In Mr. R's. elaborate attempt to state the prejudicial influence of Religious Establishments—notwithstanding his hint of access to numerous and able writers on the subject—we discover no authority produced in support of his positions, unless what can be gleaned from the "moral Philosophy" of Dr. Paley. This, to be sure, is in many respects a valuable work; though by no means from the best work of that eminent divine—and on the subject wherein Mr. R. condescends to exalt himself of his support, he is decidedly at variance with almost every other divine of the Church of England, and is most successfully combated by Archdeacon Daubeny in his well known and able "Guide to the Church." But as Mr. Reyerson seems to recognize as "the tendency" of a similar Establishment here, its "giving stability to good Government," and its "attaching the Colony to the Parent State;" we need do no more than make our acknowledgements to him on the attempt at sublimity which follows. Had he Lucretius, or the story of Tom Thumb before him at that critical moment of excitement? Perhaps both; and thus his eyes "in a fine frenzy rolling"—might have made a luckless, though very possible transition from one to the other, and produced the unhappy effect we observe at its conclusion from the highest elevation of the sublime, to the lowest abyss of the bathos. But the swellings of Mr. R's. fancy seem to have proportionally swollen his irascible propensities, and he foams in a tumult of "indignation!" yet, fearing perhaps that the "parturiens mons" issue in the ridiculous mus," or dreading the consequences which once encountered from a certain animal's aspiration to the hugeness of the Ox, he suddenly seizes the tri-corner'd hat and powdered wig of Archdeacon Paley, and struts away with all the magnificence of the jackdaw in the stolen plumage of the bird of Juno.

The opinion, that had an efficient Ecclesiastical Establishment been provided for America, England would not have lost that Colony,—however it may excite the wonder and provoke the resistence of Mr. Reyerson—has nevertheless its advocates amongst men of somewhat higher stamp. It seems to have had weight with a person of the excellent character and literary celebrity of Dr. Philpots, who confidently promulgated it before a Public Meeting, some months ago in London. Had there been any mal-exertion of the influence of the Church of England Clergy in America, during those tumultuous times, its impression upon the people seems to have been very completely effaced; for, at present, the Episcopal Church of the Union. But not only the inferior Clergy, but the "Bench of Bishops" also seem to come under the lash of our libeller's tongue; and they, in defiance of all historical testimony, are adduced as one of the main instigators of a war of extermination against the Colonists. Indeed from the violence of this Gentleman on that long-forgotten subject, and from the disregard to truth which that violence has created, we would be led to believe that he is remarkably friendly to the institutions, &c. of a foreign country, be his feelings what they may towards that Government to which he professes allegiance and attachment. Indeed the undisguised hostility expressed to at least one branch of this Government, renders such professions very equivocal. There seems a studious appeal to keep buried grievances, and one which could have no pertinency unless when directed to the American Emigrants—a studious resuscitation of decayed animosity—a jealous effort to provoke a belief of wrongs and infringements, and to awaken a resistance to those imagined evils —an attempt to excite ill-feeling and discord—which must stamp Mr. Reyerson a very wicked—we are not prepared to say how dangerous—an intermeddler.

"Talibus Alecto dictis exarsit in ira"

To show the propensity of this writer, to wrest the simplest things to the most inapplicable conclusions, he attempts to adduce a similarity betwixt the feelings of a people on the approach of a hostile fleet, and the sentiments awakened by the prospect of 2,000 Clergymen established in this country! He is truly a most marvellous metaphor-framer—bringing to mind the well-known allusion of the poet to such monstrous co-alitions of incongruities;

"Humane capiti cervicem pictor equinam
Jungere si velit, &c.
Spectatum admissi risum teneatis, amici!"

I dare say, however, that to a well-disposed mind the prospect of such a body of Clergymen, at a future day, when the population of the country would warrant the establishment, is by no means ungrateful; for amid the wanderings of the mind into futurity, can it fail to rest with delight upon such a scene as two thousand temples erected here, where lately all was wildness and solitude, to the service of the Most High God—of two thousand servants of their "Master in Heaven" there leading the devotions of assembled Christians—of two thousand congregations all engaged in the uniform worship of their Universal Parent; actuated by "one heart and one soul" in the oblation of "one reasonable service" to the God who protects, who hath redeemed, and who sanctifies them!

"Have you any proof?" continues Mr. Reyerson, "that establishments attach subjects to their Government more closely than they would otherwise be?—No, Sir, the Bible would answer that. Where? Mr. Reyerson,—Is it where it records the punishment of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, for rebellion against an Established Religion and constituted Priest-hood?—where it adduces the withered arm of Jeroboam as a dissuasive from his profane assumption from the sacramental functions?—where it relates, in later days, the wickedness of those who "despise Government, who are presumptuous, self-willed, and not afraid to speak evil of dignities." Again, "reason would frown upon you: only, however, the reason of the peculiarly enlightened Mr. Reyerson for the Bible itself, in the formation of a Religious Establishment, gives a caution to our reason in maintaining a similar structure. Furthermore, "History would contradict you": where?—Is it where it records the frenzy of those, who, having broken through the restraint of a Religious Establishment, created anarchies, and under the conduct of an hypocritical usurper—who covered crime with Religion's prostituted mantle, deluged the Kingdom with blood?—Is it where it relates, in crimson characters, that execrable revolution in France, where the Altar being overthrown, and the restraints of Religion flung away, a series of horrors ensued, at which the most distant posterity will shudder?

But how ridiculous it is to attribute every convulsion, every persecution that has occurred in the world—every aberration of mankind from the purity of Religion—every grievance and oppression in the political—every error in the civil management of States and Nations, to the influence of Religious Establishments?—And how disingenuous is it to exclude carefully, all the evils which have resulted from their absence—to keep out of sight all the positive good that have ensued from them? On the latter I shall probably have a better opportunity of dilating in my next.

As for the Loyalty of Dissenters in England,—what has that to do with the present question?—Has it been impugned—has it been doubted by the Archdeacon?—Nor any admiration from him on the increase of Sectarianism here, were quite inapplicable to the Dissenters of Great Britain. They have no foreign connection, and consequently are not subject to the influence which must, as long as such a connection exists, in some measure bias their political feeling, and sway their political conduct. It is particularly inapplicable to the British Methodists; for they do not even admit that they are Dissenters from the Established Church: they retain a connection with that Church; very generally resort to it for the Baptism of their children, and almost uniformly unite with its Members in the celebration of the Lord's Supper.—Besides, they, in many cases, adopt its liturgy; and there is reason to believe that the connection betwixt them and the Church, is becoming closer every day.

Notwithstanding the expressions of Mr. Wilbraham, we beg to assure Mr. Reyerson, that the Bishops of England were amongst the first to resist the encroachments of James II.—far more ready, indeed, than the Commons, who returned all compliance to a most imperious Speech from that Monarch; nor were the Universities backward in opposing his unconstitutional and tyrannical requisitions. The well-known trial of the six Bishops—the first objects of his actual persecution—ought to be remembered by Mr. R.; and as to their alledged opposition to the Revolution which Mr. R. is so willing to credit, it amounted to nothing more than an opinion that, in the existing state of things, a Regency would be preferable to the decided elevation of the Prince of Orange to the Throne. In the one case where the purity of Religion was encroached upon, they showed, by their noble resistance, that "God was to be obeyed rather than man"; in the other, they manifested a discreet reverence for "the powers that be."

It is unnecessary to follow Mr. Reyerson through all the stale cant which succeeds: it is only necessary, at present, to denominate his tirade upon the dangers of ecclesiastical usurpation, cloven-footed Establishments, iron-clawed religious institutions, as a screech-owl, vox et præterea nihil.

The blessings of an establishment may be noted hereafter, by his humble servant,

MONITOR.

July 2d, 1828

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, JULY 19, 1828.

We have no later intelligence of importance from Europe.

It will be seen by extracts which we have made from American Papers, that the new Tariff Bill of the United States, which went into operation 1st July, is a most unpopular measure. The effects on the Commerce of the Country, amounting as they do, to an almost total prohibition of imports, cannot but be productive of much injury.—The Sovereign people of the South, have begun it appears, to talk of Sovereign and independent rights, and of "resistance," to the General Government, in language, which has already had applied to it the epithet of "Treason."

The result of the late Election in favor of the Attorney General, appears to have thrown the Editor of the Canadian Freeman into a paroxysm of rage, which to use an expression, lately of some note, seems to have produced "a most alarming crisis."—Like one of the Canine species laboring under the dreadful effects of hydrophobia, he snarls and snaps at every one in his way—be he friend or foe. The ungovernable rage he is in, has led him into the most gross and glaring inconsistencies. He tells us, when that rage is more especially directed against the Attorney General, mingled too, with a portion of libel against the Returning Officer—that

"The Attorney General, however, we hear, received between twenty and thirty bad votes, and the Election will be contested, as well upon this ground, as that of partiality and corruption, upon the part of the Returning Officer, and we have no doubt, but that it will be made void."

Soon after, however, he reflects upon Dr. Morrison's firmness and determination in the pursuit of honor, to the injury of his friend Robert Baldwin, and tells us that he "offered to stake $50 that the little Doctor would lose"—The friends of Mr. Morrison it seems were as conscious what the result would be, as was the Freeman, and were unwilling to stake their money with him, on the certainty of losing it. We cannot therefore be surprised, when he tells us that "none of his friends would take us up." All this took place before the Election, but now that it is over, and that neither the Freeman, nor Dr. Morrison's friends are disappointed at its result, we are told that the "Election will be contested,"—because th. Freeman "hears," that between 20 and 30 bad votes were received for the Attorney General. We rather wonder that the Freeman, had not offered to "stake" his $50, that Dr. Morrison would win,—at all events we cannot but admire the simplicity with which he tells us, that he offered a contrary bet, and that not one of Mr. Morrison's friends would take him up.—But now that the Election has terminated just in the way that the Freeman, and those who supported him, anticipated, we must expect ed the same side with him, anticipated, we must expect ed the same side with him, anticipated, we must expect ed the same side with publications—and above all, with scraps from the Colonial Advocate.

To close the subject altogether—we did hope that there would not have been a necessity for alluding to it again—and that the sentiments we avowed last week, were such as would have been responded by the friends of both parties. We have counselled the Freeman before, when the impotence of rage and disappointed hope, appeared to have blinded his judgment—we do it again by repeating the sentiments we allude to—"with the close of the poll, we close all those feelings which may be supposed to produce any thing like warmth during the contest."

The Dinner to Mr. Robinson, by his Electors and friends on his re-election for the Town of York, was as we have already stated, attended by a very numerous party. We should have given a list of the Toasts which were drank, last week, but the lateness of the hour prevented our doing so. We have since however procured a copy of them, and the sentiments which they express, are such, as will, we have little doubt, be most heartily concurred in by every person who is actuated by the same cordial wish, for the prosperity of the Province, as were those, who were present on the occasion.

1. The King.—Long may he continue to reign in the affections of a Loyal and happy people.—(Music.—God save the King.)

2. The Royal Family. (Rule Britannia.)

3. The Army and Navy.—(Britons Strike Home.)

4. The Colonial Secretary and His Majesty's Ministry—May the people of Upper Canada, acknowledge with gratitude their exertions to promote the interests of the Province. (Home, Sweet Home.)

5. Sir Peregrine Maitland, His Majesty's Representative in U. Canada. May he ever continue, as He always has done, to exercise the Royal prerogative with mercy—to dispense justice with impartiality, and to ensure the confidence and respect of a Loyal and affectionate people. (British Grenadiers.)

6. John B. Robinson Esq.—our worthy Representative. While he emulates with others the approbation of his countrymen, may he stand a firm pillar of the State—not a weathercock on the top of the edifice to show which way the wind blows.—("Up and over then a' Johnny.")

7. The Executive and Legislative Councils of U. C. (Hearts of Oak.)

8. The House of Assembly.—May their wisdom tend to bind together, the People, and the Government, by the strong and powerful ties of mutual interest, and reciprocal obligation. (Canadian Boat Song.)

9. The Militia of Upper Canada—Their former distinguished conduct, is the best pledge of their future devotion to their country, in the hour of danger.—("Scots wha ha.")

10. The Trade of Canada—May its increasing prosperity, and good faith, ensure the confidence of distant countries. (Speed the Plough.)

11. Public Improvements—While the influence of the Parent State, and of public spiritual individuals is exerted to improve the country, by making canals to flow through it—may those whom duty it is, make it their study to emulate the noble example, by "mending their ways." (Meeting of the Waters.)

12. Lady Sarah Maitland, and the Fair of Upper Canada. ("Sweet Lass of Richmond Hill.")

On Mr. Robinson's health being drank, he rose, and returned thanks for the honor which had been done him: He was repeatedly cheered, during the course of a long Speech, in which he explained many important parts of his public conduct, shewing in the most satisfactory manner, that the aspersions which had been cast upon him, were unjust and without foundation: he vindicated the course he had pursued in Parliament, as being founded on the principle contained in the Toast, and said that if the desire of popularity which actuated him could make itself subservient to every Gale which blew, he should rather consult the wishes of the people in the Edifice, than the firm supporter of those constitutional rights which he felt satisfied it was the desire of his Electors to see inviolably preserved. He concluded by offering in a Bumper "Prosperity to the Town of York," which was drank with three times three.

The Liberty of the Subject.—We never before heard that it was considered as a crime against the peace of Society, for any number of persons, in any civilized Country in the world if they thought it proper to do so, to assemble and dine together, for the purpose of celebrating an important event.—That such a thing amounted to a breach of the Peace—and that "in any well ordered Police Town in the old Country, every man of them" who had assembled on such an occasion "would be committed for the night,"—because he spoke a little louder, and drank a little more wine than usual, was a piece of information, reserved for us, (and we believe for every one else,) until the publication of the last Canadian Freeman.—Out of the Public Dinner given by his Electors and Friends, to the Attorney General on his Re-election as Representative for the Town (owing to the annoyance of the Freeman no doubt)—with a bumble of "uproar—broken bottles—flying glasses," &c. The Freeman has manufactured an article to adorn his columns and "hesitates not to say"—that in any "well ordered Police Town in the old County, every man of them would be committed for the night,"—aye—sent to Jail—here it good people of York, let it be known from one end of the Province to the other—on the high authority of that immaculate Patriot—the Canadian Freeman—the bold asserter of the "Rights and Liberties of the Subject,"—that if any of you hereafter meet and dine together, to celebrate any public event—and should be guilty of any excess of mirth, or good humour, you may have some "Peeping Tom" about you—who will send the Police upon your back, and clap you all into the County Jail.

We have no doubt that if he possessed the power—this bold declaimer, on the "Liberty of the Subject, on other occasions—would have committed, during the Election, "every man" who voted contrary to his directions, and sent us all from the "convivial board" to Jail, to keep them company, just by way of taking care of our morals.—He "took a stroll" hearing the "revelry."—and "the doors being open, he peeped in"—

"Oh hell! what do mine eyes with grief behold."

All was harmony, good humour, and mirth.—each pleased with himself and his neighbor.—This to the Freeman was

"A sorry sight to look upon."

he who had laboured so hard, to produce discord and animosity. His "virtue" was so much shocked, that he must take another "peep" next morning, and "O tempora, O Mores"—he saw "particles of glass;" and to his late "Meetings" at the Tan Yatts, he is indebted for a similie, on beholding the "wreck"—they looked he says—"like bark on the floor of a Tanners bark Mill"—beautiful!!!

A statement by Mr. H. Sherwood, on the subject of certain misrepresentations which have been made in the Colonial Advocate, respecting a conversation which took place between that Gentleman & Judge Willis, supported by affidavits and certificates from the parties whose names have been alluded to, is now in the press, and will be published in a few days—We are satisfied that when the public shall have seen Mr. Sherwoods statement, with the documents which accompany it, any unfavorable impression which may have been produced by the unfounded assertions of the Advocate, relative to his conduct, will be completely done away.—It is perhaps but an act of justice on our part, as we have not before alluded to the circumstance, to say, that Mr. Sherwood made immediate application to us, to publish his statement in contradiction to that contained in the Advocate, but the press of other matter prevented us complying with his request. In the hope that it would not have been delayed to this period we have not hitherto alluded to the subject, as the statement contains a more ample relation of the facts than could otherwise be given; but we feel it necessary at this time, to say thus much, in order that it may not be supposed that the misrepresentations of the Advocate will not be exposed, in the manner they deserve.

General Election.—By the Niagara, we learn, that the Election for the Town of Kingston, closed on Wednesday; Donald Bethune, Esq. is returned, by a majority of 37.

At New Market, County of Simcoe, Mr. Cawthra is returned. Majority 9.

By the latest information from Port Hope, the Poll stood as follows: Boulton 202, Fothergill 139, Smith, 129.

Town of Niagara,—Robert Dickson, Esq., returned. Majority 25.

The Election for the County of York commences on Monday next; Mr. W. Rae, James E. Small. Esq., Mr. Ketchum, Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Thompson, and the Editor of the Advocate, are Candidates.

Port of Quebec.

ARRIVED.

June 25., Brig Carnation, Shields, coals.
....Bark Barbadoes, New York, ballast.
....Brig Tarbolton, Froom. 6 settlers.
....Brig Montreal, (omitted) Ship Briton, Bristol, ballast.
June 25., Schooner Haughton, Haughton, Fayal, ballast.
....Brig Kingfisher, Gaspé.
....Brig William Shearton, Newcastle ballast.
....Schooner Mary Ann, Mary Ann, New York, Naval Stores.
....Schooner Betsey, Betsey, Halifax, general cargo.
29., Brig James, Sligo. 140 settlers.
....Bark George Canning, New-York, ballast.
....Brig Agnes, Limerick 210 settlers.
30., Brig Concord, London, ballast.
....Bark Amity, Halifax, ballast.
July 1., Brig Triton, London, ditto.
....Brig Charles Forbes, Newfoundland, ditto.
....Brig Unice, Halifax, rum, &c.
....Brig Rainbow, Newfoundland, ballast.
....Schooner Little George, Halifax, Rum and sugar
....Schr. Harrington, Dublin. 95 settlers.
....Bark Ythan Dublin. 187 settlers.
2., Bark Westmoreland, Hull. 62 settlers
....Schooner Marie Louisa, Halifax, 9 settlers.
....Brig Eclipse, Newfoundland, wine and tea.
....Brig Hero, New-York, ballast.
....Schooner Marie Louisa, Halifax, sugar.
....Brig Garland, Liverpool, salt and coals.
....Brig Grecian, Cork, 94 settlers.
....Brig Commerce, Limerick. 120 settlers.
3., Schooner William, Halifax sugar.
....Schooner Gustelus, Arichat, Mackerel
....Schooner Eliza Ann, Arichat, Mackerel,
....Schooner Two Brothers, do. do.
....Brig Trapper, Fortescue, (Nefld.) ballast.
....Brig Britannia, Sligo. 103 settlers.
....Brig Mayflower, Ballyshannon, bricks and potatoes.
4., Brig Eliza Ann, Belfast, 190 settlers.
....Brig Fortune, Fortescue, do. load at Rivière du Loup.
5., Brig Joseph Hume, Liverpool, 31 settlers.
....Bark Thomas, Cork, 124 settlers.
....Brig Amaranth, Hambro' ballast.
....Brig Tinby, Baltimore, U. S. do.
....Brig Henry, Newry, 86 settlers.

Birth,

On Tuesday, the 15th instant, Mrs. Bergin of a Son.

FOR SALE.—Fifteen Acres of Land suitable for pasture, and situated on the East side of the Don River, and within one mile of York.—For particulars apply to the Subscriber.

JOHN SCADDING.

York, 23d June, 1828. c. 4

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.—Tenders will be received at this Office until the 1st Aug. next ensuing, for performing sundry Repairs, and White-washing the undermentioned Buildings, viz:

Commandant's Quarters,
Royal Engineer's Quarters and Drawing Room,
Men's Log Barracks and Butler's Barracks,
Surgeon's Quarters and Garrison Hospital,
Officer's Quarters and Mess Establishment,
Men's two story Barracks,
Cook House at Butler's Barracks,
Guard Room at Fort George,
Barrack Master's Quarters,
Barrack Office,
Commissariat Office,
Sub. Royal Engineer's Quarters & Engineer Office.

Specifications of the above work may be seen at the Barrack Office at Fort George, and at the Royal Engineer's Office, York.

W. I. GREIG,
D. A. C. G.

Commissariat Office,
Niagara, 15th July, 1828. } a. 6

CANADA COMPANY.

NOTICE is hereby given to persons settled in this Province, who may be in the expectation of friends coming from the United Kingdom, that the Canada Company have appointed the following Agents at the outports, to afford information to persons intending to emigrate, viz:—

At Liverpool, Hugh Matthie, Esq.
At Bristol, W. D. W. & W. E. Acraman,
At Plymouth. Messrs. Hawker & Sons,
At Hull, Richard Tottie, Esq.
At Swansea, J. C. Morgan, Esq.
At Oundle, Thomas Bell, Esq.
At Edinburgh, James Adam, Esq.
At Leith, Messrs. James Duncan, & Co.
At Glasgow, Alexander G. Gilkison, Esq.
At Greenock, Messrs. Robert Ewing, & Co.
At Aberdeen, Messrs. John Catto, Son, & Co.
At Haddington, John Haldane, Esq.
At Dublin, John Astle, Esq.
At Cork, Sexton Baylie, Esq.
At Belfast, William Grav, Esq.
At Ross & Waterford, Messrs. Watson & Graves,
At Limerick, John Carroll, Esq.
At Londonderry, George Buchanan, Esq.

The Company, at their Office, St. Helen's Place, London, will receive any money which Emigrants may wish to deposit, in order to be at their disposal in America; and bills will be given for the same, in sums not less than £10, which will be current at Quebec, Montreal, New-York, and York in Upper Canada, at the highest rate of exchange. The Agents will instruct parties applying to them as to the manner of obtaining these bills.

The Agents are furnished with Maps of Upper Canada, and Diagrams of every Township in which any of the Lands assigned to the Company are situated—to be shewn to all persons intending to emigrate. The Company's Agents at Quebec, Montreal, & New-York, (whose names are subjoined) will give them, on arrival, every information and assistance. Contracts have also been made, under which, those who are provided with recommendations from the Company's Office in London, or from their Agents at the outports, will obtain from the Agents at Quebec, Montreal, or New-York, tickets or way-bills of the route and mode of conveyance to Upper Canada, by means of which, at the expence of five dollars for grown persons, or half that sum for children, they will be enabled to go forward without delay or difficulty. JOHN GALT,
Superintendant.

At Quebec, John Davidson, Esq.
At Montreal, Messrs. Hart Logan, & Co.
At New-York, J. C. Buchanan, Esq.

Canada Company's Office,
York 28th May, 1828. } x 1

DISSOLUTION OF PARTNERSHIP.—The partnership heretofore existing, between the undersigned, is this day dissolved by mutual consent.

JOHN EASTWOOD,
COLLIN SKINNER,
ROBERT STONEHOUSE.

York, 29th May, 1828

The busines will in future be carried on, under the firm of John Eastwood, and Collin Skinner, who are duly authorised to settle all the affairs of the late partnership.

JOHN EASTWOOD,
COLLIN SKINNER.

York, 30th May, 1828. i 1.

THE LOYALIST.

VOL. I. No. 7.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY JULY 26, 1828.

REVIEW of the PASTORAL LETTER of the CLERGY of the CHURCH OF SCOTLAND in the CANADAS.

(Continued.)

With respect to the alleged extinction of piety among those who conform to the Church of England, we shall select a single example out of a thousand, which may serve as an answer to such an assumption: It is taken from an account of the Mission of the Church of England at the Red River Settlement,* and may be perfectly relied upon

"We have two places of Worship * * * * three years ago the number of communicants was only six; they are now increased by steadyfast, out of which twenty-four are Scotchmen —half-breed natives, twenty-seven—Englishmen five—Indian females three—Orkney-men fourteen. All these, at their examinations previous to admission, gave the most unequivocal proofs of their being influenced by the love of Christ as a constraining principle."

With respect to the extinction of patriotism, we know that there are multitudes of instances in which gallant and loyal Scotch soldiers and sailors have conformed to the worship of the Church of England, and often continued from mere unconstrained choice, to attend it, after their retirement from the service, without impairing a particle of their feeling for their King and country.

We must be permitted also to say that the Scottish divines, when their attention was turned to the cases of their own countrymen who have joined the Church of England in Quebec, Montreal and York,—whatever may be the instances in which they have reason, as it appears, to impute unworthy motives to them, might have discovered instances also subversive of the principle which they were seeking to establish.

The Pastoral Letter was put together, we presume, by different hands, and although we have not the most distant suspicion who is particularly the writer of any particular portion of it from end to end,—there are some passages which we think the authors as a body will much regret to have put forth.—We think that they can hardly conceal from themselves that it is the character of these passages quorgere vaces in vulgum ambiguas—that they have a tendency, more or less direct, to throw an unjust odium upon the Church of England, to infuse into the popular mind a groundless jealousy of her progress,—to alarm new prejudices against her, to inflame those which have been assiduously created by some of her enemies, and to identify the cause of the Church of Scotland in this contest with the feelings and interests of other parties, that would in fact not be benefited by her being admitted to share in the support derived from the reserves.

Civil, political and religious liberty are represented in p. 13, as in a manner and extreme danger from the prospect of a "formidable and numerous body of clergy supported by funds, altogether independent of the people—WE MIGHT ALMOST ADD, OF THE GOVERNMENT ON THE STATE."

First, with respect to the people. Are not the clergy in Scotland supported in a manner which is, in a very great degree, independent of the people?—Is not their maintenance secured to them by law?—Is it not compulsory upon the heritors of whatever denomination to contribute the quota imposed upon them for this purpose?—Are none of their pastoral charges in the appointment of the Crown or of private individuals of rank and fortune?—Is the success of their particular party here, in the present attack upon the Church of England, is represented as almost essential to the liberties and the prosperity of these Provinces, yet, if they succeed, will not their Ministers be equally supported by funds independent of the people?—And will not the Crown exercise patronage if it confers endowment!

Quod mihi vitio vertis id tibi sperus tuuli fore.

Again, where is the real cause for alarm with respect to independence upon the Government or the State?—Do not the authors of the pamphlet know what the Government has done with respect to the reservation of patronage to itself?—Did they not know what influence and control and inspection is to be exercised by the Government in the university of Upper Canada? Do they not also know,—or if not, ought they not to have informed themselves before they raised a cry like this, that the clergy-corporations are only the Stewards of the Government, and that, although the reserves are solely applicable to the support of the clergy, the whole charge, distribution and allotment of the proceeds is in the hands of the Crown?—We feel no alarm for the Government from any church in these Provinces—but least of all, surely, is it to be apprehended from the Church of England. Is it not a characteristic difference between the establishments in North and South Britain that the former disclaims a subjection in certain points to Government to which the latter, upon principle, submits?

The sort of parallel which it is attempted to institute between the policy by which it was attempted to force Episcopacy upon the consciences of the Scottish people in the time of the Stuarts, and the policy, as it is called, of the Church of England in the Canadas in seeking to preserve to herself and her people her own rights and her own means of support, is one which in no single point can be maintained.—It is the fashion to remember all the sins of the Church of England, sunk into shade as they are by her glories, and to forget the sins of the parties with whom she has contended. The Protestant world at large was slow in thoroughly learning the principles of toleration.—Certainly they were not at all more understood by the Presbyterians or the Puritans with which the Scottish divines of Canada claim kindred. (p. 17) than by the Church of England.* The blue laws of Connecticut, framed by the very persons who had been driven abroad by persecution in England themselves, were marked by a spirit of the most bitter intolerance. If the cruel persecutions practiced by some of the supporters of Scotch prelacy, are now to be made a handle against the Church of England, the Church of Scotland shall by parity of reasoning be made answerable now, for all her past proceedings, which we presume she would very little desire, and if she is to identify herself, according to the intimation of the Pastoral Letter, with the republican and fanatical, opposed to the arbitrary and high-church party in the civil wars, she must take her share in the everlasting stain upon men, who, under the assumption of extraordinary sanctity and professing to be the chosen champions of God himself, proceeded to gorge themselves with plunder and blood. When it is considered how their case was aggravated by the enjoyment of the light of the Gospel and by the assumption of the garb of Godliness, we do conceive that more horrible wickedness was never known than that which was seen in the regicide faction of those times

The following passage we take entire from page 9 of the Pastoral Letter:—

"It is easy to preflect that if the LURE of two hundred pounds sterling a year continue to be held out to induce the teachers of foster of these passages quorgere vaces in vulgum ambiguas—that they have a tendency, more or less direct, to throw an unjust odium upon the Church of England, to infuse into the popular mind a groundless jealousy of her progress,—to alarm new prejudices against her, to inflame those which have been assiduously created by some of her enemies, and to identify the cause of the Church of Scotland in this contest with the feelings and interests of other parties, that would in fact not be benefited by her being admitted to share in the support derived from the reserves.

Civil, political and religious liberty are represented in p. 13, as in a manner and extreme danger from the prospect of a "formidable and numerous body of clergy supported by funds, altogether independent of the people—WE MIGHT ALMOST ADD, OF THE GOVERNMENT ON THE STATE."

First, with respect to the people. Are not the clergy in Scotland supported in a manner which is, in a very great degree, independent of the people?—Is not their maintenance secured to them by law?—Is it not compulsory upon the heritors of whatever denomination to contribute the quota imposed upon them for this purpose?—Are none of their pastoral charges in the appointment of the Crown or of private individuals of rank and fortune?—Is the success of their particular party here, in the present attack upon the Church of England, is represented as almost essential to the liberties and the prosperity of these Provinces, yet, if they succeed, will not their Ministers be equally supported by funds independent of the people?—And will not the Crown exercise patronage if it confers endowment!

Quod mihi vitio vertis id tibi sperus tuuli fore.

Again, where is the real cause for alarm with respect to independence upon the Government or the State?—Do not the authors of the pamphlet know what the Government has done with respect to the reservation of patronage to itself?—Did they not know what influence and control and inspection is to be exercised by the Government in the university of Upper Canada? Do they not also know,—or if not, ought they not to have informed themselves before they raised a cry like this, that the clergy-corporations are only the Stewards of the Government, and that, although the reserves are solely applicable to the support of the clergy, the whole charge, distribution and allotment of the proceeds is in the hands of the Crown?—We feel no alarm for the Government from any church in these Provinces—but least of all, surely, is it to be apprehended from the Church of England. Is it not a characteristic difference between the establishments in North and South Britain that the former disclaims a subjection in certain points to Government to which the latter, upon principle, submits?

The sort of parallel which it is attempted to institute between the policy by which it was attempted to force Episcopacy upon the consciences of the Scottish people in the time of the Stuarts, and the policy, as it is called, of the Church of England in the Canadas in seeking to preserve to herself and her people her own rights and her own means of support, is one which in no single point can be maintained.—It is the fashion to remember all the sins of the Church of England, sunk into shade as they are by her glories, and to forget the sins of the parties with whom she has contended. The Protestant world at large was slow in thoroughly learning the principles of toleration.—Certainly they were not at all more understood by the Presbyterians or the Puritans with which the Scottish divines of Canada claim kindred. (p. 17) than by the Church of England.* The blue laws of Connecticut, framed by the very persons who had been driven abroad by persecution in England themselves, were marked by a spirit of the most bitter intolerance. If the cruel persecutions practiced by some of the supporters of Scotch prelacy, are now to be made a handle against the Church of England, the Church of Scotland shall by parity of reasoning be made answerable now, for all her past proceedings, which we presume she would very little desire, and if she is to identify herself, according to the intimation of the Pastoral Letter, with the republican and fanatical, opposed to the arbitrary and high-church party in the civil wars, she must take her share in the everlasting stain upon men, who, under the assumption of extraordinary sanctity and professing to be the chosen champions of God himself, proceeded to gorge themselves with plunder and blood. When it is considered how their case was aggravated by the enjoyment of the light of the Gospel and by the assumption of the garb of Godliness, we do conceive that more horrible wickedness was never known than that which was seen in the regicide faction of those times

The following passage we take entire from page 9 of the Pastoral Letter:—

"It is easy to preflect that if the LURE of two hundred pounds sterling a year continue to be held out to induce the teachers of other denominations to enter her communion, and if the EPISCOPAL CHURCH RECEIVE SUCH CANDIDATES WITH THE SAME FACILITY AS HERETOFORE into priestly office, the number in all likelihood will continue to increase. All those with whom moral principle and feeling have less influence than the influence of the present world, WILL BE MOST TO THE BISHOP OF QUEBEC for orders, and will desire to be PUT INTO THE PRIESTS OFFICE FOR A PIECE OF SILVER AND A MORSEL OF BREAD."

The authors penned this remark and more to the same purpose after reading the subjoining passages in the letter of the Bishop of Quebec.

"Considerable numbers of the Religious teachers themselves of other persuasions within this diocese, have, from time to time, offered to transfer their services to the Church of England and not a few of these have been approved and enlisted under her banners, where they so much influence the future character of this great world, WILL BE MOST TO THE BISHOP OF QUEBEC for orders, and will desire to be PUT INTO THE PRIESTS OFFICE FOR A PIECE OF SILVER AND A MORSEL OF BREAD."—Bishop's Letter, p. 9.

"The authors penned this remark and more to the same purpose after reading the subjoining passages in the letter of the Bishop of Quebec.

"Considerable numbers of the Religious teachers themselves of other persuasions within this diocese, have, from time to time, offered to transfer their services to the Church of England and not a few of these have been approved and enlisted under her banners, where they so much influence the future character of this great world, WILL BE MOST TO THE BISHOP OF QUEBEC for orders, and will desire to be PUT INTO THE PRIESTS OFFICE FOR A PIECE OF SILVER AND A MORSEL OF BREAD."—Bishop's Letter, p. 9.

"Now, himself a non-conformist and represented by the translator of Mosheim who was a Presbyterian, to be too favorable to his own party, speaks thus of the Church of England and the Puritans:

"Both parties agreed too well in asserting the necessity of an uniformity of public worship and calling in the sword of the Magistrate for the defence of their several principles * * * * Neither party were for admitting that liberty of conscience and freedom of profession which in every man's sight as far as is consistent with the peace of the Government under which he lives."

* Christian Sentinel, Vol. I, page 286.

* Neal, himself a non-conformist and represented by the translator of Mosheim who was a Presbyterian, to be too favorable to his own party, speaks thus of the Church of England and the Puritans:

"Both parties agreed too well in asserting the necessity of an uniformity of public worship and calling in the sword of the Magistrate for the defence of their several principles * * * * Neither party were for admitting that liberty of conscience and freedom of profession which in every man's sight as far as is consistent with the peace of the Government under which he lives."

York June 17th, 1828.

SIR,

In obedience to the commands of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, I have considered the several questions referred to me by your letter of this day, to which as early an answer as possible is required, and I have perused Mr. Justice Willis' paper transmitted with your letter, and containing a report of statements publicly made by him on the first day of the present Term, which have given occasion to the reference made to me by His Excellency.

The first question is—whether in the absence of the Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench from this Province, that Court can be legally holden?

Our Court of King's Bench derives its existence from the Provincial Statute of 34, Geo 3. ch. 2nd.—By the first Clause of that Statute it is enacted, "that there be constituted and established, and there is thereby constituted and established a Court of Law, to be called and known by the name and style of His Majesty's Court of King's Bench for the Province of Upper Canada, which shall be a Court of Record of Original Jurisdiction, and shall possess all such powers and authorities as by the Law of England are incident to a Superior Court of Civil and Criminal Jurisdiction, and may, and shall hold plea in all, and all manner of actions causes or suits, as well criminal as Civil, real, personal, and mixed, arising, happening or being within the said Province, and may, and shall, proceed in such actions, causes or suits, by such process and course as shall tend, with justice and despatch, to determine the same, and may and shall hear and determine all issues of Law, and shall also hear, and by and with an inquest of good and lawful men, determine all issues of fact that may be joined in any such action, cause or suit, as aforesaid, and judgment therein give, and execution thereof award, in as full and ample a manner as can or may be done in His Majesty's Court of King's Bench, Common Bench, or in matters which regard the King's Revenue by the Court of Exchequer in England.

"And that His Majesty's Chief Justice in this Province, together with two Puisne Justices, shall preside in the said Court,—which Court shall be holden in a place certain. that is, in the City, Town or place, where the Governor, or Lieutenant Governor, shall usually reside; and until such place be fixed the said Court shall be holden at the last place of meeting of the Legislative Council and Assembly."

The three next succeeding clauses are proper to be considered; they are in the following words:—

"And in order that certain stated times be fixed for the sitting of the Court, be it enacted by the authority aforesaid, that four periods of Sessions or Terms be appointed in each year, successively to be known by the names of Hilary, Easter, Trinity, and Michaelmas Term. That the Hilary do commence on the third Monday in January, and end on the Saturday of the ensuing week. That Easter Term do commence on Monday next, after the Sixteenth day of April, and end on the Saturday of the ensuing week. That the Trinity Term do commence on the third Monday in July, and end on the Saturday of the ensuing week. And that the Michaelmas Term do commence on the first Monday in October and end on the Saturday next ensuing. And that the first and last days of every Term and every alternate day from the first, not including Sunday be return days.

"Provided always and be it hereby further enacted, That when the Court shall have good reason to believe there will not be sufficient business to require their daily attendamce throughout the Term, they may be at liberty to adjourn the Court on any return day, to the next immediate return day.

"And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all Writs to be sued out of the said Court shall issue in the King's name, and be tested by the Chief Justice or in his absence, by the Senior Judge of the Court, and be returnable on some return day in Term time, and that not less than fifteen days inclusive, shall always intervene between the teste and return of the first process that shall be directed to the Sheriff of the Home District, or the District in which the Court shall be holden, and that. not less than forty days inclusive, shall always intervene between the teste and return of the first process into every other District."

The Commissions to the Judges, who are appointed by Patent, issue to them individually, and every Commission which I have seen authorises and commands the Judge whom it appoints, "to hold the Court of King's Bench at such times and in such places as the said Court may, and ought by law to be holden."

I advert to the terms of the Commission, not under any impression that they can have an operation repugnant to the provisions of the Statute, but because I think it material that the whole case should be fully placed in view—and because, if the words of the Statute, are such as to leave it uncertain what the Legislature may have meant, which however, I do not conceive they are, then the terms of the Commissions which the King has uniformly issued under the Statute, may, I think, very fairly be regarded as of some importance, and especially if they are found to be in direct accordance with that construction, which may appear the most sensible.

This question having presented itself incidentally in answering a reference made by the Government to the Solicitor General and majestly some months ago, we gave an opinion upon it, which I beg now to offer to you, as being the view taken by us of the proper construction of the Statute 34 Geo. 3, at a time when no contrary opinion had been advanced—it did not seem necessary then to enter minutely into the question, because it arose indirectly, and as all the Judges, in common with all those of many kind, had invariably given that construction to the Statute which we adopted, its correctness was rather assumed than attempted to be proved.

I continue to be of the same opinion—I think that the Court of King's Bench in this province continues to exist, although the Chief Justice be dead or absent from the Province, and that the remaining Judges or Judge of that Court can legally sit in Term, and hold the Court, although the Chief Justice be not present—and I submit these reasons for my opinion.

1st. Although it is an acknowledged maxim of Law, "that a Statute ought sometimes to have such construction as is contrary to the letter—and although a thing which is within the letter of the Statute is not within the Statute unless it be within the intention of the makers," I do not consider it necessary, in this case, to resort to those admitted rules for the consiruction of Acts of Parliament. The legal operation of the words, on which the question turns, even considered without reference to the nature of the subject to which they are applied, and without reference to any other part of the Statute, or any subsequent Statute, is not in my opinion, at variance with the construction which they have invariably received.

"To preside" is, according to Dr. Johnson, "to be set over"—it is, by other compilers, stated to mean the same thing as "to superintend, to manage."—A President is defined to be "one placed with authority over others:" "one at the head of others."—The word has no express reference to the actual presence of their object :—" presens" and "præsidens" I take to be very distinct in their signification, as they are in their derivation—and the Latin word "præsidet" is thus rendered, "to have the management, care, government, or charge of." When, therefore, it is declared that "His Majesty's Chief Justice of this Province together with two Puisne Justices shall preside in the said Court,"—looking at no other part of the Act, and setting aside every argument ab inconvenienti that must attend any other construction, I understand it to be meant that the Court is to consist of three Judges—that over the Officers of the Court, and over the Court generally, there shall preside a Chief Justice and two Puisne Judges.—I look upon the Statute as a warrant and instruction for the appointment of so many and such Judges, not perhaps limiting the number so that more can not be appointed, (that need not now be discussed)—but as providing for an establishment of Judges to that extent, an establishment, like all others, subject to casualties—and leaving it to be conferred from the remaining provisions of the Act, or to be settled by practice, or more naturally and obviously by the known principles which govern the proceedings of similar Courts, whether the presence of all, or of a majority of the Judges then appointed "to preside," shall be necessary to the performance of any Act of the Court, or whether one alone, in the absence of others, is not necessarily invested with the authority of the Court.

There is a " Court of King's Bench"—a Court of Record of Original Jurisdiction" always existing in the Province, although its sittings are confined to certain Terms. In this Court or over this Court (for I consider the one preposition so used to have the same meaning as the other) a Chief Justice and two Puisne Judges preside—that is " usually presides." It is not necessary, in my opinion, that in the hall, in which they are to sit, they must all be present—No clause of this, or of any other Statute, enacts that in Terms: every argument of inconvenience and many arguments ex-absurdo would apply against such a construction, and there is accordingly, as I shall presently shew, clear enough evidence to be found, in more than one of our Statutes, that the Legislature never intended it, but that they certainly thought and meant otherwise. The error, as I conceive it, of such a Construction arises from the attaching to the word "Court" no other idea than that of a substantial visible Court occupying its Hall or apartment; in considering the word as used solely with reference to the " Court being in actual session." But I conceive that a person in a Judge of the Court of King's Bench, and may, with perfect accuracy, be said to be a Judge "in the Court of King's Bench" in this Province, while he is confined to his Room by illness, or is absent from the country on leave; and as much so as if he were on the Bench in the discharge of his duty—So a man is said to be "in the Privy Council," who may never have been in the Council Chamber, or a Captain in a Regiment which he has never joined, or from which he is absent on leave. Both ordinary and legal phraseology warrant this construction—With respect to Boards and Bodies of various kinds numerous instances might be produced of such an application of the term.

(To be continued.)

Miscellaneous.

ANECDOTES OF THE DALHOUSIE FAMILY.

(From Scott's Tales of a Grandfather.)

"While these wars were proceeding with increased fury, the Knight of Liddesdale, (Sir William Douglas,) and Murray, of Bothwell, returned to Scotland, having been freed from their imprisonment, by paying a large ransom; the Earl of March also embraced the party of David Bruce. An equally brave champion was Sir Alexander Ramsay of Dalwoley, (now Dalhousie) who, placing himself at the head of a brave troop of young Scotchmen, chose for his residence the large caves which are still to be seen in the Glen of Roslin, from which he used to sally forth and fight with the Englishmen and their allies. From this place of refuge he sometimes made excursions as far as Northumberland, and drove spoil to that country. No young Scottish soldier was thought fit to pretend to renown in arms unless he had served in Ramsay's band."

"A very noted entertainment of this kind was given both to Scottish and English Champions by Henry of Lancaster, then called Earl of Derby, and afterwards King Henry the 4th of England. He invited the Knight of Liddesdale, the good Sir Alexander Ramsay, and about twenty other distinguished Scottish men, to a tilting match, which took place near Berwick.—After receiving and entertaining his Scottish guests nobly, the Earl of Derby began to enquire at Ramsay in what manner of armour the Knights should tilt together.

"With shields of plate," said Ramsay, "such as men use in tournaments."

This may be supposed a peculiarly weighty and strong kind of armour, intended merely for this species of encounter.

"Nay," said the Earl of Derby, we "shall gain little if we "fight in such safety; let us rather wear the lighter armour "which we wear in battle."

"Content are we," answered Sir Alexander Ramsay, "to fight in our silked doublets, if such be your Lordship's " pleasure."

"William Ramsay was borne through the helmet with a lance, the splinter of the broken spear remaining in his skull, and nailing his helmet to his head. As he was expected to die on the spot, a friar was sent for, who heard him confess his sins, without the helmet being removed:

"Ah, it is a goodly sight," quoth the good Earl of Derby, much edified by this spectacle, "to see a Knight confess his "shrift (that is confession of his sins) in his helmet. "God send me such an ending."

But the issue of the strift was over. Alexander Ramsay, to whom the wounded Knight was a brother, or kinsman, made him lie down at full length, and with surgery as rough as their pastime, held his friend's head down with his foot, while, by main strength, he pulled the fragment of the spear out of his brain. Then William Ramsay started up, and said, "that he should do well enough."

"Lo! what strong hearts men may bear," said the Earl of Derby, as much admiring the surgical treatment as he had done the religious. Whether the patient lived or died, does not appear."

"I have told you how Sir Alexander Ramsay and Sir William Douglas, the Knight of Leddesdale, assisted each other in fighting against the English They were great friends and companions in arms. But Ramsay, having taken by storm the strong Castle of Roxburgh, that King bestowed him the office of Sheriff of that County, which was before held by the Knight of Liddesdale As this was placing another person in his room, the Knight of Liddesdale altogether forgot his old friendship for Ramsay, and remaining in the neighbourhood, came suddenly upon him with a strong party of men, while he was administering justice at Hawick. Ramsay, having no suspicion of injury from the hand of his old comrade, and having few men with him, was easily overpowered, and being wounded, was hurried away to the lonely castle of the Hermitage, which stands in the middle of the marasses of Liddesdale. Here he was thrown into the dungeon, where he had no other entrance except some grates at the top of a round tower, a granary above; and there lying a little while in that dreadful condition, the brave Sir Alexander died. This was in 1341. More than four hundred years afterwards, that is, about forty years ago, a mason, digging away the ruins of Hermitage Castle, broke into a dungeon, where lay a quantity of chaff, some human bones, and a bridle bit, which were supposed to mark the vault as the place of Ramsay's death The bridle bit was given to Ramsay of Dalhousie, (Sir Walter Scott,) who presented it to the present gallant Earl of Dalhousie, a brave soldier like his ancestor Sir Alexander Ramsay, from whom he is lineally descended."

STATISTICS OF TURKEY.

The appellation of "Turk," was first adopted in the middle ages, as a general title of honour to all the nations composing the two principal branches of Tartar and Mogul. The word "Tus," as an adjective, signifies "sublime and pre-eminent"—as a substantive, it means "a governor."

The Divan.—This State-Council meets twice a week, in the Emperor's palace, on Sundays and Thursdays. The Grand Vizier is the presiding officer; the six Viziers of the bench, the Testerdar or High Treasurer, the Reis-Effendi, the Commissioners of the Exchequer, and the military leaders (the Agas), compose the Divan. The Sultan does not enter the room, but from an adjoining chamber he hears all that passes.

On great occasions a General Council is convened; all the leading persons of the Empire are summoned—the Clergy, the Military and other officers, attend. Such a Divan is called "Ajak Divani."

The Grand Vizier.—This officer receives his appointment from the Sultan. He has the care of the whole empire : he manages the revenue, administers justice (both in civil and criminal affairs) and commands the armies. Upon his appointment, the Sultan puts into his hands the seal of the empire, which is the badge of his office, and which he always wears on his breast. His income amounts to six hundred thousand dollars a year, exclusive of presents and other perquisites.

The Viziers of the Bench are styled Bashaws of three horse-tails—three horse-tails being carried before them when they march.

Beglee-beg.—A Begler-beg is a Viceroy, with several provinces under his command.

Pachas—A Pacha (Bashaw) is a Governor under a Begler-beg; a Sangiac is a Deputy Governor.

The Reis-Effendi is the Lord Chancellor and Secretary of State; the name signifies "chief of the writers."

The Testerdar is the High Treasurer. The Public Treasury is never touched, even by the Sultan, except in cases of the utmost emergency. The Sultan has his Private Treasury, which he uses at will. Some idea may be formed of the enormous wealth in the Public Treasury, which has been accumulating under forty Sultans, from a statement of Prince Cantemir. He says that, in his time, Thirteen Millions and a half of rix dollars were annually returned to the two Treasuries.

The Mufti is the Chief-Ecclesiastic. His name signifies "an expounder of the law"—he is consulted on all emergencies. Should he commit treason, he is punished in a curious manner; he is put into a mortar, in one of the Seven Towers, and there the law-expounder is pounded to death. Such a punishment has not been inflicted since the reign of Amwrath IV.

Mussulman.—This term is a corruption of "Moslemim," which signifies "persons professing the doctrine of Mahomet."

The Horse-tails.—Three horse-tails, surmounted by a golden ball, form the military ensign of the Ottomans. Its origin was as follows: One of their Generals was at a loss how to rally his men, their standards having been lost in a fierce conflict. He cut off a horse's tail, and elevated it on the point of a spear. His troops renewed the fight, and came off conquerors.

The Sublime Porte.—Constantinople is styled "The Sublime Porte—the Porte of justice, majesty, and felicity." There have been various disputes about the origin of this appellation. Payne, an eminent geographer of the last century, says that it is derived from the magnificent gate built by Mahomet II. at the principal entrance of the Seraglio.

Constantinople.—It is wonderful how little is generally known with regard to this magnificent city. Its situation is the most delightful in the world. With a harbour affording room for a thousand ships—with the Euxine on its East, the natural current of the wealth of Asia is through the Bosphorus; and with Marmora on its South and West, the productions of Arabia, Egypt and Europe, are at the command of its commerce. In the hands of a commercial nation, it would soon become the centre of the commercial world. It is encompassed by walls, which have twenty-two gates—six towards the land, six along the port and ten on the Marmora; these have stairs and landing places.

Constantinople, like Rome, is an " urbs septicollis." Its seven hills rise from the shore in the form of an amphitheatre; gardens, cypress groves, palaces and mosques, rise one above the other, and present a view worthy of all admiration. The castle of the Seven Towers is used as an honorable prison. A square tower stands in the sea, memorable as the prison of Belisarius. Near this, are a great many cannon, level with the water, and guarding the entrance of the port and the seraglio.

The Seraglio.—This word signifies " a palace." It is a collection of palaces, a mile and a half in compass, closed by a strong wall, on which are several watch-towers, where guard is kept by night and day. The principal gate is of marble, and is called The Pope. The gardens are very extensive; the buildings are of white stone, are crowned with gilded turrets and spires, and shining in surpassing splendour.

St. Sophia.—The Church of St. Sophia (Divine Wisdom) was built by Justinian, in the 6th century. The dome is 113 feet in diameter, resting on arches, supported by immense marble pillars, and the staircase and pavement are also marble. Here is the tomb of the Emperor Constantine.

The Exchanges are splendid buildings, and the richest and rarest productions of the East are daily sold in them, in large quantities. Add to these the numerous mosques, the thirty churches of the Greeks, and those of the Armenians, the many private palaces and public buildings, and you have some idea of the opulence and splendor of the Capital of the Great Ottoman Empire.

NEW WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE.—The Subscriber respectfully announces to the Merchants of York and its vicinity, that he has opened a Wholesale store, Corner of Market-Lane and Church-Street; where he is receiving a large and suitable assortment of Dry Goods, direct from Great Britain : consisting principally of the following articles :—

Grey and Bleached Factory Cottons,
do. do. Sheetings,
Striped and Check'd Cottons,
Scotch Hollands,
Fine, Superfine, and Brussels Carpeting,
do. do. broad and narrow Cloths,
do. do. Cassimeres,
Bombazettes, Bombazines, and Shalloons,
Says, Lastings, Cambletts, &c.,
Tartans and Union Checks,
Moleskins, Barragans and Fustians,
Red and White Flannel,
Chintzes, Calicoes and Furnitures,
Book, Jacconet and Mull Muslins,
Batiste Moslins, Striped, Check'd and figured,
Ginghams, Publicate and Verona Handkerchiefs,
Cotton and Linen Bed Tick,
Russia Duck, Osnaburgs, Hessins and Sheetings,
Canvas, Bagging, Dowlas, Drill, &c.
Umbrellas, 28, 32, and 36 inch,
Bandanna, Barcelona, Gauze & Barrage, Handkerchiefs,
Silk Hose, and Hat Gloves,
Black and Green Crape Veils, &c.
Black and Coloured sewings, Legee Twist, &c.
Galloons, Silk and Cotton Ferrets,
Black and W. Brown Linen Thread, Cotton Spoons and Balls,
Silk, Cotton, and Merino Shawls,
Cotton Tapes, Bobbin, &c.
Sattins, Gros de Naples, Levantine Ribbons, &c. &c.—
Which he will sell off at very reduced prices, for cash only.

JAMES DOUGALL.
x. 7

York, 23d July, 1828.

THOMAS MOORE,—TAILOR, Front Street, York. Near the Steam Boat Hotel.—Begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has just opened, and offers for Sale, a choice assortment of Goods, Selected by himself at the Manufactories in England, which he can recommend as being of choice quality, consisting of, Superfine, Blue ; Black ; Scarlett : Green ; Olive ; Grey and Drab, West of England Broad Cloths.—Black, Blue and Grey, Double and single Milled Kersymeres. Forest Cloths. Lasting and Corduroys.—Beverteens ; Fustians ; Cantons. Jane ; Drab, and Striped Brown Drills. Fine Welsh Flannel ; White and Blue Flannel. White and Grey Cottons. London printed Calicoes and Chintzes. Fancy Vestings. Printed Muslins. Sewing Silk ; Twist ; Thread and Rich Gilt Buttons.

MILITARY EQUIPMENTS,

consisting of, Regulation Swords ; Patent Leather Regulation Waist Belts, with rich Gilt clasps. Rich Gold Bullion Epaulettes. Silk Regulation Sashes.—Rich Gold Velvet Lace, and Gilt British Militia Buttons. Red, White and Green, Regulation Feathers, with rich Gilt Tubes for do.

The whole of which will be disposed of on reasonable terms, or made up to order, agreeable to the latest fashions, at the shortest notice.

York, 14*th July,* 1828. x 6

STRAYED OR STOLEN, a few days since a Sorrel Pony his hinder legs white half way up, or nearly so, his tail long, and a white stripe in his face, between four and five years old.

Any person giving correct information at this Office where the said horse may be found by the owner shall be liberally rewarded.

x 6

York, July 15*th,* 1828.

NEW AUCTION AND COMMISSION STORE. Edward Fowke of Port Hope, in the prosperous District of Newcastle, offers himself as a General Commission Agent and Auctioneer. His Extensive Stores, Graneries, and Vaults, for Goods or Produce committed to his charge, together with a large Distillery on his entrance of the port and the seraglio.

All property given into his hands shall be disposed of agreeable to instructions: the proceeds will be immediately paid soon as received. From arrangements entered into with a forwarding Establishment in Kingston, he will engage to forward any articles of Produce intended for the Lower Province, and will attend to any instructions given for the disposal of the proceeds and make reasonable advances in Cash when intended for immediate sale.

From his long residence, and a perfect knowledge of the Country with the method of transacting business, he is induced to hope he is entitled to a share of public favor.

Port Hope, 1st January, 1828. 32*tf.*

P. S.—Any Merchandize committed to his charge from Quebec, Montreal, Kingston, York, or any part of the United States, shall be attended to with the greatest punctuality.

NOTICE.—Captain George McDonald 68*th Regiment,* being about to leave this Province, requests that all demands against him may be immediately presented for Settlement.

York, July 19, 1828. a 6

THE MARMORA IRON WORKS.—The sale of these Works has been postponed until further notice. But the Wares of the Establishment are offered for sale at 25s. per Cwt. for all heavy Castings, Potash-Kettles, &c.—and at 27s. 6d. per Cwt. for Sugar-Kettles, Hollow Ware, Ploughs, &c delivered at Kingston, and Wheat, Flour, and Potash will be taken in payment, at the Current price in that Market—or a discount of five per Cent made for Cash.

Among the advantages which purchasers and dealers in the articles, would derive from giving a preference to the Castings of these Works, are the following :—

First—The Wares are fully of a better quality, in regard to manufacture than those got elsewhere.

Secondly.—They are offered for sale, at prices, at least 25 per Cent under the rate at which the same kind of goods can be laid down in Kingston from Montreal, without taking into consideration the risk of transport.

Thirdly.—From the very superior quality of the Metal from which the Wares are Manufactured, and from the experience already had, by many who have used them for a length of Time,—The Subscriber is warranted in saying, that they are by no means so liable to crack, as the Carron, or other Ware of similar Establishments, known to the people of this Province.

The receiving payment in the Produce of the Country, should be considered, an advantage (when combined with the other circumstances above enumerated), of sufficient importance to buyers, to secure a preference for the consumption of a Provincial manufacture, of superior quality and comparatively low price.

The undersigned in the name of Peter McGill, Esquire, the present Proprietor, who has expended large sums, in perfecting the Establishment, since it came into his hands having, as he thinks, clearly shown, that it is their interest, appeals to the Patriotism of the Merchants, and others of this Province, to give aid, support, and countenance to so great and praiseworthy an undertaking. The support required, is simply, to give a preference in their purchases to the Manufactures of Marmora, which articles of daily necessity and consumption—both good and cheap. instead of sending to the United States, and Lower Canada, for Articles of a similar description comparatively of inferior quality, and higher prices.

A. MANAHAN.

York Auction, Mart, & Commission Ware-House.

M. & R. MEIGHAN,

Opposite the Market Square.

HAVE for Sale, an assortment of Household Furniture, consisting of Mahogany, Curled Maple and Cherry Pillar Side Boards, Secretaries, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Breakfast Dining and Card Tables, Work Tables, Bason Stands, Feather Beds and Bedding; A London made grand Piano; an excellent Sulkey Carriage; a Mangle for pressing clothes; A Jack for roasting Meat; A very elegant fourteen day Time Piece with Italian Marble Frame and Glass Shade; Double and Single Barrel Percussion Lock Fowling Pieces and Pistols; Bridles, Saddles. Double and Single Harness; Gilt and Plain Frame Looking Glasses; Some Handsome Vases and Shining Ornaments; An extensive assortment of Elegant Dry and Fancy Goods of every description, Hardware, Jewellery, Crockery and Glassware; Groceries, Tea, Wine and Spirits; together with an Elegant Collection of Books, Stationery, Perfumery, Patent Medicines &c.

Regular Auction Sales every week.

x 6.

York, 1828.

NEW GOODS: Just Received. W. BERGIN begs leave to inform his Friends and Customers that he has received by the late arrivals a Complete and fashionable Assortment of Goods, suitable to the Season, which he will dispose of as usual on the most reasonable terms.

n 3.

York. 19th June, 1828.

THE SUBSCRIBER being about to enter into a different line of business, begs to return his sincere thanks to his numerous friends and the public, for the favors and the confidence they have reposed in him for the last ten years; and he trusts that he may enjoy a continuance of their support.

He is desirous of having the affairs of the late firm of Job and Erasmus Fowke settled as adjusted on or before the tenth of March next.—After that date they will be placed in the hands of his Attorney; and that as he is entering on a new business he will not give credit after the 6th inst.

ERASMUS FOWKE.

Port Hope, 1*st January,* 1828. 32*tf.*

FOR SALE.—A new GIG, with Leather top.

Also, another with Cloth top, London Springs, Wheels, &c.—Inquire at the shop of George Wales, Coach Maker, from London, West end of King-Street.

☞ Carriages of every description, made and repaired.

York, 20th June, 1828. c. 3

FOR SALE.

SIX Building Lots, very eligibly situated in the immediate vicinity of the Roman Catholic Chapel.

These Lots, from their proximity to the Town, possess all the local advantages of Town Lots, with the addition of exemption from Town rates.

Terms of Sale, which will be made easy to purchasers, may be learned of G. POWELL.

England.

London, May 28.—Mr. Huskisson, Mr. W. Lamb, and Lord Palmerston, have resigned.

The papers of the 29th state that the place of Mr. Huskisson, as Colonial Secretary, is to be filled by Sir George Murray. This gentleman filled the post of Quarter Master General under the Duke of Wellington, and was afterwards Commander in Chief in Ireland—The Earl of Dudley had resigned the seals of the Foreign Department. The Courier acknowledges the difficulty of filling the place of a minister who has inspired such respect in foreign courts by his talents, and conciliated all foreign ministers at our court by the elegance of his manners, and the openness and straightforwardness of his intercourse with them, and adds, that the successor is unknown.—The Courier affirms with great confidence, that the changes will produce no change in the system of domestic or foreign policy—says that Sir Henry Hardinge, and the Right Hon. Mr. Fitzgerald, have been named as successors to Lord Palmerston, as Paymaster of the Army, but that nothing positive was known as to this appointment, Mr. P. being absent in Ireland. Mr. Charles Grant's successors was not known, nor was that of Mr. William Lamb, as Chief Secretary of Ireland. A council of the present ministers assembled on the 28th, consisting of the Duke of Wellington, Earls Bathurst, and Aberdeen, Lord Melville, Lord Lyndhurst, Mr. Peel, Mr. Goulburn and Mr Herries.

The Courier attributes the resignation of Mr. Huskisson and Lord Palmerston, to the vote which they felt bound to give, in opposition to Mr. Peel, we suppose on the East Retford Election bill. Mr. Huskisson, after giving his vote, thought it necessary to write to the Duke, stating that having conceived himself obliged to vote against Mr. Peel, he was ready to tender his resignation, if his grace thought proper. No idea of Mr. H's resignation, would have been entertained by the Duke, the Courier says, if the letter had not been written; but it having been written he did not feel himself bound to solicit him to remain. The other resignations appear to have been in consequence of these two.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

The packet ship Brittannia, Captain Marshall, arrived last evening from Liverpool, whence she sailed on the 9th ult. having been detained from the first by head winds. A letter of the 9th says, "the weather continues so unfavorable, that the Silvanus Jenkins, for N. York, and Algonquin, for Philadelphia, will not attempt to go to sea to-day."

We have received a London paper of the 8th, and Liverpool accounts to the 9th. Our regular files of intermediate dates are on board the Silvanus Jenkins, which is the packet of the 8th.

The papers announce the following new appointments in the Ministry :

In the Cabinet—The Earl of Aberdeen, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in the room of Earl Dudley.

Sir George Murray, Secretary of State for the Colonial Department, in the room of Mr. Huskisson.

Not in the Cabinet—Viscount Lowther, the First Commissioner of the Woods and Forests and Land Revenue, in the room of the Right Honourable Charles Arbuthnot.

The Right Hon. Charles Arbuthnot, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, in the room of the Earl of Aberdeen.

Sir Henry Hardinge, Secretary at War, in the room of Lord Palmerston.

Thomas Peregrine Courtenay Esq. Vice President of the Board of Trade, in the room of Mr. Frankland Lewis.

Mr. Courtenay will be sworn in a Privy Councillor.

Horace Twiss, Esq. Under Secretary of State for the Colonial Department, in the room of Lord F. L. Gower.

George Banks, Esq. Secretary to the Board of Control, in the room of Mr. Courtenay.

We have copied an account of a series of military operations between the Turkish and Russian forces, said to have taken place on the line of the Danube, between the 13th and 15th of May. The authenticity of the statement is denied in the journals, and by some considered a total fabrication.

Lord Heytsbury, formerly Sir W. A. Court, was to set off immediately for the Russian head quarters, to act as the correspondent of the British government.

Vice-Admiral Sir Edward Codrington is to be recalled from the command of the naval forces in the Mediterranean, and will be superseded by Vice-Admiral Sir Pulteney Malcolm, K. C. B.

It is stated that the Austrian government has borrowed the sum of eight millions of florins from the house of Rothschild and others.

The British stocks had risen to 87¼.

A Russian Squadron of 4 ships of the line, and 4 frigates, was daily expected in England, on the way to the Mediterranean.

The Challenger was to proceed from Portsmouth to Quebec, to convey the Earl of Dalhousie to England.

THE DUKE OF WELLINGTON'S NEW CABINET.

From Bell's Weekly Messenger.

Now, whatever may be the success of the present Cabinet, we are ready to admit that the Duke of Wellington has been compelled to take his present measures. He might indeed, have resigned; but this would have been most base and ungrateful. His desertion of his Royal Master at such a period would have been an act of civil cowardice not to be forgiven. It would have had the direct tendency of throwing the Government into the hands of the Whigs, who are more disliked by the people than even the Ultra-tories; and who, when they once get them under control, would govern them with that well-known moderation which a haughty and self-sufficient aristocracy has been seen to exercise over the multitude. The Church is naturally fearful, as indeed are all sects of Christians, of the founders of the London University, and do not wish to see the people disciplined and educated into a complete contempt of all religion. The fundholder does not require such guardians as Lord Grenville and Mr. Hume, who would destroy the pledge given to the public creditor, and in any season of difficulty and pressure perhaps recommend a deduction of the dividends. No class of the people feels much respect for the ethic which attends Mr. M'Culloch's lectures, though the Marquis of Lansdown and Sir James Mackintosh may be found amongst the brilliant assembly, where the professor instructs them that the Irish absentees cause no possible injury to their native country by withdrawing all their expenditure from it. We cannot, moreover, help thinking that no class of the community would wish for the resumption of those councils which were very nearly kindling a civil war in England,—in the absurd attempt of planting a free charter by the aid of British Bayonets: An expedition it is to be recollected, which has cost this Kingdom half a million of money, as irrecoverably lost to it as if thrown in the sea, and has terminated with riveting the chains of a fierce despotism on the neck of our ancient ally. And perhaps, whilst we are upon this subject, we may allude to another series of measures which the country cannot wish to see repeated; that a thousand pounds and two hundred thousand pounds in sending envoys, consuls, and Ambassadors to the South American States, which were just as incapable of making alliances and treaties as gangs of gipsies, or hordes of Brigands; from the only public profit which has ever been learned was the art of making loans upon securities not worth the paper on which they were engrossed.

We think we have said enough to show that the country could not desire a Whig Government. What then could Lord Wellington do upon the resignation of Mr. Huskisson? Was he to have bent his knees to him, and implore him to return, and in case of his obduracy, to have resigned himself? Heaven forbid such a degradation! such a prostration of honour,—such an abandonment of the King his Master.

It is absurdly argued that the whole Councils of the Ministry will be changed on account of the late secession. That Mr. Huskisson, like Sampson, will carry away with him the pillars of the building.—That the principle of Free Trade and low import duties will be now given up; that the Agricultural Question will be forthwith abandoned; that a thorough and entire change will take place in the character of our foreign alliances; that Lord Eldon and the other abuses in the law will be reinstated in their pristine vigour and vicious integrity; in a word, that the system of the last ten years will undergo a complete revulsion and change. We confess that we have no apprehension of this sort; for with the single exception of Sir George Murray, who is to be the Colonial Minister, no new Member will be introduced into the Cabinet.

We have no doubt but that our foreign alliances will be as well conducted by Lord Aberdeen, a Nobleman of the first science and taste, of experience in foreign diplomacy, and of great reputation in the various Courts of Europe, as under Lord Dudley. Highly respectable as this nobleman is, every man of candour seems to think that his office will be ably supplied by Lord Aberdeen. We were sorry to lose Lord Dudley, but, surely, his successor is not an inferior man. What Lord Dudley knows only through theory and books, Lord Aberdeen has seen and felt in actual experience. Accomplished to taste and eminently formed, for the circle of a Court from high birth and early habits, Lord Aberdeen will be an embellishment to the post he now occupies. He has not merely travelled to collect the marbles of Athens and the perishable fragments of Greek taste; he has not sauntered through Italy and Greece merely to look at pictures and statues; but he has dived into the depth of diplomacy, and gauged and measured all the moral dimensions of foreign Cabinets in their respective countries. He has acted, not as the mere dilettante, but as the Statesman and Minister in most of the Courts of Europe. Such a nobleman as we have described is not likely to introduce any change in our foreign diplomacy which would be injurious to our national interest. On the contrary, we expect from him something at least as wise as the battle of Navarino, and more prudent than the expedition to Lisbon.

With respect to Sir George Murray, the only new member of the Cabinet, we consider him an excellent exchange for Mr. Huskisson. He is a military man of the first talents, self-raised and self-supported. He is, above all, a moderate man, no unpractised speaker, and well acquainted, from personal experience, with the business of the colonies. A man of talents and a man of business is useful in all departments, and such is Sir George Murray. He is, also, indefatigable and industrious, and without the taint of any of those odd notions which have corrupted the masculine mind of Mr. Huskisson.

We do not stop to answer the absurd objection that Sir George Murray is a military man. The Whigs when they were in power, gave us a civilian at the head of the Admiralty, a civilian at the Ordnance, and it was not their fault that they did not give us a civilian at the Horse Guards. If Lord Grey was deemed fit to preside at the Admiralty, and a wealthy fox hunting nobleman to take the first seat at the Board of Ordnance (and the Whigs had no scruple in this respect,) surely a man of great military renown and experience in all our numerous settlements, is not altogether unfitted to preside over a department which is charged with the especial care of the government of foreign forts and colonial dependencies, which are fully as much military as civil The objection, indeed, is perfectly absurd, and our colonists will still sleep in quiet without any alarm for the invasion of their civil rights, although the head of this department may wear military spurs and mustachios.

(From the Albion.)

The Ministry at now constituted, is, in reference to persons, ultra tory; but we have the pledge of Mr. Peel that the present policy of the country will in no wise be changed. The wisdom and moderation of the Duke of Wellington has gained him general confidence throughout the country, and the affair with Mr. Huskisson will rather add to than diminish that popularity. The people are tired of changes, and they rejoice that a Prime Minister has at last been found who has firmness enough to keep his place. The article quoted from Bell's Messenger shows this, and if further confirmation be wanted it will be found in the following remarks of Mr. Brougham made at the close of the debate before adverted to:—

Mr. BROUGHAM.—I shall abstain from entering into the circumstances which have been given in explanation and must properly given, when called for as they have been, of the resignations which have recently taken place. But that which I conceive to be more important than the speech of the Right Hon. Secretary—infinitely more important to the House and the country, is the Government at which has been formed, after the retirement from office of those who have lately withdrawn from the Councils of the King. That that Government, as it now stands, is mainly and essentially different—both in the character of the individuals of whom it is composed, and in the principle by which it is held together—from the late Cabinet, is what I believe no man will attempt to deny. Still, I think it right, under present circumstances, to abstain from any discussion of them also. I shall wait for and watch the operation and tendency of the measures which they propose, and the course of policy which they pursue; for, if vigilance was necessary at the beginning of the session, I conceive it to be no less so now than it was before. What measures they may think proper to pursue, it becomes not me, or any other present to hazard a conjecture For myself, however, I must be permitted to say, I feel great comfort from two pledges that I conceive to be in the possession of the House and the country One of these has been given to-night, the other is derivable from the character of the Noble Duke at the head of his Majesty's Government—the character which he is known to possess for good sense and discernment. Upon this point I do not think it necessary to proceed any further, for I see a prospect, considering the kind of government which has been formed, that the Duke of Wellington, looking upon him as a man of sense and prudence, will bring forward measures of retrenchment to satisfy England, and of conciliation to pacify Ireland; for I feel persuaded upon no other principle speculation could he hope to obtain the support of Parliament or the favorable opinion of the country at large. The other pledge I conceive, will be found in the circumstance of the Right Hon. Gentleman's continuing a member of that government and though nothing express has been stated, I take it to be the meaning of what has been said that there is to be no change whatever—that no attempt of any kind is to be made—to the same ever so much desiderated in one quarter, or ever so frequently regretted or pointed at by another—as alter the principles on which our foreign and domestic policy are at present proceeding, I take it that there is to be no deviation whatever from the sound, enlightened, and liberal principles which have hitherto governed into friends all men not base and discriminating in the country, and which have procured for his Majesty's Government the support and almost the admiration of every man in the country.

Mr. Secretary PEEL.—The separation which has taken place between my Right Hon. Friend and me, has taken place, I can assure the House, not from any difference of opinion subsisting between us on the general course of policy which the Government has pursued, and will pursue in the course which I, as an individual, have felt myself called upon to adopt I have uniformly been governed by a liberal conviction of the justice and expediency of the course I followed, and not from any compromising desire to conciliate the support of any individual or body of individuals. No one can be more sensible than I am of the inconvenience, personal and public, of making declarations which shall be binding for the future, but this I may venture to say, that I contemplate no change in our foreign relations, or in the general course of our domestic policy.

THE MINISTRY.

From the London Gazette.

At the Court at St. James's, the 30th May, 1828; present

The King's Most excellent Majesty in Council.

This day the Right Hon. William Lowther (commonly called, Viscount Lowther,) the Right Hon. Lieut. General Sir George Murray, the Right Hon. Sir Henry Hardinge, and the Right Hon. Thomas Fremantle, were by his Majesty's command, sworn of his Majesty's most Hon. Privy Council, and took their respective places at the Board accordingly.

His Majesty having been pleased to appoint the Right Hon. George Earl of Aberdeen, and the Right Hon. Lieut. General Sir George Murray, to be two of his Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, they were this day, by his Majesty's command, sworn two of his Majesty's Principal Secretaries of state accordingly.

His Majesty in Council was this day pleased to appoint the Right Hon. Thomas Peregrine Courtenay President of the Committee of Council appointed for the consideration of all matters relating to Trade, and for the Consideration of the Petition of the President of said Committee, for the time being.

The following is a list of the new appointments:

Lord Aberdeen, Foreign Secretary, in place of Earl Dudley.

Sir H. Hardinge, Secretary at War, in place of Lord Palmerston.

Sir G. Murray, Colonial Secretary, in place of Mr. Huskisson.

Lord Lowther, Commissioner of Woods and Forests, in lieu of Mr. Arbuthnot.

Mr. Arbuthnot, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, vice Lord Aberdeen.

Mr. Courtenay, Vice-President of the Board of Trade, in lieu of Mr. F. Lewis.

Mr. Horace Twiss, Under-Secretary of State for the Colonies, vice Lord F. L. Gower.

Mr. G Bankes, Secretary of the Board of Control, vice Mr. Courtenay.

Lord Ellenborough is to remain Lord Privy Seal. The Irish Secretaryship, in consequence of the resignation of Mr. Lamb, is not yet filled: and the office of Mr. Grant, President of the Board of Trade, is still vacant. Lord Lowther, Sir G. Murray, Mr. Courtenay, and Sir H Hardinge, have seats in the Cabinet

The Right Hon. Vesey Fitzgerald is spoken of as President of the Board of Trade, but nothing is yet settled.

The Chief Secretaryship of Ireland, which has been resigned by Mr. W. Lamb, is said to have been offered to Mr. Frankland Lewis, who declined it. Mr. Lamb's successor has not yet named.

An efficient appointment under the new Administration was offered to Mr. W. Horton, which he has declined.

Foreign Intelligence.

FIRST BATTLE BETWEEN THE RUSSIANS AND TURKS.

From the Nuremburg Correspondent, May 23.

"On the night of the 13th, a powerful body of the Russian forces crossed the Danube, near Sillistria; and the Turks, after an obstinate engagement on the 14th, in which they mustered more men than it was supposed could be brought together at the point where they were attacked, were defeated with a loss of between 9,000 and 10,000 killed, and 3,500 prisoners. The loss on the Russian side seems to have been by no means inconsiderable, amounting in all to 4,750 killed and wounded. The rapidity with which the passage of the Danube has been effected, at a point so far to the west as Sillistria, is extraordinary, and must contribute materially to the success of the campaign. In consequence of the action, a considerable Turkish force, amounting, it is said, to thirty-five thousand men, is shut up in the fortresses on the Danube. The details describe that the Russian divisions, after assembling on the 13th May, crossed the Danube, where the Turks, 3,000 strong, were encamped behind the garden of this place towards Rudschuk, under the command of Bona Mustapha, Pacha of Two Tails. The latter became aware of the passage of the van guard, under General Uwaroff; on seeing this, they sent some galleys, with cannon, to hinder the remainder of the troops from crossing; but after some opposition from the Russians, the vessels withdrew, and went further up the Danube; and the Pacha, with his troops took flight near Rudschuk, and lost many men by the pursuit of the Hussars and Cossacks. He abandoned all his camp, and some prisoners, among whom was a Chazuadar, dangerously wounded. Major Jurgenz had another affair with the enemy near the village of Czernowodica, where he passed the Danube with about 1000 men, some leagues above Rudschuk.—This affair lasted six hours. The enemy, who was then put to flight, left 200 dead on the field, carrying off his wounded. On the following day, the Serasskier Asan Bay, Pacha of Rudschuk, made a sally from that fortress, near Turkalay. He attacked the Russian Doctorow, with 15,000 cavalry and infantry, with great impetuosity, both by land and water. The General, however, defeated the enemy with great loss, and pursued him 20 wrests. The Turks had 2,500 men killed; the Russians took 159 prisoners, among whom is a Bim Pacha; one cannon and three standards, as General Uwarow and Yermaloff were marching with their divisions past the Castle of Kos[illegible]ty, they had a sharp action with the Turks. The Turks, whose cavalry alone, nearly fifteen thousand strong, was under the command of the Reis Effendi Abbu Ruzack, who was Ambassador at Vienna, attacked the Russians, and the infantry, nearly 40,000 men, under the command of the Colonel General of the Nizam Gedid, (new troops,) stood pretty firm. The Turks, by their superiority of force, at first succeeded in throwing part of the cavalry into disorder, but the rest of the cavalry stood firm; and full of defiles, contributed, as it hindered them from getting in proper order. But the infantry and horse artillery came to the support of the cavalry, and attacked the Turks with so much impetuosity that they totally put to flight all their corps, who were briskly pursued for several wrests on the road to Schumla and Browda. The Russians got possession of the whole of the Turkish camp, all the tents, a great quantity of ammunition of all kinds, 43 new brass cannon, 18 very large and 10 smaller mortars, and 107 standards; the numbes of the Turks killed amounts to between 9 and 10,000 men, and that of the Russians to 3,500 of all arms. The Russian loss amounts to 1,750 killed, and 3,000 wounded."

COUNTER-REVOLUTION IN PORTUGAL.

Despatches were received dated Lisbon, to the 23d May, and detail the commencement of the Counter-Revolution in Portugal. The Queen's party, and the regiments in Oporto and the neighboring districts, assembled in the barracks on the 17th ult. forming themselves into a Military Council to take into consideration the state of the country, in consequence of the projected usurpation of Don Miguel to the Throne. The Council, after a short deliberation, drew up a declaration of fidelity to the legitimate Sovereign, Don Pedro, and appointed a Regency to act in his name. The regiments which thus declared their attachment to Don Pedro, were five in number; three others in Tras-es-Montes were ready to co-operate with them; and the regiments in the Province of Minho, animated with the same loyalty, were marching to join them. The officers followed up the declaration of their sentiments by a spirited Proclamation, which may be viewed as an indictment for high treason against Don Miguel, whom it describes as a shame to Princes and a disgrace to Portugal.

The determination of the troops of Oporto and the neighboring districts, diffused the utmost consternation and dismay through the Palace. The accounts came down late as the 24th, when the counter-revolution was proceeding most prosperously. A provisional Regency has been established at Oporto, to which the Portuguese Minister at our Court has sent in his submission.

The Lisbon Gazette of the 23th, contains a scheme for the formation of a Volunteer Royalist Regiment of 2,692 men, under the command of Nobles and other great persons; and the partisans of Miguel issued an order to prevent the spread of manifestos. The arrests and persecutions were incessant in the capital, and they appear to have been multiplied by an impression among the Absolutists, that the Constitutional forces were marching upon Lisbon, and, therefore, that it was necessary to strike terror into the minds of the inhabitants who were opposed to the usurpation of Don Miguel. On the 25th ult. Don Miguel issued an address to the Portuguese, and particularly to the soldiery, in which he declares that principles of "the most solid justice" had caused him to take the resolution of convoking the Cortes, and that he desired nothing more than the welfare of the people, founded on the most rigid principles of legitimacy. In concluding his address, after denouncing the spirit of revolt, and entreating the military to remain faithful to him, he says, "They whom seduction has dragged to crime and who, acknowledging the error, shall present themselves, will be received; and of them who will not comply with this sacred duty the law shall decide the fate. People and soldiers of Portugal, unite yourselves to me, and let us for ever put an end to revolution!"

The Provisional Junta of Oporto has addressed letters to the Portuguese Ambassadors at foreign Courts, who had ceased their functions on the receipt of official intelligence of the usurpation at Lisbon, and it will find these agents disposed to resume their diplomatic duties at its call.

The Marquess of Palmella we understand, received on Wednesday despatches from this body; and, as it acts in the name of the King his master, while the Government of Don Miguel does not, his Excellency has, without hesitation, acknowledged the Provisional Junta of Oporto as the only representative of the sovereign authority of his master, and has resumed his functions at our Court under its direction.

France.—The French Chamber of Deputies have passed the law for the loan of 60,000,000 francs, by a great Majority. The General sense appears to be, that, as a leading Continental power, she must at least put herself in such an attitude that no unexpected consequences, originating in the conflict between Turkey and Russia, should be capable of embarrassing the country.—It is rumoured at Paris, that a peace has been negotiated with the Dey of Algiers.

Portugal.—The Portuguese nobility, or a portion of them, amounting to eighty-three dukes, marquises, &c. &c. have addressed Don Miguel, assuring him that the throne belongs to him, and requesting him to assemble the Cortes, and to abolish the constitutional charter, as contrary to the fundamental laws of the monarchy

Russia and Turkey.—The Grand Duke Michael set out from St. Petersburg on the 4th, and the Emperor on the 7th to join the army. It is said that the army will not pass the Danube till after the Emperor's arrival at Ismael. The Turks are reported to have assembled in Bulgaria and Romelia, inclusive of the garrisons and fortresses, 20,000 regular troops, 20,000 body guards of the Pachas, and about 100,000 militia.

An article dated Constantinople, April 25, states that the Divan had passed over quietly, and that there did not appear to be the least symptoms of alarm, or of a disposition to insurrection in the city. The Sultan has issued repeated and vigorous orders for the general arming of the people; according to these, 40,000 men are to assemble at Rudschuk, 6000 at Adrianople, and 100,000 at Constantinople; but as the latter division only amounts to 25,000 men, it is assumed that the others do not amount to more than a fourth of their nominal force.

A letter from Constantinople dated the 26th ult. states that on the 21st there had been a grand cavalry review at which the Sultan appeared in European costume, and commanded in the European manner. The conduct of the Sultan and the Divan appears composed and resolute; and in the capital, tranquility prevailed, though not unaccompanied by apprehension. Several Russian vessels of war had appeared at the mouth of the Bosphorus, which led to the apprehension of a bombardment.

The French papers state, on the authority of letters from Alexandria, that the Pacha of Egypt was busily engaged in repairing the fortifications of the city, and raising new troops, and a number of regular troops remaining in Egypt was scarcely 10,000 men. It was feared that the Allies would, in a short time, blockade the port, as a large convoy was preparing to sail, and it was known that the Allies would not suffer any further succours to be sent to Ibrahim.

Letters from Jassy, dated May 9, state that the Russians continue to advance with rapidity; their advanced posts were on that day, 38 wrests beyond Jassy. The force occupying Moldavia amounted to 35,000 men.

WAR IN THE EAST.

London, June 14, Evening.—A few vague rumours of a political kind have also been current to-day, and it is said that government securities, both at Vienna and Frankfort, are declining, in consequence of the expectation that the resistance which the Turks now threaten, will lead to a protracted warfare with the Russians. On the whole, the rumours though of very little moment if true, have the market from them. Consuls, at the highest, did not go beyond 88¼ for the account and closed at 88 to 88¼. The French papers say that the declaration of war by the Porte, which was announced in all the mosques and market-places, had been treated by the Turks with their characteristic indifference, and Constantinople remained in perfect tranquillity. The utmost exertion was, however, used by the government to infuse a spirit of enthusiasm into the people; and arms of every description were distributed for a general arming. The Standards of the Prophet had, however, not been displayed, although such a powerful appeal to the devotion of the Mussulmans is usual upon the declaration of war.—A communication was made to the European ministers, requesting them to inform their respective courts, that the Porte "was going to try the fortune of war in defence of its incontestable rights, and that it would rather perish than submit to have law dictated to it, as long as it had arms in its hands."

An article from Vienna states that the bombardment of Ibrahil (commonly called Brahilow) had commenced on the 22d ult. under the Grand Duke Michael, and that the Russians intended to carry that place by storm as soon as a breach should have been effected in its external defences. In former wars it repelled every attack; its early fall would, therefore, be regarded by the superstitious Ottomans as ominous of the fate of the empire.

An extraordinary supplement to the Journal de St. Petersburgh, of the 24th May, contains a short bulletin by Count Wittgenstein, relative to the operations of the army. Bucharest, as we already knew, was occupied on the 12th May by Major General Glesmar, the rapidity of whose movements saved the capital of Moldavia from ruin. The fortress of Brailla was invested on the 11th under the direction of the Archduke Michael. The fortress had no chance to hold out. The Emperor Nicholas and the Empress arrived at Odessa on the 27th.

MILLS AT PETERBOROUGH.—The Grist-Mill and Saw-Mill which have been lately erected by the Government at Peterborough, in the District of Newcastle, will be exposed to sale by Public Auction at Peterborough on the 10th day of September next, at 11 o'clock, A.M. The terms of payment will be,—one third of the purchase money to be paid within one month after the sale, one third at the expiration of one year, and the remaining one third at the expiration of two years from the day of sale, with interest.

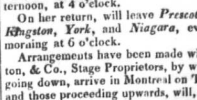
The Mill site is most valuable, comprehending a Tract of about 86 Acres. The Grist-Mill has two runs of Stones in operation, and is well fitted for Merchant work, having manufactured more than 1,200 Barrels of Flour this Summer.—The Saw-mill is also in operation.

From the peculiar situation of these works being at the head of the Navigation of the Otanabee River, and in the midst of a very flourishing settlement, the Establishment will be most valuable to any person possessing Capital. It cannot be disposed of for a less sum than £2,000 Currency, but will go to the highest bidder above that sum, without reserve.

A plan exhibiting the situation of the mills, and the Land appropriated for their use can be seen at this Office; and every information obtained by writing to the Honorable PETER ROBINSON, &c.

York, 3d July, 1828. d. 5

NOTICE.—All persons indebted to Mr. William Lindsay, who has removed from York, are requested to call and settle accounts with the subscriber, who is duly authorised to receive monies on his account and give acquittances.—Any persons having claims against Mr. Lindsay, are also desired to present them for adjustment.



CHARLES BAKER.

York, 22d May, 1828. 52tf.

FOR SALE,—Lot No. 12, and East half of 14 in the 3d Concession of the Township of York, 83 West of Yonge-Street,—300 Acres,—the property of Major W. G. White.—Refer to ROBERT STANTON, Esquire, U. C. Gazette Office.

York, 4th July, 1828. x. 5

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

LAKE ONTARIO STEAM-BOAT, NIAGARA, Captain MOSIER, with DANIEL READ, Sailing Master, Will, after the 15th inst., leave Niagara for Kingston, Brockville, and Prescott, every Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

On her return, will leave Prescott for Brockville, Kingston, York, and Niagara, every Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made with Messrs. Norton, & Co., Stage Proprietors, by which, passengers going down, arrive in Montreal on Tuesday evening; and those proceeding upwards, will, by leaving Montreal on Tuesday, arrive in time at Prescott to take the Boat.

York, June 6th, 1828. x 1.

NOTICE.—The undermentioned new POST OFFICES have been established in Upper Canada, by the Deputy Post Master General, to go into operation from the 6th of next Month, viz:

MAITLAND.—(Between Prescott, & Brockville,)—SAMUEL THOMAS, P. M.

GUELPH.—(35 Miles N. W. from Dundas,)—DAVID GILKISON, P. M., via. GALT.

General Post Office,
October, 28th June, 1828. y 6

CHAIN CABLES, &c.—ACRAMAN'S Patent Chain Cables, and Anchors, (warranted proved by Machine) a constant supply kept on hand (in stock) of all sizes, by JOHN WATKINS, Kingston, and in Montreal and Quebec by WILLIAM BUDDEN.

July, 30, 1827. 11-tf.

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.—Tenders will be received at this Office until the 1st Aug. next ensuing, for performing sundry Repairs, and White-washing the undermentioned Buildings, viz:

Commandant's Quarters,
Royal Engineer's Quarters and Drawing Room,
Men's Log Barracks and Butler's Barracks,
Surgeon's Quarters and Garrison Hospital,
Officer's Quarters and Mess Establishment,
Men's two story Barracks,
Cook House at Butler's Barracks,
Guard Room at Fort George,
Barrack Master's Quarters,
Barrack Office,
Commissariat Office,
Sub. Royal Engineer's Quarters & Engineer Office.

Specifications of the above work may be seen at the Barrack Office at Fort George, and at the Royal Engineer's Office, York.

W. I. GREIG,
D. A. C. G.

COMMISSARIAT OFFICE, Niagara, 15th July, 1828. s. 6

THE BRITISH STEAM-PACKET CANADA, Captain Hugh Richardson, plying betwixt York and Niagara, (Weather permitting.)

Leaves NIAGARA daily for YORK, (Sunday excepted,) precisely at 7 o'clock, A. M. arrives at York at half-past 11, A. M. Leaves YORK daily for NIAGARA, precisely at 2, P. M. arrives at NIAGARA at half-past 6 P. M.

TERMS.

After Cabin and Quarter Deck, - - - - - $2
Fore Cabin and Deck, - - - - - - - - - - 1

N. B. A gun will be fired and Colors hoisted 25 minutes before starting.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master & Managing Owner.
York, 8th April, 1828. 46tf.

PUBLIC NOTICE.—I require due notice to be given to me or to my Agent, Mr. Alexander Murray, at Mr. Proudfoot's Store, in York, of all transfers of Property in the Steam-Packet Canada, in default whereof I shall consider the original Stockholder, as the legal Owner in the Vessel; and in paying dividends and doing other transactions connected with my situation, hold myself accountable to them alone.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner of the Steam Packet Canada.
York, 27th December, 1827. 21tf.

N. B.—With Mr. A. Murray, reference may be had to all Books and accounts connected with the Canada Steam-Packet.

PACKET SHIP for BRISTOL, (England,) To sail from New-York, positively on the 25th instant, for the above Port, the superior fast sailing Coppered and Copper-fastened, British Ship Warrior, of 500 Tons burthen, JOHN STONE, Master, specially accommodated for passengers, with comforts at least equal to any of the Packets which sail from that Port.—Passage money—Twenty-five Guineas—for which Beds, Bedding, Wine and Stores, are provided.—The Owners of the above Vessel, have another of equal size and accommodation, called the "COSMO," which runs to and from the same Ports, at regular intervening periods from those of the Warrior.

These Vessels can also comfortably accommodate Steerage Passengers.

Apply Personally, or by Letter, Post-paid, to WILLIAM JACQUES, 69, SOUTH STREET, NEW-YORK.

N. B. Mr. Thomas Wells, of New-York, now for a short time in York, will give any information that may be required, respecting either of the above Vessels, by addressing a Letter to him, Post-paid—to be left at the Post-Office, York, U. C.

York, 12th June, 1828. s. 2

ALLIANCE BRITISH AND FOREIGN
Life and Fire Assurance Company,
OF LONDON.
(CAPITAL—Five Millions Sterling.)

THE Subscriber having been appointed AGENT to the above Company, at York, he is ready to Insure against loss or damage by Fire at moderate rates of Premium. The high standing of this Institution in England, and the Company allowing their Agents in Montreal to settle losses in this Country, with the Assured participating in the Profits of the Company, renders it worthy of Public Confidence.

R. W. PRENTICE.

York, November 18th, 1826. 25.

HALF-PAY AFFIDAVITS, of the latest form, for Sale at the Gazette Office.

ENGLISH STORE.—Just received, direct from England, a quantity of Bobbin Net, Lace, Veils, and Caps, of the first quality; also, an assortment of Muslins and other Goods; which will be sold on the most reasonable terms, by
J. COCKSHUTT.
York, July 14th 1828. x 6

FOR SALE.—Fifteen Acres of Land suitable for pasture, and situated on the East side of the Don River, and within one mile of York.—For particulars apply to the Subscriber.
JOHN SCADDING.
York, 23d June, 1828. c. 4

NOTICE is hereby given that the Subscriber has lately opened at the Village of L'orignal, in the seigniory of Lougueil, in the District of Ottawa: a Land Office, for the purpose of transacting all matters relative to Lands in that District.
Persons holding Lands in said District, and desirous of disposing of them, by forwarding to the Subscriber, the number of the Lots, and Concessions, and the name of the Township, together with the lowest price placed on them, may depend on every exertion being made to procure speedy sales.
He will also protect the Timber on Lands confided to his charge, and will use every exertion, to give satisfaction to those employing him, at a moderate compensation.
CHA'S. P. TREADWELL.
L'orignal, 2th October, 1827. 22tf

FOR SALE.—Lot No. 29, and part of 30, in the 7th Concession of the Township of Pickering, containing 350 Acres, and having an eligible situation for a Mill. For terms apply to Mr. Andrew Mercer, York.
York, 28th October, 1827. 22 tf.

LANDS FOR SALE.—In the Township of Hallowell, Lot No. 46, 3d Concession, North-west side of the Carrying-Place, - - - - - 200
In the Township of Cramahe—
Lots No. 17, 18, & 19, 3d Con. } 300
do. 15, 4th do. }
In the Township of Hamilton—
Broken Lots, 29 & 30, 9th Con. }
27, 28, 29, 31, 32, 34, & 35, 10th do. } - - 476
North-east quarter, No. 1, 4th do. - 50
In the Township of Clarke—
Lots No. 16, 17 & 18, Broken Fronts }
16, 17, & 18, 1st Con. } 2000
17, & 18, 2d do. }
17, & 18, 3d do. }
In the Township of Darlington—
Lot No. 14, 3d Con. } - - - 400
8, 4th do. }
In the Township of Pickering—
Lots No. 16, 17, & half of 18, 1st Con. } - - 999
and Broken Fronts }
In the Township of York—
Lot No. 37, 3d Con. - - - - - 200
In the Township of Gainsborough—
Broken Lo. No. 27, 3d & 4th Con. - - - 74
Apply to ANDREW MERCER

Storage & Commission Ware-House.

THE SUBSCRIBER begs leave to inform his friends and the public that he has purchased the Store-House, Wharf, &c. lately the property of William Cooper, Esq'r., in this Town, where he will receive, store, and sell, on Commission, on the most reasonable terms, all descriptions of produce or merchandize, with which he may be favored.
The buildings are extensive and convenient, being at the head of the Wharf, where all vessels which come into the Bay, principally discharge and take in their cargoes. He flatters himself that the care and attendance of the person superintending the Wharf and Store, will give general satisfaction.
There will be for sale a constant supply of Pork, Flour, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Peas, Salt, and Whiskey, also Stoves, Potash Kettles, Coolers, Sugar Kettles, a variety of castings and Grindstones.
The Subscriber has also for sale upwards of 2500 Acres unimproved Lands of superior quality, in the most flourishing Townships, and convenient to York, which he will sell very low and on easy terms to actual settlers.
Wm. BERGIN.
York, February 28th, 1828. 41tf.

FRESH SEEDS.—Shaker's Garden and Flower Seeds, warranted of the growth of 1827, for sale by
EDW'D. LESSLIE & SONS.

☞ E. L. & Sons expect a quantity of clover seed in a few days.
York, 14th March 1828. 43-tf.

BANK NOTICE.—Discount Day, Wednesday of every Week.—Notes offered for Discount, must be put under cover to the Cashier, and left at the Bank the day before.
THOMAS G. RIDOUT, Cashier.

PARCHMENT DEEDS,
For Sale at the Gazette Office, York,
WITH AND WITHOUT BAR OF DOWER,
NEATLY PRINTED, from a revised form—a constant supply will be kept on hand. Price—Single Deed 2s. 6d. or 25s. per dozen. Memorials on paper, 7½d. each, or 6s. per dozen.

Lower Canada.

We understand that His Excellency the Governor in Chief has received information that the Frigate intended for His Lordship's passage to England, may be expected here in the last week of August.—Quebec Official Gazette.

COMMUNICATIONS.

(To the Editor of the Star.)

The late occurrences in the King's Bench of Upper Canada adverted to in a letter which you did me the honor of inserting in your last number but one, seemed to be so surprising as not to be likely to be surpassed in novelty—A judgment seat converted into a tribune's rostrum, A judge into an harangueur of the populace, abandoning his seat, and inciting them to level it to the ground, might well excite pity for the short-sighted individual, if the direful consequences to which such extraordinary conduct might lead left room in the breasts of the well disposed for any other feeling than alarm and indignation.

At that time I forbore to repeat the numerous and linear grievances which this now incredible story received further confirmation, on ground upon which its truth may be questioned, is, that it is quite impossible professional Gentlemen of the ability and standing of those referred to, could have adopted the wild and visionary notions of the learned Judge. At the same time it renders it fitting to enter into an examination of the reasons given by that learned Judge, for his extraordinary opinions, more minute than that to which the court would seem at all to incline.

The opinions attributed to the learned Judge in question, are two.—First, That the Court of King's Bench in Upper Canada is not competent to proceed to business in the absence of the Chief Justice of that Court.—And secondly, That the Chief Justice having absented himself from that Province without leave first obtained from the Governor in Council, such absence created an absolute forfeiture of his office.

It is obvious to the most casual observer that the second question did not come at all before the Court; for if it were true, as held by the learned Judge, that the presence of the Chief Justice was essential to the constituting of a Court, then it became a matter of little or ill-sounding import to him so far as the learned Judge was concerned, to inquire why he was absent, and this long older dictum of the learned Judge might well have been spared.

In reference to what is said by the learned Judge of the forfeiture of the Chief Justice's office it is to be observed, that when Judges are guilty of acts of mis-feasance or non-feasance in their office, they are liable, the rest of His Majesty's subjects they have a right to be heard before they are condemned. It is not through the back door stairs of an Executive Council Office that evidence is to be hunted up against them or for them. They are not to be condemned unheard by a single individual of their own body meeting himself in a meeting which the laws has not given to him. If then the learned judge had rightly determined this question as to the vacating of the office of the Chief Justice of Upper Canada, ipso facto, over which, sitting in that Court, he had no jurisdiction, by judgment would have been an illegal one, because of his want of Jurisdiction. It will be presently shewn that in the exercise of this assumed jurisdiction he has committed a gross error. But he has done that which he ought not to have done, it affords him no excuse that he has omitted to do that which he ought to have done. If on the one hand he has taken upon himself to decide the question of the forfeiture of the absence of the Chief Justice which was not within his cognizance, it can easily be shewn that in refusing to continue to sit as Judge and in denying the jurisdiction to constitute it when his associate Justice he has abdicated, as it were, the office and powers vested in him by law.

The question is a great constitutional one, and not at all to be examined in the way or with the minute and obscure difference of a Chancery Special pleader. Its decision is to be found not merely in the Judicature act of Upper Canada which has been already adverted to, but in the first in the first year of the time, and the most important in point of matter, of the laws to be found in the Statute book of that Province.

By the Provincial Statute 32 Geo. III. c. I. intitled, "An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the fourteenth year of His Majesty's reign, intitled, "An Act for making more effectual provision for the Government of the Province of Quebec, in North America and to introduce the English Laws and Customs of decision in all matters of controversy relative to property and Civil rights," it is enacted that from and after the passing of this act, the Judicature act of Upper Canada which relates to property and civil rights, resort shall be had to the laws of England, as the rule for the decision of the same." Englishmen or decendants of Englishmen, the inhabitants of Upper Canada were desirous and entitled to the benefit of their laws and institutions to the laws and institutions of England, but of entirely adopting the latter. They were desirous of appropriating to themselves the collected legal wisdom of their ancestors, to which they might confidently refer in cases of doubt and difficulty, and if the learned Judge had done so upon the present occasion he would not have hasarded the dangerous opinions here combated.

Independently of the considerations already stated in a previous letter it cannot be continually borne in mind, that the Judicature Act of Upper Canada is posterior to the act just mentioned and must be construed conjointly with it. It was so construed at the time of its passing and has been so, uninterruptedly, down to the discovery made by the learned Judge.—Let it be observed also that in that tract of time the Bench of Upper Canada can boast of men of high merit—Mr. Osgood, the first Chief Justice of Upper Canada was a man who would have adorned any Bench in any Country Mr Elmsley his successor was an able lawyer and a most accomplished scholar. If Mr. Alcock who succeeded him had sacrificed less to the graces and to polite letters, it was because his time had been exclusively devoted to the study of his profession, and he too was a most able lawyer. The supplement to Viner's abridgment attests his industry and ability. He had the extraordinary merit too, though bred at the chancery bar, of understanding and appreciating the sound and sterling principles of the common Law of England. It is to be hoped that these men have been worthily succeeded.

Without entering into a minute examination of the reasons offered by the learned Judge, it may be observed generally that the authorities which he refers to, concerning the strict interpretation to be given to Statutes creating Courts of Justice, apply to Courts having a particular Jurisdiction, the Court in Upper Canada has a general Jurisdiction. Most of these particular Courts are in abridgement of the Common Law, the Court of King's Bench in Upper Canada is in furtherance of the common Law.

Proceed we now to the consideration of the second position of the learned Judge wherein he still more lamentably falls through. The absence of colonial Officers from their duties has from the earliest period of colonial history been a great evil, to which it has been the object as well of the Executive Governament of the parent state as of its Legislature, to apply a remedy. That which promised to be the most efficacious is to be found in many of the earliest of the King's instructions, whereby it is provided that after six month's absence the pay of the officer shall be stopped until his return to the colony. But this restriction was disobeyed by the Governors of the colonies, and great abuses and consequent complaints arose. It was to remedy these abuses that the Statutes referred to by the learned Judge were passed. The first in order of time is the 22d Geo. III. c. 75. The first section of which provides that from thenceforth no office to be exercised in any British colony or Plantation "shall be granted by any grantable by patent &c any longer term than during such time as the grantee thereof or person appointed to exercise the same, shall discharge the duty thereof in person and behave well therein." The second section authorises the Governor and Council to remove officers who shall be wilfully absent from the Colony or Plantation wherein the same is or ought to be exercised, "without a reasonable cause," to be allowed by the Governor & Council for the time being of such Colony or Plantation, or shall neglect the duty of such office or otherwise misbehave therein, with an appeal to His Majesty in Council.—The third section provides "That it shall be lawful for the Governor and Council of any Colony or Plantation to give such leave of absence as they shall see occasion; and in such case, as likewise in the case of vacancy occasioned by death or otherwise, to provide for the due discharge of the duties of such office or offices, until the King's pleasure shall be known." The fourth and last section provides "that nothing therein contained shall operate to the prejudice of any subsisting grant of such office or offices, or to prevent any office being granted determinable at pleasure." Now this is the whole of the 22d Geo. III.—The statute 54 Geo. III. c. 61, was passed, as is expressed as well in its title as in its preamble, to amend the beforementioned act of 22d Geo. III. The latter Statute was confirmed in its operation to patent offices. Its provisions are by the 54 Geo. III. extended to offices granted by Commission under His Majesty's sign Manual or by any other commission, warrant or instrument under which offices in colonies have been heretofore or may hereafter be granted." Governors of colonies by the 2d section of this Statute, are required "within one month after granting the same (leave of absence) ' to report the same to one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State for confirmation; and in case the said leave of absence shall not be confirmed within one month from the time such report having been received by the Secretary of State, the person to whom the said leave of absence may have been granted by the Governor and Council as aforesaid shall forthwith return to the colony, settlement, plantation, or foreign possession to which his office is annexed; and his office thereof shall be deemed to have vacated such office, and the appointment to such office shall be considered to all intents and purposes, void and of none effect." In the third section a penalty of one hundred pounds is imposed upon the Governor not reporting as required by the last section. The fourth requires that a return of absentee offices shall be laid before the House of Commons, within six weeks after the opening "of every Session of Parliament;" the fifth clause decides that this act shall not prejudice subsisting Grants. And this is the whole of the 54th Geo. III. adverted to by the learned Judge.

With those materials before him it is difficult to conjecture by what strange process of ratiocination the learned Judge was come to that the absence of the Chief Justice of Upper Canada created de facto an absolute forfeiture of his office. It would be easy to shew that the doctrine of the learned judge is in the teeth of the common law of England—that it has no support from the above Statutes must be manifest to the most ordinary

LEGULEIUS.

Quebec, 8th July, 1828.

Port of Quebec.

ARRIVED,

July 5...Brig Anne, Sunderland, coals, &c.
....Brig Ann, Hunter, Scadoudenry. 232 settlers.
....Brig Good Intent, Youghall. 36 settlers.
....Schooner Ann and Margaret, Halifax, rum.

July 6'clock, P. M.—The wind continues from the Eastward, and has brought in several vessels since noon, the entries of which have not yet been made.

SHIPPING INTELLIGENCE.

Comparative statement of arrivals, tonnage, and settlers, at the Port of Quebec to the 6th July 1827 and 1828.

Years.	Arrivals.	Tonnage.	Settlers.
1827	300	77,535	10,127
1828	339	85,896	7,415.

Communication.

FOR THE LOYALIST.

REVIEW of Mr. E. REYERSON'S Letters to the Honorable & Venerable Archdeacon Strachan, &c.

No. 5.

The objections to Religious Establishments—to anote perhaps the only advantage which their assailants possess,—are commonly clothed with so attractive an envelopment of that moderation and liberality which accords so well with mankind's propensity to unbridled indulgence, that it may perhaps be forgotten by those who are imposed upon by the specious disguise, that such has ever been the method most successfully employed by the very enemies of Divine Revelation to undermine its influence.

How dangerous, then, is it in Mr. Reyerson—as the opening of his fourth letter would evince—to advocate a principle which is, indeed, against his own cause; to blaze forth our natural repugnance to compulsion, when the absence of such restraint would be subversive of all order, and destructive of all happiness; and where its oppusers would be found hostile as well to the dictates of reason as to the injunctions of Scripture, which wage a continual warfare against the impulses of our natural will! We are not ignorant of the magic of a name, and the proneness of mankind to the idolatry of such idols as independence and liberality. Yet, it is the natural man alone which, in the hatred of all restraint, bows down to those glittering allurements, and would "worship the golden image which he himself hath set up!" for man, as a moral agent must see the necessity of such modifications of liberty as will render his inborn love of freedom subservient to the just and established principles of government and order—or, to adopt a higher authority, "whilst "free, not to use his liberty for a cloak of maliciousness."*

Religious Establishments are designed for fallible creatures—for man as he is—and to make him what he ought to be. Were he as innocent as when first created, there would be no need of secondary helps to the duties which he owes either to God or man; for in the matter of Religion, it would be spontaneous with him to serve his Heavenly Father, and to do his will; whilst, on the other hand, he would not need the restraint of laws to make him peaceful and orderly in his social relations. But if the degenerated frame of this constitution require the restraints of Civil Government—if anarchy be chaos from which his nature is abhorrent; why is there not, analogically, a similar propriety and benefit in Religious Government and Religious discipline? If laws and Government are essential to our well-being as men; if the ordinary acquirements and rules as necessary to our welfare and advancement as Christians? To argue the contrary, would be to distort and confuse our innate discernment of the natural and necessary distinction of right and wrong, of fitness and unfitness; whereby the equipoise by which the true tone of the reasoning faculties is maintained, as to make us, at the same time, with scarcely a shifting of the premises, both admit and deny the conclusion—and withhold at the same moment, that we would yield our inherent approbation of order and truth. In short it would lead to such a jarring in the elements of the understanding, as must annihilate all clear perception, and subvert all true reasoning; and, if adopted as a principle and acted upon, would be a death warrant for the revival of the tenets of a Pyrrho, a Descartes and a Hume!

In regard to mankind's natural, and, as it were, spontaneous approbation of Government and order—it seems to have been so universally the case, that it is strongly to ecclesiastical polity as to civil rule; for no sooner did they discern the need of a legal establishment for the maintenance of social interest, than they adopted the auxiliary of a national religion, for the security of religious diligence, as is expressed as well in the preamble, to the eloquent Mrs. West—"search the West, the North and the South, among nations who existed at the remotest periods, and you will find with Constantine and a Priest protected by the ruling powers." Indeed, our own reason strongly seconds the propriety of the usage; for in every family—at least in every christian family—there is a species of Religious establishment with its jurisdiction and authoritative control, every member thereof. We do not leave a child to spontaneous instruction, nor do we leave him to glean out his own religious faith; we teach him the outlines of the doctrines which are the own peculiarities of its property; and though a time arrives when he may depart from that peculiar line of tuition—though we even foresee the possibility of such a dissent—still we feel it a duty to impart instruction, and as much as to insist upon that conformity. So, in a greater family—in the State—does not analogy teach the expediency of a similar process?—has it not a claim to the same guidance—and recognising the duty of affording the same instruction—has it not a right to assume the same general control, in the establishment of the matter and the manner?

Amongst Heathen nations, although the principle of an establishment was acknowledged, indeed, as the principle which prompted the formation of civil associations and the adoption of civil rule—all the errors of their religious faith were necessarily grafted upon it. They acted according to their light; which, in the 5th Geo. III. adverted to by the learned Judge.

With those materials before him it is difficult to conjecture by what strange process of ratiocination he was come to that the absence of the Chief Justice of Upper Canada created de facto an absolute forfeiture of his office. It would be easy to shew that the doctrine of the learned judge is in the teeth of the common law of England—that it has no support from the above Statutes must be manifest to the most ordinary

LEGULEIUS.

Quebec, 8th July, 1828.

Port of Quebec.

ARRIVED,

July 5...Brig Anne, Sunderland, coals, &c.
....Brig Ann, Hunter, Scadoudenry. 232 settlers.
....Brig Good Intent, Youghall. 36 settlers.
....Schooner Ann and Margaret, Halifax, rum.

July 6'clock, P. M.—The wind continues from the Eastward, and has brought in several vessels since noon, the entries of which have not yet been made.

SHIPPING INTELLIGENCE.

Comparative statement of arrivals, tonnage, and settlers, at the Port of Quebec to the 6th July 1827 and 1828.

Years.	Arrivals.	Tonnage.	Settlers.
1827	300	77,535	10,127
1828	339	85,896	7,415.

Communication.

FOR THE LOYALIST.

REVIEW of Mr. E. REYERSON'S Letters to the Honorable & Venerable Archdeacon Strachan, &c.

No. 5.

The objections to Religious Establishments—to anote perhaps the only advantage which their assailants possess,—are commonly clothed with so attractive an envelopment of that moderation and liberality which accords so well with mankind's propensity to unbridled indulgence, that it may perhaps be forgotten by those who are imposed upon by the specious disguise, that such has ever been the method most successfully employed by the very enemies of Divine Revelation to undermine its influence.

its internal polity; and we cannot help answering to the admission, the following testimony from the late President Dwight, a Presbyterian dome and citizen of the United States: "I cannot but remember, and remember with emotions of gratitude and respect, the very great and beneficial exertions made by the English Church in the cause of christianity, and made in many instances by the dignitaries of that Church. In that Church also, real religion has always flourished to a great and very desirable extent. Like other Churches, it has had its bright and dark days, but it has undoubtedly sent multitudes of its members to Heaven, and at the present time is fattening in the grandeurs of piety." How does this honest and respectable testimony accord with the abominable insinuations of such a tyro as Mr. Reyerson, who (in Letter 5th,) fastens the awful charge of conformity to the "God of this world upon all but a few of the members of the Church of England! In further exculpation from this base, unfounded, diabolical imputation, I shall cite the words of Bishop Porteous—a prelate than whom one more pious or more amiable never existed:—"take the whole (of the Clergy) in one view, and it may with the greatest truth be affirmed, that you will no where find, either in ancient or modern times, a body of more than ten thousand persons, situated in the midst of a populous, rich, commercial, luxurious kingdom, surrounded with every temptation, and every danger to which virtue can be exposed, whose morals are so blameless and so little injured by the general contagion, as those of the English Clergy."—These, and the words which follow from the same excellent divine, have remanded, with accompanying gratitude in their own land, and echoed loud and long in foreign parts: "let the occasion excuse me, if I add (the proofs of what I say are before the world) that our profession is the country of genuine piety, of men who, in genius, learning, judgment, taste, and elegance of composition, have few, if any, superiors."

There is a perpetual cavilling about the mischiefs of a Church Establishment, and elaborate attempts to undermine their utility without a single argument to disprove the propriety of the principle: to shew therefore on what very defensible grounds the alliance of a Church with the State rests, I shall produce the testimony of the most meek, the most learned, acute, and "judicious" Hooker: "Shall we discommend the Jews for electing their Priests sometimes to be leaders in war; David for making the sons of Levi, principal captains, surrounded with every temptation, high-priest his chiefest Counsellor of State; Princes which have been Bishops or other of the Clergy under them?—No; they have done in this respect that which most sincere and religious wisdom allowed—a thing, if ever to be required, which Jethro himself is for his own sake generally no where honoured, religion almost no where, no where religiously adored, the ministry of the word and Sacraments of Christ a very cause of disgrace in the eyes of men who, in genius, learning, judgment, wisdom and every part of human worthiness, are not easily to be countenanced with"—"let not envy so far prevail, as to make us account that a blemish, which, if there be in us any spark of sound judgment or of religious conscience, we must of necessity acknowledge to be a singular ornament of the mind; by the ancient laws whereof, the Clergy being held for the chief of those three Estates, which together make up the entire body of this Commonwealth, under one supreme head and Governor, have in time of peace borne a sway proportionable in the mighty affairs of this land."* This is argument; we now proceed to some facts of the benefit of the connection in our beloved country. "If ought never to be forgotten," says the writer already quoted, "that for which we call our Magna Charta, that main foundation (as it is generally held to be) of our free constitution, we are principally indebted to the eloquence, the spirit and the fervority of an English prelate, assisted and supported by almost the whole body of his Clergy,"—and when, at a subsequent period, our religious as well as civil liberties were in the most imminent danger of being destroyed by the supineness and treachery of the Stuarts, Bishop Bonnett, then again did the Clergy courageously step forth in defience of both. From them originated one of the very first Parliamentary checks to the violences of James II.†" Thus history shews itself true to the title it has borne, and which was designed by its connection with the State, to be the guardian of civil and religious liberty, as well as the maintainer of religious influence and restraint in the governed.

How absurd, therefore, is it to charge every evil and every abuse that has existed in Religion to the account of her Establishment? As well might we discard the need of all Government, because it is subject to the evils of mal-administration—as well might we cease to uphold and preach civil society, because it has been perfidiously used for purposes, to cover the artifices of the villian, and to uphold the desolations of the fanatic,—as well might we condemn and labor to annihilate the Gospel, on the plea—against which, indeed, our Saviour protested and every abuse that has existed in Religion to the account of her Establishment? As well might we discard the need of all Government, because it is subject to the evils of mal-administration—as well might we cease to uphold and preach civil society, because it has been perfidiously used for purposes, to cover the artifices of the villian, and to uphold the desolations of the fanatic,—as well might we condemn and labor to annihilate the Gospel, on the plea—against which, indeed, our Saviour protested and every approved would lead to anarchy in civil society and to the ruin of all religion in the moral world; whilst the authorities by which he would support his absurd positions, are as disingenuous as they are inapplicable. What meant those renowned worthies, Tindal, Bernard, and Mandeville by the language and sentiments which Mr. Reyerson quotes? Were they not censuring particular errors, and striving to rectify particular abuses—abuses by no means co-essential with the system to which they have been affixed, but to be ascribed to the frailty of the human constitution—and did they ever utter a word against the principle of establishments?—Did they condemn their own Church's alliance with the State?—Did Tindal mean that the Church was not justified in the establishment of Christianity, when the people should guide themselves more implicitly by its designs—be more attentive to its spirit—more obedient to the teachings of not, indeed, but, such warmth of remonstrance, that the Farm of the late Mr. John Hallowell, on the River Dons near York, Mrs. Hallowell being ill at the time, her Infant Son Joseph aged 1d months, without its being perceived, strayed from the House, to the Rivers brink, where it fell in, and before assistance could be rendered, was unhappily drowned.

It is with much regret we learn, that the rumor which was in circulation during the last week, of the death of Master Charles Wells, Son of the Hon. Col. Wells, of York, proves to be correct. The bereaved Parent received intelligence by the last Mail, that on 10th instant, his Son while bathing in the Ottowa River near Hull, was accidentally drowned.

GENERAL ELECTION.—By the attention of Correspondents we have received the following result of the three first days polling, in the Counties of Frontenac and Leeds:—

County of Frontenac.

	Thomson.	Dalton.	McKenzie.
1st day,	181	98	95
2d,	248	151	130
3d,	282	169	154

County of Leeds.

(Wednesday, half-past 4 o'clock.)

Kilborn,	450
Jonas Jones,	268
Buell,	268
D. Jones,	169
R. Sherwood,	2.

The Durham Election has terminated in favor of Charles Fothergill, and John David Smith, Esquires, after a very sharp contest for six days. Mr. George S. Boulton the losing Candidate, has entered a protest against the return, and intends contesting it before a Committee of the House. The following is a correct statement of the state of the Poll, during the several days of the Election:—

	Boulton.	Smith.	Fothergill.
1st day,	64	25	29
2d,	137	67	80
3d,	178	96	103
4th,	202	129	139
5th,	228	192	201
6th,	275	290	290.

County of Lenox and Addington.

Messrs. Bidwell and Perry, are returned.

County of Hastings, 21st July.

J. H. Samson, 118.—T. Coleman, 50.—Jos. N. Lockwood, 71.

County of Lincoln.

(Wednesday, at 5 o'clock, P. M.)

Randall, 864.—Lefferty, 357.—Woodruff, 273.—Terry, 211.—Crooks, 202.—Adams, 137.—Beardsley, 90.—M'Bride, 21.

County of York, Saturday, 26th July, 5 P. M. The Poll continues open.—Ketchum and McKenzie will or returned!!! The Poll is to close at 8 this evening.

Passengers who sailed in the Florida on the 16th for Liverpool:—Maj. Gen. Wilson, of the British Army, and lady: Hon. J. Walpole Willis, and Mrs. Mary Willis, of York, Upper Canada, Major Gledstone 66th Regt. British Army.

A Public Meeting was held at Burley's Hotel in this Village, on Monday evening; pursuant to the notice contained in our last, for the purpose of taking into consideration the recent transactions in the Court of King's Bench at York, and the extraordinary proceedings of the late Meeting in that town. Resolutions were prepared, expressing the Meeting's disapprobation of those proceedings—disavowing the representation made by that Meeting to the Home Government—and protesting against those representations being received as the opinion of the people of Upper Canada generally—and recommending an address to His Excellency the Lieuteuant Governor.

After the Meeting was organised, nowever—by the appointment of Mr. Crooks as Chairman, and Mr. Cameron as Secretary—and before any Resolutions were proposed, Mr. McNab rose and moved an adjournment to a future day—on the ground that the notice for the present Meeting had been too short, and because it was more advisable to call a Meeting of the whole District, whose representations would have more weight than those of the small portion of that District to which the present meeting was confined.—He therefore moved that "the present Meeting do adjourn to 12 o'clock on Monday the 28th instant, and that in the mean time a Public Meeting of the Gore District be convened, to be holden at Burley's Hotel in Ancaster," which after some remarks from Mr. Durand and other Gentlemen present, was agreed to by a considerable majority.

A requisition was subsequently signed and handed to the Sheriff, calling upon him to convene a public meeting at the time and place aforesaid.—Gore Gazette.

The Army.

68th Foot—Ens. P. Durnford, to be Lt. without pur. v Mendham, dec. J. F. Bouchette, Gent. to be Ens. v Durnford.

Birth,

On Friday, the 18th instant, the Lady of the Rev. J. Grier, of a Son.

At Montreal, on the 14th instant the, Lady of Henry MacKenzie, Esq. of a Son.

Died,

At York, on Thursday last—Thomas, Infant Son of Mr. Thomas Hallowell—aged 15 months.

This morning in Bethlem Hospital, the celebrated Margaret Nicholson, who attempted the life of His late Majesty. She had been confined in the above establishment 42 years, and during the whole of that period has been insane. She always appeared much pleased whenever any of the Royal Family visited the institution, and on the occasion of the death of the late King, requested to be allowed to wear black ribbons.—Her age is supposed to have been nearly 100 years.—London Courier of 14th May.

Varieties.

ALGIERS.

It appears by no means improbable, that existing circumstances may lead to the final liberation of the Mediterranean from the ravages of the Algerines and other barbarous nations of Africa. The combined squadrons of the three great maratime powers of Europe having completed their object as regarded Greece, may perhaps do that which Pompey formerly accomplished with a much less imposing force, and against much more numerous enemies. There is nothing at present to prevent the founding of European colonies on the coasts of Africa, and in Mount Atlas, in order to drive the barbarians back into the deserts the interior, which alone they ought to be permitted to inhabit. The trade of the Mediterranean might then be carried to the greatest possible height; the ancient Libya, the kingdom of Massinissa, the territory of Carthage, &c. would resume their fertility, and the celebrated cities of former times would rise again out of their ruins. These immense benefits, for which Africa would one day be as grateful as Europe, would cost the European powers much less than a single campaign of the wars which they make upon one another!

STUDY OF NATURE.

If we look with wonder upon the great remains of human works, such as the columns of Palmyra, broken in the midst of the desert, the temple of Pæstum, beautiful in the decay of twenty centuries, or the mutilated fragments of Greek sculpture in the Acropolis of Athens, or in our own Museum, as proofs of the genius of artists, and power and riches of nations now past away; with how much deeper a feeling of admiration must we consider those grand monuments of nature, which mark the revolutions of the globe; continents broken into islands; one land produced, another destroyed; the bottom of the ocean become a fertile soil; whole races of animals extinct, and the bones and bowels of one class covered with the remains of another; and upon these graves of past generations—the marble or rocky tombs, as it were, of a former animated world—new generations rising, and order and harmony established, and a system of life and beauty produced, as it were, out of chaos and death; proving the infinite power, wisdom, and goodness, of the Great Cause of all Being!

A SHOWER OF HERRINGS. The Inverness (Scotland) Courier, states that Maj. Mackenzie, a gentleman of Fodington, in Shropshire, while traversing a field on his farm lately, discovered a portion of ground covered with fresh herring. The fish, it was supposed, had been transported thither by a water spout—a phenomenon that is common at that place.

CANADA COMPANY.

NOTICE is hereby given to persons settled in this Province, who may be in the expectation of friends coming from the United Kingdom, that the Canada Company have appointed the following Agents at the outports, to afford information to persons intending to emigrate, viz:—

At Liverpool, Hugh Matthie, Esq.
At Bristol, W. D. W. & W. E. Acraman,
At Plymouth. Messrs. Hawker & Sons,
At Hull, Richard Tottie, Esq.
At Swansea, J. C. Morgan, Esq.
At Oundle, Thomas Bell, Esq.
At Edinburgh, James Adam, Esq.
At Leith, Messrs. James Duncan, & Co.
At Glasgow, Alexander & Gilkason, Esq.
At Greenock, Messrs. Robert Ewing, & Co.
At Aberdeen, Messrs. John Catto, Son, & Co.
At Haddington, John Haldane, Esq.
At Dublin, John Astle, Esq.
At Cork, Sexton Baylie, Esq.
At Belfast, William Gray, Esq.
At Ross & Waterford, Messrs. Watson & Graves,
At Limerick, John Carroll, Esq.
At Londonderry, George Buchanan, Esq.

The Company, at their Office, St. Helen's Place, London, will receive any money which Emigrants may wish to deposit, in order to be at their disposal in America; and bills will be given for the same, in sums not less than £10, which will be current at Quebec, Montreal, New-York, and York in Upper Canada, at the highest rate of exchange. The Agents will instruct parties applying to them as to the manner of obtaining these bills.

The Agents are furnished with Maps of Upper Canada, and Diagrams of every Township in which any of the Lands assigned to the Company are situated—to be shewn to all persons intending to emigrate. The Company's Agents at Quebec, Montreal, & New-York, (whose names are subjoined) will give them, on arrival, every information and assistance. Contracts have also been made, under which, those who are provided with recommendations from the Company's Office in London, or from their Agents at the outports, will obtain from the Agents at Quebec, Montreal, or New-York, tickets or way-bills of the route and mode of conveyance to Upper Canada, by means of which, at the expence of five dollars for grown persons, or half that sum for children, they will be enabled to go forward without delay or difficulty.

JOHN GALT,
Superintendant.

At Quebec, John Davidson, Esq.
At Montreal, Messrs. Hart Logan, & Co.
At New-York, J. C. Buchanan, Esq.

CANADA COMPANY'S OFFICE,
York 28th May, 1828. x 1.

CANADA COMPANY.

TO EMIGRANTS ARRIVING FROM THE UNITED KINGDOM.

NOTICE is hereby given, that the Canada Company, having completed their arrangements for the settlement of that extensive tract of country, which lies between the Districts of Gore and London, and the Shore of Lake Huron, a road is being opened from the Township of Wilmot, to the mouth of the Red River, hereafter to be called the Maitland.

This road is in continuation of one leading through Waterloo from Guelph; and Government is now opening another, from Dundas to Guelph, by which route the journey from the head of Lake Ontario to Lake Huron, may be performed in four or five days.

At the mouth of the Maitland, a Town, to be called Goderich, will be founded in the course of the summer, as soon as the necessary surveys can be completed.

Along the Road from Wilmot to Goderich, the land, which is all of the best quality, will be sold in Lots of one hundred Acres each; for which, at the option of the purchasers, payment will be taken in cash, provisions, or labour on the roads, at the rate of 7s. 6d. per Acre, from the first two hundred heads of families who offer themselves as settlers: and supplies of provisions and medical assistance will be provided by the Company.—Saw and Grist Mills are building near the proposed site of Goderich.

Emigrants or other persons desirous to embrace this advantageous opportunity of locating themselves, will please apply to the Agents of the Company in the following form, by whom they will be furnished with tickets, addressed to the Company's Office at Guelph, where the application will be registered according to the date of the presentation of the tickets.

JOHN GALT,
Superintendant.

CANADA COMPANY'S OFFICE,
Guelph, 28th May, 1828.

No. To the Canada Company.

I am desirous of locating myself under the Company in their Huron tract, by purchasing —— Acres—one hundred to be immediately abutting on the line of road leading from the Township of Wilmot, to the mouth of the River Maitland, and I will pay for the same as follows:—

[Here state whether in cash, and how; or in provisions, and teaming; or in labour.]

My family consists of —— persons; my eldest child is —— years of age, and my youngest ——; I am a native of —— in ——, by trade a ——; in my religion, I am a ——; and I am known to ——, residing at ——.

N. B. The applications are to be delivered in person, open, to the Agents, viz:—

At Quebec, John Davidson, Esq.
At Montreal, Messrs. Hart Logan, & Co.
At New-York, J. C. Buchanan, Esq.
At Geneva, [in the state of New-York,] A. McNab, Esq. Pulteney Land Office.

Or within this Province, to John Galt, Esq. Superintendant for the Canada Company, York, or Guelph. x 1.

N. B. All Newspapers which have been in the habit of publishing the Canada Company advertisements are requested to insert the above until further notice.

THE LOYALIST

VOL. I. NO. 6.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY AUGUST 2, 1828.

REVIEW of the PASTORAL LETTER of the CLERGY of the CHURCH OF SCOTLAND in the CANADAS.

(Continued.)

The dangers to be apprehended from the preservation of the existing privileges to the Church of England—the power which she would acquire—the secular and ambitious views which she would be led to entertain—the spirit of dominion which would be fostered within her bosom and felt heavily by all the children of the land,"—are pictures replete with effect, but they are pictures only—shadows which have no reality—phantoms conjured up at which no cool and judicious man will ever start.—

We repeat that we do not apprehend danger from any Church in these Provinces, and if there were grounds for such apprehension, the history of the past would teach us to expect ecclesiastical domination just as much from the Presbyterian Church invested with that extensive influence which her friends would persuade themselves that she would long age have commanded but for want of means, as from the Episcopal.—But we are persuaded that the tendency is all the other way. The representative constitution given to these Colonies—the fast root which principles of liberty have struck in the soil—the general and increasing desire for educating the animated spirit of improvement—the example, in many points, of the neighbouring States and the communication rather too great than too sparing, of their sentiments and habits of thinking to our people, are all pledges and safeguards against the encroachments and usurpations at authority of any kind, which more requires, we will honestly avow our opinion, to be supported asoog as than to be repressed. We think that there is in the Colonies —if we may to express it,—a youthful excess and a disposition to riot in the blessings of liberty, which we trust will subside into a settled principle of invincible freedom, coupled with a firm maintenance, of order, and peace a well-balanced and, prosperous state of things.—We do not believe that there is cause for alarm as if the new would were in danger of those shackles which belonged to the darker ages of the old;—We may indeed be mistaken in our calculations; but if such is, (which we do not undertake to say), the prevailing tentiment and language of our Clergy so far as they at all concern themselves with politics, it is not that they lean to those doctrines of "implicit faith and passive obedience," which the Scottish divines have called the wonder of the Church of Rome, but it is rather a proof that, having some "courage for the truth upon earth," they would withstand engion."—Confining themselves to the general question, in what Christian unity truly consists, they charge the Bishop with having confounded the ideas of unity and uniformity,—a charge for which we can discover no ground in his Lordship's letter. This they illustrate, as it appears to us rather circumstantially, by placing Archbishop Laud,† and others who hold, or are assumed to hold, similar principles, inconsistant with the spirit of Protestantism, in con rast with some other English divines whom they highly commend. (Pastoral Letter p. 10)

* We must not be understood as wishing to suggest reasons for the perpetuation of these differences —We are persuaded,—more strongly than the authors of the Pastoral Letter,—that the multiplicatenn of religious divisions is a mischief, and that the different bodies of Presbyterians would do a wise and right thing to co-alesce. If our recommendation could have weight, we would by all means recommend such a co-alition. We only enter our protest against urging on, or anticipating, for the sake of making head against the Church of England, what appears to be neither digested nor, by some of the parties concerned, understood.

† Those who are called Primitive Wesleyans are now labouring, and, we believe, in Ireland with much success, to bring back the whole body to their originally closer adhearance to the Church We have very decided objections to Methodism, which we have often candidly stated to its professors, and we regard that proceedings as inconsistent with the plainest principles of churchmen-hip, but we do not despair, in God's good time and after some changes which we think are working, of an arrangement which would bring them regularly under the wing of the church.

We acknowledge, however, that in point of forms, the dissenting bodies of Presbyterians are much nearer to the Church of Scotland, than the Methodists to ourselves.

‡ The Scotch divines are not obliged to be intimate with the characters of those who figure in English ecclesiastical history; but most assuredly they are not correct in their account of Laud We believe that Southey in his Book of the Church has done him very little more than justice.

In the same manner, they say, there may be unity without uniformity. That the true spirit of Christian love may exist in the breasts of individuals where there is no unity of external order and church government,—(for uniformity in the mode of worship is something perfectly distinct),—we feel most thoroughly assured; and that this unity of order and government may exist where great evils and great corruptions are to be seen, in what is plainly impossible to deny. Still it is unity, and although it does not constitute all the blessings of unity, there can be no other genuine unity, (whatever mutual good understanding may prevail),—where it does not exist. The Clergy of the Church of England can never, in any consistency with the principles upon which their church is founded and framed, be drawn into an adoption of those popular and accommodating views of church-unity which in fact they were by no means aware to be the views entertained by the Scottish divines in the Canadas. They can live in peace with those who differ from them; they can hope well of their brethren who dissent; they can respect sincere piety wherever it is found; they can feel the unreasonableness of expecting (however they may rejoice when it occurs,) that the members of other national religious systems should all at once surrender their particular attachments and prejudices, and merge in a single church; they can lament deficiences on their own side, or acknowledge excellencies on the other; they can charge themselves with their share of the sins and errors which produce separation;* but never, never can they regard the formation and libitum of new Ministries and systems of doctrine as warranted by the word and authority of God, or as being otherwise than a new and grievous evil in itself. Never can they recede the cant which is rung forth in newspapers and transported to the harangues of popularity hunters, who in their hearts "care for none of these things," that a real Catholic spirit consists in a reckless abandonment of all preference in religious systems, and that it is bigotry and intolerance to maintain, in however calm and christian a manner, the fences of orthodoxy, authority and order. No—never can they think that when Christ prayed that his disciples might be one; that when the apostle charges it upon them that there should be no schism in the body; that they should all speak the same thing;—that there should be no divisions among them; that they should be perfectly joined together in one spirit; that they should remember the one hope of their calling, one faith, one baptism—that they should beware of calling themselves after particular founders of the opinions which they had embraced, "I am of Paul—and I of Apollos—and I of Cephas"—never, with all this before their eyes, can they think that a true picture of Christian unity is there presented where the body consists of separate and independant parts; where an unlimited right is assumed of creating new ministers and new authorities; where some reject altogether the sacraments ordained by Christ, others, as if by an authority above His, dispense with them as they illustrate, as it appears to us rather circumstantially, by placing Archbishop Laud,† and others who hold, or are assumed to hold, similar principles, inconsistant with the spirit of Protestantism, in con rast with some other English divines whom they highly commend. (Pastoral Letter p. 10)

* We must not be understood as wishing to suggest reasons for the perpetuation of these differences —We are persuaded,—more strongly than the authors of the Pastoral Letter,—that the multiplicatenn of religious divisions is a mischief, and that the different bodies of Presbyterians would do a wise and right thing to co-alesce. If our recommendation could have weight, we would by all means recommend such a co-alition. We only enter our protest against urging on, or anticipating, for the sake of making head against the Church of England, what appears to be neither digested nor, by some of the parties concerned, understood.

† Those who are called Primitive Wesleyans are now labouring, and, we believe, in Ireland with much success, to bring back the whole body to their originally closer adhearance to the Church We have very decided objections to Methodism, which we have often candidly stated to its professors, and we regard that proceedings as inconsistent with the plainest principles of churchmen-hip, but we do not despair, in God's good time and after some changes which we think are working, of an arrangement which would bring them regularly under the wing of the church.

We acknowledge, however, that in point of forms, the dissenting bodies of Presbyterians are much nearer to the Church of Scotland, than the Methodists to ourselves.

‡ The Scotch divines are not obliged to be intimate with the characters of those who figure in English ecclesiastical history; but most assuredly they are not correct in their account of Laud We believe that Southey in his Book of the Church has done him very little more than justice.

* See the last ten or eleven pages of the Pastoral Letter, passim.

† See bottom of p. 12, and middle of 14 of the Pastoral Letter.

* See Archdeacon Mountain's ordination sermon, published at Quebec in 1826, p. 10.

land once fondly indulged the hope. We have already been drawn on strangely to transgress our announced intention of condensing the latter part of our remarks," and we must bring them to a close; but if time and space were left us, we could furnish multiplied and striking instances not only of a kindly tendency to union in various religious parties, but of a cordial and holy attachment to Religion through the medium of an adopted Church. The claim with which the Church of Scotland has recently waked up, the noise which her claim has made and the echo from different quarters which has answered it have been the cause of dissipating a great part of this delightful vision. It is in vain, it is vain that she would say that she has done nothing for the people of this Province because she had not the requisite powers and means at her disposal; for when did she begin to make the effort to acquire those powers? We should do a palpable wrong if we charged upon the authors and promoters of a claim which they persuade themselves to be just, and the ill consequences of which they probably did not contemplate, all the evils to which it has actually given birth, but the claim itself, as it was timed and as Religion was circumstanced in the country, we regard as a great public calamity. We are still recommending a "system of proselytism" nor has the Bishop recommended it, we do not wish to see our Clergy go abroad to meddle with other folds regularly-constituted and duly provided with shepherds of their own; we are advocating union; and, while we bow to the divine assurance that "all things work together for good," we still mourn over the partial ruin of the fabric which the hands of our brethren were raising up.

As far as we can judge from ourselves and those whom we best know, an ardent love of union,—a yearning of the heart to bring those who ought to be brothers in faith, to act in concert and to frequent the courts of the house of God together, (operating upon a conviction that the extension of their own establishment affords the truest means of effecting this object) is the predominant feeling which dictates what is termed the policy of our Clergy, and, if the direct interests of a particular Church which has claims upon their love and duty, have united themselves with their motives, we believe that we could name some other instances, in which precisely the same principle has been a sufficiently obvious ingredient of religious zeal. Alas! what a change have we seen! How many new and unprovided communities are now unsettled in their religious plans waiting to see the issue of the struggle! how many individuals who otherwise, in all reasonable calculation would have been gained to assist in planning the means of public worship, are hanging off, and perhaps defeating the whole object, because they actually doubt whether there is to be any Established Religion! How many are, in a manner, intimidated or withheld by a false alarm from violating a nominal adherence to some one or other of the modes of Religion, because the pride of consistency and the remnant of national or other prepossessions and associations, have been kindled into life by what has passed before the public in the contest between those who profess the Episcopal mode and the Presbyterian! How many evil passions have been set in motion! how many causeless suspicions engendered, how many hurtful misconceptations sent abroad! how many malicious or careless hands have thrust in with their brand to set the flame running through inflammable prejudices and feelings which had no necessary connection whatever with the subject!

If it be said that had we of the Church of England yielded to the claim of our competitors, all would then have been peace, in the first place we absolutely deny this, and in the second we affirm that we had no imaginable right to consent to such a surrender. Whatever credit we may gain for the declaration, it is with truth that we declare contention to be hateful to our souls; we at least, who, in the midst of multiplied occupations, have by forced toil, prepared this hurried sheet, can say from our heart that we have done it as a severe and painful duty; that in all contentions connected with religion, we are dragged against our nature and full often have borrowed the language of the Psalmist to vent in secret our longing for repose and peace, "O that I had wings like a dove for then would I flee away and be at rest!"

If it is indeed to be contemplated as possible that our Church should have a rival to divide her honors and advantages in this diocese, let no apprehension be felt that, the thing once done, her clergy will seek to perpetuate the strife. Whatever may be the issue we entertain the pleasing hope; and why should not our hope embrace also our opponents? that acquiescing in the will of providence, they will manifest neither the insolence of triumph nor the fullenness of defeat. Their opinion on the question, we believe, can never be changed; nor will their endeavours be reheard in maintenance of their cause; but they will seek to heal the sores which have been opened and set the example of living in charity with their antagonists, forgetful of the day of battle. For ourselves, if we dare look back upon this our controversy, we will unreservedly whatever kind things have been said of us by our opponents, and obliterate from our minds whatever may have caused us pain. We pray them also to forgive and hereafter to forget whatever here or elsewhere may have been said on our side, to offend their feelings. And so God defend the right!

* The little time allowed us, has obliged us to send off successive portions of our manuscript to the press, and we have therefore had no possible opportunity of seeing our own work as a whole, and making such changes or retrenchments as we might have desired.

(Concluded.)

JOHN MURCHISON, Draper and Tailor, respectfully informs his friends and customers, that he has just received from London, a choice assortment of extra, fine and superfine West of England Broad Cloths and Cassimeres; consisting of Blue, Black, Scarlet, Green, Olive, Brown, Grey, Drab and Corbeau, Single and Double Milled Cassimeres; do. Double Milled Broad Cloths for Great Coats, and vestings of every description, which he is ready to make up to order at short notice, in good style, and on the lowest terms possible. Gentlemen wishing any thing in his line may depend upon being faithfully served.

N.B. He has also a number of Military Articles to dispose of on reasonable terms.

York, July 28, 1828. 4n. 8

LIST OF LETTERS remaining in the York Post-Office, on the 5th July, 1828:

Isaac Austin,
Wm. Ansbowne,
George Anderson,
Betsy Agnes,
Henry Armstrong,
Charles Boulds,
Peter Bush,
George Bile,
Patrick O'Brien,
Charles Burrows,
James Beard,
Mary Browne,
John Brackin,
Dr. D. A. Balcolm,
2. Charles Bevins,
Hannah Boice,
Abraham Boice,
Abraham Bagshaw,
Benjamin Baker,
Peter Brown,
William Birdall,
Robert Bowman,
John Bavinder,
Richard Bready,
Samuel Beasely,
Joseph Beasely,
William Bell,
Mr. Blair,
Peter Casy,
Cornelius O'Calaghan,
Calvin Cole,
Charles Curry,
Mrs. P. Cole,
George A. Crowe,
Patrick O'Calaghan,
Joseph Canning,
William Chisholm,
Conrad Clock,
William Cragg,
James Cherberry,
John Culham,
Charles Campbell,
Archd Cameron,
2. T. Coates,
Robert Campbell,
Resolved Cleveland,
Archibald Chambers,
Martin Chapman,
John Carnthon,
Donald Campbell,
Thomas Donaghoo,
Jane Dancy,
Dr. Oliver Davidson,
2. William Deady,
Timothy Dunn,
William Dickey,
James Dron,
Jacob Darling,
Thomas Dalmont,
Ann Dudgeon,
Robert Denison,
Peter Dygest,
Joseph Davis,
William Denis,
William Dickson,
3. Timothy Doyle.
E. F. Doran,
James Denman,
John Darcy,
James Dyer,
Timothy Dick,
Edward French,
Thomas Ferguson,
John Foreman.
Peter Frank,
Henry Fosmire,
Samuel Flemming,
Johnston Fletcher,
2. John Frellick,
Abraham Goodrich,
2. Garbut Gray,
Thomas Godfrey,
John Good,
William Glover.
Alexander Greenaway,
3. William Gray,
James Goodfellow,
Z. Galloway
Isaac Gordon,
John Goodall,
Theodore Grout,
Robert Gilmer,
Thomas L. Gilbird,
Isaac Head,
John Hanlin,
Mary Hughes,
Eli Hand,
3. Jacob Hartsell,
Stephen Harrison,
Hugh Henry,
John Hillock,
Robert Hunt,
James Johnson,
John Johnson,
James Jamieson,
John Jamieson,
C. A. Jolly,
Sarah Johnson,
Pensioner—James Jackson,
Jacob Keefer,
Andrew Keefe,
John Key,
Thomas Kelly,
George Lount,
William Long,
Susannah Lehman,
Daniel Lahman,
Mark Learmout,
Daniel Leek,
James Lendrum,
Edward Leonard,
John S. Lyons,
David Lewis,
Dr. John W. Leonard,
John Lee,
William Laugham,
King Lindsey,
2. John McDonald,
Charles Moore,
2. Samuel Moore,
William Moore,
John M'Connell,
Mrs. McConnell,
John M'Guire,
Betsy M'Gee,
John M'Gill,
Mary May,
Hugh M'Grath,
Alexander M'Donald,
Edward Miller,
John Miller,
George Martin,
Alexander M'Vean,
Wm. M. Monroe,
Margaret Mills,
2. Peter Montgomery,
Alexander M'Donell,
David Musselman,
Peter Musselman,
Edmund Maher,
Michael M'Cormick,
Elizabeth M'Cormick,
Rokhead Manifold,
Andrew Millar,
George M'Intosh,
William Mackey,
James Gilmer,
John M'Farlane,
Hugh Morrow,
George Moody,
Alexander M'Kinly,
John Neblitt,
Lucy Ostrom,
David Oyer,
Gilbert H. Purdy,
James Palme,
William Perry,
Jonathan Pipes,
James Parker,
William Potter,
David Porter,
John Price,
Conrad Pratts,
P. P. Peck,
Amelia Prayn,
Timothy Pangmon,
2. William L. Pierce,
Daniel Patton,
E. Pettibone,
Oliver Prentice,
George Peterman,
Geoffry Prendergast,
Loughlin Quinn,
Jonathan L. Quicks,
John Quigley,
William L. Reeve,
2. Samuel Ramsey,
John Rinker,
William Raymond,
Daniel Reid,
Patrick Redmond,
Andrew Richson,
Patrick Ryly,
John Roulean,
Isaac Rutter,
James Ross,
Joseph Shaw,
Joseph Stephenson,
Salomon Stagdille,
John Sanders,
Esther Stone,
William Secord,
William Small,
Richard Hall Thornhill,
George Thompson,
William Temple,
John Talor,
Asel F. Tobias,
James C. VanEvery.
Henry Wisme,
Eba Webdon,
Robert Wiles,
Henry Wideman,
James Whiteside,
2. James Withrow,
Mercy Woodward,
George Wolten,
George Ward,
Joseph Ward,
John Ward,
Joseph Walker,
Michael Whitmore,
William Waterhouse,
James Widow,
James Williams,
Mary Young.
Thomas & Wm. Young.

York, 5th July. 1828. 2n. 8

IT is particularly requested that all claims on the Canada Company be sent in during the first week in September next, and afterwards regularly in the first week of December, March, June and September, addressed "Thomas Smith, Esquire, Cashier and Accountant, Canada Company's Office, York," to whom application is to be made for payment in the first week in October, January, April and July.

JOHN GALT,
Superintendant.

Canada Company's Office,
Guelph, 29th July, 1828. n. 8

THE HOTEL in Guelph is now ready to be let on very advantageous terms.

T. B. HUSBAND,
Clerk.

Canada Company's Office,
Guelph. 29th July, 1828. n. 8

TO BE SOLD, BY AUCTION, on the 15th day of August next, at the Store of the Subscriber,—the whole of his Stock in Trade—consisting of: Broad Cloths; Kersymeres; Druggets; Sattinettes; Fearnoughts; Blankets; Carpeting; Flannels; Guernsey Shirts.—Mens, Womens, and Childrens' Wollen and Cotton Hosiery.—Grey Bleached and Steam Loom Sheetings; 8-4 and 12-4 Marsailles Counterpanes.—Furniture Chints; Ginghams; Calicoes; Turkey and Union Stripes; Bedticking; ready made Shirts and Vests; Striped Shirting; Coloured Cambric; Imitation and Linen Cambric; Cambric Muslins.—Imitation and Kerseymere Shawls; India Nankeens; Fancy Handkerchiefs; Jeans; Fustians; Corduroys, Tapes; Bobbins; Thread; Irish Imitation and Osnaburgh Sheetings.—Cotton Yarn No. 7, 8, and 9. Bombazeens; Bombazetts; Lastings; Plaids; Coloured Persians; Gross de Naples; Canton Crape; Black Sattin; India and Fancy Silk Handkerchiefs; Black Silk Vestings; Thread and Cotton Lace, and Ribbons.—Parasols and Umbrellas. Ladies' and Gentlemens' Kid and Beaver Gloves; Straw and Beaver Bonnets; Mens and Boys' Beaver and Wool Hats.—Brushes of all descriptions.

English and Swedes Iron; German Steel; Potash Kettles; Coolers, Stoves, Stove Stands, and Pans; Pots; Dutch Ovens; Dog Irons; Tea Kettles; Waggon Boxes; Wrought and cut Nails; Logging, Trace, and Halter Chains; Preserving, Frying and Sauce Pans; Hand and Cross Saws; Files; Drawing Knives; Augers; Gimlets; Hinges; Cotton Cards; Spades; Shovels.—A quantity of Shelf Goods and Cutlery.

Teas; Muscovado Sugar; Pepper; Alspice; Indigo; Blue; Soap; Tobacco: Coffee; Rice, &c. &c.

Sixty Dozen of Old Madeira, Port, and Teneriffe Wines.—Sixty Dozen of Hibberts Brown Stout; Two Puncheons of Jamaica Spirits; 1000 Gallons Whiskey; one set of Copper Wine Measures; three pair Copper Beams, Scales, and Weights; three Suspending Lamps.—Fifty Wheat Puncheons.

Terms.—All sales to the amount of twenty pounds, Six Months credit, upon giving approved endorsed notes, bearing interest. Under twenty, Cash.

☞ The Hollow Ware and Castings of the St. Maurice Foundry will be sold on a twelve Months Credit, upon giving approved endorsed notes, bearing interest.

WILLIAM GAMBLE.

York, 23d July. 1828. n. 8

ALLIANCE BRITISH AND FOREIGN
Life and Fire Assurance Company,
OF LONDON.

(Capital—Five Millions Sterling.)

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent to the above Company, at York, he is ready to Insure against loss or damage by Fire at moderate rates of Premium. The high standing of this Institution in England, and the Company allowing their Agents in Montreal to settle losses in this Country, with the Assured participating in the Profits of the Company, renders it worthy of Public Confidence.

R. W. PRENTICE.

York, November 18*th*, 1826. 23.

FOR SALE.—Lot No. 29, and part of 30, in the 7th Concession of the Township of Pickering, containing 350 Acres, and having an eligible situation for a Mill. For terms apply to Mr. Andrew Mercer, York.

York, 28th October, 1827. 22 tf.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINION.

(Continued.)

In legal proceedings, a man is said to be "in Court," when he has been served with the process of the Court, and is regarded as being "in Court" for the purpose of moving, or being moved against;—not that he has necessarily been, or that he must be, within the walls of the Court while it is sitting, but he is in that Court which is created by the Act of Parliament—which is manifested by the Commission to the Judges, and by their proceedings, and which does not die, and revive, as often as any individual Judge in it vacates his seat, and another is appointed.—The Court exists by Commission independently of any building or hall in which it discharges its functions.

A President of a Court or Council is the person "who presides in" such Court or Council—I think the substantive is strictly reducible into the very words under consideration.—The Chief Justice "presides in" the Executive Council, ex Officio, in the absence of the Lieutenant Governor, but though he may be absent there is a Council and a President appointed to preside in it.—He presides nevertheless in the Council, in my understanding of the term, at the very moment that from his illness or absence the Senior Member of the Board presides of necessity at any particular sitting.

I submit that if any stranger should enter the Court of King's Bench during Term time, and ask a bye stander "who presided in that Court?" he might consistently with the just and common understanding of words, be told that the Chief Justice of the Province presiped in it, but that he was not then present.—I conceive that a person may preside in a Court without presiding in every Session of that Court.

The expression, "shall preside in the Court" is to be understood in the common acceptation of the words. It is not a legal or technical phrase which has a certain known meaning necessarily attached to it, and it is the most ordinary sense that the Legislature must be supposed to have used it.—If we give, to expressions of similar import such a construction as would make them refer only to the actual sitting of the Court—and to take them in that sense strictly, we shall find that the most respectable writers upon the Constitution of the Courts in England misrepresent them as in this respect subject to restrictions and conditions which they certainly are not subject to.—For instance a writer on the Court of King's Bench says "the Judges of the King's Bench are composed of the Lord Chief Justice of England and three Puisne Judges, all of whom sit in that part of Westminster Hall known by the name of the Court of King's Bench, every day in the four Terms."

Now it is so notorious that all the Judges do not sit every day in Term, (the illness and absence of one or more of them frequently preventing) that the author can but have meant that they may sit—that they are "appointed to sit," or as our Statute has it, "to preside in the Court." I cite this merely to shew the sense in which such language is used.—Mr. Justice Blackstone uses precisely the same words in describing the Court of Common Pleas.

If the words "presides in the said Court" are not so frequently used in the Constitution of Courts, as the expression "that the Court shall consist," or be composed of, &c." I shall be able I think to shew very satisfactorily that they were not used by the Legislature in order to produce a different effect, and, in the mean time, I will add that I think their introduction is rationally accounted for by observing that the Court consists of other Officers besides the Judges.—the Judges are Officers of the Court, so are the Sheriffs—so are the Clerks—so are various other persons attached to it.—These latter, however, do not preside in the Court.—The Judges do—and the expression I understand to have been applied to the Judges in that sense, and without particular reference to their actual sitting in Term any more than to their acting either collectively or singly in vacation.

I will not further insist upon the meaning to be imputed to the words abstractedly, though many other arguments on that point occur to me, because I feel that the question has been set at rest not merely by the concurring practice of all the Judges who have presided in the Court but by the declared sense of the Legislature, and indeed I have said thus much on this point, because I think it satisfactory in a matter so important to shew that the construction invariably given to the language of the Statute is not repugnant to the letter, but is strictly consistent with the common understanding and fair meaning of the words themselves.

If we take a more comprehensive view of the question, I think it clear that the words "preside in the Court" are capable of no other construction than I have given to them, when we consider the nature of the object to which they are applied, and when we look at other Clauses of the same Statute and at other Statutes expressly relating to the Court.

The practice and proceedings, and the powers of the Court are all similar to those of the King's Bench in England.—It is surely not consistent with the nature of a Court, constituted with the powers and for the purposes expressly assigned to this Court in the very clause in which the words occur, namely, for the "regular" as well as "the general administration of Justice," that it should never be certain whether there will be a Court on any return day in Term—never be certain that an argument can be heard to the end, or a cause tried even after it is begun. I have known a few years ago a trial at bar in ejectment for a large property in a remote district—the Special Jury were necessarily brought from that District—the trial lasted from an early hour of one day to three o'clock in the morning of the next.—If one of the Judges, overcome by the exertion, had expired in a fit upon the Bench—and the effect of such a casualty had been to annihilate the Court and so effectually as to prevent even the power of adjournment, (for that is now expressly affirmed.)—then the Jurors must have been allowed to walk out of their box and separate to their homes, and the case must have ended in a general dispersion, without authority, of parties, Judges, Officers and all.

Again, by Law and the practice of the Court, a party complaining of an illegal verdict has the first four days of the following Term in which to move—he unluckily, perhaps unavoidably defers it to the last—a Judge is ill on that day, and cannot attend in his place—there is no Court it is said, and he cannot move, for it is impossible, if a new Commission were required whenever a Judge is absent or ill, that it can always be completed and issued on the instant,—the next day his adversary enters up his Judgment before or after the hour for the meeting of the Court, and without inquiring whether the Judge was well or ill, or whether he would be or was absent or present on the Bench.—He does his Act in the Office of the Court which is always in existence—but in which, by the way, no business of any kind ought to be transacted if there is no longer a Court

And, indeed I am at a loss to understand how the ordinary chamber business of the Judges could be legally transacted at a time, when, by the absence of the Chief Justice (admitting the absence to have that effect) there is no longer a Court—since, clearly it is only as a Judge of the Court of King's Bench, and as the Court supposed to be always existing, that any proceeding in a cause can take place before him, either in vacation or in term.

At this moment, there are, doubtless, in the several Gaols of this Province, prisoners in custody for debt upon process of the Court of King's Bench. It is utterly repugnant to suppose that they can be held in custody under the authority of the Court of King's Bench, and yet that, if from defect or irregularity in the process, they are irregularly confined, there is, by reason of the absence of one Judge no Court which can grant them redress, and that even in a Term appointed by Law for the sitting of the Court.

This would lead to the absurdity, that Acts which, out of Court one Judge in vacation can do and must do, two Judges can not do in Court.

Again it is a principle that no man can be a Judge in his own cause, and I can hardly suppose it will be thought that the Legislature, taking the English Courts, evidently for their model, intended absolutely to exclude, from the means of redress, for the most ordinary as well as the greatest injuries, to person or property, all the Judges of our Court of King's Bench—one Judge, it is admitted, may not legally form one of a Court sitting in Judgment upon a case in which he is a party, but then, if for that reason he must withdraw, he would according to the construction lately advanced, leave, in this Province no Court capable of acting, and consequently must be without remedy.

If the words of the Statute were (contrary to reason and as I think to their common acceptation) to be so construed as to render inevitable a dissolution of the Court or to disable it from sitting in Term whenever death or absence diminished the number of the Judges, then the Legislature was found to have created many absurdities by their provisions, and then also it will be seen that the Judges must be incurring the risk of producing evil and inconvenience by almost every act done by them in vacation

When an insolvent debtor is entitled to his discharge and, by reason of failure in paying him the weekly allowance, it is directed by the Statute of 1822, that he shall be discharged by the Court in Term time, or by a Judge in vacation,—it is clear then that a single Judg cannot discharge him during Term, yet surely the Legislature can never be supposed to have intended that the Chief Justice and one Judge, or that two Judges should be unable in a term appointed by Law for the regular transaction of the business of the Court to do that, even in favor of the liberty of the subject, which one Judge may do in vacation.

Again by a Provincial Statute passed in the year 1797, a dilatory plea may be argued before a Judge in vacation to prevent vexatious delays, but it would seem a strange inconsistency if from the Chief Justice being ill or absent in the Term in which it is set down for argument as the Statute directs, two Judges could not hear and determine it, and yet thereby their right to sit as a Court, for that purpose must depend upon the same construction, as their right to sit for all other purposes. It seems quite clear that if we are to adopt the conclusion that there is not a Court of King's Bench capable of discharging its functions in Term—there can be no legal Court of King's Bench existing in the Province, for surely nothing could be more absurd and repugnant than to hold that a Court exists for the purpose of enabling Judges to do acts individually in their chambers which, if erroneous could only be redressed in Term time, and yet, to deny that the same Judge associated with another Judge can in Term time grant that remedy, or do any other act. One Judge in vacation may, in case of tort or unliquidated damages grant an order to hold to bail: he may chance to do this on an insufficient affidavit—but if in the ensuing Term the unavoidable absence of a single Judge disables the Court from proceeding, there is no opportunity of relieving the defendant from custody.

Upon what principle it is that the Judges transact much of the business of the Court out of Term is very clearly explained in the case of Rex vs. Almon, in Lord Chief Justice Wilmot's arguments and opinions which confirms in several points, the view I have taken of the question submitted to me.—There would, indeed, be no end to the contradictions, the absurdities, and mischiefs, that we must be exposed to, if the 34th Geo. 3, is to have any other construction than that which has been always hitherto given, and it is unnecessary to multiply instances—at the same time I am ready to admit that the force of arguments drawn from consequences has its limit, and that a Legislature might, in its folly, use terms which would admit only of a construction such as is contended for. What I mean to state is that a Court would, with extreme reluctance, adopt a construction which must involve them in such absurdities and would gladly and readily rescue themselves from it by finding, in other parts of the Statute or in subsequent Statutes expressions and provisions which shew the meaning of the Legislature to have been sensible and rational, though apparently repugnant to the letter.

Such helps and guides to the construction are certainly at hand in our Statute Book. The provision in the 4th clause of the same Act can, in my opinion be reconciled with no other construction than that hitherto acted upon. The Writs by the course and practice of the Court and upon every principle which governs its proceedings, bear teste in Term.—They are supposed to be awarded by the Court while sitting, and it is for that reason they do bear teste in Term—but the 4th clause referred to expressly provides that, in the absence of the Chief Justice they shall be tested by the Senior Judge of the Court.—This provision therefore evidently supposes that the Court may be sitting in Term, without a Chief Justice, and in declaring how the Writs shall be tested, it has regard to that probable occurrence and guards against an exception which might have lain if it had declared that the Writs should be tested by the Chief Justice—to have provided that the names of all the Judges should be used would have been inconvenient—to have required that the name of the Chief Justice should be used, where there might, for a time, be none in the Province, would have been leaving the provision imperfect: and the Act therefore prudently provides that where the Chief Justice's name would be used when there is a Chief Justice, that of the Senior Puisne Judge may be used when there is not.

But it may, and has been, objected that the inserting this provision shews that the Legislature intended to authorise this one Act and this only to be done in the absence of the Chief Justice,—it would however, serve to little purpose, to authorise a Writ to issue under circumstances that would permit of no proceeding beyond it.

There can be no chasm in legal proceedings, and if, when the Writ is made returnable, which the 4th clause declares must be in Term time, there should be no Court that could legally sit, the proceedings must unavoidably be discontinued.

(To be Continued.)

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.—Tenders will be received at this Office until noon of Monday the 11th day of August next, for the performance of Sundry repairs and whitewashing, to the following Public Buildings at this Post:—

Men's Brick Barracks,
Men's Splinter Roof Barracks,
Canteen,
Cooking Houses Nos. 1 and 2,
Block House No. 1,
Block House No. 2,
Officers Blue Barracks,
Officers Brick Barracks and Mess Establishment,
Captain's Quarters,
Hospital,
Main Guard, Solitary Cells, and Orderly Room.
Stable of the Commandant's Quarters,
Commissariat Officers Quarters,
And Guard House at Commissariat Store,

The Tenders must express the Rate in Sterling, (the Dollar and 4s 4d) as also be signed by two respectable persons willing to become security for a correct performance of the Contract.

For any further information, application is to be made to Mr. Bell, Master Carpenter Royal Engineer Department.

ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.

Commissariat Office,
York, 30th July, 1828. 4 n. 8

NOTICE.—All persons indebted to Mr. William Lindsay, who has removed from York, are requested to call and settle accounts with the Subscriber, who is duly authorised to receive monies on his account and give acquittances.—Any persons having claims against Mr. Lindsay, are also desired to present them for adjustment.

CHARLES BAKER.

York, 22d May, 1828. 52tf.

FOR SALE,—Lot No. 12, and East half of 14 in the 3d Concession of the Township of York, West of Yonge-Street,—300 Acres,—the property of Major W. G. White.—Refer to Robert Stanton, Esquire, U. C. Gazette Office.

York, 4th July, 1828. 3. 5

NEW WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE.—The Subscriber respectfully announces to the Merchants of York and its vicinity, that he has opened a Wholesale Store, Corner of Market-Lane and Church-Street; where he is receiving a large and suitable assortment of Day Goods, direct from GREAT BRITAIN: consisting principally of the following articles:—
Grey and Bleached Factory Cottons,
do. do. Sheetings,
Striped and Check'd Cottons,
Scotch Hollands,
Fine, Superfine, and Brussels Carpeting,
do. do. broad and narrow Cloths,
do. do. Cassimeres,
Bombazettes, Bombazines, and Shalloons,
Says, Lastings, Cambletts, &c.,
Tartans and Upion Checks,
Moleskins, Barragans and Fustians,
Red and White Flannel,
Chintzes, Calicoes and Furnitures,
Book, Jaconnet and Mull Muslins,
Batiste Muslins, Striped, Check'd and figured,
Ginghams, Pullicate and Verona Handkerchiefs,
Cotton and Linen Bed Tick,
Russia Duck, Osnaburgs, Hessins and Sheetings,
Canvas, Bagging, Dowlas, Drill, &c.
Umbrellas, 28, 28, and 30 inch,
Bandanna, Barcelona, Gauze & Barrage, Handkerchiefs,
Silk Hose, and Habit Gloves,
Black, and Green Crape Veils, &c.
Black and Coloured sewings, Lagee Twist, &c.
Galloons, Silk and Cotton Ferrets,
Black and W. Brown Linen Thread, Cotton Spoolls and Balls,
Silk, Cotton, and Merino Shawls,
Cotton Tapes, Bobbin, &c.
Sattins, Gros de Naples, Levantine Ribbons, &c. &c.—
Which he will sell off at very reduced prices, for cash only.

JAMES DOUGALL.
York, 23d July, 1828. x. 7

THOMAS MOORE.—TAILOR, Front Street, York.
Near the Steam Boat Hotel.—Begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has just opened, and offers for Sale, a choice assortment of Goods, Selected by himself at the Manufactories in England, which he can recommend as being of choice quality, consisting of, Superfine, Blue; Black; Scarlett: Green; Olive; Grey and Drab, West of England Broad Cloths.—Black, Blue and Grey, Double and single Milled Kersymeres. Forest Cloths. Lasting and Corduroys.—Beverteens; Fustians; Cantons. Jane; Drab, and Striped Brown Drills. Fine Welsh Flannel; White and Blue Flannel. White and Grey Cottons. London printed Calicoes and Chintzes. Fancy Vestings. Printed Muslins. Sewing Silk; Twist; Thread and Rich Gilt Buttons.

MILITARY EQUIPMENTS,
consisting of, Regulation Swords; Patent Leather Regulation Waist Belts, with rich Gilt clasps. Rich Gold Bullion Epaulets, crimson Silk Regulation Sashes.—Rich Gold Velvet Lace, and Gilt British Militia Buttons. Red, White and Green, Regulation Feathers, with rich Gilt Tubes for do.

The whole of which will be disposed of on reasonable terms, or made up to order, agreable to the latest fashions, at the shortest notice.
York, 14th July, 1828. x 6

STRAYED OR STOLEN, a few days since a Sorrel Pony his hinder legs white half way up, nearly so, his tail long, and a white stripe in his face, between four and five years old.

Any person giving correct information at this Office where the said horse may be found by the owner shall be liberally rewarded.
York, July 15th, 1828. x 6

York Auction, Mart, & Commission Ware-House.
M. & R. MEIGHAN,
Opposite the Market Square.

HAVE for Sale, an assortment of Household Furniture, consisting of Mahogany, Curled Maple and Cherry Trees, Side Boards, Secretaries, Bureaus, Sideboards, Breakfast Dining, and Card Tables, Work Tables, Bason Stands, Feather Beds and Bedding; A London made grand Piano; an excellent Sulkey Carriage; a Mangle for pressing clothes; A Jack for Roasting Meat; A very elegant fourteen day Time Piece with Italian Marble Pyramid Glass Shade; Double and Single Barrel Percussion Lock Fowling Pieces and Pistols; Bridles, Saddles, Double and Single Harness; Gilt and Plain Frame Looking Glasses; Some Handsome Vases and chimney Ornaments; an extensive assortment of Elegant Dry and Fancy Goods of every description, Hardware, Jewellery, Crockery and Glassware; Groceries, Tea, Wine and Spirits; together with an Elegant Collection of Books, Stationery, Perfumery, Patent Medicines &c.

Regular Auction Sales every week.
York, x 6.

ENGLISH STORE.—Just received, direct from England, a quantity of Bobbin Net, Lace, Veils, and Caps, of the first quality; also, an assortment of Muslins and other Goods; which will be sold on the most reasonable terms, by
J. COCKSHUTT.
York, July 14th 1828. x 6

Summary.

The Russian Bulletin, as was conjectured, turns out to be a forgery, devised probably by speculators in the stocks. A letter from Berlin of the 17th June, states that the Nuremburg Gazette from which the bulletin was said to have been copied, contained no such article. It is also said that with a few changes of dates and names, it is a mere copy of an old official bulletin of a series of engagements between the Russians and Turks in former wars.

At a meeting of the Royal Society, held on Thursday, the President read a letter from the Duke of Sussex, expressing his Royal Highness's wish to become a Fellow agreeable to the rule regarding the election of members of the Royal Family. An immediate ballot took place, and his Royal Highness was unanimously elected a Fellow.

A few days ago, Mrs Earle, an elderly lady, who was the last surviving descendant, in a direct line, from the immortal author of Paradise Lost, died at her lodgings in Bennet-street, Blackfriars. She had a large collection of works which once belonged to her illustrious relation, Milton.

It is said that Sir George Clerk, late a Lord of the Admiralty, and member for Edinburgh, is to be appointed Secretary for Ireland.—Dublin Evening Mail,

Sir H. Hardinge was returned for the City of Durham on Monday last, without opposition; and Sir George Cockburn for Plymouth, on Tuesday, also without opposition.

We believe that we may now state positively that Lord Leveson Gower will be the Irish Secretary of State. We heard yesterday, and as we think from unquestionable authority, that all the difficulties in the way of such an arrangement were entirely removed.

Lord Cowley, it is understood, has resigned leaving Vienna for Paris: and in consequence Lord Stewart will succeed our present Ambassador, Lord Granville, who is positively recalled.

We regret to have to announce the death of Lord Beresford, the young Nobleman who was brutally assaulted at Windsor during the Ascot Races. He expired on Saturday morning at two o'clock, of a fracture of the skull. We have heard, that a wag one evening last week, with a hammer knocked him down upon the head with his hob-nailed shoes. He is however in custody. Lord Mount Sandford was an Irish Baron, and was only in his 23d year. He was second Baron of that title, and was succeeded his uncle, the late Lord whose title was one of the many creations that sprang out of the union of Ireland and Great Britain. He was the son of the Rev. W. Sandford, by a daughter of the Hon. John Oliver, of Castle Oliver, in the county of Limerick.

It is stated that Mrs. Hemans, so long distinguished as the first poetess of the age, is about to make Edinburgh her place of residence.

The Catholic Question was lost in the House of Lords, after two night's debate, on the 11th of June. On taking the vote the numbers stood as follows: Non-Contents: present, 123; proxies, 53; 182: Contents: present, 99; proxies, 45: 131, Majority against the motion; 45.

It is expected, however, that the same question will be brought before Parliament again during the present session, in consequence of a motion made by Mr. Wilmot Horton, in the Lower House, on the 13th. The motion was to the following effect:

Mr. W HORTON gave notice of a motion for the 3d of July, to refer to a select committee all acts of Parliament passed since the Union with Ireland, which relate to the United Church of England and Ireland, or to the doctrine, discipline, regulations, rights, and privileges thereof; and also, all acts of Parliament passed since that period which in any manner relate to Roman Catholics or Protestant Dissenters.

England.

ENGLAND.—A Cabinet Council was held on the 12th, at which Sir Vesey Fitzgerald took his seat for the first time, as President of the Board of Trade.

The Catholic question came before the House of Lords on the 9th June. The Marquis of Lansdown moved the order of the day for taking into consideration the communication from the Commons. In a long and interesting vindication of the claims of the Catholics: he referred to the system of toleration adopted in the United States; and the State of Maryland in particular. After a long and able debate their Lordships adjourned. On the 10th, after another discussion, the resolution from the commons was rejected by a majority of 45. Notwithstanding this unfavorable issue, it was still, however generally thought that the Catholic question had gained ground. Such hopes were expressed by Sir Francis Burdett in the House of Commons on the 12th, on presenting a petition in favor of Catholic emancipation. On this occasion, Mr. Brougham said—

"As regarded it as a great calamity, that the other House had rejected the temperate resolution of the House of Commons, but he derived a lively hope, from the manner in which it had been rejected; there was no longer that array of Bholemance, or that display of theological disputation which had formerly been made, by its greatest enemies, to be one of expediency, and no difficulty remained but that of the terms on which security might be obtained. For his part, he would not say what the nature of those securities should be; that he would leave to propounded by those who required them. Of one thing he was certain—that this subject had gained a degree of public favor, but he could not see that any great expectations had been held out to them. It was not even to the highest Authority they had to look for success—it was to the justice of their cause; and for his own part, he hoped they never would cease to press their cause upon the attention upon the Legislature. He wished they would do so incessantly; he hoped they at all events, would act peaceably."

In the House of Commons, on the 3d June, Lord Palmerston presented a petition from the University of Cambridge, praying for the abolition of slavery in the colonies. Mr. Spring Rice expressed his conviction, that no cabinet, however would dare to swerve from the resolutions passed by the House on this subject in 1823.

On the same day a short debate took place on the wool trade. Alderman Wood contended that it would be vain to keep up a high price of wool, as long as the colonies could supply the country with the article at 25 per cent. lower than it was produced at home. Mr. Irving said, the prohibitory system was acted upon in various foreign countries, The United States and Russia were taking measures to manufacture for themselves; and the woollen manufacturers of England must be sustained, by enabling them to obtain the raw material of such a quality and at such a price as would enable them to complete with foreigners.

Sir John Byng, it is said, will be appointed commander of the forces in Ireland, in the place of Sir George Murray.

The Thames Tunnel Company held a meeting on the 12th and determined on prosecuting the work.

Mr. Huskisson has removed from his house, in Downing-street, attached to the office of Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, to Richmond-terrace. Sir G. Murray succeeds Mr. Huskisson in the occupation of the house.

HIS MAJESTY'S GRAND BALL.

The King gave a ball at his palace, in St. James's, on Monday evening, May 26th, to which the members of the royal family, the foreign ambassadors, and ministers, and their ladies, and a numerous party of nobility and gentry, were invited.

Preparations for the accommodation of the party had been made in the state apartments and other parts of the palace. The room adjoining the ball-room was converted into a second ball-room, in order to give ample space to the dancers. Both rooms were chalked with representations of foliage in various wreaths and devices. The orchestra for the quadrille band was equally divided between the two rooms, half being on either side of the partition which separated them. The windows of both the ball-rooms had Italian carnaletti blinks, furnished by Bayley, on the outside, and fine gauze blinds, on which his Majesty's armorial badges were painted by Wilkinson on the inside. By means of these blinds the windows could be left open during the night, and the apartments well ventilated without the slightest inconvenience being experienced by any of the company. The Throne-room was used as the drawing-room, and the King's closet as a card room. In the lumpishness additional ventilators had been formed for the better airing of the apartment, the heat occasioned by the chandeliers being found very oppressive at the late juvenile ball. The recesses in the windows of these apartments and the different fire-places, were filled with the choicest flowers and plants.

The Armoury leading to the Presence Chamber was in the present instance set apart for the band of the Life Guards, who were stationed here in their state dresses, and who played several pieces in the course of the night.

Additional chandeliers and lamps, furnished by Mr. Perry, were placed in several of the rooms, and in the gallery and avenues leading to the state apartment.

Soon after nine o'clock, a detachment of Life Guards, preceded by their band, in their state dresses, took up their station at the eastern entrance to the Palace, in a line parallel to the Royal German Chapel.

The Under Sorters, the Marshalmen, and the Gentlemen Porters, were in attendance, as were also his Majesty's Pages, in their state dresses, together with Messrs. Messenger and Dubell, the State Pages. A party of the Yeomen Guard were on duty, and were stationed at short distances in the avenues leading to the two Grand Staircases, and also from the top of the staircase to the entrances to the State Rooms. The party appeared in their coronation dresses.

After one company began to arrive a few minutes before ten o'clock, and continued to set down very rapidly till eleven o'clock.

The Duchess of Kent, attended by the Baroness de Speadth and Sir John Conroy, arrived in the Palace Court Yard about ten o'clock. The band of the Third Regiment of Foot Guards, which were stationed with the King's Guard in the Court Yard, received the Royal Duchess on her arrival with "God Save the King," which was repeated by the band of the Life Guards as the Duchess passed through the Armoury, in which they were stationed, to the state apartments. The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester arrived about the same time, with their suite, in two carriages, at the entrance of the Ambassador's yard. Their Royal Highnesses were attended by Lady Caroline Legg, Col. Wiggins, and Major Foster. Prince Leopold, attended by Sir Robert Gardiner, and the Duke and Duchess of Clarence, successively arrived, and were severally received by the bands playing "God Save the King." The Duke of Cumberland entered by the King's private entrance.

The King entered the state apartments a few minutes after ten o'clock, dressed in the regimentals of a Field Marshal, and wearing the insignia of three different Orders. His Majesty received those of the company who were already in the room, and also those who subsequently arrived, in the most condescending and gracious manner.

About half past ten o'clock, the King having taken his seat in the Ball-room, surrounded by his Royal relatives, dancing commenced. The band which was led by Collinet, Michon, and Musard, consisted of thirty performers of the first rate talent. Owing to the superior accommodation afforded by the addition of the second ball-room, four sets were enabled to be danced. Quadrilles with Waltzing at intervals were danced during the night.

The appearance of the magnificent pier glasses, between the windows in the second ball-room, was in the highest degree interesting from the reflection of the illustrious and distinguished personages in splendid dresses, moving thro' the mazes of the dance.

Refreshments were served to the company in the Picture Gallery during the evening.

At one o'clock it was announced to his Majesty that the supper was served in the Banquet room. His Majesty left his seat, and led the way to the apartment, with his Royal sister, the Duchess of Gloucester, followed by the company. The band of the Life Guards commenced at this moment, playing a march, and continued to perform several pieces during the repast.

The supper was laid out in the Banquet-room, in a style similar, in most respects, to that of the Juvenile Ball; in the present instance there was a greater supply of plate.

A sideboard was fitted up at the South end of the apartment, with Damask drapery, on which were arranged several splendid specimens of gold plate.

The two largest dishes which are on a circular shape, have representations of Neptune's Feast to the Gods, executed in very bold relief, two other dishes of smaller circumference, contained the Triumph of Neptune and Amphitrite. The subjects of the centre pieces were the Garden of Hesperides, with the dragon guarding the golden apple, Mercury conducting Bacchus to the Nymphs and other Allegories. Between the pieces of plate were interspersed gold vases, in which the choicest plants had been introduced.

The display of plate at the table near to and parallel with the sideboard, was very handsome in the middle, opposite to the chair of state set apart for His Majesty, was a circular Egyptian temple, on the top of the dome was one of the Egyptian deities, and under the cupola, on an elevated altar, is the sacred ox. At each end of the table were ormolu candelabras, with scroll branches ornamented with fancy bold style. The centre pieces had representations of piping fawns, dancing nymphs, tritons, supporting shells &c.

The middle of the side tables, which extended the whole length of the apartment, had a succession of or molutri-pods, with representations of the ancient fables interspersed with candelabras, one of the pieces exhibiting shepherds playing on the ancient pipe with graceful convolvulus branches is a model of classical taste. The table down the middle of the room had also a similar interesting collection. The whole of the lumpishness were filled with the choicest of confectionary, or with the largest pines, peaches, nectarines, and other fruits, raised at the Royal Gardens, under the superintendance of Mr. Aiton, the King's Gardner.

Ornaments of the most pleasing and tasteful form executed in confectionary, mingled with the greatest possible variety of refreshments, of the choicest description, were arranged over the whole of the table, with the greatest regularity and in the most symmetrical manner.

After supper, dancing was resumed. At three o'clock his Majesty retired, the quadrille band played God save his Majesty, as his Majesty passed through the suite of State Rooms. The ball then, concluded, and the members of the Royal Family and the rest of the company took their departure.

Most of the ladies' dresses were very elegant, and the display of diamonds and jewels in some of the head dresses very magnificent. The Duchess of Gloucester had a brillant display of amethysts and diamonds, the Duchess of Northumberland, the Duchess of Richmond, the Marchioness of Salisbury, Countess of Jersey, and Mrs. Peel, were among those who had the greatest profusion of jewels, with elegant plumes of ostrich feathers.

The greatest order was preserved during the night in the regulation of the carriages by the police, who were under the direction of Messrs. Townsend and Sayer.

Scotland.

Dreadful Accident.—One of the most awful occurrences which it has fallen to our lot to record for some weeks, took place on Tuesday se'nnight, at one of the pits of the Dee Green Colliery, near Flint, belonging to Thomas Eyton, Esquire. The fire damp had collected in a part of the pit unobserved by the workmen, and one a boy inquitiously taking a lighted candle towards the spot, it instantly ignited, and a tremendous explosion followed. There were, at the time, upwards of thirty individuals, men and boys, in the mine, and out this number nine were killed on the spot, and eleven others dreadfully wounded; most of these had their limbs broken, and were so shockingly scorched, that it is feared some of them will not survive. The explosion was so loud that it was heard at a great distance, and so powerful that it blew up the machine which covered the mouth of the pit. The men who fortunately escaped were only preserved by having gone to the bottom of the shaft to drink of the water which is found there, after having finished their dinner.

Destruction of the Clydesdale Steamer.—On the morning of Friday se'nnight the Clydesdale was destroyed by fire on her voyage from Glasgow to Belfast; the loss of human life attending the catastrophe might have been enormous, as the vessel contained upwards of seventy passengers besides the crew; but, fortunately, indeed almost miraculously, not one life was lost. On Thusday, at nine o'clock, P. M. the Clydesdale sailed from Glasgow with seventy passengers, three of them, two ladies and a gentleman, being in the cabin. About seven o'clock one of the ladies remarked that she heard a crackling noise some where about the cabin; unfortunately no notice was taken of the observation, and they had retired to rest, when, about ten, the gentleman being disturbed by the noise of a confused smell overhead, rushed upon deck where he had learned that the vessel was on fire. At this time she was about twelve miles to the north of Corsewell Lighthouse. The fire was ascertained to have commenced between the main cabin and the engine room. The attempts to check the progress of the devouring element were unavailing; and the feelings of those who were thus exposed to one of the most terrible dangers which can assail humanity, a fire at sea, may be more easily imagined than described. Capt. Turner never for a moment lost his presence of mind, and the conduct of his crew was most exemplary. Finding that the only chance of safety was in running the burning mass ashore, he gave orders to the pilot, Maxwell, to that effect, and the latter immediately putting the vessel about, stood manfully to his post, and steered for the Corsewell Light. A common sailing vessel would have been irretrievably lost here the paddles were kept at work, the internal heats of the vessel adding to the velocity of their motion, and those who trembled at the destruction impending over them, had the satisfaction to perceive that she dashed on at speed only inferior to their wishes. Kennedy, the keeper of the Corsewell Light, was attending to his duties between 12 and 1, when he heard a strange and indescribable sound from the westward. In a short time he discovered a hazy light in the distance, and the cause of terror and despair became stronger soon afterwards he perceived the Clydesdale one mass of fire, her bows and masts covered with human beings, and Maxwell, the pilot, standing undauntedly at the helm, surrounded by flame and smoke. Most fortunately the vessel was actually steered into the only indentation in the bold headland of the Corsewell Point; and being held by one of her paddle boxes coming in contact with the rock, the whole of the passengers got on shore, truly thankful for their miraculous deliverance.

Foreign Intelligence.

From the London Courier.

Plan of the Campaign against Turkey.—All the strong places belonging to Turkey are not on the right side of the Danube. There are on the left bank Tarnow opposite Nicopolis—Giurgreve, the seie de pant of Radschuck, a place which, containing 18,000 inhabitants, sustained in 1790, a regular siege by the Prince Coburg. Brahilow, which contains 28,000 inhabitants, the fortifications of which were demolished in 1809, but rebuilt in 1826, 7000 of which were defended in an assault on it. Galatz an important point between the Pruth and the Danube. Those fortified points will either be attacked or masked, whilst the Grand Russian army follows the line, of the coast, penetrating between Varna which it will be sufficient to mask and the Thermopylæ, of Schinaits, which it is not necessary to pass. The greatest obstacle in this direction is Bassardjik. This town, situated upon low ground and defended by some square towers and a bad earth rampart, cannot make a long resistance, and the army will reach by five days the suburbs of Bourgos. The fleet will be in waiting there: and a new line of operation will be entered upon, which, leading to the forty churches, will at once turn Schumla and Adrianople. Partial embarkations upon the coast of Asia and Europe, will open the Bosphorus and the road to Constantinople.

The defence of Constantinople, with its fifteen suburbs, and twelve leagues of circumference, is difficult.—The ground is marshy, and the communications, long and narrow, are favourable to that impetuous courage which has often indeed, led the Turks to hazard unsuspected attacks and sudden sorties. The suburb of Ejal, North-East of the city, offers an admirable position for an entrenched camp, of which the village of Thopocheleskoi is the key; but all these advantages must be of no avail, if a fleet with troops and ivre have entered the Bosphorus. It was by the porte that 20,00 French and Venetians took Constantinope in 1204, which contained upwards of 400,000 inhabitants.

Such is the plan which it is supposed, will be followed by the Russians. It reads well upon paper, events may occur, which neither foresight, neither being able to foresee nor provide against, may render it necessary to change or abandon it altogether.

FRANCE.

The Courier of the 7th says—

"Some alarm was excited in the city in the morning, in consequence of a statement, put forth with great conciseness, that a coolness had taken place between this country and France, upon the affairs of Greece, that in efforts to prevent France from interfering directly in the affairs of Greece, had failed, that Charles X. had resolved occupy Greece,—that the army collected in the vicinity of Toulon was intended for the Morea, that this intention was viewed with alarm by our ministers, who had used every means of persuasion to induce France to relinquish a plan, the execution of which might hasten the dissolution of the present order of things in Europe—that she availed herself of the present crisis, and of the difficulties in which she imagines it has involved us, to carry her intention into effect;—finally that she had determined to adopt a course of policy different from that which she had bound herself to pursue."

Paris, June 3.—The Marseilles Journal contains the following news:

On the 23th of May a telegraphic despatch brought orders to the vessels freighted here for the Government to proceed, in 3 days, to Toulon. The expedition is decidedly going to sail, but its destination is unknown. The 8th Regiment of the Line, which forms our garrison, will, it is said, commence its march to-morrow morning.

In a postscript, the Messenger of Marseilles confirms this statement of orders having been given for the departure of the 32 transports communicated by the correspondent. That paper adds—"A report is generally spread that a camp of 50,000 men is going to be formed in the department of the Var."

H. M. ship La Lonzier, commanded by Capt. Vigoureux, sailed for Toulon on the 27th of May; its destination is unknown—perhaps it may be to go to Marseilles, to convey the 32 transports ordered to Toulon.

The wants of the service for the armaments now making at Rochefort requiring a considerable levy of seamen, there is a great deal of bustle through the whole extent of the maritime inscription.

From the Gazette de France, of Thursday, June 5.

Paris, June 4.—"It is affirmed that Lord Granville has resigned his post as British Ambassador at Paris. Lord Cowley, the Duke of Wellington's brother, now ambassador at Vienna, is spoken of as his successor.

Paris, June 2.—We find the following article in the Recurseur:

"We receive the following news from Turin:

"'Nothing has been talked of here for several days past but a Treaty of Offensive and Defensive Alliance between our Court and his Majesty the Emperor of Austria; by virtue of this Treaty the forts of Alexandria and of Bremsur, in Savoy, will receive an Austrian garrison; so much at least seems certain. As the other conditions and the motives of the Treaty, the reports are various.'"

The latest Paris papers received in London were still occupied with the proceedings of the Chamber of Deputies on the project of a law regulating the periodical press. This interminable discussion still continued to excite the greatest interest.

PORTUGAL.

Important news was daily expected in England from this country. The Marquis de Palmella had left London for Falmouth, with his family, to embark, being charged with an important message from the British Government to Don Miguel. He was yet no doubtful whether to go to Lisbon or to Oporto. General Saldanha and other officers were going in the same steem vessel.

The decided course adopted by the Marquis de Palmella and all their representatives of the Emperor of Brasil, by decreeing the authority of Don Miguel, since his assumption of the royal dignity, and acknowledging that of the Oporto junta, will doubtless produce his overthrow. The plenipotentiaries of Don Pedro, on the 10th of June, addressed a circular to the respective Brazilian legations in Europe, dated at London, during the night.

"We finding, to our great sorrow, that the case thus provided against by the singular prudence of our August Masters has been verified, have immediately carried the said orders into execution, by establishing a direct correspondence with the Provisional Junta of Oporto, established at Oporto, for maintaining the legitimate authority of the King Don Pedro IV; and which we, in conformity with our instructions, considered a legitimate Government, until his Most Faithful Majesty shall (definitely and with a complete knowledge of existing circumstances) provided for the due governing of that kingdom."

Demands were made in parliament concerning letters received from Portugal and their purport; but no satisfactory answer was obtained; it being alledged that any disclosure would be premature. The probability is that things will now go on better in the kingdom, and the constitution be reinstated.

Bell's Weekly Messenger of the 16th, says, little is known as to the progress of affairs in Portugal; we should not at all be surprised if there was another smart threat of Spanish invasion. There can be little doubt that Don Miguel has his friends in other courts besides Madrid.—Metternich is not likely to abandon his favorit pupil, and doctrines like his cannot be unacceptable in the Thuileries.

Don Miguel has advanced another step in the career of usurpation and treachery. He has commissioned a new Ambassador to Paris, the Count de Ponte, but it does not appear that the Minister has yet had the hardihood to deliver his credentials at Court. Affairs in Portugal assume a more alarming position than we had led to expect. It is apprehended in Lisbon that the Constitution will be utterly annihilated in a month: the most active measures are adopted by Don Pedro's adherents to resist the encroachments of the Infant, and the Marquis de Palmella has departed for Oporto with the view of encouraging them to take the field against the traitor. The result we fear is doubtful, as Don Miguel has seized upon the instruments of power, and possessed himself of the best resources for war the country affords.

There was a rumour that Miguel had fled to Badajos, but it seems to have wanted confirmation.

It is stated in the Journal des Debats that the vessels sent to blockade Oporto, had declared for Don Pedro, and that the English Consul-General, Mr. Mathew, had apprised the Minister of Foreign Affairs, Santarem, that the English would not respect the blockade, as not being ordered in the name of the legitimate sovereign of Portugal. The Portuguese Ambassador at Paris has ceased to act for the Government at Lisbon, on the same grounds as those mentioned in the note of the Marquis of Palmella to Lord Dudley; but he is still Minister for Don Pedro.

AFFAIRS OF GREECE.

The Courier de Smyrne of the 8d May, contains an article, seemingly of advice to the Porte, which the London Courier ascribes to a foreign minister. It insists on the necessity that exists for Turkey's recognizing the Greek revolution. "The fleet burnt, the Greek flag flying on the coasts of Messenia, Ibrahim reduced to the greatest distress, and the Russians ready to attack Turkey—in the interior of the Empire commerce ruined, taxes increased, and general discontent prevailing"—are urged as rendering such a measure necessary.

The Standard say—"It is supposed that the Porte will enter into a negociation with the Greeks, and that some satisfactory terms may be agreed on. In corroboration of which, a letter from Paris, dated the 11th, Ibrahim Pacha has at length come to a determination to negociate for the evacuation of the Morea, and that commissioners are appointed to meet him. Hopes are still entertained in France that affairs will yet be settled with the Porte and Russia."

The Austrian squadron in the Mediterranean, is said to have been successful in negociating an exchange of Greek prisoners for Arabs, at the rate of one Arab for three Greeks. Six hundred Greeks have been delivered and sent to Egina.

Accounts from Paris announce that Alexandria is blockaded by an English squadron, and that the French fleet in those Seas is put under the orders of our Admiral.—They add, that the Viceroy is alarmed, and that he has retired upon Cairo, which he is putting in a state of defence.

