bishop's letter is here as elsewhere partial in such a manner that the passage which is noticed furnishes subject for reprehension while the context which is unnoticed would have supplied the means of wiping it away.—The authors of the Pastoral Letter have professedly informed themselves with great minuteness, of the state of the English congregations, and they advert to some examples of exceedingly small livings of which the pastors receive "the usual emoluments of £300 or £200, per annum." (We do not know upon what the, or £300 is founded—the usual emoluments are £200.)—But the page (8) of the Bishop's letter, upon which they are remarking, points out the fact that those pastors have generally other flocks to visit also, and often a wide range of country within their charge.

The remarks in page 11 of the Pastoral Letter, which pronounce that both the PIETY and PATRIOTISM of the Scottish Emigrant must die, if he does not enjoy the particular mode of worship to which he has been accustomed, if they were just and well founded, would be nothing to the purpose, because the Clergy of the Church of England would rejoice that settlements properly Scotch, and consisting of persons wedded in their attachment to the Church of Scotland, should have due provision made for the maintenance of pastors of their own communion. If they protest against the Church of Scotland's coming forward at this day to help herself out of the patrimony of the Church of England, from which there is nothing to spare, the principle upon which they ground their objections is not that the regular flocks of the Church of Scotland ought to starve unless they are fed to pasture by shepherds whom they only follow from necessity.—But the position itself that the piety and patriotism of the Scottish emigrant will wither if he joins in a new form of worship is one which we will most unhesitatingly venture to contradict.—To make the living principle which animates the believer in Christ and the duties and attachments which belong to the citizen and the subject, absolutely dependent, in the case of Scotchmen, upon their participation in a particular mode of worship, is doing an injustice to their character which we are persuaded that the authors of the Pastoral Letter will be ready to disavow. We can undertake, from our experience, to say that the Scotch, all national as they are, have nevertheless, in many instances, a remarkable facility of adaptation to circumstances, which is happily subservient to their disposition to venture their fortunes abroad.—With respect to the alleged extinction of piety among those who conform to the Church of England, we shall select a single example out of a thousand, which may serve as an answer to such an assumption: It is taken from an account of the Mission of the Church of England at the Red River Settlement, and may be perfectly relied upon

*The Church of England is also established upon a distinct elevation in the East and West Indies, and in New South Wales, &c. In the East Indies, the Church of Scotland having received protection and assistance from the Board of Control, made claims for a recognition of equality with the Church of England.—The Board plainly and unhesitatingly declared in the instructions which they sent out in reply, that the Diocese of Calcutta had been established by the King's Prerogative, and that it was wholly out of the question to regard the two churches as being upon the same footing in that Diocese. Was there ever an example, unless perhaps under the Protectorate, of a Presbyterian Chapel of the British Ambassador as a Foreign Court?

MILLS AT PETERBOROUGH.—The Grist-Mill and Saw-Mill which have been lately erected by the Government at Peterborough, in the District of Newcastle, will be exposed to sale by Public Auction at Peterborough on the 10th day of September next, at 11 o'clock, A.M. The terms of payment will be,—one third of the purchase money to be paid within one month after the sale, one third at the expiration of one year, and the remaining one third at the expiration of two years from the day of sale, with interest.

The Mill site is most valuable, comprehending a Tract of about 86 Acres. The Grist-Mill has two runs of Stones in operation, and is well fitted for Merchant work, having manufactured more than 1,200 Barrels of Flour this Summer.—The Saw-mill is also in operation.

From the peculiar situation of these works being at the head of the Navigation of the Otanabee River, and in the midst of a very flourishing settlement, the Establishment will be most valuable to any person possessing Capital. It cannot be disposed of for a less sum than £2,000 Currency, but will go to the highest bidder above that sum, without reserve.

A plan exhibiting the situation of the mills, and the Land appropriated for their use can be seen at this Office; and every information obtained by writing to the Honorable PETER ROBINSON, York.

PARLIAMENTARY PROCEEDINGS.