The ports of Modon and Navarin continued to be most vigorously blockaded by the Allied squadrons. An Egyptian ship, which, besides flour and biscuit, had a considerable sum of money on board for Ibrahim Pacha, was captured by the Greeks, and carried into Egina. The want of provisions was sensibly felt in the Arab camp, and had caused a malignant fever, which, from the number of deaths, almost resembles the plague. Ibrahim is said to be extremely incensed at the conduct of the European Admirals, and to have sworn to execute severe vengeance in the Morea, if they do not allow the provisions sent from Egypt to be delivered to him.

Smyrna, April 26th.—The Courier de Smyrna of this date gives the following view of the force under the command of Ibrahim Pacha in the Morea at the beginning of April.

	Men.
Seven Regiments of regular troops, encamped between Modon and Navarin, together effective,	18,170
Sappers and Artillery,	850
Irregular troops, consisting of Turks, Candiots, Moriots, and Albanians at garrison in the fortresses,	6,800
Cavalry, partly near Modon, and partly about the other fortresses,	1,000
Irregular troops at Patras, Infantry and Cavalry, under the command of Ahmet Pacha,	1,500
Total,	31,320

The garrison of Navarin, is 1,500 men, that of Modon 600, and of Coron 2,200.

Ibrahim's household consists of 500 persons; at the head of it are the Kiaja Bey, who at present acts as Governor of Modon, and Ahmet Effendi as Intendant General. Ibrahim has at present the following ships—2 Egyptian brigs, 2 transports and 1 schooner at Modon, and 1 Egyptian brig at Navarin, Provisions are distributed with punctuality, but the ration is reduced to the half. Estimating the stock of provisions in this manner, it may last to the end of June.

On the 31st of March, the garrison of Coron, chiefly composed of Albanians, mutinied, and demanded their pay, threatening, if they were not satisfied, to deliver up the fortress to the Greeks or the English; two days afterwards symptoms of discontent manifested themselves in the camp of the cavalry, but these disturbances were soon quelled by the appearance of two regiments that were sent against the mutineers, and by the presence of the Kiaja Bey, who went in person to Coron. Ibrahim Pacha said publicly that they were excited by intrigues from without, and that war was made upon him with arms with which the Musulmen were unacquainted.

"The Governor of Smyrna, Hassan Pacha, is again confirmed in his post, to the great joy of the inhabitants of Smyrna, whose esteem and affection he has acquired by his good administration. The greatest tranquility prevails here. The Bairam, which began on the 14th, and continued here, furnished a fresh proof of the Pacha's care to preserve the peace of the city. The festival was announced only by salutes of artillery, and individuals were not allowed, as on former occasions, to discharge fire arms in the streets."

The corps of troops going to Attica is chiefly composed of Rumeliots, of whom the President is very glad to deliver the Morea, which they completely lay waste. His brother Viano is come to assist him in organising Greece; it is said that he will attend solely to the judicial department.

Colonel Fabvier, who had given in his resignation, and was resolved to get it accepted, has not been able to avoid the visit which the President paid him at Meshena, and goes to Napoli with part of the regular corps, to secure to the government the possession of that important place; the remainder of his troops will occupy the Acro-Corinth.

The time of three months fixed by the Porte for the acceptance of the armistic, will commence on the day of the arrival of the Deputies in the East of the Morea.—They are immediately to communicate with the principal Greek Chiefs, and to endeavour, in regular conferences, to get resolutions adopted conformable to the basis laid down by the Turkish Government.

The President, Count d'Istria, as soon as he was informed of the mission entrusted to the Greek Archbishops, expressed himself in these terms—"Let them come; the proposed supremacy (i. e. of the Porte,) has nothing in it to alarm us and we shall be ready to make sacrifices to obtain what may finally ensure the political and civil existence of Greece."

It is now known that the Deputies have arrived in Thessaly, and are hastening their journey in order to arrive as soon as possible in the centre of the Morea. Their presence then will facilitate an arrangement to which it is probable that the Porte would readily accede, provided it were the result of spontaneous negotiations between itself and the Greeks.

Corfu, May 11.—General Church has been attacked in the environs of Missolonghi and Anatolico, by a body of Turks, and whether from the disparity of force, or from the surprise, the Greeks were defeated, with the loss of 1,200 men, and abandoned their camp, their positions, and provisions, retreating to Dragomestre. The Turks had also a great many killed and wounded.

United States.

The Union.—The Hon. Andrew Stevenson, some two or three weeks ago, publicly expressed his opinion in this city, that if Gen. Jackson was not elected the Union would be dissolved. In Kentucky, Mr. Senator Rowan has expressed the same opinion. Why is this opinion entertained? From what circumstance, or number of circumstances, is it founded? Why is the defeat of Gen. Jackson to dissolve the Union, when that defeat was not produced by the defeat of other Presidential candidates, at former elections? We do not answer for Mr. Rowan, but we are sure Mr. Stevenson meant no more than to express an opinion, and an opinion which we trust and believe he felt no disposition to put him out by force. We are satisfied that he intended to convey no menace. But how comes it that he should hold an opinion so inconsistent with the historical experience of the country? How comes it that he and Mr. Rowan, Jackson leaders, and we believe inmates of the same house during the late session of Congress, should, at distant geographical points, know the same extraordinary opinion? We can give the answer. The subject of disunion was familiarly canvassed by the Jackson leaders at Washington. Many of them declared themselves, as a Judge of the General Court of Virginia, did at Norfolk that if Mr. Adams was not put out by the voice of the people, they would be willing to put him out by force. Put these circumstances and the movements in South Carolina together—and the serious and observing reader will see too much reason to think with us—that the union of these states hang by a single hair. Were we not solemnly persuaded of this truth, we are the last who would so much as mention disunion. We know the disastrous effect of discussing such a topic—that it has a tendency to hasten the deprecated mischief. But when we see such proceedings as those in South Carolina—when we hear of high dignitaries in the very Capital of Virginia, recommending disunion—when we know there is a purpose to attempt it, unless a particular man is elected to the Presidency, we should be traitors to our patrons, traitors to the duty of our station, and to our country, if we did not sound the alarm. As sure as the Sun is in the Heavens, there is an organized design to dismember the union—a design connected with the presidential election, to which the Tariff is the stalking horse—a design embraced by men of high station and trust. We are no alarmists. We have individually, nothing to lose, and every chance of gaining by such an event. If we were capable of placing ourselves before our country, we would wish for it none. Satisfied of the truth of what we affirm in our minds, our purpose is to warn the country of the storm, whose distant mutterings are already heard.—Richmond Whig.

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C. SATURDAY, AUGUST 2, 1828

There are no later dates from Europe.

The Montreal Canadian Courant. is pleased to say that we have come out in favor of the dismissal of Judge Willis."—The fact of the matter is, that although the Courant, after the example of others, has "come out," and pronounced its judgement on this subject, we have neither said, nor written much about it.

In the first number of our paper which appeared after Mr Willis had delivered his Speech from the Bench, we concisely stated the facts as they occurred, and while we gave him an undoubted right to the exercise of his own opinions with respect to the discharge of his judicial duties, we stated that although we did not feel ourselves competent to express an opinion on a subject of so much consequence, yet that we regretted the manner in which it had been agitated. There were not wanting those, however, who felt themselves fully qualified to determine the question, and Judge Willis' opinion verbatim, made its immediate appearance in the Canadian Freeman, and was sent forth to the world as incontrovertible. The sentiments of the Freeman were eagerly adopted by other papers in York, and were followed by those in some other parts of the Country, and in the Courant in Montreal,

Others, however, quite as learned in the Law as these sapient, hasty judging Editors, being called upon by the proper authorities for their opinions, declared that Judge Willis' view of the question was an incorrect one. It may have been, and we are not disposed to doubt, but that it was a conscientious one—but at the same time, we will not say this at the expense of supposing that the opinions of others, as well qualified to judge of its merits, were not equally conscientious.

The balance of legal opinion was decidedly against the conclusions drawn by Mr. Willis; and after "a long deliberation on the subject," we stated, that, the Executive Council, to whom, as the constitutional advisers of the Government, it had been referred, had recommended the removal of Judge Willis from office, in order that another appointment might be made, until the pleasure of His Majesty should be known. In making this second allusion to the subject, we contented ourselves, as we did in the first, by simply relating the fact.

No sooner however, had the Government exercised a constitutional right, in a constitutional manner, than its having done so was seized upon as an opportunity to cast reproach upon it, and as is now well known, to render the subject subservient to other purposes. If the Canadian Courant, who on other occasions professes to entertain a high respect for constituted authorities, & constitutional rights, had informed its readers, that, the Editors in Upper-Canada who are in the constant habit of vilifying and abusing the Government under which they live, had "come out" in their usual style—"in favor of" Judge Willis, by heaping the grossest calumnies, on the Governor, the Council, the Judges and other Law Officers of the Crown; if the Courant, we say, had given information such as this to its readers, how would have been much nearer the truth.

But although we have hitherto considered it unnecessary to notice the many misrepresentations which have been attempted to be imposed upon the public, and although we have contented ourselves, by performing, what we conceived to be our duty in this case, as in all others, by a narration of facts, let it not be supposed that we are desirous of avoiding the honest expression of our sentiments, on the removal of Judge Willis.

We have no personal feeling of an improper kind towards Mr Willis, when we say, that in our opinion the act of the Government, exercised as it was in a temperate way, after due deliberation, and in a Constitutional manner, was but the consummation of that, which Mr Willis from his own conduct, had every reason to expect. He had publicly declared, that, as the Court in his opinion, was not constituted according to Law, he could no longer continue to sit on the Bench. He had, publicly withdrawn himself from the Bench, and by doing so had given the most incontestible proof, that he was determined even if that opinion, should ultimately prove to be incorrect, and in whatever state of hazard and uncertainty it might involve the business of the Country, and the administration of Justice, to act upon it, to the fullest and furthest extent. Now we will ask whether, under such circumstances, when the administration of Justice was placed in so singular a situation, the interference of the Government could be called unnecessary? Was it not rather an imperative act of duty on their parts, to provide an immediate remedy, for such an unusual exigency, as that of a Country, about to deprived of the due administration of the Laws, and of Justice. If it had not taken the matter up, and exercised its constitutional powers, at such a time, and upon such an occasion, how could it have answered to the people, when they found their Courts of Law, no longer in existence; closed to their complaints, the property, character and life of every individual in the community at the mercy of those, who in such a state of things might feel disposed, from the security which would be afforded them, to invade and destroy them. Would it be enough when the evil was pressing sorely upon them, for the Government to answer the complaints of the people, by telling them, that one of His Majesty's Judges was of opinion, that he could no longer sit on the Bench, to administer Justice to them, and that in deference to that opinion, though contrary to that of all others its legal and constitutional advisers, the pressure must be borne in silence; that there was no remedy, no redress,—the Judge was conscientious, and that therefore the Courts of Justice must remain closed: till when? Till His Majesty's pleasure should be made known?—No.—But until the pleasure of Mr. Justice Willis, under the conscientious expression of his opinion, was complied with; because to remove him from Office,—to restore the administration of Justice, to the performance of its necessary functions, might be considered an act of cruelty, towards an individual.

To reasoning such as this, the people when uttering their complaints against the arrest of Justice in the land, would naturally be led to inquire —And what is Mr. Justice Willis' pleasure under the conscientious opinion he has expressed?—What must be the reply.—He declares that in the absence of the Chief Justice, the Court is incompetent to proceed to the discharge of its duty—he declares that the Chief Justice, and all other officers of the Court who have been absent from the Province, have forfeited their situations, from their having, in his opinion, obtained leave in an illegal and informal manner.—Now the return of the Chief Justice to his duties, will not be sufficient to do away the conscientious scruples of Mr. Justice Willis—for even if His Majesty, with all his Law Officers, should differ in opinion with him, as to the leave of absence to the Chief Justice—that leave (as well as all others) having in Mr. Willis's opinion been obtained illegally and informally—and the Acts of the Court in times past, having been declared by him, to be "void" of the Constitution of the Court under such circumstances, even if the Chief Justice should return, would under Mr Willis's opinion be quite as illegal, as it was, if the Chief Justice remained at England. The acts of others, who had been absent, under the same circumstances, being in his opinion void; those of the Chief Justice on his return (although his absence might receive the approbation of His Majesty) would be equally "void" —the Constitution of the Court would therefore, in Mr. Willis's opinion, remain just as illegal, as it was before the return of the Chief Justice, and it would consequently be quite as impossible for Mr. Willis, under the conscientious expression of his opinion, and the sanctity of his Oath of Office, to replace himself on the Bench from which he had removed, to sit by the side of a Chief Justice, who in his opinion, had forfeited his situation, and those acts, must as a consequence be "void." Contrary opinions of the legal advisers in the Colony; the pleasure of His Majesty's Government and the opinions of His Crown Officers—cannot interfere with the conscientious opinions of Mr. Willis, expressed under the sanctity of his Oath of Office. It is his opinion, that the Court is not legally constituted—that the Judges and other Officers who have been absent from the Colony, have forfeited their Offices—that their acts are "void,"—and until those opinions of Mr. Willis' are concurred in, there is no remedy—he cannot be compelled to act contrary to his conscientious opinions,—we are advised that those opinions are erroneous,—and yet however it might promote the interest of the Country, to exercise a power which we know we possess, by removing him from Office, till the pleasure of a higher authority should be known, as such an act might be deemed one of personal cruelty, we prefer, that the Country should suffer, rather than that an individual should be put to inconvenience; Mr. Willis must therefore be permitted to withdraw himself from the Bench—there is no remedy; the Courts must remain closed; the administration of Justice must stand still.

Would reasoning such as this, we ask, be an answer to the public, from any well constituted Government in the world, on the occasion of such an emergency arising in the Country?—Supposing such a want of proper energy to exist—would not the people have just cause of complaint? Would not such a state of things be indeed "an alarming crisis!" The people have a right to expect, when emergencies present themselves, which are calculated to impede the business of the Country, and especially one of such magnitude as theratens, to arrest the due course of the administration of Justice, that the Government will exercise those wholesome powers with which it is invested, to avert the danger; and what would be said of that Government which could suffer the act, or opinion of one of its own members, to inflict upon a Country, the evils which we have feebly attempted to depict, without making a single effort to avert them?

We will now ask the "Canadian Courant" and others, who "have come out" against the Government, since Mr. Willis agitated this question, to account for the perversions they have been guilty of. A moderate, a judicious, and Constitutional Course has been pursued—Mr Willis by his own act had withdrawn himself from the Bench—thee xigency required the interference of the Government—the opinions and advice of its legal and constitutional advisers is taken—the necessary provision for the continued administration of Justice is made—Mr. Willis is not compelled to act contrary to his declared opinions—he is removed from Office as the unavoidable consequence of those declared opinions, followed up as they were by an act, which in itself constituted a self-removal from the Bench—a vacating of the Judgment Seat. The question at issue is referred, as it must be, for the signification of His Majesty's pleasure—in the mean time the Country is not left without that, which may be considered of the most vital consequence to it—the due administration of Justice. Can this be called a libel? Can this be termed injustice to the Country? Can it be called refined cruelty, towards an individual?

But what is said on the other side.—The Government is accused of acting cruelly towards an individual Designing Demagogues to answer their own purposes, raise the cry of "alarming crisis"—the most industrious arts are used to mislead public opinion. The Demagogue Lawyer insultingly throws off his Gown, in the face of those who sit upon the judgment seat, and leave the Hall of Justice, to show as far as his evil example can have effect, that the Court in whose presence he has worn it for the last twenty years perhaps, is no longer entitled to his respect; the demagogue of the Press emboldened by the example, adds to the the bitterness of his former vituperation against the Government and the Courts of Justice—the Demagogue suitor, insolently charges the Judges of the Land, with having robbed him—the demagogue aspiring to the favors of the people, spreads the poison as far as may serve his purposes, and makes it subservient to his elevation. But—thanks to the firmness of the Government; and when the people shall have had time to exercise their own unbiassed judgment on the subject; when the excitement, which for electioneering purposes, has been so industriously kept up; when in their cooler moments, they shall ask themselves, what must have been the consequence to the country; to themselves, and to their families, if their Courts of Justice were not now in existence; if the Law of the Land had been suffered to become a dead Letter, and redress could not have been procured, for injuries committed on their persons or properties; then will they too, say with us,—thanks to the Government—who by a judicious exercise of those powers, with which they are entrusted for our well being, have acted with energy, and at the same time with moderation, and have averted evils, which must otherwise have resulted in the utmost confusion and disorder.

The Accounts of the District, Police &c., published in one of our late numbers, by the Treasurer, have attracted the attention of the Editor of the Colonial Advocate Professing, not to understand them himself, and by a premeditated confusion of figures and terms &c. in the remarks he makes, it is very evident that he would have it believed from what he insinuates, but dare not assert, that peculation, and misapplication of the District funds, are carried on to an alarming extent. With respect to the "Absentee Tax" for example, the most important item perhaps in the accounts, he has found out, that the Statement published separately (in a previous number of the paper) of sums "payable and received by the Treasurer, according to Law"—and the Statement given in the Abstract, giving a statement of the sums collected for each Township, that he is ready to pay it over for that purpose, according to Law—the other by Law is applicable, to the general uses of the District, and he accounts for it, by charging himself with the amount. But says the Advocate "they are different"—yet they are indeed—the Road Tax is the smaller, the Land Tax the larger sum, in this respect they are certainly "different," but both are collected (thanks to the Attorney Gen. Wild Land Assessment Law)—both are credited to their proper accounts: and both are appropriated according to Law. If the Advocate wants more than this—he must get the Law repealed. And yet from the insinuations of the Advocate, we have no doubt if we were asked by a person upon whom he thought he could impose, what he means, when he says, that "these accounts help at least to the reason, why a few impudent eyesplants are read; at all times to mind the jeers and scoffs of the country" (that's himself)—his ready reply would no doubt be—"Dont you see man—there's a great difference—its all Hotch Potch. I dare not say it openly—I can only insinuate it in an indirect kind of way—you understand—they pocket the difference to be sure." And away goes the simple man,—and on the authority of Mr. M'Kenzie—tells it to others, that the Magistrates are cheating the people out of their money, while Mr. Kenzie, himself is laughing at the success of his Hotch Potch, and at the thought of having added to the number of his dupes.—The rest of Mr. McKenzie's Hotch Potch remarks, might be answered in the same way, but we have really given up enough of our time to the subject. We can only say that for our own part, we are heatily tired and disgusted with the repeated attacks of this man against the characters of his neighbours

---

GENERAL ELECTION.—We give a List of the returns, as far as received—those in Italics are New Members.

County of York.—John Kilborn, and William Buell.

Town of Kingston.—Donald Bethune.

County of Frontenac.—Hugh C. Thompson, and Thomas Dalton.

Lenox and Addington.—M. S. Bidwell, and Peter Perry.

Northumberland.—Jas Lyons, and Eeringe.

Durham.—Charles Fothergill, and J. D. Smith.

York, (Town.)—John B. Robinson.

" (County.)—Jesse Ketchum, and W. L. McKenzie.

Simcoe.—John Cawthra.

Halton.—Geo. Rolph, and Hopkins.

Wentworth.—James Wilson, and George Hamilton.

Niagara, (Town.)—Robt. Dickson.

Niagara, (4 Ridings.)—J. J. Lefferty, R. Randall, Wm. Woodruff, and J. Terry.

Oxford.—Thos. Horner, and Findley Malcolm.

Norfolk.—D. McCall, and W. W. Baldwin.

Middlesex.—John Rolph, and J. Matthews.

Since the above, this days Mail, brings information of the following returns.

Hastings.—James H. Samms, and J. N. Lockwood.

Grenville Election commenced on Monday last. At the close of the Poll in the Evening there were for Langley, 221—for Jessup, 207—for Anderson, 207—for Phillips, 30.

Prince Edward.—Wilson and Peterson.

Essex.—A. Wilkinson, and Francois Baby

In a future number we shall give a List of all the Members returned—designating them according to their several Districts and Counties.

Concert.—Mr. and Mrs. Knight who are on a professional tour through the Upper Province, gave a Concert, at Meighan's Rooms last night.

The expectations which had been formed of Mrs. Knight's singing, from the manner in which her talent was spoken of in the New-York and Lower Canada papers, were fully realized by a large and fashionable party, and her songs given with much taste and expression, were received with general applause. The able accompaniment to the Songs on the Piano Forte, by Gilliland afforded an evening's entertainment of the most exquisite kind. Mr. and Mrs. Knight left town this morning by the Canada, for Niagara.

In Press, and will shortly be published, at the Office of the Loyalist, York. The Upper Canada Almanac, and Farmer's Calendar, for 1829.—With Civil List of Upper Canada; List of the Executive, and Legislative Councils; House of Assembly; Public Offices; District Appointments; and Population of the Province, from the latest Official Returns.

Together with a variety of useful information for the Farmer; Receipts; Miscellaneous Matter, &c. &c.—Price Two Shillings, Currency, per doz.—Orders with a remittance, will be punctually attended to, and parcels forwarded according to directions.

The Editor of the Loyalist respectfully requests the patronage of Merchants, and others, to this Home production.

1st August, 1828.

☞ The Office of the Loyalist, is removed to the Building, lately occupied by Mr. Peter M'Phail, as a Book Store, on King-Street.

To Correspondents.—The Letter of "Oxoniensis" is unavoidably postponed until next week, when it shall be inserted.

The following is a Copy of an Inscription, which is now preparing, to be erected in the Church Yard of Hull, Lower Canada.

"Sacred to the Memory of CHARLES WELLS, aged 9 years—a Pupil of the Rev. A. Anley, Minister of this Parish, and third Son of the Hon. Lieut.-Col. Wells, of York, U. C.; who to the unutterable grief of his distressed Parents, met with untimely death by being drowned while bathing in a Creek near this place—5th July 1828."

The circumstances which led to the lamented death of the Youth, to whose memory the above is to be erected in the Church Yard at Hull, have suggested the following Lines, which may serve as an useful warning to other Youths during the Bathing Season.

The poor dear Boy whose death's recorded here,
Met by a thoughtlessness an early bier—
With School Companions, by his Master's leave,
He went to fish, as pastimy reprieve
From studious task, which now and then requires,
Mingling amusements, to prevent those tires
Which, constant study with a boy so young
Must 'ere be felt, though silent be the tongue!
During the pastime of his fishing sport,
The glassy water offered tempting court,
To quit the rod and line, by sudden whim,
And in its silvery streams, to learn to swim.
Two youths then entered with the above deplored,
They plunged—alas!—and one alone restored
To a continuance of longer breath,
The other sank! into a watery death.

From this take warning—oh! ye heedless boys,
Play not with waters, as ye would with toys:
Beware of entering, till ye know the depth
Nor fancy it shallow, because its width
Seems narrow, and a trifling sort of deep,
Lest like poor Charles, ye sink to death asleep.
And though your God, will raise ye from your graves,
Whether ye lie in earth, or 'neath the waves—
And if ye are virtuous, shake off the clay,
To soar in bliss for ever in his sight,
As this dear pious child with hopeful wings,
Will doubtless fly before the King of Kings!
Yet oh! remember—when cut off so soon,
So prematurely hastened to your doom,
And by your giddy, careless want of thought,
Brought to an early death, by your own fault—
What deeper griefs ye cause your parents dear,
When sudden called to shed—the last sad parting tear.

[Communicated.]

MR. STENNETT, from Kingston, begs leave to announce to the Ladies and Gentlemen of York, that he has just arrived, with a SPLENDID ASSORTMENT OF JEWELLERY, &c. &c. which will be opened on Monday Morning, at Mrs. Jordan's Inn, where he respectfully solicits their patronage.

York, August 2, 1828.

Communication.

FOR THE LOYALIST.

REVIEW of Mr. E. REYERSON'S Letters to the HONORABLE & VENERABLE ARCHDEACON STRACHAN, &c.

No. 5. (continued.)

A second perusal and renewed consideration of Mr. Reyerson's fifth Letter, so far from producing acquiescence in his arguments, leads to a fuller conviction of the futility of its reasoning, the misapplication of its abundant quotations, and the wretchedness of its general structure. In fact, there is no reasoning—properly so called—in it, at all; for it merely asserts the fact that the Church of Christ hath, in various ages, been very much corrupted,—pages have been extracted from Mosheim and others to prove that the beauty of Christian holiness was but too often dimmed by the effects of human frailty and perversity. After the establishment of this fact—which nobody denies—one general, unsupported, indeducible conclusion is made that Religious Establishments are hostile to the purity of Religion. We shall illustrate this by several species of logic a little.

In the infancy of the world, when mankind lived independent of each other, had their dwellings in caves and fed on the spontaneous bounties of the earth; when they were without Government, Laws, or any of the refinements which education introduces—then they were simple in their ideas and manners; they had no thought of dominion or conquest; were frugal in their living, temperate in their aspirations and strangers, to all contention, literary, political, or religious. But, in after ages, when, for mutual security and comfort, societies were formed, and Governments established; when Letters were cultivated, and refinements, mental and sensual, were introduced—what a change do we observe? Alas! we quickly hear of bloody wars and intestine commotions: we are shocked by the accounts of those Martyrs to the freedom of their wills which laws have made, in the punishment of robbers, thieves, murderers, and adulterers; we behold the clamour of literary emulation, and the noise of religious strife; we mark the enervating influence of luxury and all the attendant refinements of civilization. Ah! then, what have Laws and Government to answer for—how baneful has proved the introduction of knowledge and the advancement of science—what evils have we to deplore from the march of intellect and the progress of civilization!

Alas! in the days of primitive barbarism, the untilled earth afforded the grateful repast; the living brook yielded the reviving drink—then, there was no such crime as indulgence in riotous living; no baneful subjection of the appetites to that curse of civilized man—spirituous liquors. Then, instead of the gay attire, which hurts the sensitiveness of the godly-minded—instead of the costly drapery which now enfolds these perishable limbs—instead of the studied decorations which, as they did with the wicked Herod, provoke an adoring admiration of the creature man;—then in those days of happy simplicity, we find the unadorned skins of beasts to have constituted the richest clothing, or more often, the blunt aboriginal, without dread of the scorn or indignation of affected fastidiousness, wander forth in the undisguised grace and simple majesty of primitive nakedness!

Such reasoning as this may provoke laughter—it may be named enthusiasm—it may be called whim—it may be cried down as nonsense; yet, it is no more deserving of these epithets of vain wisdom, than the very grave arguments of the notable Mr. Egerton Reyerson.—He merely shows that once all was simple and unsophisticated in religion—that the lurking-place of the beast of prey was oftentimes the temple which necessity drove the first christians to use for their united devotions to their redeeming God—and that persecution frowned upon the zealous votaries of the truest faith and purest worship; that, afterwards when truth prevailed and Kings and Queens bowed, with converted subjects, at the altar of Christ, the lively zeal of Jesus's Disciples waxed cold—security paralyzed the energy of their devout services—and the cross claimed divided honors with the Crown, in the association of the world's advantages with the distinctions of religion.—Therefore, Mr. Reyerson argues, because corruption and abuses increased with the increasing influence of christianity, that increase is to be prevented—because the establishment of religion throughout the Roman Empire was coupled with adventitious errors and incidental disadvantages, the establishment of christianity in lieu of Paganism is to be deplored!

We leave this extraordinary logician for one of a less equivocal character. "It is perhaps," says the eloquent Dr. Chalmers, "the best among all our more general arguments for a Religious Establishment in a country, that the spontaneous demand of human beings for religion is far short of the actual interest which they have in it. This is not so with their demand for food or raiment or any article which ministers to the necessities of our physical nature. The more destitute we are of those articles, the greater is our desire after them. But the case is widely different when the appetite for any good is short of that degree in which that good is useful or necessary; and above all, when just in proportion to our want of it, is the decay of our appetite towards it. Now this is, generally speaking, the case with religious instruction: the less we have of it, the less we desire of it. It is not with the aliment of the soul as it is with the aliment of the body.—The latter will be sought after; the former must be offered to a people whose spiritual appetite is in a state of dormancy, and with whom it is just as necessary to create a hunger as it is to minister a positive supply. In these circumstances, it were vain to wait for any original movement on the part of the receivers: it must be made on the part of the dispensers. Nor does it follow that because Government may wisely abandon to the operation of the principle of demand and supply, all those interests where the desires of our nature and the necessities of our nature are adequate the one to the other, she ought, therefore, to abandon all care of our interest, when the desire on the part of our species is but rare and feeble and inoperative; while the necessity is of such a deep and awful character that there is not one of the concerns of [illegible] ness which ought for a moment to be compared with it.

To these arguments à priori we shall annex the following from the same author in defence of Establishments. "There is no frame-work reared by human wisdom which is proof against the frequent incursions of human depravity. But if there do exist a great moral incapacity on the part of our species, in virtue of which if the lessons of christianity, and if an Establishment be a device for overcoming this evil tendency of our nature, it were hard to visit, with the mischief of its overthrow, the future race of any parish or country. We trust, therefore, in the face of every corruption which has been alledged against them that our Religious Establishments will stand, so as that Churches shall be kept in repair, and Ministers in constant succession, shall be provided for them. Such is our impression of the overwhelming superiority of good done by an establishment that, in addition to the direct christian influence which it causes to descend upon the country from its own Ministers, we regard it as the instrument of having turned the country into a fitter and more prepared field for the reception of a Christian influence from any other quarter: insomuch that had the period of the reformation from Popery, in Britain, been also the period for the overthrow and cessation of all Religious Establishments whatever, we apprehend that there would not only have been no attendance of people upon Church, but a smaller attendance of people upon Meeting-Houses than there is at this moment. It is in truth our Establishments which have nourished and upheld the taste of the population for Christianity; and when that taste is accidentally offended, the same establishments recruit the dissenting places of worship with such numbers as they never would have gotten out of that native mass which had been previously unwrought and previously unentered on."

We freely submit such reasoning as the above to the enlightened and judicious, with the firmest belief that their approbation of every sentiment it contains will never be affected by the trashy cant and sterile argument of such subalterns as Mr. Egerton Reyerson.

We have heard much of the flourishing state of religion in the United States, where no establishment exists to give it efficacy or permanency: we are happy to perceive that the "moral dictates and incapacities" mentioned by Dr. Chalmers have been there so far corrected by the labours of a zealous Clergy;—yet we fear that the opinions of that divine, as applicable even to the United States, will prove to be irrefragrable. They are founded on an intimate knowledge of mankind, and they are corroborated, as by the experience of other nations, so by that of the United States of America. The following is part of a Speech at a late annual Meeting of the Massachussets domestic Missionary Society held in Boston:—"It is sometimes asked by Christians in the most favored section of this Commonwealth, are there, indeed, any spiritual desolations in New England? I am a resident in the very centre of these desolations. Within fifty miles of the place where I dwell, there is a population exceeding 100,000; and I am altogether within the truth when I assert that 40,000 of these inhabitants are now living without the pale of Christian Institutions and are going into eternity without one hope or one blessing from the Gospel. Yet, in many of these towns, about 150 years ago, there were Churches and a supply of learned and faithful Ministers. These Churches were venerable for their numbers and their piety; and those Ministers were burning and shining lights. Many of these Churches have been blessed with a regular succession in the ministry till within twenty or thirty years; since that time they have been destitute and going into decay. A few miles from me in one direction, there is an ancient and populous town: once it contained a flourishing Church, for more than a century, enjoyed a stated Ministry. During this very summer, inquiries have been made respecting this Church; and it appeared, upon examination, that its name, its records and its members were departed. Not a even a vestige of this Church could be found."

The same speaker mentions other instances equally deplorable, and that one-sixth of the families were even destitute of the Bible—thus living in the face of the eternal world without one paragraph of the Christian Scriptures—and that too, where the Bible had stood for sale upon the shelf for more than a century, and might have been obtained at any hour! If it were only to prevent such fearful dilapidations—such spiritual desolations, as these—would not a Church establishment be an invaluable blessing? In how many poor and secluded parishes both of England and Scotland, where the voluntary zeal of unofficial Teachers would never have penetrated, has the Gospel been faithfully preached for many centuries—the Scriptures read and expounded—provision made for the regular administration of the Christian ordinances—and the light of religion kept alive, through the instrumentality of the establishments of those countries? By their means, in the worst of times—in the days of commotion, and in the more dangerous seasons of quieting apathy—there is perpetual access to the blessings of Religion; nor can there, where there is a religious establishment, a change so fearful occur as what has been above so lamentably depicted, in New England. There by the due performance of the rites of Christianity—the observance of the Sabbath is more likely to be secured; the operative principles of the Gospel maintained; and the spirit of piety and the exercises of devotion preserved. There, but for the influence of an establishment, many, secluded from the more populous and more enlightened Districts, would have lived and died in a state bordering upon Paganism. "How shall they hear without a Preacher? and how shall they preach except they be sent."

A Religious Establishment necessarily embraces, in its plan and structure, the subordination of its Ministers to the Sovereign or head of the realm, and thus provides for the preservation and dissemination of the principles of loyalty: whilst it implies the obligation of its Ministers to a prescribed code of doctrine and discipline. The former, founded strictly on the word of God; and the latter framed according to the spirit of revelation and rendered as conformable as possible to the most ancient and approved usages of the Christian Church—constitute a bulwark, not only of Religion generally, but of that unity in Religion which tends so much to its preservation and influence. From the quotations I formerly gave from Bishops Conybeare and Burnet, the necessity of such restrictions will be sufficiently apparent; whilst a longer experience than the Protestant Church affords us, gives testimony to their value. In the Syriac Churches discovered by Dr. Buchanan, we discern a pure and uniform worship maintained amid surrounding heathenism—a fact which realizes that worthy divine's assertion that the "Bible and a Scriptural Liturgy will save a Church in the worst of times." Had there been no such rallying point—no such bond of unity in those Churches; they must, centuries ago, have split into that vast variety of contradicting tenets which would have annihilated their strength, obliterated their existence, and left no trace of their identity: and had they been fortified with all the restrictions which England's establishment imposes, they would have been proof against many an encroachment which has partially dimmed the lustre of their purity.

I shall not now dwell on the consequences that must result, were all ecclesiastical regulations overthrown, our rests and subscriptions abolished, and every Minister left to preach what doctrines he pleases. Language would fail to represent the Babel confusion that would ensue—the conflicting sentiments—the awakened passions which would distract and convulse that unhappy brotherhood of Christians. Then, indeed would we observe a deep, dangerous, deadly infusion into religion of that worldly spirit which is charged upon establishments. A multitude of sects would give rise to as great a multitude of jarring teachers—whose declamatory competition and struggling for the mastery—would overturn all soundness in belief, all propriety in worship, all peacefulness in conduct.—The civil rulers, too, would have their religious predilections—and thus, from the conjunctions of political intrigue with religious insubordination—civil misrule must ensue—confusion will spread apace—anarchy will follow—and the dissolution of Religion will be the last fatal consequence. I need not dwell upon the picture—history, and the History of England and Scotland, since the rise of Protestanism, delineates it in colours too vivid to be effaced; and the remembrance of those past terrors induce a spontaneous repetition of this prayer in the Litany of the Anglican Church—that we may "be delivered" as well "from all sedition, privy conspiracy and rebellion," as "from all false doctrine, heresy and schism."

July 28th, 1828. MONITOR.

ERRATA.—In the foregoing Reviews, No. 2. line 1st, for promises, read premises. 2d. paragraph, last line, for quickly, read quietly. 7th paragraph, line 12th, for with, read of.

No. 3, 2d paragraph, line 2d, for words, read word. 3d paragraph, line 8th, for deducable, read deducible.—5th paragraph, line 6th, from top of the page, for criticism, read witticism.

No. 4. 5th paragraph, line 9th, for from the sacramental, read of the sacerdotal. Paragraph 7th, line 3d, for impanged, read impugned. Paragraph 8th, line 3d, from top of the page, for six Bishops, read seven Bishops.

No. 5, Note 3d, at the bottom of the page, for would not recommend, read would recommend.

Died,

On Friday. 1st instant, at Mr. Burnham's; Mr. David Binckley, aged 21.

NOTICE.—The undermentioned new POST OFFICES have been established in Upper Canada, by the Deputy Post Master General, to go into operation from the 6th of next Month, viz:

MAITLAND.—(Between Prescott, & Brockville,)—SAMUEL THOMAS, P. M.

GUELPH.—(35 Miles N. W. from Dundas,)—DAVID GILKISON, P. M., VIA. GALT.

General Post Office, }
Quebec, 28th June, 1823. } y 6

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

LAKE ONTARIO STEAM-BOAT, NIAGARA, Captain MOSIER, with DANIEL READ, Sailing Master, Will, after the 15th inst., leave Niagara for Kingston, Brockville, and Prescott, every Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

On her return, will leave Prescott for Brockville, Kingston, York, and Niagara, every Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made with Messrs. Norton, & Co., Stage Proprietors, by which, passengers going down, arrive in Montreal on Tuesday evening; and those proceeding upwards, will, by leaving Montreal on Tuesday, arrive in time at Prescott to take the Boat.

York. June 6th, 1828. x }.

THE BRITISH STEAM-PACKET CANADA, Captain Hugh Richardson, plying betwixt York and Niagara, (Weather permitting.)

Leaves NIAGARA daily for YORK, (Sunday excepted,) precisely at 7 o'clock, A. M. arrives at York at half-past 11, A.M. Leaves YORK daily for NIAGARA, precisely at 2, P. M. arrives at NIAGARA at half past 6 P. M.

TERMS.

After Cabin and Quarter Deck, - - - - - - $2
Fore Cabin and Deck, - - - - - - - - - 1

N.B. A gun will be fired and Colors hoisted 25 minutes before starting.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master & Managing Owner.

York, 8th April, 1828. 46ff.

HALF-PAY AFFIDAVITS, of the latest form, for Sale at the Gazette Office.

THE LOYALIST.

VOL. I. NO. 9.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY AUGUST 9, 1828.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINION.

(Continued)

The necessity for declaring how the Writ should be tested here arose from the fact that in England the original process emanates from chancery—the similarity, therefore, intended to be established between the two Courts failed in the first step, and it was felt to be necessary to provide expressly for the object—this was done by declaring that the Writ should be tested in the name of the Chief Justice, or, in his absence (and the Writ is necessarily tested in Term) by the Senior Judge.

Again the 19th Section of the same Provincial Statute, 34, Geo. 3rd, provides that "upon all issues joined in the said Court in any suit or action which which arise or be triable within the Home District, or in the District where the Court shall be holden, the Chief Justice, or in his absence, any other Judge of the said Court, shall, as Justice of Nisi Prius, for the said District, at their discretion either in Term time, or within ten days next after the end of every Easter and Trinity Term, respectively, try all manner of issues joined in the said Court, which ought to be tried by inquest of the said District, and that Commissions and Writs of Nisi Prius shall be, for that purpose, from time to time awarded: and it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons upon reasonable notice as hereinafter set forth, given to the adverse party, or their Attorney, to take and sue forth such Writs and Records of Nisi Prius, as may be necessary for the trial of such issues as aforesaid."

Here again, is evidently contemplated the possible occurrence of the Chief Justice being absent in Term time and provision is expressly made for the contingency.

The 37, Geo. 3d, ch. 9, provides that "all Commissions of Assize and Nisi Prius shall be issued after the Terms of Hilary and Trinity, respectively, and shall be tested on the last day of each of those Terms, and the Chief Justice, or any other Judge of the said Court in his absence, shall, as Judges of Assize and Nisi Prius, issue his precept to the Sheriff of the said District, for the summoning of Jurors, for the trying of all such issues as may be joined in the said Court, and arise and be triable in the said District, as by Law he is authorised to do, so that the same may be in no instance holden sooner, than eight days from the end of Hilary and Trinity Terms respectively."

Both the language and the nature of this provision appear to me to shew, that the Legislature contemplated in this Statute also the possible occurrence of the absence of the Chief Justice in Term.

The 43, Geo. 3rd, ch. 3, was passed for enabling the Government, in the early settlement of this Province, to admit persons, by licenses to practice as Attornies who had not served a legal apprenticeship. The second clause enacts "that before any person "shall apply to the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, "or person administering the Government of this "Province, for such licence as aforesaid, such person shall apply to the Judges, of His Majesty's "Court of King's Bench, and shall procure from "that Court a Certificate, under the hand of the "Chief Justice or in his absence, of the Senior "Puisne Judge of the said Court, that Court is "satisfied of the ability and fitness of the party so "applying to be admitted to practice as a Barrister "and Attorney in this Province."

Though from the first part of the clause it may seem that the examination of the applicant may take place before the Judges out of Court, it is from the Court of King's Bench he is to receive his certificate, and that certificate obtained from the Court is to be under the hand of the Chief Justice, or in his absence, (that is absence from the Court,) of the senior Puisne Judge.

In the same year (1803) another Statute was passed, so perfectly declaratory of the sense of the Legislature on the point now in question, that I annex a copy of it. It was passed for enabling married woman to convey their real estates, and is carefully framed, keeping distinctly in view the different Courts through whose intervention the conveyance is to be perfected. The third clause evidently provides for the probability that when the married woman shall present herself to the Court sitting in Term, (as married women, for a similar purpose, present themselves in the Court of Common Pleas in England,) she may find the Chief Justice absent, and renders sufficient, in that case, the certificate of the senior Puisne Judge. For this certificate a fee is to be paid to the Clerk of the Crown, who only sits in open Court in the Court of King's Bench in Term time—and yet it is maintained that without a Chief Justice there can be no such Court sitting—and that the other two Judges have not even the power of adjourning. The Legislature could scarcely have meant to direct recourse to be had to a Court so constituted that it could not sit, for it is to be remembered that the Act does not authorise two Judges [illegible] Term time, or the Senior Judge to take the examination, &c. but directs that the married woman is to appear "in open "Court in the Court of King's Bench," and directs what shall be done if she finds the Court of King's Bench sitting in Term time, as an open Court, without the Chief Justice.

The 57th Geo. 3, ch. 9. enacts "That when any "Session of Oyer and Terminer and Gaol delivery, "for the Home District, shall have been begun to "be holden before the first day of any Term, the "said Session shall continue to be holden and the "business thereof finally concluded, notwithstanding "the sitting of His Majesty's Court of King's Bench "within the said District; and that all trials and proceedings, as well as judgements, had, at such Session continued to be holden, shall be good and effectual to all intents and purposes, as if the said Session of the Court of King's Bench had not been."

The Judges of the King's Bench in this Province are all of them included in every commission of Oyer and Terminer and are of the quorum in the commissions.—The criminal Court in the Home District, therefore, could not be sitting simultaneously with the King's Bench (which the Statute was meant to provide for) without the absence of some one Judge from the latter Court.

I assume the reasonable construction of the Act to be, that both Courts were to be enabled to sit within the ordinary business hours of the day.

In 1823 an Act was passed in this Province to provide for the publication of the Reports of the decisions of the Court of King's Bench—and it enacts, that the Reports taken by the public Reporter shall, after examination by the whole Court, be signed in open Court by all the Judges present, an expression, which, I think clearly implies, that the Court may be openly sitting as a Court, without all the Judges being present—and the words "whole Court," which precede, cannot consistently with this expression, mean any thing else than the "whole of the Court, or of the Judges present."

I think these references sufficient to shew what the Legislature intended—and that they leave little room for doubt, when it is considered on the other hand that not one provision in any one Statute can be adduced in confirmation of the construction that without a Chief Justice and two Judges there can be no Court.—Were the law now so, a necessity would exist for instant Legislative provisions for preventing a total failure of justice—and had the Legislature intended to use the words in that sense at the time, or so understood them afterwards, they must have felt the necessity of applying some remedies for the confusion which must inevitably occur.

That they have not done so, nor have ever been moved to do so, is the strongest evidence of the prevailing sense of mankind that no such necessity exists.

But the Legislature, though the best expounders, are not the only expounders of their own Statutes—and perhaps there never was an instance of the sense in which the Legislature seems to have intended their Act to be taken, being supported by a more constant and uniform adherence to the same construction by those appointed to carry such Act into effect.

Lord Coke says, "great regard ought, in construing a Statute, to be paid to the construction which "the sages of the law, who lived at the time or soon "after it was made, put upon it, because they were "best able to judge of the intention of the makers.—"It is moreover a maxim that contemporanea expositio est fortissima in Lege."

It is a fact very notorious and even capable now of being legally proved that the Act of 1794, in which is contained the expression that "a Chief Justice and two Puisne Judges shall preside" in the Court of King's Bench was framed by the late Mr. Osgoode, at that time Chief Justice of this Province, and a Member of the Legislative Council, into which branch of the Legislature he introduced the Bill—Mr. Osgoode was an English Barrister well known to men of great eminence at the Bar, and on the Bench, and himself a man of high professional attainments—of his profound knowledge of his profession he had given proof before he came to this country. To him the task was expressly committed, by His Majesty's Government, of organizing the judicature of this Province, and not many years before his death, I believe he was selected in England for a similar public service in Guernsey or Jersey.

He was the first to act under the Statute he had framed, and during the time he remained here, he never as I believe, sat on the Bench together with two Puisne Judges—I do not know what stronger evidence could be given of the contemporanea expositio spoken of by Lord Coke as "fortissima in lege,"—or who could better judge of the intention of the makers of this Statute than Mr. Orgoode, who framed it and assisted in passing it.

After Mr. Osgoode's time the Court was more frequently not full than full—casualties against which it was impossible to provide frequently occasioned this—Mr. Elmsley and Mr. Powell sat alone in Bank—Mr. Scott and Mr. Thorpe—Mr. Scott and Mr. Powell for several years, I think from 1807 to 1811,

—Mr. Powell and Mr. Campbell—Mr. Campbell and Mr. Boulton—Mr. Sherwood and Mr. Willis sat alone during the whole of the last Term and from the indistinguishable position of one or other of the Judges it has frequently happened even when there were three Judges in the Province, that on some day in Term they could not all be present.

It seems to me that this concurring practice of all the Judges must be deemed, in a case of this description fully equivalent to an express declaration of their opinion—for although under a trite maxim it is held that some errors or irregularities are not cured by usage as they may have been passed in silence and unobserved, it never can be supposed that the Court and Judges of the Court have been, for ever, inattentive to the provisions of the Statute which creates their jurisdiction and under which they sit—and that they never reflected upon the effect of a removal of a Judge by death or otherwise on the constitution of the Court. Questions have been argued and solemn judgments have been given in cases in which a Chief Justice of the Court, or a Puisne Judge was a party on the Record and therefore withdrew from the Bench, and it can not be assumed that the direct illegality of such a proceeding, (if they gave to the Statute the construction alluded to,) could have escaped their attention.

If the construction uniformly given by the Judges of the land to the words of a Statute even when that construction is supported, as in the present case by the reason of the common Law, by the necessity of the case and by the general nature of the provisions contained in the same Act, and in others relating to the same object,—I say if a construction thus uniformly acted upon and thus confirmed is not to be considered as settled, but may be overturned by any succeeding Judge, there is no longer certainty or safety in the Law.—There are many cases, in which the Judges will be found to have held themselves rigidly bound by the construction which their predecessors have given to a Statute, and which has in consequence been acted upon for a long series of years, even although such a construction appeared not the most obvious, and while adopting it as Law too firmly settled to be shaken, the most learned and venerable Judges have declared their disapprobation of the construction, and their inclination to have adhered to the Letter of the Statute, if the question could now have been considered open. The exceptions which, contrary to the letter of the Statute are allowed to prevail against the Statute of limitations so as almost wholly to defeat it; the constructions of the Statutes of frauds which dispense with production of evidence in writing, when the words of the Statute require it, and many other cases of the same kind might be readily cited—even in criminal cases the construction given by former Judges to positive Statutes is adopted and acted upon though apparently at variance with the express words.

It has been declared by very high authority that the footing on which the system of conveyance by lease and release is maintained is exceedingly doubtful, but, it is added very emphatically, that the Courts would not now suffer a question to be raised which would disturb a great portion of the landed Estates in the kingdom.

There can be no question that if all those proceedings have been invalid, which have taken place in the Court of King's Bench without the presence of a Chief Justice and two Judges, a very great proportion of the property in this Province real and personal has been illegally transferred under executions upon void judgments.—An infinity of actions might be sustained for acts done in accordance with the uniform practice of the Court—and a scene of confusion would ensue, of which the extent cannot be foreseen—Sergeant Hawkins (Book 1st ch. 17. sec. 39) says "that in doubtful cases the reason of the common law ought to govern the construction of the "Statute."

The power of construing a Statute (says Bacon in his abridgment title Statutes) "is in the Judges, "who have authority over all laws, and more especially over Statutes, to mould them according to "reason and convenience, to the best and truest use, "&c." Plowden 109.

Among the rules for construing Statutes given by the best authorities—it is laid down "that the most "natural and genuine way of construing a Statute, is "to construe one part by another part of the same "Statute, for this best expresseth the meaning of the "makers."

"Such a construction ought to be put on a Statute "as may best answer the intention which the makers "had in view; for "qui haret in litera haret in cortice," 11 Reports 73." Plowden 57.

"Every Statute ought to be construed for the preventing delay as much as possible."

The Act professes to create a Court for the "regulus administration" of Justice.—It does in terms create one as similar to the Court of King's Bench as circumstances will permit, and evidently intended to resemble it in principle and practice.

I think neither the words of the Statute nor the reason of the common law favours the construction recently advanced—but that both are entirely consistent with the manner in which the Statute has been ever acted upon. Other provisions of the same Statute—& other Statutes in pari materia, require clearly the former construction—and the unvarying usage of the Court comprehending the practice of Mr. Justice Willis, no less than of every preceding Judge, I consider to have put the question beyond the reach of doubt.

Since the opinion of Mr. Justice Willis publicly announced and reduced to writing has been submitted to me, I will consider what appears in it to enforce the necessity of departing from the former construction of the Statute. As to the inconvenience of the want of a casting voice, and the marked stress laid upon a reason given for a former number of Judges in the King's Bench in England, namely, the benefit of a casting voice in case of difference of opinion—it is to be observed, that in the common Law Courts in England they have long preserved, and at this day preserve an even number of Judges, that they are not unfrequently divided in opinion, and that even when five or nine Judges presided, the illness, or absence from other cause, of one Judge left the Court exposed to this inconvenience, but was no argument against the existence of the Court—and it can hardly escape attention that when in later times a fifth Judge has been sometimes appointed "in consequence of the indisposition of one of the four," as has been mentioned, such appointment must have had the very effect of giving the number deprecated.

With respect to any argument drawn from the Writ of "si non omnes" which accompanies the Circuit Commissions it is to be observed that to assume that every provision in an Act of Parliament, or every Commission or Writ, or Clause in a Commission or Writ, is of absolute necessity, is a very unsafe principle to argue upon, since from great caution many things are done to prevent questions arising, which, if they had arisen, would probably not have resulted in a decision that such precaution was necessary. But on reference to the 13 Ed. 1 ch. 30, it will I think be seen very clearly that no argument can be drawn from it—that Statute provides that "two Justices "should be assigned, before whom and no other, Assises, &c. shall be taken, and they shall associate "unto them one or two of the discreetest Knights; and "shall take the aforesaid Assizes." They are appointed pro hac vice, and have authority to do a particular act.—They do not like the court of King's Bench form a Court which it is necessary should be always in existence. No perpetual jurisdiction is constituted; no court with a distinct name, and various functions—but it is merely provided that certain persons may be assigned to do certain acts.

It is pretty clear however, that independantly of this obvious distinction, no very satisfactory argument, can be drawn from the present usage of issuing Writs of si non omnes, since we are told that they were not generally used till 1722, more than four hundred years after the Statute of Ed. 1, was passed, which is assumed to render such Writs necessary. That whatever was done in the mean time was void for want of them will not probably be contended.

With respect to the 18 Eliz. ch. 18, & 12 Geo. 1, amending it—from which it is inferred that without a corresponding amendment of our Act, the presence of all the Judges cannot be dispensed with—it is only necessary I think to read the Statutes to be convinced that there is no resemblance in the two cases.

By the Statute of Elizabeth the Chief Justice of the King's Bench, the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and the Chief Baron of the Exchequer, are empowered at a certain time and place to try issues proceeding from their respective Courts, and it is provided in as many words that "in case any one of them be absent, two Justices of the same Court may discharge the same duty. Here also no continuing Court or Jurisdiction is created—but certain individuals have power to do a specific Act. In the same manner sumary Jurisdiction is under many penal Statutes committed in certain cases to two Magistrates—it never was conceived that one Justice could execute the power in these cases—nor if the Statute had enacted that all the Judges sitting together "might arrest a Judgment," or that the "Chief Justice and one Judge might grant a new trial," would it ever have been conceived that these specific Acts could have been done in any other manner.

With respect to the sentiments ascribed to Sir Charles Wetherall in a debate in Parliament, I know not what argument can be built upon them unless we are to suppose, which I do not, that he intended to be so literally taken, as that we should conceive him to maintain that no Judgment ought to be given in the King's Bench, unless in the presence of the Chief Justice. He spoke evidently of the Chief Justice's frequent detention by other duties, and could hardly affirm that, if the Chief Justice were dead, or ill, or inevitably absent, it would be expedient that the whole business of the Court should stop, rather than the remaining majority of the Judges should proceed.—With respect to the locality of the Court, although much is said upon it, no conclusion is expressed, but I presume it was not adverted to unless for some purpose—the Statutes cited as creating parallel cases, certainly in my opinion have a very distant and unimportant bearing upon the question—they are absolute and unqualified in their provisions—our Statute of 1794 is altogether in different terms. When that Statute was passed, Newark was the seat of the Provincial Government, but it was in contemplation to appoint another place:—that has since been formally done—if "any place can be said to be fixed upon" as the usual place of residence for the Governor, it is certainly the "Town of York," in which the Court has been holden, I believe, since the year 1797—at least I venture to say no Act of Government or the Legislature can be produced "fixing upon any other place."

If no place has been fixed upon, then by the very terms of the Statute, the Court must be holden at the last place of the meeting of the Legislature—which York undoubtedly is and has been for these 30 years—but besides that the Statute of 1794 makes this provision, there are several Legislative enactments recognizing the Home District as that in which the Court of King's Bench is holden. With regard to the supposed cases of hardship, occurring in this Province from the circumstance that appeals are limited to cases in which the matter in controversy shall exceed £100—I cannot avoid remarking that the hardship is not correctly illustrated by reference to cases of "erroneous or imperfect verdicts at Nisi Prius with which one of the "Judges or one of the parties may be satisfied, though others may not be."—The remedy of a new trial lies strictly, and exclusively in the breast of the Court from whence that issue proceeded, and if in England the Court should be equally divided upon such an aplication, as they not unfrequently have been, the parties would be precisely in the same situation as in this Country, and a writ of error would give no aid.

Other cases may indeed occur in which diversity of opinion upon matters assignable for error might produce inconveniencies here, for which we have not a suitable remedy. In England the Judges sometimes when they differ in opinion, concur formally in their judgment, in order that one party may, (if the matter be such that error can be assigned,) bring his writ of error and apply to a higher Court. It is true that here, unless the case amounted to £100 in value, or affected some continuing right &c. no appeal would lie from such Judgment—but if that be an evil—it rests with the Legislature to remedy it by constituting a Court of error to revise the legal judgments of the Court of King's Bench in all cases, and another remedy would be found to a great extent in that earnest and studious desire in the Judges to reconcile their opinions, and arrive, from conviction, at the same conclusion, which is so admirably assigned by Lord Mansfield as the reason of that unanimity of Judgment that was for so many years exhibited in the Court of King's Bench. I cannot conceive that an inconvenience of this kind sometimes occurring is either in law or in reason an argument for so construing the Statute of 1794, as to occasion every now and then a discontinuance of all the proceedings in the Court, and to produce a total failure of Justice.

The Statutes of 31st Edw. 3, ch. 12—and 27th Eliz. ch. 8—seem to be much relied on, but I confess they appear to me for the reasons I have stated, to be wholly inapplicable, and very clearly so. The first Statute gives a power to certain Officers named; taking to them the Justices, &c. "to examine erroneous judgments given in the Exchequer." Here again there is constituted no Court of original jurisdiction affording the only redress for the most ordinary wrongs, and the only means of decision in most of the cases litigated between party and party, a Court, which from its nature must be always in existence, and always in operation. Certain Officers have power to do a certain act, in a certain manner; such a provision is in principle not unlike the enactment which gives power to an Officer of Customs, taking with him a Peace Officer, to enter a house in the day time, and search for uncustomed goods.—If the Officer affecting to proceed under this Statute should go without a Peace Officer, and in the night time, instead of the day, he would be acting in violation of the Statute and not in accordance with it. The distinction, in my opinion, is that by the Statute of 31, Edw. 3d. ch. 12. the direction of Parliament, the operative words of the Statute are applied to the manner in which a specific power shall be exercised by individuals to whom it is committed. By our Statute of 1794 a Court of Record of Original Jurisdiction is constituted which is required to be in constant exercise, and although a Chief Justice, and two Judges are appointed to preside in that Court, that is, are assigned to it, it does not therefore follow that spite of death and casualty of all kinds, such a number of Judges must be always together when the Court is acting. To me the distinction appears obvious and reasonable.

The Statute of 18th Eliz. ch. 8. besides that the above remarks apply to it, seems to me rather to afford an argument against the purpose for which it is cited—for there Parliament seems to have felt it necessary after reposing the power of amending errors in many collectively, to add the restriction that six at the least should exercise it.

(To be continued.)

A WELL RECOMMENDED MEDICAL GENTLEMAN of sound British principles, will meet with every support in the vicinity of Vittoria, Township of Charlotieville, London District—the center of a dense population. n 9

AUCTION.—Capt. McDonald will sell by Auction on Wednesday the 13th August, in Newgate-Street, at the rear of the New Court House. His household furniture consisting of Tables, Chairs, Bureaus, Carpets, China, Glass and Delf, Plate and Plated Ware, Feather Beds & Bedding, a Large Double Stove, a quantity of Kitchen Furniture, with many other articles particulars of which will be expressed in hand Bills:

☞ Sale to commence at 11 o'clock, A. M.

M. & R. McIGHAN,
Auctioneers.

York, 9th August, 1828. s. 9

THE MARMORA IRON WORKS.—The sale of these Works has been postponed until further notice. But the Wares of the Establishment are offered for sale at 25s. per Cwt. for all heavy Castings, Potash-Kettles, &c.—and at 27s. 6d. per Cwt. for Sugar-Kettles, Hollow Ware, Stoves, &c. delivered at Kingston, and Wheat, Flour, and Potash will be taken in payment, at the Current price in that Market—or a discount of five per Cent made for Cash.

Among the advantages which purchasers and dealers in the articles, would derive from giving a preference to the Castings of these Works, are the following:—

First—The Wares are fully of a better quality, in regard to manufacture than those got elsewhere.

Secondly.—They are offered for sale, at prices, at least 25 per Cent under the rate at which the same kind of goods can be laid down in Kingston from Montreal, without taking into consideration the risk of transport.

Thirdly.—From the very superior quality of the Metal from which the Wares are Manufactured, and from the experience already had, by many who have used them for a length of time.—The Subscriber is warranted in saying, that they are by no means so liable to crack, as the Carron, or other Ware of similar Establishments, known to the people of this Province.

Lastly.—The receiving payment in the Produce of the Country, should be considered, an advantage (when combined with the other circumstances above enumerated), of sufficient importance to buyers, to secure a preference for the consumption of a Provincial manufacture, of superior quality and comparatively low price.

The undersigned in the name of Peter McGill, Esquire, the present Proprietor, who has expended large sums, in perfecting the Establishment, since it came into his hands having, as he thinks, clearly shown, that it is their interest, appeals to the Patriotism of the Merchants, and others of this Province, to give aid, support, and countenance to so great and praiseworthy an undertaking. The support required, is simply, to give a preference in their purchases to the Manufactures of Marmora, which articles of daily necessity and consumption—both good and cheap, instead of sending to the United States, and Lower Canada, for Articles of a similar description comparatively of inferior quality, and higher prices.

A. MANAHAN.

FRESH SEEDS.—Shakie's Garden and Flower Seeds, warranted of the growth of 1827, for sale by

EDW'D. LESSLIE & SONS.

☞ E. L. & Sons expect a quantity of clover seed in a few days.

York, 14th March 1828. 43-tf.

LIST OF LETTERS remaining in the York Post-Office, on the 5th July, 1828:

Isaac Austin,
Wm. Ausbowne,
George Anderson,
Betsy Agnes,
Henry Armstrong,
Charles Boulds,
Peter Bush,
George Bile,
Patrick O'Brien,
Charles Barrows,
James Beard,
Mary Browne,
John Brackin,
Dr. D. A. Balcolm,
2. Charles Bevins,
Hannah Boice,
Abraham Boice,
Abraham Bagshaw,
Benjamin Baker,
Peter Brown,
Daniel Birdsall,
Robert Bowmon,
John Bavinder,
Richard Bready,
2. Samuel Beasely,
Joseph Beasely,
William Bell,
Mr. Blair,
Peter Casy,
Cornelius O'Calaghan,
Calvin Cole,
James Curry,
Mrs. P. Cole,
George A. Crowe,
Patrick O'Calaghan,
Joseph Canning,
William Cobain,
Conrad Clock,
William Cragg,
James C sherry,
John Cowper,
Charles Campbell,
Archibald Cameron,
2. T. Coates,
Robert Campbell,
Reuben Cleveland,
Archibald Chambers,
Martin Chapman,
John Cantillon,
Donald Campbell,
Thomas Donaghoo,
Jane Dansey,
Dr. Oliver Davidson,
2. William Deafy,
Timothy Dunn,
William Dickey,
James Drom,
Jacob Darling,
Peter Dickhout,
Ann Dudgeon,
Robert Denison,
Peter Degrest,
Joseph Davis,
William Denis,
William Dickson,
3. Timothy Doyle,
E. F. Doran,
James Denman;
John Darey,
James Dyer,
Thomas J. Eck,
Edward French,
Thomas Ferguson,
John Foreman,
Peter Frank,
Henry Fosmire,
Samuel Flemming,
Johnston Fletcher,
2. John Freflick,
Abraham Goodrich,
2. Garnut Gray,
Thomas Godfrey,
John Good,
William Glover,
Alexander Greenaway,
3. William Gray,
James Goodfellow,
Z. Galloway
Isaac Gordon,
John Gardiner,
Theodore Grout,
Robert Gilmer,
Thomas L. Gilbird,
Isaac Hewd,
John Hanlon,
Mary Hughes,
Eli Hand,
3. Jacob Hartsell,
Stephen Harrison,
Hugh Henry,
John Hillock,
Robert Hunt,
James Johnson,
John Johnson,
James Jamieson,
Robert Jamieson,
C. A. Jolly,
Sarah Johnson,
Pensioner—James Jackson,
Jacob Keefer,
Andrew Keefe,
John Key,
Thomas Kelly,
George Lount,
William Long,
Susannah Lehman,
Daniel Lahman,
Mark Learmont,
Daniel Leek,
James Leadram,
Edward Leonard,
John S. Lyons,
David Lewis,
Dr. John W. Leonard,
John Lee,
William Laugham,
King Lindsey,
2. John McDonald,
Charles Moore,
2. Samuel Moore,
William Moore,
John M'Connell,
Mrs. McConnell,
John M'Guire,
Betsy M'Gee,
John M'Gill,
Mary May,
Hugh M'Grath,
Alexander M'Donald,
Edward Miller,
John Miller,
George Martin,
Alexander M'Vean,
Wm. M. Monroe,
Margaret Mills,
2 Peter Montgomery,
Alexander M'Donell,
David Musselman,
Peter Musselman,
Edmund Maher,
Michael M'Cormick,
Elizabeth M'Cormick,
Hoxhead Manifold,
Andrew Millar,
George M'Intosh,
William Mackey,
James Gilmer,
John M'Farlane,
Hugh Morrow,
George Moody,
Alexander M'Kinly,
John Nehit,
Lucy Ostrom,
David Oyer,
Gilbert D Purdy,
James Palme,
William Perry,
Jonathan Pipes,
James Parker,
William Porter,
David Porter,
John Price,
Conrad Pratts,
P. P. Peck,
Amelia Prayn,
Timothy Pangmon,
2. William L. Pierce,
Daniel Patton,
E. Petribone,
Oliver Prentice,
George Peterman,
Geoffry Prendergast,
Loughlin Quinn,
Jonathan L. Quicks,
John Quigley,
William L. Reeve,
2. Samuel Ramsey,
John Rinker,
William Raymond,
Daniel Reid,
Patrick Redmond,
Andrew Richson,
Patrick Ryly,
John Rodbean,
Isaac Rutter,
James Ross,
Joseph Shaw,
Joseph Stonehouse,
Solomon Slagdilie,
John Sanders,
Esther Stone,
William Secord,
William Small,
Richard Hall Thornhill,
George Thompson,
William Temple,
John Talor,
Asel F. Tobias,
James C. VanEvery,
Henry Wisme,
Eba Webdon,
Robert Wiles,
Henry Wideman,
James Whiteside,
2. James Withrow,
Mercy Woodward,
George Wolten,
George Ward,
Joseph Ward,
John Ward,
Joseph Walker,
Michael Whitmore,
William Waterhouse,
James Widow,
James Williams,
Mary Young,
Thomas & Wm. Young.

York, 5th July, 1828. n. 8

IT is particularly requested that all claims on the Canada Company be sent in during the first week in September next, and afterwards regularly in the first week of December, March, June and September, addressed "Thomas Smith, Esquire, Cashier and Accountant, Canada Company's Office, York," to whom application is to be made for payment in the first week in October, January, April and July.

JOHN GALT,
SUPERINTENDANT.

CANADA COMPANY'S OFFICE,
Guelph, 29th July, 1828. n. 8

THE HOTEL in Guelph is now ready to be let on very advantageous terms.

T. B. HUSBAND,
CLERK.

CANADA COMPANY'S OFFICE,
Guelph. 29th July, 1828. n. 8

TO BE SOLD, BY AUCTION, on the 15th day of August next, at the Store of the Subscriber,—the whole of his Stock in Trade—consisting of: Broad Cloths; Kersymeres; Druggets; Settinetts; Fearnoughts; Blankets; Carpeting; Flannels; Guernsey Shirts.—Mens, Womens, and Childrens' Woollen and Cotton Hosiery.—Grey Bleached and Steam Loom Sheetings; 8-4 and 12-4 Marsailles Counterpanes.—Furniture Chintz; Ginghams; Calicoes; Turkey and Union Stripes; Bedticking; ready made Shirts and Vests; Striped Shirting; Coloured Cambric; Imitation and Linen Cambric; Cambric Muslins.—Imitation and Kersymere Shawls; India Nankeens; Fancy Handkerchiefs; Jeans; Fustians; Corduroys, Tapes; Bobbins; Thread; Irish Imitation and Osnaburgh Sheetings.—Cotton Yarn No. 7, 8, and 9. Bombazeens; Bombazetts; Lastings; Plaids; Coloured Persians; Gross de Naples; Canton Crape; Black Sattin; India and Fancy Silk Handkerchiefs; Black Silk Vestings; Thread and Cotton Lace, and Ribbons.—Parasols and Umbrellas. Ladies' and Gentlemens' Kid and Beaver Gloves; Straw and Beaver Bonnets; Mens and Boys' Beaver and Wool Hats.—Brushes of all descriptions.

English and Swedes Iron; German Steel; Potash Kettles; Coolers, Stoves, Stove Stands, and Pans; Pots; Dutch Ovens; Dog Irons; Tea Kettles; Waggon Boxes; Wrought and cut Nails; Logging, Trace, and Halter Chains; Preserving, Frying and Sauce Pans; Hand and Cross Saws; Files; Drawing Knives; Augers; Gimlets; Hinges; Cotton Cards; Spades; Shovels.—A quantity of Shelf Goods and Cutlery.

Teas; Muscovado Sugar; Pepper; Alspice; Indigo; Blue; Soap; Tobacco: Coffee; Rice, &c. &c.

Sixty Dozen of Old Madeira, Port, and Teneriffe Wines.—Sixty Dozen of Hibberts Brown Stout; Two Puncheons of Jamaica Spirits; 1000 Gallons Whiskey; one set of Copper Wine Measures; three pair Copper Beams, Scales, and Weights; three Suspending Lamps.—Fifty Wheat Puncheons.

TERMS.—All sales to the amount of twenty pounds, Six Months credit, upon giving approved endorsed notes, bearing interest. Under twenty, Cash.

☞ The Hollow Ware and Castings of the St. Maurice Foundry will be sold on a twelve Months Credit, upon giving approved endorsed notes, bearing interest.

WILLIAM GAMBLE.

York, 23d July. 1828. n. 8

ALLIANCE BRITISH AND FOREIGN
Life and Fire Assurance Company,
OF LONDON.
(CAPITAL—Five Millions Sterling.)

THE Subscriber having been appointed AGENT to the above Company, at Prairieworthy, is ready to Insure against loss or damage by Fire at moderate rates of Premium. The high standing of this Institution in England, and the Company allowing their Agents in Montreal to settle losses in this Country, with the Assured participating in the Profits of the Company, renders it worthy of Public Confidence.

R. W. PRENTICE.

York, November 18th, 1826. 22.

FOR SALE.—Lot No. 20, and west ½ of 30, in the 7th Concession of the Township of Pickering, containing 350 Acres, and having an eligible situation for a Mill. For terms apply to Mr. Andrew Mercer, York.

York, 26th October, 1827. 22 tf

NEW WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE.—The Subscribers respectfully announce to the Merchants of York and its vicinity, that they have opened a Wholesale Store, Corner of Market-Lane and Church-Street; where they are receiving a large and suitable assortment of DRY Goods, direct from GREAT BRITAIN: consisting principally of the following articles:—
Grey and Bleached Factory Cottons,
do. do. Sheetings,
Striped and Check'd Cottons,
Scotch Hollands,
Fine, Superfine, and Brussels Carpeting,
do. do. broad and narrow Cloths,
do. do. Cassimeres,
Bombazettes, Bombazines, and Shalloons,
Says, Lastings, Cambletts, &c.,
Tartans and Union Checks,
Moleskins, Barragans and Fustians,
Red and White Flannel,
Chintzes, Calicoes and Furnitures,
Book, Jaconnet and Mull Muslins,
Bathie Muslins, Striped, Check'd and figured,
Ginghams, Pullicate and Verona Handkerchiefs,
Cotton and Linen Bed Tick,
Russia Duck, Osnaburgs, Hessins and Sheetings,
Canvas, Bagging, Dowlas, Drill, &c.
Umbrellas, 36, 28, and 30 Inch,
Bandanna, Barcelona, Gauze & Barrage, Handkerchiefs,
Silk Hose, and Habit Gloves,
Black and Green Crape. Veils, &c.
Black and Coloured sewings, Legee Twist, &c.
Galloons, Silk and Cotton Ferrets,
Black and W. Brown Linen Thread, Cotton Spoolls and Balls,
Silk, Cotton, and Merino Shawls,
Cotton Tapes, Bobbin, &c.
Sattins, Gros de Naples, Levantine Ribbons, &c. &c.—
Which they will sell off at very reduced prices, for cash only.

JAMES DOUGALL, & Co.
York, 23d July, 1828. x. 7

THOMAS MOORE,—TAILOR, Front Street, York. Near the Steam Boat Hotel.—Begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has just opened, and offers for Sale, a choice assortment of Goods, Selected by himself at the Manufactories in England, which he can recommend as being of choice quality, consisting of, Superfine, Blue; Black; Scarlet; Green; Olive Grey and Drab, West of England Broad Cloths.—Black, Blue and Grey, Double and single Milled Kersymeres. Forest Cloths. Lasting and Corduroys.—Beverteens; Fustians; Cantons. Jane; Drab, and Striped Brown Drills. Fine Welsh Flannel; White and Blue Flannel. White and Grey Cottons. London printed Calicoes and Chintzes. Fancy Vestings. Printed Muslins. Sewing Silk; Twist; Thread and Rich Gilt Buttons.

MILITARY EQUIPMENTS,
consisting of, Regulation Swords; Patent Leather Regulation Waist Belts, with rich Gilt clasps. Rich Gold Bullion Epauletts, crimson Silk Regulation Sashes.—Rich Gold Velvet Lace, and Gilt British Militia Buttons. Red, White and Green, Regulation Feathers, with rich Gilt Tubes for do.

The whole of which will be disposed of on reasonable terms, or made up to order, agreeable to the latest fashions, at the shortest notice.
York, 14th July, 1828. x 6

STRAYED OR STOLEN, a few days since a Sorrel Pony his hinder legs white half way up, or nearly so, his tail long, and a white stripe in his face, between four and five years old.

Any person giving correct information at this Office where the said horse may be found by the owner shall be liberally rewarded.
York, July 12th, 1828. x 6

York Auction, Mart, & Commission Ware-House.
M. & R. MEIGHAN,
Opposite the Market Square.

HAVE for Sale, an assortment of Household Furniture, consisting of Mahogany, Curled Maple and Cherry Tree, Side Boards, Secretaries, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Breakfast Dining and Card Tables, Work Tables, Bason Stands, Feather Beds and Bedding; A London made grand Piano; an excellent Sulkey Carriage; a Mangle for pressing clothes; A Jack for Roasting Meat; A very elegant fourteen day Time Piece with Italian Marble Frame and Glass Shade; Double and Single Barrel Percussion Lock Fowling Pieces and Pistols; Bridles, Saddles, Double and Single Harness; Gilt and Plain Frame Looking Glasses; Some Handsome Vases and chimney Ornaments; an extensive assortment of Elegant Dry and Fancy Goods of every description, Hardware, Jewellery, Crockery and Glassware; Groceries, Tea, Wine and Spirits; together with an Elegant Collection of Books, Stationery, Perfumery, Patent Medicines &c.

Regular Auction Sales every week.
York, 1828. x 6.

ENGLISH STORE.—Just received, direct from England, a quantity of Bobbin Net, Lace, Veils, and Caps, of the first quality; also, an assortment of Muslins and other Goods; which will be sold on the most reasonable terms, by

J. COCKSHUTT.
York, July 14th 1828. x 6

JOHN MURCHISON, DRAPER AND TAILOR, respectfully informs his friends and customers, that he has just received from LONDON, a choice assortment of extra, fine and superfine West of England Broad Cloths and Cassimeres; consisting of Blue, Black, Scarlet, Green, Olive, Brown, Grey, Drab and Corbeau, Single and Double Milled Cassimeres; do. Double Milled Broad Cloths for Great Coats, and vestings of every description, which he is ready to make up to order at short notice, in good style, and on the lowest terms possible. Gentlemen wishing any thing in his line may depend upon being faithfully served.

N.B. He has also a number of Military Articles to dispose of on reasonable terms.
York, July 28, 1828. sn. 8

PUBLIC NOTICE.—I require due notice to be given to me or to my Agent, Mr. Alexander Murray, at Mr. Proudfoot's Store, in York, of all transfers of Property in the Steam-Packet Canada, in default whereof I shall consider the original Stockholder, as the legal Owner in the Vessel; and in paying dividends and doing other transactions connected with my situation, hold myself accountable to them alone.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner of the Steam Packet Canada.
York, 27th December, 1827. 31tf.

N.B.—With Mr. A. Murray, reference may be had to all Books and accounts connected with the Canada Steam-Packet.

MILLS AT PETERBOROUGH.—The Grist-Mill and Saw-Mill which have been lately erected by the Government at Peterborough, in the District of Newcastle, will be exposed to sale by Public Auction at Peterborough on the 10th day of September next, at 11 o'clock, A. M. The terms of payment will be,—one third of the purchase money to be paid within one month after the sale, one third at the expiration of one year, and the remaining one third at the expiration of two years from the day of sale, with interest.

The Mill site is most valuable, comprehending a Tract of about 86 Acres. The Grist-Mill has two runs of Stones in operation, and is well fitted for Merchant work, having manufactured more than 1,200 Barrels of Flour this Summer.—The Saw-mill is also in operation.

From the peculiar situation of these works being at the head of the Navigation of the Otanabee River, and in the midst of a very flourishing settlement, the Establishment will be most valuable to any person possessing Capital. It cannot be disposed of for a less sum than £2,000 Currency, but will go to the highest bidder above that sum, without reserve.

A plan exhibiting the situation of the mills, and the Land appropriated for their use can be seen at this Office; and every information obtained by writing to the Honorable PETER ROBINSON, York.
York, 3d July, 1828. d. 5

NOTICE is hereby given that the Subscriber has lately opened at the Village of L'orignal, in the seigniory of Longueil, in the District of Ottawa, a Land Office, for the purpose of transacting all matters relative to Lands in that District.

Persons holding Lands in said District, and desirous of disposing of them, by forwarding to the Subscriber, the number of the Lots, and Concessions, and the name of the Township, together with the price placed on them, may depend on every exertion being made to procure speedy sales.

He will also protect the Timber on Lands confided to his charge, and will use every exertion, to give satisfaction to those employing him, at a moderate compensation.

CHA'S. P. TREADWELL.
L'orignal, 9th October, 1827. 22tf

LANDS FOR SALE.—In the Township of Hallowell, Lot No. 46, 3d Concession, North-west side of the Carrying-Place, - - - - - Acres. 200
In the Township of Cramahe—
Lots No. 17, 13, & 19, 4th Con. } - - 300
do. 1 4th do. }
In the Township of Hamilton—
Broke Lots, 9 & 30, 9th Con. } - - 476
27, 2., 29, 31, 32, 34, & 35, 10th do. }
North-east quarter, No. 1, 4th do. - 50
In the Township of Clarke—
Lots No. 16, 17 & 18, Broken Fronts } 2000
16, 17, & 18, 1st Con. }
17, & 18, 2d do. }
17, & 18, 3d do. }
In the Township of Darlington—
Lot No. 14, 3d Con. } - - - - 400
6, 4th do. }
In the Township of Ernestown—
Lots No. 16, 17, & half of 18, 1st Con. } - - 999
and Broken Fronts. }
In the Township of York—
Lot No. 37, 3d Con. - - - - - 200
In the Township of Gainsborough—
Broken Lot No. 27, 3d & 4th Con. - - 74
Apply to ANDREW MERCER.

HALF-PAY AFFIDAVITS, of the latest form, for Sale at the Gazette Office.

Miscellaneous.

RIDING ELEPHANTS.—At Barrackpoor, for the first time, I mounted an elephant, the motion of which I thought far from disagreeable, though very different from that of a horse. As the animal moves both feet on the same side at once, the sensation is like that of being carried on a man's shoulders. A full grown elephant carries two persons in the "howdah," besides "mohout," or driver, who sits on his neck, and a servant on the crupper behind with an umbrella. The howdah itself, which Europeans use, is not unlike the body of a small gig, but without a head, At Calcutta, or within five miles of it, no elephants are allowed, on account of the frequent accidents which they occasion by frightening horses. Those at Barrackpoor are larger animals than I had expected to see; two of them were at least ten feet high. That which Lord Amherst rode, and on which I accompanied him, was a very noble fellow, dressed up in very splendid trappings, which were a present from the King of Oude, and ornamented all over with fish embroidered in gold, a device which is here considered a badge of royalty. I was amused by one peculiarity which I had never before heard of: while the elephant is going on, a man walks by his side, telling him where to tread, bidding him "take care," —"step out," warning him that the road is rough, slippery, &c., all which the animal is supposed to understand, and takes his measures accordingly. The mohout says nothing, but guides him by pressing his legs to his neck, on the side to which he wishes him to turn, urging him forward with the formidable goad, and stopping him by a blow on the forehead with the but end of the same instrument. The command these men have over their elephants is a well known, and a circumstance lately occurred of one of them making a sign to his beast, which was instantly obeyed, to kill a woman who had said something to offend him.—Bishop Heber's Journal of a Tour in India.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser.

Earthquake at Lima.—We are permitted to publish the following extract of a letter from Mr. S. W. Pomeroy, Jr. to his father, giving an interesting description of a violent earthquake at Lima, on the morning of the 30th of March The letter is dated—

LIMA, April 21.

I wrote you last by the Brandywine to Panama, to go across the Isthmus, under date of 20th ult. Since that time the city has been visited by one of those dreadful earthquakes which are looked for about once in a century, and had it continued a few seconds longer the whole of Lima must inevitably have been laid in ruins The calamity occurred on the morning of the 30th March, at about half past seven o'clock, and although only of 40 or 50 seconds duration, was of such prodigious violence as to throw down buildings and injure all, including the superb churches; some of which are so much shattered that it is contemplated to take them down, their massive walls of 6 to 9 feet thickness, being literally rent from the top to the bottom. A great number of houses have been pulled down by order of the authorities, and several have, since the shock, fallen of their own accord, in one instance burying two or three persons in their ruins.

The amount of injury to the city is estimated, by an official survey, at six millions of dollars, a sum quite within bounds when it is recollected that from the nature of the buildings they cannot be repaired in many instances, but must be re-built. The house occupied by Hoop, Wetmore & Co. is considered one the strongest in Lima, and is said to have cost $90 000. Some of the rooms are cracked perpendicular in many places, and in others the upperpart of the house (which is composed of bamboo sticks and mud, of about 2 feet in thickness) separated from the "adobes" or sun-dried bricks, of which the walls, to the height of three feet above the floor of the second story are composed; and had this shock continued three seconds, longer the whole top, with its brick roof would have fallen in.

About 30 persons perished; that is the number of bodies which have been dug out from the rubbish, but others are supposed to be still undiscovered. Had it been in the night the loss of lives, would, no doubt, have been greater. I was awakened from a sound sleep by the most terrific noise, and jumping up, saw the walls of my room vibrating very violently. I concluded that no time was to be lost, and made the best of my way into the street, amidst falling plaster, and stumbling along over the doors like a drunken man. In the street all was confusion; the heart appalling noise which ushered in this frightful phenomena and the sound of the cracking walls, were still ringing in our ears. The poor natives were upon their knees, (many of them just as they had risen from their bed,) beating their breasts, and calling upon God, the virgin and all the saints to save them; and expecting every instant another and overwhelming shock. Indeed, when I reflected that this was a danger against which no place afforded safety, (as the earth was said to be,) as it had done during the great earthquake of 1740) I was very well disposed to join the cry of "misiricordia," and seek protection from Him "who but looketh upon the earth, and it trembleth.

Summary.

The Manchester Mercury says, the estimated number of looms propelled by water and steam power in the United Kingdom, including those in preparation for working previous to the stagnation, and, as near as any calculation can be made, 95,000. The average of each produce, taking it at 22 square yards a day, makes 1,254,600, or 1,741 yards a minute; weekly, 7,524,000; monthly, 41,500,000; yearly, 376,100,000.

The following return comprises the total strength of the Irish Militia Staff:—38 adjutants, 28 paymasters, 37 surgeons, 37 quarter-masters, 38 serjeants-major, 38 quarter-masters serjeant, 606 serjeants, 613 corporals, 38 drum-majors, and 412 drummers and fifers. Total charge per annum £92, 060. The annual charge of the English Militia Staff is £90, 753.

NOTICE.—All persons indebted to Mr. William Lindsay, who has removed from York, are requested to call and settle accounts with the Subscriber, who is duly authorised to receive monies on his account and give acquittances.—Any persons having claims against Mr. Lindsay, are also desired to present them for adjustment.

CHARLES BAKER.
York, 22d May, 1828. 52tf.

FOR SALE,—Lot No. 12, and East half of 14 in the 3d Concession of the Township of York, West of Yonge-Street,—300 Acres,—the property of Major W. G. White.—Refer to ROBERT STANTON, Esquire, U. C. Gazette Office.
York, 4th July, 1828. x. 5

Storage & Commission Ware-House.

THE SUBSCRIBER begs leave to inform his friends and the public that he has purchased the Store-House, Wharf, &c. lately the property of William Cooper, Esq'r., in this Town, where he will receive, store, and sell, on Commission, on the most reasonable terms, all descriptions of produce or merchandize, with which he may be favored.

The buildings are extensive and convenient, being at the head of the Wharf, where all vessels which come into the Bay, principally discharge and take in their cargoes. He flatters himself that the care and attention of the person superintending the Wharf and Store, will give general satisfaction.

There will be for sale a constant supply of Pork, Flour, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Peas, Salt, and Whiskey, also Stoves, Potash Kettles, Coolers, Sugar Kettles, a variety of castings and Grindstones.

The Subscriber has also for sale upwards of 2500 Acres unimproved Lands of superior quality, in the most flourishing Townships, and convenient to York, which he will sell very low and on easy terms to actual settlers.

WM. BERGIN.
York, February 28th, 1828. 41tf.

NEW AUCTION AND COMMISSION STORE. Erasmus Fowke of Port Hope, in the prosperous District of Newcastle, offers himself as a General Commission Agent and Auctioneer. His Extensive Stores, Granaries and Vaults, for Goods or Produce committed to his charge, together with a large Distillery on his extensive premises, and for the accommodation of live Stock, must give great facility for the disposal of all property committed to his charge.

All property given into his hands shall be disposed of agreeable to instructions the proceeds will be immediately paid soon as received. From arrangements entered into with a forwarding Establishment in Kingston, he will engage to forward any articles of Produce intended for the Lower Province, and will attend to any instructions given for the disposal of the proceeds and make reasonable advances in Cash when intended for immediate sale.

From his local residence, and a perfect knowledge of the Country with the method of transacting business, he is induced to hope he is entitled to a share of public favor.
Port Hope, 1st January, 1828. 28tf.

P. S.—Any Merchandize committed to his charge from Quebec, Montreal, Kingston, York, or any part of the United States, shall be attended to with the greatest punctuality.

NOTICE.—Captain George McDonald 68th Regiment, being about to leave this Province, requests that all demands against him may be immediately presented for Settlement.
York, July 19, 1828. a 6

BANK NOTICE.—DISCOUNT DAY, Wednesday of every Week.—Notes offered for Discount, must be put under cover to the Cashier, and left at the Bank the day before.

THOMAS G. RIDOUT, Cashier.

PARCHMENT DEEDS,
For Sale at the Gazette Office, York,
WITH AND WITHOUT BAR OF DOWER,

NEATLY PRINTED, from a revised form—a constant supply will be kept on hand. Price —Single Deed 2s. 6d. or 25s. per dozen. Memorials on paper, 7½d. each, or 6s. per dozen.

THE BRITISH STEAM-PACKET CANADA, Captain Hugh Richardson, plying betwixt York and Niagara, (Weather permitting.)

Leaves NIAGARA daily for YORK, (Sunday excepted,) precisely at 7 o'clock, A. M. arrives at York at half-past 11, A.M. Leaves YORK daily for NIAGARA, precisely at 2, P. M. arrives at NIAGARA at half-past 6 P.M.

TERMS.

After Cabin and Quarter Deck, - - - - - $2
Fore Cabin and Deck, - - - - - - - - - 1
N. B. A gun will be fired and Colors hoisted 25 minutes before starting.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master & Managing Owner.
York, 8th April, 1828. 46tf.

England.

In the House of Commons, on the 6th of June, Mr. Dawson moved that £16,182 be granted to the Society for the propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts. It was for the first payment of the Missionaries of the Church of England. Mr. Hume strongly objected to the vote. He contended that as the great majority of the inhabitants of the Canadas were Roman Catholics, Church of England Missionaries were worse than useless, and concluded by moving as an amendment, that the sum of £8,000 should be inserted instead of £16,182.—The Chancellor of the Exchequer said that in Nova-Scotia there was a clear majority who belonged to the Church of England.—Sir R. Inglis supported the grant. Sir T. Acland said that if the Hon. Member for Aberdeen succeeded in his amendment, all the Missionaries of the Church of England in Canada would be curtailed of one half of their income for the present year. To such a measure he was decidedly opposed. After a few remarks from Mr. Monck, Mr. Labouchere was convinced that it was doing an injury to the Church of England to persevere in sending out Church of England Missionaries to Lower Canada. Mr. Hobhouse wished to know from the Right Honourable the Chancellor of the Exchequer, whether if a division were not then pressed he would give any pledge that there should be a reduction of the grant in future? The Chancellor of the Exchequer said, he could not give the assurance required. Mr. S. Wortley considered the sum proposed for the Clergy of Ireland of large amount; and observed, that he could not consent to vote the money, unless he was convinced that it would be applied in a proper manner. Mr. Hume wished the vote postponed for a fortnight, in order to give the Committee of Finance the power of entertaining the subject. The Hon. Member accordingly moved to report progress. The Chancellor of the Exchequer said, the proposal was inconvenient to the Hon. Gentleman was inconvenient. The Committee then divided—

For reporting progress..... 38
Against it..... 117
Majority ..... —79

The original amendment proposed by Mr. Hume was then put and negatived.—The Estimate was agreed to.

On the 12th of June Mr. Kennedy presented a Petition from the Presbyterian Clergy of Lower Canada, praying that a portion of the land reserved for the Clergy might be given for the support of their Clergy.—This land had been granted for the support of the Protestant Clergy; the Scottish Church being Protestant, and legally established by the Act of Union, was therefore entitled to a part of this land for the support of their members.—The Hon. Member moved that the Petition be referred to the Committee sitting on the affairs of Canada. Mr. Secretary Huskisson thought the grounds of the application would be investigated—would be attentively investigated—before the Petition should be recommended to the notice of the Committee, as the statements of the Hon. Member appeared much exaggerated. The Petition was then ordered to be laid on the table.

On the same day Sir Alexander Grant brought up the Report of the Ways and Means Committee, which was received, and a Bill founded thereon ordered to be brought in. Mr. Hume objected to the grant of £16,000 for the support of the Clergy of the Established Church in Canada. It was a fact that not half the money hitherto granted had been expended in the way for which it was originally designed, and considered that a Petition, signed by a considerable number of individuals against it, ought, at least, to lay on the table, he thought it but just that the House should pay attention to their prayer. On the whole, the grant appeared to him both enormous and unnecessary. After a few words from the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the objection was overruled, and the Report agreed to.

Mr. Robinson moved for a return of certain actions in the Courts of Newfoundland, Labrador, &c. during a given period, which was agreed to and ordered.

On the 13th of June, the 12th of June, brought up an account of the expence incurred in Public Buildings and Military works in Newfoundland.

In the Commons on the 30th May, among the Miscellaneous Estimates voted were £10,445 to the Nova-Scotia Civil List, £4,000 for Bermuda, and £3,600 for New-Brunswick.

The Canada Company Bill was read a second time in the House of Commons on the 12th of June, and ordered for committal to the next day.

In the House of Lords, on the 6th of June, the Duke of Wellington moved the second reading of the Pension Bill for Mr. Canning's family. The motion was supported by the Duke of Wellington, the Marquis of Lansdown, Lord Dudley, Viscount Goderich, Lord Seaford, the Earl of Morley, Lord Grosvenor, and opposed by Lord Ducres. The Bill was read a second time and committed.

Mr. Canning's Pension Bill was taken up in the House of Lords, in Committee of the whole, on the 9th June, and reported without amendments

The Duke of Wellington's Corn Bill was ordered to a second reading in the house of Lords, on the 13th June. On the division, the numbers were 86, and the Non-contents 19. It seems to be admitted to be about as equitable in its nature as the complicated interests of the case can admit. Mr. Huskisson was present during the debate, and appeared to be in an ill state of health.

The Army Estimates were moved on the 13th by the new Secretary of War, Sir Henry Hardinge, and supported in a speech. There is little difference between the estimates for 1827 and 28.

To a question put in the House of Lords, on the 12th June, by the Earl of Lauderdale, the Duke of Wellington said there was no intention to alter the mint circulation with respect to silver coin. There was no reason to believe there was any scarcity of silver. There was on the contrary a superfluity.

Scotland.

Dreadful Accident and loss of Lives at Kirkaldy in Scotland.—A most dreadful accident occurred at Kirkaldy, on Sunday last (15th of June) the disastrous consequences of which equal if not exceed those produced by the fall of the Brunswick Theatre some months back. From the particulars which reached us through a correspondent, it appears that the celebrated Mr. Irving (who has been for some weeks back in the active exercise of his ministry through different parts of Scotland) was announced to preach at Kirkaldy, on the days of Saturday and Sunday, which naturally attracted numerous congregations. On the evening of the latter the Chapel was crowded at an early hour to hear (we believe) his farewell sermon. Service had not commenced when the fears of the congregation were excited by a sudden cracking of the beams which supported one of the galleries. The alarm of danger was instantly succeeded by its reality. The gallery gave way, and precipitated with the whole of its occupants into the body of the Church. The results were terrible, and the sacrifice of life awfully great. The rush to the doors was tremendous, and in the struggle for life and death, twenty-nine persons are stated to have died from pressure and suffocation. Three were crushed to death by the falling beams, and numbers have received severe contutions. The consternation in the town and neighbourhood when our correspondent's letter came off, was great beyond example. Anxious solicitude was in every face, and inquiry in every mouth, while the grief of the relatives and friends of the sufferers, (among whom was a mother, whose three daughters perished on the occasion) added considerably to the melancholy and heart rending features of the scene.

Communications.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE LOYALIST.
Oxford, June 11th, 1828.

MR EDITOR,

About a week ago, I took my seat in an alcove in our College garden, secluded from the noise and bustle of the City; whence the eye is delighted with a confined but pleasant prospect of part of the buildings of the University, and of the Country beyond,—my usual situation at twilight of a summers evening, when meditation spreads her silent charm over my mind: It was a beautiful evening.—The Sun had sunk below the Horizon.—He had gone to shed his influence on our Antipodes —The silver tones of Weston or Magdalen bells, which not unfrequently strike up just as the busy hum of men begins to die away, fell

"At intervals upon the ear
In cadence sweet, now dying all away,
Now pealing loud again and louder still."

Their distant music had awakened within me that sympathy with sounds which exists in the souls of men.—It had opened "all the cells where memory slept."—Many a scene of past life recurred "with all its pleasures and its pains."—My native country at this distance presented itself, as in a bird-eye landscape.—Its magnificent Lakes and Rivers—its hills and vallies—its fertile soil and salubrious climate were there jointly entwined after an absence of almost three years Contracted to a narrow compass, as it must needs be by the distance, me thought I could more clearly distinguish how far nature had gone in conferring her favors on that land where she had left man to improve it by his own industry. She has supplied it, thought I, with navigable streams and inland seas sufficient for all purposes of commerce, until such time when much of the forest shall have disappeared and the Towns, Hamlets, and Villages shall begin to rise on every side of a dense population to cover the land—as if regardful of the feeble resources of a young and rising country—as if foreseeing that the two-fold labour of extending land and water communication would prove too great an exertion, she has bountifully provided the former, leaving the latter to the industry of the future inhabitants of the soil—

Here I was interrupted by a friend—I remarked to him that I thought the people of Canada were inferior in the order of things —that they were converting the resources of the Province to excavating Canals instead of constructing Roads.—For in what country have they begun with making Canals which can be of actual use to a small portion only of the population, before they have provided roads which are absolutely necessary to nine tenths in the common intercourse of life? It is not my intention to raise my voice against any measures upon which the Provincial Parliament has thought fit to attend with respect to the public works, right or wrong—but merely to advocate what has been my hobby when conversation has turned upon public improvements. This hobby is roads. When we consider the construction of Canals, Harbours, &c. as rather called for, where trade and intercourse have so increased as to begin to be inconvenienced through want of them—and if constructed before, that they are premature—when we consider that roads in a new country are the means first leading to such a pitch of trade and intercourse—that is to say, they are the means of introducing into the country a population, for whom and by whom such trade and intercourse is to be carried on—it will be readily admitted that roads for many years to come, will require the first attention of the Legislature of Canada. Nothing, I am convinced, contributes more than good roads to the internal advancement of a country. They bring the appearance of life and activity.—People are then not afraid to venture abroad for business or for pleasure,—They go more abroad to see and to be seen, and a greater degree of enlightenment is the consequence. Thus in England at the present day, since peace has been, as it were, annihilated by that Colossus of roads, Mr. Macadam; the people and country present an appearance different from what they did less than one hundred years ago, when a Coach could fly from London to Edinburgh in ten or eleven days;—To be much more than five and forty hours on the same road, in 1828, would be considered tardy travelling. Good roads in Canada I will also enable the Mail to be carried with more speed, and with less expence. They will, by saving and increasing, ensure ample revenue for other public works as soon as they shall be absolutely wanted.

It must be admitted that the roads in Canada are not in so excellent a state as they ought to be, if we estimate the quantity of Statute Labour appointed to be expended upon them. Nothing could exceed the lazy and careless way with which this labour was formerly, and probably is now, performed in many parts of the Province. This is in part, the consequence of appointing improper Path-masters, destitute of judgment, and whose ideas of good roads extended not beyond laying down a number of logs and half covering them with earth —Whilst travelling through the country at the season of performing statute labour, one frequently have one's ears here stopped with a loud laugh that spoke the vacant mind." On proceeding a few paces the cause disclosed itself. On the grass, beneath a beautiful Beech or Chesnut, I have discovered a company of "drouthy neighbors"—

"Sit housin at the nappy
An' gettin fou an' unco happy"—

And like those same "drouthy neighbours" thinking no more of "mosses, water, slaps and stiles" which they were appointed to mend. Instead of a loud laugh my ears have sometimes been first saluted with a toast to the King:—Now his gracious Majesty is no doubt very much obliged to those worthy personages for their good wishes in behalf of his health; but he is not the more pleased that it is to the detriment of his high-ways, and to the endangering the necks and limbs of such of his loving subjects as travel thereon. Upon inquiring by what means the stingo was procured, I found that some few had commuted and paid in cash the sum appointed by law—whereupon a set of resolutions were unanimously carried by those who had assembled to labour with their own hands,—the Path-master in the Chair.—1st. That with fines paid in, a certain quantity of whiskey, gin, &c. be procured.—2nd. That a Committee be appointed to provide a cool and pleasant spot, where those present may recline in the heat of the day and enjoy their liquors.—3d. That no one shall drink more than another.—Where statute labor is performed with such zeal and loyalty, it is no wonder that instead of turnpikes high and dry, we are still obliged to trundle over hard and uneven cause-ways.

I was glad to hear the proposition of the Attorney General for the improvement of the principal high-way from one extremity of the Province to the other. He proposes to raise £5000, by commuting one day, at the rate of 2s. 6d. with every person liable to statute labour, to pay the interest and liquidate a loan of £25,000. The sum is not very considerable when we remember that it is to be applied to 260 miles of Road.—If by commuting one day, the Statute labour will be very little diminished which, if well applied, would make the expenditure of the £25,000 go much further than it otherwise would. But I hope the Att'y. Gen'l. has, or intends to propose, some system of road making before the loan is raised—otherwise the expenditure of it will not be productive of such mighty and lasting advantages.—I do not propose the making of English Roads, for that would be impossible.—£25,000 at that case would scarcely go 25 miles.—I simply mean that such portions of the most necessaries of the country, should be laid down, to which every contractor should be compelled to conform, and not be allowed to follow his own inclination. It is not my intention to propose any system, nor have I ability to do so—but where it shall be necessary to alter the present route of the road, in order to avoid hills, &c., I should recommend first, that the ground be judiciously chosen, that present labour may not be lost by future alterations.—Secondly, That persons be employed who have some idea of what a good road ought to be.—Thirdly, That the worst places receive the first attention: thirty miles on the West, and fifty on the East side of York for instance. The Capitol of the Province requires a detachment in being less frequented on account of the bad roads on either side of it, than it would otherwise be.—Those bad roads, besides excluding people from the capital

"Grande ferum una cum damno dedecus."

Fourthly, If possible, that miles stones be erected—cast iron ones would be preferable, which might easily be supplied from the Marmora Foundry.—I might add more but time and space forbid.—I only hope the people of Canada will begin to be warmed with an ambition of seeing the conveyance by land through the Province facilitated: that every individual will consider that whatever assistance he shall contribute to that purpose, is not less to his own than to the public advantage.

Yours,

OXONIENSIS.

FOR THE LOYALIST.

REVIEW of Mr. E. REYERSON'S Letters to the Honorable & Venerable Archdeacon Strachan, &c.

No. 6.

The more moderate tone of Mr. Ryerson, observable in his last two letters, should certainly not forget in his adversaries, a correspondent courtesy; yet it is right to state here that the severity of animadversion which may have generally marked these strictures was begotten, not more by the very improper language in which those letters were couched, than by a persuasion—which the Letters themselves publish and furnished—that their author was neither in experience, learning nor judgment, qualified for the task he had assumed. The fifth letter, although superior in manner was equally objectionable in matter as those which preceded it: for I believe there is no man who has made any lawful pretension to scholastic attainment or literary taste, that would not condemn the false reasoning and ridiculous arguments of that production—production, indeed, which contains little more than a string of quotations extremely common place in themselves, and such as might be selected from almost every volume of sermons ever published by an English Divine; and what is worse, all made to bear upon a point to which, neither in the design of their authors nor in the common order of reasoning, have they any reference.

The provocation to this charge is not less in the commencement of Letter 6th whereas, indeed is observable in a previous publication—the celebrated Lord Chatham is identified with the more celebrated Mr. Pitt who framed our Constitutional Act. The former died in 1778; whereas the 31th Geo. III. was introduced by the latter in 1791! Here is manifested an ignorance of history—nay, of the history of our own country—so palpable and unpardonable, that it very naturally induces a disposition to give him credit for a great deal more

The principle, repeated by Mr. Ryerson—"that no particular form of religion should be established in any country, unless it includes, at least, a majority of the population"—even if it were a sound one, was not applicable to this Colony when Mr. Fox's celebrated Act was framed. That it contains within itself an absurdity which would, indeed, involve its self-destruction, as I conceive, very plain "It would follow from the admission of that principle," says the Revd. v of the Pastoral Letter, "that the Established Religion is to be changed according to all the fluctuations which may happen in the respective proportionate of different systems of faith. Different religious parties may exist in something like equal numbers under the same government, and from a variety of causes affecting either population or opinion, the excess of one above another may, at one time, be upon this side, at another upon that;—the privilege, therefore, of Establishment must be shifted backwards and forwards accordingly." Indeed, there is cause to fear that, were that principle pushed, we should sometimes find the Nothingarians—as they have been ludicrously termed—to be the Established sect: in other words, that the Royal Edict must proclaim that, a majority of subjects being without any religion, no further respect is to be had to those statutes which are grounded upon certain points which the most illustrious Statesmen and Divines have uniformly concurred! For Mr. Pitt, (House of Commons, 12th May, 1791,) declared that "the meaning of the Act was to enable the Governor to endow and present the Protestant Clergy of the Established Church to such Parsonage or Rectory as might be constituted or erected within every Township or Parish which was or might be formed, and to give to such Protestant Clergyman of the Established Church a part or the whole as the Governor thought proper of the lands appropriated by the Act, &c." Mr Pitt therefore—by whatsoever principle he may have been guided—certainly meant the Church of England to be thus endowed and established:—but if he did not state fundamental truths from which Parsonage or Rectory as can excuse him, because that Act was rather prospective in its provisions than designed to be accommodated to the existing state of things. The Colony was then in its infancy, and its population extremely thin; circumstances which rendered it imperative on England's greatest statesmen, in his firm adherence to the established usage which Mr. Ryerson quotes and with an implicit respect for the existing state of things to have made the religion of the Indians—the most numerous body—the Established Religion of the Province! Moreover Upper Canada was a British Colony and to be filled up by Emigrants of British descent; so that it was probable that, as to the Established Church, it would bear the same ratio here to the Established Church as exists in the maternal Country. Therefore, if the Members of the Established Church, in the Mother Country, comprise a majority of the population, the inference was fair in the time of Mr. Pitt, and it is fair even now, from the consideration that the Province is still in its childhood—that the future population of Canada would contain the same majority of Members of the Established Church.

We are not disposed to question Mr. Ryerson's view of what constitutes an Establishment, as far as regards the grammatical sense of the word; but that toleration means Establishment, in the legal sense of the latter term, is a position almost too absurd to be noticed. It shall furnish him with the opinion of one of England's ablest Lawyers—an opinion which is not of and rain, accompanied with large quantities of hail, passed over the township of Nelson, such as has never been witnessed by any of the inhabitants of the place. The crops that were yet on the ground, such as oats, peas, corn, &c. were almost totally destroyed; also the gardens, fruit trees, &c. The fences were blown in every direction. Mr. L. Peck had two fine horses killed, and the windows of his house, also those of Mr. W. R. Nelles and some others, were entirely demolished. A number of cattle have been killed and many more or less injured. I have not heard of any lives being lost. Had this storm come a few days sooner, before the wheat, rye, and corn, were secured, (which is principally the case here) the damage would have been incalculable: as it is, some individuals have suffered severely.—Gore Gazette.

Melancholy Occurrence.—Mr. Uzziah Dyer, of this Town, was found drowned on Thursday, the 24th inst. having as it was supposed, fallen into the water in attempting to remove from off a piece of timber on which he was last seen sitting, which was partly in the river.

Yesterday, Mr. Stratton, of Augusta, while attending the Poll at the Election at Prescott, was attacked by some complaint, of which he expired in a few moments.—Brockville Recorder.

Lower Canada.

The interior of the NEW CATHOLIC PARISH CHURCH is (to use a recently coined AMERICAN phrase) progressing. The roof has been nearly painted in fresco style by Mr. Angelo, an Italian, deservedly famed for his perfection in his art, and who will not lose by the execution of the present undertaking.—Some part of the scaffolding has been already removed, and from the progress made in the galleries, we presume that it will be consecrated to the public worship of GOD, next winter.—Montreal Gazette by Authority.

We have been favoured with a Liverpool Price Current of the 21st June, from which we make the following extracts:—

"There has been rather more inquiry for Pot Ashes during the present week, and about 200 bbls. have been sold. New Montreals at 30s.—1826, at 28s.—also 50 to 60 bbls. Pearls, chiefly old, 27s to 28s.

Very little Fish Oil now remains in the hands of the importers. For small parcels Newfoundland Cod £19 10 per ton is obtained.

A parcel of good Quebec Oak sold at 2s 3d per foot,—Few good Staves remain here.

At our Corn Market on Tuesday there was little doing and generally at low rates.

No crushing Linseed now remains in the hands of the importers.

FLAXSEED.—Fr. Imp. Qr. 35s. a 36s.—WHEAT, Canada, duty paid, pr. 70 lbs. 8s to 8s 6d.—INDIAN CORN, pr. 480 lbs. Red 29s a 30s.—White do. do.—FLOUR, Canada, nominal.—STAVES, Quebec, per. st. M. 65 to 70 Puncheon 22 to 24.—OAK, Quebec, 1s 10d to 2s 3d."—Quebec Mercury.

The Honorable M. H. PERCEVAL, Captain PHILPOTTS, R. E. Dr. LYONS, and family, arrived from LONDON Wednesday last in the Branches, and the Norval.—Ib.

Port of Quebec.

ARRIVED,

July 20...Brig Dispatch, London, ballast.
....Brig Lavinia, St. John, N.wfd.
..22d..Ship Brunswick, London, ballast.
....Bark William, Plymouth, do.
....Brig Revolution, Dumfrees, do.
..23..Ship Lord Sidmouth, Portsmouth, ballast.
....Brig Norval, London, bricks.
..24..Ship Memnon, Liverpool, coals.
....Ship House, do. 17 settlers
....Brig Lady Francis, Cowes, 58 settlers.
....Ship Branches, London. 4 settlers.
..25..Brig Aurora, Liverpool. 11 settlers.
....Brig Ocean, Belfast. 316 settlers.
....Brig Lady Stewart, London. do.
..27..Brig Jessie, Teneriffe, wines.
....Bark Baltic Merchant, Dublin. 170 settlers.

SHIPPING INTELLIGENCE.

LIVERPOOL, May 30.—A sealed bottle was picked up at Lymington on the coast of Dorset, with the following memorandum enclosed:—"The Ship Lady Jane Grey, from New-York for Portsmouth on the 14th April, lat. 50, lon. 4, struck on a rock, all hands expecting to go down."

Ship Ross, with 400 settlers, left Belfast for Quebec on the 21 June.

The King Fisher was seen yesterday standing over to the North shore, near Murray Bay—we learn that His Excellency the Governor-in-Chief with the Countess of Dalhousie may be expected to return at the end of this week.

Married,

On the 8th May, at Saint Mary's, Mary-le-Bone, by the Right Revd. the Lord Bishop of Winchester, the Revd. Crosby Morgell, one of his Lordship's Chaplains, and Curate of Binthey, Hants, (late Domestic Chaplain to the Bishop of Quebec) to SARAH only daughter of the late Revd. W. H. Warren, M. A. Rector of Greenstead, Essex, and Vicar of Great Radworth, Cheshire.

At Gaspe, 1st ult. the Rev Wm. Arnold, of Bay Chaleur, to Maria Bridjet, youngest daughter of the late Hugh O'Hara, Esq. Collector.

At the residence of James Hamilton Esq. St. Thomas, London District, by the Revd. Alexander Mackintosh, Mr. Duncan Warren of Waterloo, to Miss Susan Douglass, of the same place.

Died,

At York, on Thursday 7th instant, after a lingering illness,—Mrs. Anne MacNabb, wife of Mr. Allan MacNabb—aged 58 years

At Bath, in England, on the 3d of May last, John Mervin Nooth, M. D. and F. R. S. for several years Physician to the Forces and Superintendant of Hospitals in Canada.

At the Deep Cut, Thorold, U. C. on Saturday morning last, the 26th ult. Mr. John Hartwell, of Pittsford, N. Y. in the 55th year of his age, after an illness of two and a half days.

NOTICE.—The undermentioned new POST OFFICES have been established in Upper Canada, by the Deputy Post Master General, to go into operation from the 6th of next Month, viz:

MAITLAND.—(Between Prescott, & Brockville,)—SAMUEL THOMAS, P. M.

GUELPH.—(35 Miles N. W. from Dundas,)—DAVID GILKISON, P. M., VIA. GALT.

General Post Office, }
Quebec, 28th June, 1828. } y 6

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.—Notice is hereby given, that Sealed Tenders will be received at this Office until noon of Monday the 1st day of September next, from such person or persons as may be willing to Contract for the Supply of—

One hundred and twenty-five Barrels of Inspected Fine Flour, for the use of His Majesty's Troops &c., at this Post.

Fifty Barrels to be delivered into the Commissariat Magazines on or before the 20th September next, and the remainder on or before the 24th October following.

The Flour must be warranted to keep sweet and sound for the period of twelve months from the date of delivery, which is to be marked on the head of each Barrel.

The Tenders must express the Rate in Sterling, (the Dollar at 4s. 4d.) Per Barrel.

Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed "Tender for Flour."

Any further information may be had on application at this office.

ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.

Commissariat Office, }
York, 2d August, 1828. } 9

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.—Notice is hereby given, that Tenders will be received at this Office until noon of Monday the 1st day of September next, from such person or persons as may be willing to Contract for the supply of Nine Hundred Cords of Fire-Wood of the best quality, to consist of Black and Yellow hard Maple, Hickory, and Beech, and to be of the following dimensions:—the Stick to be full four feet between the cuts, and the Cord to be eight feet in length by four feet four inches in height, for the use of His Majesty's Troops, &c. at this Post.

The whole to be delivered on or before the 24th day of March, 1829.

The Tenders must express the Rate in Sterling, (the Dollar at 4s. 4d.) per Cord.

Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real Signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed "Tender for Fire Wood."

Any further information may be had on application at this Office.

ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.

Commissariat Office, }
York, Aug. 2, 1828. } c 9

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.—Notice is hereby given, that Tenders will be received at this Office until noon of Monday the 1st day of September next, from such person or persons as may be willing to contract for the supply of Ninety-four Gallons of Seal Oil of the best quality—Imperial measure; and Eighteen pounds of Cotton Wick for the use of His Majesty's Troops, &c. at this Post.—Thirty Gallons of the Oil, and the whole of the cotton wick to be delivered on or before the 24th day of September next, and the remainder of the Oil on or before the 24th day of November following.

The Tenders must express the rate in Sterling (the Dollar at 4s. 4d.) per Gallon, Imperial Measure (being ¼ more than the common Wine Measure,) for the Oil, and per lb. for the Cotton Wick.

Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real Signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed "Tender for Oil and Cotton Wick."

Any further information may be had on application at this Office.

ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.

Commissariat Office, }
York, Aug. 2, 1827. } c 9

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.—Tenders will be received at this Office until noon of Monday the 11th day of August next, for the performance of Sundry repairs and whitewashing, to the following Public Buildings at this Post:—

Men's Brick Barracks,
Men's Splinter Roof Barracks,
Canteen,
Cooking Houses Nos. 1 and 2,
Block House No. 1,
Block House No. 2,
Officers Blue Barracks,
Officers Brick Barracks and Mess Establishment,
Captain's Quarters,
Hospital,
Main Guard, Solitary Cells, and Orderly Room.
Stable of the Commandant's Quarters,
Commissariat Officers Quarters,
And Guard House at Commissariat Store,

The Tenders must express the Rate in Sterling, (the Dollar and 4s 4d) as also be signed by two respectable persons willing to become security for a correct performance of the Contract.

For any further information, application is to be made to Mr. Bell, Master Carpenter Royal Engineer Department.

ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.

COMMISSARIAT OFFICE, }
York, 30th July, 1828. } a. 8

CHAIN CABLES, &c.—ACRAMAN'S Patent Chain Cables, and Anchors, (warranted proved by Machine) a constant supply kept on hand (in stock) of all sizes, by JOHN WATKINS, Kingston, and in Montreal and Quebec by WILLIAM BUDDEN.

July, 30, 1827. 11-tf.

POST SCRIPT

FROM EUROPE.

By the Mary and Susan, from Greenock, we have Greenock papers to the 21st, containing London dates of the 18th. And by the Edward Quesnel, we have Paris to the 15th June. The lateness of the hour at which we received the papers prevent us giving many extracts.

The French papers state that Don Miguel was getting the upper hand in Portugal The soldiers who had deserted his standard, were returning to it. Some regiments had left the Constitutional ranks, and others were expected to follow.

The Glasgow Courier of the 21st of June, says, "the accounts from France, inform us in language that cannot be misunderstood, and prepare us to expect some hostile movements on the part of that country, against some of her neighbours. The speech of the Duke Decares is too explicit to require any comment."

London Funds, June 18, at night.—Consols for account, 88¼ 3¼ per cents, 90.

Mr. Osway Cane had given notice in the House of Commons, that on the 30th June, he should move that all black children born in the West Indies after 1830, should be born free.

It was reported that a number of Cossacks had been brought prisoners into Brailow, and by the Pacha's orders hanged on the walls of the fortress, in sight of the Russian army.

It was expected the passage of the Danube would be effected by the end of May.

The London papers state that there was not a word of truth in the reported defection of the Constitutional troops at Oporto.

We learn from the frontiers of Moldavia, May 26, that a division of Cossacks had already made excursions on the right banks of the Danube, and has convinced itself that the defensive preparations of the Turks are very feeble.

Brailow was invested by a corps of 18,000 Russians, and the trenches were opened on the 21st of May very near the fortress for the purpose of making a breach. The Turkish Garrison had set fire to the Suburbs. Two Russian battalions were ordered to drive the Turks out of them; they penetrated into the streets which were choaked up with rubish, and clinging the Turks at the point of the bayonet, while the fortress fired at them with mortars. About 100 Turks were killed and taken prisoners.

LONDON, June 19—Evening.

The only arrival to-day which throws any light upon Turkish affairs, is a letter from Bucharest of 26th ult. which states that the Emperor was expected to arrive there on the 31st, and it was supposed would immediately after cross the Danube.

Letters from Malta to the 25th ult. state a considerable fall in provisions, as the supplies sent through that channel, to the Morea, had been stopped by the blockading force.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

New York, 4 August.

About 12 o'clock last night a fire broke out in a Carpenters shop in the rear of No. 43, Wooster street, between Broome and Grand streets. The flames spread with great rapidity. On Wooster street, the two story brick houses 39 and 41 were materially injured, 43, 45, 47, 49, 51 and 52, entirely destroyed.

On Broome street, 503, a frame building; 469, 491, three story brick buildings, entirely destroyed; 495, 499, 497, 499, materially injured. Mr. M'Kin's grocery, corner Broome and Wooster, nearly destroyed.

On Laurens street—4 two story brick buildings, and one frame destroyed.

The destruction of so large a number of buildings was owing to the scarcity of water.—N. Y. Spectator.

THE LOYALIST.

VOL. I. NO. 10.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY AUGUST 16, 1828.

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINION.

(Concluded.)

The Statute 3d. H. 7, ch. 1. is so strictly framed as really to bear no point of comparison with our Statute.—Its language admits but of one construction—and no more doubt can exist upon it, than upon the power of trying a cause or a prisoner without the presence of any of the Commissioners, who are expressly assigned to oe of the Quorum upon such trial. The same may be said of the Statutes 31st Eliz. and 16, Char. 2. and 20, Char. 2.—which have been cited. It is but necessary to read and compare them with the Statute under discussion, and the difference which appears to me decisive, will presnt itself at once.—The same may be said of the instance referred to of Bankrupt Commissions, which it is declared by Statute shall not be executed in the Country, unless he who is called the quorum Commissioner be a Barrister.—It would not endanger the existence of the Court of King's Bench, to admit here, that if the Statute of 1794 had contained a clause declaring that no Judgment should be given unless the Chief Justice were present, or unless one of the Judges were an English Barrister, such provision would be strictly binding.

The Statute of Lower Canada, 34, Geo. 3. ch. 6. which has also been referred to in support of the same train of argument, stands on the very same footing—I have read it—its language admits of but one construction.—A similar provision in our early Statutes respecting the holding the Sittings in this District, though in terms much less particular was conceived to require the same construction, or at least to occasion doubt, and it was accordingly altered by the late Act.

Upon our Statute of 1794, I have already remarked except in relation to that part of it, which provides that the Chief Justice shall join in the appointment of Commissioners to take bail, &c. Many appointments in the King's Bench in England rest exclusively with the Chief Justice, and whether the Legislature meant to respect any right of patronage or to provide for discreet appointments does not appear, but I do not see what can be inferred as to the general power or constitution of the Court from this provision for a purely ministerial act—an act which may be clearly performed out of Court, and at any time as well in sickness as in health—which may, in the absence of the Chief Justice, be deferred for a time without fatal injury to parties—and which certainly is not of that consequence as compared with acts, which a single Judge out of Court constantly and necessarily performs, that any inference can be drawn from it of the desire of the Legislature to ensure the concurrence of the Chief Justice in the general business of the Court.

The Imperial Statute, 3d. Geo. 4, ch. 69, referred to, is precisely the same in principle with the 31st Edw. 3d. ch. 12, on which I have already remarked—and very distinguishable in its terms from the 45th sec. of our Statute 2nd Geo. 4. to which it is compared. The former says, that certain persons, together with certain other persons shall do a particular Act.—The latter says "the Court" shall do a similar Act.—What constitutes, or may constitute that Court, involves the whole question.

I imagine there can be no ground for assuming that the present or former Judges of the Court have failed to consider the terms of the Statute under which they have acted, or to acquaint themselves with the distinction between prescriptive Courts and Courts constituted by Statute.

On the latter point I would remark that certain maxims, which pervade our books, do not seem to me to have been correctly applied. It is true that new and inferior Courts created by Statute, are strictly limited by the powers given to them by the Statute, both as to the extent and manner of proceeding. Such jurisdictions are generally in derogation of the Common Law, and it is for the protection of the subject that the laws creating them, are strictly construed. But the Court whose powers are in question, has an unlimited jurisdiction. It is modelled after a similar Common-Law Court in England, and is to proceed in the same manner. Its authority and the constant discharge of its duty is of absolute necessity to the protection of person and property. It is created expressly "for the general and regular administration of Justice throughout the Province," and it is my opinion that in support of such a jurisdiction, those rules for the construction of Statutes are rather to be applied, which declare that a Statute shall be so construed "ut res magis valeat quam pereat;" that in the construction of Statutes "the ends contemplated are to be considered, and that for necessity, that there be not a failure of Justice, a Statute shall be expounded even contrary to the words."

Having expressed my own opinion on the question, perhaps at unnecessary length, I should have forborne any examination of the arguments publicly adduced by Mr. Justice Willis, if after the paper, containing them, had been referred to me, I could have omitted all notice of it, without an appearance of intentional disrespect. I disclaim all desire to examine critically or in the spirit of controversy—And indeed I must say, in conclusion, that for any other reason than I have just mentioned, it was not in my opinion, necessary to have adverted to those arguments at all. If, indeed, neither in the Act of 1794 nor in other Acts the Legislature had so explained their intention as to give a reasonable and consistent meaning to the words "preside in the Court," and if the question were now raised as a new question upon the first vacancy occurring, then such arguments would naturally present themselves, and though I do not think they would lead me to the same conclusion, they would require to be met—but I repeat that the question has, in my opinion, long been set at rest both by the Legislature and by the Judges who are to expound the Acts.

The second question referred to me is, whether the appointments of such Civil Officers of this Colony as have been absent from the Province without leave of the Governor and Council, are at this moment, absolutely void, and of none effect, as has been pronounced from the Bench.

Upon this matter I must remark, that if the operation of the Statutes had been rightly stated, which, I think it has not, still the forfeiture is one to be pursued by the Crown, and to be judicially declared in each individual case upon a proper legal proceeding, in which the facts shall have been found as the Law requires, and the judgment of the Court properly given, after an opportunity being afforded to the parties interested, of discussing the question in the usual manner.

To have found the facts, and pronounced judgment upon them, before any exception had been raised on the one hand, or any person called to answer on the other I cannot but think was much out of the course of the administration of justice—and was not I think well sustained by the precedent reported from a Newspaper, of similar remarks made in a debate in the Assembly of Prince Edward Island.

But however much individuals may be inatled to complain that a supposed forfeiture of their Offices is communicated to the public from the Bench,—not in any judicial proceeding, but as mere matter of important information—and the facts in support of the forfeiture vouched for by the Judge as having been ascertained by his personal inquiry, it is certain that the question cannot be affected by the manner of bringing it into discussion.

It is therefore necessary to consider it closely;—I have done so, and am of opinion that, supposing Mr. Justice Willis' information to be correct, it is obvious that the consequences deduced from it, by no means follows.

The 22d Geo. 3, ch. 75 was evidently passed to remedy the single grievance which it recites—namely, the granting Patents in England for Offices in the Colonies to persons resident and intending to reside in Great Britain. That was an inconvenience both to the local Governments, and to the people of the Colonies, and the intention of Parliament was to place a remedy in the power of the Governor and Council. The Statute to that end enabled the Governor and Council to do what certainly before the Statute was beyond their competence, that is, to remove Officers appointed in England by patent, who were not resident within the Jurisdiction of the local Government, and who probably held their Offices for life.

It is scarcely necessary to inquire whether the words used in the enacting clauses are not more extensive in their signification than was necessary for preventing the mischief recited, and whether they are or are not to be controlled by the preamble and construed with reference to it—the fact is that Offices, in this Colony and in the Colonies generally, are granted during pleasure as the 4th Sec. of that Statute contemplates they may be—such Officers are removeable at pleasure, and with respect to them, the aid of this Statute is not wanted, nor were its provisions meant to extend to them—but admitting that they do, then it does but follow, that "any Officer who may have been wilfully "absent without reasonable cause to be allowed by the Governor and Council, is subject to "be removed by the Governor and Council."

The absence must be a wilful absence—the Governor and Council have a discretion in judging of the cause that may be adduced by the party, when he is brought by them to answer,—and they have, besides, a discretion in proceeding against the Officer, or not, according to their view of the case—there is, moreover an appeal provided to the King in Council.

It is the 54th Geo. 3d. ch. 61. which is chiefly relied on by Mr. Justice Willis for convincing the public that the Chief Justice of the same Court with himself, and many other Officers of the Civil Government in this Colony have forfeited their Offices.

Whether that Statute was intended only to apply to appointments made in England, by Patent, or otherwise, or whether it extends to all appointments to Offices in the Colonies, however made, it is not very material to inquire.

The intention of the Act, in other respects, and its legal construction appear to me to admit of no question, and the manner in which it has been constantly understood and acted upon by His Majesty's Secretaries of State for the Colonies is perfectly well known.

It can scarcely be made a question on this occasion, what is understood, in law, by the word, "residence," for I conceive it to be well established, that a householder in any town or place is held to be a resident of that town or place if he retains his domicile there, or leaves his family or goods for a time "animo revertendi,"—this has been adjudged even in criminal cases, requiring, from their nature, a very strict construction. When, therefore, Parliament, by the first clause of this Act requires that Commissions to Officers in the Colonies shall, in terms, require their residence in the Colony, the word residence must be looked upon as used with a view to its legal and indeed I may say its ordinary construction, for such I conceive to be the interpretation above given —but, besides that it would, in my opinion, be repugnant to this construction to hold that a Civil Officer absent with leave, can be said to have forfeited his Office by non-residence, it is against the express provision of the Statute to maintain that the actual being in the Colony at all times, and discharging the duty always in person, are indispensable conditions to the tenure of the Office, and that neither illness nor temporary absence with leave can be accepted as an excuse. The very next clause of the Statute (the second) relates to "absence on leave," and there can remain, therefore only the single question, what leave shall be sufficient?—whether the leave of the Governor will do, or whether it must be the leave of the Governor and Council. The opinion that has been advanced is that nothing but the leave of the Governor and Council will suffice, and that the Offices of those persons who have been absent without that leave, are, at this moment absolutely null, and void. That the latter consequence would not follow, except as the result of a proper and well known legal proceeding, I have already stated. The facts must be found by a Jury, and the legal consequence of those facts is to be judicially pronounced by a Court, not extra —judicially declared for the information of the public and in prejudice of the Officer whose rights are to be affected.

But it seems to me very clear that there is no ground of forfeiture—if there is, it is certain that not only the Government of this Country but His Majesty's Government in England, have been ignorant of the intention of the Statute ever since its passing for they certainly have constantly given to it a construction very different from that contended for, and which I think much more consistent with the sense and language of the Statutes.

The 3rd clause of the 22nd Geo. 3, ch. 75, is the only clause of that Statute, which has any reference to leave of absence to be obtained by the Officer—and that is, in my opinion, intended to give to the Colonial Governments a right that either did not exist or was not exercised before, namely, the right of allowing Officers appointed in Great Britain, by Patent, and who were not resident within the limits of the Colonial Government, to remain absent from the Colony, and that, for an unlimited time.

There is nothing in that Statute to take away the right of the Lieutenant Governor, as representing His Majesty to exercise, within the limits of his Government, the ordinary prerogative of granting to a Colonial Officer, resident in a Colony a temporary leave of absence—neither is there any thing in the 54, Geo. 3d. ch, 61, abolishing that prerogative, which, with respect to resident Officers, must always have existed, and which, it was not the intention of the 22nd Geo. 3d ch. 75, either to confer or restrain.

On the contrary the object of the last mentioned Statute, was to protect the Colonies against an abuse which was practised in England, but, of which, the Colonies felt the effect. It seemed to have occurred that the provision of the first clause of that Statute, if carried literally into effect in all cases might produce instances of injustice and hardship—and a discretionary power of affording indulgence, was therefore vested in the Colonial authorities, because the knowledge which must exist there of the exigencies of the public service would enable them more judiciously to exercise it—but I cannot conceive, and I know that it has not been considered by the Secretary of State in England, and certainly not by Mr. Goulbourn who framed and introduced the Act of 54 Geo. 3d—that it was intended to interfere with the rights which, before existed of granting a temporary leave to resident Officers, whose appointments placed them, at all times, completely under the control of the local Government.

The second clause of the Statute 54 Geo. 3d. ch. 61, is indeed so expressed as to shew that in the mind of the makers of it, it was not always necessary that leave should be granted by the Governor and Council—in the second clause the expression, Governor or Council occurs, and in the third clause it is expressly provided that the Governor shall report to the Secretary of State all such leaves of absence as have been granted "by him."

But it is next to be considered with what degree of reason it can be stated that Offices, in this Colony, have been forfeited under the provisions of this Act. It is truly said, in the statement made from the Bench that penal Statutes are to be construed strictly—but the maxim is not to be applied in the manner in which it seemed to be intended—a penal Statute is to be construed strictly to the end that no person may be punished for the new offence created by it, unless he comes plainly within the letter—but it is not to be construed strictly, or, as it were, severely, against the person charged so as to punish him by construction and implication, when he does not come within the express provision. In applying this rule I consider that under the second clause of 54 Geo. 3d. ch. 61, (which is the only clause in either Statute declaring that an office shall be void) there can be no forfeiture unless first, the Officer has gone from England with the leave of the Governor and Council, and secondly, unless the Secretary of State in England has refused to confirm that leave—and thirdly, unless the Officer, notwithstanding such refusal, has neglected to return to his Office within the time limited.

If Mr. Justice Willis has obtained accurate information at the Council Office, it seems that no Officer has ever gone from the Province with such a leave, but with the leave of the Governor only, then, clearly, this clause can not apply to such Officers—and, if it did, the next step to be proved is that the Secretary of State has not confirmed the leave—and I am at a loss to understand how this proviso can be brought to bear upon those whose leaves, whether granted regularly or irregularly, the Secretary of State has not only confirmed, but perhaps, by positive order extended, and that too, (I speak of my own case) for a period which the Officer felt to be exceedingly inconvenient.

Again, how can it apply to Officers, whose leave of absence, was merely for a short period, to enable them to go to the adjoining Colony, or to the United States of America—and which leave must have expired, and the Officer must have returned to his duty, long before the Secretary of State could have received any report of his absence?—I venture to affirm that taking the Statute 54 Geo. 3d, according to its language, and according to the sense in which it has been uniformly acted upon here, by successive Governors, and by the Secretary of State in England, no Office, in this Colony, could be found to be forfeited, even if the Crown were to institute the proper legal proceeding.

The statute 22nd Geo. 3d, was evidently passed altogether diverso intuitu, and, at any rate, it creates no absolute forfeiture, but gives a power to remove, which has not been exercised, and for the exercise of which I imagine the Government is well aware, there exists no pretence, unless an Officer can be said to have been "wilfully" absent from his Office, who had the Official leave of the King's Representative confirmed by the Secretary of State.

I have the honor to be,
Sir,
&c. &c. &c.
JOHN B. ROBINSON,
Attorney General.

To
George Hillier, Esq.,
Secretary to His Excellency
the Lieutenant Governor.

JUST RECEIVED by the Subscriber, and will be sold unusually low for cash, the following consignment, viz:—
200 pieces assorted Canvasses.
200 do. bleached and unbleached,
Cotton shirtings and sheetings.
600 lb. Double Gloucester Cheese.
500 Gallons old Whiskey.
20 Boxes Montreal Soap.
100 Patent Pails.
100 Bbls. Salt.
Each article warranted first quality.
Wm. BERGIN:
York, 15th August, } a 10
1828. }

YORK BOARDING SCHOOL, under the Patronage of THE RIGHT HONARABLE LADY SARAH MAITLAND.—Miss Purcell and Miss Rose, beg leave to inform their Friends and the Public, that their School will re-commence on Monday the first of September.
N. B. A Professor of Dancing is engaged to attend.
York, 14th August, 1828. c. 10

THE ROYAL GRAMMAR SCHOOL, established at York, Upper Canada, opens again on Monday the 8th of September, 1828.—For Terms, &c. apply to the REV. DR. PHILLIPS, Head Master.
York, 14th August, 1828 i. 10

NOTICE is hereby given, that I will expose to Sale by Public Auction, at Point Napean, in the District of Bathurst, on Saturday the 30th of August next, at 11 o'clock, A. M., at Firth's Inn, Licences to Cut Timber, on the waste or ungranted Lands of the Crown, in Upper Canada, on the Tract of Land bordering on the Grand or Ottawa River, above the Chaudiere Falls.
P. ROBINSON.
York, 20th July, 1828. a 10

WILLIAM FARQUHAR Watch and Clock maker, Silver smith and Jeweller of Montreal.—Begs leave to inform the Ladies and Gentlemen of York, that he has arrived with a very superior assortment which he will re-open (for 3 days only) at Howards Hotel, in the early part of next week, of which due notice will be given in handbills.
York, 15th August, 1828. s 10

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE COUNTY OF GRENVILLE.

GENTLEMEN—

A CONSIDERABLE time has elapsed since I had the honor of addressing you, offering my services to represent you in the next Parliament, and I have since had an opportunity of seing many of you.

From the assurance received of a warm and hearty support from very many most respectable Electors, I have little doubt of my success should I still feel disposed to persevere in the contest; but circumstances have occurred, which, with the advice of my friends, have induced me to withdraw from the Poll.

My great desire was to be serviceable to the Province, and to this County in particular, and I was willing to sacrifice my private interests to do a good to my fellow-citizens. But the result of many of the Elections, and the prospect of a similar issue in some others, has deprived me of all hope of effecting any thing for your benefit, should I be elected your Representative.

A feeling inimical to the Government, and what I consider the true interest of the Province, seems to be spreading daily, and I have no doubt that a majority of the next Assembly will be composed of persons hostile to British institutions and British feeling; that they will, like a number of the last Parliament, form themselves into a band determined to propose nothing beneficial to the Province themselves, and oppose measures of that description proposed by others. In fact, to assimilate, as much as possible, our Government and institutions to those of the neighbouring States—forgetful of the glory of that country to which we have the happiness to belong.

When four years shall have passed away, I hope many throughout the Province, who now take the part of the Radical faction, headed by a fugitive from the United States, and encouraged by an infamous and demoralizing Press, will see the error of their course, and feel the necessity of arresting the torrent of faction rolling in many parts of the Province; but which, happily, has tainted but few in the County of Grenville.

Under these circumstances, therefore, I am constrained to withdraw from the approaching contest; and in doing so, I beg leave to return my most hear[illegible]nks to my friends who have espoused my cause, and to assure them that when an opportunity offers which will enable me essentially to serve the County as its Representative, I shall not fail to do so, and that in the mean time my best exertions shall not be wanting, in my private character, to promote their interests to the utmost of my power.

I am, Gentlemen,
Most respectfully,
Your obedient Servant,
s. 10 ALPHEUS JONES.

NOTICE.—All persons indebted to Mr. William Lindsay, who has removed from York, are requested to call and settle accounts with the Subscriber, who is duly authorised to receive monies on his account and give acquittances.—Any persons having claims against Mr. Lindsay, are also desired to present them for adjustment.
CHARLES BAKER.
York, 22d May, 1828. 52tf.

BANK NOTICE.—DISCOUNT DAY, Wednesday of every Week.—Notes offered for Discount, must be put under cover to the Cashier, and left at the Bank the day before.
THOMAS G. RIDOUT, Cashier.

LIST OF LETTERS remaining in the York Post-Office, on the 5th July, 1828:

Isaac Austin,
Wm. Ausbowrne,
George Anderson,
Betsy Agnes,
Henry Armstrong,
Charles Boulds,
Peter Bush,
George Bile,
Patrick O'Brien,
Charles Burrows,
James Beard,
Mary Browne,
John Brackin,
Dr. D. A. Balcolm,
2. Charles Bevins,
Hannah Boice,
Abraham Boice,
Abraham Bagshaw,
Benjamin Baker,
Peter Brown,
Daniel Birdsall,
Robert Bowman,
John Barrinder,
Richard Bready,
Samuel Beasely,
Joseph Beasely,
William Bell,
Mr. Blain,
Peter Casy,
Cornelius O'Calaghan,
Calvin Cole,
James Curry,
Mrs. P. Cole,
George A. Crowe,
Patrick O'Calaghan,
Joseph Canning,
William Cobain,
Conrad Clock,
William Cragg,
James Cuthbertry,
John Culham,
Charles Campbell,
Archibald Cameron,
A. T. Coates,
Robert Campbell,
Resolved Cleveland,
Archibald Chambers,
Martin Chapman,
John Cantullon,
Donald Campbell,
Thomas Donaghoo,
Jane Dancy,
Dr. Oliver Davidson,
2. William Dealy,
Timothy Dunn,
William Dickey,
James Dron,
Jacob Darling,
Peter Dickhout,
Ann Dudgeon,
Robert Denison,
Peter Dygest,
Joseph Davis,
William Denis,
William Dickson,
5. Timothy Dayle,
E. F. Doran,
James Denman,
John Darey,
James Dyer,
Thomas J. Eck,
Edward French,
Thomas Ferguson,
John Foreman.
Peter Frank,
Henry Fosmire,
Samuel Flemming,
Johnson Fletcher,
2. John Frellick,
Abraham Goodrich,
2. Garbut Gray,
Thomas Godfrey,
John Good,
William Glover,
Alexander Greenaway,
3. William Gray,
James Goodfellow,
Z. Galloway
Isaac Gordon,
John Goodall,
Theodore Grout,
Robert Gilmer,
Thomas L. Gilbird,
Isaac Head,
John Hulin,
Mary Hughes,
Eli Hand,
8. Jacob Hartsell,
Stephen Harrison,
Hugh Henry,
John Hillock,
Robert Hunt,
James Johnson,
John Johnson,
James Jamieson,
John Ward,
Joseph Walker,
Michael Whitmore,
William Waterhouse,
James Widow,
James Williams,
Mary Young,
Thomas & Wm. Young.
Joseph Ward, York, 5th July, 1828. n. 3

IT is particularly requested that all claims on the Canada Company be sent in during the first week in September next, and afterwards regularly in the first week of December, March, June and September, addressed "Thomas Smith, Esquire, Cashier and Accountant, Canada Company's Office, York," to whom application is to be made for payment in the first week in October, January, April and July.
JOHN GALT,
SUPERINTENDANT.
CANADA COMPANY'S OFFICE,
Guelph, 29th July, 1828. n. 3

THE HOTEL in Guelph is now ready to be let on very advantageous terms.
T. B. HUSBAND,
CLERK.
CANADA COMPANY'S OFFICE,
Guelph, 29th July, 1828. n. 8

ALLIANCE BRITISH AND FOREIGN
Life and Fire Assurance Company,
OF LONDON.
(CAPITAL—Five Millions Sterling.)

THE Subscriber having been appointed AGENT to the above Company, at York, he is ready to Insure against loss or damage by Fire at moderate rates of Premium. The high standing of this Institution in England, and the Company allowing their Agents in Montreal to settle losses in this Country, with the Assured participating in the Profits of the Company, renders it worthy of Public Confidence.
R. W. PRENTICE.
York, November 18th, 1826. 25.

FOR SALE.—Lot No. 29, and part of 30, in the 7th Concession of the Township of Pickering, containing 350 Acres, and having an eligible situation for a Mill. For terms apply to Mr. Andrew Mercer, York.
York, 28th October, 1827. 22 tf.

THE MARMORA IRON WORKS.—The sale of these Works has been postponed until further notice. But the Wares of the Establishment are offered for sale at 23s. per Cwt. for all heavy Castings, Potash-Kettles, &c.—and at 27s. 6d. per Cwt. for Sugar-Kettles, Hollow Ware, Stoves, &c delivered at Kingston, and Wheat, Flour, and Potash will be taken in payment, at the Current price in that Market—or a discount of five per Cent made for Cash.

Among the advantages which purchasers and dealers in the articles, would derive from giving a preference to the Castings of these Works, are the following:—

First—The Wares are fully of a better quality, in regard to manufacture than those got elsewhere.

Secondly.—They are offered for sale, at prices, at least 25 per Cent under the rate at which the same kind of goods can be laid down in Kingston from Montreal, without taking into consideration the risk of transport.

Thirdly.—From the very superior quality of the Metal from which the Wares are Manufactured, and from the experience already had, by many who have used them for a length of time.—The Subscriber is warranted in saying, that they are by no means so liable to crack, as the Carron, or other Ware of similar Establishments, known to the people of this Province.

Lastly.—The receiving payment in the Produce of the Country, should be considered, an advantage (when combined with the other circumstances above enumerated), of sufficient importance to buyers, to secure a preference for the consumption of a Provincial manufacture, of superior quality and comparatively low price.

The undersigned in the name of Peter McGill, Esquire, the present Proprietor, who has expended large sums, in perfecting the Establishment, since it came into his hands having, as he thinks, clearly shown, that it is their interest, appeals to the Patriotism of the Merchants, and others of this Province, to give aid, support, and countenance to so great and praiseworthy an undertaking. The support required, is simply, to give a preference in their purchases to the Manufactures of Marmora, which articles of daily necessity and consumption—both good and cheap, instead of sending to the United States, and Lower Canada, for Articles of a similar description comparatively of inferior quality, and higher prices.
A. MANAHAN.

PARCHMENT DEEDS,
For Sale at the Gazette Office, York,
WITH AND WITHOUT BAR OF DOWER.

NEATLY PRINTED, from a revised form—a constant supply will be kept on hand. Price —Single Deed 2s. 6d. or 25s. per dozen. Memorials on paper, 7½d. each, or 6s. per dozen.

HALF-PAY AFFIDAVITS, of the latest form, for Sale at the Gazette Office.

A WELL RECOMMENDED Medical GENTLEMAN of sound British principles, will meet with every support in the vicinity of Vittoria, Township of Charlottiville, London District—the center of a dense population. n 9

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.—Notice is hereby given, that Sealed Tenders will be received at this Office until noon of Monday the 1st day of September next, from such person or persons as may be willing to Contract for the Supply of—
One hundred and twenty-five Barrels of Inspected Fine Flour, for the use of His Majesty's Troops &c., at this Post.
Fifty Barrels to be delivered into the Commissariat Magazines on or before the 20th September next, and the remainder on or before the 24th October following.
The Flour must be warranted to keep sweet and sound for the period of twelve months from the date of delivery, which is to be marked on the head of each Barrel.
The Tenders must express the Rate in Sterling, (the Dollar at 4s. 4d.) Per Barrel.
Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed "Tender for Flour."
Any further information may be had on application at this office.
ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.
Commissariat Office, }
York, 2d August, 1828. } c 9

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.—Notice is hereby given, that Tenders will be received at this Office until noon of Monday the 1st day of September next, from such person or persons as may be willing to Contract for the supply of Nine Hundred Cords of Fire-Wood of the best quality, to consist of Black and Yellow hard Maple, Hickory, and Beech, and to be of the following dimensions:—the Stick to be full four feet between the cuts, and the Cord to be eight feet in length by four feet four inches in height, for the use of His Majesty's Troops, &c. at this Post.
The whole to be delivered on or before the 24th day of March, 1829.
The Tenders must express the Rate in Sterling, (the Dollar at 4s. 4d.) per Cord.
Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real Signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed "Tender for Fire Wood."
Any further information may be had on application at this Office.
ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.
Commissariat Office, }
York, Aug. 2, 1828. } c 9

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.—Notice is hereby given, that Tenders will be received at this Office until noon of Monday the 1st day of September next, from such person or persons as may be willing to contract for the supply of Ninety-four Gallons of Seal Oil of the best quality—Imperial measure; and Eighteen pounds of Cotton Wick for the use of His Majesty's Troops, &c. at this Post,—Thirty Gallons of the Oil, and the whole of the cotton wick to be delivered on or before the 24th day of September next, and the remainder of the Oil on or before the 24th day of November following.
The Tenders must express the rate in Sterling (the Dollar at 4s. 4d.) per Gallon, Imperial Measure (being ⅛ more than the common Wine Measure,) for the Oil, and per lb. for the Cotton Wick.
Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real Signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed "Tender for Oil and Cotton Wick."
Any further information may be had on application at this Office.
ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.
Commissariat Office, }
York, Aug. 2, 1827. } c 9

NOTICE.—The undermentioned new POST OFFICES have been established in Upper Canada, by the Deputy Post Master General, to go into operation from the 6th of next Month, viz:
MAITLAND.—(Between Prescott, & Brockville,)—SAMUEL THOMAS, P. M.
GUELPH.—(35 Miles N. W. from Dundas,)—DAVID GILKISON, P. M., via. GALT.
General Post Office, }
Quebec, 28th June, 1828. } y 6

YORK RACES.

Monday, 6th October.

MAITLAND STAKES, $100.

ENTRANCE—TEN DOLLARS, EACH, F. F.

To which will be added 100 Dollars; Ten Stone each; Three Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Gentlemen Riders; The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for $200.

SECOND RACE—SAME DAY, $50.

ENTRANCE—FIVE DOLLARS EACH, F. F.

Fifty Dollars added; Weight for Age; 3 years 7st. 12lbs; 4 years 8st 10lbs; 5 years 9st 3lbs; 6 years 9st 10lbs; Aged 10st. Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Jockey Riders. The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for $100.

Wednesday, 8th October.

YORK STAKES, $100.

ENTRANCE—TEN DOLLARS EACH, F. F.

One Hundred Dollars added; Weight for Age; 3 years 7st 12lbs; 4 years 8st 10lbs; 5 years 9st 3lbs; 6 years 9st 10lbs; Aged 10st. Three Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Gentlemen Riders; the Winner of the Maitland Stakes (should he run) to carry 7lb extra. The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for 200 Dollars.

SECOND RACE, SAME DAY; $50.

ENTRANCE—FIVE DOLLARS EACH, F. F.

Fifty Dollars added; 10st each; Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for 100 Dollars. The Winner of the Second Race on Monday (should he run) to carry 7 lbs extra.

Friday, the 10th of October.

LADIES PURSE.

ENTRANCE, $4.

Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Weight to be Handicapped by the Stewards. Gentlemen Riders.

SECOND RACE, SAME DAY.

Beaten Plate for all Beaten Horses.

ENTRANCE, FOUR DOLLARS.

Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; The Weight to be Handicapped by the Stewards.

STEWARDS.

Mr. C. C. SMALL, Lt. SMYTH, 68th Regt.
Lt. DUFF, 68th Regt. Lt. ELMSLEY, R. N.
Mr. SHERIFF JARVIS,

RULES AND REGULATIONS, THE YORK RACES.

1st. The above Races will commence on Monday the Sixth of October next.

2nd. No Horse will be allowed to Start which is not Bona Fide the property of a person having subscribed a Sum not less than Five Dollars, and who resides within Forty Miles of the Town of York. All Horses to have been in the possession of the person entering them Four Weeks previous to the first day's running.

3rd. Entire Horses to carry three pounds extra.

4th. Horses to be entered eight days previous to the first day's running, or to pay double entrance if entered subsequently.

5th. That all persons entering Horses are supposed to have made themselves acquainted with these Rules and Regulations.

6th. That half an hour be allowed between each Heat of the same Race.

7th. Riders must ride to the Weighing Post after each Heat to weigh, and he that dismounts before, or wants weight, is distanced.

8th. Horses distanced if their Riders Cross or Jostle, or the Heat to be run again, at the discretion of the Stewards.

9th. When Three Horses have each won a Heat, they only can start for a Fourth.

10th. In all Heats not less than Two Rounds of the Course; the Distance Post to be fixed at the established distance of 240 Yards.

11th. All Money for Entrance or Sweepstakes, to be paid to the Treasurer or Stewards previous to Starting.

12th. That any person wishing to erect a Booth, or Tent, on the Race Ground, shall give notice thereof one week before the Races commence, and pay Five Dollars to the Treasurer.

13th. That the Stewards in all decisions shall be guided by the Laws of Racing as specified in the London Racing Calendar.

14th. That Horses do Start, for the first Race on each day, precisely at Two o'clock.

15th. Not more than Six Horses to Start for any one Race. Those first entered (of course) getting the preference

16th. No person will be allowed to ride who is not properly dressed.

17th. The Winner of each Race to pay Four Dollars for Scales, Straw, &c. &c.

COMMITTEE.

MAJOR WINNIETT, 68th Regt. HON. J. H. DUNN,
The SOLICITOR GENERAL, Mr. SHERIFF JARVIS,
JOHN RADENHURST, Esq. LIEUT. HUEY, 68th Regt.
Mr. STANTON, TREASURER.

York, 12th August 1828.

STRAYED OR STOLEN, a few days since a Sorrel Pony his hinder legs white half way up, or nearly so, his tail long, and a white stripe in his face, between four and five years old.

Any person giving correct information at this Office where the said horse may be found by the owner shall be liberally rewarded.

York, July 15th, 1828. x 6

Miscellaneous.

Extraordinary Statement respecting the Padington Stage Coaches.—In the course of a complaint against the driver of one of the Padington Stage Coaches, for furiously driving through the Streets, to the great peril of the passengers, the following curious statement was handed to the Lord Mayor:—

"There are 46 Padington Stages to and from the Bank daily, each performing four times. The distance thither, and back is nearly 10 miles, and the duty is three pence per mile, so that Padington Stages, passing and re-passing per day form 884 times on the road, making 1,920 miles per day, and which, for which mild duty only, yields the sum of £3760 annually. The horses perform the journey thither and back but once each day, so impetuous is the speed, so that it requires 192 at daily work upon this road for this single branch of public accommodation; if the Coaches are full, the money exchanging hands amounts to nearly 300 guineas daily, and the persons conveyed amounts to 5,376."

The Lord Mayor observed, that perhaps the change which had taken place within the last 40 or 50 years was as great as had occurred in any thing with which the public had to do. He remembered in the year 1780, that the first Stage Coach was established between London and Maidstone, and the sluggishness of the conveyance in it he guessed at, from the fact that the Coach set out at six in the morning, and did not reach its destination till 8 or 9 at night, and those who traveled so formidable a distance used to take leave of their friends a week before.—He had set on the top of the Stage himself and picked nuts from the boughs of the trees which were thick along the old Rochester road.

Lord Nelson's Night Cap.—Dr. Burney, who wrote the celebrated anagram on Lord Nelson, after his victory of the Nile, "Honour est a Nilo," (Horatio Nelson) was shortly after on a visit to his Lordship, at his beautiful villa, at Merton. From his usual absence of mind, he forgot to put a night-cap into his portmanteau, and consequently, borrowed one from his Lordship. Previously to his retiring to rest, he sat down to study, as was his common practice, and was shortly after alarmed by finding the cap in flames; he immediately collected the burnt remains, and returned them to his Lordship, with the following lines:—

"T... our night-cap again, my good Lord I desire,
I would not detain it a minute;
What belongs to a Nelson wherever there's fire,
Is sure to be instantly in it."

THE JUMP.—On Saturday, July 19, Samuel Patch made another leap from the highest point above the falls at Patterson, (N. J.) into the chasm below, a distance of ninety feet. The Elizabethtown Journal states that Patch is a mechanic connected with one of the factories in Paterson—and is perfectly sane, and that his object in the hazardous enterprise is gain. He received $15 for his feat of the 4th inst. and $15 for that of Saturday.

LIGHTNING ROD.—Professor Fanshet of Yale College, says, "In a dry atmosphere its influence extends to form 50 to 40 feet. In a damp do., from 20 to 25 feet When it rains profusely, from 15 to 20 feet. From this statement it will be obvious that conductors should always be erected with reference to the most watery state of the atmosphere."

INGENIOUS INVENTION.—We have seen a miniature cannon which as a specimen of neat and ingenious handicraft, is well worth the attention of the public. It is complete in all respects, having a bore and touch-hole; the gun is made of steel, the carriage of gold, and the wheels of silver, and the whole weighs only the twenty-ninth part of a grain. The workmanship is very beautiful, but cannot be distinguished except through a powerful magnifying glass, the size of this warlike engine, being only about that of a common pin's head.

Plymouth (Eng.) Journal.

THE BIG WALNUT TREE.—This mammoth product of the American forest, which was exhibited in New York and Philadelphia, has been transported to London and sold for two hundred pounds sterling. It was found near Lake Erie, and measures thirty-six feet in circumference; its interior presents a splendid drawing-room.

HONY BLAST.—Mr. Rogers an officer of engineers, in the service of the Swiss Confederation, has lately taken means to ascertain, with great exactness, the height of Mont Blanc above the lake of Geneva, and the height of the lake of Geneva above the sea. The result of his measurement is, that the summit of Mont Blanc is about 15,513 English feet above the Lake of Geneva, and about 15,775 feet above the level of the sea.

Summary.

Mr. Akerman, in London, has published a series of fine lithographic views of the Falls of Niagara, drawn by W. Vivian, and lithographed by T. M.-Baynes.

The sight-seeing people never had so wide a field as London offers them this season. It has been calculated that it would employ a fortnight, fully occupied from eight o'clock in the morning to six at night, only to take a glimpse at all that may be seen.

INGENUITY.—It was some time since mentioned in the Mercury, that sixteen pairs of scissors had been made by Mr. Hatherton, of Spring street, which weighed only one grain. We have, this week, seen twenty-four pairs of hard polished scissors, manufactured by the same person, which are only the same weight. Who would believe unless they saw them, that eleven thousand five hundred and twenty pairs of hard polished scissors could be manufactured completely perfect, the weight of which would only be one ounce.—Sheffield Mercury.

Munificent Bequest.—The late J. Dick, Esq. of Finsbury-square, and upwards of forty years an eminent London Merchant, after making a very handsome provision for his family, has left about £166,000 to trustees, for the purpose of the interest being distributed annually in equal shares among all the Parochial School-masters of the counties of Aberdeen, Banff, and Moray. This will add about £40 per annum to their income.

The late Mr. James Aitken, of Edinburgh has bequeathed £1050, to the various religious and charitable institutions of that city.

MODERN TRAVELLING.—It is said to be in contemplation to run a coach between Manchester and London in sixteen hours. It is to carry four inside, nine out, and change horses every five miles.

It has been ascertained that between six and seven thousand carriages pass over London Bridge during every 24 hours.

Bollinasloe Canal.—This important national work, now drawing towards its completion, will, we understand, be opened to the public in the course of next week. This extension of the Grand Canal into Connaught, the first undertaking of that nature in the Province, will, no doubt be found most advantageous to a County exclusively Agricultural and Pastural, the cheap and easy mode of transit which it affords, being peculiarly adapted to the conveyance of grain and fat cattle to market.—Dublin Evening Post.

England.

There are some very uneasy persons in the Old World, who are constantly twitting it with the want of the New, and sighing and pining for transatlantic perfection. For their special relief we recommend a perusal of the American Tariff, which we have inserted elsewhere. If that does not effectually cure their passion for the American style of Legislation, and raise a comfortable suspicion in their minds, that we are not so very inferior in the liberality and comprehensiveness of our policy, they must be very hypochondriacal indeed. We do not profess to know what is the real motive for enacting such a Tariff; but it certainly appears as if Congress were afraid that foreigners got too much by the custom of their constituents, and that they were determined to place a prohibition on the consumption of foreign produce by their own people, on the envious principle that it was beneficial to others. What should we, in this old fashioned world of ours, think of the disposition of a man, who grudged himself the comforts of life, because he could not enjoy them without indirectly benefiting his neighbour?

The duties, moreover, are called ad valorem, but the appraisers have instructions in fixing the valor, to add, to its true amount, all charges and ten per cent, and calculate the duty upon the result. If the articles imported come from beyond the Cape of Good Hope the addition is twenty per cent. This, in some cases, makes the duty as high as sixty per cent.

Compare the animus of Commercial Legislature like this, with the fearless and liberal spirit of our own policy, which offers to every country, not only a profitable exchange of produce, but a fair and equitable competition into our market. If America fancies that she will promote her own prosperity, by shutting herself in surly selfishness from the world, she will be grievously disappointed. The system of exclusion laid down in this Tariff, will produce as little profit in a commercial view, as honour in a national one.—Courier, June 12.

General Sir William Congreve.—The death of this very scientific and valuable Officer is thus noticed in the Monitour of the 23d instant:—"Sir William Congreve, Inflexible General of Artillery, who acquired so much renown by the deadly rockets which he invented, died lately at Toulouse, at the age of fifty-seven. It is said, that having foreseen that war would break out in the East, he had submitted two projects to his Government, one for the defence of Constantinople, and the other for its destruction, according as England might be favourably or inimically disposed towards the Turks. Towards the latter part of his life, having totally lost the use of his legs, he had invented a mechanically arranged chair or sofa, which enabled him to move about his apartments without any assistance; this machine occasionally served him for a bed, whereupon to repose. He latterly also discovered means of propelling ships at sea, without the aid of oars, sails, or steam. The details of this plan was printed; it appeared, however, to be more ingenious than practically available. He has left a widow, several children, and an immense fortune."

Imperial Parliament.

FRANCE COMMITTEE.—Sir Henry Parnell presented the second Report of the Committee upon the Receipts and Expenditure of the Kingdom, on the 12th June.

It is one of the most voluminous Reports which has been for a long time laid on the table of Parliament—is full of copious details of the proceedings of former Committees, and contains a very elaborate statement of the evidence given before the present, including tables of the several kinds of expenditure in the departments under examination.

The Committee state that their inquiries have been assiduously and laboriously directed to the various heads of expenditure in the departments of the Navy, Army, and Ordnance.

The principle upon which the Committee went, was not to ascertain what the country could afford in the regulation of its expenditure, but the minimum upon which the public service could be performed consistent with the stability of the public interests.

In entering upon this task, the Committee did not comprehend within the scope of its inquiry, the circumstances or amount of the £27,000,000, or 28,000,000, which was appropriated for the fulfilment of engagements with the public creditor; that they deemed intangible, but they directed their examination to the £21,000,000, or £22,000,000, of the expenditure which went to defray the general establishments of the country.

They proceed to enforce the imperative necessity of economy in the public expenditure, because to take money out of the productive industry of the public beyond the actual exigency of the State, was to diminish national wealth, and impair those energies which it was essential to cherish for the prosperity of a country.

They then dwell on the necessity that the office of the Treasury, hich was originally instituted as a check upon all the departments, should rigidly exercise its trust; and as, at present, a salutary control upon the issues of the public money, of which it was the channel of distribution, and not to pay over the sums voted by Parliament to the several offices, leaving to each of them the responsibility of the proper application of these large sums of money, instead of retaining its superintending power, and watching their appropriation in the course of payment.

Having gone generally into the subjects before them, the Committee, finding the inquiries too extensive for completion during the present Session, chiefly confined their examination to the state of the Ordnance Department, to which attention was principally drawn, from the circumstances that it afforded the best specimen of a well-digested system, and was more likely than any other to be matured into a good example of the manner of conducting business in the other departments.

The Ordnance business is subdivided into four several heads. Each of these has occupied the greater portion of the time of the Committee, and appears to have been conducted with a great deal of research. The inquiry comprehends nearly every branch of the Ordnance; and the principal parts which in the judgment of the Committee will call for retrinchment and reduction, are those of Canada and of the Cadet Department generally.

The Committee state that the necessity of a careful inquiry into the ordnance expenditure had long been felt, and, indeed, acted upon; and the greatest praise is bestowed upon Lord Mulgrave for the extensive retrenchments which he had carried into effect upon the transition from war to peace, having reduced the expenditure exactly 5-4ths of its previous amount.

According to the evidence of Sir Henry Hardinge, and other facts before the Committee, it appears that the Duke of Wellington still further followed up these retrenchments, and within his time (about four years) of superintending the Ordnance had saved near £2,000,000, that is, as compared with the actual expenditure in the department, and the monies impressed for its service.

Still the Committee were of opinion, that notwithstanding the able, and efficient manner in which the business was conducted, some saving might yet be made. And it is remarked, that the present annual expense of the Ordnance exceeds that of the year 1822.

All the details of comparative expenditure, for a series of years are given in this Report; and, notwithstnding the extensive inquiry which this Finance Committee has caused, the subject remains unfinished.

The Report, which is drawn up by Sir Henry Parnell, insisted, of course, by the experience and ability of several of the leading men of business of the Committee, is described as highly creditable to the talents of the Chairman.

PENRYN DISFRANCHISMENT BILL.

HOUSE OF LORDS, June 20.

The Earl of CARNARVON moved the second reading of the Penryn Disfranchisement Bill. The Noble Earl proceeded to comment on the evidence of most of the witnesses as given at their Lordship's bar, and expressed his opinion that gross and corrupt bribery had been sufficiently proved, to call upon Parliament to disfranchise the Borough.

The LORD CHANCELLOR said he felt satisfied, from the whole evidence, that there was no sufficient cause made out, or any distinct and plain grounds to bring the subject before Parliament. In no case had Parliament ever interfered, except where a larger majority of voters had been proved guilty on the plainest and fullest proof, than in the present instance.

The Earl of ELDON said that he did not rise to detain their Lordships with any observations upon the Bill. He merely rose to say, that in his life he never saw a case so destitute of foundation, and he therefore gave the Bill his decided opposition.

After some observations by Lord DACRE and the Earl of SALISBURY, the Bill was negatived without a division.

ARMY ESTIMATES.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, June 20.

The House having resolved itself into a Committee of the whole House,

Sir H. HARDINGE moved that a sum of £146,5000, be granted for the charge of the General Officers of his Majesty's Forces. Agreed to. £36,893, 10s 6d for the charge of Garrisons at home and abroad.

Col. DAVIES said that he did not intend to oppose this or any other vote; for seeing how useless it was to attempt to rouse that House from its apathy upon the subject of economy, he thought that any further opposition would be a waste of time.

Mr. HUME concurred with the Gallant Officer as to the utter hopelessness of doing any thing effectual in the way of retrenchment through the medium of the House of Commons. He, indeed, was now inclined to think that a House of Commons was one of the very worst things that the country could have—(a laugh); and he was sorry to say that, instead of looking to it as a protection against Ministers, he now looked to the Ministers as a protection against the House of Commons.

Sir H. HARDINGE said that the principle on which the appointments now alluded to were given, was not that service should be done for the emoluments attached to the office. The office was conferred on meritorious military officers as honorary as well as pecuniary rewards. With reference to former periods, the present was a very diminished vote, and these emoluments were of very old standing. The votes are different periods stood.

In 1803	- - - - -	£48,000
1809	- - - - -	44,000
1815	- - - - -	40,000
1828	- - - - -	38,000

£112,500 was voted to defray the charge of reduced, retired and unattached officers for his Majesty's service for 1828.

£760,220 to defray the charge of half-pay, reduced and retired officers of his Majesty's service for 1828.

The next vote was £101,470 for defraying the half-pay and reduced allowances of officers of disbanded foreign corps, and pensions of wounded foreign officers, and allowances to the widows and children of deceased foreign officers, for the year 1828.

£43,113 11 3 to defray the charge of Military Allowances to reduced and retired officers of His Majesty's Land Forces for the year 1828.

£44,115 11 11 was then granted to defray the charge of the in-pensioners of Chelsea Hospital and the Royal Hospital near Kilmainham for the year 1828.

The next vote was £835,976 3 1 to defray the charge of Out-pensioners of Chelsea Hospital for 1828. Mr. HUME opposed his vote, but it was finally agreed to.

The next resolution was that a sum not exceeding £27,659 be granted to the Royal Military Asylum. Vote agreed to.

The next resolution was, that the sum of £143,023 be granted for defraying the pensions to widows for the year 1828.

Mr. HUME objected to the salary of £800 a year paid to the Chaplain-General who, in times of peace, received only £600. The Reverend person who now held the office, had a valuable living in London, and was, moreover, Dean of Carlisle. This he considered to be a monstrous plurality.

Lord PALMERSTON said the office was by no means a sinecure. The Chaplain-General was bound to be answerable for the good conduct of all the Chaplains in the service. Vote agreed to.

A sum of £195,695 was next granted for allowances on the Compassionate List, and to wounded-officers.

The following sums were also voted £59,301 to defray the expense of superannuations for officers employed in the public departments, for 1828:—£23,000 in discharge of Exchequer Fees for issues to be made on Army service. £283,199 2 1 to defray the charge for the disembodied militia. £7,500 for defraying the expenses of the Hibernian Society, for the education of soldier's children for 1828. £1,500 for defraying the expenses of the Royal Cork Institution. The putting of the last vote gave rise to a long debate, but it was finally carried by a majority of 40. The House then resumed and the report was ordered to be brought in on Monday.

NEW DUTIES.—A Bill is in agitation, making several alterations in the import duties, particularly a higher duty on American stript Tobacco, 3d per lb. after the 10th of October next, and lowering the duty on Cotton from British plantations to 1s. per cwt.

KING'S COLLEGE LONDON.

A very numerous meeting of the Friends of this Noble Institution, to be styled after the above title, was held this day at the Freemasons' Tavern. Amongst the company present were the Archbishop of Canterbury and York, the Bishops of London, St. David, Durham, St. Asaph, Chester, Gloucester, and Oxford, Dr. D'Oyley, the Marquis of Camden, the Speaker of the House of Commons, Lord Bexley, the Primate of Ireland, the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor. Alderman Thompson, Sheriff Spottiswoode, &c. The Duke of Wellington in the Chair. A letter from the Right Hon. Robert Peel, expressing his regret at not being able to attend, owing to the death of a sister, was read to the meeting.

Numerous subscriptions were then announced. It was whispered in the Hall that it was the intention of his Majesty to present a donation of £5,000 towards the institution, to testify his approbation thereof Before the meeting broke up, the astonishing amount of upwards of £20,000 was announced as having been received in subscriptions and donations. Amongst the numerous list of dignified and illustrious donors, we have only space to mention the following:—Archbishop of Canterbury, £1000; the Archbishop of York, £500; the Duke of Wellington, £800; the Duke of Rutland, £500; the Bishop of London, £1000; the Bishop of Durham, £500; a Lady unknown £300.

(From the London Gazette.)

At the Court of St. James's, the 16th day of June, 1828, Present, the King's most Excellent Majesty in Council.

This day the Right Hon. John Wilson Croker, and the Right Hon. John Calcraft were, by His Majesty's command, sworn of His Majesty's Most Honorable Privy Council, and took their respective places at the Board accordingly.

Whitehall, June 16.—The King has been pleased to direct letters patent to be passed under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, granting to the Rt. Hon. William Vesey Fitzgerald, the office of Treasurer of His Majesty's Navy.

Whitehall, June 20, 1828.—The King has been pleased to appoint the Right Hon. John Calcraft to be Paymaster-General of the Forces.

Crown Office, June 20, 1828.—Member returned to serve in this present Parliament—Shire of Perth: The Right Hon. Lieut.-General Sir George Murray, of Drumlanrig and Bleaton, G. C. B. one of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State.

On Wednesday, the anniversary of the glorious battle of Waterloo, His Royal Highness the Duke of Clarence gave a splendid regatta and dejeune on the Thames, in honor of the day, and of the immortal hero who led on our brave countrymen to that unparalleled victory.

On the same day the Duke of Wellington gave a magnificent dinner, at Apsley House, Piccadilly, to a number of general and other officers, who had served under his Grace at the Battle of Waterloo.—It is unnecessary to say, that the assemblage was numerous and brilliant. The services of gold and china which had been presented to his Grace by different Sovereigns, were used on the occasion; and the Band of the valiant Duke's Regiment, the Grenadier Guards, contributed to the festivity of the evening. With what feelings of proud delight must the, "Great Captain" have looked around on his distinguished guests, who had been united with him in restoring peace to distracted Europe, and crushing the fellest tyrant that ever raised an iron sceptre.

The following is a list of those who were maimed or killed at the distressing fall of the Gallery at Kirkaldy, while Mr. Irving was preaching:—

Mrs. Beveridge, wife of the late Michael Beveridge, clothier, Kirkaldy.

Grace Cunningham, daughter of John Cunningham, inn-keeper.

Three daughters of Mrs. Matthewson, Kirkaldy.

Miss Anderson, daughter of Mr. Anderson, cork cutter, Kirkaldy.

Mr. Miller, son of Thomas Miller, shoe-maker, Kirkaldy.

——— Cunningham, servant to Mr. Kirk; Janet Currer, servant; Henrietta Brown, spinster; Nancy Johnson.

Janet Stenhouse, daughter of Robert Stenhouse, West Bridge.

——— Murray, daughter of George Murray, weaver, Newton, Abbot's Hall.

Mrs. Watson, wife of Thomas Watson, late baker, Kirkaldy.

Sarah Penman; poultry keeper, Dunnikier,

Mrs. Smith, mill spinner; a female servant to Mr. Pratt; David Lawson, weaver, Park, Kirkaldy; Robert M'Caul; Peter Nichol, son of Andrew Nichol, upholster, all of Kirkaldy.

A boy named Barns, apprentice to Mr. Ayton Links. John Brown, Path-head. Mathew Brodie, weaver Links. Alexander M'Dougal, a boy, King-horn. James Oswald, Len. Path-head, John Hepburn, shoe-maker or weaver, Links

Miss Wingate, of Glasgow.

James Grant, tailor.

Only two persons were killed by the fall of the gallery; the others lost their lives by suffocation in endeavouring to get out of the church.

The names of the wounded are not given, and it was expected the list of all the dead had not yet been collected. The wounded, it is said, will amount to 200 persons, and few of them are of a very serious nature.

The Stockport Advertiser states that the mill owners in the town and vicinity have determined to reduce their working days to four in the week, as the only means of decreasing the quantity of the goods in the market.

The Greenock Advertiser says the effect of the increased duties on woollen goods will be most severely felt by the manufacturers in the neighbourhood of Rochdale, from whence the United States are in a great measure, supplied with coarse flannels, baizes, &c. The duties will amount to a complete prohibition.

The Glasgow Chronicle of the 20th of June, states the cotton trade in Manchester, as well as in Glasgow, is at present in rather a depressed state, but this was, in a great measure, to be accounted for by the fact, that usually at this season of the year, there is little done either in the home or foreign trade. The manufacturers had not however lessened the number of their workmen.

In Aberdeen the cotton and linen weavers have obtained an advance of wages.

In 1825, and the half of the year 1826, no less than 14,905 pounds of gold, being of the value of nearly, 295,000 pounds sterling, have been obtained from the mines in the Oural mountains, near Catharinebourg, in the government of Perue, in Russia. 845 pounds platina were obtained at the same time.

The harvest in Europe promises to yield an abundant crop, and it was expected the harvest would commence two or three weeks earlier this season than in former years.

Foreign Intelligence.

PORTUGAL.

From the Courier.

LONDON, Friday, June 20.—At length we have arrivals from Lisbon; there are also arrivals from St. Petersburgh, Vienna and Paris.

The despatches from Sir F. Lamb are of the 8th. But we understand that they have not brought any accounts of the movements of the two armies, all communication with the provinces being cut off.

The situation of the capital is represented to be most gloomy. Suspicion and arrests on the part of the Government—hatred of the oppressors, and fear of his spies on the part of the inhabitants.

If the efforts of the Constitutionalists do not proceed with such rapid success as we could wish, the position of Don Miguel appears to become more and more desperate. The accounts from Lisbon state, that arrests and imprisonments multiply—a letter from Oporto—the wearing a particular dress or colour, are received as symptoms of disaffection to his cause, and the offender is instantly hurried off to a dungeon. The prisons are crammed, and the number of arrests is said to be nearly 200. If there be any thing consolatory in this system, it is that it proves the depth of Don Miguel's apprehensions, and as such oppression is too grievous to be long borne, the people will soon break their fetters upon the heads of their oppressors.

The private letters state that the main body of the Constitutional army is at Coimbra, and their advanced guard at Pombal—that the advance of the troops was not rapid, because some movement or demonstration was expected.

It is reported at Lisbon that a battle had taken place between the advanced of the two armies near Leiria; but just as the packet was about to sail it was whispered that the vanguard of the Grand Army had quarelled, and that the 8th Chasseurs, the 7th Cavalry, and the Artillery, had attacked and cut down the 16th Regiment of Infantry. The wounded of the regiment had already arrived in Lisbon. The other troops are said then to have gone over to the Constitutionalists.

Letters from Oporto this morning are to the 3d inst. They are of some interest. His Majesty's ship Britomart and Cordelia were in the river; the former was despatched for Lisbon with the mail for England, the communication by land being suspended. Oporto had been declared in a state of blockade by the Portuguese Corvette Syphella. One of the English sloops of war immediately proceeded over the bar, and warned the Portuguese Commander that no English Merchantman must be molested under the pretence of the blockade. The schooner had previously fired upon a vessel bound from Liverpool to Oporto, and had ordered two ships off the port. After a conference between the British and Portuguese Captains all vessels bearing the English flag were allowed free ingress and egress. The country, it is stated, was convulsed and a civil war was inevitable.

RUSSIA & TURKEY.

An extraordinary Supplement to the St. Petersburgh Journal of the 4th June, contains a Bulletin from the camp before Brahilow, which gives an account of the Emperor's arrival there, and of the proceedings to the 26th May. The Pacha had sent a flag of truce to return thanks for the Emperor's generosity in releasing the prisoners. On dismissing the officer who bore it, his Majesty commissioned him to tell the Pacha that after three o'clock on the following morning the Russians would expect no terms in the event of the Pacha refusing to capitulate.

In letters from Jassy of the 26th it is stated that part of the fortress of Brahilow was on fire.

PARIS, June 19th.—The Emperor of Russia on the 27th ult., set out on his return to Head Quarters. Before he departed he received the news of an advantage gained by the Russian fleet before Anapa, where a Turkish flotilla, with ammunition, &c. was taken. Anapa has been bombarded for 13 days, and the suburbs completely destroyed.

The Gazette of France says that the Emperor of Russia had sent a sabre of great value to Admiral Codrington, in memory of the battle of Navarino.

Communication.

FOR THE LOYALIST.

REVIEW of Mr. E. REYERSON'S Letters to the HONORABLE & VENERABLE ARCHDEACON STRACHAN, &c

No. 7.

Whether a Religious Establishment "weakens a Government" I leave the reader to infer from these sentiments of the learned Moderator—an author whom I the more readily quote on account of the respect uniformly paid him by Mr. Reyerson—"it is indeed probable" says this author, of Constantine, "that this Prince perceived the admirable tendency of the Christian doctrine and precepts to promote the stability of Government, by preserving the citizens in their obedience to the reigning powers, and in the practice of those virtues that render a state happy!"—and whether an Ecclesiastical Establishment "disunites the subjects" of a Government, I would bid the reader turn his eyes to England and to Scotland and there to see a living instance to the contrary—there to discern the light of pure liberty burn with a splendor which surrounding nations cannot manifest—there to view Religion's influence in preserving the manly spirit of independence, and by the interposition of its wholesome restraints, keeping their happy subjects free from the lawless ravages of a degenerate liberty. Ah! false are the tongues that are perpetually vociferating those tortured, hackneyed words, liberalism and liberty—the "shibboleth" of a sect, the watch-word of a party:—false are the hearts which profess so keen a sense of another's wrongs; desiring to erect, on the ruins of all order and all law, their own selfish exaltation, and who then would triumph over their dupes in malignant scorn of their credulity. Sweet liberty! we hail you as Heaven's herald of blissfulness to man! Baneful licentiousness! we turn from you as a curse entailing deeper devastation than the ruthless eras of tyranny!

"The foundation of your claims" says Mr Reyerson, "is behalf of the Church of England, as an Ecclesiastical Establishment, is built upon the number of her Members, and the type of Religious opinion." No, Sir: it is not the foundation of those claims—it is an adjunct to her pretensions—a motive for continued support—a justification of the expediency—nay more upon the immediate claims of those who would uproot that foundation. And what is the real nature of what Mr. Reyerson calls the Report of the late Bishop of Quebec and his Clergy in 1823?—It was, in fact, an Address to the Imperial Government from the respective Corporations in Lower and Upper Canada, to counteract preceding encroachments upon the Church's property in these Provinces: it expressed their feeling of that injustice—and it "expressed it strongly." Religious preference at all. Of that many have not seen the whole, a faithful though vivid, picture of the Religious state of the Country;—then a state of harmony and peace; now convulsed by the most unfounded jealousies under whose superintendance these works are now carried on, have but lately sprung into existence, and within little more than a year attained an extent and importance far beyond the expectations of those who first entered the woods to erect the temporary dwellings of the surveyors of the line. These town are situated on the opposite sides of the valley—the Upper Town is perhaps the more fashionable, but the Lower Town is the place where the most business is transacted. The houses, as yet, are nearly all of wood, but most of them are neat in appearance, and all regularly laid out in Streets. The Lots, 66 feet in front by 198 in breadth, are granted for a small rent, on which houses of 30 feet front are usually erected.. From the Lower Town, proceeding along the summit of the bank, towards the Ottawa, a fine road leads to the neat and elegant residence of the Commandant, where perhaps one of the finest landscapes in Canada presents itself to the eye of the traveller. Before him, the whole of the Falls of Chaudiere are like a picture extended before his eyes,—the dark water, the brown rocky shores and Islands forming an agreeable contrast to the clear blue which often is characteristic of a Canadian sky, the foam of the falls, over which rainbows occasionally hover, or the luxuriant foliage of the woods on its banks. Below him, the scite of the Locks is visible, from which the busy hum, the active exertions of hundreds of individuals employed in different departments of the Canal strike his senses, while to his right, the cultivated fields and distant blue hills of the Township of Hull, the broad expanse of the deep rolling Ottawa—to his left, the dark green woods through which the Canal passes, and from which the smoke of numerous huts (Shanties) ascends—Lower Bytwon and its neat houses, and somewhat above him, the lofty opposite bank where the barracks are built and where future batteries are to arise—all tend to render the landscape as grand and magnificent as it is varied and pleasing. A similar road from the Upper Town leads to the Barracks, Military Hospital and Parade, but though the view from this place is nearly similar to that from Lt. Col. By's House, it embraces more of the Ottawa and, we believe, less of the Chaudiere.—M. Gazette.

From the U. C. Gazette of 14th August.

PROCLAMATION.

UPPER CANADA.

P. MAITLAND,

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith: &c. &c. &c.

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Counsellors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of our said Province; to the Assembly at our Town of York, on the 12th day of August, instant, to be commenced, held, called and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:

WHEREAS for certain arduous and urgent affairs, Us and the state of our said Province concerning, at our said Assembly, at the day and place aforesaid, to be held; We have ordained you by our separate Writs at the Town and day aforesaid, to be present for the purposes therein mentioned.—NEVERTHELESS for certain causes and considerations us thereto especially moving, our said Assembly, at and upon the twelfth day of August, instant, We have thought fit to Prorogue, so that you nor any of you on the said twelfth day of August, instant, at our said Town to appear, are to be held or constrained. For We do will that you and each of you, be as to us, in this matter entirely exonerated, commanding, and by the tenor of these Presents firmly enjoining, you and every of you, and all others in this behalf interested, that on Saturday the Twentieth day of September, next ensuing, at our said Town of York, personally, you and every of you be and appear, to treat, do, act, and conclude upon those things, which in our said Assembly by the Common Council of our said Province by the favor of God may be ordained.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these our Letters to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province to be hereunto affixed.—WITNESS our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding our Forces therein at York, this First day of August, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-eight, and in the Ninth year of our Reign.

P. M.

By Command of His Excellency.

JOHN B. ROBINSON, Att'y. General,

D. CAMERON, Secretary.

Birth,

At York, on Wednesday 13th instant, Mrs. Macaulay—of a Daughter.

Married,

On the 5th instant, by the Rev. W. R. Payne, Chaplain of H. M. Dock Yard, Mr. W. P. Cook, of the Ordnance Department, to Mrs. Bridget Lindsay —K. Chronicle.

Died,

At his residence near York, on Friday Morning 15th instant, Mr. Charles Denison.

At Bath, on Thursday last, after a short illness, George Macaulay, Esq Barrister at Law, much regretted by a numerous circle of friends and acquaintance.

Afflictive Dispensations.—We forgot to state in our last, the afflictive dispensations of Providence, which recently visited the family of Henry Warren, Esq. J. P. of Fort Erie, U. C. In April last, Lieut. Jackson, Mr. Warren's son-in-law, was lost overboard in the night from a vessel on Lake Erie: in the month of June Mrs. Hamilton, daughter of Mr. W. died at Kettle-Creek; and very recently, the wife of Mr. Warren died at Fort Erie.—Thus the insatiate archer has thrice slew the peace of Mr. Warren.—Buffalo Republican.

THOMAS MOORE,—TAILOR, Front Street, York.

Near the Steam Boat Hotel.—Begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has just opened, and offers for Sale, a choice assortment of Goods, Selected by himself at the Manufactories in England, which he can recommend as being of choice quality, consisting of, Superfine, Blue; Black; Scarlett; Green; Olive; Grey and Drab, West of England Broad Cloths.—Black, Blue and Grey, Double and single Milled Kersymeres. Forest Cloths. Lasting and Corduroys.—Beverteens; Fustians; Cantons. Jane; Drab, and Striped Brown Drills. Fine Welsh Flannel; White and Blue Flannel. White and Grey Cotton. A London printed Calicoes and Chintzes. Fancy Vestings. Printed Muslins. Sewing Silk; Twist; Thread and Rich Gilt Buttons.

MILITARY EQUIPMENTS,

consisting of, Regulation Swords; Patent Leather Regulation Waist Belts, with rich Gilt clasps. Rich Gold Bullion Epaulletts, crimson Silk Regulation Sashes.—Rich Gold Velvet Lace, and Gilt British Militia Buttons. Red, White and Green, Regulation Feathers, with rich Gilt Tubes for do.

The whole of which will be disposed of on reasonable terms, or made up to order, agreeable to the latest fashions, at the shortest notice.

York, 14th July, 1828. x 6

NEW WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE.—The Subscribers respectfully announce to the Merchants of York and its vicinity, that they have opened a Wholesale Store, Corner of Market-Lane and Church-Street; where they are receiving a large and suitable assortment of DRY GOODS, direct from GREAT BRITAIN: consisting principally of the following articles:—

Grey and Bleached Factory Cottons,
do. do. Sheetings,
Striped and Check'd Cottons,
Scotch Hollands,
Fine, Superfine, and Brussels Carpeting,
do. do. broad and narrow Cloths,
do. do. Cassimeres,
Bombazettes, Bombazines, and Shalloons,
Says, Lastings, Cambletts, &c.,
Tartans and Union Checks,
Moleskins, Barragans and Fustians,
Red and White Flannel,
Chintzes, Calicoes and Furnitures,
Book, Jaconet and Mull Muslins,
Bobbin Muslins, Striped, Check'd and figured,
Ginghams, Pullicate and Verona Handkerchiefs,
Cotton and Linen Bed Tick,
Russia Duck, Osnaburgs, Hessins and Sheetings,
Canvas, Bagging, Dowlas, Drill, &c.
Umbrellas, 26, 28, and 30 inch,
Bandanna, Barcelona, Gauze & Barrage, Handkerchiefs,
Silk Hose, and Habit Gloves,
Black and Green Crape, Veils, &c.
Black and Coloured sewings, Legee Twist, &c.
Galloons, Silk and Cotton Ferrets,
Black and W. Brown Linen Thread, Cotton Spoolls and Balls,
Silk, Cotton, and Merino Shawls,
Cotton Tapes, Bobbin, &c.
Gros de Naples, Levantine Ribbons, &c. &c.—

Which they will sell off at very reduced prices, for cash only.

JAMES DOUGALL, & Co.

York, 23d July, 1828. x. 7

THE SUBSCRIBER being about to enter into a different line of business, begs to return his sincere thanks to his numerous friends and the public, for the past favors and the confidence they have reposed in him for the last ten years; and he trusts that he may enjoy a continuance of their support.

He is desirous of having the affairs of the late firm of Job and Erasmus Fowke settled or adjusted on or before the tenth of March next.—After that date they will be placed in the hands of his Attorney; and that as he is entering on a new business he will not give credit after the 6th inst.

ERASMUS FOWKE.

Port Hope, 1st January, 1828. 3tif.

ENGLISH STORE.—Just received, direct from England, a quantity of Bobbin Net, Lace, Veils, and Caps, of the first quality; also, an assortment of Muslins and other Goods; which will be sold on the most reasonable terms, by

J. COCKSHUTT.

York, July 14th 1828. x 6

JOHN MURCHISON, DRAPER AND TAILOR, respectfully informs his friends and customers, that he has just received from LONDON, a choice assortment of extra, fine and superfine West of England Broad Cloths and Cassimeres; consisting of Blue, Black, Scarlet, Green, Olive, Brown, Grey, Drab and Corbeau, Single and Double Milled Cassimeres; do. Double Milled Broad Cloths for Great Coats, and vestings of every description, which he is ready to make up to order at short notice, in good style, and on the lowest terms possible. Gentlemen wishing any thing in his line may depend upon being faithfully served.

N. B. He has also a number of Military Articles to dispose of on reasonable terms.

York, July 28, 1828. 8tf. 3

MILLS AT PETERBOROUGH.—The Grist-Mill and Saw-Mill which have been lately erected by the Government at Peterborough, in the District of Newcastle, will be exposed to sale by Public Auction at Peterborough on the 10th day of September next, at 11 o'clock, A.M. The terms of payment will be,—one third of the purchase money to be paid within one month after the sale, one third at the expiration of one year, and the remaining one third at the expiration of two years from the day of sale, with interest.

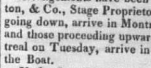
The Mill site is most valuable, comprehending a Tract of about 86 Acres. The Grist-Mill has two runs of Stones in operation, and is well fitted for Merchant work, having manufact red more than 1,200 Barrels of Flour this Summer.—The Saw-mill is also in operation.

From the peculiar situation of these works being at the head of the Navigation of the Otanabee River, and in the midst of a very flourishing settlement, the Establishment will be most valuable to any person possessing Capital. It cannot be disposed of for a less sum than £2,000 Currency, but will go to the highest bidder above that sum, without reserve.

A plan exhibiting the situation of the mills, and the Land appropriated for their use can be seen at this Office; and every information obtained by writing to the Honorable PETER ROBINSON, York.

York, 3d July, 1828. d. 3

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.



LAKE ONTARIO STEAM-BOAT, NIAGARA, Captain MOSIER, with DANIEL READ, Sailing Master, Will, after the 15th inst., leave Niagara for Kingston, Brockville, and Prescott, every Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

On her return, will leave Prescott for Brockville, Kingston, York, and Niagara, every Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made with Messrs. Norton, & Co., Stage Proprietors, by which, passengers going down, arrive in Montreal on Tuesday evening; and those proceeding upwards, will, by leaving Montreal on Tuesday, arrive in time at Prescott to take the Boat.

York, June 6th, 1828. x 1.

THE BRITISH STEAM-PACKET CANADA, Captain Hugh Richardson, plying betwixt York and Niagara, (Weather permitting.)

Leaves NIAGARA daily for YORK, (Sunday excepted,) precisely at 7 o'clock, A. M. arrives at York at half-past 11, A. M. Leaves YORK daily for NIAGARA, precisely at 2, P. M. arrives at NIAGARA at half-past 6 P.M.

TERMS.

After Cabin and Quarter Deck, - - - - - - - $2
Fore Cabin and Deck, - - - - - - - - - - 1

N. B. A gun will be fired and Colors hoisted 25 minutes before starting.

PUBLIC NOTICE.—I require due notice to be given to me or to my Agent, Mr. Alexander Murray, at Mr. Proudfoot's Store, in York, of all transfers of Property in the Steam-Packet Canada, in default whereof I shall consider the original Stockholder, as the legal Owner in the Vessel; and in paying dividends and doing other transactions connected with my situation, hold myself accountable to them alone. HUGH RICHARDSON.

Master and Managing Owner of the Steam Packet Canada.

York, 27th December, 1827. 31tf.

N. B.—With Mr. A. Murray, reference may be had to all Books and accounts connected with the Canada Steam Packet.

THE LOYALIST

VOL. I. NO. 11.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY AUGUST 23, 1828.

Poetry.

OSSIAN'S ADDRESS TO THE SUN.

BY R. HOWITT.

O! thou that roll'st above, through heaven's fair space,
Round as the shield of Fingal's warrior race!
Whence are thy beams, O Sun, in youthful might?
From whence thy beams of everlasting light?
Thou comest forth in beauty awfully,
And the dim stars are lost in the blue sky!
And cold and pale the moon sinks to her cave,
Amidst the murmurs of the western wave;
But thou thyself still movest on alone!
For who can be companion of thy way?
The mountain oaks by time are overthrown;
Themselves the mountains worn with years decay!
The ocean shrinks, and to its place returns;
And, lost in heaven, the moon her beauty mourns;
Yet thou for ever in youthful force,
Rejoicing in the brightness of thy course!
When the fair world is darkened o'er with storms,
And the wild tempest heaves's pure blue deforms;
When thunder rolls, and vivid lightnings fly,
Thou lookest in thy beauty from the sky,
And laughest at the storm that passeth by!
But thou to Ossian lookest forth in vain,
For he no more beholds thy radiant beams,
Whether thy yellow hair in beauty streams
On eastern clouds, or that thou tremblest
At the far distant portals of the west;
But thou, perchance, hast thine appointed time,
Like me, and drawest to thy destined close:—
Then shalt thou careless on thy clouds repose,
For list the narrating's call—extinct thy light sublime!
O Sun! exult then, in thy joyous prime,
For age is dark and cheerless as the night:
'Tis like the pale moon's weak and glimmering light,
When through the broken clouds it dimly streams,
Shedding on mist-clad hills her hoary beams;
While on the cliffs, 'midst howling north-winds hoarse,
The traveller shrinks but mid-way on his course.

Miscellaneous.

LEDYARD'S celebrated eulogy on the talents and dispositions of the Fair Sex.

There is no deficiency in the female mind, either in talents, or dispositions; nor can we say with certainty, that there is any subject of intellectual, or moral discussion in which Women have not excelled:

If the delicacy of their constitutions, and other physical causes, allow the female sex a smaller share of some mental powers, they possess others in a superior degree, which are no less respectable in their own nature, and of as great importance to society!

Instead of descanting at large on their powers of mind, and supporting my assertions, by instances of a Hypatia, a Seburman, a Zenobia, and many others, I may repeat the account given of the fair sex, by a person of uncommon experience, who saw them without disguise, or any motive that could lead them to play a feigned part.

Mr. Ledyard who traversed the greatest part of the world, for the mere indulgence of his taste for observation of human nature; generally in want, and often in extreme misery, I have, says he, always remarked, that Women in all countries, are civil, obliging, tender, and humane! that they are ever inclined to be gay, and cheerful, timorous and modest, and that they do not hesitate, like Man, to perform a kind or generous action: not haughty, not arrogant, not supercilious—they are full of courtesy, and fond of Society, more liable in general to err than man, but in general also, more virtuous, and performing more good actions than he.

To a Woman, whether civilized or savage, I never addressed myself, in the language of decency and friendship, without receiving a decent and friendly answer;—with man it has often been otherwise.—Many a time, instead of an immediate answer, he has stood surveying me with a stern and scrutinizing eye, and at last, out would come, who are you?—Where are you from?—What do you want!—You look quite suspicious!—Begone.—Now look again at the other side of the picture.

In wandering over the barren plains of inhospitable Denmark, through honest Sweden, and frozen Lapland, rude and churlish Finland, unprincipled Russia, and the wide spread regions of the wandering Tartar:—if hungry, dry, cold, wet or sick, the Women have ever been friendly to me, and uniformly so; and to add to this virtue, so worthy of the appellation of benevolence, these actions have been performed, in so free, and so kind a manner, that if I was thirsty, I drank the sweetest draught, & if hungry, I ate the coarsest Meal with a double relish.

THE GREAT MICHAEL.

Curious description of a Scottish first rate Man of War, called, "The Great Michael"—built in the Reign of King James the Fourth, Anno Domini 1511.—[See the History of Scotland, by Robert Lindesay, of Pitscottie.]

The King of Scotland bigged a great Ship, called The Great Michael, which was the greatest Ship, and of most strength, that ever sailed in England or France, for this Ship was of so great stature, and took so much Timber, that except Falkland, she wasted all the Woods in Fife, which was Oak wood, by all the Timber that was gotten out of Norroway, for she was so strong, and of so great length, and breadth (all the Wrights of Scotland, yea, and many others, strangers, were at her device, by the King's commandment, who wrought very busily in her, but it was a year and a day ere she was complete) to wit; she was twelve score feet of length, and thirty-six within the sides, she was ten feet thick in wall, of tried feet of Oak in her wall, and Boards on every side, so stark, and so thick, that no Cannon could go through her. This great Ship cumbered all Scotland to get her to the Sea. From that time that she was afloat, and her Masts and Sails complete, with Ores and Anchors effering thereto, she was counted to the King to be thirty thousand pounds of expences, by her Artillery, which was very great and costly to the King, by all the rest of her orders, to wit; she bare many Cannons,—six on every side, with three great Basils-two behind on her Deck, and one before, with three hundred shot of small Artillery, that is to say: Myand and Battert falcon, and Quarter falcon, Slings, Pestilent, Serpetens, and Double Dogs, with Hagtor and Culverings, Coss Bows, and Hand Bows. She had three hundred Mariners to sail her—she had six score of Gunners, to use her Artillery, and a thousand Men of War, by her Captains, Shippers, and Quarter Masters.

When this Ship past to the Sea, and was lying in the Road, the King gart shoot a Cannon at her, to essay if she was weight, but I heard say, it deared her not, and did her little skaith; and if any man believe that this description of the Ship be not of verity as we have written, let him pass to the Gate of Tillibardine, and there afore the same, he will see the length and breath of her planted with Hawthorn by the Wright that helped to make her.—As for other properties of her, Sir Andrew Wood, of Largo, is my author—he was Quarter Master of her, and Robert Bartyne was Master Shipper.

THE ORIGIN OF HORSE-RACING.

Epsom Races, &c.—The following is a short extract from The History of Epsom, an interesting work recently published:—

"When Epsom races first commenced we have not been able with certainty to trace. Few writers who mention the district do more than simply state the fact that horse races are annually held at Epsom. The first information that we have of horse-racing in this country is in the reign of Henry II; there can be no doubt that Epsom Downs early became the spot upon which the lovers of racing indulged their fancy, and perhaps the known partiality of James I, for this diversion will justify us in ascribing their commendment to the period when he resided at the Palace of Nonsuch, near Ewell; and his reign may be fairly stated as the period when horse-racing became a general and national amusement. They were then called bell-courses, the prize being a silver bell, and the winner was said to bear or carry the bell. The first Arabian which had ever been known in England as such, was purchased by the Royal Jockey of a Mr. Markham, a merchant, at the price of £500. During the civil wars the amusements of the turf were partially suspended, but not forgotten, for we find that Mr. Place, stud-master to Cromwell, was proprietor of the famous horse White Turk, and several brood mares, one of which, a great favourite, be concealed in a vault during the search after Cromwell's effects at the time of the Restoration, from which circumstances she took the name of the coffin mare, and is designated as such in various pedigrees. King Charles II., soon after his restoration, re-established the races at Newmarket, which had been instituted by James I. He divided them into regular meetings, and substituted both there and at other places silver cups or bowls of the value of £100 for the royal gift of the ancient bells. William III., though not fond of the turf, paid much attention to the breed of horses for martial purposes, and in his reign some of the most celebrated stallions were imported. George Prince of Denmark, obtained from his royal consort, Queen Anne, grants of royal plates for several places. In the latter end of the reign of George I., the change of the royal plates into purses of 100 guineas took place. In the time of George II. there were many capital thorough-bred horses in England, the most celebrated of which were the famed Arabians Darley and Godolphin—from the former descended Flying Childers.—To continue a list of celebrated horses would exceed the limits, we shall therefore close with a brief account of the famous Eclipse. This horse was first the property of the Duke of Cumberland, and was foaled during the great eclipse in 1764; he was withheld from the course till he was five years old, and was first tried at Epsom. He once ran four miles in eight minutes, carrying 18 st. and with this weight he won 11 King's plates. He was never beaten, never had a whip flourished over him, or felt the tickling of a spur, nor was he ever for a moment distressed by the speed or rate of a competitor, out-footing, outstriding, and out-lasting every horse which started against him. When the races on Epsom Downs were first held periodically, we have not been able to trace with accuracy, but we find that from the year 1730, they have been annually held; for a long period, they were held twice in every year; it was then customary to commence at 11 o'clock, return into the town to dinner, and finish in the evening; but this arrangement has been long discontinued."

COMPARATIVE PLEASURES OF SIENCE.

How wonderful are the laws that regulate the motions of fluids! Is there anything in all the idle books of tales and horrors more truly astonishing than the fact, that a few pounds of water may, by mere pressure, without any machinery, by merely being placed in a particular way, produce an irresistible force? What can be more strange, than that an ounce weight should balance hundreds of pounds, by the intervention of a few bars of thin iron? Observe the extraordinary truths which Optical Science discloses. Can anything surprise us more, than to find that the colour of white is a mixture of all others—that red, and blue, and green, and all the rest, merely by being blended in certain proportions, from what we had fancied rather to be no colour at all, than all colours together? Chemistry is not behind in its wonders. That the diamond should be made of the same material with coal; that water should be chiefly composed of an inflammable substance; that acids should be almost all formed of different kinds of air, and that one of those acids, whose strength can dissolve almost any of the metals, should be made of the self-same ingredients with the common air we breathe; that salts should be of a metallic nature, and composed, in great part, of metals, fluid like quicksilver, but lighter than water, and which, without any heating, take fire upon being exposed to the air, and, by burning, from the substance so abounding in saltpeter and in the ashes of burnt wood: these, surely, are things to excite the wonder of any reflecting mind—nay, of any one but little accustomed to reflect. And yet these are trifling when compared to the prodigies which Astronomy opens to our view: the enormous masses of the heavenly bodies; their immense distances; their countless numbers, and their motions, whose swiftness mocks the uttermost efforts of the imagination.

Electricity, the light which is seen on the back of a cat when slightly rubbed on a frosty evening, is the very same matter with the lightning of the clouds;—plants breathe like ourselves, but differently by day and by night;—the air which burns in our lamps enables a balloon to mount, and causes the globules of the dust of plants to rise, float through the air, and continue their race;—in a word, is the immediate cause of vegetation. Nothing can at first view appear less like, or less likely to be caused by the same thing, than by the processes of burning, and of breathing, the rust of metals and burning, and acid and rusts, the influence of a plant on the air it grows in by night, and of an animal on the same air at any time, nay, and of a body burning in that air; and yet all these are the same operation. It is an undeniable fact, that the very same thing which makes the fi.e burn, makes metals rust, forms acids, and causes plants and animals to breathe; that these operations, so unlike to common eyes, when examined by the light of science, are the same,—the rusting of metals,—the formation of acids,—the burning of inflammable bodies,—the breathing of animals,—and the growth of plants by night. To know this is a positive gratification. Is it not to find the same substance in various situations extremely unlike each other;—to meet with fixed air as the produce of burning,—of breathing,—and of vegetation;—to find that it is the choakdamp of mines,—the bad air in the grotto of Naples,—the cause of death in neglected brewers' vats—and of the brisk and acid flavour of Seltzer and other mineral springs? Nothing can be less like than the working of a vast steam-engine, and the crawling of a fly upon the window. We find that these two operations are performed by the same means, the weight of the atmosphere, and that a sea-horse climbs the ice-hills by no other power. Can anything be more strange to contemplate? Is there in all the fairy tales that ever were fancied, anything more calculated to arrest the attention and to occupy and to gratify the mind, than this most unexpected resemblance between things so unlike to the eye of ordinary beholders.?

SEPTEMBER TEA SALES, 1828.—The Agents to the Honble. East India Company in Canada give notice, that there will be put up to Public Sale at their Warehouses in Quebec on Saturday the 13th of September, a quantity of Teas equal to about 1,500 Chests & Boxes; and at Montreal on Saturday the 20th of September, a quantity equal to about 3,000 Chests.

Catalogues will be ready for delivery and shewchests open for inspection at each place, for six days previous to the Sale, which will commence at 11 o'clock in the forenoon.

FORSYTH RICHARDSON & CO.
Montreal, 12th Aug., } c 11
1828.

WILLIAM FARQUHAR begs leave most respectfully to acquaint his Friends and Customers, that he has got his SILVER PLATE MANUFACTORY into full operation; and is now ready to receive orders for any description of articles in his line, cheaper than can be imported from England, and equal in quality and workmanship.

The following is a list of articles principally made in Silver:—

Tea and Coffee Setts,
Race Cups,
Mugs and Goblets,
Cruet and Liquor Stands,
Wine Strainers, Mustard Pots,
Salvers and Bottle Sliders,
Salt Cellars, Egg Cups and Stands,
Muffineers,
Table and desert Spoons and Forks,
Tea, Coffee, Salt and Mustard Spoons,
Sugar Bowls, sugar Spoons,
Egg spoons, Asparagus Tongs,
Knife Rests, Marrow Spoons, &c. &c.
Any of the above articles gilded, if required.

ALSO,

WATCHES, CLOCKS, & JEWELLERY, plate and plated goods repaired.

W. F. has on hand, a great variety of GOLD AND SILVER WATCHES, CLOCKS, and a handsome assortment of London jewellery, plate & plate to ware, and Fancy Articles, of this year's importation, and warranted of the best description—which he will Sell low for Cash or approved Credit.

No. 90, Notre-Dame Street, Montreal, } n 11
12th August, 1828.

WANTS A SITUATION.—A person who has been in the habit of attending a Store, and wishes to engage with a Merchant in the Retail Trade—Apply at the Office of the Loyalist.
York, 18th August, 1828. n 11

ELIGIBLE SITUATION—To be sold, Lots numbers 29 & 30 in the first concession of the Township of Scarborough with their broken fronts on Lake Ontario, situate about Seven miles from the Town of York.—On Lot No. 29, are erected a Log and a Frame House together with outhouses &c. These premises are now in the possession of Mr. Adna Bates, and are an eligible Situation for a Tavern.

Application to be made to C. C. SMALL Esq.
York, 20th Augut, } x 11
1828.

TO SAWYERS.—Wanted immediately an experienced Sawyer, and an assistant to take charge of a Mill that has a constant supply of water; and in other respects particularly well situated.—None need apply, who cannot give sufficient references as to character and ability.

Further information on application to Messrs. WRAGG & Co. King-street York. x 11

THE EDITOR of the Port-Hope Monitor, begs leave to apologize to his very numerous Subscribers for the delay which has taken place in the appearance of his paper, and assures them that its publication has been prevented only by the extensive arrangements, which he has been making with his correspondents for the purpose of procuring the very earliest and most authentic information on the different political and literary subjects, in order that the Columns of the Port-Hope Monitor may always be filled with matter, the most interesting to its readers:—

The Editor of the Port-Hope Monitor takes this opportunity to offer his sincere thanks to his Subscribers for their support, and to his different Agents for their very kind attention in procuring him so large a List of Subscribers.

Editors of Papers in the Upper and Lower Province, will oblige the Editor of the Port-Hope Monitor, by giving the above advertisement a few insertions in their different papers.

Port-Hope, } J. CLARK.
Aug. 1[illegible]28. } n 11

FOR SALE.—Lot No. 7, in the 1st Concession from Surrey, Township of Nelson, containing 200 Acres.—The Twelve Mile Creek, passes through part of the Lot, affording a constant supply of Water all the year round, and renders the Lot valuable, for the erection of Mills and Machinery of any kind. The Land is of excellent quallity.—For Terms apply to

Mr. COATES, Painter.
York, 22*nd August*, 1828. i 11

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS of a new Gaol and Court House at Hamilton, District of Newcastle.—Notice is hereby given that the undermentioned premiums are offered to such persons as shall furnish the Clerk of the Peace, for the approval of the Magistrates of the District of Newcastle, on or before the 1st day of October next, with plans, specifications, and estimates of a Gaol and Court House (in one building) to be built in the Township of Hamilton, at or near the present Court House—the first story to be of Stone, second and third stories of Brick, to contain Criminal Cells, Debtors Rooms, Gaolers Apartments, Court Room, Grand and Petit Jury Rooms;—Also, Rooms for Offices, &c., such as are usually required in such a Building—the roof to be covered with tin.—The whole expence not to exceed the sum of £5,000 Currency.

Premiums will be awarded as follows, viz:—
For the best and most approved plan, &c. } £15 0 0
For the 2nd do. do. 10 0 0
For the 3rd do. do. 5 0 0
T. WARD,
Clerk of the Peace,
District of Newcastle }
Hamilton, Newcastle District, } dd 52
10*th May*, 1828.

YORK BOARDING SCHOOL, under the Patronage of The Right Honarable Lady Sarah Maitland.—Miss Purcell and Miss Rose, beg leave to inform their Friends and the Public, that their School will re-commence on Monday the first of September.

N. B. A Professor of Dancing is engaged to attend.
York, 14*th August*, 1828. c. 10

THE ROYAL GRAMMAR SCHOOL, established at York, Upper Canada, opens again on Monday the 8th of September, 1828.—For Terms, &c. apply to the Rev. Dr. Phillips, Head Master.
York, 14*th August*, 1828. i. 10

NOTICE is hereby given, that I will expose to Sale by Public Auction, at Point Napean, in the District of Bathurst, on Saturday the 30th of August next, at 11 o'clock, A. M., at Firth's Inn, Licences to Cut Timber, on the waste or ungranted Lands of the Crown, in Upper Canada, on the Tract of Land bordering on the Grand or Ottawa River, above the Chaudiere Falls.

P. ROBINSON.
York, 20*th July*, 1828. a 10

ALLIANCE BRITISH AND FOREIGN
Life and Fire Assurance Company,
OF LONDON.
(Capital—Five Millions Sterling.)

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent to the above Company, at York, he is ready to Insure against loss or damage by Fire at moderate rates of Premium. The high standing of this Institution in England, and the Company allowing their Agents in Montreal to settle losses in this Country, with the Assured participating in the Profits of the Company, renders it worthy of Public Confidence.

R. W. PRENTICE.
York, November 18*th*, 1826. 25.

THE MARMORA IRON WORKS.—The sale of these Works has been postponed until further notice. But, the Wares of the Establishment are offered for sale at 25s. per Cwt. for all heavy Castings, Potash-Kettles, &c.—and at $7s. 6d. per Cwt. for Sugar-Kettles, Hollow Ware, Stoves, &c delivered at Kingston, and Wheat, Flour, and Potash will be taken in payment, at the Current price in that Market—or a discount of five per Cent made for Cash.

Among the advantages which purchasers and dealers in the articles, would derive from giving a preference to the Castings of these Works, are the following:—

First—The Wares are fully of a better quality, in regard to manufacture than those got elsewhere.

Secondly.—They are offered for sale, at prices, at least 25 per Cent under the rate at which the same kind of goods can be laid down in Kingston from Montreal, without taking into consideration the risk of transport.

Thirdly.—From the very superior quality of the Metal from which the Wares are Manufactured, and from the experience already had, by many who have used them for a length of time.—The Subscriber is warranted in saying, that they are by no means so liable to crack, as the Carron, or other Ware of similar Establishments, known to the people of this Province.

Lastly.—The receiving payment in the Produce of the Country, should be considered, an advantage (when combined with the other circumstances above enumerated), of sufficient importance to buyers, to secure a preference for the consumption of a Provincial manufacture, of superior quality and comparatively low price.

The undersigned in the name of Peter McGill, Esquire, the present Proprietor, who has expended large sums, in perfecting the Establishment, since it came into his hands having, as he thinks, clearly shown, that it is their interest, appeals to the Patriotism of the Merchants, and others of this Province, to give aid, support, and countenance to so great and praiseworthy an undertaking. The support required, is simply, to give a preference in their purchases to the Manufactures of Marmora, which articles of daily necessity and consumption—both good and cheap, instead of sending to the United States, and Lower Canada, for Articles of a similar description comparatively of inferior quality, and higher prices.

A. MANAHAN.

BANK NOTICE.—Discount Day, Wednesday of every Week.—Notes offered for Discount, must be put under cover to the Cashier, and left at the Bank the day before.

THOMAS G. RIDOUT, Cashier.

JUST RECEIVED by the Subscriber, and will be sold unusually low for cash, the following consignment, viz:—

200 pieces assorted Canvasses.
200 do. bleached and unbleached,
Cotton shirtings and sheetings.
600 lb. Double Gloucester Cheese.
500 Gallons old Whiskey.
20 Boxes Montreal Soap.
100 Patent Pails.
100 Bbls. Salt.
Each article warranted first quality.
Wm. BERGIN.
York, 15*th August*, } a 10
1828.

A WELL RECOMMENDED Medical Gentleman of sound British principles, will meet with every support in the vicinity of Vittoria, Township of Charlotteville, London District—the center of a dense population. n 9

FOR SALE.—Lot No. 29, and part of 30, in the 7th Concession of the Township of Pickering, containing 350 Acres, and having an eligible situation for a Mill. For terms apply to Mr. Andrews Mercer, York.
York, 29*th October*, 1827 92 tf.

HALF-PAY AFFIDAVITS, of the latest form, for Sale at the Gazette Office.

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.—Notice is hereby given, that Sealed Tenders will be received at this Office until noon of Monday the 1st day of September next, from such person or persons as may be willing to Contract for the Supply of—

One hundred and twenty-five Barrels of Inspected Fine Flour, for the use of His Majesty's Troops &c., at this Post.

Fifty Barrels to be delivered into the Commissariat Magazines on or before the 20th September next, and the remainder on or before the 24th October following.

The Flour must be warranted to keep sweet and sound for the period of twelve months from the date of delivery, which is to be marked on the head of each Barrel.

The Tenders must express the Rate in Sterling, (the Dollar at 4*s.* 4*d.*) Per Barrel.

Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed "Tender for Flour."

Any further information may be had on application at this office.

ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.
Commissariat Office, } c 9
York, 2*d August*, 1828. }

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.—Notice is hereby given, that Tenders will be received at this Office until noon of Monday the 1st day of September next, from such person or persons as may be willing to Contract for the supply of Nine Hundred Cords of Fire-Wood of the best quality, to consist of Black and Yellow hard Maple, Hickory, and Beech, and to be of the following dimensions:—the Stick to be full four feet between the cuts, and the Cord to be eight feet in length by four feet four inches in height, for the use of His Majesty's Troops, &c. at this Post.

The whole to be delivered on or before the 24th day of March, 1829.

The Tenders must express the Rate in Sterling, (the Dollar at 4*s. 4d.*) per Cord.

Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real Signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed "Tender for Fire Wood."

Any further information may be had on application at this Office.

ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.
Commissariat Office, } c 9
York, Aug. 2, 1828. }

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.—Notice is hereby given, that Tenders will be received at this Office until noon of Monday the 1st day of September next, from such person or persons as may be willing to contract for the supply of Ninety-four Gallons of Seal Oil of the best quality.—Imperial measure; and Eighteen pounds of Cotton Wick for the use of His Majesty's Troops, &c. at this Post.—Thirty Gallons of the Oil, and the whole of the cotton wick to be delivered on or before the 24th day of September next, and the remainder of the Oil on or before the 24th day of November following.

The Tenders must express the rate in Sterling (the Dollar at 4*s.*-4*d.*) per Gallon, Imperial Measure (being ⅛ more than the common Wine Measure,) for the Oil, and per lb. for the Cotton Wick.

Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real Signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed "Tender for Oil and Cotton Wick."

Any further information may be had on application at this Office. ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.
Commissariat Office, } c 9
York, Aug. 2, 1827. }

JOHN MURCHISON, Draper and Tailor, respectfully informs his friends and customers, that he has just received from London, a choice assortment of cloths, fine and superfine West of England Broad Cloths and Cassimeres; consisting of Blue, Black, Scarlet, Green, Olive, Brown, Grey, Drab and Corbeau, Single and Double Milled Cassimeres; do. Double Milled Broad Cloths for Great Coats, and vestings of every description, which he is ready to make up to order at short notice, in good style, and on the lowest terms possible. Gentlemen wishing any thing in his line may depend upon being faithfully served.

N. B. He has also a number of Military Articles to dispose of on reasonable terms.
York, July 28, 1828. qr. 8

NOTICE.—The undermentioned new Post Offices have been established in Upper Canada, by the Deputy Post Master General, to go into operation from the 6th of next Month, viz:

Maitland,—Between Prescott, & Brockville,—
SAMUEL THOMAS, P. M.
Guelph,—(35 Miles N. W. from Dundas,)—
DAVID GILKISON, P. M., via. GALT.
General Post Office, }
Quebec, 2*th June*, 1823. } y 6

MILLS AT PETERBOROUGH.—The Grist-Mill and Saw-Mill which have been lately erected by the Government at Peterborough, in the District of Newcastle, will be exposed to sale by Public Auction at Peterborough on the 10th day of September next, at 11 o'clock, A. M. The terms of payment will be,—one third of the purchase money to be paid within one month after the sale, one third at the expiration of one year, and the remaining one third at the expiration of two years from the day of sale, with interest.

The Mill site is most valuable, comprehending a Tract of about 86 Acres. The Grist-Mill has two runs of Stones in operation, and is well fitted for Merchant work, having manufactured more than 1,200 Barrels of Flour this Summer.—The Saw-mill is also in operation.

From the peculiar situation of these works being at the head of the Navigation of the Otanabee River, and in the midst of a very flourishing settlement, the Establishment will be most valuable to any person possessing Capital. It cannot be disposed of for a less sum than £2,000 Currency, but will go to the highest bidder above that sum, without reserve.

A plan exhibiting the situation of the mills, and the Land appropriated for their use can be seen at this Office; and every information obtained by writing to the Honorable Peter Robinson, York.
York, 3*d July*, 1828. d. 5

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

LAKE ONTARIO STEAM-BOAT, NIAGARA, Captain Mosier, with Daniel Read, Sailing Master, Will, after the 15th inst., leave Niagara for Kingston, Brockville, and Prescott, every Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

On her return, will leave Prescott for Brockville, Kingston, York, and Niagara, every Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made with Messrs. Norton, & Co., Stage Proprietors, by which, passengers going down, arrive in Montreal on Tuesday evening; and those proceeding upwards, will, by leaving Montreal on Tuesday, arrive in time at Prescott to take the Boat.
York. June 6*th*, 1828. x 1.

THE British Steam-Packet CANADA, Captain Hugh Richardson, plying betwixt York and Niagara, (Weather permitting.)

Leaves Niagara daily for York, (Sunday excepted,) precisely at 7 o'clock, A. M. arrives at York at half-past 11, A. M. Leaves York daily for Niagara, precisely at 2, P. M. arrives at Niagara at half-past 6 P. M.

TERMS.
After Cabin and Quarter Deck, - - - - - $2
Fore Cabin and Deck, - - - - - - - - - 1
N. B. A gun will be fired and Colors hoisted 25 minutes before starting.

PUBLIC NOTICE.—I require due notice to be given to me or to my Agent, Mr. Alexander Murray, at Mr. Prondfoot's Store, in York, of all transfers of Property in the Steam-Packet Canada, in default whereof I shall consider the original Stockholder, as the legal Owner in the Vessel; and in paying dividends and doing other transactions connected with my situation, hold myself accountable to them alone. HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Manager for Owner } of the Steam Packet Canada. }
York, 27*th December*, 1827. 81*tf.*

N B.—With Mr. A. Murray, reference may be had to all Books and accounts connected with the Canada Steam Packet.

THE SUBSCRIBER being about to enter into a different line of business, begs to return his sincere thanks to his numerous friends and the public, for the past favors and the confidence they have reposed in him for the last ten years; and he trusts that he may enjoy a continuance of their support.

He is desirous of having the affairs of the late firm of Job and Erasmus Fowke settled or adjusted on or before the tenth of March next.—After that date they will be placed in the hands of his Attorney; and that as he is entering on a new business he will not give credit after the 6th inst.

ERASMUS FOWKE.
Port Hope, 1*st January*, 1828. 86*tf.*

ENGLISH STORE.—Just received, direct from England, a quantity of Bobbin Net, Lace, Veils, and Caps, of the first quality; also, an assortment of Muslins and other Goods; which will be sold on the most reasonable terms, by

J. COCKSHUTT.
York, July 14*th* 1828. x 6

THOMAS MOORE,—TAILOR, Front Street, York. Near the Steam Boat Hotel.—Begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has just opened, and offers for Sale, a choice assortment of Goods, Selected by himself at the Manufactories in England, which he can recommend as being of choice quality, consisting of, Superfine, Blue; Black; Scarlett: Green; Olive; Grey and Drab, West of England Broad Cloths.—Black, Blue and Grey, Double and single-Milled Kerrymeres. Forest Cloths. Lasting and Corduroys.—Seventeens; Fustians; Cantons. Jane; Drab, and Striped Brown Drills. Fine Welsh Flannel; White and Blue Flannel. White and Grey Cottons. London printed Calicoes and Chintzes. Fancy Vestings. Printed Muslins. Sewing Silk; Twist; Thread and Rich Gilt Buttons.

MILITARY EQUIPMENTS,

consisting of, Regulation Swords; Patent Leather Regulation Waist Belts, with rich Gilt clasps. Rich Gold Button Epauletts, crimson Silk Regulation Sashes.—Rich Gold Velvet Lace, and Gilt British Militia Buttons. Red, White and Green, Regulation Feathers, with rich Gilt Tubes for do.

The whole of which will be disposed of on reasonable terms, or made up to order, agreeable to the latest fashions, at the shortest notice.
York, 14*th July*, 1828. x 6

NEW WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE.—The Subscribers respectfully announce to the Merchants of York and its vicinity, that they have opened a Wholesale Store, Corner of Market-Lane and Church-Street; where they are receiving a large and suitable assortment of Dry Goods, direct from Great Britain: consisting principally of the following articles:—

Grey and Bleached Factory Cottons,
do. do. Sheetings,
Striped and Check'd Cottons,
Scotch Hollands,
Fine, Superfine, and Brussels Carpeting,
do. do. broad and narrow Cloths,
do. do. Cassimeres,
Bombazettes, Bombazines, and Shalloons,
Says, Lastings, Camblets, &c.,
Tartans and Union Checks,
Moleskins, Barragans and Fustians,
Red and White Flannel,
Chintzes, Calicoes and Furnitures,
Book, Jaconet and Mull Muslins,
Batiste Muslins, Striped, Check'd and figured,
Ginghams, Pullicate and Verona Handkerchiefs,
Cotton and Linen Bed Tick,
Russia Duck, Quabargs, Hessins and Sheetings,
Canvas, Bagging, Dowlas, Drill, &c.
Umbrellas, 26, 28, and 30 inch,
Bandanna, Barcelona, Gauze & Barrage, Handkerchiefs,
Silk Hose, and Habit Gloves,
Black and Green Crape, Veils, &c.
Black and Coloured sewings, Legee Twist, &c.
Galloons, Silk and Cotton Ferrets,
Black and W. Brown Linen Thread, Cotton Spoolls and Balls,
Silk, Cotton, and Merino Shawls,
Cotton Tapes, Bobbin, &c.
Sattins, Gros de Naples, Levantine Ribbons, &c. &c.—

Which they will sell off at very reduced prices, for cash only.

JAMES DOUGALL, & Co.
York, 25*d July*, 1828. x. 7

York Auction, Mart, & Commission Ware-House.
M. & R. MEIGHAN,
Opposite the Market Square,

HAVE for Sale, an assortment of Household Furniture, consisting of Mahogany, Curled Maple and Cherry Tree, Side Boards, Secretaries, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Breakfast Dining and Card Tables, Work Tables, Bason Stands, Feather Beds and Bedding; A London made grand Piano; an excellent Sulkey Carriage; a Mangle for pressing clothes; A Jack for Roasting Meat; A very elegant fourteen day Time Piece with Italian Marble Frame and Glass Shade; Double and Single Barrel Percussion Lock Fowling Pieces and Pistols; Bridles, Saddles, Double and Single Harness; Gilt and Plain Frame Looking Glasses; Some Handsome Vases and chimney Ornaments; an extensive assortment of Elegant Dry and Fancy Goods of every description, Hardware, Jewellery, Crockery and Glassware; Groceries, Tea, Wine and Spirits; together with an Elegant Collection of Books, Stationery, Perfumery, Patent Medicines &c. Regular Auction Sales every week.
York, 1828. x 6.

CHAIN CABLES, &c.—Acraman's Patent Chain Cables, and Anchors, (warranted proved by Machine) a constant supply kept on hand (in stock) of all sizes, by JOHN WATKINS, Kingston, and in Montreal and Quebec by

WILLIAM BUDDEN.
July, 30, 1827. 11–tf.

YORK RACES.

Monday, 6th October.

MAIDLAND STAKES, $100.

ENTRANCE—TEN DOLLARS, EACH, P. P.

To which will be added 100 Dollars; Ten Stone each; Three Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Gentlemen Riders; The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for $200.

SECOND RACE—SAME DAY, $50.

ENTRANCE—FIVE DOLLARS EACH, P. P.

Fifty Dollars added; Weight for Age; 3 years 7st. 12lbs; 4 years 8st 10lbs; 5 years 9st 3lbs; 6 years 9st 10lbs; Aged 10st. Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Jockey Riders. The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for $100.

Wednesday, 8th October.

YORK STAKES, $100.

ENTRANCE—TEN DOLLARS EACH, P. P.

One Hundred Dollars added; Weight for Age; 3 years 7st 12lbs; 4 years 8st 10lbs; 5 years 9st 3lbs; 6 years 9st 10lbs; Aged 10st. Three Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Gentlemen Riders; the Winner of the Maidland Stakes (should he run) to carry 7lb extra. The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for 200 Dollars.

SECOND RACE, SAME DAY; $50.

ENTRANCE—FIVE DOLLARS EACH, P. P.

Fifty Dollars added; 10st each; Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for 100 Dollars. The Winner of the Second Race on Monday (should-he run) to carry 7 lbs extra.

Friday, the 10th of October.

LADIES PURSE.

ENTRANCE, $4.

Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Weight to be Handicapped by the Stewards. Gentlemen Riders.

SECOND RACE, SAME DAY.

Beaten Plate for all Beaten Horses.

ENTRANCE, FOUR DOLLARS.

Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; The Weight to be Handicapped by the Stewards.

STEWARDS.

Mr. C. C. SMALL, Lt. SMYTH, 68th Regt.
Lt. DUFF, 68th Regt. Lt. ELMSLEY, R. N.
Mr. SHERIFF JARVIS,

RULES AND REGULATIONS, OF THE

YORK RACES.

1st. The above Races will commence on Monday the Sixth of October next

2nd. No Horse will be allowed to Start which is not Bona Fide the property of a person having subscribed a Sum not less than Five Dollars, and who resides within Forty Miles of the Town of York All Horses to have been in the possession of the person entering them Four Weeks previous to the first day's running.

3rd. Entire Horses to carry three pounds extra.

4th. Horses to be entered eight days previous to the first day's running, or to pay double entrance if entered subsequently.

5th. That all persons entering Horses are supposed to have made themselves acquainted with these Rules and Regulations.

6th. That half an hour be allowed between each Heat of the same Race.

7th. Riders must ride to the Weighing Post after each Heat to weigh, and be that dismounts before, or wants weight, is distanced.

8th. Horses distanced if their Riders Cross or Jostle, or the Heat to be run again, at the discretion of the Stewards.

9th. When Three Horses have each won a Heat, they only can start for a Fourth.

10th. In all Heats not less than Two Rounds of the Course; the Distance Post to be fixed at the established distance of 240 Yards.

11th. All Money for Entrance or Sweepstakes, to be paid to the Treasurer or Stewards previous to Starting.

12th. That any person wishing to erect a Booth, or Tent, on the Race Ground, shall give notice thereof one week before the Races commence, and pay Five Dollars to the Treasurer.

13th. That the Stewards in all decisions shall be guided by the Laws of Racing as specified in the London Racing Calendar.

14th. That Horses do Start, for the first Race on each day, precisely at Two o'clock.

15th. Not more than Six Horses to Start for any one Race. Those first entered (of course) getting the preference.

16th. No person will be allowed to ride who is not properly dressed.

17th. The Winner of each Race to pay Four Dollars for Besles, Straw, &c. &c.

COMMITTEE.

MAJOR WINNIETT, 68th Regt. HON. J. H. DUNN,
The SOLICITOR GENERAL, Mr. SHERIFF JARVIS,
JOHN RADENHURST, Esq. LIEUT HUEY, 68th Regt
Mr. STANTON, TREASURER.

York, 12th August 1828.

FRESH SEEDS.—Shaker's Garden and Flower Seeds, warranted of the growth of 1827, for sale by

EDW'D. LESSLIE & SONS.

E. L. & Sons expect a quantity of clover seed in a few days.

York, 14th March 1828. 43-tf.

Summary.

The Liverpool Advertiser, in speaking of the new United States Tariff, says—"The duties on the lower qualities of woollens (which are chiefly made at Rochdale, Halifax, &c.) are so enormous as to amount to absolute exclusion. Great quantities of these goods have hitherto been sent to America, and the change therefore, will be very injurious to the British Manufacturer. It cannot be supposed, however, that the coarser woolens will be totally shut out of the United States: The high duties afford so handsome a premium on smuggling, that the goods will find their way into the territories of the Republic from the Canadian frontier. The immense extent of that frontier, and the nature of the country, will afford the greatest facilities for contraband trade; and we have already heard of an instance, in which goods, originally ordered to be sent from this port to the United States, have since been directed to be sent to Canada.

In the House of Commons on the evening of the 24th, Lord John Russel inquired of Mr. Peel, whether the English Ambassador had orders to leave Portugal, and under what circumstances he was to leave it. Mr. Peel replied that the Ambassador's functions had ceased; but that it was not expedient to disclose the nature of his instructions as to leaving Portugal.

Sir Andrew Barnard has been appointed Equerry to His Majesty, in the room of the late Sir William Congreve, and Frederick A. Barnard, Esq. who has been for a great many years librarian to the present and the late King, has been honored by the Sovereign with the Grand Cross of the Hanoverian Order of Guelph.

The Earl of Caledon and the Duke of Albany's own Highlanders, will embark at Gravesend for the Cape of Good Hope, about the 29th or 30th of the present month.

On Tuesday last died, at his seat at Kirdington Park, Oxfordshire, Sir Henry Watkin Dashwood, Bart. Although in his 83d year, his two elder sisters survive him; Elizabeth, Dowager Duchess of Manchester, and Ann, Dowager Countess of Clanwilliam, mother of the Earl of Marlborough. Sir Henry sat in eight successive Parliaments as one of the Representatives for the borough of New Woodstock, but retired on account of his advanced age at the general election in 1820. He is succeeded in his title and estates by his eldest son, now Sir Geo. Dashwood, Bart., who married, in 1815, Jane Ann, eldest daughter of Sir W. Rowley, Bart., one of the Representatives for the County of Suffolk.

The trade between Edinburgh and London is rapidly improving. On Saturday evening week, the Tourist Steam-packet arrived off Newhaven, with upwards of 400 packages, chiefly for Edinbourgh, Glasgow, and Paisley. This was rather above the vessel's room and burthen, and the master placed some of the weather-proof merchandize on deck, and covered them with tarpaulins. This cargo was fully a third larger than the last.

Captain Fuller, R. N., of His Majesty's Ship Wellesley, nephew of Lord Heathfield, has been promoted, by the Lord High Admiral, to the rank of Post Captain.

The St. George Steam Packet from Liverpool to Dublin, advertises to take cabin passengers at the low price of Ten Shillings each.

England.

THE NEW KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON—JUNE 21.

A very numerous Meeting of the friends of this noble institution, to be styled after the above title, was held at the Freemason's Tavern. Amongst the company present we observed, the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, the Bishops of London, St. David, Durham, Asaph, Chester, Worcester, and Oxford, Dr. D'Oyley, the Marquis of Camden, the Speaker of the House of Commons, Lord Bexley, the Primate of Ireland, the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor, Alderman Thompson, Sheriff Spottiswoode, &c

The Duke of Wellington in the Chair.

His Grace rose to address the Meeting, and was received with great applause. The object for which the present meeting was called was for the purpose of establishing the nucleus of a College, in which all the branches of literature and science would be taught, including also a knowledge of the principles of Christianity, as inculcated by the doctrines of the Established Church. [Applause.] It was not necessary for him to detain the Meeting by giving them the plan of the proposed Institution in detail, as that would be explained to them hereafter. It would be sufficient for him to state it generally. The plan embraced a system of education which combined, with a general knowledge of literature and science, a particular knowledge of Religion, Morality, and Religion—(cheers)—together with that species of education necessary to youths adopting particular professions. He need hardly, he believed, at this period of the day, say any thing on the propriety of inculcating such a system of education as that formed upon such a basis. (Hear, hear.)—Although he had not had the advantage of a College education, owing to the particular pursuits in which he was engaged—(tremendous applause)—yet no one felt more than he did the advantage a College was to youth. The promoters of the intended establishment were the Dignitaries of the Established Religion and the Governors of the Church, who were not only willing to support it by their purse, but were also willing to sacrifice their valuable time towards its future management. He called on them to assist in the execution of this great work. Let an effort be made worthy of this great country, that the youth of the metropolis might receive an education by which they would be taught to love the King, obey the laws, but above all be made acquainted with their God—(cheers)—and by being made acquainted with the great principles of their holy religion, be taught to be content with their lot in this life, and to hope through the mercy of God for happiness in the next. (Immense cheering.) His Grace then read the resolutions which we have subjoined, upon which the intended College is to be conducted.

A Committee was then formed for the purpose of carrying the object of the Meeting into effect.

Henry Coldbridge, Esq., Barrister at Law, was appointed Secretary.

A letter from the Right Hon. Robert Peel, expressing his regret at not being able to attend owing to the death of a sister, was read to the meeting.

His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury proposed the thanks of the meeting to His Grace the Duke of Wellington, for his able conduct in the Chair, and his conciliatory deportation in their views—which were given amidst acclamation. His Grace, in suitable terms acknowledged the compliment, and shortly after one o'clock left the Chair, and on his departure was accompanied by their Graces the Archbishops of York and Canterbury, and the Primate of Ireland, the Lord Bishops of London, Durham, Carlisle, and several of the distinguished personages present at the former proceedings. A division was formed at the side of the Hall through which the Duke of Wellington passed, and he was treated with loud greetings and clapping of hands from all parts of the Hall

Shortly afterwards the Lord Bishop of Chester was unanimously voted into the Chair. As soon as silence was restored, from the noise of the congratulations of the Meeting, the Right Reverend Lord rose and said, he wished to address the Meeting on a topic of much importance. Silence was then restored. It has been said, that no persons are to be admitted into the College, which it is the object of this day's Meeting to found, but those who are members of the Church of England. As this report is unfounded, and as I now declare it should, if allowed to circulate, be productive perhaps of some injury, I conceive it my duty thus at once to contradict it. [Hear, hear.] So far from such being the fact, no question whatever, as to the religious opinions held by the student will be asked, and all that will be required of him is to conform to the rules of discipline which will be laid down on that head. [Cheers.] What I mean, said His Lordship is, that he is to be sent to those students, it is not necessary that they shall be members of the Established Church, but they must submit themselves to the rules and discipline which the College, connected, as it will be, with the Church, will impose on the general management and conduct of their minds. [Loud applause]

Several subscriptions were then named, which had been received since the departure of the noble Premier; amongst which the Chairman announced one as being from a Lady, who was desirous her name should not be publicly mentioned, amounting to the large sum of £500. This announcement was received with loud cheering.

The Chairman again rose and said he deemed it his duty to state, that since the commencement of the Meeting the Rt. Hon. the Home Secretary had entered the room—[Cheers] He did not anticipate that the Meeting would have taken place so early, or he would have been been present. He had come that morning express from the country, notwithstanding his recent domestic affliction, in order to be here. [Hear, hear.] The Right Hon. Secretary had, however, evinced his affection for, and attachment to, the proposed Institution by giving a subscription of £300. The Right Hon. the Earl of Aberdeen too, had come to the Meeting too late, noting under precisely the same mistake, and had authorised him (the Chairman) to set down his name for a subscription of £100. [Loud applause]

Further subscriptions were then announced among which were—Lord Selsy, £100; Lord Ashly, M. P., £100; J. Irving, Esq. M. P., £50; Alderman Garratt, £100; the Vicar of St. Martin's in the Fields, £200; T. Wilson, Esq. late M. P. for the City, £50; the Rev. W. Johnson, £100; his brother, £100; Sheriff Spottswoode, M. P., £50; a Rev. Gentleman from Bristol, £200; the Rev. Joseph Hughes, a Baptist Minister, 20 Guineas, which the Right Rev. Chairman declared he wished to direct the attention of the Meeting to, particularly, as the Rev. Doner had wished it to be understood as being a testimony to the value of the Institution, of which he had a full conviction from what he had heard since he came into the room.

Several other donations were announced.

It was whispered in the hall, that it was the intention of His Majesty to present a donation of £5,000 towards the Institution to testify his approbation thereof.

Before the Meeting broke up, the astonishing amount of £20,000, was announced as having been received in subscriptions and donations, and that, notwithstanding, not a single advertisement had appeared for the convening of the Meeting

Among the numerous list of dignified and illustrious donors, we have only space to mention the following:—The Archbishop of Canterbury £1,000; the Archbishop of York £500; the Duke of Wellington £300; the Duke of Rutland £500, the Bishop of London £1,000; the Bishop of Durham £500; a Lady unknown £500.

The following compose the Committee:—Duke of Portland, Marquis of Bute, Marquis of Camden, Earl Brownlow, Lord Bexley, Lord Lyndon, Bishop of Chester, Bishop of Llandaff, Sir J. Nicbol, Vice Chancellor of England, Sir R. H. Inglis, Sir C Price, Sir A. Cooper, R. C Brodie, Esq, W. Sotheby, E. H Locker, W. Ward, M. P., J. D. Poules, W. Cotton, E. Protheroe, Deacon Cambridge, Rev. J. Lonsdale, E. Trindal, Sir H. Halford, Bart., Alderman Atkins, Sir John Richardson, Dr. D'Oyley.

Books for Donations and Subscriptions to be immediately opened at all the Banking Houses.

From the Quebec Mercury of August 12.

By the Lord Gambier, from Liverpool, on the 4th July, which arrived this morning, Gore's Liverpool Advertiser of the previous day has been received, from which we glean the following items of European news:

The only article relating to the Canadas is the declaration of Earl Bathurst in the House of Lords on the subject of the Clergy Reserves; it will be found below.

London, July 1st.—French papers state the Russian Army having crossed the Danube, has had several rencontres with the Turks.

CLERGY RESERVES.—A long discussion arose in the House of Lords on the 26th June, out of the presentation of a Petition by the Earl of Haddington, respecting who were the Protestants for whom the Clergy Reserves were intended. The Bishop of Chester contended they were solely intended for the Episcopal church! Earl Bathurst thought that as one-seventh, and not one-tenth of the land was set apart, it seemed a fair inference that other churches were included in the grant. The Corn Bill after some conversation was read a third time.—Liverpool Paper, 3d July.

On the 16th June, Mr. Huskisson presented a petition to the House of Commons from several Merchants in London, praying for an adjustment of the differences that existed in Canada, and for uniting the Governments of the Upper and Lower Provinces. It was supported by Mr. Robinson, and then laid on the table.

Foreign Intelligence.

FROM THE SEAT OF WAR.

The Turkish Garrison of Brahilow having been reinforced had made a sortie and driven the Russians from their works, making 500 prisoners, whose heads they are stated to have struck of, and sent them to adorn the walls of the Seraglio; this part of the account is discredited. as it is believed the example set by the Emperor Nicholas, on a former occasion, would have induced a different conduct on the part of the Turks.

The fortress of Issakcha, fell into the hands of the Russians on the 11th May, when 85 pieces of cannon and 17 standards were taken.

The Divan of Wallachia on the 4th May sent an address to the Emperor, claiming his protection, and expressing a wish that the Principality should become a part of the Russian dominions. The answer returned by Nicholas was that he had no wish to aggrandise his territories at the expense of his neighbors possessions.

The St. Petersburgh Gazette of the 10th of June, gives the following intelligence in an extraordinary supplement:

HEAD QUARTERS BEFORE BRAILA.

Field Marshal Witgenstein reports that the operations for reducing Braila, which continue with success, will soon be completed, and that the flotilla arrived from Ismail will probably intercept all communication between the fortress and the opposite bank of the River.

Descent of the Fortress of Anapa.

Vice-Admiral Greig reports that the squadron equipped at Sebastopol set sail on the 2d May, but being prevented by contrary winds, calms, and fogs, from doubling Cape Ayoudagh (on the Southern coast of the Crimea) before the 11th, it could not reach the roads of the Anapa till the 14th. On the 15th Col. Perovsky, Aid-de-Camp to His Majesty, arrived in the roads before Anapa, with troops to reinforce those intended to be disembarked; but the wind preventing communication with the squadron, he displayed the greatest skill in preserving for several days the position he had taken up, although surrounded by superior numbers.

In the morning of the 18th the descent was accomplished under the command of Prince Menschikoff, the troops engaging as they disembarked with those of the garrison (from which the enemy had made a sortie supported by Circassian Cavalry) as well as some thousand mountaineers, who had attacked the rear-guard of the weak detachment arrived from Taman. The enemy was repelled with loss on all points.

In spite of the continued attacks of the Circassians, who had some cannon, a battery was formed of mortars and howitzers at 400 sagenes from the walls; a bridge defended by 4 guns being cast across the river which separated our troops from Anapa, we thus obtained a strong position on the left bank.

On the 24th, at day-break, a troop of 3,000 Circassians, having with them two pieces of cannon, attacked a detachment of the troops who had disembarked, but was repelled with great loss by a rapid movement of the 1st battalion of the 13th Regiment of chasseurs under Major Lissetsky. Among the killed, of whom there war a considerable number, the body of one of the most powerful Chiefs of the Schapshoughs was recognised.

Since the docsent the detachment of Prince Menschikoff has had 24 killed and 12 wounded.

After the disembarkation, the Admiral proposed to attack Anapa from the sea, but the weather did not allow its being attempted till the 19th, when a general attack was commenced at 10 in the morning and continued till 1 P. M., the wind then shifting, the squadron was compelled to retire.

Although it has been impossible to ascertain precisely the enemy's loss on this occasion it may be inferred from the appearance of the walls of the fortress and houses that the injury sustained was considerable. On our part there were 6 killed and 7 wounded, and our ships have sustained damage of some consequence.

On the 20th the Brig Ganymede, which had been sent on a cruise, captured in the harbor of Soudjoukale a vessel having on board 200 men sent from Trebicond to reinforce the garrison of Anapa.

The Falcon Cutter, dispatched at the same time, brought in, the day after, a Turkish vessel, also bound from Trebicond to Anapa, with a reinforcement of 118 men. Finally, in the evening of the 22d. the Mercury and Ganymede, brought in two more Turkish prizes, with 17 officers and 622 soldiers on board; so that the total number of prisoners amounts to 940 men, whose arms and standards are also in our hands.

PASSAGE OF THE DANUBE.

The Official Bulletin, from the Camp at Satonnova, of the 8th June, N. S., details the operations connected with the passage of the Danube.

The Commandant of the flotilla, though wounded at the commencement of the action, did not quit his post.—At 11 o'clock, the Turkish batteries, one of which had been undermined and exploded, killing and wounding 30 men, were in the power of the Russians. Eight battalions, and several cannon were disembarked, and the Turks were in full retreat towards the fortress of Isaktscha, of which they set fire to the suburbs. They lost 12 cannons and 2 mortars. Their loss was not known; that of the Russians was less than might have been expected. It was supposed that a bridge would be completed over the river in a few days.

Camp of Satounova, June 11*th.*—The embarkation of the the Russians continued, after the passage of the Danube was effected. The construction of the bridge was carried on with rapidiiy. On the 9th, at 11 o'clock, the remaining suburbs of Isaktscha were consumed by the Turks. In the afternoon, the Emperor crossed to the Turkish side, conducted by the Zaporogue Cossacks, late subjects of the Porte, and after visiting the posts which had been occupied, returned.

On the 10th, a letter from the Pacha d'Isaktscha announced his intention to surrender. He was allowed until 10 the next morning to receive the capitulation offered. On that morning two Turkish Deputies approached to give notice that the terms were accepted, and the fortress ready to surrender. At three o'clock two pachas, Evoul the commandant of Isaktscha, and Hassan who had been driven to take refuge there after the defeat of his troops on the 7th, paid their respects to the Emperor. The town was occupied by the Russians; who found the shops all open, and the inhabitants at their ordinary employments, mingling peacefully with the officers and soldiers.

The Garrison and the two Pachas had permission to retire at liberty. 85 pieces of Artillery, 17 standards, the munitions and provisions of the fortress, which were considerable, fell into the hands of the Russians. On the same day news was received of a battle which took place on the 9th, near Brailaw, between the two flotillas. The Russians had 17 Barks of all sizes; the Turks, thirty-two. The fight commenced in the morning, and was very brisk; but the Turkish Admiral soon struck his flag and after some hours twenty-five other Turkish Vessels were taken, sunk, burnt or run aground. The six that remained took shelter under the guns of the Castle of Matchine. This victory rendered the situation of Brahilow still more critical. The bridge on the Danube was completed. A brigade of cavalry was crossing at the latest advices, and the whole army was to follow.

SPAIN.

Tolosa, 18th June.—By orders received from Madrid this day, all the diposable forces cantoned in this Province are to depart from the frontiers of Portugal. His Majesty receives every day extraordinary Couriers, and it is remarked that he opens himself all the despatches addressed to him.

Madrid, June, 16.—The Council of State assembles daily, and its sittings are prolonged. Nothing has transpired of their deliberations, but as Regiments are seen moving towards the Portuguese frontier, it is supposed this body is deliberating on the affairs of that Kingdom.—It is confidently said that this war will be of short duration will consist of 10,000 men; but the objects it is to be employed in effecting are unknown.—Reforms are making in the civil and military departments

Communication.

FOR THE LOYALIST.

REVIEW of Mr. E. RYERSON'S Letters to the HONORABLE & VENERABLE ARCHDEACON STRACHAN, &c

No. 8.

Comparison and contrast are often more effectual in representing the value or worthlessness of what commonly engages our attention than any separate view of them, however diligent, would manifest—a rule whose correctness we are concerned to observe, when we see the propensities of mankind so equally divided betwixt the care of what is merely external and transitory, and the diligent cultivation of what is unseen, impalpable, and, as we believe, imperishable. Yet however much one may, from time to time, be impressed with the merely external distribution of objects of whose influence it is impossible to be unaffected into an equal or superior attention to what merely engages the faculties of sense, yet our views of their respective merits and value are not changed when we make them the subject of an abstract comparison. Thus, of the mental and moral powers all parts of our nature—how frequently do we find that the former, notwithstanding its acknowledged inferiority, usurps a degree of care and consideration which is often not applied to the latter! that time and study is bestowed upon the embellishments and comforts of one which, if granted to the other, would place it upon its glorious and merited elevation! But a comparison of the two together in their respective natures abstractedly—soon informs us where to bestow the preference. In this we shall discover an inanimate structure which, however exquisite in its formation, and wonderful in its susceptibilities, needs the control and management of another part to put its ingenious mechanism into exercise: in the other, we discover that active power to which the great Creator originally assigned the mastery, and which, indeed, however clogged and influenced by the material part, still manifests its superintendence. In this resides the capacity of understanding which can combine and compare all the vast multitude of simple apprehensions which are gathered from wordly intercourse—which can unite all the subtle contextures of notions and ideas which crowd into that spacious receptacle—which can reduce these crude and confused imaginations into various and salutary systems of arts and sciences—which can trace the remotest effects to their primary causes, and deduce practical consequences from established, though minutely discerned principles—which can cast its thoughts abroad and simultaneously with the effort, reach and embrace the remotest objects in the wide extent of being—which can wander through worlds invisible, pour away into the abodes of spirits, and reach, in its illimitable flight, the Cause of Causes, where fixing its bewildered gaze on the immensity of the Divine Attributes, it sveats back again into its clayey receptacle, with the humbler conviction that as yet it knows nothing!

Yet the capacity, whose powers are so prodigious and whose self-humiliating consciousness of the scantiness of its attainments is not the least valuable of its acquirements,* must be quickened into exercise—those faculties must be awakened into activity, to ensure their uses and benefits. Uninformed and uncultivated, they would have no such lofty aspiration—no such direction of their powers to ends so useful and delightful—as such application of their resources to attainments so grateful and so vast. The truth of this is evinced by the condition of a majority of our species, in whom we know the power to reside, though we discern not its exercise: and discover the capacity, though we cannot behold the superiority to which its right direction would raise them. Nor is it necessary that it should be so—yet it is necessary that there should be some to act as guardians and directors to the rest, and communicate the advantages of the cultivation, though they impart not the full instructions itself—to promulgate the result of inquiries, which a high intellectual cultivation could alone effect, though they impart not all the secondary and intermediate process by which those conclusions were arrived at. Whilst the many, from the circumstances of our local condition, can do no more than make these innate capacities subservient to the more successful exercise of powers merely mechanical: there must be some to set the aspirations which are unconnected with material things and to help the rest enlightened to acquirements preparatory to the fruition of a state where the mortal part of our being is put away.

I have dwelt the longer on the fact that there is of such a cultivation of the intellectual and moral capacities, to induce a more cordial and universal acquiescence in the conclusion, that nothing can be more expedient than such an abode of learning as an University furnished with all the means and appliances that eminency of the mind, and elevation of the spiritual part of our being. And if we seek for arguments a posteriori to strengthen this conclusion, let us turn our eyes to those splendid temples of science which England presents in her Oxford and her Cambridge. What a halo of glory have they spread around their native land—to what a pre-eminence have they raised her in the moral scale of the nations of the world! Britain has reared a well-earned wreath of laurel round the whole round of glory which time shall not impair, from the martial achievements of her gallaur sons; but if we turn our eyes from the monuments of her warlike praise, to her venerable seats of learning, we must exclaim with the poet:

"Cedant arma togæ: concedat laurea laudi."

Majestic Oxford! sweet seat of the Muses, favourite haunt of Science, proud nursery of Divines, Statesmen, Orators, Poets, Philosophers! How fondly does the warm fancy revert to thy illustrious schools—the schools which Alfred planted, which his successors watered, and to which Providence has granted an increase,—schools that have preserved the sacred sparks of knowledge when all around was dark; where the shackles of Romish superstition were first shaken off in our beloved island, and religion began again to flourish in all the loveliness of its original purity; where historians and statesmen had written and planned and secured themselves a niche in the temple of fame; where poets have poured forth their notes that shall wallow'd every spot,

"For here the Muse so oft her harp has strung,
That not a mountain rears its head unsung!"

where Philosophers have penetrated into the arcana of nature, and blessed us by the discovery of its mysterious properties; and where the divine hath gathered all Science's auxiliaries to

"assert th' eternal Providence
And justify the ways of God to men."

Sensible of these advantages—calling to mind the blessings of such institutions—institutions, indeed, to which we are indebted for every fragment of ancient lore which has escaped the ravage of time; and to which we are even indebted for the preservation of the Scriptures and of those testimonies to their truth and genuineness which their illustrious advocates, from age to age, have furnished—knowing all these things, how fondly did we hail the prospect of the establishment of a University in Canada; the settlement here—with the awakened hope of that success which has attended its great predecessors in England—of a "nursery of sons for future years!" Bright were the prospects which the preparatory steps taken for its foundation had conjured up! It excited the hope that many a future flower which, in the shade of our uncultivated wilds, might have blushed unseen, would yet impart its sweetness there—that many a gem, otherwise concealed, would there reveal its native worth—that the valued marble, now unshapen and disguised in the unpolished mass, would yet disclose its variegated beauties there; there, we hoped that lurking talent over the province would be brought into notice and revealed by casual scintillations, would "light up glory through the land"—that there the association of kindred spirit and kindred genius, the combination of diversified ability, would by the effect of emulation and the union of separate strength, ensure all the benefit of Heaven's best prized gifts. But such is the perversity of mankind that the costliest boon we can proffer is sometimes received with distrust or rejected with averson—such is the influence of prejudice antecedently existing or subsequently taken up by the machinations of the popular intriguer; that low, disgustful prejudice which decides without inquiry and concludes without a reason—that, present to them the favor most replete with blessings and advantages, and it is cast away without examination into motive, or search into expediency. It is flung away from rejection to the quarter whence it emanates without reflection upon the right or wrong it involves; but cast off with this general language of mistrust,

"timeo Danaos et dona ferentes."

The Gentleman whose writings call forth these remarks, amongst other arguments against the establishment of an University in this Province on the principles detailed in the Charter, plainly insinuates that Universities are things by no means indispensable; for that the greatest literary ornaments of our maternal country, at the present day, have emanated from dissenting schools! We would have been obliged by the names of these literati: for we are not prepared to concede the pre-eminency thus usurped for them by Mr. Reyerson. At the same time, however, we entirely admit the possibility of, such a thing:

* It brings to mind the saying of the Philosopher: "I know nothing but this, that I know nothing."

though Mr. R. must allow that much of the materia which helped them on to eminency had been furnished by the Universities, and which might have been yet unfurnished were it not for the facilities afforded by those institutions of learning, and not the least, by their wealthy endowments. The Universities must have the credit, under any circumstance, of furnishing in a very extensive—perhaps indispensable degree—the materials and the tools:—the one may be wrought and the other exercised, no doubt, by many a man of native talent with as much success as by those who have been fortified with University discipline. Indeed, the remark of Dr. Chalmers formerly quoted on the indirect benefits of Religious Establishments, seems to be literally applicable to Literary Establishments. Substituting the one term for the other, we may repeat his words that "it is in truth our Establishments (Literary) which have nourished and upheld the taste of the population for Literature;" certainly, the literature of that enlarged and exalted sort which can only be upheld by such establishments. In an University the light of Science blazes with a more condensed and fuller effulgence; and though Science have many an honoured votary and laureled son beyond her consecrated temples, yet they are as stray meteors over the literary hemisphere—eccentric emanations which, however brilliant, are too rare in their appearance to afford alone all the illumination we need.

But the grand objection to the Upper Canada University is, that Church-of-Englandism is to be the only form of Religion recognised therein—a circumstance which gains it the very uncommon charge of having a "partial" character. Grant, that many attempts are made to degrade, nay to annihilate the Church of England in this country; but it is not yet so humbled as not to fling away with scorn the application of sectarism to the national Church of our glorious Empire. It is scarcely credible, that "all the Officers and Professors in the University are required to be of the Church of England." In answer to this we have merely to say that the Charter only requires the College Council to subscribe to the Thirty-nine Articles: and this with the President is to consist only of eight persons; whilst neither the Chancellor nor any other Professer beyond those eight, nor any other Officer or Student in the University are required to make that subscription. It were, however, no hard if the obligation to this subscription was even more extended that the Charter renders incumbent; for by this means a danger would be wholly and effectually excluded which, by the present arrangement, meets with a very serious check. Yet doubtless the College Council will, from the powers entrusted to them, prevent any evil which might possibly result from this limited obligation to subscription in the Professors. It will, no doubt, exclude from the chair of Political Economy a person who professed the religious sentiments of a Mr. Adam Smith, who—notwithstanding the eulogium of Sir James MacIntosh who perhaps did not think it necessary to connect religion with any wordly policy or advantage—seems to have extended his application of Mr. David hume as a man of genius, to a very unqualified approbation of his theological eccentricities † The Charter of King's College will happily debar from the chair of History—however much such might adorn it—a Mr. Edward Gibbon, who, amid the charms of his style and the enticements of his classic taste and acquirements, might insinuate into the susceptible minds of his pupils that anti-christian spirit with which his celebrated Roman History abounds. The Constitution of this Upper Canada University will keep from any department of education a David Hume, who, amidst his subtle discussions on matter and motion, would keep reason and revelation out of sight; and it will exclude from the Mineralogical, Botanical and Zoological lecturerships such literati as the ingenious, but delistical Count Buffon—yes, all the corps of those experimentalists who, from the formation of mineral strata, the process of petrifaction, &c. would prove Moses' account of the Creation as absurd for its physical positions as it is erroneous in its calculations of time. Our respect for the inspired historian would certainly be annihilated by any implied evidence in the doctrines of the said worthies; for they are ticklers for an antiquity to our world as great as that assigned to it by the Babylonians and Egpytians of old!

But—it will be asked—may not these Professors be christians and nevertheless not members solely of the Church of England? As the Charter of the University only recognizes eight subscribers to the Articles of that Church in the College Council, and as there are there three twenty different religious sects in this Province, we would be obliged, on that principle, to consign twelve sects at least to the pains and writhings of discontent and jealousy. The Quaker, with all his taciturnity, might complain of his exclusion from a role in the instruction of the youth of the country; and the Menonists and Tunkers would justly think themselves as well qualified to deliver lectures on morality—adding efficacy to precept from the force of example—as any other of the sects by whose tenets they are linked in union; and invalites, too, of Yonge Street notoriety, would doubtless smypathize in the exclusion of their Chief from an office—say, the premiership over those who "handle the harp and the organ" with their vast family of cognates—which experience proves him so well qualified to fill!

Moreover, if they could all be admitted, and all cause of jealousy and complaint be, by that means, removed: what a Babel exhibition would this assemblage of "Sects" soon manifest! What an arena of polemical theology! what a field for religious disputation, clamour and strife! We verily believe that the College Council, regarding the state of the times, would find it possible as well as expedient to appoint, in addition, a professor of Pugilism! Yet notwithstanding the potency of the argumentum ad hominem we fear the march of Truth, amid such contrarieties, would be in a ratio no greater than the progress of the fam'd Penelope's web—

"scindilur incertum studia in contraria vulgus."

What follows then? that there is to be no religion taught in the University at all? Then we open the most advantageous field in the world for the undisturbed progress of Socinianism, free-thinking and Deism. Then shall a Priestly be most successfully instituting his naturalism; a Socinus promnugating his principles destructive of the Christian doctrine of the atonement; a Hobbes his Deism; a Spinoza his Atheism!

If religion, then, is not to be excluded; and if we cannot reconcile with prudence or expediency, the admission of more

* Vol. Review V. part 2nd.

† Vid. Sp. Horne's Works, Vol. IV. 324, wherein Mr. A. Smith's panegyric on Hume is ably commented on.

‡ That the charge, if applicable to any body, is applicable to Socinus, is evinced in Clarke on the Attributes, part I. init.

than one denomination thereof in the University, is it not natural that the National Church of the British Empire should have the preference? especially when every College honor, and distinction, privilege and advantage—except in Divinity—is accessible to youth of all denominations. As for the danger of their being proselyted to the Church of England, Mr. Reyerson removes that completely by this credited fact gleaned from the Edinburgh Review; that "no lay youth, at College or Cambridge, ever attends or thinks of attending a divinity lecture-room in either university." The remainder of the quotation would only go to shew still more strongly that youth, not designed for the profession of Divinity, would run little risk of being gained over to the Church of England. Mr. R. would probably not have the students dispense with the summons of and if such be a proper—nay, in a well regulated institution, to say nothing of a private family, an indispensable commencement of the day—there surely can be no objection to the forms of the Church of England in pursuing those devotions; especially when Mr. Reyerson himself has ascribed to that excellent compilation all the praise it deserves. This, I need only add, would go as far to proselyte the College students as the daily prayers pronounced in the House of Assembly have tended to convert its Members!

"the Chapel bell proclaiming early prayers:"

We are extremely averse to that backneyed term liberality as above quoted—hem:—and are not less disgusted when we observe the principle which dictates the word, attempted to be supported by precedent and example of acknowledged worth. The Edinburgh Reviewers have fallen very much into this tone of liberality; and in their efforts to reconcile their deep hostility to the established order of things have wrested the last to some similarity with their own notions by very strange misstatements. Their articles upon the English Universities are quite in character with their offensive principles, but they have been met at least with all the force and skill with which they were directed; and, in regard to their accounts of the School system in Scotland, we prefer taking our evidence from the Doctor's own head. In the Christian Instructor"—a work quoted by Mr. Reyerson, who would appear "that the Presbytery has not only the power by law to superintend and visit all the Schools both public and private within their bounds, but that it actually does so." Yet to afford a clearer view of this system in Scotland, we beg to annex the Act of Assembly regarding the plan of education; an in instrument which sufficiently shows that the Parochial Schools are identified in a manner with the Religious Establishment of that Country:

Edinburgh, 22d May, 1711, Session 13th.

"The General Assembly recommends to the several Presbyteriens within whose bounds Colleges or Universities are, to take particular care that all Masters thereof do acknowledge, profess and subscribe in manner appointed by the 6th Act of Parliament, 1707, entitled, "Act for securing the Protestant Religion Presbyterian Church Government;" and to take special notice of what is taught in Colleges and Universities, and that nothing be taught therein contrary to or inconsistent with the confession of Faith of this Church, or to the worship, discipline or Government of the same, and to observe the morals and conversation both of Masters and Scholars, &c."

On these principles the judicatures of the Kirk of Scotland continually act; and it appears that all Masters of Schools, &c. are completely under the cognizance of the Church Courts.

Upon a general view of the plan laid down at the very commencement of these Reviews, only to notice the most prominent points in Mr. Reyerson's Letters—we pass to the last ground of complaint we shall notice: that the civil and religious liberties of the Province will be endangered by the principles of this unnatural strain. So far from its being essentially a Missionary College—which is certainly a benefit and a prominent benefit from it noticed by Archdeacon Strachan—its whole constitution shows that it will be less of a missionary than any University in the Province for the Youth of every persuasion—without one restriction resulting from their religious belief—nay there acquire that foundation of general literature which should always precede the study of theology, and a subsequent preparation for entering the ministry

Poetry.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF BATHOS.

From the London Magazine.

Oh saw you the knight of the blood-red plume,
As he spurr'd his coal-black steed?
The sky as he passed was wrapt in gloom;
And so fast he rode, that he left his groom
At a very great distance indeed.

He comes from the plains of Arracan,
From the wilds of Timbuctoo:
For he slew the Sultan, man to man,
His red plume waved in victory's van,
And he show'd 'em what he could do!

A boy rides with him of sweet presage,
With ringlets all shining and shady,
He can sooth the knight in the wildest rage,
But a good sharp eye which examines that page,
Will shrewdly suspect 'tis a lady.

And the lady she speaks in a foreign tongue,
She was born in a land of fairy,
I ween by her accent you'll guess the spot,
'Tis an accent in sooth that is seldom forgot,
The brogue of her own Tipperary.

But thou, Lord Hilderic, man of blood!
Who usurp'st that lady's domain;
Who didst send in thy ireful and fraudulent mood,
Four assassins, her carriage to stop in a wood,
And pistol her, somewhere in Spain.

Behold her return'd all alive! alive!
And Sir Gawen is come to right her,
Now tyrant, oppressor, confess thee and shrive,
Or summon thy vassals and manfully strive,
For Sir Gawen is a famous fighter.

The trumpeter's breath rends the welkin in twain,
But the red-plumed knight shall answer ye,
Nor think, should thy impious challenge prove vain,
To keep the estate by the law's chicane,
Or fling a bill in Chancery.

Selected from late Papers.

Provincial.

HALIFAX, July 30.

From the New Brunswick Royal Gazette, July 30th.

The following letter, published by request, is considered to be important. By it the point is determined, that American Lumber, cannot be transhipped to any of the West India Islands, from St. Thomas' without having first been duly landed there:—

CUSTOM-HOUSE, LONDON,
5th June, 1828.

To the Collector and Comptroller,
St. John, N. B.

Gentlemen,—I am commanded by the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury to acquaint you with reference to the letter of this board, of the 22d May last, containing orders on the Memorials of Messrs. Cavan and Brothers, and Mr. Simon Taylor, relative to certain Cargoes of Lumber transhipped from American Vessels at the Island of St. Thomas, and taken to Jamaica, where they were seized, that their Lordships have received a Letter from Mr. Lack, stating that the Lords of the Committee of the Privy Council for Trade, see no ground to recommend any alteration in the law in respect to the Importation into the British Colonies, of Goods the Produce of the United States of America; and I am to desire that you will signify the same to the Parties interested in that Trade.

I am, Gentlemen,
Your obedient Servant,
G. R. DAWSON.

Treasury Chambers,
29th May, 1828.

ENGLAND.

The Finance Committee have determined, by a majority of one, that the Sinking Fund, there being no surplus of revenue, was of no use and should be abolished.

The Duke of Wellington met with an accident which had nearly proved fatal to him. He was riding in Conduit Street, when his horse fell, and His Grace's head came within a few inches of the wheel of a waggon which was passing. No serious injury happily resulted from the accident, which is the second the Duke has met with since he has been Premier.

It was generally said that Parliament would be prorogued about the 22d July, and it was expected that His Majesty would do so in person.

In a conversation in the House of Commons, June 24th, on the subject of Emigration, arising from a motion made by Mr. Horton, Mr. Peel said, "that with respect to the question of Emigration itself, he must say that he thought it one of the greatest importance. To the plea of general Emigration he would pay no attention at present, but he thought that a scheme of details for a well regulated partial Emigration would deserve the consideration of Parliament, and its operation would, he was sure, bring much benefit to the Colonies."

The above is from the Liverpool paper of the 3d July, and deserves notice at this moment, as being a clear declaration on the part of the Ministry that they will turn their attention to this important subject; and in this Colony more particularly, as a Resident Agent has just been appointed to superintend this branch of service.—Q. Gaz.

THE FINANCE COMMITTEE.

The Chairman of the Finance Committee presented the Third Report on the 27th June. It recommends that no pensions be granted to Foreign Ministers till after a stated number of years actual service. That no pension to the amount of £500 be granted to any individual having private property to thrice that amount. That no pension to the amount of £2,000, be granted to any individual having private property to double that amount. All persons in public offices to have deductions made from their salaries to form their superannuated fund. Five per cent on such salaries as were reduced in 1822, and ten per cent in addition, on the surplus of such salaries as were not reduced in 1822. The pensions to Widows are to be fixed on the principle pursued in 1822—that is to say, they are to forfeit their pensions if they contract fresh marriages, or if they derive from any source an income double the amount of the pension. The report also refers to some of the Ordnance Estimates.

We believe it is not the intention of ministers to lay before Parliament a regular "budget" this session. A statement of the resources of the country will, of course, be made by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, in his place in the House of Commons, and which will, most probably, take place during the next week: but no budget, we understand, will be submitted till after the Finance Committee have completed their labours. The revenue continues to improve, and all the departments will evince a considerable increase in the present quarter, especially the Excise, in which the improvement will be found to exceed the most sanguine expectations.—Standard, June 28.

Considerable alarm is still felt, as well as great inconvenience suffered by the blockade of Oporto. All direct intercourse with England and that part of Portugal where the greatest mass of British property is accumulated is thus cut off, and the new line of communication, by Vigo and through Spain and the Portuguese province of Minho, is considered very uncertain and insecure. Thus, not only is business interrupted and losses sustained, but, by the situation of affairs in the south, and the acknowledgement of the blockade in the north, no advices can be interchanged between the commercial houses in the two countries.

The gentleman connected with the Oporto wine trade waited upon Lord Aberdeen on Thursday, but only saw his Secretary, Lord Douglas, the minister himself being engaged. They were well received, and having, at the request of Lord Douglas, stated their object in writing, were promptly answered, stating that an application would be made to the Government of the Prince Regent of Portugal, to allow free egress to His Majesty's subjects from Oporto with their property.

London, July 1.—Consols 89¼.

The very great anxiety displayed by Sir James Mackintosh for the Colonies of Great Britain, and the very lively feelings with which he is affected, when any of their grievances or complaints are put into his hands, are thus noticed by Mr. Hushisson.

"The Right Hon. Gentleman had expressed himself desirous of having a Select Committee appointed on this subject. He wished, however, to remind him, that he had also taken an interest in the state of Canada and obtained a Committee for the purpose of inquiry. That Committee, notwithstanding, had not been favoured with either the counsel of the Right Hon. Gentleman, or the light of his countenance, as far as he could understand, from that hour to this. (Laughter.")—Montreal Gazette.

Scotland,

Accident at Kirkaldy.—Further particulars.—On of the first persons who discovered the danger was Mr. Edward Sang. He sat immediately under the longitudinal beam of the gallery, and a small quantity of dust falling upon him, which was followed by particles of lime, he looked up, and observing the whole mass of the floor coming down, as it were in a body, he made a desparate spring forward, and alighted in a passage through which the minister enters from the vestry to the pulpit. By the time he had reached the spot the whole had fallen. A little boy, of about eight years of age, made a singular escape; his mother was crushed against the wall, but held him in her hand. In the confusion she lost her hold of him, and naturally supposed he had perished. But when one of the dead bodies was drawn out, the boy was found unhurt, and rolled up in a manner attached to the corpse. One individual who lost a daughter, had his whole family with him in his seat, which was in the church, and he had the presence of mind to remain till the confusion was over.—He endeavoured to calm the alarm of his family, and to keep them together; but when he reached the door the first object he beheld was the corpse of his daughter stretched on a tomb stone. Another, a tall and powerful man, with a boy by his side, at the request of some others, pushed forward to pull open the bolts of the outer door, and returning in search of his son, found him on the floor trampled to death by the very persons in whose behalf he had so generously exerted himself. His appearance when he saw what had befallen his son is described to have been beyond description heart rending. Sarah Penman, who was before peculiarly unfortunate, having lost her husband and son both by violent deaths within two years, was in church with her son, an infirm lad. She was seen in the utmost agony, crying "My puir object, my puir laddie," and to rush into the densest part of the crowd to assist him. He escaped with trifling injury, but the unfortunate mother was trampled to death, and so dreadfully mangled as only to be recognized by the color of her gown.—Edinburgh Ev. Courant.

In New York, last week, there were 127 deaths—73 men, 16 women, 45 boys, 43 girls.

The deaths in Philadelphia, were 99—adults 31, children 68; 18 of the children died of cholera morbus.

Port of Quebec.

ARRIVED,

August 2...Bark Miriam and Jane, Newcastle, coals, &c.
...3...Brig Horta, London, ballast.
...4...Catharine McDonald, Sligo. 160 settlers.
...4...Brig Toronto, Newfoundland, molasses, &c.
...5...Brig Jane, Workington. 103 settlers.
.....Brig Andrew Newgent, Sligo. 80 settlers.
.....Brig Rose McCroom, Ross. 100 settlers.
.....Bark Henery and Harriet, Bristol, iron, &c.
.....Brig British Tar, London, ballast.
.....Bark London, London, ballast.
.....Brig Earl of Aberdeen, Belfast. 114 settlers.
.....Brig Collins, London, ballast.
.....Ship Margaret, Glasgow, ballast.
.....Schr. Frances Elizabeth, Newfoundland, salt, &c.
.....Brig Mary Jane, do., general cargo.
...6...Ship Abeona, Sidney, ballast.
.....Bark Isabella, Liverpool, do.
.....Brig Procris, do., in do.
.....Brig Ann, Workington. 66 settlers.
.....Brig Anglia, Gloucester. 7 settlers.
.....Brig Union, Dublin. 72 passengers.
...7...Ship Clio, London, ballast.
.....Brig New Draper, Dublin and Newfd. 90 settlers—Landed 46 at St. John's, Newfd
.....Schr. Ann, Arichat. 24 settlers.
.....Ship Huntley, Greenock, goods.
.....Brigantine, St. Aubin, Halifax, rum and sugar.
...9...Brig Majestic, Leith. 64 settlers.
.....Brig Windsor, Dublin. 1 settler.
.....Brig Janet Isart, Leith. 7 settlers.
.....Brigantine Elizabeth & Esther, Bermuda, rum and sugar.
...10...Margaret, Leith, coals.
.....Ship John Barry, London. 24 settlers.
.....Schr. Mary Elizabeth, Newfd., rum and sugar.
...11...Brig Jane, London, ballast.
.....Brig Sugnal, Demerara, rum.
.....Brig John & James, Liverpool.
...12...Ship Lord Gambier, Liverpool, ballast.
.....Bark Keveseley Castle, Greenock, do.
.....Bark Bolivar, Liverpool, do.
...15...Brig Chevoist, Newport, rum.
.....Brig [illegible]hers, Mobile, ballast.
.....Brothers, Cork, do.
.....Brig Thomas Warham. 101 settlers.
.....Brig Rocket, Newfoundland, ballast.
.....Bark Brothers, London, do.

Storage & Commission Ware-House.

THE SUBSCRIBER begs leave to inform his friends and the public that he has purchased the Store-House, Wharf, &c. lately the property of William Cooper, Esq'r., in this Town, where he will receive, store, and sell, on Commission, on the most reasonable terms, all descriptions of produce or merchandize, with which he may be favored.

The buildings are extensive and convenient, being at the head of the Wharf, where all vessels which come into the Bay, principally discharge and take in their cargoes. He flatters himself that the care and attention of the person superintending the Wharf and Store, will give general satisfaction.

There will be for sale a constant supply of Pork, Flour, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Peas, Salt, and Whiskey, also Stoves, Potash Kettles, Coolers, Sugar Kettles, a variety of Castings and Grindstones.

The Subscriber has also for sale upwards of 2500 Acres unimproved Lands of superior quality, in the most flourishing Townships, and convenient to York, which he will sell very low and on easy terms to actual settlers.

WM. BERGIN.

York, February 23th, 1828. 41tf.

NEW AUCTION AND COMMISSION STORE.

Erasmus Fowke of Port Hope, in the prosperous District of Newcastle, offers himself as a General Commission Agent and Auctioneer. His Extensive Stores, Graneries, and Vaults, for Goods or Produce committed to his charge, together with a large Distillery on his extensive premises, and for the accommodation of live Stock, must give great facility for the disposal of all property committed to his charge.

All property given into his hands shall be disposed of agreeable to instructions: the proceeds will be immediately paid soon as received. From arrangements entered into with a forwarding Establishment in Kingston, he will engage to forward any articles of Produce intended for the Lower Province, and will attend to any instructions given for the disposal of the proceeds and make reasonable advances in Cash when intended for immediate sale.

From his long residence, and a perfect knowledge of the Country with the method of transacting business, he is induced to hope he is entitled to a share of public favor.

Port Hope, 1st January, 1828. 3m2f.

P. S.—Any Merchandize committed to his charge from Quebec, Montreal, Kingston, York, or any part of the United States, shall be attended to with the greatest punctuality.

ERASMUS FOWKE.

THE LOYALIST

VOL. I. NO. 12.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY AUGUST 30, 1828.

Miscellaneous.

WHIMS AND ODDITIES IN PROSE AND VERSE.

BY THOMAS HOOD.

A good laugh is worth money at any time; but, at this season of the year, it is absolutely necessary to one's existence. In the horrors of December and its neighbour months, laughter is as necessary by one's fire-side, as a great coat is out of doors. What then do we owe to the man who furnishes us not with one but with whole myriads of laughs—who tickles us until our sides ache, and our diaphragms are fatigued with exertion! In heathen times an altar would have been built to him; and, although now times are altered, nothing prevents us making an offering; and if we did not very discreetly offer him our praises, compliments, and congratulations, we should almost deserve a halter. Mr. Hood is the very prince of punsters; he cuts up words as dexterously as a clever carver would a fowl—nay, more dexterously, for he contrives to help his readers to a merry thought in every morsel. We could dilate on his merits (and they are such as make us hope that "he may die late) but that we should do them and him more justice by giving examples of his excellence; and we therefore hasten to do so, enjoining our readers, if they like the samples, to buy the book; because it contains a budget full of things as good or better than those we show them, together with some woodcuts full of fun, and spirit, and fancy, which are better things than better drawing, and rarer to boot.

The 'Mermaid of Margate' is a triumphant specimen of punning. A most whimsical design of a mermaid with a fish's tail, and the motto 'All's well that ends well,' precedes it.

'On Margate beach, where the sick one comes,
And the sentimental reads;
Where the maiden flirts, and the widow comes—
Like the ocean—to cast her weeds;—

'Where urchins wander to pick up shells,
And the Cit to lay at the shilling,
Like the water gods at Sadler's Wells;—
And the chandler for watery dips;—

'There's a maiden sits by the ocean brim,
As lovely and fair as Sin!
But woe, deep water and woe to him,
That she mareth like Fire and Fin!

'Her head is crown'd with pretty sea wares,
And her locks are golden and loose:
And seek to her feet, like other folk's heirs,
To stand, of course, in her shoes!

'And, all day long, she combeth them well,
With a sea-shark's prickly jaw;—
And her mouth is just like a rose-tipp'd shell,
The fairest that man e'er saw!

'And the Fishmonger, humble as love may be,
Hath planted his seat by her side;—
"Good even, fair maid! Is thy lover at sea,
To make thee so comely a bride?

'She turn'd about with her pearly brows,
And clasp'd him by the hand:—
"Come, love, with me; I've a bonny house
On the golden Goodwin Sand."

'And then she gave him a siren kiss,
No housecomb o'er was sweeter:
Poor wretch! how little he dreamt for this
That Peter should be salt-Peter!

'And away with her prize to the wave she leapt,
Not walking, as damsels do,—
With toe and heel, as she ought to have stept—
But she hopt like a Kangaroo!

'One plunge, and then the victim was blind,
Whilst they gallop'd across the tide;
At last, on the bank, he waked in his mind,
And the Beauty was by his side.

'One half on the sand, and half in the sea,
But his hair all begun to stiffen;—
For, when he look'd where her feet should be,
She had no more feet than Miss Bidet!

'But a scaly tail, of a dolphin's growth,
In the dabbling brine did soak!
At last she open'd her pearly mouth,
Like an oyster, and thus she spoke:—

"You crimp my father, who was a skate;
And my sister, you cod—a maid;—
So here remain for a fish'ry fare,
For lost you are, and betray'd I"

'And away she went, with a sea-gull's scream,
And a splash of her saucy tail;
In a moment he lost the silvery gleam
That shone on her splendid mail!

'The sun went down with a blood-red flame,
And the sky grew cloudy and black,
And the tumbling billows like leap-frog came,
Each over the other's back!

'Ah me, it had been a beautiful scene,
With the safe terra-firma round;
But the green water hillocks all seem'd to him,
Like those in a church-yard ground;

'And Christians love in the turf to lie,
Not in watery graves to be:—
Nay, the very fishes will sooner die
On the land than in the sea—

'And whilst he stood, the watery strife
Encroach'd on every hand,
And the ground decreas'd,—his moments of life
Seem'd measur'd, like Time's, by sand;

'And still the waters foam'd in, like ale,
In frout, and on either flank,—
He knew that Goodwin and Co. must fail,
There was such a run on the bank.

'A little more, and a little more,
The surges came tumbling in;—
He sang the evening hymn twice o'er,
And thought of every sin!

'Each flounder and plaice lay cold at his heart,
As cold as his marble slab;
And he thought he felt in every part,
The pincars of scalded crab!

'The squealing lobsters that he had boil'd,
And the little potted shrimps,
All the hungry prawns he had ever spoil'd,
Gnawed into his soul, like imps!

'And the billows were wandering to and fro,
And the glorious sun was sunk,
And Day, getting black in the face, as tho'
Of the night shade she had drunk!

'Had there been but a smuggler's cargo adrift,
One tub, or keg, to be seen,
It might have given his spirits a lift,
Or an anker where Hope might lean!

'But there was not a box or a bean afloat,
To raft him from that sad place;
Not a skiff, not a yawl, or a mackarel boat
Nor a smack upon Neptune's face.

'At last, his lingering hopes to bury,
He saw a sail and a mast,
And called "Ahoy!"—but it was not a boy,
And so the vessel went past.

'And with saucy wing that flapp'd in his face,
The wild bird about him flew,
With a shrilly scream, that twitted his case.
"Why, thou art a sea-gull too!"

'And lo! the tide was over his feet;
Oh! his heart began to freeze,
And slowly to pulse:—in another beat
The wave was up to his knees!

'He was deafen'd amidst the mountain-tops,
And the salt spray blinded his eyes,
And wash'd away the other salt-drops
That grief had caused to arise:—

'But just as his body was all afloat,
And the surges above him broke,
He was saved from the hungry deep by a boat,
Of Deal—(but builded of oak.)

'The skipper gave him a dram, as he lay,
And chafed his quivering skin;
And the Angel return'd, that was flying away
With the spirit of Peter Fin!'

SALATHIEL.

The "Wandering Jew" of these volumes is a happy husband—a father full of the most anxious cares for his children—a patriot with the most lofty aspirations for the deliverance of his country—a prince leading his tribes onward to revolt against Roman oppression, and striving with all the energies of an untameable spirit to free the land of the patriarchs from the chains of the conqueror. It is only at intervals that his peculiar destiny is present to his thoughts; and even then it requires to be forced upon his view by some miraculous agency, and not by the living evidence of the world constantly changing around him, while he remains the same. The interest of the narrative is therefore very slightly connected with the insulated feelings, except in anticipation, of a mysterious being doomed to outlive his affections, and to have no sympathies with the frail actors of an ever-shifting scene, which is to him an abiding city. This is a spirit-stirring story of an impetuous, lion-hearted, affectionate, generous hero, struggling against his own destinies and those of his country.

The unhappy offender has a strong sense of the misery of his destiny, and he resolves upon leaving Jerusalem, to escape if possible from the recollection of his nameless crime. He flies to the country of his tribe, with whom he sojourns till the excesses of the Romans hurry the people into insurrection, upon their annual visit to the Holy City at the feast of the Passover. From this moment he is plunged into a perpetual contest with the tyrannic power of the Empire, and often lean his countrymen to splendid but fruitless victories. Throughout the narrative the actual condition of the relation between the conqueror and the conquered is depicted with a masterly hand;—and the great variety of customs is indicated with a complete knowledge of this difficult and complicated subject.

There is a great deal of dramatic power scattered through these volumes—sometimes exhibiting itself in impassioned eloquence, sometimes in biting carcasm, and occasionally in a playful humour, in which the author appears to us singularly felicitous. Of the latter description are the 6th and 7th chapters of the second volume, in which a wild and adventurous character is depicted with a vigour and sprightliness quite worthy of the mind which produced the Flibbertigibbet of Kenilworth. For the loftier exhibition of dramatic force, we should particularly point to the interview of Salathiel with Titus, the scene in the Pirate's cave, and the various attempts of the hero to arouse the Jewish people to a sense of their degradation and their duties.

Amongst the fancied domestic misfortunes of Salathiel is the flight of his elder daughter with a Christian Greek. He pursues the fugitive to Rome—is hurried into the power of Nero—escapes from the tyrant at the moment of the conflagration of the city—is tempted into the betrayal of an assembly of Christian Proselytes—and being placed in the arena to witness their martyrdom, has to endure the dreadful retribution of a parent's agony, so spiritedly described in the following scene:—

"A portal of the arena opened, and the combatant, with a mantle thrown over his face and figure, was led in, surrounded by soldiery. The lion roared, and ramped at the bar of its den at the sight. The guard put a sword and buckler into the hands of the Christian, and he was left alone. He drew the mantle from his face, and bent a slow and firm look round the amphitheatre. His fine countenance and lofty bearing raised an universal sound of admiration. He might have stood for an Apollo encountering the Python. His eye at last turned on mine. Could I believe my senses! Constantius was before me!

"All my rancour vanished. An hour passed I could have struck the betrayer to the heart; I could have called on the severest vengeance of man and heaven to smite the destroyer of my child. But, to see him hopelessly doomed; the man whom I had honoured for his noble qualities, whom I had even loved, whose crime was at worst but the crime of giving way to the strongest temptation that can bewilder the heart of man; to see this no-his creature flung to the savage beast, dying in tortures, torn piecemeal before my eyes, and this misery wrought by me,—I would have obtested earth and heaven to save him. But my tongue cleaved to the roof of my mouth. My limbs refused to stir. I would have thrown myself at the feet of Nero; but I sat like a man of stone, pale, paralysed—the beating of my pulse stopt—my eyes alone alive.

"The gate of the den was thrown back, and the lion rushed in with a roar, and a bound that bore him half across the arena. I saw the sword glitter in the air: when it waved again it was covered with blood. A howl told that the blow had been driven home. The lion, one of largest from Numidia, and made furious by thirst and hunger, an animal of prodigious power, couched for an instant as if to make sure of his prey, crept a few paces onward, and sprang at the victim's throat. He was met by a second wound, but his impulse was irresistible; and Constantius was flung upon the ground. A cry of natural horror rang round the amphitheatre. The struggle was now for instant life or death. They roll'd over each other; the lion reared on its hind feet, and, with gnashing teeth and distended talons plunged on the man; again they rose together. Anxiety was now at its widest height. The sword was swung round the champion's head in bloody circles. They fell again covered with gore and dust. The hand of Constantius had grasp'd the lion's mane, and the furious bound of the monster could not loose the hold; but his strength was evidently giving way: he still struck terrible blows, but each was weaker than the one before; till collecting his whole force for a last effort, he darted one mighty blow into the lion's throat, and sank. The savage yelled, and spouting out blood, fled howling round the arena. But the hand still grasped the mane; and his conqueror was dragged whirling through the dust at his heels. A universal outcry now arose to save him, if he were not already dead. But the lion, though bleeding from every vein, was still too terrible; and all shrank from the hazard. At length the grasp gave way; and the body lay motionless upon the ground.

"What happened for some moments after, I know not. There was a struggle at the portal; a female forced her way through the guards, rushed in alone, and flung herself upon the victim. The sight of a new prey roused the lion: he tore the ground with his talons; he lashed his sides with his tail; he lifted up his mane, and bared his fangs. But his approach was no longer with a bound; he dreaded the sword, and came snuffing the blood on the sand, and stealing round the body in circuits still diminishing.

"The confusion in the vast assemblage was now extreme. Voices innumerable called for aid. Women screamed and fainted; men burst out into indignant clamours at this prolonged cruelty. Even the hard hearts of the populace, accustomed as they were to the sacrifice of life, were roused to honest curses. The guards grasped their arms, and waited but for a sign from the Emperor. But Nero gave no sign.

"I looked upon the woman's face. It was Salome! I sprang upon my feet. I called on her name; I implored her by every feeling of nature to fly from that place of death, to come to my arms, to think of the agonies of all that loved her.

"She had raised the head of Constantius on her knee, and was wiping the pale visage with her hair. At the sound of my voice she looked up, and calmly casting back the locks from her forehead, fixed her gaze upon me. She still knelt; one hand supported the head, with the other she pointed to it, as her only answer. I again adjured her. There was the silence of death among the thousands round me. A fire flashed into her eye—her cheek burned. She waved her hand with an air of superb sorrow.

"'I am come to die,' she uttered in a lofty tone.—'This bleeding body was my husband. I have no father. The world contains to me but this clay in my arms.—Yes,' and she kissed the ashy lips before her, 'yet, my Constantius, it was to save that father, that your generous heart defied the peril of this hour. It was to redeem him from the hand of evil, that you abandoned o r quiet home!—yes, cruel father, here lies the noble being that threw open your dungeon, that led you safe through conflagration, that to the last moment of his liberty only thought how he might preserve and protect you.' Tears at length fell in floods from her eyes. 'But' said she, in a tone of wild power, 'he was betrayed; and may the power whose thunders avenge the cause of his people, pour down just retribution upon the head that dared——'

"'I heard my own condemnation about to be pronounced by the lips of my child. Wound up to the last degree of suffering, I tore my hair, leaped on the bars before me, and plunged into the arena by her side. The height stunned me; I tottered forward a few paces and fell. The lion gave a roar and sprang upon me. I lay helpless under him.—I felt his fiery breath—I saw his lurid eye glaring—I heard the gnashing of his white fangs above me.——

"An exulting shout arose.—I saw him reel as if struck; I gore filled his jaws.—Another mighty blow was driven to his heart.—He sprang high in the air with a howl.—He dropped; he was dead. The amphitheatre thundered with acclamation.

"With Salome clinging to my bosom, Constantius raised me from the ground. The roar of the lion had roused him from his swoon, and two blows saved me. The falchion was broke in the heart of the monster. The whole multitude stood up, supplicating for our lives in the name of filial piety and heroism. Nero, devil as he was, dared not resist the power of the popular feeling. He waved a signal to the guards; the portal was opened; and my children sustaining my feeble steps, and showered with garlands and ornaments from innumerable hands, slowly led me from the arena."

Infant Schools.—As this is a subject which has recently excited a good deal of interest in this country, and the benefit derived from their establishment has been made manifest, we take pleasure in laying before our readers the following article from the Greenock Advertiser of the 20th June.

It was reserved for the present century, we are not misinformed, for Mr. Wilderspin, to effect the establishment of schools in which infants from three to six or seven years could receive instruction. On Monday evening, (says the Paisely Advertiser,) we had the pleasure of attending a lecture, delivered by that gentleman, in Dr. Ferrier's church, on the establishment of infant schools.—After pointing out the hitherto neglected state of infantine education, especially among the lower orders, and the very early age at which vicious and improper habits were formed, Mr. W. gave an account of the first establishment of an infant school by himself in Spitalfield, about twelve years ago, and since then of their gradual introduction into various places in England, till at the present day about 300 have been established in various parts and are proceeding under the most exhilirating prospects. He pointed out that their utility rested not solely on the instruction in letters or the increase of knowledge imparted to them at an age hith to passed over disregarded, but in forming proper moral, religious and useful habits, which would material influence the characters of the children in after life. He next adverted to the difficulties which he had to encounter at the commencement, in devising a mode to arrest the attention of the little infants, and their volatile habits to advantage; and detailed the progressive improvements which farther experience enabled him to adopt in his different plans. Our limits will not allow us to give a detailed account of the mode which he now follows, and part of which he exemplified during the course of the lecture, by causing a number of children between three and six years of age, who had been only four weeks under his care in the infant school lately established at Glasgow, to go through several of their lessons, which they performed in a manner that excited the wonder and admiration of a numerous and highly respectable audience; we can only briefly allude to the prominent peculiarities of his system, in so far as they were developed during the night's lecture He had evidently studied the developement of the infant mind thoroughly, and taken advantage of its peculiarities in the formation of his system. He regards infants somewhat in the light of puppets, and insists that they will learn every thing by imitation and illustrated this by causing a number of his pupils to follow him, while he enumerated a hundred, varying the tone of his voice and manner at each ten, and the little creatures certainly played their part admirably. The children attending the school are of course formed into classes, according to their relative attainments: but no books are used till considerable progress has been made. All the lessons are taught by large sheets, till the child is considerably advanced. Every lesson is in rhyme, and that rhyme is the alphabet. On this part of his plan he places considerable stress, and confidently asserts that noting imprints a matter so deeply and so speedily upon the infant mind, as when music is brought to its aid, and that music has charms for the infant mind, of which no adequate idea can be formed, till once the point be tried. Take for example the time each class is receiving its lesson, which is always short their attention is kept awake by having their eye, their ear, their voice, and their hands constantly engaged. One thing he keeps constantly in view, so to blend amusement with the instruction that each lesson bears the semblance rather of pleasing enjoyment, than of disagreeable task, and always succeeds in attaining his object rather through the hold he has obtained of the affection of his little pupils, than by coertion and the dread of which he totally disregards. Each pupil is learning more than one branch at a time, but care is taken that each branch is subservient to the other, and the whole is so linked together, that the practice of the one, contributes greatly to the acquirement of both. Immediately after each class has finished its lesson, they are led out into a play ground which is attached to the school, and the several games and little plays in which they are engaged to engage with all their vigour, are made subservient not only to the promotion of their health and amusement, but also to their instruction, and yet all the while not the smallest degree of constraint is imposed upon them; while in the play ground they are at perfect freedom to do as they choose; sources of instructive amusement are provided for them, but they are never bound to engage in any one of these against their inclination.

The Scotch Bailies and the Cigars.—In the course of the evening his lordship whispered to one of the flunkies to bring in some thing, they could not hear what, as the company might like them. The wise ones thought within themselves that the best aye come hindmost; so in brushed a powdered valet, with three dishes on his arm of twisted black things, just like sticks of Gibraltar rock, but different in the colour, Brallies Bawie helped himself to a jargonelle, and Deacon Purvis to a ween of raisins, and my uncle, to show that he was not frighted, and knew what he was about, helped himself to one of the long black things, which without much seremony, he shoved into his mouth and began to chew. Two or three more seeing that my uncle was up to trap, followed his example, and chewed away like nine-year olds. Instead of this curious looking black thing being sweet as honey, for so they expected, they soon found they had catched a Tartar, for it had a confounded bitter tobacco taste,—Manners, however, forbade them laying them down again, more especially as his lordship, like a man dumfoundered, was aye keeping his eye on them.

So away they chewed, and better chewed and shammelled them round in their mouths first in one cheek and then in the other, taking now and then a mouthful of drink to wash the trash down, then chewing away again, and syne another whammel from one cheek to the other, and syne another mouthful, while the whole time their een were starting in their heads like mad, and the faces they made may be imagined, but cannot be described.—His Lordship gave his eyes a rub, and thought he was dreaming; but now they were bodily, chewing, and whammelling, and making faces, so no wonder, that in keeping in his laugh, he sprang a outton from his waistcoat, and was like to drop down from his chair, through the floor, in an ecstacy of astonishment, seeing they were all growing seasick, and pale as stucco images.

Frightened out of his wits at last, that he would be the death of the whole council, and that more of them would finish themselves, he took up one of the cigars, every one knows cigars now, for they are fashionable among the sweeps, which he lighted at the candle, and commenced puffing like a tobacco pipe.—My uncle and the rest if they were ill before, were worse now; so when they got to the open air, instead of growing better, they grew sicker and sicker, till they were waggling from side to side, like a ship in a storm, and no knowing whether their heels or their heads were uppermost, went spinning round like pieries.—Autobiography of Mansie Wauch.

BRITISH WAREHOUSE.—J. C. Godwin & Co., Wholesale and Retail Merchants, beg to inform their Friends and the Public, they have received direct from England, the following Goods, which they offer low for cash:—
West of England Cloths, the best assortment,
Yorkshire Cloths of superior qualities, assorted,
Kerseymeres of fine Textures, assorted,
Variety of Vest Patterns,
A well selected Assortment of Gentlemens' Dress, and Surtout Coats, Trowsers, &c., made in London,
Imitation Brussels Carpeting, Venetian Carpeting, and Brass Rods,
Upwards of 2,000 yards unbleached Factory Cotton,
Ships' Canvas bleached, Nos. 3, 4, 5, & 6,
Fashionable Tea and Coffee Urns,
Sheet Copper for Distills, &c.,
Brass Crimping Machines, with Hooters,
Brass and Steel Fire Irons, of the newest quality,
An assortment of Cabinet Furniture,
Cast Steel in Bars,
Variety of Woollen and Linen Girth Webbs,
Paints, assorted, first quality,
Boiled and Raw Linseed Oil,
First quality Cognac Brandy, favorite mark Marett,
Fine Holland Gin,
Good old Whisky, by the Barrel or per Gallon,
Port, Sherry, and Teneriffe Wines, of choice quality.—With a variety of other Goods.
J. C. GODWIN & Co.
York, Aug. 25th 1828. x 12

WANTS A SITUATION AS CLERK.—A young man who understands Accounts, and the Keeping of Books—willing to make himself useful in any department. Can produce the most satisfactory references—inquire at the Office of the Loyalist. a 12

WANTS A SITUATION AS CLERK.—A young man who can be well recommended, as to character, who can keep a regular set of Books, by single or double entry.—For further particulars apply to Mr. John Robinson, or to Mr. Bradshaw McMurray, Store Keepers, York.
August 29, 1828. a 12

NOTICE.—The Executors of the late Richard Hatt, deceased, having placed in the hands of the subscriber for collection, all the outstanding Book Accounts, Notes, Bonds, Mortgages and Securities, of or belonging to the said estate.—Notice is hereby given to all those whom it may concern, that unless they call at the office of the subscriber in Hamilton, and settle the amount of their respective accounts, on or before the first day of September next. The subscriber is instructed to commence prosecution immediately after that period.
ALLAN NAPIER McNAB.
Hamilton, Aug. 15, 1828. n 12

Surveyor General's Department.
Depy. Surveyor's Office,
York, 26th Aug. 1828.

ON the 11th September 1828, I will settle at the Surveyor General's Office, all accounts, demands, &c. against me, in respect to the late Survey in Wilmot, Gore District. JOHN GOESSMAN, Depy. Surveyor.
12 s

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.—Notice is hereby given, that Sealed Tenders will be received at this Office until noon of Monday the 1st day of September next, from such person or persons as may be willing to Contract for the Supply of—

One hundred and twenty-five Barrels of Inspected Fine Flour, for the use of His Majesty's Troops &c., at this Post.

Fifty Barrels to be delivered into the Commissariat Magazines on or before the 20th September next, and the remainder on or before the 24th October following.

The Flour must be warranted to keep sweet and sound for the period of twelve months from the date of delivery, which is to be marked on the head of each Barrel.

The Tenders must express the Rate in Sterling, (the Dollar at 4s. 4d.) Per Barrel.

Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed "Tender for Flour."

Any further information may be had on application at this office.

ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.
Commissariat Office,
York, 2d August, 1828. } c 9

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.—Notice is hereby given, that Tenders will be received at this Office until noon of Monday the 1st day of September next, from such person or persons as may be willing to Contract for the supply of Nine Hundred Cords of Fire-Wood of the best quality, to consist of Black and Yellow Birch, Maple, Hickory, and Beech, and to be of the following dimensions:—the Stick to be full four feet between the cuts, and the Cord to be eight feet in length by four feet four inches in height, for the use of His Majesty's Troops, &c. at this Post.

The whole to be delivered on or before the 24th day of March, 1829.

The Tenders must express the Rate in Sterling, (the Dollar at 4s. 4d.) per Cord.

Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real Signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed "Tender for Fire Wood."

Any further information may be had on application at this Office.

ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.
Commissariat Office,
York, Aug. 2, 1828. } c 9

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.—Notice is hereby given, that Tenders will be received at this Office until noon of Monday the 1st day of September next, from such person or persons as may be willing to contract for the supply of Ninety-four Gallons of Seal Oil of the best quality—Imperial measure; and Eighteen pounds of Cotton Wick for the use of His Majesty's Troops, &c. at this Post.—Thirty Gallons of the Oil, and the whole of the cotton wick to be delivered on or before the 24th day of September next, and the remainder of the Oil on or before the 24th day of November following.

The Tenders must express the rate in Sterling (the Dollar at 4s. 4d.) per Gallon, Imperial Measure (being ¼ more than the common Wine Measure,) for the Oil, and per lb. for the Cotton Wick.

Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real Signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed "Tender for Oil and Cotton Wick."

Any further information may be had on application at this Office. ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.
Commissariat Office,
York, Aug. 2, 1827. } c 9

JOHN MURCHISON, Draper and Tailor, respectfully informs his friends and customers, that he has just received from London, a choice assortment of extra, fine and superfine West of England Broad Cloths and Cassimeres; consisting of Blue, Black, Scarlet, Green, Olive, Brown, Grey, Drab and Corbeau, Single and Double Milled Cassimeres; do. Double Milled Broad Cloths for Great Coats, and vestings of every description, which he is ready to make up to order at short notice, in good style, and on the lowest terms possible. Gentlemen wishing any thing in his line may depend upon being faithfully served.

N. B. He has also a number of Military Articles to dispose of on reasonable terms.
York, July 28, 1828. sp. 8

NOTICE.—The undermentioned new Post Offices have been established in Upper Canada, by the Deputy Post Master General, to go into operation from the 6th of next Month, viz:

MAITLAND.—(Between Prescott, & Brockville,)—SAMUEL THOMAS, P. M.

GUELPH.—(35 Miles N. W. from Dundas,)—DAVID GILKISON, P. M., via. GALT.

General Post Office, }
Quebec, 28th June, 1828. } y 6

MILLS AT PETERBOROUGH.—The Grist-Mill and Saw-Mill which have been lately erected by the Government at Peterborough, in the District of Newcastle, will be exposed to sale by Public Auction at Peterborough on the 10th day of September next, at 11 o'clock, A. M. The terms of payment will be,—one third of the purchase money to be paid within one month after the sale, one third at the expiration of one year, and the remaining one third at the expiration of two years from the day of sale, with interest.

The Mill site is most valuable, comprehending a Tract of about 80 Acres. The Grist-Mill has two runs of Stones in operation, and is well fitted for Merchant work, having manufactured more than 1,200 Barrels of Flour this Summer.—The Saw-mill is also in operation.

From the peculiar situation of these works being at the head of the Navigation of the Otanabee River, and in the midst of a very flourishing settlement, the Establishment will be most valuable to any person possessing Capital. It cannot be disposed of for a less sum than £2,000 Currency, but will go to the highest bidder above that sum, without reserve.

A plan exhibiting the situation of the mills, and the Land appropriated for their use can be seen at this Office; and every information obtained by writing to the Honorable Peter Robinson, York.
York, 3d July, 1828. d. 5

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

LAKE Ontario Steam-Boat, NIAGARA, Captain Mosier, with Daniel Read, Sailing Master, Will, after the 15th inst., leave Niagara for Kingston, Brockville, and Prescott, every Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

On her return, will leave Prescott for Brockville, Kingston, York, and Niagara, every Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made with Messrs. Norton, & Co., Stage Proprietors, by which, passengers going down, arrive in Montreal on Tuesday evening; and those proceeding upwards, will, by leaving Montreal on Tuesday, arrive in time at Prescott to take the Boat.
York, June 6th, 1828. x 1.

PUBLIC NOTICE.—I require due notice to be given to me or to my Agent, Mr. Alexander Murray, at Mr. Proudfoot's Store, in York, of all transfers of Property in the Steam Packet Canada, in default whereof I will consider the original Stockholder, as the legal Owner in the Vessel; and in paying dividends and doing other transactions connected with my situation, hold myself accountable to them alone. HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner of the Steam Packet Canada.
York, 27th December, 1827. 81tf.

N. B.—With Mr. A. Murray, reference may be had to all Books and accounts connected with the Canada Steam Packet.

THE SUBSCRIBER being about to enter into a different line of business, begs to return his sincere thanks to his numerous friends and the public, for the past favors and the confidence they have reposed in him for the last ten years; and he trusts that he may enjoy a continuance of their support.

He is desirous of having the affairs of the late firm of Erasmus Fowke settled or adjusted on or before the tenth of March next.—After that date they will be placed in the hands of his Attorney; and that as he is entering on a new business he will not give credit after the 6th inst. ERASMUS FOWKE.
Port Hope, 1st January, 1828. 81tf.

SEPTEMBER TEA SALES, 1828.—The Agents to the Honble. East India Company in Canada give notice, that there will be put up to Public Sale at their Warehouses in Quebec on Saturday the 13th of September, a quantity of Teas equal to about 1,500 Chests & Boxes; and at Montreal on Saturday the 20th of September, a quantity equal to about 3,000 Chests.

Catalogues will be ready for delivery and shewchests open for inspection at each place, for six days previous to the Sale, which will commence at 11 o'clock in the forenoon.

FORSYTH RICHARDSON & CO.
Montreal, 12th Aug., } c 11
1828.

ENGLISH STORE.—Just received, direct from England, a quantity of Bobbin Net, Lace, Veils, and Caps, of the first quality; also, an assortment of Muslins and other Goods; which will be sold on the most reasonable terms, by
J. COCKSHUTT.
York, July 14th 1828. x 6

THOMAS MOORE,—TAILOR, Front Street, York. Near the Steam Boat Hotel.—Begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has just opened, and offers for Sale, a choice assortment of Goods, Selected by himself at the Manufactories in England, which he can recommend as being of choice quality, consisting of, Superfine, Blue; Black; Scarlet; Green; Olive; Grey and Drab, West of England Broad Cloths.—Black, Blue and Grey, Double and single Milled Kersymeres. Forest Cloths. Lasting and Corduroys.—Beverteens; Fustians; Cantons. Jane; Drab, and Striped Brown Drills. Fine Welsh Flannel; White and Blue Flannel. White and Grey Cottons. London printed Calicoes and Chintzes. Fancy Vestings. Printed Muslins. Sewing Silk; Twist; Thread and Rich Gilt Buttons.

MILITARY EQUIPMENTS,

consisting of, Regulation Swords; Patent Leather Regulation Waist Belts, with rich Gilt clasps. Rich Gold Bullion Epauletts, crimson Silk Regulation Sashes.—Rich Gold Velvet Lace, and Gilt British Militia Buttons. Red, White and Green, Regulation Feathers, with rich Gilt Tubes for do.

The whole of which will be disposed of on reasonable terms, or made up to order, agreeable to the latest fashions, at the shortest notice.
York, 14th July, 1828. x 6

NEW WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE.—The Subscribers respectfully announce to the Merchants of York and its vicinity, that they have opened a Wholesale Store, Corner of Market-Lane and Church-Street; where they are receiving a large and suitable assortment of Dry Goods, direct from Great Britain: consisting principally of the following articles:—
Grey and Bleached Factory Cottons,
do. do. Sheetings,
Striped and Check'd Cottons,
Scotch Hollands,
Fine, Superfine, and Brussels Carpeting,
do. do. broad and narrow Cloths,
do. do. Cassimeres,
Bombazettes, Bombazines, and Shalloons,
Says, Lastings, Camblets, &c.,
Turtad Lion Checks,
Moleskins, Barragans and Fustians,
Red and White Flannel,
Chintzes, Calicoes and Furnitures,
Book, Jaconet and Mull Muslins,
Batiste Muslins, Striped, Check'd and figured,
Ginghams, Pullicate and Verona Handkerchiefs,
Cotton and Linen Bed Tick,
Russia Duck, Osnaburgs, Hessins and Sheetings,
Canvas, Bagging, Dowlas, Drill, &c.
Umbrellas, 36, 28, and 30 Inch,
Bandanna, Barcelona, Gauze & Barrage, Handkerchiefs,
Silk Hose, and Habit Gloves,
Black and Green Crape, Veils, &c.
Black and Coloured sewings, Legee Twist, &c.
Galloons, Silk and Cotton Ferrets,
Black and W. Brown Linen Thread, Cotton Spoolls and Balls,
Silk, Cotton, and Merino Shawls,
Cotton Tapes, Bobbin, &c.
Sattins, Gros de Naples, Levantine Ribbons, &c. &c.—
Which they will sell off at very reduced prices, for cash only.
JAMES DOUGALL, & Co.
York, 23d July, 1828. x. 7

York Auction, Mart, & Commission Ware-House.
M. & R. MEIGHAN,
Opposite the Market Square,

HAVE for Sale, an assortment of Household Furniture, consisting of Mahogany, Curled Maple and Cherry Tree, Side Boards, Secretaries, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Breakfast Dining and Card Tables, Work Tables, Bason Stands, Feather Beds and Bedding; A London made grand Piano; an excellent Sulkey Carriage; a Mangle for pressing clothes; A Jack for Roasting Meat; A very elegant fourteen day Time Piece with Italian Marble Frame and Glass Shade; Double and Single Barrel Percussion Lock Fowling Pieces and Pistols; Bridles, Saddles, Double and Single Harness; Gilt and Plain Frame Looking Glasses; Some Handsome Vases and chimney Ornaments; an extensive assortment of Elegant Dry and Fancy Goods of every description, Hardware, Jewellery, Crockery and Glassware; Groceries, Tea, Wine and Spirits; together with an Elegant Collection of Books, Stationery, Perfumery, Patent Medicines &c.
Regular Auction Sales every week.
York, 1828. x 6.

CHAIN CABLES, &c.—Acraman's Patent Chain Cables, and Anchors, (warranted proved by Machine) a constant supply kept on hand (in stock) of all sizes, by JOHN WATKINS, Kingston, and in Montreal and Quebec by
WILLIAM BUDDEN.
July, 30, 1827. 11-tf.

WILLIAM FARQUHAR begs leave most respectfully to acquaint his Friends and Customers, that he has got his SILVER PLATE MANUFACTORY into full operation; and is now ready to receive orders for any description of articles in his line, cheaper than can be imported from England, and equal in quality and workmanship.

The following is a list of articles principally made in Silver:—

Tea and Coffee Setts,
Race Cups,
Mugs and Goblets,
Cruet and Liquor Stands,
Wine Strainers, Mustard Pots,
Salvers and Bottle Slides,
Salt Cellers, Egg Cups and Stands,
Muffineers,
Table and desert Spoons and Forks,
Tea, Coffee, Salt and Mustard Spoons,
Sugar Bowls, sugar Spoons,
Egg spoons, Asparagus Tongs,
Knife Rests, Marrow Spoons, &c. &c.
Any of the above articles gilded, if required.

ALSO,

WATCHES, CLOCKS, & JEWELLERY, PLATE AND PLATED GOODS REPAIRED.

W. F. has on hand, a great variety of GOLD AND SILVER WATCHES, CLOCKS, and a handsome assortment of LONDON JEWELLERY, PLATE & PLATED WARE, and Fancy Articles, of this year's importation, and warranted of the best description—which he will Sell low for Cash or approved Credit.

No. 90, Notre-Dame Street, Montreal, } n 11
16th August, 1828. }

WANTS A SITUATION.—A person who has been in the habit of attending a Store, and wishes to engage with a Merchant in the Retail Trade—Apply at the Office of the LOYALIST.

York, 18th August, 1828. n 11

ELIGIBLE SITUATION.—To be sold, Lots numbers 29 & 30 in the first concession of the Township of Scarborough with their broken fronts on Lake Ontario, situate about Seven miles from the Town of York.—On Lot No. 29, are erected a Log and a Frame House together with outhouses &c. These premises are now in the possession of Mr. Adna Bates, and are an eligible Situation for a Tavern.

Application to be made to C. C. SMALL Esq.
York, 20*th August*, } x 11

TO SAWYERS.—Wanted immediately an experienced SAWYER, and an assistant to take charge of a Mill that has a constant supply of water; and in other respects particularly well situated.—None need apply, who cannot give sufficient references as to character and ability.

Further information on application to Messrs. WRAGG & Co. King-street York. x 11

THE EDITOR OF THE PORT-HOPE MONITOR, begs leave to apologize to his very numerous Subscribers for the delay which has taken place in the appearance of his paper, and assures them that its publication has been prevented only by the extensive arrangements, which he has been making with his correspondents for the purpose of procuring the very earliest and most authentic information on the different political and literary subjects, in order that the Columns of the Port-Hope Monitor may always be filled with matter, the most interesting to its readers:—

The Editor of the PORT-HOPE MONITOR takes this opportunity to offer his sincere thanks to his Subscribers for their support, and to his different Agents for their very kind attention in procuring him so large a List of Subscribers.

Editors of Papers in the Upper and Lower Province, will oblige the Editor of the Port-Hope Monitor, by giving the above advertisement a few insertions in their different papers.

Port-Hope, } J. CLARK.
Aug. 15, 1828. } n 11

FOR SALE:—Lot No. 7, in the 1st Concession New Surrey, Township of Nelson, containing 200 Acres.—The Twelve Mile Creek, passes through part of the Lot, affording a constant supply of Water all the year round, and renders the Lot valuable, for the erection of Mills and Machinery of any kind. The Land is of excellent quality.—For Terms apply to

Mr. COATES, PAINTER.
York, 22*nd August*, 1828. i 11

FOR SALE.—Lot No. 29, and part of 30, in the 7th Concession of the Township of Pickering, containing 350 Acres, and having an eligible situation for a Mill. For terms apply to Mr. Andrew Mercer, York.

York, 28th October, 1827. 22 tf

HALF-PAY AFFIDAVITS, of the latest form, for Sale at the Gazette Office.

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS OF A NEW GAOL and COURT HOUSE at HAMILTON, District of Newcastle.—Notice is hereby given that the undermentioned premiums are offered to such persons as shall furnish the Clerk of the Peace, for the approval of the Magistrates of the District of Newcastle, on or before the 1st day of October next, with plans, specifications, and estimates of a Gaol and Court House (in one building) to be built in the Township of Hamilton, at or near the present Court House—the first story to be of Stone, second and third stories of Brick, to contain Criminal Cells, Debtors Rooms, Gaolers Apartments, Court Room, Grand and Petit Jury Rooms;—Also, Rooms for Offices, &c., such as are usually required in such a Building—the roof to be covered with tin.—The whole expence not to exceed the sum of £5,000 Currency.

Premiums will be awarded as follows, viz:—

For the best and most approved plan, &c.	£15	0 0
For the 2nd do. do.	10	0 0
For the 3rd do. do.	5	0 0

T. WARD,
Clerk of the Peace,
District of Newcastle
Hamilton, Newcastle District, dd 52
10th May, 1828.

Deplorable and Melancholy Catastrophe.—An event without a parallel in the annals of marine misfortune, occurred on board the Brig. "Mary Russell," Captain Stewart of Cork, on her passage from Barbadoes, which arrived in Cork on Thursday. There were on board, besides the master and mate, 8 men and 4 boys; of these, six seamen and a naval gentleman, passenger in her, were found dead in the cabin on Monday morning last, by Capt. Callender, of the Mary Stubbs of Belfast which was also on her passage home from Barbadoes, and spoke the Mary Russel on the above morning, having been killed on the day before by the Captain, according to the statement of the four boys. The cause assigned by the Master to the Capt. of the Callender was, an attempt on the part of the crew to munity, and his apprehension that they would take away his life; but to save himself, that he succeeded in inducing them to be tied in the cabin, each single before another was called down; and when all were thus rendered powerless than he put those seven to death with a-crow bar! The mate and boy Smith, and one sailor named Howes, by some means extricated themselves, and escaped death; after being wounded in several parts of the body. It appears he was in the act of tying the boys also when the Mary Stubbs hove in sight. Capt Callender held by the Mary Russel and saved Capt. Stewart from being drowned, he having leaped twice into the sea for that purpose. Wednesday again, for the third time, he flung himself overboard off Castletown, and was picked up by a pilot boat. A warrant for the apprehension of Capt. Stewart, has been issued, and an inquest held on the bodies of the seven men. We conclude that he must have been under the influence of insanity to have committed so cold-blooded & horrible an act.—Limerick Paper.

Fatal Fire.—A fire took place, in Red Lion street, London, on the morning of the 25th June, when a whole family, consisting of a mother, father and five children, perished in the flames. From the situation in which the remains of the adults were found in, it may fairly be presumed, that both father and mother had gone to their children for the purpose of rescuing them from their perilous situation, and, in this last act of parental affection, they met the most shocking of all deaths.

During a debate on the Alehouse Licensing Bill, Mr. Estcourt proposed an amendment to the effect that there should be no drinking or tippling in an alehouse before or during morning divine service on the Sabbath. Mr. Slaney. Mr. J. Wood, Mr. Hume, and Mr. Lamb objected to the phrase "drinking or tippling," as too indefinite.—Mr. Estcourt remarked, that it had been in use since the time of James I., and was perfectly well understood in law.—The Chancellor of the Exchequer said, that the phrase "drinking or tippling" was expressly explained by act of parliament. It meant drinking in an alehouse for upwards of an hour.

A gentleman, of Belfast, received yesterday a letter from some of the grateful emigrants settled in Canada, for the truly paternal care extended to them by the British Consul in New-York; it may be of use to others intending to emigrate:—"It was a good day for Irishmen that sent the British Consul to New-York; he does a great deal for the poor and disappointed children of Erin."—Belfast Chron.—June 13.

A curious circumstance occurred at the Assizes for the Lower Pyrennees, in France, on the trial of two persons upon the charge of murder. At the end of the first day's proceedings, when the judges, bar, &c. quitted the Court, an altercation arose between the hussiers [a kind of constables or doorkeepers] and the gendarmes, as to which of them should manacle the prisoners, and conduct them back to prison. The gendarmes insisted that it was the duty of the hussiers, and to prove their conviction, they marched away. The hussiers, equally positive to the contrary, followed their example, quitted the court, and left the prisoners alone and unguarded. The prisoners, though their lives were still in jeopardy, and that the crowds in the streets [it being market day] offered them every facility for escape, very calmly walked back to prison, and presented themselves to the gaoler. Here another difficulty arose: the gaoler refused to receive them without being legally authorised by a hussier, and for a considerable time these two men, under a charge affecting their lives, remained, soliciting, as a favour, a re-admission to their dungeons.—This circumstance was, of course, made good use of by their counsel, and the prisoners, against whom the evidence was indeed slight, were unanimously acquitted.

Summary.

Notwithstanding the prodigious size of the whale, such is the muscular power, that it is enabled to move at such a rate as would, if continued, carry it round the world in a fortnight.

Gold and Silver Bullion.—Gold and Silver continues to flow into England, which has now become what Spain formerly was—the great channel through which the precious metals pass into Europe.—Within a week the East India Company have received above £750,000 in gold and silver from Bengal and Bombay. More than a million of dollars arrived on Tuesday in His Majesty's ship Ranger, from Peru, and the Southwest coast of America. The Scylla is also daily expected from Mexico, with half a million.

The sum of forty thousand pounds have been voted by the British Parliament, for Missions to South America.

By the late accounts from London, we learn that the following Gentlemen had been examined before the Canada Committee:—Robert Gillespie Esquire, James C. Grant, Esquire, Agent for the Presbyterians in Canada, Mr. Reyerson, Agent for the Dissenters in Upper Canada, William Parker, Esquire, Revd. Crosbie Morgell, formerly Chaplain to the Lord Bishop of Quebec, Mr. Hamilton, Secretary of the Society for propagating the Gospel, Mr. Stephens, Counsel for the Colonial Office. It was expected that the Report would soon be presented to the House of Commons, and copies of it will probably be received by the next packet.—Montreal Gazette.

Deplorable and Melancholy Catastrophe.—An event without a parallel in the annals of marine misfortune, occurred on board the Brig. "Mary Russell," Captain Stewart of Cork, on her passage from Barbadoes, which arrived in Cork on Thursday. There were on board, besides the master and mate, 8 men and 4 boys; of these, six seamen and a naval gentleman, passenger in her, were found dead in the cabin on Monday morning last, by Capt. Callender, of the Mary Stubbs of Belfast which was also on her passage home from Barbadoes, and spoke the Mary Russel on the above morning, having been killed on the day before by the Captain, according to the statement of the four boys. The cause assigned by the Master to the Capt. of the Callender was, an attempt on the part of the crew to munity, and his apprehension that they would take away his life; but to save himself, that he succeeded in inducing them to be tied in the cabin, each single before another was called down; and when all were thus rendered powerless than he put those seven to death with a-crow bar! The mate and boy Smith, and one sailor named Howes, by some means extricated themselves, and escaped death; after being wounded in several parts of the body. It appears he was in the act of tying the boys also when the Mary Stubbs hove in sight. Capt Callender held by the Mary Russel and saved Capt. Stewart from being drowned, he having leaped twice into the sea for that purpose. Wednesday again, for the third time, he flung himself overboard off Castletown, and was picked up by a pilot boat. A warrant for the apprehension of Capt. Stewart, has been issued, and an inquest held on the bodies of the seven men. We conclude that he must have been under the influence of insanity to have committed so cold-blooded & horrible an act.—Limerick Paper.

Fatal Fire.—A fire took place, in Red Lion street, London, on the morning of the 25th June, when a whole family, consisting of a mother, father and five children, perished in the flames. From the situation in which the remains of the adults were found in, it may fairly be presumed, that both father and mother had gone to their children for the purpose of rescuing them from their perilous situation, and, in this last act of parental affection, they met the most shocking of all deaths.

During a debate on the Alehouse Licensing Bill, Mr. Estcourt proposed an amendment to the effect that there should be no drinking or tippling in an alehouse before or during morning divine service on the Sabbath. Mr. Slaney. Mr. J. Wood, Mr. Hume, and Mr. Lamb objected to the phrase "drinking or tippling," as too indefinite.—Mr. Estcourt remarked, that it had been in use since the time of James I., and was perfectly well understood in law.—The Chancellor of the Exchequer said, that the phrase "drinking or tippling" was expressly explained by act of parliament. It meant drinking in an alehouse for upwards of an hour.

A gentleman, of Belfast, received yesterday a letter from some of the grateful emigrants settled in Canada, for the truly paternal care extended to them by the British Consul in New-York; it may be of use to others intending to emigrate:—"It was a good day for Irishmen that sent the British Consul to New-York; he does a great deal for the poor and disappointed children of Erin."—Belfast Chron.—June 13.

A curious circumstance occurred at the Assizes for the Lower Pyrennees, in France, on the trial of two persons upon the charge of murder. At the end of the first day's proceedings, when the judges, bar, &c. quitted the Court, an altercation arose between the hussiers [a kind of constables or doorkeepers] and the gendarmes, as to which of them should manacle the prisoners, and conduct them back to prison. The gendarmes insisted that it was the duty of the hussiers, and to prove their conviction, they marched away. The hussiers, equally positive to the contrary, followed their example, quitted the court, and left the prisoners alone and unguarded. The prisoners, though their lives were still in jeopardy, and that the crowds in the streets [it being market day] offered them every facility for escape, very calmly walked back to

YORK BOARDING SCHOOL, under the Patronage of THE RIGHT HONARABLE LADY SARAH MAITLAND.—Miss Purcell and Miss Rose, beg leave to inform their Friends and the Public, that their School will re-commence on Monday the first of September.

N.B. the Professor of Dancing is engaged to attend. York, 14*th August*, 1828. c. 10

THE ROYAL GRAMMAR SCHOOL, established at York, Upper Canada, opens again on Monday the 8th of September, 1828.—For Terms, &c. apply to the REV. DR. PHILLIPS, Head Master.

York, 14*th August*, 1828. i. 10

ALLIANCE BRITISH AND FOREIGN
Life and Fire Assurance Company,
OF LONDON.
(CAPITAL—Five Millions Sterling.)

THE Subscriber having been appointed AGENT to the above Company, at York, he is ready to Insure against loss or damage by Fire at moderate rates of Premium. The high standing of this Institution in England, and the Company allowing their Agents in Montreal to settle losses in this Country, with the Assured participating in the Profits of the Company, renders it worthy of Public Confidence.

R. W. PRENTICE.
York, November 18*th*, 1826. 25.

FOR SALE,—Lot No. 12, and East half of 14 in the 3d Concession of the Township of York, West of Yonge-Street,—300 Acres,—the property of Major W. G. White.—Refer to ROBERT STANTON, Esquire, U. C. Gazette Office.

York, 4*th July*, 1828. x. 5

FANCY MILLINERY AND DRESSES.—MRS. GIBSON, from Montreal, respectfully inform the Ladies of York, that his Stock of Fancy Millinery and Dresses, will continue open for Sale at Mrs. Jordan's Hotel, until Monday Evening next, and no longer.

York, 23*rd August*, 1828. s 11

LANDS FOR SALE.—In the Township of Hallowell, Lot No. 46, 3d Concession, North-west side of the Carrying-Place, - - - - Acres. 200

In the Township of Cramahe—
Lots No. 17, 18, & 19, 3d Con. } - - 300
do. 15, 4th do. }

In the Township of Hamilton—
Broken Lots, 29 & 30, 9th Con. } - - 476
27, 28, 29, 31, 32, 34, & 35, 10th do. }
North-east quarter, No. 1, 4th do. - 50

In the Township of Clarke—
Lots No. 16, 17 & 18, Broken Fronts } - - 2000
16, 17, & 18, 1st Con. }
17, & 18, 2d do. }
17, & 18, 3d do. }

In the Township of Darlington—
Lot No. 14, 3d Con. } - - - - 400
8, 4th do. }

In the Township of Pickering—
Lots No. 18, 19, & half of 18, 1st Con. } - - 999
and Broken Fronts, }

In the Township of York—
Lot No. 37, 3d Con. - - - - - 200

In the Township of Gainsborough—
Broken Lot No. 27, 3d & 4th Con. - - 74

Apply to ANDREW MERCER.

PARCHMENT DEEDS,
For Sale at the Gazette Office, York.

England.

Imperial Parliament,

CANADIAN CLERGY.

House of Lords, June.

The Earl of HADDINGTON rose and said he held in his hand a petition from His Majesty's subjects of Lower Canada, of great importance to both Upper and Lower Canada. It was signed by 4,000 persons, and conveyed the sentument of a vast body of the people. The prayer was, to have the lands which had been set apart for the Church appropriated to the Presbyterian Clergy, as well as the Clergy of the English Church, by the 31 Geo. III., the Protestant Clergy were named as entitled to the provision to which he had referred, and he apprehended that the Presbyterian Clergy came under that denomination. By the Act of the Union with Scotland, the Kirk of Scotland was acknowledged as being the true Protestant Religion.—The petitioners complained that no provision was made for their teachers, although circumstances in that capacity went from the United States. This, he thought, was a circumstance which deserved serious consideration. In the United States it was well known there was no United Established Church. The people of Canada would not be satisfied unless they had the advantages of the lands set apart for the Clergy exceeded to the Presbyterian Clergy. The followers of the Established Church were the minority, and therefore this was an additional reason of the dissatisfaction manifested by the petitioners. When the Venerable Lord Grenville introduced the Bill of 1791, he introduced the word Protestant in order to include all the Clergy who were not Roman Catholics in the terms of the Establishment. The whole question respecting Canada was before a Committee in the other House of Parliament, and he trusted that every complaint—the one named in the Petition included—would be examined, and therefore this was an additional reason of the dissatisfaction manifested by the petitioners. When the Venerable Lord Grenville introduced the Bill of 1791, he introduced the word Protestant in order to include all the Clergy who were not Roman Catholics in the terms of the Establishment. The whole question respecting Canada was before a Committee in the other House of Parliament, and he trusted that every complaint—the one named in the Petition included—would be examined, and therefore this was an additional reason of the

The Earl of HARROWBY would not have now offered a single word on the subject, had it not been for the allusion that had been made to an opinion of his noble friend (Lord Grenville). It did so happen that he had had repeated conversations with his Noble Friend on the subject, and had been requested, should it be required, to declare, in the most public manner, what that opinion was. In that Bill, which was drawn up by his Noble Friend, in conjunction with Mr. Pitt, and the greatest pains were taken to manifest what were their decided opinions, and the opinions of the Government—their intention was, that the land Clergy should not be exclusively devoted to the Clergy of the Church of England, but also to the Presbyterian Clergy.—[Hear, hear.] Having in a manner received that commission from his Noble Friend, he thought he was called upon to declare what was the present occasion.

The Bishop of CHESTER thought it was something extraordinary that the intention of the Bill of 1791 should have been so taken, from the Prime Minister distinctly stated a contrary intention, when the bill was before the House. The Right Rev. Prelate then read a passage from Mr. Pitt's speech on the second reading of the Bill, in which that Minister is represented as having said, the Bill was to enable Government to endow portions of lands for the support of the Protestant Clergy of the Established Church."—On that occasion, continued the Right Rev. Prelate, Mr. Fox objected to the principle upon which the measure was founded, and argued that if any provision were made for the Clergy, it ought to be in favor of the Roman Catholic Clergy, and the Clergy of the Kirk of Scotland. The clause which had given rise to the discussion was passed, and the Bill came up to the House of Lords. If the lands were to be given to the Presbyterian Clergy, he certainly should consider the Act as one of spoliation—[hear], for the Established Church of Canada is the Episcopal Church. He wished not to say any thing harsh of the respectable body of men composing the Presbyterian Church, but if they asserted a claim to the lands in question, they had a claim to what was not theirs. The Noble Earl who had presented the petition, has spoken of the Members of the Church of England as being in the minority; this was undoubtedly true, but then it ought to be recollected, that this body of men were more numerous than the Members of any other Protestant sect in the Country.—Without expressing any opinion on the general question of providing for the Presbyterian Clergy, he begged to say in conclusion, that they had no claims whatever on the Lands apportioned for the Protestant Clergy of the Established Church.

The Marquis of LANSDOWNE said that he would not now enter into the general question, the more as the subject was under consideration, as well as other topics connected with Canada, in the House of the other House of Parliament. But he confessed he could not hear the Right Rev. Prelate state what he had, without offering a few words to their Lordships. The reported speech of Mr. Pitt was not likely to be so accurate as conveying the sentiments in connexion with the Noble Lord (Grenville), who, with him, drew up the Bill, as what had been stated by the Noble Lord opposite (Harrowby), whose attention had been frequently called to the subject by his Noble Friend.

Earl BATHURST considered the subject of two great importance to be guided by any declaration of opinions, however great might be the individual. He agreed with the observation that the Protestant Clergy did not necessarily include the Church of England, but it excluded all who were not recognised by some Church [Hear.] The allotment of Lands, in conformity to the Statute of the 31st of Geo. III., he considered as a commutation of tithes. The Church of England was the Established Church in Canada By an Ordinance which subsequently passed, the vacant benefices were directed to be given to the Protestant Clergy, and it never could be intended to be applicable to the Church of Scotland. What he had stated he begged it to be understood that it was not giving a fixed opinion upon the subject; but he would say that the rights of the Church of England were commanding and paramount.

Lord CLIFDEN considered that the refusal to comply with the prayer of this petition might ultimately cause a separation of the two countries. It had been considered by some persons that this colony was more expense than of value to this country, and that its possession might be easily dispensed with; but he (Lord Clifden) considered that part of our Colonial possessions as of much more importance, and therefore viewed the refusal of the prayer of this petition to be likely to increase the discontent which already prevailed to a serious extent in that part of the British dominions, as he perceived from the accounts in the newspapers. The number of the inhabitants there, who were of the Established Religion of the Church of England, formed a very small minority compared with the Protestant Dissenters and Members of the Scottish Church, and it was for the benefit of the former class that the Act of Parliament contemplated at the time of its passing. In Brunswick, too, where the Established Religion was similarly supported, it appeared by a recent report by Griffin, that out of a population of 128,000 souls, only 28,000 were of that religion. He condemned the system which gave the Bishops and other high dignatories of the Church, a revenue grown by length, of time and the various changes in the situation of the countries, out of all proportion with the number of the inhabitants professing that particular faith, whilst the larger number of the inhabitants were either to be deprived of their religious instructors or contribute to their maintenance, in addition to those they already were compelled to support. This subject was the ground-of discontent, and, in the event of another war, its evil consequences would be experienced; but he did not think there was the least probability of a war being likely soon to occur; and the country had only to pray for a long continuance of the like of the Duke of Wellington, so long as he lived, he (Lord Clifden) was of opinion no war would take place. [A laugh]

Lord GODERICH was of opinion that the Act of Parliament did not contemplate the maintenance of the Church of England alone, but that it had reference to the other Protestant sects. His Lordship proceeded to read several extracts from the Act of 1791, and referred to the clause which gave power to the Provincial Legislature to alter such parts of that Act as it should be considered necessary. The words of the Act, which defined the description of Religion to be thus supported, were—"Any Protestant religion or form of worship." And he considered that these words included in their meaning the claim of persons professing the religious faith of the petitioners. The Act clearly contemplated granting provision for the Protestant Church: but when the Act passed there was very few inhabitants in Upper Canada of that Church, in conclusion, expressed his belief that the meaning of the Act had reference not only to those persons of the Scottish Church, but also those of other Protestant faith.

The petition was ordered to lie on their Lordship's table.

IMPORTANT CUSTOMS REGULATION BILL.

The following remarks apply to a bill now passing through the House, altering the duties on certain commodities, and more particularly on two articles, the chief produce of the United States. Let it be premised, that the heavy tariff inflicted by America will cause immense smuggling of British manufactures through the Colonies, and the Colonies, in return, will retaliate. The extensive tract of country will render it impossible to prevent. Let it also be premised, that, for the encouragement of such smuggling, and the employment of British ships, a return cargo from any Canadas is indispensable. Now, as the treasury cannot levy a duty on United States' produce, unless as high a duty be levied on such produce from the most favoured nations, Government have, therefore, selected the two staple articles, Cotton and Tobacco, for that purpose, leaving the duty on Cotton and Tobacco, coming from the British possessions, this return of cargo is likely to be effected; again, as a facility to the cheap introduction of produce from the United States, which where restriction is openly avowed as the ultimate objects of our high Tariff advocates, the Governments of those countries which have relaxed from a similar system, should feel themselves compelled in self-defence, and perhaps we may say from self preservation, to adopt measures that wear a hostile appearance towards this country particularly. We ought not to be surprised at the haste in which the British Parliament are passing an Act reducing the duty on one of our great Southern staples, and that, in lieu of 6 per cent. ad valorem, they propose a duty of one shilling per cwt. on all cotton from their own colonies, let it be the growth of what country it may. If this measure, added to the extensive smuggling over our lines on our seabord, will not lay the axe to the foot of every mast at our wharves, our merchants and ship-builders will show a fortitude of hope beyond any hitherto exhibited by any set of men in any country. The fact now is, that in certain knowledge of the remedless ruin to our navigation, the ship-builders both here and the Eastern States, are looking round for some other vocation, as they must ere long abandon that which has thus far landed beyond any other, to carry this republic towards a point of commercial importance unprecedented in any country. If we are to credit the statement of the British Statesmen, we shall find that the shipping interests of that country has declined during a state of peace, while their wealth increased, and yet we are to bent upon our destruction, that we are lopping off the right hand of our prosperity, while they are in every way endeavoring to recover what they have lost. The conduct of France too, towards England, in refusing the introduction of our produce from the Latter country in April, 1827, gave new life to our carrying trade, and brought about between us and France an extensive and profitable exchange of commodities; but we are determined to cut off this trade also. Desperate however, as our state is, and mad as the "American System" men are we do cling to the belief that time will yet bring about a change of sentiment, and that the Members of the present Congress, at their next Session, will repeal the oppressive section of the late law, and thus strip off the veil from those who pretend to be friendly to the union, and deny being hostile to commerce, while they proclaim through the American Insti-

COMMERCIAL.

THE TARIFF AND ITS CONSEQUENCES.

FROM THE NEW-YORK MORNING COURIER,

7th AUGUST.

Nothing but the most wilful blindness can shut out from the commonest observation, the disastrous effects of the late Tariff upon the general interests of the mercantile community. We lately adverted to the great injury we were sustaining by smuggling, in consequence of the system of smuggling to which it has given rise, and which will extend in amount until we shall have no use for our Shipping. Having, by the aid of the first minds, and the liberality of our Legislature, carried our inland navigation to an unprecedented point of perfection—is it seriously believed by any, even the strongest and most enthusiastic advocates of the "American System," that the great Western Canal, with all its tributaries, were intended for the exclusive conveyance of domestic manufactures? Were they not rather constructed as channels through which to pour to the seaboard the rich and varied products of our soil in exchange for foreign countries? It really seems as if the friends of the restrictive system will not be content until they encompass us with part of the great wall of the Celestial Empire," and exclude us from all traffic with the other quarters of the globe. They advocate a system of policy calculated to draw upon us the ill will of every other Government, and yet are excessively sensitive at what they are pleased to term the countervailing legislation of Europe, and particularly of Great Britain. It certainly is far surprising, that those who restriction is openly avowed as the ultimate objects of our high Tariff advocates, the Governments of those countries which have relaxed from a similar system, should feel themselves compelled in self-defence, and perhaps we may say from self preservation, to adopt measures that wear a hostile appearance towards this country particularly. We ought not to be surprised at the haste in which the British Parliament are passing an Act reducing the duty on one of our great Southern staples, and that, in lieu of 6 per cent. ad valorem, they propose a duty of one shilling per cwt. on all cotton from their own colonies, let it be the growth of what country it may. If this measure, added to the extensive smuggling over our lines on our seabord, will not lay the axe to the foot of every mast at our wharves, our merchants and ship-builders will show a fortitude of hope beyond any hitherto exhibited by any set of men in any country. The fact now is, that in certain knowledge of the remedless ruin to our navigation, the ship-builders both here and the Eastern States, are looking round for some other vocation, as they must ere long abandon that which has thus far landed beyond any other, to carry this republic towards a point of commercial importance unprecedented in any country. If we are to credit the statement of the British Statesmen, we shall find that the shipping interests of that country has declined during a state of peace, while their wealth increased, and yet we are to bent upon our destruction, that we are lopping off the right hand of our prosperity, while they are in every way endeavoring to recover what they have lost. The conduct of France too, towards England, in refusing the introduction of our produce from the Latter country in April, 1827, gave new life to our carrying trade, and brought about between us and France an extensive and profitable exchange of commodities; but we are determined to cut off this trade also. Desperate however, as our state is, and mad as the "American System" men are we do cling to the belief that time will yet bring about a change of sentiment, and that the Members of the present Congress, at their next Session, will repeal the oppressive section of the late law, and thus strip off the veil from those who pretend to be friendly to the union, and deny being hostile to commerce, while they proclaim through the American Insti-

lb. per lb. We are of opinion, that this exception is made on the supposition, that a great part of the Tobacco now in England has been either purchased by Englishmen or an advance to the full value thereof made by English capital. If this be a measure of retaliation, we think its effect will be lessened by the levying of the 3d on manufactured Tobacco only, and not on leaf.

Shipping Interest.—Whether it be owning to the remonstrances of the British Ship-owners, we know not, but an important regulation is included in the above bill. A British Ship, having on board, (whether in use or not) foreign cordage or cables, has hitherto paid a duty of 10s. 9d. per cwt., and on sails £30 per cent. ad valorum, and these duties are levied even on vessels built in the Canadas. By this bill it is proposed, that a British vessel may be navigated, during her existence, entirely with foreign sales, cordage, and cables, without payment of any duty whatever, and that no duty will attach until the same be landed for sale and consumption, in which case a duty of 20 per cent. will be levied. This regulation—passed no doubt to benefit the ship-owners—will cause great clamour amongst certain classes of the community. It happens, unfortunately, that all acts abrogating ancient regulations, and intended for the benefit of the community at large, must, in the infancy of their operations, affect individual interests—and hence the selfish outcry against the most practical commercial statesman, and one best suited to the times, that this country ever produced.

Great Reduction of Duty on Staves.—Articles are perpetually made in the Duties on Staves. Last year (per Act 9 Geo. 4, cap. 56) United States' Staves paid three times the duty they do before passing the Act: the consequence has been evil, and coopers have been greatly inconvenienced. This is to be remedied by the present bill, which says, that not only from the United States "all Staves the produce of or imported from any foreign country, not above one inch thick and five inches broad (there is no limit as to length,) shall pay only one-third of the present duties."

COMMERCIAL.

THE TARIFF AND ITS CONSEQUENCES.

FROM THE NEW-YORK MORNING COURIER,

7th AUGUST.

Nothing but the most wilful blindness can shut out from the commonest observation, the disastrous effects of the late Tariff upon the general interests of the mercantile community. We lately adverted to the great injury we were sustaining by smuggling, in consequence of the system of smuggling to which it has given rise, and which will extend in amount until we shall have no use for our Shipping. Having, by the aid of the first minds, and the liberality of our Legislature, carried our inland navigation to an unprecedented point of perfection—is it seriously believed by any, even the strongest and most enthusiastic advocates of the "American System," that the great Western Canal, with all its tributaries, were intended for the exclusive conveyance of domestic manufactures? Were they not rather constructed as channels through which to pour to the seaboard the rich and varied products of our soil in exchange for foreign countries? It really seems as if the friends of the restrictive system will not be content until they encompass us with part of the great wall of the "Celestial Empire," and exclude us from all traffic with the other quarters of the globe. They advocate a system of policy calculated to draw upon us the ill will of every other Government, and yet are excessively sensitive at what they are pleased to term the countervailing legislation of Europe, and particularly of Great Britain. It certainly is far surprising, that those who fute, that "nothing is more certain than an exchange between two nations, in the temperate zones, of agricultural products for manufactures, cannot be a permanent commerce, except where the country furnishing the raw materials, is either in a Colonial state, or too poor or ignorant for manufacturing."

FROM THE LIVERPOOL ADVERTISER, TUESDAY, JUNE 24.

The American Tariff Bill has now finally passed the Congress, and on the 19th ult. it received the President's signature, which gives to the measure the force of law. From the greatly increased duties imposed by the new Tariff on articles of foreign produce and manufacture, it will materially effect the commerce between this country and the United States. The branch of manufactures which will be most extensively injured by the measure, is the woolen; and there are some peculiar circumstances connected with the passing of the Bill, which will cause it to inflict serious loss and embarrassment on our merchants and manufacturers. It had been stated in the American papers, that by an amendment of the Senate, the period at which the new Tariff was to come into operation was postponed from the 1st July to the 1st of September; and in consequence of this statement, the manufacturers of those inferior kind of woollen which the Tariff goes to exclude, made every exertion to accumulate the largest possible quantity of goods, in order that they might throw them into the market before it was closed. It now appears, however, that the postponement of the operation of the Bill, was only as to the articles of iron and its manufactures, and that as to all the rest the new duties were to be enforced the 1st July. The woolen goods accumulated for exportation to the United States will now, therefore, be left on the hands of the manufacturers, without even the ordinary vent for them; and a considerable quantity, which have been actually sent from this country within the last few days, will arrive too late. They will not reach the United States before the new duties come into operation, and those duties being prohibitary as to many of the articles, the goods must either be returned to this country, or must lie in America till another market can be found for them.

We insert in another column a statement made by Mr. Cambreleng, one of the Members for New-York, to the House of Representatives, when the Bill was before that House, showing the effect it will have on the different descriptions of woolen goods. It will be seen that the duties on the lower qualities of woolens (which are chiefly made at Rochdale, Halifax, &c.) are enormous as to amount to absolute exclusion. Great quantities of these goods have hitherto been sent to America, and the change will therefore be an extremely injurious one to the British manufacturer. It cannot be supposed, indeed, that the coarser woolens will be totally shut out of the United States: the high duties afford so handsome a duty on smuggling, that the goods will find their way into the territories of the republic from the Canadian frontier. The immense extent of that frontier, and the nature of the country will afford the greatest facilities for contraband trade; and we have already heard of an instance, in which goods, originally ordered to be sent from this port to the United States, have since been directed to be sent to Canada. So strongly is this mischievous nature of the new Tariff felt in the Commercial City of America, that the ships at New-York and Philadelphia hoisted their flags half mast high when intelligence was received of the Bill having passed; and the letters from those cities stigmatize the measure in the most unqualified terms.

We confess that we had not till very lately, calculated on a measure so short-sighted and mischievous, viewed merely in regard to American interests, passing the Legislature of the United States. The grand and striking illustration which the annals of that country afford of the advantages of free trade might, one would think, have prevented Congress from recalling that system, and from embracing the opposite system of restriction and monopoly, which the history of so many countries proves to be the bane of commerce. The most indisputable principle of social economy is, that national wealth and industry, left to themselves, will take the most profitable channels of employment; because individual sagacity, stimulated by the strongest motives which can actuate mankind, namely, the necessity of procuring subsistence, and the desire of accumulation is far more likely to discover the employments which yield the greatest profit, than the wisdom of any body of Legislators, however enlightened. But the American Congress has, in the face of its principle, taken upon itself to patronize a certain mode employing capital, in preference to others—and that not a mode which experience shows to be the most profitable, but directly the reverse: for the very necessity of protecting by high duties the woolen manufactures of the United States proves that capital is employed in them to a great disadvantage. Of course the measure will be injurious to the interests of that country: the Americans will have to buy their cloths much dearer, without even benefiting the manufacturer, for he will never obtain more than the ordinary rate of profit on his capital; and their commerce with England must either be narrow in extent, or be of a less advantageous kind.

They cannot sell us their cotton and tobacco without taking some commodity in return; and whether that commodity be gold, or hardware, or any thing else, it must be something which they have hitherto liked less than woolen cloths, and by which they will therefore sustain a comparative loss.

To show the thorough bad principles on which the new Tariff is founded, we may mention that the duties on iron, both in the unmanufactured state, and in the shape of tools, are materially increased.—These being of the character of raw materials, or the instruments for producing other manufactures, the principle is just as vicious as the principle of our corn laws, which tax the prime necessaries of life, and without the apology (in the American case) of a very artificial state of things. The plea for the augmented duty is, that the iron-masters in the United States are suffering from the low price of the material. This may be: but if it is more expensive to raise iron from the American mines than to import it from England or Sweden, the Americans are throwing away their gold through a ridiculous preference for the iron of the Alleghanys over the iron of Staffordshire or Furness. On similar pretences, every country might prohibit the productions of every other country; and the result would be, that they would all be as well off as the man who should, for economy's sake, be his clothier, taylor, shoemaker, butcher and carpenter. For the sake of a fanciful independence, they would incur the utmost possible inconvenience, and, through a selfish desire to engross every means of wealth, would sink into poverty and barbarism.

American Tariff and Welland Canal.—The conduct of the American Government, in passing the obnoxious Tariff Bill, has been the means of calling the attention of Parliament and the country generally to the Welland Canal, a work which has been commenced and considerable progress made in it by a company incorporated in Upper Canada for the purpose, in the year 1825. This Canal, will connect Lake Erie and Ontario, and will be sufficient dimensions to admit the passage of vessels of 120 tons burthen. There are two communications between Lake Erie, the one by the Niagara, which will be finished by the first of November next; the other by the Grand River, which has been contracted for, and will be finished by the first of November, 1828. The capital stock of the Welland Canal company is £200,000, Canada currency, divided into 16,000; shares, £12 10s. each, or £20 American, and £11 5s. British money. At present there are on hand 2467 shares, equal to £30,837 Canada currency. These will, no doubt, be all subscribed for in a very short time: but there can be no doubt of the completion of this gigantic undertaking, as Government views it with a very favorably interest, and would if necessary, aid the company by a loan of money. Mr. Richard Dawson, share-broker, is furnished with maps and prospectuses, and he will give every information on the subject to capatalists who may be desirous of investing money in shares. The subscribers in this Country comprise noblemen and gentlemen of the first respectability, including several Members of His Majesty's Government,—Liverpool Advertiser.

Foreign Intelligence.

The French Navy, of which the Duke of Angoulême is the High Admiral, consists of 10 Vice Admirals, 20 Rear Admirals, 75 Captains, 115 Commanders of frigates, 198 Lieut. 245 Ensigns, and 180 Cadets. It forms a total force of 29,620 officers and men, of which 1,320 officers are employed on the General Staff, as engineers, or on quarantine duties in the ports, &c. There are 9,500 marines of the Royal Guard, 3,000 are employed in the administration, centrale, and 15,000 officers and sailors afloat.

On the 1st of January 1828, the French Navy will be composed of:—Line of battle ships 56, frigates 85, sloops of war 7 brigs 23, gun boats 60, schooners 95, cutters &c. 13, floating batteries 27 steam-boats 8 cutters of 800 tons 11, lighter vessels 32, transports 4, yatches 2.—Total, 319.

There are several other vessels building in the dockyards, of Cherbourg, Brest, L'Orient, Rochefort, and Toulon, and much activity prevails just now in the maritime provinces in getting vessels ready for sea.

Colonial.

Captain Fitt, of the Brigantine Malvina, has just communicated to us the melancholy intelligence of the death of the Hon. John O'Driscol, Chief Justice of Dominica. He died at Roseau, about midnight, on Tuesday last, and was buried on the following day.—His funeral was attended by his Excellency the Governor, and by the principal inhabitants of the Island.—Grenada Gazette, June 7.

We have this week the melancholy task of announcing the death of the Rev. Pere Jeane de la boz Kimeau, Curate and Vicar General of the Roman Catholic Church, occasioned by one of those dreadful accidents which appal the imagination. It appears that the Reverend Priest, on Wednesday afternoon, taking his usual evening's ride, went up the road to Babillard Gutter, and instead of turning to enter the pasture, had chosen to take a different turn of the road, which had been left in a very bad state—after proceeding for some distance he came to where it was impassible; it is supposed he must have attempted to turn his horse, and, in so doing, both horse and rider fell down a precipice of nearly 300 feet perpendicular height, and were found by the next morning dead at the bottom of the cliff—the horse's neck was found on the body, and returned a verdict of "Accidental death." The funeral took place yesterday and was attended by his Excellency and staff, his Honor the Chief Justice, the Rev H. C. C. Newman, and by the most numerous concourse of inhabitants ever witnessed on such an occasion. The universal desire of paying a last tribute of respect to the remains of the Rev. Pere, showed plainer than any words, the general esteem in which he was held by the community, and we believe that few proprietors or attornies of estates, possessing Roman Catholic slaves, would withhold their testimony of the great moral improvement that his exhortations and precepts have produced on that population.—The Rev. Vicar was in his 60th year when he was suddenly summoned to eternity in the tragic manner we have related above.—Dominica Colonial, May 10.

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, AUGUST 30, 1828.

The William, thirty-three days from Greenock has arrived at Quebec, bringing dates from thence to 15th, and from London to the 12th of July.—Yesterday we received the Quebec Star of 30th, and Montreal Gazette of 21st instant, from which we select the following items brought by this arrival:—

"The Ordnance Estimates were moved in a Committee of supply on the 7th July. Upon the vote for continuing the works for the defence of the Canadas, some discussion arose, but the question was carried by a large majority.

From the London Gazette of Friday

"Crown Office, July 11.—Member returned to serve in the present Parliament.

County of Clare.—Daniel O'Connell of Darnnane Abby, in the County of Kerry, Esq in the room of the Right Honourable William Vesey Fitzgerald, who has accepted the office of the President of the Committee of Council for the affairs of Trade and Foreign Plantations.

"The return to the writ for the election of a Knight to serve in Parliament for the County of Clare, was only received on Tuesday at the Crown Office, London, from the Hanaper Office Dublin. We believe that the return to the writ must be a simple return, stating nothing more than such a person has been duly elected. But in this return there is a special matter set forth, and the sheriff giving an explanation of his motives travels out of the record of his duty. He tells the House that he has returned Daniel O'Connell as duly elected, but that he said O'Connell is a Catholic, and as such his return has been protested against by certain freeholders. If that were admitted as a proper return, the House would be entrapped in limine into the admission that a Catholic may be duly elected. The course, it is rumoured, is likely to be pursued under these circumstances will be that Mr. Speaker will acquaint the House that the return to the writ for the election of a Knight to sit in the parliament for Clare is informal, inasmuch as it contains irrelevant matter. The return must therefore be sent back to the sheriff to be amended."—Courier.

"In giving a summary of the Second Report of the Finance Committee yesterday, the grounds assigned for the abolition of the office of Lieutenant General of the Ordnance was accidentally omitted in our notice. The expenditure in Canada the Committee strongly recommended to the consideration of Parliament, as a separate subject of Legislative inquiry."—Ib.

PORTUGAL.

'Accounts have been received from Oporto to the 30th June, which convey intelligence of the most adverse complexion to the Constitutional cause: but as the details are exceedingly imperfect and contradictory, little more than this can be collected from them. The time during which the Constitutionalists had lingered in their advance on Lisbon, had enabled Don Miguel to recover from the alarm into which their array had thrown him and to concentrate his forces against them. A battle, it appears was fought on the 28th, in which the Constitutionalists were completely routed, and among the first of the fugitives who had arrived at Oporto, was Count Taipa, who held a leading, if not the chief Command. This last intelligence from that city, written at midnight of the 30th June, expresses the fears of the writer that the enemy was at hand and that all further resistance would be fruitless.

"The Russians and Turks do not appear to have yet entered seriously into warlike engagements. They seem mutually to eye each other, without either daring to strike the first blow."

The Debate which took place in the House of Lords on the subject of the Clergy Reserves in Canada, we have copied from the Albion. It may be observed that the opinion, previously said to have been expressed by Lord Bathurst, with respect to this appropriation, does not appear in this report of the Debate. His Lordship on the contrary appears to have abstained in a marked manner from offering any conclusive opinion on this occasion. On reference to the Statute, it will be seen that the expression said to have been used by Lord Goderich—"any Protestant religious form or mode of worship",—does not occur in any part of it. The 42d Clause which is restrictive in its provisions, among other matters, secures the "enjoyment and exercise" of "any religious form or mode of worship—while at the same time "the Establishment and discipline of the Church of England, amongst the Ministers and Members thereof," is as distinctly secured.

If, as it is stated, it was the intention of Mr. Pitt, that others were to have a share in the appropriation it would appear extraordinary, that no mention whatever is made of any other. To suppose that he intended all to partake, and yet should forget all, but one, when pointing out the mode of appropriation, must appear extraordinary. As the Law now stands, the question admits of little doubt.—If its provisions are deemed to be inexpedient, the only remedy, is to repeal or amend them.—Mr. Huskisson has expressed his opinion as to the right which the Imperial Parliament have to alter or amend the 31st of the late King, commonly called the Constitutional Act of Upper Canada. The brief style of "Constitutional Committee," of which Dr Baldwin is Chairman, differ however, in opinion with Mr. Huskisson, and while they solicit his support, to their petition for a redress of grievances, tell him most plainly, that he is "mistaken" in the views he entertains.

It was expected that the Committee of the House of Commons on "Canada" affairs, would make their report before the close of the Session. We may therefore expect that we shall have it in our power, at an early period, to communicate its contents to our readers.

It will be seen that some further important changes are contemplated by the British Parliament, in the Customs Law.—These it is said have been suggested in consequence of the passing of the New Tariff in the United States, which is regarded in England as a very extraordinary measure.—The changes will have the effect of increasing the Transit trade of the Canadas, and our neighbors may yet learn, that by their desire to exclude British manufactories from their market, they have taken the most effectual measure to injure their Shipping Interest, of which loud complaints are already heard from different parts of the Union. The very liberal spirit in which the Commerce of Great Britain is carried on with all the world, has not been met on the part of the United States in the manner which might have been expected. She refused in the first instance to place her trade on the footing of reciprocity tendered to her, as well as to all other countries, by Great Britain. Failing in her attempts to secure a Trade to herself, in which she should possess more than a due share of advantage, she now endeavors by a species of commercial suibahness to establish a system by which the profits shall be all her own.—In this as well as the other, she cannot but be disappointed, and the products of her Soil, must now find their way to British Markets, through British possessions, to the manifest injury of her maritime and agricultural interests.

Casualties.—On Sunday morning, the 17th instant, Mr. John M'Kerlie set out from the house of Mr. Rose to visit a friend in Stamford in a bad state of health, (Mr. Thomas M'Mickling,) who lives more than a mile distant—he was found dead in the road between Mr. Micking's house and barn, on the forenoon of that day.

On the evening of the 23rd instant, Mr. George Paterson having been in a deranged state of mind for some days, occasioned by a fever, had been asking for a drink; he was in an upper room, and while his wife went to procure him a drink, he made his way out of a window, over shed. Diligent search was made for him all night, but no tidings of him could be found till the next morning, when the body was found in a well near the premises. The probability is, that in attempting to draw water out of the well, by his being over balanced, he pitched over the crib into the well. Mr. Paterson has been a resident in this Town for two years—has left wife and four children, in, we believe, indigent circumstances. He was a cabinet maker, late from Ireland, and said to be a very honest, industrious man.—Gleaner.

Extraordinary steed Trot.—In the Township of Beverly, in the District, near to Mr. Bliss's Tavern, on the Waterloo road, is to be seen, perhaps the finest known tree in the world.—It is an oak, measuring at its trunk thirty feet in circumference, and rising in one perfect column without a branch at least fifty feet. Gore Gazette.

It will be perceived, that William Lyon McKenzie, has succeeded as one of the Members for the County of York.

This must certainly surprise reflecting men, that under the reign of a British Monarch, the state of the country should be in such a state, as to give literary pretensions—if no other talents than those of a sycophantic demagogue, should so far get the voice of the people, as to be placed within the pale of a Legislature.—Buffalo Republican.

We are enabled to give our readers a full and complete return of the members elected to serve in the 10th Provincial Parliament.

With some of our brother Editors it appears to be a matter of exultation that only three of the present members were among those who voted for the Naturalization Bill of 1826. This, it would seem, was the touchstone by which the Electors tried the conduct of their late Representatives. If true, it seems to prove most satisfactorily, how easily the people of this Province are gulled by the clamours and noise of a few discontented and factious individuals. The advantages to be derived by the people of this Province under the provisions of the present law, are in no wise comparable with those which they would have experienced under the proposed one: although nothing has been said by the true friends of the country against it, in order to excite a feeling in the country. We shall, for the present, mention only one circumstance, which may, perhaps, assist in dispelling the delusion under which some people labor. In 1827 two Acts were proposed—the one relating to Naturalization, and the rights of persons Naturalized to hold Lands, the other relating entirely to real Estates, by which the titles to Lands held by British subjects were not to be questioned by reason of the country from whom the same may have passed having been an Alien.

The two objects are proposed to be embraced in the present law, but there is no provision therein effecting the latter object. So that the title of any natural-born subject to any Lands in this Province, is now liable to be questioned, if the same has been derived through any alien, either residing abroad, or who may have resided here and left the Province without being Naturalized.—Brockville Gazette.

MONTREAL, Aug. 14.

We are authorised to state that the use made of Mr. Gale's name, in the resolutions of the meeting held at York, respecting Judge Willis, was without his knowledge or consent, and made as soon as it was known, with his decided disapprobation.—Montreal Herald.

The Upper Canada elections are now closed. When we formerly expressed our opinion upon this subject, we were not, certainly, prepared for the result of the elections at some of the places in the Upper Province. With the principles and political views generally, of the new members returned, we are perfectly unacquainted; but we sincerely hope that the restless passion of opposing whatever is supported by certain men, will not characterize them. They have it in their power to do much good,—but the folly of a thoughtless and factious opposition, may do more to retard the improvement of the Province now, than succeeding parliaments, however wise, will be able to counteract.—Ib.

Mr. and Mrs. Knight arrived in town last night from New-York—they proceed to Quebec, where, they intend to give a Concert during the races.

We regret to observe by the following paragraph from a New-York paper, that Mr. and Mrs. Knight, have suffered a severe loss by a fire in that city, while on their tour through Canada. Mr. Knight informed us that his loss is greater than money can easily repay—many pieces of most valuable music, which both Mrs. Knight and himself had collected in Britian and on the Continent of Europe, since they first made music their study, are now lost. What renders the loss more heavy, is that in America they may search in vain for music to supply even the least valuable pieces which were burnt.

Among the sufferers by the late fire, we are sorry, indeed, to perceive by their advertisement this evening, that our much esteemed friends, Mr. and Mrs. Knight have been among the number. Their loss, we are assured, is not less than $3000. They were both absent in Canada.—Ib.

An arrival from Gibraltar at New-York furnishes latter news from that country. It appears that some months ago Miguel has been declared King by the convention of the Three Estates assembled at Lisbon, and the inertness of the Constitutionals promises him a chance of success in his views upon the throne of that country.

The war in the East has hitherto been in favour of the invading army.—Quebec Mercury.

It is understood that Major General Darling has been appointed Chief Superintendant of Indian Affairs for the two Provinces; Sir John Johnson retiring on a pension.—Official Paper.

Varieties.

A few days ago, two Italian musicians, who travel with four dancing dogs, and also a kind of a hound, on which a monkey rides, were attracted, by the music, after exhibiting to the servants, took their departure through the stable yard. It chanced that a herd of deer had congregated on the outside of the Archway during their performance, in pursuit of which the great dog set off, in spite of all control, with a pug mounted on his back, equipped rather appropriately for hunting, in a red jacket and cap, with a frill, collar, &c. very fine; the other dogs, also, all in full dress for dancing, joined in the chase, presenting such a scene as was never witnessed before, in Russell Park. Poor Jacko, chattered and screamed with affright, and much liking the speed of his hackney, and at a sudden turn to the right he fell off; but here his case was worse than before, as he was chained to the dog's collar, who still kept on his merciless pace, dragging the poor monkey behind him, and tumbling and bumping him about most sadly. Jacko screaming all the time, and the other dogs in full mouth. To heighten the effect of the scene, the Italians threw themselves down on the grass, during the chase, knocking their heads on the ground, bellowing with affright, and uttering, alternately, imprecations and exclamations, 'Oh, de poor Montey! Oh, de poor Montey! Got tam! What we do! him die! him die! What we do!!!' At length the run-away hound was secured by one of the grooms, but not until the whole wardrobe was destroyed, poor pug's nose bleeding copiously, and with the loss of a few front teeth, but no persuasion or force could induce Mr. Pug to mount again, he having had enough of deer-hunting. This ludicrous scene had nearly a fatal effect on Mr. Parker, the Master of the horse, who laughed so immoderately as to make him excessively ill afterwards. The children in the neighbourhood have been highly delighted with collecting the scattered remnants of canine finery.—Windsor Express.

Powerful Language.—All the performances of human art, at which we look with praise and wonder, are instances of the resistless force of human perseverance. It is by this that the quarry becomes a pyramid, and that distant countries are united by canals. If a man were to compare the distance from the single stroke of the pick upon one impression of a spade; with the general design of last result, he would be overwhelmed by the sense of their disproportion. Yet these petty operations, incessantly continued, in time surmount the greatest difficulties; and mountains are levelled, and oceans bounded, by the slender force of human beings. It is, therefore, of the utmost importance that those who have any intention of deviating from the beaten roads of life, and acquiring a reputation superior to names hourly swept away by time, among the refuse of fame, should add to their reason, and their spirit, the power of persisting in their purposes unacquainted as of sapping what they cannot batter, and the habit of vanquishing obstinate resistance by obstinate attacks.—Dr. Johnson.

Bones of the Mammoth.—The fossil remains of this collossal animal, lately discovered by our countrymen in the Burman empire, imbedded with those of the rhinoceros, ruminating animals, tortoises, and crocodiles, have given rise to much curious speculation among the geologists of France. It seems, that up to this moment the mammoth's bones had never been found in equatorial regions. It was thought, therefore, to have been designed by nature to inhabit cold countries, like the fossil elephant which was discovered entire on the banks of the Lena, covered with a thick coat of fur.

The Chinese.—The Chinese troops carry fans, together with their military arms, and a traveller mentions that he saw the former used at a parade!

The populousness of the Chinese empire may be judged by one conclusive fact. The junks upon the rivers are said literally to cover their surface. Not do these afford habitation only to the persons sufficient to navigate them—the wives and families of the officers and soldiers reside with them constantly on board. There, many of them are born and all of them spend their lives. Every shore to them is foreign, and the earth an element on which they venture but occasionally. Sir George Staunton mentions that upon the decks of the largest a long range of apartments is erected, containing several families. It was calculated that every one of these vessels contained 50 persons. The Embassy in passing up the river counted at least 1000 of them—thus containing 30,000. It was estimated that 50,000 were employed in the other craft of the river,—so that upon this one branch 100,000 inhabitants were employed.

Weaving.—This art which, like all the other useful arts, has undergone a variety of successive improvements, and which, by means of machinery has arrived at a great degree of perfection, is of very ancient origion. Reduced to its original principle, weaving is simply the insertion of the weft or filling into the web. From the history of this art it appears that none of the species of it originated in Great Britain, which has so long been the great work-shop of Europe. The silk manufacture was first practised in China, and cotton in India: the linen and woollen both originated in Continental Europe. The Britons derived their knowledge of the art of making cloth from the Gauls, who learnt it from the Greeks. The making of linen, probably the first species of cloth invented, was made known to the Europeans by the inhabitants of Egypt and other eastern countries. Encouragement was first given to the woollen manufacture in England in the reign of Richard II. and Edward III. by advantageous offers to foreign weavers to settle in England. Besides the individuals who availed themselves of these offers, a number of weavers emigrated from Flanders into England, in consequence of the persecutions of the Duke of Alva, in 1567. From the revocation of the edict of Nantz and other acts of religious persecution in the XIIth, in 1685, nearly 50,000 manufacturers quitted France for England, thus introducing improvements of various descriptions, chiefly relating to the linen weaving. The manufacture of silk in England was first carried on by a company of women in London, called silk women. The art of cotton weaving, in its present improved state, has not been long known in any country; and it has attained this state of perfection, as it might properly be called, by a very rapid progress. To give the reader some idea of the importance of weaving, as a branch of the art of manufacturing cloth, we add, that the estimated number of looms propelled by water and steam power in Great Britain, including those in preparation for working previous to the stagnation, as near as any calculation can be made, is 58,000; the average produce, taking it at 32 square yards a day, makes 1,254,000, or 1,741 yards a minute: 5,224,000; monthly, 31,300,000; yearly, 376,200,000. Allowing six yards to each person for yearly consumption, will supply 62,700,000, and will cover 96,700 acres of ground, and in length would extend 218,750 miles, and reach across the Atlantic Ocean 17 times.

DANCING SCHOOL.—Madam Harris begs leave to inform the Ladies and Gentlemen of York, that she has arrived, and engaged to teach Dancing at Miss Purcell's and Miss Rose's School, for young Ladies, her days of attendance will be on Mondays and Wednesdays.

Madam Harris also begs leave to say she will give Lessons to young Gentlemen at Mr. Columbus's on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Practising nights will be on Fridays, when both Schools will meet at the latter place.—Terms may be known by applying to Madam Harris, at Mr. Columbus's.

N. B. Private Lessons will be given, if required.

August 29, 1828. n 12

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

UNTIL further Notice, the CANADA Steam Packet will leave York as soon after her arrival as she has received her supply of Wood, firing a Gun, and hoisting Colors half an hour before starting.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner.

York, Aug. 29, 1828.

A CARD—Dr. McKEE, Dentist, very respectfully returns his thanks to the inhabitants of York and its vicinity, for the patronage he has received in his professional capacity during his visit here this summer. He regrets that he cannot delay longer, but he will visit York next summer when he hopes he will be able to attend to all who need his services. As his stay will be short, it will be necessary that those who wish his professional services will be prepared to call on him immediately after his arrival, of which due notice will be given.

August 28th 1828. s 12

Poetry.

THE KING OF THE SHAMROCK, THISTLE AND ROSE.

WORDS BY T. H. BAYLEY, ESQ.—MUSIC BY H. R. BISHOP.

While men to the health of his monarch fills up
With nectar his deep bacchanalian cup
Though woman scarce moistens her lip, she will sing
With as loyal a spirit "Here's health to the King!"
To the King of the wave, to the King of the brave,
To the King whom the proudest would perish to save,
Here's a health that will hallow the wine as it flows,
To the King of the Shamrock, the Thistle and Rose.

The Lords of the East may exult in their sway
O'er slaves, who in enmity, crouch and obey
We are bound by a chain, such as friendship should fling
O'er the heart it loves best.—" Here's a health to the King."
To the King of the wave, &c.

Lower Canada.

Of the Prisoners who escaped from the Gaol, in this City on the 10th July, five have since been re-taken viz: James Tool, 16th Regt. apprehended at Cape-Rouge the morning after his escape and brought back to prison. James Kelly, 15th Regt. David Baxter, 79th Regt. with G. J. Ouellet and Mich. Mathieu, civilians, were apprehended near Three Rivers and lodged in the Gaol of that district.—David Baxter has since been sent to the Hulk establishment at Bermuda.—Q. Mercury

Port of Quebec.

ARRIVED.

Aug. 17—Brig John, Bristol, ballast.
....Brig Flin-da, Aberdeen, goods.
....Bark Jane, Belfast, 90 settlers.
....Brig Jessie, Liverpool, general cargo.
....Brig Kingston, Liverpool, general cargo.
....Brig Newcastle, London, 30 settlers.
....Prince George, Yarmouth, ballast.
....Brig Jane, waterford, do.
..19..Bark Elizabeth, Liverpool, salt.
....Bark Lady Ridley, London, ballast.
....Brig Lacovia, Jamaica, rum &c.
....Bark Governor, Bristol, ballast.
....Bark Dutchess of Richmond, Greenock. 106 settlers.
....Schr. Albion, Halifax, sugar and oil,
....Brig William, Greenock, coals,
....Brig Merope, do. balast,

SHIPPING INTELLIGENCE.

The Fiends from Aberdeen spoke a Sloop of war, in long. 33 bound to Quebec, does not know her name, there is little doubt it was the Challenger.

Birth,

At Cornwall, on the 8th instant, the Lady of the Rev. H. Urquhart, of a son.

At Ancaster, on the evening of Friday the 15th instant, Mrs. Alexander Robertson, of a Daughter.

Died,

At his residence in York on Wednesday evening last, 27th instant, JOSEPHUS HOWARD ESQUIRE, in the Fifty-first year of his age.

On the 13th inst. at Coburg in this Province, Elizabeth, the beloved Wife of William Falkner Esq., in the 30th year of her age.—(Can.)

At Kingston, on Tuesday the 19th inst., Mr. John Scantlebury, Proprietor of the Coummercial Hotel, aged 53 years.

At Edwardsburgh, on the 5th inst. in his 79th year, Archd. M'Neil. He emigrated from Scotland at an early period; served His Majesty during the revolutionary war, and was one of the first settlers in Upper Canada.

Suddenly at Brockville, Wm. Sylvester, an Englishman, in the 39th year of his age, leaving a widow and four infant children, who, but for the sympathy excited on the occasion, would have been in a state of destitution.

After a short illnes, on Monday the 18th instant, Mrs. Durand, wife of James Durand, Sen. Esq. of the Grand River Road.

Also, at the same place, on the 17th instant, Miss E. Diamond, aged 13 years.

In Grantham, on Tuesday the 19th inst. Mr. James Dittrick, aged 23, son of Mr. Robert Dittrick, of that Township.

In the Township of Niagara, on the 17th instant, Mr. Andrew Brown, late a Merchant at the Deep Cut, and brother of Capt. Adam Brown, of Queenston, leaving a young widow and infant child to lament his loss.

MRS. METZLER has arrived from Montreal with a fashionable assortment of Milinery and Fancy Goods, which will be open for inspection on Monday, 10 o'clock, P. M., at MR. WALLIS' Cabinet-Maker, CHURCH-STREET.

York, 30th August, 1828. 8. 12

FRESH SEEDS.—Shaker's Garden and Flower Seeds, warranted of the growth of 1827, for sale by

EDW'D. LESSLIE & SONS.

☞ E. L. & Sons expect a quantity of clover seed in a few days.

York, 14th March 1828. 43-tf.

YORK RACES.

Monday, 6th October.

MAITLAND STAKES, $100.

ENTRANCE—TEN DOLLARS, EACH, P. P.

To which will be added 100 Dollars; Ten Stone each; Three Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Gentlemen Riders; The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for $200.

SECOND RACE—SAME DAY, $50.

ENTRANCE—FIVE DOLLARS EACH, P. P.

Fifty Dollars added; Weight for Age; 3 years 7st. 12lbs; 4 years 8st 10lbs; 5 years 9st 3lbs; 6 years 9st 10lbs; Aged 10st. Two Rounds of th. Course; Best of Heats; Jockey Riders. The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for $100.

Wednesday, 8th October.

YORK STAKES, $100.

ENTRANCE—TEN DOLLARS EACH, P. P.

One Hundred Dollars added; Weight for Age; 3 years 7st 12lbs; 4 years 8st 10lbs; 5 years 9st 3lbs; 6 years 9st 10lbs; Aged 10st. Three Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Gentlemen Riders; the Winner of the Maitland Stakes (should he run) to carry 7lb extra. The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for 200 Dollars.

SECOND RACE, SAME DAY: $50.

ENTRANCE—FIVE DOLLARS EACH, P. P.

Fifty Dollars added; 10st each; Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for 100 Dollars. The Winner of the Second Race on Monday (should he run) to carry 7 lbs extra.

Friday, the 10th of October.

LADIES PURSE.

ENTRANCE, $4.

Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Weight to be Handicapped by the Stewards. Gentlemen Riders.

SECOND RACE, SAME DAY.

Beaten Plate for all Beaten Horses.

ENTRANCE, FOUR DOLLARS.

Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; The Weight to be Handicapped by the Stewards.

STEWARDS.

Mr. C. C. SMALL, Lt. SMITH, 68th Regt.
Lt. DUFF, 68th Regt. Lt. ELMSLEY, R. N.
Mr. SHERIFF JARVIS,

RULES AND REGULATIONS, OF THE YORK RACES.

1st. The above Races will commence on Monday the 6th of October next

2nd. No Horse will be allowed to Start which is not Bona Fide the property of a person having subscribed a Sum not less than Five Dollars, and who resides within Forty Miles of the Town of York. All Horses to have been in the possession of the person entering them Four Weeks previous to the first day's running.

3rd. Entire Horses to carry three pounds extra.

4th. Horses to be entered eight days previous to the first day's running, or to pay double entrance if entered subsequently.

5th. That all persons entering Horses are supposed to have made themselves acquainted with these Rules and Regulations.

6th. There shall half an hour be allowed between each Heat of the same Race.

7th. Riders must ride to the Weighing Post after each Heat to weigh, and be that diamounts before, or wants weight, is disanced.

8th. Horses distanced if their Riders Cross or Jostle, or the Heat to be run again, at the discretion of the Stewards.

9th. When Three Horses have each won a Heat, they only can start for a Fourth.

10th. In all Heats not less than Two Rounds of the Course; the Distance Post to be fixed at the established distance of 240 rds

11th. All Money for Entrance or Sweepstakes, to be paid to the Treasurer or Stewards previous to Starting.

12th. Then any person wishing to erect a Booth, or Tent, on the Race Ground, shall give notice thereof one week before the Races commence, and pay Five Dollars to the Treasurer.

13th. That the Stewards in all decisions shall be guided by the Laws of Racing as specified in the London Racing Calendar.

14th. That Horses do Start, for the first Race on each day, precisely at Two o'clock.

15th. Not more than Six Horses to Start for any one Race. Those first entered (of course) getting the preference

16th. No person will be allowed to ride who is not properly dressed.

17th. The Winner of each Race to pay Four Dollars for Scales, Straw, &c. &c.

COMMITTEE.

MAJOR WINNIETT, 68th Regt. HON. J. H. DUNN,
The SOLICITOR GENERAL, Mr. SHERIFF JARVIS,
JOHN RADENHURST, Esq. LIEUT. HUEY, 68th Regt.
Mr. STANTON, TREASURER.

York, 12*th August* 1828.

BANK NOTICE.—DISCOUNT DAY, Wednesday of every Week.—Notes offered for Discount, must be put under cover to the Cashier, and left at the Bank the day before.

THOMAS G. RIDOUT,
Cashier.

Storage & Commission Ware-House.

THE SUBSCRIBER begs leave to inform his friends and the public that he has purchased the Store-House, Wharf, &c. lately the property of William Cooper, Esq'r., in this Town, where he will receive, store, and sell, on Commission, on the most reasonable terms, all descriptions of produce or merchandize, with which he may be favored.

The buildings are extensive and convenient, being at the head of the Wharf, where all vessels which come into the Bay, principally discharge and take in their cargoes. He flatters himself that the care and attention of the person superintending the Wharf and Store, will give general satisfaction.

There will be for sale a constant supply of Pork, Flour, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Peas, Salt, and Whiskey, also Stoves, Potash Kettles, Coolers, Sugar Kettles, a variety of castings and Grindstones.

The Subscriber has also for sale upwards of 2500 Acres unimproved Lands of superior quality, in the most flourishing Townships, and convenient to York, which he will sell very low and on easy terms to actual settlers.

WM. BERGIN.

York, February 28th, 1828. 41*tf*.

POSTSCRIPT.

LATER FROM ENGLAND.—The Packet Ship William Thompson, has arrived at New-York, bringing dates to 17th July.—An Extra Albion has reached us, from which we select a few items.

The debate in the House of Commons on the affairs of Lower Canada shows how completely every attempt to cast censure on the conduct of the Earl of Dalhousie fails of its object.—[Debate next week.]

The House has granted £80,000 for the fortifications in Canada.

Welland Canal.—On the motion of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the House went into a Committee on the Welland Canal.

It was resolved, "that a sum not exceeding £50,000 be granted (in advance) to the King, for the purpose of enabling the President and Directors of the Welland Canal Navigation to finish the work connecting the waters of Lakes Ontario and Erie.

The House resumed, and the report was ordered to be received to-morrow, (this day.)

American Tariff—East India Cotton.—July 4.—Mr. J. Stewart made a few observations relative to the American Tariff, complaining that they had fixed a duty of 100 per cent. on iron, of 300 per cent on coarse woollens, and of 87 to 90 per cent. on coarse cottons. He did not blame the Americans for this, but he did not see the policy of admitting their goods at a nominal duty of 6 per cent, whilst they prohibited ours, more especially as our East India possessions could furnish us with as much cotton as we had occasion for.

American Tariff.—On the motion for the House of Commons, on the 11th to go into a Committee of Ways and Means.

Mr. Stuart called the attention of the House to the duties, almost amounting to prohibition, imposed by the American Tariff, on the importation of manufactures and produce. It was too late to originate any measure on the subject in the present Session; but he thought that the country ought to have the satisfaction of knowing that the subject attracted the attention of His Majesty's Government.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, in answer, said, that he had no doubt that His Right Hon. Friend, (the President of the Board of Trade,) who was not at present in circumstances to communicate to the House his opinion on the subject, would take the earliest opportunity of attending to it.

In the House of Commons on the 14th, Mr. Huskisson gave notice that he would move, on Thursday, (17th) that an humble Address be presented to his Majesty, for the purpose of having laid on the table any communications which had passed with this Government and the United States of America, and copies of instructions sent to his Majesty's Minister in that country, relative to the late Tariff.

London, July 14 The Funds.—City Twelve o'clock.—Consols on Saturday at 88 1-4 for account, and opened this morning at the same price, advanced to 88 1-4, buyers were done at 88 3-8.

The budget has been brought forward in a way which has obtained for the new Chancellor great commendation for his clearness and ability. The sinking fund is on the point of expiring; and the plan of reduction of debt henceforward will be, that of applying the surplus revenue for this purpose.

Liverpool Custom House.—The quarters receipts of the Liverpool Custom House have been made up, from which it appears that the amount of duties received on the 5th instant averages about £854,000, presenting an increase over the quarter ending the 5th July 1827, of nearly £50,000.

London, June 15.

We have just received (one o'clock) later official news from the Russian army than any that has been brought by the Grecian or Paris papers though the latter are of so recent a date as Saturday.

It will be seen that the Russian army marches from success to success and in addition to the capture of Brahilow, has made itself master of Hirsova, on the Danube and of the important post of Kustendji on the Black Sea.

THE LOYALIST.

VOL. I. NO. 26.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 6, 1828.

Poetry.

THE GRAVES OF A HOUSEHOLD.

They grew in beauty, side by side,
They filled one home with glee—
Their graves are sever'd far and wide,
By mount, and stream and sea!
The same fond mother bent at night
O'er each fond sleeping brow;
She had each folded flower in sight—
Where are those dreamers now!

One 'midst the forest of the west
By a dark stream is laid;
The Indian knows his place of rest,
Far in the cedar shade.
The sea, the blue lone sea, hath one,
He lies where pearls lie deep;
He was the lov'd of all, yet none
O'er his low bed may weep.

One sleeps where southern vines are dress'd,
Above the noble slain,
He wrapped his colors round his breast,
On a field red of Spain.
And one—o'er HER the myrtle showers
Its leaves, by soft winds fann'd;
She faded 'midst Italian flowers,
The last of that bright band.

And parted thus, they rest who play'd
Beneath the same green tree;
Whose voices mingled as they pray'd
Around one parent knee!
They that with smiles lit up the hall,
And cheer'd with song the hearth—
Alas for love, if thou wert all,
And nought beyond on earth!

Miscellaneous.

THE GERMAN GIBBET.

Tut, tut, thou art all ice, thy kindness freezes.—RICHARD III.

It was evening towards the latter end of autumn, when the warmth of the midday sun reminds us of the summer just gone, and the coolness of the evening plainly assures us that winter is fast approaching; that I was proceeding homewards on horseback, fortified by a strong grog-cordial against the weather without, and refreshed with a glass of eau-de-vie, that I might feel equally secure within. My road lay for some time along an extensive plain, at the extremity of which there rose a small and thickly overspreading wood, which the road skirted for some distance; and, on a slight eminence, at an angle where the last rays of the setting sun threw their gleam across the path, were suspended the remains of a malefactor in chains. They had been hanging there at least ten years; the whole of the flesh was consumed; and here and there, where the coarse dark cloth in which the figure had been wrapped had decayed, the bones, bleached by the weather, protruded.

I confess I am rather superstitious, and certainly did push on, in order that, if possible, I might pass the place before the sun should have set; to accomplish which, I put my horse upon a fast trot, which I afterwards increased into a hand gallop. The sun, however, had set, and twilight was fast changing into darkness as I rode up. I could not keep my eyes off the spot, and nearly blinded me, so that I could not refrain from imagining that the white bony arm (hand it had none) of the figure, relieved against the dark wood behind, was beckoning to me, as it waved in the wind. On passing it, I put my horse to full speed, and did not once check his pace, or look around until I had left the German Gibbet (for so it was called) a good mile behind.

It was now a fine, clear, moonlight night, and I had not gone far when I heard the sound of horses' feet at a little distance behind, and about the same time began to feel myself unusually cold. I buttoned up my coat, but that did not make much difference; I took a large comforter from my pocket, and put it round my neck. I felt still colder; and urging my horse forward, I hoped that exercise would warm me; but no, I was still cold. However fast I galloped, I still heard the sound of horses' feet behind, at apparently the same distance, and though I looked around several times, I could not see a living soul! The sound got faster and faster, nearer and nearer, till at last a small grey pony trotted up, on which sat a tall, slim, melancholy looking man, with a long pinked nose, and dull heavy eyelids, which hung so low, that at first he appeared to be asleep. His countenance which was extremely pale and cadaverous, was overshadowed by a quantity of long thin white hair, which hung down to his shoulders. He was dressed in a thin white jacket, which he wore open, white fustian trowsers, a white hat, his shirt collar open, and no cravat round his neck!

We rode for some time side by side, the stranger never once turning round, or lifting up his eyes to look at me; I could not help regarding him intently, until my eyes ached with the cold. I was obliged every now and then to let go the reins to blow my fingers, which I thought would drop off; and, on touching my horse, I found he was as cold as myself! Yet the stranger looked not the least afflicted by it, for his cloak remained strapped to the saddle behind him, and, indeed, his jacket was flying open, and his shirt collar unbuttoned as before!

This looked very strange!—there was something mysterious about him; so I resolved to be quit of him as soon as possible; but the faster I rode, the faster rode he; and though my horse appeared as powerful again as the one he was riding, yet I found that when it came to the push, his pony could have passed me easily. But that was not his intention; for when I slackened my pace, he slackened,—and on my pulling up, he pulled up also: still he never looked at me, and there we remained side by side, and I nearly frozen to death with the cold.

Every thing around us was perfectly quiet; and I felt this silence becoming quite appalling; at length, I exclaimed, "Sir! you seem determined we shall not part company, however it may be the wish of one of us." The stranger, after making a slight inclination of his head, expressed, in the most gentlemanly manner, his sorrow that it should be thought he had introduced himself upon me, and his earnest desire that we might proceed together, (seeing that our course was the same) on better terms. This was said with so much politeness, that I really could not refuse: being moreover convinced that, if I had, it was totally out of my power to enforce my refusal; so we trotted on together!

The stranger immediately began talking most fluently, but continually shifted the subject, and at length coming to a full stop, he suddenly asked me what was my opinion of all this? I, who had been dreadfully afflicted by the cold, so as to have been disabled from giving any attention, felt quite at a loss what to say:—at length, as well as I was able (for my teeth chattered so much I could scarcely speak plain,) I stammered out "whether he did not think it was very cold!" Immediately his dull eyes lighted up, and I shall never forget their fiery and unnatural light, as, turning suddenly round, he stared me full in the face, saying, in the most joyous, mild, and melodious tone of voice, "Perhaps you will accept of my cloak!" and adding, with peculiar emphasis, "he was sure I should be warm enough then," instantly began to unstrap it from behind him. In vain I declared I could not think of accepting it, especially as he would be most happy if I would do him the honour to use it; he kept refusing, and he persisting, till at last he became so importunate, that I rudely pushed it from me, saying, that "I would not accept of it." O! if you could have seen the change in his manner and appearance—instead of the mild, melancholy look he wore before, his face was contracted by the strongest feelings of rage and disappointment: his eyes glared like the low harsh creaking of the irons, as it moved to the breeze.