In consequence of the rumors of resignations among the Ministers, the Lords sat only for a few minutes on the night of the 23d May; and in the Commons, an important motion on the subject of the Scotch Paper Currency, to have been brought forward by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, was postponed, even without Mr. Secretary Peel having known any thing of such postponement being intended. The rumor in substance was, that both Mr. Huskisson and Lord Palmerston had resigned; that the cause thereof was ostensibly the Lords, or Ministerial proceedings regarding the Penryn Bill; the difference respecting which gave rise to the rumor of some hostile meeting between Mr. Huskisson and Lord Palmerston; and that the resignation of Lord Dudley and Ward and Mr. C. Grant would certainly follow. Neither Mr. Huskisson nor Lord Palmerston appeared in the House, either on that or the succeeding night. Neither were Mr. Tierney, Mr. Brougham nor Sir James Scarlett, &c. in the House on the 22d; the Opposition Bench indeed appeared to be deserted. Sir R. Wilson (who was said to have taken the offering of opposition support to Mr. Canning) was in the House, but he remained for a few minutes only. The debate on the proposed grant to the family, of the late Mr. Canning, however, was moved by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, notwithstanding the thinness of the House. Mr. Hume, after repeating his objection to the grant, proposed as an amendment that the Report should be read a second time that day three months. Ultimately the amendment was negatived on a division, by 73 to 14, and the bill ordered to be read a third time.

In the House of Commons, on the 16th May, Sir F. Burdett moved the order of the day for taking into consideration the report of the committee upon the Roman Catholic Claims. He afterwards moved that the resolution agreed to by the House, be communicated to the House of Lords in a conference, and their consent desired. Mr. Secretary Peel concurred with Sir Francis in the course he proposed. A resolution to the above effect was then offered by Sir Francis Burdett, which was agreed to.

The conference took place on the 19th between committees of both Houses of Parliament on the Catholic question, on which occasion Sir Francis Burdett, as manager on the part of the Commons, offered the following resolution:

That it is expedient to consider the laws affecting his Majesty's Roman Catholic subjects in Great Britain and Ireland, with a view to such final and conciliatory adjustments as may be conducive to the peace and strength of the United Kingdom, to the stability of the Protestant establishment, and to the general satisfaction and concord of all classes of his Majesty's subjects.

On motion of the Marquis of Lansdowne, it was agreed that the resolution should be taken into consideration on the 29th of June, and their Lordship's summoned for that day.

On the 16th of May, the Chancellor of the Exchequer moved that the House resolve into a Committee of Supply, for the purpose of noting the Navy Estimates, &c.; and stated as a justification for the proceeding, previously to the presentation of any Report from the "Finance Committee," that such Committee, owning to the multifarious character of their inquiries, saw the impossibility of making any Report at this Session in time for the due consideration of the Estimates. They were, therefore, brought forward. Mr. Calcraft and others observed on the tardy movements of the Committee, who had sat three months without making, or being prepared to present, any Report to the House. Sir H. Parnell (the Chairman) defended the Committee, and declared that they had been by no means deficient in diligence, for they had sat forty-seven days, examined thirty-three witnesses, extracted from them three hundred and thirty-seven accounts, and had already got in print upwards of two thousand folio pages of evidence. The Committee, he further stated, had determined not to present any Report till they could make an adequate one.—Sir J. Newport said there had seldom been fewer than twenty Members present, and that they had assembled daily from twelve till four o'clock. Mr. Calcraft remarked that, as the Committee had hitherto done nothing, what was to be expected from them this Session? Mr. Hume said that the results had justified what he had urged when the Committee was named—the appointment of distinct Committees for each branch of service. They had as yet only investigated three out of the numerous hands of public service; that official men only had been examined; that they all supported the existing establishments; and that all the documentary and other evidence was of the like tendency; so that to say the country were to expect anything from the Committee, especially in the way of reductions, would only be to hold forth a delusion. The country, he declared, must be "disappointed" by the results of the Committee's labours. Such, then, is the fate of the renowned Finance Committee! Whether the country will be "disappointed" by this explosion a short time will show;—perhaps few will experience any great "disappointment."

HOUSE OF COMMONS, 19th May.

FOREIGN POLICY.—Sir Robert Wilson brought forward his motion of inquiry into the present political posture of affairs. Mr. Secretary Peel replied, in effect, that it was not consistent with his duty to give such explanation, and that he must at present be excused from entering on the subject, but he should not shrink from so doing at the proper period.

NAVY ESTIMATES.—The House in Committee of Supply, agreed to vote the following sums for various services connected with the Navy. £3,225 to complete the sum already voted for the contingent expenses of the Naval College, and School of Architecture.—£92,007 : 12 : 2 for the wages of Officers and men belonging to the Ships in Ordinary, with £25,719 : 4s. for victualing the same, and crews on board hulks.—£17,225 to defray the expense of hired packets.—£18,287 to defray the expense of building ships at Bombay and Bermuda.—Sir Geo. Clerk, said that it was not the intention of Government to build any more ships at Bombay.—£438,350 Half Pay to Officers of the Navy.—£59,107 : 11s : 2d. for superannuations, pensions and charges of Naval officers, widows and relatives 1828.—£730 bounty to chaplains.—£5,000 allowances to widows and orphans on the compassionate list.—£52,600 for the charity to the widows of warrant officers.—£9,000 to the widows of marine officers, £130,000 for Greenwich Hospital £61,932 : 15s. superannuations and allowances.—94,660 : 10s. to complete the sum for defraying expense of repairs in the dock yards 1828.—£38,500 for completing the sum necessary to defray the expense of provisions for foreign garrisons and stations, and for maintaining convicts.—£130,400 to complete the sum necessary to defray the transport service for the year 1828. The Committee to sit again on the 21st.

21st May.—The Report, with amendments, on the Corn Laws was read a second time and ordered to be read a third time, if engrossed, on Friday the 30th.

22d. May.—The Canning Grant.—The Chancellor of the Exchequer moved the Order of the Day for receiving the report on the Pensions, Act Amendment Bill. On the motion that the amendments be read a second time. Mr. Hume again dissented to the grant to the late Mr. Canning's family, and moved that the report be taken into consideration that day three months—Mr. Monck supported the amendment—Sir John Newport was in favour of the grant, as was Mr. Vesey Fitzgerald Sir James Mackintosh in a feeling and eloquent speech gave his reasons for supporting the vote.—Mr. Courtney spoke and voted on the same side, and was answered by Mr. D. W. Harvey, several other members spoke when Sir Ronald Ferguson regretted the personal turn the debate had taken and hoped the Honorable Member for Aberdeen would not oppose the grant. Sir James Scarlett would have supported the vote had the grant been larger. The House divided.

Peerage.—A Bill has just been brought into the House of Lords, entitled "An Act to alter and amend the Laws relating to Representation of the Scottish Peerage; to enable Peers of Scotland, not Representative Peers, to sit in the House of Commons; and to declare the eldest sons of Scottish Peers eligible in such case to sit in the House of Commons for any county or burgh in Scotland and to vote at any Election therein for a Representative in the Commons House of Parliament."

After the preamble, it contains clauses for enacting—

That, in case any of the Sixteen Peers become Peers of the Realm, the vacancy shall be declared by Proclamation.

Pitt Canning, or of Viscountess Canning, or of either of them, as to his Majesty may deem fit."

The Russian army was to join on the 20th. Count Wittgenstein commanded in chief, Count Worronzow was second in command, and Count Pahlen commanded the cavalry.

NEW-YORK, June 28.

Treason at the South.—Many of the leading opposition papers at the South have at length thrown of the mask, and are now boldly inculcating treasonable doctrines, and recommending a dissolution of the Union.