What with exertion, and I may add fear, or something very like it, the perspiration fell in large drops from my forehead, and nearly blinded me, so that I could not refrain from imagining that the white bony arm (hand it had none) of the figure, relieved against the dark wood behind, was beckoning to me, as it waved in the wind. On passing it, I put my horse to full, as it waved in the wind. On passing it, I put my horse to full speed, and did not once check his pace, or look around until I had left the German Gibbet (for so it was called) a good mile behind.

It was now a fine, clear, moonlight night, and I had not gone far when I heard the sound of horses' feet at a little distance behind, and about the same time began to feel myself unusually cold. I buttoned up my coat, but that did not make much difference; I took a large comforter from my pocket, and put it round my neck. I felt still colder; and urging my horse forward, I hoped that exercise would warm me; but no, I was still cold. However fast I galloped, I still heard the sound of horses' feet behind, at apparently the same distance, and though I looked around several times, I could not see a living soul! The sound got faster and faster, nearer and nearer, till at last a small grey pony trotted up, on which sat a tall, slim, melancholy looking man, with a long pinked nose, and dull heavy eyelids, which hung so low, that at first he appeared to be asleep. His countenance which was extremely pale and cadaverous, was overshadowed by a quantity of long thin white hair, which hung down to his shoulders. He was dressed in a thin white jacket, which he wore open, white fustian trowsers, a white hat, his shirt collar open, and no cravat round his neck!

We rode for some time side by side, the stranger never once turning round, or lifting up his eyes to look at me; I could not help regarding him intently, until my eyes ached with the cold. I was obliged every now and then to let go the reins to blow my fingers, which I thought would drop off; and, on touching my horse, I found he was as cold as myself! Yet the stranger looked not the least afflicted by it, for his cloak remained strapped to the saddle behind him, and, indeed, his jacket was flying open, and his shirt collar unbuttoned as before!

This looked very strange!—there was something mysterious about him; so I resolved to be quit of him as soon as possible; but the faster I rode, the faster rode he; and though my horse appeared as powerful again as the one he was riding, yet I found that when it came to the push, his pony could have passed me easily. But that was not his intention; for when I slackened my pace, he slackened,—and on my pulling up, he pulled up also: still he never looked at me, and there we remained side by side, and I nearly frozen to death with the cold.

Every thing around us was perfectly quiet; and I felt this silence becoming quite appalling; at length, I exclaimed, "Sir! you seem determined we shall not part company, however it may be the wish of one of us." The stranger, after making a slight inclination of his head, expressed, in the most gentlemanly manner, his sorrow that it should be thought he had introduced himself upon me, and his earnest desire that we might proceed together, (seeing that our course was the same) on better terms. This was said with so much politeness, that I really could not refuse: being moreover convinced that, if I had, it was totally out of my power to enforce my refusal; so we trotted on together!

The stranger immediately began talking most fluently, but continually shifted the subject, and at length coming to a full stop, he suddenly asked me what was my opinion of all this? I, who had been dreadfully afflicted by the cold, so as to have been disabled from giving any attention, felt quite at a loss what to say:—at length, as well as I was able (for my teeth chattered so much I could scarcely speak plain,) I stammered out "whether he did not think it was very cold!" Immediately his dull eyes lighted up, and I shall never forget their fiery and unnatural light, as, turning suddenly round, he stared me full in the face, saying, in the most joyous, mild, and melodious tone of voice, "Perhaps you will accept of my cloak!" and adding, with peculiar emphasis, "he was sure I should be warm enough then," instantly began to unstrap it from behind him. In vain I declared I could not think of accepting it, especially as he would be most happy if I would do him the honour to use it; he kept refusing, and he persisting, till at last he became so importunate, that I rudely pushed it from me, saying, that "I would not accept of it." O! if you could have seen the change in his manner and appearance—instead of the mild, melancholy look he wore before, his face was contracted by the strongest feelings of rage and disappointment: his eyes glared like the low harsh creaking of the irons, as it moved to the breeze.

What with exertion, and I may add fear, or something very like it, the perspiration fell in large drops from my forehead, and nearly blinded me, so that I could not refrain from imagining that the white bony arm (hand it had none) of the figure, relieved against the dark wood behind, was beckoning to me, as it waved in the wind. On passing it, I put my horse to full speed, and did not once check his pace, or look around until I had left the German Gibbet (for so it was called) a good mile behind.

It was now a fine, clear, moonlight night, and I had not gone far when I heard the sound of horses' feet at a little distance behind, and about the same time began to feel myself unusually cold. I buttoned up my coat, but that did not make much difference; I took a large comforter from my pocket, and put it round my neck. I felt still colder; and urging my horse forward, I hoped that exercise would warm me; but no, I was still cold. However fast I galloped, I still heard the sound of horses' feet behind, at apparently the same distance, and though I looked around several times, I could not see a living soul! The sound got faster and faster, nearer and nearer, till at last a small grey pony trotted up, on which sat a tall, slim, melancholy looking man, with a long pinked nose, and dull heavy eyelids, which hung so low, that at first he appeared to be asleep. His countenance which was extremely pale and cadaverous, was overshadowed by a quantity of long thin white hair, which hung down to his shoulders. He was dressed in a thin white jacket, which he wore open, white fustian trowsers, a white hat, his shirt collar open, and no cravat round his neck!

We rode for some time side by side, the stranger never once turning round, or lifting up his eyes to look at me; I could not help regarding him intently, until my eyes ached with the cold. I was obliged every now and then to let go the reins to blow my fingers, which I thought would drop off; and, on touching my horse, I found he was as cold as myself! Yet the stranger looked not the least afflicted by it, for his cloak remained strapped to the saddle behind him, and, indeed, his jacket was flying open, and his shirt-sort of melancholy chilliness seemed to prevade the place; the large clock that was in the room had stopped, from some cause or other, about ten minutes before I arrived; and on the maid coming in, though before a merry, cheerful-looking damsel, she presently became as melancholy and as grave as either of us, especially as, after numerous attempts, she was obliged to confess her inability to light the fire. It was now very cold, so the landlady came and did her best endeavours to light a fire, but in vain; afterwards the landlord, boots, hostler, and the cook, who never having been out of a perspiration for the last ten years of her life, was nearly killed by the sudden effect of cold she experienced on coming into the room: last of all I myself tried, but unsuccessfully. They all looked surprised, and the landlord observed it w very strange—it was not so cold, he was sure, any where else. The stranger all this time remained as quiet and immoveable as before.

I now desired the landlord to bring in tea, hoping by that means to warm myself. When the tea things were brought, the stranger drew a chair for himself to the table, and requested I would make tea: I desired the maid to pour some water into the teapot, from a kettle which she held in her hand, apparently just from the fire: however, on pouring in some water the steam arose; so far from it, the water appeared to be scarcely warm. I questioned her what she meant by it, and how she expected I could make tea with cold water? she declared that it boiled when it left the kitchen fire, and she did not know how it could get cold since. I then told her to take the teapot and fill it from the large kettle, which she assured me was boiling on the kitchen fire; she returned, and on my tilting it up to pour out the tea, it ran gently for a few moments, and then congealed into a long icicle! The maid looked first at me and then at the stranger, and then went quickly out of the room.

I remained some time sitting intently gazing on the stranger, who sat with his dull heavy eyes still intently fixed on the wall. I can scarcely describe what I felt; I shook so dreadfully both with fear and cold, that I could hardly keep my seat—my teeth chattered—my knees shook—in short, I began to fear that if I stand any longer I should be frozen to death. At length he noticed my confusion, and starting up, he again said, "perhaps I would accept of his cloak." Now I was really dying with cold, and the cloak looked so warm and so tempting, that I could not help eyeing it wistfully; this the stranger perceived, and opening it, shewed the lining, which was of the finest lamb's wool, looking infinitely warmer as well as softer, and more comfortable than anything I had ever seen. He then, in the most obliging manner, requested that I would put it on, adding, in his own impressive way, he was sure I should be warm enough then. I felt myself wavering but, summoning up my resolution, I determined I would not yield, so quitting him abruptly, I ordered my horse, and being resolved, once and for ever, to rid myself of this odious stranger, I mounted as quickly as possible, and putting spurs to his side, for I heard the stranger calling loudly for his horse, I galloped the whole of the way home; and I can safely swear that nothing whatever passed me on the road.

Now, said I, at any rate I have distanced him: and knocking at my door, it was quickly opened by my wife, who had been anxiously expecting me. After our usual salutation, she informed me I should meet an old friend up stairs who had been waiting my arrival. "With an old friend, a good bottle of wine, and a warm fire" said I, "I can forget every thing!" and hastening up stairs—I would be impossible to describe my confusion—before me was seated the identical stranger, with the mysterious cloak hanging over the arm of the chair on which he sat!—He rose as I entered—rage prevented me from uttering a word. He bowed politely, saying, "that he hoped he was not an intruder; but, after our having passed some hours together on our journey, he thought he might make bold to beg a night's lodging, having found himself benighted, close to my house"—I was so thunderstruck that I could not say a word in answer. My wife now entered the room, and complained of the cold. She said the fire had gone out soon after my friend arrived, "and, what is very strange," added she, "we were unable to light it again. I have been to order a bed to be made for your friend—and I have ordered the sheets to be aired, as the night is rather cold." "Oh!" said the stranger, "you need not mind that—I always sleep warm enough!" and pointing to his cloak, he gave a most expressive but sarcastic smile. This was almost too much; yet what could I do? I had no excuse to turn him out. Supposing it should be the German!—Ouch! nonsense—but however I tried to rid myself of this thought, I never could succeed in entirely banishing it; such strong hold has the idea of supernatural interference on a superstitious mind. I resolved, however, in mere contradiction to my opinions, to remain with his company this once;—and, endeavouring to appear as unconcerned as possible, I made suitable acknowledgments in the best way I could.

After a painful silence, which was only disturbed by the chattering of our teeth, supper was announced, and hastily despatched, for every thing was cold. Silence again ensued; till at length I caught up a candle, for I could bear it no longer, and asked the stranger if I should shew him his room; he consented, and bowed to my wife, took his cloak and followed me.

When we came into his room, I observed the water was frozen in the ewer: "I will order the servant," said I, "to bring you some warm water in the morning to shave with." He replied, "that he had rather I would not give myself so much trouble on his account, for that he could lather his face with snow!" He then again asked me if I slept warm! "I am afraid," said I "I shall not do so to-night." He placed his cloak in my hand, saying, with a chuckle, "I had only to throw it over me and say what I wish, and he was sure we should be warm enough then!"—I threw down the cloak, and rushed out of the room.

I joined my wife down stairs, who, on my unbraiding her with the folly of inviting a perfect stranger to sleep in the house, told me that he had introduced himself as an old friend of mine, who wished to see me on particular business. I went to bed—but not to sleep,—not all the blankets in the world could ever have made me warm. I hesitated whether I should not go and turn the stranger out, than late as it was;—but I might be mistaken, after all;—he was very gentlemanly, and behaved through out with the greatest propriety, so that I could have no excuse for so doing. And though there were many strange circumstances attending his presence, still they might be accidental. I resolved, at least, to wait patiently for the morning, though I felt as if I was exposed to the air on a cold winter's night; but I was doomed again to be disturbed. I had locked my room door (my constant custom upon going to bed,) when, about one o'clock, as I was lying, wide awake,—the stranger,—the German,—the fiend!—for I believe he was all three,—entered my room! how I know not,—I heard no noise. A horrid trembling immediately came over me,—my knees knocked together,—my teeth chattered,—every hair of my head on end,—I could scarcely draw my breath. What could be his purpose? to murder me?—no—no, I see it all,—the cloak,—the mysterious cloak, the source of all my fears and apprehensions;—he thinks by that to gain his purpose, and fancying I am asleep, he comes, no doubt, to cast that upon me, and thus give the fiend, his master, in some way or other, a power over me! He approached the bed;—my tongue clave to the roof of my parched mouth, and fear, an all absorbing fear, had nearly chained me. He opened the cloak—another moment—and then—but rage, fear, despair, gave me strength:—I started up:—"Villain!" said I, "I will not tamely bear it!" and grappling with him, I threw the cloak from me. I now cared not what I did or said "Hence," roared I, "and seek the fiend you serve!" and accidentally in the scuffle I caught hold of his long pointed nose;—he shrieked aloud with rage and pain. "For mercy's sake, Mr. T——," said my wife, "what are you about?" I received a heavy fall:—immediately the whole was gone. I assisted my wife into bed; for it seems that I had lain half the night with the clothes completely off me; which, as often as she had endeavoured to replace, I had resisted; and on her persisting, I had eventually seized her by the nose, and we both tumbled out of bed together.

CHAIR-MAKING.—The Subscribers, having entered into Copartnership, under the Firm of SMITH & LAWRENCE, to carry on the Chairmaking Business, inform their Friends and the Public, that they have now a shop open on the West side of the Market-Square, where they will keep constantly on hand a general assortment of Fancy, Bamboo, and Windsor Chairs, which they intend to dispose of on reasonable terms, for CASH or Country Produce; and, they trust, from the quality of their work, and attention to business, to merit a share of public favor.

They have, also, a Ware-Room open on YONGE-STREET, four miles South of NEW-MARKET, where Chairs may be had at all times.

N.B.—Job Painting, &c. executed to order.

☞ All orders thankfully received and punctually attended to.

B. W. SMITH,
J. M. LAWRENCE.

York, September 4, 1828. i. 13

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.—The Steam Boat ALCIOPE, will take Freight and Passengers from this Port during the remainder of the Season, every Saturday morning at 6 o'clock, on her way down from NIAGARA to PRESCOTT, to commence tomorrow.

York, 29th August, 1828. v. 13

NOTICE.—The Subscriber having closed his business requests all those who may be indebted either to him or to the late Firm of J. W. Gamble, & Co., to make immediate payment of their Accounts, otherwise they will be placed in the hands of an Attorney for collection.

WILLIAM GAMBLE.

York, 1st September, 1828. n. 13

STRAY COWS.—Came into the inclosure of the Subscriber, about three weeks since,—Two Cows—one a red Cow, with a small Star in her forehead, and a Bell on.—The other a small Brindle and white spotted. The owners are requested to prove property, pay charges, and take them away.

MOSES CHERRY,
No. 12, East side Yonge-Street, Township of York.

4th September, 1828. x. 13

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

UNTIL further Notice, the CANADA STEAM PACKET will leave York as soon after her arrival as she has received her supply of Wood, firing a Gun, and hoisting Colors half an hour before starting.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner.

York, Aug. 20, 1828.

WANTS A SITUATION.—A person who has been in the habit of attending a Store, and wishes to engage with a Merchant in the Retail Trade—Apply at the Office of the LOYALIST.

York, 15th August, 1828. n 11

ELIGIBLE SITUATION.—To be sold, LOTS numbers 29 & 30 in the first concession of the Township of Scarborough with their broken fronts on Lake Ontario, situate about Seven miles from the Town of York.—On Lot No. 29 are erected a Log and a Frame House together with outhouses &c. These premises are now in the possession of Mr. Adna Bates, and are an eligible Situation for a Tavern.

Application to be made to C. C. SMALL Esq.

York, 20th August, 1828. x 11

DANCING SCHOOL.—MADAM HARRIS begs leave to inform the Ladies and Gentlemen of York, that she has arrived, and engaged to teach DANCING at Miss Purcell's and Miss Rose's School, for young Ladies, her days of attendance will be on Mondays and Wednesdays.

MADAM HARRIS also begs leave to say she will give Lessons to young Gentlemen at Mr. Columbus's on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Practising nights will be on Fridays, when both Schools will meet at the latter place.—Terms may be known by applying to Madam Harris, at Mr. Columbus's.

N. B. Private Lessons will be given, if required.

August 29, 1828. n 12

WILLIAM FARQUHAR begs leave most respectfully to acquaint his Friends and Customers, that he has got his SILVER PLATE MANUFACTORY into full operation; and is now ready to receive orders for any description of articles in his line, cheaper than can be imported from England, and equal in quality and workmanship.

The following is a list of articles principally made in Silver:—

Tea and Coffee Setts,
Race Cups,
Mugs and Goblets,
Cruet and Liquor Stands,
Wine Strainers, Mustard Pots,
Salvers and Bottle Slides,
Salt Cellers, Egg Cups and Stands,
Muffineers,
Table and desert Spoons and Forks,
Tea, Coffee, Salt and Mustard Spoons,
Sugar Bowls, sugar Spoons,
Egg spoons, Asparagus Tongs,
Knife Rests, Marrow Spoons, &c. &c.
Any of the above articles gilded, if required.

ALSO,

WATCHES, CLOCKS, & JEWELLERY, PLATE AND PLATED GOODS REPAIRED.

W. F. has on hand, a great variety of GOLD AND SILVER WATCHES, CLOCKS, and a handsome assortment of LONDON JEWELLERY, PLATE & PLATED WARE, and Fancy Articles, of this year's importation, and warranted of the best description—which he will Sell low for Cash or approved Credit.

No. 90, Notre-Dame Street, Montreal, } n 11
18th August, 1828.

TO SAWYERS.—Wanted immediately an experienced SAWYER, and an assistant to take charge of a Mill that has a constant supply of water; and in other respects particularly well situated.—None need apply, who cannot give sufficient references as to character and ability.

Further information on application to Messrs. WRAGG & Co. King-street York. x 11

THE EDITOR OF THE PORT-HOPE MONITOR, begs leave to apologize to his very numerous Subscribers for the delay which has taken place in the appearance of his paper, and assures them that its publication has been prevented only by the extensive arrangements, which he has been making with his correspondents for the purpose of procuring the very earliest and most authentic information on the different political and literary subjects, in order that the Columns of the Port-Hope Monitor may always be filled with matter, the most interesting to its readers:—

The Editor of the PORT-HOPE MONITOR takes this opportunity to offer his sincere thanks to his Subscribers for their support, and to his different Agents for their very kind attention in procuring him so large a List of Subscribers.

Editors of Papers in the Upper and Lower Province, will oblige the Editor of the Port-Hope Monitor, by giving the above advertisement a few insertions in their different papers.

Port-Hope, } J. CLARK.
Aug. 15, 1828. } n 11

FOR SALE.—Lot No. 7, in the 1st Concession New Surrey, Township of Nelson, containing 200 Acres.—The Twelve Mile Creek, passes through part of the Lot, affording a constant supply of Water all the year round, and renders the Lot valuable, for the erection of Mills and Machinery of any kind. The Land is of excellent quality.—For Terms apply to

Mr. COATES, PAINTER.

York, 22nd August, 1828. j 11

FOR SALE.—Lot No. 29, and part of 30, in the 7th Concession of the Township of Pickering, containing 350 Acres, and having an eligible situation for a Mill. For terms apply to Mr. Andrew Mercer, York.

York, 28th October, 1827 22 tf.

HALF-PAY AFFIDAVITS, of the latest form, for Sale at the Gazette Office.

PARCHMENT DEEDS,
For Sale at the Gazette Office, York.

YORK RACES.

Monday, 6th October.

MAITLAND STAKES, $100.

ENTRANCE—TEN DOLLARS, EACH, P. P.

To which will be added 100 Dollars; Ten Stone each; Three Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Gentlemen Riders: The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for $200.

SECOND RACE—SAME DAY, $50.

ENTRANCE—FIVE DOLLARS EACH, P. P.

Fifty Dollars added; Weight for Age; 3 years 7st. 12lbs; 4 years 8st 10lbs; 5 years 9st 3lbs; 6 years 9st 10lbs; Aged 10st. Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Jockey Riders. The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for $100.

Wednesday, 8th October.

YORK STAKES, $100.

ENTRANCE—TEN DOLLARS EACH, P. P.

One Hundred Dollars added: Weight for Age; 3 years 7st 12lbs; 4 years 8st 10lbs; 5 years 9st 3lbs; 6 years 9st 10lbs; Aged 10st. Three Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Gentlemen Riders: the Winner of the Maitland Stakes (should he run) to carry 7lb extra The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for 200 Dollars.

SECOND RACE, SAME DAY; $50.

ENTRANCE—FIVE DOLLARS EACH, P. P

Fifty Dollars added; 10st each; Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for 100 Dollars. The Winner of the Second Race on Monday (should he run) to carry 7 lbs extra.

Friday, the 10th of October.

LADIES PURSE.

ENTRANCE, $4.

Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Weight to be Handicapped by the Stewards. Gentlemen Riders.

SECOND RACE, SAME DAY.

Beaten Plate for all Beaten Horses.

ENTRANCE, FOUR DOLLARS.

Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; The Weight to be Handicapped by the Stewards.

STEWARDS.

Mr. C. C. SMALL, Lt. SMYTH, 68th Regt.
Lt. DUFF, 68th Regt. Lt. ELMSLEY, R. N.
Mr. SHERIFF JARVIS,

RULES AND REGULATIONS, OF THE YORK RACES.

1st. The above Races will commence on Monday the Sixth of October next

2nd. No Horse will be allowed to Start which is not Bona Fide the property of a person having subscribed a Sum not less than Five Dollars, and who resides within Forty Miles of the Town of York All Horses to have been in the possession of the person entering them Four Weeks previous to the first day's running.

3rd. Entire Horses to carry three pounds extra.

4th. Horses to be entered eight days previous to the first day's running, or to pay double entrance if entered subsequently.

5th. That any Horse or Horses are supposed to have made themselves acquainted with these Rules and Regulations.

6th. That half an hour be allowed between each Heat of the same Race.

7th. Riders must ride to the Weighing Post after each Heat to weigh, and be that dismounts before, or wants weight, is distanced.

8th. Horses distanced if their Riders Cross or Jostle, or the Heat to be run again, at the discretion of the Stewards.

9th. When Three Horses have each won a Heat, they only can start for a Fourth.

10th. In all Heats not less than Two Rounds of the Course; the Distance Post to be fixed at the established distance of 240 Yards.

11th. All Money for Entrance or Sweepstakes, to be paid to the Treasurer or Stewards previous to Starting.

12th. That any person wishing to erect a Booth, or Tent, on the Race Ground, shall give notice thereof one week before the Races commence, and pay Five Dollars to the Treasurer.

13th. That the Stewards in all decisions shall be guided by the Laws of Racing as specified in the London Racing Calendar.

14th. That Horses do Start, for the first Race on each day, precisely at Two o'clock.

15th. Not more than Six Horses to Start for any one Race. Those first entered (of course) getting the preference

16th. No person will be allowed to ride who is not properly dressed.

17th. The Winner of each Race to pay Four Dollars for Scales, Straw, &c. &c.

COMMITTEE.

MAJOR WINNIETT, 68th Regt. HON. J. H. DUNN,
The SOLICITOR GENERAL, Mr. SHERIFF JARVIS,
JOHN RADENHURST, Esq. LIEUT. HUEY, 68th Regt.
Mr. STANTON, TREASURER.

York, 12th August 1828.

FOR SALE,—Lot No. 12, and East half of 14 in the 3d Concession of the Township of York, West of Yonge-Street,—300 Acres,—the property of Major W. G. White,—Refer to ROBERT STANTON, Esquire, U. C. Gazette Office.

York, 4th July, 1828. x. 5

THE ROYAL GRAMMAR SCHOOL, established at York, Upper Canada, opens again on Monday the 8th of September, 1823.—For Terms, &c. apply to the REV. DR. PHILLIPS, Head Master.

York, 14th August, 1828. i. 10

NOTICE.—The undermentioned new POST OFFICES have been established in Upper Canada, by the Deputy Post Master General, to go into operation from the 6th of next Month, viz:

MAITLAND.—(Between Prescott, & Brockville,)—SAMUEL THOMAS, P. M.

GUELPH.—(35 Miles N. W. from Dundas,)—DAVID GILKISON, P. M., VIA. GALT.

General Post Office, } v 6
Quebec, 28th June, 1828. }

MILLS AT PETERBOROUGH.—The Grist-Mill and Saw-Mill which have been lately erected by the Government at Peterborough, in the District of Newcastle, will be exposed to sale by Public Auction at Peterborough on the 10th day of September next, at 11 o'clock, A. M. The terms of payment will be,—one third of the purchase money to be paid within one month after the sale, one third at the expiration of one year, and the remaining one third at the expiration of two years from the day of sale, with interest.

The Mill site is most valuable, comprehending a Tract of about 86 Acres. The Grist-Mill has two runs of Stones in operation, and is well fitted for Merchant work, having manufactured more than 1,200 Barrels of Flour this Summer.—The Saw-mill is also in operation.

From the peculiar situation of these works being at the head of the Navigation of the Otanabee River, and in the midst of a very flourishing settlement, the Establishment will be most valuable to any person possessing Capital. It cannot be disposed of for a less sum than £2,000 Currency, but will go to the highest bidder above that sum, without reserve.

A plan exhibiting the situation of the mills, and the Land appropriated for their use can be seen at this Office; and every information obtained by writing to the Honorable PETER ROBINSON, York.

York, 3d July, 1828. d. 5

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

LAKE ONTARIO STEAM-BOAT, NIAGARA, Captain MORIER, with DANIEL HEAD, Sailing Master, Will, after the 15th inst., leave Niagara for Kingston, Brockville, and Prescott, every Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

On her return, will leave Prescott for Brockville, Kingston, York, and Niagara, every Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made with Messrs. Norton, & Co., Stage Proprietors, by which, passengers going down, arrive in Montreal on Tuesday evening; and those proceeding upwards, will, by leaving Montreal on Tuesday, arrive in time at Prescott to take the Boat.

York, June 6th, 1828. x 1.

PUBLIC NOTICE.—I require due notice to be given to me or to my Agent, Mr. Alexander Murray, at Mr. Proudfoot's Store, in York, of all transfers of Property in the Steam-Packet Canada, in default whereof I shall consider the original Stockholder, as the legal Owner in the Vessel; and in paying dividends and doing other transactions connected with my situation, hold myself accountable to them alone.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner of the Steam Packet Canada.

York, 27th December, 1827. 31tf.

N.B.—With Mr. A. Murray, reference may be had to all Books and accounts connected with the Canada Steam Packet.

THE SUBSCRIBER being about to enter into a different line of business, begs to return his sincere thanks to his numerous friends and the public, for the past favors and the confidence they have reposed in him for the last ten years; and he trusts that he may enjoy a continuance of the same.

He is desirous of having the affairs of the late firm of Job and Erasmus Fowke settled or adjusted on or before the tenth of March next.—After that date they will be placed in the hands of his Attorney; and then he is entering on a new business he will not give credit after the 6th inst. ERASMUS FOWKE.

Port Hope, 1st January, 1828. 36tf.

SEPTEMBER TEA SALES, 1828.—The Agents to the HONBLE. EAST INDIA COMPANY in Canada give notice, that there will be put up to Public Sale at their Warehouses in Quebec on Saturday the 13th of September, a quantity of Teas equal to about 1,500 Chests & Boxes; and at MONTREAL on Saturday the 20th of September, a quantity equal to about 3,000 Chests.

Catalogues will be ready for delivery and shewchests open for inspection at each place, for six days previous to the Sale, which will commence at 11 o'clock in the forenoon.

FORSYTH RICHARDSON & CO.

MONTREAL, 12th Aug., } c 11
1823. }

ENGLISH STORE.—Just received, direct from England, a quantity of Bobbin Net, Lace, Veils, and Caps, of the first quality; also, an assortment of Muslins and other Goods; which will be sold on the most reasonable terms, by

J. COCKSHUTT.

York, July 14th 1828. x 6

THOMAS MOORE.—TAILOR, Front Street, York. Near the Steam Boat Hotel.—Begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has just opened, and offers for Sale, a choice assortment of Goods, Selected by himself at the Manufactories in England, which he can recommend as being of choice quality, consisting, of Superfine, Blue; Black; Scarlett: Green; Olive; Grey and Drab, West of England Broad Cloths.—Black, Blue and Grey, Double and single Milled Kerseymeres. Forest Cloths. Lasting and Corduroys.—Beaverteens; Fustians; Cantoons. Jane; Drab, and Striped Brown Drills. Fine Welsh Flannel; White and Blue Flannel. White and Grey Cottons. London printed Calicoes and Chintzes. Fancy Vestings. Printed Muslins. Sewing Silk; Twist; Thread and Rich Gilt Buttons.

MILITARY EQUIPMENTS,

consisting of, Regulation Swords; Patent Leather Regulation Waist Belts, with rich Gilt clasps. Rich Gold Bullion Epauletts, crimson Silk Regulation Sashes.—Rich Gold Velvet Lace, and Gilt British Militia Buttons. Red, White and Green, Regulation Feathers, with rich Gilt Tubes for do.

The whole of which will be disposed of on reasonable terms, or made up to order, agreeable to the latest fashions, at the shortest notice.

York, 14th July, 1828. x 6

NEW WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE.—The Subscribers respectfully announce to the Merchants of York and its vicinity, that they have opened a Wholesale Store, Corner of Market-Lane and Church-Street; where they are receiving a large and suitable assortment of DRY GOODS, direct from GREAT BRITAIN: consisting principally of the following articles:—

Grey and Bleached Factory Cottons,
do. do. Sheetings,
Striped and Check'd Cottons,
Scotch Hollands,
Fine, Superfine, and Brussels Carpeting,
do. do. broad and narrow Cloths,
do. do. Cassimeres,
Bombazettes, Bombazines, and Shalloons,
Says, Lastings, Cambiets, &c.,
Tartans and Union Checks,
Moleskins, Barragans and Fustians,
Red and White Flannel,
Chintzes, Calicoes and Furnitures,
Book, Jaconet and Mull Muslins,
Batiste Muslins, Striped, Check'd and figured,
Ginghams, Pullicate and Verona Handkerchiefs,
Cotton and Linen Bed Ticks,
Russia Duck, Osnaburgs, Hessins and Sheetings,
Canvas, Bagging, Dowlas, Drill, &c.
Umbrellas, 26, 28, and 30 inch,
Bandanna, Barcelona, Gauze & Barrage, Handkerchiefs,
Silk Hose, and Habit Gloves,
Black and Green Crape, Veils, &c.
Black and Coloured sewings, Lagee Twist, &c.
Galloons, Silk and Cotton Ferrets,
Black and W. Brown Linen Thread, Cotton Spoolls and Balls,
Silk, Cotton, and Merino Shawls,
Cotton Tapes, Bobbin, &c.
Sattins, Gros de Naples, Levantine Ribbons, &c. &c.—
Which they will sell off at very reduced prices, for cash only.

JAMES DOUGALL, & Co.

York, 28d July, 1828. x. 7

York Auction, Mart, & Commission Ware-House.

M. & R. MEIGHAN,
Opposite the Market Square,

HAVE for Sale, an assortment of Household Furniture, consisting of Mahogany, Curled Maple and Cherry Tree, Side Boards, Secretaries, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Breakfast Dining and Card Tables, Work Tables, Bason Stands, Feather Beds and Bedding; A London made grand Piano; an excellent Sulkey Carriage; a Mangle for pressing clothes; A Jack for Roasting Meat; A very elegant fourteen day Time Piece with Italian Marble Frame and Glass Shade; Double and Single Barrel Percussion Lock Fowling Pieces and Pistols; Bridles, Saddles, Double and Single Harness; Gilt and Plain Frame Looking Glasses; Some Handsome Vases and chimney Ornaments; an extensive assortment of Elegant Dry and Fancy Goods of every description, Hardware, Jewellery, Crockery and Glassware; Groceries, Tea, Wine and Spirits; together with an Elegant Collection of Books, Stationery, Perfumery, Patent Medicines &c.

Regular Auction Sales every week.

York, 1828. x 6.

CHAIN CABLES, &c.—ACRAMAN'S Patent Chain Cables, and Anchors, (warranted proved by Machine) a constant supply kept on hand (in stock) of all sizes, by JOHN WATKINS, Kingston, and in Montreal and Quebec by WILLIAM BUDDEN.

July, 30, 1827. 11-tf.

JOHN MURCHISON, Draper and Tailor, respectfully informs his friends and customers, that he has just received from London, a choice assortment of extra, fine and superfine West of England Broad Cloths and Cassimeres; consisting of Blue, Black, Scarlet, Green, Olive, Brown, Grey, Drab and Corbeau, Single and Double Milled Cassimeres; do. Double Milled Broad Cloths for Great Coats, and vestings of every description, which he is ready to make up to order at short notice, in good style, and on the lowest terms possible. Gentlemen wishing any thing in his line may depend upon being faithfully served.

N. B. He has also a number of Military Articles to dispose of on reasonable terms.

York, July 28, 1828. sn. 8

BRITISH WAREHOUSE.—J. C. Godwin & Co., Wholesale and Retail Merchants, beg to inform their Friends and the Public, they have received direct from England, the following Goods, which they offer low for cash:—
West of England Cloths, the best assorted,
Yorkshire Cloths of superior qualities, assorted,
Surveyorsnes of fine Textures, assorted,
Variety of Vest Patterns,
A well selected Assortment of Gentlemens' Dress, and Surtout Coats, Trowsers, &c., made in London,
Imitation Brussels Carpeting, Venetian Carpeting, and Brass Rods,
Upwards of 2,000 yards unbleached Factory Cotton,
Bales' Cottons bleached, Nos. 3, 4, 5, & 6,
Fashionable Tea and Coffee Urns,
Sheet Copper for Distills, &c.,
Brass Crimping Machines, with Heaters,
Brass and Steel Pen Irons, of the newest quality,
An assortment of Cabinet Furniture,
Cast Steel in Bars,
Variety of Woollen and Linen Girth Webbs,
Paints, assorted, first quality,
Boiled and Raw Linseed Oil,
First quality Cognac Brandy, favorite mark Marett,
Fine Holland Gin,
Good old Whisky, by the Barrel or per Gallon,
Port, Sherry, and Teneriffe Wines, of choice quality.—With a variety of other Goods.

J. C. GODWIN & Co.

York, Aug. 25th 1828. x 12

WANTS A SITUATION AS CLERK.—A young man who understands Accounts, and the Keeping of Books—willing to make himself useful in any department. Can produce the most satisfactory references—inquire at the Office of the Loyalist. a 12

WANTS A SITUATION AS CLERK.—A young man who can be well recommended, as to character, who can keep a regular set of Books, by single or double entry.—For further particulars apply to Mr. John Robinson, or to Mr. Bradshaw McMurray, Store Keepers, York.

August 29, 1828. a 12

NOTICE.—The Executors of the late Richard Hatt, deceased, having placed in the hands of the subscriber for collection, all the outstanding Book Accounts, Notes, Bonds, Mortgages and Securities, of or belonging to the said estate.—Notice is hereby given to all those whom it may concern, that unless they call at the office of the subscriber in Hamilton, and settle the amount of their respective accounts, on or before the first day of September next. The subscriber is instructed to commence prosecution immediately after that period.

ALLAN NAPIER McNAB.

Hamilton, Aug. 15, 1828. n 12

ALLIANCE BRITISH AND FOREIGN
Life and Fire Assurance Company,
OF LONDON.
(Capital—Five Millions Sterling.)

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent to the above Company, at York, he is ready to Insure against loss or damage by Fire at moderate rates of Premium. The high standing of this Institution in England, and the Company allowing their Agents in Montreal to settle losses in this Country, with the Assured participating in the Profits of the Company, renders it worthy of Public Confidence.

R. W. PRENTICE.

York, November 13th, 1826. 25.

YORK BOARDING SCHOOL, under the Patronage of The Right Honorable Lady Sarah Maitland.—Miss Purcell and Miss Rose, beg leave to inform their Friends and the Public, that their School will re-commence on Monday the first of September.

N. B. A Professor of Dancing is engaged to attend.

York, 14th August, 1828. c. 10

BANK NOTICE.—Discount Day, Wednesday of every Week.—Notes offered for Discount, must be put under cover to the Cashier, and left at the Bank the day before.

THOMAS G. RIDOUT,
Cashier.

Summary.

Upwards of a hundred £100 shares have been taken in the King's College, and the donations already amount to nearly £30,000.

Death of Dr. Andrew Duncan.—It is our melancholy duty to record the death of one of the oldest and most respected of our fellow citizens, Dr. Andrew Duncan, Senior, Professor of Theory of Medicine in the University of Edinburgh, and First Physician to His Majesty for Scotland, who terminated a long life of indefatigable and useful exertion, on the morning of Saturday the 5th inst. at the advanced age of 83 years.—Caledonian Mercury, July 7.

Dreadful fire at Battersea, two lives lost.—This morning, between three and four o'clock, the neighbourhood of Battersea, was thrown into the utmost consternation in consequence of a dreadful fire which broke out in the house of Mr. Spirit, Baker, of Battersea-square, which, we are sorry to say, ended in the destruction of four houses, and fatally to two persons, namely, Mr. Spirit and his wife.

England.

London, July 7.

The Quarter's Revenue.—It will be seen that in the Customs there has been a gradual increase in the four last Quarters beyond the corresponding Quarters last year, except only in the Quarter ended 5th January, 1828, which were less, but only in the sum of £11,000 than the corresponding Quarter in 1827. The whole amount of the year is £16,606,856, being an increase of £541,632 beyond last year.

The increase on the Excise for the year is about 50,000*l.* but the increase on the Quarter, as compared with the corresponding Quarter last year, is above £115,000.

In the Stamps an increase on the year of above £365,000—and in the Quarter £104,000,

In the Post Office a small decrease on the year, but an increase on the Quarter.

In the Miscellaneous an increase on the year, but a small decrease on the Quarter.

The increase on the whole year is above one million three hundred thousand pounds from which is to be deducted the small decrease of £25,000, leaving a total increase on the year of £1,275,651, and on the quarter of £318,723.

This is a most encouraging statement, and more particularly satisfactory, because there had been such confident reports of a great fall in the Customs and Excise. And it will be recollected that for some time past the trade with Portugal has been crippled by the treasonable objects of Don Miguel.

The income of the Consolidated Fund, as compared with the charge, for the quarter just ended, leaves a surplus income of £4,858,916, which is a measure of about £250,000 as compared with the surplus of the corresponding quarter.

Lord Stuart de Rothsay had an audience of the King, on Tuesday, at Windsor, and kissed hands on his being appointed Ambassador to France. His Lordship afterwards dined with His Majesty.—London Paper.

Lisbon Saturday Evening, 12th July.—The arrangements with regard to the Sinking Fund, which, in the early part of this day appeared to be very popular among the Gentlemen of the Stock exchange, were looked upon in the afternoon more favorably, and the consequence was an advance in both speculations and money stock.—Consols closed at 88 to 89.

As the Wheat crop advances to maturity we are sorry to hear bad accounts of its expected produce from many of the corn Districts.

Liverpool Market.—Ashes.—The demand for Ashes is limited, and the sales of Pot and Pearl do not exceed 350 barrels, at last week's quotations.

Glasgow, July 12.—Ashes still remain very flat, the trifling sails made in retail, were, Montreal Pots (1827) 30s. to 30s. 6d.; Montreal Pearls 29s. to 30. The continuance of fine weather has made the Corn Market extremely dull and prices are onely supported.

It is thought to be understood that our Government, in notifying the blockade of the Bar of Oporto, did not by any means mean to convey the slightest approbation of Don Miguel's conduct or any acknowledgement of any new authority with which he might invest himself. The Government of Don Miguel is a Government de facto. The blockade was published in the Lisbon Gazette, signed by Don Miguel as Prince Regent, in which title we have acknowledged him. We believe it was notified to our Consul General. According to the opinion of the civilians, we were bound to respect a blockade ordered by a Prince in a capacity which had been acknowledged, and enforced by a competent armament. We trust this will be sufficient to remove any apprehensions that may be entertained with respect to the policy or intentions of our Government. They will not acknowledge any other title than that with which the lawful Sovereign invested Don Miguel.—Courier.

We understand that the result of the precognition taken here and at Glasgow, regarding the robbery of the Greenock Bank, has been the committal of Henry Saunders to Glasgow Gaol for trial, at the instance of the Lord Advocate.—Greenock Advertiser.

Imperial Parliament.

MILITARY WORKS IN CANADA.

House of Commons, July 7.

Sir H. Hardinge said, the next grant was £30,000, upon an estimate of £330,644, for the expense of military works in Canada. In 1819 the Duke of Wellington was desired to report on the defence of the Canadas. He came to the conclusion that a backwater communication should be formed between Montreal and Kingston, for the purpose of securing rapid and safe communication, and both these places put in a state of defence. In a commercial point of view this would be advantageous. In a military point of view it was distinctly shown that it would, in the event of any future war, afford the greatest advantages in the defence of Canada. In 1824 the Duke of Wellington sent a commission to report on the military works, and the water communication. His Grace then reported to the Government the importance of the water communication, and of establishing places of defence along the line, so as to secure Lake Ontario. The consequence was, that a determination was come to upon the necessity of defending Kingston and other points. By those works the defence of Canada would be secured, and those inconveniences avoided which were incurred in the last war. The expense of transport alone, during four years of the last war, was £100,000, more than the whole of this estimate of £330,000. He should conclude by moving that a sum of £30,000, be granted to his Majesty for defraying the expense of military works in Kingston and Halifax.

Mr. Stanley opposed the grant, as being merely preliminary to a charge of £1,900,000, for the total expense of these works. £527,000, would besides be necessary for the Rideau Canal. He doubted whether, after all this expense, the line of defence would be complete.

Sir E. Owen said, the great difficulty of the last war arose from the expense of transport. It took two months to convey troops from Montreal to Kingston. By the proposed Canal it might be done in four or five days.—The Canal, though expensive for the present, must eventually become the source of a large revenue.

Mr. Marsell said, the sum already expended was £438,726. The grand total laid out and to be laid out, would be at least £3,000,000.

After a few words from Mr. Robinson, Sir H. Hardinge, and Mr. Stanley,

Lord John Russell opposed the vote. He regretted that Government did not follow the example of Mr. Pitt, who, when it was proposed to expend £700,000, for the defence of the Dock Yards of Portsmouth and Plymouth, had a commission of Naval and Military Officers appointed to inquire into the necessity of such works before the country should be put to so heavy an expense. It would be better if the Right Hon. Gentleman would postpone the estimates on this subject to a future day.

Mr. M. Fitzgerald could not consider this subject distinct from the possession and maintenance of the Colonies. It was not a military question, but whether they should protect those vast regions which opened prospects of commerce.

Mr. Labouchere considered this a most important question. The St. Lawrence was the key-stone of the arch of our commerce in North America, and it was good economy to provide in time of peace those fortifications so necessary in war.

Mr. Baring said, the amount of money to be voted was nothing compared with the importance of the question whether Canada should be governed by this country, if it were called upon to declare whether the Canadas ought to be defended, he should say, "No—the case was hopeless." They had a vigilant enemy near, against whom this country could not succeed. Experience must prove that it was almost impossible that any great colony could be governed for ever by the mother country.—His opinion was, that the time had come when England ought to part with Canada upon good terms.

Sir G. Murray wished the Hon. Member had told the British House of Commons when the system of the abandonment of the Colonies was to take place. The Hon. Member no doubt wished the country to give up not only the Canadas, but New South Wales and the Cape of Good Hope. It was not reasonable to suppose that Parliament would so soon forget the interests of the country. They would not comply with the Hon. Member's recommendation. He could not forget the achievements of America, but did not fear that we should be able to maintain our possessions. He was not so timid as to assume the consequences which the Hon. Member had assumed. He knew that the people of Canada would defend their country. Some political dissention had occurred among them, but a Committee had been appointed to settle those disputes. The work at Halifax was necessary if they did not hold the Canadas. It was necessary for the protection of the Navy. The fortifications at Kingston were also necessary for the ships upon Lake Ontario.

Mr. W. Horton was sure if there was any idea that there was a wish on the part of the people of Canada to be separated from the British Government, they would repel it with disdain.

Mr. Warburton supported the view taken by the Hon. Member for Callington.

Lord Howick objected to the grant, until the great question was decided, as to whether the Canadas should be held under the dominion of this country as a portion of our colonies.

Mr. Huskisson felt it his duty to vote for the proposed grant. The expense in the late war with America was £1,000 per day; and the question now was whether they would give a faithful and a loyal people as a prey to the United States? Would they in a future struggle give up the Canadas, because they would not go to a moderate expense, or would they keep it now and maintain it at an immense expense hereafter? That was the question now at issue. This House was to legislate for the present state of things, and not for the contingent result of the course of human events. Canada might not for ever be a Colony of Great Britain; but even if the connection were dissolved at the expiration of fifty years, he would vote for the grant which the Government of this country now called for.

Mr. Hume opposed the grant.

Mr. Peel said, that if the Canadas were lightly abandoned, other Colonies would begin to feel that we made little of them, and such a proceeding would be decidedly erroneous. We rescued these Colonies by force; it was evident that they were loyal, and should it be said of England that we were now desirous of dissolving our connection with them. He was ready to admit that the time might come when these Provinces would become independent, and when that time did come he earnestly hoped that it would be an amicable dissolution. But even contemplating such an event, the sum proposed would be desirable to grant. The Government did not ask for two million five hundred thousad pounds, but for the specific sum of thirty thousand pounds. Upon such grounds he should vote for the Resolution.

Mr. Baring explained.

Strangers were then ordered to withdraw, when a division took place.

For the Grant	126
Against it	51
Majority	75

The Chairman proposed that £125,000 should be granted for the Kingston Canal.

After some observations from Sir H. Hardinge, Sir H. Parnell, Lord Howick, Mr. Huskisson, and Mr. Hume, the grant was agreed to.

LOWER CANADA.

House of Commons, July 14.

Mr. Labouchere rose, pursuant to notice, to present a petition from Lower Canada. The petition, the Hon. Memoer said, was signed by three individuals only, but it in fact spoke the sentiments of the whole of the inhabitants of that Colony. It was a supplement to that petition lately presented to the House, which was signed by 87,000 persons; and, like it, complained of extreme oppression, and of grievous misrule on the part of the constituted authorities, and particularly of the arbitrary conduct of Lord Dalhousie, the Governor, towards the Majority. He ignored the House to take the subject into consideration with the intention of doing something, and that too speedily, to ameliorate the condition of the inhabitants of that Colony. If some measure were not immediately adopted, a state of things, and an excitation of feeling may be raised, which may lead to serious consequences, that he should sincerely regret, but whether they should protect those vast regions which opened prospects of commerce.

Mr. F. LEWIS contended that the grievances under which the Colonies laboured did not owe their origin to the Colonial Department. He regretted the attention of the House was not called to this measure a year ago, as less difficulty might have, at that time, attended the adoption of a measure to allay those grievances. The Canadas were not dependent on the Colonial Office at home, for they possessed an independent Legislature of their own, and had the means of remedying any evils that might exist. Evils did exist in that country, which kindness or conciliation on the part of the House and the Government could not subside. The French Canadians were naturally attached to their own laws, while, on the other hand, the British party intended to the laws of their own country. From this state of things, the greater portion of the evils arose. It will be necessary for the House to cause that overweening desire existing among the French Canadians to uphold their ancient laws, to subside; while at the same time it will be also necessary to bring the English portion of the inhabitants to yield a little to the nationalities of their fellow Colonists.

Mr. Secretary PEEL did not mean to make any objection to this motion, but he protested against any inculpation of the Colonial Government, with respect to the disturbances in the Canadas, in the absence of any conclusive information. The Committee had not yet made their Report, and, until that was completed, it was at the least premature to cast any reflections upon the Colonial Government.

Mr. Labouchere disclaimed all intention of casting any imputations upon the Colonial Government, or the witnesses who gave their testimony before the Committee; but he claimed credit to those petitioners for upright views and patriotic motives in the course which they had taken.

Sir James Mackintosh, in explanation, denied that any ingratitude had been shown to the House or the Government for any concessions made to them. In fact no concessions had been made. The measure of the union of the two Canadas, without consulting the colonists, when at the same time they were known to be adverse to it, could not be regarded as a concession.

The petition was then referred to the Committee sitting upon the affairs of Canada.

DUTIES PAYABLE UNDER THE NEW CORN BILL.

Wheat.—Whenever the six weeks aggregate price shall be 64s. and under 65s. the duty shall be 24s. 8d. per quarter. To decrease 1s. for every advance in price of 1s. till the average reach 70s.—"Such duty" to decrease 2s. for every shilling advance above 66s. to 69s. To decrease 3s. for every shilling advance above 69s. to 71s.—To decrease 4s. for every shilling advance above 70s. to 72s.; and at 73s. the duty to be 1s. per quarter. An advance of 1s. duty upon 24s. 8d. for every shilling decline in average below 64s.

Barley.—When the average shall be 33s. and under 34s. the duty shall be 12s. 4d. To decrease 1s. 6d. for every shilling advance till 41s. and the duty then to be 1s per quarter.

An advance of 1s. 6d. duty upon 12s. 4d. for every shilling decline in the average below 33s.

Oats.—When the average shall be 23s. and under 26s. the duty shall be 9s. 3d. To decrease 1s. 6d. for every shilling advance till 31s. and the duty then to be 1s. per quarter.

An advance of 1s. 6d. duty upon 9s. 3d. for every shilling decline in the average below 25s.

Rye, Peas and Beans.—When the average shall be 32s. and under 37s., duty 15s. 6. To decrease 1s. 6d. duty for every shilling advance till 46s. and then to be 1s. per quarter. Whenever the price shall be under 32s., and not under 35s., the duty to be 16s. 3d., and to advance 1s. 6d. for every shilling decline in price.

Wheat-Meal and Flour.—For every barrel of 196 lbs. a duty equal to the amount payable on 58 1-2 gallons of Wheat.

Oatmeal.—For every quantity of 184 lbs., a duty equal to that payable on one quarter of Oats.

Indian Corn, Buck Wheat, Beer and Bigg, the same duty as is payable on Barley.

If produce of, or imported from, any British Possession in North America, or out of Europe.

Wheat.—For every quarter 9s. until the average reach 73s., and then 6d. per quarter.

Barley.—2s. 6d. per quarter till 34s., and then 6d. per quarter.

Oats.—2s. per quarter till 25s., and then 6d per quarter.

Flour, Oat-Meal, Indian Corn, Buck Wheat, Bear and Bigg, as above.

Foreign Intelligence.

(From the Gazette of France.)

Jassy, June 22d.—(by express.)—A Courier from the camp before Brailow brings the news that that place capitulated on the 20th, an attack was made by the Russians on the 17th and 18th, was repulsed by the Garrison with desperate courage. The Russians are said to have lost above 5,000 men, 2 Generals, and 70 Officers. It is said that the Garrison were allowed to retire at liberty, on account of its courageous resistance. Great quantities of ammunition, and above 150 cannons were found in the place.

Corfu, June 10th.—A Courier who arrived on the 7th, has brought us the certain news that Mr. Stratford Canning and Mr. de Ribeaupierre will soon return to this place. The situation of the latter, in the negociation concerning Greece, will be very embarrassing in consequence of the separate war between this Court and the Porte. It is said that the Russian squadron is going to separate from that of the Allies in the Archipelago, and this result, notwithstanding the declarations of Russia, which are doubtless sincere, must be considered inevitable.

PORTUGAL.

Lisbon, July 3.—A description of the present state of Lisbon would be a difficult task, for horror reigns around. The Constitutionalists have not recovered from yesterday's alarm respecting their duty in the North, which the Gazette of this morning, in a short parragraph unofficially published, has not much allayed. It is thus:—

Our troops are marching with rapid strides on the rebels, General the Visconde de St. Joze de Pesqueira left Albergaria a velha at the head of the 3d division, and was stationed on the 30th at Oliveirs d'Azemeis, from whence the rebels had retired before break of day to Grijo. Gen. Povoas was advancing in the same direction.

It was stated afterwards, on report, that the Constitutionalists had made a stand on reaching the Grijo, and had defeated Don Miguel's troops. It is however believed that this cannot last long and that they must ultimately yield.

Portsmouth, July 12.—The Proetis. 10, arrived from Oporto, having been relieved on that station by the Harrier Sloop of war. The Proeris left Oporto on the 2d of July, at which time every thing was in confusion, trade was at a stand still, and the English Ships in the Douro was fast loading with British property. The Cordelia sloop of war had received on board plenty of treasure.—The Constitutional army was well advanced towards Lisbon; but on the 30th there were but little reliance was placed by those acquainted with the Portuguese character. An opinion prevailed, that there was as much probability of their desertion to Miguel, as of their serving against him—indeed a counter feeling was gradually arising, and the lower classes were beginning to express themselves against Don Pedro, who, they said, having abandoned Portugal had gone to South America, should not exercise authority over them. This feeling, aided by the absolute authority of the Priests, would tend greatly in favor of Don Miguel, whose authority in Lisbon was so much dreaded that Lady Stubbs and others for safety had quitted that city for Oporto, to bring away those distinguished individuals who had left this country to join the constitutional force, should their safety require it. The Galetia and Pyramus frigates, Medina and Harrier sloops of war, and Bramble cutter, were left at Lisbon; the Cordelia, Britomar and Badger, sloops of war were at Oporto.

Sir John Doyle.—This Officer has been imprisoned at Lisbon by Don Miguel. According to a letter which we have seen, he has been treated with considerable severity, having been confined, says the writer, "in a cell, so small that he cannot stand upright, and if he lies down, he must have his knees up to his chin. His only comfort is a permission which has been granted, and which he has accepted of receiving his provisions from his friends."—He has since, however been better treated. A scroll was received by some of his friends, telling them not to be uneasy. Sir John's writing materials were a piece of paper, a little water and charcoal; his method of conveyance, a towel which had been sent him to wash with, and which he returned.

One of the recent acts of Don Miguel has been to issue an order for seizing the wives and families of those people who have been compelled to fly from his barbarity. They have been destined as hostages. The Countess Saldanha sailed for Oporto, in the Proeris, with her children, having had a narrow escape.

☞ Exchange at New-York on London 10¼ a — per cent.

THE ROYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 6, 1828.

The Mail of Saturday last, enabled us to give a Postscript containing the most important items of news, from dates to 17th July.—We continue our selections, as the papers received during the present week, do not bring any later intelligence.

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor arrived in Town from Stamford on Saturday last, on board the Queenston.—Bishops, Inglis or Nova-Scotia, and Stewart of Quebec, were passengers by the same conveyance, and proceeded with the Boat to Kingston on the evening of the same day. His Excellency returned to Stamford on Tuesday last,

We are indebted to the politeness of a friend for an account of the splendid entertainment given at Quebec, to His Excellency the Governor-in-Chief and the Countess Dalhousie, contained in a late Gazette received by the Alciope, and which will be found under the proper head in this days paper.

Change in the weather. After several days of excessive heat, the weather has changed, and is again comfortably cool. The Thermometer, which stood at from 80 to 90 degrees in the shade, has fallen to 60, and as the change has been accompanied with high winds, and refreshing showers of rain, it is hoped that it will have the effect of restoring a more general state of health, than has been experienced for some time past.

The debates which have lately taken place in the House of Commons, on matters relating to the Canadas, and particularly to this Province, we have no doubt will be read with interest. In all that relates, either to the security, or improvement of the Province, there is abundant proof of the desire on the part of the Mother Country, to give us every assistance in her power, and it is to be hoped, that our own exertions will not be wanting to second the generous intentions evinced towards us. The internal improvement of the Country as far as water communication is more particularly concerned, has in an especial manner, received the countenance and support of the Government. Adding to this, the necessary means for our defence in the event of war, it only remains for us to make the much required improvement, for facilitating communication between intermediate parts of the Country, by adopting a general system for putting our Highways in a good state of repair. The subject has not indeed been neglected by those who take a real interest in the welfare of the Province, but unfortunately the Patriotism of some persons among us, who seem determined, not to mend their ways, has prevented the most useful measures, for the accomplishment of so desirable an object from being carried into operation.

It is generally acknowledged, we believe, that the inhabitants of this Province, are materially indebted to Dr. Bartlett the Editor of the Albion at New-York, for the earliest intelligence of whatever relates to the affairs of Canada. The Debate on the Clergy Reserve question, was first received here from the Albion Office in an Extra, and we have no doubt was taken, as reported in the papers received by the latest Packet Ship from England. The Editor of the Colonial Advocate, however, accuses Dr. Bartlett of giving "a garbled statement"—in preference to "a more full and satisfactory report." Mr. McKenzie from papers of later date, has culled the Debate in a way best suited to please himself, and has interspersed it with occasional remarks of his own, for the edification of his readers.—Yet however anxious he may be for "full reports," he has omitted some things which may be considered important. We will point out an instance.—In the course of his Speech on presenting the Petition on this subject, THE EARL OF HARDINGTON, alluding to Missionaries from the United States, said—"if they could teach them morality and religion, (and he was far from judging otherwise) yet they were by no means calculated to teach them the duty they owed to their King, or love and attachment to their Country." Mr. McKenzie in one of his interpolated remarks, tells us, that the Earl of Hardington, is the same Lord Binning, who on a former occasion "exposed," Dr. Strachan's Chart. It is a little surprising however, that Mr. McKenzie should omit so remarkable a passage in the Noble Earl's Speech, which so completely coincides with the sentiments expressed by Dr. Strachan—sentiments which we believe are acknowledged as correct by every reflecting and sensible person, and which appear to have received the sanction of the Earl of Haddington, himself.—Having thus "exposed" Mr. McKenzie, it remains for him to explain, why the omission was made in his "full and satisfactory report" of this Debate.

Brockville Gazette. We have received the first number of this paper, a handsome and well filled sheet, published under the Editorial management of Mr. MacFarlane, at Brockville. Its appearance is doubtless an eye sore to those who are desirous, that the public should receive instruction and information from themselves only, but as a means of disseminating sound and loyal principles, and instilling feelings of veneration and respect for the glorious institutions of that country, of which we all feel a pride in calling ourselves, its, "loyal and faithful people," we have no doubt but that the Brockville Gazette will receive a liberal support. Such a paper has long been wanted in that part of the Country, and we are glad to see it established.

The Albion of 30th August, we received yesterday.—The Josephine from Belfast has furnished London dates to 21st July.

From the Journal of Commerce.

The London Globe of the 21st, announces the death of His Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, which took place that morning at 11 o'clock, at the Palace of Lambeth. His Grace, who was in his seventy-sixth year, had been indisposed for some time past, but had only been confined to the house for the last ten days. Immediately after the decease of His Grace, his son, the Speaker of the House of Commons, was sent for and arrived very shortly. His Grace, beside being Primate of all England, and Metropolitan, was a Lord of Trade and Plantations, an official Trustee of the British Museum, a Governor of the Charterhouse, and Visitor of All Souls and Merton College, Oxford. He was cousin to the Duke of Rutland, and brother to Lord Manners.

Parliament was to be prorogued on the 25th July.

London papers of the 20th say:—The Duke of Clarence came to town unexpectedly on Thursday evening, from Portsmouth. His Royal Highness was about proceeding, in the Royal Yacht, from Portsmouth to Torbay, and the Yacht was just putting out to sea on Thursday morning, when despatches were brought to His Royal Highness from the Duke of Wellington, by a messenger who was sent from London on Wednesday night. The Royal Duke immediately came on shore, and left Portsmouth about 11 o'clock, attended by Captain Spencer, from London, where His Royal Highness arrived about half-past six o'clock. The Duke of Wellington on learning the arrival of the Lord High Admiral despatched a messenger to His Majesty, at the Royal Lodge in Windsor Park. Early on Friday morning the Duke of Wellington came to the Admiralty, and had a conference, which lasted upwards of an hour with the Royal Duke.

The express forwarded to Portsmouth, to His Royal Highness the Duke of Clarence, requiring his immediate attendance at a Cabinet Council, is understood to relate to a determination of Government to increase the British naval force in the Mediterranean.

Tariff of the United States.—In the House of Commons, on the 14th July, Mr. Huskisson rose to move for copies of the American Tariffs of 1824 and the present year, with any communications from His Majesty's Ministers in the United States on the subject. It was necessary, before the close of the Session, to take some notice, not of the intention, perhaps, but of the tendency of certain Acts which had been lately passed in the United States, detrimental to their own interests, but certainly calculated greatly to injure and impede the trade and manufactures of Great Britain. In 1815, a Convention was entered into for four years, which was not introduced by him, but which was nearly one of the first of those reciprocity treaties that had been so much abused. The simple principle was this:—That all articles the growth, produce and manufacture of either country, should be received in either upon duties as low at those paid upon any the like articles, the growth, produce, or manufacture of any other country; and further, that there should be no discriminating duties in reference to the national character of the respective ships. In 1812 it was renewed. At this period, when we were exploding the doctrine of prohibition, it was adopted by the Americans, in reference to the great staple manufactures of England.—About the same time the Convention was violated by the United States, imposing an additional duty on iron rolled instead of beaten into plates, which was an increase occasioned merely by the improvement of the mode of manufacture. This country remonstrated, but without effect; though on the renewal of the convention the principle was conceded, and it was also agreed that the treaty should be dissolved on either party giving twelve months notice.—Since that period the American Congress has added to or duties, particularly upon wool, hordware, and cotton, and those duties were so great as to amount almost to a prohibition, and, as in the year before the proposition for an increase was rejected by a majority of one, in the year 1827 it was carried by a great majority.

But he understood that the best informed upon such subjects in the United States, looked upon the increase as highly prejudicial to their interests; certain it was that every country looked to every question with reference to its own particular interests, and on that principle he did not complain of the United States; but on that principle also was it that we ought to look to our own course, so as to counteract that feeling in others. He was not one of those who advocated a system of prohibitory warfare; but if we did not adopt some course of the kind we should forfeit our claim to impartiality, and justify complaints on the part of other countries who were dealing with us in a fairer and juster manner. The people of the United States deceived themselves if they supposed we had not ample means of manifesting our feelings, even under the Convention, but it was, however, open to us to put an end to that Convention by due notice given, and this was, in his opinion, the most manly course. The principal exports of America—tobacco, rice, cotton, and turpentine—were not manufactured in this country, but were merely sent to this country for consumption, and with those articles it would not be difficult to supply ourselves from other sources. He believed that this tariff owed its existence less to the opinion that it would promote national objects, than electioneering purposes. It was not a matter of surprise that party should prevail in a country where the supreme executive power was an object of competition, not twice in an age, but once every four years. He observed, that these measures were generally brought forward at the period of these elections, with reference to the excitement of the people.

While the trade of the United States with this country amounted to one half of all the exports of their own productions it formed only one sixth of the whole trade of the country. He would leave it to the sober and temperate consideration of those who ought to be the rulers of the destinies of that country, to decide whether it was a safe game for them to risk one half of their trade, in order to impede us in a branch of our commerce, which was only one sixth of our whole foreign trade. So far from retaliating, he would leave the American Government to find out the folly of their proceedings; and he had no doubt they would soon repent the day they adopted this weak and absurd policy. He was of opinion that every one pound of injury the Tariff would inflict on England the injury to America would be ten pounds.

Mr. Hume said nothing rankled more in the breasts of the Americans, than our exclusion of their corn. This was the staple of half the country, and it was the influence of those States which grew corn, that this unwise and impolitic Tariff had been passed.

Mr. Peel said, it was a matter to suppose the Tarif was a retaliatory measure, for in the very year that it was introduced we had relaxed in our regulation respecting American corn. He had no objection to the production of the documents from which he gathered sufficient to prove to him, that the security of America would before long induce that country to recall the present step, as it must necessarily lead to considerable suffering there it continued; and in the meantime he was glad that circumstances prevented the possibity of our adopting any retaliatory system, as the only effect likely to be produced by such a course would be, its being taken wrong by the Americans, and leading to still further steps. The motion was then agreed to.

H. M. Ship Challenger, Capt. Fitzclarence, arrived at Halifax on the 8th ult. from England, to convey Sir James Kempt to Quebec, to take the reins as Governor-General of British North America; and to carry the Earl of Dalhousie to Europe.

Lady Jane Peel the daughter of The Duchess of Richmond, and wife of Mr. Laurence Peel, was safely delivered of twins, in Portland-place on Thursday.

Lower Canada.

(From the Official Gazette.)

GRAND BALL AND SUPPER TO HIS EXCELLENCY AND THE COUNTESS OF DALHOUSIE.

On Tuesday Evening, August 26th, the Civil and Military Society of Quebec had the honor of receiving as guests, His Excellency the Governor in Chief and the Countess of Dalhousie with their suite. The gratification to which these distinguished personages were invited was given in the receipt of rooms of the Old Chateau, the use of which was permitted in consequence of the want of a suitable Ball Room—a deficiency in the resources of the City which we hope to see some day supplied.

By a little after nine o'clock, a very numerous and respectable company had assembled, comprising the larger portion of the best society of the place, and agreeably diversified by the presence of many strangers, both ladies and gentlemen, from Montreal and other parts of the Province. We also noticed General

Von Reuscher from the United States, and Mr. Justice Chipman from New Brunswick. The Noble Visitors arrived about half past nine, and were received by the Gentlemen of the Committee, at the head of whom were the Chief Justice of the Province, and Colonel Nicol, the Commandant, as properly representing the donors of the entertainment. The Earl and Countess advanced into the Room, the Band playing "God save the King," and were conducted to the Throne erected for them in a central situation on the West side of the Room. Here they received the salutations and obeisance of their friends, and of the subscribers to the Fête generally. Their Excellencies afterwards leaving the Throne, proceeded to view the decorations of the apartment; after which dancing was commenced with Lady Mary Ramsay's first, Her Ladyship leading off the Contres dance with Colonel Nicol.

All arrangements connected with the entertainment were under the control of the Committee; and when the object of this Fête is considered, it may be supposed that every attention which could demonstrate the respect and esteem felt towards their Noble Visitors was cordially and unanimously paid by the Gentlemen who composed it. To their care and exertion the thanks of the subscribers are eminently due.—The taste and simplicity of the decorations, the appropriate nature of the emblems used, the regularity of the arrangements, and the excellence of the music, were proofs of their ability and zeal.

The company on entering the staircase to the Ball Room, passed through a close shrubbery of evergreens, in which were large variegated lamps in great profusion. In the window on the first landing place was suspended a transparency representing the Star of the Most Honorable Order of the Bath, in Crimson, and "George R" in a brilliant light. The second landing place contained odoriferous plants, and was lighted by large and handsome globular lamps suspended from the ceiling. The Ball Room presented a most pleasing coup d'œil. Round the whole circular immerable flags and standards were festooned with great skill, whose graceful folds were here and there varied by hanging drapery, so as to produce a most pleasing effect. The points of these were ornamented throughout with Coronets. The Throne was erected in the centre of the west side, between two transparencies, representing dancing figures. A soft covered with crimson cloth formed the platform of the state or royal color. The form of the canopy was much admired and gave the whole the appearance which induces us to call it, the Throne. It was composed of one large and valuable Imperial Standard, elegantly arranged, with an upper, and crowned by an Earl's Coronet. On either side of the Throne was displayed a Color of the 5th Canadian Regiment of Militia. The Colors of the Quebec Militia with the date 1775 were crossed behind the sofa on which the Countess took her seat.

The Gallery at the head of the Room was filled with the Band of the 15th Regiment. That of the 66th was stationed in the open passage which connects the two reception rooms.—The pillars which support the gallery were encircled with red and white ears clustered around them. In the centre compartment under the gallery, appeared the Arms of Dalhousie in transparency, with the motto and supporters. On the left was an admirable transparency of a Grenadier of the 26th, (Cameronian) Regiment, of which the Governor in Chief is Colonel, and in which he eldest son Lord Ramsay, is now serving. The right was occupied by another transparency of a Highland Chieftain fully armed, representing what the Ramsays were in days of warlike feud and foray. As we passed this admirable picture, the following impromptu forced itself on our mind, for inserting which our readers will readily excuse us:—

Warrior chief of Ramsay's line,
Proudly, in garb of Gaul you shine,
Bonnet of blue, and eagle plume—
With kilt of plaid, and tartan hose,
And bright claymore to Scotia's foes,
The harbinger of death and doom!

Both these transparencies were the work of Mr. Triand, an artist, whom we have had occasion to mention on a former occasion, to possessing deserving encouragement. We may here add that all the transparencies we believe, except the George and Star, were executed by Mr. Triand.

One of the most gratifying attentions of the Committee, in our opinion, was the arrangement by which the front of the panels in the gallery was ornamented, above the pillars.—In the centre, below, in large characters appeared "Egypt"—above, in the different panneels were inscribed, "Helder," "Belleisle," "Martinique," "Walcheren," "Alexandria," "Syria," "Algiers," "Navarin," "Pyrenees," "Bordeaux." We need not say these are the names of places where the military services of the Governor in Chief have been advantageously given to his country. The ornaments of the gallery were rendered complete by the Kings Colors of the two Regts. in Garrison, the 15th and 66th, one of which was hung on the right and one on the left, while the Standard lately given to the Cavalry by His Excellency, occupied the centre. At the end of the room opposite the gallery, between the doors, a large ensign reached from the ceiling to the floor. In the centre was placed a mirror, flanked by a stand of colors of 4th Regt. of Canadian Militia in appropriate Uniform. The floor was edged all round by a fanciful border, done in distemper, leaving the centre for the dancers.

Having thus imperfectly described the coup d'œil of the room, it remains to add that dancing was kept up with spirit, notwithstanding the month being August, until One o'clock, when the Countess was led to the supper room below by the Chief Justice, the Earl conducting Mrs. Sewell, and the company following. An admirable Supper, prepared by Mr. Holdgate, under the direction of the Committee, was laid in two rooms, in which it is supposed three hundred persons sat down at one time, and were well accommodated. Three tables were laid length-ways, and a fourth, at which sat the guests, transversely. Immediately over the Earl was a full length transparency of His Majesty George IV. in full robes of the Garter, supported by the suggestal colours of the 15th and 66th Regiments. At the end of the room was placed a transparency of the Royal Arms. The Supper was as ample and as handsome as hospitality, taste and exertion could devise and execute. Wines of Spain, Portugal and France abounded, within the reach of every one; and Champagne unsparingly shed its enlivening juice, in all its sparkling richness and glory. Each had its votaries, though the influence of the latter seemed to predominate

After Supper, the Chief Justice, who occupied the Chair as President, having the Earl and Countess on either side, rose and spoke as follows:—"Gentlemen.

"I have the honour to propose to you, the Health of His Majesty.

"It is not necessary for me to remind you, that this is a Bumper toast.—Your attachment to His Majesty's person and Government will be quite sufficient to indicate you to fill your glasses spontaneously to the brim and to crown them, according to the good old British custom, with four times four.—The King."

The Toast was drunk in honor of the President, with the utmost enthusiasm, when Mr Pearman, who with Mrs. Pearman and Mr. Gear had received the particular invitation of the Committe, commenced the Royal Anthem, in the most excellent style, the company joining and joining most heartily in the chorus. Mr. P. was assisted by Mrs. Pearman and Mr. Gear in the subsequent verses.

The Chief Justice then rose to propose the health of the Earl of Dalhousie, to whom the entertainment was given as a token of respect from the Society of Quebec. In so doing he used the following words,—the sentiments expressed being those of every individual present:—

"Gentlemen,

"I am about to propose to you the health of our noble Guest, His Excellency the Governor in Chief.

"This Toast I am quite sure will be drunk with enthusiasm, but it will be mingled with regret. As an expression of our sense of the benefits which during a long and arduous administration of the Government of this Province, we have derived, as well from His Excellency's conduct in public life, as from his conduct in private life; and as an expression of our gratitude not only for these benefits, but for the earnest desire to promote our best interests and our happiness, by which, both in public and private life, his Excellency has been uniformly and equally distinguished, it will, I feel be received with great satisfaction, but it will nevertheless be received with sentiments of regret.—The entertainment of this evening is but a prelude to the Noble Earl's departure from this Province, and the last Toast more immediately anticipates the loss which we are destined too soon to experience, and shall deeply regret.

"His Excellency the Governor in Chief,"

The manner in which this toast was received cannot be described. It was received, as it felt, in the unanimous burst of approbation from the whole company. It was drank with cheer after cheer, re-echoed from the adjoining supper-room, where the work of festivity was also most ably conducted. The Earl and Countess Dalhousie who were present the scene was truly gratifying—it was delightful. The enthusiasm of the company was kept up for very many minutes by the sound of a Royal Salute, which was heard to peal in the intervals between the almost deafening cheers. This compliment was entirely unexpected by His Excellency, and previously unknown to the company at large. We need not say they were agreeably surprised.

When any thing like silence could be obtained, His Excellency was observed to rise, and speaking with much suppressed feeling, and in a voice broken with emotion, he addressed the President and company nearly as follows:—

"Chief Justice and Gentlemen,

"I should be wanting in every feeling did I not acknowledge with my warmest thanks the great honor you have just now done me by this toast.

"I should think myself highly fortunate indeed if I have in any degree merited the compliment with which the Chief Justice has proposed my name to your notice. Upon the eve of my departure from a station of great responsibility, and from scenes in which much of my time and public life has been blended and in one, I cannot but consider it a question of inexpressible importance to my own mind whether I do or do not, carry with me the good opinion of those, over whom His Majesty had appointed me to govern in his name.

"The expressions which have now been made use of in this public and brilliant Assembly are sufficient answers upon this subject—and I will not permit myself to say more than once sure you, that in taking my leave of Canada, I shall feel myself highly gratified, and proud of the extraordinary honour done me this evening"

The deep emotion made by this address was seen in the countenance of all present. It was impossible to forget that it was almost the last: and in that word what thoughts are embodied! Still, it was closed by the repeated cheers of the company, after which Mr. Pearman sung the song from the Opera of Guy Mannering, not all, was certainly original, and of which we should have been happy to have received a copy. It was highly in honor of the Noble Earl, and was received with the greatest applause.

The President then rose to propose the health of the Countess of Dalhousie, in these words:—

"Ladies and Gentlemen,

"I have now a Toast to propose in which you will take a lively interest,—it is the health of our noble guest the Countess of Dalhousie.

"To the Countess of Dalhousie we all stand eminently indebted for her constant uniform and successful endeavours to promote the happiness of every individual in Society, over which she has so long and so exemplarily presided, and under the sanction of the present occasion, I trust I may, with propriety, be permitted to express our sense of the many obligations which her Ladyship has conferred upon us, our sincere thanks, and our best and heart felt wishes for her health, prosperity and happiness.—The Countess of Dalhousie."

To this compliment, which was as warmly received as that paid to her gallant Lord, the Countess could not be expected to reply personally. Indeed it was well observed, that the state of Her Ladyship's feelings entirely disabled her from the attempt. She was, in fact, entirely overcome with emotion at leaving her house himself, struggling with the strongest feelings, returned thanks on her behalf, very nearly as follows:—

"Ladies and Gentlemen,

"I feel it indeed a difficult task in rising now to speak for Lady Dalhousie. I feel the difficulty, because I well know how much she would wish me to express, and how little I am capable of doing justice to her feelings. She entreats you however to spare her by accepting of my thanks for her.

"Since she could have no assurance you that she is deeply sensible, and truly grateful for the expressions of the Chief Justice in giving this toast; and I trust I may be permitted to join with her in gratefully acknowledging all the kindness that this splendid fete is intended to convey to us, before we leave you.

"Wherever our destinies shall lead us, we shall always remember the years we have spent in Canada with great and heart felt pleasure.—Eight years have now passed away like a dream, and we now feel all the force of the expression, "ils sont passes ces jours de fete"—but they have left many and deep impressions that time cannot efface.

"I will not presume further, than to offer Lady Dalhousie's best thanks; and her best wishes that all here may long enjoy the utmost happiness."

When this little address, which, with the effect derived from the manner and sincerity of the delivery, was pronounced to be admirable, had finished amid the cheers of the company, Mr. Pearman again contributed to the pleasure of the evening, by singing, most pleasingly, an Irish Melody from Moore. The company now rose, the Noble guests setting the example, and with the Ladies returned to resume the dance in the Ball Room.

"The Duke of Clarence and the Navy" was then drank with loud applause. Mr. Pearman was encored in the national song of "Rule Britannia," and Commodore Barrie, in a frank and hearty address, acknowledged the honor done to his profession, by the toast and the encore, which he assured the company should reach the knowledge of the Lord High Admiral. The healths of Col. Ramsay, Captain Maule, and the Committee were also drank, the two former with three times three. In the mean time dancing was continued up stairs. The Earl and Countess retired about three o'clock, having expressed themselves repeatedly in terms of obligation to the Gentlemen of the Committee. The dancing did not cease until near four o'clock in the morning, by which time the Ladies had all retired.—There were not wanting, indeed some kindred spirits, who protracted their pleasures, and rejoiced in each others company for an hour or two later.

This entertainment, the cause of which will long be a source of regret, reflected to the honor of Quebec for hospitality and good feeling—It will be long remembered as a fete, indeed, as the respect and affection of those who gave it shall be directed towards the memory of the Earl and Countess of Dalhousie. The Company is supposed to have exceeded four hundred persons.

The fair weather of the latter part of last week has enabled the husbandman to begin his labours in several Parishes in this District, the general report is that the Wheat crop will be below an average, the Oat and other grain crops will yield more favourably; although the potatoes in the low grounds have suffered severely, those raised on the higher and drier soils best adapted for their cultivation will yield a full crop, and in general of excellent quality. [Last night a Thunder storm with heavy rain rolled over the City any neighbourhood. We have not heard that any considerable damage has been done and hope the crops have received no further injury. The Hay Crop has been light and generally ill got in.—Quebec Mercury.

The Horatio which left Quebec 17th June, was off Liverpool on the 16th July.

States.—A private letter of the 15th ult. from a Mercantile House in Liverpool states that the proposed reduction of the duty on Foreign Staves has not taken place.—ib.

AGRICULTURAL.

Culture and uses of Potatoes.—At the Weekly breakfast given by the President of the Royal Society on the 1st inst., Sir John Sinclair requested permission to lay before the meeting, a statement of the objects he had in view, in wishing the public attention should be more steadily directed than heretofore it had been; to the culture and use of potatoes; and having produced specimens of potato meal, and of the farina of potatoes, he proceeded shortly to explain how these two substances were prepared, and to what purpose they were respectively applicable.

POTATO MEAL.

In preparing potato meal, no material part of the root is lost. The whole, after being merely scraped or peeled, is cut into very thin slices, then carefully dried in any kiln or stove, and then afterwards ground into meal in a common mill. The advantages of this process are—

1st. Security for subsistence. As potatoes are a very precarious crop, and cannot be preserved in their natural state, beyond a few months after they are dug, any country in which they form the chief sustenance of the people, (according to the present system, be extremely liable to scarcity. But when dried and converted into meal, potatoes may be preserved for a long period of time, and the abundant crop of one season may thus be made to compensate for the scanty produce of another.

2d. Increase of food from the same quantity of land. Where a family depends entirely on their potato garden for food, such dependence necessarily leads to distress. The potato is seldom ready for consumption before the month of October, and frequently becomes unfit for food before the month of June or July. The family, however, being obliged to live on their potatoes throughout the whole year, have no resource but to consume one part of the crop, after it has lost much of its nutritious properties, and another part before it is thoroughly ripe. In this way, probably, one sixth of the whole crop is wasted. But as the potatoes may always be converted into meal when in their greatest perfection, this waste may be prevented, and the same quantity of land will thus produce one-sixth part more of wholesome nourishment, at all times ready for consumption.

3rd. Prevention of diseases. The unwholesome diet to which a population dependent wholly on potatoes is obliged to have recourse, during the months intervening, between the decay of the old crop and the thorough ripening of the new, causes typhus and other diseases of a most infectious and fatal kind; but these diseases would, in a great measure disappear, were the necessity for using the unwholesome food, which principally occasions them, no longer to exist.

The low rate at which potato meal can be supplied, when compared with other articles of human food derived from grain, appears from the following result of the experiments by Gen. Dixon, in Dumfriesshire, to ascertain their relative proportions:—

Wheat,	24
Oatmeal,	14	Per Pound.
Barley Meal,	14
Potato Meal,	4

POTATO FARINA.

The mode of extracting farina from the potato, is to separate, by grating, straining, and repeated washing, the mealy from the coarse and fibrous part of the root. The former, which contains the most nourishing portion of the root, is then dried, and becomes exactly in appearance like whesten flour. The fibrous part may be employed for making household bread or other useful purposes. The advantages of this process are—

1. Improvement in bread made from inferior wheaten flour.—Flour produced from inferior soils, or exposed to unfavourable seasons, is deficient in that important article, "the gluten;"—but by a mixture of the jelly of the potatoe, made from the farina, bread as light in texture, and nearly as nutritious in quality, may be produced from flour of the finest quality, the gluten, in which inferior wheat is defective, being supplied by the farina.

2. Greater quantity of nourishment from the same extent of soil. An acre of land in potatoes will produce about 2,700 pounds weight of farina, whereas an acre of land in wheat will not produce more than 1,260 pounds weight of flour. It is evident, therefore, that in proportion as farina is used instead of wheat in the composition of bread, the country will become capable of supporting a greater population, and be rendered more independent of foreign relations for subsistance.

Sir John proceeded to mention many other valuable uses to which the potatoe may be applied, as the rearing and fattening domestic animals—the manufacture of spirits—the dressing of weaver's webs—the preparation of various dyes, &c. adding, however, that the points he had already dwelt upon, were those which it seemed to him most important to illustrate.

Domestic.

The court of Oyer and Terminer and general gaol delivery for the District of Bathurst commenced in the Court House in this town on Monday last.

The Hon. C. A. Hagerman presided as Judge.

Various civil suits of great importance were decided.

The following is a list of the convictions which took place at this assize:

Henry Bestram.—Perjury, sentenced to be imprisoned six calendar months in the common gaol of the District of Bathurst, and to pay a fine of £10, and remain imprisoned till the Fine be paid.

Daniel Ryan and Richard Winn.—Larceny, sentenced to be banished from the Province, for the space of seven years, to leave the Province within three days.

Mary Ryan.—Larceny, sentenced to be imprisoned in the common gaol of the District of Bathurst for the space of Fourteen days, and then be discharged.—Independent Examiner.

From the U. C. Gazette of 28th August.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE, }
23d August, 1828. }

HIS EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR has been pleased to appoint Alexander Thom, Josias Taylor, Charles H. Sache, and George H. Reade, Esquires, Trustees for the Public School of the Bathurst District.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE, }
25th August, 1828. }

HIS EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR has been pleased to grant a Licence to George Thomas Dowsley, Esq. M. D., late of the University of St. Andrews, to practice Physic, Surgery, and Midwifery within this Province, he having exhibited a Diploma, from that College, as required by 2 Geo. 4, cap. 5.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE, }
28th August, 1828. }

HIS EXCELLENCY the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR has been pleased to appoint James Black, of St. Catharines, in the Niagara District, to be a Notary Public in and for the Province of Upper Canada.

Varieties.

Velocity of Light.—The fixed stars are at an immense distance from us; we will take an instance from the small stars just visible in Dr. Herschel's forty-foot telescope, and endeavor to give an idea of their distance, as follows:—The earth moves round the sun with the velocity of 100,320 feet per second. I. e. fifty times faster than a cannon ball, as the greatest velocity of a cannon ball is only 2000 feet per second. But the velocity of light is about 104,000 times greater than that of the earth; it travels, in eight minutes, a space that the earth would take near two months to travel; yet Dr. Herschel supposed that light had taken two millions of years to come to the earth from the small stars above mentioned.

Stammering.—The stored disclosed.—Commence while respiring and speak slowly; the stammerer always attempts to speak whilst drawing in the breath, but seldom succeeds in uttering a word of sentence, until he has taken in a full inspiration, and begins to respire, when he spakes fluently, until he begins again to draw in his breath.

2. Place the tongue flat on the bottom of the mouth before attempting to speak, the stammerer's tongue always cleaves to the roof and is there kept by striving to speak whilst respiring.

3. Begin by speaking short sentences, and easy words at the beginning, and terminating with hard ones.

By strictly observing the above rules, we believe that many stammerers may entirely free themselves from any impediment in their speech.

LOCAL STORM.—When Mr. Scoresby, jun., commanded the ship Henrietta, he, on one occasion, experienced on the Greenland sea, a tedious gale, accompanied by snowy weather. As the wind began to abate, a ship came up under all sails. The Master hailed the Henrietta, and inquired why she was under close-reefed top-sails in such moderate weather. On being told that a storm had just subsided, he declared that he knew nothing of it, though he had observed a swell and a black cloud a-head of his ship that seemed to advance before him, until he was overshadowed by it, a little while before he came up with the Henrietta. He had had fine weather and light winds the whole day.

EXTRAORDINARY TAKE OF HADDOCKS.—About a thousand is considered a fair, and 1,400 a very good take of Haddocks; but on Saturday morning, a New-Haven fisherman arrived with 8,310. This is a take altogether unprecedented in the annals of the fishermen of that place.—SCOTSMAN.

Novel mode of Smuggling. There arrived at Leith, a north country coaster laden with a number of well-fed geese, to supply the demand during the festive season of Christmas. The Customhouse boatmen boarded her as usual, and one of them, to satisfy his suspicion, on account of their great weight, most unceremoniously cut up one of the fattest, and to his satisfaction, if not surprise, discovered a bottle of whiskey deposited inside. A destructive attack was now made upon the whole, and the coaster was speedily disencumbered of its burden.

Curious Present.—Among the presents destined to the Schah of Persia by the Emperor of Russia, and which are customary in the East after the conclusion of peace is a bedstead of extraordinary magnificence, and which has been exposed at the Emperor's palace of Tauride in the capital, for public view, preparatory to its being sent to Persia. It is entirely made of crystal, and is accessible by steps of the same material, all worked in imitation of large diamonds lucrusted in a solid frame. On each side there are spouts meant to eject scented water, which by its murmur invites sleep. It is crowned by a large chandelier, which spreads light in such a manner over itself and the rest of the flame, as to give to the whole the splendid appearance of millions of diamonds reflecting their brilliancy at once. This bedstead, which is perhaps the only one of the kind ever imagined or attempted, has been worked at the imperial manufactory of Saint Petersburg.

Dye for Cotton.—Cotton at Smyrna, is dyed with madder, in the following order:—The Cotton is boiled in common olive oil, and then in mild alkali: being cleaned it will then take the madder dye; and this is the fine colour we see in Smyrna Cotton Yarn. The sum of five thousand pounds was given in England for this secret.

THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER.

The Mississippi is in some respects the noblest river in the world—draining a large valley, and irrigating a more fertile region, and having probably a longer course, than any other stream. It commences in many branches, that rise, for the most part, in wild rice lakes, but it traverses no great distance before it becomes a broad stream.—Sometimes, in its beginning, it runs a wide expanse of water, with a current scarcely perceptible, along a marshy bed; at others, its fishes are seen sporting over a white sand, in waters almost clear as air: at other times it is encompassed to a narrow rapid current between ancient and modern hoary limestone bluffs. Having acquired in length of course, following its meanders of three hundred miles, a width of half a mile—having formed its distinctive character, it precipitates its waters down the falls of St. Anthony; thence it glides alternately through beautiful meadows and deep forests, swelling in its advance with the tribute of a hundred streams. In its progress it receives a tributary, which of itself has a course of more than a thousand leagues. Thence it rolls its accumulated, turbid, and sweeping mass of waters through continued forests, only broken here and there by the awe, in which its course is encompassed to the sea. No thinking mind can contemplate this mighty and resistless river, sweeping its proud course from point to point, curving round its bends through the dark forests, without a feeling of sublimity. —(Western Review.)

THE CROCODILE.

"As the Crocodile feeds in the Nile," says Heroditus, "the inside of his mouth is always lined with bdella. All birds, one alone excepted, flee from the crocodile; that bird, the trochilos, on the contrary, flies to him with eagerness, and renders him a great service; for every time that the Crocodile lands to rest himself, and stretches himself out with open jaws, the trochilos enters his mouth, which it clears of the bdella that it finds there. The Crocodile is grateful, and never does any injury to the little bird from which he receives so good an office." Although this statement is confirmed by Aristotle, Pliny, and other ancient writers, it has been very generally discredited in modern, times. Recent inquiries, however, show that in this, as in most of his relations, the father of history is justified by the fact. The term "bdella" has hitherto been translated "leech." It seems, however, that it is a kind of gnat, myriads of which insects swarm on the banks of the Nile, and attack the Crocodile when he comes to repose on the sand. His mouth is not so hermetically closed that what they can entice, which they do in such numbers that the interior part of his palate, which is naturally of a bright yellow, appears covered with a darkish brown crust. The insects strikes their trunks into the orifices of the glands which abound in the mouth of the Crocodile; and the tongue of the Crocodile being immoveable, he cannot get rid of them. It is then that the trochilos, a kind of little ring-plover, which pursues the gnats every where, hastens to his relief, and dislodges his troublesome enemies; and that without any danger to itself; the Crocodile always taking care, when he is about to visit with his mouth, to make certain movements which warn the bird to fly away.

Birth,

At Fort George on the 4th inst., the Lady of the Revd. T. Handcock, Acting Chaplain to the Forces—of a Daughter.

At Quebec, on Wednesday the 20th ult., the Lady of Dep'y. Asst Comy. General Roe, of a daughter.

Married,

On Saturday last, August 30, by the Rev. Dr. Phillips, Mr. G. A. Barber, to Miss Shortis.

Died,

On Monday last, Mr. Sam'l. Charnley—aged 72 years.

JUST PUBLISHED, and for Sale at the Office of the LOYALIST, York, U. C., by ROBERT STANTON,—The UPPER CANADA ALMANAC, and Farmers Calendar, for the year 1829.

☞ Price 2s. Cy'cy. per dozen.—Orders with a remittance, duly attended to, and parcels forwarded agreeable to directions.

September 6, 1828.

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS of a new GAOL and COURT HOUSE at HAMILTON, District of Newcastle.—Notice is hereby given that the undermentioned premiums are offered to such persons as shall furnish the Clerk of the Peace, for the approval of the Magistrates of the District of Newcastle, on or before the 1st day of October next, with plans, specifications, and estimates of a Gaol and Court House (in one building) to be built in the Township of Hamilton, at or near the present Court House—the first story to be of Stone, second and third stories of Brick, to contain Criminal Cells, Debtors Rooms, Gaolers Apartments, Court Room, Grand and Petit Jury Rooms;—Also, Rooms for Offices, &c.; such as are usually required in such a Building—the roof to be covered with tin.—The whole expence not to exceed the sum of £5,000 Currency.

Premiums will be awarded as follows, viz:—

For the best and most approved plan, &c.	£15	0 0
For the 2nd do. do.	10	0 0
For the 3rd do. do.	5	0 0

T. WARD,
Clerk of the Peace,
District of Newcastle

Hamilton, Newcastle District, dd
10th May, 1828.

LANDS FOR SALE.—In the Township of Hallowell, Lot No. 46, 3d Concession, North-west side of the Carrying-Place, - - - - - Acres 200

In the Township of Cramahe—

Lots No. 17, 18, & 19,	3d Con.	600
do. 15,	4th do.
In the Township of Hamilton—
Broken Lots, 29 & 30,	9th Con.	470
27, 28, 29, 31, 32, 34, & 35,	10th do.
North-east quarter, No. 1,	4th do.	96

In the Township of Clarke—

Lots No. 16, 17 & 18, Broken Fronts		800
16, 17, & 18,	1st Con.
17, & 18,	2d do.
17, & 18,	3d do.
In the Township of Darlington—
Lot No. 14,	3d Con.	400
8,	4th do.
In the Township of Pickering—
Lots No. 18, 17, & half of 16,	1st Con.	920
and Broken Fronts,
In the Township of York—
Lot No. 37,	3d Con.	200
In the Township of Gainsborough—
Broken Lot No. 27,	3d & 4th Con.	74

Apply to ANDREW MERCER.

NEW AUCTION AND COMMISSION STORE. Erasmus Fowke of Port Hope, in the prosperous District of Newcastle, offers himself as a General Commission Agent and Auctioneer. His Extensive Stores, Graneries and Vaults, for Goods or Produce committed to his charge, together with a large Distillery on his extensive premises, and for the accommodation of his Stock, must give great facility for the disposal of all property committed to his charge.

All property given into his hands shall be disposed of agreeable to instructions: the proceeds will be immediately paid soon as received. From arrangements entered into with a forwarding Establishment in Kingston, he is engage to forward any articles of Produce intended for the Lower Province, and will attend to any instructions given for the disposal of the proceeds and make reasonable advances in Cash when intended for immediate sale.

From his long residence, and a perfect knowledge of the Country with the method of transacting business, he is induced to hope he is entitled to a share of public favor.

Port Hope, 1st January, 1828. 36-tf.

P. S.—Any Merchandize committed to his charge from Quebec, Montreal, Kingston, York, or any part of the United States, shall be attended to with the greatest punctuality.

ERASMUS FOWKE.

FRESH SEEDS.—Shaker's Garden and Flower Seeds, warranted of the growth of 1827, for sale by

EDW'D. LESSLIE & SONS.

☞ E. L. & Sons expect a quantity of clover seed in a few days.

York, 14th March 1828. 45-tf.

THE LOYALIST.

VOL. I. NO. 10.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 13, 1828.

Miscellaneous.

THE JEW'S REVENGE.

You, that did void your rheum upon my beard
And foot me, as you spurn a stranger cur
Over your threshold; monies is your suit.
Merchant of Venice.

DURING the tyrannous and turbulent reign of John, the heartless brother of the lion-hearted and romantic Richard, the Israelites who then sojourned under his ungrateful and romantic sway, found merry England but a melancholy refuge; but their christian brethren zealously sought every opportunity of proving their superiority by insulting and persecuting where or whensoever they encountered them.

The heresy of their persuasion placed them without the pale of the law, and the pure Catholic antipathy of their oppressors destroyed, in its flaming wrath, all the tender feelings of humanity. It is true, their usurious practices and unfair dealings, in many instances, justly brought upon them the contempt and animadversion of the free and generous hearted. But, on the other hand, they had much to advance in extenuation of their extortions.—They were compelled, by fear and necessity, to exhibit a cautious and external appearance of poverty. If by the splendid promises of the profligate and necessitous, they were induced to unlock their hidden treasures, and lend their gold, their peril was great, for they knew that justice was not only blind, but deaf to their prayers, when they pursued a refractory debtor, and offered them nothing but a halter.

The wily borrower knew, and not unfrequently took advantage, of this partiality. Under such circumstances they could not surely be blamed for demanding a premium equal to the risk, as is the wont and custom in the present charitable and enlightened age, even among many worthy and money-getting Christians. At this period they all congregated in an obscure district of the city, where they were kindly permitted to dwell, that they might be more readily found when wanted—for even King John himself, in a time of pressing necessity, did not scruple to drag a Hebrew of reputed wealth from among his brethren to extort a considerable sum of money. The Jew in vain pleaded his inability to meet the monarch's demands, and one tooth was commanded to be extracted daily until he should consent to realize the amount required. At last, after loosing several of his teeth, 'his tooth of wisdom,' as a lord of the presence wittily observed, 'prompted him to disgorge a portion of the filthy lucre wherewith his usurious appetite had been pampered.'

It was early in the forenoon of a summer's day, that two gallants, arm in arm, turned suddenly and cautiously into the street, well-known as the dwelling place of the Jewish traders and money-lenders. They appeared to be very apprehensive of being observed in such a suspicious and unfashionable quarter of the town, and no sooner had they lounged into the place than they hurried hastily forward. They were both youthful, and extremely modish in their attire—and many a grey Israelite, as they passed his poorly furnished stall or shop, winked knowingly at his neighbour; who as silently answered his sign by joco sely touching the empty palm of his left hand with the second finger of his right, thereby indicating that some pecuniary exigency had prompted the young gallants to visit their miserable quarters. A few minutes sought them to the habitation they sought, and the suspicions of the cunning Israelites were soon verified by their speech.

'Is this the den?' demanded one of the sparks, half retreating; the very odour of the ruinous fabric repelling, as it were, the refined essence of his gentility. 'I'faith is it,' replied his companion, enjoying the expression of the others disgust, 'but "L'apparence est trompeuse."' 'By my faith I thou'lt find this worthless casket containeth rare jewels. In, in, I pr'ythee, there's no time for banying words now—Egad! need may drive us into a worse and more secure place than this, Basil, ere we die!" and, tapping with his gold-headed baton at an inner door—'St. Bridget grant the old sinner be in his cave of despair.'

Agreeable to the impatience of the gallants the door was quickly opened, and the 'old sinner,' in the form of a hardfavoured, middle aged Jew, made his appearance.—His olive complexion was shaded by large black brows and a well trimmed beard. A black silk scalp covered the crown of his head, while his jetty hair hung on either side his face in long crotchets or curls.

'Save ye gentles,' said he, saluting them respectfully, and having ushered them into a small, dark, and ill-furnished room, demanded their pleasure.

'Is not thy name Amalech?' asked the gallant, who had acted the part of guide to his friend.

'The same.'

'Then our errand is quickly told. Thou may'st readily premise that nothing short of dire necessity could have forced us to enter this infernal abode of darkness and desolation, where thou art burrowed like a blind mole. Money, money, money; Amalech we seek, and thou must provide for our wants, too, if thou robb'st thy brethren to make up the sum.'

'What may'st thou want?' inquired the Jew; a slight tinge suffusing his dark countenance at the rude manner in which his succour was demanded.

'Neither more nor less than a hundred marks' replied Basil. 'I think, Montague,' addressing his companion, 'that will meet my present exigencies.'

'A hundred marks!' repeated Amalech, thoughtfully, 'tis a round sum; but, suppose I should be able to procure it, what securities canst thou offer for the reimbursement and interest?'

These questions were as a matter of course expected, and promptly answered by Basil, who, after the discussion of a few preliminaries, executed a bond couched in terms and with considerations highly pleasurable to Amalech, and tending greatly to sweeten the bitter sneers and revilings of Montague; and both parties separated with mutual satisfaction.

A few months afterwards, Basil, with a gay and happy air, encountered his friend Montague lounging in St. Paul's. To his eager inquiries, he replied, that the temporary embarrassments under which he had laboured had been happily removed by the seasonable loan from Amalech; that he had moreover fallen in love with a fair and wealthy heiress, had won her affections, and the reluctant consent of her father, to whom rumour had busily whispered divers tales of his gallantry and juvenile indiscretions. An earnest promise of future amendment, however, on his part, and the blushing irresistible intercession of his beloved and only daughter, had induced the father to promise he would consider of their wishes; which to the ardent lovers was tantamount to an approval, as they rapped his tacit permission to meet as often as they pleased. But there was one speck, one solitary cloud in the bright horizon of his hopes: Basil had a rival, not in the affections of his adored Beatrice, but undoubtedly in the favour of his mistress's sire. In the undeviating correctness of his reformed life, however, he still firmly relied upon ultimately bearing away the prize against all opposition.

To attain this desired object he was compelled to be painfully circumspect: at the same time the reformed regularity of his life conduced greatly to the bettering of his fortune, and he now found himself in a condition to discharge the Jew's bond, and it was on this joyful errand he was bent, when unfortunately for Amalech he met his quondam friend and ill adviser Montague, who appeared to harbour an inveterate hatred towards Amalech and all his tribe.

He laughed at Basil's punctuality, and, by force of casuistry and the most poignant ridicule, dissuaded him from putting his honest intentions into execution.

It were bootless to detail the base, yet baseless, arguments wherewith he fortified the wavering resolution of Basil, or the dishonorable means they employed to deprive the Jew of his money and his right of claim. Suffice it to say, that they conspired together, obtained the uncancelled bond, and left the duped Amalech without resource.

Basil certainly had some compunctious feelings, but the heartless Montague bade him remember that Amalech was a Jew and a heretic; and that, as good Catholics, they were performing a duty in persecuting him by every means in their power!

Amalech did not sit down quietly under his loss, but took every opportunity of remonstrating with Basil upon the cruelty and ingratitude of his conduct; and perhaps Basil would have listened to him had not Montague invariably been at hand to smother his qualms of conscience in his caustic derision.

It was on one occasion of this kind, when Amalech's intreaties were only answered by the bitterest scorn and the most cutting sarcasm, that the Jew, stung with Basil's ungeneerous conduct, solemnly avowed to be avenged, and abruptly quitted the scoffing gallants with a look that effectually chilled their forced merriment.

A tavern, however, was at hand, and thither they sought for refuge from every obtrusive feeling of care.

In the height of their debauch, Gilbert D'Orlais, Basil's rival, chanced to enter. The most overstrained courtesy was invariably observed by both; and the fumes of generous wine having now exhilirated the spirits of Basil, he was more than usually cordial.

At a late hour they quitted the tavern, only to repair to an adjacent gambling-house; for Gilbert, with a careless, playful sort of daring, had challenged Basil to the hazardous contest. He appeared at first inclined to waive the offer, but his evil genius, Montague, vowed his dear friend should play with any man, and the too pliant disposition of Basil yielded. As they were on the point of entering the Temple of Chance, Basil, who was in the rear, felt some one pull him slightly by the cloak, and, turning round, he beheld Amalech. The Jew was about to address him, when the inebriated Basil set up a loud laugh, and called to his companions that they might participate with him in the pleasure of sporting with the money-lender. But the intended butt of their rude jests had vanished.

One hour afterwards beheld the weak and irresolute Basil the pale victim of despair.

He was utterly ruined. His rival had stripped him of every mark be possessed in the world; and his dear friend Montague had left him to his gloomy reflections.

The next day Basil was the inmate of a cell in Ludgate.* Hope now seemed for ever banished from his breast.

'The accursed Jew,' cried he, 'is the demon that hath worked this chance. He vowed vengeance, and he hath taken it. Farewell, Beatrice, and farewell life; for life is nothing worth deprived of thy smiles. Oh! how will my rival triumph in the ruin he hath made. The Jew and he have conspired to overwhelm me, and I am lost.' And the thought that Gilbert D'Orlais would win his mistress, solely by his own indiscretion, almost drove him to distraction.

In two days there was to be a grand fete given by Beatrice's father. Basil's absence of course could not be excused, or pass unobserved, and he had no doubt but that his rival would take advantage of so favourable an opportunity to misrepresent him and improve his own views.—His creditors were deaf to his promises and solicitations, and his friend Montague was no where to be found at this crisis, when advice and assistance would have been most valuable.

The morning of the intended fete arrived. Basil, heartless and desponding, was sitting brooding over his luckless fate, when a slight noise at the iron grating of his cell caused him to turn his head in that direction.

The swarty features of Amalech met his sight; and Ba-

* At that period a prison for debtors

all imagined that he saw a bitter smile of pleasure illumine the Hebrew's countenance.

'Come in,' said he, in a hollow and despairing voice—'come in—my suspicions are now verified—come in, Jew, and feast upon the misery thou hast wrought. What farther vengeance dost thou seek, thou heartless monster?'

Amalech stood before the dejected Basil, gazing sedfastly upon him with a stern and solemn voice,

'Christian!' cried he, in a stern and solemn voice, 'thou hast wronged me without provocation—nay, I held out my hand to thee in the time of need—I raised thee up—and thou didst smite me. Returning evil for good: can I then wonder that a christian who so openly despises the dictates of his own religion, will respect mine? What, dictates of his own religion, will respect mine? What, though I am a Jew, think'st thou I have not the feelings of a man as well as thee? And shall I not avenge an insult when chance places mine enemy within my grasp?'

'Fiend of hell!' exclaimed the maddened Basil, 'and is thy vengeance not sufficiently glutted, but thou must come to taunt me in the dungeon thy villainy hath provided? Away! or, by Heaven! I will strike thee to the earth!'

But Amalech was unmoved at his anger, and, showing no signs of retreat, the exasperated Basil raised his hand to execute his threat—and the next moment the vigorous arm of the jew had laid him at his feet, unharmed, and with as much facility as if he had been a mere child.

'Foolish and impetuous youth!' said Amalech, 'when will thou learn to be guided by reason and justice? But thou will not learn a lesson that, while thou hast life, shall never be forgotten. We shall meet again!' and so saying, he hastily quitted the abashed and discomfitted Basil.

A few minutes had scarcely elapsed when the keeper of the prison entered, and politely informed Basil that he was free, at the same time placing in his hands a weighty bag of marks.

'What!—who? whence comes this timely—this precious aid?' demanded the astounded Basil.

'Thy friend, sir, has discharged thy debts, and paid thy fees,' replied the keeper. 'Know'st thou not—

'Friend! what friend?'

'He who has just now quitted thee.'

'Impossible!—the Jew!—Heavens! what have I done?' exclaimed Basil, and the tears filled his eyes, as he clasped his hands together, and rushed forth from the prison.

* * * *

The fair Beatrice, arrayed in smiles, was dispensing pleasure and delight to the gay and motley group who were fast gathering together in her father's hospitable halls.

Gilbert D'Orlais was there: but Beatrice was insensible to his gallant attentions; for her joy was chilled by the absence of Basil, though hope still whispered to her beating heart that her lover would momentarily arrive.

The ball was, however, about to commence, and Basil had not made his appearance.

'Where in the name of wonder,' asked Beatrice's father, 'is our young friend, Basil?'

Gilbert D'Orlais, with a hypocritical mournfulness in his countenance, advanced, and, with a well-feigned hesitation, began: 'I am sorry, sir, to inform thee that—'

'Basil is here!' exclaimed Beatrice, eagerly interrupting him, 'yonder he comes!'

Gilbert sunk back in speechless horror and dismay.—His trembling limbs appeared scarcely able to support him. But the die was cast, and escape was vain.

Basil, on quitting the prison, had lost no time in seeking Amalech, and pouring forth the overflowing gratitude of his contrite heart. And to his amazement the Jew unfolded to him the particulars of a deep-laid plot, which had been contrived by his rival in conjunction with the perfidious Montague, to ruin him. He had, moreover, obtained such unanswerable testimony of the conspirators' villainy, that D'Orlais and Montague precipitately fled from a public exposure; while the fortunate Basil speedily recovered the bulk of his property—was blessed by the hand and heart of the lovely Beatrice—and remembered, with gratitude, the Jew's revenge.

A. CROWQUILL.

THE CONTENTED MAN.

'Nous n'avons qu,un temps a vivre
Amis, passons le gaiment.'—VAUDEVILLE

I AM a philosopher—not one of those persons who commonly call themselves by that name; but I will describe myself, and then you shall judge if I am not a true philosopher.

I am neither handsome nor ugly, tall nor short, but that is a matter perfectly indifferent to me, because I have pretty good health, and that is the only essential matter. I do not hold regularity of features to be indispensible, or even important, whether my eyes be black, or blue, or grey, large or small, I care not two straws; I can see very well with them, and that is all I care for. It is a matter quite as unimportant to me whether my nose is of the Grecian or Roman shape; it is keenly sensible of the perfume of a rose, or the odour of rich old wine; what more ought one to require of any nose? If my mouth is large, so much the more convenient for eating and talking; if my hair curls, I am under no obligation to the friseur; and, if I am inclining to corpulency, that is favourable to a habit I have of folding my arms.

I have no occupation, no business, but I do whatever I take into my head to do, provided it is amusing to me. I grieve at no accident, because I take care never to expect anything; but I often laugh, because I am easily pleased. I drink as often as I am thirsty, eat as often as I am hungry, and that happens pretty frequently—sometimes three, sometimes four, sometimes five times a day.

I never accept the invitations of people I don't like, and I never refuse one from people who are agreeable to me. The society of clever people does not make me proud, nor can solitude lower my spirits.

I shut my ears when folks talk scandal, and open them to hear a good song. I ask no favours, and therefore never encounter any refusals; but I always accept such as are offered to me, because I would not willingly offend any one. I lay no plans, least some accident should thwart them; but I always make the most of favourable opportunities.

Some folks say that women are faithless, fickle, jealous, and so forth. For my part I don't believe one word of it; I find them all sincere, gentle, tender, and faithful.

I never trouble my head about what my mistress does when I am from her, provided I am convinced that she loves me while I am with her; and, if I am sure of that, I would trust her implicitly. I suffer no jealousy to interfere with my happiness; I do not look at her fingers to see if they are marked with ink, nor seek to know what she has been writing; I am not disturbed if her manners appear embarrassed—if she seems to be thinking of something else—if her cheerfulness looks affected. She swears to execute his trust—and the next moment the vigorous arm of the jew had laid him at his feet, unharmed, and with as much facility as if he had been a mere child.

'Foolish and impetuous youth!' said Amalech, 'when will thou learn to be guided by reason and justice? But thou will not learn a lesson that, while thou hast life, shall never be forgotten. We shall meet again!' and so saying, he hastily quitted the abashed and discomfitted Basil.

A few minutes had scarcely elapsed when the keeper of the prison entered, and politely informed Basil that he was free, at the same time placing in his hands a weighty bag of marks.

'What!—who? whence comes this timely—this precious aid?' demanded the astounded Basil.

'Thy friend, sir, has discharged thy debts, and paid thy fees,' replied the keeper. 'Know'st thou not—

'Friend! what friend?'

'He who has just now quitted thee.'

'Impossible!—the Jew!—Heavens! what have I done?' exclaimed Basil, and the tears filled his eyes, as he clasped his hands together, and rushed forth from the prison.

* * * *

The fair Beatrice, arrayed in smiles, was dispensing pleasure and delight to the gay and motley group who were fast gathering together in her father's hospitable halls.

Gilbert D'Orlais was there; but Beatrice was insensible to his gallant attentions; for her joy was chilled by the absence of Basil, though hope still whispered to her beating heart that her lover would momentarily arrive.

The ball was, however, about to commence, and Basil had not made his appearance.

'Where in the name of wonder,' asked Beatrice's father, 'is our young friend, Basil?'

Gilbert D'Orlais, with a hypocritical mournfulness in his countenance, advanced, and, with a well-feigned hesitation, began: 'I am sorry, sir, to inform thee that—'

'Basil is here!' exclaimed Beatrice, eagerly interrupting him, 'yonder he comes!'

Gilbert sunk back in speechless horror and dismay.—His trembling limbs appeared scarcely able to support him. But the die was cast, and escape was vain.

Basil, on quitting the prison, had lost no time in seeking Amalech, and pouring forth the overflowing gratitude of his contrite heart. And to his amazement the Jew unfolded to him the particulars of a deep-laid plot, which had been contrived by his rival in conjunction with the perfidious Montague, to ruin him. He had, moreover, obtained such unanswerable testimony of the conspirators' villainy, that D'Orlais and Montague precipitately fled from a public exposure; while the fortunate Basil speedily recovered the bulk of his property—was blessed by the hand and heart of the lovely Beatrice—and remembered, with gratitude, the Jew's revenge.

A. CROWQUILL.

THE CONTENTED MAN.

'Nous n'avons qu,un temps a vivre
Amis, passons le gaiment.'—VAUDEVILLE

I AM a philosopher—not one of those persons who commonly call themselves by that name; but I will describe myself, and then you shall judge if I am not a true philosopher.

I am neither handsome nor ugly, tall nor short, but that is a matter perfectly indifferent to me, because I have pretty good health, and that is the only essential matter. I do not hold regularity of features to be indispensible, or even important, whether my eyes be black, or blue, or grey, large or small, I care not two straws; I can see very well with them, and that is all I care for. It is a matter quite as unimportant to me whether my nose is of the Grecian or Roman shape; it is keenly sensible of the perfume of a rose, or the odour of rich old wine; what more ought one to require of any nose? If my mouth is large, so much the more convenient for eating and talking; if my hair curls, I am under no obligation to the friseur; and, if I am inclining to corpulency, that is favourable to a habit I have of folding my arms.

I have no occupation, no business, but I do whatever I take into my head to do, provided it is amusing to me. I grieve at no accident, because I take care never to expect anything; but I often laugh, because I am easily pleased. I drink as often as I am thirsty, eat as often as I am hungry, and that happens pretty frequently—sometimes three, sometimes four, sometimes five times a day.

I never accept the invitations of people I don't like, and I never refuse one from people who are agreeable to me. The society of clever people does not make me proud, nor can solitude lower my spirits.

I shut my ears when folks talk scandal, and open them to hear a good song. I ask no favours, and therefore never encounter any refusals; but I always accept such as are offered to me, because I would not willingly offend any one. I lay no plans, least some accident should thwart them; but I always make the most of favourable opportunities.

Some folks say that women are faithless, fickle, jealous, and so forth. For my part I don't believe one word of it; I find them all sincere, gentle, tender, and faithful.

I never trouble my head about what my mistress does when I am from her, provided I am convinced that she loves me while I am with her; and, if I am sure of that, I would trust her implicitly. I suffer no jealousy to interfere with my happiness; I do not look at her fingers to see if they are marked with ink, nor seek to know what she has been writing; I am not disturbed if her manners appear embarrassed—if she seems to be thinking of something else—if her cheerfulness looks affected. She swears she loves me: I believe her, because it makes me happy she loves me: I believe her, because it makes me happy when I am from her, provided I am convinced that she loves me while I am with her; and, if I am sure of that, I would trust her implicitly. I suffer no jealousy to interfere with my happiness; I do not look at her fingers to see if they are marked with ink, nor seek to know what she has been writing; I am not disturbed if her manners appear embarrassed—if she seems to be thinking of something else—if her cheerfulness looks affected. She swears

Summary.

The ship Alexander has just brought for Col. Powell, an extraordinary improved Durham short horned cow, which produced in England, as appears by certificate, 50 quarts of milk a day, in June last, and afforded from the milk of seven days 19 1-2 pounds woirdupois of butter, and had continued to give milk until the birth of her calf. Nat. Gaz.

The entire dwelling of a barber has been discovered at Herculaneum. His shop, utensils, benches, stove, even the pins which were used for the coiffure of the ladies, are said to be in a state of extraordinary preservation.

On Tuesday, an information was heard against a seaman, named Andrew Anderson, for smuggling 40 lbs. of tobacco. Mr. Fernehough, title surveyor, boarded this ship Liverpool, from Boston, on Wednesday last, and, at the bottom of the chest of the prisoner, the tobacco stated in the information was found. The case being clearly proved, the magistrates inflicted the penalty of £100. In default of payment the prisone was committed to the borough gaol. The offender is a native of Denmark, and consequently, could not be sent into the Royal Navy.

Burning of the Steam-boat Sun.—At a late hour we have received the particulars of the destruction of this boat, from a gentleman who was on board. The number of individuals who went out in her was thirty-two, there being, besides the captain and crew, two extra pilots, some captains of vessels, and five or six passengers who went for the sake of the trip. At 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after towing the ship George Canning for two hours, the Sun was about ten miles distant from the floating-light. The large stove pipe suddenly fell overboard, a heavy surge having broke the fore stanchions by which it was supported. The engine, in consequence, could not be worked to advantage; and extempore sails were made from the awnings; but it being found that the boat was drifting fast on the breakers, they were taken down. It was then attempted to work the engine, and the crew were for an hour and a half endeavoring to hold their course towards the floating-light, when the cry was raised out, "All hands save for we are all in flames!" The crew and passengers ran forward, and all endeavored to remove a quantity of wood, beneath which the flames were seen bursting upwards through the deck. But the fire raged so fiercely beneath and all around, that it was impossible to remove the wood, fast enough, and they retreated aft. The captain remained at the wheel, and several of the crew forward, doing their duty faithfully at this moment of peril. A signal of distress was raised, half mast high, consisting of a shirt and handkerchief; but the waves ran so high that they could not be seen by the Revenue Cutter, the pilot boat, which were not many miles distant. There had been a heavy sea and a violent blow on the night preceding. The two boats or yawls were now lowered, it being about six o'clock, into which most of those on board got, and were towed by the burning Steam-boat for about twenty minutes —the captain and hands continuing on board, until the flames spread over the whole vessel, when they lashed themselves by ropes, and descended by the rudder into the boats. The Sun was completely enveloped in fire, which ascended to a sublime and terrific altitude in the air, and sea for many miles around with a ruddy glare, and bursting through every port hole. Fearing the boiler would burst, the boats were cut adrift, and left the Sun in one light blaze. At the distance of a mile or two, the steam was heard discharging itself, the excessive heat having raised the valves. The men on board the Revenue Cutter, making for the floating light in chase of a brig, but their situation being perceived, both boats reached her within three quarters of an hour, and they were taken on board. Every kindness and attention was shown to them by Capt. Claboone and his officers. The Sun was bound by his orders to remain abreast of the light until 12 o'clock, after which the cutter came up to the city. It was 7 o'clock when they were taken on board, just after which the violent gust of wind came up, which must have upset the boats. Another providential circumstance was, that the passengers of the George Canning were not taken on board of the Sun as had been intended. The boats would hold no more people, and they must inevitably have perished. The pilot boat boarded the cutter soon after the Sun's passengers were taken up. She had gone round the wreck to see if any thing could be saved. A few minutes after nine the wreck was seen to sink instantaneously. New York Spectator.

England.

The country between Liverpool and Manchester had been flooded, the overflow rising to nearly the top of the first panes of the parlour and office windows; and the occupants being prisoners in the upper rooms. The Hull papers describe the inundations in Yorkshire to be more extensive and alarming than any experienced within the memory of the oldest inhabitants.

The account from the Hop Plantations were generally of the most favorable character.

The crops in some parts of England had been seriously injured by heavy rains.

According to the latest London papers, nothing further of importance had transpired relative to the affairs of the East. The Russian advance Guard was about 80 leagues distant from Chumla, where the Grand Vizier was stationed with the main body of the Turkish army. But it would be necessary for the Russian Army to make itself master of Bazargik, a strong fortress, before any attack could be made upon the Grand Vizier. Decided military operations were likely to take place speedily.

A corps of the Russian army was proceeding up the right bank of the Danube, to join the siege of Silistria. The corps lately employed in the siege of Brailow, is ordered to join the main Army.—News had been received from Corfu of the Admirals de Rigney, and Codrington, and Count Gulleminot, and that Mr. Stratford Canning was impatiently expected there to concert measures, to be adopted by the non-belligerent parties to the treaty of July 6th.

The report of the death of the brave and indefatigable Capt. Hastings, of the Greek Steam-boat, is confirmed. He died on the 1st of June of a lock-jaw, occasioned by a wound in the wrist, received by an unsuccessful attack upon Anatolico.

State of Trade.—The cotton trade has experienced an extraordinary stagnation for the last three months, and we fear there is but little chance of an early amendment, as the accounts from abroad represent the state of business in different parts of the world to be exceedingly discouraging. Almost all the foreign markets are overstocked with goods. The American tariff can scarcely be said to have had much influence in producing the present depression, as the immense shipments made by us last year, and during the early part of the present, had so glutted the United States, that it is doubtful whether, under any circumstances, much business would have been done in the summer and autumn with that part of the world. The political events which are now passing in the East of Europe, and in Portugal, also operate very much to the injury of our export trade; so that the British manufacturer has to contend at one time with a greater number of untoward circumstances than have been arrayed against him for a considerable period. The natural consequence of such a state of things is a fall of prices, and it is not long since during that which followed the memorable panic, were goods lower than at present. The wages of the wavers, though much reduced, are not yet quite so bad as they were two years ago; but unless some change takes place soon, it is to be feared that a further reduction will be submitted to. Cotton spinning has been of unprofitable, if not more so, than any branch of the cotton trade. The demand having been unequal to the supply, the pressure of yarns upon the market has kept it in a constant state of depression, notwithstanding the advance of the raw material.—Manchester Courier, July 14.

The accounts from Manchester and from the manufacturing districts, are rather unfavourable. Goods have lately fallen considerably, and trade is very dull. The effect of the American tariff is severely felt by the manufacturers, and the wavers ran so high that they looked for with fearful anxiety. The storm curled round the Rock Perch lighthouse, and its force was so tremendous as to remove about nineteen or twenty stones, of two tons weight each (loosely placed at the circular guard) and shiver them to pieces against the walls and lanse of the light-house.

Birmingham and Sheffield wavers. With the exceptions, which, however, are considerable, the American tariff will be more felt in the United States than in England. In some districts the wages are already reduced, in consequence of the diminished demand.

Port of Liverpool.—The annual accounts of the Liverpool Docks from the 24th of June, 1827, to the 24th of June, 1828, have just been published. We feel great pleasure in stating, that those accounts exhibit a gratifying increase in the receipts of the dock and light dues as compared with the half year's receipts previously to the preceding year. The total increase in the duties amounts to the sum of £7,948 15s. 1d.; the aggregate income having increased from the sum of £147,516, 1s. 9d. to that of £155,459 16s 10d. The number of Vessels has increased 511, the number in 1827 having been 9,592, and in 1828, 10,103. The tonnage has also increased, the quantity which entered the port, up to the 24th of June, having been 35,796 tons more than up to the corrospondent period. We cannot but congratulate our fellow-townsmen on this gratifying increase in the revenue of Liverpool; an increase which shows that, whatever may be the state of trade generally, the commerce of this port is increasing in a rapid ratio.—Liverpool Albion.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS—July 21.

DRY SALTERIES, &c.—The first arrival of Montreal Pot Ashes, of the new inspection, was brought to auction on Tuesday; 140 brls. were sold at 29s 6d to 30s; about 60 brls. last year's brand, have also been sold at 28s to 29s 6d per cwt. In Pearl Ashes nothing has been done.

LIVERPOOL MARKET, July 28.

Ashes are declining in value; 100 bls. new Montreal pots, were sold two days since at 28s. 9d. to 29s. 3d. per cwt; nothing has been done in U. S. Ashes at all, the inquiry is almost suspended for the latter.

Indian Corn may be considered as nominally worth 29s. to 31s. per 480 lbs. with a moderate inquiry and few sales.

The public will recollect what lively interest was excited by the correspondence which took place some time ago between Mr. Canning and Mr. Gallatin, on the commercial relations of England with the United States. The diplomatic correspondence was renewed by Mr. Gallatin, with the noble and spirited successor of Mr. Canning.—Mr. Gallatin writes on the 4th June, 1827, a sort of introductory, or pulse-feeling letter, to Lord Dudley, referring to one which he had addressed to Mr. Canning in the preceding January.—going over again his former defence of the view which had been taken by the American government of the question, as it was discussed, and left by Mr. Canning, and explaining the acts and proceedings, or rather no-proceedings, of Congress. Lord Dudley received this letter very civilly, no doubt; but as it contained no new fact, and no distinct or even implied proposal, his Lordship very properly thought it required no answer.

Lord Dudley, besides, felt sufficiently satisfied to let the subject remain where it was,—that is to say, to leave England and America respectively in fruition, each of the consequences of their own free actions. But Mr. Gallatin was not so satisfied. He wrote again to Lord Dudley on the 17th of August last, concluding by a formal request on the part of his Government, to know whether, if America rescinds the "discriminating duties," and takes off the restraint upon British ships trading from the United States to British Colonies, the interdict will be removed from American vessels in relation to such Colonies. Lord Dudley, in a long and powerful letter, positively refuses to pledge Great Britain to any change, under any circumstances, in the existing rules for regulating her colonial interests. Mr. Gallatin laments the bad success of his overture, and so the correspondence for the present ends. Nothing, it should be added, can be more conciliatory than the tone of both Minters, notwithstanding the wide difference in their objects.—Times.

From the 18th to the 15th July the neighborhood of Manchester was visited by the most boisterous and disagreeable weather ever known at that season of the year. The wind was exceedingly violent—rain fell in torrents—and the weather was like that generally experienced in November or December. Owing to the quantity of rain that fell, the rivers in the neighborhood overflowed their banks to a considerable extent; and the impetuous flood which swept over the meadows and fields did great damage to the crops of hay and grain.—In the neighbourhood of Stretford and Northern, the whole of the low lands on the bank of the Mersey were laid under water; and an immense quantity of hay, together with many fields of corn and potatoes, totally destroyed.

The whole of the lower parts of Cheshire, appeared to have experienced almost a second deluge. In the neighborhood of Warburton and Partington, the appearance was that of one wide expanse of water, and parties might be seen in boats sailing over cornfields, which in a few hours bid promised to yield an abundant harvest.

The river Mersey, at Warrington, was very much swelled in consequence of the continued rain. The oldest inhabitant scarcely remembers to have seen so great a flood at any former period. The meadows of Latchford, Howley, Arpley, Wilderspool, Latchford Wirk Grange, &c. were under water, and, as many of them were previously spread over with hay grass, considerable loss took place.

In the vicinity of Liverpool less damage has been done, though many of the meadows were entirely overflowed. On the night of the 12th it blew a hurricane, and the accompanying rain so had alarmed the dwellers in Everton

Imperial Parliament,

ALTERCATION BETWEEN MR. PEEL AND MR. OTWAY CAVE.

House of Commons, July 17.

CORPORATION OF LEICESTER.

Mr. OTWAY CAVE rose for the purpose of moving that a petition he held in his hand from the inhabitants of Leicester, regarding the conduct of the Corporation, should be referred to a Select Committee. The Corporation, after great delays, had at last rendered the accounts required of it, but they were so purposely evasive, that it would be impossible for the Borough to take such steps upon them as they wished. The petition requested Ministers to take steps to suspend the Corporation contracts, for which such an injustice was levied on the inhabitants of Leicester. The case he had mentioned to the House was of as gross, though petty tyranny, as had been submitted to Parliament—no remedy remained to the petitioners but to appeal to Parliament itself, and he hoped that the petition he referred to a Select Committee to inquire into the matter thereof, and report their opinion to the House.

Mr. Secretary PEEL thought, from the number of petitions which the Honourable Gentleman had lately brought forward relating to the town of Leicester, that the heats and animosities excited by the last election for that Borough had not quite subsided among all the parties concerned; and that the Honourable Gentleman himself was also a party forward by some party which was desirous of visiting the place with the effects of its ill will.

Mr. OTWAY CAVE, in explanation, said that the Right Honourable Gentleman had noticed every thing but the only question to which he (Mr. O. Cave) was most anxious to obtain a reply.—How had it happened that wherras, by the showing of the borough returns, there had been upwards of 6,000 persons committed to the House of Correction, there related to only 1,000? As to the personal motives which had been unjustly and falsely imputed to him—[Hear]—in bringing forward these petitions, he not only disclaimed the imputation, but would take leave to observe that his proceeding had just as much to do with the Borough of Leicester as the Right Hon. Gentleman's conduct in regard to East Retford had to do with that Borough. After what took place on a former night, when so serious a disavowal had been so plausibly and portentously made on the part of the Right Honourable Gentleman as to his having no sort of interest in the district which was technically called the "Dukery;" what would have been thought of him (Mr. O. Cave) if he had this night imputed to him that the Right Hon Secretary was actuated by some personal regard for the interest of his Grace the Duke of Newcastle? [Hear, hear.] However he should in the mean time ask him, the Right Hon. Gentleman's recommendation, and propose to-morrow to move for amended returns.

Mr. MABERLY thought the present state of the law in respect to Corporations was exceedingly defective, and hoped the Right Hon. Secretary would turn his attention to the subject in the beginning of the next Session.

Mr. Secretary PEEL, after some preliminary observations, said, I trust, Sir, that in the discharge of my duties in this House I have never shown a disposition to take any unnecessary offence with language which occasionally falls from Hon. Gentlemen in the heat of debate, The Honble. Gentleman opposite has to-night, however, made use of one or two expressions which are so much beyond what the occasion required, or the ordinary forms of Parliamentary usage will justify, that he must excuse me if I call upon him for some explanation of them. I think I understood him to say that I had made some false charge against him. [Hear, hear.] This expression falsely, he will allow me to hope that it was not his intention to apply personally to myself, or that if it was so applied, he will now retract it.

Mr. OTWAY CAVE.—Sir, I really understood the Right Hon. Gentleman to say, that this proceeding on my part originated in some personal motives, by which he supposed me to be actuated, relative to the Corporation of Leicester. I have already, in the most distinct and unqualified manner, stated, that this is not only not true, but that it is not borne out even by the probabilities of the case. The party of whom the Right Hon. Gentleman speaks, and who have entrusted me with their petition, includes the whole population of the Borough of Leicester, without distinction of party; and the very petition I hold in my hand is signed entirely by freeholders, who voted against me at the last election, and who, for aught I know, will do so at the next. I can only say, therefore, in answer to the Right Hon. Gentleman's appeal, that if this imputation against me was meant to convey a charge of such personal feelings, I must emphatically designate it as a false imputation, and I cannot retract what I have said, because in the first place it was most unfair and unjust, and in the second place because it was false

The SPEAKER—Order! Order! If ever there was an occasion upon which the individual filling the Chair of this House was called on to interfere between two of the Members of the House, it certainly is the present. [Hear, hear.] I can most solemnly assure the House, as well as the Hon. Gentleman himself, that if I had thought the Hon. Gentleman meant or intended the expression which he has used, to apply to any individual in this House, I certainly should have interposed at the time. But I did not in the remotest manner conceive that this could be the case: and I most conscientiously declare that I was never more astonished than I now am at the interpretation which the Hon. Gentleman has given. I am sure—of his own words. [Hear, hear]

Sir, this evening, or at any other time since I have had the honour of a seat in this House, of giving personal offence to any individual in it. [Hear, hear.] When I brought forward this matter I had no intention of making any personal remarks; but when personal motives are imputed to me, as they have been, I submit to you, Sir, that I have no other way of replying to them in the first instance, than by vindicating the grounds on which I have proceeded in the manner that I have now done. If the Right Hon. Gentleman will only say, that he did not mean the language he held to reflect upon me in the way that I consider it to have done, I shall have no hesitation in making a full and ample apology to him, which shall be satisfactory, I trust, to the House as well as to himself. But I must, in the first instance, hear such a statement made.

The SPEAKER.—I am quite sure that the Hon. Gentleman has not made a sufficient reply to the call of this House. [Hear.] I say again, that I could not have believed it possible that the Hon. Gentleman could mean to apply an expression like those which have been referred to, to any Gentleman in it. If, however, to this, the Honourable Member will pardon me for saying, that not merely to any one individual, not merely to the House even, but to himself, he owes it now to state, that he did not intend to give them any such application. He is bound, I apprehend, to do so in order to be free.

Mr OTWAY CAVE (after some pause)—I can only say this, Sir, that I did conceive that the remark which had been made about my motives was harsh in the extreme, and the observation I made in delivence of them was that impression.

The SPEAKER—I am quite sure that the House will now feel that the Hon. Gentleman has no choice left him in this matter. [Hear.] He can neither withdraw his charge, nor refuse to withdraw it. It will be good enough to attend to the Chair while it proceeds to explain itself on this head. The Hon. Member must know, and every Member must know, that the privilege of this House is not to be trifled with; that the House will not tolerate the use of improper or unparliamentary language in any of its Members, or in any other individual. I am confident that he will not be the first man to set the example of. Honourable conduct, by saying that he is prepared to withhold that explanation which the House has a right to demand of him as matter of duty. I am under the correction of the House; but I submit that the Honourable Gentleman is out of order, in bringing forward these petitions, he not only disclaimed the imputation, but was bound to observe that his proceeding had just as much to do with the Borough of Leicester as the Right Hon. Gentleman's conduct in regard to East Retford had to do with that Borough. After what took place on a former night, when so serious a disavowal had been so plausibly and portentously made on the part of the Right Honourable Gentleman as to his having no sort of interest in the district which was technically called the "Dukery;" what would have been thought of him (Mr. O. Cave) if he had this night imputed to him that the Right Hon Secretary was actuated by some personal regard for the interest of his Grace the Duke of Newcastle? [Hear, hear.] However he should in the mean time ask him, the Right Hon. Gentleman's recommendation, and propose to-morrow to move for amended returns.

Mr. MABERLY thought the present state of the law in respect to Corporations was exceedingly defective, and hoped the Right Hon. Secretary would turn his attention to the subject in the beginning of the next Session.

Mr. Secretary PEEL, after some preliminary observations, said, I trust, Sir, that in the discharge of my duties in this House I have never shown a disposition to take any unnecessary offence with language which occasionally falls from Hon. Gentlemen in the heat of debate, The Honble. Gentleman opposite has to-night, however, made use of one or two expressions which are so much beyond what the occasion required, or the ordinary forms of Parliamentary usage will justify, that he must excuse me if I call upon him for some explanation of them. I think I understood him to say that I had made some false charge against him. [Hear, hear.] This expression falsely, he will allow me to hope that it was not his intention to apply personally to myself, or that if it was so applied, he will now retract it.

The SPEAKER.—I know not how far the House has understood what has fallen from the Hon. Member, in the light of an explanation and apology for the offence he has committed. I have no hesitation in saying, however, that the House has called for an explanation, and it is my duty to say, at the outset, that I am bound to call upon the Hon. Member not only for an explanation out for an apology. [Loud cries of hear.] As I before stated, I never witnessed, upon any occasion, the feeling of the House so unequivocally and unanimously expressed as it now is. I am further bound to add, that no Honourable Gentleman need consider his personal honour affected in yielding to that feeling. It is the first duty of a Member of this House, nor can he stand clear upon the point of honour if he do not make all the concessions called for by the House. Explanation and apology I believe to be the call of this House; and no Member who consults the dignity and privileges of this House, does otherwise than best consult his own honour. [Cheers.]

The Right Hon. Gentleman resumed his seat, called twice upon Mr. Otway Cave before he rose.

Mr. OTWAY CAVE at length rose and said—If I have said any thing contrary to the usages of the House, or in any way acted in a manner to convey disrespect to the Chair, for that he was willing to apologise to the House.—Mr. Cave having thus spoken, moved towards the door, apparently with the intention of leaving the House; he was however, promptly called back by

The SPEAKER, who appealed to the House whether it was their pleasure that the Hon. Member should be permitted to add further insult to that of which he had already been guilty. [Cheers.] The Right Hon. Gentleman then proceeded:—The Honourable Member knows, as do all other Members of this House, that if any irregularity occurring of personality against the House, or against any particular Member, be committed, it is not only an offence against the individual Member but against the House itself; and any apology, retraction or explanation, offered in atonement of that offence, must not be partial in its nature; but that it is the duty of the Hon. Member committing the offence to say, that in all their applications, in all their bearings, the offensive expressions are retracted. That I believe to be the feeling of the House. [Cheers.] And unless I shall be otherwise instructed, the Hon. Member shall be called upon so to meet the feelings of the House. I know not upon what principle, or how, in conformity with the feelings of the House, any Hon. Member who has uttered offensive expressions, can draw a distinction between an individual in the House and the House at large.—[Hear, hear.]

Mr. OTWAY CAVE again allowed himself to be twice summoned by the Speaker before he rose. He then said —I had trusted, Sir, that I had already shown that nothing that has fallen from me was meant to apply offensively to the House, nor did I intend to draw any distinction when I said that I apologised to the House.—Should any Hon. Gentleman think himself aggrieved by my observations, if he will say that by me meant nothing personally offensive to me in what he said, I will address myself to him and declare that nothing personal was meant in my reply to his observations. It appears to me, Sir, that I cannot in justice to my own character, make any further apology than this; nor do I think the House ought to call upon me to do so. Generally to the House, and to you, Sir, I apologise for any word of offence, or any want of order of which I may have been guilty. I hope, Sir, that after this I shall not be called upon to take a course which appears to me derogatory from my own honour.

The SPEAKER.—The retractzion of the Hon. Member is partial, and his duty to the House requires that it should not be partial.—[Hear, hear, hear.] The Hon. Member ought to know that it is the duty of the Chair to watch over and preserve the personal honour of every individual Member of this House. [Cheers.] And the Hon. Member may rest assured that I should not suggest any course, the adoption of which by any member would involve the loss of personal honour. [Cheers.] I again repeat that the best and surest mode of sustaining personal honour is strictly and cheerfully to comply with the commands of the House. [Cheers.]

Mr. OTWAY CAVE was again called upon.

Mr. SPRING RICE, however, availed himself of the opportunity of the pause to trespass for a moment on the House. He had before endeavoured to attract the attention of the Chair, but the painful duty in which the Right Hon. Gentleman had been engaged, prevented him from introducing himself more prominently into notice. He hoped the House and his friend would not mistake the motives under which he rose. The course which he meant to advise his Right Hon. friend to follow, was one which he thought due to the House, to the individuals engaged in the present misunderstanding; and he would venture to add, what would be most satisfactory to his Hon. friend, whenever he came to reflect on the subject, what was due to himself. [Hear, hear.] It was in the spirit of a friend that the offered this advice. He assured his Hon. friend that if any thing that had fallen from the Rt. Hon. Gentleman opposite (Mr. Peel) would be expected to be said in addition to the offence against his Hon. friend, neither the Speaker, the House, nor any friend of his would have advised him to take the course which had been suggested by the chair. [Hear, hear, hear.] He protested, and he spoke as a calmer and more impartial observer than his Hon. friend, as one who did not understand the observations of the Rt. Hon. Secretary in any sense of personal offence to his Hon. friend. [Loud cries of hear.] If, then, his Hon. friend, acting under a mistake, had passed the strict line of Parliamentary usage—upon which, owing to his brief acquaintance with the forms of the House, they ought to be the more indulgent, he was sure that he must see that the course most consonant with his own feelings and honour was that pointed out by the Chair. [Hear, hear.] The House was of the same opinion as himself upon this matter. [Hear.] If therefore his Hon. friend saw that, upon reconception, he had used language which was not applicable and was contrary to the usages of the House, he was sure he would get up, and frankly, without hesitation, declare his regret for the language he had uttered. [Hear, hear.] He threw this out for the purpose of putting an end to the discussion and he was sure the Rt. Hon. Secretary would disavow his interpretation, if wrong. The advice he gave was most sincere when he recommended his Hon. friend, without qualification, limitation, curtailment, or restriction, to apologise to the House. [Hear, hear.]

Dr. PHILLIMORE proceeded, amidst cries of "No, no!" to make a few observations. He hoped, he said, the House would allow him to confirm the view taken by the Hon. Gentleman who had just sat down. He had attentively listened to the Rt. Hon. Secretary, and he declared, that in his speech he heard nothing that could be fairly interpreted as meaning to convey offence to his Hon. friend—who must permit him to say, that whatever his talents, he had shown a singular want of knowledge of the Orders of the House [A laugh]—to comply with the wishes of the House; he was sure that he ought to do so [Hear, hear.]

Mr. RIDLEY COLBORNE spoke to the like effect.

Mr. OTWAY CAVE.—Sir, after the opinion you have expressed, and what has been said by my Hon. Friend, I would appear most impertinent in me to hesitate any longer [Hear, hear] and I beg to say I am sorry for any words I have dropped, which have been deemed offensive to the House. I did consider that imputations were cast upon me, and not for the first time, in this House although I have always forborne reply, which merited the answer I made, I beg leave to say, however, that I make the apology required of me in the sense in which you, Sir, have demanded it. [Hear, hear, hear.]

Mr Secretary PEEL.—I am sure Sir, that the House will see that I could not accept the proposition of the Hon. Member, and consent to receive his concession at the price of my own. Had he asked me in the first instance if I meant any thing personally offensive to him, I should have assured him that I did not. But it was utterly impossible I could take that course, when it was made the stipulation of the Hon. Member to do that which, in the judgment of the Chair and the feelings of the whole House, he was called upon to do. [Hear, hear.] I am sure that when an Honourable Member gets up and makes the declarations just now made, in compliance with the call of the House, he means it unequivocally and sincerely.—[Hear, hear.] I have, then, no difficulty in now saying, that in any observations I made I had no intention whatever of wounding the feelings, or impeaching the character or honour of the Hon. Member. [Hear, hear, hear, hear.] Really, Sir, with the duties which I have to discharge in this House, obliged as I am to watch every thing that passes, my language and line of argument ought not to be viewed with too scrupulous or captious a jealousy.—[Hear, hear.] All that I meant to say was, that where local feelings have prevailed to a high degree, they must necessarily engender a desire to extend their operation beyond their natural sphere, and that it would be wrong in the House to encourage their indulgence, or interfere, when there is another question to try like the real merits. After what the Hon. Gentleman has said, I have no difficulty in stating this. I am sure the Hon. Gentleman will see that the only alternative for him was to take the course suggested by the Chair; and I assure him—that not one word of "ha! I said could justify in his part the application of a single angry term. [Hear, hear, hear.]

Mr. OTWAY CAVE then obtained leave to withdraw the motion, giving notice that he would to-morrow (this day) move that the return be amended.

Foreign Intelligence.

PORTUGAL.

We have received private letters from Oporto, dated on the 6th. They state that good discipline continued to be displayed by the troops. The number left at Oporto was not large—the main part of the army having marched with Powon in pursuit of the constitutional troops. These letters speak dispondingly with respect to trade. It appears, by Lisbon letters we have just received, that there were two meetings of the British residents and merchants. The first was held on board the Pyramus at the requisition of Captain Lartorian, Consul general for Portugal. The merchants stated that, considering the extensive nature of their concerns, they could not remove their property but they hoped they might be permitted to remain without danger. A second meeting was convened at the Consul General's, the tenor of a memorial to be sent up to the commanding officer of our squadron might be left in the Tagus. Our letter adds in a postcript, "We hear that some ladies were arrested last night, the wives of individuals who have fled."—Courier.

FROM INDIA.

By the ship Emerald, at Boston, Calcutta papers to the 1st of April, were received.

Lord Amherst, the Governor General of India, embarked on the 6th March for England.

The Geo. Canning, (Br.) from Bengal, was totally lost, with her cargo, in a hurricane, at the Mauritius, March 6—Captain, chief officer, passengers, and a part of the crew drowned.

Escape from a Suttee.—A correspondent of the Bengal Harkaru gives the following detail of the escape of a woman from the funeral pile of her husband.

Having been informed that a Suttee was about to take place at the Chitpore Chaut, I left my residence with the intention of proceeding to the spot. On arriving at the Thanna I learnt that the woman who was about to immolate herself, had, after feeling the fire, leaped from the pile, and made her escape; in consequence of this intelligence, I alighted from my buggy, and entered the Thanna wishing to make myself better acquainted with the particulars. The Daroga informed me, that having received a strict charge from the Magistrate to see that every thing was done at Suttees according to law, he had acted up to his orders, and that, in consequence, he had caused the fire to be put to the pile before the woman ascended it; and that after she had laid herself upon it, had suffered no one to bind her: that the woman as soon as the fire had reached her, leaped from the pile, and he had taken her for protection into custody. The poor creature lay on a mat in the Thanna. Her wounds did not appear to be severe, one side of her face and a part of her back were burnt. On being interrogated as to the reason of her ascending the pile, she replied by pointing to her forehead: intending thereby that it was her destiny. She expressed great horror at the idea of returning to the fire. In answer to my question, as to what she wished to do in future, she said that she wished to be taken to her house, and that in case her relations would not receive her again, she had property sufficient to maintain herself. The probability of her returning home seems to be small, as the universal opinion among the people was, that her family was literally much disgraced by her conduct in not burning, and would be much more so if they received her. By an order of the magistrate, I find this morning that she has been conveyed to the hospital, where it is to be hoped, she will soon recover from her wounds. This fact convinces me, and I have no doubt it will most of your readers, that were the native Police officers more generally careful that nothing on these occasions were done contrary to the regulations of government, which are forwarded to them by the Magistrates, the number of Suttees would soon materially decrease. Of the inability of the poor deluded woman to stand the fire, the Brahmins are well aware; and hence may be traced the brutal custom almost universally practised by them, of binding the widow to the pile, either with bamboos passed over and fastened down on both sides, or by heaping a large weight of wood, &c. on the bodies. Were they allowed to do nothing of this kind, which I believe is contrary to their Shasters, it is not to be doubted that one woman in an hundred would not remain to burn.

I am,
Sir,
Your Obd't. Servant,
A TRAVELLER.

Kingston, 29th July, 1828.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

The Ship George Canning, Captain Allny, of New-York, on Monday evening, from Liverpool, has London papers to the 23d July, and Liverpool to the 24th July.

The Cotton market was again languid.

The ship St. George, Taubman, arrived at Liverpool on the 23d, in the very short passage of 16 days from New-York.

The new Customs Bill from the Commons, passed the House of Lords on the 21st.

The Russian army are proceeding on their march towards Constantinople, and the latest advices, which are brought down to the 2d of July, left them at the distance of little more than one hundred and fifty miles from that capital.

In the House of Commons on the 16th, two petitions from the Electors of the County of Clare, setting forth that Mr. O'Connel was a Roman Catholic, and praying that Mr. Vessey Fitzgerald might be returned as the Member from that County. The Speaker stated that the Committee of Elections was the proper tribunal for the Petitions to be referred to, and that it would be time enough to consider them fourteen days after they were lodged in the Crown-office.

LONDON, June 21.

King Miguel has refused to enlarge Sir J. M. Doyle, and has caused to be arrested a Mr. Young, an Englishman.

The Belfast Steam-Boat from Oporto, struck on a rock off Cape Finisterre, and put into Corunna to be repaired. The authorities in the last mentioned place, threw every possible impediment in her way, and would not allow the Captain or any of the passengers, to land. The Marquis de Chamisella, General Saldanha, and all her other passengers have arrived in London. The other vessels have arrived with fugitives from Portugal.

Communication.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE LOYALIST.

SIR,

Having lately returned from a tour up the Ottawa River, I cannot but notice with pleasure the rapid improvements which have been effected there during the last five years. I travelled this route in company with a friend from Montreal to Hull, in the Spring of 1823. At this time the only means of conveyance from Lachine upwards was on a wretched road by Oot or Upon Batteaux by water: we chose the latter, and after a passage of two days arrived at Point Fortune, where after considerable difficulty having procured a Cart to carry our Baggage, we proceeded to Hawkesbury, a distance of 12 miles: from thence we embarked on board a batteau, and after a tedious voyage of four days, arrived at Hull, being altogether eight days since our departure from Moutreal, having been exposed the whole of this time to the inclemency of the weather, and the Musquitoes, which are much worse, and the whole route exhibiting little else save a large uncultivated wilderness.—In my late excursion I took my departure from Mr. Cushing's Inn at Montreal, in company with several others: we were conveyed in a Stage to Lachine, where the Steam Boat St. Andrews, commanded by Captain Hertel, arrives and departs three times a week to and from Point Fortune. I embarked on board this boat at 7 o'clock in the morning and reached Point Fortune the same afternoon about five, where a Stage being in readiness we were conveyed to Grenville the same evening; here the Steam-Boat Wm. King, under the superior management of Captain Johnson, and devoted exclusively to the conveyance of passengers, takes the traveller on to Bytown. Another Steam-Boat called the Union plies the same route twice a week for the purpose of conveying freight, both of which touch at Grenville and Hawkesbury.—The Wm. King belonging to Peter M'Gill, Esq., of Montreal, is the same which formerly plied between Montreal and Lepraris, under the name of the Wm. Annesly,—the present owner purchased her last Fall, & at considerable expense brought her up the Lang Sault rapids to Hawkesbury, (an experiment hitherto deemed impracticable) where being hauled up and a new Cabin made, which for neatness and comfort is surpassed by none on the Ottawa, she was re-launched this last Spring and named the Wm. King, in honour of that deservedly popular gentleman, Captain Wm. King of the Royal Staff Corps, whose name she now bears. I took passage on board this boat, and after a pleasant journey of 10½ hours arrived at Bytown, a distance of 72 miles against a strong current, making the whole time less than two days since my departure from Montreal, instead of being as formerly from 8 to 10 days, and a comfortable Steam-Boat and Stage the whole line. I observed along the Banks and road during the passage many new settlements and cultivated fields which appeared to be in a flourishing condition.—The improvement made at Bytown during two years past occasioned by the stupendous work going on there under the direction of the Imperial Government, excite the admiration of every person but so much has been said of them already in the Newspapers, any thing from me on that head would be useless. I may only add that the scenery all along this route is the most interesting of any which I saw in America, and if the improvements continue at the same rate five years more the Banks of the Ottawa will bid fair to become a rival of the St. Lawrence.

I am,
Sir,
Your Obd't. Servant,
A TRAVELLER.

Kingston, 29th July, 1828.

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1828.

The George Canning, arrived at New York, has brought London dates to 23d July, two days later than those previously received, but there is no further intelligence of importance.

The papers give accounts of the continued success of the Russians against the Turks. At the latest dates, it was said, that the Russian Army was within one hundred and fifty miles of Constantinople.

The Report of the Committee on Canada affairs, may be expected in a few days. It is not probable that it will be followed by any Legislative measure during the present Session of the Imperial Parliament.

Provincial Parliament.—By Proclamation of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, contained in this weeks Gazette, the Provincial Parliament is prorogued to Wednesday, 29th October next.

The Midland District Assizes terminated on Monday last. His Honor, Mr. Justice Sherwood, and the Solicitor General, returned to York by the Steam-Boat Queenston, on Tuesday. We have not heard of any matters of more than ordinary importance having been before the Court. The Gore Assizes still continued its sittings at Hamilton on Tuesday last, there being an unusual quantity of business to be disposed of. An account of the trial and execution of Michael Vincent, for the murder of his wife, taken from the Gore Gazette, will be found in our columns.

The proceedings in the House of Commons on the altercation between Mr. Peel and Mr. Otway Cave, on the use of some unparliamentary language on the part of the latter gentleman, is interesting, as it shews with how much dignity and firmness a strict observance of the rules of the House is enforced by the Honorable Speaker, when his interference is called for.

The object of Mr. M'Kenzie, from his late remarks in the Colonial Advocate, is sufficiently apparent. We have had occasion, more than once, to refer Mr. M'Kenzie to the Statute Book—we do so again, and would recommend him to ponder seriously on the obligations of the Oath he may shortly be called upon to take.

"I do sincerely promise and swear, that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to His Majesty King George, as lawful Sovereign of the Kingdom of Great Britain, and of these Provinces dependent on and belonging to the said Kingdom; and that I will defend him to the utmost of my power against ALL TRAITOROUS CONSPIRACIES AND ATTEMPTS whatever, which shall be made against his Person, Crown, and Dignity; and that I will do my utmost endeavour to discover and make known to His Majesty, His Heirs, or Successors, ALL TREASONS AND TRAITOROUS CONSPIRACIES AND ATTEMPTS, which I shall know to be against him, or any of them; and all this I do swear, without any equivocation, mental evasion, or secret reservation, and renouncing all pardons and dispensations from any person or power whatever to the contrary—So help me God."

It was said of Mr. M'Kenzie, that he "trembled," when the qualification Oath was put to him at the bustings.—He dares us—Dare he disavow the tendency which he is evidently desirous of producing by his writings?—and dare he, without trembling, while actuated by such a desire, look his fellow subjects in the face, and take the above Oath?—"Does conscience sleep?"!!

Domestic.

From the Gore Gazette.

GORE ASSIZES.

The Assizes for this District commenced on Monday last.—His Justice Hagerman presiding.

We were present at the first day, but are told that the learned Judge's charge to the Grand Jury, was exceedingly pertinent, lucid and concise.

TRIAL AND EXECUTION OF MICHAEL VINCENT,

FOR THE MURDER OF HIS WIFE.

Michael Vincent—was put upon his trial on an indictment for the wilful murder of his wife in January last, in the Township of Waterloo, in this District.

The Attorney General opened the case, and gave the substance of the evidence which he should be able to adduce in support of the accusation.

Mr. J. Rolph was Counsel for the prisoner.

The first witness called was Sarah Moxley, who lives in the Township of Waterloo near the prisoner and the deceased; the latter was a woman who usually enjoyed excellent health, was about 30 years of age, and bore a good character, but was of rather weak intellect—they had a family of five children, the oldest of whom was 8 or 9 years of age—the two youngest were twins, about 6 months old at the time of the mother's decease—had been acquainted with the prisoner and his wife since they came into the Township, which is about 5 years—for about two years lived within a few yards of the prisoner's residence, which (the witness) was in the practice of visiting—during that period the prisoner was in the habit of treating his wife very cruelly—since that time she has lived 4 or 5 miles from the prisoner, and has not had an opportunities of knowing what his conduct has been.—On Tuesday, 28th January, heard of the death of Mrs. Vincent—had not heard of any previous sickness —went with her sister, in company with Mr. Ladshaw, to the residence of the deceased, to offer that assistance which is usually required upon such occasions—on arrival at the house, which was a low dark building, without a window, found the deceased lying on a straw bed in the kitchen—knelt down over her—the prisoner was in the house, with three of his children—witness said to the prisoner, "you have had bad luck," (alluding to some other cases of sickness which had occurred in the family, as well as the death of Mrs. Vincent,) and asked him the cause of his wife's death; to which the prisoner replied that he supposed she had "died of an hysteric fit, and kind of choaked away"—witness and her sister then removed the blanket for the purpose of washing and laying out the deceased—when she observed that her throat looked very black, from the front round to each ear, and that the discoloured appearance extended up to the chin, and some distance down the breast—the neck was very much swollen—from almost every part with the chin—and under the ears the swelling was still greater, and the flesh very soft to the touch—the head fell back when the body was raised, as if the neck was dislocated, but would not incline forward—the face had known the deceased well, and was sure she was not subject to the fits spoken of, and had not been ill immediately before the prisoner's spoke of—the prisoners reputed character to his wife. The circumstance, too, related by Mrs. Sowers, was equally strong against the prisoner, namely, his saying that he would go home and kill his wife, &c.—Again, his exclamation to the Constable, "I do not know what you have come here for me for the murder of my wife!" and his remark, that had he known it to be him, he could have shot him, as he had a loaded gun in the house. These, together with the appearance of the body, which all the witnesses agreed in describing, were marks of violence, led him to conclude that the deceased had been murdered by the prisoner; and he had no difficulty in saying such was his belief. He would share the responsibility with the Jury. On the other hand, if they could possibly entertain the slightest doubt, in God's name give the prisoner the benefit of it.

The Jury retired for a few minutes, and returned with a verdict of GUILTY, which was pronounced by their foreman in a voice scarcely audible by the sobs of himself and brother Jurymen, who evinced more feeling than we have ever witnessed on any former occasion.

His Lordship then, in the most impressive manner, addressed the prisoner:—

Michael Vincent, you have been convicted before a highly respectable Jury of your countrymen, of the most awful crime of murder—a crime dreadful under any circumstances, but in this case rendered still more atrocious by the fact that your unfortunate victim was one whom you had solemnly sworn at the altar to cherish and protect. She has fallen at your hand—cruelly breaking the most terrible of the commandments sent by Almighty God to man.—And the same Holy being has declared, that the man who sheds his fellow man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed. Hope not, therefore, for mercy in this world, but rather address yourself, while it is yet permitted you, to Him whose laws you have thus awfully disregarded.—Your Creator—and before him again you will shortly appear. Make your peace with Him, and your fellow men, for it is my painful duty to inform you, that you must soon die. The sentence of the Court is—That you Michael Vincent be now taken to the place from whence you came; and that on Monday next, between the hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon, and two o'clock in the afternoon, you be taken to some convenient place in this District, there to be hanged by the neck until you shall be dead !—your body to be afterwards given to the Surgeons for dissection !—And may the great God have mercy on your soul !

MONDAY.

We have delayed the publication of the Gazettee, in order to give an account of

THE EXECUTION.

Since his condemnation the culprit evinced much less concern, than might have been expected of a person so awfully situated At the request of the Judge— we believe—the Revd. Messrs. Leeming and Sheed visited the convict after his condemnation—to each of which, as well as to a Mr. Culp, and some other persons of the Methodist Society, he protested his innocence of the offence for which he was about to suffer. He said that the witnesses had sworn falsely, and that they were a "wicked, base, bad lewd set;" he said that those witnesses who stated, that he (the prisoner) had attributed the bruises on his wife's back, to her having fallen on a frying-pan, had testified falsely, for that he had never made such a declaration. He also declared, that instead of his house being destitute of lights, as described by the witnesses, Moxley and Ladshaw; it had a window in it, containing six lights of 7 by 9 glass." He said he was not afraid to die—that he depended on the merits of Christ for salvation—had made his peace with God—was "ready to meet his fate," and "the sooner the better;" he knew he had many crimes to answer for, but of that for which he had to suffer, he was "entirely innocent."

He was admonished by the Rev. Gentlemen above named, as well as by Mr. Speaker Willson, and others—that his protestations of innocence could not produce any diminution of punishment, or avert the ignominious termination of his existence which awaited him—and that therefore if he was guilty, those protestations were an aggravation of his offence, and would debar from him that mercy which it was yet in his power to seek, and by contrition and repentance to obtain, in the world to come. He—said that he was perfectly aware of all that, but that he was innocent, and should protest in that innocence before his Creator, with his dying breath.

These declarations were repeated to all who visited him. He did not appear solicitous of spiritual consolation; but during the visits of the Clergymen, he occupied the principal part of the time in talking on the subjects in which he professed to entertain a perfect knowledge of his religious duties.

On Monday morning, a few hours previous to his execution, a number of the convict's relatives visited him; his mother, (a very aged woman) and several of his brothers and sisters, who carried with them the prisoners two infant children. The prisoner maintained the same equanimity, or rather exhibited the same absence of feeling, which he had done from the first.—His aged mother "put him in mind" of his duty—and on did brothers and sisters, but he was unmoved: and what is, perhaps, most extraordinary, took very little notice of his children. He talked about his temporal affairs—told them where they could find his "cradle scythe," and gave them the names of several persons who were indebted to him for chopping.

By the hour of ten o'clock, a large concourse of persons of both sexes had assembled to witness the execution. The drop was erected in front of the Jury Room, adjoining the old Court House, which was not completed till about one o'clock. About fifteen minutes after one, Captain Servos's troop of Cavalry, which had been called out for the occasion, marched to the ground, and formed themselves in the shape of a crescent around the gallows—immediately after which the Grand Jury, with the Magistrates of the District, together with a number of the gentlemen of the neighbourhood, came on the ground, two and two, and formed within the line of the Cavalry. A few minutes after which, the culprit appeared on the drop, accompanied by the Sheriff and the Rev. Mr. Sheed. Upon stepping on the platform, the prisoner requested permission of the Sheriff to address the assemblage, which the latter told him he was at liberty to do. As soon as the rope was adjusted, the culprit, addressing the audience, said, in a firm voice,—"Gentlemen, you see an innocent man who is about to be executed unjustly—the witnesses against me have sworn falsely—I die innocent of the crime alleged against me—I declare before Almighty God, I am not guilty of the crime for which I am to suffer." Here the Rev. Mr. Sheed, in a very feeling and pathetic manner, addressed the prisoner, and implored him to reflect on the consequences of dying with a falsehood on his lips—when the culprit reiterated his former assertions, and declared, "before Almighty God" that he was "innocent." The Reverend Gentleman then, in a very impressive manner, repeated the Lord's Prayer: when, upon arriving at the words "forgive us our trespasses," the drop fell, and the prisoner was launched into eternity.

In the fall, the knot slipped under the culprit's chin, which occasioned his sufferings to be very protracted, he was convulsed for a considerable time and did not appear to be dead for nearly a quarter of an hour. After hanging an hour his body was cut down and delivered over to the surgeons for dissection, agreeably to the sentence. We understand that the relatives of the deceased made application for the body, but this could not, of course, be complied with.

This is the first execution which has occurred since the formation of the District, and the solemn and impressive degree of interest, which nearly two thousand persons, it is calculated, were present upon the occasion, who conducted themselves in an orderly manner Much praise is due to Captain Servos's Troop, for the handsome manner in which they formed and kept the ground on the occasion.

We think it but just to the very respectable Jury who convicted the prisoner, and who, we understand, many of them, feel much uneasiness at the opinion entertained by their fellow innocence—to say, that notwithstanding the culprit's denial of guilt, it is the opinion of all the persons with whom we have conversed, who attended him while under condemnation, including the Clergymen, that Mr. Rolph his counsel, and that he was justly convicted. The evidence of S. Moxley and Ladshawe, relative to the prisoners having attributed the bruises on his wifes person to her having fallen on a frying-pan, &c., which he latterly denied; was fully confirmed by Mr. Erb, and other respectable persons, who were present at the execution.

An action of some importance to Landlords was tried on Wednesday. It was the cause of Shade versus Jones, in which the Plaintiff, a Merchant at Galt, sought to recover damages for injury sustained by his Horse, while in the stable of the Defendant, who is an Innkeeper in Waterloo.—It appears in evidence that the Plaintiff, on arriving to attend the fair at Guelph in April last, gave his horse, which was a very valuable animal, to a person who acted as Ostler at the Inn, with instructions to put him into the stable and take care of him. The next morning upon going for his horse he found that the animals tail had been cropped off close to the stump; by which his appearance was very much injured and his value diminished—when the Plaintiff stated the circumstances to the defendant, the latter laughed at it and said "he wished the horses head had been taken off instead of his tail"

It was set up by the defendant, that the Ostler was not his servant, and had taken in the horse without his authority or knowledge. And further, that there was no lock on the stable, and therefore could not have prevented the injury which the horse had sustained.

Mr. Justice Hagerman, in his charge to the Jury, stated that landlords were accountable for the safety of horses left in charge of themselves or their servants, and were liable for injuries which the horses might sustain while in their custody—that there being no lock on the stable door, was a ground for aggravation rather than extenuation of damages; as it was the duty of Landlords to provide for the safety of property put in their charge. The learned Judge said that the defendant's conduct upon the present occasion was highly improper, and would justify the jury in visiting him with a severe punishment, by giving exemplary damages.

The Jury retired for a short time, and returned with a verdict for the plaintiff—damages £10.

From the Kingston Chronicle.

KINGSTON, September 9, 1828.

MIDLAND DISTRICT ASSIZES.

The Court of Oyer and Terminer, General Gaol Delivery, Assize, and Nisi Prius, in and for the Midland District, was opened in this Town, on Monday last, by His Honor Mr. Justice Sherwood. At the opening of the Court, the following excellent Charge was delivered by his Honor to the Grand Jury, and which Charge is now published at the special request of that body:—

Gentlemen of the Grand Inquest,

That part of the government of a country which superintends and carries into effect the executions of the laws, is an important branch of the constituted authorities, and a general knowledge of it is, in some degree, necessary to every British subject. The King is the first executive Magistrate and the principal conservator of the peace of his Empire—under him, in regular gradations, are subordinate Magistrates, whose authority is derived from him, and who act as assistants in supporting peace and good order in society. It is the duty of all classes of His Majesty's subjects, to give their aid in the execution of the laws of the country; and I intend, at this time, to insist on the necessity of the uniform exertion of private individuals, Constables, and Justices of the Peace, to preserve the peace, and to apprehend offenders. Many persons who possess good intentions, and are faithful subjects and honest men, are found to be timid and dilitory in rendering their assistance to suppress disorders, or to arrest the disorderly. They are alarmed at the idea of damages and penalties, to which many have made themselves liable for passing the bounds of the law, of which they were ignorant, and therefore continually temporize till disorder assumes the appearance of outrageous violence, or the promoters of it have escaped beyond the possibility of apprehension. The former of these occurrences is always attended with great detriment to society, the latter encourages vice, by holding out impunity to the vicious. Both of them should, therefore, be carefully avoided, understanding the duty which the law imposes on all the members of the community. How many serious disturbances might be prevented, and how many public prosecutions and punishments might be avoided, if private individuals and public officers were better informed, and were more attentive, vigilant, and zealous, in keeping the peace! To stop a riot is more eligible than to be obliged to punish rioters. Prompt and vigorous steps are also better in the event of public commotions than indecision and half-way measures. I have not the least expectation that a charge to a Grand Jury could produce any considerable efforts in a dense population, even if such charge were the production of the most eminent man, and written in a manner best calculated to secure attention. I consider it incumbent on me, however, to do all I can for the public good; and if but one individual should in consequence be excited to greater exertions for even a short period, such an occurrence would be a sufficient reward for the small trouble which it gives us to make the following remarks.

Every member of the community is deeply interested in its peace and tranquility as well as in its morality and loyalty, and the municipal institutions of the country oblige him in some cases to be active in their support, and in other instances allow him to be so. If a private individual happens to be present when treason or felony is committed, or a dangerous wound is given, it is a his duty to use his utmost endeavors to arrest the offender.—Every private individual is also bound to assist a Constable, or other Peace Officers, to apprehend felons and to suppress affrays, when requested to do so. There are other instances when the law allows it, but does not command private persons to interfere of their own authority. If treason or felony has unquestionably been committed, a private person, although he was not present at its perpetration, but receives information of it from others, may lawfully arrest such persons, as he has reasonable, and probable cause to believe guilty of the offence, even if it should turn out on examination that they are innocent. If treason or felony be committed in presence of a private person, and the accused take shelter in a dwelling house, such private person may break open the doors of the house to arrest the offender, if he first make demand of admission, and it be refused after explanation of his purpose. The law which is founded on long experience and wise policy, goes still further to encourage and support private individuals who may be active and public spirited for the public good. They are not only allowed to secure offenders but to prevent crimes. Any private individual may lawfully lay hands on any one whom he sees on the point of committing felony, or some outrageous violence, which would endanger the person or life of another. After he has arrested and secured such a dangerous person, he may lawfully detain him till it may be reasonably concluded he has changed his purpose, and intends to conduct himself in a more peaceable manner. A private person may also interpose to prevent others from fighting, but in such a case he should give notice to the parties of his intention to prevent a breach of the peace before he takes any steps for that purpose; he may also break and enter the house of another, who outrageously beats one of his own family, or any other person, in such a manner as reasonably to induce a fear of murder. If felony be committed, or a dangerous wound be given, in the view of a private person, and the wrong-doer, for fear of being brought to justice, attempts to make his escape and cannot otherwise be taken, the person who saw the offence committed may raise hue and cry for the purpose of pursuing and apprehending him.

I will briefly advert to the duty and authority of a Constable. It may be laid down as a general rule, that a Constable can arrest offenders in all cases where a private person can make an arrest. The Constable, by his office, is a conservator of the king's peace; and if an affray takes place in his presence, he may, of his own authority, apprehend all concerned in it, and detain them till the affair be wholly over, and there appears to be no further danger of the breach of the public peace. The Constable may then, if he thinks proper, take them before a Magistrate. If a positive and direct charge of treason or felony against any person be made to a Constable, on reasonable and probable grounds, he may lawfully justify the arrest of the accused without any warrant; and if it eventually turn out that no crime in fact has been committed, still the Constable cannot be injured.

A Constable, however, cannot, of his own authority, and without a charge being made on reasonable and probable grounds, arrest any one for an alledged affray or breach of the peace which took place out of his view; and it is always most prudent and proper for a Constable in all cases whatever, not absolutely requiring immediate interference, to act under a warrant from a Magistrate, because he is protected for any thing done in obedience to it, if it be a lawful warrant, and he give a copy when demanded. When a Constable, by virtue of a warrant, pursues a felon who takes shelter in a dwelling house, the officer should give notice of his being a Constable and having a warrant, and then demand admittance for the purpose of taking the accused, and if it be refused, he may break open doors and go into the house to take the felon. If the offender violently resists, and refuses to be taken, and the Constable cannot possibly take him, in consequence of such resistance and refusal, the officer may lawfully use force, and if the felon be maimed, or even killed, the Constable will be held harmless, because the laws positively enjoin him to take the felon, and if he neglect to do so, his duty, he may be indicted and punished. Where a felony is not yet committed, but there is every good reason to suppose it will be, as where persons quarrel and fight with dangerous weapons in a house, the Constable may, after notice of his being a Constable, and demand made of entry, and a refusal given, break open the doors to arrest the combatants, to prevent the committing of felony. Where a Constable sees a violent affray committed in his presence, and thereupon arrests the offenders, he may lawfully confine them till the violence of passion be subsided, and the danger of further disturbance be wholly over; he may then take the offenders before a Magistrate. It is the duty also of Constables to execute warrants of distress against the goods of an offender liable to penalties: and the Constable is bound by the Statute 27th Geo. 2d. cap. 20, if required, to show his warrant to the person whose goods he intends to destrain, and to allow a copy of the warrant to be taken by the party interested. The Constable has no legal power under such a warrant, to break open the outside door of a dwelling house, or to enter the house in a forcible manner for the purpose of taking the goods, unless a part of the penalty belongs to the King. Whoever a Constable finds himself under the disagreable necessity of breaking doors, where the law allows him to do so, he should be particularly prudent and circumspect, and avoid, as far as possible, the doing of an injury to the innocent part of the family, or to the property of the owner, and he should use his utmost endeavors to protect them. The dwelling house of any British subject is his castle; that is, his place of safety and domestic comfort, and its sanctity is never to be violated unless the good of the whole community imperiously requires such a proceeding, and then indeed, private rights must yield to the paramount claim of the whole society, to be secured against the effects of outrage and crime.

(To be Continued.)

Lower Canada.

QUEBEC, AUGUST 30.

The hired Colonial Brig, Chebucto, arrived this morning, having sailed from Halifax on the 16th inst. Col. Cooper, Military Secretary to His Excellency Sir James Kempt, with his family were passengers. The Challenger was to sail for this port on the 25d; her arrival, therefore, with the New Governor-in-Chief may be daily expected. It is understood that His Excellency the Earl of Dalhousie, family and suite, will embark for Europe a few days after Sir James Kempt disembarks.

The ceremony of laying the new corner-stone of the Exchange about to be erected on the Water Lot purchased from the Hon. Mathew Bell, will take place on Wednesday.

The Chebucto, on her passage up spoke the Transport, Lord Suffolk, with detachments. Lieut. Pooley, Royal Engineers, and Ensign Gibson, 66th Regt. are amongst the passengers.

His Majesty's Ship Challenger, Capt. Fitz-Clarence arrived this morning from Halifax, whence she sailed on the 23rd ultimo, having on board Lieutenant General Sir James Kempt, G. C. B. & G. C. H. the successor of the Earl of Dalhousie as Governor-in-Chief in British North America. The Frigate on arriving was saluted from the Citadel which, on her anchoring, she returned. At noon His Excellency disembarked, under a salute from the Frigate which also manned her yards, and landed at the King's Wharf attended by Capt. Fitz-Clarence. He was received by His Lordship the Governor-in-Chief, who had gone thither in his Barouche, for that purpose, attended by the Officers of the general and of his personal Staff and escorted by Major Gugy's Troop of Volunteer Light Cavalry. The Grenadiers of the 15th Regiment, with the Band Regimental Colour were drawn up as a Guard of Honour. The Earl of Dalhousie, Sir James Kempt, and C. Fitz-Clarence, got into the Carriage, and escorted by the Military Staff and Dragoons, proceeded, by Mountain Street, to the Castle where the Councils were in attendance to pay their respects to the new Governor-in-Chief, who also received the Officers of the Garrison.—His Excellency Sir James Kempt appears in excellent health, and was immediately recognised by those who had known him here in 1810.

Shortly afterwards a deputation from the Literary and Historical Society of Quebec, waited on the Earl of Dalhousie to request His Excellency would fix a time for receiving the Address of the Society on His departure, when His Lordship was pleased to name to-morrow at 12 o'clock.

Lieutenant Colonel York and Captain Hamilton, A. D. C. came with His Excellency Sir James Kempt, in the Challenger. The arrival of Lieutenant Colonel Couper, Military Secretary, in the Chebucto, has already been announced.—Mercury, 2nd September.

The Colonial Brig, King fisher, on her homeward voyage, was passed by the Challenger in the Gut of Canso.

His Excellency Sir James Kempt, G. C. B. Governor-in-Chief, and Commander of the Forces, is living on the Cape, at the residence of the Honble. Col. Gore, Quarter Master-General to the Forces.—ib.

Port of Quebec.

ARRIVED,

Aug. 31..Ship Lord Suffield, London, stores.
Sept 1..Ship Chapman, London, bricks.
...2..Schr. Wellington, Newfoundland, rum and sugar.
....Bark Princess Royal, Grenada, rum,
....Brig Rosina, Glasgow, goods,
....Brig India, Liverpool, general cargo,
....H. M. S. Challenger, Halifax,
...4..Brig Tom, Liverpool, general cargo.
....Ship Hannah, London, ballast.
....Brig Matilda, Halifax. 10 settlers.
....Brig Spring-flower, Padstow, ballast.

PASSENGERS.

In the Tom, arrived 4th September, Colonel Hawkins and family.

In the Lord Suffield, Capt. Spears and Lieut. Maddigson, of the Royal Artillery, Lieut. Gibson, 66th Regt. Lieut. Pooley, of the Royal Engineers. Mr. Strickney and family of the Com. Dept, and 18 men for different Regiments.

SHIPPING INTELLIGENCE.

Comparative statement of arrivals, &c. at the Port of Quebec, to the first of September, 1827 and 1828:

Years.	Vessels.	Tonnage.	Settlers.
1827	415	105,554	15,367
1828	467	119,358	10,929

Birth,

On Thursday, 11th instant, the lady of Captain Reade, Paymaster of the 68th Regiment—of a son.

Married,

At New York, on Monday, 1st instant, by the Reverend Mr. M'Ilvaine, Mr. Thomas Walls, of Woodstock, England, to Miss Mary S. Hand, of Brooklyn, Long Island.

Died,

At Nelson Terrace, City Road, London, at his brother's residence, on the 1st of July last, Clement Charles Todd, Esquire, Surgeon in the Royal Navy, aged 32 years.—Dr. Todd formerly served on the Lakes in Canada.

At Ernest Town on Thursday the 21st ult of a prevailing fever, Mr. Augustus Bartels, aged 18 years.

On Wednesday the 27th ult. aged 11 months, Daniel, youngest son of Archibald McDonell, Esq. of the Township of Kingston.

At Ernest Town on Thursday last, Mr. SEBASTIAN HOULS, an old inhabitant of this Province.

WANTED immediately, A NURSE, who has been accustomed to the care of young children; and also, a good PLAIN COOK. Such persons producing testimonials of good character will receive handsome wages, if approved.

Apply at the Office of the Loyalist.

York, September 12, 1828. n 14

LANDS FOR SALE.—In the Township of Hallowell, Lot No. 46, 3d Concession, North-west side of the Carrying-Place, - - - - - Acres. 200

In the Township of Cramahe—
Lots No. 17, 18, & 19, 3d Con. } - - 300
do. 15, 4th do. }

In the Township of Hamilton—
Broken Lots, 29 & 30, 9th Con. } - - 476
27, 28, 29, 31, 32, 34, & 35, 10th do. }
North-east quarter, No. 1, 4th do. - - - - 50

In the Township of Clarke—
Lots No. 16, 17 & 18, Broken Fronts }
16, 17, & 18, 1st Con. }
17, & 18, 2d do. } 2000
17, & 18, 3d do. }

In the Township of Darlington—
Lot No. 14, 3d Con. } - - - - 400
8, 4th do. }

In the Township of Pickering—
Lots No. 16, 17, & half of 18, 1st Con. } - - 999
and Broken Fronts, }

In the Township of York—
Lot No. 37, 3d Con. - - - - - - 200

In the Township of Gainsborough—
Broken Lot No. 27, 3d & 4th Con. - - - 74

Apply to ANDREW MERCER

YORK BOARDING SCHOOL, under the Patronage of THE RIGHT HONARABLE LADY SARAH MAITLAND.—Miss Purcell and Miss Rose, beg leave to inform their Friends and the Public, that their School will re-commence on Monday the first of September.

N. B. A Professor of Dancing is engaged to attend.

York, 14th August, 1828. c. 10

PARCHMENT DEEDS,
For Sale at the Gazette Office, York,

ONE ISSUE MISSING

THE LOYALIST.

VOL. I. NO. 16.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 27, 1828.

Poetry.

THE MOUNTAIN GRAVE YARD.

From the New York Evening Post.

There's a hill with a breast of grass and flowers
Where the swallows play in the Summer hours,
Where the grasshopper chirps and the wild bee hums,
And the blest of the flocks on the cold air comes,
And the scented winds breathe round with a sigh,
From the rustling skirt of the woodland nigh.

There the cheerful sound of the streamlet rings
As it leaps away from the place of spring;
The strawberry blossoms and ripens there,
In the soft Spring gales and the Summer air,
And the gray squirrel barks in the wood with glee,
As he gathers the nuts from the beechen tree.

It is a spot where the sun-light latest stays,
And earliest comes with crimsoned rays,
And life is abroad where the free winds go,
But the dead are asleep in the earth below.

I knew by the stones that clustering stand,
By the gales of the changing seasons fann'd,
Where the friends that have gone before me lie,
Reach one with his feet to the western sky.

Yes—the rosy child with its sunny hair,
And age, with the marks of time and care,
And youth, with the cheek like the evening sky,
With a smooth white brow and a flashing eye,
And they in the strength and the midst of life,
Are gathered here from earth's eating strife—

And the mem of earth, and the good and brave,
Lie side by side in the silent grave.
I go to that spot when the early flowers
Awake on those bright sunny hills of ours,
When the airs of the South come over the plain,
When the blue bird sings in the woods again,
When the mountain brooks are bursting away,
With a joyous song and a manic play,
When green leaves dance in each passing breath,
I visit again the haunts of death.

When the Summer comes with its sultry heat,
And fierce on the earth the sunbeams beat,
When the leaf on the poplar's brow is still,
And the song has ceased from the mountain rill,
When the tall grass droops in the torrid glare,
And no sound is abroad in the motionless air,
I wander there for a breath of the gale,
That's a stranger then in my native vale.

When the maize on the Autumn hills is white,
And the yellow woodlands are bathed in light,
When the sun looks down with a milder ray,
And the dry leaves whirl in the gust away,
When the evening comes with the glorious hues,
And the crimson clouds distil their dews,
When the South h. eathes warm, and the North is still,
I sometimes visit this silent hill.

And I've followed the corpse of a parent there,
Through the Winter's wild and sleety air—
When the white snows lay over plain and hill,—
And the streams thro' the drifts flowed slowly and still,
And our tears fell fast like the Summer dew,
And our faces bowed when the frozen mould
With a hollow sound on the coffin rolled

Miscellaneous.

A SISTER'S LOVE.

From the Philadelphia Album.

There is no purer feeling kindled upon the altar of human affections, than a sister's pure, uncontaminated love for her brother. It is unlike all other affections; so disconnected with selfish sensuality; so feminine in its development; so dignified, and yet, with all, so fond, so devoted. Nothing can alter it, nothing can suppress it. The world may revolve, and its revolutions effect changes in the fortunes, in the character, and in the disposition of the brother, yet, if he wants, whose hand will so readily stretch out as that of his sister: and if his character is maligned, whose voice will so readily swell in his advocacy? Next to a mother's unquenchable love, a sister's is pre-eminent. It rests so exclusively on the ties of consanguinity for its sustenance; it is so wholly divested of passion, and springs from such a deep recess in the human bosom, that when a sister once fondly and deeply regards her brother, that affection is blent with her existence, and the lamp that nourishes it expires only with that existence. In all the annals of crime it is considered something anomalous to find the hand of a sister raised in anger against her brother, or her heart nurturing the seeds of hatred, envy, or revenge, in regard to that brother. In all the affections of woman there is a devotedness and a depth, which cannot be properly appreciated by man. In those regards where the passions are not at all necessary in increasing the strength of the affections, more sincere truth and pure feeling may be expected, than in such as are dependant upon each other for their duration as well as their felicities. A sister's love, in this respect, is peculiarly remarkable. There is no selfish gratification in its outpourings; it lives from the natural impulse; and personal charms are not in the slightest degree necessary to its birth or duration.

W.

CHANCES OF MARRIAGE.

The following curious statement, by Dr. Granville, is taken from a late English paper. It is drawn from the registered cases of 876 women, and is derived from their answers as to the age at which they respectively married; it is the first ever constructed to exhibit to females their chances of marriage at various ages. Of the 876 females, there were married—

Years of Age.			Years of Age.
3	at	13	28 at 27
11		14	22 28
16		15	17 29
43		16	9 30
45		17	7 31
26		18	5 32
115		19	7 33
118		20	5 35
86		21	2 35
85		22	0 36
59		24	2 37
53		24	0 38
36		26	1 39
24		26

From this curious statistical table, our fair readers may form a pretty accurate judgment of the chances which they have of entering into the holy state of matrimony, and of enjoying the sweets (we say nothing of the bitters) of wedded love.

THE KING.

ANECDOTE OF THE KING.—On the death of the late organist to St. George's Chapel, Windsor, great interest was made by several Professors of eminence to succeed to that honorable and lucrative situation. Old Horne, the music master, who taught the KING, and other members of his August Family, in their Juvenile days, was at this time very low in his circumstances, arising from losses and other untoward events. The fact was mentioned to his Majesty by one of the Lords in Waiting, who at the same time ventured to add that the existing vacancy would enable the poor old man to weather the storms of life, and pass the remainder of his days in competency and ease. His Majesty expressed his astonishment, and could scarcely credit that his old tutor was still in existence, or that, if so, he had not applied to his former pupil, stating his embarrassment. Modest merit is always dumb—Horne "knew if he had made his case known, he should have been relieved; but he dared not intrude his sufferings on his gracious master's attention." The fact, however, of his situation being thus brought to his Majesty's notice, he ordered his carriage, and proceeded immediately to Canvass the Canons and other Dignitaries in whose gift the appointment lay: they had made their promise, but—it must be so—the KING's wishes were a law, and Horne was nominated to the vacancy. Wishing, however, to gratify the old man by himself announcing the joyful tidings, his Majesty commanded him to attend at the Royal Lodge. The summons was unexpected, was distressing: "how could he appear in the Royal Presence, with a wardrobe not fit to visit a private friend? But, continued the gratified veteran, "it is not the coat, it is the man the King wants to see; I must. I will go: and he took a change of linen, and proceeded to Windsor. On his arrival at the Lodge, he was received with kindness by the major domo, and refreshments were placed before him, with an intimation that his attendance would be required in the course of the evening in the drawing-room. The time arrived, and the old man, on entering, was overpowered by the condescending affability with which he was received. The King, surrounded by the brilliant circle of his private friends, rose from his seat, and taking poor Horne by the hand, led him to the piano, requesting him to give once more a specimen of that skill which had entranced his juvenile mind. This was too much—he sat down overpowered with counteuding emotions, and the modest tear trickled from his aged eye. He forgot every thing, ran his fingers over the keys in the most abstracted manner, and was any thing but himself. A few affectionate words revived him; and, as if inspired by the sudden recollection of days gone by, struck off a fantasia, which he performed with all the execution of his best days. The King was delighted, and having only a slight recollection of the air, asked what it was. The old man could no longer contain his joy—"That air, your Majesty, was composed by my pupil, his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, when he was eighteen years of age." We need not say that the King was highly gratified: he had composed it in the early period of life, had entirely forgotten it, and, as the Professor said, he had also lost sight of it for upwards of forty years, when it suddenly flashed on its memory, as a bright meteor suddenly enlightens the darkened sky. The dignity of the Monarch sank for a moment to the familiarity of the friend; he pressed the old man's hand, told him of his good fortune, and bade him retire and compose himself. He remained at the Lodge ten days, and was then inducted into the organ gallery. He is now between seventy and eighty, and performs his duty with all the enthusiasm of his early days.

Improvement in Railroad Travelling.—We learn from a Liverpool paper, that on about 12 miles of the Darlington railroad, the descent is so great that carriages move by their own gravity, and that it is customary to take out the horses, from the passenger coaches, and lead them behind. This has been found very fatiguing to the horses, from the rapid rate at which the carriages move, and an experiment has been made, of placing the horse on a small platform, on small wheels behind the carriage, with a supply of provender before him, by which means he preserves his strength for the parts of the road on which his services are needed. It is stated that in consequence of the success of the experiment, the proprietors have ordered several waggons for this purpose to be built.

Mummies of a Cat and Rat.—On the 5th inst. as the workmen were removing the tiles from some old cottages at Basingstoke, they discovered jammed in between the rafters the dried remains of a cat, with a rat in a similar state in its mouth. It appeared as though the cat had made a spring at the rat, and falling into the situation where found was unable to extricate itself, and was consequently starved to death. Time has dried up the bodies of both animals like Egyptian mummies. They are now in possession of Thomas Wainwright, the ingenious polygraphic drawing-master of Basingstoke, and are well worthy the inspection of the curious.—Reading Mercury.

NOTICE.—All persons having claims upon the Estate of the late STEPHEN HEWARD, Esquire, of York, deceased, are requested to present the same properly authenticated to the Hon. P. Robinson, one of the Executors, without delay; and all persons indebted to the said Estate are requested to make payment to the said Executor.

York, September 15, 1828. x. 15

FOR SALE—By the Subscriber, 100 Barrels PLAISTER OF PARIS, of the very best quality, low for Cash

WILLIAM BERGIN.

York, September 19, 1828. x. 15

CHAIR-MAKING.—The Subscribers, having entered into Copartnership, under the Firm of SMITH & LAWRENCE, to carry on the Chairmaking Business, inform their Friends and the Public, that they have now a shop open on the West side of the Market-Square, where they will keep constantly on hand a general assortment of Fancy, Bamboo, and Windsor Chairs, which they intend to dispose of on reasonable terms, for CASH or Country Produce; and, they trust, from the quality of their work, and attention to business, to merit a share of public favor.

They have, also, a Ware-Room open on YONGE-STREET, four miles South of NEW-MARKET, where Chairs may be had at all times.

N.B.—Job Painting, &c. executed to order.

☞ All orders thankfully received and punctually attended to. B. W. SMITH,

J. M. LAWRENCE.

York, September 4, 1828. i. 13

JUST PUBLISHED, and for Sale at the Office of the LOYALIST, York, U. C., by ROBERT STANTON,—The UPPER CANADA ALMANAC, and Farmers Calendar, for the year 1829.

☞ Price 2s. Cr'cy. per dozen.—Orders with a remittance, duly attended to, and parcels forwarded agreeable to directions.

September 6, 1828.

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.—The Steam Boat ALCIOPE, will take Freight and Passengers from this Port during the remainder of the Season, every Saturday morning at 6 o'clock, on her way down from NIAGARA to PRESCOTT, to commence to-morrow.

York, 29th August, 1828. x 12

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

UNTIL further Notice, the CANADA STEAM PACKET will leave York as soon after her arrival as she has received her supply of Wood, firing a Gun, and hoisting Colors half an hour before starting.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner.

York, Aug. 29, 1828.

NOTICE.—The Subscriber having closed his business, requests all those who may be indebted either to him or to the late Firm of J. W. Gamble, & Co., to make immediate payment of their Accounts, otherwise they will be placed in the hands of an Attorney for collection. WILLIAM GAMBLE.

York, 1st September, 1828. n. 13

STRAY COWS.—Came into the Inclosure of the Subscriber, about three weeks since,—Two Cows—one a red Cow, with a small Star in her forehead, and a Bell on.—The other a small Brindle and white spotted. The owners are requested to prove property, pay charges, and take them away.

MOSES CHERRY,
No. 12, East side Yonge-Street,
Township of York.

4th September, 1828. x. 13

ELIGIBLE SITUATION.—To be sold, Lots numbers 29 & 30 in the first concession of the Township of Scarborough with their broken fronts on Lake Ontario, situate about Seven miles from the Town of York.—On Lot No. 29, are erected a Log and a Frame House together with outhouses &c. These premises are now in the possession of Mr. Adna Bates, and are an eligible Situation for a Tavern.

Application to be made to C. C. SMALL Esq.

York, 20th August, } 1828. } x 11

TO SAWYERS.—Wanted immediately an experienced SAWYER, and an assistant to take charge of a Mill that has a constant supply of water; and in other respects particularly well situated.—None need apply, who cannot give sufficient references as to character and ability.

Further information on application to Messrs. WRAGG & Co. King-street York. x 11

NOTICE.—I hereby forbid all persons from purchasing Lot No. 1, in the 3d Concession in the Township of Mulmur, West of Hurontario Street.—ALSO—Lots Nos. 13, 14, 21, and 22, in the second Concession of the Township of Melanethon, in the Home District, which I purchased from ALLAN ROBINETT, in the year 1823, and for which I have a Deed. LEWIS HORNING.

15th September, 1828. n. 15

HALF-PAY AFFIDAVITS, of the latest form, for Sale at the Gazette Office.

NEW WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE.—The Subscribers respectfully announce to the Merchants of York and its vicinity, that they have opened a Wholesale Store, Corner of Market-Lane and Church-Street; where they are receiving a large and suitable assortment of DRY Goods, direct from GREAT BRITAIN: consisting principally of the following articles:—

Grey and Bleached Factory Cottons,
do. do. Sheetings,
Striped and Check'd Cottons,
Scotch Hollands,
Fine, Superfine, and Brussels Carpeting,
do. do. broad and narrow Cloths,
do. do. Cassimeres,
Bombazettes, Bombazines, and Shalloons,
Says, Lastings, Cambleta, &c.,
Tartans and Union Checks,
Moleskins, Barragans and Fustians,
Red and White Flannel,
Chintzes, Calicoes and Furnitures,
Book, Jaconet and Mull Muslins,
Batiste Muslins, Striped, Check'd and figured,
Ginghams, Pullicate and Verona Handkerchiefs,
Cotton and Linen Bed Tick,
Russia Duck, Osnaburgs, Hessins and Sheetings,
Canvas, Bagging, Dowlas, Drill, &c.
Umbrellas, 32, 42, and 80 inch,
Bandanna, Barcelona, Gauze & Barrage, Handkerchiefs,
Silk Hose, and Habit Gloves,
Black and Green Crape, Veils, &c.
Black and Coloured sewings, Legee Twist, &c.
Black, Silk and Cotton Ferrets,
Black and W. Brown Linen Thread, Cotton Spoolls and Balls,
Silk, Cotton, and Merino Shawls,
Cotton Tapes, Bobbin, &c.
Battins, from the Naples, Levantine Ribbons, &c. &c.—Which they will sell off at very reduced prices, for cash only.

JAMES DOUGALL, & Co.

York, 23d July, 1828. x. 7

THOMAS MOORE.—TAILOR, Front Street, York. Has taken the Steam Boat Hotel.—Begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has just opened, and offers for Sale, a choice assortment of Goods, Selected by himself at the Manufactories in England, which he can recommend as being of choice quality, consisting of, Superfine, Blue Black; Scarlet; Green; Olive; Grey and Drab, West of England Broad Cloths.—Black, Blue and Grey, Double and single Milled Kersymeres. Forest Cloths. Lasting and Corduroys.—Beverteens; Fustians; Cantons. Jane; Drab, and Striped Brown Drills. Fine White and Scarlet and Blue Flannel. White and Grey Cottons. London printed Calicoes and Chintzes. Fancy Vestings. Printed Muslins. Sewing Silk; Twist; Thread and Rich Gilt Buttons.

MILITARY EQUIPMENTS,

consisting of, Regulation Swords; Patent Leather Regulation Waist Belts, with rich Gilt clasps. Rich Gold Bullion Epaulletts, crimson Silk Regulation Sashes.—Rich Gold Velvet Lace, and Gilt British Militia Buttons. Red, White and Green, Regulation Feathers, with rich Gilt Cockades.

The whole of which will be disposed of on reasonable terms, or made up to order, agreeable to the latest fashions, at the shortest notice.

York, 14th July, 1828. x 6

BRITISH WAREHOUSE.—J. C. GODWIN & Co., Wholesale and Retail Merchants, beg to inform their Friends and the Public, they have received direct from England, the following Goods, which they offer low for cash:—

West of England Cloths, the best assorted,
Yorkshire Cloths of superior qualities, assorted,
Kersymeres of fine Textures, assorted,
Variety of Vest Patterns,
A well selected Assortment of Gentlemens' Dress, and Surtout Coats, Trowsers, &c., made in London,
Imitation Brussels Carpeting, Venetian Carpeting, and Brass Stair Rods,
Upwards of 2,000 yards unbleached Factory Cotton,
Ships' Canvas bleached, Nos. 3, 4, 5, & 6,
Fashionable Tea and Coffee Urns,
Sheet Copper for Distills, &c.
Brass Crimping Machines, with Heaters,
Brass and Steel Fire Irons, of the newest quality,
An assortment of Cabinet Furniture,
Cast Steel in Bars,
Variety of Woollen and Linen Girth Webbs,
Paints, assorted, first quality,
Boiled and Raw Linseed Oil,
First quality Cognac Brandy, favorite mark Marett,
Fine Holland Gin,
Good old Whisky, by the Barrel or per Gallon,
Port, Sherry, and Teneriffe Wines, of choice quality.—With a variety of other Goods.

J. C. GODWIN & Co.

York, Aug. 25th 1828. x 12

PUBLIC NOTICE.—I require due notice to be given to me or to my Agent, Mr. Alexander Murray, at Mr. Proudfoot's Store, in York, of all transfers of Property in the Steam-Packet Canada, in default whereof I shall consider the original Stockholder, as the legal Owner in the Vessel; and in paying dividends and doing other transactions connected with my situation, hold myself accountable to them alone. HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner of the Steam Packet Canada.

York, 27th December, 1827. 51tf.

N.B.—With Mr. A. Murray, reference may be had to all Books and accounts connected with the Canada Steam Packet.

JOHN MURCHISON, DRAPER AND TAILOR, respectfully informs his friends and customers, that he has just received from LONDON, a choice assortment of extra, fine and superfine West of England Broad Cloths and Cassimeres; consisting of Blue, Black, Scarlet, Green, Olive, Brown, Grey, Drab and Corbeau, Single and Double Milled Cassimeres; do. Double Milled Broad Cloths for Great Coats, and vestings of every description, which he is ready to make up to order at short notice, in good style, and on the lowest terms possible. Gentlemen wishing any thing in his line may depend upon being faithfully served.

N. B. He has also a number of Military Articles to dispose of on reasonable terms.

York, July 28, 1828. m. 8

FOR SALE,—Lot No. 12, and East half of 14 in the 3d Concession of the Township of York, West of Yonge-Street,—300 Acres,—the property of Major W. G. White.—Refer to ROBERT STANTON, Esquire, U. C. Gazette Office.

York, 4th July, 1828. x. 3

THE ROYAL GRAMMAR SCHOOL, established at York, Upper Canada, opens again on Monday the 8th of September, 1828.—For Terms, &c. apply to the REV. DR. PHILLIPS, Head Master.

York, 14th August, 1828 i. 10

NOTICE.—The undermentioned new POST OFFICES have been established in Upper Canada, by the Deputy Post Master General, to go into operation from the 6th of next Month, viz:

MAITLAND.—(Between Prescott, & Brockville,)—SAMUEL THOMAS, P. M.

GUELPH.—(35 Miles N. W. from Dundas,)—DAVID GILKISON, P. M., VIA. GALT.

General Post Office,
Quebec, 28th June, 1828. } y 6

ENGLISH STORE.—Just received, direct from England, a quantity of Bobbin Net, Lace, Veils, and Caps, of the first quality; also, an assortment of Muslins and other Goods; which will be sold on the most reasonable terms, by

J. COCKSHUTT.

York, July 14th 1828. x

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

LAKE ONTARIO STEAM-BOAT, NIAGARA, Captain MOSIER, with DANIEL READ, Sailing Master, Will, after the 15th inst., leave Niagara for Kingston, Brockville, and Prescott, every Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

On her return, will leave Prescott for Brockville, Kingston, York, and Niagara, every Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made with Messrs. NORTON, & Co., Stage Proprietors, by which, passengers going down, arrive in Montreal on Tuesday evening; and those proceeding upwards, will, by leaving Montreal on Tuesday, arrive in time at Prescott to take the Boat.

York. June 6th, 1828. x 1.

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS of a new GAOL and COURT HOUSE at HAMILTON, District of Newcastle.—Notice is hereby given that the undermentioned premiums are offered to such persons as shall furnish the Clerk of the Peace, for the approval of the Magistrates of the District of Newcastle, on or before the 1st day of October next, with plans, specifications, and estimates of a Gaol and Court House (in one building) to be built in the Township of Hamilton, at or near the present Court House—the first story to be of Stone, second and third stories of Brick, to contain Criminal Cells, Debtors Rooms, Gaolers Apartments, Court Room, Grand and Petit Jury Rooms;—Also, Rooms for Offices, &c., such as are usually required in such a Building—the roof to be covered with tin.—The whole expence not to exceed the sum of £5,000 Currency.

Premiums will be awarded as follows, viz:—

For the best and most approved plan, &c.	}	£15 0 0
For the 2nd do. do.		10 0 0
For the 3rd do. do.		5 0 0

T. WARD,
Clerk of the Peace,
District of Newcastle

Hamilton, Newcastle District, } dd 52
10th May, 1828.

FOR SALE.—Lot No. 29, and part of 30, in the 7th Concession of the Township of Pickering, containing 350 Acres, and having an eligible situation for a Mill. For terms apply to Mr. Andrew Mercer, York,

York, 28th October, 1827. 22 tf.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL GROCERY STORE.—The Subscriber respectfully informs the Inhabitants of York and its vicinity, that he has opened a Store in the above line, on the Corner of Church and Palace Streets, where he is now ready to serve them with the choicest articles and at very low prices. The following are a few of the articles in his line, viz:—

O. L. P. Madeira,	London Porter.
F. Madeira,	Teas of all descriptions.
L. M. Do.	D. R. Loaf Sugar,
Prime Port,	S. R. Loaf Sugar,
Second do.	Muscovado do.
Sherry,	East India do.
Cagniac Brandy,	Mace, Cloves,
Bordeaux do.	Cinnamon, Nutmegs,
H. Gin,	Alspice, Black Pepper,
Jamaica Spirits,	White Pepper,
Peppermint,	Mustard in Jars, ¼ & ½ lbs.
Shrub,	Isinglass, Arrow Root,
White Wine Vinegar,	Macaroni, Vermicilli,
Limejuice,	Curry Powder,
Molasses,	Raisins, Figs,
Olive Oil for Lamps,	Starch, Blue,
Linseed do.	Tobacco, Pipes, Blacking.
London Brown Stout,

And a variety of articles in the Grocery line.

JAMES F. SMITH.

York, 17th September, 1828. sn. 15

VALUABLE FREEHOLD IN YORK, FOR SALE.—The Subscriber offers for sale by private bargain that valuable freehold in the Town of York, on Newgate Street, consisting of a Dwelling House and Workshop, together with a Garden and Yard. MATTHEW WALTON.

York, September 17th, 1828. x. 15

ROBBERY OF A CHURCH.—There was Stolen, since Sunday last, from the Scotch Church, St. Gabriel Street, a 20-INCH ROUND CONVEX DIAL CLOCK, with Gilt Hands.—Name on the Dial, N. Walker, London and Montreal.—The glass is convex, in a brass rim—Case, Mahogany; name on the inside plate, N. Walker London.

—ALSO,—

The SILK GOWN of one of the Clergymen.

Whoever can give information which can lead to the detection of the theief or thieves, to JOHN FISHER or JOHN SMITH, Esquires, will be rewarded.

Proprietors of Newspapers in Upper and Lower Canada and the United States will please give the above an insertion.

Montreal, 6th September, 1828. n 15

ALLIANCE BRITISH AND FOREIGN
Life and Fire Assurance Company,
OF LONDON.
(CAPITAL—Five Millions Sterling.)

THE Subscriber having been appointed AGENT to the above Company, at York, he is ready to Insure against loss or damage by Fire at moderate rates of Premium. The high standing of this Institution in England, and the Company allowing their Agents in Montreal to settle losses in this Country, with the Assured participating in the Profits of the Company, renders it worthy of Public Confidence.

R. W. PRENTICE.

York, November 18th, 1826. 25.

WANTED immediately, A NURSE, who has been accustomed to the care of young children; and also, a good PLAIN COOK. Such persons producing testimonials of good character will receive handsome wages, if approved.

Apply at the Office of the Loyalist.

York, September 12, 1828. n 14

BANK NOTICE.—DISCOUNT DAY, Wednesday of every Week.—Notes offered for Discount, must be put under cover to the Cashier, and left at the Bank the day before.

THOMAS G. RIDOUT,
Cashier.

CHAIN CABLES, &c.—ACRAMAN'S Patent Chain Cables, and Anchors, (warranted proved by Machine) a constant supply kept on hand (in stock) of all sizes, by JOHN WATKINS, Kingston, and in Montreal and Quebec by

WILLIAM BUDDEN.

July, 30, 1827. 11-tf.

FRESH SEEDS.—Shaker's Garden and Flower Seeds, warranted of the growth of 1827, for sale by

EDW'D. LESSLIE & SONS.

☞ E. L. & Sons expect a quantity of clover seed in a few days.

York, 14th March 1828. 43-tf.

PARCHMENT DEEDS,
For Sale at the Gazette Office, York,

England.

Imperial Parliament,

HOUSE OF COMMONS—JULY 22.

Mr. FRANKLAND LEWIS reported from the Select Committee appointed to inquire into the state of the Civil Government of Canada, as established by the Act of 31, Geo. III., and to report their observations thereupon to the House, and to whom the several petitions for an alteration in the present Government were referred—have, pursuant to the order of the House, examined the matters to them referred, and agreed to the following Report:—

Your Committee began their investigation into the state of the Civil Government of Canada, by examining the several Petitions from the inhabitants of the two Provinces which had been referred to them by the House. The petition from the Townships of the Lower Province, signed by about 10,000 persons, complain of the want of Courts within their own limits, and of the administration of French Law in the French language. That they are without representation in the House of Assembly in Lower Canada; and that Emigrants of British origin have been deterred from settling in the Province. And finally, they pray that a Legislative union may take place between Upper and Lower Canada.

Your Committee have proceeded to examine the Petition signed by about 87,000 inhabitants of Lower Canada, resident within the Seigniories, who complain of arbitrary conduct on the part of the Governor of the Province—of his having applied public money without legal appropriation—of violent prorogation and dissolution of the Provincial Parliament—and of his having prevented the passing of many useful Acts, which they enumerate.

They complain also that a Receiver General had been maintained in the exercise of his functions for some years after his insolvency was known to the Government. That similar abuses had prevailed with respect to the office of Sheriff. And it is further stated, that the rights of the petitioners had been injured by Acts of the Imperial Parliament, and particularly by the Canada Trade Act, and the Act passed in the sixth year of His Majesty's Reign, c. 19, affecting the Tenures of Land.

For a further knowledge of the grievances complained of, your Committee beg leave to refer to the petitions, which will be found in the appendix.

Before your Committee proceed to explain or to discuss these important subjects, they think it their duty to state, that petitions from the Province of Upper Canada were also referred to their consideration, praying for the establishment of the proceeds arising from the sale of certain lands set apart for a Protestant Clergy, may not be applied solely to the use of the Clergy of the Church of England, but extended equally throughout the Province they state, in contradiction to the representations of Archdeacon Strachan, to be con paratively few in number) but that they may be applied to the maintenance of Protestant Clergymen of other denominations, and to the purposes of general education.

As these Petitions appear to comprehend the most material subjects that have been agitated in the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada, your Committee thought it the best course they could pursue, was to examine witnesses as to each petition, in succession, and in communicating to the House, the information they have received, and the opinions they have been induced to form as to the Civil Government of Canada. They will treat of the different subjects as much as possible in the order in which they were investigated.

Your Committee proceeded to examine into the peculiar system of law established in Lower Canada, to which their attention was particularly drawn to the petition from the townships. Your Committee have obtained in great detail on this subject, from which they collect that uncertainty has long existed on points of law relating to the tenure of real property in that portion of the Province. It appears that shortly after the Cession of the Province, the King of England, in a Proclamation dated the 7th October, 1763, (which will be found in the appendix) declared amongst other things, "That all the inhabitants of the Province, and all others resorting to it, might confide in his Royal Protection for enjoying the benefits of the laws of England," and he announced that he had given commands for the erection of Courts of Judicature, with an appeal to His Majesty in Council.

In the year 1774, the first Act of Parliament was passed making provision for the better Government of this part of the British dominions. By this Act, the English Criminal law was preserved. But it was enacted that in all matters of controversy relative to property and civil rights, resort should be had to the laws of Canada, as the rule and decision of the same, and all causes that should thereafter be established, were to be adjusted in Justice, to be appointed within the Province, should, with respect to such property and rights, be determined agreeably to the said laws and customs of Canada. There was, however, a marked exception to this concession of the French law, namely, that it should not apply to lands which had been, or should be granted in free and common soccage.

After an interval of seven years this Act was followed by the Constitutional Act of 1791. The provisions of this important Act having no bearing upon the subject under our consideration, excepting that it provides with respect to Lower Canada, that lands shall be granted in free and common soccage if so desired. And further, that such grants are to be subject to such alteration, as to the nature and consequences of soccage tenure, as may be made by the Provincial Legislature and with His Majesty's approbation and assent, but no such alteration has been made.

On examining into the application of those provisions in the Province, it appears not only that doubts have existed as to the true interpretation of them—but that the general practice of the Colony has been to convey real property within the townships according to the Canadian forms. And that it has descended and been subject to the incidents of that law. In the year 1826, the British Parliament passed an Act which put its own interpretation of these statutes beyond the reach of further dispute. This Act commonly called the Canadian Tenure Act, declared that the law of England was the rule by which real property within the Townships was to be hereafter regulated and administered. In offering any recommendations on points of so much difficulty and importance, your committee are fully aware of the disadvantages under which they labour and of their inability from their want of sufficient technical and local information to enter for any useful purpose into minute and intricate details. They do not, however, decline to offer as their opinion, that it would be advantageous that the declaratory enactment in the Tenures act respecting lands held in free or common soccage should be retained.—That mortgages should be special, and that in proceedings for the conveyance of land, the simplest and least expensive forms of conveyance should be adopted upon the principle of the law of England, that form which prevails in Upper Canada, being probably under all circumstances, the best which could be selected. That a registration of deeds relating to soccage lands should be established as in Upper Canada.

Your committee are further of opinion that means should be found of bringing into effective operation the clause in the tenures Act which provides for the mutation of tenure; and they entertain no doubt of the inexpediency of retaining the seigneurial rights of the crown, in the hope of deriving a profit from them. The sacrifice on the part of the crown would be trifling, and would bear no proportion to the benefit that would result to the colony from such a concession.

In addition to these recommendations, it appears to be desirable that some competent jurisdiction should be established to try and decide causes arising out of this description of property; and that circuit courts should be instituted within the Townships for the same purpose.

The committee cannot too strongly express their opinion that the Canadians of French extraction should, in no degree, be disturbed in the peaceful enjoyment of their religion, laws and privileges, as secured to them by the British Acts of Parliament; and so far from requiring them to hold lands on the British tenure, they think that when the lands in the Seigneuries are fully occupied, if the descendants of the original settlers shall still retain their preference to the tenure of Fief et Seigneurie, they see no objection to other portions of unoccupied lands in that Province being granted to them on that tenure, provided that such lands are set apart from and not intermixed with the townships.

Your committee are now desirous of adverting to the representative system of Lower Canada, with respect to which all parties seem to agree that some change should take place in this branch of their inquiry. They are desirous of recalling to the recollection of the House that under the provisions of the Act of 1791, the division of the Province for the purpose of exercising the elective franchise, was entrusted to the Governor; and it appears that Sir Alured Clarke, apportioned the Representation according to the numerical amount of the population, as the sole basis on which his calculations were formed, and divided into Counties as much land as was found to contain a given number of inhabitants. On the thickly peopled banks of the St. Lawrence, a small District was found to suffice, while in the more distant parts, vast territories were comprehended in one County, in order to obtain the requisite amount of population.—Thus it happens that the Counties of Kent, Surrey, Montreal, Leinster and Warwick, do not, altogether, equal in extent, the single county of Buckinghamshire.—The smaller counties too are composed wholly of lands holden as Seigniories.

A Bill actually passed the Assembly, the object of which, was to increase the number of the Representative Assembly.—This Bill did not become a law, and it appears to have been founded upon the same principle, and to have involved the same error as the original arrangement by Sir Alured Clarke. It has been stated by one of the witnesses, that under the proposed division, a disproportionable increase would have been given to the Representatives from the Seigneuries.

In providing a representative system for the inhabitants of a country which is gradually comprehending in its limits newly peopled and extensive Districts, great imperfections must necessarily arise from the proceeding, in the first instance, on the basis of population only.—In Upper Canada a representative system has been founded on the compound basis of territory and population—this principle, we think, might be advantageously adopted in Lower Canada.

One of the obstacles which is said greatly to impede the improvement of the country is, the practice which has been prevailed in making grants of land in large masses to individuals who had held official situations in the Colony, and who have evaded the conditions in the grant, by which they were bound to provide for its cultivation, and now wholly neglect it, although powers have been lately acquired by the Government to estreat these lands; and although we think that under certain modifications this power may be advantageously used, we are nevertheless of opinion that a system should be adopted similar to that in Upper Canada, by the levy of a small annual duty on lands unimproved and unoccupied, contrary to the conditions of the grant.

It now becomes the duty of your committee to advert to the petitions signed by the inhabitants of the Seigneuries, on the important subjects contained in them. They thought it right to call for explanation from Mr. Neilson, M. Viger, and Mr. Cuvillier, Members of the Assembly of Lower Canada, who had been deputed to this country for the purpose of seeking redress for the injuries complained of by the petitioners.

From the testimony of these Gentlemen, we have learned, with the deepest regret, that the disputes which have arisen between the Government and the House of Assembly, originating (as they appear to have done) in doubts as to the right of appropriating, and accounting for a considerable portion of the public accounts, have led to a state of confusion and difficulty in the administration of public affairs in that colony which calls for a decisive and early remedy.

With a view to understand accurately, the grounds of this dispute, the committee has carefully examined into the different sources of revenue arising in Lower Canada, and they have examined also the public documents which have enabled them to trace the successive steps which had been taken by the contending parties in these disputes. Your committee beg leave to refer to the evidence of Mr. Neilson, and of Mr. Wilmot Horton, for a detailed account of the origin and progress of these differences.

Upon this important subject, your committee have felt that they should not do wise in confining their views to a critical examination of the precise meaning of the words of the different statutes—they look rather to the circumstances of Lower Canada—to the spirit of the constitution—to the position and character of the local Government—and the powers, privileges and duties of the two branches of the Legislature.

Although from the opinion given by the law officers of the crown, your committee must conclude that the legal right of appropriating the revenues arising from the Act of 1774, is vested in the crown, they are prepared to say that for real interests of the Provinces would be best promoted by placing the receipt and expenditure of the whole public revenue under the superintendance and control of the House of Assembly.

On the other hand, your committee, while recommending such a concession on the part of the crown, are strongly impressed with the advantage of rendering the Governor, the Members of the Executive Council, & the Judges, independent of the annual votes of the House of Assembly, for their respective salaries.

Your committee are fully aware of the objections in principle, which may be fairly raised against the practice of voting permanent salaries to Judges and other persons removable at the pleasure of the crown; but being convinced that it would be inexpedient that the crown should be deprived of that power of removal, and having well considered the public inconvenience which might result from their being left in dependence upon an annual vote of the Assembly, they have decided to make the recommendation, in their instance, of a permanent vote of salary.

Although your committee are aware that the grant of permanent salaries has been remonstrated to a much greater number of persons connected with the executive Government, than they have included in their recommendation, they have no hesitation in expressing their opinion, that it is unnecessary to include so large a number, and if the officers above enumerated, are placed on the footing recommended, they are of opinion that all the revenues of the Province (except territorial and hereditary revenues) should be placed under the controul and direction of the Legislative Assembly.

Your committee cannot close their observations on this branch of their inquiry without calling the attention of the House to the important circumstance, that in the progress of these disputes the Local Government has thought it necessary through a long series of years, to have recourse to a measure (which nothing but the most extreme necessity could justify) of annually appropriating by its own authority the sum of the money of the Province, amounting to no less a sum than £140,000 without the consent of the representatives of the people, under whose controul the appropriation of these monies is placed by the constitution.

Your committee cannot but express their deep regret that such a state of things should be allowed to exist for so many years in a British Colony without any communication or reference having been made to Parliament on the subject.

Upon the several points referred to your committee connected with the office of Receiver General, of the Sheriffs, and of the Jesuit's Estates, your committee proceeded to examine evidence upon each The facts of the case as regards the Receiver General, Mr. Caldwell, are detailed in Mr. Neilson's evidence —Mr. Caldwell was a defaulter in 1823 for £96,000 of the public money of the Province.—Upon our examination of the accounts by the House of Assembly—no acquittal could be traced from the Treasury of a later date than 1814—though some balances were stated up to 1819, and it appeared by documents then produced that the fact of his deficiency was known for a considerable time before he was suspended.

Your committee recommend for the future that steps should be taken by efficient securities for a regular audit of the accounts to prevent the recurrence of similar losses and inconveniences to the Provinces

As connected with this branch of the inquiry, your committee recommend that precautions of the same nature as those should be adopted with regard to the Sheriffs, as it appears that within a few years two instances of the insolvency of these officers have occurred while possessed in virtue of their office of large sums of money deposited in their hands.

With respect to the Estates which formerly belonged to the Jesuits, your committee lament that they have not more full information, but it appears to them to be desirable that the proceeds should be applied to the purposes of general education.

One of the most important subjects to which their inquiries have been directed, has been the state of the Legislative Councils in both the Canadas, a manner in which their assemblies have answered the purposes for which they were instituted. Your committee strongly recommend that a more independent character should be given to those bodies, that the majority of their members should not consist of persons holding offices at the pleasure of the crown, and they are of opinion, that any other measure that may tend to connect more intimately, this branch of the constitution with the interest of the colonies would be attended with the greatest advantage—with respect to the Judges with the exception only of the Chief Justice, whose presence, on particular occasions, might be necessary. Your committee entertain no doubt that they had better not be involved in the political business of the House of Assembly, and a similar opinion to your committee that it is not desirable that Judges should hold seats in the Executive Council.

Your committee are desirous of recording the principle, which, in their judgment, should be applied to any alterations in the constitution of the Canadas, which was imparted to them under the formal Act of the British Legislature of 1791. The principle is to limit the alterations which it may be necessary to make by any future British Act, as far as possible, to such points as from the relation between the Mother Country and the Canadas, can only be disposed of by the paramount authority of the British Legislature, and of the House of Lords in which similar interests and that on the said fifth day of January, 1829, one half of the bounty now payable on the importation of Sail Cloth shall cease, and that on the said fifth day of January, 1832, the whole of the said bounty shall cease.

Sec. 17. Enacts that the issuing of Debentures granted for timber deals used in Mines be made twice, instead of one a year—if the payment of the said debenture be claimed within three years. The same debentures to be allowed if imported in foreign ships.

Sec. 18 and 19. Provides that the same bounty which is allowed on the exportation of Double Refined Sugar, shall be allowed on all Sugar of equal value. Sample loaves to be produced for that purpose. The loaves for exportation must be complete and whole, and not weighing more than 14 pounds.

Sec. 20. Provides that all Sugar not found equal to the sample loaves shall be forfeited.—And

Sec. 21. Declares that the same bounties shall be granted to the Sugar the production of any place or country whatsoever.

Sec. 22. And whereas one other of the said first-mentioned Acts was passed to regulate the trade of the British Possession abroad, and it is expedient to amend the said Act; be it therefore enacted, That upon the entry outwards of any Goods in any of the British possessions in America, to be exported to any other of such possessions or to the United Kingdom, it shall be stated in such Entry either that such Goods are the produce of the British possessions in America, or that they are of foreign production, as the case may be; and if any goods not being the produce of any of the British possessions in America be stated in any such entry to be such produce, the same shall be forfeited; and that no goods shall be stated in the Certificate of the clearance of any ship from any British possession in America to be the produce of such Possessions, unless such goods shall have been duly entered so to be in the entry outwards; and that all goods not expressly stated in such certificate of clearance to be the produce of the British possessions in America shall, at the place of importation in any other such possessions, or in the United Kingdom, be deemed to be of Foreign Production.

Sec. 23. And be it further enacted, that several sorts of goods herein-after enumerated, having been warehoused in the United Kingdom, (that is to say,) Corn, Grain, Seed, Meal, Flour, Bread, Biscuit, Rice, Fruits, Pickles, Woods of all sorts, Hemp, Flax, Tow, Oakum, Pitch, Tar, Rosin, Turpentine, Ochres, Brimstone, Saltpetre, Gems, Drugs, Vegetable Oils, Burr Stones, Dog Stones, Hops, Cork, Sago, Tapioca, Spunge, Sausages, Cheese, Cider, Wax, Spices, Tallow, being imported into any of the British possessions in America direct from the Warehouse in the United Kingdom, shall be so imported duty-free; and that Horses, Mules, Asses, Neat Cattle, and all other live stock, shall be imported or brought into the said possessions duty-free; and that Tallow and Raw Hides brought by Land or by Inland Navigation into any of the said possessions, shall be so brought duty-free.

Sec. 24. And be it further enacted, That upon the Entry of any Wheat to be Warehoused in any Warehousing Port in the British Possessions in America, it shall be lawful for the Officers of the Customs, instead of requiring that such Wheat shall be forthwith lodged in the Warehouse, to deliver the same to the importer or proprietor thereof to be first ground into Flour, and also to deliver any Warehoused Wheat to be ground into Flour, under condition, by Bond to the satisfaction of the said Officers, that within three months from the date of the Bond there shall be lodged in the Warehouse one barrel of good and merchantable Flour in return for every five bushels of Wheat so delivered; and such Flour so Warehoused shall be held to be Flour imported and Warehoused under the conditions and regulations of the said last-mentioned Act.

Sec. 25. Allows the importation of Wine into the Islands of Jersey and Guernsey and in any quantity.

Sec. 26. And be it enacted and declared, That nothing contained in an Act passed in the seventh year of His Majesty's Reign, intitled, An Act to alter and amend the several Laws relating to the Customs, did or doth repeal, or shall be constructed to have repealed, so much of an Act passed in the third year of His Majesty's Reign, intitled, An Act to regulate the Trade of the Provinces of Lower and Upper Canada, and for other purposes relating to the said Provinces, as relates to the appointment of Arbitrators to determine the claims of the Province of Upper Canada upon the Province of Lower Canada, or as relates to the Powers and duties of such Arbitrators, or to any award to be made by them, or to the payment of any sum by them awarded, or to the payment of Duties made payable under any Act or Acts of the Province of Lower Canada on the Importation of any Goods, Wares, or Commodities into the said Province.

Sec. 27. Prohibits the importation of Spirits or strong waters into the Isle of Man, except under the provisions of the former Act, which seems to have been defective with regard to the said Isle of Man.

Sec. 28. Relates to the exports of the Isle of Man.

Sec. 29 & last. Relates to Steam-boat passengers, and enacts that all Steam-boats up to 140 tons and upwards, shall be considered of the dimensions of 200 tons.

Scotland,

On Tuesday last week, a steam boat on quite a new principle was tried on the Tay; but the boat unfortunately has been so slenderly constructed, that the invention was seen to great disadvantage, as it was evidently dangerous to allow the engine to work at more than half its power; it is thought, however, that the invention possesses many advantages. As the paddles can never lose hold of the water, nor be too far sunk, it is adapted for rough seas; and as the water is not disturbed by the action of the propelling apparatus, it renders the application of steam to canal navigation both easy and safe. The vessel is propelled by two levers or arms suspended over each side, to the lower ends of which are attached plates or paddles, so constructed as when moving in the same direction as the vessel to shut and cut the water with a sharp edge, but when moving in a contrary direction, to open and present a large surface. Corrosion is prevented by a small piece of zinc connected with the metal under water. We understand that a patent has been obtained for the invention.—Correspondent of Dundee Advertiser.

Foreign Intelligence.

RUSSIA AND TURKEY.

Arrivals in the course of yesterday, brought intelligence that the Russians were before Choumla, whither they had marched on the 21st ultimo, part of the army, having occupied the heights, after defeating a body of 8 or 10,000 Turks, who bravely defended the garrison but were compelled, after a vigorous resistance; to fall back upon their retrenchements before Choumla. The Russian bulletin, which conveys this intelligence gives no particulars of the loss on either side, which from the resistance made, must have been far from inconsiderable. The letters from St. Petersburgh are dated the 30th ultimo, and give the particulars of the operations against Kara, in Asiatic Turkey, which was taken by storm on the 15th ultimo. It appears that the Turks were not disposed to shrink from the invaders, for it is stated by the Russian account, that the cavalry, in great numbers, had sallied out from the fortress, and traversed the country to the distance of 16 wersts, in order to meet and to attack the Russians; they, however, were repulsed, as the Russians outnumbered them. Their daring seems to have excited the admiration of the latter, who admit the boldness of the attack, and the goodness of the Turkish troop, which, according to these accounts, amounted to 10,000 men. They, it appears, were "eager for the fray," for, with the Russian troops in sight of battle, on the eminences before Kara, a numerous body of cavalry rushed with impetuosity from out of the fortress, and attacked the Cossacks, who were directed to retreat, in order to prevent the Turks from regaining the fortress, so to induce them to believe that victory were certain. This ruse had the desired effect, for a division of Cossacks, Hulans, and Tartars, cut off the retreat, and the adventurous Turks were completely beaten, with considerable loss. The Russians then proceeded towards Kara, and on the 15th the Turks entrenched themselves upon an eminence which commanded the town; the Russians stormed the camp, and after a vigorous attack, which was met upon equal terms, the Turks were dislodged, taken, and pursued into the town; part of the garrison escaped. It is stated that the Turks lost 5000 men, while the Russians only had 54 killed and 250 wounded. There were found in the fortress 151 pieces of cannon, besides standards and ammunition, &c. But the great struggle will be at Choumla, which is the key to the Balkan Mountains.

The Paris papers—the Gazette de France, in particular—of the 5th Aug., hold out the hope, on the authority of a despatch from the Courts of Vienna and London are conjointly using all their influence to induce the Emperor Nicholas to listen to pacific overtures from the Porte, and that he has even signified his assent, on condition that several fortresses, particularly Silistria, Guirgevo, and Varna, are placed in his hands as a security against a change of purpose on the part of the Porte. The Morning Herald of August 7, is incredulous as to this, and says:—"Though the part ascribed to England and Austria is probable enough, we have great doubts that the Russian Monarch has made the compliances ascribed to him; and, in confirmation of this opinion, we have observed that not a hint of a pacific nature has appeared in any of the Russian Bulletin's."

The Prussian State Gazette to the 30th of July, and Hamburgh papers to the 2d of August, had been received in London. The former contains a detailed account of the occurrences which marked the march of the Russian army from Karassu to Bazardjik.

It was on the 6th that the head-quarter, to which was joined the 6th corps, broke up from the former place.—The 7th corps, under the command of General Wernoat, followed the steps of the former two day later, this interval being necessary to prevent confusion in the march of two such considerable masses. The head-quarters were three days in proceeding from Karassou to Bajardjik, a distance of 20 wersts, or about fifty English miles; and as the Emperor is always at the post of honor, at the head of his army, it will be easily imagined what a powerful influence this must have on the spirits of his troops. However, this movement was not executed without opposition, though too slight to obstruct it in a serious manner.

On the second day [the 7th,] a smart action took place between a body of Turkish cavalry, amounting to about 4,000, who had come from Schumla, and the head of the Russian vanguard, commanded by General Rudiger.—The Turks were the assailants, and appear to have attacked with their usual impetuosity; but the Russians receiving continually fresh reinforcements, the former were finally repulsed, and, during the rest of the march, did not venture to renew the attack. After the engagement, they retired into a wood about two miles beyond Bazardjik, where they spent the night, but fled at the break of day, on seeing the Russians make a demonstration to dislodge them.

On the 11th, as we stated on Monday, the head-quarters were established at Bazardjik, having spent the intermediate time in awaiting the arrival of the corps under General Rothe before Silistria, of which it is to undertake the siege. In the mean time, a strong division was detached towards Varna, with orders to invest that important place; and as it is invested by sea at the same time—Admiral Greig, with the fleet under his command, having received orders to that effect—there is but too much reason to apprehend that it will share the fate of Anapa, and of the other fortresses that have already fallen into the hands of the Russians. From all that has already occurred, it is clear that the Turks are incapable of making a serious resistance; and that they over-rated their own means as much as they under-valued those of their great rival, when the provoked the latter to mortal combat.

The 10th, Russian Bulletin, gave but a summary account of the preceding movements, merely stating that "the enemy was immediately repulsed, and took flight." This reached London on the 4th: and the foregoing information has subsequently been derived from other official accounts. The Courier says, there was more fighting than they had at first been led to suppose, and adds: "It appears, that, when the vanguard, under General Rudiger, was marching to Mangali, and before the headquarters had been removed from Karasson, a division of Turkish cavalry, from Silistria, had proceeded towards Bazardjik, but retired upon the advance of the Russian General. It seems to have been the intention of this division from Silistria to effect a junction with another corps of Turkish cavalry from Choumla, which made its appearance near Bazardjik a few hours afterwards."

The advance of the Russians during these operations, was about fifty miles.

The latest accounts from Odessa, are any thing but pacific, as they announce the arrival of numerous trains of artillery as a daily occurrence. It is added that they are shipped as soon as they arrive from some point in the Black Sea; and we scarcely need the intimation that these preparations would not be continued if there were any prospect of peace. It appears by accounts from the kingdom of Poland, to the 22d ult., that several corps of the Polish Army had presented addresses to the Grand Duke Constantine, to be allowed to take part in the war against the Turks; but that their request, though courteously received, had been refused.

According to the last accounts from Bucharest, the plague had begun to subside in that city. The contagion has manifested itself in 21 villages of the districts of Ilow, Dumbowitza, Wlaska, and Feliormany, most of them towards the frontiers of Austria. It has also appeared in Russian camp at Junteni. The Russian authorities have taken energetic measures.

There is a report of an engagement between the Russians and Turks, between Shumla and Varna, having turned out very unfavorably to the former.

Portugal.—The Courier of the 6th says: We have some further accounts from Lisbon and Oporto, but they are all of the same gloomy nature. The war itself will be brought to a speedy termination, by means of which no possible arrangement. It is said that a report to this effect was generally current in that capital, and obtained so much credit as to occasion a considerable rise in the funds. It is added that the Courts of Vienna and London are conjointly using all their influence to induce the Emperor Nicholas to listen to pacific overtures from the Porte, and that he has even signified his assent, on condition that several fortresses, particularly Silistria, Guirgevo, and Varna, are placed in his hands as a security against a change of purpose on the part of the Porte. The Morning Herald of August 7, is incredulous as to this, and says:—"Though the part ascribed to England and Austria is probable enough, we have great doubts that the Russian Monarch has made the compliances ascribed to him; and, in confirmation of this opinion, we have observed that not a hint of a pacific nature has appeared in any of the Russian Bulletin's."

The Dublin Letter informs us, that another Minister has been appointed to replace the Spanish Ambassador Zea, who has been recalled. We trust there is some mistake in this, for the King of Spain was understood to have expressed to Don Miguel his high displeasure at his conduct.

Corvettes and coasting schooners arrived daily at Lisbon with prisoners from Oporto. Oporto remains quiet, with ruined commerce and deserted streets.

The Inquisition is expected to be restored. In practice, indeed, it has been restored, and with all its horrors.

Intelligence had just been received, at the date of the last accounts, from Madeira and Terceira, which continued faithful to Don Pedro.

Egina, June 19.—(Private Correspondence.)—George Mauromichali, son of the Prince of the Mainotes, A. Nako and George Milaiti, who were all three formerly at the head of the Provisional Government, have been, to the general astonishment, arrested, as well as several Spezziots, by order of the President, and conveyed to Albanitiks. The people are lost in conjectures on this subject; and the more so, as the individuals arrested belong to the party called English of the Isles, which, since the arrival of Count Capo d'Istrias, and especially since the Russian declaration of war, has never ceased to excite distrust against him.

FROM THE THEATRE OF WAR.

Mankalia, a town and fortress on the Black Sea, (lat. 44 deg. 10 min.) has surrendered to the Russians. This leaves the road to Varna open to the latter. On the 6th July Head-Quarters were to be removed from Karassu, and the army was to advance on Bazardjik, (half way between Chumla and Makalia.)

Accounts from Bucharest of the 1st July, announce that the Russians had begun to bombard Silistria, to which place the Turkish garrison of Braila had been permitted to retire. The garrison which consisted originally of 13,000 men, had sustained considerable losses, both in killed and wounded.

It is stated that favorable accounts of the progress of General Paskewitsch, on the Asiatic side, have been received at Odessa. It was said that the General passed the Turkish frontiers with the army of the Caucasus, in the middle of June, and met with so little resistance in his advance, that his light cavalry had already reached the neighbourhood of Erzerum, and only delayed the siege of that place till the coming up of his heavy artillery.

Letters from Bucharest state, that, at a council of war held at Karassa, it was resolved to employ all means to penetrate to the capital of the Turkish empire as soon as possible, in consequence of the serious preparations making by the Turks. The Imperial Guards received orders to proceed, by forced marches, to join the army of Prince Wittgenstein.

According to accounts from Sclavonia, Bosnia in full revolt against the Porte. The insurgents have seized the capital, Sarajewo, imprisoned the Visier, and have declared a kind of independent government. This event, it is supposed, will be followed by a similar one in Servia.

An account from Constantinople says that since the passage of the Danube, the preparations for war have been unremitting. Frequent councils are held at the residence of the Mufti; and several Ulemahs have joined the military post. This reached London on the 4th: and the foregoing information has subsequently been derived from other official accounts. The Courier says, there was more fighting than they had at first been led to suppose, and adds: "It appears, that, when the vanguard, under General Rudiger, was marching to Mangali, and before the headquarters had been removed from Karasson, a division of Turkish cavalry, from Silistria, had proceeded towards Bazardjik, but retired upon the advance of the Russian General. It seems to have been the intention of this division from Silistria to effect a junction with another corps of Turkish cavalry from Choumla, which made its appearance near Bazardjik a few hours afterwards."

The advance of the Russians during these operations, was about fifty miles.

The latest accounts from Odessa, are any thing but pacific, as they announce the arrival of numerous trains of artillery as a daily occurrence. It is added that they are shipped as soon as they arrive from some point in the Black Sea; and we scarcely need the intimation that these preparations would not be continued if there were any prospect of peace. It appears by accounts from the kingdom of Poland, to the 22d ult., that several corps of the Polish Army had presented addresses to the Grand Duke Constantine, to be allowed to take part in the war against the Turks; but that their request, though courteously received, had been refused.

According to the last accounts from Bucharest, the plague had begun to subside in that city. The contagion has manifested itself in 21 villages of the districts of Ilow, Dumbowitza, Wlaska, and Feliormany, most of them towards the frontiers of Austria. It has also appeared in Russian camp at Junteni. The Russian authorities have taken energetic measures.

There is a report of an engagement between the Russians and Turks, between Shumla and Varna, having turned out very unfavorably to the former.

Portugal.—The Courier of the 6th says: We have some further accounts from Lisbon and Oporto, but they are all of the same gloomy nature. The war itself will be brought to a speedy termination, by means of which no possible arrangement. It is said that a report to this effect was generally current in that capital, and obtained so much credit as to occasion a considerable rise in the funds. It is added that the Courts of Vienna and London are conjointly using all their influence to induce the Emperor Nicholas to listen to pacific overtures from the Porte, and that he has even signified his assent, on condition that several fortresses, particularly Silistria, Guirgevo, and Varna, are placed in his hands as a security against a change of purpose on the part of the Porte. The Morning Herald of August 7, is incredulous as to this, and says:—"Though the part ascribed to England and Austria is probable enough, we have great doubts that the Russian Monarch has made the compliances ascribed to him; and, in confirmation of this opinion, we have observed that not a hint of a pacific nature has appeared in any of the Russian Bulletin's."

The Prussian State Gazette to the 30th of July, and Hamburgh papers to the 2d of August, had been received in London. The former contains a detailed account of the occurrences which marked the march of the Russian army from Karassu to Bazardjik.

It was on the 6th that the head-quarter, to which was joined the 6th corps, broke up from the former place.—The 7th corps, under the command of General Wernoat, followed the steps of the former two day later, this interval being necessary to prevent confusion in the march of two such considerable masses. The head-quarters were three days in proceeding from Karassou to Bajardjik, a distance of 20 wersts, or about fifty English miles; and as the Emperor is always at the post of honor, at the head of his army, it will be easily imagined what a powerful influence this must have on the spirits of his troops. However, this movement was not executed without opposition, though too slight to obstruct it in a serious manner.

On the second day [the 7th,] a smart action took place between a body of Turkish cavalry, amounting to about 4,000, who had come from Schumla, and the head of the Russian vanguard, commanded by General Rudiger.—The Turks were the assailants, and appear to have attacked with their usual impetuosity; but the Russians receiving continually fresh reinforcements, the former were finally repulsed, and, during the rest of the march, did not venture to renew the attack. After the engagement, they retired into a wood about two miles beyond Bazardjik, where they spent the night, but fled at the break of day, on seeing the Russians make a demonstration to dislodge them.

On the 11th, as we stated on Monday, the head-quarters were established at Bazardjik, having spent the intermediate time in awaiting the arrival of the corps under General Rothe before Silistria, of which it is to undertake the siege. In the mean time, a strong division was detached towards Varna, with orders to invest that important place; and as it is invested by sea at the same time—Admiral Greig, with the fleet under his command, having received orders to that effect—there is but too much reason to apprehend that it will share the fate of Anapa, and of the other fortresses that have already fallen into the hands of the Russians. From all that has already occurred, it is clear that the Turks are incapable of making a serious resistance; and that they over-rated their own means as much as they under-valued those of their great rival, when the provoked the latter to mortal combat.

The 10th, Russian Bulletin, gave but a summary account of the preceding movements, merely stating that "the enemy was immediately repulsed, and took flight." This reached London on the 4th: and the foregoing information has subsequently been derived from other official accounts. The Courier says, there was more fighting than they had at first been led to suppose, and adds: "It appears, that, when the vanguard, under General Rudiger, was marching to Mangali, and before the headquarters had been removed from Karasson, a division of Turkish cavalry, from Silistria, had proceeded towards Bazardjik, but retired upon the advance of the Russian General. It seems to have been the intention of this division from Silistria to effect a junction with another corps of Turkish cavalry from Choumla, which made its appearance near Bazardjik a few hours afterwards."

The advance of the Russians during these operations, was about fifty miles.

The latest accounts from Odessa, are any thing but pacific, as they announce the arrival of numerous trains of artillery as a daily occurrence. It is added that they are shipped as soon as they arrive from some point in the Black Sea; and we scarcely need the intimation that these preparations would not be continued if there were any prospect of peace. It appears by accounts from the kingdom of Poland, to the 22d ult., that several corps of the Polish Army had presented addresses to the Grand Duke Constantine, to be allowed to take part in the war against the Turks; but that their request, though courteously received, had been refused.

According to the last accounts from Bucharest, the plague had begun to subside in that city. The contagion has manifested itself in 21 villages of the districts of Ilow, Dumbowitza, Wlaska, and Feliormany, most of them towards the frontiers of Austria. It has also appeared in Russian camp at Junteni. The Russian authorities have taken energetic measures.

There is a report of an engagement between the Russians and Turks, between Shumla and Varna, having turned out very unfavorably to the former.

Portugal.—The Courier of the 6th says: We have some further accounts from Lisbon and Oporto, but they are all of the same gloomy nature. The war itself will be brought to a speedy termination, by means of which no possible arrangement. It is said that a report to this effect was generally current in that capital, and obtained so much credit as to occasion a considerable rise in the funds. It is added that the Courts of Vienna and London are conjointly using all their influence to induce the Emperor Nicholas to listen to pacific overtures from the Porte, and that he has even signified his assent, on condition that several fortresses, particularly Silistria, Guirgevo, and Varna, are placed in his hands as a security against a change of purpose on the part of the Porte. The Morning Herald of August 7, is incredulous as to this, and says:—"Though the part ascribed to England and Austria is probable enough, we have great doubts that the Russian Monarch has made the compliances ascribed to him; and, in confirmation of this opinion, we have observed that not a hint of a pacific nature has appeared in any of the Russian Bulletin's."

The Prussian State Gazette to the 30th of July, and Hamburgh papers to the 2d of August, had been received in London. The former contains a detailed account of the occurrences which marked the march of the Russian army from Karassu to Bazardjik.

It was on the 6th that the head-quarter, to which was joined the 6th corps, broke up from the former place.—The 7th corps, under the command of General Wernoat, followed the steps of the former two day later, this interval being necessary to prevent confusion in the march of two such considerable masses. The head-quarters were three days in proceeding from Karassou to Bajardjik, a distance of 20 wersts, or about fifty English miles; and as the Emperor is always at the post of honor, at the head of his army, it will be easily imagined what a powerful influence this must have on the spirits of his troops. However, this movement was not executed without opposition, though too slight to obstruct it in a serious manner.

On the second day [the 7th,] a smart action took place between a body of Turkish cavalry, amounting to about 4,000, who had come from Schumla, and the head of the Russian vanguard, commanded by General Rudiger.—The Turks were the assailants, and appear to have at-then fled; eleven were taken prisoners, 13 wounded, and 9 killed. Another report makes the number killed 4. The Priests who led the inhabitants to battle, escaped, and the search that was made for them has been, as yet, in vain. The insurrection, at the date of the 8d, was, however, quite quelled, but the Bishop and Clergy having declared for Don Miguel, the Governor will have much to encounter when he hears how affairs have ended in Portugal. Valdez invited the English to arm and join in the defence of the Island; the Consul immediately called a meeting, and the English residents determined on maintaining a strict neutrality. Brigadier General Pelhoris was immediately detached to England with these details, for the information and advice of the Ambassador of Don Pedro in this country, and for the information of the English Government.—Globe.

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1828.

We are indebted to the Albion for the latest news from England. The John Jay, and Canada, arrived at New-York, have brought London dates to 16th Augt.—There are some important items:—

The Duke of Clarence it appears has resigned his Office, as Lord High Admiral.—The Courier of 15th says, "the report circulated at all the Club Houses last night of the resignation of the Lord High Admiral, is said to be well founded—His Royal Highness is generally rumoured to have resigned this morning."

The intended resignation of Mr. Peel, is also rumoured.—The changes in the Customs Act, is of importance to the Trade of this Province,—We refer our readers to the substance of the several clauses, inserted in this days paper, which we have taken from the Albion.

The Harvest.—In England, owing to the late heavy rains, the Harvest is unfavorably spoken of.—The following items are given on this subject:—

"The commercial intelligence of the week is of unusual importance. The state of the harvests in England and the prospect of a speedy rise in grain, rendered the Corn Bill, had the intelligence not been published from London on the same topic, of some moment.—Albion.

"London, August 13, 1828.

"The weather has latterly been very wet and injurious to the wheat crops, so that a rise of about 10s. a quarter has taken place since the beginning of last month.

"The weather continued so bad at the last accounts in England, that Corn is expected to be imported in large quantities. On the 14th Aug. English Wheat was at 9s. per 70 lb."

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, left Niagara on Thursday morning, by the Queenston, for Kingston.—We understand that His Excellency intends visiting the Rideau Canal.

On Sunday last, the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Quebec assisted by the Venerable the Archdeacon of York, and several of the Reverend Clergy, performed the solemn and impressive Service of Consecration, in St. James's Church, and Burial Ground.—At the conclusion of the Service, His Lordship preached an appropriate Sermon on the occasion.

The Report of the Committee on the state of the Civil Government of the Canadas, as established by the Act 31 Geo. 3, we have given at length in this number. From the late period at which the report was submitted to the House, no Legislative measures have emanated from it, and it therefore remains to be ascertained whether the recommendations it contains will be concurred in by Parliament in a future Session. The Report as it stand was agreed to in Committee, by a majority of one.

GREECE.

"Ibraham Pacha has entered into a convention, by consent of the Porte, as is supposed, to evacuate Greece and return to Egypt. Greece is therefore free. Formal negotiations will be entered into between the Ministers of the three allied powers for settling the boundaries, at Corfu immediately. The French army will notwithstanding, proceed to the Morea."

RUSSIA AND TURKEY.—The news from the East, says the Albion, we must briefly sum up.

"In Russian main army with the Imperial head-quarters has arrived before Shumla, and on the 20th of July dispossessed their opponents of several heights in the front of that renowned position, driving the Turks, to the amount of 8 or 10,000 men before them. Gen. Sutchein is before Varna, which will sustain a regular siege; and Both has closely invested Silestria.—These are the situations of the three armies. The entire success of the campaign will depend on the resistance made at Shumla, the watch tower and key to Adrianople. The Russians in all their wars have never made any impression on this post. The army advancing through the Turkish Asiatic provinces from the frontiers of Persia, has been singularly successful; notwithstanding all its difficulties it has mastered the important fortress of Kars, and is now in full march to Erzerum which is expected to follow the fate of Kars and submit to the Muscovites. Matters are now really drawing to an important issue."

From the London Gazette.—War Office, 4th Aug. 1828.

Staff.—Major G. Hillier on the h. p.—to be Deputy Quarter Master General to the Troops serving in the Island of Jamaica, with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel.

68th Regt.—Ensign W. H. Gillman from the h. p. to be Ensign—v. A. M. Woolhouse who exch. rec. the diff.

The Assizes for the Gore District terminated on Thursday last. Mr. Justice Hagerman, who presided upon the occasion—although evidently labouring, during the greatest part of the time, under severe indisposition—discharged the very arduous duties of his high and responsible situation, in a manner which commanded, and has secured to him, the respect and confidence of every man in the District, who witnessed the proceedings. His Charge to the Grand Jury, at the opening of the Assizes, was eloquent and pertinent; and we regret that we have it not in our power to present it to our readers, owing to his Lordship's having declined to accede to the application of the Grand Jury for a copy of that charge.—Gore Gazette.

Died,

On the 9th inst., Elisha Parson—and on the 24th Wm. James, Sons of Mr. J. Beman, Yonge Street.—Com.

Birth,

At Hamilton, on Tuesday the 9th inst. Mrs. Chewett wife of Alex. Chewett Esq. of a daughter.

Married,

On Saturday 6th inst. at Black Rock at the residence of General Porter—by the Revd. Mr Stuart of Buffalo—The Revd. Robert Short of Richmond to Miss Maria Forsyth, daughter of Mr. William Forsyth of Sandwich.

At Quebec, on the 3d inst. at the house of Alexander Simpson, Esq. by the Revd. Dr. Harkness, Duncan McDougall, Esq. Lieutenant and Adjutant of the 79th Cameron Highlanders, to to Miss Margaret Simpson.

PUBLIC NOTIC.—Whereas the Subscriber having heard that some unfounded and malicious reports prejudicial to his character as a professional man, have been industriously circulated through this Town and its Vicinity, he feels it a duty he owes to himself and the community at large to offer FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS REWARD, to any person or persons who can give such information as may lead to the discovery and conviction of such offender. Had he not good reason to believe that such malicious reports originated with a certain individual of the profession, with the base and wicked intention of bringing himself into notice at the expence of others, he would not most probably have taken any notice of them.

16 s JAMES McCAGUE.

WHISKEY.—For Sale by the Barrel, a quantity of SUPERIOR OLD WHISKEY—Apply to

R. W. PRENTICE.

York, 25th Sept. 1828. x 16

HOME DISTRICT, } NOTICE is hereby given
YORK TO WIT: } that a Court of Oyer and Terminer, and General Gaol delivery, and of Assize and Nisi Prius, will be holden at the Court House in the Town of York, in and for the said District, on Monday the Thirteenth day of October next ensuing, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of the same day, of which all Justices of the Peace, Coroners, Gaolers, Constables, Bailiffs, and those otherwise concerned, are desired to take notice, that they be respectively then there present with their Rolls, Records, and other Memoranda, to do and perform those things which to their several offices belong.

W. B. JARVIS,
Sheriff.

Sheriff's Office, York, } n 16
25th Sept. 1828. }

HIS Excellency the Lieutenant Governor having been pleased to appoint me to the Collectorship of Customs for this Port, I beg leave to acquaint the Merchants, Shop-owners and others, having business to transact with this branch of the Revenue after the 1st day of October next, that I have temporarily established an Office in part of the premises fronting on Duke-Street occupied by Mr. Columbus.

GEORGE SAVAGE,
Collector.

York, 26th September, 1828. n 16

WINES.

A CARD.—Mr. Hawkins, Wine Merchant, of Quebec, offers for Sale a few Cases of excellent Port Wine, just received from Quebec.

Mr. Hawkins will be happy to receive orders from such gentlemen as are disposed to secure a supply of Genuine Wines, to be delivered early in the Spring at York and at Niagara.

Orders addressed to Mr. Hawkins, at Howard's Hotel, till Tuesday next, and afterwards at the office of this paper, will meet with attention.

York, September 20th, 1828. m 15

Poetry.

THE BRIDEMAID.

From Bayley's Lays of a Minstrel.

The bridal is over, the guests are all gone,
The bride's only sister sits weeping alone;
The wreath of white roses is torn from her brow,
And the heart of the bridemaid is desolate now.

With smiles and caresses she decked the fair bride,
And then led her forth with affectionate pride;
She knew that together no more they should dwell,
Yet she smiled when she kissed her and whisper'd farewell.

She would not embitter a festival day,
Nor send her sweet sister in sadness away:
She hears the bells ringing, she sees her depart,
She cannot veil longer the grief of her heart.

She thinks of each pleasure, each pain that endears
The gentle companion of happier years;
The wreath of white roses is torn from her brow,
And the heart of the bridemaid is desolate now.

Colonial.

On Saturday last, His Excellency Sir James Kempt, went to the Council Chamber, and having resigned the temporary administration of the Government of the Province to the Hon. Michael Wallace, to whom was administered the usual oath, he observed, "That it afforded him much pleasure and satisfaction, to resign the administration of the Government of the Province into the hands of a Gentleman who had previously discharged its Executive duties, so much to the advantage of the Province, and the satisfaction of its inhabitants." Afterwards, accompanied to the King's wharf by the public Officers, and many of the inhabitants of the town, he stepped into the barge and was conveyed to His Majesty's Ship Challenger, which soon after weighed anchor, and put to sea with a fair wind.

In parting with a Governor whose administration has been productive of so much benefit to the Province, and who, both in public and private life, endeared himself to all, by joining to a dignified deportment, affability of manners, condescension, and an evidently reigning desire to promote the interests of the Colony by every means in his power, we may be permitted to indulge the liveliest regret, and to follow him with ardent wishes both for his personal welfare, and that he may succeed in soothing and harmonizing the minds of those whom he is appointed to govern. He has before him a difficult task: but from the experience we have had of his personal talents and ability for governing, we confidently conclude, that if he fails, it need not be again attempted.

It is no small satisfaction for us to reflect, that His Excellency appeared, both by his answers to the addresses presented to him, and especially when leaving the wharf, to part from this place with reluctance.—Acadian Recorder.

AUSTRALIA.

Taking as we do, a deep interest in the prosperity and importance of the two valuable colonies of New South Wales and Van Dieman's Land, we have pleasure in stating that two large ships, with upwards of 700 sheep of the purest Saxon, breed, are on the point of sailing from the river for Van Dieman's Land. This forms a further exportation of the fine fleeced sheep on account of the "Van Dieman's Land Agricultural Company," and we cannot forbear to congratulate our country on the prospect which this Company and the Australian Company afford of supplying, at no distant period, her manufactories with the staple article. These two Companies are protected by Act of Pallament, and are incorporated by charter, and have granted to them immense tracts of land. They are conducted by men of the highest character and means in the country. Already a ship from New South Wales is daily expected, laden, in a great measure, with the fine fleeces from the flocks of the Australian Company. Peculiarly adapted as are these two fine settlements for the growth and improvement of wools, aided as well by individual enterprize and capital to this particular object, we again repeat, it is a subject of great satisfaction to see these colonies so rapidly advancing in importance, and to know that they are capable of producing wools from the very finest kind to those of that strong and inferior description equally required by the manufacturer. The cloths lately made from the fine fleeces of the Colonies have excited the admiration of the best judges, and are superior to any fine cloths made from any of the superior qualities of wools from the Continent. The Ionia, from New South Wales, has reached the Cape of Good Hope homeward bound, and will bring recent dates from the Colonies—London paper.

Lower Canada.

We are sorry to hear that the fever and ague has raged this season with all the violence of a tropical epidemic, at Fort Lennox on Isle aux Noix. Among the troops stationed there its effects has been dreadful, converting the most hardy mountaineer, into a weak puny helpless being—no less than 42 men being at one time in the Hospital. In consequence of the unparalleled sickness at that station, we understand that all the invalids and the remainder of the detachment of the 79th Highlanders stationed there, under the command of Captain Brown, have been removed to St. Johns, and the works of Isle aux Noix are to be protected by a guard of 25 men, renewed every week. The soil has been found so very unfit for the construction of any military defences, from its muddy and swampy nature, and the unhealthy state of the Island is so manifest, that there is an intention of abandoning these public works entirely.—Montreal Gazette.

Yesterday at one o'clock His Excellency Sir James Kempt held his first Levee, which was attended by the Judges and gentlemen of the bar, the Clergy of all denominations, the Officers of the Garrison and a great number of other gentlemen.—Quebec Mercury

Port of Quebec.

ARRIVED,

Sept. 9—Schr. Angelique, Guysborough, fish and oil.
....Brig William, Jamaica, rum and sugar.
..10—Brig Beaver, Liverpool, salt.
....Brig Enterprize, Limerick, ballast.
....Brig Ardent, St. Vincent, rum.
..11..Schr. Hibernia, Halifax, 9 settlers.
....Bark Wilberforce, Newry, ballast.
....Bark Spring Hill, London, ballast.
....Brig Laddie, Dundee, do.
....Brig Alexander, Bermuda, do
....Bark Springhill, London, ballast.
..13..Brig Albion, Youghall, ballast.
....Brig Friendship, London
..14..Brig Fenwick, Limerick. 15 settlers.
....Ship Wm. Shaud, Cork. 3 settlers.
....Bark Volunteer, do. 12 settlers.
....Schr. Amelia, Newfoundland, salmon, &c.
....Brig Victoria, Exeter, cordage.
....Brig Henry Brougham, Cork, ballast.
....Brig George & Ann, Newfld. general cargo.
....Brig Mary Catherine, New-Brunswick, rum, &c.
....Brig Southampton, Grenada, rum.
..15..Brig Eleanor, Carmarthen, ballast.

PASSENGERS.

In the Brunswick, for London, Major General Darling, lady and family.

POSTSCRIPT

LATEST DATES.

The New York Spectator of 23, just received announces the arrival of the Packet Ship Columbia, from London, with evening papers to 22nd August.

The Columbia originally sailed on the 1st of August, but was run foul of in long. 15, during a gale and put back with damage.

The ships of the Russian squadron, which put back to Plymouth suffered severely in the same gale. The Admiral's ship which separated in the gale had not since been heard of.

It appears that Wheat had further advanced since our former accounts, but was again on the decline at the last date. The following is from the last paper.

City August 22d, 12 o'clock.

The funds remain heavy. The only price of Consols 87¼ until within the last quarter of an hour, when favorable and unexpected accounts arrived from the Corn Exchange, where it appears a decline had taken place in Wheat of 4s a quarter.

Two o'clock.

The accounts from the Corn market are contradictory. It is now said that Mondays prices are fully maintained, although it is admitted they may be considered nominal there is so little doing.

Consols closed at 3 o'clock at 87¼.

There was no news from the Russian army later than the 14th Bulletin. The rumour of the capture of Schumla on the 22d was believed to be unfounded.

The Courier asserts that the resignation of the Duke of Clarence, was not occasioned by political causes. No successor had yet been appointed.

Accounts from Oporto to Aug. 10, state that English persons and property had not been molested.

The Galatea frigate was to sail on the 23d, for Rio, with Lord Strangford, on a special mission. The frigate was to carry a mail to Madeira.

A squadron of 30 transports was preparing at Alexandria on the 16th July to proceed to the Morea, to carry home the Egyptian troops.

A telegraphic despatch announced the sailing of the French squadron from Toulon on the 17th August, with 9000 troops. Another squadron, with more troops, was to follow.

The Courier of 22d says, "Whatever the disinclination of the Porte might have been to treat upon the bases of the treaty of London, we are inclined to think that disinclination exists no longer, and that the evacuation of the Morea by Ibrahim, has been approved by the Porte."

The French expedition was expected to reach the Morea by the last of August, when it is said a joint declaration would be issued by the Ministers of Great Britain, France, and Russia, at Corfu.

The Br. govt. consider the blockade of Madeira, as confined to the port of Funchal.

Paris, Aug. 17.—We learn from Gibraltar, that the Brazilian frigate Elizabeth, has captured a brig belonging to the Usurper's navy.

Liverpool, August 19.

Our Cotton market has been without interest again today, and the sales amount to only 1,200 bags, as on yesterday.

A letter from London of the 22d says—"Our advices from Liverpool, represent the Cotton market as very flat, and a decline in prices of ½ of a penny."

Corn Exchange.—The weather, which at present rules our prices, has been since Tuesday, exceedingly favorable for the operations of the harvest.

London, August 21.

The Brig Carraboo, Cook, from Liverpool for Buenos Ayres, was taken possession of July 20, lat 33, 46, long. 11, 32, by an armed Schr. under Colombian colors, calling herself a privateer, but believed to be a pirate. The Captain, Crew, and two passengers, were taken on board the Schr. and confined until the 23d, when about 7 miles from Lanzarote, they were hastily put into the jolly boat of the Carraboo, with part of the crew of a French vessel the privateer had previously taken. They succeeded in landing at Lanzarote, having been robbed of every thing. The captain of the privateer, stated that the brig was taken in consequence of being bound to a Brazilian port, and was abut to San Blas, a B. Ayres port, on the coast of Patagonia. He also stated, that there were 6 or 7 vessels of the same class cruizing about. The Schr. was about 90 tons, with a crew of 80 men—her full complement 60.

Information of the above occurrence was received yesterday at Lloyds, and had the effect of raising the premium on vessels to Brazil and B. Ayres. Insurance on a vessel from a French port to Rio Janeiro could not be effected at much less than 20 per cent. more than double asked a few days since.

It was reported yesterday, that the Russian Admiral's ship, which parted from the rest of the squadron off Scilly, had been totally lost, with all on board.

A Portuguese Pollacce, has arrived at Portsmouth, with 149 Constitutionalists, and four Ladies from Corunna.—They state that their treatment in Spain was harsh and unfeeling. Other vessels were to follow, with more of the sufferers from the inhospitable shores of Spain.

London, August 20.

The improved state of the weather caused a considerable change of opinion in Market-lane this day, respecting the appearance of the crops, and speculators shewed as little inclination to purchase, as actual holders did to sell. That much injury has been done, and that the growth was not super-abundant, are admitted facts. In the Baltic, a great advance has been occasioned by purchases for French account, and at Hamburg, on the 15th inst. the wheat of that district could not be purchased under 40s. per quarter. The stocks on the Continent are small, and the quantity of bonded grain in this country is extremely small.

A letter from Paris states that a company is forming which engages to supply that city with bread the year round at 12 sous the loaf of 4 pounds.

LANDS FOR SALE.—In the Township of Hallowell, Lot No. 46, 3d Concession, North-west side of the Carrying-Place, - - - - - Acres. 200
In the Township of Cramahe—
Lots No. 17, 18, & 19, 3d Con. } - - 800
do. 15, 4th do. }
In the Township of Hamilton—
Broken Lots, 29 & 30, 9th Con. } - - 476
27, 28, 29, 31, 32, 34, & 35, 10th do. }
North-east quarter, No. 1, 4th do. - - - - 50
In the Township of Clarke—
Lots No. 16, 17 & 18, Broken Fronts } - - 2000
16, 17, & 18, 1st Con. }
17, & 18, 2d do. }
17, & 18, 3d do. }
In the Township of Darlington—
Lot No. 14, 3d Con. } - - - - 400
3, 4th do. }
In the Township of Pickering—
Lots No. 16, 17, & half of 15, 1st Con. } - - 999
and Broken Fronts. }
In the Township of York—
Lot No. 37, 3d Con. - - - - - - 200
In the Township of Gainsborough—
Broken Lot No. 27, 3d & 4th Con. - - - 74
Apply to ANDREW MERCER.

York Auction, Mart, & Commission Ware-House.

M. & R. MEIGHAN,

Opposite the Market Square,

HAVE for Sale, an assortment of Household Furniture, consisting of Mahogany, Curled Maple and Cherry Tree, Side Boards, Secretaries, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Breakfast Dining and Card Tables, Work Tables, Bason Stands, Feather Beds and Bedding; A London made grand Piano; an excellent Sulkey Carriage; a Mangle for pressing clothes; A Jack for Roasting Meat; A very elegant fourteen day Time Piece with Italian Marble Frame and Glass Shade; Double and Single Barrel Percussion Lock Fowling Pieces and Pistols; Bridles, Saddles, Double and Single Harness; Gilt and Plain Frame Looking Glasses; Some Handsome Vases and chimney Ornaments; an extensive assortment of Elegant Dry and Fancy Goods of every description, Hardware, Jewellery, Crockery and Glassware; Groceries, Teas, Wine and Spirits; together with an Elegant Collection of Books, Stationery, Perfumery, Patent Medicines &c.
Regular Auction Sales every week.
York, 1823. x 6

THE LOYALIST

VOL. I. NO. 17.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY OCTOBER 4, 1828.

Poetry.

THE FLORENTINE GIRL.

A PICTURE, BY HOWARD.

A daughter of that land,
Where the poet's heart and the painter's hand
Are both divine—where the earth and sky
Are picture both and poesy. L. E. L.

Say where is thy dwelling, fair vision, where,
Is it far o'er the sunny sea,
In some lone blue isle, where the summer's air
Is as that of Araby?

Or are thou from some wood-nymph's shrine,
In bowery grot or dell,
Thy flowers they speak of a lighter clime,
Then say—where dost thou dwell?

I know, I know of a distant sky,
Where the winds are soft as music's sigh,
Where the sunbeams shed a sweeter smile,
Than e'er you saw in your northern isle;
Where the streamlet's voice, as it flows along,
Tells of a land of delight and song!

My home is f in a distant land,
Where the buxy air is soft and bland;
Where the spring birds wear a brighter hue,
And the summer sky has a deeper blue,
And the autumn winds have no moaning sound,
To tell of a cold and a distant ground.

Oh! would'st thou know of a joyous home,
Where not winter storm, nor tempest come,
Where the summer sky is always bright
With sun, or moon, or soft starlight!
Then leave this land, and dwell with me,
On the shores of my lovely Italy!

Hast thou no tale of thy home to tell,
Thou fair and sunny thing?
Surely some storied dream must dwell
In that bright land of spring.

'Oh yes, I know full many a tale
Of my native home in the lemon vale,
Of the bird's first lay, of the sunny spring,
Of the flowers their incense offering,
Of the summer's bloom, of the autumn's leaf,
And young childhood's hour, so bright and brief!

But would'st thou know of aught of these,
Come dwell afar o'er the sunny seas,
Come where the spring is robed with flowers,
When the summer comes with the laughing hours;
When the breeze is fresh from the myrtle vale,
When the dove is telling her tender tale.
Would'st thou know these, come dwell with me,
On the shores of my lovely Italy! F. M.

Miscellaneous.

THE TWO FARMERS.

'Corn riggs are bonnie—'

It happened in the third year of the reign of the renowned Alderich, prince of Saltzburgh-Oberhasselton, that two farmers came to settle in his principality. Now there was, unfortunately, as great a difference in their destinies as their dispositions: Gruffel was rich, avaricious, and surley—Wilhelm was poor, generous, & good-humoured. Gruffel looked with scorn upon the small estate and the necessary frugality of the industrious Wilhelm's establishment; and, notwithstanding they were next door neighbours, no one could be more distant than Gruffel, albeit the poor farmer found him near enough of all conscience in the dealings which he sometimes had with him, in which poor Wilhelm, desirous to conciliate and oblige his rich neighbour, generally came off a loser, for Gruffel drove a bargain as he would a stake—that is, as hard as possible. These being the only opportunities that the rich farmer condescended to converse with Wilhelm, he found it more to his advantage to cultivate his fields than his neighbour's acquaintance; and yet he invariably received him with good humour, and entertained him with the best his cot could afford, which his purse-proud neighbour appeared rather to receive as his due than as a proffered courtesy. Still Wilhelm kept jogging on, and was far more happy than Gruffel, who ever had some cause of complaint against fortune.

Some years passed away, and Gruffel became more wealthy every year; while Wilhelm, having a large family to maintain, found ways and means for all his earnings, and was consequently little better in purse, though no less happy at heart, than when he first began to till the earth.

Gruffel had only one daughter; and, like the sweet-smelling flower that blooms on the thorn, or the blushing rose on the rude and prickly bush, she was in nature the very opposite to her surly sire—the odorous flower of the dull and rugged stock from whence she sprang. She was an artless, simple child of Nature, full of good feelings to all, and beloved by every body. Her fascinating smiles, like summer sunshine on a barren waste, making amends for the stern and rigorous temperament of her father's disposition.

Such a paragon, as may be easily imagined, was not long known before the fame of her beauty, spreading abroad, brought about her a host of lovers. The wealthy were welcome guests to Gruffel, and he willingly entertained them at his own expense; while he entertained himself at the expense of the poor ones, laughing at them for their presumption. With his usual care and circumspection, Gruffel selected six of the most opulent of the swains, and, with an unusual degree of condescension, gave his daughter permission to choose among them.—But Rosa entertained such an equal affection for all, that this was a difficulty she could not conscientiously overcome, she, therefore, magnanimously resolved to close her eyes upon her own interest, and the door upon her suitors.

Gruffel was by no means surprised to find them drop off one by one—he thought his daughter was sifting the chaff from the wheat; but when the last walked sulkily away, he began to shake his ears, and look about him, requiring of his daughter a solution of this strange mystery.

'Pr'y thee, daughter Rosa,' said he, 'what is the reason of this desertion?'

'I know not, dear father,' said Rosa, with a blush and a simper; 'I only know, that none of my beaux have any reason!'

'I hope, my child, thou didst not look coldly, or frown upon them?' said Gruffel.

'Oh, no!' replied Rosa, with all the simplicity of a girl of seventeen; 'I smiled upon them all. I am sure I showed no preference that could offend any of them!'

'Tush, girl!' cried the father, 'thou shouldst only have paid attention to one.'

'They were all one to me,' replied Rosa.

'Thou foolish chat!' cried her surly father, 'thou hast not played the game I intended.'

'What game, father?' asked Rosa innocently, 'I'm sure I endeavoured to entertain them to my best ability.—I played at blindman's buff, puss-puss in the corner; but I confess I would not play at kiss in the ring, because, as I was the only girl in the company, I should have been kissed every time,—to be sure, they might have kissed each other, but I did not think of that.'

'Fool! idiot!' exclaimed her father, stamping angrily upon the floor; 'leave me!'

Rosa, ever obedient to her father's will, quitted his presence without uttering another syllable; and wandering alone in a solitary lane, hedged on either side and overshadowed by spreading trees, forming a cool and pleasant shade in the dog-days, where sheep and love-sick swains retired to ruminate, the simple Rosa chanced to meet no less a personage than Albert, the eldest son of Farmer Wilhelm; an amiable and elegant youth, somewhat taller than Rosa, though certainly never intended to overlook her, for the first moment he looked upon her he lost his heart, and subsequently deploring the circumstance to the tender-hearted Rosa, that maiden charitably gave him her own.

Gruffel, however, suspecting some trifling of this kind, watched, and soon afterwards discovered his dutiful daughter and his poor neighbour's son together.

Etna and Vesuvius were mere fire-gigs compared with the ebullition of rage which burst from Gruffel's lips.

The colour fled from Rosa's cheeks, and she from her love, who with his head in his hand, made the best of his way home.

Resolved to prevent any more clandestine meetings, Gruffel kept his daughter fast within doors, keeping her to her wheel—which conduced more to her use than her weal.

Disdaining to wait upon Wilhelm, or to forbid his son's address, which he considered beneath him, Gruffel took his sickle, and, repairing to one of his corn-fields, began to work, pondering upon divers plans which suggested themselves to his mind, how he could best rid himself of Wilhelm and his son Albert. While he was thus manually and mentally employed, a poor woman, with her child, came to crave charity, Gruffel repulsed her with his usual harshness; but he had scarcely bidden her begone, when when he heard a growl, like the fortissimo echo of his own, just at his feet. The earth was convulsed, rolling like the sea, unceremoniously casting Gruffel and his sickle to the earth, while the mendicant scrambled off in a fright with her squalling infant; and all the labourers fled as from an earthquake, without the least curiosity to inquire the cause of this terrible rumbling.

Gruffel, looking round, beheld an enormous monster, of a most forbidding aspect, rising from the troubled earth—

'Whiough!' cried Gruffel, 'wat's all this noise about? I never knew I had such grounds for grumbling before!'

'Come, that's a good one,' said the monster, with a grim and ghastly smile; 'is it so strange a thing for a man to cry out when you tread on his corn!'

'Thy corn!'

'Yes, my corn! my good man,' replied the monster with a monstrous deal of nonchalance. 'I have taken possession of this field, and mean my elves to reap it for my consumption.'

'And who shall sow it again?'

'Whoever shall possess the land, or I will make them wince;' adding, with a great deal of good nature, 'but I will always save them the trouble of reaping it.'

'I shall be ruined!' cried the farmer.

'Oh, no!' thou'rt rich enough, old Gruffel. Thou hast monopolized too long already, and let the poor farmers have little chance of earning an honest livelihood. But don't trouble thyself, I shall begin about a week hence to get in my harvest.'

And with this pleasant intimation the monster vanished from his sight.

Gruffel returned home as miserable as a wet holiday; but the next morning saw him arise, blythe as a lark, with a countenance smiling as the sun's.

'A sweet nut is often in a bitter skin,' said he; and so was he resolved to take advantage of his foreknowledge of the monster's intentions, and transfer the burden from his own capacious shoulders to the weaker ones of neighbour Wilhelm.

With a great profession of friendship he offered to exchange the doomed field of corn for Wilhelm's inheritance. The poor farmer stared at Gruffel incredulously.

'Why, 'tis worth twice mine, neighbour Gruffel,' said he.

'No matter,' replied Gruffel; 'the difference in its value is a mere nothing to me. The contiguity—the situation of thy land is more pleasant to me—and I can afford to make a trifling sacrifice.'

Wilhelm no longer hesitated, but gratefully complied with Gruffel's wily request, who, without loss of time, had the proper transfer legally executed.

'Now,' exclaimed he, rubbing his hands with a savage delight, 'my revenge will be complete. Ruin will inevitably overwhelm this foolish farmer, and he and his son will be reduced to beggary.'

Entertaining this charitable idea, he awaited with the utmost impatience for the arival of the seventh day. Early on the fatal morn a labourer came running breathlessly into Gruffel's cottage.

'What's the matter?' demanded Gruffel.

'Oh, master!' cried the terrified clown, 'the devil's been reaping before cock-crow this morning upon old Wilhelm's farm, and left not an ear for the gleaners!'

'So much the better,' said Gruffel coosely, 'for no one can pull his ears—if he had lost 'em.'

'Ecod! I am glad to see thee so merry though,' said the clown, brightening up; 'why, we all thought as how thee'd bought the farm.'

'Bought?' shrieked out Gruffel. 'What d'ye mean, eh? It is'nt old Wilhelm' old farm, is it?'

'Ay, 'faith is it,' answered Clod.

Gruffel looked wild; struck his burning forehead such a smack, that the frightened clown tumbled out of the room. He pulled his straggling locks—he ran out of his cottage, and almost out of his mind. Wilhelm and his son were singing merrily at their work as he passed them; but their was not a single blade left upon his new possession.

'I'm a ruined man!' exclaimed he in despair.

A mocking laugh made him turn about, and he beheld the monster, the author of all his misery.

'What's the matter?' asked he, with an air of the coolest unconcern.

'Miserable that I am,' replied the farmer. 'Hast thou not despoiled me of my crop? Why dost thou use thy power so cruelly. The strong always ought to be merciful.'

'That is the maxim I would teach thee to practice as well as preach,' replied the moral monster. 'Go to old Wilhelm, and crave the pity and the service of the man thou wouldst have ruined without compunction. Win his pardon, and thou shalt have mine; otherwise I shall begin reaping again next week!'

'No; for mercy's sake!' implored Gruffel, with a rueful countenance, but the monster was gone.

With a heavy heart he sought Wilhelm. He dare not at first explain his treachery; but only relating the fate of his corn, the poor farmer heartily commiserated him.—'Had I remained a few days longer there,' said he, 'it might have been my fate. To thy generosity, then, I owe this escape from utter ruin; thou shalt, thou must, therefore, design to share in the harvest I shall reap. By thy bounty I shall still possess sufficient, and next season Providence may haply increase my store!'

These noble and disinterested sentiments completely overcame the contrite Gruffel. He burst into tears, confessed the cheat he had endeavoured to put upon Wilhelm, and craved his pardon.

Wilhelm, deeply affected by the sorrow and humility of his rich neighbour, gave him his hand in token of his forgiveness.

Matters were soon amicably arranged; the monster kept his word, and returned the corn; friendships were cemented, lovers united, fields flourishing, and cradles and granaries in requisition! A CROWQUILL.

TREATMENT OF CHILDREN.

Curiosity in children is but an appetite after knowledge, which ought to be encouraged as the great instrument nature has provided to remove that ignorance they were born with, and which, without this busy inquisitiveness, would make them dull and useless creatures. To encourage this temper, a child should never be checked or discountenanced for any inquiries he should make, but a plain answer should be given, and the subjects explained to him as far as is suitable to his age and capacity. But great care should be taken that they never receive deceitful and eluding answers. They easily perceive when they are slighted and deceived, and quickly learn the trick of neglect, dissimulation, and falsehood, which they observe others to make use of; and if by chance their curiosity leads them to ask what they should not know, it is a great deal better to tell them plainly that it is a thing that belongs not to them to know, than to pop them off with a falsehood or a frivolous answer.

If a child is fond of reasoning, care should be taken that this inclination is not checked in him, and that he is not misled by captious or fallacious ways of talking to him; and if his reasons are quite out of the way, let him, without being laughed at for his mistake, be gently put into the right. For, after all, reason, being the highest and most important faculty of our minds, deserves the greatest care and attention in cultivating it; the right improvement and exercise of it being the highest perfection that a man can attain to in this life.—Locke.

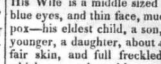
Laughing.—Away with all the systems of Physionomy and Craniology—if you want to find out a man's character, observe his laugh. There never was a bad man that could laugh heartily and cheerfully. Laughs are of various species, from the suppressed titter of the boarding school Miss, to the vociferous hoarse roar of the honest farmer. This latter is the kind of laugh to dispel dull care, and to promote good fellowship. There is no faith to be placed in a man who wont join in it; watch him when he comes to trade with you. A mere grin, without the accompanying sound, is not to be relied on—it is merely an expression of internal selfish exultation, and besides, it has not the effect upon the system, of a good, honest, convulsive laugh.

PROCLAMATION.
MURDER AND ROBBERY.
£100 REWARD.

UPPER CANADA,

By His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, K.C.B, Lieutenant Governor of our Province aforesaid, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS, a young Man named Isaac James, Son of Ezekiel James, of the Township of Uxbridge, in the Home District, of this Province, was found dead behind a log heap near the road side, in the Township of Whitchurch, on the thirtieth day of September, instant, and from several gun-shot, and other wounds inflicted upon his person, no doubt can exist of his having been barbarously murdered; and from his having left home, six days previously, in company with JOHN CHRISTIE, whom he was conveying, with his Wife and Family to York in a Waggon, and the said JOHN CHRISTIE, with his Family having absconded with the Waggon and Horses, there is every reason to believe that the said JOHN CHRISTIE, hath committed the attrocious act.



NOW KNOW YE, that the above Reward will be paid to any person who shall apprehend the said JOHN CHRISTIE, and cause him to be brought before any Justice of the Peace of this Province, to be dealt with according to Law.

Given under my Hand and Seal of Office, at York, this Thirtieth day of September, in the Year of our Lord One Thousand, Eight Hundred and Twenty-eight, and in the Ninth year of His Majesty's Reign. P. M.

By Command of His Excellency.
H. J. BOULTON, Solicitor General.
D. CAMERON, Secretary.

N.B.—JOHN CHRISTIE, some times calling himself WELMAN, is thus described:—About 5 feet 6 inches high, tolerably stout, dark eyes and hair, but of a fair complexion, full face, apparently from 25 to 30 years of age, and a native of Ireland.—When he left home, he had on a dark coloured dress. His Wife is a middle sized woman, with black hair, blue eyes, and thin face, much marked with the small pox—his eldest child, a son, about 3 years old—the younger, a daughter, about a year old, both red hair, fair skin, and full freckled faces. The Waggon which was stolen with two Mares, was a good one, with a white linen cover—one of the Mares about 16 hands high, dapple grey, with dark legs and face;—the other an iron grey, about 15 hands high; each about 6 or 7 years old.

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

THE CANADA Steam-Packet for the remainder of the Season, will leave York and Niagara, alternate days, at Ten o'clock—Sundays excepted.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner.
York, Sept. 29, 1828. x 17

NOTICE.—The Post-Office is removed to Duke Street, near the Bank.
Sept. 30, 1828. s 17

NOTICE.—Whereas, it has been the practice for the Chelsea and Kilmainham Pensioners to give up their Instruction Papers to Agents, and receive their Pensions through that channel, instead of appearing personally for the purpose of being identified as His Majesty's Instructions require. The Commissary General hereby gives notice, that all Pensions must be claimed in person, at least once in each year.

The Pensioners at Richmond, Perth and vicinity, will in future receive their Pensions, on and after the 25th December 1828, at By-Town instead of Montreal, and they must claim their first payment at that Post in person, so that their existence and identity may be proved, as no other person or persons are pursuant to Act of Parliament, entitled to receive the same, under any pretence whatsoever if the Pensioner is living. Any Pensioner wishing to change his place of residence must notify the same through the Commissariat Officer from whom he received his last payment.

Commissariat Head Quarters,
Quebec, 18*th September*, 1828. c 17

FOR SALE.—Lot No. 29, and part of 30, in the 7th Concession of the Township of Pickering, containing 350 Acres, and having an eligible situation for a Mill. For terms apply to Mr. Andrew Mercer, York.
York, 28*th October*, 1827. 22 tf.

CHAIR-MAKING.—The Subscribers, having entered into Copartnership, under the Firm of SMITH & LAWRENCE, to carry on the Chairmaking Business, inform their Friends and the Public, that they have now a shop open on the West side of the Market-Square, where they will keep constantly on hand a general assortment of Fancy, Bamboo, and Windsor Chairs, which they intend to dispose of on reasonable terms, for CASH or Country Produce; and, they trust, from the quality of their work, and attention to business, to merit a share of public favor.

They have, also, a Ware-Room open on YONGE-STREET, four miles South of NEW-MARKET, where Chairs may be had at all times.

N.B.—Job Painting, &c. executed to order.

☞ All orders thankfully received and punctually attended to. B. W. SMITH.
J. M. LAWRENCE.
York, September 4, 1828. i. 13

JUST PUBLISHED, and for Sale at the Office of the LOYALIST, York, U. C., by ROBERT STANTON,—The UPPER CANADA ALMANAC, and Farmers Calendar, for the year 1829.

☞ Price 2*s.* Cr'cy. per dozen.—Orders with a remittance, duly attended to, and parcels forwarded agreeable to directions.
September 6, 1828.

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.—The Steam Boat ALCIOPE, will take Freight and Passengers from this Port during the remainder of the Season, every Saturday morning at 6 o'clock, on her way down from NIAGARA to PRESCOTT, to commence tomorrow.
York, 29th August, 1828. x. 15

NOTICE.—The Subscriber having closed his business requests all those who may be indebted either to him or to the late Firm of J. W. Gamble, & Co., to make immediate payment of their Accounts, otherwise they will be placed in the hands of an Attorney for collection. WILLIAM GAMBLE.
York, 1st September, 1828. n. 13

STRAY COWS.—Came into the inclosure of the Subscriber, about three weeks since,—Two Cows—one a red Cow, with a small Star in her forehead, and a Bell on.—The other a small Brindle and white spotted. The owners are requested to prove property, pay charges, and take them away.

MOSES CHERRY,
No. 12, East side Yonge-Street, Township of York.
4*th* September, 1828. x. 13

ELIGIBLE SITUATION.—To be sold, Lots numbers 29 & 30 in the first concession of the Township of Scarborough with three broken fronts on Lake Ontario, situate about Seven miles from the Town of York.—On Lot No. 29, are erected a Log and a Frame House together with outhouses &c. These premises are now in the possession of Mr. Adna Bates, and are an eligible Situation for a Tavern.

Application to be made to C. C. SMALL Esq.
York, 20th August, 1828. x 11

TO SAWYERS.—Wanted immediately an experienced SAWYER, and an assistant to take charge of a Mill that has a constant supply of water; and in other respects particularly well situated.—None need apply, who cannot give sufficient references as to character and ability.

Further information on application to Messrs. WRAGG & Co. King-street, York. x 11

NOTICE.—I hereby forbid all persons from purchasing Lot No. 1, in the 3d Concession in the Township of Mulmur, West of Hurontario Street.—ALSO—Lots Nos. 13, 14, 21, and 22, in the second Concession of the Township of Melancthon, in the Home District, which I purchased from ALLAN ROBINETT, in the year 1823, and for which I have a Deed. LEWIS HORNING.
15*th September*, 1828. n. 15

PUBLIC NOTICE.—I require due notice to be given to me or to my Agent, Mr. Alexander Murray, at Mr. Proudfoot's Store, in York, of all transfers of Property in the Steam-Packet Canada, in default whereof I shall consider the original Stockholder, as the legal Owner in the Vessel; and in paying dividends and doing other transactions connected with my situation, hold myself accountable to them alone. HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner of the Steam Packet Canada.
York, 27*th December*, 1827.

N.B.—With Mr. A. Murray, reference may be had to all Books and accounts connected with the Canada Steam Packet.

NEW WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE.—The Subscribers respectfully announce to the Merchants of York and its vicinity, that they have opened a Wholesale Store, Corner of Market-Lane and Church-Street; where they are receiving a large and suitable assortment of DRY GOODS, direct from GREAT BRITAIN: consisting principally of the following articles:—

Grey and Bleached Factory Cottons,
do. do. Sheetings,
Striped and Check'd Cottons,
Scotch Hollands,
Fine, Superfine, and Brussels Carpeting,
do. do. broad and narrow Cloths,
do. do. Cassimeres,
Bombazettes, Bombazines, and Shalloons,
Says, Lastings, Camblets, &c.,
Tartans and Union Checks,
Moleskins, Barragans and Fustians,
Red and White Flannel,
Chintzes, Calicoes and Furnitures,
Book, Jaccouet and Mull Muslins,
Batiste Muslins, Striped, Check'd and figured,
Ginghams, Pullicate and Verona Handkerchiefs,
Cotton and Linen Red Tick,
Russia Duck, Osnaburgs, Hessins and Sheetings,
Canvas, Bagging, Dowlas, Drill, &c.
Umbrellas, 26, 28, and 30 inch,
Bandanna, Barcelona, Gauze & Barrage, Handkerchiefs,
Silk Hose, and Habit Gloves,
Black and Green Crape, Veils, &c.
Black and Coloured sewings, Legge Twist, &c.
Galloons, Silk and Cotton Ferrets,
Black and W. Brown Linen Thread, Cotton Spoolls and Balls,
Silk, Cotton, and Merino Shawls,
Cotton Tapes, Bobbin, &c.
Satins, Levantine Ribbons, &c. &c.—
Which they will sell off at very reduced prices, for cash only. JAMES DOUGALL, & Co.
York, 23d July, 1828. x. 7

THOMAS MOORE,—TAILOR, Front Street, York. Near the Steam Boat Hotel.—Begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has just opened, and offers for Sale, a choice assortment of Goods, Selected by himself at the Manufactories in England, which he can recommend as being of choice quality, consisting of, Superfine, Blue; Black; Scarlett; Green; Olive; Grey and Drab. West of England Broad Cloths.—Black, Blue and Grey, Double and single Milled Kersymeres. Forest Cloths. Lasting and Cordurays.—Beaverteens; Fustians; Cantons. Jane; Drab, and Striped Brown Drills. Fine Welsh Flannel; White and Blue Flannel. White and Grey Cottons. London printed Calicoes and Chintzes. Fancy Vestings. Printed Muslins. Sewing Silk; Twist; Thread and Rich Gilt Buttons.

MILITARY EQUIPMENTS,
consisting of, Regulation Swords; Patent Leather Regulation Waist Belts, with rich Gilt clasps. Rich Gold Bullion Epaulets, crimson Silk Regulation Sashes.—Rich Gold Velvet Lace, and Gilt British Militia Buttons. Red, White and Green, Regulation Feathers, with rich Gilt Tubes for do.

The whole of which will be disposed of on reasonable terms, or made up to order, agreeable to the latest fashions, at the shortest notice.
York, 14th July, 1828. x 6

BRITISH WAREHOUSE.—J. C. GODWIN & Co., Whitesale and Retail Merchants, beg to inform their Friends and the Public, they have received direct from England, the following Goods, which they offer low for cash:—
West of England Cloths, the best assorted,
Yorkshire Cloths of superior qualities, assorted,
Kerseymeres of fine Textures, assorted,
Variety of Vest Patterns,
A well selected Assortment of Gentlemens' Dress, and Surtout Coats, Trowsers, &c., made in London,
Imitation Brussels Carpeting, Venetian Carpeting, and Brass Rods,
Upwards of 2,000 yards unbleached Factory Cotton,
Ships' Canvas bleached, Nos. 3, 4, 5, & 6,
Fashionable Tea and Coffee Urns,
Sheet Copper for Distills, &c.,
Brass Crimping Machines, with Heaters,
Brass and Steel Fire Irons, of the newest quality,
An assortment of Cabinet Furniture,
Cast Steel in Bars,
Variety of Woollen and Linen Girth Webbs,
Paints, assorted, first quality,
Boiled and Raw Linseed Oil,
First quality Cognac Brandy, favorite mark Marett,
Fine Holland Gin,
Good old Whisky, by the Barrel or per Gallon,
Port, Sherry, and Teneriffe Wines, of choice quality.—With a variety of other Goods. J. C. GODWIN & Co.
York, Aug 25*th* 1828 x 12

NOTICE.—All persons having claims upon the Estate of the late STEPHEN HEWARD, Esquire, of York, deceased, are requested to present the same properly authenticated to the Hon. P. Robinson, one of the Executors, without delay; and all persons indebted to the said Estate are requested to make payment to the said Executor.
York, September 15, 1828. x. 15

FOR SALE.—By the Subscriber, 100 Barrels PLAISTER OF PARIS, of the very best quality, low for Cash WILLIAM BERGIN.
York, September 19, 1828. x. 15

JOHN MURCHISON, DRAPER AND TAILOR, respectfully informs his friends and customers, that he has just received from LONDON, a choice assortment of extra, fine and superfine West of England Broad Cloths and Cassimeres; consisting of Blue, Black, Scarlet, Green, Olive, Brown, Grey, Drab and Corbeau, Single and Double Milled Cassimeres; do. Double Milled Broad Cloths for Great Coats, and vestings of every description, which he is ready to make up to order at short notice, in good style, and on the lowest terms possible. Gentlemen wishing any thing in his line may depend upon being faithfully served.

N. B. He has also a number of Military Articles to dispose of on reasonable terms.
York, July 28, 1828. sn. 8

FOR SALE,—Lot No. 12, and East half of 14 in the 3d Concession of the Township of York, West of Yonge-Street,—300 Acres,—the property of Major W. G. White.—Refer to ROBERT STANTON, Esquire, U. C. Gazette Office.
York, 4th July, 1828. x. 5

THE ROYAL GRAMMAR SCHOOL, established at York, Upper Canada, opens again on Monday the 8th of September, 1828.—For Terms, &c. apply to the REV. DR. PHILLIPS, Head Master.
York, 14th August, 1828. i. 10

NOTICE.—The undermentioned new POST OFFICES have been established in Upper Canada, by the Deputy Post Master General, to go into operation from the 6th of next Month, viz:

MAITLAND.—(Between Prescott, & Brockville,)—SAMUEL THOMAS, P. M.
GUELPH.—(35 Miles N. W. from Dundas,)—DAVID GILKISON, P. M., VIA. GALT.
General Post Office,
Quebec, 28*th June*, 1828. y 6

ENGLISH STORE.—Just received, direct from England, a quantity of Bobbin Net, Lace, Veils, and Caps, of the first quality; also, an assortment of Muslins and other Goods; which will be sold on the most reasonable terms, by J. COCKSHUTT.
York, July 14*th* 1828. x 6

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

LAKE ONTARIO STEAM-BOAT, NIAGARA, Captain MONIER, with DANIEL READ, Sailing Master, Will, after the 15th inst., leave Niagara for Kingston, Brockville, and Prescott, every Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

On her return, will leave Prescott for Brockville, Kingston, York, and Niagara, every Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made with Messrs. Norton, & Co., Burlington Bay Proprietors, by which, passengers going down, arrive in Montreal on Tuesday evening; and those proceeding upwards, will, by leaving Montreal on Tuesday, arrive in time at Prescott to take the Boat.
York. June 6*th*, 1828. x 1.

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS of the GAOL and COURT HOUSE at HAMILTON, District of Newcastle.—Notice is hereby given that the undermentioned premiums are offered to such persons as shall furnish the Clerk of the Peace, for the approval of the Magistrates of the District of Newcastle, on or before the 1st day of October next, with plans, specifications, and estimates of a Gaol and Court House (in one building) to be built in the Township of Hamilton, at or near the present Court House—the first story to be of Stone, second and third stories of Brick, to contain Criminal Cells, Debtors Rooms, Goolers Apartments, Court Room, Grand and Petit Jury Rooms;—Also, Rooms for Offices, &c., such as are usually required in such a Building—the roof to be covered with tin.—The whole expence not to exceed the sum of £5,000 Currency.

Premiums will be awarded as follows, viz:—
For the best and most approved plan, &c. £15 0 0
For the 2nd do. do. 10 0 0
For the 3rd do. do. 5 0 0
T. WARD,
Clerk of the Peace,
District of Newcastle
Hamilton, Newcastle District, dd 52
10*th May*, 1828.

WHISKEY.—For Sale by the Barrel, a quantity of SUPERIOR OLD WHISKEY—Apply to R. W. PRENTICE.
York, 25th Sept. 1828. x 16

HOME DISTRICT, YORK TO WIT: NOTICE is hereby given that a Court of Oyer and Terminer, and General Gaol delivery, and of Assize and Nisi Prius, will be holden at the Court House in the Town of York, in and for the said District, on Monday the Thirteenth day of October next ensuing, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of the same day, of which all Justices of the Peace, Coroners, Gaolers, Constables, Bailiffs, and those otherwise concerned, are desired to take notice, that they be respectively then there present with their Rolls, Records, and other Memoranda, to do and perform those things which to their several offices belong.

W. B. JARVIS,
Sheriff.
Sheriff's Office, York, 25*th Sept.* 1828. n 16

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR having been pleased to appoint me to the Collectorship of Customs for this Port, I beg leave to acquaint the Merchants, Shop-owners and others, having business to transact with this branch of the Revenue after the 1st day of October next, that I have temporarily established an Office in part of the premises fronting on Duke-Street occupied by Mr. Columbus. GEORGE SAVAGE,
Collector.
York, 26th September, 1828. n 16

WINES.

A CARD.—Mr. HAWKINS, Wine Merchant, of Quebec, offers for Sale a few Cases of excellent Port Wine, just received from Quebec.

Mr. Hawkins will be happy to receive orders from such gentlemen as are disposed to secure a supply of Genuine Wines, to be delivered early in the Spring at York and at Niagara.

Orders addressed to Mr. Hawkins, at Howard's Hotel, till Tuesday next, and afterwards at the office of this paper, will meet with attention.
York. September 20*th*, 1829. sn 15

York Auction, Mart, & Commission Ware-House.
M. & R. MEIGHAN,
Opposite the Market Square.

HAVE for Sale, an assortment of Household Furniture, consisting of Mahogany, Curled Maple and Cherry Tree, Side Boards, Secretaries, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Breakfast Dining and Card Tables, Work Tables, Bason Stands, Feather Beds and Bedding; A London made grand Piano; an excellent Sulkey Carriage; a Mangle for pressing clothes; A Jack for Roasting Meat; A very elegant fourteen day Time Piece with Italian Marble Frame and Glass Shade; Double and Single Barrel Percussion Lock Fowling Pieces and Pistols; Bridles, Saddles, Double and Single Harness; Gilt and Plain Frame Looking Glasses; Some Handsome Vases and chimney Ornaments; an extensive assortment of Elegant Dry and Fancy Goods of every description, Hardware, Jewellery, Crockery and Glassware; Groceries, Tea, Wine and Spirits; together with an Elegant Collection of Books, Stationery, Perfumery, Patent Medicines &c. Regular Auction Sales every week.
York, 1828. x 6.

LANDS FOR SALE.—In the Township of Halloweil, Lot No. 46, 2d Concession, North-west side of the Carrying Place. - - - - Acres. 200
In the Township of Cramahe—
Lots No. 17, 18, & 19, 3d Con. } 300
do. 15, 4th do. }
In the Township of Hamilton—
Broken Lots, 29 & 30, 8th Con. } 476
27, 28, 29, 31, 32, 34, & 35, 10th do. }
North-east quarter. No. 1, 4th do. 50
In the Township of Clarke—
Lots No. 16, 17 & 18, Broken Fronts } 2000
16, 17, & 18, 1st Con. }
17, & 18, 2d do. }
17, & 18, 3d do. }
In the Township of Darlington—
Lot No. 14, 3d Con. } 400
8, 4th do. }
In the Township of Pickering—
Lots No. 16, 17, & half of 18, 1st Con. } 999
and Broken Fronts }
In the Township of York—
Lot No. 37, 3d Con. - - - - - - 200
In the Township of Gainsborough—
Broken Lot No. 27, 3d & 4th Con. - - 74
Apply to ANDREW MERCER.

BANK NOTICE.—DISCOUNT DAY, Wednesday of every Week.—Notes offered for Discount, must be put under cover to the Cashier, and left at the Bank the day before.

THOMAS G. RIDOUT,
Cashier.

CHAIN CABLES, &c.—ACHAMAN'S Patent Chain Cables, and Anchors, (warranted proved by Machine) a constant supply kept on hand (in stock) of all sizes, by JOHN WATKINS, Kingston, and in Montreal and Quebec by WILLIAM BUDDEN.
July, 30, 1827. 11-tf.

Summary.

JEWS.—The number of Jews in the United Kingdom is calculated at between ten and twelve thousand.

THAMES TUNNEL.—We understand that the Duke of Wellington has given directions to the Commissioners for lending money for the forwarding of public works, to appropriate the next sum of money which may be repaid to them to the completion of the Thames Tunnel. It is said that the Duke will leave nothing undone in order to complete this great national undertaking.—Morning Paper.

NEW NATIONAL GALLERY.—The erection of a new National Gallery, combined with a suitable building and offices for the Royal Academy, has been at length finally determined on. The Architect to whom the buildings are to be entrusted is Mr. John Nash, whose designs have been approved of by His Majesty and the proper authorities. The New National Gallery and Royal Academy, for so the building is to be nominated, is to be on a grand scale of 300 yards in length, having a beautiful Corinthian portico and centre dome, with a small one on each wing, and a lesser one on each of the principal extremities. It will occupy the site of the present Riding House in the King's Mews, Charing-cross, immediately facing the south, and by the elevation is intended to be about twice the height of first rate Houses at present erected. The building will form a very picturesque and noble line, extending in a direction from Pall-mall East, nearly across to St. Martin's Church. The space immediately in front will be occupied by the New Royal Academy, which is intended to represent an extensive Grecian temple, having at the entrance and exit, a long flight of steps, and standing at right angles with the National Gallery. St. Martin's Church will, by this plan, be left quite free to the public view, with a large space of ground railed as a burial place. The Workhouse of St. Martin's, in Castle Street, will remain in the back ground, but will undergo considerable alterations on the south side to correspond with other buildings. On the east side will be erected a new and magnificent range of police offices, intended as the principal metropolitan station, instead of the present incommodious office at Bow-street. And close to them will appear the vicar's house and the parochial schools. The grand line of street will be from west to east by Pall-mall, passing the front of the National Gallery, and across the Strand facing Hungerford-street; the Strand being widened for some distance to a road-way of 60 feet. The open spaces of ground will be formed into squares, planted with trees, and railed round to protect them from injury.

Mr. Huskisson has paid a visit to the Continent, in order to recruit his health. The Manchester Chamber of Commerce and Manufactures, voted him an address of thanks, for his services in promoting measures tending to advance the good of the empire. In replying, Mr. Huskisson expressed his great satisfaction in finding his conduct approved by a board representing the largest manufacturing community in Great Britain.

The Hon. Chief Justice Campbell, of Upper Canada, has arrived at Edinburgh, from a tour to the Northern Highlands.

The Scotch Papers contain accounts of violent storms of thunder and rain which have occurred in various parts of Scotland We are happy to perceive, however, that the crops both of wheat and oats, is expected to prove an average one.

The Duke of Atholl has commenced preparations for building a residence at Dunkeld, which, it is said will cost not less than £100,000. Quarters are preparing for 250 labourers, to be employed at the erection. The site, it is understood, will be about 50 or 60 yards west of the present house. Sir John Archibald Stewart, of Grandully, is also about to commence the erection of a new family residence at Murthly, upon a very splendid scale. The present castle is a well known and admired object to travellers, and is one of the few old mansions on the borders of the Perthshire Highlands, which dispute the honor of having furnished the author of Waverly with the original of "Tully-Veolan."—Glasgow Chronicle.

The harvests had a very unpromising appearance in France, and a great scarcity is apprehended. From the late proceedings of the session of the Chambers, the law which aggravates the distress, cannot be changed till the following year.

The Crops in Ireland.—The news from the south regarding the corn is very unfavourable. The oats are thin, but have not suffered so materially as the other grain. In a great part of Limerick, Tipperary, and Clare, the wheat and barley are laid From the north the accounts are better; the light winds of today and yesterday have saved many acres, for which serious apprehensions were entertained.—Times.

The French expedition to the Morea is to be increased by two regiments from Cadiz, by the 20th regiment, which is now at Avignon, and the 42d, returned from Corsica. Ships are proceeding to Toulon from Brest and the Levant, so that 6,000 men will be accommodated on board the fleet at one time.—August 10.

Draining the Marshes.—An immense speculation is about to be undertaken, at the head of which is said to be M. Laffite, for the purpose of draining all the marshes in France. There are not fewer than 12,000 square miles of bogs and fens in that country. Government patronises the undertaking; the taxes on the drained lands will be remitted during 25 years.

Education.—At the last sitting of the Society of Elementary Instruction in Paris, on the 9th ult. a very interesting paper was read, from which it appears that there are in France 30,381 Communes, of which only 24,000 have schools of any description, and that there are throughout France not less than four millions of children who have no kind of education.

Small Pox.—In June and July no fewer than 867 persons died of the small pox at Marseilles.

Wheat produced in France.—At a recent meeting of the Academy of Sciences in Paris, the Secretary read a paper on the "Present and Former Produce of Wheat in France," from which it appeared that forty years ago, the amount of wheat annually grown in France was sufficient (reckoning the population at that time at 25 millions, three of which five millions are to be deducted for children under ten years of age) to give to each person 363 lbs of wheat per annum, or one pound nine ounces of bread daily, after taking away the wheat necessary for seed for the ensuing year. The population since the period here referred to, has increased to 32 millions, but there has been no increase in the wheat produce, from which it is inferred that the land brought into cultivation since the Revolution has been chiefly laid out for vineyards, leguminous plants, and potatoes.

Horse races on the plan of the English races, have recently been established at Vienna, by a number of young Austrian Noblemen. The races were held on a fine plain at about an hour's ride from the city, and were attended by some thousands of spectators, and several hundred carriages of all sorts. The people were highly delighted, and the view of the ground was entertaining and picturesque.

Queen of Portugal.—Advices from Rio de Janeiro announce the determination of Don Pedro to send his daughter, the young Queen of Portugal, to Europe. Her Majesty was to set off in the course of last month. Whether the late events will produce any change in this measure, remains to be seen.

England.

ENGLISH LAWS.

[In the Liverpool Advertiser we find a notice of certain changes, which, as they respect principally business transactions, we copy.]

Several important statutes have lately passed, which make such considerable alterations in some of the departments of English Law, that we trust we shall render an acceptable service to our readers in taking a short survey of their principal features.

The evidence which a Quaker can give, upon his affirmation, in a Court of Justice, has hitherto been absurdly restricted to civil cases. In no criminal proceeding could he be heard as a witness, because his principles forbade him to take an oath, and the law rejected his affirmation. The consequences of this mingled inconsistency and injustice have been, that many a rogue has escaped punishment whom the evidence of a Quaker would have convicted, and from consequent crimes have been convicted whom the same testimony would have saved. This defect in the law of evidence is now remedied; for, by the 9th Geo. IV. cap. 32, (Lord Lansdowne's Act,) "the affirmation of a Quaker is made admissible in all cases, criminal as well as civil." The same Act remedies other defects in this branch of the law, by providing, "that the party whose name is forged to an instrument shall be a competent witness in prosecutions for forgery; and that no clergyable felony and no misdemeanor (except perjury) shall render a person an incompetent witness after he has undergone punishment."

The 9 Geo. IV. cap. 14, (Lord Tenterden's Act,) entitled, "An Act for rendering a written memorandum necessary to the validity of certain promises and engagements,"—is an Act of great importance especially to commercial men. By the effect of what are called the statutes of limitations, any man who is liable to be sued by another upon a contract not under seal—for example, on a bill of exchange, or for goods sold, money lent, work performed, &c.—is exonerated from this liability, unless the creditor sues him within six years after the cause of action has arisen. The courts have held, however, for a long time past, that a promise to pay, or even an acknowledgment of the debt being due, made within six years before the action, would take the case out of the statute, and enable the plaintiff to recover a demand, however stale. The consequence has been, that all those frauds and abuses which the statutes of limitations were intended to prevent, have occurred in practice, from the facility with which an ingenious witness contrives to twist the simplest conversation into a direct acknowledgment of a debt still due. Lord Erskine used to say, that a defendant's only safe course in such a case, was to knock down the Attorney's Clerk, who came to pump him, as that could not very well be construed into an acknowledgment or promise to pay. By the first Section of Lord Tenterden's Act, it is enacted, that "no acknowledgment or promise shall be deemed sufficient to take out of the statute of limitations, unless it be in writing, or by part payment." The Act contains several other provisions, more or less important, of which the three following deserve particular notice:—

1. Any promise made by a person, after attaining the age of 21, to pay a debt contracted while under that age, any ratification after 21 of a promise or simple contract made under age, must, in order to support an action, be in writing.

2. A representation given concerning the character or credit of another person, to the intent that such other person may obtain credit, money, or goods upon it, cannot be made the ground of an action, unless such representation be made in writing.

3. No contract for the sale of goods to the value of £10 or upwards, shall be allowed to be good, except the buyer shall accept part of the goods, or give something in earnest to bind the bargain, or in payment, or some written and signed memorandum of the bargain be made, notwithstanding the goods may be intended to be delivered at some future time, or may not, at the time of the contract, be fit or ready for delivery.

This written memorandums required by this Act, are exempt from the Stamp Duty—sect. 2. This most important statute comes into operation January 1, 1829.

The London Courier states, "from authority," that the reports of Mr. Peel's retirement, or contemplated retirement, from the British Ministry, is without the shadow of foundation. The same paper holds the following language with respect to the resignation of the Duke of Clarence:—

The causes of the Duke of Clarence's resignation have not been made public; but to those who assert that they have not been, because they would reflect discredit upon the Cabinet, we may safely reply, that there is not the least truth in the assertion. His Royal Highness's resignation was his own act. If he thought that the system upon which he had administered the Naval Department was not the proper one, he could only remain in office so long as he could persevere in it, and he acted in a manly manner by resigning. But, in behalf of those who might be of a different opinion, we may also say that they acted with equal manliness, and, in fact, did but their duty, in objecting to it. Our Constitution and Government is a Constitution and Government of checks and counterchecks; from which no public Officer, however high his station, can withdraw himself.

If His Majesty thought the tender of the Duke of Clarence's resignation, made by himself, ought not to be declined, we may rest assured that His Majesty was not disposed to impute blame to his Ministers. All the rumours which impute the resignation to a difference of opinion about expences, and to the displeasure felt by the Cabinet at the promotion of meritorious and distinguished Officers have not the least foundation. But we must repeat that we never saw any good ground for departing from that system of administering the Navy under which a Howe, a St. Vincent, a Rodney, a Collingwood, and above all, a Nelson, gained such victories, beating the Navies of every other nation, till at last scarcely a fleet existed any where to contend with. We shall not, therefore, be sorry to find the Naval Service again under the direction of a Board, the head of which shall be a Cabinet Minister.

No arrangement has been made in consequence of the resignation of the Duke of Clarence as Lord High Admiral. In noticing some remarks in the Journal des Debats, the Courier says, "If the French paper had been better informed, it would have known that the resignation of the Duke has not been occasioned by political causes."

A meeting was about to be held in London to petition Parliament for the removal of the legal disabilities under which the Jews now labor.—The Courier is in favor of the measure, which, it says, would not be more beneficial to their character and situation than it would be honorable to the character and policy of the British Government.

The Russian Admiral's ship is still missing, and great apprehensions are now entertained for her safety. The rest of the squadron remain meantime at Plymouth.—This delay is most material, as there will not now be sufficient time for the squadron to effect the voyage to the Mediterranean, and return to Cronstadt before the winter sets in.

The Brazilian Ministers at London and Vienna, have published a protest against the usurpation of the Crown of Portugal by Don Miguel, which furnishes most conclusive evidence that it was a traitorous act.

Lord Anglesea, it is said, is received cordially by all classes of the Irish people; and mingles in a social and unaffected manner with the Gentlemen of the country.

NEW-YORK, SEPTEMBER, 25.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

The Packet Ship Napoleon, Captain Smith, arrived last evening from Liverpool, having sailed on the 26th ult. and brought papers of that date. They furnish no further advices from the Russian Army.

The Ship City of Waterford, which came in contact with the Packet Ship Columbia, arrived at Cork on the 17th August.

Nothing had yet been heard of the Russian Rear-Admiral's ship of 80 guns, which separated from the rest of the squadron in a gale off Scilly.

It had been reported during the week that the Duke of Clarence had not actually resigned, and would resume the duties of his high station.

The packet ship Pacific, Captain Crocker, arrived at Liverpool from New-York, on the 21st August. Mr. Barbour, the new American Minister to the Court of St. James, was passed upon by a respectable deputation from the American Chamber of Commerce of that place.

LONDON, Sunday Evening, Aug. 24.

Our surprise at the delay of intelligence from the seat of war increases daily. We might to-day have been in possession of intelligence ten days later than the date of the last bulletin.—There are no accounts in the Paris papers to Thursday last of a ny import. nce. The Constantinople articles in them, and in the German papers, are always liable to suspicion.

We learn by the French papers, that the first part of the expedition which sailed from Toulon on the 17th, consisted of 43 Transports, escorted by eight men of war. On the following day the second division, consisting of 36 more transports, and three men of war, put to sea, for the same destination.

The news from Portugal may be said to break the last link of English connexion with that unhappy country, it having been announced at Lloyd's, nearly at the same moment, that the Pyramus and Galatea frigates had arrived from Lisbon, and the Britomart and Cordelia from Oporto. Thus not an English ship of war remains, either in the Tagus or the Douro, for the protection of English subjects and their property, at a most critical period.

The harvest in this country is nearly brought to a close, and we have reason to believe, that on the whole the crops have sustained little injury from the weather.

LIVERPOOL, August 25.

Corn Market.—In our report of last Tuesday's market, we noted an improvement of 1d to 2d, on Wheat, 1d per bushel on Oats, 1s to 2s per quarter on Barley and Malt, and 6d to 1s per sack on Flour and Oatmeal: this advance was fully supported during the greater part of the week, and a considerable extent of business transacted in wheat and Oats. and in some instances even higher rates were realized; but the subsequent reports from London and various other markets of a favorable change in the weather, with receding prices, have checked the demand, and the quotations of last Monday, will apply to the currency of this day, and the market now dull. Bonded Wheat is fully 3d. per bushel dearer, and State's Flour is also held for 1s per barrel above last quoted prices.

FEMALE FASHIONS FOR AUGUST.

(From the World of Fashion, &c.)

As light and appropriate head-covering for the summer season, the hats are chiefly of a transparent kind; they are generally of white crape of stiffened net, and one of the latter materials pleases us much by its elegant simplicity. Under the right side of the brim are three spatula ornaments of celestial blue; the upper part of the hat is trimmed with blue satin ribbon, sewn to a bias fold of white crape areophane. Another transparent hat is of white crape, bound with satin ribbon of French white, and above all, a Nelson, gained such victories, beating the Navies of every other nation, till at last scarcely a fleet existed any where to contend with. We shall not, therefore, be sorry to find the Naval Service again under the direction of a Board, the head of which shall be a Cabinet Minister.

No arrangement has been made in consequence of the resignation of the Duke of Clarence as Lord High Admiral. In noticing some remarks in the Journal des Debats, the Courier says, "If the French paper had been better informed, it would have known that the resignation of the Duke has not been occasioned by political causes."

A meeting was about to be held in London to petition Parliament for the removal of the legal disabilities under which the Jews now labor.—The Courier is in favor of the measure, which, it says, would not be more beneficial to their character and situation than it would be honorable to the character and policy of the British Government.

The Russian Admiral's ship is still missing, and great apprehensions are now entertained for her safety. The rest of the squadron remain meantime at Plymouth.—This delay is most material, as there will not now be sufficient time for the squadron to effect the voyage to the Mediterranean, and return to Cronstadt before the winter sets in.

The Brazilian Ministers at London and Vienna, have published a protest against the usurpation of the Crown of Portugal by Don Miguel, which furnishes most conclusive evidence that it was a traitorous act.

Lord Anglesea, it is said, is received cordially by all classes of the Irish people; and mingles in a social and unaffected manner with the Gentlemen of the country.

NEW-YORK, SEPTEMBER, 25.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

The Packet Ship Napoleon, Captain Smith, arrived last evening from Liverpool, having sailed on the 26th ult. and brought papers of that date. They furnish no further advices from the Russian Army.

The Ship City of Waterford, which came in contact with the Packet Ship Columbia, arrived at Cork on the 17th August.

Nothing had yet been heard of the Russian Rear-Admiral's ship of 80 guns, which separated from the rest of the squadron in a gale off Scilly.

It had been reported during the week that the Duke of Clarence had not actually resigned, and would resume the duties of his high station.

The packet ship Pacific, Captain Crocker, arrived at Liverpool from New-York, on the 21st August. Mr. Barbour, the new American Minister to the Court of St. James, was passed upon by a respectable deputation from the American Chamber of Commerce of that place.

LONDON, Sunday Evening, Aug. 24.

Our surprise at the delay of intelligence from the seat of war increases daily. We might to-day have been in possession of intelligence ten days later than the date of the last bulletin.—There are no accounts in the Paris papers to Thursday last of a ny import. nce. The Constantinople articles in them, and in the German papers, are always liable to suspicion.

We learn by the French papers, that the first part of the expedition which sailed from Toulon on the 17th, consisted of 43 Transports, escorted by eight men of war. On the following day the second division, consisting of 36 more transports, and three men of war, put to sea, for the same destination.

The news from Portugal may be said to break the last link of English connexion with that unhappy country, it having been announced at Lloyd's, nearly at the same moment, that the Pyramus and Galatea frigates had arrived from Lisbon, and the Britomart and Cordelia from Oporto. Thus not an English ship of war remains, either in the Tagus or the Douro, for the protection of English subjects and their property, at a most critical period.

The harvest in this country is nearly brought to a close, and we have reason to believe, that on the whole the crops have sustained little injury from the weather.

LIVERPOOL, August 25.

Corn Market.—In our report of last Tuesday's market, we noted an improvement of 1d to 2d, on Wheat, 1d per bushel on Oats, 1s to 2s per quarter on Barley and Malt, and 6d to 1s per sack on Flour and Oatmeal: this advance was fully supported during the greater part of the week, and a considerable extent of business transacted in wheat and Oats. and in some instances even higher rates were realized; but the subsequent reports from London and various other markets of a favorable change in the weather, gloomy picture of the state of the weather there. Unlike what it has been in most parts of the world, the weather in that Island had been so extremely hot, that vegetation had been completely dried up.

"Stockholm, July 29.—The harvest is so uncommonly fine, that the farmers in East Gothland, one of our most fertile provinces, can now hardly obtain five rix dollars per ton for rye. Hay is cheaper than it has been during the last 20 years."

AFFAIRS OF GREECE.

A joint declaration was expected to be issued by the ministers of Great Britain, France and Russia, at Corfu, as soon as the French Troops, part of which were at sea, arrived on the shores of Greece.

An Austrian vessel arrived at Leghorn from Alexandria on the 6th August, which brought advices that at her departure, thirty transports were fitting out in great haste, to bring back Ibrahim's force from the Morea.

Some letters from Constantinople express fears for the life of the Sultan. The belief of the approaching dissolution of the Turkish Empire prevails like a kind of fatality among his principal statesmen. Of the inhabitants of Constantinople, the Ulemas are the most cowardly of all Mussulmans. They would probably be the first to give the signal of flight to Scutari.

All unmarried Greeks at Constantinople have been ordered by a firman, to be sent to Asia, within a limited period. The following is given as a reason, in an article from Constantinople, brought by the Hamburgh papers to the 6th ult. A complaint was made at Varna, that some Greeks had arms concealed for the purpose of attacking the Turks on the approach of the Russians. Domiciliary visits were immediately ordered, and those in whose possessions arms were found, were put to death. It is added that the arms were nothing more than butcher's knives, the Greeks being chiefly dealers in provisions.

The Constantinople account would persuade us that the greatest aversion to the war prevails in the capital, and that the registering of the general levy in the districts of Constantinople proceeds very slowly. If the Turks at Constantinople be so hostile to the war, the troops in the field evince a different disposition. If they do not fight successfully, they at least fight valiantly.

PORTUGAL.

LATEST FROM PORTUGAL.—Capt. Richardson of the brig Salem, which arrived in this port yesterday, from Lisbon, has brought papers from that capital to the 9th of August.

A decree of Don Miguel, with the seal of "the King our master," requires of the territorial ministers who have sequestered estates in their districts belonging to persons who left the country, to send copies to the corregidors, who shall deposit them with four persons properly appointed, &c. to secure a lawful disposition of property.

We have before us the commission of the King to Francisco Mengeiro, chief of the expedition to Madeira, against such of the people as rebelled against his authority, in company with some of the troops, as guilty of High treason. He was to proceed to confiscations, &c. according to law, except in cases of those taken with arms in their hands.

Shumla.—The town of Shumla lies in an angle of a valley, formed by two ridges of low mountains; and they are the last branch of them at this side, and their extreme termination: if, therefore, the whole breadth of this immense chain be taken, it may be said to extend from Fakib to Shumla, thirty-two hours, or ninety-six miles, the country beyond these places being all level plain, and between them being all mountain; the lofty ridges, however, extend only from Haidhos to Topenitza, nine hours, or twenty-seven miles. The mountains about Shumla from a semi-circle, or amphitheatre, up the sides of which gardens and plantations extend to the summit of the hill, overhanging the town with a very rich and beautiful prospect; below at the extremity of the ridges, an immense plain begins, which extends to the Danube on the North, and the Black Sea on the East. Here is seen the town and harbour of Varna, between two head-lands, distant eighteen hours, or fifty-four miles. To this port, all who wish to avoid the difficulties of the Balkan, hire a vessel from Constantinople, and from hence come to Shumla. The part of the plain lying on the south of the ridge was formerly called Thrace, and is now Romelia; the part on the north was formerly called Moesia, and now Bulgaria. Shumla is a very large and populous town, containing about 60,000 inhabitants. It is divided into two parts, the Turkish and the Christian. The Turkish is the upper part. It is filled with mosques whose domes and minarets are covered with burnished plates, which glitter in the sun with dazzling splendour. Here is, besides, an extraordinary novelty in a Turkish town—a large town clock; it tells the hours by a bell which is heard all over the city, and regulates the time of the inhabitants, instead of the muezzims crying the hour from the minarets.

THE BALKAN MOUNTAINS

"Our way lay over a hill which commanded the whole country, and I stopped on the summit at sunrise, to view it. Behind us lay the vast ridge of the Balkan, which we had passed, presenting a more inaccessible face at this side than at the other, running along the horizon in a right line like a vast wall which ascended to the the clouds. The ancients had such an idea of the height of this ridge, that Pomponius Mela affirms the Euxine and the Adriatic could be seen from it at the same time, and Pliny says it was six miles high. 'Hæmi excelsitant VI. millibuus passuum'—higher than the chain of the Andes & Himalaya. It is therefore remarkable, that Herodotus should have taken no notice of it, though it must have presented so formidable an obstruction to the army of Darius.—The mountain is called Hæmus, (from haima,) the blood of the Typhon, because he had ascended it as the nearest way to scale Heaven, and Jupiter had there stuck him down. The length of chain is not less remarkable than the height, extending for five hundred miles—one end resting on the gulph of Venice, and the other on the Black Sea. The chain is now called 'The Balkan,' which signifies a difficult defile, and it is properly divided into high and low; the latter advancing forward on each side, like outworks before the great natural rampart."—Journey to Constantinople.

Hanover.—The accounts from Hanover of 28th ultimo, give a frightful account of the ravages of a storm on the 21st.

"For several days," say these accounts, "we have had very hot weather, which became very oppressive on the 21st. At half-past two in the afternoon a storm came up from the West, at ten minutes past three a dreadful torrent of hail poured down, such as never was known in this country. The frozen masses rushed down with a rattling noise that alarmed all the inhabitants. These masses in the shape of a turnip (not round but pointed,) weighed on an average three or four ounces each. The noise which they made in striking on the rocks, and the pavements was astounding. This terrible phenomenon lasted, it is true, only four minutes; but the damage done was immense. All the windows in the city and suburbs were dashed to pieces—the streets were covered with lumps of ice to the depth of half a foot, the fruit beaten off the trees, the branches broken, the birds in the air killed, all the neighboring gardens and fields laid waste, many persons wounded and killed; in short the damage is immense. Of a flock of 550 geese, only 75 escaped alive. At this moment, it cannot be estimated how great the injury may be in the adjoining country; but the damage done to the windows and lamps in the city is estimated at 50 or 60,000 dollars (six dollars to L. 1. Sterling.) The injury to the gardens and field probably exceed that sum.

United States.

BURLINGTON, Sept. 12.

Destructive Freshet.—The water in Onion River rose, last week, higher and more rapidly than it has done before within a period of thirty years. A great proportion of the intervals was overflowed, and the crops not then secured were considerably injured. But the loss in mills, machinery and bridges is beyond all precedent.

From the Montpelier Patriot.

Great Freshet.—Last Tuesday night it commenced raining and the water continued to fall in torrents for 48 hours, and so raised the streams as completely to inundate the low lands on the streams in this vicinity so far as we have heard. The water rose in this village from four to five feet higher than it was ever known. Two of the bridges across the branch in the village were swept away.

The damage done in the adjoining towns far surpasses what has been experienced in this place. In Barre, we learn that the Woolen Factory and Grist-mill owned by Mr. Ira Day, and many of the bridges are swept away.—In Middlesex, the Woolen Factory, Grist-mill, Saw-mill, Oil-mill, and indeed all the Mills and Machinery were carried off. And in Northfield, we learn considerable damage has been done.

From the North Star.

THE FRESHET.—So great a fall of rain, it is presumed, never before took place in this section of the country, in the same short period of time, as fell here, from Tuesday night last. Besides the numerous bridges which have been carried off, we learn that Ingall's Mills, in Sheffield; Goss's Mills in St. Johnsbury; a Mill Dam and Carding Machine, belonging to the heirs of Micah Haskell's estate, in Lyndon; a newly erected clothier's works in the village on the Branch, in Cabot; the grist-mill of Abner Morill, of this town; and the cluster of Mills in the village of Brailford, among them are a paper-mill, are swept away by the flood. Vast quantities of grain are stated to have been destroyed on the intervals of the banks of Connecticut river.

The damage sustained at Well's River Village is estimated at 10,000 dollars. So great a freshet was never witnessed by the oldest inhabitants.—Every bridge on Well's River, from Groton Pond to its mouth, is carried away, together with the abutments. The Messrs. Atwoods, in the South part of Newbury, have lost their valuable works, estimated at 6,000 dollars.

Every bridge across Connecticut River, from Newbury to Windsor, is swept off.—The bridge just below Well's River Village still resists the torrent.

In addition to accounts of the terrible freshet in Vermont and on the Connecticut River it appears that the storm causing it, extended its fury throughout most of the New England States, and at White-hall has done material injury to the Canal and individuals.—Canadian Courant.

The Flood.—The St. Albans (Vt.) Repository, gives additional particulars of the late destructive flood in Vermont. In Orleans county the waters rose so high in the rivers as to inundate the whole country and has done an immense damage to the roads, bridges, mills and ungathered crops.

At Hazen's Notch, in Westfield, between Kelleyvale and Montgomery, an avalanche started from between four and six hundred feet above the road, and carried with it trees, rocks, and earth, in immense quantities, into the valley below, filling the road ten or twelve feet in depth, and for eight or ten rods in width—making it entirely impassible for any kind of carriage, and it was with the utmost difficulty that our informant could pass round through the woods with a single horse. Such appears to have been the force and velocity of the slide, that large hemlock and spruce trees were thrown beyond the resting place of the earth, &c. and were left with their roots in an opposite direction to that in which they would naturally have fallen. The earth is so entirely stripped from the smooth rock, as to leave but little chance for danger in future.

At a short distance from the above slide, a rock evidently weighing twelve or fifteen hundred pounds, fell from the extreme point of the mountain, and leaving but an occasional touch upon the rocks below, bounded directly into the centre of the road, a distance of between five and six hundred feet, and nearly buried itself in the earth.

(From the Buffalo Journal, Sept. 9.)

Important Army Movements.—We understand that Fort Niagara is immediately to be garrisoned by four companies of the 2d Regiment of U. States Infantry, and report says that this will be made head-quarters of the frontier line of posts. By the Detroit papers we are informed of several new arrangements in the west by the War Department, among which are the reoccupancy of Fort Dearborn (Chicago) and Fort Gratiot. But the most important measure of the Department we conceive to be that of establishing a new post, immediately upon the portage between the Fox and Ouisconsin Rivers, in the country of the Winnebago Indians. Permission for this was obtained of the natives, at the late treaty at Green Bay.—The post will be called Fort Winnebago, and it is to be garrisoned by two companies of the first regiment of United States Infantry. This Fort will occupy the only intervening land, (a portage of but 6 miles) between the chain of western Lakes and the Mississippi River. The position is about central between Prarie du Chien on the Mississippi and Green Bay, and upon the extreme northern verge of the mining country. To obtain a cession of this district to the United States, was among the objects to be embraced in the late treaty at Green Bay. The purchase was not effected, but permission was obtained to occupy the mining district, until all the Indians interested in the state can be collected at a council which will convene the ensuing summer, probably at Galena, when there seems little doubt the indians propose to inform themselves of the number of the whites, by actual observation; for which purpose, 12 of their principal men came to detroit, in the Clay, on their way to Washington. They intend visiting, before they return, the seaports of New England, and many of the large interior towns of the country. "This," says the Michigan Herald, "will doubtless have a powerful effect on those savages, who have heretofore considered themselves equal in numbers to the whites, and more brave and warlike. They will soon be convinced of their error, in regard to the numerical strength of the people of the United States, and of course, less willing to put their bravery to the trial."

Should the proposed treaty, the ensuing summer, result favorably, we trust no time will be lost in rendering perfect navigation between the Fox and Ouisconsin Rivers, and thus opening the view, by the short route of the Erie Canal and the Lakes, for the flood of Emigration which is ready, through that channel, to penetrate the forests of the West.

☞ Exchange at New-York on London 11 a — per cent

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1828.

The Packet Ship Napoleon, arrived at New York, brings London dates to 25th August. The papers, says the Albion, furnish us with no later intelligence from the seat of war, than that the Russian Armies are supposed still to occupy their former positions—one before Varna, on the sea coast; another before Shumla, having taken the heights and driven in the Turkish out-posts; and the third closely investing Silistria, on the Danube. The eyes of politicians are turned with the greatest anxiety towards Shumla, for on the operations at that place, (unless it be determined to mask it, and advance upon Constantinople by way of the sea coast from Varna,) the pivot of the whole campaign will turn.

The following appointments in British North America are announced:—

FROM THE LONDON GAZETTE.

Downing-street, August 14.—The king has been pleased to appoint Lt. Gen. Sir James Kempt G.C.B., to be Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief of the Provinces of Lower and Upper Canada, Nova-Scotia, New Brunswick, and the Island of Prince Edward.

The King has also been pleased to appoint Maj. Gen. Sir Peregrine Maitland, K.C.B., to be Lieut. Gov. of the Province of Nova Scotia and its dependencies.

The King has also been pleased to appoint Maj. Gen. Sir John Colborne, K.C.B., to be Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada.

The accession of His Excellency Sir P. Maitland to the Government of Nova-Scotia, which is communicated in the above, is the best proof of the estimation in which His Excellency's services in behalf of his Country, are regarded by His Sovereign.—It is of itself a full refutation of the unprincipled attempts which have been made by a slanderous Press, to undervalue the services of a distinguished Officer, whose only desire we are confident has been, to promote the prosperity of the Colony over which he has governed for the last ten years. It needs only a comparison of the state of the Province, at the time when His Excellency assumed the reins of Government, with what it now is, to be convinced that this desire on the part of His Excellency, has not been unsuccessfully directed.

We understand that SIR JOHN COLBORNE, the newly appointed Governor of this Province, was to leave England in the Packet Ship of 1st September, via New York.

Mr. Hamilton Merritt of the Welland Canal Company has arrived at New York in the Napoleon. We have already noticed the success which has attended his unremitting exertions while in England, in behalf of this important work—with the means he has obtained its final accomplishment is now certain. The day is not distant, and a proud one it will be, to those whose patriotic exertions have been directed to the furtherance of this great national work, when the waters of Erie and Ontario, shall be mingled together, bearing on their bosom the products of the most distant parts of the Province.

Letters have been received, from London, from the Hon. Chief Justice Campbell, announcing his intention of returning to Canada this fall.

The Whitchurch Murder.—We have not yet learned the verdict of the Coroner's Jury, on the body of Isaac James, the Young Man, who was found dead, on the 30th ult., on the road side in Whitchurch, mangled in a most dreadful manner.—From all the circumstances, it is supposed, that John Christie who sometimes calls himself Wilman, and for whose apprehension, a Proclamation has been issued, offering a Reward of One Hundred Pounds, is implicated in the horrid act As soon as the Young Man's body was found, a hot pursuit was made after Christie, who is supposed to have gone to Rochester, via Queenston. We learn from a person who arrived here yesterday, from Lewistown, where he first heard of the Murder, that a Report was brought from Rochester by the Stage, that Christie had been taken, together with the Horses and Waggon.

Mr. William Crone, Contractor for Gravelling the Streets of this Town, was unfortunately drowned on Saturday last.—It appears that Mr. Crone was knocked overboard, from the Durham Boat, in which he was bringing a load of Gravel, from the Island, by the sudden shifting of the Boom, and being stunned by the blow, sunk before assistance could be rendered to him.

Niagara Assizes—The Forsyth Cases.—The Petitions presented to the House of Assembly, during the last Session of Parliament, by Mr. William Forsyth of the Niagara Falls Pavilion, as well as the proceedings had thereupon, and the language which was made use of by some of the public Journals, in relation thereto, are no doubt in the recollection of our readers.—We stated at the time, that Mr Forsyth had appealed to the Laws for redress, and that while the matters of which he complained were still pending in the Courts of Justice, he had thought proper without waiting the decision of those tribunals, to have Petitions presented to the House, containing the most inflammatory language, and charges of the grossest injustice, against the highest authorities in the Country. At the present Assizes at Niagara, the matters alluded to in Mr. Forsyth's Petitions, have been submitted to a Jury of the Country, and the public will be able to judge of the correctness of the statements which they contained, when we inform them, that the verdicts are against Mr. Forsyth.

Notice of Applications, to the Legislature, contained in the Gazette of 2nd instant.

By the Inhabitants of the County of Norfolk.—For a Sum of Money to construct a Canal, to admit the passage of Vessels and Steam Boats, through the Isthmus of Long Point in Lake Erie—and for the erection of a Pier and Light House.

An application, to alter the times of holding the District Court and Quarter Sessions, in the Ottawa District.

By the Inhabitants of the Township of Tyendenaga in the Midland District—for attaching the said Township, to the County of Lenox.

Extract from the Naval and Military Magazine, No 2, June 1827.

"LA PEROUSE."

"It would appear from the following extract of a Letter, dated "Port Louis, (Isle of France) December 19, that some intelli"gence has at length been obtained of the fate of this unfor"tunate Navigator. We have advices here of the celebrated "Navigator, Monsieur La Perouse's Sword having been found "by the Commander of a Ship who touched at one of the Mo"lucca Isles. The Inhabitants say she was driven on shore in a "tempest; and, in consequence of some misunderstanding, they "fired a broadside on shore, and in return they all were mur"dered, at least the greatest part of them. It appears his name "is very distinct on the Sword."

Death of Sir Henry Torrens.—In the London Morning Herald, of the 25th August, we find the following paragraph:—"Sir Henry Torrens, whilst riding out on Friday, did not proceed far from his country seat, where he was residing, when his horse threw him.—Sir Henry was instantly conveyed home, when it was discovered that he had burst a blood-vessel, and notwithstanding all the efforts made to save him, he expired on Saturday.

On Sunday last the Lord Bishop of Quebec Consecrated the Church at Stamford, in which his Lordship was assisted by the Rev R. Leeming and the Rev. Thomas Handcock. The Church which is now finished and called St. John's, is one of the most chaste representations we have of an English Village Church, and is fitted up with great taste and elegance. On the Friday following his Lordship confirmed at St. Catharines, and was attended in that impressive ceremony by several of the neighbouring Clergy, and a large assemblage of the people. His Lordship, after a laborious season of duty through the several Districts of the Province, embarked this morning on board the Queenston for Prescott and Quebec.—Niagara Herald.

Lower Canada.

Yesterday the 13th Regiment of foot were reviewed on the Plains of Abraham, by His Excellency Lieutenant-General Sir James Kempt. The corps made an excellent appearance, and performed the several manœuvres required by it with precision and celerity. The day was highly favorable for military parade, but as His Excellency's intention of seeing the Regiment on this day was not generally known, there were but few spectators. We learn that the Lietenant General commanding, will see the 66th Regiment on the same ground, in the early part of next week.—Quebec Mercury.

We are happy to state, that the Clock stolen from the Scotch Church, St. Gabriel-street, Montreal, as advertised in the Herald of last week, has been found in this City, by the promptitude and activity of Mr. McDonald the Auctioneer, to whom it was sent for sale. It has been sworn to, and the person in whose possession it was found, fully committed for trial.—Part of the Minister's gown was also discovered in his possession, and some other articles belonging to the same church, though not mentioned in the advertisement.—Quebec Star.

Port of Quebec.

ARRIVED

Sept. 16...Ship Priscilla, Cork. 8 settlers.
..17..Brig Sophia, Belfast, ballast.
....Schooner Pilot, Bic.
....Bark Prince, London, ballast.
....Ship Suffold, Hull, do.
....Ship Brilliant, Liverpool, do.
....Ship Latona, Lancaster, do.
..19..Brig Romanoff, Newcastle, coals and glass.
Sept. 20...Bark Perseus, Cork, ballast.
....21—Brig Sophia, Newcastle, general cargo.
....22—Brig Anne, London, ballast.
....23—Brig Harmony, New-castle, ballast.
.....Brigantine Catharine, Antigua, rum and molasses.

Provincial.

HALIFAX, September 6.

The appointment of Sir Howard Douglas, as envoy to Russia on the Boundary Line question, it appears, is confirmed. He will be accompanied by the Honorable Judge Chipman, commissioned to act with him in the business.—The appointment of Sir Howard and the Judge, after what has lately occurred in the case of Baker, shows decidedly that Government has approved of their conduct in that affair. It is known that Judge Chipman is well acquainted with the rights of the British claims to the present disputed territory. Sir Howard has had his attention directed to it so often since he entered upon his government, and has been, as we are credibly informed, indefatigable in researches connected with it, that from the very superior abilities of both we augur favorably of the result.

But if these Gentlemen are to reside at, or rather, follow the Court of Russia, till it has leisure even to deliberate on a question which must appear to it so insignificant, amidst the conquests of territories so much more extensive, populous, and altogether valuable, they must form part of the Autocrat's suite at his entrance into Constantinople; and perhaps be witnesses of the complete extension of the Turkish Empire. Till then, the Czar's ear will not be gained to a question of so little importance in his eyes, when he has greater objects in view.—Acadian Reporter.

Married,

At Kingston, on Thursday evening, by the Rev. Dr. Stuart, Mr Thomas H. Bentley, Printer, to Miss Eliza Olcott.

Died,

On Thursday 2nd instant, at York.—Joel H Beman, infant Son of Mr. Joel Beman—aged 4 years.—Affliction has pressed heavily on Mr. Beman's family, this being the third Child, they have lost, within the three last weeks.

On the 22d ult, at the Ontario House, Niagara Falls, Mr. Silvius Hoard, late keeper of that splendid establishment.

In Queenston, last evening, James B. Forster, of a consumption, aged 19 years.

At Hog's Back, near By Town, on the 14th ult., Samuel Clowes, Sen. Esq. Civil Engineer U. C., aged 68.

At Green Bay, (Adolphustown) on Monday last, Mary, daughter of the late Samuel Clowes, Esq., aged 30

On Sunday, at Ernest Town, Mrs. Johnson, wife of Mr. Daniel Johnson.

On Monday last, at Ernest Town, Mr. [illegible] aged.

Same day at Bath, Mrs Forward, wife Doctor Forward.

On Tuesday, at Ernest Town, Mr. Duncan Macpherson.

At his place of residence, at Grantham, on the 11th ult., Mr. Jacob Dettrick, aged near 80 years. Mr. D. was brought up on the banks of the Mohawk River, now State of New-York.—When the Rebellion took place in that country, he remained true to his King and Country, joined the British standard, and served His Majesty during the war, a sergeant in Butler's Rangers. At the peace of 1784, he took his land on the banks of the 12 mile creek, and resided there ever since, much respected in the neighborhood—brought up a numerous family, who are respectably settled.

On Sunday the 20th instant, Mrs. Richard Warffe, of Bath.

POLICE OFFICE, YORK, }
27th Sept'r, 1828. }

AT Special Session of Court of Quarter Sessions for the Home District, held this day, it was ordered that Simon Graham be appointed Inspector of Chimneys for the Town of York.

ALEX'R. McDONELL,
17 i CHAIRMAN.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL GROCERY STORE.—The Subscriber respectfully informs the Inhabitants of York and its vicinity, that he has opened a Store in the above line, on the Corner of Church and Palace Streets, where he is now prepared to serve them with the choicest articles and at very low prices. The following are a few of the articles in his line, viz:—

O. L. P. Madeira,	London Porter,
F. Madeira,	Teas of all descriptions,
L. M. Do	D. R. Loaf Sugar,
Prime Port,	S. R. Loaf Sugar,
Second do.	Muscovado do.
Sherry,	East India do.
Cagniac Brandy,	Mace, Cloves,
Bordeaux do.	Cinnamon, Nutmegs,
H. Gin,	Alspice, Black Pepper,
Jamaica Spirits,	White Pepper,
Peppermint,	Mustard in Jars, ¼ & ½ lbs.
Shrub,	Isinglass, Arrow Root,
White Wine Vinegar,	Macaroni, Vermicilli,
Limejuice,	Curry Powder,
Molasses,	Raisins, Figs,
Olive Oil for Lamps,	Starch, Blue,
Linseed do.	Tobacco, Pipes, Blacking.
London Brown Stout,

And a variety of articles in the Grocery line.

JAMES F. SMITH.
York, 17th September, 1828. 15

ALLIANCE BRITISH AND FOREIGN Life and Fire Assurance Company, OF LONDON.
(CAPITAL—Five Millions Sterling.)

THE Subscriber having been appointed AGENT to the above Company, at York, he is ready to Insure against loss or damage by Fire at moderate rates of Premium. The high standing of this Institution in England, and the Company allowing their Agents in Montreal to settle losses in this Country, with the Assured participating in the Profits of the Company, renders it worthy of Public Confidence.

R. W. PRENTICE.
York, November 18th, 1826. 25.

Storage & Commission Ware-House.

THE SUBSCRIBER begs leave to inform his friends and the public that he has purchased the Store-House, Wharf, &c. lately the property of William Cooper, Esq'r, in this Town, where he will receive, store, and sell, on Commission, on the most reasonable terms, all descriptions of produce or merchandize, with which he may be favored.

The buildings are extensive and convenient, being at the head of the Wharf, where all vessels which come into the Bay, principally discharge and take in their cargoes. He flatters himself that the care and attention of the person superintending the Wharf and Store, will give general satisfaction.

There will be for sale a constant supply of Pork, Flour, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Peas, Salt, and Whiskey, also Stoves, Potash Kettles, Coolers, Sugar Kettles, a variety of castings and Grindstones.

The Subscriber has also for sale upwards of 2500 Acres unimproved Lands of superior quality, in the most flourishing Townships, and convenient to York, which he will sell very low and on easy terms to actual settlers.

WM. BERGIN.
York, February 28th, 1828. 41tf.

VALUABLE FREEHOLD IN YORK, FOR SALE.—The Subscriber offers for sale by private bargain that valuable freehold in the Town of York, on Newgate Street, consisting of a Dwelling House and Workshop, together with a Garden and Yard. MATTHEW WALTON.
York, September 17th, 1828. x. 15

The Army.

The Officers of the 9th Lancers, had subscribed 800 guineas for a piece of plate, to be presented to Colonel Morehead, on his retirement from the command of that regiment. A most magnificent piece, tastefully decorated, was in consequence prepared, and ready for delivery, when the melancholy intelligence reached this country, that the Colonel had suddenly died at Paris. It is expected, that the plate will be presented to his family.

Domestic.

(From the Upper Canada Gazette of 25th, Sept.)

GOVERNMENT HOUSE,
York, 20th Sept. 1828.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, has been pleased to make the following appointments, vice Stephen Heward Esq. deceased. viz:—Charles R. Heward Esq., to be Clerk of the District Court for the Home District.

James Fitz Gibbon Esq., to be Registrar of the Court of Probate, for this Province, Commissions dated 8th September 1828. Also, under the Great Seal of the Province, D'Arcy Boulton Esq., to be Auditor of Land Patents for this Province, Commission dated 30th August.

George Savage Esq., to be Collector of the Customs for the Port of York, vice the Honorable William Allan resigned, Commission dated 22d September, 1828.

ACCIDENTS.—A resident near Queenston, of the name of James Scott, being fishing with a scoop net in the rapids above Queenston—on the evening of the 16th, him and two of his sons had made a fire—he went a little distance from that to fish, and was heard to make an exclamation; when the sons went he was not to be found—nor has the body yet been found.—He has left a wife and family in indigent circumstances.—On the same day a stranger from the United States fell off a Durham boat, in Chippawa, and was lost.

The Court of Nisi Prius was opened this day by Judge Hagerman. the Hon. Thomas Clark, the Hon. William Dickson, James Muirhead, and William Crooks, Esq'rs. Associate Judges. The Grand Jury being sworn, a very appropriate Address was delivered by the Judge.—Gleaner.

Fatal Battle.—At a Logging Bee in Toronto, on the 24th August, a fight took place between George Cooper and Joseph Oliver, which resulted in the death of the latter. We understand that the deceased was buried without an inquest being held, and that no judicial investigation has yet grown out of the fatal rencounter.—Niagara Herald.

Drowned, on Tuesday of last week, at the mouth of the Welland River, village of Chippawa, William Mowright, an Italian by birth, recently from Buffalo. A Jury of Inquest was held before Gilbert McMicking, Esq'r. Coroner—Verdict, Accidental death.—ib.

A Mr. John Robertson, an Emigant, who came out this summer from Westmoreland, England, and who had been residing with Mr. Burns, of Maitland, in passing through a field, on Tuesday last, was attacked by a bull belonging to Mr. Longley. The animal knocked him down by goring him in the thigh, in which he made a terrible gash; and afterwards, before any assistance could reach the unfortunate man, drove his horn into his chest, breaking the breast bone. The bull was at last driven away by persons who pelted him with stones, and Robertson was carried to the house of Mr. Burns, where he was attended by three Medical Gentlemen as soon as they could possibly be procured, but without success, for he lingered in great pain until yesterday, when he died.—Brockville Gazette.

Margaret, daughter of Mr. George Johnston, fell from a wharf in Prescott, on Wednesday last, and was drowned.—ib.

We regret to state, that Mr. John Shereff, a contractor on the Rideau Canal, died on the 23d instant, of the prevailing fever, at Chaffy's Mills, Crosby.—ib.

COBOURG, 19th SEPTEMBER, 1828.

The Lord Bishop of Quebec made his first visitation to the District of Newcastle last week. Shortly after his arrival at Cobourg, a deputation of the principal inhabitants of that place and its vicinity waited upon his Lordship with the following address:—

To the Right Reverend Father in God, CHARLES JAMES, Lord Bishop of Quebec.

May it please your Lordship;

We the undersigned inhabitants of Cobourg and its vicinity, members, adherents, and friends, of the Church of England, avail ourselves of the opportunity afforded by your Lordship's first pastoral visitation to this District, to offer our sincere congratulations to your Lordship on your elevation to a station where your well known piety and zeal cannot but add increased success to the cause which has heretofore so warmly engaged your Lordship's interests and exertions.

While your Lordship's desire, as an "overseer of the Church," to guard and advance the spiritual interests of this Province generally affords us unfeigned satisfaction, we have other and more individual sources of pleasure in the prospect of the celebration of those rites and ordinances of our Church, which knit every branch of the community together in the bonds of Christian fellowship, and by their solemnity and importance, give an increased incitement to the due fulfilment of our moral and religious duties.

To this we beg leave to add the contemplated formation of a Society in connection with that Venerable Institution in the Mother Country by whose exertions the cause of true religion has been so eminently furthered; in which design we both hope for and solicit your Lordship's countenance and aid. A society which, by affording the means of diffusing the light and consolations of religion where they may hitherto have failed to penetrate, will be hailed by all as the harbinger of joy to the "wilderness," and the herald of gladness to the "solitary place."

To those amongst us whose attachment to the forms and doctrines of our Venerable Church has, from the first dawn of reason, "grown with our growth and strengthened with our strength," as well as to those whose access to her pale has been more recent, every thing which has a tendency to promote the spread of her pure and mild principles is matter of no ordinary interest. We cannot but warmly desire that all men should be enabled to participate in that which has been to ourselves the guide of erring youth, and to which we look forward as the stay and consolation of declining age.

We beg leave to offer to your Lordship our sincere wishes that you may enjoy years of continued health and usefulness and that under your superintending care we may witness the advancement of our Church, to which, alike from claims of national affection as individual affection, we feel a devoted attachment. Satisfied that her tenets are those of "pure religion and undefiled," we view her success and prosperity as a sure indication of the approach of that glorious period when earth's remotest corner shall hear the glad tidings of the gospel of peace, be actuated by its influence here, and enjoy its promised blessings hereafter.

Signed by about ninety persons, almost all heads of families.

To which His Lordship was pleased to make the following reply:

GENTLEMEN,

Inhabitants of Cobourg and its vicinity, members, adherents and friends of the Church of England:

Accept my sincere thanks for your warm congratulations on my elevation to the Episcopal Office, and I beg to assure you that the interests of the Church in this part of my diocese, shall ever be the object of my care and solicitude.

I derive great satisfaction from your expressions of regard to the rites and ordinances of our Church, and I heartily concur with you in the sentiment that their tendency is to promote christian charity, and preserve her members "in the unity of the spirit, the bond of peace, and in righteousness of life."

Your intention of forming a District Committee in this town, for the promotion of Christian Knowledge, in connection with the Parent Institution, I highly approve, and you may depend on my countenance and support towards carrying into effect so desirable an object.

I congratulate you on your attachment to the doctrines and formulas of our truly Apostolic Church. Their best recommendation is, that they have the Holy Scriptures for their foundation, and speak not the words which man's wisdom speaketh," but the words which "the Holy Ghost teacheth."

Your kind and affectionate wishes that I may enjoy years of continued health and usefulness, I duly appreciate. Length of years may be deemed a blessing, if those years are devoted to the service of Almighty God. And may I not in his mercy grant that my life may be employed in successfully propagating the Gospel of his Son our Saviour Jesus Christ. I am deeply impressed with the awful responsibility that now devolves on me, but I look for strength—not my own—to enable me faithfully to discharge the important and sacred duties of my office. I implore the Divine blessing on all our undertakings designed to promote his glory, the happiness of one another, and of all our fellow creatures.—K. Chronicle.

Varieties.

Novelties in Gentlemen's Dresses, &c.—The most fashionable have left off wearing stays; but the waistcoats descend very low, and are laced behind like a corset. The waist of the frock coat is now so long that where it is buckled it wrinkles up, and forms plaits across Coats, whether of merino or cloth, have collars of rather a large size. The part which turns back, is narrow, flat, and very long. The waist is broad, and the flaps are so large that they not only cover the hips, but the chief part of the thighs Any gentleman who wishes to be thought really fashionable, ought to wear in the buttonhole of his coat, a rose.—When at dress parties, this bud should be placed between his shirt and his under waistcoat. The trowsers descends as low, that the tailors hollow them out on each hip; without that precaution they would tuck up. There is a kind of washing material for pantaloons, which is double twilled, and of different colours—green and grey, blue and grey, or yellow and white. Pantaloons of this kind are made in the Russian fashion, without any plaits. When a dasher is walking, he puts one hand in his pocket behind, and brings the flap of his coat forward on one side. It used to be remarked in riding conversation, that a tall thin man, with his waist pinched in, and if he is withall very full, looks like a grasshopper in an asthma.—London Gentleman's Magazine of Fashion.

BALLOON ACCIDENT.—Mr. Green, the aeronaut, ascended in his balloon from Manchester on Thursday last, accompanied by a Mr. Strapps of that town. After having been in the air about an hour and a quarter, Mr. Green, while throwing out the grapnel over the moors of Derby Bidge, was tossed out of the car, but still kept a hold of its edge, and remained suspended in that state by the arms for some time. While endeavoring to get again into the car, a sudden jerk, caused by the breaking of the grapnel iron from its hold, precipitated him to the ground with great force, and from a considerable height. The balloon, thus lightened ascended with Mr. Strapps, who however, succeeded in bringing it and himself safely to the ground, about half a mile from the spot where Mr. Green had fallen. Mr. Green shortly came up, and the two aeronauts immediately returned, with their machine, to Manchester, where Mr Green now lies seriously indisposed, from the effects of this awful accident.—Leeds (Eng.) Intelligencer.

YORK RACES.

Monday, 6th October.

MAITLAND STAKES, $100.

ENTRANCE—TEN DOLLARS, EACH, P. P.

To which will be added 100 Dollars; Ten Stone each; Three Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Gentlemen Riders: The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for $200.

SECOND RACE—SAME DAY. $80.

ENTRANCE—FIVE DOLLARS EACH, P. P.

Fifty Dollars added; Weight for Age; 3 years 7st 12lbs; 4 years 8st 10lbs; 5 years 9st 3lbs; 6 years 9st 10lbs; Aged 10st. Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Jockey Riders. The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for $100.

Wednesday, 8th October.

YORK STAKES, $100.

ENTRANCE—TEN DOLLARS EACH, P. P.

One Hundred Dollars added: Weight for Age; 3 years 7st 12lbs; 4 years 8st 10lbs; 5 years 9st 3lbs; 6 years 9st 10lbs; Aged 10st. Three Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Gentlemen Riders; the Winner of the Maitland Stakes (should be run) to carry 7lb extra. The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for 200 Dollars.

SECOND RACE, SAME DAY: $80.

ENTRANCE—FIVE DOLLARS EACH, P. P.

Fifty Dollars added; 10st each; Two Rounds of the Course: Best of Heats; The Winner (if challenged within two hours) to be sold for 100 Dollars. The Winner of the Second Race on Monday (should he run) to carry 7 lbs extra.

Friday, the 10th of October.

LADIES PURSE.

ENTRANCE, $4.

Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; Weight to be Handicapped by the Stewards. Gentlemen Riders.

SECOND RACE, SAME DAY.

Beaten Plate for all Beaten Horses.

ENTRANCE, FOUR DOLLARS.

Two Rounds of the Course; Best of Heats; The Weight to be Handicapped by the Stewards.

STEWARDS.

Mr. C. C. SMALL, Lt. SMYTH, 68th Regt.
Lt. DUFF, 68th Regt. Lt. ELMSLEY, R. N.
Mr. SHERIFF JARVIS,

RULES AND REGULATIONS, OF THE
YORK RACES.

1st. The above Races will commence on Monday the 6ixth of October next.

2nd. No Horse will be allowed to Start which is not Bona Fide the property of a person having subscribed a Sum not less than Five Dollars, and who resides within Forty Miles of the Town of York. All Horses to have been in the possession of the person entering them Four Weeks previous to the first day's running.

3rd. Entire Horses to carry three pounds extra.

4th. Horses to be entered eight days previous to the first day's running, or to pay double entrance if entered subsequently.

5th. That all persons entering Horses are supposed to have made themselves acquainted with these Rules and Regulations.

6th. That half an hour be allowed between each Heat of the same Race.

7th. Riders must ride to the Weighing Post after each Heat to weigh, and he that dismounts before, or wants weight, is distanced.

8th. Horses distanced if their Riders Cross or Jostle, or the Heat to be run again, at the discretion of the Stewards.

9th. When Three Horses have each won a Heat, they only can start for a Fourth.

10th. In all Heats not less than Two Rounds of the Course; the Distance Post to be fixed at the established distance of 240 Yards.

11th. All Money for Entrance or Sweepstakes, to be paid to the Treasurer or Stewards previous to Starting.

12th. That any person wishing to erect a Booth, or Tent, on the Race Ground, shall give notice thereof one week before the Races commence, and pay Five Dollars to the Treasurer.

13th. That the Stewards in all decisions shall be guided by the Laws of Racing as specified in the London Racing Calendar.

14th. That Horses do Start, for the first Race on each day, precisely at Two o'clock.

15th. Not more than Six Horses to Start for any one Race. Those first entered (of course) getting the preference

16th. No person will be allowed to ride who is not properly dressed.

17th. The Winner of each Race to pay Four Dollars for Scales, Straw, &c. &c.

COMMITTEE.

MAJOR WINNIETT, 68th Regt. HON. J. H. DUNN,
The SOLICITOR GENERAL, Mr. SHERIFF JARVIS,
JOHN RADENHURST, Esq. LIEUT. HUEY, 68th Regt.
Mr. STANTON, TREASURER.

York, 12th August 1828.

THE LOYALIST.
VOL. I. NO. 18.
YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY OCTOBER 11, 1828.

Poetry.

STANZAS WRITTEN FOR MUSIC.

Lady, why thus turn away
Youth and he—thy's many glance!
Why, where all around are gay,
Tread'st not thou the lightsome dance?
Are thy thoughts on music bent,
Is't for that thy young cheeks glow?
Would'st thou hence the minstrel went?
Lady, no! lady, no!

Hark! I hear a deep-drawn sigh!
Wildly throbs thy snowy breast!
Lo! a tear-drop pearls thine eye—
It is Pity's pilgrim guest!
Yet that sigh what does it there?
Wherefore does that tear-drop flow!
It is sorrow claims thy care!
Lady, no! lady, no!

Near thee stands a youthful form,
Looking thoughts no words may speak;
Glances bright, and blushes warm,
Light his eye, and light his cheek;
For he sings of "Love's young dream,"
O'er his lyre as bends he low;
Would'st thou have him change the theme!
Lady, no! lady, no!

Miscellaneous.

ADELAIDE: A SKETCH.

The morning mists had disappeared, and the sun had burst forth with unusual brilliancy, its bright rays reflected in the beautiful stream that meanders through Elmwood Park, as I paused at an open window to bid a long adieu to the scenery around, and to the home which I loved. It was, in truth, a beautiful prospect; and I remained gazing intently upon it, until, aroused by hearing the gentle accents of a female voice in an adjacent room, I recollected that I was about to offer my congratulations to my cousin, Adelaide Manvers, on her bridal morning, and to bid her a long and perhaps an eternal farewell. My heart beat tumultuously as I entered her apartment; but a strong effort enabled me to subdue my agitation. I approached Adelaide, and, placing a diadem of pearls beside her, I expressed, in a few words, my sincere wishes for her happiness. "But, why will you leave us, Horace?" said the sweet girl; "surely you can remain with us one day longer?" and she looked earnestly at me, while a deep blush spread itself over her ingenuous countenance. Alas! she little knew the agony I suffered in being obliged to leave her, nor the deep, the very deep interest I took in her welfare. I endeavoured to convince her that long delay was impossible, and that I had already exceeded the time allowed to me. "Well, then," said Adelaide, "if you are indeed going, I have a little gift for you" (and she placed in my hand a small miniature of herself cased in gold) "which will sometimes serve to remind you of a cousin who will ever remember with affection the friend of her youth."

I strove to speak; but the words died away on my tongue, and, hastily clasping her to my heart, with the freedom which our long intimacy and relationship warranted, I pressed my lips on her beautiful brow, and rushed from the room. Years have passed away since then, but that interview still lives in my memory! Adelaide Manvers was the orphan child of my father's favourite sister. Both of her parents had died when she was very young. My mother received her under her protection, and she was educated with my sister Catharine. I was ten years the senior of Adelaide; and, when she first became an inmate of our family, I was preparing for the university, and had but little intercourse with my pretty cousin. Years rolled onwards, and the joyous laughing child ripened into a beautiful and artless girl, whose smiles and presence formed to me the chief attraction of my home, and whose grace and engaging simplicity were never-failing objects of interest and delight. Adelaide was, however, unconscious that I entertained for her a sentiment warmer than that of friendship; nor had I the courage to make her acquainted with my feelings, as I feared to interrupt the harmony then existing between us. About this time an opportunity presented itself for my accompanying a gentleman in the continental tour, and as I was much pressed to avail myself of the offer by my father, and could offer no plausible reason for refusing, I reluctantly consented. I was absent two years, and during that time the sweet image of Adelaide haunted me, and I thought of her with unabated affection. At length I returned, and hastened to embrace my family, who were then staying at Southampton. Adelaide was with them, and—how beautiful she looked! Every where she was the object of universal attraction; but I thought less of her personal loveliness than of the endearing and estimable qualities of her heart and mind. We renewed our former friendly intercourse, and hope whispered to my heart that I might yet be happy. Soon, however, I learned with dismay, that Sir James Stanley was an ardent admirer of my cousin Adelaide, and that it was suspected she regarded him with partiality. Here was a death-blow to the airy fabric of happiness which I had been raising. The Baronet was younger than myself; handsome, and of most polished manners. He evidently sought to gain Adelaides affection, and I watched her closely when in company with him. I saw the deepened blush on the cheek of my cousin when the young Baronet addressed her, and the sparkle of her eye as she listened to his welcome conversation; from that moment the longtreasured and secret hopes of my heart died within me. I saw that her young heart's affections were fixed, and that she was lost to me for ever. I resolved that my wretchedness and disappointment should be buried in the recesses of my own heart. Sir James soon after made proposals for the hand of Adelaide, which were accepted. I know not why, but though he was a general favourite in society, I never liked him. I suspected that much of dissimulation lurked beneath his smooth exterior and insinuating address. Though I knew Adelaide would soon be the bride of another, I still lingered near her; willing to listen to her sweet voice, and gaze upon her enchanting smile; but when the day of her union was fixed, I awoke from my trance to a full sense of my misery. I felt that I could not witness her the wife of another, and retain my senses. I resolved to leave England for India, where I had an uncle, who had for many years filled an important post under the Government. "I will quit England," I exclaimed in bitter sorrow, "for years, perhaps for ever, and lose, if possible, the remembrance of my misery amid new scenes and scenery." My wish was at first strenuously objected to by my family; but when they saw my settled determination, they refrained from offering further opposition, and a day was named for my departure. Circumstances, immaterial now, connected with the Baronet's family, obliged him to name an earlier day for his marriage than he had anticipated, and it happened to be the very one which was also to witness my departure from Elmwood Park, my paternal home. I was indeed importuned to remain and witness Adelaide's espousals; but I offered so plausible an excuse that it was quite sufficient to satisfy the unsuspecting mind of Adelaide. At length the morning of my departure came.—My parting scene with Adelaide I have already described; but how shall I tell of the bitter dejection with which I sank back in the carriage as it swept round the lawn, when I saw the wave of Adelaide's hand at the window, and felt that on earth I must behold her beloved form no more, or look on her as the wife of another!

While in India I heard frequently from my sister Catharine. She, however, said very little respecting Adelaide, as I half suspect that she had some idea of my unhappy attachment; but I learned that Adelaide was a mother, and that Sir James was extremely gay, and the first to join in every fashionable extravagance. I sighed when I read this, for my heart whispered to me that Adelaide was unhappy, as I knew her habits and disposition were averse to scenes of wreckless gaiety and dissipation. Time soothed my bitter feelings of disappointment, and the novel scenes of activity in which I engaged, tended to dissipate my unhappiness, until at length I was enabled to think of Adelaide with calmness, yet still as a dear and cherished being for whose welfare I felt the most tender solicitude.

I had been twelve years in India, when my uncle died, and left me the bulk of his property; the remainder to be equally divided between Adelaide and my sister Catharine. When I lost my uncle I had no remaining tie in India, and I felt a longing desire to revisit my native shores, and to embrace my mother and sister—my father had been dead some years. How my heart even then throbbed when I thought that I should see Adelaide!

I found my mother but little touched by time; scarcely a furrow on her brow, and she wore the same placid smile as ever: and Catharine, dear Catharine, still as lively and good-humoured as when I left her. A tear trembled in my sister's eye, however, when she spoke of Adelaide. Sir James, she told me, was then on the continent; but neither my mother nor herself had seen Adelaide for the last two years, though they yet corresponded. Sir James looked on them as unwelcome visitors; and they, in their turn, could not conceal the disgust they felt at his neglect of Adelaide, nor bear to witness her dejection, the cause for which she sedulously abstained from spe king of, and they were too delicate to mention, as she seemed to wish to avoid it. Their circumstances were no longer flourishing; for Sir James's debts of honour had dissipated the greater part of his fortune. Adelaide was said to be in ill health! and there were rumours abroad that the Baronet's conduct was exceedingly harsh and unfeeling.—Three children had died in their infancy, and one only was now living—a girl.

I will not endeavor to paint my feeling when I listened to this melancholy recital. Adelaide was unhappy! and I could offer no consolation; but I could see her, and my friendship might yet be of service to her. This resolution I resolved immediately to execute; and a few trifling matters, relative to the fortune which my uncle had left her, formed a sufficient excuse for my soliciting an interview.

It was the season of spring when I arrived at Lee Priory, a small estate of the Baronet's, in the county of Dorset, and the only one, I believe, which his propensities for gaming had left him. Adelaide had resided there for the last year. The situation of the Priory was in truth beautiful in the extreme: it stood on a gentle eminence, whence the eye looked out on fertile meads, rich in wood and water; and the extreme verge of the prospect was lost in the blue waves of the distant ocean. Yet there was something about the Priory itself, which seemed to speak of desolation, as I passed through its beautiful but neglected gardens, and I sighed to think how much it was in unison with the heart of its mistress. I was informed by the servant that Lady Mantravers was at home, and I was shown into the library, where I had time to recollect my scattered thoughts, and to preserve my fortitude, which seemed on the point of deserting me, for the approaching interview.

A beautiful whole-length portrait of Adelaide hung over the fire-place, so like, so very like her when I last saw her, that, as I gazed upon it, I almost believed the years that had passed an illusion. I was awakened from my reverie by a beautiful little girl running into the room, apparently about five years old, with a little basket of flowers in her hand. I had scarcely time, however, to look at her ere I heard Adelaide's voice; and she advanced to meet and welcome me as an old friend. I looked at her, but, gracious heavens! what a change was there! Had it not been for her voice, I could scarcely have believed that it was Adelaide that stood before me. She was very thin—alarmingly so. I looked for the sunny smile which I remembered, but it was gone; the rose had died from her cheeks—they were very pale, but her hair was still soft and beautiful, and her voice as sweet and gentle as ever. Adelaide saw in a moment the cause of my emotion.—"Ah, Mr. Morton!" she said, with a melancholy smile,

"I see you have forgotten the years that have passed since we met, and you find me sadly changed." My heart was too full to speak. "I am far from well at present," she continued; "my spirits, too, have left me sadly of late; but I have a little antidote here, which seldom fails to restore me in my melancholy moods;" and she drew forth her little girl and presented her to me. She was a lovely child, the very image of Adelaide herself, when she first came under my mother's protection, save that there was a shade of thoughtfulness over her sweet face, which her mother, at her age, had not. I placed her on my knee, and, encouraged by my caresses, she began prattling to me with all that bewitching artlessness which renders childhood so attractive.

"And how is dear Catharine?" said Adelaide, I told her that she was well, and regretted that they did not meet more frequently. "Alas!" she continued, "Catharine cannot regret our separation more than I do. Circumstances, however, forbid our meeting; but I trust your sister still thinks of me with affection." I endeavoured to assure her that Catharine's regard for her was as lively as ever. "You may perhaps smile" replied Adelaide; "but I have a fancy that my time in this world will be short, and the wish nearest my heart is, that your estimable mother and dear Catharine would consent to take charge of my little treasure;"—and she pointed to her infant daughter. I expressed my hopes that she would yet live many years, and regain her former strength and spirits. "My physicians tell me that I shall," she said, "but I know better—the seeds of decay are too deeply sown to be eradicated; nor do I wish to live, save for Adelaide. Life has no charms for me. But, enough of this. Will you take charge of a packet for your sister, wherein I have fully expressed my earnest wishes respecting my child?" I readily promised to do so, and assured her that I felt certain of their being complied with. I, however, hinted that Sir James might not accede.—"Sir James," she said, "has seriously promised never to interfere with any arrangement of mine respecting Adelaide; and I thing he would respect the dying request of his wife."—Then all shall be as you wish," I exclaimed; and for myself, I will cherish your little Adelaide with a father's kindness. She shall be the object of my solicitude, and the heiress of my fortune!" "God bless you, Horace!" said Adelaide; and her whole countenance lighted up for a moment with unusual brilliancy. "I believe and accept your kind offer. Oh, you know not the weight of anguish from which you have relieved me."

She bent her head, and her eyes were filled with tears, which little Adelaide observing, she stole gently on the sofa behind her mother, and, throwing her arms round her neck, sought to soothe her by her infantile caresses. I was visibly affected, and I spoke of a change of climate, which might, I thought, have a beneficial effect upon Adelaide's health. She shook her head. "No! No!" said she, "no change of climate will benefit me: it is too late: my illness is here—here!" and she laid her hand on her heart: "this is broken—withered—miserable." She stopped for a moment, and I dared not trust myself to reply. "This may be our last interview, Horace," she continued; "why, then, O why, should I seek to hide from you, the friend of my youth, that my marriage with Sir James has been productive of misery! An unhappy propensity to play lured him from his home; he seemed to exist only in a crowd. I was neglected and forgotten, and he threw from him the love which I bore to him then.—Then, did I say?" cried Adelaide, as she hid her face in her hands, and burst into tears. "Alas! alas! my affections knows no decay—it will not fade until death. Hear me," continued Adelaide; "watch over my child, I charge you, and save her from her mother's fate. Let her not give her heart and affections to one who will break her gentle spirit by his unkindness, and then leave her to sorrow and scorn." "I will shield her from every evil, Adelaide, that human foresight can guard against; but, tell me," I said; "wherein can I serve you?" Any thing that the most sincere friendship can—" "No! No!" said she, hastily; "for myself I have nothing to ask. Think of me as of one whose sand of life is nearly run out, and whose cares and sorrows will soon be hushed in the tranquility of the tomb. Farewell, Horace," she said, as she extended her hand to me. "My blessing and my prayers shall follow you, who have promised to be the faithful guardian of my child."—"God for ever shield you, Adelaide," I cried, as I tenderly kissed her hand; and, disengaging myself from the grasp of her little girl, I quitted the apartment.

It was the last interview with Adelaide.—I saw the being whom I had so fondly loved no more! When the cold winds of autumn swept the leaves from the trees, Adelaide was at rest in the grave; her gentle spirit had passed away from this scene of sin and suffering. I had faithfully fulfilled my promise respecting her child. Ten years have now passed away since she came under my roof; and her affectionate attentions and engaging cheerfulness enliven my declining years, and soothe the many melancholy thoughts which, even now, often press on my spirits, when I think of her mother—of Adelaide, my first and only love.

DISCOVERY OF ANCIENT STATUES.

ROME, Aug. 14.—The 21st of July was a day of rejoicing for all the antiquaries and literati at Brescia, and highly interesting to the inhabitants of that city. On a neighbouring hill there has stood, from time immemorial, a large marble column, and there was a tradition that it belonged to a great temple of Hercules, which had stood there in remote antiquity. For these two years past the magis rates have caused excavations to a great extent to be made on the spot, the result of which confirmed the truth of the tradition. From time to time important monuments of ancient architecture and Roman inscriptions were brought to light, and every thing indicated that a most extensive edifice had stood there. At length the foundations of an immense temple were uncovered, with entrances to several covered passages. These were examined and, on the day above mentioned, the workmen found in one of them several inches walled up. They were opened and in one of them was found a colossal winged Victoria of bronze, and of admirable workmanship. In another six large busts, and part of a horse. In a third and fourth a richly-gilt Statue, four and a half feet high, of a captive King, and colossal arm; all of them are likewise of bronze and of fine workmanship.—There are also several inscriptions in the building, one of which mentions the Brixia Romana. The eyes of the King and of the Victoria are of onyx. They are all in perfect preservation, and, from the situation in which they were found, it is evident that they were concealed and walled up for security, for both the wings and arms of the Victoria were taken off and laid a. her feet.

CATACOMBS IN EGYPT.

The celebrated Aaron Hill, when in Egypt, had the curiosity to examine a Catacomb. He was accompanied in his expedition by two gentlemen, and conducted by one of the natives of the country as a guide.—They at length arrived at the spot, and, without taking any notice of some fellows who were sauntering about the place, decended by ropes into the vault. No sooner were they let down, than they were presented with a spectacle which struck them with horror. Two gentlemen, apparently wasted to death, lay before them; one of these unhappy victims had a tablet in his hand, on which was written, in very pathetic language, the story of their lamentable fate. It seemed that they were brothers of rank and family in Venice, and having in the course of their travels, entrusted some money with one of the natives, for the purpose of visiting the Catacomb, the perfidious villain had left them to perish. The danger to which Mr. Hill and his friends were exposed, instantly alarmed them. They had scarce read the tablet, when looking up, they beheld their inhuman guide, assisted by two others, to whom they had seen near the spot, enclosing the entrance into the vault. They were now reduced to the utmost distress; they, however, drew their swords, determined to make a desperate effort to rescue themselves from a situation so appalling. With this resolution, they were groping about at random, in the dark, when they were startled at the groans of some one, seemingly in the agonies of death. They listened to the dismal sound, and at length, by the glimmering light from the top of the catacomb, they saw a man just murdered, and lifted beyond their by beheld his inhuman murderers, flying with the utmost precipitation. They pursued them immediately, and, though, not able to come up with them, they had the good fortune to reach the opening through which the wretches escaped out of the cavern, just before they had time to roll the stone on the top of it.

MAJOR LAING.

In the last number of the QUARTERLY REVIEW, there is an interesting notice of the life of Leyland, by Mr. Jared Sparkes, late Editor of the North American Review, and now in Europe, employed in the collation of the Washington papers. In the following extract from the Quarterly, we are glad to find that reasonable doubts are manifested of the truth of the accounts which have been lately published, relative to the fate of Major Alexander Gordon Laing, the celebrated African traveller.

The rumor of his death originated from an Arab who had been Major Laing's servant, and who had left him in consequence of the sickness of his master, and the death of several Persons who were with him. He accordingly joined a Koffle, or Caravan, to Tripoli. At that time Major Laing was in a very weak state from his previous sickness, and several of his party were dead.—In Heriseau's Libra ary:—

"No further intelligence than what the Arab servant brought being received from Major Laing, the British Consul urged the Bashaw of Tripoli to send out Couriers in all directions, to cause inquiries to be made concerning him. On the 26th of February, 1827, the return of the Courier from Ghadamis brought letters for the Bashaw and the Consul, in which it was stated that a Moorish lad from the house of Mesdeah's sons at Fuat, who told him Laing was in Timbuctoo, in good health and spirits. To pacify the Consul, who was deeply interested in Laing's fate, the Bashaw had furnished him with copies of no less than six letters, purporting the interest which he (the Bashaw) took in the English traveller, and desiring them to come very possible inquiry to be made as to his safety. On the 31st of March, the Bashaw's minister acquainted the Consul with some of the answers which his master had received to those inquiries. They stated that the Christian who arrived at Timbuctoo with the Sook's son had been murdered; that the Fellata took Timbuctoo, and demanded that the Christian should be sent away, or they would plunder the town; that the people of Timbuctoo assisted him to escape, and gave him a man to conduct him to Bumiarra; that the Fellata, apprized of this, followed him on the road, overtook him, and put him to death. The same report, with very little variations, was reiterated from every one of the Bashaw's supposed correspondents; and it formed the groundwork of a very long article in the French Newspaper L'Etoile. Some circumstances, however, induced Mr. Consul Warrington to believe that the Bashaw was acting a deceitful and treacherous part with regard to the traveller; and that the whole was a scheme, in concert with some of his people, to extort money, which the British Government had refused in the case of Laing, having paid him most liberally for the safe conduct of Oudney, Clapperton, and Denham.—He was the more confirmed in this, as person Ouen Toat, who had arrived at Mourzouk, reported that the English traveller was safe and unmolested at Timbuctoo Besides, the Koffils from Ghadamis arrived the 28th July, and one and all of the persons composing it denied the truth of the report of Laing's being murdered, and were positive that such report was wholly unfounded.

"The Etoile, however, reported the story of the murder, with additional and many irrelevant particulars, on the authority, as it said, of the minister of the Bashaw of Tripoli.—The Consul, on reading this, demanded of the Bashaw to question his minister on the subject, who took an oath that he had not supplied any such information, and that as far as he was concerned, the whole was a fabrication, adding that he never believed the reports that had reached Tripoli. The Consul, however, still suspected the Bashaw or his minister of unfair dealing, for the purpose of extorting money; and that they had contrived to interrupt all communication with Major Laing. At his request, therefore, the Commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean squadron ordered a ship of war to proceed to Tripoli, and to inform the Bashaw that, as Major Laing proceeded into the interior under his sanction and protection, he should hold him responsible for his safety."

NOTICE.—Whereas, it has been the practice for the Chelsea and Kilmainham Pensioners to give up their Instruction Papers to Agents, and receive their Pensions through that channel, instead of appearing personally for the purpose of being identified as His Majesty's Instructions require. The Commissary General hereby gives notice, that all Pensions must be claimed in person, at least once in each year.

The Pensioners at Richmond, Perth and vicinity, will in future receive their Pensions, on and after the 25th December 1828, at By-Town instead of Montreal, and they must claim their first payment at that Post in person, so that their existence and identity may be proved, as no other person or persons are pursuant to Act of Parliament, entitled to receive the same, under any pretence whatsoever if the Pensioner is living. Any Pensioner wishing to change his place of residence must notify the same through the Commissariat Officer from whom he received his last payment.

Commissariat Head Quarters,
Quebec, 18th September, 1828. c 17

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

THE CANADA Steam-Packet' for the remainder of the Season, will leave York and Niagara, alternate days, at Ten o'clock—Sundays not excepted.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner.
York, Sept. 29, 1828. x 17

PUBLIC NOTICE.—I require due notice to be given to me or to my Agent, Mr. Alexander Murray, at Mr. Proudfoot's Store, in York, of all transfers of Property in the Steam-Packet Canada, in default whereof I shall consider the original Stockholder, as the legal Owner in the Vessel; and in paying dividends and doing other transactions connected with my situation, hold myself accountable to them alone. HUGH RICHARDSON.
Master and Managing Owner of the Steam Packet Canada
York, 27th December, 1827. 31tf.

N B.—With Mr. A. Murray, reference may be had to all Books and accounts connected with the Canada Steam Packet.

NEW WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE.—The Subscribers respectfully announce to the Merchants of York and its vicinity, that they have opened a Wholesale Store, Corner of Market-Lane and Church-Street; where they are receiving a large and suitable assortment of DRY GOODS, direct from GREAT BRITAIN: consisting principally of the following articles:—

Grey and Bleached	Factory Cottons,
do.	do. Sheetings,
Striped and Check'd	Cottons,
Scotch	Hollands,
Fine, Superfine, and Brussels	Carpeting,
do.	do. broad and narrow Cloths,
do.	do. Cassimeres,
Bombazettes, Bombazines, and	Shalloons,
Says, Lastings, Canblets, &c.,
Tartans and Union	Checks,
Moleskins, Barragans and	Fustians,
Red and White	Flannel,
Chintzes, Calicoes and	Furnitures,
Book, Jacconet and Mull	Muslins,
Batiste Muslins, Striped, Check'd and figured,
Ginghams, Pullicate and Verona	Handkerchiefs,
Cotton and Linen	Bed Tick,
Russia Duck, Osnaburgs,	Hessins and Sheetings,
Canvas, Bagging, Dowlas,	Drill, &c.
Umbrellas, 26, 22, and 30	inch,
Bandanna, Barcelona, Gauze & Barrage,	Handkerchiefs,
Silk Hose, and Habit	Gloves,
Black and Green Crape,	Veils, &c.
Black and Coloured	sewings. Legee Twist, &c.
Galloons, Silk and Cotton	Ferrets,
Black and W. Brown Linen Thread, Cotton Spoolls and	Balls,
Silk, Cotton, and Merino	Shawls,
Cotton Tapes, Bobbin,	&c.
Sattins, Gros de Naples, Levantine Ribbons,	&c. &c.—

Which they will sell off at very reduced prices, for cash only. JAMES DOUGALL, & Co.
York, 23d July, 1828. x. 7

PROCLAMATION.
MURDER AND ROBBERY.
£100 REWARD.
UPPER CANADA,

By His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, K.C.B, Lieutenant Governor of our Province aforesaid, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

WHEREAS, a young Man named Isaac James, Son of Ezekiel James, of the Township of Uxbridge, in the Home Districet, of this Province, was found dead behind a log heap near the road side, in the Township of Whitchurch, on the thirtieth day of September, instant, and from several gun-shot, and other wounds inflicted upon his person, no doubt can exist of his having been barbarously murdered; and from his having left home, six days previously, in company with JOHN CHRISTIE, whom he was conveying, with his Wife and Family to York in a Waggon, and the said JOHN CHRISTIE, with his Family having absconded with the Waggon and Horses, there is every reason to believe that the said JOHN CHRISTIE, hath committed the attrocious act.

NOW KNOW YE, that the above Reward will be paid to any person who shall apprehend the said JOHN CHRISTIE, and cause him to be brought before any Justice of the Peace of this Province, to be dealt with according to Law.

Given under my Hand and Seal of Office, at York, this Thirtieth day of September, in the Year of our Lord One Thousand, Eight Hundred and Twenty-eight, and in the Ninth year of His Majesty's Reign. P. M.

By Command of His Excellency.
H. J. BOULTON, Solicitor General.
D. CAMERON, Secretary.

N.B.—JOHN CHRISTIE, some times calling himself WELMAN, is thus described:—About 5 feet 6 inches high, solerably stout, dark eyes and hair, but of a fair complexion, full face, apparently from 25 to 30 years of age, and a native of Ireland.—When he left home, he had on a dark coloured dress. His Wife is a middle sized woman, with black hair, blue eyes, and thin face, much marked with the small pox—his eldest child, a son, about 3 years old—the younger, a daughter, about a year old, both red hair, fair skin, and full freckled faces. The Waggon which was stolen with two Mares, was a good one, with a white linen cover—one of the Mares about 16 hands high, dapple grey, with dark legs and face;—the other an iron grey, about 15 hands high; each about 6 or 7 years old.

THOMAS MOORE,—TAILOR, King Street, York, Meighan's Buildings, (opposite the Market Place.) Begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has just opened, and offers for Sale, a choice assortment of Goods, Selected by himself at the Manufactories in England, which he can recommend as being of choice quality, consisting of, Superfine, Blue; Black; Scarlett; Green; Olive; Grey and Drab. West of England Broad Cloths.—Black, Blue and Grey, Doubls and single Milled Kersymeres. Forest Cloths. Lasting and Corduroys.—Beverteens; Fustians; Cantons. Jane; Drab, and Striped Brown Drills. Fine Welsh Flannel; White and Blue Flannel. White and Grey Cottons. London printed Calicoes and Chintzes. Fancy Vestings. Printed Muslins. Sewing Silk; Twist; Thread and Rich Gilt Buttons.

MILITARY EQUIPMENTS.

consisting of, Regulation Swords; Patent Leather Regulation Waist Belts, with rich Gilt clasps. Rich Gold Bullion Epaulets, crimson Silk Regulation Sashes.—Rich Gold Velvet Laces, and Gilt British Militia Buttons. Red, White and Green. Regulation Feathers, with rich Gilt Tubes for do.

The whole of which will be disposed of on reasonable terms, or made up to order, agreeable to the latest fashions, at the shortest notice.
York, 14th July, 1828. x 6

TO SAWYERS.—Wanted immediately an experienced SAWYER, and an assistant to take charge of a Mill that has a constant supply of water; and in other respects particularly well situated.—None need apply, who cannot give sufficient references as to character and ability.

Further information on application to Messrs. WRAGG & Co. King-street York. x 11

CHAIN CABLES, &c.—ACRAMAN'S Patent Chain Cables, and Anchors, (warranted proved by Machine) a constant supply kept on hand (in stock) of all sizes, by JOHN WATKINS, Kingston, and in Montreal and Quebec by
WILLIAM BUDDEN.
July, 30, 1827. 11-tf

CHAIR-MAKING.—The Subscribers, having entered into Copartnership, under the Firm of SMITH & LAWRENCE, to carry on the Chairmaking Business, inform their Friends and the Public, that they have now a shop open on the West side of the Market-Square, where they will keep constantly on hand a general assortment of Fancy, Bamboo, and Windsor Chairs, which they intend to dispose of on reasonable terms, for CASH or Country Produce; and, they trust, from the quality of their work, and attention to business, to merit a share of public favor.

They have, also, a Ware-Room open on YONGE-STREET, four miles South of NEW-MARKET, where Chairs may be had at all times.

N.B.—Job Painting, &c. executed to order.

☞ All orders thankfully received and punctually attended to. B. W. SMITH,
J. M. LAWRENCE.
York, September 4, 1828. i. 13

JUST PUBLISHED, and for Sale at the Office of the LOYALIST, York, U. C., by ROBERT STANTON,—The UPPER CANADA ALMANAC, and Farmers Calendar, for the year 1829.

☞ Price 2s. Cr'cy. per dozen.—Orders with a remittance, duly attended to, and parcels forwarded agreeable to directions.
September 6, 1828.

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.—The Steam Boat ALCIOPE, will take Freight and Passengers from this Port during the remainder of the Season, every Saturday morning at 6 o'clock, on her way down from NIAGARA to PRESCOTT, to commence tomorrow.
York, 20th August, 1828. x. 13

STRAY COWS.—Came into the inclosure of the Subscriber, about three weeks since,—Two Cows—one a red Cow, with a small Star in her forehead, and a Bell on.—The other a small Brindle and white spotted. The owners are requested to prove property, pay charges, and take them away.
MOSES CHERRY,
No. 12, East side Yonge-Street, Township of York.
4th September, 1828. x. 13

ELIGIBLE SITUATION—To be sold, Lots numbers 29 & 30 in the first concession of the Townships of Scarborough with their broken fronts on Lake Ontario, situate about Seven miles from the Town of York.—On Lot No. 29, are erected a Log and a Frame House together with outhouses &c. These premises are now in the possession of Mr. Adna Bates, and are an eligible Situation for a Tavern.

Application to be made to C. C. SMALL Esq.
York, 20th August, 1828. x 11

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

LAKE ONTARIO STEAM-BOAT, NIAGARA, Captain MOSHER, with DANIEL READ, Sailing Master, Will, after the 15th inst., leave Niagara for Kingston, Brockville, and Prescott, every Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

On her return, will leave Prescott for Brockville, Kingston, York, and Niagara, every Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made with Messrs. Norton, & Co., Stage Proprietors, by which, passengers going down, arrive in Montreal on Tuesday evening; and those proceeding upwards, will, by leaving Montreal on Tuesday, arrive in time at Prescott to take the Boat.
do. June 6th, 1828. x 1.