A late Georgia paper, speaking of the Northern States says, with emphasis:—"Let there be A WALL raised between them and us, and let us say unto them as Abraham said unto Lot."

And then the Editor proceeds profanely to quote the following passage of Scripture:—

"Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between thee and me, and between thy herdsmen and my herdsmen; for we be brethren. Is not the whole world before thee? Separate thyself, I pray thee, from me: If thou will take the left hand, then I will go to the right; or if they depart to the right hand, then I will go to the left."

Speaking of the produce and manufactures of the Middle and Northern States, the same paper proceeds:—

Let us lay upon ourselves the injunction which God through Moses laid on the Israelites:

"And thou shalt gather all the spoil of it into the midst of the street thereof, and shalt burn with fire the city and the spoil thereof—And there shall cleave nought of the cursed thing to thine hand."

Let us Govern ourselves by the advice of the Apostle:

"Touch not, taste not, handle not the unclean thing, which is theirs."

We have already noticed, but with summary brevity, the proceedings of the students of the South Carolina University, led on by a factious president. But we have now something more serious still.—The Charleston Mercury, a leading Jackson paper, containe "An address of sundry Citizens of Colleton District, to the People of the State of South Carolina," on the course which, in the opinion of those by whom the address was adopted, ought to be pursued at the present time, by the people of that State, which demands attention. In his introduction to the address, the Editor uses the following language:—

The address to the people is terrid, eloquent and impressive, and embodies at once the political creed, the popular feeling, and probably the determined policy of South Carolina. The ground it occupies is high and unequivocal: the language it utters, firm, fearless and independent.

The people of Colleton disdain any thing like a mere evasion of the law. They would not form associations to counteract it, nor agreements not to use Northern manufactures, nor would they resort to any mode whatever, which whilst it would go to circumvent the law, would be tantamount to an acknowledgment of the right of Congress to enact it, and thus tend to fix the oppression irrevocably upon the country.

They disdain all this, as unbecoming to their feelings, and as a virtual relinquishment of their rights; but denying its constitutionality, and being determined not to submit to their exactions, they recommend distinctly such "Open resistance," as becomes "a Sovereign and independent State."

The following are extracts from the treasonable address itself:

"What course is left for us to pursue? If we have the common pride of men, or the determination of freemen, we must resist the imposition of this Tariff. We stand committed. To be stationary is impossible. We must either retrograde in dishonour and in shame, and receive the contempt and scorn of our brethren, superadded to our wrongs, and their system of oppression, strengthened by our toleration: or, we must, "by opposing, end them."

"In advising an attitude of open resistance to the laws of the Union, we deem it due to the occasion and that we may not be misunderstood, distinctly but briefly to state without argument, our constitutional faith. For it is not enough that imposts laid for the protection of domestic manufactures are oppressive, and transfer in their operation, millions of our property to northern capitalists. If we have given our bond, let them take our blood. Those who resist these imposts must deem them unconstitutional, and the principle is abandoned by the payment of one cent, as much as ten millions."

"Not, then, from a desire of disunion, or to destroy the Constitution, but it is that we may preserve the Union, and bring back the Constitution to its original uncorrupted principles, that we now advise you to resist its violation. From the rapid step of usurpation, whether we now act or not, the day of open opposition to the pretended powers of the Constitution cannot be far off; and it is that it may not go down in blood that we now call upon you to resist. We feel ourselves in a standing position with the mighty protection, and declaring forth its free and recorded spirit, when we say we must resist. By all the great principles of Liberty—by the glorious achievements of our Fathers in defending them—by their noble blood poured forth like water in maintaining them—by their lives in suffering, and their deaths in honor and in glory—our countrymen! we must resist. Not secretly, as timid thieves or skulking smugglers—not in companies and associations, like money chafferers or stock-jobbers—not separately and individually, as if this was ours and not our Country's cause,—but openly, fairly, fearlessly and unitedly, as becomes a free, Sovereign, and independant people. Does timidity ask "when?" We answer now! even now, while yet oppression is not old to us, and the free spirit looks abroad in pride over this land of glorious freedom, and of beautiful, though depressed and broken fertility.