FOR SALE,—Lot No. 12, and East half of 14 in the 3d Concession of the Township of York, West of Yonge-Street,—300 Acres,—the property of Major W. G. White.—Refer to ROBERT STANTON, Esquire, U. C. Gazette Office.
York, 4th July, 1828. x. 5

NOTICE.—All persons having claims upon the Estate of the late STEPHEN HEWARD, Esquire, of York, deceased, are requested to present the same properly authenticated to the Hon. P. Robinson, one of the Executors, without delay; and all persons indebted to the said Estate are requested to make payment to the said Executor.
York, September 15, 1828. x. 15

FOR SALE—By the Subscriber, 100 Barrels PLAISTER OF PARIS, of the very best quality, low for Cash WILLIAM BERGIN.
York, September 19, 1828. x. 15

BRITISH WAREHOUSE.—J. C. GOPWIN & Co., Wholesale and Retail Merchants, beg to inform their Friends and the Public, they have received direct from England, the following Goods, which they offer low for cash:—
West of England Cloths, the best assorted,
Yorkshire Cloths of superior qualities, assorted,
Kersymeres of fine Textures, assorted,
Variety of Vest Patterns,
A well selected Assortment of Gentlemens' Dress, and Surtout Coats, Trowsers, &c., made in London,
Imitation Brussels Carpeting, Venetian Carpeting, and Brass Rods,
Upwards of 2,000 yards unbleached Factory Cotton,
Ships' Canvas bleached, Nos. 3, 4, 5, & 6,
Fashionable Tea and Coffee Urns,
Sheet Copper for Distills, &c.,
Brass Crimping Machines, with Heaters,
Brass and Steel Fire Irons, of the newest quality,
An assortment of Cabinet Furniture,
Cast Steel in Bars,
Variety of Woollen and Linen Girth Webbs,
Pails, assorted, first quality,
Boiled and Raw Linseed Oil,
First quality Cognac Brandy, favorite mark Marett,
Fine Holland Gin,
Good old Whisky, by the Barrel or per Gallon,
Port, Sherry, and Teneriffe Wines, of choice quality.—With a variety of other Goods. J. C. GODWIN & Co.
York, Aug. 23th 1828. x 12

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS of a new GAOL and COURT HOUSE at HAMILTON, District of Newcastle.—Notice is hereby given that the undermentioned premiums are offered to such persons as shall furnish the Clerk of the Peace, for the approval of the Magistrates of the District of Newcastle, on or before the 1st day of October next, with plans, specifications, and estimates of a Gaol and Court House (in one building) to be built in the Township of Hamilton, at or near the present Court House—the first story to be of Stone, second and third stories of Brick, to contain Criminal Cells, Debtors Rooms, Gaolers Apartments, Court Room, Grand and Petit Jury Rooms;—Also, Rooms for Offices, &c., such as are usually required in such a Building—the roof to be covered with tin.—The whole expence not to exceed the sum of £5,000 Currency.

Premiums will be awarded as follows, viz:—
For the best and most approved plan, &c. £15 0 0
For the 2nd do. do. 10 0 0
For the 3rd do. do. 5 0 0

T. WARD,
Clerk of the Peace,
District of Newcastle
Hamilton, Newcastle District, dd 52
10th May, 1828.

WHISKEY.—For Sale by the Barrel, a quantity of SUPERIOR OLD WHISKEY—Apply to R. W. PRENTICE.
York, 25th Sept. 1828. x 16

VALUABLE FREEHOLD IN YORK, FOR SALE.—The Subscriber offers for sale by private bargain that valuable freehold in the Town of York, on Newgate Street, consisting of a Dwelling House and Workshop, together with a Garden and Yard. MATTHEW WALTON.
York, September 17th, 1828. x. 15
York Auction, Mart, & Commission Ware-House,
M. & B. MEIGHAN,
Opposite the Market Square.

HAVE for Sale, an assortment of Household Furniture, consisting of Mahogany, Curled Maple and Cherry Tree, Side Boards, Secretaries, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Breakfast Dining and Card Tables, Work Tables, Bason Stands, Feather Beds and Bedding; A London made grand Piano; an excellent Sulkey Carriage; a Mangle for pressing clothes; A Jack for Roasting Meat; A very elegant fourteen day Time Piece with Italian Marble Frame and Glass Shade; Double and Single Barrel Gun; Lock Fowling Pieces and Pistols; Bridles, Saddles, Double and Single Harness; Gilt and Plain Frame Looking Glasses; Some Handsome Vases and chimney Ornaments; an extensive assortment of Elegant Dry and Fancy Goods of every description, Hardware, Jewellery, Crockery and Glassware; Groceries, Tea, Wine and Spirits; together with an Elegant Collection of Books, Stationery, Perfumery, Patent Medicines &c. Regular Auction Sales every week.
York, 1828. x 6.

POLICE OFFICE, YORK,
27th Sept'r, 1828.

AT Special Session of Court of Quarter Sessions for the Home District, held this day, it was ordered that Simon Graham be appointed Inspector of Chimneys for the Town of York.
ALEX'R. MCDONELL,
17 i CHAIRMAN.

FOR SALE.—Lot No. 29, and part of 30, in the 1st Concession of the Township of Pickering, containing 350 Acres, and having an eligible situation for a Mill. For terms apply to Mr. Andrew Mercer, York.
York, 28th October, 1827. 22tf.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR having been pleased to appoint me to the Collectorship of Customs for this Port, I beg leave to acquaint the Merchants, Shop-owners and others, having business to transact with this branch of the Revenue after the 1st day of October next, that I have temporarily established an Office in part of the premises fronting on Duke-Street occupied by Mr. Columbus. GEORGE SAVAGE,
Collector.
York, 26th September, 1828. n 16

WINES.

A CARD.—Mr. HAWKINS, Wine Merchant, of Quebec, offers for Sale a few Cases of excellent Port Wine, just received from Quebec.

Mr. Hawkins will be happy to receive orders from such gentlemen as are disposed to secure a supply of Genuine Wines, to be delivered early in the Spring at York and at Niagara.

Orders addressed to Mr. Hawkins, at Howard's Hotel, till Tuesday next, and afterwards at the office of this paper, will meet with attention.
York, September 20th, 1829. sn 15

JOHN MURCHISON, DRAPER AND TAILOR, respectfully informs his friends and customers, that he has just received from LONDON, a choice assortment of extra, fine and superfine West of England Broad Cloths and Cassimeres; consisting of Blue, Black, Scarlet, Green, Olive, Brown, Grey, Drab and Corbeau, Single and Double Milled Cassimeres; do. Double Milled Broad Cloths for Great Coats; and vestings of every description, which he is ready to make up to order at short notice, in good style, and on the lowest terms possible. Gentlemen wishing any thing in his line may depend upon being faithfully served.

N. B. He has also a number of Military Articles to dispose of on reasonable terms.
York, July 28, 1828. sn. 8

HOME DISTRICT, } NOTICE is hereby given
YORK TO WIT: } that a Court of Oyer and Terminer, and General Gaol delivery, and of Assize and Nisi Prius, will be holden at the Court House in the Town of York, in and for the said District, on Monday the Thirteenth day of October next ensuing, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of the same day, of which all Justices of the Peace, Coroners, Gaolers, Constables, Bailiffs, and those otherwise concerned, are desired to take notice, that they be respectively then there present with their Rolls, Records, and other Memoranda, to do and perform those things which to their several offices belong.
W. B. JARVIS, Sheriff.
Sheriff's Office, York, }
25th Sept. 1828. } n 16

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL GROCERY STORE.—The Subscriber respectfully informs the Inhabitants of York and its vicinity, that he has opened a Store in the above line, on the Corner of Church and Palace Streets, where he is now ready to serve them with the choicest articles and at very low prices. The following are a few of the articles in his line, viz:—

O. L. P. Madeira,	London Porter,
F. Madeira,	Teas of all descriptions,
L. M. Do.	D. & Loaf Sugar,
Prime Port,	S. R. Loaf Sugar,
Second do.	Muscovado do.
Sherry,	East India do.
Cagniac Brandy,	Mace, Cloves,
Bordeaux do.	Cinnamon, Nutmegs,
H. Gin,	Alspice, Black Pepper,
Jamaica Spirits,	White Pepper,
Peppermint,	Mustard in Jars, ½ & 4 lbs.
Shrub,	Isinglass, Arrow Root,
White Wine Vinegar,	Macaroni, Vermicilli,
Linejuice,	Curry Powder,
Molasses,	Raisins, Figs,
Olive Oil for Lamps,	Starch, Blue,
Linseed do.	Tobacco, Pipes, Blacking.
London Brown Stout,

And a variety of articles in the Grocery line.
JAMES F. SMITH.
York, 17th September, 1828. sn. 15

ALLIANCE BRITISH AND FOREIGN
Life and Fire Assurance Company,
OF LONDON.
(CAPITAL—Five Millions Sterling.)

THE Subscriber having been appointed AGENT to the above Company, at York, is ready to Insure against loss or damage by Fire at moderate rates of Premium. The high standing of this Institution in England, and the Company allowing their Agents in Montreal to settle losses in this Country, with the Assured participating in the Profits of the Company, renders it worthy of Public Confidence.
R. W. PRENTICE.
York, November 18th, 1826. 25.

England.

ENGLISH SUMMARY.—On the 26th of August, Parliament was prorogued to the 30th October, when it is expected to be prorogued to some day between the 18th and 26th of November, then to meet for the "despatch of business." The Sun says, the feverish state of our continental relations, and the no less critical situation of Ireland, fully warrant this early meeting of Parliament.

On the 26th His Majesty the King, and His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge, honored Egham Race-ground with their presence. The King was dressed quite plainly, and rode in his open carriage, drawn by four bays, without riders, but quite unattended by any military. His Majesty looked in good health and spirits, and was loudly cheered.

The arrival of Gen. Maison's proclamation settles all doubt as to the immediate object of the French expedition. It is, we are informed, "to put an end to the oppression of a celebrated people." The General [says the Morning Herald,] might have added that it had another object in view—namely, the affording France a guarantee for the conduct of Russia—that is, to enable her to appropriate a portion of the spoil of the Turkish empire to her own purposes. We expect that Greece will be raised to an independent nation under the protection of France and England, or perhaps under the protection of France alone.

The successor to the late Sir Henry Torrens in the office of Adjutant General, is Sir Herbert Taylor.

LIVERPOOL MARKET.—SEPT. 1

ASHES.—The principal part of the recent imports being in few hands, an advance has been obtained in new Montreal pots, 30s. per cwt. having been paid. Pearls are held with firmness, but no sales have been made. Much anxiety was felt for the Montreal pots, 180 bls. new have been sold at 29s3d. a 30s. and 80 bls. old at 28s. a 28s6d. per cwt

FLOUR, all kinds of Grain owing to the fine weather and improved prospect of the harvest, have been dull of sale, and prices are lower.

Liverpool Corn Market, Saturday Aug. 30.

Since last week we another time experience unintermpted favourable for the completion of the harvest, which also appears to have been the case, generally, throughout this country and Ireland, and will tend much to lessen the effects of the late frosts. New Wheat has already begun to be brought to market very freely, and in such condition as to require little mixture of old. Several parcels of Irish have also arrived, the quality superior to that of last year. A small decline has taken place in the value of both, but not to any extent, while the value of old wheat have experienced a reduction of fully 6d. per 70 lbs. and scarcely any demand. Flour is 1s. to 2s. per sack cheaper.

From the Courier.

It will, no doubt, be recollected that, upon the first announcement of the expedition to the Morea, we asserted that it was undertaken in concert and co-operation with this country. If any confirmation of our assertion were wanting, we should find it in the declaration of a Paris paper of Monday, which avids the Duke de Mortemart, Lord Stuart de Rothsay, in a recent declaration to the King of France, expressed the pacific sentiments of his Government, whose anxious desire was to cultivate the most intimate and friendly understaning with France. His Most Christian Majesty is said to have declared, in reply, "that he was influenced by the desire, for two reasons: the first and the most weighty one was, that it was the interest of France and of Europe—and the second, a principal of gratitude to England, and the reception and asylum she had afforded the French Princes in times of misfortune."

Such a speech is in perfect keeping with the upright and noble character of Charles the Tenth.

Providential Escape of the Duchess of Clarence.—The Royal party, assembled at Plymouth on the 26th ult. to view the launch of the Royal Adelaide, had a narrow escape from being crushed to atoms! The Duchess of Meiningen, mother of her Royal Highness the Duchess of Clarence, having expressed a desire to see the "dog shore," or last stay which sustains a vessel on the eve of being launched, the Earl of Northesk enquired if it were practicable, and being informed that the dog-shore would not be knocked away for 15 or 20 minutes, ascended the bridge or platform in front of the Adelaide, for the purpose of handing the Royal visitors upon it. At this critical moment the dog-shore accidently gave way, and as the vessel was gradually descending into the sea, the Duchess of Meiningen with the utmost promptitude grasped the arm of the Port Admiral, and pulled him off with a powerful effort, at the same time exclaiming in French, "For once my Lord, I have saved your life." In an instant the platform on which it had ascended was demolished by the irresistable force of the stately ship. Had the Admiral descended only a minute later, the whole of the Royal party would have been on the bridge, and must inevitably have been involved in one common destruction.—Exeter and Plymouth Gazette.

Balloon Ascent.—Mr. C. Green made his 99th ascent in his new and splendid Saloon, from the Bowling-green of the Eagle Tavern, in the City Road, on Monday last, at noon. It was what was called an "Equestrian Aeronautic Ascent." The balloon was inflated at Haggerston on Monday evening, and was brought by tow ropes from thence to the ground at an early hour yesterday morning. The weather for the greater part of the day bore rather an unfavourable aspect.—Soon after five o'clock the atmosphere cleared and presented a beautiful blue sky, which continued for the evening without being obscured by a single cloud. The extensive grounds belonging to the tavern became crowded with most respectable company by six o'clock, and an excellent band was in attendance. The weather having become most favorable, Mr. C. Green had determined to ascend as soon as possible, and gave the necessary directions to make preparations accordingly. The novelty of the occasion was the announcement that Mr. Green intended to take a small pony with him in the car in his aerial voyage.

A beautiful little pony decorated with blue ribbons, was led forth about half past six o'clock, amidst the greetings of the company. The little animal was about three feet high, and was led over the grounds by one of Mr. Green's men. She appeared very docile, and was by no means frightened by the clamourous reception with which she was received. About seven o'clock Mr. Green made his appearance, and all hands were in requisition to facilitate his ascent.—The pony was placed in a new car made for the occasion, with her head turned towards the east, Mr. Green took the reins. There were no stirrup irons attached to the saddle; but Mr. Green placed his feet on an elevation at each side of the pony, and appeared to have full command of this little animal. At ten minutes past seven o'clock, Mr. G. gave the word "away," and the ropes were cut, and the ponderous machine rose gradually amidst the shouts of the company on the ground, and the immense crowds which were collected outside. The pony became somewhat restive, and plunged and threatened to relieve herself from the novel situation in which she was placed; the balloon was however, lowered instantly. Mr. Green kept patting his favourite charge on the neck, and again ventured to ascend. The little animal plunged again, but the aronaut confided in his own dexterity, and fearlessly braved fearfulness of the liquid air. The balloon now rose slowly and majestically, and succeeded in a southeasterly direction. and remained within sight for several minutes, the sky being clear and undoubled. The balloon descended in the neighbourhood of Blackheath. Much anxiety was felt for Mr. Green's safety, lest the pony should become unmanageable.

CORDER THE MURDERER.

Corder, the murderer of Maria Marten, has been tried and found guilty, on a clear and irresistable body of evidence. The Court sat two days, and the prisoner, before the Chief Baron commenced his able and impartial charge, read a long written defence, that the victim of his villany had committed suicide in a fit of passion.—This flimsy pretext went for nothing with the Jury, and Corder, after every requisite solemnity, was sentenced to be executed on Monday, the 11th August. The Court was crowded to suffocation.

Connected with this subject, we give the following remarks from the Courier of Saturday:—

"The trial of Corder was concluded yesterday, and verdict of the Jury, such a one as all persons, who have heard the evidence, must have contemplated. He was found Guilty, and was sentenced to be hanged on Monday next, and his body to be anatomized.

"This case horrible as it is in all its parts—horrible from the manner in which the crime was meditated and executed—horrible from the absence of all those violent passions, of every feeling which induce men, in a sudden fit of anger or jealousy, to attempt the lives of their fellow creatures—horrible when we reflect upon the entire confidence, the perfect reliance, which the poor female placed upon the affection of Corder—horrible when we consider that she met with a cruel death at the moment she was contemplating and expecting to be married to the object of her affections—horrible, when we suppose the possibility, nay, the probability, that life was not yielded without a struggle, or an attempt to move the pity of the murderer—this case, dreadful, and almost unparalleled as it is, will yet be attended with effect: it will show that all attempts to conceal the crime are ineffectual; that the murderer cannot by any act of ingenuity wash away the guilt from his hands, or destroy those that lead to detection: that circumstances which he thinks trifling, will be links of sufficient importance and magnitude to overwhelm him; that a cloak, a stocking, a handkerchief, furnish volumes of evidence against him."—English paper.

The monument erected to the memory of the gallant Sir Thomas Picton, at Carmarthen, was opened to the public last week.

Some of our contemporaries are speculating upon what government would do in a possible case. Whether, if Don Miguel should declare Maderia in a state of blockade, we should respect it. There could not be a moment's hesitation upon such a point. If the blockade of Oporto were respected it was because it was ordered by a prince in the character in which he had been acknowledged. If he ordered a similar measure against Maderia as the King, no regard would be paid to it, because we know of no legal principle by which Miguel has ascended the throne of Portugal. The only King of Portugal is Don Pedro, the head of the house of Braganza—upon whose wisdom "His Majesty relies to take the course which shall be best calculated to maintain the interests and honour of that illustrious family, and to secure the peace and happiness of the dominions over which it reigns." This from the King's speech sufficiently shows that our government will not consider any act done, or document published by Don Miguel, as entitled to the slightest regard or attention.—Courier.

Kite Carriage.—On Wednesday evning about five o'clock, one of these novel vehicles made its appearance opposite the Exchange, Manchester. It contained Mr. William Yates, of Dale-street, who was the charioteer, Mrs. Yates and a young boy, and was stated to have come from Mr Yates's house near Stony Knolls, down Greengate, Staford, over Blackfriars Bridge, proceeding along Market-street and Piccadilly beyond Ardwick. The carriage was a low pony phaeton, which by the addition of a pivot to the two front wheels, Mr. Yates was enabled to turn with apparent facility. The kites, the stangs of which he held in his hands were flying the one above the other, with an interval of perhaps 200 feet between the two. When the carriage was passing over the assent of Market-street, it moved very slowly, probably not much more than two miles an hour, but on the smooth macadamized road of Piccadilly, &c., its motion we believe was considerably more rapid. It did not go before the wind, but was impelled apparently without difficulty, at an angle varying according to the direction of the streets. The novelty of the sight attracted a large concourse of spectators. We have no doubt that they will be brought into use at sea, for by altering the position of the kite, it is made to fly at a right angle to the wind, so as, for instance, to draw a boat to the west when the wind is from the south, & as Mr. Smith describes, even to beat to windward. On land the advantages of this power are not so apparent, for on our roads there is no room for tacking. But kites are much more portable than sails; Mr. Yates has made his, which are of glazed calico, to fold up in very small bulk, so that they might easily be carried and cased when the wind was favourable, and would then be found greatly to assist in drawing any carriage. Mr. Yates directs his carriage by means of a pivot to the fore wheels, similar to that of a velociped. He alters the angle of his kites to the wind by lines communicating with the carriage.

Ireland,

CORK, August 10.—Tomorrow will come on the trial of Stuart, who massacred the seven men on board the Mary Russel. The circumstances attending it are most intense interest here, and the question of his insanity is a topic of discussion amongst all classes. The more moderate and reasoning amongst us urge the extent and horror of the deed as the best proof of his madness, whilst those who are led by their feelings insist that, though the sanity be proved, the destruction of seven of his fellow creatures, and under such circumstances of savageness as were detailed at the inquest ought not to be suffered to live; that outraged humanity requires a sacrifice, and that even the formality of a trial should be denied to one so vile as his villany had committed suicide in a fit of passion.—This flimsy pretext went for nothing with the Jury, and Corder, after every requisite solemnity, was sentenced to be executed on Monday, the 11th August. The Court was crowded to suffocation.—Courier.

Connected with this subject, we give the following remarks from the Courier of Saturday:—

"The trial of Corder was concluded yesterday, and verdict of the Jury, such a one as all persons, who have heard the evidence, must have contemplated. He was found Guilty, and was sentenced to be hanged on Monday next, and his body to be anatomized.

"This case horrible as it is in all its parts—horrible from the manner in which the crime was meditated and executed—horrible from the absence of all those violent passions, of every feeling which induce men, in a sudden fit of anger or jealousy, to attempt the lives of their fellow creatures—horrible when we reflect upon the entire confidence, the perfect reliance, which the poor female placed upon the affection of Corder—horrible when we consider that she met with a cruel death at the moment she was contemplating and expecting to be married to the object of her affections—horrible, when we suppose the possibility, nay, the probability, that life was not yielded without a struggle, or an attempt to move the pity of the murderer—this case, dreadful, and almost unparalleled as it is, will yet be attended with effect: it will show that all attempts to conceal the crime are ineffectual; that the murderer cannot by any act of ingenuity wash away the guilt from his hands, or destroy those that lead to detection: that circumstances which he thinks trifling, will be links of sufficient importance and magnitude to overwhelm him; that a cloak, a stocking, a handkerchief, furnish volumes of evidence against him."—English paper.

The monument erected to the memory of the gallant Sir Thomas Picton, at Carmarthen, was opened to the public last week.

Some of our contemporaries are speculating upon what government would do in a possible case. Whether, if Don Miguel should declare Maderia in a state of blockade, we should respect it. There could not be a moment's hesitation upon such a point. If the blockade of Oporto were respected it was because it was ordered by a prince in the character in which he had been acknowledged. If he ordered a similar measure against Maderia as the King, no regard would be paid to it, because we know of no legal principle by which Miguel has ascended the throne of Portugal. The only King of Portugal is Don Pedro, the head of the house of Braganza—upon whose wisdom "His Majesty relies to take the course which shall be best calculated to maintain the interests and honour of that illustrious family, and to secure the peace and happiness of the dominions over which it reigns." This from the King's speech sufficiently shows that our government will not consider any act done, or document published by Don Miguel, as entitled to the slightest regard or attention.—Courier.

Kite Carriage.—On Wednesday evning about five o'clock, one of these novel vehicles made its appearance opposite the Exchange, Manchester. It contained Mr. William Yates, of Dale-street, who was the charioteer, Mrs. Yates and a young boy, and was stated to have come from Mr Yates's house near Stony Knolls, down Greengate, Staford, over Blackfriars Bridge, proceeding along Market-street and Piccadilly beyond Ardwick. The carriage was a low pony phaeton, which by the addition of a pivot to the two front wheels, Mr. Yates was enabled to turn with apparent facility. The kites, the stangs of which he held in his hands were flying the one above the other, with an interval of perhaps 200 feet between the two. When the carriage was passing over the assent of Market-the trial excites has urged the Press here to such exertions, that I fear I cannot anticipate its reports of the trial. There is nothing in the appearance of Stuart to indicate either a suspicious or ferocious character. His compressed mouth and steady gaze write firmness on his countenance; the rest of its expression is that of one from whom you would expect benevolence rather than malignity.

The Honble. Capt. Brown presided at a large Meeting in Tralee, on Monday, to consider the expediency of a Subscription in aid of the proposed Steam Navigation between Valentia and North America. The Knight of Kerry gave a very interesting and satisfactory detail of the advantages which must result from the measure in contemplation.—(Limerick Chronicle.)

Scotland,

The late Thunder Storms.—The sublimest scene perhaps in the history of the late thunder storms, occurred, on Monday last, immediately after the tremendous hail shower that passed over Stirling about three P. M. The lofty tops of the Ochils appeared covered with a brilliant halo, combining all the colours of the rainbow without its form, and terminating in a dense black cloud that hung over the whole—presenting to the mind's eye, as it were, a sheet of fire, or a faint image of Ætna or Vesuvius.—Stirling Journal.

One of the heaviest falls of rain ever experienced in this country took place about half-past one o'clock on Sunday last, August 3. In a few minutes the ordinary channels in the streets for carrying off the water were overflown, and nearly the whole pavement appeared as one general current. Several shops and cellars were inundated, and many thoroughfares rendered impassable. Happily the shower extended only about a mile around the town, which seemed to be the centre of its range, otherwise it must have been attended with much injury to the crops in this neighbourhood. In half an hour, according to the indication of an accurate rain guage, kept in Provost Ramsay's garden, the quantity of rain which fell in that short time was equal to four fifths of an inch, —a quantity which exceeds in degree the tropical rains on the banks of the Orooako, where Humboldt informs us he once observed an inch and a half of rain to fall in three hours. In the Journal de Physique it is noticed, as an extraordinary fact, that an inch of rain once fell at Montpelier in an hour.—Perth Courier.

Earthquake at Comrie.—An earthquake was felt at Comrie and its neighbourhood, on Sunday the 29th ult. It lasted about a minute—or rather there was a double shock, the one following about a minute after the other had subsided.

Foreign Intelligence.

FROM EUROPE—SEPTEMBER PACKET.

The Florida, Capt. Tinkham, arrived last evening in thirty days from Liverpool, and brings the Editors of the Commercial Advertiser their regular files of English papers to the evening of the 30th, and Liverpool of September 1. "An abstract of their contents follows:—

The Russian War.—No official information had been received in London from the head quarters of the Russian Army, since the date of our former advices from the British capital. Meantime despatches had been received at the foreign office, the contents of which had not transpired down to the evening of August 30th. A courier, or despatch boat, had put to sea, which bore, of a character unfavorable to the Russian arms. We will quote from a few of the leading papers:

"On the 20th of July, an attack was made upon the Turks before Chounla, headed by the Emperor Nicholas in person. After a good deal of hard fighting, the Russian bulletin says, being repulsed on every side, the Turks withdrew under the walls of Chounla. After this the Emperor left the army for Odessa. On the same day, there was some fighting at Varna, the Turks having attacked the right wing of the Russian army besieging that place. In the Russian account, it is stated, that the Turks were driven into the fortress in great disorder, and with much loss. But it is added, as they "had taken in front of Lieutenant-General Uzakow, a favorable position, the latter would not expose his corps to any danger, and he contented himself with observing the movements of the enemy from behind the ravine, and continued to fortify his position."

"The substance of the despatches brought by Mr. Clews from Berlin, which he left on the 25th, has not yet transpired. And hence we are unable to contradict or confirm the report of the capture of the Russian camp on the evening of several hard days fighting before Chounla. The report at Berlin was, that no decisive advantage had been obtained by the Russians, because no additional bulletins had been published at Berlin since the 20th. It seems to be clear that the despatches do not relate so much to military operations as to correspondence or explanations between the European cabinets."—London Paper, Aug 30.

"The Russians have received a severe check at Chounla appears to have obtained credit, and the assertion that Government has advices of this event is reiterated with increased confidence. It is said, that after several days' severe fighting, the Russians were compelled to fall back, with a loss of 40,000 men in killed and wounded."—The Standard. Aug. 29.

"There has been no arrival at any of the public offices to-day. The conquests of the despatches received yesterday are still secret; but the vast importance which we ascribed to them is confirmed by all who have the best means of appreciating their communications. We believe we may repeat with renewed confidence, what we mentioned yesterday The rumours of success on the part of the Turks, which reach us from every part of Europe, confirm our opinion of its truth. Nine days of fighting under the walls of Chounla, must have been none days of success before the conclusion of the strife, would necessarily represent the Turks as victorious"—Standard, Aug 30.

"The rumour still prevails that the Russians have been defeated in their attack upon Chounla. The thing may be true, but there is nothing extraordinary in it. We said before, that it was possible enough for the Russians to be repulsed from a place of such strength a first, a second, and even a third time, but then they will return to the charge, and must succeed at last, from the superiority of their numbers, and the well known pertinacity and ambition of the Emperor. From all this it would seem that the Russians had really suffered a reverse before Chounla, but no authentic news has yet been received."—Sun.

"The Paris papers are fruitful enough in conjectures. Some suppose that Chounla had been taken, others think that such a supposition cannot be entertained, because the intelligence of an event of such importance, would have been forwarded with the greatest speed. The general impression is that the Russian army is engaged in constructing batteries, and redoubts, and other works, preparatory to the siege As these events necessarily occupy some time, the Emperor has availed himself of the opportunity afforded him for going to Odessa, where he arrived unexpectedly on the 9th.

"The German papers would persuade us that false estimates have been formed of the strength of the Turkish army—that instead of 60,000, their infantry is 200,000 strong—that they have 30,000 cavalry—and that in Chounla alone, there are 600 pieces of cannon. Hence the necessity of strong reinforcements for the Russian army. These accounts make us regret that official intelligence is not dispatched more frequently and speedily. Even when news is unfavorable, it is always the wisest course to publish it forthwith, and thus prevent those exaggerations which rumour never fails to propagate."—Courier, Aug 30.

The Russian Guards have received orders to march from Moscow to Bulgaria as much as possible, and other corps are to come from the interior of the Empire; it is therefore believed, that the campaign will be a long one.

It was afterwards stated in Walbach that the accounts from the army stated that the war was assuming a very sanguinary character; that both sides fight with a fury hitherto unknown, and that no quarter is given. The Turks cut off the heads of their prisoners. The Russians stab them, and the Emperor Nicholas has been induced to enjoin his soldiers to act with humanity.

A traveller, who left Erzerum on the 3rd June, reported in Smyrna, that a few days before his departure, a Russian corps had appeared before the gates of the city—that the enemy's General had taken possession of the surrounding eminences, and erected batteries on them—and that the Pacha of Erzerum had sent all the Greeks and Armenians out of the city, where he had collected his whole force. It is added, that after a sanguinary battle, the city has been taken by storm, and the garrison put to the sword."

A letter from Corfu, dated the 20th of July, confirms the precipitate departure of the Asiatic and the Conquerant, with Admirals Codrington and De Rigny on board, for Navarino, two English cutters, the Hind and Racer, and the French frigate the Syrene. All these ships have sailed towards the South to Navarino. This unexpected movement gives rise to various conjectures.

The following is, according to the Courier de Smyrne, a statement of the maritime forces assembled at the present moment in the Levant:—English, four ships of the line, six frigates, three corvettes, ten brigs, and two cutters—in all 25 vessels, mounting 818 guns. French, four ships of the line, five frigates, two corvettes, four brigs, and two transports—in all 16 vessels, 606 guns. Austrian, one ship of the line, one frigate, one corvette, four brigt, and fifteen smaller vessels—in all 25 vessels, mounting 310 guns. Dutch, two frigates, two corvettes, and one brig —mounting, in all, 108 guns. United States of America, one ship of the line, (the Delaware, 90,) one frigate, three corvettes, —mounting, in all, 208 guns. In all 98 ships of war, and 2,950 guns. A Swedish and a Neapolitan squadron are likewise expected in the Archipelago.

"Camp before Chounla, July 29.—Yesterday afternoon, at five o'clock, two brigades of the 3d division of the army before Chounla, under the command of Rudzewicz, marched with the right wing, in order to occupy the heights and wooded eminences which are situated on the road to Salistria. This movement was successfully effected under the 3d brigade of horse artillery, supported by the division of light cavalry, and that of infantry formed the reserve. During the movement a mass of the enemy's cavalry, supported by the redoubts erected before Chounla, and by some pieces of flying artillery which were directed against us, endeavoured to dislodge us from our advantageous position. Scarcely however, had the enemy's artillery appeared, when it dismounted. The Turkish cavalry surrounded the extremity of our right wing, and briskly charged the squares of the 15th and 16th regiments of Cuirassers, which formed there, and on the other side made an attempt to get possession of our artillery But all their endeavours were fruitless. By a well-supported fire of mousquets and musketry the enemy was driven at all points, with the loss of 400 killed. We had 90 killed and 80 wounded.

"On this occasion the Emperor presented a sword ornamented with diamonds to Adjutant General Krasnokutski, and the ribbon of the Order of St. Anne to General Berg. To-day we have fortified the heights of which we took possession yesterday, in spite of the fire of the enemy's redoubts and entrenchments, and the repeated attacks of his sharp shooters"

Admiral Greig, with the whole fleet under his command, has arrived at Havana, whence he will proceed to Varna, to assist in the siege of that fortress. Silistria is invested, and the reserved battalions of the military colonies have already entered Moldavia and Wallachia

An arrcie from Smyrna, mentions the arrival of a traveller, who states that the Russian General Paskiewitsch had, after a sanguinary battle, taken Erzerum by storm, on the 2d of June, and put the garrison to the sword. There is no truth in this

It is said that the Emperor of Russia is to leave the army on the 8th, and proceed to Odessa, there to meet Lord Heytesbury and other diplomatic characters from the several courts, who will all form a congress upon the fate of Turkey, or in other words endeavour, by remonstrance and negotiation, to induce Nicholas to relax in his purpose of destroying the Turkish power in Europe.

Yesterday, several couriers arrived from the head-quarters of Hussein Pacha, at Chounla, and from the Captain Pacha at Varna. These dispatches announced them victorious. The following is their substance:

"The Russ ans had approached within a league and a half of Varna, and had attacked the Captain Pacha on the 26th, with considerable forces; but after an obstinate conflict of twelve hours, they were repulsed, after experiencing severe losses. Mehmed Pacha was even preparing to attack them next day in their positions, but they had quitted them during the night, and fallen back a whole league. During these events, the division of the Russian fleet had attempted to effect a landing at Varna, but had been also repulsed by the Turkish batteries, the fire of which had damaged several transports. An attack made the same day by the Russians on the position of Choumla, had not a more favourable result. They were beaten off, after losing 2,000 killed and many prisoners." Such is the substance of the Turkish bulletins.

FROM FRANCE.—The firs division of the expedition to the Morea had not made much way two days after its sailing. It was still in sight of Toulon. It is again said that Ibrahim Pacha will only withdraw the Egyptian troops from the Morea—that the Turks under his command will remain, and that he will deliver up to them the fortresses of which he is in possession. The French troops will, therefore, meet with some resistance Patras, Coron, Modon, and Navarin are garrisoned by Turks. Six thousand Turks are said to occupy Lebaga and the Acropolis.

The Islands of Sapienza, near Modon, are designated as the place of rendezvous for the vessels belonging to the expedition to the Morea, in case they should be dispersed by bad weather.

It is calculated that, with a favourable wind, the expedition may reach the Morea by the end of this month. We cannot, therefore, hope to receive the news of its arrival earlier than between the 10th and 15th of September, assuming all the chances to be in its favor.

The following is the proclamation issued by Gen. Maison, on the sailing of this expedition:—

"Head Quarters, at Toulon, Aug. 15.—In concert with your Allies, your King charges you with a great and noble mission, and you are called on to put an end to the oppression of a celebrated people This enterprise, which will do honor to France, and which every one applauds, opens to you a career of glory. For the first time since the 13th century, the French flag will appear on the shores of Greece. Soldiers, the dignity of the Crown and the honour of your country expect your triumph.

(Signed) MAISON."

As no intelligence has been received in confirmation of the report that the Russian Admiral's ship had got into Smyrna, it is believed that she has pursued her course to the Mediterranean. The lights she displayed when off Scilly were not lights of distress.

FROM SPAIN.—The dates from Madrid are to the 5th of Aug. The King and Royal family have returned to Madrid, and letters from that capital state that their reception has been better than was to be expected in a capital where so much misery and discontent prevailed.

Science and Philosophy have just lost Doctor Gall. That illustrious physician died latterly, after a long and severe illness, at his country-house at Mau rouge.

The revenue of the State is not sufficiently improved to cover all its wants; for which reason a loan is again talked of.

Constantinople, July 11.—The preparations for a desperate resistance continue. Missili Enin, Pachia of the Bosnium, passed through this city on the 1st instant, with 4,000 men, on his way to the army. Two other Pachas, who had been ordered to Brousa, have been restored to their governments, on the condition of raising troops at their private expense. The Captain Pacha, only nominally an Admiral, not having been brought up a seaman, has landed at Varna 3,000 men, whither 1,700 artillerymen are gone to reinforce him. Entrenchments are throwing up round Constantinople.

Evacuation of Greece.—On the 6th of July, a conference took place at Modon between the commanders of the British, French and Russian squadrons, and Ibrahim Pacha, when the latter stated that he was prepared to depart with all his forces, and only waited for transports to convey them home. The Admirals informed him that they had orders to prevent him from carrying off any Greeks as slaves, to which the Pacha consented in the fullest manner. After some other arrangements, and an engagement for the surrender of Greek captives, the conference broke up without deciding on the mode in which the Turks were to leave the fortress in the Morea.—A letter from Zante, of the 10th of July, says that the Asoff and a Russian brig, and afterwards the Warspite, with Count Capo d'Istria, on board, arrived there on the night of the 8th. Mr. Sandrini, the Russian Consul, went alongside these vessels; on his return it was reported at Zante that Ibrahim would evacuate the Morea in twenty days at the farthest, which is the 9th at ten in the morning. Admirals Codrington and Von Heyden had a conference, and were afterwards joined by Count Capo d'Istrias, whom they received with the greatest distinction on his landing, and had a conference of three hours, at which were Sir E. Parker, commanding the Warspite, the Captain of the Asoff, and Sir E. Codrington's Secretary. The same day Admiral Codrington sent the Racer with dispatches, it is supposed, to Corfu and Admiral d'Hugery. All these ships of war sailed again by the 13th.

PORTUGAL.

The passengers by the vessels last arrived from Oporto state that assassination took place in that city almost every night—Globe, 14th August.

"London, August 14.—The news by the Harmony, from Madeira and Lisbon, has just transpired. The Bishop of Madeira, and the disaffected persons from that Island were safely landed at Lisbon. On the 29th the Pilot left the Tagus, and two more were embarked for the attack on Madeira. We are sorry to state that the Governor Valdez sent a peremptory note to the Consul and the English inhabitants, on the 11th ult., that they must either take up arms for the common defence, or leave the island. Madeira continued tranquil; and the Governor appears determined to defend the place to the last."

DON MIGUEL AND SIR JOHN DOYLE.

From the Courier.

It was not to be supposed that the British Government would rest satisfied with mere remonstrances against the treatment and detention of two British subjects—Sir John M. Doyle and Lieut. Young. The usurper is dead to the voice of humanity, but he is not deaf to the language of menace, and his fears will induce him to accede to our peremptory demands. On Saturday last, a deputation of the Underwriters at Lloyds had an interview with the Earl of Aberdeen, by appointment, to solicit the interference of the British Government in behalf of Mr. Young, an English subject, and formerly holding a commission in the Army, but who has resided ever since the peace in Portugal, and has been employed as agent by a considerable number of the Underwriters.

The deputation stated the hardship of the case to his Lordship, and gave us their opinion, that the arrest and detention of this gentleman had not been occasioned by any political motive, but most probably was owing to the malevolence of some individuals whose fraudulent conduct he had been the means of exposing while employed in the performance of that duty with which he had been intrusted.

The reply of the Earl of Aberdeen was such a one as was to be expected from a British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. He trusted "that the gentlemen composing the deputation did not imagine that His Majesty's Government had allowed the commission of so flagrant a breach of the solemn treaties subsisting between this country and Portugal, as that which had taken place in the case of Mr. Young, without instructing the British Consul to remonstrate with the persons at present exercising the Government of Portugal in the strongest terms. This had already been done more than once before the date of the last despatches from Lisbon, and he was sorry to say without effect up to that time; but he calculated that in a few days thereafter a communication would be received from the Foreign Office which would have the desired effect, both in the case of Mr. Young and Sir John M Doyle, as he therein notified to the de facto Government of Portugal, that if the proper steps were not immediately taken in regard to the two individuals in question, it must be prepared for consequences if the most serious nature; as in a case like this, where the liberty and rights of British subjects are invaded, His Majesty's Government were determined that they would not be trifled with."

United States.

[Circular to all the Collectors of the Inland Frontier on the Canada Line.]

TREASURY DEPARTMENT.
August 27, 1828.

SIR: the great extent of the inland and water frontier along the Canada line, and the facilities thereby afforded for the illicit introduction of foreign merchandize, make it necessary that the greatest attention should be paid to the due execution of the revenue laws in that quarter.

This letter, is therefore, by direction of the President, addressed to you, with a view to excite your most active vigilance upon this subject; which is the more especially required since the passing of the act of the 19th May last, increasing, in several important particulars, the former rate of duties on imported merchandize.

A further object of it is to say, that, should one or more additional inspectors be, in your opinion, necessary within your district, in order to ensure a faithful execution of the act above mentioned, you will make report to me accordingly, stating the points at which you deem them necessary to be stationed.

This intimation is not given to encourage, in any degree, an increase of subordinate officers where it can be avoided; and above all, where it can be avoided by increased activity and vigilance on the part of those already employed; but only that important objects of the act should not be left in danger of frustration through any real deficiency in the number of public agents indispensable towards securing its objects.

I remain, very respectfully,
Your obedient servant,
RICHARD RUSH.

From the N. Y. D. Advertiser.

Horses.—Great numbers of horses have died within a few weeks, in the neighbouring parts of Long Island, of the disease known by the name of "blind staggers." Opinions of practical farriers, so far as we have heard, are various with regard to the cause. Many horses, as we have been informed, which have been sent from stables in the city, for the benefit of the air and pastures have fallen victims to this disorder.

The Old Colony Memorial, published at Plymouth, Mass, mention that the same disease is very prevalent in that vicinity, and gives the following remedy, from Mason's Farriery:—

Bleed in the neck three times a week. Take an ounce of assafœtida, and the same amount of salts, mix them and give them as a drink three times a week in the morning. Give an injection of meal, water, molasses and lard. Rub him well and exercise him moderately A mash may be given him of bran, sulphur, salt petre, and a little tea and sweet oil, but give no drink for six hours. If all this answers no purpose after a few days, then take twenty-five grains of calomel 2 drachms of opium, one drachm of powdered fenael seed, mix with some syrup into a ball, and give it in the morning for three or four days.

It is said that the following treatment, after repeated trials has proved effectual.

Take a pint of gin six spoonfuls, and pour it down the horse's throat by means of a horn or bottle, or give it as opinion. If after two or three hours there is no relief, then repeat it.—The juice of the leek or onion, given in a greater quantity, will produce nearly the same effect.

It is pretty well ascertained that horses confined in stables seldom, if ever, have the staggers. Therefore "it would be advisable for every person, whose situation will admit of it, to confine their horses, particularly at night, during the spring and fall months."

The greatest object of curiosity, just now in Philadelphia, is a large Coach, constructing by Mr J. Gleason, and intended for the Citizens' Railroad between Bordentown and Washington, N. J. This enormous vehicle is divided into three departments, one above the other, with seven seats in each. The whole number of passengers to be carried is fifty-six; twenty-eight below and the same number above. The body of the carriage is thirteen feet long, five feet wide, and ten in height—When placed on the wheels, the roof will be about fourteen feet from the ground. There are to be no more than four wheels; those before about three feet in diameter, and the others something less than six. The breadth of the wheels is eighteen inches, each has a double set of spokes. The baggage is to be carried on a car, attached behind, and drawn on a single wheel, two feet and a half broad. The whole is to be drawn by twelve horses, three abreast, the driver to be aided by two postillions. In the stages now in use, the same number of horses, with three men, instead of a nine and two boys, would be able to carry but twenty-seven passengers. It is calculated that the rate of travelling, as to speed, will be about the same as in the four horse coaches. This carriage, it is expected, will be finished in about three weeks. It is now at Mr. Gleason's workshop, in St. James's street, back of St. James's Church.—Phil. Daily Chronicle.

The Great Harpy Eagle.—A very fine bird of this species was forwarded some time since by Messrs. Kenworthy and Holt's boats, from hence to London, having been purchased by the London Zoological Society, from a gentleman in this town.—This rare bird, though not more than sixteen months old, measures from the tip of the head to the feet, two feet six inches, and from the tip of each wing eight feet six inches. It is the largest of the kind in this country, except the Condor, and was brought about 12 months ago, when it was extremely small, from the river Magdalene, in S. America, by its late possessor, who had bestowed so much care and attention upon it as to have secured himself all the tokens of affection and domestication ever evinced by the bird. These indeed, were but few since his confinement, from such an early period of its existence, and a great change in its mode of living had failed to tame its innate ferocity, or to subdue its love of freedom. It refused all food that was not warm from recent slaughter, and seemed, by an occasional low cry, expressive of discontent, to lament its lofty eyrie, and its unbounded flight through fields of air It betrayed pleasure at the sight of its rearer, and answered when he called it "Jack," it would even take food at his hands, though a stranger venturing to approach equally near, might have severely suffered from such temerity, its power of wounding both with beak and talons being immense. Its plumage is iron grey, mixed with white.

Summary.

We have to announce the death of her Grace, Susan, Duchess of Manchester—Her Grace was daughter of the late, and sister of the present Duke of Gordon, and sister of the Dutchesses of Bedford and Richmond, the Marchioness Cornwallis and Lady Madelina Palmer—her Grace has left two sons and five daughters.

Sir William Keppell is to have the 2d Foot, in the room of Sir Henry Torrens; and General Huskisson succeeds to the 67th Regiment, late Sir Wm. Keppell's.

The successor to the late Sir Henry Torrens in the office of the Adjutant-General, though not officially declared, is generally understood to be Sir Herbert Taylor. This appointment will give universal satisfaction in the military circles, the highly satisfactory manner in which Sir Herbert has filled the situation in which he has hitherto served, having gained the general approbation of the numerous class of that profession with whom he, in the course of his official career, became connected.—Aug. 31.

A report is in circulation at Plymouth, and we trust it will be confirmed—that the missing Russian Admiral's ship had put into Brest.

The funeral of the late Sir Henry Torrens, took place quite privately on Friday, by desire of his family, at Welwyn, Herts. His remains were attended to the grave by one of his earliest and much attached friends, Lieutenant-Colonel D'Aguilar.—Aug. 31.

The donations of King's College amount to £47,054 13s., and the subscriptions for shares (540) to 54,000.; making together £101,654 13s., being the full amount it was originally proposed to raise: the work will now be proceeded in forthwith.

Upwards of 900 persons viewed the Thames Tunnel during the last four days of the past week; and the average of the last twelve weeks, notwithstanding the unfavourable weather, has been 1,300 persons each week.

Atlantic Steam Company.—The Act of Parliament for incorporating the Valentia Trans-Atlantic Steam Navigation Company is passed. The shares are reduced to £50 each. The estimate of the first vessel is £21,000, but she is engaged to make six voyages in the year, to accommodate fifty cabin and fifty steerage passengers, carrying engines of 200-horse power, and a cargo of 200 tons, besides her fuel. To common and immediate operations £24,000 is sufficient."—Dublin Evening Post.

It is said to be His Majesty's intention to form a magnificent collection of pictures, which is to be called the Waterloo Gallery. It is to be thrown open to the public.

During one of the thunder storms by which the metropolis has been recently visited, a person who for some years had been totally blind in his right eye, was walking over Waterloo bridge, when he was suddenly struck with a flash of lightning, which rendered him almost insensible. On his recovery, he found that his sight was almost perfectly restored.

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1828.

The Packet Ship Florida, of 1st September, from Liverpool, has arrived at New York, bringing papers to that date.—From our Foreign extracts it will be seen that the Russian Army is stated to have received a severe check, in the attack on the fortress of Shoumla.

The accounts of the Harvest in Great Britain are more favourable, than those previously received. The heavy rains had ceased, and it was expected that an average crop would be reaped.

Nothing decisive has taken place with respect to the situation of the Lord High Admiral. The general opinion seems to be, that the Naval Department will again be placed under the same direction, as that by which it was conducted previous to the appointment of His Royal Highness the Duke of Clarence.

Owing to contrary winds the Queenston did not arrive here till late on Thursday evening. COLONEL HILLIER arrived on board the Queenston.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, has proceeded from Montreal to By Town, for the purpose of visiting the works on the Rideau Canal.

The Hon. Col. Wells, Lady and family, arrived in the Canada, yesterday morning, from Niagara.—Mrs. Wells, and family were passengers in the Columbia, some days since from Liverpool to New York.

We regret to learn that a serious accident has happened to Mr Hamilton Merrit. On his journey from New York, the Stage Coach in which he was passenger, was overturned while the Driver was imprudently racing with another Coach, and Mr. Merrit's thigh bone was broken, besides other bruises received. He has been brought on his way home as far as Buffalo, and hopes are entertained, that he may soon without incurring danger be brought to St. Catharines.

Mr. JUSTICE HAGERMAN, arrived in the Canada, yesterday morning, from Niagara.—The Assizes for this District, commence on Monday next.

York Races.—The Races commenced on Monday last.—The Course being in excellent order, and the weather remarkably fine, a large concourse of persons was assembled to witness the sport, which was continued throughout the week on Wednesday and Friday.—By permission of the Commandant, Major Winslett, the Band of the 66th Regt. was in attendance, and added much to the attraction of the Course by performing several excellent pieces of music, and enlivening airs—At a little before Two o'clock on Monday, the Bugle sounded "To Boot and Saddle"—and immediately after the racing commenced.

FIRST DAY—MONDAY.

MAITLAND STAKES.—Entrance 10 Dollars—100 Dollars added—Ten Stone each—Three Rounds of the Course, best of Heats.

Mr. McCague's C. G. Diamond,	4	0	0
Mr. Dutcher's B. G. Hornet,	2	1	1
Mr. Huey's B. M. Ivanhoe,	3	2	2
Mr. Blevins' B. M. Dolly,	1	0	0

The interest which seemed to be produced, by the first Heat of this Race, on Dolly's coming out ahead was in some measure disappointed, in consequence of her Rider dismounting on the Course, before coming to the Scales—Diamond's Rider having made the same error, both were disqualified from running in the following heats, which however were well contested between, Ivanhoe and Hornet, the latter winning.

SECOND RACE, same day.—3 Dollars entrance—50 Dollars added—Weight for age—Two Rounds of the Course, best of Heats.

Mr. Small's B. G. Charley,	3	3
Mr. Nellet's B. G. Charley Lo-kittle,	1	1
Mr. Buchannan's R. M. Strawberry,	4	0	drawn.
Mr. Huey's B. G. Musquito,	2	2

In this Race, Charley Do-little—seemed to Do-all, and splendidly warmly pushed by Musquito—proved himself superior to his adversary, and won the Race.

SECOND DAY—WEDNESDAY.

YORK STAKES.—Entrance 10 Dollars—100 Dollars added—Weight for age—Three rounds of the Course, best of heats.

Mr. Blevins's B. M. Dolly,	2	2
Mr. Dutcher's B. G. Hornet,	1	1
Mr. Huey's B. G. Ivanhoe,	3	3

Dolly's running on Monday against Hornet, rendered her the favorite at starting in this race—Hornet however shewed that he had both spirit and bottom, and after two heats, which created a good deal of interest, took the race —His owner agreeable to the rules, was challenged by Mr. Small, and Hornet was sold for $200.

SECOND RACE, same day.—Entrance 5 Dollars—50 Dollars added—Ten Stone each—Two rounds of the Course, best of heats.

Mr. McCague's B. G. Diamond,	1	1
Mr. Huey's B. G. Musquito,	2	2
Mr. Small's B. G. Charley,	3	3

This race was easily won by Diamond. whose owner was challenged by Mr. Huey, and the Horse sold for $100.

THIRD DAY—FRIDAY.

LADIES PURSE.—Entrance 4 Dollars—40 Dollars added—Weight handicapped by the Stewards—Two rounds of the course, best of heats

Mr. Lawrence's B. M. Lady Lightfoot,	2	drawn.
Mr. Nellet's B. G. Charley Dolittle,	1

Lady Lightfoot is a young Mare 3 years old, and made a good start, taking the lead for some distance —Charley Dolittle however, having passed her and coming out some lengths ahead, the win withdrawn.

SECOND RACE same day—For all Beaten Horses—$4 entrance —40 Dollars added—Mr. Small's B. G. Charley, being the only Horse entered for this race, took the prize by galloping over the course

A Match Race once round the Course, was run this day, for Eighty Dollars, between

Mr. Boulton's G. G. Smart,	2
Mr Huey's B G. Jack,	1
Mr. Sherwood's C. M. Flirt,	3
Mr J Small's C. G. Fly,	4

Smart took the lead for some time,—Jack at starting was several lengths behind, but gained on all his antagonists, and eventually won the match in good style.

The weather continued fine throughout the week, and fortunately no accident occurred to mar the pleasures of the Course.

The Canadian Freeman in his last number, as usual, when things do not please him, is in a most violent passion, and throws his scurrility right and left. As we have our share of it in good company, we are quite content to bear with his impotent rage, feeling assured that there are not five persons in the community—five!—nay we almost doubt whether any other person except himself could be found, who would give countenance or support to the coarse and vulgar effusions, which grace,—or rather disgrace, the columns of the last Freeman. It is quite unnecessary to take any further notice of the subject. As to his attempts to create a prejudice against other persons as well as ourselves from circumstances connected with the amusements in which we have joined with our fellow townsmen during the week, they are quite too contemptible to deserve serious notice. They only prove that the Freeman loses no opportunity for gratifying his Spleen against certain persons, without giving himself the trouble to inquire whether he has any reason for doing so.

THE LORD BISHOP of Quebec, Consecrated the Church of Toronto, in the Home District, on Tuesday the 23d of September, and held a Confirmation on the same day, in which he was assisted by the Missionary the Rev. Mr. Magrath, and by the Rev. Mr. McAuley. His Lordship preached an impressive and appropriate Sermon at Morning Service, and Mr. McAuley gave an excellent one in the Evening.—As the funds for erecting the Church had proved inadequate, His Lordship added to his former donation. He was also pleased to express himself in terms of approbation of the conduct of the Missionary.

(Communicated.)

His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, with Lieut. Colonel Hillier, and the Hon. Mr. Boyle, A.D.C. arrived in town on Saturday—Sir Peregrine was previously unacquainted with his appointment to Nova-Scotia. It is understood that His Excellency returns to York, before his departure for his new Government.—Quebec Mercury.

CONSUMPTION.

The subjoined case would almost stagger belief, were it not that the name and address of the party are given, who, in gratitude for her restoration, will be happy to satisfy any inquirer of its truth.—The statement is well worthy of public attention.

To John St. John, Esq., 17, Howland-Street, Fitzroy Square.

SIR—Feelings of gratitude, and the wish of my husband, induce me to give you the following memorial of the cure you have performed on me. About twelve months ago my disease commenced with cough, shortness of breath, cold shiverings, nightly perspirations, extreme weakness, loss of appetite, and constant expectoration, which reduced me very much in body. My medical attendance proved of no advantage. I have now the great satisfaction of stating that in fifteen days I felt myself restored to health, having gained my appetite, being free from expectoration, and all other symptoms of my disease.—Your method is so free from pain, inconvenience, or unpleasantness, that an infant might undergo your excellent mode of treatment, for which accept my sincere thanks, as well as those of my husband and friends. Hoping you may enjoy many years in thus prolonging the lives of many, I remain, Sir, yours, with gratitude.

GEORGIANA HONEY.

11, Thomas-street, Horsedydown, Nov. 2, 1827.

In addition to the above, a member of this establishment having been restored to health by Mr. L.'s mode of treatment, feels it but an act of justice to that Gentleman, to state his perfect conviction of its efficacy, even in very desperate cases.—(From the John Bull.)

In publishing the foregoing account of a most extraordinary cure performed by Mr. St. John, some public notice of what mode of treating consumption we lately published from the Literary Gazette, we are happy in having it in our power to state that there is a gentleman in Quebec who has corresponded with Mr. St John Long, and has received some instructions from him to which person in that unhappy situation should be treated. We are not at liberty to publish the name of this gentleman, but we have this permission to refer any person in that melancholy state to him, who will be happy to answer every satisfactory question either to them or their friends, respecting Mr. Long, and the directions he has received, if they wish to go to England and place themselves under his care —ib.

Married,

On the 12th August last, at Crosby-on-Eden, Cumberland, by the Rev. S. Hodge, B. A., the Rev. J. Hudson, M. A., Fellow of St. Peter's College, Cambridge, and Chaplain to the Forces at York, in Upper Canada, to Barbara Wells, second daughter of the Rev. Thomas Lowry, D. D.

On the 24th September, at Trinity Church, New-York, by the Rev. Dr. Onderdonk, Richard Penn, Esq., Store-keeper of the Ordnance Department, Quebec, to Emma M. Tucker, second daughter of the late Mr. Tucker, of Mead Lodge, Pembroke, Rathen, South Wales.

On the 24th instant, by the Revd. M. Harris, A. M. John McLean Esqr. M. D. Royal Navy to Miss M. Ferguson, both of the township of Elmsley.—Brockville Gazette

Last Evening, by the Rev Mr Wenham, Mr. John Marlin to Miss Phoebe Lindsley all of this place.—Ib.

Died,

Of the prevailing fever, after a short illness, on Monday the 29th September, in the Township of Sidney, at the house of Mr. Charles Bonisteel, Mr. Luther Cotton, Carpenter, aged about 50 years. He stated before his death, that he left a wife and family in the Township of Hull, on the Ottawa River, in the Lower Province, and was on his way to visit several brothers who reside in the Township of Stamford, near the falls of Niagara. Editors of papers in this Province are requested to give this notice an insertion.

In the Township of Sidney, of a short illness on Friday the 5th September, Mrs. Elizabeth Traver, wife of Mr. Peter Traver, Senr., aged 58 years.

There lately died at St. (Therese,) JOSEPH BARBEAU, about 90 years of age, who had for about three years been Coachman to GENERAL MONTCALM, whom he attended with saddle horses on the field of battle at the plains of Abraham. He was born at Charlesbourg near Quebec. He has left several great-grand children and an aged widow, to whom he had been married for upwards of sixty years.—M. Gazette.

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.

NOTICE is hereby given, that Tenders will be received at this Office until Noon of Monday the 10th day of November next, from such person or persons (Butchers by trade) as may be desirous of Contracting for the supply of FRESH BEEF for the Troops, Staff, Departments &c. at this Post for the period of Twelve months, Viz., from the 25th December next to the 24th December 1829 inclusive.

The Tenders must express the rate in Sterling, (the dollar at 4s. 4d.) Per One hundred Pounds.

Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed "Tender for FRESH BEEF."

It is requested that the persons intending to propose, will call at this Office and make themselves acquainted with the Terms and Conditions of the Contract, and obtain the Form of Tender, previous to the day of delivering in the same.

ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.

COMMISSARIAT OFFICE,
York, 10th October, 1828. } 1 18

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.

NOTICE is hereby given, that Tenders will be received at this Office, until Noon of Monday the 10th day of November next, from such person or persons (Bakers by trade) as may be desirous of Contracting for the supply of BREAD, for the Troops, Staff, Departments, &c. at this Post, for the period of Twelve months, Viz. from the 25th December next to the 24th December 1829 inclusive.

The Tenders must express the rate in Sterling, (the dollar at 4s. 4d.) Per One hundred Pounds, and the Individuals tendering must be present at the opening of the Tenders, and produce a Sample of the quality of Bread which they intend to supply.

Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real Signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed, "Tenders for BREAD."

It is requested that the persons intending to propose, will call at this Office, and make themselves acquainted with the Terms and Conditions of the Contract, and obtain the Form of Tender, previous to the day of delivering in the same,

ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.

COMMISSARIAT OFFICE,
York, 10th October, 1828. } 1 18

TO LET, and possession given immediately, the House and lots lately occupied by Dr. Horne—Inquire of MR. ALLAN.
York, 10th Oct. 1828. y 18

LANDS FOR SALE.—In the Township of Hallowell, Lot No. 46, 3d Concession, North-west side of the Carrying-Place, - - - - - 200

In the Township of Fitzmaine—
Lots No. 17, 18, & 19, 3d Con. } - - 200
do. 15, 4th do. }

In the Township of Hamilton—
Broken Lots, 29 & 30, 9th Con. } - - 476
27, 28, 29, 31, 32, & 33, 3d do. }

North-east quarter, No. 1, 4th do. - - - 50

In the Township of Clarke—
Lots No. 16. 17 & 18, Broken Fronts } - - 2000
16, 17, & 18, 1st Con. }
17, & 18, 2d do. }
17, & 18, 3d do. }

In the Township of Darlington—
Lot No. 14, 3d Con. } - - - - - 400
5, 4th do. }

In the Township of Pickering—
Lots No. 16, 17, & half of 18, 1st Con. } - - 999
and Broken Fronts. }

In the Township of York—
Lot No. 57, 3d Con. - - - - - 200

In the Township of Gainsborough—
Broken Lot No. 27, 3d & 4th Con. - - 74
Apply to ANDREW MERCER.

Domestic.

THE RIDEAU CANAL.

FOR "THE ALBION."

Extracts from the notes of a gentleman who recently visited Canada :—

Among the various projects formed for the internal improvement of this interesting and enterprising portion of the British Empire, none attracks the attention of the traveller more forcibly than the Rideau Canal, whether the vastness of its design be considered, or the high advantages that must accrue to commerce from its completion, or the generous efforts of an enlightened policy in actively co-operating in every measure tending to promote the public good. The great distinctive advantage of this national work is the capability it possesses of facilitating a wider and more extended intercourse, than that which has been hitherto afforded by canal conveyance, it being equally adapted to steam, and to boat navigation.

Its connexion with the Welland Canal through the medium of Lake Ontario, on which sloops will ply, will present the most extensive inland navigation in the world, bringing into a regularly-established communication the markets of South and West and North, when the Ohio Canal shall be completed; and here an observer cannot but pause and admire the stupendous efforts of genius, which break down all the difficulties opposed by nature, bringing into a mutual knowledge of each other those distant portions of the continent, furnishing by profitable commerce every comfort, convenience and elegance of life, which makes man to be literally the Lord of the Creation and thus knit into one family, and weave into one web, the affinity & brotherhood of millions. The prompt and decisive character of the present Premier of the English Cabinet, has already been manifested in the happy choice that is made of the directing Engineer, Colonel By, whose long-tried talents presented him to the notice of his Grace as possessing every necessary qualification for carrying this great project to a successful conclusion.

The charge brought against His Majesty's Government of unnecessary extravagance in constructing this work, is quite chimerical; but even in this matter the conduct of Col. By has been most judicious and praiseworthy. He adopted the most economical system of expenditure, that was or could be consistent with so vast a work. He erected barracks, which for commodious apartments might rival any in his Majesty's Colonies, without incurring any useless expense in unnecessary architectural ornament.—There are two arches built by him, 57 feet span, over part of "the Ottawa" at the falls, of common ruble stone, without mortar; a fashion of building suggested to him (I understand) from seeing some bridges yet standing in Portugal, erected after this manner in the time of Julius Cæsar. The masonry of the lock of the Canal is of the first order. The work is conducted under the immediate superintendance of an officer of engineers, and the present plan used by the Gallant Colonel, of imitating the competition of rival contracting parties, furnished him with the most certain mode of reducing the enormous expense which monopoly of engagement must have entailed, and has reduced the expense from 8s. 6d. to 1s. 4d. the cubic foot. To obviate any imperfection in the construction of the canal, some of the engineer corps are employed constantly on different parts of the line—it would be injustice to Col. By and the corps of officers which he commands not to add, that the zeal exhibited by them in attending to this business does them the highest credit, while the privations they must needs suffer from such labour, are met with no other reward than the pleasing consciousness of a faithful discharge of public duty.

The following items I collect on the spot:—the first tree was felled Sept. 1826, the work commenced May, 1827. The length of the canal from the Otta to Lake Ontario at Kingston, 154 1-2 miles; the excavation, 16 miles; number of locks, 47; aqueducts, 2. Estimated expense. £474,899 1s 4d, including £42,000 for contingent expenses. Colonel By proposed the locks to be 150 feet in length and 50 in breadth, but the extent is finally been settled at 110 feet, 33 breadth, 8 feet deep. One of the advantages resulting from the canal admitting of steam navigation, will remove the necessity of employing the towing-path of 130 miles, and a saving of expense which more than balances the increased expense of the locks and additional depth of excavation. It is understood that £20,000 would have enabled the Colonel to construct the locks according to his first plan—a little time will perhaps prove that the expense would not be regretted. Every British subject must feel an honest pride in witnessing the noble use to which the wise system of the present Government has applied its power, in forwarding by the most liberal support, every scheme that can bear on the welfare of the Colonies, or the interests of mankind.

The falls of the Ottawa are distant about 100 miles from Montreal. The accommodation by steam-boats will attract thousands to visit the Chaudier, and the Rideau works at Bytown—the romantic scenery rivals any on the continent, not excepting the falls of Niagara. As the Ottawa river is happily free from that scourge, ague and fever, and other such like diseases, excursions to the falls, and to view the great works at Bytown, will probably form the fashionable route next season.

Port of Quebec.

ARRIVED,

Sept. 24.. Brig Hibernia, Liverpool, salt and goods.
....Brig Grecian, do. ballast.
..24.. Bark St. David, London. 7 settlers.
.....Brig Thetis, Limerick. 35 settlers.
..25.. Brigantine John Binner, Trinidad, mollasses and sugar.
..26.. Ship Loyalist, Tobago, rum.
.....Brig Heroine, Cork, ballast.
.....Bark Adamant Brown, London, do.
.....Brig Wilson, Workington, do.
.....Brig Thetis, Hull, do.
.....Brig Catherine, Irvine, coals,
..27.. Bark Shaller, Liverpool, ballast.
..28.. Brig Emerald, London.
..29.. Brig Favourite, Greenock. 30 settlers.
.....Brig Hope, Limerick 60 settlers.
.....Bark Venus, Bristol, ballast.
.....Brig Enterprise, Drogheda.
.....Brig Greenhow, Newry. 21 settlers.
.....Bark Hannibal, Liverpool. 1 settler.
.....Brig Pastora, Wigton, ballast.
.....Schr l'Esperance, Halifax. 2 settlers.
.....Ship Reward, Liverpool, ballast
.....Brig Wallsend, Liverpool, do
.....Brig Endymion, do do.
.....Brig Trafalgar, Limerick, do.
.....Brig Cherub, Greenock, general cargo.
.....Brig Earl of Dalhousie, general cargo.

PASSENGERS.

In the Favourite, Mrs. Stewart, Miss Cowan, Miss A. Cowan, Mr. Cornish, Dr. Matthews, Mr. McFarland, Mr. Kerr, and Mr. Grant.

In the Columbia, 24th August from Plymouth, at New-York, Major Loring and Lady of the English Army, and Mrs. Wells and four children of York.

SHIPPING INTELLIGENCE.

The Packet Columbia, at New-York 21st inst. (from London, via. Plymouth) sailed on the evening of the 24th August having put back from long. 15, lat. 49, in consequence of having been run foul of by the Ship City of Waterford, for Quebec, on the night of the 18th of August, by which the C. lost her bowsprit, foremast, maintop-gallant mast, sails much torn, both bows stove in, cut-water knocked aside, and all the chain-wales torn away on the starboard side. The wind was strong at-West, and a high sea, with dark squally weather, the ships on opposite tacks. The Columbia being on the larboard tack, in conformity to custom, attempted to go leeward—the other ship also kept off to leeward—this brought both ships in contact. The City of Waterford, lost foremast and maintop-mast and hull much injured.

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT.

September 25th, 1828.....136,610 tons.
September 25th, 1827.....135,525 tons.

Colonial.

FREDERICTON, N. B. Sept. 10, 1828.

We are happy to say that the crops in general will yield a very gratifying return in this part of the Province. The wheat, however, in some places has suffered very severely from rust; but this seems to be chiefly confined to the common Wheat; the account of the Tea, Malaga, and Winter Wheat being extremely satisfactory.

From the New-Brunswick Royal Gazette, we learn that a number of lots of Crown lands will be sold in a short time under the authority of Government. The following are the conditions :—

Upset price, £24 11s 8d, for 200 acres, viz., Purchase Money £10,; Grant Fees £12 11s 8d. Expenses of Survey £2.

In case the Purchaser shall pay down the whole amount of the Purchase Money, Grant Fees, &c. a Grant will immediately pass to him.

Any Individual purchasing but one Lot, is allowed to occupy it for three years without any Quit Rent or Interest upon the Purchase Money, after which period it is expected that with common Industry he will be in circumstances to enable him to pay it without inconvenience.—The Grant Fees, &c. are to be paid at such times as the Governor shall direct; and upon such payment, a Grant will pass reserving to the King the specified Rent forever, unless redeemed by the Grantee.

Varieties.

Power of Industry.—It was a beautiful observation of a Chinese sage, that by time and industry, a mulberry leaf becomes a silk shawl; but if the following statement be correct (and I have no reason to doubt its truth), it affords as striking a proof of what human ingenuity can accomplish—such as one indeed as our oriental philosopher would never have dreamt of. In the manufacture of steel an article may be raised from one half-penny to the value of 3,500 guineas! A pound of crude iron costs one half-penny; it is converted into steel; that steel is made into watch springs, every one of which is sold for half a guinea, and weighs only the tenth of a grain; after deducting for waste, there are in a pound weight 7,000 grains; it therefore affords steel for 7,000 watch-springs, the value of which, at half a guinea each, is 3,500 guineas!!

Small Farms.—It is not the abundance of land, but the thorough and skillful cultivation of it, that fills the barn with hay, the cribs with corn, and the mansion house with plenty. For one to crave a larger farm than he can cultivate is seeking profit, is therefore an extensive folly: for whatever a neglected field is worth, the interest of the capital, together with yearly taxes, will at length eat the field up.

SUGAR FROM THE BEET ROOT.

An establishment is now forming in the neighbourhood of Paris, for the manufacture of this sugar on a very extensive scale. A British gentleman is said to have offered a house called the Chateau d'Ormes, and an immense territory for the culture of the beet. More than sixty establishments are, or soon will be, in activity in all parts of France for this manufacture; and, we believe, from calculations recently made, that the sugar from the beet root, by means of the ameliorations lately introduced in the process of baking and crystallisation by various manufacturers, particularly by M. Crespel d'Arras, may triumph long enter into competition even with the sugar of the Indies.

THE MONKEY.

The Monkey has not had justice done him; for what right have you to judge of a whole people, from a few isolated individuals,—and from a few isolated individuals too, running up poles with a chain round their waists, twenty times the length of their own tail, or grinning in ones or twos through the bars of a cage in a menagerie? His eyes are red with perpetual weeping—and his smile is sardonic in captivity. His fur is mouldy and mangy, and he is manifestly ashamed of his tail, prehensile no more—and of his paws, "very hands as you may say," unmeet matches to his mirerable feet. To know him as he is, you must go to Senegal; or if that be too far off for a trip during the summer vacation, to the rock of Gebir, now called Gibraltar, and see him at his gambols among the cliffs. Sailor nor slater would have a chance with him there, standing on his head on a ledge of six inches, five hundred feet above the level of the sea, without ever so much as once tumbling down; or hanging at the same height from a bush by the tail, to dry, or air, or sun himself, as if he were flower or fruit. There he is, a monkey indeed; but you catch him young, clap a pair of breeches on him, and an old red jacket, and oblige him to dance a saraband on the stones of a street, or perch upon the shoulder of Briim, equally out of his natural element, which is a cave among the rocks—he is but the Ape of a Monkey. Now if we were to catch you young, good subscriber or contributor, yourself, and put you into a cage to crack nuts and pull ugly faces, although you might, from continued practice, do both to perfection, at a shilling ahead for grown up ladies and gentlemen, and sixpence for children and servants, and even at a lower rate after the collection had been some weeks in town, would you not think it exceedingly hard to be judged of in that one of your predicaments, not only individually, but nationally,—that is, not only as Ben Hoppus, your own name, but as John Bull, the name of the people of which you are an incarcerated specimen? You would keep incessantly crying out with angry vociferation, as a most unwarrantable and unjust Test and Corporation Act. And, no doubt, were an Qurang-outang to see you in such a situation, he would not only form a most low opinion of you as an individual, but go away with a most false impression of the whole human race.

Industry of Learned Men.—Camden was ten years in preparing his Britannica for the press; he published the first edition in the 53d year of his age, and four more during his life. Dr. M'Knight employed thirty years in preparing his Versions of the Epistles and Notes; he sat eleven hours a day in composing it, and he usually walked three hours a day for exercise. Dr. Campbell was engaged forty years on his translation of the Gospels with the Notes. Dr. Whitby's learned Commentary was the result of fifteen years study. Dr. Good spent eight years upon his Translation of Lucretius and Notes, "and it was composed," says Dr. O. Gregory, his excellent biographer, "in the streets of London during the translator's extensive walks to visit his numerous patients."

A Highwayman beaten by a Woman.—Last week, a young woman, of this town, named Hannah Westbury, while on her way to Loughborough, was attacked on the turnpike-road, when within two or three miles of the latter place, by an apparently half-starved squalid-looking fellow, rather below the middle size, who seized a basket which was hanging on her arm, and made off with it. Not relishing this kind of treatment, the girl, after deliberating within herself for a minute or two what to do, "screwed up her courage to the sticking point," and determined to regain her basket. She, therefore, followed, and overtaking the fellow, commenced an attack in turn; and although he struck her a violent blow on the back with a stick or bludgeon, which he had in his hand, she succeeded in overpowering him, and wresting the weapon from his hands, beat him with it until he was compelled to cry out in the most pitiable accents for mercy, when he alleged that distress had driven him to the commission of the deed. The girl's compassion being awakened by his tale of wo, she left off beating him, and having recovered her basket, she took three pence out of her pocket, and gave it him, and then pursued her journey without further molestation, leaving the fellow in a ditch by the way side.—Nottingham Journal.

It would appear from the following account in a German paper, that the young Napoleon promises to prove "a chip of the old block:"—"The young Duke of Reichstadt, the son of Napoleon, went through his last examination in every branch of studies to the perfect satisfaction of their Imperial Majesties, and of his Mother, who were present on the occasion. His grandfather told him after the examination had been concluded, that within a year he should enter the army, upon which the young Prince is said to have exclaimed—"Thank God! that my fate is fixed."

THE LOYALIST.

VOL. I. NO. 10.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY OCTOBER 18, 1828.

Poetry.

FROM THE ALBANY CHRONICLE.

SUMMER'S FAREWELL.

Farewell; I go to the Southern skies,
To fields where the verdure never dies,
Where the Autumn leaf is never sear,
And I walk in bloom round the laughing year;
Where the groves are array'd in living green,
And hoary winter was never seen.

My roses have pass'd from your garden bowers,
Faded and gone are my flowery hours;
My lillies that shone on the silvery wave,
Are decay'd and sunk in a watery grave;
The birds have ras'd their young and have flown,
And the music that rang in the groves is gone.

Ye have bound the sheaves of the yellow corn,
And the waving grass from the mead is shorn;
The berries that redden'd the mountain's side,
Or blush'd on the hedge rows in Summer's pride,
Are torn from their stems, or sunk in their bowers
By the spoilers's hand or the driving showers.

Ye have heard from the clouds my thunder's roll,
My lightnings have flash'd from pole to pole—
But my fervid heats and long bright days,
My showers and zigzag lightning's blaze,
Are passing now to the climes that rise
Beneath the blue Cordillera skies.

The verdure that burst in your green arcades,
And wav'd in your walks thro' the cooling shades,
That smil'd in their beauty on hill and dale,
On the quiv'ring spray, and the dewy vale,
They are past their prime, and must soon decay,
Their spoils must be borne by the winds away.

Boast not, O man! in thy flower and prime,
For thou too must feel the cold hand of time,
Though the rose on thy cheek is blushing now,
And a myrtle wreath on thy laughing brow;
Thy roses and lilies like mine must fade,
And thy myrtle wreath in the dust be laid.

Ye children of virtue, ye need not fear
For the sallow cheek, and the silver hair—
Though the frost of time has nipt your bloom;
For we know of a land beyond the tomb,
Where a fadeless spring shall dwell,
Where blight and decay are unknown—Farewell.

Miscellaneous.

SUFFERINGS FROM FAMINE.

The following account of the sufferings of an individual by famine is worthy of record, if only to show how long endurance is endurable, and what are the principle symptoms felt under its fearful infliction.

The siege of Mayence by the French took place early in the last war; and the situation of the circumstances was lately at Frankfort, ie which city he had been for many years a resident. The narrative is given, as nearly as possible, in his own words. He was an agreeable lively man, fond of anecdote, and he diverted his friends with many interesting circumstances which occurred during the investment and after the capture of his native place. He told us that the boy Ernest, mentioned in the narrative, possessed the faculty of seeing the shells in the air after their projection from the French batteries, and that he was accustomed to call out, that the people in the streets might take care of their descent; this warning, however, was useless, as Ernest, after he had reaching the ground, no one knew which way to run to avoid it. There were several individuals who were equally acute in vision among the besieged at the same time—But to the subject.

The siege had commenced, and the firing had begun to wax warm, so that the inhabitants were glad to avail themselves of any adequate shelter from its terrible effects. The batteries enfiladed every street, and the cellars of the houses became the only secure places of refuge. Thither most persons betook themselves, with what stock of provisions they could muster. These cellars were strongly arched over, and it was a rare circumstance that a bomb, after forcing through the roof and strong floors of a house in succession, had power enough left to penetrate the arches which covered them. An unfortunate accident prevented any yielding any aid to the garrison in the defence, having broken my leg by a fall from the ramparts a day or two after the city was invested. I lived in a tolerably broad street; but was much exposed to the enemy's shot, which frequently plunged along its whole range from end to end. Now and then a shell had fallen within a few yards of my door, and it became evident that it was no longer safe to remain above ground. I therefore caused a mattress or two to be removed into my cellars, together with a small quantity of food, some candles, necessaries, and a few books, and took up my abode there.

There were two cellars, each situated at the end of a vaulted passage. The second was occupied by my two female domestics; a lad named Ernest, about fourteen years of age, lived in one of the other, and ran backwards or forwards as circumstances or the own inclinations disposed him. About the centre of the arched passage on the right hand side, was a flight of stone stairs, which led to the kitchen above. The boy Ernest was of a lively fearless disposition, and would frequently get weary of our subterranean residence, and run up to look out at the street-door, and sometimes venture towards the ramparts, when he would contrive to bring us news of the state of affairs and mention what houses were ruined by the firing.

Matters had proceeded in the foregoing manner for a week or two after we had lived in our subterraneous apartments, when one morning the firing seemed to rage with redoubled violence, both within and without the defences. The earth around and above me shook with the explosions from the batteries, and I concluded some decisive attack was about to take place. My helpless situation, stretched upon my mattress or sitting up and supported with pillows, became doubly painful. At such a moment to be powerless and inert, was peculiarly afflicting; and my reflections were not of the most agreeable character. Ernest came to the door of the cellar about ten o'clock in the morning, for the last time, and told me he should go up and learn what the terrible loudness of the firing indicated. He left me and mounted to the kitchen above, which I could scarcely imagine he had crossed, before a noise and crash, loud as the loudest thunder, involved me at once in fear and darkness. I was at the corner of the cellar farthest from the entrance, and a load of rubbish choaked up the door-way, and extended some feet within the entrance of my abode. I immediately conjectured the cause; namely, that a shell had fallen upon the roof and exploded on or broken through the arched passage at the entrance of the cellar, making me a prisoner.

When I had recovered a little from my surprize, I found the entrance hermetically sealed against ingress or egress, and what was, in my circumstances, equally dreadful, a tinderbox, candles, and a little store of provisions, which were just without the cellar-door in an excavation in the wall of the passage, were lost to me. I might have traveled thither on my mattress and secured them, but the masses of stone piled on each other forbade the most distant prospect of hope from any exert on of my own. I threw myself back in an agony of despair. In the confusion which reigned without, I must remain forgotten! All the horrors of my situation came upon me at once, and my heart died within me. To add to my misfortune my candle was burnt out; —with what feelings did I watch its glimmering to the socket. Its last flash was like the arrow of death passing through my heart. I now wept like a woman amid the darkness of my unseen abode, that was, as far as I could judge, to be my clamshell. Death from hunger, was one of all its horrors, and that of suffering. The dull and as it were remote sound of the guns from without, so different in intensity from what it had lately been, told me that the mass interposed between myself and the upper world must be very considerable. I felt my heart shrink up at the discovery of my situation. The hours lingered into ages; but it was long before the feeling of hunger affected me—so much was my mind occupied with apprehensions for the future, and filled with hopes and fears as contingent aids and floor for the future increased, and a hundred times did I in vain feel around carefully for some other relic of food; I had, I thought, no alternative but to die. Why should I fear to do so? millions fresh, perhaps thousands, were at the same moment dying around, but a short distance from me, in the violence of angry passions, and with horrible lacerations. I should go out from life like a taper; and most probably the pains of such a death had been greatly exaggerated. Such were my self-comforts—refuges from despair.

I soon found a sensation of emptiness come over me, bordering upon faintness, similar to what many people feel who delay a meal to a very late hour. It appeared to me that my eyes were weak, and I fancied if I had light near me that still I could have seen nothing distinctly. This sensation was accompanied by a tremor in the eyelids and a swimming in the head. I tried to relieve myself by giving way to sleep, the inclination for which came at times very strongly over me, but I could not gain more refreshment than a restless doze imparts, and this was always cut short by some horrible vision that prevented its affording me the least benefit. Now I thought I was seated at a splendid feast, where all that could attract the palate and delight the senses was before me. I was touching the richest viands—any, actually lifting the envied morsel till it touched my mouth, and its flavour was in my nostrils, when I was awoke by some hideous phantom snatching the untasted morsel from my shrivelled lips and dashing it away Sometimes I found myself in a delicious island, where the finest fruits grew in nature's utmost prodigality; but, on tasting them, they were nauseous and sickening, mere soot and ashes; and if I sought to relieve my thirst from the pure limpid streams that ran in crystal among the luxurious scenery, I found them changed into bitter blood. Every thing seemed to combine to mock my sufferings and edge my tortures. I was much afflicted by spasms and twitching sensations internally, as if the viscera were drawn together and expanded too suddenly. Hollow, aching, gnawing pains, as if my vitals were torn with pincers, frequently assailed me, but seemed to diminish in force from repetition. I strove with all my might to bear up with patience and resignation; and at times I subdued my bodily pain with my mind's energy; but alas! such periods were only of momentary duration. Drowsiness generally accompanied the cessation of pain, but it was only to make me start from hideous visions and tantalising dreams. It seemed as if no recollections of my past life—no images but such as would distress me to the utmost, at such a moment, was ever recalled; such as they were, they appeared horribly vivid and true, torturing me like fiends, and rendering my mind an instrument of pain horrible as that where the worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched.

That absolute weakness which is the fruit of inanition in general, did not come over me for some days. It is true I had no opportunity of trying my strength; and I know not what effect my recent accident might have had on my frame, in rendering it less or more capable of resistance to the approach of hunger. My mind seemed to be first susceptible of the advance of suffering, for my memory was very quickly impaired All my recollections seemed in disconnected links, or united with what had not the remotest affinity to each or either, as is often the case in a fevered dream. Almost intolerable restlessness of spirit at first accompanied my bodily torment, ending in deep depression of mind, and sighing, I poured forth my prayers to God incessantly; but they seemed to give little or no consolation. Instead of being followed by resignation (I am speaking of the early part of my suffering), I felt inclined to murmur the more at my destiny, and task the justice of the Almighty in predestining me to such a doom. Then my feelings would be converted into keen regret, or rather torture, for my murmuring The prospect of death added weight to my mental anguish, and suddenly summoned before me, enlarging darkly in bulk, the sins of my past life, until they rose to be inaccessible barriers to the hope of eternal glory when my miserable existence on earth should have closed. I always rate the mental torment I endured on this occasion as equal to the bodily, during the time the body preserved the consistency of its functions. Afterward she mind sunk down with it into a species of apathy no apprehension could rouse. In that dreadful state I demanded of Heaven if my terrible sufferings would not propitiate my sins —whether Heaven, that had so permitted justice to be heaped upon my head, would not balance it against my offences towards its majesty! Thus I prayed or murmured. Reason seldom aided me. I was the victim of suffering's impulses, and was cast upon wild fancies, enjoying no repose.

This stage of my trial soon had its end: I had no qpode of computing time, for the hands of my watch were invisible from the darkness; I knew that it passed not after I had finished the last drop of my water. The absence of this beverage, though I had made it last as long as I could, produced a rapid change in my sensations; this I well recollect. I began to feel fainter and more weak, and my limbs grew painfully cold. Shiverings now and then came over me; and my mind, contrary to what had happened before, seemed to have by far the advantage of the body. I was conscious of delirium at times, and of demoniacal dreams, but at intervals I was more composed, and suffered little pain, but increased debility. The viscera seemed to be diminished, and all energy in them extinct, feeling like a dead mass, and of those of a dead disembowelled animal had been placed within me instead of my own. My giddiness of head increased, together with the spasms and faintness. I am certain, too, that about this time I became totally blind, at least such is my firm impression. I found, too, that in my paroxysms of delirium I had attempted to gnaw my arms, but the laceration was not deep, simply from the want of physical power to penetrate the muscle with my relaxed jaws. "When, O God, will my agonies end?" was my frequent cry, for I was too weak for an articulate ejaculation. I seemed to have forgotten words even to myself, as I found when I tried to pray: I could not connect what I would say, I can well remember. At length a repose, which seemed the forerunner of speedy death, came upon me, though still sensible, but powerless as a corpse. I looked for my deliverance but death with unconcern. I have an impression that, while lying in this state, I heard the sound of artillery, but I cannot be certain, any more than I can tell how long it was before I became wholly insensible.

My next recollection of myself is a painful one. I was I could not guess where. Strange voices were around me, and I could not see the speakers, from utter want of vision. The horrible debility I felt in body, combined with the activity of my mind during my resuscitation, was unspeakably painful—so much so that the recollection almost overpowers me at times even now. It appeared that Ernest had escaped the effects of a thirteen-inch shell, which burst over the passage to the cellar and broke in the arch. The siege grew warmer, and the city was taken. When matters were a little quiet, the faithful lad did not fail to implore all he met in my behalf. A humane French Officer ordered a search to be made, and I was found, apparently lifeless, stretched on my mattrass. To the care of a French Surgeon I also owe my recovery, and the power of now relating my sufferings. That recovery was slow. I had endured a fasting of nine entire days. I saw

Summary.

Extract of a letter from the American Consul in Russia, dated July 25, 1828.—" The new Tariff will cause a serious diminution of our commerce with this country.—This measure, it has been intimated to me by some of the Russian dignitaries, is not looked upon with a favorable eye by His Majesty's Government, and though I do not know that they will adopt any countervailing measures, yet I would not be astonished if they were to do so. We have heretofore taken more than 5-4ths of all the sailcloth, Ravens duck and Bems—and when the manufacturers of these articles find that their market is cut off, will they not make long and loud complaints?"

University of London.—Mr. Campbell, the distinguished author of The Pleasures of hope, is to deliver a course of lectures in this University next spring, "On the History of Classical Literature." It is a part of the plan of this establishment, that, in addition to the lectures of the regular Professors, the Council shall have the power of engaging individuals of celebrity, initerature or science, to give occasional courses; and that, too, upon subjects for which a professor has been appointed. The building in Upper Grower-street promises to have a beautiful effect when the cupola and portico shall be finished. The greater number of the lecture, rooms, &c. are now ready for the reception of the professors and their classes, and the University will certainly open, we hear, on the 1st of October, the earliest day which the Council announced for that purpose.

Two exportations of British Bandana silk handkerchiefs, manufactured in Spitalfields from the raw silk of India, have lately taken place at Dover, for France, and there is no doubt many more must follow. It has recently been discovered that British Bandana, wrought from the thrown silk of India, is not only a superior fabric in point of texture, but admits washing without fade or discolour; whereas those made on the Continent, from Italian or Mediterranean thrown silk, in imitation of India, lose both in durability and colour by washing.

The cultivation of Tobacco is becoming general in New South Wales; and it is expected that, in progress of time, New South Wales will be able to export Tobacco equal to that which is grown in Virginia. Manufactures are being established rather extensively at Sydney, in New South Wales; and several steam-engines have been sent out from this country within the last year.

Mr. Baron Bullock, in his charge to the grand jury at York assizes' thus explained the alteration of the law with regard to the evidence in cases of forgery: "By the law as it now stands, parties are admitted evidence who believe were called on the score of having an interest in the forged instrument. I myself was always at a loss to account for such preclusion, it was so repugnant with every principle of the criminal law of this country; but it had become so inveterate a custom that no one seemed inclined to oppose it. Now by the 9th George IV it is enacted, that no person shall be deemed an incompetent witness because of the interest he may have, or be supposed to have, in the document alledged to be forged."

It is stated that Lord Corbermere, now in the East Indies, has been offered the situation of Governor of the Island of Jamaica

Workmen have commenced driving piles for a new bridge, which is about to be erected across the cut which leads from the Thames to the basin at Pimlico, known by the name of Lord Grosvenor's Canal. The bridge will lead from Eccleton-street, to Belgrave square (recently built,) and will see the main road and grand thoroughfare from Knight's-bridge to Pimlico. At an early hour on Monday the gates of the Canal were opened, and the whole of the water let out; while men, women, and boys were seen, up to their knees in mud, scrambling for the fish, of which there was a great quantity, chiefly roach, dace, perch, and eels.

The improvements in Covent-garden market have already commenced by the extermination of some of the china shops. The whole, it is calculated, will not be completed in less than two years.

The naval force of Spain in service on the 1st April, 1828, consisted of the following vessels of war, viz:—

Line of battle ships—two of 80 guns and one of 74.
Frigates—two 62, two of 50, and four of 44.
Corvettes—one 26 and two 20.
Brigantines—thirteen, carrying from 14 to 22 guns.

Three schooners of from 10 to 16 guns, and four vessels of smaller size.

Of those 36 vessels, fifteen are now in America, under the command of Con Laborde.

St. Ronan's Bowling Club.—The second meeting of this club was held at Innerleithen on Friday week. It has increased greatly in numbers since last year, and its roll now contains the name of almost every landed proprietor in the county, besides that of Sir Walter Scott, Bart., and other gentlemen of eminence. Early in the morning, crowds from all quarters, and by all sorts of conveyances, came pouring into the village. The quoit chosen for the scene of action was a field near the banks of the Leithen, and it was calculated nearly 3,000 people were on the ground. A very extensive ring was formed in the middle of the field, within which none were allowed to enter but members of the club and competitors. The Earl of Traquair, William Stewart, Esq. Glenormiston and James Hogg, Esquire, acted as Judges of the games, which commenced about ten o'clock, and throughout the day the greatest order prevailed. Nine silver medals and three border bonnets were awarded to the successful competitors at quoits, running, leaping, wrestling, throwing the hammer, &c. At six o'clock, eighty gentlemen sat down to dinner, Professor Wilson in the Chair.

Captain Basil Hall, R. N. who has been on a tour in the United States and Canada, arrived in London last week, by the Corinthian; from New York.—August 19.

A steam vessel of war, of 700 tons; is building at Woolwich.

Mr. Austin, deputy treasurer of Greenwich hospital, is under arrest, charged with having embezzled the funds of that institution to a large amount.

Several islands of ice have lately been discovered near the Cape of Good Hope, and considering the warm latitude, is considered a most extraordinary circumstance. One of the icebergs presented a square of 25 or 30 toises of elevation. Some of them appeared to be breaking up, and another, which was subsequently discovered was almost dissolved.

Sir W. Scott's next novel is said to be founded on certain incidents in the history of Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy, and will include, as did, his final conflict with the Swiss. The scene partly in Burgundy, partly in Switzerland.

Singular Discovery.—As some quarrymen last week were levelling the ground before Litfield-place, near the new Observatory on Clifton Down, they found the ground unusually hollow, and on opening it, a shaft about thirteen feet deep was discovered, on descending which they were led into an apartment or cave, nearly thirteen or fourteen feet high, in the direction from one of the Avon river, and to which there evidently appeared to have been once a communication, but which is now stopped up with rubbish and dirt.—It is not improbably supposed that it either was, or led to the cavern which is called in some old chronicles the Cave of St. Vincent. Several stalactites were found which were in the possession of our informant.—Bristol Journal.

It is confidently stated that Col. Lumley, acting as Lieut-Governor of Sierra Leone, in consequence of the death of Col. Denham, will be appointed Governor; that the mixed Commission will not be removed to Fernando Po; and that the preparations for a settlement at the latter are ordered to be discontinued.—Globe.

At the monthly meeting of the Common Council of Liverpool, on Wednesday, the sum of £500 was voted in aid of the fund for the erection of the King's College, London.

Paris, Sept. 2.—The son of Marshal Soult, and that of Gen. Mathieu de la Redorte, after the most pressing solicitations, have obtained leave from the War Minister to accompany the expedition to the Morea, and set off post twelve hours after.—The latter will command a field battery. The Prussian Major de Scharnhorst having obtained his Sovereign's leave to fight in defence of Christianity, has joined Gen. Pozzo's Prussian service, has set out for his destination.—Constitutionnel.

The Duke of Wellington arrived at his residence in Downingstreet, at a late hour on Sunday night, from Cheltenham.—His Grace left town on Saturday morning for the Lodge, Windsor-Park, where the Duke had an audience of the King, and afterwards proceeded to his seat, at Strathfieldsaye, Hants, at which place the Duke will entertain a party of his friends during the early part of the shooting season. Mr. Secretary Peel is expected to come from Brighton to join the party.

The funds continued to advance slowly, without material alteration, in the general feature of the market. Consols closed at 88 1-4 to 3-8.—Sept. 6th.

The retirement of the Duke of Clarence from the important office of Lord High Admiral, it is now said, in the naval circles, took place about a fortnight ago. Lord Chancellor, it is added, some time since had a long conference with his Royal Highness, and his lordship is occupied in remodelling the form of the patent by the end of which that office is held. The Duke of Clarence still continues to perform the duties of the office.

The New Brunswick Courier states that the King of the Netherlands has been chosen Arbitrator by Great Britain and the United States, in the unfortunate boundary question. The same paper also states, that Robert Parker, Esquire, has been appointed Judge of the Court of Vice Admiralty, in the room of Charles J Peters, Esquire, who has received the appointment of Attorney General of the Province, and been sworn into office.

The Lord Bishop of Nova-Scotia has returned to town from his tour in Canada. His Lordship proceeds to Halifax via Boston in a few days.

Melancholy Occurrence.—A few days since, a young Baronet, who not long since came into possession of his title and a large family estate, put a period to his own existence by firing the contents of a gun through his right side. The ball penetrated the heart. Although in possession of the causes which led to this melancholy event, we decline mentioning them for obvious reasons.—Freeman's Journal.—The baronet alluded to is, we regret to state, Sir Hugh O Donnell.—Dublin Packet.

England.

Extensive Embezzlement at Greenwich Hospital.—About fifteen years since, Mr Thomas Austin entered on the establishment in the capacity of clerk, and, by his unremitting attention to the duties of his office, he attracted the notice and obtained the patronage of Sir John Colpoys, who was at that period lieut. governor of the hospital. On the death of Lord Hood, Sir John Colpoys succeeded him as governor, and Sir Thomas Thompson became the treasurer, who strongly recommended Mr. Austin for the situation of deputy treasurer. The application was successful, and Mr. Austin continued to fulfil the duties of his important station nearly up to the time of the present unfortunate exposé. Three or four months ago, Sir Thomas Thompson died, and was succeeded by the present treasurer, Sir William Johnstone Hope, who selected a Mr. Payne for his deputy; who, previous to undertaking the responsibility attached to his situation, declared that he could not undertake the examination of the late treasurer's accounts. The inspection took place, when it became apparent that there was a deficiency amounting to between six and seven thousand pounds. The defalcation was quickly discovered. Suspicion arising that his deficiencies were much larger, another investigation was instituted, and the result of that inquiry established, beyond all doubt, a charge of an enormous embezzlement having been committed. The sum at present amount stated at 25 to £30,000, and some even say £50,000. The discovery speedily reached the ears of Mr Austin, who, on Wednesday last, absconded suddenly. A meeting of the Directors of the hospital was instantly held, at which Lord Auckland attended, he being auditor of the defaulter's accounts, and it was forthwith resolved to obtain a magistrate's warrant against him, which was placed in the hands of Kenney, an active police officer, with a written paper offering a reward of one hundred guineas, should he succeed in arresting him The unhappy man was traced from his house at Sydenham to Hounslow, at which latter place he got on the Worcester coach, when all further clew was lost. It is stated that he has adopted a strict disguise, and it is rumoured he has taken a route towards Ireland, of which kingdom he is a native.

The New Lord Rockers.—The day after the launch of the Royal Adelaide, at Plymouth, His Royal Highness the Lord High Admiral, having given the necessary orders for an experimental cruize, left that harbour in the Royal Sovereign yacht, and ran down to the Lizard, accompanied by the Britannia, (110 guns) Orestes, Pylades, Basilisk and Procris, brig of war, and was then joined by the Prince Regent, also of 110 guns, bearing the flag of Vice-Admiral Sir Henry Blackwood, under the command of Sir Charles Ballard Officer, the squadron proceeded about 40 miles from the Land's End, to enable the Lord High Admiral to witness the practice of the great guns by the two new first rates. On board each of these ships detachments of marine Artillery, had been embarked; to ascertain with one comparative skill with that of the sailors in firing, was, we believe, a principal object of the experiment. Casks were accordingly lowered into the sea, and towed by the smaller men of war, at which the guns of the Britannia and Prince Regent were fired, each of them distant from the object about 200 yards. Several of the casks were in succession blown to atoms, and the practice was on the whole excellent; but the result did not prove superiority of the Marine Artillery over the seamen. The ships then fired broad sides for some minutes with extraordinary rapidity, the practice in both cases affording to the Lord High Admiral the utmost satisfaction, as His Royal Highness was graciously pleased to express. The comparative rates of sailing of those stupendous ships was next tried when the Britannia (a square stern) appeared to have a decided advantage over the Prince Regent, which had been built on Sir Robert Sepping's plan, with a round stern: but at present, no accurate judgment can be formed on this head, as the bottoms of both vessels are very foul. Before Sir Henry Blackwood returned from his cruize, that Gallant Officer will be able to form a correct estimate of the comparative sailing capabilities of the ships.

The Britannia and Prince Regent are respectively of about 2,600 tons burthen, each carries 32 and 24 pounders (long guns) with the usual carronades. They are represented to us as two of the finest ships ever launched.

After the Royal party had gone ashore referred to, the Lord High Admiral proceeded along the coast and, at the end of the two day's constant sailing, arrived, as our readers already know, at Deptford on Thursday last. The distance sailed by His Royal Highness, in his homeward voyage, is calculated at about 300 miles. The weather was occasionally rough, the yacht frequently sailing under double-reefed top-sails. She performed her voyage in admirable style, and on every occasion, outsailed the men of war. During the whole trip (as above stated) the new Russian squadron, destined for the Mediterranean, hove in sight; and we only refer to the circumstance to state, that the way in which the ships engaged in were manœuvred was such as by any means calculated to excite either the envy or the admiration of our own tars. One of the two-deckers, in endeavouring to tack missed stays twice.

Friday was being the day fixed for opening the Bolton and Leigh Railway, the locomotive engine drew the thirteen waggons and he coach, containing, in the whole, about 150 persons, at the rate of about five miles an hour. The engine was then sent back to the other end of the line, and the same returned, drawing after it six waggons, each containing about two tons of coals, which it drew with great ease at the rate of about seven miles an hour. When it had arrived opposite the place where the procession had halted, it was again detached, and several experiments were made to show its locomotive powers, when freed from the incumbrances by which it had been previously retarded. In some of these experiments it moved at an average of twenty miles an hour, we should think, than twelve or fourteen miles an hour, and the motion was stopped or reversed with the greatest certainty and celerity.

New Custom-House at Liverpool.—The first stone of this building, the splendour of which promises to be commensurate with the commercial importance of Liverpool, was laid by the Mayor of the borough, with due ceremony, on Monday last. The site is four fronts; the main one four hundred and thirty feet in length.

Caution.—Mr. John Hare, Jun. of Bath, was on Tuesday last fined in the mitigated penalty of Three Hundred Pounds, for sending letters in parcels by the Bath Coach, addressed to Mrs. Whitaker, late of Newington-Causeway. One half of the fine goes to the informer.

Col Denham, the Governor of the colony of Sierra Leone, died in the latter part of May last, much lamented.

A new Report of the Commissioners for Building Churches has been printed by order of the House of Commons. It states that 174 churches have been built, and chapels had been erected, accomodation had been provided for 307,200 persons, including 59,650 free seats, to be appropriated to the use of the poor, at the time of making the last report, and since that time, 15 new churches and chapels have been built, accommodation for 8,300 persons, including 10,688 free seats for the poor. Also, that 46 new churches and chapels are now building, to accommodate 66,472 persons; and the estimated expense of building which is £263,798 18s. Applications have been made from 141 places, the population of which, according to the census of 1821, amounts to 829,733, and for which there is at present church accomodation for 119,985. The Commissioners state, that since the opening of the commission, they have already determined on, and made provision for, the erection of 213 additional churches and chapels; and that the Exchequer Bills which has been issued to July 17, 1828, amounted to the sum of £1,130,000.

AMERICAN COMMERCE.

[FROM BELL'S WEEKLY MESSENGER.]

In our last paper we stated the grounds upon which we considered that the Government of the United States had adopted the measure of a high prohibitory duty in too early a stage of their commercial system. To examine the unfortunate tariff, we stated our opinion as to the impolicy of any measures which should induce us to impose a tax upon the elements of our commerce

The great staple of the American export trade, and of our leading English manufactures, unfortunately happens to be the same article, namely—cotton. This fabric, which is at once capable of being manufactured into articles of the highest elegance, as well as into substances of the most common and ordinary domestic uses.—of being wrought into one of the lightest and most fashionable of our textures, and of being rendered by its weight, tenacity, and thickness, impervious almost to cold, is undoubtedly destined to become the clothing of the southern, western, and eastern continents. A raw commodity of this sort, which, after undergoing the process of English art, circulates through innumerable channels of commerce, and forms the principal article of our export trade,—with which we supply the continent of Europe in the first and primitive stage of its preparation, as cotton twist,—and in its last and more perfect form of a finished manufacture, must not be rejected from any national system, or thirst of retaliation. And yet policy requires us not to depend entirely upon America for an element of industry of this vital importance to our domestic trade; and we have not the slightest doubt that we shall be able to emancipate ourselves from a dependance upon the American market for this article, in a much shorter time than the Americans will be able to supply themselves with the leading manufactures of England.

The details of commerce, though curious, are often dull, but they are interesting to this country beyond measure, in that state of affairs which the American tariff has recently produced. The raw cotton of America is not indigenous to those soils in which it is grown, and it is only within the last thirty years that it has been cultivated in the Southern States of America to such a prodigious extent. Our own extensive and unconfined possessions in India furnish a natural and proper soil for the cultivation of cotton, and encouragement is alone required, together with the breaking up of the prohibitory system, to enable India to supply Great Britain with raw cotton, to ten times the amount which she now consumes. It will be by a perfect freedom of our eastern commerce, by the destruction of monopolies, and a cautious and well regulated system of bounties in the beginning, to encourage the investment of capital, that we shall be enabled to raise up a trade to the American market, and to render ourselves independent of her raw produce. But it is said, how can the cottons of Bengal and British India contend for a moment with the cultivated produce of Georgia, and the southern provinces of the United States? Have they not been often tried, and as often failed? Look at the prices in the markets between cotton, the growth of India, and growth of America. The answer is,—grow them the same advantages of European skill and superintendance, and see what will be the improvement of the raw articles both in quantity and quality.

After the cessation of the cotton has kept pace with the restrictions on the Indian market, and the cotton wool of America and the West Indies have rivalled and thrust out the cotton of India from this cause alone;—was the produce of unadulterated freedom, Georgia and the southern provinces of the United States! Have they not been often tried, and as often failed? Look at the prices in the markets between cotton, the growth of India, and growth of America. The answer is,—grow them the same advantages of European skill and superintendance, and see what will be the improvement of the raw articles both in quantity and quality.

After the cessation of the cotton has kept pace with the restrictions on the Indian market, and the cotton wool of America and the West Indies have rivalled and thrust out the cotton of India from this cause alone;—was the produce of unadulterated freedom, Georgia and the southern provinces of the United States! Have they not been often tried, and as often failed? Look at the prices in the markets between cotton, the growth of India, and growth of America. The answer is,—grow them the same advantages of European skill and superintendance, and see what will be the improvement of the raw articles both in quantity and quality.

The American system of high duties rated, for we find that reinforcements are on their march from the interior, to join the Russian Army. The Imperial Guards have passed the Danube, and have been reviewed by the Emperor. More troops will follow them, and the Russian frontiers will be occupied by the army of Poland, under the Grand Duke Constantine. The Odessa letters of the 10th, swell the Turkish force at Choumla to between 120 and 140,000 men, with 1,400 pieces of cannon.

Silistria, Ghiurgevo, and Rudschuk, still hold out.

BULLETIN OF THE RUSSIAN ARMY.

London Courier Office, three o'clock, P. M. Sept 6.

We have just received the following Bulletins.

OPERATIONS AGAINST CHOUMLA, AUG. 7.

"After the departure of His Majesty the Emperor, on the 2d, nothing had passed remarkable at Choumla, with the exception of a cannonading between the trailleurs of our advanced posts, and the Turkish trailleurs.

"On the 3d, Lieutenant-General Ivanoff, who was with a part of his division at Tcheflyk, completed the fortifying of the position.

"On the 5th, the detachments under the orders of General Prince Madatoff, made a strong reconnoitering on the enemy's left flank, from the village of Maino, to Boular, by Kediketai.

"This detachment did not meet with the Turks any where, but they reconnoitered exactly the situation of the places, and remarked, that the enemy had upon a chain of heights which touches their flank, vast entrenchments flanked by bastions.

"The Turkish cavalry has not quitted the fortress.—According to the reports of the Bulgarians, who have taken refuge with us, the fortress is in want of provisions and especially forage. "It results from the same reports that the Seraskier. Hussein Pacha, had received from Constantinople, the official advice that they could send him no reinforcements; as all the troops whose presence was not necessary in the capital were to be sent to Morea.

"On the 6th, Gen. Rudiger was sent with a strong detachment of infantry, cavalry and artillery, to reconnoitre the right flank of the enemy, in the direction of Tcheflyk to Kostees. Before the detachment had quitted the position taken near Tcheflyk by Lieut.-Gen. Ivanoff, our piquets had remarked that a corps of 2,000 Turks, composed in a great measure of cavalry, having quitted the place, had proceeded by Kostees to Este Stamboul.

"Lieut.-Gen. Rudiger marched immediately on Este Stamboul, to intercept the enemy, after having, at the same time, sent parties to observe his movements. These parties discovered that the enemy, after having passed behind the village of Draghikiol, had directed his march upon Tchalykavak.

"Lieut.-Gen. Rudiger having concluded that this detachment was destined to escort transports which were intended of Choumla, stopped at Este Stamboul and took up a position which will enable him to cut off the enemy's return.

OPERATIONS AGAINST VARNA.—July 30 (August 11.)

"From the 5th to the 11th, we constructed, at the foot of the heights occupied by our troops, five redoubts, which covered the space between the sea and the plain, which lies before the gulf. Besides, we stopped during the night of the same day to construct a sixth redoubt, on the very border of the gulf, which will terminate our line of blockade on the northern side.

"On the morning of the 7th, the enemy made a vigorous sally to drive us from our position; but after a murderous conflict, which lasted until sun-set, they were repulsed, and retired into the place, after having suffered a severe loss.

"On the same day a frigate and a bomb-vessel commenced bombarding the fortress; they continued this operation with success, notwithstanding a vigorous fire from the place. These vessels will, when necessary, be relieved by others.

"During the night of the 7th to the morning of the 8th Admiral Greig detached some long-boats, under the command of a Captain of the Second Rank, Melikhoff, Chief of his Staff, to seize on the Turkish fleet stationed under the fortress.

"Favoured by the obscurity of the night, Captain Melikhoff advanced in complete order and perfect silence, keeping close to the side of Cape Galera. He made the round of the gulf; and having passed under the sterns of the enemy's flotilla, he advanced rapidly against it. The enemy did not remark the manœuvre of our boats until they were within half-musket shot of them

"A tremendous fire of artillery and musketry, which the flotilla commenced at once could not stop our intrepid sailors; they rushed with their accustomed bravery, and loud hurras, on the Turkish vessels, captured them all without exception, notwithstanding a desperate resistance, and towed them off to the fleet, under a tremendous fire of g ape shot from the place.

"Fourteen vessels, two armed boats, five pieces of cannon, a great quantity of ammunition, and 15 prisoners, amongst whom is the commander of the flotilla, are the fruits of this adventurous enterprise, which was crowned with the most complete success under the eyes of the Capitan Pacha who commands at Varna.

"We had in this affair, 4 killed and 27 wounded. Among the latter are three officers and a marine. The loss of the enemy is much more considerable. Besides those killed during the action, he lost most of the men on board the vessels, for, in endeavouring to escape by swimming, the greater number were drowned.

"On the 9th the enemy made a fresh attempt to dislodge us from our positions: but thanks to the able dispositions of the Aid-de-Camp General Prince Menstchikoff, and the brilliant valour of our troops, he was repulsed and pursued to the foot of the ramparts.

"The regular Turkish infantry made four charges on the 14th regiment of Chasseurs and the second battalion of the 13th. Each time the enemy was received with the bayonet and driven back to the gates of the town without receiving from us a single shot. This conflict, which lasted the whole day, only occasioned us a trifling loss.

"In this sortie we had no more than 37 wounded, & 25 killed or missing. Unfortunately the brave Col. Lævenstuell, commanding the regiment of Nizof, lost his left arm in the affair

"The enemy has been employed two whole days in burying his dead, which proves the magnitude of his loss. Aid-de-Camp General Prince Menstchikoff has sent to the south side of the fortress of Varna, which is not invested, corps of partisans to destroy the convoys which might try to penetrate into it from beyond the Balkan."

OPERATIONS AGAINST SILISTRIA, July 15, [27.]

"The General of Infantry, Roth, informs us, that on the 23d, 24th, and 25th, the enemy had made some sorties, which our troops had repelled with small loss on our part. They had made and fortified some works on the heights, which touched the left flank of the corps occupied in the blockade."

PORTUGAL.

Despatches were received, on Thursday night, from Lisbon, dated the 19th ult. Sir J. M. Doyle and Mr. Young were still on their trial, which, it was expected, would occupy the whole of the month. A letter has been received, dated the 18th, from Sir A. West, M. D. Physician to the late King of Portugal, stating that he was recovering from the wounds he had received in an attempt to assassinate him.—Bell's Messenger, Sept. 7th.

We observe, by the Paris papers that several of the Ministers at Madrid have presented a joint representation to the King, entreating him to recal his Ambassador from Lisbon, and to show his disapprobation of Don Miguel's treachery.—Ib.

United States.

THE BALLOON—PERILOUS ESCAPE OF MR. ROBERTSON.

(From the New-York Commercial Advertiser.)

A large concourse of people assembled yesterday afternoon in Castle Garden, to witness the ascent of Mr. Robertson—and many thousands were of course upon the battery. The day was uncommonly beautiful, the wind blowing, moderately from the north. The process of inflating the balloon was not completed until about 6 o'clock, when Mr. R. entered the car, which was handsomely decorated for the occasion. His attendants having let go the cords, the balloon rose gracefully to the height of up wards of a hundred feet before the wind had fixated it beyond the circumference of the castle walls. Mr. Robertson stood erect in the car, flourishing the banners in his hands, and facing and bowing to the spectators. Unfortunately the balloon had been let off directly to the windward of the flag-staff, with which it came violently in contact; in consequence of which the netting not only became entangled with the staff, but the car was turned nearly upside down. Mr. Robertson having his back to the flag-staff had not time to prevent this collision, which he might otherwise have done with a pole. He had expressed a wish beforehand that the staff might be taken down. In this perilous situation with his head hanging down, with his feet uppermost in the car, clinging by the frail netting which attached it to the balloon, he remained suspended at the height of near a hundred feet from the ground, vibrating in every direction, while a general shudder ran through the crowd. At this instant, a large rent was made in the balloon, and he gradually descended about fifteen feet. The spectators cried out to him in English, to take hold of the halliard of the flag-staff. Though nearly black in the face, from his position, Mr. Robertson was perfectly collected. At this moment a man climbed the rope for his relief, amid the cheers of the spectators, but was unable to ascend nearer than within some fifteen feet of Mr. R., when his strength failed, and he was obliged to descend. The anxiety of the spectators was now increased to intensity, and but little hope was entertained of his rescue, and a shudder ran over the whole body of spectators. We heard not a shriek, but many of the ladies were in tears of silent agony. It was hardly supposed possible that his physical powers could longer sustain him. Still he held on, sometimes, apparently by his feet, and sometimes by one hand, grasping at any and every thing with the other. At length he caught the rope, and by a powerful effort, and one of the most dexterous movements that we ever beheld, he cleared himself from the car and the entanglement of the cords, was seen suspended by one hand. A burst of applause cheered him for an instant, and until he caught the rope with his other hand, when he descended forty or fifty feet with great velocity, and fell the remainder of the distance, but was caught by the people. He was soon upon his feet, and appeared upon the terrace of the Garden, where he was received by repeated and hearty cheers. After receiving the congratulations of his friends, the intrepid aeronaut retired to a private apartment, where his hands, which had been blistered and somewhat excoriated by the cords, and the rope in his descent, were dressed. He also lost one of his front teeth, by having seized a cord in his mouth, as he threw himself from the car. He was no otherwise injured, and we left him last evening in a cheerful mood. During the whole of this fearful and trying scene, his presence of mind did not forsake him for an instant. The flag-staff never should have been placed without the walls, and we are told that Mr. R. requested its removal. It is computed that 2,000 spectators were in the Garden, and 15,000 without.—The balloon was taken down before dark, but it is ruined.

We learn from the Genecee Journal, that the bridge over the Genesee, between that place and York, gave way on the 24th, and precipitated two men, four oxen and a loaded waggon into the stream below. One of the men, Moses Utter, of Warsaw, was killed, the other man and the oxen were but little hurt.

The Army,

War Office, September 1, 1828.—2d Regt. Foot: General Sir W. Keppel, G. C. B. from 67th Foot, to be Colonel, vice Sir H. Torrens, deceased.—67th Ditto: Major-General J. Macdonald, to be Colonel, vice Sir Wm. Keppel, appointed to the command of the 2d Foot.

Staff.—Lieutenant-General Sir Herbert Taylor, to be Adjutant General to His Majesty's Forces, vice Major General Sir Henry Torrens, deceased.

☞ Exchange at New York on London 11 a—per cent

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1828.

The Packet Ship Birmingham, arrived from Liverpool at New York, on the 10th instant, bringing London papers to 7th Sept. The latest official accounts from the Russian Armys before Silistria, are to 7th August—particulars of which will be seen by reference to the Bulletin given in our columns this day.—The accounts previously received, of the Russians having sustained a defeat appear to have been unfounded. No active operations had taken place for some time, in consequence of the delay which took place in awaiting the arrival of reinforcements.

His Excellency Sir P. Maitland, after having visited Quebec, returning by the route of the Rideau Canal, arrived at York, Monday morning from Kingston, on board His Majesty's Yacht Bullfrog, Commodore Barrie, and on landing was received by a Salute from the Garrison. It was His Excellency's intention we understand, to have landed at Niagara, but the Bullfrog having encountered a heavy gale on the previous night was obliged to make for York. His Excellency proceeded to Niagara on Wednesday by the Canada, and Commodore Barrie, with the Bullfrog, left the harbor on the same day, on return to Kingston.

The packet ship Corinthian, arrived at New-York, on the evening, of the 7th instant. Sir John Colborne, and family, were passengers in the Corinthian, and may therefore be daily expected at this place.

The Rev. Mr. Hudson and Lady, arrived by the Queenston on Wednesday.—The Rev. Gentleman resumes his duties, as Chaplain to the Forces, in this Garrison.

Lieutenant Colonel Lightfoot, of the Quarter Master's General's Department, and Assistant Com'r. Gen. Hare, arrived from Kingston on Wednesday, and proceed to Penetanguishine for the purpose of giving the necessary directions for the erection of buildings for the reception of the Troops from Drummond Island, who are to be removed from that post to Penetanguishine.—This, we suppose, is preparatory to the delivery of the former post to the American Government, to whom the Island has been ceded by the Report of the Commissioners on the boundary line.

Early Snow and Frost.—The weather on Monday last changed to cold, with high winds from the West, and North West, and throughout the forenoon of Tuesday some snow fell. On Wednesday with the wind at North, the cold increased, and in the course of the day, we had several heavy showers of Snow.—There was a severe frost at night, and Ice formed on the small pools of water The change being sudden, and unexpected at this season of the year, some of the Garden Vegetables which remain ungathered have suffered in consequence.

The Assizes.—The Assizes for this District commenced on Monday last, His Honor Mr. Justice Sherwood presiding, by whom the charge to the Grand Jury was delivered, a Copy of which we trust we shall be enabled to obtain to lay before our readers in our next number. On Wednesday and Thursday His Honor Mr. Justice Hagerman, was on the Bench.—The greater part of the Civil business we are informed, is disposed of The Court was occupied yesterday with the Trial of Charles French, for the Murder of Edward Noulan, in the month of June last. The trial lasted the whole day, and at about six o'clock, the Jury after retiring for nearly an hour, returned their Verdict of Guilty against the Prisoner—Sentence of Death was passed, by His Honor Mr. Justice Sherwood, who addressed the Prisoner in a most impressive manner, and evidently under the most painful agitation of feeling, in the discharge of the solemn duty imposed upon him.—The unfortunate young man French, is left for Execution, on Monday next.—The proceedings on this Trial we shall probably give next week.

The following has been handed to us, by the Coroner, Mr. Hamilton, for insertion:—

On Wednesday last, the body of a man was found near the waters edge, in a ravine, near the River Don at the bottom of the Park.—On receiving information I called a Jury and held an inquest on the remains of the body, which was so much wasted, as to render it difficult to describe the person particularly. The Jury after viewing the situation of the body, and place where it was found, were fully satisfied, that it could not have floated there, but that it must have been placed there by the hands of some person or persons, and they returned a verdict of Murder against some person or persons, to them unknown.

Having examined the remains of the body as carefully as was in my power, I think the deceased was about Six feet high—stout made—long legs and arms—a round full face—dark short curly hair—teeth in the under jaw all sound, close set—and in the upper jaw all appeared sound, only one of the front teeth was missing.—There was an appearance of an old wound on the left leg, calloused to the bone—had on black pantaloons, plaited in front—cast shell buttons—suspenders made of black bombazette lined with canvas—a factory cotton shirt.

Although the Jury had good grounds for their verdict, on taking a view of the situation of the place, I think it possible, that a person in a state of derangement might have come down a pathway on the north side of the Ravine and got into the water, and by swimming and wallowing through mud and water, reached the shore, and crept in where he was found, and being exhausted, fell asleep, to wake no more.

THOMAS HAMILTON,
Coroner, H. D.

A work has lately been published in New-York, by Samuel Howe, Esq. M. D., late Surgeon-in-Chief to the Greek Fleet, entitled, "An Historical Sketch of the Greek Revolution", in which the History is continued to the present year. Mr. Chapman, of Chippawa, is at present in York, for the purpose of obtaining Subscriptions to the work, and as the subject is one which has excited general interest, we cannot doubt of his obtaining a respectable patronage. We have seen a Copy of the work, which is well executed, and accompanied by an excellent Map of Greece.—Mr. Chapman's Subscription List in the District of Niagara, appears to have been very generally patronised.

A Public Dinner, will be given to His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, previous to his departure from this Province.—Tickets of admission to be had at Messrs. Meighans.

Domestic.

The Assizes for this District closed on Saturday evening last, after a laborious session of two weeks. The calendar of Criminal Convictions are as follows:—

David Willson, Felony, sentenced to be imprisoned one month, to be twice publicly whipped 39 lashes each time, and banished the Province for life.

James Kennedy, Manslaughter, to be imprisoned six months.

Matilda Mandigo, Grand Larceny, to be imprisoned six months, two of which to be solitary confinement.

Joseph Smallwood, Grand Larceny, six months imprisonment, and once publicly whipped 39 lashes.

Susan Baker, Petit Larceny, to be imprisoned two months.

James Covert, Felony, to be imprisoned one year, and stand one hour in the Pillory.

John Jones, Misdemeanor, to be imprisoned one month, and to stand one hour in the Pillory.

Nathan Dean, guilty of Coining—Judgment suspended.

William Lemon, Grand Larceny, to be imprisoned six months, two of which in solitary confinement.—Niagara Herald.

Lower Canada.

WHEAT AND FLOUR.

The price of these articles now of the first necessity have lately advanced in this market to most exorbitant rates, fine flour sells at 43s. per barrel, old Wheat 7s. 6d. to 8s. per bushel, new Wheat much shrivelled and light is worth about 7s. 3d Brown Bread of 6 lbs. is 1s per loaf. White Bread of 4 lbs. is 10d. Fortunately the price of Potatoes, Indian Corn, Rye and Oatmeal, is unusually moderate, compared with that of Wheat, and will tend to a more general use of these valuable substitutes, and a consequent economy in the consumption of wheat bread. Should this change on the mode of living become habitual with the inhabitants of Lower Canada, which from the example in other countries, we look forward to, as the most natural result, we may yet have reason to look back to the privations of this year with much satisfaction, from having taught us salutary lessons in domestic economy which in the end will amply counterbalance for the short and moderate deprivations of this winter.

We are happy to learn from our commercial friends that the shipments of Grain from this Country in the months of June and July last, have left very handsome profits to the Owners. We have heard of some shipments of Wheat that netted a profit of two shillings sterling per bushel, including the gain in exchange.—Montreal Gazette.

We have much pleasure in directing the attention of our mercantile readers, to a notice in this day's paper, from the principal officers of His Majesty's Customs at the port of Montreal, who are empowered to take bonds for goods intended to be warehoused—and to grant clearances for vessels wholly laden at Montreal for sea, which will obviate, the inconvenience they were formerly subject to—of being obliged to repeat their entries at Quebec.—Ib.

On Sunday the 28th ult., the Scotch Presbyterian Church at Bytown was opened for Divine Service by the Rev. Mr. Machar of Kingston, who delivered two most appropriate and impressive discourses to a numerous and most respectable congregation. A collection, amounting to £17 10s. was made, towards defraying the expense of finishing the interior of the Church.—Ib.

A few days ago, a child of about five years of age, fell into the Little River near the city, and would inevitably have been drowned, had not Ensign M. Fitzgerald, 79th Regiment, who was witness to the sufferings of the child, ran to its assistance and rescued it from an untimely death. It is much to be regretted that a Branch of the Humane Society of London does not exist in this Province to confer some mark of approbation upon those who save the life of a fellow being.

Montreal, 4th October, 1828.—The principal Officers of the Customs at the Port of Montreal are empowered by the Honble. Board of Commissioners of Customs, to take the several Bonds required by Act 6th, Geo. IV, cap. 114, sec. 33; and the 7th and 8th Geo IV. cap. 56, sec. 37; to be given by the Importers of Goods intended to be warehoused under the provisions of those Acts; as also to grant Clearances for Vessels wholly laden there, with goods for exportation, together with such other Documents relating to their Cargoes, as the law requires, instead of the Collector at Quebec—(Advertisement in Herald.)

The Steam-Boats between this City and Montreal have, by a general understanding, raised the fares from $3, including board, to the low rate of £ 2 6s. for cabin, and from 2s. 6d. to 10s. for steerage passengers.

On Friday last, in the Court of King's Bench, an application was made in the case of C. S. Rodier vs. Hercule Olivier, et al.: on the part of one of the defendants, to quash the writ and declaration pradit him, inasmuch that being a British subject born in the mother country, he was entitled to be sued in the English language, and not in French, as was the case. Mr. M'Cord for the applicant cited several authorities in support of the claim of his client, which was resisted by Mr. Bulland, the Attorney of the plaintiff. The Court, on Saturday morning, rendered their judgment in favour of the application. A motion of a similar nature, but on a different principle, was on Saturday moved by Mr. Cherrier, on the part of a Canadian defendant to be sued in French, the argument on which will ensue this day We shall lay the result of this very important question before our readers, in our next.—Gazette.

Commodore Barrie, on his return to Kingston, took his Yatch up the various rapids of the St Lawrence, notwithstanding the Pilots at Montreal declared it to be impracticable, as the vessel drew 30 inches water. This boat is about 40 tons burthen, is a keel boat, hauls the wind well, is a good sea-boat, and furnishes a model which may be advantageously adopted for vessels destined hereafter to navigate between Quebec and Lake Ontario, and, through the upper inland seas of this Continent.—Quebec Gazette.

Coroner's Inquest.—A Coroner's Inquest was held at Annapolis, N. S on the 28th August, before Peter Bonnet, Esq., on view of the body of John Keins, late Quarter-Master of the 60th Regiment Verdict—that he came to his death by hanging himself in a fit of temporary derangement.—St. John's, (N. B.) Courier.

Port of Quebec.

ARRIVED,

Octr. 1..Bark Urania, Hull, ballast.
..2..Schooner John, Brigus, fish, oil and skins.
...Bark Charlton, Hull. 16 settlers.
...Bark Spence, Sunderland. 9 settlers.
...Bark Unity, Hull, ballast.
...Ship Hebe, Bristol, do.
...Bark Empiror, Limerick, do.
...Brig Aid, Bristol, do
...Brig Kelsic-wood, Liverpool.
...Bark Burrington, Liverpool. do.
...Brig Stephen Wright, London, do.
..4..Brig Deveron, Liverpool, salt and coals.
...Bark Hayden, Falmouth. 6 settlers.
...Brig Hart, Dublin, ballast.
...Ship Rebecca, Greenock. 12 settlers.
..5..Brig St. George, Tralee, ballast.
...Brig Promise, Liverpool, goods.
...Brig Charlotte, do. do.
...Brig Horatio, do., general cargo.
...Brig Wm McGillivary, London, do.
...Brig Nautilus, Falmouth, ballast.
...Brig Sir Watkin, Belfast. 93 settlers.
...Brig Martha, Cork, ballast.
...Bark Granicus, Cork. 7 settlers.
...Bark Priam, Limerick, ballast.
...Bark Georgo Canning, Cork. 7 settlers.
...Brig Percival, Dublin, general cargo.
...Brig Dryad, Portsmouth, ballast.
...Brig Britannia, Sligo, do.
...Bark Sarah, Whitby, do.
...Brig Experiment, Stranear, do.
...Brig Margaret, Sunderland, coals and goods.
...Brig Denison, Yarmouth, ballast.
...Brig Dew-Drop, London, general cargo.
...Ship Montreal, Liverpool. 12 settlers.
...Bark Margaret, do. ballast.
...Brig Bizzalia, Gaspe, deals.
...Brig Isabella, Drogheda, ballast.
...Brig Dykes, Mary-Port, do.
...Bark Sir Wm. Bensley, London, do.
...Bark Cato, Cork, do.
...Bark Bellgrob, London, do.
...Bark Pearsons, London, do.
...Bark Centurion, do. do.
...Brig Thomas, Port Glasgow, do.
...Brig Transit Newport, do.
...Brig Ann, Liverpool, do.
...Brig Elizabeth & Ann, Liverpool, ballast.
...Brig Columbus, London, do.
...Brig Six Sisters, Maryport, do.
...Brig Bonito, London, do.
...Brig Emerald, do. do.

These two last vessels load at Rivière du Loup.
..7..Bark John, Galway, ballast.

Married,

At Kingston, on Sunday the 5th instant, by the Venerable the Archdeacon of Kingston, Mr. Robert Maxwell, of the Commissariat, to Miss Julia, youngest daughter of Thomas Turpin, Esq.

At Glasgow, on the 14th August, by the Very Reverend Principal M'Farlane, James Scott, Esq. Editor of the Montreal Herald, to Isabella, eldest daughter of Mr. S. Arbuckle, Leather Merchant, Glasgow.

FRESH ARRIVALS.

AT THE SIGN OF THE GOLDEN TEA CHEST.

THOS. CARFRAE, JUN.

Respectfully informs his Friends and the Public, that he has just received, and now offers for Sale, at his Store, (next door to the Methodist Chapel,) a well selected assortment of new and fashionable,

DRY GOODS,

Of this Falls' importation; also, a choice assortment of Groceries, together with a great variety of other Articles too numerous to detail in an Advertisement.

N.B.—T. C. has received a great variety of English, French, and German Toys; also, a small assortment of Jewellery, all of which will be sold at a much reduced price for cash. x 19

TO BE SOLD BY AUCTION,

On Monday, 20th October,

AT THE RESIDENCE OF LIEUT. COL. HILLIER,

HIS ENTIRE HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE,

CONSISTING OF

Tables; Chairs; Sideboards; Bureaus; Sofas; Bedsteads; Curtains; Carpets; Feather Beds, and Bedding; China; Glass; Delf, and Kitchen Furniture; also, Three Double and Single Sleighs; Two Sets Double and Single Harness; a Waggon and Cart; Raccoon, Bear Skin, and Buffalo Robes; Two good Milch Cows; with some excellent Wine, and other Valuable Articles.

☞ Sale to commence precisely at 10 o'clock, A.M.

M. & R. MEIGHAN,
Auctioneers.

York, 15th Oct. 1828 s 19

Came into the enclosure of the Subscriber, on or Saturday the 4th of October, a Span of Horses; the one a dark brown, with a small star in the forehead—the other a bright sorrel, having white mane and tail; the Owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take them away.—Inquire at my Farm, No. 8, in the Second Concession, North of Dundass,

JOHN HAWKINS.

Toronto, October 6, 1828. tf 18

Steam-Boat Hotel, York, U. C.—The Proprietor of this elegant Establishment, now unrivalled in this part of the country, being desirous of retiring from Public business, on account of ill-health in his family, will let the same for a term of years to be agreed on, either with or without the Furniture, &c.

The Establishment is now too well known to require comment.

N. B. Security will be required for the payment of the rent, and the fulfilment of the contract in every respect.

Apply to the Subscriber on the premises,

U. HOWARD.

York, October 8th, 1828. tf 18

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor having been pleased to appoint me to the Collectorship of Customs for this Port, I beg leave to acquaint the Merchants, Shop-owners and others, having business to transact with this branch of the Revenue after the 1st day of October next, that I have temporarily established an Office in part of the premises fronting on Duke-Street occupied by Mr. Columbus.

GEORGE SAVAGE,
Collector.

York, 26th September, 1828. tf 16

PARCHMENT DEEDS,

For Sale at the Gazette Office, York,

Poetry.

THE PLACE OF REST.

BY MARY ANN BROWNE.

I am weary of life, I am tired of the earth,
Of its dark sorrows and boisterous mirth,
Of its changeful scenes, its uncertain joys,
Its wo that frowns, and its pleasure that cloys,
Of its dreams that delude the youthful breast:
—Would I could find me a place of rest!

I sought in a land far beyond the sea,
Where the flowers came forth in a radiancy,
Where shun the clearest and sunniest sky:
But, alas! I found that the flowers would die,
That clouds would o'ershadow the heaven's blue breast,
And I left it,—for me 'twas no place of rest!

I returned again to the spot of my birth;
But change had come on its cheerful hearth;
Some were now wanderers o'er the far wave,
Some were at peace in the lonely grave:
There were still some hearts that were not estranged;
But, except their affections, all things were changed!

There were voices beloved, but the tremulous tone
Told of the years that had over them gone;
There were brows that, scarce touched by Time's darkening wing,
Looked like the lingering flowers of Spring;
There were smiles,—but they only shone on decay,
Like the fading light on the dying day.

There were hands with whose sunny clustering hair
Was mingled the early snow of care;
There were eyes,—but where were there once bright hue,
A mist of tears had come over their blue:
Oh! I brook'd not to look on such altered things,
And I staid not there my wanderings.

I went to fair cities, and in the crowd
I mingled awhile with the gay and the proud;
I strove to be happy, I strove to smile,
But the days pass'd heavily on the while;
And though every hour with mirth was fraught,
It bore not within it the peace I sought.

I fled away into solitude—
I hoped to find quiet in mountain and wood;
But, alas! when the spirit would use its wings,
And mingle with grand and glorious things,
'Tis fetter'd by clay to its mortal sphere:
—Rest there was none for my bosom here.

I sat me down 'neath the midnight sky,
The bright stars sparkled like gems on high;
Before me lay the mighty deep,
Still murmuring on its peaceless sleep—
And I thought, as I looked on its heaving breast,
"There is indeed no place of rest!"

But there came a still small voice through the gloom—
"Thing of the dust! return thee home:
Is it thine to repine at the will of Him
Before whom yon glorious stars are dim?
Pray that thy sins may be forgiven;
Hope for a resting-place in Heaven."

Varieties.

A French child has arrived in this country with its parents, which has in distinct and legible printed capital characters, round the ball of the right eye, "Napoleon, Empereur!" and round that of the left, "Empereur Napoleon." The eyes are blue, and the letters appear of the same colour. The Marchioness of Downshire is to show the child to the King, before the public can see her. The parents have letters to all the chief medical men in London, and to his Royal Highness the Duke of Sussex, who had been previously made acquainted with this most extraordinary phenomenon.—English Paper.

Curious Musical Instrument.—A novelty of this kind is handed privately about at present, and will we think, soon obtain much notoriety. It is a very small engine (not larger than this paragraph), and consists of a brass frame, with eight perpendicular bars of silver. It is pressed against the lips, and breathed through by the performer; and the consequent vibrations yields sounds resembling those of the Æolian Harp, which are wonderfully powerful considering the minuteness of the instrument. It goes to the extent of an octave, and its modifications of piano and forte are altogether surprising.—Literary Gazette.

The Moral Influence of Oysters, at Home.—"Moral!—physical you mean," says some one who has found Oysters nourishing and medicinal. No, I mean moral, in the best and strictest sense of the term; not, however, to the exclusion of their physical influence upon a weak stomach, or a husky chest. Indeed it was their medical virtues which first made me acquainted with their moral influence. It happened in this way: I was once in the habit of supping out, oftener than was quite agreeable to a "certain person" at home. Not that I kept bad company, or bad hours; I did not, nor was I intemperate; but she maintained that she had too little of my company. There was some truth in this; but, as no other fault was imputed or implied, it had no effect. I was expected in a wide, though select, circle; and she was welcome to accompany me, if it so pleased her. It did not please her. Well, I went on as usual, until a long succession of hot or heavy suppers deranged my stomach. However, she did not upbraid me, but hinted, gently, that supping at home was the only remedy. Sup on what? said I. Why on Oysters, said she. I don't like them, said I. Try them said she. I obeyed, and found that I slept better that night. I shall have oysters again, said I. You shall, and welcome, said she. Well, home I came between eight and nine o'clock. I shall never forget it. The night was cold and stormy. But there was she, smiling in all her loveliness, in the snug parlour; my slippers were toasting within the fender; my own arm chair was in its place, and the fire beaming as with conscious pleasure.—The parlour never struck me before, as being compact in beauty. It now seemed a little sanctuary, calm and holy. This is home! thought I. She saw the effect and rang for the oysters. There was no table set out; but a tray was set upon her work table. On the dish lay eighteen unopened oysters, and a new oyster knife. I can't open them, said I. Try, said she. I did, and laughed at my own awkwardness.

"Next night, 'twas the same,
"And the next, and the next."

The oysters were sadly mangled, but they were so sweet in their own liquor! However, I soon became a capital hand at opening them, and got proud of my dexterity. What was the effect? Why, a confirmed habit of stopping at home, an improved tone of stomach, and perfect domestic happiness.

Now, as there are many bad stomachs, which arise from supping out, and many good wives which regret both the cause and the effect, I have thus "done into English," my own experience for the good of both parties. Let the ladies adopt the experiment in the spirit of my wife, and I will answer for the success.—London paper.

Splendid Church in Russia.—Extract of a letter from a gentleman in the Eastern part of the State, to his friend in Northampton:—"At Salem a young man, just from Petersburgh, Russia, gave me a piece of rock with which the Emperor Nicholas is now building a church, which he intends shall be the largest ever built. There will be 42 stone columns, each 54 feet high, each weighing 120 tons, each 7 feet in diameter, and each of one solid piece of rock.—Hampshire Gazette.

INFANT SCHOOLS.

Rev. Professor Norton, of Cambridge, has written a letter to his friends in Boston, dated Liverpool, England, June 6th, 1828, which was published in the last Christian Register. It will be pleasing to the Professor's friends to learn that his health is much improved; but the subject of his letter is one of deep and general interest. We cannot but hope that such institutions as he describes will prevail in this country to an extent equal to the wants of the community.

"We attended, a few days since, an infant school, which has given me quite new views and feelings on the subject. I have seldom been more affected—it is not too strong a word—than in seeing as we did, a hundred little creatures, some of them not more than two years old, thus collected together. I am not apt to shed tears; but I could not prevent them from repeatedly flowing into my eyes. How many, how various, how deep associations are there with such a group, and with the thought of that most Christian and most judicious charity, which is preparing them to act their parts in life, long after we may have passed away.

I had had no conception of the possibility of preserving so much order and stillness among such young children (all under eight or nine years of age,) as we found to exist, apparently without harshness or unpleasant restraint.

They were called upon to repeat the peace table, the multiplication table, to tell the number of seconds in a minute, of minutes in an hour, &c. with the names of the months, to answer to their catechism, and to repeat the commandments abbreviated; in which a majority of them did, speaking together, clapping their hands in unison in their secular exercises. Then they were amused by following the motions of their principal mistress, and imitated those used in different employments; repeating the explanation of them, as, for instance: "This is the way we sow the corn," or "This is the way we wash the clothes," and "This is the way we bring the clothes," &c.

After this, about half the school, boys, went to play in the yard; and the girls went into another room, where, on the system of mutual instruction, a number of little monitors, five, six, and seven years old, were employed to instruct the younger part of other children, teaching some their letters, and instructing others, more advanced, in reading. The children too young to learn were put on a carpet, to sleep or play as they pleased. Connected with this school was another for children more than seven years of age, containing somewhere about two hundred.

The advantages of the infant school are in relieving poor, laboring mothers, compelled to work for their livelihood, from the necessity of leaving their children neglected the greater part of the day. In the lower classes the mother can often take but the most imperfect care of their comfort or improvement. They litigate and tyrannize with their applications and complaints, and the bonds of natural affection prove weak. In the infant schools which I saw, the work of fifty mothers, for six hours in the day, is done by two school-mistresses, an immense saving of labour, resulting from the effects of some mechanical contrivances. The children at school are at the same time taught and amused. They are learning what will be of essential use to them, enabling them to secure many advantages for improving their minds and hearts. And what is of the highest importance, their minds are fed with moral and religious instructions and principles. But I cannot and need not, enlarge on the subject, for what I should say will occur to your own mind.

I omitted to mention that the children sung a very pretty simple hymn about their infant school, written by the Bishop of Chester."

FASCINATION OF SNAKES.

Professor Silliman, in the last number of his excellent American Journal of Science, philosophically observes, with regard to the vulgar opinion concerning the fascinating power ascribed to the rattle snake—that by terror, or by engrossing the faculties in some other way, our animal has it sometimes in its power to place another animal out its guard, and thus to bring him within its reach; just as a child, or even a botanist, fascinated by the beauty of flowers and plants, may so far forget his safty as to venture too near to the edge of a precipice, till an unconscious movement precipitates him to a rocky bottom, or a watery abyss.

It is stated in the London Quarterly Review, upon the authority of "accurate statistical tables"—that their is no one country in Europe where the average proportion of mortality is so small as in England; that the proportion of deaths to the poulation is nearly one-third less in England than in France; that comparing the two capitals, the average mortality of London is about one-fifth less than that of Paris; that the proportion of deaths in London, a vast and luxurious metropolis, differs only by a small fraction from that of the whole of France, and is considerably less than the average of those Mediterranean shores which are especially frequented by invalids for the sake of health; that, in Italy, the proportion of death is a full third greater than in England; and that even in Switzerland and Sweden, though the difference be less, it is still in favour of England. These statements, if founded on sure date, would give scope for an interesting and instructive investigation of causes.

FOR SALE, OR TO LET.—A Two Story House, in the Town of York, on the North side of Dutchess Street, opposite Mr. Allan's new Brick Building, and in rear of Chief Justice Campbell's. There is a good Cellar Kitchen to the House, and attached to the Premises, which contain one-fifth of an Acre, is a Garden—a good Well of Water—Stable—Out-Houses, &c.—Apply to

Mr. S. P. JARVIS.

York, 16th Oct. 1828. x 19

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL GROCERY STORE.—The Subscriber respectfully informs the Inhabitants of York and its vicinity, that he has opened a Store in the above line, on the Corner of Church and Palace Streets, where he is now ready to serve them with the choicest articles and at very low prices. The following are a few of the articles in his line, viz:—

O. L. P. Madeira,
F. Madeira,
L. M. Do.
Prime Port,
Second do.
Sherry,
Cagniac Brandy,
Bordeaux do.
H. Gin,
Jamaica Spirits,
Peppermint,
Shrub,
White Wine Vinegar,
Limejuice,
Molasses,
Olive Oil for Lamps,
Linseed do.
London Brown Stout,
And a variety of articles in the Grocery line.

London Porter,
Teas of all descriptions,
D. R. Loaf Sugar,
B. R. Loaf Sugar,
Muscovado do.
East India do.
Mace, Cloves,
Cinnamon, Nutmegs,
Alspice, Black Pepper,
White Pepper,
Mustard in jars, ½ & lbs.
Isinglass, Arrow Root,
Macaroni, Vermicilli,
Curry Powder,
Raisins, Figs,
Starch, Blue,
Tobacco, Pipes, Blacking

JAMES F. SMITH.

York, 17th September, 1828. sn. 15

JOHN MURCHISON, Draper and Tailor, respectfully informs his friends and customers, that he has just received from London, a choice assortment of extra, fine and superfine West of England Broad Cloths and Cassimeres; consisting of Blue, Black, Scarlet, Green, Olive, Brown, Grey, Drab and Corbeau, Single and Double Milled Cassimeres; do. Double Milled Broad Cloths for Great Coats, and vestings of every description, which he is ready to make up to order at short notice, in good style, and on the lowest terms possible. Gentlemen wishing any thing in his line may depend upon being faithfully served.

N. B. He has also a number of Military Articles to dispose of on reasonable terms.

York, July 28, 1828. sn. 8

WINES.

A CARD.—Mr. Hawkins, Wine Merchant, of Quebec, offers for Sale a few Cases of excellent Port Wine, just received from Quebec.

Mr. Hawkins will be happy to receive orders from such gentlemen as are disposed to procure a supply of Genuine Wines, to be delivered early in the Spring at York and at Niagara.

Orders addressed to Mr. Hawkins, at Howard's Hotel, till Tuesday next, and afterwards at the office of this paper, will meet with attention.

York. September 20th, 1829. sn 15

BANK NOTICE.—Discount Day, Wednesday of every Week.—Notes offered for Discount, must be put under cover to the Cashier, and left at the Bank the day before.

THOMAS G. RIDOUT,
Cashier.

HALF-PAY AFFIDAVITS, of the latest form, for Sale at the Gazette Office.

FRESH SEEDS.—Shaker's Garden and Flower Seeds, warranted of the growth of 1827, for sale by EDW'D. LESSLIE & SONS.

☞ E. L. & Sons expect a quantity of clover seed in a few days.

York, 14th March 1828. 43-tf.

THE LOYALIST

VOL. I. NO. 20.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY OCTOBER 25, 1828.

Poetry.

ODE ON MELANCHOLY.

She dwells by a stream, where the cypress and willow,
Are gemm'd by the tear-drops that fall from her eye;
The earth is her bed, and the dint-some her pillow,
Midnight's her mantle—her curtain the sky.

Her home is a cave, where the bright eye of morning
Ne'er pierc'd the chill gloom with its wandering rays:
Where the sunshine of gladness, youth's visage adorns
No spark of its influence celestial displays.

The moon in her lamp, when the mist mantled mountain
She clambers at midnight, and stalks o'er its steep;
Or leans on the rock of some crystaline mountain,
And sighs to the tempest that howls o'er the deep.

Her locks are as dark as the wings of the raven—
Her [illegible] are all wet, and her bosom is bare;
Like a corsque on the waves, 'midst the whirwinds of Heaven,
She wanders distracted, or sinks in dispair.

Miscellaneous.

MELANCHOLY FATE OF TWO BROTHERS.

The following interesting Narrative is from Lieutenant Brand's Voyage to Peru, which is about to issue from the Press:—

"John and George Robertson, two brothers, after buffeting about South America, trying various schemes to invest their little property to the best advantage, decided on settling at the Island of Mocha, with the intention of establishing a seal-fishery, and cultivating some parts of the Island, which is very prolific in its natural produce, and by the labour of man might, from its situation and capabilities, be made a little paradise.

"With this object in view, they procured four others, adventurers like themselves, and purchased a whale-boat, with all other things requisite for such an undertaking; they then freighted a vessel, called the Valparaiso, commanded by a Dane, named L—s—n, for the purpose of carrying them to their destination. When off the Island it fell calm, but being anxious to get on shore, they left the vessel in order to prepare for the reception of the venture, which was to stock their little kingdom, the captain promising to land every thing as soon as he was close enough in. Poor, unsuspecting fellows! how little did they dream of the disasters which awaited them. It may easily be imagined the golden prospects they pictured to their imaginations on first landing in those dominions of which they were the sole possessors, and the light hearts with which they prepared to fix out a spot for the reception of their goods, being their all in the world. After working like horses all the day, they lay down to rest under the canopy of Heaven, trusting to rise with the sun and renew their labours. The day dawned, and the sun rose, with it a fine breeze but no vessel—no Valparaiso was in sight. Scarcely believing what they saw, nor daring to utter what they felt, they ran to the highest hills in the different parts of the Island in hopes of seeing her; but in vain did they stretch their longing eyes to catch a glimpse of all their hopes. She was gone! Nothing was to be seen round the boundless horizon. Sea and sky were all that met their view. The vessel was gone, and with her all their prospects and golden dreams vanished.

"In this forlorn situation, a consultation was held as to what should be done, when it was decided that one brother, with the crew, should take the boat, and cross over to the main land, and, if possible, ascertain at Valdivia what had become of the vessel and cargo. The other brother was to remain behind to keep possession of the island and the few things they had landed.—George embarked with the crew, leaving John on the Island.—Trusting that Providence might protect them, they put to sea in their open boat, and reached Valdivia in safety, a distance of about 85 miles, where they soon learnt that the Dane had landed, and spread a report of not being able to reach Mocha, that he had sold all their property, and gone in the vessel they knew not where—this was a death blow to all their prospects. Nothing now remained for poor George but to convey this mournful intelligence back to his brother, whom it may be supposed was most anxiously waiting the result of his mission, independent of anxiety for his personal safety.

"They embarked again in their little boat, and with most sorrowful hearts put out to sea, in order to return to their solitary island. They had not been many hours launched upon the deep, when the clouds began to lour, and the sea to rise in troubled motion, which showed every indication of a coming storm; the wild gulls fluttered over their unprotected heads, and, screaming with affright, seemed to confirm what their heart foreboded, that the gale was near them. Fierce lightning began to play about the blackened horizon, and the distant thunder roared sullenly amidst the gathering clouds, seeming to warn them not to proceed further. To fly was now their only chance for safety; they turned their little bark, in hopes of escaping, but the cold wind reached them.*

It came resistless, and, with foaming sweep,
Upturned the whitening surface of the deep;
And swift and fatal as the lightning's course,
Through the torn mainsail burst with thundering force.

"The fury of the elements had overtaken them, they scudded like the wind till the raging storm tore away her mast. Thunder, lightning, sea and gale now came upon them with redoubled force. Their mast gone, she became unmanageable; a sea struck her, when she broached to and filled; another, and she foundered. Vain were their struggles and cries for help; the waters close around them, and, in sight of Valdivia, every soul perished.

"Poor John Robertson, thy sorrows are over; but, alas! where is thy brother? what is he doing? where are his thoughts? Anxiously, most anxiously awaiting thy arrival. 'Let L—s—n read this and tremble.' The situation of John Robertson on the Island may be more easily imagined than described; day after day rolled on, and week after week, month succeeded month, yet no brother appeared; wandering up and down the Island, straining his longing eyes towards the horizon, picturing every speck a sail to his bewildered imagination, thoughts would intrude on his mind that harrowed up his soul, and increased his anxiety almost to frenzy, till he was reduced to that state of mind, by his own account, that death would have been a release to him. At last, while sitting at his daily station, the pinacle of a rock, absorbed in gloomy melancholy, a sail appeared! Nearer and nearer she came, she stood direct for an anchorage, a boat left her, and landed. Thank heaven! (he cried) it must be my brother returned with all our lost property. Breathless with anxiety, he flew down to the beach; but picture his dismay when, instead of finding his brother as he fondly anticipated, he fell into the hands of a gang of pirates, robbers, and murderers.—Read on L—s—n—read what thou hast been the cause of!" They plundered him, stripped him, and made him a prisoner. Thus, in the space of one short quarter of an hour was this poor man, from being elated with the prospects of embracing his brother, recovering all his lost property, and conceiving himself restored to all that could make him happy, doomed to hear of his brother's death,—his property irretrievably lost, all his hopes on earth blighted, himself stripped and plundered of all that remained, and a prisoner, loaded with chains, on board a pirate. So far are the circumstantial facts of the history of these two unfortunate brothers. Shortly afterwards, John found means of making his escape, and now a wanderer in Chili; said, from his miserable misfortunes, to have given himself up to drinking, and almost to despair, which has brought on temporary derangement, and which at times during his fits of madness is dreadful. His only wish appears to be revenge—deep and dire revenge on the author of his misfortunes. Poor fellow! may the Lord have mercy upon him, and save him from committing the horrid crime which he meditates. Revenge will come in time—for "I will revenge saith the Lord."

* When a ship is overtaken in a squall, the wind from it generally blows very cold.

A Miser.—A letter from Oldham, says, "a short time ago a person died at Farnham, named Mills, of extraordinary disposition and strange habitudes. He suffered his beard to grow for some years, till it had assumed a patriarchal length, and, it is said, seldom applied soap to cleanse his face withal. It was known he was possessed of money—perhaps £1,000, or £1,500—for he denied himself many of the common necessaries, and all the luxuries of life. He had two sons but they were brought up and educated in a very humble way, and were put to trades, a considerable distance from the inhospitable home of their father. As might be expected, on the old man's death, considerable curiosity was manifested to ascertain how much cash he had accumulated, and those immediately interested were not a little surprised by learning on application at the Bank, that, instead of 1,000*l.* or 1,500*l.* he had safely lodged there as many thousands! This agreeable fact stimulated further inquiry, and it was more than suspected, from his close mode of living at home, that possible a few odd guineas or sovereigns might be left there, as well as in the Bank. Accordingly a rummage was instituted, and a clue being had, the cellar was searched, where, snugly concealed in a corner, were found about ten thousand pounds.—As much success had attended the parties below stairs, it was thought prudent to adopt a similar process in the upper apartments. They were not disappointed. Gold coin was found in various places—even in tea-cups and pill boxes, and the total proceeds of the search rewarded them with near £12,000!" London Courier.

Ingenious mode of Embossing Wood.—If a depression be made by a blunt instrument on the surface of the wood, the depressed part will again rise to its original level on being immersed in water. Accordingly, if the wood to be ornamented be stamped with a steel tool or die, in the parts intended to be raised, and then planed or filed down to a level with these parts, it will, on being immersed in water exhibit above the surface the exact impression of the pattern which was stamped on it with the instrument. This raised impression or embossed work may then be finished by the usual operations of carving.

The machinery of England, applied to the various branches of manufacture, appears almost to usurp the functions of human intellect. This is a remark of the Quarterly Review: which proceeds to say, "No one can conceive its completeness, who has not witnessed the workings of the power loom, or seen the mechanism by which the brute power of steam is made to effect the most minute and delicate process of tambouring. Nor can any one adequately comprehend by the mighty agency of the steam engine, who has not viewed the machinery of some of our mining districts, where it is employed on a scale of magnitude and power unequal elsewhere." In Cornwall, the reviewer informs us, they work in some cases with the power of 1,000 horses, and at the expense of a bushel of coals, can raise a foot high 50 millions of pounds of water. No intelligent Englishman, he observes, especially if he be destined for public life, can fitly be ignorant of objects like these; for practically they are as important to be known as the knowledge to be obtained by visiting foreign cities and countries. The application of Chemistry to the parts, is no less curious than various and useful; while the works of the civil engineer and a long list of objects interesting and important to an intelligent mind.

The Duke and Duchess of St. Alban's, it is said, are gone to reside premanently in France. It is well known that they, and particularly the Duchess, have been treated with the grossest personal abuse by a portion of the London press, and have been made the object of many caricatures for a long time past. It is to this cause that their departure for the Continent is attributed. We can scarcely credit this, for had the abusive article been so offensive to those against whom they were directed, doucers, properly applied to those who infamously make use of the press as an engine of public scandal or private extortion, would immediately have silenced the cavillers. If the object of those to whose attacks the Duke and Duchess were unceasingly exposed, was to obtain a bribe to silence, they have failed in that object, and driven (if they have driven) the wealthy pair to spend their immense income upon the Continent.

Pompeii.—Extract of a letter from Naples: "Ten days ago we went to Pompeii. Its wa all marvel and beauty: the city a wonder and its site fairy land. Ye do not descend, you rise to Pompeii. Its first aspect is that of a mound of earth, and, when you enter, above lofty columns and walls you see large trees growing. The ashes that overwhelmed the city, and the soil thrown up in making excavations, have produced this mound like exterior. But what shall I say of the interior? Perfect streets, rows of shops, theatres, palaces, temples, standing in majestic and silent desolation; our aged guide and ourselves the only human beings visible, amidst edifices, and in places once thronged and noisy with multitudes, intent on business, or pleasure, or piety."—Literary Gazette.

THE HORRORS OF A SIEGE,

The recollection of St. Sebastian will haunt me as long as I live. It exhibited a scene sufficient to blanch the hair and to wither the heart. Many of the streets were blown up into hills of rubbish; not a house was left entire; not a living thing was to be seen; not a sound did I hear but the sound of my own footballs through the lonely streets, or the wind as it moaned away through that city of the dead which stood in all the blackness of recent ruin, far more appalling than the grass-grown streets and fireless walls which time has renovated with the freshness of nature, shedding beauty over desolation. Around the trenches the dead had in some instances been buried, but so partially, that their feet and hands were frequently to be seen above the turf, with the flesh mouldering away, and the bones whitening in the air. Along the ramparts and streets, they lay in groups, even as they had been mown down; and innumerable heads, legs, & arms were strewn around about, in the various stages of decay, and mangled and half devoured by birds of prey. Numbers of dead bodies, also, were floating beneath the walls, followed by swarms of fishes. The effluvia was dreadful; but I will no longer dwell upon this scene of horror.—Malcolm's Reminiscences of a Campaign in the Pyrenees and South of France.

Madame Bonpland.—One of the most romantic enterprises of modern times is the search undertaken by Madame Bonpland for her husband, the celebrated naturalist, and the illustrious associate of Humboldt in those researches which have shed so much light upon the operations of nature upon that most magnificent theatre of her's, the tropical regions of America. The strict jealousy with which Dr. Francia, the Dictator of Paraguay, guards the singular republic over which he reigns from the observation of the rest of the world is well known. No stranger who visits it is willingly permitted to return, to carry back the story of what he has seen. Bonpland in pursuing his botanical researches penetrated into its territories, which offered an extensive and inviting field for the study of his favourite science. Of course he was detained by Dr. Francia, who has taken some pains, it seems to convince the world, through the Brazil press, that he remains there by choice, and not by compulsion. In the mean time all solicitations to procure his release have been fruitless. The government of Buenos Ayres and the Emperor of Brazil, with several of the European governments are said to have interested themselves in his behalf, but without effect. Madame Bonpland has now undertaken to join him in that distant and little known country, and if she cannot effect his release to share of his captivity. What her husband has done for fame, and even more, this lady has done for affection. A London paper gives the following account of her voyage and perilous journey so far as is known.—N. Y. E. Post.

"Madame Bonpland directed her voyage, in the first instance, to Rio Janeiro; but on her arrival there found the young Emperor had it not in his power to assist her romantic enterprise, having already failed in his repeated efforts in favor of her husband. She accordingly left Rio in a French store-ship, and after a most tempestuous voyage arrived in Chile, where she remained several weeks, during which time she received every attention from the British merchants and residents, and in particular from Captain Juby, of his Majesty's ship Volage. Upon her embarkation for Peru, she encountered a repetition of misfortunes in the loss of her trinket box, containing jewels to a considerable amount—a loss, in her circumstances, she was little able to sustain. Nothing, however, could damp the ardour of this extraordinary woman. She arrived at Lima, and took up her abode in the house of an English merchant to whom she was recommended.—From thence, notwithstanding the remonstrances of her friends, she set off for Upper Peru, determined to prosecute her undertaking. Marshal Sucre, President of that republic accorded her his protection, and manifested the greatest interest in her welfare. Subsequently she set off from Arica and Tacha, to traverse those immense wilds, hitherto unexplored by civilized man, and but little known even to the native Indian, which separate the two countries. She was accompanied by a little black slave only of 14 years of age. The next account of the chivalrous undertaking of this heroic woman will be looked for with the greatest interest by all lovers of science and the arts, to whom this brief account of her progress hitherto cannot fail to prove highly interesting."

Curious Pulpit.—The Pulpit in the Church of St. Peter, at Wolverhampton, is formed wholly of stone, and consists of one entire piece, with the pedestal which supports it, the flight of steps leading to it, with the balustrade, &c. without any division, the whole having been cut out of a solid block of stone. The church was erected in the year 994, at which time it is said this remarkable pulpit was put up, and notwithstanding its great age, which appears to be 834 years, it is still in good condition, and continues in regular use. At the foot of the steps is a large figure intended to present a lion couchant, but carved after so grotesque a fashion as seems well calculated to puzzle the naturalist in his attempts to determine its proper classification. In other respects the ornamental sculpture about the pulpit is neat and appropriate, and presents a curious specimen of the taste of our ancestors at that early period. This is a Collegiate Church, and was originally dedicated to the Virgin, but altered in the time of Henry the Third to St. Peter.

Southern Voyage of Discovery.—Captain Foster has sailed on a southern voyage of discovery in the command of the Chanticleer, with the officers appointed to which, by the Admiralty, have been selected on account of their scientific acquirements. One of the lieutenants, in particular, served under Captain Franklin on his recent arduous expedition, and is a most accomplished draftsman. The Chanticleer proceeds for Madeira, from whence she sails to various points in the West Indies, and down the coast of South America to Cape Horn. Her extreme destination is the newly discovered group of the South Shetland Islands; but it has been stated that conditional instructions have been given to Captain Foster to proceed from thence as far as he can, without risk to his ship, towards the South Pole, where, judging from the account of Weddell, he is not likely to experience those obstructions which rendered the attempt of Parry to reach the North Pole abortive.

NOTICE.—A Meeting of the Friends of the British and Foreign Bible Society, is to be held in the Masonic Hall, on Monday evening the 27th inst., for the purpose of forming an Auxiliary Bible Society in York.—Chair to be taken precisely at Seven o'clock.

N. B.—All who wish the circulation of the Scriptures are invited to attend.

York, 18th Oct. 1828.

BIBLE SOCIETY.

The Rev. John West, Agent for the British and Foreign Bible Society, lately visited York, with a view to stimulate the friends of the institution, and to ascertain the wants of the Country in respect to Bibles.

As Mr. West's time would not allow calling a public meeting, a few friends to the cause, of various denominations, had a private meeting with him. At that meeting, which took place on the 19th ultimo, a Committee was formed for the purpose of calling a general meeting of the friends of the Bible Society, in order to form an Auxiliary Society in this Town. The Committee has had several meetings for making such arrangements as they consider necessary for attaining this desirable object. As they are convinced that many, like themselves, have earnestly wished for such a Society, they think it unnecessary to issue a prolix Address to the Public. Their aim is the circulation of the authorised version of the word of God, without note, or comment, or any accompanying explanation. They know it to be the best of causes, and through the divine blessing, feel confident of success.

Notwithstanding what the parent Society, with all its auxiliaries has done, it may truly be said, the work is only begun. If we view the number of Indians, and others, in this Country that are destitute of the word of life, we shall have a small glimpse of what is yet to accomplish upon the face of the earth.

As this is a cause in which party feeling can have no place, it is hoped a numerous meeting of the friends of the Institution will take place on the 27th instant, and that every denomination in the place, as is the case throughout Britain, &c. will cordially co-operate in the common cause.

The Committee would be glad to see the friends of the good cause from the Country present to give a stimulus to the meeting.

By order of the Committee.

JAMES HARRIS, Chairman.
ALEX. STEWART, Secretary.

York, 20th Oct. 1828.

HALF-PAY AFFIDAVITS, of the latest form, for Sale at the Gazette Office.

JEWELLERY.—The Subscriber most respectfully informs the Inhabitants of York and its Vicinity, that on the 1st of November next, he intends opening an assortment of Jewellery, in the Store now occupied by Mr. J. R. Armstrong, which will be disposed of at Montreal prices.

All kinds of Clocks and Watches carefully Repaired.

From the experience of years in the City of London in his Business, he feels confident of giving the utmost satisfaction to all who please to favor him with their commands.

☞ Piano Fortes, Tuned and Repaired.

S. O. TAZEWELL.

6th October, 1828. x 20

THE Subscriber has just received on consignment, which he offers for Sale low, and on a liberal credit.

2 Pipes Prime Port Wine,
1 " L. P. Teneriffe,
1 Case Superior Claret.

JAMES F. SMITH.

20th October, 1828. c 20

THE CANADA COMPANY.

NOTICE is hereby given, that no person is authorised to order any goods or articles on account of the Can a Company, but only the Superintendant, Accountant, and Warden, and even by them the Orders must be in writing, and signed.

JOHN GALT,
Superintendant.

Canada Company's Office,
Guelph, 15th Oct. 1828. x 20

NOTICE.—Having seen in the Canadian Freeman of yesterday an Advertisement of "A Farm to Let,"—signed, "John Lynch, Blacksmith to the Canada Company, Guelph."—I hereby give notice, that I know of no such person in the employment of the Canada Company.

JOHN GALT,
Superintendant.

Canada Company's Office,
York, 24th October 1828. x 20

NOTICE.—Whereas Mr. David Gilkison has absented himself from his business here for the last three months, without having made any communication to his partner either before or since his departure.—Notice is hereby given, that he is not abroad on any business relating to the firm, nor can he while absent have any business to transact on its account, and therefore no securities signed by him in the name of the firm will be acknowledged or paid; he having no power to bind it for his private debts or transactions.

D. GILKISON & Co.

Guelph, 15th Sept. 1828. n 20

A LOAN WANTED.—The Subscribers, desirous of making some further improvements, wish to obtain a Loan of £300, for three years, for which will be given in security, a Paper and Grist Mill, Saw Mill, Distillery, and 200 Acres of Land, free of all incumbrance, situated within three miles of York.

EASTWOOD & SKINNER.

Oct. 23rd, 1828. f 20

NOTICE.—Whereas, it has been the practice for the Chelsea and Kilmainham Pensioners to give up their Instruction Papers to Agents, and receive their Pensions through that channel, instead of appearing personally for the purpose of being identified as His Majesty's Instructions require. The Commissary General hereby gives notice, that all Pensions must be claimed in person, at least once in each year.

The Pensioners at Richmond, Perth and vicinity, will in future receive their Pensions, on and after the 25th December 1828, at By-Town instead of Montreal, and they must claim their first payment at that Post in person, so that their existence and identity may be proved, as no other person or persons are pursuant to Act of Parliament, entitled to receive the same, under any pretence whatsoever if the Pensioner is living. Any Pensioner wishing to change his place of residence must notify the same through the Commissariat Officer from whom he received his last payment.

Commissariat Head Quarters,
Quebec, 18th September, 1828. c 17

BANK NOTICE.—Discount Day, Wednesday of every Week.—Notes offered for Discount must be put under cover to the Cashier, and left at the Bank the day before.

THOMAS G. RIDOUT.
Cashier.

JUST PUBLISHED, and for Sale at the Office of the Loyalist, York, U. C., by Robert Stanton,—The Upper Canada Almanac, and Farmers Calendar, for the year 1829.

☞ Price 2s. Cr'cy. per dozen.—Orders with a remittance, duly attended to, and parcels forwarded agreeable to directions.

September 6, 1828.

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.—The Steam Boat Alciope, will take Freight and Passengers from this Port during the remainder of the Season, every Saturday morning at 6 o'clock, on her way down from Niagara to Prescott, to commence tomorrow.

York, 29th August, 1828. x. 13

STRAY COWS.—Came into the inclosure of the Subscriber, about three weeks since,—Two Cows—one a red Cow, with a small Star in her forehead, and a Bell on.—The other a small Brindle and white spotted. The owners are requested to prove property, pay charges, and take them away.

MOSES CHERRY,
No. 12, East side Yonge-Street, Township of York.

4th September, 1828. x. 13

ELIGIBLE SITUATION—To be sold, Lots numbers 29 & 30 in the first concession of the Township of Scarborough with their broken fronts on Lake Ontario, situate about Seven miles from the Town of York.—On Lot No. 29, are erected a Log and a Frame House together with outhouses &c. These premises are now in the possession of Mr. Adna Bates, and are an eligible Situation for a Tavern.

Application to be made to C. C. SMALL Esq.

York, 20th August, 1828. x 11

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

LAKE Ontario Steam-Boat, Niagara, Captain Mosier, with Daniel Ray, Sailing Master, Will, after the 15th inst., leave Niagara for Kingston, Brockville, and Prescott, every Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

On her return, will leave Prescott for Brockville, Kingston, York, and Niagara, every Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made with Messrs. Norton, & Co., Stage Proprietors, by which, passengers going down, arrive in Montreal on Tuesday evening; and those proceeding upwards, will, by leaving Montreal on Tuesday, arrive in time at Prescott to take the Boat.

York, June 6th, 1828. x 1.

FOR SALE,—Lot No. 12, and East half of 14 in the 3d Concession of the Township of York, West of Yonge-Street,—300 Acres,—the property of Major W. G. White.—Refer to Robert Stanton, Esquire, U. C. Gazette Office.

York, 4th July, 1828. x. 5

NOTICE.—All persons having claims upon the Estate of the late Stephen Heward, Esquire, of York, deceased, are requested to present the same properly authenticated to the Hon. P. Robinson, one of the Executors, without delay; and all persons indebted to the said Estate are requested to make payment to the said Executor.

York, September 15, 1828. x. 15

FOR SALE—By the Subscriber, 100 Barrels PLAISTER OF PARIS, of the very best quality, low for Cash

WILLIAM BERGIN.

York, September 19, 1828. x. 15

THE SUBSCRIBER begs leave to inform his friends and the public that he has purchased the Store-House, Wharf, &c. lately the property of William Cooper, Esq'r., in this Town, where he will receive, store, and sell, on Commission, on the most reasonable terms, all descriptions of produce or merchandize, with which he may be favored.

The buildings are extensive and convenient, being at the head of the Wharf, where all vessels which come into the Bay, principally discharge and take in their cargoes. He flatters himself that the care and attention of the person superintending the Wharf and Store, will give general satisfaction.

There will be for sale a constant supply of Pork, Flour, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Peas, Salt, and Whiskey, also Stoves, Potash Kettles, Coolers, Sugar Kettles, a variety of castings and Grindstones.

The Subscriber has also for sale upwards of 2500 Acres unimproved Lands of superior quality, in the most flourishing Townships, and convenient to York, which he will sell very low and on easy terms to actual settlers.

Wm. BERGIN.

York, February 28th, 1828. 41tf.

BRITISH WAREHOUSE.—J. C. Gowan & Co., Wholesale and Retail Merchants, beg to inform their Friends and the Public, they have received direct from England, the following Goods, which they offer low for cash:—

West of England Cloths, the best assorted,
Yorkshire Cloths of superior qualities, assorted,
Kerseymeres of fine Textures, assorted,
Variety of Vest Patterns,
A well selected Assortment of Gentlemens' Dress, and Sortout Coats, Trowsers, &c., made in London,
Imitation Brussels Carpeting, Venetian Carpeting, and Brass Rods,
Upwards of 2,000 yards unbleached Factory Cotton,
Ships' Canvas bleached, Nos. 3, 4, 5, & 6,
Fashionable Tea and Coffee Urns,
Sheet Copper for Distills, &c.,
Brass Clamping Machines, with Heaters,
Brass and Steel Fire Irons, of the newest quality,
An assortment of Cabinet Furniture,
Cast Steel in Bars,
Variety of Woollen and Linen Girth Webbs,
Paints, assorted, first quality,
Boiled and Raw Linseed Oil,
First quality Cognac Brandy, favorite mark Marett,
Fine Holland Gin,
Good old Whisky, by the Barrel or per Gallon,
Port, Sherry, and Teneriffe Wines, of choice quality.—With a variety of other Goods.

J. C. GODWIN & Co.

York, Aug. 25th 1828. x 12

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS of a new Gaol and Court House at Hamilton, District of Newcastle.—Notice is hereby given that the undermentioned premiums are offered to such persons as shall furnish the Clerk of the Peace, for the approval of the Magistrates of the District of Newcastle, on or before the 1st day of October next, with plans, specifications, and estimates of a Gaol and Court House (in one building) to be built in the Township of Hamilton, at or near the present Court House—the first story to be of Stone, second and third stories of Brick, to contain Criminal Cells, Debtors Rooms, Gaolers Apartments, Court Room, Grand and Petit Jury Rooms;—Also, Rooms for Offices, &c., such as are usually required in such a Building—the roof to be covered with tin.—The whole expence not to exceed the sum of £5,000 Currency.

Premiums will be awarded as follows, viz:—

For the best and most approved plan, &c. £15 0 0
For the 2nd do. do. 10 0 0
For the 3rd do. do. 5 0 0

T. WARD,
Clerk of the Peace,
District of Newcastle

Hamilton, Newcastle District, 10th May, 1828. dd 52

WHISKEY.—For Sale by the Barrel, a quantity of SUPERIOR OLD WHISKEY—Apply to R. W. PRENTICE.

York, 25th Sept. 1828. x 16

VALUABLE FREEHOLD IN YORK, FOR SALE.—The Subscriber offers for sale by private bargain that valuable freehold in the Town of York, on Newgate Street, consisting of a Dwelling House and Workshop, together with a Garden and Yard. MATTHEW WALTON.

York, September 17th, 1828. x. 15

York Auction, Mart, & Commission Ware-House.
M. & R. MEIGHAN,
Opposite the Market Square.

HAVE for Sale, an assortment of Household Furniture, consisting of Mahogany, Curled Maple and Cherry Tree, Side Boards, Secretaries, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Breakfast Dining and Card Tables, Work Tables, Bason Stands, Feather Beds and Bedding; A London made grand Piano: an excellent Sulkey Carriage; a Mangle for pressing clothes; A Jack for Roasting Meat; A very elegant fourteen day Time Piece with Italian Marble Frame and Glass Shade; Double and Single Barrel Percussion Lock Fowling Pieces and Pistols; Bridles, Saddles, Double and Single Harness: Gilt and Plain Frame Looking Glasses; Some Handsome Vases and chimney Ornaments; an extensive assortment of Elegant Dry and Fancy Goods of every description, Hardware, Jewellery, Crockery and Glassware; Groceries, Tea, Wine and Spirits, together with an Elegant Collection of Books, Stationery, Perfumery, Patent Medicines &c.

Regular Auction Sales every week.

York, 1828. x 6.

Police Office, York,
27th Sept'r., 1828.

AT Special Session of Court of Quarter Sessions for the Home District, held this day, it was ordered that Simon Graham be appointed Inspector of Chimneys for the Town of York.

ALEX'R. McDONELL,
Chairman.

17 i

FOR SALE.—Lot No. 29, and part of 30, in the 7th Concession of the Township of Pickering, containing 350 Acres, and having an eligible situation for a Mill. For terms apply to Mr. Andrew Mercer, York.

York, 28th October, 1827. 22tf

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.

NOTICE is hereby given, that Tenders will be received at this Office until Noon of Monday the 10th day of November next, from such person or persons (Butchers by trade) as may be desirous of Contracting for the supply of FRESH BEEF for the Troops, Staff, Departments &c. at this Post for the period of Twelve months, Viz., from the 25th December next to the 24th December 1829 inclusive.

The Tenders must express the rate in Sterling, (the dollar at 4s. 4d.) Per One hundred Pounds.

Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed "Tender for Fresh Beef."

It is requested that the persons intending to propose, will call at this Office and make themselves acquainted with the Terms and Conditions of the Contract, and obtain the Form of Tender, previous to the day of delivering in the same.

ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.

Commissariat Office,
York, 10th October, 1828. t 18

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.

NOTICE is hereby given, that Tenders will be received at this Office, until Noon of Monday the 10th day of November next, from such person or persons (Bakers by trade) as may be desirous of Contracting for the supply of BREAD, for the Troops, Staff, Departments, &c. at this Post, for the period of Twelve months, Viz. from the 25th December next to the 24th December 1829 inclusive.

The Tenders must express the rate in Sterling, (the dollar at 4s. 4d.) Per One hundred Pounds, and the Individuals tendering must be present at the opening of the Tenders, and produce a Sample of the quality of Bread which they intend to supply.

Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real Signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed, "Tenders for Bread."

It is requested that the persons intending to propose, will call at this Office, and make themselves acquainted with the Terms and Conditions of the Contract, and obtain the Form of Tender, previous to the day of delivering in the same.

ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.

Commissariat Office,
York, 10th October, 1828. t 18

TO LET, and possession given immediately, the House and lots lately occupied by Dr. Horne—Inquire of Mr. ALLAN.

York, 10th Oct. 1828. y 18

LANDS FOR SALE.—In the Township of Hallowell, Lot No. 46, 3d Concession, North-west side of the Carrying-Place, - - - - - Acres. 200

In the Township of Grantham—
Lots No. 17, 18, & 19, 3d Con. } - - 300
do. 15, 4th do. }

In the Township of Hamilton—
Broken Lots, 29 & 30, 9th Con. } - - 476
27, 28, 29, 31, 32, 34, & 35, 10th do. }
North-east quarter, No. 1, 4th do. - - - 50

In the Township of Clarke—
Lots No. 16, 17 & 18, Broken Fronts } - - 2000
16, 17, & 18, 1st Con. }
17, & 18, 2d do. }
17, & 18, 3d do. }

In the Township of Darlington—
Lot No. 14, 3d Con. } - - - - - 400
3, 4th do. }

In the Township of Pickering—
Lots No. 16, 17, & half of 18, 1st Con. } - - 999
and Broken Fronts. }

In the Township of York—
Lot No. 37, 3d Con. - - - - - - 200

In the Township of Gainsborough—
Broken Lot No. 27, 3d & 4th Con. - - - - 74

Apply to ANDREW MERCER.

ALLIANCE BRITISH AND FOREIGN
Life and Fire Assurance Company,
OF LONDON.
(Capital—Five Millions Sterling.)

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent to the above Company, at York, he is ready to Insure against loss or damage by Fire at moderate rates of Premium. The high standing of this Institution in England, and the Company allowing their Agents in Montreal to settle losses in this Country, with the Assured participating in the Profits of the Company, renders it worthy of Public Confidence.

R. W. PRENTICE.

York, November 18th, 1826. 25.

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

THE CANADA Steam-Packet for the remainder of the Season, will leave York and Niagara, alternate days, at Ten o'clock—Sundays not excepted.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner.

York, Sept. 29, 1828. x 17

PUBLIC NOTICE.—I require due notice to be given to me or to my Agent, Mr. Alexander Murray, at Mr. Proudfoot's Store, in York, of all transfers of Property in the Steam-Packet Canada, in default whereof I shall consider the original Stockholder, as the legal Owner in the Vessel; and in paying dividends and doing other transactions connected with my situation, hold myself accountable to them alone. HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner of the Steam Packet Canada.

York, 27th December, 1827. 51tf.

N. B.—With Mr. A. Murray, reference may be had to all Books and accounts connected with the Canada Steam Packet.

NEW WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE.—The Subscribers respectfully announce to the Merchants of York and its vicinity, that they have opened a Wholesale Store, Corner of Market-Lane and Church-Street; where they are receiving a large and suitable assortment of DRY GOODS, direct from GREAT BRITAIN: consisting principally of the following articles:—
Grey and Bleached Factory Cottons,
do. do. Sheetings,
Striped and Check'd Cottons,
Scotch Hollands,
Fine, Superfine, and Brussels Carpeting,
do. do. broad and narrow Cloths,
do. do. Cassimeres,
Bombazettes, Bombazines, and Shalloons,
Says, Lastings, Camblets, &c.,
Tartans and Union Checks,
Moleskins, Barragans and Fustians,
Red and White Flannel,
Chintzes, Calicoes and Furnitures,
Book, Jaconnet and Mull Muslins,
Batiste Muslins, Striped, Check'd and figured,
Ginghams, Pullicate and Verona Handkerchiefs,
Cotton and Linen Bed Tick,
Russia Duck, Osnaburgs, Hessins and Sheetings,
Canvas, Bagging, Dowlas, Drill, &c.
Umbrellas, 26, 28, and 30 inch,
Bandanna, Barcelona, Gauze & Barrage, Handkerchiefs,
Silk Hose, and Habit Gloves,
Black and Green Crape, Veils, &c.
Black and Coloured sewings, Lagee Twist, &c.
Galloons, Silk and Cotton Ferrets,
Black & W. Brown Linen Thread, Cotton Spoolls & Balls,
Silk, Cotton, and Merino Shawls,
Cotton Tapes, Bobbin, &c.
Sattins, Gros de Naples, Levantine Ribbons, &c. &c.—Which they will sell off at very reduced prices, for cash only. JAMES DOUGALL, & Co.

York, 23d July, 1828. x. 7

THOMAS MOORE.—TAILOR, King Street, York, Meighan's Buildings, (opposite the Market Place.) Begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has just opened, and offers for Sale, a choice assortment of Goods, Selected by himself at the Manufactories in England, which he can recommend as being of choice quality, consisting of, Superfine, Blue; Black; Scarlett: Green; Olive; Grey and Drab, West of England Broad Cloths.—Black, Blue and Grey, Double and single Milled Kersymeres. Forest Cloths. Lasting and Corduroys.—Beverteens; Fustians; Cantons. Jane; Drab, and Striped Brown Drills. Fine Welsh Flannel; White and Blue Flannel. White and Grey Cottons. London printed Calicoes and Chintzes. Fancy Vestings. Printed Muslins. Sewing Silk; Twist; Thread and Rich Gilt Buttons.

MILITARY EQUIPMENTS,

consisting of, Regulation Swords; Patent Leather Regulation Waist Belts, with rich Gilt clasps. Rich Gold Bullion Epaulletts, crimson Silk Regulation Sashes, rich Gold Velvet Lace, and Gilt British Militia Buttons. Red, White and Green, Regulation Feathers, with rich Gilt Tubes for do.

The whole of which will be disposed of on reasonable terms, or made up to order, agreeable to the latest fashions, at the shortest notice.

York, 14th July, 1828. x 6

TO SAWYERS.—Wanted immediately an experienced SAWYER, and an assistant to take charge of a Mill that has a constant supply of water; and in other respects particularly well situated.—None need apply, who cannot give sufficient references as to character and ability.

Further information on application to Messrs. WRAGG & Co. King-street York. x 11

CHAIN CABLES, &c.—ACRAMAN'S Patent Chain Cables, and Anchors, (warranted proved by Machine) a constant supply kept on hand (in stock) of all sizes, by JOHN WATKINS, Kingston, and in Montreal and Quebec by

WILLIAM BUDDEN.

July, 30, 1827. 11-tf.

Summary.

On the 8th of July Moscow was visited by a dreadful storm, which occasioned destruction of property, to the amount of upwards of 200,000 rubles. The thermometer had for eight days previous stood at from 25 to 30 degrees Reaumur, and during the greater part of the time, an uninterrupted calm had continued, when suddenly, about noon, a dreadful storm from the west burst over the city, driving together so thick a mass of clouds, that the inhabitants could at most be said to enjoy a doubtful twilight. The hurricane was as violent as it possibly could have been in the open sea. The lightning was incessant, and during three hours the thunder continued to become louder at almost every explosion. At the very beginning of the tempest, the steeple of the church of Ivan Wilky was struck by the electric fluid, but without taking fire: a portion of the wall was torn down, and a servant belonging to the church killed. The round cupola of the church of Nicolo Swanarie was torn down. Korochiaf, a village situated fifteen wrests from Moscow, has been entirely destroyed. Many trees have been torn up by the roots, and the cupolas of several churches have been destroyed; several laden barges on the river were driven with such violence against each other as to be completely destroyed. Upwards of 800 houses have been unroofed, and the Pregnenoi falling in the streets have injured a great number of individuals. The rain, which continued to fall during the storm, was so violent, that in the lower parts of the town the water stood five feet high in the streets. Had this calamity visited the city during the night, hundreds of human beings must have been drowned.—Hamburgh Reporter.

A letter from Geurnay, in France, mentions the arrest of a man, aged 70, under very peculiar circumstances. It appears that the prisoner, who is a person of some consequence in his own neighbourhood, had imprisoned his wife for more than two years in a small room in his house, where she was denied every comfort, and supplied with only sufficient food to keep life within her. When discovered by the authorities she was clothed in rags, and almost a skeleton.

The ship-inspired town of Koloose, in Hungary, was nearly destroyed by fire on the 11th July: 347 houses, with the townhall and many principal buildings, were reduced to ashes.

The Moon and Venus, were distinctly seen in the forenoon, at Brighton, England, on the 5th September.

England.

From a Liverpool Paper.

Shipping.—The following is the statement of the amount of British and Foreign shipping entered inwards and cleared outwards for the three years of 1814, 1825, and 1827:

Entered inwards from all parts of the world.—In 1814, 16,065 British vessels, 3,109 Foreign vessels. In 1825, 21,726 British, 6,561 Foreign. In 1827, 20,457 British, 5,820 Foreign.

Cleared outwards to all parts of the world.—In 1814, 16,654 British vessels, 4,452 Foreign vessels. In 1825, 21,884 British, 5,753 Foreign. In 1827, 22,048 British, 5,505 Foreign.

The following is from the Liverpool Albion of the 25th of August.

The numerous piracies which have lately taken place in the South American Seas have inflicted serious losses on the owners of the vessels and merchandize captured by the buccaniers, and especially on the underwriters in London and Liverpool. The Government is loudly called upon to interpose its powerful arm to protect British property from robbery, and British subjects from cruelty, perhaps from torture and death. If the system of piracy which now prevails on the coast of South America be not speedily suppressed, the bucaniers will soon become as audacious as they were a few years ago, when scarcely a vessel could enter the Gulph of Florida without being plundered by the pirates by whom that sea was infested. The Government will not, we should think, hesitate a moment as to the line of conduct to be adopted under present circumstances. Prompt and vigorous measures are always under most efficacious; and the mercantile body have a right to expect that such measures will be put into operation without delay. Meanwhile it may be proper to appoint convoys for the protection of vessels to the ports on the S. American coast. By this means the property of British subjects will be prevented from falling into the hands of pirates, and their persons guarded from cruelty and torture—whilst other vessels of war proceed in search of the marauders. The risk of capture by pirates which the trade to South America now runs has excited a lively interest in Liverpool, and a meeting of the persons interested in it is called for to-morrow, at twelve o'clock, to take into consideration the propriety of memorializing the Government to appoint convoys and adopt other measures for the protection of commerce. The meeting will, no doubt, be attended by every person connected by trade with South America; any memorial which may emanate from it must receive the prompt attention of His Majesty's Government.

LIVERPOOL, September 6.

Canada Ashes, 29s. to 30s.
" Wheat, old, 8s. to 9s.
" " new, 8s. 9d. to 9s. 2d.
" Flour, sweet, 36s. to 38s.

The appointment of Sir Herbert Taylor to the office of Aujutant-General, vice Sir Henry Torrens, deceased, has given much satisfaction. It seems to have been the fortune of this officer to acquire, in every military situation which he filled, the general respect of those with whom it brought him into official contact. In his post of Military Secretary to the Duke of York, Sir Herbert Taylor, as we understand from many individuals in the service, combined, with great courtesy and urbanity of manner, the more solid virtues of a straight-forward frankness in his communications, an anxiety to protect unfriended merit, and a strict adherence to his word.—Times.

Sudden death of the Dean of Lincoln.—On Friday se'nnight, Sir Author Legge, residing at Blackheath, had a grand party of fashionables to dinner, and amongst them Sir Authur's brother, the Very Rev. the Dean of Lincoln, who seemed to be in excellent health and spirits. The party sat down at about 6 o'clock, the Rev. Divine taking his seat next his brother, when, melancholy to relate, whilst thus engaged, the Dean fell from his chair and instantly expired.

Foreign Intelligence.

FRANCE.

By the last advices we learn, that merchant vessels had been engaged definitely, to transport the second French expedition to the Morea; and the first battalion of the 29th regiment set out from Marseilles on the 25th August to proceed to Toulon. The sons of Marshal Soults and General Mathieu de la Redorde, had obtained leave from the War Minister, after urgent solicitations to accompany the expedition, and had set out post from Paris to join it. The Prussian Major de Scharnhort, had obtained the King's leave to fight in Greece without loosing his commission in the Prussian service.

The King of France arrived at Meaux on the 31st August, passing through a series of triumphal orders. He was reminded by the Prefect of the Department of Seine and Marne, that that city had been the first to open the gates to his ancestor Henri Quatre. He was welcomed with speeches, &c. from all the authorities. His Majesty and the Dauphin appeared highly pleased with the first day of their tour.

It is stated in some of the London papers that the present Ministers observe so much caution and secrecy in their proceeding, that no person in any of the public offices is suffered to impart any information, either official or demi-official, to any of the public journals, including even those papers which support their measures, right or wrong. Some faults were found on the 6th ultimo, because the contents of the last despatches from Vienna had not been suffered to transpire through the paper hereafter considered the demi-official organ of communication. It is conjectured that one reason of the present resolution of the ministry upon this subject, is, the admirable system of correspondence maintained by the leading London papers; which often enables them to anticipate even the government couriers—a fact they do not care to let the public know.

From the Baltimore Patriot.

IMPORTANT PERUVIAN DECREE.

By the brig Elizabeth, arrived up this evening, from Calao, the following letter and highly important decree of the Peruvian Congress were received. The decree was enacted on the 11th of June.

Extract of a letter, dated

"LIMA, June 24, 1828.

"I send you this day a few lines, enclosing a copy o the Decree lately issued by Congress, against French, as principle, Forrest and Gosling, as accessaries, were arraigned at the same time.—On application by Counsel, the two latter, were permitted to take their trials separately, after that of French should have been gone through. They all pleaded Not Guilty. French was then put upon his trial.—The jury being impannelled—The ATTORNEY GENERAL, on the part of the Crown, addressed them, confining himself chiefly to a statement of the evidence which he was about to produce on the prosecution.

The first witness called and sworn was—

William Gedd—he lived in the Town of York during the last summer—is an apprentice to Mr. Murchison the Taylor, and was so in the month of June last. On the 4th June last, he was going down the Main Street, and met two boys, Vanorman and Bennett, who asked him if he was going to the Races—witness said he did not know, but would go if they did—he then went to the Theatre to wait till they came. The Prisoner, French, was there, at the door, and asked witness if he was going into the House—witness replied, he did not know—not unless the two boys came—Prisoner was much in liquor—the two boys soon after came there, bought their tickets, as did the witness, and all went into the Theatre,—the Prisoner went in too—they took their seats about the centre of the Pit. Prisoner being on the same Bench with them—it being warm, witness moved to another seat, near the door—Prisoner came and sat beside him—in a few minutes, the deceased Nolan came in, and took a seat on the back box, in front of witness and Prisoner—witness saw that Nolan had a pair of Tongs in his left coat pocket—Nolan looked round on sitting down, and frowned.—Prisoner said to witness, that he, meaning Nolan, was the person who had abused him a few evenings before, and that he, Prisoner, would have vengeance for the pain in his breast, which he had at that moment. Prisoner and witness soon after this, went out of the Theatre and had something to drink—at the end of the play, or beginning of the Farce, Forrest came into the Pit, and sat behind Prisoner and witness—witness looked round, and saw in Forrest's left waistcoat pocket the handle and cock of a Pistol—thinks he told the Prisoner of this, but is not certain,—Forrest and Prisoner went out, remained a few minutes, and again returned—Prisoner sat near witness, and Forrest went to a back seat.—After some time Prisoner asked witness to go out, as he wished to speak to him—they went out, and Prisoner asked him to go and take something to drink—witness said no—Prisoner said he should not think any thing of him if he did not—they then went to get something to drink—Mr. Phair followed them, and called out "Charley will you treat"—Prisoner said, yes, —they went to Howard's, and got some Lemonade,—After the Lemonade was drank, Gosling came into Howard's—Gosling said, Charley you was not as good as your word—Prisoner said he was, but that Gosling was not—Gosling replied, you know I was on the Stage—Gosling and Prisoner then went out of the Bar-room—it was a dark night, there was no moon—they (Gosling and Prisoner) went into the Hall, leaving witness in the Bar-room, a few minutes, and as he was going out, met Forrest coming in—witness went down the steps, in front of Howard's, and at the foot of the steps, met Gosling.—Prisoner stood opposite the small brick building close to Howard's, and called to witness to come along—witness asked where to—the Prisoner sobbed and said he would have vengeance—witness told him he should not—Prisoner said, he could not stop him.—Forrest and Gosling then came up—witness asked Forrest, if he had given Prisoner the Pistol—Forrest made no answer—witness asked this question in consequence of having heard threats of vengeance—had not seen the pistol in Prisoner's possession,—witness proceeded homewards, the others following,—between the small brick building, and Secord's House, the Prisoner shook hands with Forrest, and said, you are my Friend—witness then left them on the Road—Forrest and Gosling came into the road also, the Prisoner keeping on the Path—witness passing through one of the gaps leading into the Market-square, nearly opposite Franks' Hotel, heard some one call. Charles. Goslin and Forrest were standing together, and Prisoner came to them on this call—Gosling then came towards witness on Market-square—witness said to him, that a man's life was not to be trifled with—Gosling made no answer—witness went on towards his home, and just as he got to the corner post opposite Meighan's, he heard the report of a pistol, it made a loud noise—supposed it to be a pistol—heard some one else running—some person spoke, but witness did not understand what was said,—Forrest ran past where witness was, and another person passed near the end of the Market-house, towards Mr. Anderson's—witness then went home. Nolan did not go out of the Theatre,—to his knowledge during the Play—it was about half an hour from the time witness left Howard's when he heard the pistol fired—Nolan did not go out with them at any time—heard no dispute between Prisoner and Nolan that night—Nolan in the Play House looked at Prisoner now and then, with knit brows.