Let not time eat away your rights, and prescriptions plead your assertion to your ruin. As in those dark times that "tried men's souls," let us assemble in solemn Convention or in Legislatures and in firmness but humility of spirit, rely upon that Providence who has hitherto protected us to guard and direct our anxious councils.

But if you are doubtful of yourselves—if you are not prepared to follow up your principles wherever they may lead, to their very last consequence—if you love life better than liberty—if you cease to perform honor and glory; awake no! stir not! Impotent resistance will add vengeance to your ruin. Live in smiling peace with your insatiable oppressors, and die with the noble consolation, that your submissive patience will survive triumphant your beggary and despair."

From the New-Haven Herld, July 1.

Tariff.—The New Tariff goes into operation this day. Manufactures may rejoice, while Agriculture and Commerce mourn. Most of our West India vessels have arrived in season, though much property remains abroad. At the eastward they are laying up their ships, and " the mourners go about the streets."

Lower Canada.

We learn that His Excellency the Governor-in-chief intends to embark on Thursday next on board the Kingfisher on a short cruise to the River Saguenay.

A letter from an intelligent Gentleman of Upper Canada, now in London, to his friend in this city, dated 10th May, says that Sir James Kempt is certainly to be the future Governor-in-Chief of these Provinces.

Yesterday about 8 o'clock Sir James Kempt embarked for Halifax, in the Colonial Brig Chebucto under a salute from the Citadel, His Excellency was attended by Captain Hamilton, A. D. C.

It is now certain that Lieut. General Sir James Kempt succeeds the Earl of Dalhousie as Governor in Chief, and, it is said, Sir Francis Burton will follow Sir James Kempt in the Government of Nova Scotia.

We are desired to state that as the departure of His Excellency the Governor in Chief will not take place till the end of August, the Stewards of the Quebec Races have determined to change the meeting from the 27th to the 20th of that month.—Quebec Mercury.

FROM THE STAR.

SIR,—All your readers must have seen an account of the proceedings latterly had in the Court of King's Bench at York. To enable therefore those who take an interest in discussions of this nature, to form an opinion upon the matter in controversy, I here give the clause of the Statute, on the construction of which, a difference of opinion has arisen in that Province. The words of this clause, are.

"That there be constituted and established and there is hereby constituted and established a Court of Law, to be called and know by the name and style of His Majesty,s Court of King's Bench, for the Province of Upper Canada, which shall be a Court of Record of original jurisdiction, and shall possess all such powers and authorities as by the law of England are incident to a Superior Court of civil and criminal jurisdiction, and may and shall hold pleas in all and all manner of actions, causes or suits, as well criminal, as well real, personal and mixed, arising, happening or being within the said Province, and may and shall proceed in such actions, causes or suits, by such process and course as shall tend, with justice and despatch, to determine them and may and shall hear and determine all issues of law, and shall also hear, and by and with an inquest of good and lawful men, determine all issues of fact that may be joined in any such action, or belonging to their feilings, and as aforesaid, and judgment thereon give, and execution thereof award, in as full and ample a manner as can or may be done in His Majesty's Courts of King's Bench, Common Bench, or in Exchequer in England. And that His Majesty's Chief Justice of this Province, together with two Puisne Justices, shall preside in the said Court, which Court shall be holden in a place certain, that is, in the city, town or place where the Governor or Lieutenant Governor shall usually reside; and until such place be fixed, the said Court shall be holden at the last place of meeting of the Legislative Council and Assembly."

If the question of construction of the clause of the Statute, were now mooted, for the first time, I should not hesitate to say, that the Court of King's Bench, erected in virtue of this Statute, was not competent to exercise, in the absence of the Chief Justice, the powers conferred upon that Court. The Statute gives to the Court "all such powers and authorities, as by the law of England are incident to a superior Court of Civil and Criminal Jurisdiction." It is not the presence of either of the Chief Justices of the King's Bench or of the Common Pleas is necessary to constitute the one or the other of these Courts.

The words of the Statute, conferred upon each of the Members of the Court, the right of presiding therein, a right which could not be held or exercised by either of the Puisne Judges, except in the absence of the Chief Justice.

The Court of Appeals also erected by the same Statute, sect. 33, is composed " of the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, or person administering the Government of the Province, the Chief Justice of the Province, together with two or more members of the Executive Council of the Province," which is declared, " shall compose a Court of Appeal, for hearing and determining all Appeals of such Judgements or sentences as may be lawfully brought before them." Let this clause, where the intention of the Legislature was manifestly to render the presence of one or other of these high public functionaries essential for the formation of a Court of Appeals be compared with the first mentioned clause, and we shall be further confirmed in the opinion, that the Legislature did not mean, that the Chief Justice of the Province, should be essential to the formation of the Court of King's Bench in Upper Canada. So I would have thought if the question had been now mooted, for the first time: but after this construction of a Statute known in the Law, to wit, the contemporaneous exposition of it acquiesced in by all the authorities within the Colony, it does, I own, affect one with much surprise, that an honorable Judge of that Court, should have had the courage to have set up his own particular opinion against all the reasons and all the authority from usage which were arrayed against that particular opinion.

With respect to the case of Burke referred to by the learned Judge, it has not the most remote bearing upon the present question. The Provincial Statute of Lower Canada, 36 Geo. III. Sect. 3, commonly called the Judicature Act, provides, "that for the administration of Justice, in criminal cases, there shall be held by two or more Judges, Justices of the Court of King's Bench, one of whom shall always be the Chief Justice of the Province or the Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench at Montreal, within two Sessions of the said Court of King's Bench, in every year for the cognisance of all crimes and criminal offences, at &c.' The two temporary Statutes authorising two Justices of the King's Bench to hold Courts of Criminal Jurisdiction having expired the above provision of the 34th Geo. III. came anew into operation and Burke having been convicted subsequent to the expiration of these Statutes, before two Justices of the King's Bench, in the absence of the Chief Justice, the Court could not proceed to pronounce sentence against him. The only inference that can be drawn from this Statute, is, that if the Legislature of Upper Canada meant that the presence of the Chief Justice, should be essential, they would have used to carry into effect, such their intention, the common technical expression, quorum unus which is to be found in the clause in the act of the Legislature of Lower Canada.

Upon the whole, it is to be regretted that the learned Judge should have expressed an opinion which may be erroneous and is certainly calculated to disturb the minds of His Majesty's Loyal subjects in U. C. and to shake to its very foundation, the confidence of the people, in the due administration of Justice, and disquiet men's minds in relation to many of the proceedings of Courts there, for years and years back.

An observation is met with in some of the Upper Canada papers relating to this matter of a very extraordinary character, it is, that Sir Peregrine Maitland, residing at Stamford, the Court of King's Bench ought to be held there.

The residence of Sir Peregrine Maitland may be at Stamford, that of the Lieutenant Governor of Upper Canada is at the Government House in York.

REVIEW of Mr. E. REYERSON'S Letters to the Honorable & Venerable Archdeacon Strachan, &c

No. 4.

Archdeacon Strachan's words, which seem to have given rise to the wrathful spirit evinced in the opening paragraphs of Mr. R's. fourth Letter, are—"has it not been the primary object of all enemies to regular Government to pull down Religious Establishments?"—And if Mr. Egerton Reyerson and certain of his compeers be actively engaged in that work of destruction—engaged, at least, in the attempt to effect that fearful annihilation:—what does it evince but a repugnance to "submit himself to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake?" an hostility to that which is by law established, and consequently no particular respect for the law which establishes? in short, a satisfactory illustration of language elsewhere used by the Archdeacon that "principles are by such Teachers inculcated by no means friendly to the civil and Religious institutions of Great Britain."