Cross examined—Saw a person at general training that day, who he was told was Gosling—sat with Prisoner most of the time in the Theatre—Nolan spoke something in the Theatre but witness did not understand what he said—saw the handle and cock of the pistol in Forrests' pocket—was induced to ask about the pistol in consequence of the sobs, and vengeance—Prisoner spoke of vengeance, or revenge, in the Theatre, for the pain he had in his breast—supposed he was where he is, for, before the Coroners Jury. Prisoner said this both in the Theatre and near Howards. Prisoner was not sober—not sure whether the threat of vengeance was made before or after he told Prisoner that Forrest had a Pistol. Prisoner drank two Glasses of Gin, and one of Lemonade—thinks he (the Prisoner) did not know what he was doing, was much in Liquor—Prisoner had been treated during the day at Training—has had no communication with any of the parties since, except on coming out of the Police Office, when Forrest was there, and he pulled him by the sleeve, and said, you dont know any thing about it, you was not there—does not know who fired the pistol—would have told others, as well as Prisoner, about the pistol if he had been near them. Nolan was a stout, strong muscular man—his general character was bad. Prisoner is quarrelsome if in liquor,—not in his proper senses when so—has heard that Prisoner has attempted his life, while in liquor—did not see Prisoner approaching any man that night to harm him

By a question—Could not see the barrel of the Pistol.

Christopher Widmer Esq—sworn—is a Surgeon residing in the Town of York, and a Magistrate for the District—was called to see Nolan—found him lying on a Straw bed in Scantans house—he was bleeding—Nolan told him, he had been shot—witness examined the wound, and finding it to be a dangerous one, he thought it necessary to take his deposition—told Nolan previously to taking his deposition of his danger—the wound was a gun shot wound, which witness thought had penetrated the Liver, and would prove mortal—Nolan was not in great pain at the moment—he was tranquil and collected—when deposition was read to him, before he signed it—the Prisoner was not present, when Nolans deposition was taken—Nolans manner was more tranquil than usual with a person, who thought he should soon die—he (Nolan) made use of no expressions as to the consequence likely to follow from the wound he had received.

By the Court—Nolan was tranquil, but witness told him, he considered him in great danger—Nolan did not express any thing to the contrary—The deposition was kept in witnesses possession till next morning, & was then given by him to the sitting Magistrate in the Police Office—Nolan died next afternoon—witness was with him, a short time before he died, he was, breathing with difficulty

THE LOYALIST.

YORK. U. C., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1828.

We have no later news from Europe.

It is stated that, by private information of late date received from New York, SIR JOHN COLBORNE, in consequence of the sickness of some of his family, had not yet left New York. His arrival here had been expected some days previous to the receipt of this intelligence, but it now appears uncertain how soon it may take place.

An account of the Trial and Execution of Charles French, for the Murder of Edward Nolan, will be found in our columns this day. Its length precludes the possibility of our adverting to other matters before the Court, during the past week. Forest, and Gosling, who were each tried separately—the former on Tuesday, and the latter on Wednesday, were acquitted. The evidence on their trials was substantially the same as that adduced on the trial of French.

John Christie, and his Wife the persons suspected of having Murdered Isaac James, on or about the 30th ult, and who were apprehended at Troy, in the State of New York, a few days since, have been forwarded by the authorities on the American side, and yesterday evening arrived here, in the Queenston, from Niagara, and are now lodged in the Gaol of this District. The Assizes are still sitting—Christie and his Wife will take their trials before the close of the Session, and until these have taken place, we abstain from comment on the dreadful crime of which they are accused.

HOME DISTRICT ASSIZES.—TRIAL OF CHARLES FRENCH FOR THE MURDER OF EDWARD NOWLAN.—This trial came on before His Honor MR. JUSTICE SHERWOOD, on Friday the 17th inst. The prisoner, Charles French, as principle, Forrest and Gosling, as accessaries, were arraigned at the same time.—On application by Counsel, the two latter, were permitted to take their trials separately, after that of French should have been gone through. They all pleaded Not Guilty. French was then put upon his trial.—The jury being impannelled—The ATTORNEY GENERAL, on the part of the Crown, addressed them, confining himself chiefly to a statement of the evidence which he was about to produce on the prosecution.

The first witness called and sworn was—

William Gedd—he lived in the Town of York during the last summer—is an apprentice to Mr. Murchison the Taylor, and was so in the month of June last. On the 4th June last, he was going down the Main Street, and met two boys, Vanorman and Bennett, who asked him if he was going to the Races—witness said he did not know, but would go if they did—he then went to the Theatre to wait till they came. The Prisoner, French, was there, at the door, and asked witness if he was going into the House—witness replied, he did not know—not unless the two boys came—Prisoner was much in liquor—the two boys soon after came there, bought their tickets, as did the witness, and all went into the Theatre,—the Prisoner went in too—they took their seats about the centre of the Pit. Prisoner being on the same Bench with them—it being warm, witness moved to another seat, near the door—Prisoner came and sat beside him—in a few minutes, the deceased Nolan came in, and took a seat on the back box, in front of witness and Prisoner—witness saw that Nolan had a pair of Tongs in his left coat pocket—Nolan looked round on sitting down, and frowned.—Prisoner said to witness, that he, meaning Nolan, was the person who had abused him a few evenings before, and that he, Prisoner, would have vengeance for the pain in his breast, which he had at that moment. Prisoner and witness soon after this, went out of the Theatre and had something to drink—at the end of the play, or beginning of the Farce, Forrest came into the Pit, and sat behind Prisoner and witness—witness looked round, and saw in Forrest's left waistcoat pocket the handle and cock of a Pistol—thinks he told the Prisoner of this, but is not certain,—Forrest and Prisoner went out, remained a few minutes, and again returned—Prisoner sat near witness, and Forrest went to a back seat.—After some time Prisoner asked witness to go out, as he wished to speak to him—they went out, and Prisoner asked him to go and take something to drink—witness said no—Prisoner said he should not think any thing of him if he did not—they then went to get something to drink—Mr. Phair followed them, and called out "Charley will you treat"—Prisoner said, yes, —they went to Howard's, and got some Lemonade,—After the Lemonade was drank, Gosling came into Howard's—Gosling said, Charley you was not as good as your word—Prisoner said he was, but that Gosling was not—Gosling replied, you know I was on the Stage—Gosling and Prisoner then went out of the Bar-room—it was a dark night, there was no moon—they (Gosling and Prisoner) went into the Hall, leaving witness in the Bar-room, a few minutes, and as he was going out, met Forrest coming in—witness went down the steps, in front of Howard's, and at the foot of the steps, met Gosling.—Prisoner stood opposite the small brick building close to Howard's, and called to witness to come along—witness asked where to—the Prisoner sobbed and said he would have vengeance—witness told him he should not—Prisoner said, he could not stop him.—Forrest and Gosling then came up—witness asked Forrest, if he had given Prisoner the Pistol—Forrest made no answer—witness asked this question in consequence of having heard threats of vengeance—had not seen the pistol in Prisoner's possession,—witness proceeded homewards, the others following,—between the small brick building, and Secord's House, the Prisoner shook hands with Forrest, and said, you are my Friend—witness then left them on the Road—Forrest and Gosling came into the road also, the Prisoner keeping on the Path—witness passing through one of the gaps leading into the Market-square, nearly opposite Franks' Hotel, heard some one call. Charles. Goslin and Forrest were standing together, and Prisoner came to them on this call—Gosling then came towards witness on Market-square—witness said to him, that a man's life was not to be trifled with—Gosling made no answer—witness went on towards his home, and just as he got to the corner post opposite Meighan's, he heard the report of a pistol, it made a loud noise—supposed it to be a pistol—heard some one else running—some person spoke, but witness did not understand what was said,—Forrest ran past where witness was, and another person passed near the end of the Market-house, towards Mr. Anderson's—witness then went home. Nolan did not go out of the Theatre,—to his knowledge during the Play—it was about half an hour from the time witness left Howard's when he heard the pistol fired—Nolan did not go out with them at any time—heard no dispute between Prisoner and Nolan that night—Nolan in the Play House looked at Prisoner now and then, with knit brows.

Cross examined—Saw a person at general training that day, who he was told was Gosling—sat with Prisoner most of the time in the Theatre—Nolan spoke something in the Theatre but witness did not understand what he said—saw the handle and cock of the pistol in Forrests' pocket—was induced to ask about the pistol in consequence of the sobs, and vengeance—Prisoner spoke of vengeance, or revenge, in the Theatre, for the pain he had in his breast—supposed he was where he is, for, before the Coroners Jury. Prisoner said this both in the Theatre and near Howards. Prisoner was not sober—not sure whether the threat of vengeance was made before or after he told Prisoner that Forrest had a Pistol. Prisoner drank two Glasses of Gin, and one of Lemonade—thinks he (the Prisoner) did not know what he was doing, was much in Liquor—Prisoner had been treated during the day at Training—has had no communication with any of the parties since, except on coming out of the Police Office, when Forrest was there, and he pulled him by the sleeve, and said, you dont know any thing about it, you was not there—does not know who fired the pistol—would have told others, as well as Prisoner, about the pistol if he had been near them. Nolan was a stout, strong muscular man—his general character was bad. Prisoner is quarrelsome if in liquor,—not in his proper senses when so—has heard that Prisoner has attempted his life, while in liquor—did not see Prisoner approaching any man that night to harm him

By a question—Could not see the barrel of the Pistol.

Christopher Widmer Esq—sworn—is a Surgeon residing in the Town of York, and a Magistrate for the District—was called to see Nolan—found him lying on a Straw bed in Scantans house—he was bleeding—Nolan told him, he had been shot—witness examined the wound, and finding it to be a dangerous one, he thought it necessary to take his deposition—told Nolan previously to taking his deposition of his danger—the wound was a gun shot wound, which witness thought had penetrated the Liver, and would prove mortal—Nolan was not in great pain at the moment—he was tranquil and collected—when deposition was read to him, before he signed it—the Prisoner was not present, when Nolans deposition was taken—Nolans manner was more tranquil than usual with a person, who thought he should soon die—he (Nolan) made use of no expressions as to the consequence likely to follow from the wound he had received.

By the Court—Nolan was tranquil, but witness told him, he considered him in great danger—Nolan did not express any thing to the contrary—The deposition was kept in witnesses possession till next morning, & was then given by him to the sitting Magistrate in the Police Office—Nolan died next afternoon—witness was with him, a short time before he died, he was, breathing with difficulty and quite insensible—witness had no hopes of his recovery after examining the wound, the ball passed through the Liver—Saw Nolan the following morning after he was shot—he was then in great agony, and said, Doctor I am going fast—certain that Nowlan was then sensible he could not live—said it was a cruel thing, alluding to the manner of his death, but did not name any person—the night before, Nolan said he had not given provocation to any one—does not recollect, that Nolan, after he was satisfied he should die, named any person, by whom the wound was given—has no doubt that Nolans death was occasioned by a bullet of some kind.—(It was during the examination of this witness, that the learned Judge decided that the deposition made, when the Prisoner was not present, and the deceased was not under an impression of immediate death, could not be read, in evidence—his declerations, made when certain that his death would ensue, would be good evidence inasmuch as such declarations, being those of a dying man, were as proper to be received, and stated to the Jury, as if the party by whom they were made, was present in Court under Oath.)

William Phair,—Sworn—Knew the deceased, Nolan—saw him at Scanlan's the night he was wounded—heard the report of a pistol, and about half a minute after hearing it Nolan came into Scanlan's with his hand on his breast, and stooping—young asked him what was the matter—Nolan said he was shot—saw Nolan the following morning, had no conversation with him—did not see him the evening before, till he was brought in—he did not see the Prisoner and the others that evening together—saw tne Prisoner in the Ticket Office of the Theatre, and sold him a Ticket.

Cross examined.—Nolan never gave offence to witness—has heard that he was of a turbulent disposition, but never saw any thing of the kind himself—deceased never abused any of witnesses family—has known Prisoner from a child, his character was that of a quiet, but silly foolish lad when he had a drop of liquor—knows nothing of a defect in Prisoners sight—has heard of his having made attempts on his own life when he was in liquor—he drank a good deal, was drunk the night Nolan was shot—does not think Prisoner would wantonly destroy a man—would not say that he was a madman, except when in liquor.

Thomas Fussel, Sworn.—Is an inhabitant of York—knew the deceased Nolan in Ireland—was fellow passenger with him to this Country—Nolan sent for him the morning after he was wounded—went to him, between four and five o'clock if the morning, and remained with him about half an hour—about four or five o'clock in the afternoon—Nolan spoke to within fifteen or twenty minutes of his death—had his senses perfectly—in the morning he said to wits us, he little thought to lay his bones in York, he seemed to give himself up, and desired witness to write to his friends, and get his property together, and pay off his debts, which has been done.—Witness really believes that Nolan considered himself a dying man, and told witness that Charles French had shot him; that on coming from the play, he saw two or three persons coming towards him, and that one of them asked him if his name was Nolan, to which he answered my name is Nolan—that the person then raised his hand, and that he Nolan, supposing he offered him his hand, reached out his, to shake hands with him, when the shot was fired—this person Nowlan said was Charles French, and that he had not quarrelled with, or offered any provocation to French that night.—Witness having heard that some previous difference had taken place, questioned Nolan about it—Nolan said he did not recollect any thing particular on that occasion; that he had some squabble with a number of boys but not more with French, than any of the rest—does not recollect Nolan's having any conversation with Mr. Carey, or any other person, as to the wound he had received.

Cross examined.—Nowlan said that he had seen the Prisoner in the Theatre, but did not say that he threatened to lay the Prisoner over his head—did not say any thing about any one else, or offered insult to any person—that he was quietly entertaining house—that he did not know the Prisoner more than any others on the occasion of the former squabble.

James McCrae, Sworn.—Is a Surgeon in York, examined Nolan's wounded—he did not complain of being in pain, and said he should yet live—on the following morning, found him in violent pain, and great danger—said Nolan his case was hopeless, who seemed to think so himself, and that he should die of the wound—Nolan afterward, in the course of the morning, said that Charles French had shot him, and that he forgave him—he did not explain to witness how French had shot him—Nolan said that some former disagreement had taken place between himself and French, but not any on the night he was shot—has no doubt, but that deceased came to his death in consequence of the wound.

Alexander McDonell, Esq., Sworn.—Is a Magistrate, took the Prisoner's voluntary examination—he was cautioned as to the answers he should make—Prisoner appeared extremely distressed, but knowing what he did, and said

By a question—Could not see the barrel of the Pistol.

Christopher Widmer Esq—sworn—is a Surgeon residing in the Town of York, and a Magistrate for the District—was called to see Nolan—found him lying on a Straw bed in Scantans house—he was bleeding—Nolan told him, he had been shot—witness examined the wound, and finding it to be a dangerous one, he thought it necessary to take his deposition—told Nolan previously to taking his deposition of his danger—the wound was a gun shot wound, which witness thought had penetrated the Liver, and would prove mortal—Nolan was not in great pain at the moment—he was tranquil and collected—when deposition was read to him, before he signed it—the Prisoner was not present, when Nolans deposition was taken—Nolans manner was more tranquil than usual with a person, who thought he should soon die—he (Nolan) made use of no expressions as to the consequence likely to follow from the wound he had received.

By the Court—Nolan was tranquil, but witness told him, he considered him in great danger—Nolan did not express any thing to the contrary—The deposition was kept in witnesses possession till next morning, & was then given by him to the sitting Magistrate in the Police Office—Nolan died next afternoon—witness was with him, a short time before he died, he was, breathing with difficulty

Alexander Sellers, sworn—knew the deceased Nolan—witness was not at the Theatre on the night Nolan was shot—does not know the reason why Nolan carried Tongs that night—witness about a week previously, told Nolan, that if he did not behave himself, he would get a hiding. A young man named Daniel Bancroft had come into the shop of the witnesses master and asked witness if Nolan lived there, and what sort of a man he was—Bancroft was fellow apprentice of Prisoner—Bancroft asked if Nolan carried fire arms, and said that he would get a hiding—witness told this to Nolan who seemed to care little about it—witness does not know of any words having past between Nolan's that should have got him a beating—never heard of Nolan's having beat the Prisoner.

Cross examined—Nolan was a passionate man, sometimes overbearing in his manner—he was a stout man, and able to beat such a person as Prisoner.

Thus was the case for the Crown.

ON THE DEFENCE—John Hutchinson, sworn—knew the deceased Nolan—the impression of witness is, that he was a quarrelsome man—he was stout and able to beat half a dozen such as

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

THE CANADA Steam-Packet for the remainder of the Season, will leave York and Niagara, alternate days, at Ten o'clock—Sundays not excepted.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner.

York, Sept. 29, 1828. x 17

PUBLIC NOTICE.—I require due notice to be given to me or to my Agent, Mr. Alexander Murray, at Mr. Prondfoot's Store, in York, of all transfers of Property in the Steam-Packet Canada, in default whereof I shall consider the original Stockholder, as the legal Owner in the Vessel; and in paying dividends and doing other transactions connected with my situation, hold myself accountable to them alone. HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner of the Steam Packet Canada.

York, 27th December, 1827. 81tf.

N. B.—With Mr. A. Murray, reference may be had to all Books and accounts connected with the Canada Steam Packet.

NEW WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE.—The Subscribers respectfully announce to the Merchants of York and its vicinity, that they have opened a Wholesale Store, Corner of Market-Lane and Church-Street; where they are receiving a large and suitable assortment of DRY GOODS, direct from GREAT BRITAIN: consisting principally of the following articles:—

Grey and Bleached Factory Cottons,
do. do. Sheetings,
Striped and Check'd Cottons,
Scotch Hollands,
Fine, Superfine, and Brussels Carpeting,
do. do. broad and narrow Cloths,
do. do. Cassimeres,
Bombazettes, Bombazines, and Shalloons,
Says, Lastings, Camblets, &c.,
Tartans and Union Checks,
Moleskins, Barragans and Fustians,
Red and White Flannel,
Chintzes, Calicoes and Furnitures,
Book, Jacconet and Mull Muslins,
Batiste Muslins, Striped, Check'd and figured,
Ginghams, Pullicate and Verona Handkerchiefs,
Cotton and Linen Bed Tick,
Russia Duck, Osnaburgs, Hessins and Sheetings,
Canvas, Bagging, Dowlas, Drill, &c.
Umbrellas, 26, 28, and 30 inch,
Bandanna, Barcelona, Gauze & Barrage, Handkerchiefs,
Silk Hose, and Habit Gloves,
Black and Green Crape, Veils, &c.
Black and Coloured sewings, Legee Twist, &c.
Galloons, Silk and Cotton Ferrets,
Black & W. Brown Linen Thread, Cotton Spoolls & Balls,
Silk, Cotton, and Merino Shawls,
Cotton Tapes, Bobbin, &c.
Sattins, Gros de Naples, Levantine Ribbons, &c. &c.—
Which they will sell off at very reduced prices, for cash only. JAMES DOUGALL, & Co.

York, 23d July, 1828. x. 7

THOMAS MOORE,—TAILOR, King Street, York, Meighen's Buildings, (opposite the Market Place.) Begs leave to inform the Gentlemen and the public, that he has just opened, and offers for Sale, a choice assortment of Goods, Selected by himself at the Manufactories in England, which he can recommend as being of choice quality, consisting of, Superfine, Blue; Black; Scarlett; Green; Olive; Grey and Drab, West of England Broad Cloths.—Black, Blue and Grey, Double and single Milled Kersymeres. Forest Cloths. Lasting and Corduroys. Beverteens; Fustians, Cantons. Jane; Drab, and Striped Brown Drills. Fine Welsh Flannel; White and Blue Flannel. White and Grey Cottons. London printed Calicoes and Chintzes. Fancy Vestings. Printed Muslins. Sewing Silk; Twist; Thread and Rich Gilt Buttons.

MILITARY EQUIPMENTS,

consisting of, Regulation Swords; Patent Leather Regulation Waist Belts, with rich Gilt clasps. Rich Gold Bullion Epauletts, crimson Silk Regulation Sashes.—Rich Gold Velvet Lace, and Gilt British Militia Buttons. Red, White and Green, Regulation Feathers, with rich Gilt Tubes for do.

The whole of which will be disposed of on reasonable terms, or made up to order, agreeable to the latest fashions, at the shortest notice.

York, 14th July, 1828. x 6

TO SAWYERS.—Wanted immediately an experienced SAWYER, and an assistant to take charge of a Mill that has a constant supply of water; and in other respects particularly well situated.—None need apply, who cannot give sufficient references as to character and ability.

Further information on application to Messrs. WRAGG & Co. King-street York. x 11

CHAIN CABLES, &c.—ACRAMAN'S Patent Chain Cables, and Anchors, (warranted proved by Machine) a constant supply kept on hand (in stock) of all sizes, by JOHN WATKINS, Kingston, and in Montreal and Quebec by

WILLIAM BUDDEN.

July, 30, 1827. 11-tf.

Summary.

On the 8th of July Moscow was visited by a dreadful storm, which occasioned destruction of property, to the amount of upwards of 2,000,000 of rubles. Commencing at five o'clock in the evening, and for eight days previous stood at from 25 to 30 degrees Reaumur, and during the greater part of the time, an uninterrupted calm had continued, when suddenly, about noon, a dreadful storm from the west burst over the city, driving together so thick a mass of clouds, that the inhabitants could at most be said to enjoy a doubtful twilight. The hurricane was as violent as it possibly could have been in the open sea. The lightning was incessant, and during three hours the thunder continued to become louder at almost every explosion. At the very beginning of the tempest, the steeple of the church of Iwan Wilsky was struck by the electric fluid, but without taking fire: a portion of the wall was torn down, and a servant belonging to the church killed. The round cupola of the church of Nicolo Swanarie was torn down. Korochiuf, a village situated fifteen wrests from Moscow, has been entirely destroyed. Many trees have been torn up by the roots, and the cupolas of several churches have been destroyed; several laden barges on the river were driven with such violence against each other as to be completely destroyed. Upwards of 800 houses have been unroofed, and the fragments falling in the streets have injured a great number of individuals. The rain, which continued to fall during the storm, was so violent, that in the lower parts of the town the water stood five feet high in the streets. Had this calamity visited the city during the night, hundreds of human beings must have been drowned.—Hamburgh Reporter.

A letter from Gournay, in France, mentions the arrest of a man, aged 70, under very peculiar circumstances:—It appears that the prisoner, who is a person of some consequence in his own neighbourhood, had imprisoned his wife for more than two years in a small room in his house, where she was denied every comfort, and supplied with only sufficient food to keep life within her. When discovered by the authorities she was clothed in rags, and was a skeleton.

The archiepiscopal town of Koloosr, in Hungary, was nearly destroyed by fire on the 11th July: 347 houses, with the townhall and many principal buildings, were reduced to ashes.

The Moon, and Venus, were distinctly seen in the forenoon, at Brighton, England, on the 5th September.

England.

From a Liverpool Paper.

Shipping.—The following is the statement of the amount of British and Foreign shipping entered inwards and cleared outwards for the three years of 1814, 1825, and 1827:

Entered inwards from all parts of the world.—In 1814, 16,065 British vessels, 5,109 Foreign vessels. In 1825, 21,786 British, 6,561 Foreign. In 1827, 20,457 British, 5,820 Foreign.

Cleared outwards to all parts of the world.—In 1814, 16,654 British vessels, 4,452 Foreign vessels. In 1825, 21,864 British, 5,753 Foreign. In 1827, 22,048 British, 5,903 Foreign.

The following is from the Liverpool Albion of the 25th of August.

The numerous piracies which have lately taken place in the South American Seas have inflicted serious losses on the owners of the vessels and merchandise captured by the bucaniers, and especially on the underwriters in London and Liverpool. The Government is loudly called upon to interpose its powerful arm to protect British property from robbery, and British subjects from cruelty, perhaps from murder and death. If the system of piracy which now prevails on the coast of South America be not speedily suppressed, the bucaniers will soon become as audacious as they were a few years ago, when scarcely a vessel could enter the Gulph of Florida without being plundered by the pirates by whom that sea was infested. The Government will not, we should think, hesitate a moment as to the line of conduct to be adopted under present circumstances. Prompt and vigorous measures are always the most efficacious; and the mercantile body have a right to expect that such measures will be put into operation without delay. Meanwhile it may be proper to appoint convoys for the protection of the trade to the ports on the S. American coast. By this means the property of British subjects will be prevented from falling into the hands of pirates, and their persons guarded from cruelty and torture. Whilst other vessels of war proceed in search of the manraiders. The risk of capture by pirates which the trade to South America now runs has excited a lively interest in Liverpool, and a meeting of the persons interested in it is called for to-morrow, at twelve o'clock, to take into consideration the propriety of memorializing the Government to appoint convoys and adopt other measures for the protection of commerce. The meeting will, no doubt, be attended by every person connected by trade with South America; any memorial which may emanate from it must receive the prompt attention of His Majesty's Government.

—•—•—

LIVERPOOL, September 6.

Canada Ashes, 29s. to 30s.
" Wheat, old, 8s. to 9s.
" " new, 8s. 9d. to 9s. 2d.
" Flour, sweet, 36s. to 38s.

—•—•—

The appointment of Sir Herbert Taylor to the office of Aujutant-General, vice Sir Henry Torrens, deceased, has given much satisfaction. It seems to have been the fortune of this officer to acquire, in every military situation which he filled, the general respect of those with whom it brought him into official contact. In his post of Military Secretary to the Duke of York, Sir Herbert Taylor, as we understand from many individuals in the service, combined, with great courtesy and urbanity of manner, the more solid virtues of a staight-forward frankness in his communications, an anxiety to protect unfriended merit, and a strict adherence to his word.—Times.

Sudden death of the Dean of Lincoln.—On Friday se'nnight, Sir Author Legge, residing at Blackheath, had a grand party of fashionables to dinner, and amongst them Sir Authur's brother, the Very Rev. the Dean of Lincoln, who seemed to be in excellent health and spirits. The party sat down at about 6 o'clock, the Rev. Divine taking his seat next his brother, when, melancholy to relate, whilst thus engaged, the Dean fell from his chair and instantly expired.

Foreign Intelligence.

FRANCE.

By the last advices we learn, that merchant vessels had been engaged definitely, to transport the second French expedition to the Morea; and the first battalion of the 29th regiment set out from Marseilles on the 25th August, to proceed to Toulon. The sons of Marshal Soults and General Mathieu de la Redorde, had obtained leave from the War Minister, after urgent solicitations to accompany the expedition, and had set out post from Paris to join it. The Prussian Major de Scharnhort, had obtained his King's leave to fight in Greece without loosing his commission in the Prussian service.

The King of France arrived at Meaux on the 31st August, passing through a series of triumphal orders. He was reminded by the Prefect of the Department of Seine and Marne, that that city had been the first to open its gates to his ancestor Henri Quatre. He was welcomed with speeches, &c. from all the authorities. His Majesty and the Dauphin appeared highly pleased with the first day of their tour.

It is stated in some of the London papers that the present Ministers observe so much caution and secrecy in their proceeding, that no person in any of the public offices is suffered to impart any information, either official or demi-official, to any of the public journals, independent of those papers which support their measures, whether right or wrong. Some faults were found on the 6th ultimo, because the contents of the last despatches from Vienna had not been suffered to transpire through the paper hereafter considered the demi-official organ of communication. It is conjectured that one reason of the present resolution of the ministry upon this subject, is, the admirable system of correspondence maintained by the leading London papers; which often enables them to anticipate even the government couriers—a fact they do not care to let the public know.

From the Baltimore Patriot.

IMPORTANT PERUVIAN DECREE.

By the brig Elizabeth, arrived up this evening, from Calao, the following letter and highly important decree of the Peruvian Congress were received. The decree was enacted on the 11th of June.

Extract of a letter, dated

"LIMA, June 24, 1828.

"I send you this day a few lines, enclosing a copy of the Decree lately issued by Congress, respecting Flour & other articles of shipment from the United States this way. I forwarded such a letter to Guayaquil; from thence it would reach you via Panama, and I hope it may have a quick passage on account of the important information it contains."

THE CONGRESS OF PERU,

Considering, that all young States should preserve and maintain the productions which they possess, in preference to all others—Decree:

Art 1st. That the foreign importations of all those articles which, by the present regulation, pay 90 per cent duty, shall within ten months for the states of Europe, and 3 months for those of America, containing from the date of the promulgation of this law, be entirely prohibited.

Art 2d. Within the same time and term as the above, will also be prohibited the foreign importation of all kinds wine, raisins, flour, butter and esculents of whatever denomination.

Given in the Hall of Congress, Lima, June 11, 1828, and promulgated on the 13th of same month.

Articles subject to the 90 per cent duty.

Brandy of all kinds. Soap, Hats of do. Ready made Clothing, Boots and Shoes. Powder, Sulphur and Saltpetre. Sugar, Tobacco, Sweet Oil and Lard. Tocuyos, or white and brown Cottons. Coarse Cloths, similar to the Bayetes or Daizes of the country. Tanned Leather or Skins. Saddles and all kinds of Saddlery. Horse Shoes, Wax and Tallow Candles, Tables, Sofas, Bureaus, Chairs, Coaches, Colezes and Bedsteads. Sanalas, Bafias, Madapolans, and all other Cotton Goods, which in class or quality are comparable with the Tocuyos of North America.

United States.

Presidential Election.—The manner in which the canvass has been conducted is disgraceful. It has sickened thousands of our fellow-citizens at home, and covered the cheeks of our countrymen in foreign countries with blushes. We doubt not, the partizan editors themselves, with their correspondents, will, when the question is settled, look back with regret upon the means taken to advance the claims of their respective candidates. Sure we are, the presses of the present day, which have engaged in the warfare, will have incurred a heavy debt in injuring the good name of the Republic which many years of dignified discussion will hardly efface. Great credit is due to those journals which, while manfully expressing their preference between the candidates, have not polluted their presses by ungenerous and defamatory accusations.

It deserved the consideration of the people whether an alteration of the Constitution is not needed, to reduce the period of service to one term. Instead of four years it might be well to extend the period to six, or seven to eight years. A President might then act independently, and both he and the other departments of the government devote their time and talents to the service of their country. If such an amendment takes place in consequence of the excitement into which the nation is thrown, good will be educed from evil, and we may hereafter be spared the humiliating spectacle of party succour and vituperation, carried to such excess as are calculated to bring reproach upon civil liberty, in the estimation of the wise throughout the world.—N. Y. Mercury.

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1828.

We have no later news from Europe.

It is stated that, by private information of late date received from New York, SIR JOHN COLBORNE, in consequence of the sickness of some of his family, had not yet left New York. His arrival here had been expected some days previous to the receipt of this intelligence, but it now appears uncertain how soon it may take place.

An account of the Trial and Execution of Charles French, for the Murder of Edward Nolan, will be found in our columns this day. Its length precludes the possibility of our adverting to other matters before the Court, during the past week. Forest, and Gosling, who were each tried separately—the former on Tuesday, and the latter on Wednesday, were acquitted. The evidence on their trials was substantially the same as that adduced on the trial of French.

John Christie, and his Wife the persons suspected of having Murdered Isaac Jamison or about the 30th ult, and who were apprehended at Troy, in the State of New York, a few days since, have been forwarded by the authorities on the American side, and yesterday evening arrived here, in the Queenston, from Niagara, and are now lodged in the Gaol of this District. The Assizes are still sitting—Christie and his Wife will take their trials before the close of the Session, and until these have taken place, we abstain from comment on the dreadful crime of which they are accused.

HOME DISTRICT ASSIZES.—TRIAL OF CHARLES FRENCH FOR THE MURDER OF EDWARD NOWLAN.—This trial came on before His Honor, Mr. Justice SHERWOOD, on Friday the 17th inst. The three prisoners, French, as principle, Forrest and Gosling, as accessaries, were arraigned at the same time.—On application by Counsel, the two latter, were permitted to take their trials separately, after that of French should have been gone through. They all pleaded Not Guilty.—Charles French was then put upon his trial.—The jury being impannelled—The ATTORNEY GENERAL, on the part of the Crown, addressed them, confining himself chiefly to a statement of the evidence which he was about to produce on the prosecution.

Art 1st. That the foreign importations of all those articles which, by the present regulation, pay 90 per cent duty, shall within ten months for the states of Europe, and 3 months for those of America, containing from the date of the promulgation of this law, be entirely prohibited.

Art 2d. Within the same time and term as the above, will also be prohibited the foreign importation of all kinds wine, raisins, flour, butter and esculents of whatever denomination.

Given in the Hall of Congress, Lima, June 11, 1828, and promulgated on the 13th of same month.

Articles subject to the 90 per cent duty.

Brandy of all kinds. Soap, Hats of do. Ready made Clothing, Boots and Shoes. Powder, Sulphur and Saltpetre. Sugar, Tobacco, Sweet Oil and Lard. Tocuyos, or white and brown Cottons. Coarse Cloths, similar to the Bayetes or Daizes of the country. Tanned Leather or Skins. Saddles and all kinds of Saddlery. Horse Shoes, Wax and Tallow Candles, Tables, Sofas, Bureaus, Chairs, Coaches, Colezes and Bedsteads. Sanalas, Bafias, Madapolans, and all other Cotton Goods, which in class or quality are comparable with the Tocuyos of North America.

United States.

Presidential Election.—The manner in which the canvass has been conducted is disgraceful. It has sickened thousands of our fellow-citizens at home, and covered the cheeks of our countrymen in foreign countries with blushes. We doubt not, the partizan editors themselves, with

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1828.

We have no later news from Europe.

It is stated that, by private information of late date received from New York, SIR JOHN COLBORNE, in consequence of the sickness of some of his family, had not yet left New York. His arrival here had been expected some days previous to the receipt of this intelligence, but it now appears uncertain how soon it may take place.

An account of the Trial and Execution of Charles French, for the Murder of Edward Nolan, will be found in our columns this day. Its length precludes the possibility of our adverting to other matters before the Court, during the past week. Forest, and Gosling, who were each tried separately—the former on Tuesday, and the latter on Wednesday, were acquitted. The evidence on their trials was substantially the same as that adduced on the trial of French.

John Christie, and his Wife the persons suspected of having Murdered Isaac Jamison or about the 30th ult, and who were apprehended at Troy, in the State of New York, a few days since, have been forwarded by the authorities on the American side, and yesterday evening arrived here, in the Queenston, from Niagara, and are now lodged in the Gaol of this District. The Assizes are still sitting—Christie and his Wife will take their trials before the close of the Session, and until these have taken place, we abstain from comment on the dreadful crime of which they are accused.

HOME DISTRICT ASSIZES.—TRIAL OF CHARLES FRENCH FOR THE MURDER OF EDWARD NOWLAN.—This trial came on before His Honor, Mr. Justice SHERWOOD, on Friday the 17th inst. The three prisoners, French, as principle, Forrest and Gosling, as accessaries, were arraigned at the same time.—On application by Counsel, the two latter, were permitted to take their trials separately, after that of French should have been gone through. They all pleaded Not Guilty.—Charles French was then put upon his trial.—The jury being impannelled—The ATTORNEY GENERAL, on the part of the Crown, addressed them, confining himself chiefly to a statement of the evidence which he was about to produce on the prosecution.

The first witness called and sworn was—

William Gedd—he lived in the Town of York during the last summer—is an apprentice to Mr. Murchison the Taylor, and was so in the month of June last. On the 4th June last, he was going down the Main Street, and met two lads, Vanorman and Bennett, who asked him if he was going to the play—witness said he did not know, but would go if they did—he then went to the Theatre to wait till they came. The Prisoner, French, was there, at the door, and asked witness if he was going into the House—witness replied, he did not know—not unless the two boys came—Prisoner was much in liquor—the two boys soon after came there, bought their tickets, as did the witness, and all went into the Theatre,—the Prisoner went in too—they took their seats about the centre of the Pit. Prisoner being on the same Bench with them—it being warm, witness moved to another seat, near the door—Prisoner came and sat beside him—in a few minutes, the deceased Nolan came in, and took a seat on the back box, in front of witness and Prisoner—witness saw that Nolan had a pair of Tongs in his left coat pocket—Nolan looked round on sitting down, and frowned.—Prisoner said to witness, that he, meaning Nolan, was the person who had abused him a few evenings before, and that he, Prisoner, would have vengeance for the pain in his breast, which he felt at that moment. Prisoner and witness soon after this, went out of the Theatre and had something to drink—at the end of the play, or beginning of the Farce, Forrest came into the Pit, and sat behind Prisoner and witness—witness looked round, and saw in Forrest's left waistcoat pocket the handle and cock of a Pistol—thinks he told the Prisoner of it, but was not sure—Forrest and Prisoner went out, remained a few minutes, and again returned—Prisoner sat near witness, and Forrest went to a back seat.—After some time Prisoner asked witness to go out, as he wished to speak to him—they went out, and Prisoner asked him to go and take something to drink—witness said no—Prisoner said he should not think any thing of him if he did not—they then went to get something to drink—Mr. Phair followed them, and called out "Charley will you treat"—Prisoner said, yes, —they went to Howard's, and got some Lemonade,—After the Lemonade was drank, Gosling came into Howard's—Gosling said, Charley you was not as good as your word—Prisoner said he was, but that Gosling was not—Gosling replied, you know I was on the Stage—Gosling and Prisoner then went out of the Bar-room—it was a dark night, there was no moon—they (Gosling and Prisoner) went into the Hall, leaving witness in the Bar-room, a few minutes, and as he was going out, met Forrest coming in—witness went down the steps, in front of Howard's, and at the foot of the steps, met Gosling.—Prisoner stood opposite the small brick building close to Howard's, and called to witness to come along,—witness asked where to—the Prisoner sobbed and said he would have vengeance—witness told him he should not—Prisoner said, he could not stop him,—Forrest and Gosling then came up—witness asked Forrest, if he had given Prisoner the Pistol—Forrest made no answer—and witness asked this question, in consequence of the sobs, and threats of vengeance—had not seen the pistol in Prisoner's possession,—witness proceeded homewards, the others following,—between the small brick building, and Secord's House, the Prisoner shook hands with Forrest, and said, you are my Friend—witness went into the Road—Forrest and Gosling came into the road also, the Prisoner keeping on the Path-way —witness passing through one of the gaps leading into the Market-square, nearly opposite Franks' Hotel, heard some one call out "Gosling" and Forrest were standing together, and Prisoner came to them on this call—Gosling then came to witness on Market-square—witness said to him, that a man's life was not to be trifled with—Gosling made no answer—witness went on towards his house, and as he got to the corner post opposite Meighan's, he heard the report of a pistol, it made a loud noise—supposed it to be a pistol—heard some one as if running—some person spoke, but witness did not understand what was said,—Forrest ran past where witness was, and another person passed near the end of the Market-house, towards Mr. Anderson's—did not see Prisoner—Nolan did not go out of the Theatre, to his knowledge during the Play—it was about half an hour from the time witness left Howard's when he heard the pistol fired—Nolan did not go out with them at any time—heard no dispute between Prisoner and Nolan that night—Nolan was in the Play House looked at Prisoner now and then, with knit brows.

Cross examined—Saw a person at general training that day, who he was told was Gosling—sat with Prisoner most of the time in the Theatre—Nolan spoke something in the Theatre, but witness did not hear what was said—saw the handle and cock of the pistol in Forrests' pocket —was induced to ask about the pistol in consequence of the sobs, and vengeance—Prisoner spoke of vengeance, for revenge, in the Theatre, for the pain he felt in his breast—witness thinks he swore to this fact, before the Coroners Jury. Prisoner said this both in the Theatre, and near Howards. Prisoner was not sober—not sure whether the threat of vengeance was made before or after he told Prisoner that Nolan struck him. Prisoner drank two Glasses one of Wine, and one of Lemonade—thinks he (the Prisoner) did not know what he was doing, was much in Liquor—Prisoner had been treated during the day at Training—has had no communication with any of the Crown Witnesses, on examination of the Police Office, the following day, when Forrest pulled him by the sleeve, and said, you dont know any thing about it, you was not there—does not know who fired the pistol—would have told others, as well as Prisoner, about the pistol if he had been near them. Nolan was a stout, strong muscular man—his general character was bad. Prisoner is quarrelsome if in liquor,—not in his proper senses when so—has heard that Prisoner has attempted his life, while in liquor—did not see Prisoner approaching any man that night to knock him down.

By a Juror—did not see the barrel of the Pistol.

Christopher Widmer Esq—sworn—is a Surgeon residing in the Town of York, and a Magistrate for the District—was called to see Nolan—found him lying on a Straw bed in Scanlans house—he was bleeding—Nolan told him, he had been examined by the Coroners Jury that day, and finding it to be a dangerous one, thought it proper to take his deposition—told Nolan previously to taking his deposition of his danger—the wound was a gun shot wound, which witness thought had penetrated the Liver, and would prove mortal—Nolan was not in great pain at the moment, and was tranquil and collected—the deposition was read to him, before he signed it—the Prisoner was not present, when Nolans deposition was taken—Nolans manner was more tranquil than usual with a person, who thought he should soon die—he (Nolan) made use of no expression as to the consequence likely to follow from the wound he had received.

By the Court—Nolan was tranquil, but witness told him, he considered him in great danger—Nolan did not express any thing to the contrary—The deposition was kept in witnesses possession till next morning, & was then given by him to the sitting Magistrate in the Police Office—Nolan died next afternoon—witness was with him, a short time before he died, he was, breathing with difficulty and quite insensible.—witness had no hopes of his recovery after examining the wound, the ball passed through the Liver—Saw Nolan the following morning after he was shot—he was then in great agony, and suffer'd same I am going fast—certain that Nowlan was then sensible he could not live—said it was a cruel thing, alluding to the manner of his death, but did not name any person—the night before, Nolan said he had not given provocation to any one—does not recollect, that Nolan, after he was satisfied he should die, named any person, by whom the wound was given—has no doubt that Nolans death was occasioned by a bullet of some kind.—(It was during the examination of this witness, that the learned Judge decided that the deposition made, when the Prisoner was not present, and the deceased was not under an impression of immediate death, could not be read, in evidence—his declarations, made when certain that his death would ensue, would be good evidence inasmuch as such declarations, being those of a dying man, were as proper to be received, and stated to the Jury, as if the party by whom they were made, was present in Court under Oath.)

William Phair,—Sworn—Knew the deceased, Nolan—saw him at Scanlan's the night he was wounded—heard the report of a pistol, and about half a minute after hearing it Nolan came into Scanlan's with his hand on his breast, and stoopingwitness asked him what was the matter—Nolan said he was shot—saw Nolan the following morning, had an conversation with him—did not see him the evening before, till he saw him at Scanlan's; did not see the Prisoner and the others that evening together—saw the Prisoner in the Ticket Office of the Theatre, and sold him a Ticket.

Cross examined.—Nolan never gave offence to witness—has heard that he was of a turbulent disposition, but never saw any thing of the kind himself—deceased never struck any of witnesses family—has known Prisoner from a child, his character was that of a quiet, but silly foolish lad when he had a drop of liquor—knows nothing of a defect in Prisoners sight—has heard of his having made attempts on his own life when he was in liquor—he drank a good deal, was drunk on the night Nolan was shot—does not think Prisoner would wantonly destroy a man—would not say that he was a madman, except when in liquor.

Thomas Rusnel, Sworn.—Is an inhabitant of York—knew the deceased Nolan in Ireland—was fellow passenger with him to this Country—Nolan sent for him the morning after he was wounded—went to him, between four and five o'clock of the morning, and remained with him until he died, which was about four or five o'clock in the afternoon—Nolan spoke to within fifteen or twenty minutes of his death—had his senses perfectly—in the morning he said to witness, he little thought to lay his bones in York, he seemed to give himself up, and desired witness to write to his friends, and get his property together, and pay off his debts, which he then owed—Witness really believes that Nolan considered himself a dying man, and told witness that Charles French had shot him; that on coming from the play, he saw two or three persons coming towards him, and that one of them asked him if he was the man—that to which he answered my name is Ned Nolan; that the person then raised his hand, and that he Nolan, supposing he offered him his hand, reached out his, to shake hands with him, when the shot was fired—this person Nowlan said was Charles French, and that he had not quarrelled with, or offered any provocation to French that night.—Witness having heard that some previous difference had taken place, questioned Nolan about it—Nolan said he did not recollect any thing particular with French on that occasion; that he had some squabble with a number of boys but not more with French, than any of the rest—does not recollect Nolan's having any conversation with Mr. Carey, or any other person, as to the wound he had received.

Cross examined.—Nowlan said that he had seen the Prisoner in the Theatre, but did not say that he threatened to lay the Tongs over his head—did not say that he threatened any one else, or offered insult to any person—that he was quietly returning home—that he did not know the Prisoner more than any others on the occasion of the Forrest affair.

James McCague, Sworn.—Is a Surgeon in York, examined Nolan's wound—he did not complain of being in pain, and said he should yet live—on the following morning, found him in violent of pain, and great danger—said Nolan his case was hopeless, who seemed to think so himself, and that he should die of the wound —Nolan afterward, in the course of the morning, said that Charles French had shot him, and that he forgot him—he did not explain to witness how French had shot him—Nolan said that some former disagreement had taken place between himself and French, but not any on the night he was shot—has no doubt, but that deceased came to his death in consequence of the wound.

Alexander McDonell, Esq., Sworn.—Is a Magistrate, took the Prisoner's voluntary examination—he was cautioned as to the answers he should make—Prisoner appeared extremely distressed, but knowing what he did, and said.

The examination was here produced, and proved by Mr. McDonell—and was read.—[In substance it contained the admission of Charles French—that he fired the pistol at Nolan, but not with an intention of killing him—that he did so in his own defence, as he knew that Nolan had a pair of tongs or something like tongs about his person, and that Nolan had collared him a few evenings before.]

Alexander Sells, sworn—knew the deceased Nolan—witness was not at the Theatre on the night Nolan was shot—does not know the reason why Nolan carried Tongs that night—witness about a week previously, told Nolan, that if he did not behave himself, he would get a hiding. A young man named Daniel Bancroft had come into the shop of the witnesses master and asked witness if Nolan lived there, and what sort of a man he was—Bancroft was fellow apprentice of Prisoner—Bancroft asked if Nolan carried fire arms, and said that he would get a hiding—witness told this to Nolan—witness knows little about it—witness does not know of any misbehaviour of Nolan's that should have got him a beating—never heard of Nolan's having beat the Prisoner.

Cross examined—Nolan was a passionate man, sometimes overbearing in his manner—he was a stout man, and able to beat such a person as Prisoner.

This was the case for the Crown.

ON THE DEFENCE—John Hutchinson, sworn—knew the deceased Nolan—the impression of witness is, that he was a quarrelsome man—he was stout and able to beat half a dozen such as the prisoner—if witness had met Nolan in a dark night, he should have run away from him—never knew him to carry tongs on his person.

REPEATED

Frederick Dutcher, sworn—knew the deceased Nolan,—his general character was bad—he was overbearing, quarrelsome and troublesome,

Lulz Sharp, Sworn—Was at the Theatre the night Nolan was shot—about a quarter of an hour after he was there, Prisoner came in and sat near him—Nolan came peeping in at the door, he sat down inside the door and opposite witness—a young man tapped witness on the shoulder, desiring him to look at the Tongs in Nolans pocket—Nolan had his hand over the tongs, and said that he would lay them over the witnesses head, if he had him outside, and over that of his witnesses master, and over Charles French's too. The Prisoner did not say any thing to Nolan—Prisoner did not hear the threat, as he sat three seats behind—Nolan might have been heard at that distance, but witness thinks the prisoner did not hear him—other persons heard him. An apprentice of Mr. Rogers heard him—this was about 10 o'clock at night. Witness went straight home from the Theatre—did not see Nolan strike any person—Nolan was not drunk—does not know what reason he had for carrying the Tongs—thinks as he was a stout man there could be no necessity for his doing so to defend himself against the Prisoner.

Charles Baker, Sworn.—About a fortnight before Nolan was shot, witness was sitting in Mr. Lindsay's house, and hearing the cry of murder, went out to see what was the matter—saw Nolan there, and asked him what the cry of murder was about—Nolan said it was one Wrench or Trench, the cock eyed Printer; witness said, it might be French the Printer—Nolan replied yes—that's the damned rascal—that he had cried out merely to bring the people from the Theatre—witness said it was unlikely unless French had been ill used—Nolan then said, he would be damned if he did not settle him—witness supposed he meant French the witness waited about the place for some time, till he thought French had time to have gone for a constable—has known Prisoner many years—and always thought him honest, and honorable—would not suppose him capable of wilfully shooting a man.

Thomas Summers, Sworn—was at the Theatre the night Nolan was shot—saw Nolan there—Nolan and the last witness more through terror than any thing else; he did not pay for going in; did not hear Nolan say that he would make use of the tongs; had seen the same tongs before on Nolan's person, and has known him previously to carry a pistol about him; never heard Nolan say any thing threatening against the Prisoner; did not see him offer violence to Prisoner or any one else that night.

Leyman Vanarman, Sworn—Was at the Theatre; saw Prisoner there; saw Nolan there also, who had a pair of tongs in his pocket on the left side—never saw a pistol about Nolan at any time—heard Nolan use threats against Prisoner, witness was told by a young man sitting near him to observe the Tongs in Nowlans pocket. Nolan overheard this remark, and said if he had the person outside, who spoke of the tongs, he would lay them over his head, and that of his employer, and that of his master—this was said by Nolan in an audible tone, but witness thinks the Prisoner did not hear it, as he sat at some distance—the prisoner gave no provocation to Nolan that night, that the witness knows of.

David Bennett, Sworn.—Was at the Theatre and saw Nolan there, he had a pair of tongs in his pocket—saw Nolan speaking hard to a young man near him, but did not hear what he said—heard no threats—was not paying attention to what was said; Nolan's tone was an angry one; thinks Prisoner did not hear Nolan when he was speaking; witness saw French go down stairs, but does not recollect that Nolan was speaking at the time; saw Nolan look round, but did not pay attention to his looking more at French, than any other person.

Richard Watson, Sworn.—The Prisoner was under his instruction for nearly four years in the Gazette Office, when conducted by Mr. Fothergill; never knew him guilty of impropriety during that time; does not know of Prisoner being insane.

James McMillan, Sworn.—Knows the Prisoner, his character is that of an innocent, inoffensive young man; witness knew the deceased, and considered him a ruffian of the deepest dye.

William Lyon McKenzie, Sworn.—Has known the Prisoner for eight or nine years; his general character was good; he came to witnesses empire highly recommended by Mr. Fothergill, who said, that though he was a silly lad, would yet do well; the last sooner was subject to aberration of mind, and had made attempts on his own life.

By the Court.—Witness will not say positively that he considers Prisoner, entirely insane, but thinks he is not of as sound mind as others.

By Attorney General.—The Prisoner is weak of intellect, but knows right from wrong; his testimony has been received in a Court of Justice.

Daniel Bancroft, Sworn.—Has known the Prisoner for four years and was at work in the same Office with him; the Prisoner was a good companion and assistant in the Office; was always kind to him kind hearted and generous, thought him subject to fits of insanity; the Prisoner had once a dispute with one of his fellow apprentices, and witness from his conduct on that occasion, thought that the Prisoner would destroy himself; on another occasion, witness was so much alarmed that he told Mrs. Mc Kenzie, he would not remain in the house, if Prisoner did.

By Attorney General.—Prisoner got more wages than witness; an insane person would be of no use in a Printing Office; when witness was alarmed about Prisoners making way with himself, thought he was in Liquor.

James Lumsden, Sworn—Knew the Prisoner for about four years, and was in the same office with him; his general character was good, and as being peaceable and inoffensive; should never suspect him of deliberate murder unless he was insane; witness only knew Nolan by eye-sight. The Prisoner on hearing of the death of a brother, was much agitated; witness endeavored to pacify him, without success; on this occasion the Prisoner took a knife and sharpened it, and went up stairs alone, in the dark, and was heard walking about; witness and Prisoner was alarmed and informed Mr. McKenzie, who reasoned with the Prisoner, when he sobbed, much in the way as described by the witness Gedd; on the following morning Prisoner appeared composed, and said if they had not come to him, in a minute or two he should have put an end to himself; witness thinks the Prisoner is not always deranged, but subject to turns; has seen the Prisoner tipsy; saw him the day of the murder, about two o'clock in the afternoon, and spoke to him; he answered rationally, but thinks from former circumstances that he was deranged that night; was always in a state of insanity when he was drunk.

Henry Crampton, Sworn.—On the day of the training, Gosling came to Mr. Carey's Office, where witness was employed, and wished the Prisoner to go shooting with him; Mr. Carey refused, and witness is under the impression, that the conversation alluded to by Gedd, as to the appointments between Prisoner and Gosling, may have referred to the shooting excursion; Gosling had a Gun in his hand when he came to Mr. Carey's Office

Charles W. Page, went shooting with Gosling the day alluded to—Prisoner was not with them—returned at half-past seven o'clock; understood that Prisoner had made an appointment with Gosling, and intended to have gone shooting with them.

(Defence closed.)

On part of the prosecution—William Russell was again called; he was fellow passenger with Nolan to this country, 23 days; after being at sea a few days, Nolan got into favor with the Captain of the Ship, from his kindness and attention to his fellow passengers, and to those who were sick on board; his general character was good; he was by no means a cruel man; saw Nolan afterwards in this Country; any person calling him a Ruffian is wrong—Nolan said when dying, he did not suppose any man could do such a thing as kill him, as he had never harmed any man.

By Counsel—witness is no relation of Nowlans—never heard of Nolans being a troublesome, quarrelsome man, until he saw it so stated in McKenzies paper; he signed a Certificate of Nolans good character, which was published and did so to take off the stain which McKenzies publication might produce.

Thomas Hanson, Sworn.—Was acquainted with Nolan for two years and thought him an inoffensive, quiet man.

His Lordship then having been gone through, the Judge informed the Prisoner, that if he wished to address the Jury, he was at liberty to do so.

The Prisoner then from a written paper addressed his defence to the Jury, in which he in substance disclaimed having been actuated by malice towards the deceased Nolan—that what had taken place was in self defence, Nolan being in the act of striking him with the tongs, that if any doubts existed in their minds, as to the guilt of the prisoner, he was entitled to the full benefit of those doubts in his favor,—if on the contrary they were satisfied from the evidence, that Nolan came to his death by the violence of the Prisoner, and that he was actuated by malice at the time, it would be their duty to find him Guilty.—The plea of Insanity which had been set up, if the Jury believed it—would justify them in acquitting the Prisoner—but His Lordship was not disposed to think, that from the whole tone of the testimony they would very much doubt it, as well as from the manner of the Prisoner in reading the defence which he had made —His Lordship having gone through the evidence which had been addduced, both for the Prosecution and Defence, gave some ample remarks and explanations of the Law; the Jury retired, and after nearly an hours deliberation, returned into Court, with their verdict—"GUILTY."

His Lordship, then addressed the Prisoner nearly as follows:

Charles French.—A Jury of your Country after a patient, and impartial trial, have found you guilty of the crime of Murder.—You have, unfortunately for yourself, given way to that fatal indulgence in habits of intemperance, all your follies and vices are to be attributed, and that the excess of that indulgence, has led you step by step from the ground, and calls for retribution for your crime, the most revolting, that of taking the life of another human being —You now stand a melancholy example of the fatal effects of those pernicious habits in which you have indulged; hope not unfortunate young man, that mercy can be extended to you in this world; let me implore you to seek it elsewhere, and to direct you to that Saviour, through whom alone, we can obtain forgiveness of Sin—The blood of your victim, the unhappy Nolan, cries from the ground, and calls for retribution, and you have to prepare to die. Think not that I intend by these remarks to add to the wretchedness of your unhappy situation, and let me again implore you to employ the short space of time which remains to you, before you are to appear in Eternity, in making your peace with your offended Maker. It only remains for me, to perform the necessary, but painful duty of passing upon you the sentence of the Law, which is, that you Charles French, be taken to the place from whence you came, and from thence to the place of Execution, on Monday next, the 20th day of October, and that you there be hanged by the neck until you are dead; that your dead body be buried within the precincts of the walls of the Gaol, and dissected and anatomized.—And may the GREAT GOD, have mercy on your Soul.

THE EXECUTION.

On Thursday last, the sentence of the Law, against Charles French, convicted of the Murder of Edward Nolan, was carried into execution. We stated in our last, that French was left for execution on the Monday morning, as an application was then going to the proper quarter for a Reprieve, and as the persons who were charged as having been accessories, had not yet taken their trials. His Honor, Mr. Chief Justice SHERWOOD, most humanely granted a respite until the Tuesday following. Those trials took place, on Tuesday and Wednesday: nothing material was elicited on them to affect that of French, and it having been, as we understand, considered, that the application on his behalf, which had received the deliberate consideration of the Executive Council, was such as could not be granted, with a due regard to Public Justice, the usual melancholy preparations were made for carrying the sentence into execution. Those preparations being completed, at about half past two o'clock on Thursday, the Sheriff of the District, accompanied by his Deputy, and escorted by the Town and a number of Special Constables who were sworn in for the occasion, proceeded from the Office in the Court House, to the Gaol, in front of which the drop was erected. The Special Constables were stationed at the foot of the drop, in such a manner as to prevent the too near approach of any persons, but the proper Officers. The Sheriff and his attendants then entered the Gaol, and in a short time, the doors were again thrown open, and the procession, with French who was seen to suffer, attended by the Rev. Dr. Phillips—and the Rev. Mr. Ryerson made its appearance. French appeared calm and collected, and apparently occupied in meditations suited to his melancholy situation—he was exceedingly pale, though there was no mark of perturbation in his countenance, as although he was assisted by two of the Constables in ascending the steps which led to the Scaffold, there was not anything which indicated a want of sufficient strength. We have done so, without that assistance—he was clothed in a suitable dress of white, with a Cap of the same on his head—his arms pinioned, but so as to admit his crossing his hands over his breast in the attitude of prayer. He cast but a single glance at the assembled multitude on his coming out of the Gaol, before ascending the fatal steps.

On reaching the scaffold, the executioner having performed his office and drawn the Cap over French's face, he was placed on the Drop, and preserved his position with composure and firmness, during the few minutes which were to number his mortal existence.—The Rev. Mr. Ryerson, then came to the front of the stand, and at French's request—addressed the spectators during the morning, and a short time previous to his execution, he made a statement to Mr. Ryerson, on which the Rev. Gentleman's address was founded, of which the following is a brief sketch:—

"I think the sentence of the Law, which condemns me to death, just. I confess I shed the blood of Nolan, and on that account deserve to die. It is bad company and drinking which have involved me in all my miseries, and finally brought me to my present unhappy state.—It was by mixing with such company, that I first became acquainted with the unfortunate Nolan, and by associating with wicked and unprincipled men, that I was led to indulge in those fatal excesses of intemperance, which prepared me for the commission of the crime for which I am about to suffer.

I was often warned of my danger, and advised to avoid those destructive ways; but I would not listen to the friendly counsel, and consequently have involved myself in shame and ruin. It was liquor that led me to perform the fatal deed, that brings me to this untimely and shameful death. Had I not been intoxicated, I should not have armed myself with such a dangerous weapon, and had I been sober at the time of the unfortunate encounter, I should not have used it: but at that time I had been intoxicated for several hours, and consequently incapable of taking care of myself. Ardent spirits always excited in me a very daring, fearless spirit, and while under its influence I met the unfortunate Nolan, and was led to take his life But notwithstanding I have been guilty of these and many other crimes, I trust God has mercifully given me and loves me, for that I am at peace with God and all mankind: I feel that I have experienced pardon through the atoneing blood of the Saviour, and am now fully prepared to meet death. I most sincerely forgive all those who have ever injured me, and humbly beg the forgiveness of any one whom I may have injured.

"I wish others, especially the young, to take warning by my unhappy fate, and to avoid those vices that have proved my ruin. Had I attended to the often repeated advice of my friends, especially my dear Mother, and Mr. McKenzie, and avoided bad company, and drunkenness, I should not have been brought to this untimely end, and now I have to suffer. My dear young friends but little consider when listening to the kind advice of their Parents, from what anxious solicitude and affection such advice flows; and when disposed to complain of the rigour of the discipline under which they live, how necessary such wholesome restraints are for their present as well as eternal good.

I now return my most grateful acknowledgments to Mr. Parker, and family, for their friendship and kindness to me since I have been confined with them, and most fervently pray that God may abundantly reward them.—I also most sincerely thank those kind friends who have so generously interested themselves in my behalf, and make them all the return that it is in the power of a poor dying youth to make,—my gratitude and my prayers,—assuring them that with my latest breath I shall implore the blessing of Heaven on them and their families."

The address, by the Rev. Mr. Ryerson, was very solemn and on behalf of French, was delivered in an impressive manner, and was heard with respectful silence and attention, and we trust with good effect, by those to whom it was made.

The Rev. Dr. Phillips, then performed the solemn service of the Church, as used at the Burial of the Dead, French joining in the prayers as the Rev. Gentleman proceeded. At the conclusion of The Lords Prayer, which was slowly and impressively uttered, French rose, and with a firm and undaunted step, and unassisted, proceed manner, the signal was given for removing the fastenings of the drop, and with the last word of that prayer upon his lips, the unfortunate criminal was launched into eternity.

His sufferings were not protracted, and in a few minutes he ceased to exist.

Thus perished at the age of 21, in the very spring time of his life, Charles French, the victim, by his own dying confession of intemperance, and his usual attendants; that disgraceful and vicious habits of intemperance; associating with bad company, and the pursuits of vice, had led French to the commission of crime; crime of the deepest dye: the shedding the blood of a fellow creature. He has paid the forfeit of his crime with his Life, and it is to be hoped, that the dying warning he has given, in the above statement, and his untimely end, will not be without their effect, in deterring others, and especially inexperienced youth, from pursuing those courses, in the unfortunate French traced all his misfortunes: which involved him in all his miseries, and which eventually brought him to an ignominious fate

---

His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland and Col. By, passed by Oliver's ferry, on Wednesday last, on their way from By-town to Kingston.—The Hon. and Rev. Dr. Strachan, who had accompanied them from the former place, left them at the traverse on the Rideau Lake, and proceeded to Perth on Sunday and Monday; and after visiting and examining the Public School and Common Schools of the place, he took his departure on Friday morning, preparatory to visit the other District Schools between this place and York.—Independent Examiner.

His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, Lieutenant Governor of Nova-Scotia, arrived here on Friday last from By-Town, and on Saturday proceeded to York, with Commodore Barrie, in the Bull Frog. We are informed that His Excellency narrowly escaped being drowned a few yards above the Kingston Mills, on Thursday night. It appears that his bark canoe run foul of a log of wood, and immediately filled with water. Fortunately, another canoe was at hand, the crew of which succeeded in rescuing His Excellency and his companions from their perilous situation.—U. C. Herald.

Amongst the numerous trials in civil cases, last Assizes, we noted it proper to make notice of Forsyth against Leonard—An action was brought by William Forsyth, Inn-keeper, Niagara Falls, against Col. Leonard, Sheriff of the District, for aiding and assisting in pulling down his fences, and removing a Blacksmith's shop, built of logs—a prosecution for the same of course was preferred against Captain Philpotts, at the Assizes last year, and a verdict obtained, which verdict was set aside by the Court of King's Bench. On this trial a special Jury was impanelled, who, after a due attention to the matter, returned a verdict in favor of the Colonel.—We attended to this trial in a more particular manner, because a petition of Mr. Forsyth had been laid before our Lower House of Parliament last Session, and received very favorably by a number of that House, who wished to do every thing possible to prejudice the minds of the people against the Lieutenant Governor. From the proceedings in Court, corroborated by other information, we are enabled to lay the following narrative before the public, which will show the matter in its proper light:—On the front of the Province along the waters that form the division between this Province and the United States, a chain had been reserved from the water mark, for military purposes. In the Township of Stamford to near the mouth of Chippawa, the banks were found to be so high, mostly a ledge of rocks, that would take the length of several chains to reach the waters of the River—it was therefore ordered that in laying out the lands, one chain should be reserved from the top of the bank, which was uniformly done through that Township, notwithstanding this, Mr. F. fenced up to the bank under his pretence of use of the public. This, in a great measure precluded travellers having a near view of the falls, except those who lodged at his Pavilion—(this was, no doubt, his object.) A petition was therefore presented to His Excellency the Lieut. Governor, praying that he would order the said reserves to be laid open for the use of all His Majesty's Subjects. Notice was therefore given to Mr. Forsyth and some of his neighbors, who had also fenced in this Reserve, to remove their fences, so as to leave them as before for the use of the public. All promised so to do, and subsequently did so, Mr. F. only excepted. Orders were therefore issued to Captain Philpotts, of the Royal Engineers, to lay open the reserves, which was done by his direction. Colonel Leonard, who resides in that vicinity, it appears, was present during some part of the time the nuisances were removing; he was therefore judged as a proper person to be prosecuted. His Attorneys who accepted the rank of Captain on half-pay, pursuant to a late General Order

A letter from an Officer of the 53d Regiment, states that his regiment expected orders for embarkation for Canada. It is also said that the 79th Regiment is likely to come out to this country in the Spring.

The September Army List contains a notification to Officers on half pay, that in future, they will not be permitted to receive any portion of their half pay, unless they accept any Civil appointment, after the 28th July last.—Quebec Gazette.

It is with regret we copy for the information of our Military subscribers, from the September Army List, the unwelcome information, that the allowance of one shilling on Half-pay from holding Civil situations, the substance of which, as given by the Official Gazette, appeared in our last number.—Quebec Mercury.

MEMORANDUM for the information of Officers on the HALF-PAY of the ARMY.

By the Act of the 1st Geo. IV. cap. 3, all Officers on half-pay of the Army were allowed to hold civil situations under the Crown together with their half-pay, under certain restrictions therein specified; and this permission has been continued to them by provisions of the subsequent Acts for the appropriation of the supplies for the year; but whilst the appropriation Act of the present year confirms this indulgence to those who have already enjoyed it, and has no retrospective effect, it also enacts, that, for the future, no half-pay Officer who shall be appointed to a civil situation under the Crown, after the 28th July, 1828 shall be allowed to receive any portion of his half-pay; so long as he shall hold such place or employment of profit. The clause is as follows:—

(Extract from the 15th Clause of the 9th Geo. 4, c. 25.)

No person who shall, after the passing of this Act, be appointed to any place or employment of profit under His Majesty or in the Colonies or possessions of His Majesty beyond the seas, or under any other Government, shall have or receive any part of a same (Half-pay) for any time during which he shall hold any such civil place or employment of profit under His Majesty, beyond seas, or under any other Government"—War-Office, 30th August, 1828.

Domestic.

We understand that the Rev. Mr. Handcock, Acting Chaplain to the Forces at this post, is about removing to Kingston, having formed an engagement with some of the leading and most respectable inhabitants of that Town to perform divine service there as an Evening Lecturer. In common with our fellow-townsmen generally, and without the remotest design of becoming clerical flatterers, we extremely regret the necessity of Mr. Handcock's removal from this place.—We say necessity, because we understand that the limited pay attached to his situation as Chaplain at this reduced post has rendered it an imperative duty on himself to accept a more lucrative offer. By his amiable qualities Mr. Handcock has endeared himself to the people of this Town, more perhaps than any one of his calling that has ever mingled with its peaceful circles. His friendly and cheerful department to all classes of community—the humble as well as the more exalted—is peculiarly calculated to inspire confidence and esteem, and has not failed to engage their best wishes for his personal welfare. Last Sunday he delivered his farewell discourse to a numerous congregation of citizens and soldiers in the Episcopal Church of this Town, and a more interesting and affecting parting benediction will be seldom heard from the pulpit. If the Rev. Gentleman himself betrayed some emotion at the announcement of separation from his Niagara friends he could not but be sensible that the feeling was not peculiarly his own, as was abundantly manifested by the tears of the congregation.—His parting address to the Military, with whom he is a peculiar favorite, was strikingly beautiful and impressive, and caused the hardy soldier to exhibit emotions that his pride would fain stifle on the field of battle.

We repeat, that Mr. Handcock carries with him the warmest feelings of this community for his future happiness and welfare, and their regret at the separation is mingled with the consolation that his personal interest will be promoted by it.—Niagara Herald.

We have it from good authority, that orders have been received to proceed with the fortifications at this Post without delay.—Kingston Chronicle.

Melancholy Accident.—One of Mr. Ise's ferry boats left this for Long Island about 4 o'clock P. M. on Monday last, on board of which were his son George, Mr. Williams a tailor, and Francis May, boatman. When within a quarter of a mile of Garden Island, the boat capsized, soon after which Williams disappeared. May continued on the drifting boat about an hour and a half longer, when being overcome by fatigue, and benumbed with cold, he sunk in sight of his suffering companion, and was drowned. George Ise still continued on the boat, which drifted into Brown's Bay, five or six miles down, on the Island shore, about 12 o'clock at night, where he succeeded in reaching the land, in a very exhausted state; remained in the woods till next morning, and finally succeeded in reaching a house, and arrived at his father's on Wednesday morning.—Families of Williams and May have not yet been found.—Religious Advocate.

Steam Boat Sir James Kempt.—This elegant boat made the first trial of her engine yesterday afternoon, and we believe to the no small gratification of her Captain and owners, and a number of gentlemen who were on board. Her speed, we think, may be reckoned superior to any boat down the Bay, for our accommodations for travellers are surpassed by none.—From the well known character of Capt. Gildersleive, in attending to the accommodation and comfort of his passengers, and a desire to please, we have no doubt this excellent and beautiful Boat will receive that public patronage which Capt. G's liberality and exertions so highly merit. We are informed she will make her first trip to the head of the Bay of Quintie, on Monday next.—Ib.

Our readers will perceive, by the advertisement of the Engineer of the Welland Canal, in another column, that it is the determination of the Board, if possible, to effect a passage for the water through the Deep Cut on present season; and such is the state of forwardness in which the work now is, there is every reason to believe, should they speedily obtain the number of Labourers required, that the object may be attained without difficulty. This must be gratifying intelligence to all on Half-pay from formerly dependant upon the scanty and incertain power afforded by the 12 mile creek, to set their works in operation, they having been standing idle the greater part of the summer past for want of water; and to the inhabitants in their vicinity, a supply for house accommodation they were erected—as their supply from this new source will be never-failing. Esq. Keefer's large substantial stone flouring Mill, lately erected at the foot of the second lock from the top of the mountain, near his residence in Thorold, are great advantages to be derived for operation as soon as the water can be brought down.

The encouragement now offered to able-bodied and industrious labourers is very liberal, and the place is uncommonly healthy for the time of year, considering the unusual prevalence of sickness throughout the Province; and it is hoped that numbers of them will avail themselves of the present favorable opportunity of obtaining profitable employment.—Farmer's Journal.

The Weather.—Within the last week the season has undergone a great change, the genial warmth of summer has given place to the nipping blasts of autumn, and the whole face of the country is undergoing a rapid change. The Indian summer which generally takes place about this time gave evidence of its appearance in a manner we have not before witnessed. On Monday morning last while we were adonizing, we were surprised at observing the whole of the North and West quarters of the horizon assuming a hue of inky blackness, which gradually ascended to the zenith, when we observed some most vivid flashes of forked lightning—the darkness continued for the greater part of the day, during most of which time we were obliged to use candles in our office. At three o'clock the heavens certainly had a most extraordinary appearance. With the exception of a bright streak along the southern horizon the whole looked black and terrific—th clouds were not of the usual color in thunder storms, but had a brownish fiery hue which was particularly distinguishable at the edges—shortly after three o'clock a heavy shower fell, and the day gradually assumed its appearance. It is somewhat singular that the heavy darkness arose from the North-west, and during the whole of its continuance it blew a strong gale from the South.—Brockville Gazette.

[FROM THE UPPER CANADA GAZETTE.]

To His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

May it Please Your Excellency,

We the undersigned, Magistrates, Clergy, and other Inhabitants of the District of Newcastle, in congratulating your Excellency on your recent elevation to the Government of our Sister Province of Nova Scotia, are constrained to acknowledge that our sentiments of unfeigned satisfaction at this mark of His Majesty's favor towards your Excellency, are checked by feelings of deep regret, that the connection which has so long subsisted between us is now about to be broken.

We have witnessed much in your Excellency's administration to assure us that the welfare of this fair portion of His Majesty's dominions has engrossed your earnest care and active exertions, while the test of experience and time declares how successfully they have been applied. Nor are we without causes of equal regret, in the prospect of your departure from this Province, in the loss of your Excellency's valuable example afforded us in your private walk as a Christian and a Gentleman.

Although the tongue of calumny (for the most worthy are not exempt from its maledictions) has attached accusations to the public career of your Excellency, and although the rashness of political zeal may have deluded the unwary into an unjust belief of their truth, we beg leave to proffer to your Excellency the acknowledgement of our conviction, that your desire and labors have been to merit the approbation of your Sovereign and to advance the interests of this Province.

Our beloved Monarch to whom we owe and feel the affection of grateful subjects has evinced the strongest mark of confidence in your Excellency, by appointing you to a higher trust and a more exalted charge. While this testimony of His Majesty's approbation declares that your Excellency's past services in the field of glory are not forgotten: it manifests also, that your Civil services are as well appreciated.

That this flourishing portion of His Majesty's dominions, may escape the evils which the base intrigues of a turbulent faction would bring upon it, we believe, to be your Excellency's earnest wish and prayer. And we beg leave to assure your Excellency, that we will struggle against the dissemination of their delusive doctrines, by unaltered affection for our Constitution and determined loyalty to our King.

We entreat the Almighty's blessing on your Excellency and your amiable family, and pray that you may experience in every land the hearty affection and sincere good wishes which the loyal and the worthy amongst the subjects of His Majesty in Upper Canada so generally and so justly entertain.

R. HENRY,
ZACHEUS BURNHAM,
JAMES ROWE,
ELIAS JONES,
H. RUTTAN,
JOHN CLARK,
[And One Thousand and three others.]

Hamilton, 15th Oct. 1828.

Answer to an Address of the Inhabitants of the Newcastle District, presented to Lieut. Governor Sir Peregrine Maitland, on the occasion of His leaving the Province.

Gentlemen,

The Address from the Magistrates, Clergy, and other Inhabitants of the District of Newcastle is received by me with very much pleasure; and I am much indebted to you, Gentlemen, for your kindness in attending to present it in person.

I beg you will in return convey my assurances that the duties of any situation that may be committed to me by my Sovereign, will never prevent my feeling the most anxious solicitude for the happiness and prosperity of Upper Canada. After a long administration of this Government, it is truly gratifying to me to receive from so large and respectable a body of the people a manifestation of friendly feeling so warmly and kindly expressed.

When I assumed the Government of this Province, I could not but consider it my obvious duty to pursue that course which appeared to me best calculated to promote your true interest, and to maintain against every encroachment the excellent Constitution which it is your happiness to enjoy.

I was never so unmindful of the experience afforded under all forms of Government, and in all Counries, as to imagine that I could secure the applause of those persons whose designs were inconsistent with those great objects—but I contented myself with the assurance that the approbation of my Sovereign, the satisfaction of my own conscience, and the gratifying acknowledgements of the virtuous and intelligent, must attend an adherence to the right course. I have therefore persevered, as I was bound to do, through evil report and good report, and I take my leave of you and of this Province, with the reflection that I have sacrificed no principle to the vain hope of appeasing the clamor of the unreasonable—that I have laboured much and anxiously to procure peace and security for those who have been artfully misled to defame and suspect the measures of my Government. It would be a source of deep and painful regret, if at any time your happiness as a people should be found to be diminished by a departure from the principles of the British Constitution, that such a departure could be traced to any act done or suffered by me while I had the honor of representing my Sovereign amongst you.—To beunable to cherish this reflection, would in my mind, be poorly compensated, by having purchased the silence of evil tongues from whose attacks no man in a public station can procure an exemption by honorable means.

For the people of this Colony I shallever entertain the most sincere regard. I have constantly represented them to His Majesty as deserving His utmost con fidence and care; and when I observe the munificent Grants and the extraordinary exertions devoted by the Mother Country to your improvement and protection, I am happy in the belief, that my representations have not been doubted or disregarded.

I have particular pleasure, Gentlemen, in comparing the present state of your District with the apperance it wore ten years ago. I pray that your prosperity may increase, and that you may enjoy it in tranquillity.

(From the Upper Canada Gazette of Oct. 16.)

GOVERNMENT HOUSE, }
14th Oct. 1828. }

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, has been pleased to appoint Simon E. Washburn, Esq., to be Clerk of the Peace, for the Home District of this Province, vice Stephen Heward, Esq. deceased.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, has also been pleased to grant Licences to Peter Deihl, Esqr., Member of the Royal College of Surgeons of London, to practice Physic, Surgery and Midwifery, within this Province; and to Peter Carral, Gentleman, to be a Deputy Surveyor of Land, within this Province.

(From the Upper Canada Gazette of Oct. 23.)

PROCLAMATION.
UPPER CANADA.

P. MAITLAND,
Lieutenant Governor.

GEORGE the FOURTH, by the Grace of GOD, of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, King, defender of the Faith, &c. &c. &c.

To our beloved and faithful Legislative Councillors of our Province of Upper Canada, and to our Knights, Citizens, and Burgesses of our said Province, to our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, on the Twenty-ninth day of October instant, to be commenced, held, called, and elected, and to every of you—

GREETING:

WHEREAS by our Proclamation bearing date the Tenth day of September last, we thought fit to prorogue our Provincial Parliament to the twenty-ninth day of October, instant, at which time at our Town of York you were held and constrained to appear.—

NOW KNOW YE, that we, taking into our Royal consideration the ease and convenience of our loving subjects, have thought fit, by and with the advice of our Executive Council, to relieve you and each of you of your attendance at the time aforesaid, hereby convoking, and by these Presents enjoining you and each of you, that on Thursday the Fourth day of December, next ensuing, you meet us in our Provincial Parliament at our Town of York, there to take into consideration the state and welfare of our said Province of Upper Canada, and therein to do as may seem necessary, and herein fail not.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, We have caused these our to be made Patent, and the Great Seal of our said Province, to be hereunto affixed—WITNESS our trusty and well beloved SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of our said Province, and Major General Commanding our Forces therein, at York, this twenty-first day of October, in the year of our Lord One Thousand Eight Hundred and Twenty-eight, and in the Ninth year of our Reign. P. M.

By Command of His Excellency.
JOHN B. ROBINSON, Att'y. General.
D. CAMERON, Secretary.

Lower Canada.

Yesterday morning about 2 o'clock, a fire broke out in the Fulling Mill situated at the Lower Lachine rapids, which, in a short time, consumed not only the Mill in which it originated, but also the Grist Mill belonging to Mr. La Chapelle, and Mr. Harwood's nail factory, both of which adjoined the other The fire commenced, it is supposed, in the carding room of the Fulling Mill, in which there was a sheet-iron stove We understand that Mr. La Chapelle's Mill was insured for £1,000 or upwards. The nail factory was not insured, consequently the loss must be heavy.—Montreal Herald.

We are sorry to state that Mr. D. McKenzie, of Lachine, was drowned on Saturday in the river. He was going out in a canoe, along with a young boy to fish; the canoe was towed by the Steam-boat, and the boy hoisted a sail which carried the canoe rather out of the direction in which she was dragged by the steamer; Mr. McKenzie, on seeing this, ran forward, and the boy did the same, which pushed the bow of the canoe under water; it soon filled and sunk Mr. McKenzie rose once after he first disappeared, but it was but for a moment. The boy was saved by the people in the Steam-boat.—Ib.

The following clause occurs in an Order in Council of the 28th April, 1828:—

And whereas, His Majesty, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, doth deem it expedient to grant the privileges aforesaid, in certain cases, to ships of the Dominions of His Most Catholic Majesty the King of Spain. His Majesty doth, therefore, by the advice aforesaid, and in pursuance and exercise of the powers and authority, in him vested by the said recited Acts of Parliament, declare and grant that it shall and may be lawful for Spanish Ships to import into any of the British Possessions abroad, from the Colonies and Foreign Possessions of His Most Catholic Majesty, Goods, the produce of those Colonies and Possessions, and to export Goods from such British Possessions abroad, to be carried to any Foreign Country whatever.—Ib.

Port of Quebec.

ARRIVED,

Oct. 8..Ship Margaret, Liverpool, general cargo.
....Brig Pilgrim, Newry, ballast.
....Brig Retrieve, London, do.
..9..Bark Cybele, London, do.
....Bark Saladin, Liverpool, salt.
....Brig Legatus, Bristol, ballast.
....Ship Erie, London, do.
....Ship Hope London, do.
....Ship City of Waterford, Cork, do.
....Bark Newry, Newry, do.
..10..Ship Thomas Stoddard, London, general cargo.
....Bark Mary Ann, Liverpool, do.
....Bark Tottenham, Ross, do.
....Bark Bollivar, Bristol, do.
....Bark Lady Digby, Liverpool, general cargo.
....Ship Caroline, London, ballast.
....Brig Pilot, Liverpool, do
....Brig Caledonia. Troone, coals.
....Brig Thompson, Galway, ballast.
....Bark Jane, London, do.
....Brig Sprightly, Dawlee, do.
....Ship John Francis, Liverpool, general cargo.
....Brig Cicero, Coleraine, ballast.
....Brig Hope, Gloucester. do.
....Bark Dominica. Cork, wines.
....Ship Hibernia, Liverpool, ballast.
....Brig Samuel, Cardiff, do
....Brig Experience, Aberdeen. coals.
....Bark Champlain, Cork, ballast.
....Brig Lady of the Lake, Belfast, do.
....Ship Ariadne, Greenock, general cargo.
....Bark John Howard, London, ballast.
....Ship Maida, London, do
....Brig Zenophm, Limerick, do.
....Bark Quebec Packet, London, do.
....Bark Graham, London, general cargo.
....Brig Wm Fell, Newry, ballast.
....Brig James, London, ballast.
....Brig Port Spain, Jamaica, rum and pimento.
..11..Brig Acadia, Dublin, ballast.
....Bark Samuel Whitbread, London, ballast.
....Ship Ottawa, London, general cargo.
....Brig John Esdale, Cork, ballast.
....Brig Richardson, Cardigan, do.
....Bark Henry Cerf, Limerick, do.
....Bark Coto, Lynn, do.
....Brig Cherub, Liverpool, general cargo.
....Bark Gaspé, Jamaica, rum.
....Brig Ann, Shields, coals.

Died,

Lately, at Fernando Po, on the Coast of Africa, of disease incident to that Climate, WILLIAM RICHARDSON CALDWELL, Lieutenant in the Corps of Royal Marines, formerly of the Township of Markham, and a Magistrate in this District.—His death will be sincerely regretted by those who were acquainted with his private virtues, and public spirit.

Married,

At Montreal, on the 13th August last, in the house of the Rev Mr. Bethune, Rector of that place, Bartholomew Conrad Augustus Gugy, Esquire, to Sophia, only daughter of the late Hon Antoine Louis Jouchereau Duchesnay

Birth,

On Sunday last—MRS. T. G. RIDOUT of a Son.

FRESH ARRIVALS.

AT THE SIGN OF THE GOLDEN TEA CHEST

THOS. CARFRAE, JUN.

RESPECTFULLY informs his Friends and the Public, that he has just received, and now offers for Sale, at his Store, (next door to the Methodist Chapel,) a well selected assortment of new and fashionable,

DRY GOODS,

Of this Falls' importation; also, a choice assortment of Groceries, together with a great variety of other Articles too numerous to de..n an Advertisement.

N.B.—T. C. has received a great variety of English, French, and German Toys; also, a small assortment of Jewellery, all of which will be sold at a much reduced price for cash. x 19

STEAM-BOAT HOTEL, YORK, U. C.—The Proprietor of this elegant Establishment, now unrivalled in this part of the country, being desirous of retiring from Public business, on account of ill-health in his family, will let the same for a term of years to be agreed on, either with or without the Furniture, &c.

The Establishment is now too well known to require comment.

N. B. Security will be required for the payment of the rent, and the fulfilment of the contract in every respect.

Apply to the Subscriber on the premises,
U. HOWARD.

York, October 8th, 1828. 1 19

CAME into the enclosure of the Subscriber, on Saturday the 4th of October, a Span of Horses; the one a dark brown, with a small star in the forehead—the other a bright sorrel, having white mane and tail; the Owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take them away.—Inquire at my Farm, No. 8, in the Second Concession, North of Dundass,
JOHN HAWKINS.

Toronto, October 6, 1828. n 19

FOR SALE, OR TO LET.—A TWO STORY HOUSE, in the Town of York, on the North side of Dutchess Street, opposite Mr. Allan's new Brick Building, and in rear of Chief Justice Campbell's. There is a good Cellar Kitchen to the House, and attached to the Premises, which contain one-fifth of an Acre, is a Garden—a good Well of Water—Stable—Out-Houses, &c.—Apply to
Mr. S. P. JARVIS.

York, 16th Oct, 1828. x 19

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL GROCERY STORE.—The Subscriber respectfully informs the Inhabitants of York and its vicinity, that he has opened a Store in the above line, on the Corner of Church and Palace Streets, where he is now ready to serve them with the choicest articles and at very low prices. The following are a few of the articles in his line, viz:—

O. L. P. Madeira,	London Porter,
F. Madeira,	Teas of all descriptions,
L. M. Do.	D. R. Loaf Sugar,
Prime Port,	S. R. Loaf Sugar,
Second do.	Muscovado do.
Sherry,	East India do.
Cognaic Brandy,	Mace, Cloves,
Bordeaux do.	Cinnamon, Nutmegs,
H. Gin,	Alspice, Black Pepper,
Jamaica Spirits,	White Pepper,
Peppermint,	Mustard in Jars, ½, ¼ & lbs
Shrub,	Isinglass, Arrow Root,
White Wine Vinegar,	Macaroni, Vermicelli,
Limejuice,	Curry Powder,
Molasses,	Raisins, Figs,
Olive Oil for Lamps,	Starch, Blue,
Linseed do.	Tobacco, Pipes, Blacking.
London Brown Stout,

And a variety of articles in the Grocery line.
JAMES F. SMITH.

York, 17th September, 1828. sn. 15

FRESH SEEDS.—Shaker's Garden and Flower Seeds, warranted of the growth of 1827, for sale by EDW'D. LESSLIE & SONS.

☞ E. L. & Sons expect a quantity of clover seed in a few days.

York, 14th March 1828. 43-tf.

THE LOYALIST.

VOL. I. NO. 21.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY NOVEMBER 1, 1828.

Miscellaneous.

MORAL OF A ROSE-LEAF.

When a daffadill I see,
Hanging down his head t'wards me,
Guesse I may what I must be:
First, I shall decline my head;
Secondly, I shall be dead;
Lastly, safely buried.—Herrick.

So sang a poet, whose writings bear all the ease and delicacy of "learned leisure," and yet betray his constant aptitude to moralize upon, and give a pithy turn to, matters in themselves frequently vulgar and of every day occurrence. His spirit appears to have been always on the watch to strike out a moral or a pretty gleam of poetry, from even a pebble on the road-side. He would have worked the following touching paragraph into innumerable beauties, begetting "a hundred similes," and each a glittering coin for the exchequer of Apollo.

Amongst a great many miracles attributed to Abdul Radir Ghilan, the founder of the order of Kalandi, is the following; which, however, if it do not savor much of the miraculous, at least discovers an aptness and delicacy of imagination, not always to be found in the opium loving Mahometan. It is related that Abder Radiger Ghilan, once coming to Babylon, to inhabit among the other superstitious persons and santones (a gross epicurean order) of that city, they hearing of his approach, went forth to meet him, one of them carrying in his hand a dish filled with water; from whence they would infer, that as that dish was full to the brim, so as to be capable of holding no more, so their city was so replenished with learned and religious persons, that there was no place to receive him: whereupon our sagacious Abdul, being desirous of confuting this hieroglyphic, whereby they would excuse the courtesy of due hospitality, stretched his arms first towards Heaven, and then bowed down and gathered a rose-leaf, which he laid on the water, then almost overflowing the dish. Now Abdul, by this piece of ingenuity not only confuted the parable of the churlish and sordid Babylonians, but also so impressed them with a sense of his greatness, that they registered the effort of Abdul as a miracle of wisdom, and, bringing him into their city with triumph, made him the superior of all their orders.

We might very reasonably make the above incident serve as an every-day memento—a record to spur us on to moral and intellectual cultivation. How frequently do we proceed more than half way towards the completion of a valuable undertaking, when, making a sudden halt, we think enough has been done, imagining further effort useless, and even impossible. Our endeavors, like the dish full of water, are rising to the brim; they seem completed to overrunning, and yet they would bear something—a rose-leaf placed upon them would make our triumph most complete. Is it sufficient that we give excellent advice to those who "the primrose paths of dalliance tread," is it sufficient that we steep them to the very lips in apophthegm and moral exhortations? No, there yet wants something to crown the labor—the rose-leaf of example. We may hastily pass an object of charity, and with our best wishes to alleviate the sufferings of the unfortunate, suffer not ourselves to take the trouble of retracing our path to confront the petitioner. Oh, what are charitable feelings, although overflowing the heart, unless they bear upon them something else than theoretical benevolence!—let us place upon them the odorous rose-leaf of practice. When the bigotry, the persecution, and the uncharitableness of mankind is poured down upon some devoted head, let us not mingle in the overwhelming torrent, let us not add to its strength, but yield up a sweet and cheering offering, the rose-leaf of compassion. When we feel ourselves sinking beneath the waters of affliction, let us not give ourselves, with reckless indifference, to the potency of that which oppresses us; but rather let the beauty and the perfume of Hope be seen in the rose-leaf upon the flood, a leaf in which our spirit may sail securely, although the lightning flashes from above, and the earth trembles from beneath.

We might pursue this subject to any length without the fear of being charged with repetition, from a want of apt similitudes. The matter is a most fertile and beautiful one; but we proffer it thus beautiful, that it may excite reflection, rather than by a needless verbosity out-weary it. A simple stone, the records of sentence, will sometimes awaken deeper attention than a gigantic edifice, and a finely-turned homily. The brief exhortation, "Remember thou art a man," must sometimes have reached, with greater force, the heart of the monarch of old, than if he had assembled his priests, his magh, and his soothsayers, to hold forth on the state of mortality, and on all earth's vanities.

SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

"Serene Philosophy!
She springs aloft, with elevated pride,
Above the tangling mass of low desires,
That bind the fluttering crowd; and, angle-wing'd
The heights of Science and of Virtue gains,
Where all is calm and clear."

PROGRESS OF DISCOVERY.

Very few great discoveries have been made by chance and by ignorant persons—much fewer than is generally supposed. It is commonly told of the steam-engine that an idle boy being employed to stop and open a valve, saw that he could save himself the trouble of attending and watching it, by fixing a plug upon a part of the machine which came to the place at the proper times, in consequence of the general movement. This is possible, no doubt; though nothing very certain is known respecting the origin of the story; but improvements of any value are very seldom indeed so easily found out, and hardly another instance can be named of important discoveries so purely accidental. They are generally made by persons of competent knowledge, and who are in search of them. The improvements of the steam-engine by Watt resulted from the most learned investigation of mathematical, mechanical, and chemical truths. Arkwright devoted many years, five at the least, to his invention of Spinning jennies, and he was a man perfectly conversant in every thing that relates to the construction of machinery: he had minutely examined it, and knew the effects of each part, though he had not received any thing like a scientific education. If he had, we should in all probability have been indebted to him for scientific discoveries as well as practical improvements. The most beautiful and useful invention of late times, the Safety-lamp, was the reward of a series of philosophical experiments made by one thoroughly skilled in every branch of chemical science. The new process of refining sugar, by which more money has been made in a shorter time, and with less risk and trouble, than was ever perhaps gained from an invention, was discovered by a most accomplished chemist, and was the fruit of a long course of experiments, in the progress of which, known philosophical principles were constantly applied, and one or two new principles ascertained.

Parental Affection.—The following is extracted from the unpublished letters of an officer of the Mexican navy: "Captain Dillon, commander of the Bravo, brig of war, had long been anxious to return to England, having left there his wife and family, from whom he had received letters of distressing import. He was resolved to hasten ashore to Gen. Barragan at Vera Cruz; and either obtain leave of absence, or demand his discharge from the service; but, at the distance of a mile from the shore, his boat was capsized. Captain Dillon had his son with him, a fine little boy of about ten years of age, whom he had brought out as midshipman; and having seized him in his arms at the moment of their upsetting, was much impeded in his progress. And well he might be, for the sea roared and rolled in driving heaps, tossing and falling in long-continued swathes before the sweeping scythes of the north wind. The rest were drowned immediately. After buffeting about for half an hour, during which time he had shifted his son from side to side, and from thence upon his shoulders, Captain Dillon began to be exhausted—how could it be otherwise? he was in full uniform. A young sailor meantime had swam more than two-thirds of the distance to the shore, when, finding Captain Dillon did not come up, and not being able to see him, he boldly returned. After swimming back almost two hundred yards, he found Captain Dillion exhausted and half delirious, with his little boy hanging quite senseless (and most probably dead) under one arm! "Give him to me," said the young sailor; "I have got almost all my clothes off; give him to me, I am sure I can [illegible] him ashore." "No, no," gasped the father, hugging [illegible]less body close to his side: "No, save yourself—I wont let him out of my hands—how far—how far—" at this moment the waves dashed the words back into his mouth. The sailor again begged him to his care, but Captain Dillon only answered, "Save yourself." The sailor with great difficulty reached the shore—the father was drowned, with the dead body of the child in his arms!"

A singular case is mentioned in the last volume of the Medical Journal, of the complete restoration of the hair of the head in a person who had become quite bald, by the use of a solution of sulphate of copper in French brandy. As the application, when used only once a day, cannot be injurious, it is worth trial in cases of baldness.

Original anecdote of Curran.—One morning at an inn in the South of Ireland, a gentleman, travelling upon mercantile business, came running down stairs a few minutes before the appearance of the stage coach, in which he had taken a seat for Dublin. Seeing an ugly little fellow leaning against the door-post with dirty face and shabby clothes, he hailed him and ordered him to brush his coat. The operation proceeded rather slowly, the impatient traveller cursed the lazy valet for an idle, good for nothing dog, and threatened him with corporal punishment on the spot, if he did not make haste and finish his job well before the arrival of the coach. Terror seemed to produce its effect: the fellow brushed the coat, and then the trowsers with great dilligence, and was rewarded with six pence, which he received with a low bow. The gentleman went into the bar, and paid his bill, just as the vehicle reached the door. Upon getting inside, guess his astonishment to find his friend, the quondam waiter seated snugly in one corner, with all the look of a person well used to comfort. After two or three hurried glances, to be sure his eyes did not deceive him, he commenced a confused apology for his blunder, condemning his own rashness and stupidity; but he was speedily interrupted by the other exclaiming, "Oh, never mind—make no apologies—these are hard times, and it is well to earn a trifle in an honest way! I am much obliged to you for your handsome fee for so small a job; my name, sir, is John Philpot Curran, pray what is yours?" The other was thunderstruck by the idea of such an introduction to the most celebrated man of his day; but the irresistible wit and drollery of Curran, so soon overcame his confusion, and the traveller never rejoiced less at the termination of a long journey than when he beheld the distant spires of Dublin glitter in the setting sun. This deserves to be recorded among the many comical adventures into which Curran was led by his total inattention to his personal appearance.

DISCOVERIES IN THE ARCTIC REGIONS.

If we compare the map of these countries but ten years ago with that which now exists, we shall see at one glance how much geography has been benefited by these arctic voyages. We now, for the first time, have obtained undeniable proof that the great continent of America is insulated, and that the idea of its being joined to Asia by a slip across Behring's Strait, like the bridge of a pair of spectacles, as some Germans, and our countryman, Admiral Burney, would have it, is destitute of all foundation. We now know, that, from Behring's Strait to the Strait of the Fury and Hecla, this northern coast of America presents an undulating line, whose extreme latitudes extend from about 67 to 71 deg.; and that it is indented by many good harbors and large rivers; whereas, before Franklin's expeditions, the maps had no line of coast, but only two points, one of which was erroneously laid down, and the other doubtful; the rivers and lakes were drawn ad libitum, which are now placed, the former in their proper directions, and the latter in true shapes and dimensions.

JOHN MURCHISON, Draper and Tailor respectfully informs his friends and customers, that he has just received from London, a choice assortment of extra, fine and superfine West of England Broad Cloths and Cassimeres; consisting of Blue, Black, Scarlet, Green, Olive, Brown, Grey, Drab and Corbeau, Single and Double Milled Cassimeres; do. Double Milled Broad Cloths for Great Coats, and vestings of every description, which he is ready to make up to order at short notice, in good style, and on the lowest terms possible. Gentlemen wishing any thing in his line may depend upon being faithfully served.

N.B. He has also a number of Military Articles to dispose of on reasonable terms.

York, July 28, 1828. sn. 8

WINES.

A CARD.—Mr. Hawkins, Wine Merchant, of Quebec, offers for Sale a few Cases of excellent Port Wine, just received from Québec.

Mr. Hawkins will be happy to receive orders from such gentlemen as are disposed to secure a supply of Genuine Wines, to be delivered early in the Spring at York and at Niagara.

Orders addressed to Mr. Hawkins, at Howard's Hotel, till Tuesday next, and afterwards at the office of this paper, will meet with attention.

York, September 20th, 1829. sn 15

STEAM-BOAT HOTEL, York, U. C.—The Proprietor of this elegant Establishment, now unrivalled in this part of the country, being desirous of retiring from Public business, on account of ill-health in his family, will let the same for a term of years to be agreed on, either with or without the Furniture, &c.

The Establishment is now too well known to require comment.

N. B. Security will be required for the payment of the rent, and the fulfilment of the contract in every respect.

Apply to the Subscriber on the premises,

U. HOWARD.

York, October 8th, 1828. t 19

CAME into the enclosure of the Subscriber, on Saturday the 4th of October, a Span of Horses; the one a dark brown, with a small star in the forehead—the other a bright sorrel, having white mane and tail; the Owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take them away.—Inquire at my Farm, No. 8, in the Second Concession, North of Dundass,

JOHN HAWKINS.

Toronto, October 6, 1828. r 19

FOR SALE, or TO LET.—A Two Story House, in the Town of York, on the North side of Dutchess Street, opposite Mr. Allan's new Brick Building, and in rear of Chief Justice Campbell's. There is a good Cellar Kitchen to the House, and attached to the Premises, which contain one-fifth of an Acre, is a Garden—a good Well of Water—Stable—Out-Houses, &c.—Apply to

Mr. S. P. JARVIS.

York, 16th Oct. 1828. x 19

THE CANADA COMPANY.

NOTICE is hereby given, that no person is authorised to order any goods or articles on account of the Canada Company, but only the Superintendant, Accountant, and Warden, and even by them the Orders must be in writing, and signed.

JOHN GALT,
Superintendant.

Canada Company's Office, }
Guelph, 16th Oct. 1828. } x 20

NOTICE.—Having seen in the Canadian Freeman of yesterday an Advertisement of "A Farm to Let,"—signed, "John Lynch, Blacksmith to the Canada Company, Guelph."—I hereby give notice, that I know of no such person in the employment of the Canada Company.

JOHN GALT,
Superintendant.

Canada Company's Office, }
York, 24th October 1828. } x 20

NEW WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE.—The Subscribers respectfully announce to the Merchants of York and its vicinity, that they have opened a Wholesale Store, Corner of Market-Lane and Church-Street; where they are receiving a large and suitable assortment of Dry Goods, direct from Great Britain: consisting principally of the following articles:—

Grey and Bleached Factory Cottons,
do. do. Sheetings,
Striped and Check'd Cottons,
Scotch Hollands,
Fine, Superfine, and Brussels Carpeting,
do. do. broad and narrow Cloths,
do. do. Cassimeres,
Bombazettes, Bombazines, and Shalloons,
Says, Lastings, Camblets, &c.
Tartans and Union Checks,
Moleskins, Barragans and Fustians,
Red and White Flannel,
Chintzes, Calicoes and Furnitures,
Book, Jaconet and Mull Muslins,
Batiste Muslins, Striped, Check'd and figured,
Ginghams, Pullicate and Verona Handkerchiefs,
Cotton and Linen Bed Tick,
Russia Ducks, Osnaburgs, Hessins and Sheetings,
Canvas, Bagging, Dowlas, Drill, &c.
Umbrellas, 28, 32, and 36 inch,
Bandanna, Barcelona, Gauze & Barrage, Handkerchiefs,
Silk Hose, and Habit Gloves,
Black and Green Crape, Veils, &c.
Black and Coloured sewings, Legee Twist, &c.
Galloons, Silk and Cotton Ferrets,
Black & W. Brown Linen Thread, Cotton Spoolls & Balls,
Silk, Cotton, and Merino Shawls,
Cotton Tapes, Robbin, &c.
Sattins, Gros de Naples, Levantine Ribbons, &c. &c.—Which they will sell off at very reduced prices, for cash only.

JAMES DOUGALL, & Co.

York, 23*d July*, 1828. x. 7

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

THE Canada Steam-Packet for the remainder of the Season, will leave York and Niagara, alternate days, at Ten o'clock—Sundays not excepted.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner.

York, Sept. 29, 1828. x 17

PUBLIC NOTICE.—I require due notice to be given to me or to my Agent, Mr. Alexander Murray, at Mr. Proudfoot's Store, in York, of all transfers of Property in the Steam-Packet Canada, in default whereof I shall consider the original Stockholder, as the legal Owner in the Vessel; and in paying dividends and doing other transactions connected with my situation, hold myself accountable to them alone.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner of the Steam Packet Canada.

York, 27*th December*, 1827. 31*tf.*

N.B.—With Mr. A. Murray, reference may be had to all Books and accounts connected with the Canada Steam Packet.

THOMAS MOORE.—TAILOR, King Street, York, Meighan's Buildings, (opposite the Market Place.) Begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has just opened, and offers for Sale, a choice assortment of Goods, Selected by himself at the Manufactories in England, which he can recommend as being of choice quality, consisting of, Superfine, Blue; Black; Scarlett; Green; Olive; Grey and Drab, West of England Broad Cloths.—Black, Blue and Grey, Double and single Milled Kersymeres. Forest Cloths. Lasting and Corduroys.—Beversheen; Fustians; Cantoons. Jane; Drab, and Striped Brown Drills. Fine Welsh Flannel; White and Blue Flannel. White and Grey Cottons. London printed Calicoes and Chintzes. Fancy Vestings. Printed Muslins. Sewing Silk; Twist; Thread and Rich Gilt Buttons.

MILITARY EQUIPMENTS,

consisting of, Regulation Swords; Patent Leather Regulation Waist Belts, with rich Gilt clasps. Rich Gold Bullion Epaulletts, crimson Silk Regulation Sashes.—Rich Gold Velvet Lace, and Gilt British Militia Buttons. Red, White and Green, Regulation Feathers, with rich Gilt Tubes for do.

The whole of which will be disposed of on reasonable terms, or made up to order, agreeable to the latest fashions, at the shortest notice.

York, 4th July, 1828. x 6

TO SAWYERS.—Wanted immediately an experienced Sawyer, and an assistant to take charge of a Mill that has a constant supply of water; and in other respects particularly well situated.—None need apply, who cannot give sufficient references as to character and ability.

Further information on application to Messrs. WRAGG & Co. King-street York. x 11

CHAIN CABLES, &c.—Acraman's Patent Chain Cables, and Anchors, (warranted proved by Machine) a constant supply kept on hand (in stock) of all sizes, by JOHN WATKINS, Kingston, and in Montreal and Quebec by

WILLIAM BUDDEN.

July, 30, 1827. 11-tf.

Home District, }
York, to wit: }

NOTICE is hereby given, that a Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the Home District, will be holden at the Court House, in the Town of York, on Tuesday the 18th day of November next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, of which all Justices of the Peace, and those otherwise concerned, are desired to take notice, that they be then there present with their Rolls, Records, and other Memorandas, to do and perform those things which to their several Offices belong.—NOTICE is also hereby given, that a Home District Court will be holden at the Town of York, on Tuesday the 18th of November next, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, of which all Constables and Bailiffs, and those otherwise concerned, are desired to take notice, that they be there in their own proper persons to do and perform those things which to their several Offices belong, and appertain in that behalf to be done.

W. B. JARVIS,
Sheriff.

Sheriff's Office, York, }
25*th Oct.* 1828. } n 21

WHOLESALE and RETAIL GROCERY STORE.—The Subscriber respectfully informs the Inhabitants of York and its vicinity, that he has opened a Store in the above line, on the Corner of Church and Palace Streets, where he is now ready to serve them with the choicest articles and at very low prices. The following are a few of the articles in his line, viz:—

O. L. P. Madeira,	London Porter,
F. Madeira,	Teas of all descriptions,
L. M. Do.	D. R. Loaf Sugar,
Prime Port,	S. R. Loaf Sugar,
Second do.	Muscovado do.
Sherry,	East India do.
Cagniac Brandy,	Mace, Cloves,
Bordeaux do.	Cinnamon, Nutmegs,
H. Gin,	Alspice, Black Pepper,
Jamaica Spirits,	White Pepper,
Peppermint,	Mustard in Jars, ½, ¼ & lbs.
Shrub,	Isinglass, Arrow Root,
White Wine Vinegar,	Macaroni, Vermicilli,
Limejuice,	Curry Powder,
Molasses,	Raisins, Figs,
Olive Oil for Lamps,	Starch, Blue,
Linseed do	Tobacco, Pipes, Blacking.
London Brown Stout,

And a variety of articles in the Grocery line.

JAMES F. SMITH.

York, 17th September, 1828. sn. 15

NOTICE.—Whereas Mr. David Gilkison has absented himself from his business here for the last three months, without having made any communication to his partner either before or since his departure.—Notice is hereby given, that he is not abroad on any business relating to the firm, nor can he while absent have any business to transact on its account, and therefore no securities signed by him in the name of the firm will be acknowledged or paid; he having no power to bind it for his private debts or transactions.

D. GILKISON & Co.

Guelph, 15th Sept. 1828. n 20

A LOAN WANTED.—The Subscribers, desirous of making some further improvements, wish to obtain a Loan of £300, for three years, for which will be given in security, a Paper and Grist Mill, Saw Mill, Distillery, and 200 Acres of Land, free of all incumbrance, situated within three miles of York.

EASTWOOD & SKINNER.

Oct. 23rd, 1828. f 20

JEWELLERY.—The Subscriber most respectfully informs the Inhabitants of York and its Vicinity, that on the 1st of November next, he intends opening an assortment of Jewellery, in the Store now occupied by Mr. J. R. Armstrong, which will be disposed of at Montreal prices.

All kinds of Clocks and Watches carefully Repaired.

From the experience of years in the City of London in his Business, he feels confident of giving the utmost satisfaction to all who please to favor him with their commands.

☞ Piano Fortes, Tuned and Repaired.

S. O. TAZEWELL.

6th October, 1828. x 20

THE Subscriber has just received on consignment, which he offers for Sale low, and on a liberal credit.

2 Pipes Prime Port Wine,
1 " L. P. Teneriffe,
1 Case Superior Claret.

JAMES F. SMITH.

20*th October*, 1828. c 20

JUST PUBLISHED, and for Sale at the Office of the Loyalist, York, U. C., by Robert Stanton,—The Upper Canada Almanac, and Farmers Calendar, for the year 1829.

☞ Price 2*s.* Cr'cy. per dozen.—Orders with a remittance, duly attended to, and parcels forwarded agreeable to directions.

September 6, 1828.

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.—The Steam Boat Alciope, will take Freight and Passengers from this Port during the remainder of the Season, every Saturday morning at 6 o'clock, on her way down from Niagara to Prescott, to commence tomorrow.

York, 29th August, 1828. x. 13

STRAY COWS.—Came into the inclosure of the Subscriber, about three weeks since,—Two Cows—one a red Cow, with a small Star in her forehead, and a Bell on.—The other a small Brindle and white spotted. The owners are requested to prove property, pay charges, and take them away.

MOSES CHERRY,
No. 12. East side Yonge-Street, Township of York.

4th September, 1828. x. 13

ELIGIBLE SITUATION.—To be sold, Lots numbers 29 & 30 in the first concession of the Township of Scarborough with their broken fronts on Lake Ontario, situate about Seven miles from the Town of York.—On Lot No 29, are erected a Log and a Frame House together with outhouses &c. These premises are now in the possession of Mr. Adna Bates, and are an eligible Situation for a Tavern.

Application to be made to C. C. SMALL Esq.

York, 20th August, }
1828. } x 11

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

LAKE Ontario Steam-Boat, NIAGARA, Captain Mosier, with Daniel Read, Sailing Master, Will, after the 15th inst., leave Niagara for Kingston, Brockville, and Prescott, every Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

On her return, will leave Prescott for Brockville, Kingston, York, and Niagara, every Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made with Messrs. Norton, & Co., Stage Proprietors, by which, passengers going down, arrive in Montreal on Tuesday evening; and those proceeding upwards, will, by leaving Montreal on Tuesday, arrive in time at Prescott to take the Boat.

York, June 6th, 1828. x 1

FOR SALE,—Lot No. 12, and East half of 14 in the 3d Concession of the Township of York, West of Yonge-Street.—300 Acres,—the property of Major W. G. White.—Refer to Robert Stanton, Esquire, U. C. Gazette Office.

York, 4th July, 1828. x. 5

NOTICE.—All persons having claims upon the Estate of the late Stephen Heward, Esquire, of York, deceased, are requested to present the same properly authenticated to the Hon. P. Robinson, one of the Executors, without delay; and all persons indebted to the said Estate are requested to make payment to the said Executor.

York, September 15, 1828. x. 15

FOR SALE.—By the Subscriber, 100 Barrels PLAISTER-PARIS, of the very best quality, low for Cash

WILLIAM BERGIN.

York, September 19. 1828. x. 15

THE SUBSCRIBER begs leave to inform his friends and the public that he has purchased the Store-House, Wharf, &c. lately the property of William Cooper, Esq'r, in this Town, where he will receive, store, and sell, on Commission, on the most reasonable terms, all descriptions of produce or merchandize, with which he may be favored.

The buildings are extensive and convenient, being at the head of the Wharf, where all vessels which come into the Bay, principally discharge and take in their cargoes. He flatters himself that the care and attention of the person superintending the Wharf and Store, will give general satisfaction.

There will be for sale a constant supply of Pork, Flour, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Peas, Salt, and Whiskey, also Stoves, Potash Kettles, Coolers, Sugar Kettles, a variety of castings and Grindstones.

The Subscriber has also for sale upwards of 2500 Acres unimproved Lands of superior quality, in the most flourishing Townships, and convenient to York, which he will sell very low and on easy terms to actual settlers.

WM. BERGIN.

York, February 23*th*, 1828. 41*tf.*

BRITISH WAREHOUSE.—J. C. Godwin & Co. Wholesale and Retail Merchants, beg to inform their Friends and the Public, they have received direct from England, the following Goods, which they offer low for cash:—

West of England Cloths, the best assorted,
Yorkshire Cloths of superior qualities, assorted,
Kersymeres of fine Textures, assorted,
Variety of Vest Patterns,
A well selected Assortment of Gentlemens' Dress and Surtout Coats, Trowsers, &c., made in London,
Imitation Brussels Carpeting, Venetian Carpeting, and Brass Rods,
Upwards of 2,000 yards unbleached Factory Cotton,
Ships' Canvas bleached, Nos. 3, 4, 5, & 6,
Fashionable Tea and Coffee Urns,
Sheet Copper for Distills, &c.,
Brass Crimping Machines, with Heaters,
Brass and Steel Fire Irons, of the newest quality,
An assortment of Cabinet Furniture,
Cast Steel in Bars,
Variety of Woollen and Linen Girth Webbs,
Paints, assorted, first quality,
Boiled and Raw Linseed Oil,
First quality Cognac Brandy, favorite mark Marett,
Fine Holland Gin,
Good old Whisky, by the Barrel or per Gallon,
Port, Sherry, and Teneriffe Wines, of choice quality.—With a variety of other Goods.

J. C. GODWIN & Co.

York, Aug. 25*th* 1828. x 12

PLANS & SPECIFICATIONS of a new Gaol and Court House at Hamilton, District of Newcastle.—Notice is hereby given that the undermentioned premiums are offered to such persons as shall furnish the Clerk of the Peace, for the approval of the Magistrates of the District of Newcastle, on or before the 1st day of October next, with plans, specifications, and estimates of a Gaol and Court House (in one building) to be built in the Township of Hamilton, at or near the present Court House—the first story to be of Stone, second and third stories of Brick, to contain Criminal Cells, Debtors Rooms, Gaolers Apartments, Court Room, Grand and Petit Jury Rooms;—Also, Rooms for Offices, &c., such as are usually required in such a Building—the roof to be covered with tin.—The whole expence not to exceed the sum of £5,000 Currency.

Premiums will be awarded as follows, viz:—

For the best and most approved plan, &c.	£15	0	0
For the 2nd do. do.	10	0	0
For the 3rd do. do.	5	0	0

T. WARD,
Clerk of the Peace, District of Newcastle

Hamilton, Newcastle District, }
10*th May*, 1828. } dd 52

WHISKEY.—For Sale by the Barrel, a quantity of SUPERIOR OLD WHISKEY—Apply to R. W. PRENTICE.

York, 25th Sept. 1828. x 16

VALUABLE FREEHOLD IN YORK, FOR SALE.—The Subscriber offers for sale by private bargain that valuable freehold in the Town of York, on Newgate Street, consisting of a Dwelling House and Workshop, together with a Garden and Yard. MATTHEW WALTON.

York, September 17*th*, 1828. x. 15

York Auction, Mart, & Commission Ware-House.
M. & R. MEIGHAN,
Opposite the Market Square.

HAVE for Sale, an assortment of Household Furniture, consisting of Mahogany, Curled Maple and Cherry Tree, Side Boards, Secretaries, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Breakfast Dining and Card Tables, Work Tables, Bason Stands, Feather Beds and Bedding; A London made grand Piano; an excellent Sulkey Carriage; a Mangle for pressing clothes; A Jack for Roasting, Meat; A very elegant fourteen day Time Piece with Italian Marble Frame and Glass Shade; Double and Single Barrel Percussion Lock Fowling Pieces and Pistols; Bridles, Saddles, Double and Single Harness; Gilt and Plain Frame Looking Glasses; Some Handsome Vases and chimney Ornaments; an extensive assortment of Elegant Dry and Fancy Goods of every description, Hardware, Jewellery, Crockery and Glassware; Groceries, Tea, Wine and Spirits; together with an Elegant Collection of Books, Stationery, Perfumery, Patent Medicines &c.

Regular Auction Sales every week.

York, 1828. x 6.

Police Office, York, }
27th Sept'r., 1828. }

AT Special Session of Court of Quarter Sessions for the Home District, held this day, it was ordered that Simon Graham be appointed Inspector of Chimneys for the Town of York.

ALEX'R. McDONELL,
Chairman.

17 i

FOR SALE.—Lot No. 29, and part of 30, in the 7th Concession of the Township of Pickering, containing 350 Acres, and having an eligible situation for a Mill. For terms apply to Mr. Andrew Mercer, York.

York, 28th October, 1827. 2*tf.*

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.

NOTICE is hereby given, that Tenders will be received at this Office until Noon of Monday the 10th day of November next, from such persons or persons (Butchers by trade) as may be desirous of Contracting for the supply of FRESH BEEF for the Troops, Staff, Departments &c. at this Post for the period of Twelve months, Viz., from the 25th December next to the 24th December 1829 inclusive.

The Tenders must express the rate in Sterling, (the dollar at 4*s.* 4*d.*) Per One hundred Pounds.

Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed "Tender for Fresh Beef."

It is requested that the persons intending to propose, will call at this Office and make themselves acquainted with the Terms and Conditions of the Contract, and obtain the Form of Tender, previous to the day of delivering in the same.

ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D.A.C.G.

Commissariat Office, }
York, 10th October, 1828. } t 18

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.

NOTICE is hereby given, that Tenders will be received at this Office, until Noon of Monday the 10th day of November next, from such person or persons (Bakers by trade) as may be desirous of Contracting for the supply of BREAD, for the Troops, Staff, Departments, &c. at this Post, for the period of Twelve months, Viz. from the 25th December next to the 24th December 1829 inclusive.

The Tenders must express the rate in Sterling, (the dollar at 4*s.* 4*d.*) Per One hundred Pounds, and the Individuals tendering must be present at the opening of the Tenders, and produce a Sample of the quality of Bread which they intend to supply.

Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real Signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed, "Tenders for Bread."

It is requested that the persons intending to propose, will call at this Office, and make themselves acquainted with the Terms and Conditions of the Contract, and obtain the Form of Tender, previous to the day of delivering in the same.

ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D.A.C.G.

Commissariat Office, }
York, 10th October, 1828. } t 18

TO LET, and possession given immediately, the House and lots lately occupied by Dr. Horne—Inquire of Mr. ALLAN.

York, 10th Oct. 1828. y 18

LANDS FOR SALE.—In the Township of Hallowell, Lot No. 48, 3d Concession, North-west side of the Carrying-Place. - - - - - Acres. 200

In the Township of Cramahe—
Lots No. 17, 18, & 19, 3d Con. do. 15, 4th do. } - - 300

In the Township of Hamilton—
Broken Lots, 29 & 30, 7th Con. 27, 28, 29, 31, 32, 34, & 35, 10th do. } - - 478

North-east quarter, No. 1, 4th do. - - - 50

In the Township of Clarke—
Lots No. 16, 17 & 18, Broken Fronts 16, 17, & 18, 1st Con. 17, & 18, 2d do. 17, & 18, 3d do. } - - 2000

In the Township of Darlington—
Lot No. 14, 3d Con. 8, 4th do. } - - - - 400

In the Township of Pickering—
Lots No. 16, 17, & half of 18, 1st Con. and Broken Fronts. } - - 999

In the Township of York—
Lot No. 37, 3d Con. - - - - - 200

In the Township of Gainsborough—
Broken Lot No. 27, 3d & 4th Con. - - 74

Apply to ANDREW MERCER.

ALLIANCE BRITISH AND FOREIGN
Life and Fire Assurance Company,
OF LONDON.
(Capital—Five Millions Sterling.)

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent to the above Company, at York, he is ready to Insure against loss or damage by Fire at moderate rates of Premium. The high standing of this Institution in England, and the Company allowing their Agents in Montreal to settle losses in this Country, with the Assured participating in the Profits of the Company, renders it worthy of Public Confidence.

R. W. PRENTICE.

York, November 18*th*, 1826. 25.

Summary.

Mr. Canning's Status at Liverpool.—A meeting of the subscribers to the statue to be erected at Liverpool, to the memory of the late Mr. Canning, will be held to-day, to determine on the site of the memorial of that great statesman. A resolution was passed at the last meeting of the subscribers, that the statue should be of marble, and not of bronze, as a previous meeting had resolved.—In consequence of this resolution, Mr. Gladstone has addressed a letter to the subscribers, in which he states his reasons for preferring a statue of bronze to one of marble, and announces his intention of moving, at the meeting to be held to-day, that the resolution for erecting a marble statue be rescinded, and one passed that it be of bronze. Should the majority of the meeting decide in favor of the bronze, it is Mr. Gladstone's intention to move, that the statute shall be placed in St. Georg's Crescent, at the top of Lord-street, as being the most central, public, and open situation the town affords.—Sept. 8.

Custom-House, London.—The Commissioners of Customs have appropriated a suite of rooms at the Custom-House for the reception of passengers and luggage arriving from abroad. Separate apartments and accommodation are provided for ladies, and a disinction is made between the cabin and steerage passengers. A crane has also been erected for the exclusive purpose of landing their luggage on the Custom-House wharf. This is an accommodation which has long been wanted, and the business of the Customs is much facilitated by it.

Mr. Mostson, of Sheffield, has invented a new sickle, which promises to be of considerable advantage in the reaping of our crops. It is made not of iron, but of the best tempered steel, strengthened by a narrow bit of iron riveted as a back. It is much lighter than the common sickle, cuts the stalk of the corn more readily, instead of sawing it, keeps longer in good order, is more easily sharpened, and, altogether, does more and better work with the same degree of exertion. The first cost is about double that of the common sickle; but from being more durable, it may be considered as being also nearly economical.

ROYAL PRESENTS.—The King of France has presented to the King of Great Britain, thirty-four fine ORANGE TREES, destined to ornament the Royal Garden at Windsor. They have been forwarded by the Seine to Havre, where they are to be shipped for London.

Luxurious Travelling.—The last paper has the following tale of extravagance.—Operas forming part of the arrangement for the comfort of those who ride in hackney coaches afford undeniable indications of the "March of intellect."]

A formidable opposition to the Omnibus coaches (of which the Baron Rothschild is said to be a principal shareholder), has started up in Paris. A great number of new coaches upon the same principal of cheap conveyance, called—"Les dames blanches" (the white ladies), have been built by a new company. They are painted white, with a motto upon a red ground; and at the back of each coach are sketches of Scotch scenery and costume, from the opera of "La Dame Blanche." The horses and their harness are white, and the drivers wear white hats, and embroidered white coats. The mode of ascending the coach is different from that of the Omnibus, which has been so much complained of. In the new coaches, it is a flight of steps with railing to prevent falling, and the doors, instead of opening outwards, disappear by means of slides in the pannels. A kind of trumpet under the seat of the coachman, and which is played by the conductor, executes the principal airs of the opera of "Dame Blanche."

Death of Mr. Justice Heywood.—Tenby, Sept. 11.—This melancholy event took place at Tenby, this morning at half past ten o'clock, where he has been since his late attack of indisposition at Haverfordwest. Mr. Heywood's attack was not paralysis, as was at first supposed, but he appears for some time past to have been in a very weak state, and was just about retiring from his official duties in consequence of his advanced age.—Sept. 13.

We are happy to announce the safe arrival of the Russian Admiral's ship at Gibraltar on the 20th ult. He felt the same anxiety for the safety of his ship which put into Plymouth, as they have done for his safety.—Sept. 4.

The Herald yacht is fitting at Woolwich, for the purpose of conveying Earl Belmore to Jamaica; His Lordship succeeding the Duke of Manchester as Governor.

His Majesty's ship Valorous has arrived at Portsmouth, last from Tampico, July 3d; and, to the disappointment of all the expectations raised of remittances from Mexico, has only received 29,000 dollars, the whole of which are on merchant's account.

The King has been confined to his room for a few days by a slight attack of the gout, but His Majesty is now recovered.

The only change at the Admiralty will be Admiral Sir Edward Owen, who retires to the Ordnance as Surveyor-General in the room of Sir Herbert Taylor, Sir E. Owen will be succeeded at the Admiralty Board by Admiral Sir Thomas M. Hardy.—Times.

Died, at St. John, on Wednesday, Oct. 7, generally lamented, the Hon. John Robinson, Mayor of that City, a Member of His Majesty's Council, and Treasurer of the Province.

The rumour is daily acquiring new converts, who believe that the Duke of Wellington will submit the complaint of the Country Bankers of England, and their constituents, to a committee of Parliament on an early day of the next Session, and will thus render the same even-handed justice to them with a former Administration were compelled to render to the Bankers and Merchants of Scotland. The relief which it is supposed the Noble Duke will grant to the suffering shipowners will be the repeal of the law which admits Baltic produce into this country on bond.

If this should be the case, a valuable boon will be taken from the Russian and Prussian speculators and given to Canada. The length of the voyage will encrease the demand for shipping, and this shipping will be exclusively British.

England.

WINDSOR CASTLE.

The second grand division of the improvements of the Castle will commence next week, when a number of workmen will commence operations at the Round Tower. The towers that have been recatly added to the upper ward, and the additional height given to the whole of that part of the edifice, necessarily diminished the claim to pre-eminence which the Round Tower had always possessed; but this circumstance had been foreseen from the commencement of the improvements, and a magnificent addition to the present building was designed in the original plan, and is now about to be carried into execution. The admirers of antiquity will be gratified to learn that the original structure will be untouched, and that the rooms within whose walls captive Monarchs have confessed the superior prowess of the British lion will still remain as in the days of our Edwards and our Henrys. From the interior of the present tower an additional one, 20 feet in height, will be erected on a foundation of inverted arches, & on the summit of that a small turret will be placed on which the Royal Standard will be hoisted, at an elevation of 55 feet above its present hight. The style of architecture will be perfectly symmetrical with the remainder of the building, and the noble appearance when completed will more than ever entitle it to be termed "the proud keep of windsor, rising in the majesty of proportion, and girt with the double belt of its kindred and coeval towers." The furniture of Lord Harrington, who, as Governor of the Castle, has occupied the towers, has been removed from the apartments, and the valuable paintings secured from the possibility of injury. It is expected that the execution of the design will occupy two years; and it is not intended to make any material alteration in the lower ward till the expiration of that period. In the mean time the Queen's ball passed quite through his right thigh and lodged in the left, from which it was found impossible to extract it

On his return to Holland, Sir Henry Torrens was promoted to a majority in one of the fencible regiments then raising. The reduction of the corps deroled upon him as being the only officer possessing permanent rank: and he subsequently embarked with it for North America'—Here he remained until the autumn of 1801, when he having effected an exchange to the 80th, then in Egypt, he joined and took the command of the corps in that country. The immediate object of the expedition to Egypt had effected its object, Sir Henry Torrens marched his regiment across the Desert, and embarked at a Port of the Read Sea for Bombay. Here he was taken extremely ill in consequence of a coup de soleil, and was obliged to take his passage to Trincomalee, in order to save his life in the ship in which he embarked for Europe touched at St. Helena: the climate and the society of that island restored him to health, and gave a new impulse to his feelings, and he prosecuted the voyage no further.

In the society of the government House, Sir Henry Torrens was exposed to other wounds than those of war. He became enamoured of Miss Sally Patton, the daughter of the Governor, and married at the early age of 24. In this instance, however, reflection and reason have sanctioned the instinctive impulse of the heart; and the domestic happiness he left to the end of his meritorious and prosperous career are his touching at the island of St. Helena, and forming a congenial and happy union.

"Where mind preserves the conquest beauty won."

In 1803 Sir Henry Torrens rejoined his regiment in India, and remained in the field until he was again driven from the country by extreme and dangerous illness: in 1805 he returned to England, obtained the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, and was employed in the Staff as Assistant Adjutant-General for that part of the coast, and in 1807 he joined the expedition against South America, as Military Secretary to the Commander of the Forces. At the attack of Buenos Ayres he received a contusion from a musket ball, which shattered a small writing apparatus which was slung on his side. When this unfortunate expedition was finally abandoned in South America, Sir Henry was examined as a witness on the trial of Gen. Whitelock.—His situation now became painful and delicate in the highest degree, being compelled by his oath to make known, and bound by honour not to divulge the confidential communications which had been published with Gen. Whitelock's trial; and it is only necessary to say in this place, that he obtained the highest credit by the manner in which it was given.

Sir Henry Torrens had now established a character not only for gallantry in the field, but for talent, discretion and integrity in the conduct of affairs. The Duke of Wellington took him into his family, saw his rising talents, and appointed him his Military Secretary. In this capacity he embarked with the expedition to Portugal in 1808, and was present at the battles of Rolleia and Vimiera. When the Duke of Wellington was superceded in his command, he returned with him to England; and was again to have attended him in the same capacity, when that consummate General recommenced his glorious career. But the situation of Military Secretary to the Commander in-chief being, without solicitation, offered to him just at this moment prudence weighed with the father of a rising family against the ardour of the soldier, and domestic consideration induced him to forego the more active operations of the field. and to accept the office. How he discharged the difficult and arduous duties which now devolved on him it is almost unnecessary to state. His talents, and his laborious attention to the multifarious duties of his office, have been universally acknowledged; while his conciliatory manners and kind attentions procured him the love of his friends and the respect of the whole army. From the duties of his office during four years of the most active period of the war, he was not a single day, scarcely even Sunday, absent; and never failed, either in winter or summer, to rise at five o'clock in the morning. These exertions were rewarded by his appointment, in 1811, to a company in the 3d Guards; in 1812, by his being made Aid-de-Camp to his Royal Highness the Prince Regent, with the rank of Colonel, and in 1815 (obtaining the rank of Major-General in the brevet of the previous year,) by an appointment to a regiment. He was honoured with the medal awarded for the battles of Rolleia, Vimiera, and with the distinction of Knight Commander of the Bath. But promotion and honours were not the only sweeteners of his toil. In his delightful Villa at Fulham every domestic endearment awaited his return after the cares and labours of the day. It was impossible for his marriage to be otherwise than happy. Sir Henry Torrens was excelled in music, and painting, and in dramatic literature, was gifted with the powers of reasoning no less than with the principles of taste.

Sir Henry Torrens was more than eight years ago appointed to the situation of Adjutant-General, and his health, which had suffered from excessive exertions and close confinement while he was Military Secretary, was entirely restored.

The last important work of Sir H. Torrens in his situation Adjutant-General was the revision of the army regulations. The experience of the campaign, and more particularly the successful adoption of a new and more rapid mode of warfare of the Duke of Wellington, induced Sir Henry to revise the old regulations, which were founded upon the slow German system, and to embody into them, with great labour and zeal, the manly and rapid movements which had been so successfully adopted by the British armies. This work met with the warm approbation of the Commander-in-chief, and has been generally admired by military men for the clear and masterly method of its arrangement. Here ended the career of one of his death Colonel of the Second Regiment of Foot.

The Thames Tunnel is now entirely at a stand. A brick wall has been completed at the further extremity of the excavation, which, being made water tight, prevents any water oozing in in that part, and also does away with the fear entertained, that if left in its unfinished state, another break in of the river might be the consequence. The water the Tunnel makes (if we may use the expression) at present is very trifling, and the whole of the interior is as fresh and dry as any house in which we have been. The workmen, with the exception of a very few hands who are employed in thoroughly removing every appearance of the late disaster, have been discharged; and even the few now at work will in another week no longer be required. Public curiosity appears to have slackened in a great measure, as the number of visitors to inspect this wonderful attempt of art is now very limited, and from the slowness with which money is collected for its completion, the undertaking would appear to have completely slipped the recollection of the public. Notwithstanding the appeals made, and the time that has elapsed since the new plan was first proposed and adopted, little more than a tenth part of the sum required to finish the work has been got together. We understand that it has been proposed in the event of the sum of £100,000 being raised, to commence working from the other side of the Thames as far as they can go; and in case of the water breaking in, as they approach the dangerous part, which is the centre of the river, building up a similar wall to that now placed at the end of the present works, and afterwards completing the centre by means of the coffer-dam. If such a plan be in contemplation, it must of necessity be attended with considerable expense, but is, perhaps, that most likely to ensure the completion of the undertaking.

STATE OF TRADE.

There is no material alteration in the state of trade at Dewsbury, Huddersfield, or Halifax, at each of which places there is full employment for the weavers. The manufacture of coarse woolens at Elland is brisk.—Leeds Mercury.

The trade in coarse linen goods is very brisk about Forfar at present. Some manufactures could employ almost double the number of hands could they be obtained.—Scotsman.

That trade is no worse than at the time of our last report, may be inferred from the circumstance, that in some parts of the country—at Burnley, Todmorden, &c. a small advance has taken place in the prices paid for weaving particular descriptions of goods. We understand also that the number of country buyers in the market this week has been larger than for some time past, and we have no doubt that should the fine weather continue, and the remainder of the crops be housed in good condition, there will be an extensive demand for goods for the autumn trade There is still a good inquiry, though at very low prices for yarns for shipping. The cotton market in Liverpool continues without animation though rather more business has been doing than last week.—Manchester Guard.

His present Most Gracious Majesty has completed his sixty-sixth year; and with reference to his predecessors of the line of Brunswick, it may be observed that George I. lived to the age of 67 George II. to 77, and George the III. reached 82 years. Who does not sincerely wish that the life of our present beloved Sovereign may be protracted to the maximum period of longevity attained by his crowned predecessors of this illustrious house?

Somnambulism.—A few days since, as the London and Liverpool mail was travelling upwards, very near to Stony Stratford, and going at gallop down a little declivity, a gentleman, the only inside passenger, opened the coach door, jumped a considerable distance into the road, and then flew to head of the leaders, seizing the bridle of one of them with an uncommon earnestness; the coachman contrived to pull up his horses without injuring the madman, (as he then conceived him) who, on being shouted to by the passengers on the roof, (who were alarmed at so singular a proceeding) stood for a while apparently in confusion, and then in silence slunk back into the coach. On being questioned afterwards, he said he thought the horses had run away, and that to save the lives of himself and the rest of the passengers, he must stop the leaders: and to his great surprise, when awoke by the voice of his fellow travellers, he found that under the illusion of a dream he had done that unconsciously and unhurt, which most probably under other circumstances had cost him his life or his limbs.—Liverpool paper.

Scotland,

We understand that an enterprising company in the West of Scotland, have resolved to erect a cotton factory in the neighbourhood of Calcutta, and that a number of operative workmen have been engaged for that purpose. This will form a new era in the history of Hindostan; as the natives, who are strongly averse to any innovation upon their established customs, still follow the primitive mode of preparing their yarn with the spindle and distaff. At the introduction of the cotton weaving into this country, little more than half a century ago, the yarn was brought home in the bark of the East Indiamen, and was then considered of more value than the finest silk, and could only be purchased by persons of quality. What a change in the course of such a period!—Paisley Advertiser.

We regret to announce the death of the Rev. Dr. Campbell, one of the ministers of the Talbooth Church, which took place on the evening of Saturday last. Dr. Campbell had been in ill health, and unable to preach for some years past, but his last illness was sudden, and he was in Church all day on Sunday. He was distinguished by profound theological attainments, which caused his sermons to be valuable expositions of Divine Truth, perspicuous, comprehensive, and affectionate.—He was exceedingly fond of books, and was a man of liberal literature, and in this respect too, his loss will be deeply felt.—Edinburgh Paper.

The fine weather with which we have been blessed for ten days, has come too late for the farmers of the South of England. All the accounts concur in representing the quality of the wheat there, as very inferior. It is fortunately otherwise in Scotland, where a larger crop or a finer sample has been rarely seen. The Lothian farmers are already selling their grain in London.—Glasgow Chronicle, Sept. 2.

Singular Accident.—About ten o'clock on Monday forenoon a soldier of the name of Alexander Cameron, of the 79th Highlanders, a small party of which is stationed in Stirling Castle, was standing at a battery called the "Ladies Look-out," on the south-west of the Castle, listening with some of his comrades to one of the amusements, who was entertaining his fellows with the relation of some wonderful "accidents by flood and field." When the story-teller had finished his chapter of accidents, he concluded by looking over the wall and saying he had heard of several soldiers who had fallen from the "Ladies Look-out," all of whom had been killed on the spot, or died soon after. Cameron on hearing this, said, "That is no jump at all; I'll do that at any time; and immediately descending to a stone which projects a little from the wall, he, to the astonishment of his comrades, who imagined he was exhibiting a little bravado, leapt off. For a moment a gaze of horror, at the madness of their companion, pervaded the countenances of the party; and convinced that he had shared the fate of his predecessors, they ran round by the valley, in order to carry him up to the Castle, and render him such assistance as the nature of the wounds might require. To their amazement, Cameron passed them at full speed; and though they turned round and pushed him, he was the first man who entered the Castle, not only unhurt, but witout a single scratch.—Cameron is a good looking young soldier, about 23 years of age; and the height from which he leapt is not less than 50 feet.—Scotch paper.

Foreign Intelligence.

LATEST NEWS.

WAR IN THE EAST.—PORTUGAL.

From the Courier of September 6.

Despatches were received this morning from Lisbon, dated the 24th ult. They announce the acquittal of Sir John M. Doyle and Lieut. Young, but both were fined in costs Sir John M. Doyle was to quit Lisbon in eight days, and Lieut Young was ordered to give security that he would never in future interfere in State Affairs.

The Pope's Nuncio had received peremptory orders to quit Lisbon.

The rumoured capture of some British vessels by Moroeco pirates has been confirmed, and measures will be forwith taken to effect their immediate restoration.

From the Courier of Sept 11.

The Admiralty arrangements, about which so many contradictory reports have been circulated, have at length been settled, and Lord Melville succeeds his Royal Highness the Duke of Clarence We understand that the Board will consist, as formerly, of the First Lord of the Admiralty, and four other Lords.

Lord Ellenborough will succeed Lord Melville as President of the Board of Controul.

Two officers, who had been sent to the Russian Army, have lately returned to Vienna, and their account of the state of affairs at Choumla has been published in one of the Paris papers of Tuesday. But it does not contain any such recent news as we have been in the possession of for some days. The details, however, though perhaps overcharged, are interesting; and would seem to leave no hope of any long or successful resistance on the part of the Turks. For though Choumla cannot be attacked except under great disadvantage, and with immense loss, yet these officers proceed upon the supposition that it is the intention of the Russians to mask Choumla, whilst the rest of their army proceeds by Carnabat and Adrianople. But we doubt that part of the statement which asserts that the communication between Choumla and the capital has been cut off. If General Roediger has been able to maintain himself in East Bulgaria, the communication by that road has been cut off, but there are roads to the east of Eare-Stamboul which remain open—at least we have not had any account of the Russians having occupied them in any force. The direct communication with the Danube has been cut off, because the Russians are in possession of the road leading from Choumla to Silistria, and of the roads from Rasgrad to Rudschuck and to Tirnkai.

The Russian Army is supplied with every necessary in the most regular manner, and every preparation has been made which the mightiness of the contest demands.

From the Courier, of Sept. 12.

The situation of affairs at Odessa, since the arrival of Lord Heytesbury, is thus mentioned in one of the last Paris papers:

"It appears from what has transpired of the contents of the despatches received by Governments, that some attempts have been made for the restoration of peace in the journey of the Emperor of Russia to Odessa, had partly for its object, the receiving of the proposition which had been announced to him. It is stated that Lord Heytesbury had declared that the Porte was ready to adhere to the Treaty of the 6th of July, if she leave Russia in possession of the two Principalities, and to pay an indemnity for the expenses of the campaign, on condition that the Emperor should withdraw his army to the other side of the Danube.

"These overtures were not successful. The Emperor Nicholas did not find in them the inviolable guarantee for the free navigation of the Black Sea, mentioned in his Manifesto. The negotiation, therefore, was broken off as soon almost as it had begun."

We might have received intelligence from Choumla and Varna, to the 20th of last month—but none has arrived later than the 9th from the former place, and the 11th from the latter.—There was a report at Jassy, according to the French papers of Wednesday, of the surrender of Varna, but on Odessa article of the 18th contradicts it, and says that the garrison of the vessels by Admiral Greig has been concluded with the bombarding and storming of that place. We do not expect to receive any important news from Choumla till the return of the Emperor to the army, which, it is now said, would be delayed till the beginning of September. During his stay at Odessa, Lord Heytesbury had frequent conferences with the Russian Minister Count Nesselrode, who is expected to arrive at Odessa the assurance that the Russian Government will not make conquests, which assurance had also been verbally renewed to Lord Heytesbury by the Emperor himself.

From the Courier of Sept. 13.

Nothing material had occurred before Choumla, except that Gen. Rodiger had sustained a check in consequence of advancing too far in pursuit of a Turkish corps, which he had driven back. He is said to have lost one gun and 200 men.

Two articles from Odessa and Constantinople have been published in the Paris papers of Wednesday The former supposes to be the intention of the Emperor Nicholas to carry on operations beyond the Balkan this campaign, after the capture of Varna, keeping Choumla blockaded. But the blockading array is frequently harrassed by sorties, and in a recent sally, a large supply of oats, destined for the Russian Army, was cut off. The Constantinople article assures us that the Sultan is determined upon making the most obstinate resistance, and that the war is becoming every day more national On the heights about Constantinople an army of 200,000 foot, and 30,000 horse, is to be assembled under the immediate command of the Sultan himself. Intrenchments are erecting, which are to be defended by 300 pieces of cannon.

Despatches were received from Lisbon, this morning, dated the 6th inst. It is with great reluctance and regret, that we announce the capture of Madeira by Don Miguel's force. The squadron appeared off the Island the 24th ult. The troops disembarked on the 22d. On the 23d there was some slight skirmishing, and the new Governor landed on the 24th. The feelbiness of the resistance has surprised every one. The Governor Valdez and others, escaped on board an English man of war.

At Lisbon, in consequence of an extraordinary sitting of the Council for revising the sentences on Sir J. M. Doyle and Mr. Young, those individuals were to be liberated on the 7th inst., and immediately sent out of the country.

We do not believe that the Privy Seal, vacant by the appointment of Lord Ellenborough, to succeed Lord Melville at the Board of Controul, has yet been filled up.

Viscount Melville arrived in town last night.

United States.

Sickness on the shores of Lake Ontario.—The inhabitants of Rochester, with a degree of humanity highly creditable to the town, on hearing of the sickness prevailing on the neighbouring lake shore, lately held a meeting, and immediately raised between $100 and $200 for the relief of the sufferers. Food, medicine and other necessaries were purchased, and Messrs. P. Starr and E. Fly set off to distribute them eastwards of the river, and Messrs. Parker, Gould and Page westward.—Gen. Gould informs that the distress is even greater than the account had represented it. The Rochester Republican says:—

"Six or seven families in one neighbourhood—one of the families consisting of 12 or 13 persons, mostly females—are stated to be in such a situation that they are utterly unable to relieve each other—a child, being in some cases, the only healthy person in a family. It is useless to attempt a description of the manner in which the provisions, &c. were received by the unhappy sufferers—we have heard enough to convince us that in no way can the cause of charity—or humanity—be aided at present better than by contributions for their relief. From all accounts, we have reason to believe the sickness along the American shore is scarcely, if at all, inferior in extent to that prevalent on the Canadian side of Ontario."

Rochester—State of New-York—Sept. 20.—Our citizens were engaged the whole of Saturday, in a "labor of love." The extreme unhealthness of the people residing near the shore of the lake had reduced many of them to a condition upon which humanity cannot look but with compassion. A village meeting was called on Friday evening, by which active receiving and distributing committees were appointed. The appeal for relief was answered by immediate and abundant donations. Waggon loads of nourishment and provisions started off early on Saturday. We accompanied one of these "messengers of charity," and saw, during the day, relief administered to more than hundreds of helpless, and in some instances, famishing sufferers. While females were found not only sick, but destitute of medicine, food and attendance. A few instances will give an idea of the misery to be found prevailing all along the lake shore. In one family nine were down, one had died, and the only person to assist the sick was a daughter who had the ague every other day. At one house the mother had died, leaving eight small children, most all of them sick, to the sole care of the father.—At a house containing two families, not an individual could rise from their beds, but an old man, 70 years of age, who had gone three miles to work for provisions of which they were entirely destitute. An old man whose family were all sick and destitute, had been to Rochester (9 miles) with a load of green staves, which he could not sell. Just after he returned, with heavy heart and weary limbs, without help or hope, to his perishing family, the well stored waggon of our benevolent citizens drove up to his house! Between a father and a mother, confined to the same bed with a burning fever, was an infant, whose sources of nourishment were dried up! On the floor, under the same roof, lay a boy, by whose hand was a crust of dry bread and a cabbage, upon which he subsisted.

We learn from the gentleman who went into the north part of Brighton, that the condition there, was, if possible, even worse than in Greece. Sixteen families, (principally Swiss emigrants) most of whom were as wretched as poverty and sickness could make them, were relieved. One woman died, on Saturday, in childbed, without medical aid, or even the necessary assistance of her own sex. These evidences of distress are deemed sufficient to justify the steps which have been taken to relieve the sufferers. It is to be regretted that the wants of those people had not been sooner made known to our citizens.—Rochester never gives with a stinted or reluctant hand. Ample supplies are ready for all within reach; and the visits to our unhappy fellow citizens will hereafter be neither "few nor far between."

A medical gentleman, who generously attended the committee rendered every assistance to those who required his aid. Flour, bread, meat, fish, wine, tea, coffee, sugar, butter, &c. &c. were furnished. Many families, though sick, refused aid, but urged the committee to seek out those who were more in need. The sickness is generally confined to new settlers, most of whom are ill prepared to provide for themselves.

A singularly outrageous act was committed in the Philadelphia Police Office on Thursday, during the examination of a prisoner on a criminal charge:—A young man named William Forepaugh, was called as witness to testify on the part of the commonwealth. On passing the dock where the prisoner was seated, and within striking distance, the prisoner sprung on him with an unsheated dirk, that he had secreted on his person, and made two well directed blows at the body of the witness, but which were warded off by him, as to prevent his receiving but one of them but slightly on the breast. He was instantly secured by the officers, disarmed and tied, and after his hearing and commitment on several charges of larceny, he was also committed for this assault and battery, with intent to murder, which he openly and repeatedly avowed. Forepaugh was an accomplice in crime, and was marked by this villain for his victim.

☞ Exchange at New York on London, Oct. 25th, 11 a—par cent.

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1828.

The arrival of the Packet Ship Pacific at New York, puts us in possession of London dates to the 15th Sept.—We are indebted to the Albion, for the items of Latest News, which will be found under the proper head in this days paper.

His Excellency Sir John Colborne visited the Navy Yard, at Brooklyn, on Monday, attended by Capt. Creighton of His Majesty's 81st Regt, and was received by Commodore Chauncey with the honours due to his rank. On his arrival on board the Fulton, the Commodore's Flag ship, the Marine Guard was paraded, and a salute of seventeen guns fired. His Excellency, we understand, expressed his deep sense of those honours thus spontaneously paid, as well as the kind and delicate personal attentions rendered him by the amiable and gallant Commodore, and the Officers under his command.—Albion.

The Addresses to His Excellency Sir P. Maitland, on his departure from the Province, from the Inhabitants of the Newcastle and Gore Districts, were presented to His Excellency by Deputation. In other parts of the country, Addresses are in course of signature, and will be presented previous to His Excellency's departure. The expressions of respect for his administration of the Government, and of personal esteem towards His Excellency and family, which these addresses contain, afford the most satisfactory testimonials, that the sincere and anxious desire of His Excellency for the improvement of the country, & the happiness of its inhabitants are duly appreciated when the period of a long and arduous administration is about to terminate. These, together with the approbation of His Sovereign, fully evinced by the more important Civil and Military honors conferred upon him, cannot but be gratifying, as well to His Excellency, as to the inhabitants of the Province generally.

His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, arrived in Town from Stamford, on Thursday morning.—We understand that it is His Excellency's intention in consequence of the lateness of the Season, to proceed to Nova-Scotia, via Boston. Sir John Colborne had not left New-York on 26th instant.

Yesterday afternoon, a number of the Inhabitants of this Town went up to the Government House, and presented to His Excellency the Lieutenat Governor, Sir P. Maitland, an Address, which had been prepared on the occasion of His departure from the Government of this Province, to which His Excellency was pleased to make a most gracious reply.

At the request of the Grand Jury, His Honor Mr. Justice Sherwood, was pleased to grant a Copy of his Charge, at the opening of the Assizes, for publication, which will be found in our Columns this day.—The Assizes closed on Wednesday last, after a Session of sixteen days

Libel Cases.—In the case of The King, vs Francis Collins on an Indictment for Libel, tried before His Honor Mr. Justice Sherwood on Wednesday 22nd inst., the Defendant was acquitted—the defence being conducted by B. Baldwin, Esq.—On the Saturday following, (John Rolph, Esquire, who had previously been sent for express to conduct the defence, having arrived) on a second Indictment, the Jury after a consultation of some hours, came into Court and gave in a Verdict of "Guilty, of a Libel against the Attorney General." The Clerk of the Court being about to record a general Verdict of Guilty, Mr. Rolph, Counsel for the Defendant, addressed the Court, stating, that the Verdict of the Jury as expressed through their Foreman, was the only one which could be recorded, and that that verdict, in his opinion, amounted in the present case to an acquittal. His Honor Mr. Justice Hagerman, then on the Bench, stated to the Jury, that on the Indictment, which contained but one Count, if they were satisfied from the evidence, that any part of the matter charged in that Count was libellous, it would be sufficient to authorise them to find a verdict generally—at the same time it would be competent for them, if they wished to do so, to intimate to the Court, what particular part of the matter they considered as being libellous, and on which their verdict was found.—If on the contrary, they did not consider any part of the matter charged in the indictment as being libellous, it would be their duty to acquit the Defendant.—The Jury again retired, and in a short time returned into Court, with their verdict "Guilty," and on the learned Judge asking them, after it had been recorded, if they still desired to make the intimation to the Court that the Libel was found to be contained in that part of the Indictment which alluded more particularly to the Attorney General. was answered in the affirmative. Objections having been made by Messrs. Rolph and Baldwin, on behalf of the Defendant, with respect to alledged irregularities in the proceedings on trial, and the record of the verdict as entered by the Court, argument was heard on Tuesday, before Mr. Justice Sherwood and Hagerman; and after being replied to by the Solicitor General, the learned Judges severally delivered their opinions, agreeing that the objections which had been made were not valid.—The Sentence of the Court was then pronounced against the Defendant, as follows:—That he be imprisoned for Twelve Calendar Months, and pay a fine of £50 to His Majesty, and stand committed until such fine be paid,—and that he give security for his good behaviour for three years, himself in £400, and two sureties in £100 each, and to stand committed till such security be given.

In an action of Slander, tried during the late Assizes—Prentiss vs. Hamilton—the Jury gave a verdict £375 damages, and costs,

We learn on inquiry, from Mr. Hamilton the Coroner, that the body of the man, lately found dead in the Park near this place, has been identified by some of the friends who came over from Niagara, to be that of a person, who left his home in a deranged state some time last Summer, and for whose discovery, it will be recollected, a reward was offered in hand bills circulated at the time.—The Clothes of the deceased were immediately recognized by his friends, as being those he had on when he left home.

Trials of John Christie, and Catharine his Wife for the Murder of Isaac James, on 24th Sept. last.—On Monday last the two Prisoners were placed at the Bar, and on being arraigned, John Christie, pleaded Guilty. The wife pleaded Not Guilty.—Christie was then removed from the Bar, and Catharine his Wife, was put upon her trial, Mr. Justice Hagerman on the Bench.—The Jury being impanelled. The Attorney General, briefly stated the circumstances under which the Murder had been committed.—The first witness was called.

Hannah Hutchison—Proved the departure of the waggon, from the House of Ezekiel James on 24th Sept.—the deceased was driving—saw a woman getting into the waggon, which was a covered one—witness was at some distance from the waggon, cannot say that Prisoner is the woman she saw getting into the waggon—has not seen her face before Yesterday.

John Plank—Met the waggon, the deceased driving, 6 or 7 miles from James house, in a wood 13 or 14 miles long, mostly uninhabited—John Christie was walking before the waggon with a Gun under his arm, and spoke to witness in passing—witness was driving a Team and on passing that of the deceased thinks he had the glimpse of a woman in the rear part of it, who he supposed was the Prisoner.

Cross examined.—Has seen the prisoner only twice before yesterday—thinks he saw a woman in the rear part of the waggon, but cannot say positively that Prisoner is the same—the waggons were passing each other in a bad place on the road, and the waggon which deceased drove was a covered one.

Moses Reader—saw James' Team, at a distance of 13 or 14 miles from his house, a stranger was driving, who he supposed to be a hired man, Mr. James being sick—he did not see the Prisoner in the waggon, saw her yesterday, when she said she was clear of it.

Doctors Chiswick, Thomson, and Aldjo—were called, and described the wounds on the body of the deceased Isaac James —these had been inflicted on the head, and the back of the skull was fractured—one of the wounds under the left jaw, they were of opinion was a Gun shot wound. The Coroner was of the same opinion, Doctor Widmer however on being called, after having heard the testimony, thought that this wound was not that of a gun shot, but might have been inflicted otherwise.

Samuel Ball—saw the body of the deceased lying behind a Log heap, about three Rods from the Road—witness lives 13 miles from James'—does not know the Prisoner.

Charles Thompson—keeps an Inn at York, last month Christie came to his house for some money which he had left in witness' possession—he said that he had left his wife at James' in Uxbridge. The Prisoner and her husband at one time, boarded in witnesses house for five days—this was before they went to Uxbridge—the witness stated his impression that the Prisoner was under fear of her husband, who did not appear to treat her kindly, causing her to take her meals alone, while he ate with the other boarders.

John Burbydt—apprehended the Prisoner and her husband near Troy, on Friday fortnight—the Prisoner was not with her husband when first apprehended—met him with a load of Corn on the waggon, near the Ferry, where the Canals meet—brought them both here—in conversation with the Prisoner she said that Isaac James had been killed by a Tree falling on him—her husband said something to her, when she said that Isaac was a poor sickly creature subject to bleeding at the nose, that he had gone back and might have died on the way—a shirtee in Christie's Trunk, appeared to have been stained with blood, which had been washed out as carefully as possible.—An Axe, found among his property, was marked as the witness and others thought, with blood, but some took it to be rust—on the axe he thought there was some hair about an inch long of a brownish color.—Christie told witness that he had taken the Team as James had not paid him some money he owed him

Samuel Brown—knew the Prisoner and her husband—saw them when moving to the Quaker Settlement—went in pursuit of them to the United States, after the murder was committed—first saw them in Schenectady Gaol, and there recognised them. Between Rochester and Lockport, in company with a Baptist Preacher, witness heard Christie say to the Minister, who seemed to have made some impression upon his feelings, "it is useless for people to question me about the fact—I know I shall be tried by the Law, and I am willing to die—" that the Prisoner then said "Oh John I am willing to die with you."—The Court overhearing this, asked her what would become of the children, to which she replied, they would be taken care of.

Thomas Richardson—keeps the Blue Bell Tavern near York—saw the Prisoner at his house the day after the murder is stated to have been committed—herself and husband put up at his house late at night—did not see Christie, as he had gone to town before he had risen—witness asked the prisoner no questions—the waggon with the family left the Blue Bell, at 9 or 10 o'clock in the morning—the witness having gone to work in his Barn, did not see Christie on his return from town.

James Armstrong—saw the Prisoner after her arrival in custody at York—she denied having any knowledge of the murder, and stated that her husband had not told her what he had done until after they left York.

Robert Stanton—proved the examinations of the prisoner, and her husband, taken before him as a Magistrate—which were read.

In these examinations, John Christie acknowledged that he had killed the deceased, by striking him across the neck and head, with a gun, while he was stooping to look for a Raccoon, which Christie told him was in a log heap near the Road side, but acquits his wife of any participation in the crime. Catharine Christie (the Prisoner), in her examination, states, that she was unwell, and had occasion to go ahead of the waggon with the children, and that on her husband's coming up with the waggon, she asked him where Isaac was, to which he replied he would be along soon, desiring her to get into the waggon—that she refused to do so until Isaac joined them, and that her husband again desired her to get in, telling her that it was one of her business where Isaac was—that she then got into the waggon, and they drove on.

This closed the case on the part of the Crown.—No evidence was called on the defence.

His Lordship then charged the Jury, reading over to them the evidence, and stating that as no positive testimony had been adduced to them that the Prisoner was assisted in committing the murder, a reasonable doubt of her Guilt must be entertained, which would operate in her favor. The law humanely considering the affection which a Wife feels towards her Husband, did not consider her, as accessory to his crimes if after their commission, she comforted and protected him, provided she did not participate in their commission—the Jury would therefore not allow the expressions of the prisoner, in conversation after the murder to have weight with them.—Unless they were satisfied from the evidence, that she had knowledge of the intentions of her husband, and aided him in carrying those intentions into effect it would be their duty to acquit her.

The Jury having retired for a short time, returned into Court with their verdict—Not Guilty.—Before discharging her from the Bar, Mr. Justice Hagerman addressed her in an impressive manner, stating to her, that in consequence of the plea of Guilty, by her husband, there could be little doubt, that in a few hours at most she would be left, the sole protector of her children, who he hoped, she would by her example, train up in such a way, as would cause them to avoid the commission of crime, which had placed their unfortunate father, in his present melancholy situation.—She was then ordered to be discharged, and retired from the Court.

The Sentence.—John Christie was again placed at the Bar—His Lordship addressed him, saying, that notwithstanding his having pleaded guilty, he was still disposed to hear any thing he might have to say, why the sentence of the law should not be pronounced against him,—Christie replied—" My Lord, I have nothing to say—I acknowledge that I killed the man, and am willing to die for it—and I pray the Lord to have mercy on my Soul."—The prisoner while uttering these words, stood with clasped hands, and uplifted eyes in the dock, and subsequently, while His Lordship was passing the awful sentence of the Law upon him, his lips moved, indicating that he was engaged in silent prayer.

His Lordship continued—John Christie—It is comfortable to me in the performance of a painful duty, to hear you express such sentiments. You have confessed your crime, and plead to God for mercy—continue to do so, during the short time that remains to you on earth. Your crime has been great, but the mercy of God is greater—address yourself to that Blessed Redeemer, through whose intercession, you can alone obtain the forgiveness of your Sin. The crime of which you have been guilty is the highest which can be committed against the Laws,—you took the life of your unfortunate victim, with no other apparent object, than to possess yourself of that property, with which he was travelling, and for which in morality, you had no claim. Good laws in society are generated by a reverence for the Deity, and bad habits are created by a disregard of His holy name, and by the use of blasphemous expressions against His sacred scriptures, and in this manner the impressions of those Good principles alone are able to restrain the headlong torrent of disorder:—The only effectual preventive of the annihilation of good principles so eagerly desired by bad men, is the regular punishment of all scoffers at religion, and evil thinkers in morality. Good habits

The Calendar of the Sheriff, gentlemen, exhibits a list of offences not alarmingly numerous in proportion to the extent of the population of this District, but when considered with regard to the nature and species of crime in general goes a great length to establish the existence of profligate habits and the disregard of religious and moral injunctions. This state of things, gentlemen, demands from you, as the legal guardians of the morality of the District, industry in enquiry, patience and perseverance in examination, and impartiality and decision in conduct. So long as the horrid crime of murder has the audacity to shew its appalling front, and many minor offences subversive of the tranquility and happiness of His Majesty's subjects are in constant perpetration, the inhabitants of the District have a right to expect the presence of vigilance and zeal during the period in which the Grand Inquest are called to exercise their Constitutional functions. You ought not to be satisfied, gentlemen, with the detection and punishment of persons guilty of enormous and flagrant villanies only, but you should boldly enter the precincts of habitual depravity, and present for examination and trial, all such destroyers of social happiness, who, by their base and malicious conduct have rendered themselves obnoxious to the chastisement of justice. Admonition and advice are sufficient for the wise and the good, but it is punishment alone that restrains the licentiousness of malignity, the progress of deep rooted prejudice; and unprincipled and bigoted malevolence, can never be arrested except by the hand of timely correction.

THE ARMY.

Brevet—Major General Sir Peregrine Maitland, K.C.B. to be Lieutenant General in North America only.—Aug. 21.—Garrisons—Major General J. Ross, to be Lieutenant Governor of the Island of Guernsey, vice Major General Sir John Colborne, K.C.B.—Aug. 13.

Domestic.

[From the Upper Canada Gazette.]

To His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

May it Please Your Excellency,

We His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the undersigned, Clergy Magistrates, and other Inhabitants of the District of Gore, understanding that your Excellency is about to retire from the Government of this Province, are desirous—previous to your departure—to offer our congratulations upon His Majesty's increased confidence in your Excellency, in promoting you to a situation next to the General Government of the British North American Colonies; and to express to you the high sense which we entertain of your Excellency's conduct as Lieutenant Governor of this Province, which has been blessed with so many marks of the fostering hand of the Parent State since your Excellency has presided over it.

We have hailed with grateful feelings the beneficence of the best of Sovereigns in the various imperial grants so auspiciously made to secure to us and to our posterity, the proud advantages of British Subjects, as well for the purpose of fortifying our frontiers as for opening and improving our internal communications: in which we recognize your Excellency's favourable representations to His Majesty's Government, on those subjects so intimately connected with the true welfare of this Province.

We are not unmindful of the great improvement in this Province since your Excellency's Administration of its Government, in laying open to actual settlement, so many Townships, which were previously in a state of nature, and in which we now enumerate so many fellow subjects from the Mother Country.

We are also sensible that your Excellency's Administration has always been marked with that mildness which Religion and virtue inculcate; and we are satisfied that it has been your Excellency's constant desire to administer equal and impartial justice alike to all His Majesty's Subjects.

We beg to offer you our assurances of unfeigned respect, not only as the Representative of our beloved Sovereign but as a Soldier and a Christian; and to Lady Sarah Maitland, whose examplary piety and domestic virtues commands our highest admiration; and wherever your Excellency and family's lot may be cast, our best wishes are, that you may enjoy happiness and prosperity.

DANIEL O'REILY,	Wm. M. JARVIS,
Wm. McKAY.	P. H. HAMILTON,
W. CHISHOLM,	ROBERT LUGGER.

[And Five Hundred and Sixty others.]

Hamilton, District of Gore,
22nd Oct. 1828.

Answer to an Address of the Inhabitants of the District, of Gore presented to Lieutenant Governor Sir Peregrine Maitland, on the occasion of His leaving the Province.

Gentlemen,

I receive with great satisfaction the affectionate Address of the Clergy, Magistrates, and other Inhabitants of the District of Gore, and am much indebted to you, Gentlemen, for your kindness in attending to present it in person.

The approbation of so Loyal and Respectable a Body of the Inhabitants of the District of Gore is very acceptable to me, for although when I shall leave this Province to discharge the duties of another Government, to which my Sovereign has Graciously appointed me, I shall carry with me the consciousness of having been always actuated by an earnest and sincere desire to promote your welfare, I shall have great additional satisfaction in knowing that you have kindly and favorably appreciated my conduct.

You will oblige me by conveying also to the Inhabitants of the District of Gore my assurance that their just expressions of gratitude to our Gracious Sovereign for the munificent disposition displayed toward this Colony afford me particular pleasure. It is indeed to me a source of most agreeable reflection that I have suffered nothing to deter or discourage me from aiding, by the strongest representations to the King's Government, every effort at public Improvement in this valuable Colony. In taking an affectionate leave of those who have sokindly addressed me, I beg to add the grateful acknowledgments of Lady Sarah Maitland, as well as my own, for the friendly wishes you have expressed for our hapiness and welfare.

Providential Escape.—On Friday last, Mr. J. Martindale, of Port Dalhousie, with several workmen, started in a scow from the W. C. Harbour, to go up along the lake shore to the mouth of 20 mile creek, for a load of lumber. The wind at the time, was blowing a gale from off the shore, so that when they came to the projection of land at the mouth of the 20 mile creek some of the men went ashore to assist in towing the boat around the point. While endeavouring to effect this object, the rope broke, and in spite of the utmost exertions of those on board, the scow wafted rapidly from the bank into the midst of the boisterous lake. All but one man, (Mr. James Parnall,) immediately on observing what must be the consequence of remaining in the boat, sprang into the water, and with much difficulty succeeded in reaching the shore in safety. But Mr. Parnall, finding it too late to make his escape in the same way, set himself deliberately and resolutely at work to make the best of his forlorn and almost hapeless situation. The last his comrades saw of him, he had placed two boards in such a manner as to prevent much of the water from breaking over into the scow as much as possible, and was steering with one hand and with the other baling the craft with an old coffee pot: and no hopes entertained that he could possibly outlive the gale. To their no small astonishment, however, who should suddenly appear among them a few days after, but the self same James Parnall, alive and well. He states, that he continued tossing too and fro upon the waters, about 24 hours, that the wind first took his frail bark in the direction in which they saw it going last, until it must have passed York some distance; when it changed, and carried him towards the north west, where he was finally cast ashore at the mouth of the 18 mile creek, Niagara county, N. Y.—Farmers' Journal.

From the Kingston Gazette and Religious Advocate.

Steam Boats.—There are seven Steam Boats owned on this side Lake Ontario. Five of these left the port of Kingston last about 24 hours; the Mohawk and Queenston for York and Niagara, the Toronto and Sir James Kempt for Bellville, &c. and the Dalhousie for Prescott.

On Sunday the 19th instant, the new Presbyterian Church at Cataraqui in this District, was dedicated to the service of God. The Rev. Mr. McDowall, of Fredericksburgh, preached in the forenoon, and the Rev. Mr. Snowden, of Kingston, in the afternoon. They were assisted in the services by the Rev. Mr. Bethune, of the Lutheran Church, and Mr. Johnston. Both of the sermons were solemn and appropriate to the occasion. The singing and all the exercises were impressive. The house was crowded by an attentive congregation.

This neat and commodious stone edifice is very creditable to the public spirited individuals, by whose exertions it has been erected. It is no less gratifying to the patriot than to the Christian to see another Church opened for public worship on the bank of the Napanee River, in an interior township, of excellent land, and progressing rapidly in settlement.—Com.

Lower Canada.

Killed on the morning of the 1st inst. Joseph Morrel Dedmantel, miller to Mr. Philo. Dugas of Rawdon. It is supposed that he was greasing the shaft, when his frock shirt got entangled in the wheels, and his body was mangled in a most horrible manner; hardly a cogg of the wheel but had a part of his entrails hanging to it. Morrel was a native of the district of Quebec.—Mont. Herald

The Crops in the Bay of Chaleurs are said to be of unprecedented quality and value. Those in the neighbourhood of Gaspee, at least in some parts, are said to be of a better description than was expected. In England, they have proved far above general anticipation.

We understand that towards the North West of Quebec, to a distance of 25 miles, the crops, on the high grounds, with the exception of wheat, are better than those of last year. This applies particularly to oats.—Q. Gazette.

The Season.—The first marked frost this season followed the change of the wind to the North-west on Monday and Tuesday last. On the night of this last day there fell some snow, and on Wednesday morning ice had been formed about one-forth of an inch thick. The distant mountains to the North were tinged with white, and even several parts of the adjacent country parishes.

In the course of yesterday snow again fell. Where there were still potatoes in the ground it is probable they have suffered. It is remarkable that there had been no frost until the 14th inst. Apple-trees had been seen in blossom for the second time, a second crop of strawberries had been eaten, and a second crop of raspberries were nearly ripe.—Quebec Gazette.

Birth,

At York, on Sunday 26th inst., Mrs. S. Jarvis, of a daughter.
At the York Garrison, on Monday 27th inst., Mrs. (Doctor) Reid, of a daughter.

Died,

On Wednesday 29th inst. on Yonge Street, near York.—Mrs. Franks, wife of Mr. Franks, late Inkeeper, York.

At Amherst Island, on the 8th October, George, aged three years, and Jean, aged one year and six months, both children of Mr. George McLeod.

At Kingston, very suddenly, on Wednesday night last, Mr. Edward Swain, Innkeeper, aged 44.

In this city, on Wednesday last, George Garden, Esquire, for many years a partner of the long established house of Maitland Garden & Auldjo. In all the various relations of life, as a respectable merchant, as an honest and upright citizen, and as the head of a family, he had acquired the esteem and regard of all classes of society, and his death will be long felt, not only by his afflicted widow and children, but by many with whom he was intimately connected in the bonds of friendship.—Montreal Gaz.

At Quebec, on Sunday evening, Edward, the infant son of Commissary-General Routh, aged 16 months.

BIBLE SOCIETY.

Mr. Editor,

Sir,

☞ Owing to the heavy rain, the Meeting for forming the Bible Society, has been adjourned till Monday evening, the 3rd November, when it is hoped the friends of the Institution will attend.—Hour and place as formerly advertised,

ALEXANDER STEWART,
Secretary.

York, 27th October, 1828.

MEDICAL PATNERSHIP.—Doctor Widmer finding his professional engagements much extended of late, and occasionally too arduous for one person, has been induced to enter into partnership with Doctor Diehl, a respectable practitioner, late of Montreal.

It is expected that their united exertions will prevent in future any disappointment to Dr. Widmer's friends, both in Town and Country.

Dr. Diehl's residence is at present at Mr. Hayes's Boarding-house.

York, October 28, 1828. c. 21.

NOTICE.—To be sold, by Public Auction, on Monday the 17th November, 1828, at Eleven o'clock in the forenoon, in the Garrison at this Post, a quantity of condemned Barrack Bedding, Furniture, Utensils, &c. &c. &c.

☞ Sale to continue until the whole is sold.

H. MOSLEY,
Auctioneer.
P. HARTNEY,
Barrack Master.

York, 28th October, 1828. n. 21

FRESH ARRIVALS.

AT THE SIGN OF THE GOLDEN TEA CHEST.

THOS. CARFRAE, JUN.

RESPECTFULLY informs his Friends and the Public, that he has just received, and now offers for Sale, at his Store, (next door to the Methodist Chapel,) a well selected assortment of new and fashionable,

DRY GOODS,

Of this Falls' importation; also, a choice assortment of Groceries, together with a great variety of other Articles too numerous to detail in an Advertisement.

N.B.—T. C. has received a great variety of English, French, and German Toys; also, a small assortment of Jewellery, all of which will be sold at a much reduced price for cash. x 19

BANK NOTICE.—Discount Day, Wednesday of every Week.—Notes offered for Discount, must be put under cover to the Cashier, and left at the Bank the day before.

THOMAS G. RIDOUT,
Cashier.

FRESH SEEDS.—Shaker's Garden and Flower Seeds, warranted of the growth of 1827 for sale by EDW'D. LESSLIE & SONS.

☞ E. L. & Sons expect a quantity of clover seed in a few days.

York, 14th March 1828. 43-tf.

PARCHMENT DEEDS,
For Sale at the Gazette Office, York,

THE LOYALIST.

VOL. I. NO. 22.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY NOVEMBER 8, 1828.

Poetry.

THE TRAVELLER DYING IN THE DESERT:

*Suggested by reading Major Denham's Africa.

The traveller lay in the desert alone,
Deserted, and wounded, and heart-sick, and wan;
The coolness and calmness of night had all flown,
And the thirst and the fever of morning came on.

No tree gave him shelter, no well was there near—
No being to succor him greeted his eye?
No sound but the hyena's growl met his ear,
That waited impatiently till he should die.

The bones of the many, deserted like him,
Whom the spear of the robber or hunger had slain,
Were strewing the plain, and his eye-ball grew dim,
As death grimly whispered, so his should remain.

Yet, dauntless in spirit, around him he gazed—
No sigh left his dried lip, no tear did he shed,
But smiled as he heaven his last look he raised,
Where the halo of glory seem'd circling his head.

He thought of his home, of the days of his youth,
Of the friends who had loved him, & those who'd deceived;
And the soft mournful words which he now felt were truth,
That at parting she spoke who his absence still grieved.

"I have loved thee, fair Science—for thee I've immured
My youth in the closet of wisdom," he cried;
"For thee has my manhood all suffering endured,
And for thee, on my tomb, be it said that I died.

My tomb!—but what tomb, save this waste, shall be mine?—
Yet to what Heaven will be my spirit resigned?
Though no friend can witness my being's decline,
Still my name shall be found in my works left behind.

Some traveller, more gifted, more happy, shall come,
He shall find in this desert these relics of me!
He shall carry my books to the land of my home,
And my words, though I've perish'd immortal will be."

Thus, inly exulting, his spirit arose,
On the pinions of virtue, to regions afar;
The spot where he moulders no being now shews,
But in every nation his monuments are.

His glory you see for his sorrows atone—
From examples like this future heroes are made:
'Tis thus that a Denham ev'n finds for our own,
And long may it be ere his memory fade!

* These lines have a peculiar interest from the recent death of the lamented traveller whose work suggested them.—

Miscellaneous.

THE FESTIVAL OF THE ROSE.

It was in the latter part of May, that the Festival of the Rose was held in the little village of Allière, in Provence. It had been the custom for years, many more than the memory of any Inhabitants of the country could remember, to hold a sort of rustic revel under this name, when the fairest and most virtuous of the village maidens was adorned by her sorrowing companions with the symbol of purity and loveliness—a white rose. It is not consistent with our present purpose to trace the origin of a ceremony which is as old perhaps as the barbarian inhabitants of the land, and which, at least, may be considered as one of the first indications of civilization. In the year 1234 the Count Raimond Allière had resolved to celebrate it with unusual pomp, for his niece, the daughter of a beloved brother who had died in the holy land, had just quitted the convent in which she had been educated, and was about to become the mistress and the ornament of her doting uncle's castle. The day on which the Festival of the rose was to be held was that of her nativity, and her uncle intended that she should offer herself as a competitor for the prize. Perhaps if she had been less unequivocally entitled to it her claim would have been allowed; but she had no need to call to her aid the advantages of her station. Her charms spoke for themselves, and her benevolence had been so often exercised upon the poor villagers, that they looked upon her as one of those beneficent beings of another world, which the imaginations of poets feign to come down to earth sometimes for the succour of its suffering children. Still, in the Count's offering his niece as a candidate for the white rose, there was a proof of that simplicity which was a part of his character, and which was so often, at the period of which we speak, to be found in company with the sterner virtues.

Perhaps, too, there was another motive which was not without its influence in the old man's mind. It had been the dying wish of his niece's father that she should marry the son of his companion in arms, Gui de Beaucour: and when the beautiful Claude had attained that age at which it was thought time to fix her future destiny, this proposition was made to the young heir of Beaucour. He bore his fathers name of Gui, and had given fair earnest of keeping that name no less illustrious than it had been made by a long line of ancestors. He had gained honour beyond his years in the battles of his country, and perhaps some of the vanity of a young man led him to decline too hastily the proposal that had been made to marry him, in pursuance of a dead man's will, to a lady whom he had never seen. He replied to the Count's messenger, that he was about to take a command in Spain, and that, as his absence from his native country might be of uncertain duration, he relinquished all thoughts of the honour which was intended him by such an alliance. The Count, young with this cool reply, which, however admitted of no further consideration, resolved that his niece's beauty should at least be seen and acknowledged; and, therefore, at the approaching Festival of the Rose, he held a grand tourney, to which he invited the neighbouring Barons and Knights. He had little doubt that his niece would carry off the prize at the first, and he intended that she should display among her equals those charms to which he was sure all who saw her must pay homage.

The young Gui de Beaucour was in no hurry to go to Spain; the news of the tourney determined him to go, but in disguise, to the Castle of Allière, to see the lady whom fortune had intended to thrust upon him without his asking. Accompanied only by an esquire, who had, like himself, some skill in music, in the garb of troubadours—a disguise then commonly adopted by people of all ranks—he repaired to Allière. He reached that place on the evening of the day on which the Festival of the Rose was held, and the tourney was to begin on the morrow.

The Count Gui was wholly unprepared for the nature of the scene to which he was thus unexpectedly introduced. He had heard of the Festival of the Rose, and knew indistinctly the nature of the ceremony, but he did not know the manners of the Provencal people, nor the extreme simplicity with which they conducted this ceremony,—a simplicity which partook more of the olden times to which its origin belonged than to the then present period. The Count Raimond and his noble friends, male as well as female, were dressed in the garb of peasants. They mingled in the sports of their tenants without ceremony, the difference of rank was forgotten, and the manner of the people was treated by them with that reward and heartfelt respect which a father deserves, but without any of that untoward homage which, in a more courtly company, his station would have entitled him to. The lovely Claude, dressed in pure white, with no other decoration than the charms which heaven had bestowed her, and crowned with the one white rose which her undisputed beauty had won, mooved among the village girls like one of them. The strangers were all dressed in their best clothes, and in the frank hilarity of the moment no stranger could have told which of them was gentle and which simple

On a throne of turf strewn with flowers, on which a bower of roses was erected, sate Claude, surrounded by her fair companions. A table was spread beneath a trellised vine, at the side where the Count Raimond and the elder part of the company sate. Some minstrels were at the opposite side, who were playing during the dance which was about to begin, when a shout from some of the peasants announced the arrival of strangers. The Count Gui, with his lute slung upon his shoulder, and followed by Raoul, his esquire, who had faithfully served him, in war as well as in peace, from his boyhood, approached. They were hurried up by a crowd of rustics to the throne, to pay homage to the queen of the day. He was not ignorant of the nature of the Festival; but, as it was a rule of the sport, that the queen of the day should be addressed by no other name than that of her title, and giving in at once to the humour of the moment, he, after striking a few chords on his lute, improvised the following song, which he sang with a rich mellow voice:—

Of all the flowers that deck the earth,
When summer's beauties first unclose,
The tiniest grin that takes its birth,
Is sweet Provence's matchless Rose.

And fair Provence has maidens bright,
Who, like her Rose, 'mong other flowers,
Shine but to form the world's delight,
And peerless deck her sunny bowers.

Here, where before my ruptured gaze,
The union of these charms are seen,
Humbly I turn my willing lays
To thee, fair maid, the Rose's Queen.

Loud applause followed this proof of the minstrel's skill; and having thus manifested his desire to join in the revelry, he needed no further introduction. The dances was about to begin, in which he joined, and with a courteous frankness claimed, in right of his being the last comer, the hand of the Queen of the Rose. If her beauty had struck him at the first glance, the charms of her conversation completed his fascination; and when the dance broke off, he was as completely and as unexpectedly in love as any man should desire to be. The Count Raimond, who saw by the demeanor of both the master and his follower, that they were not minstrels by profession, endeavoured to ascertain who they were. Raoul, whom he essayed first, was too close and wary to give him any satisfactory replies; but chancing as the enquire was the Count was too old a soldier to give him up at once; and seeing that Raoul had attached himself to the laughing Jacqueline, a god-daughter of his own, and the child of one of his tenants, he called her to him, and bade her try to get out the serving-man's secret. Jacqueline loved a secret herself; she loved mischief, too, a little—what woman does not? She liked to show her power over a new lover, and what pretty young woman will blame her for it? She managed matters so well, that before the sports had concluded she had the whole of Raoul's history, which he imparted to her under the seal of secrecy; and with a similar qualification she, within two minutes after, had told the Count Raimond that the troubadour was no other than the young Gui de Beaucour.

The Count Gui was in the mean time busy in endeavouring to make himself agreeable to the young peasant, as he thought her, who had been crowned Queen of the Rose. He urged his suit with all the art that he possessed, and Claude soon perceived by his courtly gallantry that he was a person of some degree, and possessing accomplishments which were by no means common with such folks as his dress would have bespoken him.—She replied to all his flatteries with archness, but prudence, which was well calculated to keep him in the error he had fallen into respecting her condition, and completely enchanted him. She asked him once more to sing, and he expressed his passion in a roundel—a mode of composition which was then in great vogue in the French Court.

Lady lay those frowns aside;
Winter reigns not all the year
The laughing Spring, a flower-deck'd bride,
Has chased away the tyrant drear,
Then listen, lady, to my lay;
Why in your heart should winter stay?

Time's wing will crush the flow'rets bloom,
And love has wings as well as darts;
The flowers must yield them to their doome,
And love rest not in saying hearts:
Then listen, lady, to my lay;
Whate'er has wings will fly away.

But time and love are both your own,
Your charms now blossom in their prime,
Enjoy them ere the hours be flown,
And leave to Fate the wintry time.
Then listen, lady, to my lay;
Gather the roses while you may.

The Count Raimond had taken advantage of his abstraction to request the chief of the peasants to take care that the stranger did not learn the rank of the queen and of the other noble guests, but that he should remain in the belief that they were merely inhabitants of a neighbouring farm. By this time the sun had set, and two hours, experienced in the homely manner of the farmers, being brought, Raimond summoned his niece to accompany him Gui employed the few moments, during which the queen was preparing for her departure, to ask where she dwelt, but she would give him no other reply than by telling him she would be at the tourney at the castle on the following day. Raimond helped her on her horse, and mounted himself, and followed by his guests, the seeming rustics, they dashed off at a speed which made it impossible for the minstrels to overtake them, or to discover their route. The father of Jacqueline offered them the hospitality of his house, which they accepted, and Gui retired to rest to dream of the lovely Queen of the Rose, whom he determined to see on the following day.

The Castle of Allière was crowded with all the gay and noble persons in the vicinity. In the court-yard lists were prepared, and on a dais at the upper end sate the Lady Claude. An indifferent spectator might have found it difficult to recognise in her the simple maiden of the preceding day. Instead of the white robe which had then displayed all the graces of her person, she was now dressed in all the gorgeous splendour which befitted her station. Jewels shone upon her fair bosom, a coronet blazed upon her brow, and a white veil, which reached nearly to her feet, concealed some part of her features. Gui was there, still in his dress of troubadour, and he looked around in vain for the Queen of the Rose. He saw all the maidens whom he had noted as being her companions, but she was not among them, and he never thought of discovering her in the lovely heiress of Allifere. Wearied with his search, and disappointed at its result, he betook himself to the lists to see the tourney. At first he felt no desire to join it, but when he saw that the prize was to be bestowed by the hand of the lady whose love had been proffered to him, and whom he had rejected, he felt some desire to see her if he could do so unknown. The clang of the trumpets, and clash of arms, roused his martial ardour, and he was blaming himself for not having provided himself with horse and armour, when he was joined by an old peasant whom he had talked with on the preceding evening. He perceived immediately that it was the emperors of the maidens whom he had been in vain seeking. He asked him where the Queen of the Rose was. The old man, who was no other than the Count Raimond, replied that she would be there anon — 'But why,' said he, 'Sir minstrel, do you stand here an idle gazer when so manly a sport as this is on foot? Ods fish, I see that though you now carry a lute you have been used to a more stirring occupation.

Sir Gui turned upon his inquirer, whose familiarity was anything but offensive. 'I am see,' he replied, 'that I have neither horse nor arms.'

'If that be all,' said the old man, 'your need will be soon supplied, for yonder stands the steed of Sir Albert Brunne, who has received a hurt in the last fall. He loves the sport so well that, though he cannot join in it himself, he will gladly see another do so. If you will ask, I am sure he will lend you both steed and harness.

Gui knew the knight whose name has been mentioned, and beckoning to Raoul, he bade him ask the loan of the armour in his name, at the same time enjoining the knight not to disclose the circumstance of his being present. A prompt reply and request, and in a few minutes' space the Count Gui was in the saddle, armed for the tilt, and with a good lance in his hand.

The trumpets sounded, and he rode gallantly into the lists.— Up to this moment fortune had favoured the Baron de Riverdun, who was understood to be a suitor for the hand of the Lady Claude. He was a man of large stature, and had distinguished himself in the wars of Guienne His well-known prowess deterred many of the competitors from encountering him, and his strength and skill had worsted all who offered to dispute the prize. Gui, however, was destined to check his triumph. They ran three courses, in the two first of which their address was such as to avoid being borne from the saddles, though the shocks were rude enough. In the third Gui levelled the carcoal of his lance against the throat of his antagonist, and the blow was so true and so vigorous as to bear the Baron a spear's length from his saddle, and left him upon the field. His requires have him off the ground. A crowd of assailants offered themselves to encounter the new comer, who received their attacks in succession, but still triumphed over them all. At length there were no more opponents, and the unknown knight was declared to have won the prize. He approached the dais on which the Lady Claude was seated, and kneeling, received from her hands a green scarf worked with white roses, which was the prize. Her veil was still over a part of her face, but her graceful manner, and the beauty of such part of her countenance as he could see, convinced him that he had been somewhat hasty in his refusal. The herald approached him to know his name. His esquire replied, that his master had at present no other appellation than that of the Knight of the White Rose. The trumpets then brayed out, and the heralds proclaimed the Knight of the White rose to be the victor of the day's tourney.

The Count Raimond in his proper person greeted him on his success, and, without appearing to penetrate his disguise, craved his presence at the banquet, to which Sir Gui accepted. The feast was graced by all the beauty and worth of Provence. The Lady Claude sate at the upper end of the feast, and the victor was placed near her. He had now a full view of her face, and, although he could not help thinking that she bore an unnecessary resemblance to the Queen of the Rose, yet the change of dress, and the circumstances in which she was now placed, forbade him imagining that she was the lowly maid who had enraptured him on the preceding evening. He talked to her, and found the graceful polish of her manners and the charms of her mind in no degree inferior to her beauty. He was half ready to chide himself for the dangerous facility with which he found himself again enslaved when the feast broke up. Some of the guests repaired to the gardens of the castle; others remained in the hall, diverting themselves in conversation, or in some social sports.

The Lady Claude, followed by Sir Gui, proceeded to a terrace which commanded a view of the surrounding country. The evening was drawing to a close, and the declining rays of the sun shed a purple kind of tint over the picturesque and fertile landscapes which lay before them At the upper end of the terrace was an alcove decorated with rare plants, and constructed in the spirit of gorgeous ornament which is the characteristic of what is called the decorated Gothic. An open door led to the boudoir of the Lady Claude. In the alcove were seats and tables. An illuminated volume of Provencal poems lay there, and a lute, which seemed to belong to the fair mistress of the castle, was on a seat close by. The enamoured Sir Gui asked the lady if she had skill upon the instrument.

'I am a passing poor performer,' said she; 'but if it will amuse you, I will sing a lay which has lately been brought into this country by a wandering minstrel. After a short prelude, she began to sing the roundel which Sir Gui had sung on the preceding evening.

Lady lay those frowns aside;
Whiter reigns not all the year,
The laughing Spring, a flower deck'd bride,
Has chased away the tyraut drear;
Then listen, lady, to my lay;
Why in your heart should winter stay?

Sir Gui listened in dumb astonishment. He knew the air to be his own, and he knew that he had composed the words on the instant at which he sang them

'Can it be,' said he, 'that you have heard this roundel sung by a minstrel.'

'Nothing is more true,' replied the Lady Claude; 'and it was no longer too than yester-eve.'

'Were you then at the Festival of the Rose in the village below?' asked he, with increasing anxiety

'That she was, I'll be sworn,' said the Count Raimond, who had let an unobserved witness of this conversation; 'and by the same token she was herself the Queen of the Rose as truly as you are the Count de Besancour.'

Gui turned round; a few words sufficed to explain to him the cause of his delusion, and a short, but sincere, apology ensured his pardon. It need not be added that he gave up all thoughts of the Spanish expedition. A few weeks saw him the happy husband of the Rose Queen; and although, at the present time, the Festival of the Rose is annually celebrated at Allifere, never has there been a fairer candidate for the prize than the lovely Claude.

FALL'S ARRIVALS.

AT THE SIGN OF THE GOLDEN TEA CHEST.

THOS. CARFRAE, JUN.

RESPECTFULLY informs his Friends and the Public, that he has just received, and now offers for Sale, at his Store, (next door to the Methodist Chapel,) a well selected assortment of new and fashionable,

DRY GOODS,

Of this Fall's importation; also, a choice assortment of Groceries, together with a great variety of other Articles too numerous to detail in an Advertisement.

N.B.—T. C. has received a great variety of English, French, and German Toys; also, a small assortment of Jewellery, all of which will be sold at a much reduced price for cash. x 19

MEDICAL PATNERSHIP.—Doctor Widmer finding his professional engagements much extended of late, and occasionally too arduous for one person, has been induced to enter into partnership with Doctor Diehl, a respectable practitioner, late of Montreal.

It is expected that their united exertions will prevent in future any disappointment to Dr. Widmer's friends, both in Town and Country.

Dr. Diehl's residence is at present at Mr. Hayes's Boarding-house.

York, October 28, 1828. c. 21.

NOTICE.—To be sold, by Public Auction, on Tuesday the 18th November, 1828, at Eleven o'clock in the forenoon, in the Garrison at this Post, a quantity of condemned Barrack Bedding, Furniture, Utensils, &c. &c. &c.

☞ Sale to continue until the whole is sold.'

H. MOSLEY,
Auctioneer.
P. HARTNEY,
Barrack Master.

York, 28th October, 1828. n. 21

JOHN MURCHISON, Draper and Tailor respectfully informs his friends and customers that he has just received from London, a choice assortment of extra, fine and superfine West of England Broad Cloths and Cassimeres; consisting of Blue, Black, Scarlet, Green, Olive, Brown, Grey, Drab and Corbeau, Single and Double Milled Cassimeres; do. Double Milled Broad Cloths for Great Coats, and vestings of every description, which he is ready to make up to order at short notice, in good style, and on the lowest terms possible. Gentlemen wishing any thing in his line may depend upon being faithfully served.

N.B. He has also a number of Military Articles to dispose of on reasonable terms.

York, July 28, 1828. sn. 8

WINES.

A CARD.—Mr. Hawkins, Wine Merchant, of Quebec, offers for Sale a few Cases of excellent Port Wine, just received from Quebec.

Mr. Hawkins will be happy to receive orders from such gentlemen as are disposed to secure a supply of Genuine Wines, to be delivered early in the Spring at York and at Niagara.

Orders addressed to Mr. Hawkins, at Howard's Hotel, till Tuesday next, and afterwards at the office of this paper, will meet with attention.

York, September 26th, 1828. sn 15

STEAM-BOAT HOTEL, York, U. C.—The Proprietor of this elegant Establishment, now installed in this part of the country, being desirous of retiring from Public business, on account of ill-health in his family, will let the same for a term of years to be agreed on, either with or without the Furniture, &c.

The Establishment is now too well known to require comment.

N. B. Security will be required for the payment of the rent, and the fulfilment of the contract in every respect.

Apply to the Subscriber on the premises,

U. HOWARD.

York, October 8th, 1828. t 19

FOR SALE, OR TO LET.—A Two Story House, in the Town of York, on the North side of Dutchess Street, opposite Mr. Allan's new Brick Building, and in rear of Chief Justice Campbell's. There is a good Cellar Kitchen to the House, and attached to the Premises, which contain one-fifth of an Acre, is a Garden—a good Well of Water—Stable—Out-Houses, &c.—Apply to

Mr. S. P. JARVIS.

York, 16th Oct. 1828. x 19

THE CANADA COMPANY.

NOTICE is hereby given, that no person is authorised to order any goods or articles on account of the Canada Company, but only the Superintendant, Accountant, and Warden, and even by them the Orders must be in writing, and signed.

JOHN GALT,
Superintendant.

Canada Company's Office, }
Guelph, 16th Oct. 1828. }

NOTICE.—Having seen in the Canadian Freeman of yesterday an Advertisement of "A Farm to Let,"—signed, "John Lynch, Blacksmith to the Canada Company, Guelph."—I hereby give notice, that I know of no such person in the employment of the Canada Company.

JOHN GALT,
Superintendant.

Canada Company's Office, }
York, 24th October 1828. } x 20

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

THE Canada Steam-Packet for the remainder of the Season, will leave York and Niagara, alternate days, at Ten o'clock—Sundays not excepted.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner.

York, Sept. 29, 1828. x 17

PUBLIC NOTICE.—I require due notice to be given to me or to my Agent, Mr. Alexander Murray, at Mr. Proudfoot's Store, in York, of all transfers of Property in the Steam-Packet Canada, in default whereof I shall consider the original Stockholder, as the legal Owner in the Vessel; and in paying dividends and doing other transactions connected with my situation, hold myself accountable to them alone. HUGH RICHARDSON,

Master and Managing Owner of the Steam Packet Canada.

York, 27th December, 1827. 51tf.

N. B.—With Mr. A. Murray, reference may be had to all Books and accounts connected with the Canada Steam Packet.

THOMAS MOORE.—TAILOR, King Street, York, Meighan's Buildings, (opposite the Market Place.) Begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has just opened, and offers for Sale, a choice assortment of Goods, Selected by himself at the Manufactories in England, which he can recommend as being of choice quality, consisting of, Superfine, Blue; Black, Scarlet; Green; Olive; Grey and Drab, West of England Broad Cloths.—Black, Blue and Grey. Double and single Milled Kerseymeres. Forest Cloths. Lasting and Corduroys.—Beverteens; Fustians; Cantons. Jane; Drab, and Striped Brown Drills. Fine Welsh Flannel; White and Blue Flannel. White and Grey Cottons. London printed Calicoes and Chintzes. Fancy Vestings. Printed Muslins. Sewing Silk; Twist; Thread and Rich Gilt Buttons.

MILITARY EQUIPMENTS,

consisting of, Regulation Swords; Patent Leather Regulation Waist Belts, with rich Gilt clasps. Rich Gold Full-lion Epaulletts, crimson Silk Regulation Sashes.—Rich Gold Velvet Lace, and Gilt British Militia Buttons. Red. White and Green, Regulation Feathers, with rich Gilt Tubes for do.

The whole of which will be disposed of on reasonable terms, or made up to order, agreeable to the latest fashions, at the shortest notice.

York, 14th July, 1828. x 6

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

LAKE Ontario Steam-Boat, NIAGARA, Captain Mosier, with Daniel Read, Sailing Master, Will, after the 15th inst., leave Niagara for Kingston, Brockeville, and Prescott, every Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

On her return, will leave Prescott for Brockville, Kingston, York, and Niagara, every Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made with Messrs. Norton, & Co., Stage Proprietors, by which, passengers going down, arrive in Montreal on Tuesday evening; and those proceeding upwards, will, by leaving Montreal on Tuesday, arrive in time at Prescott to take the Boat.

York. June 6th, 1828. x 1.

HALF-PAY AFFIDAVITS, of the latest form, for Sale at the Gazette Office.

TO SAWYERS.—Wanted immediately an experienced Sawyer, and an assistant to take charge of a Mill that has a constant supply of water; and in other respects particularly well situated.—None need apply, who cannot give sufficient references as to character and ability.

Further information on application to Messrs. WRAGG & Co. King-street York. x 11

CHAIN CABLES, &c.—Acraman's Patent Chain Cables, and Anchors, (warranted proved by Machine) a constant supply kept on hand (in stock) of all sizes, by JOHN WATKINS, Kingston, and a. Montreal and Quebec by

WILLIAM BUDDEN.

July, 30, 1827. 11-tf.

Home District, } NOTICE is hereby given, that
York, to wit: } a Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the Home District, will be holden at the Court House, in the Town of York, on Tuesday the 18th day of November next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, of which all Justices of the Peace, and those otherwise concerned, are desired to take notice, that they be then there present with their Rolls, Records, and other Memoranda, to do and perform those things which to their several Offices belong.—NOTICE is also hereby given, that a Home District Court will be holden at the Town of York, on Tuesday the 18th of November next, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, of which all Constables and Bailiffs, and those otherwise concerned, are desired to take notice, that they be there in their own proper persons to do and perform those things which to their several Offices belong, and appertain in that behalf to be done.

W. B. JARVIS,
Sheriff.

Sheriff's Office, York, }
25th Oct. 1828. } n 21

WHOLESALE and RETAIL GROCERY STORE.—The Subscriber respectfully informs the Inhabitants of York and its vicinity, that he has opened a Store in the above line, on the Corner of Church and Palace Streets, where he is now ready to serve them with the choicest articles in and at very low prices. The following are a few of the articles in his line, viz:—

O. L. P. Madeira,	London Porter,
F. Madeira,	Teas of all descriptions,
L. M. Do.	D. R. Loaf Sugar,
Prime Port,	S. R. Loaf Sugar,
Second do.	Muscovado do.
Sherry,	East India do.
Cognac Brandy,	Mace, Cloves,
Bordeaux do.	Cinnamon, Nutmegs,
H. Gin,	Alspice, Black Pepper,
Jamaica Spirits,	White Pepper,
Peppermint,	Mustard in Jars, ¼, ½ & lbs.
Shrub,	Isinglass, Arrow Root,
White Wine Vinegar,	Macaroni, Vermicilli,
Lamejuice,	Curry Powder,
Molasses,	Raisins, Figs,
Olive Oil for Lamps,	Starch, Blue,
Linseed do.	Tobacco, Pipes, Blacking.
London Brown Stout,

And a variety of articles in the Grocery line.

JAMES F. SMITH.

York, 17th September. 1828. sn. 15

NOTICE.—Whereas Mr. David Gilkison has absented himself from his business here for the last three months, without having made any communication to his partner either before or since his departure.—Notice is hereby given, that he is not abroad on any business relating to the firm, nor can he while absent have any business to transact on its account, and therefore no securities signed by him in the name of the firm will be acknowledged or paid; he having no power to bind it for his private debts or transactions.

D. GILKISON & Co.

Guelph, 15th Sept. 1828. n 20

JEWELLERY.—The Subscriber most respectfully informs the Inhabitants of York and its Vicinity, that on the 1st of November next, he intends opening an assortment of Jewellery, in the Store now occupied by Mr. J. R. Armstrong, which will be disposed of at Montreal prices.

All kinds of Clocks and Watches carefully Repaired.

From the experience of years in the City of London in his Business, he feels confident of giving the utmost satisfaction to all who please to favor him with their commands.

☞ Piano Fortes, Tuned and Repaired.

S. O. TAZEWELL.

6th October, 1828. x 20

PARCHMENT DEEDS,
For Sale at the Gazette Office, York.

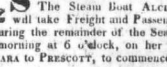
A LOAN WANTED.—The Subscribers, desirous of making some further improvements, wish to obtain a Loan of £300, for three years, for which will be given in security, a Paper and Grist Mill, Saw Mill, Distillery, and 200 Acres of Land, free of all incumbrance, situated within three miles of York.

EASTWOOD & SKINNER.

Oct. 23rd, 1828. f 20

THE Subscriber has just received on consignment, which he offers for Sale low, and on a liberal credit.

2 Pipes Prime Port Wine,
1 " L. P. Teneriffe,
1 Case Superior Claret.



JAMES F. SMITH.

20th October, 1828. c 20

JUST PUBLISHED, and for Sale at the Office of the Loyalist, York, U. C., by Robert Stanton,—The Upper Canada Almanac, and Farmers Calendar, for the year 1829.

☞ Price 2s. 6½d. per dozen.—Orders with a remittance, duly attended to, and parcels forwarded agreeable to directions.

September 6. 1828. 17

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.—The Steam Boat Alcopit, will take Freight and Passengers from this Port during the remainder of the Season, every Saturday morning at 6 o'clock, on her way down from Niagara to Prescott, to commence tomorrow.

York, 29th August, 1828. x. 13

STRAY COWS.—Came into the inclosure of the Subscriber, about three weeks since,—Two Cows—one a red Cow, with a small Star in her forehead, and a Bell on.—The other a small Brindle and white spotted. The owners are requested to prove property, pay charges, and take them away.

MOSES CHERRY,
No. 12, East side Yonge-Street, Township of York.

4th September, 1828. x. 13

ELIGIBLE SITUATION—To be sold, Lots numbers 29 & 30 in the first concession of the Township of Scarborough with their broken fronts on Lake Ontario, situate about Seven miles from the Town of York.—On Lot No. 29, are erected a Log and a Frame House together with outhouses &c. These premises are now in the possession of Mr. Adna Bates, and are an eligible Situation for a Tavern.

Application to be made to C. C. SMALL Esq.

York, 20th August, }
1828. } x 11

FOR SALE,—Lot No. 12, and East half of 14 in the 3d Concession of the Township of York, West of Yonge-Street,—300 Acres,—the property of Major W. G. White.—Refer to Robert Stanton, Esquire, U. C. Gazette Office.

York, 4th July, 1828. x. 5

NOTICE.—All persons having claims upon the Estate of the late Stephen Heward, Esquire, of York, deceased, are requested to present the same properly authenticated to the Hon. P. Robinson, one of the Executors, without delay; and all persons indebted to the said Estate are requested to make payment to the said Executor.

York, September 15, 1828. x. 15

FOR SALE.—By the Subscriber, 100 Barrels PLAISTER OF PARIS, of the very best quality, low for Cash

WILLIAM BERGIN.

York, September 19, 1828. x. 15

THE SUBSCRIBER begs leave to inform his friends and the public that he has purchased the Store-House, Wharf, &c. lately the property of William Cooper, Esq'r, in this Town, where he will receive, store, and sell, on Commission, on the most reasonable terms, all descriptions of produce or merchandize, with which he may be favored.

The Buildings are extensive and convenient, being at the head of the Wharf, where all vessels which come into the Bay, principally discharge and take in their cargoes. He flatters himself that the care and attention of the person superintending the Wharf and Store, will give general satisfaction.

There will be for sale a constant supply of Pork, Flour, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Peas, Salt, and Whiskey, also Stoves, Potash Kettles, Coolers, Sugar Kettles, a variety of castings and Grindstones.

The Subscriber has also for sale upwards of 2500 Acres unimproved Lands of superior quality, in the most flourishing Townships, and convenient to York, which he will sell very low and on easy terms to actual settlers.

WM. BERGIN.

York, February 28th, 1828. 41tf.

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.

NOTICE is hereby given, that Tenders will be received at this Office until Noon of Monday the 10th day of November next, from such person or persons (Butchers by trade) as may be desirous of Contracting for the supply of FRESH BEEF for the Troops, Staff, Departments &c. at this Post for the period of Twelve months, Viz., from the 25th December next to the 24th December 1829 inclusive.

The Tenders must express the rate in Sterling, (the dollar at 4s. 4d.) Per One hundred Pounds.

Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed "Tender for Fresh Beef."

It is requested that the persons intending to propose, will call at this Office and make themselves acquainted with the Terms and Conditions of the Contract, and obtain the Form of Tender, previous to the day of delivering in the same.

ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.

Commissariat Office, }
York, 10th October, 1828. } t 18

GOVERNMENT CONTRACT.

NOTICE is hereby given, that Tenders will be received at this Office, until Noon of Monday the 10th day of November next, from such person or persons (Bakers by trade) as may be desirous of Contracting for the supply of BREAD, for the Troops, Staff, Departments, &c. at this Post, for the period of Twelve months, Viz. from the 25th December next to the 24th December 1829 inclusive.

The Tenders must express the rate in Sterling, (the dollar at 4s. 4d.) Per One hundred Pounds, and the Individuals tendering must be present at the opening of the Tenders, and produce a Sample of the quality of Bread which they intend to supply.

Two respectable persons will be required as Security, whose real Signatures must be affixed to the Tender, which is to be sealed and endorsed, "Tenders for Bread."

It is requested that the persons intending to propose, will call at this Office, and make themselves acquainted with the Terms and Conditions of the Contract, and obtain the Form of Tender, previous to the day of delivering in the same.

ISAAC BLACKBURN,
D. A. C. G.

Commissariat Office, }
York, 10th October, 1828. } t 18

TO LET, and possession given immediately, the House and lots lately occupied by Dr. Horne—Inquire of Mr. ALLAN.

York, October, 1828. y 16

LANDS FOR SALE.—In the Township of Hallowell, Lot No. 46, 3d Concession, North-west side of the Carrying-Place, - - - Acres. 200

In the Township of Cramahe—
Lots No. 17, 18, & 19, 3d Con. } - - 300
do. 15, 4th do. }

In the Town ship of Hamilton—
Broken Lots, 29 & 30, 9th Con. } - - 276
27, 28, 29, 31, 32, 34, & 35, 10th do. }
North-east quarter, No. 1, 4th do. - - 50

In the Township of Clarke—
Lots No. 16, 17 & 18, Broken Fronts } - - 2000
16, 17, & 18, 1st Con. }
17, & 18, 2d do. }
17, & 18, 3d do. }

In the Township of Darlington—
Lot No. 2, 3d Con. } - - 400
2, 4th do. }

In the Township of Pickering—
Lots No. 16, 17, & half of 18, 1st Con. } - - 300
and Broken Fronts. }

In the Township of York—
Lot No. 37, 3d Con. - - 200

In the Township of Gainsborough—
Broken Lot No. 27, 3d & 4th Con. - - 74

Apply to ANDREW MERCER

ALLIANCE BRITISH AND FOREIGN
Life and Fire Assurance Company,
OF LONDON.
(Capital—Five Millions Sterling.)

THE Subscriber having been appointed Agent to the above Company, at York, he is ready to Insure against loss or damage by Fire at moderate rates of Premium. The high standing of this Institution in England, and the Company allowing their Agents in Montreal to settle losses in this Country, with the Assured participating in the Profits of the Company, renders it worthy of Public Confidence.

R. W. PRENTICE.

York, November 15th, 1826. 25.

Summary.

It is with the deepest concern and regret we have to state that the Countess of Errol has been for some days seriously indisposed at his Lordship's residence in Fitzwilliam-square.—Dublin Evening Post.

Deaths by Mushrooms.—John Price, aged 37, a shoemaker, of Wareham, gathered on Sunday last, in a shady lane under trees, a large quantity of mushrooms, which were stewed the following morning for his family to partake of at breakfast, and of which he ate very heartily. His wife took about a spoonful, and not relishing it, would ate no more; his eldest son, about 8 years of age, ate also a large quantity of it: his younger children tasted, but refused to eat of the deadly dish. About five hours afterwards the father and son became very sick and uncomfortable, violent vomiting took place shortly after accompanied by great pain of the stomach and bowels, intense thirst, numbness, drowsiness, convulsions followed, and death ensued to the former in forty-six, to the latter in thirty-six hours after partaking of the fatal meal.—The mother, though made very sick and ill, is in a fair way of recovery. The true mushroom (Agaricus Campestr's) is found only in meadows and pastures. —Dorset Chronicle.

Five Jews, who have been converted to the Christian Faith, within the city of London, have transmitted to Mr. Peel, for presentation to his Majesty, a superb copy of the Prayer-book of the Church of England. It was accompanied with the following inscription.—"To his most gracious Majesty King George the Fourth, this book of common prayer is humbly presented as a token in some degree adequate to the Love, and as a Christian testimony of their high veneration for the liturgy of the Church of England, and of their loyalty to their beloved Sovereign, by five Jews, convinced of the truth of Christianity."—Eng. Paper.

From Gibraltar.—According to the daily statement of the Inspector of the Hospitals, made up on the 14th, it appears that the whole number of cases of fever, which occurred at Gibraltar, among the military and civil population, from the 31st of August to the 10th September, was 121, of which 28 proved fatal On the 11th, there were 106 cases in the Hospitals, 5 serious, 51 slight, and 32 convalescent. The fever first made its appearance the latter part of August in the garrison.

The brig Garnet, Torrey, had been chartered for 3 months, for the purpose of lying in the bay as a refuge for people avoiding the contagion. The Spanish authorities in the vicinity had established a CORDON SANITAIRE, to prevent communication by land with Spain. At Malaga and other Spanish ports, vessels from Gibraltar were not permitted to enter.

TARIFF OF TOBACCO.—The Emperor of China has prohibited "the filth used for smoking," from being imported into the celestial empire.

On the 19th ult. 9 gunpowder mills in the neighbourhood of Neisse, in Silesia, blew up with a dreadful explosion. The report was heard at an immense distance, and several houses of the town were damaged.—The greater part of the workmen were able fortunately to escape.

Further specimens of paper manufactured from rye straw continue to be produced. The Editor of the Philadelphia Daily Chronicle says that one which he has received unites great strength, and superior in flexibility to the paper commonly used for the same purposes. This must be a manufacture worthy of attention.—Cotton paper is an abominable substance to write upon, if any substitute can be found that is not too costly.

England.

ENGLAND.

Governor Valdez has arrived at Falmouth from Madeira.

The report that has been universally circulated of Mr. Croker retiring from the Secretaryship of the Admiralty, and his being succeeded by Mr. Hay, of the Colonial Office, is believed to have been premature. It is yet undetermined, (says the Standard,) whether Mr. Croker continues in the situation he has so long filled at the Admiralty, or whether he retires from his public services.

The number of Portuguese Refugees which had arrived at Plymouth up to the 19th of September, exceeded two thousand.

The young Queen of Portugal had not arrived in England on the 24th. She was expected at Falmouth.

WHITEHALL, Sept. 17.

The King has been pleased to direct Letters Patent to be passed under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, constituting and appointing the Right Honble. Robert Viscount Melville, K. T.; the Right Honble. Sir George Cockburn, G. C. B. and Vice-Admiral of the White Squadron of His Majesty's Fleet; the Hon. Sir Henry Hotham, K. C. B. and Vice-Admiral of the Blue Squadron of His Majesty's Fleet; Sir George Clerk, Bart.; & George Charles Pratt, Esq., (commonly called Earl of Brecknock;) His Majesty's Commissioners for executing the office of High Admiral of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the dominions, Islands, and territories thereunto belonging.

The King has been pleased to direct Letters Patent to be passed under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, constituting and appointing Edward Lord Ellenborough, the Right Hon. Robert Peel, George Earl of Aberdeen, K. T., the Right Hon. Sir George Murray, G. C. B., His Majesty's three Principal Secretaries of State; Arthur Duke of Wellington, K. G. First Commissioner of His Majesty's Treasury; the Right Hon. Henry Goulborn, Chancellor of the Exchequer; Thomas Lord Wallace, the Right Hon. John Sullivan, Anthony Ashley Cooper, Esq., (commonly called Lord Ashley,) the Right Hon. James Graham, (commonly called the Marquess of Graham,) Lawrence Peel, Esq., and the Right Hon. Thomas Peregrine Courtenay, His Majesty's Commissioners for the affairs of India.

LONDON, Sept. 23.—There has been scarcely any thing done in the Money Market to-day. Consols, however, are a shade better.—For the Account they left off yesterday at 82; they are now at 83 to 83⅛; for Money they are at 83.—Exchequer Bills and India Bonds continue about stationary.

Mr. Secretary Croker is to leave the Admiralty, and Mr. Hay, formerly Private Secretary to Lord Melville, will succeed him. Captain the Hon. Richard S. Dundas is to be Lord Melville's Private Secretary.—Morning Herald, Sept. 29.

THE MINISTRY AND THE ADMIRALTY.—Lord Melville has at last, after reiterated refusals to accept that office, succeeded the Duke of Clarence as the Head of the Navy—the department, as formerly, to consist of a First Lord of the Admiralty and four other Lords. Lord Ellenborough succeeds Lord Melville at the Board of Control. These arrangements are positively announced in the Courier of the 11th of September.

Manchester, September 20.—We are happy to give a better account of business this week, than we were able to do at the time of our last publication. For most kinds of goods, both in the gray and finished state, there has been an improved demand, which has entirely obliterated the effect of the partial dullness noticed in our last. The harvest in Ireland being over, and having on the whole been got favourable, a considerable number of Irish buyers have been in the market this week, whose purchases have been extensive. There is also an improved demand for goods for the German markets, which is stated to be to a considerable extent owing to the large purchases of corn made for France. Twist for shipping continues in fair request, without any particular change in prices.

THE HARVEST WEATHER, &c.

Leeds, Sept. 20.—The present moon, usually called "the harvest moon," will see the greatest part of the grain in the north of England secured. The weather of this week has been auspicious in the highest degree for the labours of the husbandman; in this part of Yorkshire we have not had a shower since Sunday, and on Tuesday and Wednesday the barometer stood at a higher point than it had ever before attained during the whole of the present summer. Under such circumstances the late harvest cannot, with ordinary diligence, fail to be well secured, and it will compensate for any injury which the first harvest sustained. Taking the average of the whole of the United Kingdom, we may venture to say that the crops have been well gathered.—Leeds Mercury.

Scotland.

Perth.—The weather has undergone a favourable alteration since our last, and with the exception of a few fields of oats and beans which are still out, the crops may be said to be completed in this neighborhood. Such it by no means the case, however, on late soils, & throughout the Highlands generally, where many labourers have returned from the south country within the last 10 days, to commence their own harvest operations. Oats and barley, the only grain crops in the Highlands, and which have proved remarkably abundant crops throughout Scotland, are particularly so in the Highlands; even on light and poor soils, the produce will average from eight to ten bolls an acre. On our best carse lands the average will not exceed ten. We have had some sharp frost during the nights this week, but not so much as to affect the growth of the potatoes or turnips; the latter are swelling finely, and of both the present appearance of the crops is both healthy and luxuriant.

CHURCHES IN THE HIGHLANDS AND ISLANDS.—The fourth report of the Commissioners for building Churches in the Highlands and Islands of Scotland, states, that the number of new Churches with manses which been certified to Government, and to which Ministers have been appointed, is 35; of new manses completed and now ready for inspection is 18, together with Ardgour Church, which does not require a manse, as being under the charge of the minister of Ballachulish.

At Oban, on Friday last, there was a grand sailing match, at which much naval talent was shown, and pleasure experienced, till towards the close, when one boat belonging to a party of ten, having sails up, and using their oars, striving for a prize, had their boat upset and sunk. The men floated till they were picked up by two other boats, who reached the place just in time to save their lives. A grand ball was in the evening to about 500 ladies and gentlemen, among whom were the heads of clans of the west Highlands—M'Donalds, M'Leans, M'Intyres, M'Colls, M'Innises, M'Tavishes, M'Millans, M'Lauchlans, M'Dougalls, Sinclairs, and others. The town of Oban had never such a turn out. Beds had been bespoken 14 days previously. Some of the company came upwards of 100 miles to be present on the occasion.

Mr. P. Buchan, of Peterhead, has announced a work connected with the early history of the "North Country," —namely, a collection of hitherto unpublished ballads and songs of the North of Scotland. He is said to have submitted his materials to the inspection of Sir Walter Scott, and Charles Kirkpatrick Sharp, Esq., who speak of them in terms of commendation.

Foreign Intelligence.

FRANCE.

French Marine.—Great activity has been lately noticed in the French Marine. Besides the expeditions fitted out at Toulon, in the port of Lorient not less than five first rate vessels and four frigate were on the stocks. The Algesiras, a beautiful ship, has just been finished; and on the 25th August a superb frigate, of 60 guns, called the Herminie, was launced at that port, and was preparing for sea. At Rouen two armed steam vessels, of 600 tons burthen each, were fitting out with great dispatch; and orders have been given for the building of new vessels at Bysonne.

TOULON, Sept. 12.—[Private letters.]—A third expedition is preparing which will set out about the 20th or 30th of this month. Report says it will be more considerable than the others, and several foreign vessels have been hired as transports. Great exertions also are making in our arsenals.

SPAIN.

The London Sun of the evening of the 23d says, we can positively assure our readers that the long pending negotiations respecting the British and Spanish claims have at length been definitively adjusted; the amount has been settled, and the mode of payment arranged. It now only remains for the Spanish Government to raise the money, which we hear is about one million sterling.

RUSSIA AND TURKY.

From the London Courier of Sept. 23.

Every arrival from the seat of war brings additional confirmation of the important intelligence we communicated last Saturday. We have this morning some details of these recent operations in the East, though they are not communicated in the shape of Bulletins; none having been published since those which were contained in our Paper of the 6th, and which brought down accounts only to the 11th of August from Varna, the 7th of August from before Choumla, and the 27th July from before Silistria.

A new expedition is preparing at Odessa and Sebastopol, which is destined against Bourgas, with a view of accelerating a amovement against Adrianople. But the Berlin accounts seem inclined to believe that, as the campaign is so far advanced, and the navigation of the Black Sea will soon become dangerous, the Russians will do nothing more at present than attempt to maintain their positions. Some persons, however, are of opinion that the Emperor Nicholas will adopt the daring plan of Buonaparte, and, leaving all the fortresses in the rear, pour down with an immense force from the Balkan Mountains into the plain of Adrianople, and push on to the capital. Military men, however, do not seem inclined to think such a plan advisable at so late a period of the year.

We have no further intelligence from Varna, Widdin, or Silistria.

The Empress of Russia was expected to leave Odessa shortly, and return to St. Petersburgh.

Trieste, Sept. 6.—Admiral Codrington was said to have gone to Alexandria. Nobody could guess the object of his voyage. English, French, Russian couriers are now at Ancona, ready to convey despatches to Corfu from their Governments to that island.—Algemeine Zeitung, Sept. 14.

Bucharest, Aug. 25.—The Russians under the orders of General Geismar, having been attacked by superior forces, were obliged to retire towards Crajova, abandoning their camps and magazines. The Russian General having immediately collected all the forces at his disposal, has, it is said, succeeded in escaping from the Turks; but we are not the less uneasy on that account, taking into consideration that the Russian force in Little Wallachia is far from numerous.

Couriers have been despatched to Jassy, to make known this offensive movement of the Turks, which has been seconded by the sorties of the garrisons of Silistria and Giurgevo.

It is asserted that the reinforcements, which were on their march before this occurrence, amount to 30,000 men, and that they will arrive on the 6th of September. It is not as yet said that Silistria is bombarded, but the fortress is invested on all sides.

The Turks succeeded, for the first time, during their last sortie, in breaking a Russian square.

Sir Pulteney Malcolm has arrived at Navarino on board an English ship of the line, to take the command of the English naval force in the Mediterranean, but Sir E. Codrington had departed some days before.

Vienna, Sept. 10.—We are still without any details of the late events before Varna, but it is generally believed that they have been unfavourable to the Russians.

It is affirmed that the Captain Pacha has orders to defend the fortress to the utmost, and not to accept of any capitulation however honourable.

Deplorable state of Greece.—An article from Zante gives the following account of the present state of Greece: —"It is impossible to form any idea of the miserable state of Greece, after more than six years of devastation. From Janina (which is now nothing more than a few cabins, under the cannon of the Castle on the Lake, lately repaired by the Turks,) to Thermopylæ, there does not exist a single village. The flocks are consumed, the lands lie uncultivated, and the few Christians who yet remain in Thessaly, are daily destroyed by the sword, by famine, or by sickness. Boeotia and Beotia are reduced to deserts, and the only inhabitants of Attica are those in the Acropolis, of which the Mahomedans have taken possession, resolved to bury themselves in the ruins rather than capitulate. The Morea is equally desolate, and Ibrahim Pacha, in retiring, leaves the country a prey to ruin and anarchy."

From the Courier of 19th September.

INTELLIGENCE FROM BEFORE CHOUMLA. ODESSA, AND CONSTANTINOPLE.

We have received intelligence from the above places and the quarter from which we received it enables us to say that the greatest reliance may be placed upon its accuracy.

The Emperor Nicholas, as we announced yesterday, sailed from Odessa on the 2d, on his return to his army. Lord Heytesbury did not accompany or follow his Imperial Majesty, who, however, has placed a frigate at his Lordship's disposal whenever it may be deemed necessary for him to repair to the Imperial head-quarters, to communicate with his Imperial Majesty. The other Ambassadors, who are military men, were to follow the Emperor in two or three days.

General Ivanoff is dead of the wounds he received.

The Turks have made a desperate sortie from Choumla, in which they had the advantage. They succeeded in destroying three of the Russian redoubts; the Russians who occupied them were all cut to pieces in the sanguinary conflict. Eight guns were taken, and we lament to add that Gen. Wrede, a brave and distinguished officer, was killed.

The loss of the Turks was, as may well be supposed, considerable.

There was sickness in the army, and it was feared that it was on the increase, the weather having been so hot, and a great scarcity of water.

The accounts which have arrived from Constantinople are of the 25th and 26th August.

The Grand Vizier left Constantinople on the 20th, and was to proceed to Choumla direct, with 40,000 men.

SORTIE FROM WIDDIN.

We have extracted the news in the German Papers to the 13th instant, by which arrived this morning, and in the Paris Papers of Tuesday and Wednesday. The latter informs us that a Messenger arrived on Monday night, at the office of the Minister for Foreign Affairs, with despatches from the Duke de Montemart, at Odessa, which were of an unfavourable nature. The same Papers mention, from Bucharest, the 26th ult., that the reinforcements for the Russian Army were only fifteen hours' march from that city, and it was hoped that they would check the incursions of the Turks into Little Wallachia. An article from Crajova, of the 22d, declares that they are on the Danube queuey, the Grand Seignior having succeeded in making the Turks retire into the camp of Kalafat.—But another article from Bucharest mentions nothing about these reinforcements, but adds, that the Russians having been attacked by superior forces, were obliged to retire towards Crajova, abandoning their camp and magazines. A postscript to the article informs us that news from Crajova had just arrived, to announce that the Pacha of Widdin, having destroyed the preparations made by the Russians for crossing the Danube and undertaking the siege of Widdin, and having received a large quantity of provisions, had returned to Widden. Such is the substance of the intelligence in the Paris Papers.—The German, which arrived this morning, contain a letter from Vienna of the 7th, stating that—

"The Russians are said to have sustained a severe loss (4,000 men, as report goes) by the late sally of the Turkish garrison at Widden."

"We receive the most satisfactory accounts here of the intention of the Emperor Nicholas to conclude peace.— Far from wishing to violate the integrity of the Turkish Empire, he requires no more than satisfaction for affronts offered him in the circular to the Ayares, and the necessary securities for the future. But, considering the unceasing military ardour of the Turks, it is to be feared they will not listen even to the most moderate proposals, and that the war may therefore be protracted.

* "The Austrian Observer gives a letter from Hermonstadt of 26th of August, which says that the Russians, having been obliged on the 18th, to abandon their camp at Golenz, and to retreat to their fortified frontier at Czori, were attacked there on the 19th, but succeeded in maintaining their position. In the first camp, however, the Turks had taken 10,000 akas of biscuit, 40,000 akas of corn, large magazines of hay, and a great quantity of timber, rafts, and small vessels, which appear to have been intended for effecting the passage of the Danube, besides many thousand oxen."

The Three Powers as stated some time ago, are expected to issue a joint Declaration as soon as the French expedition has landed in the Morea. It will explain the ground upon which the expedition has been undertaken, and the object it professes to accomplish.—Courier.

LONDON, Sept. 23.

12 o'clock.—At Navarin the French have take possession of the forts.

A telegraphic despatch from Toulon of the 12th September, announced that the first convoy of the expedition to the Morea arrived on the 29th August in the morning, and the second in the evening. The troops were to be disembarked at Calamata.

The young Soult, staff officer, son of the Marshal Duke of Dalmatia, has set out for the army, he is particularly attached to the Marquis de Maison, commander of the expedition. The young officer, distinguished by his studies and his acquirements, full of fire, burning with ardour, and desirous of doing well, has solicited and obtained the honour of taking part in the expedition to the Morea. He will know how to distinguish himself, to follow the footsteps of his father, and to show himself worthy of bearing the name of a great General.

PORTUGAL.

The intention of sending the Queen of Portugal direct to Genoa, and from thence to Vienna, has been abandoned; Her Majesty is coming to this country, and may be expected at Falmouth immediately. Indeed it was said in the City that she had actually arrived. The Marquis de Palmella, and Viscount Itabayana, are gone to Falmouth to receive Her Majesty.—Courier.

We understand that orders have been transmitted from the proper Departments of the Government to the Ports in the Channel, to receive the Queen of Portugal, on her arrival, with all the honours usually paid to Crowned Heads; and that Lord Clinton, one of the Lords of His Majesty's Bedchamber, and Sir Wm. Fremantle, Treasurer of the Household, have been ordered to be in attendance upon her Majesty.—ib.

United States.

Last evening, at the Bowery Theatre, after Mrs. Knight had poured forth some of her sweetest notes, one of the Winnebago chiefs, plucked an eagle's feather from his head-dress, and sent it to her by the book-keeper, directing him to tell her that she was a "mocking bird squaw." The comparison of the chief was just, as his admiration was characteristically and beautifully expressed. We have the anecdote from a gentleman who witnessed the circumstance.—N. Y. Spectator.

In consequence of the losses sustained by the principal lines on the Erie Canal, by running their boats through the late fall, the proprietors have resolved to withdraw their horses from the canal on the 10th day of November.—ib.

About 700 feet of the pier, for improving the harbor of Oswego, which is not yet completed, was carried away on the night of the 13th inst. The contractor will probably be ruined by the misfortune.

Central America.—An informant of the N. Y. Gazette who left the province of Nicaragua in the beginning of August, states that on the 30th July, an engagement took place between the troops of Guatemalian party and the Grenadian or St. Salvador troops. The former, as was reported, amounted to 500 tolerably well disciplined men, and the latter to 2,000, of whom about 1500 were raw Indians. The Grenadians were beaten with the loss of 300 men, and all their military stores.

The account of a conclusion of a treaty of peace with Brazil by the Buenos Ayrean Commissioners, which we mentioned yesterday, does not conform with the letters as late as the 24th, which assert that the Commissioners were not even engaged in discussion on the subject, without having come to any decision, and the result of the negotiation was still considered doubtful.

Death by fire.—We have to record an appalling instance of the death, by fire, of a daughter, aged about 12, of Thomas Lee, merchant tailor of this city. About seven o'clock, on Sunday evening, as she was sitting in a rocking chair, in the second story of her father's house, in Daniels St. and as supposed, asleep, she fell over the fender into the fire, and the flames caught her clothes. She instantly ran up stairs into the third story, where was a girl about her own age, who was terrified at the alarm, and on seeing the flames, but not having an overcoat at hand to subdue them. As the soonest means of granting relief, he ran down a pump near by, but stumbled and fell. Another gentleman caught her up, and took her to the pump, and a person happening to be there with a pail, the flames were quenched. The agonized being was taken back to the house, and her body presented a most dreadful appearance. Her clothes were almost entirely burnt off, and the skin was also all off, except that on her face. Medical aid was rendered, but at one o'clock, that night, the spirit of the unhappy victim, left its wretched and tortured abode, and winged its way to Heaven.

The mother of the girl, was at this time, on a visit to a sick neighbor's, and the father was absent from town.

Selections.

London, and Liverpool contrasted.—The commerce of London and Liverpool form objects of wonder and envy to the civilized world. The trade of each port is very different in its nature; and thus the tonnage of the one may increase without any difficulty, while that of the other. The Pool of London, indeed the whole course of the river, from Blackwall to the Tower, is perhaps, one of the most splendid spectacles of modern times.— The almost uninterrupted range of warehouses and quays; the East India, the West India, the London, and the St. Katharine's docks; the coasting and other small vessels anchored in the Pool, the long succession of steam-boats arriving from, or departing to, all the ports of the Old and New Worlds: these are circumstances which fill the mind with a sense of the vastness of our commercial wealth and industry. The trade of the port of London has more than doubled within the last thirty years. The port of Liverpool offers a greater accommodation of commercial business of a certain extent more imposing From the magnificent expanse of the Mersey you look upon a quay of about two miles and a half in extent, presenting an uninterrupted succession of docks, and piers, and towering warehouses.— ed successions of docks, and piers, and towering warehouses.— Scotland, and Wales; while ever and anon some stately merchantmen arrives from her long journey across the Atlantic, and rushes into the harbour, like a bird seeking her rest. From one extent of these magnificent docks to the other you may walk without interruption. A merchant in London seldom sees his vessel; but at Liverpool the adventurous speculator harries down from the exchange to the quay, when the distant signal has told him that his ship is coming into the port, and he welcomes her to her home with a proud feeling, which the ordinary coldness of money getting cannot deaden. The new dock, for the completion of which a bill to borrow additional sums was passed in the late session, is a continuation of that splendid line of accommodation for shipping which has been growing with the extraordinary growth of the trade of Liverpool. This single dock has already cost more than a million; and, extensive as the other docks are, it is no common case for vessels to ride in the Mersey, which is often dangerous, from the impossibility of finding other accommodation. The trade of Liverpool has more than doubled within the last twelve years.—The revenue of customs, which this port contributes to the national stock, is four millions annually; and its export trade is the largest in the empire, larger even than that of London.—London Magazine.

Ancient Manuscripts.—M. Champollion, jun., who is about to embark at Marseilles, for Egypt, having inspected a valuable collection of ancient manuscripts in the possession of M. Sallier an inhabitant of Aix, has discovered two rolls of papyrus relating "The History and Wars of the Reign of Sesostris the Great." These manuscripts are dated the ninth year of that Monarch's reign. Sesostris-Rhamses, or the Great, according to the calculations of the German chronologists, lived in the time of Moses, and was the son, as is supposed, of the Pharaoh who perished in the Red Sea, while pursuing the Israelites This remarkable document, which, after a lapse of more than three thousand years, M. Champollion has discovered by a mistake, may contain details, the interest of which will be readily imagined. on some of the grandest incidents of Sacred History. On the 2d instant the Academical Society of Aix received the report of M. Sallier relative to the discovery. A third roll has also been found, treating either on astronomy or astrology, but more probable on both these sciences combined. It has not yet been opened; but it is hoped that it will throw some additional light upon the conception of the heavenly system entertained by the Egyptians and Chaldeans, the first people who devoted themselves to that study.—Paris Paper.

On Wednesday last, Lord and Lady Farnham gave their annual entertainment of every creed receiving the benefits of a religious education at the various schools in the neighborhood of his Lordship's seat, Newtownbarry, County of Wexford. At three o'clock upwards of 300 children—200 girls and upwards of 100 boys—all educated at the expense of his Lordship, sat down to dinner, which was served out by the nobility and gentry, friends of the noble donors, who had assembled on the occasion.

The day was unusually fine, and the scene of the most interesting description. Every person of rank and consequence within ten miles of Newtownbarry was in attendance."—Irish Paper.

GURNEY'S STEAM COACH.

This beautiful specimen of mechanical invention appears at length to be brought to a state of perfection, beyond which we hardly think it possible to make any essential improvement. We had lately an opportunity of witnessing the operation of this machine through the Bloomsbury road, and streets adjacent to the Regent's Park; and we should say its progress could not have been less than at the rate of 12 miles per hour; and in some part of the road, where the rain had not rendered the gravel extremely heavy, the speed of the carriage could not have been less than 14 miles an hour. From the late improvements less than 14 miles an hour. From the late improvements made by Mr. Gurney with a view of producing a uniform supply of water to the boiler. (or rather the steam-generating pipes); and also in order to produce a regular blower or current of air through the fire of the boiler, the difficulties which presented themselves in the earlier stages of the invention to maintain an adequate supply of steam, appear to be completely obviated.

To persons not acquainted with the numerous difficulties which present themselves in bringing any full operation such a complicated piece of machinery, it would be difficult to convey an adequate opinion of the merits of this invention. We have from time to time examined its progress in detail; and we have no hesitation in saying, that the arrangement by which the supply of water to the steam-pipes is effected by Mr. Gurney, is one of the most beautiful specimens of ingenuity we have ever witnessed, among all the curious appplications of the steam-engine, either for stationary purposes, or for propelling vessels. The difficulties are almost insuperable in order to reconcile the necessary power required for propelling a carriage of this kind, with the prejudices or fashion which prevails, with regard to the appearance of a stage-coach. The necessity of consulting appearance has, in fact, greatly added to the difficulties of bringing the invention to perfection, as a vehicle for passengers. But it appears to us that the ingenious inventor has at length vanished all his obstacles, both with regard to maintaining an uniform speed, at discretion, of at least 10 or 11 miles an hour; and, from having the centre of gravity below the longitudinal line of the axles, the risk of overturning seemd to be entirely obviated.

We understand a carriage will be completed to carry passengers, in the environs of London, in three weeks or a month from the present time. Taking into consideration the perfect control of the engine, and the uniformity with which it is now capable of being managed by an ordinary conductor, we should say there was scarcely a possibility of its not ultimately superseding the use of horses in running four-wheel carriages, for the conveyance both of goods and passengers. We believe it is estimated that the expense of conveyance may be reduced to one-half or two-thirds of the present average charge of stage-coaches.

Air Plant.—The gardener of Prince Leopold has lately succeeded in producing the air plant, which was never before known to flower in this country with flowers as in China. The air plant has the wonderful property of living wholly on air, and is suspended by the Chinese from the ceilings of their rooms, which are adorned by its beauty, and perfumed by its fragrance.

Curious Discovery.—It is a fact, as strange as it may seem, that a number of manuscript volumes (we believe 18) undoubtedly genuine, containing the journal of the British House of Commons during the Protectorship of Cromwell, has been discovered among a mass of books and manuscripts belonging to a literary society in New-York, which for many years had remained undisturbed. This journal has heretofore been lost, and no traces of it discovered by the British historians and antiquarians, who have been compelled to supply this gap in their historical records from other less authentic sources. The manuscripts were undoubtedly brought to this country by the Regicides, who fled bither on the restoration, with a view to prevent the attainder of their friends, and to conceal the proceedings of the Rump Parliament. From these persons they can be traced with tolerable certainty into the possessions of the society, among whose books they have been found by an industrious and intelligent searcher for the curious. The books have not remained so long concealed, but it is their contents which have now for the first time been discovered. Heretofore they have passed as some old manuscripts, only curious as specimens of the writing of an early period.—Rhode Island American.

American Desert.—There is an extensive desert in the Territory of the United States. West of the Mississippi, which is described in Long's Expedition to the Rocky Mountains, 400 miles to the East, and is 500 from North to South. There are deep ravines in which the brooks and rivers meander, skirted by a few stunted trees, but all the elevated surface is a barren desert, covered with sand, gravel, pebbles, &c. There are a few plants, but nothing like a tree, to be seen on these desolate plains, and seldom is a living creature to be met with. The Platte, the Arkansas, and other rivers, flow through this dreary waste.—Pittsburg Spectator.

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 8, 1828.

London dates to 24th Sept. are received.

From our extracts of Foreign news, it will be seen, that the Russians have met with defeat in some of the late engagements with the Turks, whose preparations for defence appear to be commensurate with the great struggle in which they are engaged. The general opinion of the English papers however seems to be, that although the conflict may be rendered of longer duration, from the late reverses which have attended the Russian Army, yet that these will not affect the future success of their operations.

The Board of Admiralty is again reconstituted on the same plan as formerly.—Lord Melville is at the head of the Board.

On Tuesday last at half past one o'clock, His Excellency Sir John Colborne, Lady Colborne, and family, arrived on board the Canada.

His Excellency was received on landing at the Government Wharf, by a Salute from the Garrison and with the accustomed Military honors, by a Guard of the 66th Regiment in attendance for the purpose —His Excellency was met by Sir Peregrine Maitland and Suite, and several Officers of the Government, who accompanied Him to the Government House. At Three o'clock their Excellencies proceeded to the Council Chamber, where the Members of the Executive Council were assembled, when Sir John Colborne having taken the Oaths, of Office, a second Salute from the Garrison announced His having assumed the Government of the Province.—After returning from the Council Chamber His Excellency held his first Levee, when several Gentlemen were introduced.

The following Official notification of the arrival of His Excellency, is contained in the last Gazette:—

"Upper Canada, York,
Thursday, November 6, 1828.

"His Excellency Major General Sir John Colborne, K. C. B., Lady Colborne, and family, arrived here on Tuesday last, in the Steam Boat Canada.

His Excellency took the usual Oaths as Lieutenant Governor of this Province, the same day at Three o'clock, P. M."

The Gazette also contains a Proclamation notifying the appointment of His Excellency to the Government of this Province, and calling upon all persons concerned to govern themselves accordingly.

On Thursday morning His Excellency Sir John Colborne, was pleased to receive, and reply to, a congratulatory Address from the Inhabitants of the Town of York, on His assumption of the Government of this Province.—A similar Address was presented to His Excellency, on His arrival at Niagara.

On Thursday morning at Eleven o'clock, His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland and Suite, embarked on board the Steam Boat Canada, for Niagara, from whence His Excellency after proceeding to the Cottage, at Stamford, will be accompanied by Lady Sarah Maitland and family, and immediately continue His journey, viâ. Boston, to assume the Government of Nova Scotia.

His Excellency was accompanied to the Steam Boat, by Sir John Colborne, and Staff—the Judges and Law Officers—the Heads of the Civil Departments, and a number of respectable Inhabitants of the Town, who had assembled at the Government House for the purpose of paying this last tribute of personal respect and attention to His Excellency, on His departure. On reaching the wharf, where a Guard of Honor paid the usual salutations to His Excellency, a large number of the Inhabitants were collected who joined the procession to the Steam Boat, on reaching which, His Excellency took leave of Sir John Colborne, and His more intimate friends, and appeared fully sensible of the marked attention which was paid to Him, by the concourse of Inhabitants, assembled to testify their respect on the occasion. His Excellency and Suite having embarked, a Salute was fired from the Garrison, and "Three hearty Cheers, in honor of His Excellency," resounded throughout the crowd, as the Steam Boat moved from the wharf, His Excellency acknowledging the compliment, by remaining uncovered, on the Deck, and bowing to those whose kindest wishes he carried with Him.

Ten years have now elapsed since Sir Peregrine Maitland assumed the Government of this Province, and we think it only requires a comparison of its state at that time, with its present prosperous condition, in Settlement and improvement—in the rapid increase of population—in Commercial and Agricultural prosperity, and political importance, to be satisfied that His Excellency's attention to its best interests, and the favorable representations He from time to time made to the Imperial Government, with a view to its advancement, have been attended with benefits, which after due reflection, cannot fail to be admitted.

The example of His Excellency in private life was such, as not only to have the most salutary influence on those within its more immediate sphere, but was calculated also to produce, a more extended and beneficial effect on Society generally; and the allusion made in many of the addresses presented to His Excellency previous to his departure, with respect to the exemplary discharge of his moral and Religious duties fully justifies this remark Honesty of intention, and an upright course of public and private conduct, are not sufficient to shield us, in any situation of life against the attacks of the discontented and prejudiced, and to suppose that His Excellency, although acknowledgedly possessed of these, should have escaped the animadversions and misrepresentations of such persons, would be to expect more than falls to the lot of the most distinguished and illustrious personages. But with the majority of the people who know well how to appreciate these things, and who are convinced that a steady perseverence in that course which conscience and a due regard for the public weal approves of, are of infinitely more value, than a vacillating and unsteady course, which accommodates itself to the passions and prejudices of men, with a view to obtain present applause at the risk of sacrifising future fame and character:—the people, we say, when misrepresentation shall be forgotten, in the remembrance of benefits conferred, and by the recollection of that regard to consistency of conduct, which His Excellency displayed throughout a long and arduous administration, attended by an undeniable increase of individual and general prosperity, will do justice to the public virtue, and private worth, which distinguished the Government of His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland.

In making these remarks on the departure of His Excellency to assume the duties of a more exalted station bestowed upon him by His Sovereign, as the reward of His approved labors in this Government, we may be allowed to express the satisfaction, which we have no doubt we share in common with our fellow subjects, at the continued care of Our Gracious Sovereign, in the selection of so distinguished an Officer, as Sir John Colborne, as His Representative, to preside over our interests.

Lieutenant Colonel Hillier Lady and family, accompany Sir P. Maitland, and Lady Sarah to Halifax, and from thence will proceed to Jamaica, where Lieut. Col. Hillier enters upon the duties of the appointment he has lately received in the Quarter Master General's Department.

Mr. Boyle, of the 68th Regt. is on the Staff of His Excellency, as Aid-De-Camp.—The Adj't. General of Militia, Col. Coffin, accompanies His Excellency as far as Boston.

It has been suggested, that a Turnpike Company for the improvement of Yonge Street from York to Lake Simcoe, would be attended with much advantage to that portion of Country, through which the Street passes. The establishment of a Military Post at Penetanguishine, which appears to have been determined upon by the Government, renders it the more desirable, that the line of communication should be improved with as little delay as possible—the advantages of such an establishment in that part of the Country, are not of little consequence, and we should be happy to see a meeting of the Inhabitants called at some convenient time and place to take the subject into consideration, and the propriety of making an application to the Legislature, either for the formation of a Turnpike Company, or for the improvement of the Road, under any other system, that existing circumstances might point out as the most proper and effectual, for realising so desirable an object

---

We learn from the Montreal papers that an application is to be made, to the Legislature of Lower Canada, at its approaching session, by Peter McGill Esquire and other Merchants of Montreal, for an Act authorising them to construct a Rail Road, from St. Johns to the River St Lawrence.

The Provincial Parliament of Lower Canada is called for the Despatch of business, on 21st of this month.

(From the Albion.)

PORTUGAL.

Don Miguel has at length addressed himself to the different Courts of Europe on the subject of his usurpation; and, as he justifies himself and craves their sanction, for his treasonable acts, he doubtless means to retain, if he can, his ill-gotten booty. His letter is full of soft words and flattery, and appeals to the justice of the European Sovereigns. This is generally the case with those who betray confidence and violate every sort of justice themselves. But he will have to settle his account with his brother, Don Pedro of Brazil, and the Cabinets of Europe are anxiously waiting to see what steps that Monarch will take to punish the perfidy of Miguel and his infamous adherents. The Courier gives the following as the substance of the letter:—

"Amongst other things done by Don Miguel, he has lately addressed a wheedling letter to the different Courts of Europe, in which, 'after having stated that upon his arrival in Portugal he had the intention of governing conformably to the will of his brother, he adds, that his heart could not remain inaccessible to the wishes of the people, who were unanimous for his ascending the Throne. The horror he felt against usurpation engaged him to consult the opinion and the will of the Three Estates of the Kingdom, assembled at Cortes, and to demand of them a decision conformable to the fundamental laws of the nation, upon the rights which he might have to the sceptre of Portugal. This question resolved affirmatively, and by common consent, conferred upon him the duty of accepting a Crown which the nation offered him against his desire. Notwithstanding the insurrection which broke out at Oporto, the rights which the Cortes delegated to him, so far from having been called in question by this temporary commotion, has triumphed in a signal motion. He lays these circumstances before the Sovereigns of Europe, in the hope that their justice will appreciate his position, and the obligation under which he felt himself, to yield to the wishes of the nation by accepting the burthen of a Crown."

The young Queen of Portugal it will be seen, is hourly expected in England, and preparations are making to receive her in a manner suitable to her rank as a monarch of a European nation.

We have received a letter from Capt. Basil Hall, enclosing the following copy of a letter which he had caused to be inserted in the Edinburgh Weekly Journal, and is desirous that it should appear in some American paper, as a check to the absurd stories that are floating through the English papers. Capt. H and family are in good health, and had a remarkably fine passage home. He speaks in the highest terms of Captain Chadwick, and his ship, the Corinthian.—Albion.

CAPTAIN HALL'S "WALK" IN AMERICA.

Edinburgh, 5th Sept. 1828.

Sir,—As accuracy is always preferable to error, even in trifles, I shall feel obliged by your correcting a statement respecting my late journey, which has been published in the newspapers.

It is there said, that I had travelled sixteen thousand miles in the United States, in fifteen months; whereas I did not accomplish much more than half of this distance.

The following is not far from the truth, though I do not pretend to be very exact, as many of the distances, especially on the great rivers of the west, are very loosely settled:—

I left Liverpool on the 17th of April, 1827, and landed again at Cowes, in the Isle of Wight, on the 23d of July, 1828, making the whole interval fifteen months and five days, in which time the distances gone over are as follows:

By land conveyances - - - -	5588
By steam vessels - - - -	5237
Total distance travelled in America -	8825 miles.
Then, for the two sea voyages, say -	7675
Which makes the whole - -	16,500 miles.

And this will account for the error above alluded to.

So much for my "walk," as the papers call it: but as for the "Book"—which I learn from the same source is in the press—I can only say, that not one line of it is yet written. I am, your most obedient servant,

BASIL HALL.

To the Editor of the Edinburgh Weekly Journal.

Domestic.

We are sorry to learn that on account of the lateness of the season, it is probable Sir Peregrine Maitland and family, will not be able to proceed by way of Quebec, to the seat of his New Government, but must take the shortest and most certain route through the United States. We shall therefore lose a satisfaction which we are persuaded would have been very generally felt by the inhabitants of Brockville, in taking leave of him as he passed along. The address which in anticipation of such an opportunity for presenting it, was very numerously signed, will, we suppose, be transmitted in the usual way.—Brockville Gazette.

Fatal Accident.—On Friday last two men were killed at the Deep Cut, by the caving in of the bank as they were excavating the earth beneath. The unfortunate men were under earth and water for 24 hours before their lifeless bodies were recovered. Their names were Monroe and Pendleton.—N. Herald.

The following letter from the Rideau Canal has reached us from a friendly correspondent there.

Oxford Suie, (alias) Barrel's Rapids, 30th of Oct. 1828.

"His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, accompanied by his Aid-de-Camp, and Sir Noel Hill, Adjutant-General, with Colonel Ivy, Commanding Engineer, arrived here on the 7th. They expressed themselves highly pleased with the rapid progress of the works along the line From this place they proceeded on their route to Kingston, to Waye's job, and thence to Merrick's Mills, where the necessary preparations being made, His Excellency laid the first stone of the Locks at that place."—Montreal Herald.

[FROM THE UPPER CANADA GAZETTE.]

To His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

May it please your Excellency,

Those who have had the honor of serving His Majesty in the Civil Government of Upper Canada, while it has been administered by your Excellency, present themselves before you, and beg permission to take their affectionate leave of your Excellency before your departure from the Province. In a few days the relation must be dissolved, which imposed upon us, in our several stations, the duty of obedience to your Excellency, and which gave to your Excellency the power of recompensing faithful public service by protection and favor. At this time when our sensibility cannot be doubted, we beg to offer our tribute of gratitude for the condescension and kindness, and, above all, for the justice which throughout your Excellency's Administration have rendered obedience not merely a duty, but a cheerful act of the will, and which have enabled us at all times to submit our conduct and opinions with frankness and without reserve to your Excellency's judgment.

We beg to assure your Excellency that we shall retain through life a grateful recollection of your Excellency's goodness, and an earnest wish for your happiness.

[Signed by the Heads of the different Departments.]

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following

REPLY.

Gentlemen,

I am very much alive to the kindness which has prompted you to take leave of me before my departure. And I am happy in the occasion it presents to me, of seeing you assembled, that I may express to you the good wishes I most cordially entertain for your happiness.

My administration of this Government has extended to a period longer than usual; and now that the duties of another station are about to separate me from you, it affords me the most lively satisfaction to feel, with how much sincerity, I can assure you of the interest which I shall ever take in your welfare, and of the grateful recollections which my intercourse with you has impressed upon my mind.

To His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

May it Please Your Excellency,

We, the undersigned Inhabitants of the Town of York, and its vicinity, beg leave to approach your Excellency upon the eve of your departure from this Province with feelings of the highest esteem and respect for your Person and Government, and with sincerest assurances of our conviction, that your Excellency's administration of this Government, longer indeed than that of any of your predecessors, has been uniformly marked with that zeal for His Majesty's Service, and impartiality towards all classes of His Majesty's Subjects in this Colony, that your residence amongst us will be cherished in the grateful recollection of an affectionate and loyal people.

Under a Constitution essentially British, where free discussion forms so important a feature in the frame of political society, it is hardly to be expected, that any person could have so long filled the high and important station which your Excellency is now about to relinquish in this Country without encountering a portion of that opposition, which is incidental to our free institutions, and without at the same time being the principal object of those acrimonious animadversions, from which even the more exalted station of our Gracious Sove reign is not exempted; but independent of the success which has attended your Excellency's labours in the public service, and the increasing prosperity of the Colony, which each successive year of your administration has witnessed; your Excellency must enjoy the satisfaction of feeling, that your promotion to the Government of Nova Scotia affords the amplest proof that these exertions and that conduct, to which we pay our humble tribute of approbation, have been as justly appreciated, by our most Gracious Sovereign, as they have been by very candid and well disposed Inhabitants of this Province.

It cannot but afford peculiar gratification to your Excellency to contemplate the rapid advancement in our trade, commerce and agricultural improvement; and to observe the vast increase in our population, during the ten years you have presided over our interests and promoted the development of our resources, and the present prosperity of the people of this Province affords an irrefragable evidence of the wisdom and justice of your Excellency's measures.

While we feel grateful to your Excellency for your exertions in advancing the temporal welfare of the Inhabitants of this Colony, we are confident we shall not offer to your Excellency an unwelcome testimony of our admiration of the steady, uniform, and truly Christian example you have set in the discharge of your Religious duties, which, under Providence, are the best foundation upon which to build our hopes of doing good to our fellow men.

To Lady Sarah Maitland, whose dignified, mild and amiable deportment, must ever endear her to any society that may be so fortunate as to be graced by Her presence—we also beg leave to express our most affectionate and sincere regard, and we are confident that we do but speak the sentiments of those who have so often experienced the kindness and benevolence of Her Ladyship, when we assure Her, that the numerous objects of Her Ladyship's bounty will long continue to pray for the health and happiness of a benefactress so active in works of charity.

In taking leave of one who has so long and so faithfully represented our beloved Sovereign, permit us to express our earnest hope, that your Excellency and family may, by the blessing of Providence, enjoy in your new Government, that happiness and prosperity which are the fit rewards of public virtue and of private worth.

York, U. C. 31st October, 1828.

Alexander McDonell,	Thomas Phillips,
William Allan,	A. Baldwin,
W. B. Robinson,	J. N. Gamble.

[And 251 others.]

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following

REPLY.

Gentlemen,

After having long administered the Government in this Province, it is most gratifying to me to receive from so large and respectable a body of the Inhabitants of the Capital, the expression of such sentiments as are embodied in your Address.

In the discharge of the duties committed to me by my Sovereign, I have ever felt that it was not less due to the happiness and best interests of the people, than to my own reputation as a public Officer, and as a man, that I should firmly and steadily adhere to that course which I believed to be right. Acting upon this principle, I have shared with you, and with every sincere well-wisher of the country, the common duty of maintaining our excellent Constitution against injurious innovations; and I neither expected nor desired to avoid participating with you in any of the consequences, which, by the exertions of the discontented, and unreasonable, may be made to attend, at least for a season, the most upright and consistent course of public conduct.

I have observed with pain, and not without astonishment, the efforts which sometimes seem to have been given abroad to the most flagrant misrepresentations respecting this Province —misrepresentations alike injurious to the interests and the character of its inhabitants; & in very many instances so grossly and evidently false, that I have wondered not less at the apparent absurdity of such attempts, than at their unexpected success.

In regarding the possible effects of misrepresentation, I have never ceased to declare to His Majesty my readiness and my wish at any moment, or in any manner, to account for every act of my Government; and if this opportunity of explanation has in no instance been presented, I must take it for granted, it is because it has in no instance been thought necessary.

I have great pleasure, Gentlemen, in reflecting upon the present very improved state of this Colony, and in observing the extremely rapid growth of this Town. I pray earnestly and sincerely that your welfare and your hapiness may continue and increase.

I thank you for your very kind congratulations upon the appointment which I have recently received—and you must permit me to add the thanks of Lady Sarah Maitland to my own, for the friendly wishes you have expressed, and to assure you that we shall always hold ingrateful recollection our intescourse with the Inhabitants of the Town of York.

FALL AND WINTER GOODS.—The Subscriber begs leave to announce that by late arrivals, he has received his usual supply of Fall and Winter Goods, which will be sold at reduced prices for Cash or Produce.

Grateful for the generous support he has received since his commencement in business, he again solicits the interest of the Ladies and Gentlemen of York and its vicinity, and hopes his Goods will give them general satisfaction.

WILLIAM BERGIN.

York, 7th November, 1828. x. 22

HOUSE TO LET.—A comfortable Cottage in the neighborhood of the premises, lately occupied by Mr. Wenham, and next to The Attorney General's, on Dundas Street, together with an acre or more of Ground, as may be agreed upon, is to Let, by the Subscriber, for a term of years.

Wm. BERGIN,

York, 8th November, 1828. x. 22

MORE NEW GOODS.

R. A. PARKER,

AT THE

YORK CASH STORE,

HAS just received a variety of FANCY SILK Ribbons, Handkerchiefs, Kid Gloves, Hosiery, Jaconett, Mull and Book Muslins, Bobbinett, Printed Calicoes, Bleached and Brown Cottons, 4-4 and 3-4 Bed Ticks, Rattteene, Flannels, BROAD CLOTHS, Petisse do, Cassimeres, Sattinett, Blankets, Morocco and Stuff Shoes, LOOKING GLASSES, and a general assortment of GROCERIES, CROCKERY, &c. &c.—for sale, at low prices.

R. A. PARKER.

York, 7th November, 1828. c. 22

WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE.—The Subscribers are just receiving by the Rebecca, Sophia, Favorite, Montreal, Ariadne, Horatio, Lady Digby, John Francis, and Sprightly, an extensive and suitable assortment of Fall Goods, Staple and Fancy, consisting of nearly every article in the Dry Good line.—Amongst the principal are the following:—

Broad and Narrow Cloths,
Cassimeres, & Petisse do.
Paddings, Frieze, and Coatings,
Flushings, Plushings, and Cloakings,
Red, White, and Salisbury Flannels,
Blankets, Whitney, Rose and Point,
Serge, Baize, and Drugget,
Chintzes and Calicoes,
Hosiery of every description,
Bombazettes, Shalloons, Moreens, & Cambletts,
Tartans, Scotch Bonnets, and Fur Caps,
Scotch Sheetings, 54, 35, 36, 38 & 39 inch,
Osnaburgs, Bagging, and Hessins,
Grey Cottons, Checks, and Ticknesses,
Ginghams, Pullicate, Maddrass & Verona Handkerchiefs,
Bandanna, Brittanias & Barcelona do.
Fine, Superfine and Brussels Carpeting,
Linen & Cotton Ticks & Selampores,
Canvas, Dowlas, Huckaback and Diaper,
Book, Jacconet and Mull Muslins,
Bombazines, Gros de Naples, Sattins, Persians, &c.
Ribbons, Crapes, Shawls, Spoolts, Tapes, & Bobbins,
Linen & Cotton Thread, Sewing Silks, Braces, Ferrets, &c. &c.

—ALSO—

A few Crates assorted Earthenware, Combs, Shoe-thread, Shot, Letter Paper, Buttons, Needles, Pins, Handkerchiefs, Lines, Braids, &c. &c.,—which they will sell off Lower than any in the Upper Province, and greatly below the Montreal prices, at their Store, Corner of Market-Lane and Church-Street, for Cash.

JAMES DOUGALL, & Co.

York, 8th November, 1828. x. 22

FOR SALE.—Lot No. 29, and part of 30, in the 7th Concession of the Township of Pickering, containing 350 Acres, and having an eligible situation for a Mill. For terms apply to Mr. Andrew Mercer, York.

York, 28th October, 1827. 22 tf.

WHISKEY.—For Sale by the Barrel, a quantity of SUPERIOR OLD WHISKEY—

Apply to R. W. PRENTICE.

York, 25th Sept. 1828. x 16

FRESH SEEDS.—Shaker's Garden and Flower Seeds, warranted of the growth of 1827, for sale by EDW'D. LESSLIE & SONS.

☞ E. L. & Sons expect a quantity of clover seed in a few days.

York, 14th March 1828. 43-tf.

BANK NOTICE.—Discount Day, Wednesday of every Week.—Notes offered for Discount, must be put under cover to the Cashier, and left at the Bank the day before.

THOMAS G. RIDOUT,
Cashier.

Colonial.

NEW ENGLISH SETTLEMENT.—It has been announced in England that the government of that country is about to found another settlement in New Holland. An eligible spot for this purpose has been pointed out, and the Crocodile, commanded by Capt. James W. Montague, is to proceed forthwith to examine what advantages it offers as the site of a colony. In case his report should be favorable, a body of settlers will be established there without delay.

A ship is annually despatched from Trincomalee or Madras to the capital of New South Wales. About a year since one of the vessels, the Rainbow, commanded by Capt. Sterling, keeping close to the coast of New Holland, discovered an unknown river, which he explored for some distance in boats. He found the shores beautiful and fertile, and in every respect inviting to European settlers. As the boats penetrated into the country, numbers of swans were seen swimming in the river, from which it was called Swan River by Capt. Sterling. On his return he represented to government in strong terms the advantages of the situation, and as a proof of the sincerity of his convictions he has given up the command of the Rainbow, and goes out with his family in the Crocodile to enroll himself among the first colonists of the river he has discovered.

ST. JOHN, (N.B.) Sept. 24.

Phenomenon.—On the afternoon of Friday last, a very unusual agitation took place in the waters of St. Mary's Bay, Nova-Scotia, at Bellevee Cove, about four miles below Sissiboo River. At about half tide, without any visible cause, the weather being perfectly calm, the water of the Bay began to swell and rage as if agitated by a mighty wind, and the surf dashed with tremendous violence against the shore. So violent was the surf, that a sloop at anchor lying dry at the top of high water, was repeatedly floated and lifted up by successive surges, and then left high and dry as each surf retired.—This agitation of the water continued till the tide had risen to its full height, and until about half ebb, when the tumult subsided, and the water became smooth and tranquil as before.

Our informant, a Frenchman of respectable appearance, who was present at the time above mentioned, and who with much difficulty saved his vessel from being driven on shore, does not know how far this extraordinary agitation of the water extended, but from the appearance, he thinks it probable, that it was the same, or nearly so, perhaps the whole length of St. Mary's Bay.—Gazette.

North Eastern Boundary.—Sir Howard Douglass, Governor of New Brunswick, has been appointed one of the Commissioners for settling the N. E. Boundary of the United States. At a public supper, at St. John, the Chairman spoke as follows on toasting the Governor:—

"We shall probably, ere long, have to regret his Excellency's departure from us for a time, though, when we consider the occasion which calls him away, it is a high gratification to feel that it is an absence which will not sever; but, if possible, unite his Excellency more closely to this people.

"We cannot but view it as another distinguished mark of the paternal solicitude with which our most Gracious Sovereign watches over the interests of this part of his dominions; when we see that a matter which concerns us so much, is entrusted to one on whose zeal and talent we place the fullest reliance."

Extract from Sir Howard's answer:—

"With respect to the immediate object of my approaching absence from New-Brunswick, I rejoice that her interests in that momentous question do not solely depend upon me, and that I shall have associated with me a high degree of native talent, integrity, local knowledge and experience of the question, to aid in discharging the duties of this important mission. Whilst so employed, I shall be thankful to improve for your advantage, all opportunities that may offer, to promote the other interests of the Province; and should the question which is about to take me from you, be brought to a successful termination, there is not a station which his Majesty can assign me that would be so agreeable to me, as to return to New-Brunswick, to preserve the British standard on the territory which we claim."

At Halifax, the price of flour was ten dollars and upwards, a the date of the last accounts.

HALIFAX, OCTOBER 15.

The Steam Boat St. John, which left St. John, on Tuesday last, was wrecked on some rocks on the west-end of Dartmouth, near Annapolis, the passengers were landed with much difficulty, and the steam boat having been left dry about 12 o'clock at night, their luggage, &c. were got out of the vessel having been much injured by the water. There were on board 16 Passengers, among whom were the Hon. Judge Chipman and Lady.

From the Miramichi Mercury of the 7th instant, we extract the following:—

"This day in the Anniversary of the great Fire in 1825, and we were gratified on learning that Divine Service would be performed at St. Paul's and St. Andrew's Churches.—This is just as it should be—so long as the steps of the 'destroying angel' are visible to the eye that witnessed his gigantic strides—so long as the effect of his terrible power awaken mournful recollections in the bosom of the survivor—the day should be celebrated as one of 'Fast and Thanksgiving,' for on the one hand the calamity was tremendous in its effects—on the other the preservation of those who suffered not either in person or property may with great propriety be viewed as a striking instance of the intervention of Providence on their behalf."

Lower Canada.

EXECUTION.—Yesterday morning the awful sentence of the law was carried into effect upon Pierre Tétrau alias Ducharme, who was convicted of Burglary at the last Criminal Term. The execution took place, as usual, on the drop in front of the Gaol. Shortly after ten o'clock the Criminal appeared on the balcony under the fatal beam. We are informed that he was perfectly resigned to his fate, and addressed the spectators with great firmness, admitting the justice of his punishment and acknowledged the life of crime he had led had long rendered him deserving of the end he was about to meet.—He also disavowed the name under which he had been known in the Courts of Justice of this Colony. The crowd was very great, and a large, if not the larger, portion was composed of women and children. We regret to learn that from some inattention, or want of knowledge on the part of the executioner, the rope was improperly placed and the mortal agonies of the sufferer were both unusually violent and protracted. We saw many persons coming from the place with strong marks of horror on their countenances and loud in their expressions of disgust at the shocking scene they had witnessed. We are told every attention had been paid by the Sheriff and those under him, to the previous arrangements for the death of the prisoner and that no blame attaches to him, or indeed to any one but the executioner, whose experience is, happily, not sufficient to render him expert in the work of death, or, who perhaps wants the nerve necessary for one of his dreadful calling.

The prisoner had been frequently tried and convicted of capital offences.—He is said to have received sentence of death six several times in the different Districts of the Province previous to that under which he suffered. The following is a translation of a communication which he addressed to the Editor of the Official Gazette the day previous to his execution, with a request that it might be published. His address from the scaffold was nearly in the same words:—

Mr. Editor—Will you have the goodness to grant the last request of a most unhappy man.

DUCHARME, falsely so called, TO THE PUBLIC,

I say falsely called Ducharme, and it is the first confession of my criminal life. Ducharme has never been my name. I owe this sincere confession to the respectable families bearing that name, otherway I should inflict upon them a blot they have not merited, and I ask their pardon for having sustained a name, which I do not deserve to bear, by a life without honor, without religion, and more than all, covered by thefts. It is with justice that I am condemned to the last and most shameful of punishments. Yet I shall feel happy if it may efface a series of my guilty deeds impressed with crimes of the deepest dye. Dare I here confess it? I am content to die, and in the gloomy depths of my dungeon, I believe myself to be the most miserable of men, but the most happy of criminals, because in my humble hopes, the punishment of death, which I receive with resignation and submission, yes, even with gratitude, appears to me the only reparation for the scandalous life I have led, unhappily but too well known. I acknowledge the hand of God which has every where followed me. Four times has it already arrested me from the punishment which I had just deserved, and I fondly believe, or rather I acknowledge that the same God has permitted me now to suffer here, that I may escape a greater punishment in eternity; for at this moment that I am speaking I acknowledge and deeply feel that God works within me, and that his voice has never before so strongly touched my heart; so that I should believe myself firm in the resolution of living rightly if I could become free. But no, I die content, because I mistrust those resolutions which have already often times deceived me.—I die content because the manner of my death is the only one of which I have dreaded. I die content because that death will be a public reparation for the public injuries of which I have been guilty;—I die content because I have the consolation of believing that the sad spectacle of my end will prevent many crimes, and many deaths, and that the impressions which I feel will never be effaced. I beseech forgivenes for the evil deeds I have occasioned—for the crimes I have committed, and the bad advice I have given to others; and I, with confidence, implore the prayers of a public always feeling for the death of a fellow creature.

PIERRE LUBARGE.

Lubarge had particularly requested that the Gazette containing a copy of his address should be sent to him, which was accordingly done, when it was taken to him, feeling himself very weak, he desired one of the persons who took it to read the letter aloud that he might satisfy himself it had been published without alteration or additions, having heard it read, he said it was correct.

The acuteness and intelligence which this man exhibited on his trial and on other occasions render it the more to be deplored that he should have so shamefully abused talents, which, if properly employed, might, with infinitely less danger and misery than he encountered in his vicious career, have rendered him a respectable member of society, instead of leading him to a violent and ignominious end.

A Gold Medal was presented to the Rev. Mr. Paisley, previous to his leaving Quebec; the object of it will be best understood by the inscription it bears:—

Presented by Claude Denechaud, Esq.
from the Irish Catholics of Quebec,
to
The Rev. Hugh Paisley, as a small
Token of Respect and Gratitude for his
Unremitted and Benevolent
Exertion for the Poor of this City.
Quebec, 26th September, 1828.

Melancholy Accident.—On Friday evening last, a stranger woman aged about 20 years, who was travelling along the banks of the Chateauguay river sought and obtained a night's lodgings in the house of a man who resides in the township of Godmanchester about three miles below the village of Huntingdon. Next morning, about 7 o'clock, she went down to the river to bring two buckets of water, accompanied by her host's daughter, a little girl of about 7 years of age. To lift the water both females stepped into a canoe which was fastened along the shore. The elder had dipped one of the buckets, which she was bringing up filled, when the weight on one side upset the canoe, and they were both thrown into the river, which is there about 25 feet in depth. The woman speedily disappeared, but the girl continued floating for some time. A neighbouring farmer, named Paschal Girard, who was riding past, observed the melancholy scene. He instantly turned his horse to the river in the hope of saving the youngest sufferer. The animal, however was no sooner in the water than it overset the rider who hung by the bridle for some time, but at length, together with the horse, was drowned. The bodies of the females were found shortly after, but that of the man was not recovered at 2 o'clock on Saturday last.—Montreal Herald.

We have seen a letter from Portsmouth New Hampshire dated October 14, and giving an account of housebreaking, which took place there some time previous, the perpetrators of which it is supposed may have come to Canada. Among the articles stolen are, 5 double cased watches Nos. 5296, 8818, 8947, 8858, 8794; Maker's name Bullingford. One double backed silver watch, 8627, another do. 9047; a French watch with windmill figures on the face, and another with an open face, No. 8063. Several silver spoons, some of which were stamped on the handles J. Abbot, others N. and J. Foster, and some N. Hurding; 1 jet pin shaped like an urn, 1 pearl bow and arrow, and other articles of jewellery, amounting in all to the value of 900 dollars. The owner J. W. Abbott offers a reward of 100 dollars for the thief and the goods.— Montreal Herald.—ib.

Port of Quebec.

ARRIVED,

Oct. 13..Bark Helen,'Liverpool, salt.
....Bark Wilberforce, Hull, ballast.
....Bark Aid; Liverpool, do.
....Ship British Sovereign, London, general cargo.
....Bark Quebec Trader, Dublin, ballast.
....Bark Thomas Wallace, London, do.
..14..Bark Endeavour, London, general cargo.
..17..Brig Hannah, Dublin 45 sailors.
..20..Ship Canadian, London. ballast.
..21..Bark Abeona, Dublin. do.
....Brigantine Eleonora, Antigua, rum and sugar.
..22..Brig Donegal, Belfast 26 sette -.
..28..Brigantine Cheviot, Boston, meal and rice.

PASSENGERS.

In the St. David, sailed for Bristol, on the 20th Oct. Captain Melwich, Royal Engineers, Capt. Baily, Royal Artillery, and Mr. Bouchette, 66th Light Infantry.

SHIPPING INTELLIGENCE

The Steamer St. John, running between St. John and Annapolis, has been wrecked on Goat-Island, passengers saved with difficulty; among them were Judge Chipman and lady.

Sidney, (Cape Breton) Sept. 8.—Put in here in distress, Hope, from Limerick to Quebec, with 120 passengers. Upwards of 2,400 have landed here this season, and double that number is expected next season.

The following is a list of the vessels expected at Quebec this fall, and have not yet arrived. Last year 12 sail arrived here after the present date. Peter Proctor 7th September from London.—Mansfield, do.—Union, Chepstow.—Superb, Newfd. Amity, Bristol —Mary, Belfast —Exmouth, from Liverpool, put back to the Clyde in stress.—Diana, 24 Sept. from Belfast.—Julia, Tobago.—Duckworth. Demerara,—Carrington, do.—Felix Souligny, Barbadoes.—Orleans, Trinidad,—Caroline, Jamaica.—Friends, do.—Washington, 9th October from New-York.—Schr. ——, from Boston.—Lane, put into Halifax dismasted.

Died,

At Kingston, on Monday last, Stuart St. Geo. Tazewell, infant son of Mr. S. O Tazewell.

At Montreal, on Saturday afternoon last, after four days sickness only, Laurent Viger, Esquire, Advocate, &c. aged 24 years.

At Quebec, on the 23d instant, Augustus William, infant son of C. A. Holt.

At Three Rivers, on the 21st instant, aged 40 years, Pierre Joseph Godfrey De Tonnancour Esquire, Advocate, Lieut. Col. of the 3d Battalion of St. Maurice, and Coroner of the District of Three Rivers. His merit and his talents as a Jurisconsult had acquired for him the confidence of the public.

At Georgetown, U. S on the 2d inst. of consumption, at the age of sixteen years, Miss Joanna Iturbide, daughter of the last Emperor of Mexico.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY NOVEMBER 15, 1828.

Poetry.

HAPPINESS.

BY BISHOP HEBER.

One morning in the month of May
I wandered o'er the hill;
Though nature all around was gay,
My heart was heavy still.

Can God, I thought, the just, the great,
Those meaner cares bless,
And yet deny to man's estate
The boon of happiness?

Tell me, ye woods, ye smiling plains,
Ye blessed birds around,
In which of Nature's wide domains
Can bliss for man be found?

The birds wild caroll'd over head,
The breeze around me blew,
And Nature's artful chorus said—
No bliss for man she knew.

I questioned Love, whose only ray
So rosy bright appears,
And heard the timid genius say
His light was dimm'd by tears.

I questioned Friendship; friendship sigh'd,
And thus her answer gave—
The fleet flowers of existence turn'd
Were wither'd in the grave!

I ask'd if Virtue could bliss bestow;
Vice boasted loud and well,
But fading from her withered brow,
The borrowed roses fell.

I sought of feeling if her skill
Could soothe the wounded breast;
And found her mourning, faint and still,
For others' woes distressed!

I questioned Virtue; virtue sighed,
No boon could she dispense,
Nor virtue was her name, she cried,
But humble penitence.

I questioned Death—the grisly shade
Relax'd his brow severe—
And, "I am happiness," he said,
"If virtue guides thee here."

Miscellaneous.

THE STUDY OF NATURE.

Natural History! What delight and instruction flow from its study, whenever it is pursued, not merely in a scientific, but a truly philosophical spirit! Upon this wonderful scene of existence, it is possible for an intelligent being to look without wonder? or to wonder without desire to know? We have no need to explain how the desire to understand these wonders should spring up in the human mind:—Its own faculties are a sufficient explanation. There would be more occasion to explain by what means, in multitudes of men, this curiosity or desire is suppressed and defeated of its natural growth and vivacity.

Accordingly, in all times of which we have any record, we find that one strong passion of powerful and aspiring minds, has been the desire of natural knowledge. And erring as their opinions were, and could not but be, in the infancy of observation, limited and imperfect, still the facts of nature which were open to their senses, were so extraordinary—and even their rude speculation took such strong hold upon their minds, that not only is the desire of such knowledge recorded as having been most strong in their most illustrious men, but the reputation of proficiency in it, was of itself sufficient to raise a man to the highest distinction among the People, as a Sage—a Priest in the Temple of Nature.

The truth is, that so strongly were the minds of men, in the early times of society, impressed with the extraordinary properties and powers which were discovered to them, and the appearances they beheld, that they were much more in danger of being overcome with accessive admiration and affection, than of too slightly regarding them; and so great was their increasing admiration and wonder of what they continually saw passing before their eyes, on this great theatre of nature—that they soon began to carry it beyond its just limits, to intermix superstitious imagination with their conception of natural powers, and to interweave the phenomena of nature in the fables of their erring religion. This we know to have been done in very great extent by the Egyptians—the early Greeks—the old inhabitants of Persia, and the Hindoos. We have reason to believe it has been almost universal.

Here we see evidence, not only of what the face of nature is in man, but what is that strong impression which is the beginning not first incitement to the study of her laws. It is an impression of strong and delighted wonder and admiration—an impression which does not belong, in the first place, to intellect and philosophy, but to natural and inevitable feeling. Accordingly, we find that the greatest minds that have pursued this knowledge have held throughout a course answerable to this beginning; they have been at once contemplators and lovers of nature. We behold in them a mind elevated by the greatness, and calmed by the beauty, of what they behold. When we think of Sir Isaac Newton, we think not so much of the vast and comprehensive powers of his intellect, as of the sublimity of the objects which that intellect was forever engaged in contemplating. In the lives of many of the men of genius who have been given up to these studies, we find, not a curious inquisitiveness of mind which might have been applied to this subject or to any other, but a mind overflowing with delight of what was disclosed, and led on by that delight to never-ending investigation. If such be the just foundation and inducement to natural knowledge, what must be the effect of the pursuit of it upon the mind? It is one, we see, a painful labor imposed upon unwilling minds, piecing together with effort facts painfully acquired. The mind hurries on in its own enjoyment through scenes of delight For you must not judge of these studies by the degree of interest with which minds apply to them who are born and educated to them, not by their own desire, but by accidental circumstances. But you may judge by what you see of the eagerness with which children to whom they are agreeable will follow them. We may judge by what we read of the devouring passion with which minds, having this bent by nature, will give themselves up to such pursuits, all life long, often without being influenced in any degree by the love of fame, or any other reward, than by the simple and sublime satisfaction in the study of itself. Such, unquestionably, is the true character of the study, and, if so, what must be its effect? Why, to nourish the mind with continual pure pleasure, from admiration of whom it belongs—to nourish, that is, not only to give it pleasure, but such pleasure as is will convert into aliment, into the materials of its strength and growth. Thousand other pleasures fade away, and less: the mind neither richer nor stronger than before, perhaps poorer and weaker; but this is an appetite that grows by feeding. The knowledge the mind has attained quickens in it, and whets the desire for more. It is felt in the mind like a continual hunger, and it also enriches the possessor. Has not he great wealth, whose mind contains within itself the sources of its own best-behored gifts? Which would not go out of itself for its noblest happiness? Now the mind that, in following its own delight, has filled itself with natural knowledge, is rich, because the mere revolving within itself of the stores which it contains, opens up to it always fresh sources. But there is another property in this kind of riches The pleasure that nourishes the mind enriches it by the multiplication of all its feelings; for what takes place is not the mere repetition of the same pleasures from day to day, but there is unfolded, as it were, in the mind like a continual capacity of pleasure into all the variety of its forms. A child is satisfied, probably, with precisely the same pleasure repeated again and again in the same kind and degree: but as intellect seems to be—but by degrees this simple and entire pleasure, which was like a simple sensation, begins to break and divide itself into many more. The enjoyment in which the mind has indulged acts upon its sensibilities, and brings them out, so that susceptibilities of delight, which were not at first discernable, though they were in the mind, lying there like imperceptible points, become more and more developed, till they assume form and growth of their own; for every mind has its own constitution, and its own peculiar capacity of enjoyment. Of whatever kind its chief native pleasure is, in that also it has prepared within it various other capacities, of the possession of which it is unconscious, and these can only be brought into action by degrees, by the power of that primary pleasure. They are secondary, and will spring up next, and others after them, and so on for ever and ever—as the vital force in a seed, once set in motion, continually developes new forms of life, arising out of what it has before produced. This every one has experienced, who, from the natural bent of his mind, has followed earnestly any pursuit whatever; that new satisfactions are continually springing up in his mind, which he did not know before, and which, when he first engaged in it, he was not able to feel.—Thus the mind is doubly enriched, not only by those stores, by means of which it now in some sense continues within itself, what it must before have sought in nature, but also by the actually opening up within itself of capacities of enjoyment, which before it possessed unconsciously. And observe that the whole character and temper of the mind is affected by such happiness, for there is no mind that is incapable of kindly and benevolent affections, but there are many in which such dispositions are perverted or repressed by the circumstances and manner of their life; and in which, under more favourable circumstances, such good dispositions might be brought into much happier activity. Now, there is reason to believe that the study of nature in those minds, which follow it from the pure pleasure they find in it, tends greatly to subdue in the mind all those disturbing affections which destroy its native benevolence, and that they tend to renew its sensibility to the joy of mild and calm affections, rendering that sensibility ever more and more true and exquisite.

This reason is drawn, not merely from the character of those men who have been distinguished in these pursuits, of whom this calm benevolence of spirit has been a very general characteristic; but it is drawn from the nature itself of the enjoyments which are thus opened to the mind. We thus studies lead us at once into the world of nature They take us out of the conflict of human life—out of all its uneasy desires or fears, or irritating recollections—out of its agitated, restless tumult—into the midst of calm, beautiful, majestic order. What is become of the little anxious disturbing jealousies of life to him whose soul is in his eyes, and whose eyes are stretching their sight into the abysmes of space, and pursuing the stars of Heaven in their eternal revolutions? But it is not of the great objects, or great emotions alone that we now speak. The mind of one man has led him to study the Heavens—the mind of another has led him to examine, to analyze, and explore, the conformation of a worm. The greatest Naturalist of modern Europe bestowed the chief labour of his mind on the curious examination of the most delicate parts of flowers; and that part of his studies has made the name of Linnæus immortal. One of the most celebrated of the naturalists of France, Reaumur, has published a very laborious work, in some volumes, on the Anatomy of the Caterpillar. He did not live to complete it. It is not necessary to mention many instances; but we wish to recall to the recollection of our readers the extreme minuteness, and, as we may sometimes be tempted to think it, the apparent insignificance, of many of the objects of a naturalist's studies. But, however minute, they cannot be insignificant. Their littleness removes them indeed from that common sort of importance by which we are apt to measure things in their ordinary reference to human life.* To us who tread them under foot as we walk, they are not important objects in the world. But the moment they appear, as to the naturalist they do, to open up to his eyes an insight into the world of life—the moment he can dare to say that he begins to trace in their structure the design which formed it—dimly and imperfectly as he must trace it in all things—from that moment their insignificance is immense and inclosable. The entomologist, with his microscope and his delicate instruments, dissecting a fly—and the astronomer, watching through his telescope the motion of planets many times our earth's dimension—calculating by his powerful science, their motions and their speed, and weighing their bodies in thought—both are employed in one and the same work—both have gone out into nature to occupy the faculties of their high intelligence, as their own spirit leads them, in endeavouring, to the best of their power, to explore and comprehend some small portion of the infinite universe.

To all the students of nature, then, whatever part they may study, or in whatever way, nature herself has provided the same reward; namely, some portion of her own calm spirit. It is and whether what (to say it is great or small; but it is, that the moment they have begun to examine, to have begun to look into a world of wonders; they have begun to look upon the structure of those works which in least and greatest bear one character; they have begun to read as much as it is given to human eyes to read, the characters of wisdom, of goodness and of power—The human spirit, whatever its own troubled disposition may be, if it be impressible by such sights, is subdued under the presence of these thoughts—its feelings change to a purer temper—it is tranquilized and chastened.

In speaking of the effect of such studies on the temper of the mind, in tranquillizing it, we cannot help noticing the natural calmness, independent of those other affections which attend such studies, arising out of the very nature of the objects themselves, about which the naturalist is occupied, and out of the manner in which he is occupied about them. We allude and speak partially of those which have life. In watching a plant, when he wants to ascertain its growth and habits—how slowly it expands—from day to day! From month to month he may watch its progress. He fixes the interest of his mind upon that which proceeds so calmly under his eye, and his mind itself takes a tone of quiet and measured thought, as it extends its recollections over that slow and quiet progress which he has seen, and its expectations over that future progress, as slow, and quiet, and continual, to the perfect growth he desires to see. He sees in all—motion,—in all—life,—in all—the continual fulfilling of the functions of their nature; but all calm in their uniform tenor. Shall he be the only restless and perturbed being, when every thing else is full of tranquility—of silence! Advert, too, for a moment, to the occupation of him who watches, in nature, the courses of animated life. Looking at all the living beings of nature—in their happy play—in their busy occupations,—to see young things rejoicing in life,—to see mothers nursing their young—to see insects, or beasts, or birds, concurring in mutual assistance or defence, as if they had contriving mutual assistance or defence, as if they had contrivance and thought—to see life like the life—feelings like the heart—and something even of a faint and dim resemblance of the intelligence of man! To see all these things, and needs speak to his sympathy, for they touch in him the very sense of his own human being; and yet to see them in a world so remote, so separate from himself—in the midst of the beautiful world of nature, among the kinds of little, wild, lovely creatures that people it—surely so to see and feel—must touch his heart without disturbing it—must always breathe somethings like a tenderness of affection into the deep and serene calm of contemplative Thought.

What is requisite for deriving from these studies such results, is not always genius—is not always intellectual powers. It is love and delight in nature, and nothing more. We know that names of those who have brought the power of genius into the study of nature—but we know nothing of those nameless numbers, who have brought nothing to it but their own strong love, and have gained from it nothing but their own peaceful happiness.

—●—

OUTLINE OF THE NATURE AND CURE OF STAMMERING, OR HESITATION OF SPEECH.

BY MISS M'CORMACK, M. D.

Being in New-York, in the year 1826, I learnt that Mrs. Leigh of that city, had acquired great reputation for the cure of hesitation of speech such as stammering, &c. I soon found also that Mrs. Leigh had obtained, from several eminent medical men, who were, of course, incapable of lending themselves to a wilful falsehood of deception, certificates of their belief in the reality of Mrs. Leigh's cures. These gentlemen had been admitted into the lady's confidence, and permitted to witness the process of cure, on pledging their solemn promise never to divulge the secret. They therefore gave their attestations to the fact that the same means invariably produced the same favourable results. As I could glean no satisfactory information on this subject from books, I very zealously applied myself to an investigation of this distressing DEFECT—which investigation occupied my mind, day and night, during a tour through the United States. With equal confidence and satisfaction, I can now assert that the cause of stammering, hitherto so inscrutable, is not only easily understood, but capable of being removed with the utmost facility, by any one acquainted with the same cause, and who will take the trouble to put the simple processes of cure into operation. A few words will suffice to convey to the reader the result of my investigation; a fuller exposition of which will be offered to the public in a small work, now preparing for the press.

During the act of speaking, air must either be passing out, or passing into the lungs—or, at all events, out or into the mouth—that is during expiration or inspiration. Most people (who have a perfect command over the organs of speech) can articulate imperfectly and with difficulty during inspiration—but not so the stammerer. In attempting to speak, while drawing in the air, or while the lungs are empty, or nearly so, he will not be able to articulate at all; and not knowing the cause of this inability, he will make repeated, and often convulsive efforts, accompanied with more le ss of those laborious distortions of countenance so characteristic of the stammerer, until, by accident, rather than by design, he draws in a full breath, and effects the utterance of his words, while the air is flowing naturally from the lungs. I repeat it then, that—stammering arrises from an attempt to speak when the lungs are empty, or when the stammerer is drawing in his breath. This habit having been once contracted, generally becomes aggravated by time; and I need not say that thousands of individuals are almost cut off from social intercourse, and rendered miserable by the said impediment.

From these premises, which I know to be correct, the method of cure will be easily understood. It consists in making the stammerer (if a child, for an adult can do it himself) take in a deep inspiration, and repeat, with the whole force of the expiration, the different letters of the alphabet—numerals—monosyllables, one by one. This may be prefaced or not, by several hours practice of slow and deep breathing. As for the repetition of the monosyllable pronouncations, it must be continued for hours, days, or weeks, according to the condition of the patient, such as his age, capacity, strength of lungs, or inveterancy of the impediment. The stammerer must next proceed to the utterance of polysyllables, during one expiration;—then short sentences—and, lastly, long sentences; thus reversing, in fact, the evil habit, until at length, a new habit is acquired, and the cure effected. In some cases, this desirable object will not be accomplished in a few hours;—in others, it will require months. In general, a few days, or at most, weeks, will be sufficient.

Having put this discovery to the test of experiment, and completely verified the theory I had formed in my mind, I need hardly say that I choose the pleasure of communicating a blessing to my fellow creatures rather than the acquisition of personal emolument. It is an additional satisfaction to me to reflect, that this discovery of the cause and cure of stammering, was not a mere lucky thought, but the result of physiological investigation.

It is not my intention, in this short notice, to enter on a consideration of certain forms of hesitation of speech, dependent on organic defects, or which occur only when violent passions of the mind are in operation Neither need I advert to the absurd remedies which have been proposed for this distressing malady —or rather mal-habit. Slowness of utterance is the most universal recommendation in such cases. But this, without reference to the breathing, above alluded to, will be found totally inadequate to the object in view. The cutting of the frenum linguæ—the Demosthenic practice of addressing the ocean with pebbles in the mouth—speaking with the teeth closed—with the tongue applied to the anterior part of the palate, &c, need not here be discussed. The use of purgative medicines, where the nerves of speech are sympathetically disordered by the digestive organs, is a more rational and effective remedy than any of the above; but this alone will not avail in habitual stammering.

I have the satisfaction of not merely hoping, but of knowing, that this short and simple exposition will, in the hands of my medical brethren, be the means of communicating an invaluable blessing and enjoyment to thousands of my fellow-creatures—of rescuing the community from the harsh claims of mercenary Charlatans—and removing from the medical profession the opprobrium of being unable to do that which is effected by men and even women, unacquainted with the structure, the physiology, or the diseases of the human frame.

THE LONE INDIAN.

BY MISS FRANCIS.

For many a returning autumn a lone Indian was seen standing at one consecrated spot we have mentioned; but just thirty years after the death of Sosostcah, he was noticed for the last. His step was then firm, and his figure erect, though he seemed old and way-worn. Age had not dimmed the fire of his eye, but an expression of deep melancholy had settled on his wrinkled brow. It was a Powootonomo—he who had once been the Eagle of the Mohawks! He came to lie down and die beneath the broad oak, which shadowed the grave of Sassacus. Alas, the white axe had been there! The tree he had planted was dead; and the vine, which had leaped so vigorously from branch to branch, now yellow and withering, was falling to the ground. A deep groan burst from the soul of the savage. For thirty revolutions of years, he had watched that oak, with its twining tendrils. They were the only things in the world for him to love, and they were gone! He looked abroad. The beautiful land of his fathers was changed, like its Christian. No light canoe now shot down the river, like a bird upon the wing. The laden boat of the white man alone broke its smooth surface. The Englishman's road wound like a serpent around the banks of the Mohawk; and iron hoofs had so beaten down the war path, that a hawk's eye could not discover an Indian tract. The last wigwam was destroyed; and the sun looked boldly down upon the spot he had visited only by starlit, during thousands and thousands of moons. The few remaining trees, clothed in the fantastic mourning of Autumn. The long line of heavy clouds melting away before the coming sun; and the distant mountains, seen through the dusk of departing twilight, alone remained as he had seen them in his boyhood. All things spoke a sad language to the heart of the desolate Indian. "Yes," said he, "the young oak and the vine are like the Eagle and the Sunny-Eye. They are cut down, torn and trampled on. The leaves are falling, and the clouds are scattering like my people. I wish I could o- more see the trees standing thick, as they did when my mother held me to her bosom, and sung the warlike deeds of the Mohawk.

A mingled expression of grief and anger passed over his face, as he watched a loaded boat in its passage across the stream.—"The white man carries food to his wife and children; and he finds them in his home," said he. "Where is the squaw and the pappoose of the red man? They are here!" As he spoke he fixed his eye thoughtfully upon the fair scene, then wandering and troubled gaze. "The pale face may like it," murmured he, "but an Indian cannot die here in peace." So saying, he broke his bow-string, snapped his arrows, threw them on the burial place of his fathers, and departed for ever.

FRESH ARRIVALS.

AT THE SIGN OF THE GOLDEN TEA CHEST.

THOS. CARFRAE, JUN.

RESPECTFULLY informs his Friends and the Public, that he has just received, and now offers for Sale, at his Store, (next door to the Methodist Chapel,) a well selected assortment of new and fashionable,

DRY GOODS,

Of this Falls' importation; also, a choice assortment of Groceries, together with a great variety of other Articles too numerous to detail in an Advertisement.

N.B.—T. C. has received a great variety of English, French, and German Toys; also, a small assortment of Jewellery, all of which will be sold at a much reduced price for cash. x 19

BRITISH WAREHOUSE.—J. C. GODWIN & Co., Wholesale and Retail Merchants, beg to inform their Friends and the Public, they have received direct from England, the following, which they offer low for cash:—

West of England Cloths, the best assorted,
Yorkshire Cloths of superior qualities, assorted,
Kerseymeres of fine Textures, assorted,
Variety of Vest Patterns,
A well selected Assortment of Gentlemens' Dress, and Surtout Coats, Trowsers, &c., made in London,
Imitation Brussels Carpeting, Venetian Carpeting, and Brass Rods,
Upwards of 2,000 yards unbleached Factory Cotton,
Ships' Canvas bleached, Nos. 3, 4, 5, & 6,
Fashionable Tea and Coffee Urns,
Sheet Copper for Distills, &c.,
Brass Crimping Machines, with Heaters,
Brass and Steel Fire Irons, of the newest quality,
An assortment of Cabinet Furniture,
Cast Steel in Bars,
Variety of Woollen and Linen Girth Webbs,
Paints, assorted, first quality,
Boiled and Raw Linseed Oil,
First quality Cognac Brandy, favorite mark Marett,
Fine Holland Gin,
Good old Whisky, by the Barrel or per Gallon,
Port, Sherry, and Teneriffe Wines, of choice quality.—With a variety of other Goods.

J. C. GODWIN & Co.

York, Aug. 23th 1828. x 12

NOTICE.—To be sold, by Public Auction, on Tuesday the 18th November, 1828, at Eleven o'clock in the forenoon, in the Garrison at this Post, a quantity of condemned Barrack Bedding, Furniture, Utensils, &c. &c. &c.

☞ Sale to continue until the whole is sold.

H. MOSLEY,
AUCTIONEER.
P. HARTNEY,
BARRACK MASTER.

York, 28th October, 1828. n. 21

MEDICAL PATNERSHIP.—DOCTOR WIDMER finding his professional engagements much extended of late, and occasionally too arduous for one person, has been induced to enter into partnership with DOCTOR DIEHL, a respectable practitioner, late of Montreal.

It is expected that their united exertions will prevent in future any disappointment to Dr. Widmer's friends, both in Town and Country.

Dr. Diehl's residence is at present at Mr. Hayes's Boarding-house.

York, October 28, 1828. c. 21.

WINES.

A CARD.—MR. HAWKINS, Wine Merchant, of Quebec, offers for Sale a few Cases of excellent Port Wine, just received from Quebec.

Mr. Hawkins will be happy to receive orders from such gentlemen as are disposed to secure a supply of Genuine Wines, to be delivered early in the Spring at York and at Niagara.

Orders addressed to Mr. Hawkins, at Howard's Hotel, till Tuesday next, and afterwards at the office of this paper, will meet with attention.

York, September 20th, 1829. sn 15

STEAM-BOAT HOTEL, YORK, U. C.—The Proprietor of this elegant Establishment, now unrivalled in this part of the country, being desirous of retiring from Public Business, on account of ill-health in his family, will let the same for a term of years to be agreed on, either with or without the Furniture, &c.

The Establishment is now too well known to require comment.

N. B. Security will be required for the payment of the rent, and the fulfilment of the contract in every respect.

Apply to the Subscriber on the premises.

U. HOWARD.

York, October 8th, 1828. t 19

York Auction, Mart, & Commission Ware-House.
Opposite the Market Square.
M. & R. MEIGHAN,

HAVE for Sale, an assortment of Household Furniture, consisting of Mahogany, Curled Maple and Cherry Tree, Side Boards, Secretaries, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Breakfast & Dining Tables, Card Tables, Work Tables, Bason Stands, Feather Beds and Bedding; A London made grand Piano; an excellent Sulkey Carriage; a Mangle for pressing clothes; A Jack for Roasting Meat; A very elegant fourteen day Time Piece with Italian Marble Frame and Glass Shade; Double and Single Barrel Percussion Lock Fowling Pieces and Pistols; Bridles, Saddles. Double and Single Harness; Gilt and Plain Frame Looking Glasses; Some Handsome Vases and chimney Ornaments; an extensive assortment of Elegant Dry and Fancy Goods of every description, Hardware, Jewellery, Crockery and Glassware; Groceries, Tea, Wine and Spirits; together with an Elegant Collection of Books, Stationery, Perfumery, Patent Medicines &c.

Regular Auction Sales every week.

York, 1828. x 6.

FOR SALE, OR TO LET.—A TWO STORY HOUSE, in the Town of York, on the North side of Dutchess Street, opposite Mr. Allan's new Brick Building, and in rear of Chief Justice Campbell's. There is a good Cellar Kitchen to the House, and attached to the Premises, which contain one-fifth of an Acre, is a Garden—a good Well of Water—Stable—Out-Houses, &c.—Apply to

Mr. S. P. JARVIS.

York, 16th Oct. 1828. x 19

THE CANADA COMPANY.

NOTICE is hereby given, that no person is authorised to order any goods or articles on account of the Canada Company, but only the Superintendant, Accountant, and Warden, and even by them the Orders must be in writing, and signed.

JOHN GALT,
SUPERINTENDANT.

CANADA COMPANY'S OFFICE, Guelph, 16th Oct. 1828. x 20

FOR SALE—By the Subscriber, 100 Barrels PLAISTER OF PARIS, of the very best quality, low for Cash

WILLIAM BERGIN.

York, September 19, 1828. x. 15

NOTICE.—Having seen in the Canadian Freeman of yesterday an Advertisement of "A Farm to Let,"—signed, "John Lynch, Blacksmith to the Canada Company, Guelph."—I hereby give notice, that I know of no such person in the employment of the Canada Company.

JOHN GALT,
Superintendant.

CANADA COMPANY'S OFFICE, York, 24th October 1828. x 20

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

THE CANADA Steam-Packet for the remainder of the Season, will leave York and Niagara, alternate days, at Ten o'clock—Sundays not excepted.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner.

York, Sept. 29, 1828. x 17

PUBLIC NOTICE.—I require due notice to be given to me or to my Agent, Mr. Alexander Murray, at Mr. Proudfoot's Store, in York, of all transfers of Property in the Steam-Packet Canada, in default whereof I shall consider the original Stockholder, as the legal Owner in the Vessel; and in paying dividends and doing other transactions connected with my situation, hold myself accountable to them alone.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner of the Steam Packet Canada.

York, 27th December, 1827. 51tf.

N.B.—With Mr. A. Murray, reference may be had to all Books and accounts connected with the Canada Steam Packet.

THOMAS MOORE.—TAILOR, King Street, York, Meighan's Buildings, (opposite the Market-Place.) Begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has just opened, and offers for Sale, a choice assortment of Goods, Selected by himself at the Manufactories in England, which he can recommend as being of choice quality, consisting of, Superfine, Blue; Black; Scarlet: Green; Olive; Grey and Drab, West of England Broad Cloths.—Black, Blue and Grey, Double and single Milled Kerseymeres. Forest Cloths. Lasting and Corduroys.—Beverteens; Fustians; Cantons. Jane; Drab, and Striped Brown Drills. Fine Welsh Flannel; White and Blue Flannel. White and Grey Cottons. London printed Calicoes and Chintzes. Fancy Vestings. Printed Muslins. Sewing Silk; Twist; Thread and Rich Gilt Buttons.

MILITARY EQUIPMENTS,

consisting of, Regulation Swords; Patent Leather Regulation Waist Belts, with rich Gilt Clasps. Rich Gold Bullion Epaulletts, crimson Silk Regulation Sashes.—Rich Gold Velvet Lace, and Gilt British Militia Buttons. Red, White and Green, Regulation Feathers, with rich Gilt Tubes for do.

The whole of which will be disposed of on reasonable terms, or made up to order, agreeable to the latest fashions, at the shortest notice.

York, 14th July, 1828. x 6

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

LAKE ONTARIO STEAM-BOAT, NIAGARA, Captain MOSIER, with DANIEL READ, Sailing Master, Will, after the 15th inst., leave Niagara for Kingston, Brockville, and Prescott, every Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

On her return, will leave Prescott for Brockville, Kingston, York, and Niagara, every Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made with Messrs. Norton, & Co., Stage Proprietors, by which, passengers going down, arrive in Montreal on Tuesday evening; and those proceeding upwards, will, by leaving Montreal on Tuesday, arrive in time at Prescott to take the Boat.

York, June 6th, 1828. x 1.

TO SAWYERS.—Wanted immediately an experienced SAWYER, and an assistant to take charge of a Mill that has a constant supply of water; and in other respect particularly well situated.—None need apply, who cannot give sufficient references as to character and ability.

Further information on application to Messrs. WRAGG & Co. King-street York. x 11

CHAIN CABLES, &c.—ACRAMAN'S Patent Chain Cables, and Anchors, (warranted proved by Machine) a constant supply kept on hand (in stock) of all sizes, by JOHN WATKINS, Kingston, and in Montreal and Quebec by

WILLIAM BUDDEN.

July, 30, 1827. 11–tf.

A LOAN WANTED.—The Subscribers, desirous of making some further improvements, wish to obtain a Loan of £300, for three years, for which will be given in security, a Paper and Grist Mill, Saw Mill, Distillery, and 200 Acres of Land, free of all incumbrance, situated within three miles of York. EASTWOOD & SKINNER.

Oct. 23rd, 1828. f 20

NOTICE is hereby given, that a Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the Home District, will be holden at the Court House, in the Town of York, on Tuesday the 18th day of November next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, of which all Justices of the Peace, and those otherwise concerned, are desired to take notice, that they be then there present with their Rolls, Records, and other Memoranda, to do and perform those things which to their several Offices belong.—NOTICE is also hereby given, that a Home District Court will be holden at the Town of York, on Tuesday the 18th of November next, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, of which all Constables and Bailiffs, and those otherwise concerned, are desired to take notice, that they be there in their own proper persons to do and perform those things which to their several Offices belong, and appertain in that behalf to be done.

W. B. JARVIS,
Sheriff.

Sheriff's Office, York, 25th Oct. 1828. n 21

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL GROCERY STORE.—The Subscriber respectfully informs the Inhabitants of York and its vicinity, that he has opened a Store in the above line, on the Corner of Church and Palace Streets, where he is now ready to serve them with the choicest articles and at very low prices. The following are a few of the articles in his line, viz:—

O. L. P. Madeira,	London Porter,
F. Madeira,	Teas of all descriptions,
L. M. Do.	D. R. Loaf Sugar,
Prime Port,	S. R. Loaf Sugar,
Second do.	Muscovado do.
Sherry,	East India do.
Cognac Brandy,	Mace, Cloves,
Bordeaux do.	Cinnamon, Nutmegs,
H. Gin,	Alspice, Black Pepper,
Jamaica Spirits,	White Pepper,
Peppermint,	Mustard in Jars, ½ & ¼ lbs.
Shrub,	Isinglass, Arrow Root,
White Wine Vinegar,	Macaroni, Vermicilli,
Limejuice,	Curry Powder,
Molasses,	Raisins, Figs,
Olive Oil for Lamps,	Starch, Blue,
Linseed do.	Tobacco, Pipes, Blacking.
Lond. Brown Stout,

And a variety of articles in the Grocery line,

JAMES F. SMITH.

York, 17th September, 1828. sn. 15

THE Subscriber has just received on consignment, which he offers for Sale low, and on a liberal credit.

2 Pipes Prime Port Wine,
1 " L. P. Teneriffe,
1 Case Superior Claret.

JAMES F. SMITH.

20th October, 1828. c 20

TO LET, and possession given immediately, the House and lots lately occupied by Dr. Horne.—Inquire of MR. ALLAN.

York, 10th Oct. 1828. y 18

LANDS FOR SALE.—In the Township of Hallowell, Lot No. 46, 3d Concession, North-west side of the Carrying-Place, - - - 200

In the Township of Cramahe—

Lots No. 17, 18, & 19,	3d Con.	800
do. 15,	4th do.

In the Township of Hamilton—

Broken Lots, 29 & 30,	9th Con.	476
27, 28, 29, 31, 33, 34, & 35,	10th do.
North-east quarter, No. 1,	4th do.	50

In the Township of Clarke—

Lots No. 16, 17 & 18,	Broken Fronts	2000
16, 17, & 18,	1st Con.
17, & 18,	2d do.
17, & 18,	3d do.

In the Township of Darlington—

Lot No. 8,	3d Con.	400
8,	4th do.

In the Township of Pickering—

Lots No. 16, 17, & half of 18,	1st Con.	999
and Broken Fronts.

In the Township of York—

Lot No. 37,	3d Con.	200

In the Township of Gainsborough—

Broken Lot No. 27,	3d & 4th Con.	74

Apply to ANDREW MERCER

FALL AND WINTER GOODS.—The Subscriber begs leave to announce that by late arrivals, he has received his usual supply of Fall and Winter Goods, which will be sold at reduced prices for Cash or Produce.

Grateful for the generous support he has received since his commencement in business, he again solicits the interest of the Ladies and Gentlemen of York and its vicinity, and hopes his Goods will give them general satisfaction.

WILLIAM BERGIN.

York, 7th November, 1828. x. 23

ALLIANCE BRITISH AND FOREIGN
Life and Fire Assurance Company,
OF LONDON.
(CAPITAL—Five Millions Sterling.)

THE Subscriber having been appointed AGENT to the above Company, at York, he is ready to Insure against loss or damage by Fire at moderate rates of Premium. The high standing of this Institution in England, and the Company allowing their Agents in Montreal to settle losses in this Country, with the Assured participating in the Profits of the Company, renders it worthy of Public Confidence.

R. W. PRENTICE.

York, November 18th, 1825. 25.

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.—The Steam Boat ALCIOPE, will take Freight and Passengers from this Port during the remainder of the Season, every Saturday morning at 6 o'clock, on her way down from NIAGARA to PERSCOTT, to commence tomorrow.

York, 29th August, 1828. x. 13

STRAY COWS.—Came into the inclosure of the Subscriber, about three weeks since,—Two Cows—one a red Cow, with a small Star in her forehead, and a Bell on.—The other a small Brindle and white spotted. The owners are requested to prove property, pay charges, and take them away.

MOSES CHERRY,
No. 12, East side Yonge-Street, Township of York.

4th September, 1828. x. 13

ELIGIBLE SITUATION.—To be sold, Lots numbers 29 & 30 in the first concession of the Township of Scarborough with their broken fronts on Lake Ontario, situate about Seven miles from the Town of York.—On Lot No. 29, are erected a Log and a Frame House together with outhouses &c. These premises are now in the possession of Mr. Adna Bates, and are an eligible Situation for a Tavern.

Application to be made to C. C. SMALL Esq.
York, 4th August, 1828. x 11

FOR SALE,—Lot No. 12, and East half of 14 in the 3d Concession of the Township of York, West of Yonge-Street,—300 Acres,—the property of Major W. G. White.—Refer to ROBERT STANTON, Esquire, U. C. Gazette Office.

York, 4th July, 1828. x. 5

NOTICE.—All persons having claims upon the Estate of the late STEPHEN HEWARD, Esquire, of York, deceased, are requested to present the same properly authenticated to the Hon. P. Robinson, one of the Executors, without delay; and all persons indebted to the said Estate are requested to make payment to the said Executor.

York, September 15, 1828. x. 15

THE SUBSCRIBER begs leave to inform his friends and the public that he has purchased the Store-House, Wharf, &c. lately the property of William Cooper, Esq'r., in this Town, where he will receive, store, and sell, on Commission, on the most reasonable terms, all descriptions of produce or merchandize, with which he may be favored.

The buildings are extensive and convenient, being at the head of the Wharf, where all vessels which come into the Bay, principally discharge and take in their cargoes. He flatters himself that the care and attention of the person superintending the Wharf and Store, will give general satisfaction.

There will be for sale a constant supply of Pork, Flour, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Peas, Salt, and Whiskey, also Stoves, Potash Kettles, Coolers, Sugar Kettles, a variety of castings and Grindstones.

The Subscriber has also for sale upwards of 2500 Acres unimproved Lands of superior quality, in the most flourishing Townships, and convenient to York, which he will sell very low and on easy terms to actual settlers.

W. M. BERGIN.

York, February 28th, 1828. 41tf.

WHISKEY.—For Sale by the Barrel, a quantity of SUPERIOR OLD WHISKEY—Apply to R. W. PRENTICE.

York, 25th Sept. 1828. x 16

FRESH SEEDS.—Shaker's Garden and Flower Seeds, warranted of the growth of 1827, for sale by EDW'D. LESSLIE & SONS.

☞ E. L. & Sons expect a quantity of clover seed in a few days.

York, 14th March 1828. 43–tf.

BANK NOTICE.—DISCOUNT DAY, Wednesday of every Week.—Notes offered for Discount, must be put under cover to the Cashier, and left at the Bank the day before.

THOMAS G. RIDOUT,
Cashier.

England.

We are sorry to hear that His Majesty is at present confined to his apartments, at the Royal Lodge, by a slight attack of gout, brought on, it is supposed, by a cold.—Morning Paper, Sept. 8.

Sir Henry Halford visited his Majesty on Monday afternoon, at Windsor, and returned to London yesterday forenoon, his Majesty having so much recovered that Sir Henry's presence is, for the present, unnecessary. We understand that his Majesty will be able to resume his usual excursions in the course of a few days.—Ib. September 10.

The Duke of Clarence experienced, a few days ago, a spasmodic attack, from the effects of which his Royal Highness is now nearly recovered.—Liverpool Advertiser, September 16.

Mr. Henry Bell.—The case of Mr. Henry Bell, the individual who first successfully applied the steam-engine to purposes of navigation, is now presented to the public, and an appeal is made for a manifestation of public gratitude to this benefactor of his species, who is declining into the vale of years with scanty means of making his old age comfortable. Mr. Bell, though not the first to apply the power of steam to vessels, was the first who did so with success, and it was by his mechanical skill that the capital and enterprise of Mr. Fulton became available, in establishing the first steam-vessel on the river Hudson.—It is stated by a friend of Mr. Bell's, Mr. Edward Morris, of Glasgow, in a letter to the Liverpool Mercury, that Mr. Bell is now 61 years of age, and is suffering under the effect of a hurt he received some years since in fitting up a boiler. His only means appear to be an annuity of £100, generously settled upon him by the trustees of the river Clyde, in acknowledgment of his great services to the commerce of the country. An application was made some time ago to government for a pension, but Mr. Huskisse was only authorized to offer him a gift of £200, which Mr. Bell, by the advice of his friends, rejected, as quite beneath his exertions.—Ib.

BANK OF ENGLAND.—(At a half yearly meeting of Proprietors of Stock on the 18th Sept. it was proposed that a dividend of 4 per cent should be declared. This led to a conversation on the affairs of the Institution, in which the following facts were made to appear. Most of the statements were in answer to direct enquiry proposed to the Governor.)

How many branch banks of the Bank of England are now in existence?—There are nine. Has the measure of establishing branch banks been attended with profit or with loss to the Corporation?—The Governor said he could not at present give a distinct answer to this question, some of those banks having been recently established; still he might say that all had returned something for it. Has there been a profit upon the whole taken altogether?—Upon the whole taken together they have not returned a profit. What may be the amount of advances outstanding at the present time upon mortgages?—About one million. What is the amount of bills discounted during the last year, that is, from September 1827 to September 1828?—I do not consider it a fair question; at least it is one which it would not be proper to answer. Have all the instalments of advances upon naval and military pensions been paid up?—They have been paid. Is it not the amount of the annuity received by the bank in consequence £585,740, and is not this annuity to run on for 30 or 40 years?—Yes; that is generally known.

It was then moved, that the dividend for the last half year should be five per cent, instead of four, because they had a fund which could enable them to pay the increase of one per cent unanimously as these 13 millions advanced must have been a portion of the profits which should from the Proprietors, who were therefore now entitled to the benefit of the profit resulting from their advance, which profit might be best paid in the shape of a dividend.

The Governor said that the thirteen millions were drawn from a fund independent of the profits, and the Learned Gentleman therefore must be aware that a portion of the annuity already pays back a portion of what had been advanced. It goes to pay back the capital to the fund from which it had been advanced. If, therefore, this annuity has now to be appropriated in the shape of a dividend, they would have to replace the capital; so that, at the expiration of the term of the annuity, they would be left with the whole debt of 13 millions to provide for.

The amendment was then negatived, and the motion that a dividend of 4 per cent. be agreed to, carried.

Virginia Water—Virginia Water, the favourite and frequent retreat of his Majesty, was planted, and the lake executed, under the direction of Paul Sandby, at a time when that part of Windsor Forest was the favourite residence of Duke William of Cumberland. The artificial water is the largest in the kingdom, with the single exception of Blenheim; the cascade is, perhaps, the most striking imitation we have of the great works of Nature; and the grounds are arranged in the grandest style of landscape-gardening. The neighbouring scenery is bold and rugged, being the commencement of Bagshot Heath.

ISLE OF MAN.—The Governor is now the viceroy and representative of the King of Great Britain, as he formerly was of Lord Superior before the Sovereignty of the Island was purchased by the British Government. He is sworn to maintain and execute the laws justly and faithfully between the King and the inhabitants, according to established custom and usage; to keep an pleasure convene the Tynwald Court, which may be styled the Parliament of Man: it is his duty to preside in the Chief Courts of Judicature held by his warrant; he exercises over all the Courts an appellate jurisdiction, subject to the King in Council; and he also holds the office of Captain-General of the military forces employed in the Island. His Council consists of the Receiver-General, the Clerk of the Rolls, the Water Bailiff, the Attorney-General, the Bishop, the Archdeacon with his official and the two Vicars-General. At present the office of Governor and Captain-General of Man, is held by His Grace the Duke of Atholl, who appoints a substitute under the title of Lieutenant-Governor. This substitute, holding, for the time being, the whole powers vested in His Grace; forms with the Council, the second branch of the Legislature; while the British Government now forms the third, in room of the ancient Lord Superior.

Increase in the Consumption of Tea.—In 1822, the London importation of tea was 24,000,000 lbs.; in 1826, 30,000,000 lbs.; and in the year ending Jan. 5, 29,746,147 lbs.

The Harvest.—As regards the result of crop 1828, the Journals have greatly changed their tone. Old Cobbett alone holds out, and by way of saving his own consistency, persists in forecasting the shape of future evils. But it will not do. In England, allowing for partial damage, failures, &c., the crops are not half so bad as they were called; while in Scotland and Ireland, there is great room for gratitude rather than complaint.

Westminster School.—In consequence of the resignation of the late Dr. Goodenough, head master of Westminster School, the principals of Trinity College, Cambridge, have appointed the Rev. Dr. Williams, of Trinity College, to the vacant mastership of the school.

Scotland,

An article in the Ayr Advertiser confirms our accounts of the briskness of the carpet and other manufactures of Kilmarnock. It states that the carpet manufacture, like other branches, has greatly increased, and adds that the operatives employed in that way can earn from 15s to 21s a week, a wage double of that earned by the ordinary cotton weavers. The article goes on to state that "Wool has lately risen in price, and the carpet trade, which like others is subject to much fluctuation, has experienced at present considerable excitement. The muslin hand-loom weaving here has been superseded by the shawl, plaid, drugget, tartan, and other varieties of worsted weaving, which seem all at present under excitement, the warehouse empty, and the demand increasing." This gives a very encouraging view of the prosperous state of the town of Kilmarnock.—Glasgow Chronicle.

The various cotton manufacturers of this district are proceeding with undiminished activity. Letters were received in town last week from Calcutta, detailing the result of the sales of the shipments of yarn and manufactured goods from the ports of Clyde in November and December last. Some of the Nos. of yarns were sold lower than at the present Glasgow prices; but, on the contrary, other Nos. took the market beyond anticipation. The native merchants, however, do not seem well to comprehend the qualities of the goods. Cotton Blacs, that cost as much in dyeing as Turkey real goods, could not command one half of the price of the latter. The accounts on the whole are considered as rather discouraging for speculative speculators, but there is no doubt but that the Indian market will continue by far the most important vent for goods manufactured in this quarter. The shipments to that quarter from the West of Scotland have been comparatively inconsiderably during the last three months, the export season being nearly over; and the sales of Europe from the market have in the interim been rather limited, and consist principally of the coarser Nos. for power-loom goods, and a small quantity of the finer Nos. for the manufacturers. There is no change in the price of yarns.—Ib.

A manufacturing house in Glasgow requested their Agent in Auchterarder, to get wove for them ten 12 0 9 publicates, length 78 ells each, agreeable to carrier 10th July. The Agent selected 10 weavers, who finished the work, which was returned to Glasgow on the 19th of the same month, being 730 ells in 9 days, including the time coming from, and going to Glasgow. Other 12 0 0, 78 ells in length, and of a heavier description, were sent out by the same house to the same Agent, upon the 13th July. These were also finished by the same selected weavers, and returned to Glasgow by the 30th July. Again, upon the 24th July, 10 12 0 0 Gingham Checks, each 60 ells; which the same weavers, with the addition of other ten, finished in time for the cloth to be in the possession of its owner by the 6th of August. The work is done in a most superior style.

LOCHFINE HERRINGS.—There has not been such a take of Herrings in Lochfine for many years as this season, and they are of the very finest quality. They sell at 3s. per hundred. The fishermen are all, of course, busily engaged, and in high spirits.

Foreign Intelligence.

From the New York Spectator.—Nov 5.

FROM EUROPE—OCTOBER PACKET.

In a postscript to the greater part of our impression last evening, we announced the arrival of the packet ships Britannia and Henry Kneeland, whence they sailed on the 5th October. By these arrivals, the Editors of the Commercial Advertiser have received copies of files of London and Provincial papers, including the former of the 3d and Liverpool of the 3d.

In order to preserve for the reader a connected series of the official accounts of the operations of the Russian army, some recapitulations of the documents of official advices will be found under the St. Petersburgh head. But the intelligence from the seat of war is, in reality, not much later than our former advices, as we perceive that the Grand Vizier had reached Choumla, with a reinforcement of 30,000 men. It is evident that the Russians make but slow progress. Reports state, that the Emperor will postpone his grand object of taking possession of Constantinople until the next campaign—and will return to St. Petersburgh to spend the winter and strengthen his army.

There were reports in London that the Russians had ordered the blockade of the Dardanelles; and the Courier of the 1st says, "the report has at length assumed a more decided character—and if we are not misinformed, the discussions which have taken place upon the subject, have terminated in the following manner:—A formal notification of his imperial Majesty's intention to blockade the Dardanelles, will be made forthwith to the British and French Governments. The blockade, however, will be very limited in its operations; and, at all events, we understand, his Majesty's Government will exert itself to protect, as far as possible, the interests of British trade." The stocks had declined in consequence of this report, but were again on the rise at the last dates, when it was believed the armistice had been agreed to by the British Government, as being likely to conduce to the more speedy execution of the Greek treaty.—In announcement of the blockade was hourly expected, with understanding that it is only to relate to munitions of war and provisions.

The march of the Grand Vizier from the capital to Dradschia, it is said, resembled a religious procession. The Mufti, a sword in his right hand, and the Koran on his left, preceded the troops. The marine which was almost destroyed in the battle of Navarino, has, in some measure, repaired its losses. Seven frigates and three brigs are preparing to enter the Black Sea, and to raise the blockade of the ports invested by the Russians or, at least, to introduce provisions and troops into them.

Though the accounts from Paris, of a sortie from Varna on the 14th, are incorrect, it is reported, that a sortie has taken place since the date of the last bulletines, which brings down its operations to the 31st August. It is said to have been made on the 4th September, to have been a sanguinary one, but without decisive advantage on either side. No particulars, however, appear in the Courier of October 1st, have transpired.

The Petersburgh Morning Advertiser of Sept. 20, says, the Northburgh Correspondent confirms an article from the Danube in which it is stated, "that the number of sick troops in the Russian hospitals amounts to 20,000 or 25,000 men, and that the Emperor had expressed a strong desire for peace." The editor adds, "the latter part of the statement is rendered inconsistent with the vast preparations which the Emperor made for carrying on the war, and the immense reinforcements which he has ordered against Choumla and Varna. At all events, it can scarcely be supposed that the Sultan would, after such advantages which might have experienced, listen to any terms which the Emperor might propose."

Official advices have been received from Mr. Stratford Canning, to the 5th September. On the morning of that day the three Admirals had a conference with Ibraham Pacha, who submitted the obligation imposed upon him by the Convention to evacuate the Morea, whenever the means of conveyance were afforded to him. The conference was to be resumed on the 7th.

On the 24th two old houses fell down in Exeter and Gandy streets, in the Strand, by which several lives were lost. The details of the accident are shocking. The adjoining houses were in so rickety a state, that it was dangerous to approach the ruins. Several dead bodies were dug up, and several persons extricated alive, and carried to the hospitals in a dreadful condition.

It was reported that a forgery had been discovered in London, by which a banking house in Lombard street had suffered. The guilty party is said to have absconded.

At a meeting of silk-weavers at Macclesfield, petitions to Parliament were adopted, praying for a regulation of wages in the four great branches of silk, woolen, linen and cotton factories, and also for the re-enacting of the prohibiting laws.

PORTUGAL.

By the Lisbon Mail letters and papers to the 22st September were received in London. An additional prison had been ordered; the Castle of St. Philip, at Setubal. The others were found too small. Don Miguel had been shot at by an officer of his station; but the matter was hushed up. All mention of Don Miguel had been prohibited.

The Queen of Portugal's reception in England had been rapthusiastic. She proceeded from Falmouth to Truro, and thence to Exeter, escorted by the 4th Regt. of Dragoon Guards, who formed a guard of honor during the night. At Exeter she received a deputation from the Portuguese at Plymouth. The addresses and ceremonies on the occasion were of an interesting character, and we may publish them to-morrow.

From the London Courier of September 26

BULLETINS FROM THE RUSSIAN ARMY.

At length the official Bulletins from the Russian army have arrived, and have brought down the operations against Choumla from the 7th to the 25th August inclusive; the operations before Varna from the 13th to the 31st August; and the operations before Silistria from the 23d July to the 10th ult. No mention is made of the incursions of the Turkish force from Widdin and Kalafat, into Wallachia, nor of the operations against General Geismar. We shall first take a view of the events that occurred before Choumla.

General Bellger, as our readers know, commands the advanced-guard of the Russian army acting against Choumla; he had taken up a position at East-Stanboul, for the purpose of cutting off the communication with Adrianople by that road, and of preventing supplies from reaching Choumla. He had to contend with an enemy whose attacks, principally of cavalry, were impetuous and incessant. On the 7th of last month he cleared the road from East Stanboul to the village of Kosteje, from which he drove the Turkish detachment falling back upon its reinforcements, attacked General Rudiger's square on the left, but was repulsed and obliged to retreat. The Russian General returned to his camp at East-Stanboul, and was then sent to occupy the roads from his camp to the Balkan—and with this the Turks had established a position at the village of Kosteje, and taken up a position there and in the surrounding defiles. The Russian General attacked them on the 15th ult. and completely dislodged them; but, taking advantage of his absence from East-Stanboul, a body of 8 or 10,000 cavalry and infantry marched from Choumla and attacked him as he fell back upon his position. He succeeded, however, in regaining it with the loss of four pieces of cannon. It was in this affair that General Ivanoff was wounded, and we believe, mortally.

Whilst these severe conflicts were going on in the rear of Choumla, the besiegers continued their works, and completed the construction of three new redoubts. It was against these redoubts, that the subsequent efforts of the Turks were directed.

Both parties remained in comparative inaction till the 25th, when the Turks made their desperate sortie, and attacked simultaneously both the wings of the Russian army, and the position of General Rudiger near East-Stanboul. It was a tempestuous night, and blew such a hurricane, that no expectation of any attack seems to have been entertained. The Russians in one of the redoubts, were taken by surprise, and the redoubt was carried, says the Bulletin, "almost without drawing a sword." It was in this redoubt that General Wrede was killed.

The account of a gallant exploit by Admiral Greig who destroyed a Turkish arsenal at Mesda, on the south side of Bourgas, completes the narrative of the operations in this quarter.

The Bulletin gives no details of the blockade of Silistria.—The works have been carried on, and two squadrons of the fla tiffs of the Don have arrived before the place.

No intelligence is contained in the Bulletins of the events in little Wallachia.

Upon the whole, it will be seen that the intelligence of communicated exclusively this day week has been confirmed in many, though closely pressed, holds out, nor does it appear that any summons has been sent to the Governor to surrender, as was mentioned in some German Papers. Choumla is strictly invested, but the communication with the Capital is still open; and 40,000 men, for Choumla direct, must have been at no great distance from the place by the 2d of September. It is conjectured that the Russians will advance to meet him, and try to prevent his getting into Choumla.

Extraordinary Supplement to the St. Petersburg Journal.

NEWS FROM THE ARMY IN TURKEY.

Operations before Choumla, from Aug. 7 to 21

St. Petersburg, Sept. 6.—On the 7th of August, Lieut.-General Rudiger, continuing the operations intrusted to him, the object of which was to reconnoitre the enemy's rear, advanced from Eski-Stamboul towards the village of Kostidji, from whence he drove a Turkish detachment that occupied it, and where he took a piece of cannon and some prisoners: meantime the enemy, who had received considerable reinforcements, and had effected the number of 8,000 or 6,000 men, fell upon our left, which consisted of two companies of chasseurs, but they were repulsed with loss, and obliged to take flight.

The works before Choumla continue with success. Notwithstanding all the efforts of the enemy and the fire of his batteries, according to the accounts given by the engineers, the enemy's canvalry has sustained considerable loss in the various engagements which it has made with us, and it is in great want of forage.

FORMATION AND CONSTITUTION OF THE YORK BIBLE SOCIETY.

PATRON.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, MAJOR GENERAL SIR JOHN COLBORNE, K.C.B. &c. &c. &c.

A Meeting convened in the Masonic Hall, on the evening of Monday, the 3d November, 1828, for the purpose of forming a Bible Society, auxiliary to, and to co-operate with the British and Foreign Bible Society.

After prayer by the Rev. James Harris,—1st, It was moved by Mr. Stuart, and seconded by Mr. Harris,—that the Hon. John Henry Dunn take the Chair, which was unanimously agreed to.

2nd, The Honble. Chairman, in a neat and pathetic Speech, which did great honour to his feelings for the purpose for which he took place, viz.—to form a Bible Society, whose sole object should be the circulation of the Scriptures, without note or comment.

3rd, The Secretary of the Committee read the following Rules, which had been prepared by the Committe, for the adoption of the meeting.

Laws & Regulations of the York Auxiliary Bible Society.

RULE 1st.—This Society, shall be denominated, The York, U. C. Auxiliary Bible Society—having the same object in view as the British and Foreign Bible Society, viz.—the circulation of the Bible, without note or comment—to act in concert with the Parent Society, or upon such occurrences may require.

RULE 2nd.—The Society shall consist of all who are disposed to promote the object of the Institution, without regard to differences of religious sentiments.

RULE 3rd.—Every subscriber of five shillings annually, shall be considered a member as long as he pays his subscription.

RULE 4th.—A Subscriber of five pounds, shall be a member for life. Donations of any amount, small or great, will be thankfully received.

RULE 5th.—The business of the Society shall be conducted by a President, five Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer, two Secretaries, a Committee of twenty-seven of its own Members, and a depositor of its own Bibles.

Committee (the first on the list) shall go out annually—and five shall be a quorum. Ministers, of all denominations, who subscribe, shall be stated members of Committee.

RULE 6th.—The Committee shall meet on the first Mondays of November, February, May, and August, or when called by the Chairman, or any three of the Directors.

RULE 7th.—The Society shall meet annually on the second week in February, in York. The day and hour to be fixed by the Committee, and advertised—at which meeting the Committee shall give an account of their transactions and funds.

RULE 8th.—Every Subscriber of one pound five shillings annually, shall be entitled to purchase Bibles and Testaments, to the amount of five pounds, at the reduced prices of the Society.

RULE 9th.—The Committee shall be empowered to sell the Scriptures, or to give them grants when they find well authenticated claims. They are to purchase from the Parent Society to supply their wants, and, if there is any overplus Funds to spare, to remit the same to the Parent Society, for the purpose of supplying other Nations with the pure word of God.

RULE 10th.—No alteration shall be made in these laws, but at a General Meeting of the Society—and any proposed alteration must be published, in at least two, of the York Newspapers, one month previous to that Meeting—and approved of by two thirds of the Members present at such Meeting.

These Rules having been read.—

Motion 1st.—Dr. BALDWIN, M. P., Moved—That the Rules now read, be adopted as the Constitution of this Society. The Dr. delivered an excellent Speech,—after which, Jesse Ketchum, Esq. M.P. seconded the motion. The motion was then put from the Chair, and carried unanimously.

Motion 2nd.—Dr. MORRISON then rose and Moved—That the Hon. John Henry Dunn, Receiver General of this Province, be President of this Society. Mr. Henderson seconded this motion, which was put by Dr. Baldwin, and unanimously agreed to.

Motion 3rd.—Dr. BURNSIDE Moved—That Dr. Baldwin, M.P., Dr. Morrison, Jesse Ketchum, Esq., M.P., James E. Small, Esq., Barrister, and Robert Baldwin, Esq., Barrister, be Vice-Presidents of this Society. Mr. McLellan seconded the motion—carried, nem. con.

Motion 4th.—The Rev. WILLIAM RYKERT rose, and after a very impressive Speech, Moved—That Peter Paterson, Esq., Merchant, be Treasurer—the Rev. James Harris, and Alexander Stewart, Secretaries—and Mr. Edward Henderson, Depositor of Books. This motion, having been seconded by Mr. James Armstrong, was carried unanimously.

Motion 5th.—JAMES E. SMALL, Esq., Barrister, after an excellent, appropriate Speech, Moved—That the following persons be Members of Committee, until the next General Meeting in February, 1830, and that the Committee may fill the vacancy if any one refuses to act.

Messrs. Abrm Wilson,	Messrs. Colin Drummond,
" Peter Secord,	" Jas. Armstrong,
" John Ashbridge,	" Jas. Cockshutt,
" Andrew Johnston,	" Harvey Bridgeford,
" James Hughes,	" Henry Mosley,
" George Dennison,	" Jas. Leslie,
" John Gamble,	" John Ewart,
" Josh. Van Allan,	" Malm. McLellan,
" Thos. Carfrae,	" James Mitchel,
" Andw. McGinnes,	" Jas. Armstrong,
" Wm. Patrick,	" Thos. Armstrong,
" Duncan Kennedy,	" Dr. Burnside,
" Joseph Wells,	" John McFarlane.
" Jas. S Howard,

This motion was seconded by Mr. Peter Paterson and carried—nem. con.

Motion 6th.—JOHN ROLPH, Esq., Barrister, M. P. proposed that the Rules now read be adopted as the Constitution of the Society, and be printed and circulated, with the usual eloquence, which the most appropriate, and pathetic Speech, which gratified, and animated the Meeting.

Mr. Mitchel spoke after Mr. Rolph, and seconded the motion, which was carried without opposition.

Motion 7th.—ROBERT BALDWIN, Esq. Barrister, next addressed the Meeting, with much feeling and zeal for the good cause, and with his usual acumen—and Moved—That the Right Honorable, Sir JOHN COLBORNE, K.C.B. &c. &c. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, &c. &c. &c., be respectfully requested to become Patron of this Society.

This motion was seconded by Mr. Henderson, and carried with applause.

Motion 8th.—The Revd. ALEXANDER STUART, after a few appropriate remarks, Moved—That it be recommended to Ladies, as well as to Gentlemen, in York, and the country around, to form Associations, in aid of this Society.

Mr. James Cockshut, after a short Speech of commendation of the grand object, seconded the motion, which was carried.

Motion 9th.—The Rev. JAMES HARRIS, after reading a letter from his friend Rev. John West, and shortly, but pathetically, recommending the measure, Moved—That the thanks of the Society be given to the Rev. John West, for his visit to York, and to the Parent Institution for its generous offer of assistance through him. This motion was seconded by Mr. Howard, and carried.

Motion 10th.—Mr. SULLIVAN Moved, after some appropriate remarks,—That the thanks of the Meeting be given to the Society of Masons, for the use of their Hall. This motion was seconded by Mr. Ketchum, and carried.

Motion 11th.—JAMES E. SMALL, Esq. Barrister, then Moved—That a Subscription be now opened, for forwarding this good cause.

This motion was seconded by Dr. Baldwin, and carried.

Motion 12th.—It was then Moved by John Rolph, Esq. Barrister, M.P., and seconded by Robert Baldwin, Esq. Barrister—That the thanks of the Meeting be given to the Hon. J. H. Dunn, for his attentive and polite conduct in the Chair. Carried with applause, after being put by Dr. Baldwin, M. P.

The Hon. Chairman, in that condescending and polite manner, so peculiar to himself acknowledged the honor done to him by the Society.

Motion 13th.—The Hon. John Henry Dunn, Moved—Seconded by Dr. Baldwin, the thanks of the Meeting to the Secretary of the Committee for his activity in the cause, which was carried—and after his acknowledgment of the honor done to him, and expressing his determination to continue to exert himself in this cause.

Mr. SMALL Moved—That Mr. Stuart should conclude the Meeting by Prayer.

After Prayer, a number Subscribed—and to such an amount, that it is evident they feel the importance of the object.

The Meeting lasted from Seven o'clock, till a little past Nine. It is hoped those who attended reckoned it a feast; and the Committee regret that arrangements were not made for giving all the Speeches to the public at full length.

The cause is of God, and is sure to prosper. It is hoped that many of those who have now stood aloof, particularly those who are looked to by others as patterns of good will to this noblest of causes.

We ought not to satisfy ourselves by supporting one good Institution, but, in as far as God has prospered us, we should forward every cause, which has the glory of God, and the good of our Neighbour for its object. Of all the schemes supported by Christians, the present stands the Apostles of Christ to preach—the best Missionaries that ever went out,—and Christ has promised to be with them to the end of the world. They speak truth and nothing but the truth. They have the keys of the Kingdom of Heaven.

The Committee appointed to prepare for, and call the General Meeting, have acted according to their best judgment; and invited those whom they thought the best friends of the Institution to take an active part. They may have erred. They may have left out some of its best friends, and invited others whose zeal is not so great. If so, they have done it in ignorance—and they know that the real friends of the Institution will manifest their zeal by the first time the Society meets. They merely notice this that none may take offence; assuredly declaring that they wished to avoid giving offence.

They wrote to all the Ministers of Religion in Town, requesting them to intimate the Meeting, and to attend themselves to give a Stimulus to the Meeting.*

* NOTE.—It is hoped that the substance of some of the Speeches will appear in the public prints, and stimulate others to form Societies for forwarding the same laudable purpose.

Resolutions of the Committee, 10th November, 1828.

That the Town of York and its Neighbourhood, be divided into nine Wards, and that one of the Committee go together as Collectors to each Ward, and call at every House, to request Subscriptions and Donations, and to enquire into the wants of every person as to Bibles. They are to ascertain how many families there are who have to give for a Bible or Testament, at the highest, only cost price.) These are to recommend necessitous cases to the Secretaries, and give in their list to the Treasurer, To begin their visits next week.

WARD 1st.—East of Market Square, and south of King Street, to the Don.

Collectors.—Messrs. Mitchel and Cockshut.

WARD 2nd.—West of Market Square, south of King Street, and east of Yonge Street.

Collectors.—Messrs. Jas. R. Armstrong and McLellan.

WARD 3rd.—All west of Yonge Street, and south of King Street, including the Garrison.

Collectors.—Messrs. Henderson and James Armstrong.

WARD 4th.—East of Yonge Street, to Humber Bay, both sides of Dundas Street.

Collectors.—Messrs. Dennison and Wenham.

WARD 5th.—From Peter Street, east to Yonge Street, north of King Street, excepting McAuly Town.

Collectors.—Messrs. Patrick and Shepherd.

WARD 6th.—McAuly Town, and all north of Dundas Street, on both sides of Yonge Street, to the blue hill Creek.

Collectors.—Messrs. John Ross and F. Armstrong.

WARD 7th.—From Yonge Street, East to Central School Street, north of King Street to the woods.

Collectors.—Messrs. Howard and Kennedy.

WARD 8th.—All east of Central School Street, and north of King Street, to the Don.

Collectors.—Messrs. Carfrae and Mosley.

WARD 9th.—From the Don to Mr. Chas. Small's, both sides of the Road.

Collectors.—Messrs. Van Allen and Ashbridge.

N. B.—The Treasurer and each of the Secretaries take in Subscriptions at their houses. The above division is published, that none may fear the above named are impostors. Besides each two will have a paper with the number of their Ward on the back, signed by the Secretary.

Primary Address of the YORK BIBLE SOCIETY, to their Christian Friends of all denominations.

Dear Friends,—It is with mingled feelings of regret and joy that we now address you. We regret that we have let so good a cause as the circulation of the Holy Scriptures, lie so long dormant—but we rejoice that now a new stimulus is given to the work, and we hope the zeal and activity of the lovers of truth, every where, will increase, until every family, and every individual of the human race shall be in possession of the word of God.

Brethren,—our reason for addressing you is, to inspire you, if possible, with such a zeal for the circulation of the Holy Scriptures, as nothing but death can extinguish. The cause is so good that no opprobrium can make us ashamed of it, and we hope that no difficulty or trial will ever divert us from supporting it. Its object is so extensive that we need to call on all the friends of truth to lend their helping hand. It has so many enemies that we need to arouse all the energies of the people of God to engage in the work, and to come, "to the help of the Lord against the mighty."

It is the cause of God, therefore we are certain of ultimate success. The Lord has engaged to build up Zion—to raise her ruins—and to make her "a praise in the whole earth."

He has from the beginning wrought by means, and the great appointed mean of illuminating the world, is the word of God. The labours of the Missionary will be in vain, unless he carries the Scriptures along with him, and out of them unfolds the way of life.—These only are able to make the nations wise unto salvation. They only teach the plan of salvation, and exhibit that morality which is pleasing in the sight of Jehovah. In them we have eternal life, because they testify of Jesus. If the Bible has enlightened our minds—purified our hearts—and filled our souls with the hope of eternal life, &c. shall we not exert ourselves to the utmost of our power to convey the same blessings to others? Giving will not impoverish our own souls, and we are only Stewards, under God, of our money. Is it possible for us to love our neighbour and not endeavour to give him the greatest gift under Heaven? Can we apply our money to forward a better cause? No! There is no cause equal to this! The salvation of properties, however valuable, nay even the salvation of the body, is nothing to the salvation of the soul!—Come then, dear friends, let us unite our exertions in the good cause. It is true we must meet with opposition. To suppose the contrary would be to suppose the work we aim at is already accomplished. All who love darkness will oppose the circulation of the Bible. Its light they would extinguish. But the faithful of every denomination are on our side, and the great Jehovah is our Captain. Under his guidance we may march forward—in his power we may trust—not doubting "that our labour shall not be in vain in the Lord." The puny providential reasonings of men against the circulation of the word of Jehovah, spring from darkened understandings and vitiated feelings.—They cannot stand one moment before the pure rays of the sun of righteousness, which emanate from the word of God. We need not fear to exhibit our light, for instead of being bedimmed by any other standard of light, it will have the same effect upon them, as the sun has upon the glimmering taper.

The Society is not disposed to cast the least reflections upon others. They know that all are accountable to God, and leave all in his hands. But knowing, in part, their own responsibility, they wish to be no longer inactive in the good work, and they hereby call upon all who value the Bible, to join them in promoting its circulation. They suppose that others, like themselves, have been inactive, either from want of knowing the need that exists for circulating the Scriptures, or from want of opportunity of contributing their mite in a way congenial to their feelings. The forming of the present Society removes every obstacle. Those who wish to circulate the Scriptures alone have now the opportunity—and those who wish also to circulate tracts, and other good books, can do so by means of the valuable Societies that circulate such.

While this Society thinks the circulation of the word of God the first and great wish of the people of God, they by no means despise the laudable, though inferior exertions, in which, many of themselves and others are engaged. Neither do they think any apology necessary for thus addressing their christian friends, as they think the importance of the subject far overballances every objection that can be made.

This Society would recommend the formation of Bible associations and societies, in town and country. Their Committee will be ready to give every information and assistance in their power for forming such, and request such as wish any advice to correspond with their Secretaries. In all such cases they recommend large Committees, every member of which should be a collector. The cause is of God, and the Widow's mite may be as acceptable as the Princely donation. If all heartily engage in this good work, it will soon be accomplished.

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 15, 1828.

Latest dates from Europe, are to 3rd October.—A summary of the news they bring, for which we are indebted to the New York Spectator, will be found under the proper head.

The proceedings of a Meeting lately held in this Town, for the purpose of forming an Auxiliary to the British and Foreign Bible Society, have been handed to us for publication, and will be found in our columns of this day.

The successful accomplishment of so praiseworthy an object, cannot we think admit of doubt.

THE ROADS.—There has lately been a more than usual number of travellers in Town from different parts of the Province, who came by Land.—One and all speak of the very bad state of the Roads, and particularly of many of the Bridges which are becoming quite unsafe.—It is to be hoped that the expectations which have been so very generally entertained by the Country, of some efficient measure being adopted for the improvement of our Roads, will not be again disappointed.—The subject has repeatedly been recommended to the notice of Parliament, and the delay which has hitherto taken place, or rather the entire failure of the several modes proposed, renders it the more necessary that immediate attention should be paid to it.—There is reason to believe, that for some years past, in consequence of the expectation of some general measure being adopted, the ordinary Statute Labor, has not, in many places, been expended with much advantage to the Roads—at all events, if the mode by Statute Labor is to be retained, under the impression that it is best suited to the state of the Country, it will be conceded, we believe, that it requires to be placed on a more efficient footing.—At present, the Roads benefit but little by it, and the opinion is very general that a commutation, even at the low rate of a Shilling per day, would realise more important benefits to the public, than by taking the assessment in Labor under the present Law.

The last Gazette, contains Addresses to His Excellency Sir Peregrine Maitland, on his departure from the Province—from the Magistrates, Grand Jury, and Bar of the London District, in Quarter Sessions assembled—from the Towns of Kingston and Brockville, and from Grimsby, all expressing the same sentiments of personal regard, and respect for His administration of this Government, as those which were previously presented from other places, to His Excellency.

A Coroners inquest was taken before John Burwell, Esq., at Brantford, on Saturday 1st instant, on view of the body of a man by the name of Grove Foot, who was found dead on the morning of that day, below the hill near said Village with his neck broken.—He had been drunk the previous night, and on leaving the House of Mr Dalton, he took a bottle of unreduced Rum, and drank from it freely. The Verdict of the Jury was—that he came to his death by accident, of which excessive drinking was the cause.—The same Coroner had only three days before inquired of another death produced by Drunkenness.—(Communicated.)

To Correspondents.—The person who calls himself "a friend and Subscriber"—is very much mistaken if he supposes that our Columns are open to personalities, such as are contained in his Communication, signed "Tom. Backus."

Government House York, 1st July, 1828.

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor has has been pleased to appoint Thomas Kirkpatrick, Esquire, of the Town of Kingston, to be Collector of the Customs for the Port of Kingston, in the room of C. A. Hagerman, Esq. resigned.—Commission dated 24th June, 1828.

General Maitland our late Lieutenant Governor, arrived here in the Canada on Thursday, and proceeded directly to his country seat. We presume His Excellency has taken a long farewell of his friends at the seat of Government, leaving some warm friends and some bitter enemies. We have reason to believe that numbers of families, both here and at York, who has shared in the unostentatious bounty of His Excellency and Lady Sarah, will greatly lament the removal of that benevolent family. Major Hillier also comes over in the boat, with his family, on their way to the West Indies.—Niagara Gleaner.

On Monday last, His Excellency Sir John Colborne paid a visit to the Falls; his own elegant carriage, drawn by four spirited horses, furnished by Mr. Cryder, carried his Excellency, Lady Sarah her sister, Miss Hillier, and five children.—His Excellency went on horseback, accompanied by Captain Phillpotts, of the Royal Engineers. In the mean time the Steamer Canada went to Lewiston—took on His Excellency's baggage, and was ready to receive His Excellency and family at an early hour on Tuesday morning. On the departure of the vessel a salute was fired from Fort George. We have been informed that His Excellency was highly gratified with the first view of the Province, and the friendly reception he has met with, also, of the good things he partook of at the Hotel, much of which was the produce of the Province! —ib.

Inquest on the 29th instant, on a woman found dead at the one Mile Creek—Verdict—"Departed this life by the visitation of God, in a natural way, caused by debility from effects of intoxication and incleniency of the weather."—It is said her name was Mary Smith, formerly of the 89th Regiment.—ib.

Sir Peregrine Maitland, we understand, took leave of several of his friends at his country seat in Stamford, on Saturday last, and proceeded to Blackrock, and embarked on a Canal Boat for Albany; from that he intends to proceed to Boston by land, and from Boston to Halifax, by sea of course.—ib.

(From the Nova-Scotian of Oct. 15.)

Pembroton.—Many of our readers will recollect the individual who, some three years since, afforded us so much entertainment, by the exhibition of his versatile and admirable powers, in the little Theatre at the Lumber Yard. Amid much eccentricity and singular enthusiasm, he possessed talent of no ordinary degree. His assumption of the character of an improvisatore was perhaps an excusable piece of vanity, as any body who can write at all, can compose a copy of verses on a given subject, in less than 24 hours—nor were his productions, many of which we had an opportunity of reading, remarkable for any thing but a passionate earnestness, and an occasional strength of epithet, but they borrowed from his splendid delivery—the varied and thrilling intonations of his voice, the admirable grace and expressiveness of his action—a thousand charms which, to the delighted audience, made them appear productions of a superior order. The scenes he read from Virginius, Macbeth, Iron Chest, and Damon and Pythias, were delivered in a style which bespoke the highest Dramatic power, and the contrasts he drew between the stillish and classic school, and that of nature alone, showed that he had studied his art with an ardour and success which very few have equalled. From hence he went to England lecturing the passengers in the cabin and spunging to the winds from the quarter deck, and for some time after his arrival, he obtained a few complimentary notices of him in the Portsmouth papers. Since then we had lost sight of him, and supposed that his eccentricity had got the better of his abilities, and hindered his advancement in the scale of public favor. But on glancing over the Theatrical Notices, in the Sept. No. of the New Monthly Magazine, we were agreeably surprised in finding New Monthly Magazine, we were agreeably surprised in finding a long and highly complimentary article, devoted to his service, a long and highly complimentary article, devoted to his service, "We had begun almost to despair," says the critic, of witnessing the appearance of any actor of real tragic power, to whom we may look as capable of filling the vacancy, which the retirement of Young, Macready or Kean would create—we had intelligence of his merits, the dew, and the rain, in a dreadful waste of this article, which, if cured as above, makes a sweet and excellent fodder.—New-England Farmer.

Sea Sand, when used as a top dressing upon grass land, either alone or with a mould, never fails to bring forth, for a succession of seasons, a very sweet and valuable herbage.

Domestic.

To His Excellency Sir John Colborne, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

May it Please your Excellency,

We, the Clergy, Magistrates and other Inhabitants of the Town of York, approach your Excellency, with our congratulations upon your arrival in this Province our congratulations upon your arrival in this Province and upon the Government rendered vacant by the advancement of our late Lieutenant Governor, who is about leaving us, bearing with him the sincere respect of every virtious mind, and the gratitude of all well wishers to this Province.

We receive your Excellency as the Representative of our Gracious Sovereign, endeared to us by numerous benefits, and we reflect with pride and satisfaction on the reputation which your Excellency is known to have acquired in the glorious contest which has immortalized the British Arms, and which has conferred on those who bore a distinguished part in it, a claim to the gratitude and respect of their countrymen.

We sincerely hope that your Excellency and family may find your residence in Upper Canada agreeable in all respects, and we assure your Excellency, that it shall be our anxious wish, to contribute to your comfort and happiness.

York, U. C. 5th Nov. 1828.

J. Baby, John Strachan,
Joseph Wells, D. Cameron,
John H. Dunn, Thomas Ridout,
[And one hundred and nine others.]

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following

REPLY.

Gentlemen,

I receive with satisfaction your Address, and from the Loyalty and character of the Inhabitants of Upper Canada I feel confident that it will long continue prosperous and happy.

I thank you for your kind congratulations, and look forward to my residence among you with the greatest interest and pleasure.

On Friday last the 17th October, the great chains which had been thrown across the large span at the Falls of the Chaudiere to support the scaffolding of the bridge, were removed, and the dangerous undertaking thereby completed. In addition to the great utility of this bridge, its romantic situation in unison with the beautiful surrounding scenery, will render it an object of the first attraction to the admirer of nature, and the tasteful and scientific tourist, Nor ought it to be omitted that, to the notice of the engineer and mechanic, the Chaudiere bridge presents an object of attraction. It is erected upon an improvement on the plan of the Shanfhausen bridge across the Rhine—and the public are indebted to the talents of Lieutenant Colonel By the engineer in command, for this improvement. We understand that, in the opinion of many eminent artists who have considered the principle, it has met with their unequivocal approbation, as possessing every requisite of strength which strict geometrical proportion can bestow. It will, no doubt, come in geometrical proportion can bestow. It will, no doubt, come in practical use in the erection of bridges across extensive spans, and, in doing so, will confer a lasting benefit on mankind, more particularity in a country like Canada, where her expansive rivers require the adoption of bridges upon such a plan. It is always to be regretted that the employment of wood for such structures, is particularly well fitted for Canada—the great abundance of that material renders it the cheapest—and being less affected by our great transitions of climate, than iron will operate in favour of its durability.—Montreal Herald.

AGRICULTURAL.

Curing Corn Stalks.—The time for cutting the stalks of Indian Corn is near at hand, and we shall improve this opportunity to point out a manner of curing them practised by many careful farmers, and which will not fail to prove satisfactory to those who have not yet adopted the same. After cutting them during fair weather, they should be gathered the next or following day, tied up in small bundles at the upper end, and set immediately, not too close, on poles fixed in the barn across the beams, taking care to have the doors open in the day time, that they may dry and season. In January, those which remain ought to be taken down and packed close together, to prevent their getting too dry. The usual method of making small stacks of them round the fields, exposed for weeks to the wind, the dew, and the rain, is a dreadful waste of this article, which, if cured as above, makes a sweet and excellent fodder.—New-England Farmer.

Lower Canada.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE OF TRADE OF QUEBEC FOR THE YEAR 1828

The period for which they were elected being about to expire, the Committee of Trade have, according to usage, to mention some of the principal subjects which have engaged their attention, and to offer a few observations on matters connected with the trade of the country.

In the month of January last, a petition was transmitted, through the late Governor-in-Chief, to His Majesty's ministers, praying for the admission of colonial grain into the United kingdom for home consumption, permanently, and at a fixed rate of duty; the committee have learned with much satisfaction that an Act was passed by the Imperial Parliament, on the 15th July last, (9th Geo. 4, c. 76,) which provides for the object of their petition in as ample a manner as they had a right to expect.

The Committee has also to state, that by another Act of the last Session of Parliament, (9th Geo. 4, cap. 60,) further concessions have been made to the trade of this country, which, it is expected, will prove as beneficial as the spirit which dictated them is liberal. For the various provisions of these laws, the trade is referred to the acts which will be left on the table.

The Committee are of opinion that it would be attended with advantage to the trade of the country, to obtain a recital of all the Provincial Statutes regulating the inspection and exportation of produce, and they take leave to recommend to their successors the attainment of that object at the ensuing Session of the Legislature.

The amount of shipping built in the Province this season has been small, and consequently the distress and loss from desertion of seamen, suffered by the British Ship Owners trading to this Province, have been less than for many years past; yet the evil is by no means removed, and continues, as well as the fees of the Court of Vice Admiralty, to be grievously complained of by the Shipowners.

The Committee are aware of the difficulty of these subjects, but whatever can be done to reduce the evils resulting from the present state of things will be of benefit to the country.

No answer has yet been received to the memorial addressed to the Lords of the Treasury, praying them to reconsider their order under which payment of crown duties are now exacted.—The Committee cannot believe that their Lordships would have made such an order had they been aware that the effect would be an entire reversal of the practice which had obtained in the payment of these duties ever since they were imposed, and tantamount to an addition thereto of about ten per cent: an addition which bears very heavily on the importer in the present depressed state of the trade of the country, and which as the Committee are advised, was neither called for by the state of the Provincial Treasury, nor sanctioned by any known authority of Parliament; should no answer be received before the next term of the Court of King's Bench, the question will be then brought before the Court for Judicial decision.

The Committee have observed with regret the languishing state of ship-building in the country, and think that it may be imputed principally to the extreme depression of the shipping interest throughout the empire, but also in some degree to the present low character in Great Britain of Canadian built vessels, a character which many of them deserve; but the Committee are of opinion, that the reputation of Canadian ship-building might be much raised by the appointment of an officer similar to a surveyor for Lloyd's, whose duty it should be to examine vessels while building and fitting out, and to refuse a character to all such as should prove inferior to a certain known and defined standard.

The Committee have also to recommend to their successors not to lose sight of the projected improvements of the navigation of the Trade, by the erection of a Steam-boat between Quebec and Halifax, and if in connection with Post-office Packets between the latter Port and Falmouth, it would be still more desirable; and from the increased importance of the North American Colonies, the Committee hope that His Majesty's Ministers would, on a proper application, consent to despatch two packets each month, from Falmouth to Halifax during the summer season.

No answer has yet been received to the Petition of the Merchants of Quebec, of the 30th Sept. 1826, addressed to the Lords of the Treasury, complaining of the vexatious and oppressive conduct of the present Collector of the Customs, in the discharge of his official duties. All Custom-House fees having been abolished, it was expected that that officer would have avoided all subject of contention with the trade, and that he would have rested satisfied with the decision of the Court of King's Bench, in a civil suit brought against him for the exaction of illegal fees. But from the judgment of the Court he has appealed, and the case remains unheard by the Upper Court, from the organization of which, it is not probable that any decision will be speedily had. It will now devolve upon the successors of this Committee to follow up the petition to the Treasury, either by renewed application to the same quarter, or by appealing to still higher authority. In either case perseverance and firmness must ensure ultimate success.

By order.

W. FINLAY, CHAIRMAN.

The following Gentlemen were elected to form a Committee of Trade for the ensuing year:—W. Finlay, W. Pemberton, J. Leather, W. Price, A. Mair, W. Walker, H. Lemesurier, J. Leaycraft, C. F. Aylwin, J. S. Shaw, F. Paterson, C. A. Holt, and D. Burnet.

On Wednesday last fifteen of the Roman Catholic Clergy paid their respects to His Excellency the Administrator in Chief at the Chateau of St. Lewis, His Excellency received them with his usual affability and kindness, and they expressed themselves much flattered by the interview with which they were honored. It is a singular coincidence that the cause which drew these gentlemen to this city was to celebrate the Fyllieth anniversary of the Ordination to the priesthood of Monseigneur the Bishop of Quebec.

Improvement of the Roads in the neighbourhood of Quebec.—On Thursday evening a meeting, called by Mr. Thomas Lee, was held at the Union Hall, Quebec, to take into consideration the expediency of applying to the Provincial Legislature for an aid of money sufficient to Macadamize a distance of nine miles on each of the principal roads leading to the city, viz: To Ancient Lorette, St. Foi, Charlesbourg and Beauport. The meeting was numerously and respectably attended.—Mr. Wm. Sheppard was called to the the Chair, several resolutions were passed for promoting the object of the meeting, and seventeen gentlemen were named a Committee for carrying them into effect. With instructions to prepare a petition to be presented to the Legislature, at their next meeting for the necessary aid, and to wait upon His Excellency to solicit His patronage to their project.

Mr. Thos. Lee voluntarily undertook the office of Secretary to the Committee and the greatest unanimity prevailed.

The success which has attended experiments of improving the roads upon Macadam's principles whenever they have been fairly tried, render it extremely desirable that they should be acted upon in all cases in this country, where adequate supplies can be procured without great expense. The Road Act as it now exists is an unequal burthen both in winter and summer; the inhabitants who reside near large towns, from the greater use made of the roads they are compelled to keep in repair, are obliged to bestow much more labour than those who are more remote from the cities, and as there appears to be an insuperable objection to toll gates, a Legislative aid appears to be the only present mode of obtaining the desired end.—The public are much indebted to Mr. Lee for the spirit with which he has entered upon this important subject.

A Miser.—There is a man living not far from this city, who within a very brief term of years has evinced such a revolution in his ways, habitudes and sentiments as would somewhat justify belief in the transmigration of souls—so thoroughly does the man now, differ from what he was a few years back. In his youth, he was as reckless, as wayward as the wildest debauchee and spendthrift of the present day. He received in Scotland, we believe, a liberal education; but the soberness of a professional life had no charms for him—" Coin, his vouches, wou'd na bide in't"—he hated the grave counsel of the old, and admitted the example of the good. He, tired of quiet life, enlisted in the army as a common soldier,—of that state of life, he soon grew sick, and he was readily redeemed from it by his friends. After spending many years at home, he migrated to this Country. He is now stricken in years, and affords a wonderful instance of what he was when young. He lives in a very retired spot, in a most mean and forbidding hovel. His "occupation" is to glean from the woods, and to rear in his little garden such plants, herbs, and fruits as he can by some simple process convert into drugs for the apothecary. The inside of his hut is curiously bestudded with leaves banging up to dry—bags of herb-seed and phials of the juice of those roots which, in his opinion, have medicinal virtues. He has a hive or two, of bees, which he keeps for the sake of the honey, which he sells. To prepare his herbs, tend his bees, is the total of his labour—his sole enjoyment is adding another mite to his encreasing horde of money. No success in his mercantile transactions can induce him to change his thread-worn rags for more comfortable garments—nor to forego his meal of coarse bread and water for more luxurious fare. He is thin as a shadow—covered with filth, and wrinkled with misery. He sleeps with a loaded blunderbuss at his side—for he trusts nothing to the feeble sentinels, and the humoured takes him, will converse freely with strangers. Generally, however, he shuns society—for he looks upon every visitor as a spy, or a candidate for his wealth. What sums he has collected during the years of his solitude, we cannot say; but we have been informed that the amount of his hoard is not small. Of money, he has a very different opinion from Shakespeare—for he has many misgivings in his mind as to the orthodoxy of the saying,

"He that steals my purse, steals trash."

We are told that the only occasion on which he shews any symptoms of liberality to himself is on Christmas day, when he varies so much from the usual tenor of his life as to treat himself to a drop of "summat"—but 'tis no sooner done than repented of.—Montreal Herald.

Port of Quebec.

ARRIVED,

Oct. 29.—Schr. Caroline, Jamaica, rum, &c.
....Trinity Yatch Pilot, from an Inspecting voyage to the Buoys and Light house.

YORK HAT WARE-HOUSE—Joseph Rogers, respectfully informs the public, that he continues to carry on THE HATTING BUSINESS, at his old stand, opposite the English Church, where he has on hand, the latest and most fashionable patterns for GENTLEMEN'S SUPERIOR HATS,—BEAVER AND IMITATION ditto,—WARRANTED WATER-PROOF ditto.—Together with GENTLEMEN'S FUR CAPS, of the latest fashion,—and a choice assortment of BEAR, AND BUFFALO ROBES FOR SLEIGHS.

☞ The highest price, paid in CASH for HATTING AND SHIPPING FURS.

York, 11th November, 1828. ac. 2s

NOTICE.—The Executors of the late Richard Hatt, deceased, having placed in the hands of the subscriber for collection, all the outstanding Book Accounts, Notes, Bonds, Mortgages and Securities, of or belonging to the said estate.—Notice is hereby given to all those whom it may concern, that unless they call at the office of the subscriber in Hamilton, and settle the amount of their respective accounts, on or before the first day of September next.—The subscriber is instructed to commence prosecution immediately after that period.

ALLAN N. M'NABB.

Hamilton, August 15, 1828. x. 2s

NOTICE.—The Subscriber having been duly appointed Agent to the Estate of the late Henry Dream, of the town of York, Merchant, deceased, hereby gives notice to all persons having claims against the said Estate to render their accounts duly authenticated to him, at his office in the town of Hamilton, in the Gore District.—And all those indebted to the said Estate are hereby notified, that unless their respective accounts are paid, or otherwise arranged on or before the 1st day of March, 1829, legal steps will be taken for their recovery.

ALLAN N. M'NABB.

14th November, 1828.

N. B.—All letters addressed to him relating to the Estate, to be Post-paid. st. 2s

FOR SALE.—The Leasehold premises on the Market Square, at present occupied as Shops and Dwelling Houses, by Mr. John Roddy and Mr. Robert Hartford—situate on King-Street, nearly opposite the English Church, being among the most eligible situations for business in the town of York.—Attached to the premises are large and commodious Store-houses, with other out offices, and Yards.

For particulars apply to Mr. Daniel Brooke, or to the Subscriber,

ALLAN N. M'NABB.

York, 14th November, 1828. x. 2s

HOUSE AND STORE TO LET, by the Subscriber (and immediate possession given)—the Store House now occupied by Mr. James M'Guire, on the North side of King-Street, in view of the Market-house. Also, a nice Cottage with fifty Acres of land, (forty of which are improved) in the vicinity of the town of York, in the Attorney General's, and Darcy Boulton's, Esquire.—The lands are of excellent quality, well watered and divided, and a large Barn on the premises.

WILLIAM BERGIN.

York, November 12, 1828. x. 2s

FIVE DOLLARS REWARD—STRAY HORSE. Strayed from the Common about the town of York, in the month of July last—A Dark Grey Horse—fifteen or sixteen hands high—switch tail,—and with a strong mark of a Cork on the off fore foot.—Any person returning him to the subscriber, shall receive the above reward for their trouble.

JAMES TURNER.

York, 13th November, 1828. n. 2s

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given, that from and after this date, Messrs. John Torrance & Co., are fully authorised to settle all claims due to the Estate of the late Mr. Daniel Fisher, and that Mr. George Monro, of York, and Mr. James Lockhart, of Niagara, are also authorised to settle all claims due to the said Estate in Upper Canada.

Signed, by his Att'y. JOHN FISHER, JOHN MACKENZIE, JOHN TORRANCE, JOHN MACKENZIE, WILLIAM LUNN, } Executors.

Montreal, 1st November, 1828. c. 2s

INFORMATION WANTED.—John O'Lynch, Black Smith, Native of the County of Cavan, Ireland, emigrated to America fifteen years ago, now resides in Guelph, Upper Canada, is anxious to hear from his brother, James O'Lynch, Black Smith, by letter addressed as above.—When last heard of, the said James O'Lynch was in Quebec.

☞ Editors in the two Canadas will please give this advertisement an insertion. x. 2s

MORE NEW GOODS.—R. A. Parker, at the York Cash Store, has just received a variety of FANCY SILKS, Ribbons, Handkerchiefs, Kid Gloves, Hosiery, Jaconett, Mull and Book Muslins, Bobbinett, Printed Calicoes, Bleached and Brown Cottons, 6-4 and 8-4 Bed Tick, Ratteens, Flannels, BROAD CLOTHS, Pelisse do, Cassimere, Sattinett, Blankets, Morocco and Snuff Shoes, LOOKING GLASSES, and a general assortment of GROCERIES, CROCKERY, &c. &c, —for sale, at low prices.

R. A. PARKER.

York, 7th November, 1828. c. 2s

Poetry.

SONG OF THE SWISS EXILE.

This land may be light with its spring sunshine;
Its halls may be glad with the foaming wine;
But it is not a land of joy for me,
My dwelling is far o'er the mountain free,
Where the eagle sails in power and might,
And the chamois bounds o'er the rock's dark height.

Wherever my wandering footsteps roam,
My thoughts flow back to my native home
My fancy loves o'er its scenes to dwell,
By each mountain-stream, and each fern clad dell,
'Neath its darkling woods where the wild deer roam,
Where the hunter and hart have alike their home.

Sweet land of my birth, shall I see you again;
Shall I hear once more thy mountain strain?
I shall see you no more;—but my fairy dreams,
Will still hover around thy mountain streams,
Near my native home in the woodland dell,
Sweet land of my birth!—Farewell, farewell!

F M.

Selections.

Affecting Trial.—A curious and rather interesting case was brought before the tribunal of the Judges de Paix of the 8th arrondissement in Paris, on the 12th inst. It was an action for compensation by an old widow of 84, against a M. Jeenty, whose cabriolet had run against her, and caused an injury which prevented her for some time pursuing her ordinary labours. The counsel for her plaintiff, in addressing the court, said—"This woman whom you now see bending under the weight of age, poverty, and infirmity, served in the French armies in the uniform of a soldier, by the side of her husband, from 1773 to 1806. In that time she travelled over 27,000 leagues of ground, received eleven severe wounds, and in the year 1785 was taken by the English in the Ville de Paris. Her pension, which formerly was 200 francs per annum, was reduced at the restoration to 166 francs 60 centimes." The counsel was proceeding with great feeling on behalf of his client, when the defendant with considerable emotion stepped forward and stopped the cause, by paying the whole amount of the compensation sued for, and expenses.

Loss of a Steam Packet.—The Columbine, which used to ply between Margate and London, but latterly from London to Boulogne, in proceeding to France either from the darkness of the night, or from those on board not being sufficiently acquainted with the coast, in running down, got too near in, and struck on a rock near Ambleteuse, with 250 passengers on board. Signals of distress were made by making fires and otherwise, which brought to their assistance a number of French fishing-boats, by which the passengers and crew were saved. The boat was afterwards raised.

PORTSMOUTH, Sept. 27.

The Blossom, 24, Captain Beechey, arrived yesterday, with upwards of 1,500,000 dollars in specie on board, on private account; 600,000 of which is the property of old Spaniards, who have been compelled to quit the territory of Mexico, and who were obliged in a hurried manner to collect what property they could, and ship it on board the Blossom at San Blas. The Blossom has been absent from England three years and four months, during which period she has sailed over seventy-two thousand miles. During her absence she has visited Pitcairn, Society, Sandwich, and Loo Choo Islands, and discovered several Islands in both the North and South Pacific. In 1828, she discovered six coral Islands in the South Pacific, a dangerous Archipelago; and in June, 1827, the group of Islands called Islas de Arzobispo, which were formerly laid down in Charts, but which had been erased in modern ones, under an impression that they did not exist. They extend from the Volcano Island, of Cook to 28 1-2 N. They afford good anchorage and abound in turtle. The crew of the Blossom, after leaving the Islands, consumed 600 lbs. of turtle daily for three weeks. In September, 1827, she discovered near Behring's Straits, Port Clarence, which offers most excellent anchorage. It was here that the barge of the Blossom, with a crew of nine men while surveying on shore, foundered in a gale of wind, when 8 seamen were drowned; the remainder succeeded in reaching the shore, and were at first unmolested by the Esquimaux; others of the latter, however, coming down in great numbers, did not appear so amicably disposed towards them, and but for the timely arrival of the ship, the crew in all probability would have been destroyed. Whilst in Kotzebue's Sound, the boat's crew were subjected to a skirmish with the Esquimaux. It arose from an attempt to rob our seamen of their knives, &c. while employed in obtaining water. Eight seamen were wounded, one Esquimaux killed, and another wounded. The Blossom was at Fitcairn's Island in December 1825. The colony consisted of 65. Adams was alive. They express considerable anxiety to be transferred to some other part of the globe, and have petitioned the Government of this country to grant them some spot in New South Wales, which, by cultivation, may afford them the means of subsistence. At Pcairn the colony entertain fears of a famine. The Blossom was at Loo Choo in May, 1827. The natives were exceedingly friendly. Madeira, to whom Captain Basil Hall alludes, as having acted as his interpreter when the Lyra visited this Island, had died. The Blossom, we understand, has brought home some mammoth's teeth and fossil bones from Behring's Straits. We are glad to remark that the zealous and enterprising Captain Beechey is returned, after his arduous and anxious service, in good health.

The Fortifications in Canada.—With respect to the general objections to any expenses, we would beg to ask, if the principle be admitted, where are we to stop? Are we to give up all our colonies, with all their advantages of increasing as military posts the imperial power of this country, with their great, though indirect, commercial profits? Are we to give up the West Indies, the East Indies, the Cape, Guernsey, Jersey, Malta, all of which demand some outlay without an immediate return? If it is proposed that we should give up all or any of them, let it be first considered that in resigning colonies we do not give them to the deep, or place them in other situations where they can do us no harm. If we give them up, we give them, to rivals who may be enemies. But if we are to preserve them, we must preserve them by the usual means; and as Sir George Murray and Mr. Huskisson demonstrated, those means are provided at infinitely less cost in anticipation of war, than after its occurrence.—And there is another consideration connected with the assurances of a good frontier—a consideration to which, perhaps, Ministers could not with propriety allude, but which we may freely advance, "parato bello tuetur pax." Preparation for war is the best security for peace. The Government of the United States will certainly not be the more disposed to quarrel with us from knowing that they must reach our only accessible side, through a barrier projected by him who drew the lines of Torres Vedras. Gentlemen who may be yery indifferent to the fate of Canada, will scarcely hold themselves indifferent to the preservation of peace. It is surely no rational frugality which would leave unbought at a reasonable price, that which would avert a visitation so costly as war.—Standard.

Innocent Theft.—A short time ago, at Barton, a young lady having some lace very much discolored, after washing it, spread it on the sward of an enclosed piece of ground within the premises for the purpose of bleaching. she was shortly afterwards astonished by discovering that it had vanished. Considerable speculation ensued in the family with respect to the thief, as it was extremely improbable that any person, excepting the members of the family, could gain access to the spot in which the lace had been placed. Last week one of them heard a thrush making a strange noise in a tree. Having the curiosity to see what occasioned the loud twittering of the bird, he climbed a loft, and on peeping into the nest, (which the occupant had vacated,) he beheld, to his no small astonishment, four eggs quietly deposited on the lost lace, which had sustained no other damage than a few perforations from the bill of the winged architect, while adapting it to the lining of her habitation.—Hull Packet.

The Tower of Babel, says a recent traveller in the east, now presents the appearance of a large mound or hill with a castle on the top, in mounting to which, the traveller now and then discovers, through the light sand, the ruins of strage prevented it; and he closed his eyes for ever, unknowing that he had been instrumental to the seizure of one, whom, only a few years back, he had deeply loved, and whose memory he had ever fondly cherished.

"I need scarcely add that he had fallen by the hand of his brother-in-law—the self-abandoned Darwell! Mrs. Hardy was among the first who saw the victorious Dragon towing its prize into port. But what, alas! was victory to her? and where was she to find consolation for the loss with which it had been purchased? Death would most likely have relieved her from a prolongation of her misery, if the last and horror which awaited her had not been sufficient to deprive her of her reason. The sight of her husband's murderer effected this: but she is now ignorant that the gibbeted bones of a British smuggler are those of her once-loved brother! You have seen the one sad object; if you enter the private mad-house at ——, you may behold the other."

Sunset of the Alps.—At the height of 1,432 toises above the level of the sea, the beauty of the evening and the magnificence of the scenery which the setting sun presented, consoled me for the bad weather which I had experienced. The vapours of the night, which like fine gauze moderated the splendour of the sun, half concealed the extent which we had under our feet, while it formed a girdle of the finest purple, embracing all the western part of the horizon. On the other hand, towards the east, the snows at the base of Mont Blanc, tinged with this purple light, exhibited the most magnificent and singular spectacle. In proportion as the vapor fell, on account of its condensation, this girdle became narrower, and more coloured; it appeared, in fine, of a blood red, and, at the same instant, the small clouds which were rising above this cordon, emitted a light of greater vivacity so as to appear like stars of fiery meteors. I returned thither when night was entirely shut in; the sky was then perfectly clear and without clouds; the vapour was seen only in the bottom of the glens; the stars shone clear, but destitute of every kind of scintillation, and shed on the summits of the mountains, a light extremely feeble and pale, though sufficient to distinguish their masses, and their distances. The calm and profound silence which prevailed in this vast extent, raised the imagination still higher, and inspired a sort of terror. I thought I had survived the universe, and saw its ruins under my feet. Yet, sad as such reflections really are, they possess an attractive interest which it is difficult to resist. I turned most frequently towards the obscure solitude which was on the side of Mont Blanc where the snows gave a clear phosphorescent-like light, and invaried still the idea of motion and of life, but the keenness of the air on this isolated peak soon forced me to retire to my cabin.—Saussure Voyages dans les Alpes.

MORE NEW GOODS.—R. A. PARKER, at the York Cash Store, has just received a variety of FANCY SILKS, Ribbons, Handkerchiefs, Kid Gloves, Hosiery, Jaconett, Mull and Book Muslins, Bobbinett, Printed Calicoes, Bleached and Brown Cottons, 6-4 and 3-4 Bed Tick, Ratteens, Flannels, BROAD CLOTHS, Pelisse do, Cassimere, Sattinett, Blankets, Morocco and Stuff Shoes, LOOKING GLASSES, and a general assortment of GROCERIES, CROCKERY, &c. &c. —for sale, at low prices.

R. A. PARKER.

York, 7th November, 1828. c. 22

YORK HAT WARE-HOUSE.—JOSEPH ROGERS, respectfully informs the public, that he continues to carry on THE HATTING BUSINESS, at his old stand, opposite the English Church, where he has on hand, the latest and most fashionable patterns for GENTLEMEN'S SUPERIOR HATS,—BEAVER AND IMITATION ditto,—WARRANTED WATER-PROOF ditto.—Together with GENTLEMEN'S FUR CAPS, of the latest fashion,—and a choice assortment of BEAR, AND BUFFALO ROBES FOR SLEIGHTS.

☞ The highest price, paid in CASH for HATTING AND SHIPPING FURS.

YORK, 11th NOVEMBER, 1828. ac. 23

NOTICE.—The Executors of the late Richard Hatt, deceased, having placed in the hands of the subscriber for collection, all the outstanding Book Accounts, Notes, Bonds, Mortgages and Securities, of or belonging to the said estate.—Notice is hereby given to all those whom it may concern, that unless they call at the office of the subscriber in Hamilton, and settle the amount of their respective accounts, on or before the first day of September next.—The subscriber is instructed to commence prosecution immediately after that period.

ALLAN N. M'NABB.

Hamilton, August 15, 1828. x. 23

NOTICE.—The Subscriber having been duly appointed Agent to the Estate of the late Henry Drean, of the town of York, Merchant, deceased, hereby gives notice to all persons having claims against the said Estate to render their accounts duly authenticated to him, at his office in the town of Hamilton, in the Gore District.—And all those indebted to the said Estate are hereby notified, that unless their respective accounts are paid, or otherwise arranged on or before the 1st day of March, 1829, legal steps will be taken for their recovery.

ALLAN N. M'NABB.

14th November, 1828.

N.B.—All letters addressed to him relating to the Estate, to be Post-paid. xt. 23

HALF-PAY AFFIDAVITS, of the latest form, for Sale at the Gazette Office.

FOR SALE.—The Leasehold premises on the Market Square, at present occupied as Shops and Dwelling Houses, by Mr. John Roddy and Mr. Robert Rutherford—situate on King-Street, nearly opposite the English Church, being among the most eligible situations for business in the town of York.—Attached to the premises are large and commodious Store-houses, with other out offices, and Yards.

For particulars apply to Mr. Daniel Brooke, or to the Subscriber,

ALLAN N. M'NABB.

York, 14th November, 1828. x. 23

HOUSE AND STORE TO LET, by the Subscriber (and immediate possession given)—the Store House now occupied by Mr. James M'Guire, on the North side of King-Street, in view of the Market-house. Also, a nice Cottage with fifty Acres of land, (forty of which are improved) in the vicinity of the town, this side of the Attorney General's, and Darcy Boulton's, Esquire.—The lands are of excellent quality, well watered and divided, and a large Barn on the premises.

WILLIAM BERGIN.

York, November 12, 1828. 23

FIVE DOLLARS REWARD—STRAY HORSE. Strayed from the Common about the town of York, in the month of July last—A DARK GREY HORSE—fifteen or sixteen hands high—switch tail,—and with a strong mark of a Cork on the off fore foot.—Any person returning him to the subscriber, shall receive the above reward for their trouble.

JAMES TURNER.

York, 13th November, 1828. n. 23

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given, that from and after this date, Messrs. John Torrance & Co., are fully authorised to settle all claims due to the Estate of the late Mr. Daniel Fisher, and that Mr. George Monro, of York, and Mr. James Lockhart, of Niagara, are also authorised to settle all claims due to the said Estate in Upper Canada.

Signed, JOHN FISHER,
by his Att'y. JOHN MACKENZIE,
JOHN TORRANCE,
JOHN MACKENZIE,
WILLIAM LUNN, } Executors.

Montreal, 1st November, 1828. c. 23

MEDICAL PATNERSHIP.—DOCTOR WIDMER finding his professional engagements much extended of late, and occasionally too arduous for one person, has been induced to enter into partnership with DOCTOR DIEHL, a respectable practitioner, late of Montreal.

It is expected that their united exertions will prevent in future any disappointment to Dr. Widmer's friends, both in Town and Country.

Dr. Diehl's residence is at present at Mr. Hayes's Boarding-house.

York, October 28, 1828. c. 21

WINES.

A CARD.—Mr. HAWKINS, Wine Merchant, of Quebec, offers for Sale a few Cases of excellent Port Wine, just received from Quebec.

Mr. Hawkins will be happy to receive orders from such gentlemen as are disposed to secure a supply of Genuine Wines, to be delivered early in the Spring at York and at Niagara.

Orders addressed to Mr. Hawkins, at Howard's Hotel, till Tuesday next, and afterwards at the office of this paper, will meet with attention.

York, September 20th, 1828. sn 15

York Auction, Mart, & Commission Ware-House.

M. & R. MEIGHAN,

Opposite the Market Square.

HAVE for Sale, an assortment of Household Furniture, consisting of Mahogany, Curled Maple and Cherry Tree, Side Boards, Secretaries, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Breakfast Dining and Card Tables, Work Tables, Bason Stands, Feather Beds and Bedding; A London made grand Piano; an excellent Sulkey Carriage; a Mangle for pressing clothes; A Jack for Roasting Meat; A very elegant fourteen day Time Piece with Italian Marble Frame and Glass Shade; Double and Single Barrel Percussion Lock Fowling Pieces and Pistols; Bridles, Saddles, Double and Single Harness; Gilt and Plain Frame Looking Glasses; Some Handsome Vases and chimney Ornaments; an extensive assortment of Elegant Dry and Fancy Goods of every description, Hardware, Jewellery, Crockery and Glassware; Groceries, Tea, Wine and Spirits; together with an Elegant Collection of Books, Stationery, Perfumery, Patent Medicines &c.

Regular Auction Sales every week.

York, 1828. x 6.

ELIGIBLE SITUATION—To be sold, Lots numbers 29 & 30 in the first concession of the Township of Scarborough with their broken fronts on Lake Ontario, situate about Seven miles from the Town of York.—On Lot No. 29, are erected a Log and a Frame House together with outhouses &c. These premises are now in the possession of Mr. Adna Bates, and are an eligible Situation for a Tavern.

Application to be made to C. C. SMALL Esq.

York, 20th August, 1828. } v 11

FOR SALE, OR TO LET.—A Two Story House, in the Town of York, on the North side of Dutchess Street, opposite Mr. Allan's new Brick Building, and in rear of Chief Justice Campbell's. There is a good Cellar Kitchen to the House, and attached to the Premises, which contain one-fifth of an Acre, is a Garden—a good Well of Water—Stable—Out-Houses, &c.—Apply to

Mr. S. P. JARVIS.

York, 16th Oct. 1828. x 19

THE CANADA COMPANY.

NOTICE is hereby given, that no person is authorised to order any goods or articles on account of the Canada Company, but only the Superintendant, Accountant, and Warden, and even by them the Orders must be in writing, and signed.

JOHN GALT,
SUPERINTENDANT.

CANADA COMPANY'S OFFICE, }
Guelph, 16th Oct. 1828. } x 20

FOR SALE—By the Subscriber, 100 Barrels PLAISTER OF PARIS, of the very best quality, low for Cash

WILLIAM BERGIN.

York, September 19, 1828. x. 15

BRITISH WAREHOUSE.—J. C. GODWIN & Co., Wholesale and Retail Merchants, beg to inform their Friends and the Public, they have received direct from England, the following Goods, which they offer low for cash:—

West of England Cloths, the best assorted,
Yorkshire Cloths of superior qualities, assorted,
Kerseymeres of fine Textures, assorted,
Variety of Vest Patterns,
A well selected Assortment of Gentlemens' Dress, and Surtout Coats, Trowsers, &c. made in London,
Imitation Brussels Carpeting, Venetian Carpeting, and Brass Rods,
Upwards of 2,000 yards unbleached Factory Cotton,
Ships' Canvas bleached, Nos. 3. 4. 5, & 6,
Fashionable Tea and Coffee Urns,
Sheet Copper for Distills, &c.,
Brass Crimping Machines, with Heaters,
Brass and Steel Fire Irons, of the newest quality,
An assortment of Cabinet Furniture,
Cast Steel in Bars,
Variety of Woollen and Linen Girth Webbs,
Paints, assorted, first quality,
Boiled and Raw Linseed Oil,
First quality Cognac Brandy, favorite mark Marett,
Fine Holland Gin,
Good old Whisky, by the Barrel or per Gallon,
Port, Sherry, and Teneriffe Wines, of choice quality.—With a variety of other Goods. J. C. GODWIN & Co.

York, Aug. 25th 1828. x 12

ALLIANCE BRITISH AND FOREIGN Life and Fire Assurance Company, OF LONDON.

(CAPITAL—Fire Millions Sterling.)

THE Subscriber having been appointed AGENT to the above Company, at York, he is ready to Insure against loss or damage by Fire at moderate rates of Premium. The high standing of this Institution in England, and the Company allowing their Agents in Montreal to settle losses in this Country, with the Assured participating in the Profits of the Company, renders it worthy of Public Confidence.

R. W. PRENTICE.

York, November 18th, 1826. 25.

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.—The Steam Boat ALCIOPE, will take Freight and Passengers from this Port during the remainder of the Season, every Saturday morning at 6 o'clock, on her way down from NIAGARA to PRESCOTT, to commence tomorrow.

York, 29th August, 1828. x. 13

FOR SALE,—Lot No. 12, and East half of 14 in the 3d Concession of the Township of York, West of Yonge-Street,—300 Acres,—the property of Major W. G. White.—Refer to ROBERT STANTON, Esquire, U. C. Gazette Office.

York, 4th July, 1828. x. 5

NOTICE.—All persons having claims upon the Estate of the late STEPHEN HEWARD, Esquire, of York, deceased, are requested to present the same properly authenticated to the Hon. P. Robinson, one of the Executors, without delay; and all persons indebted to the said Estate are requested to make payment to the said Executor.

York, September 15, 1828. x. 13

BANK NOTICE.—DISCOUNT DAY, Wednesday of every Week.—Notes offered for Discount, must be put under cover to the Cashier, and left at the Bank the day before.

THOMAS G. RIDOUT,
Cashier.

WHISKEY.—For Sale by the Barrel, a quantity of SUPERIOR OLD WHISKEY—Apply to R. W. PRENTICE.

York, 25th Sept. 1828. x 16

NOTICE.—Having seen in the Canadian Freeman of yesterday an Advertisement of "A Farm to Let,"—signed, "John Lynch, Blacksmith to the Canada Company, Guelph."—I hereby give notice, that I know of no such person in the employment of the Canada Company.

JOHN GALT,
Superintendant.

CANADA COMPANY'S OFFICE, }
York, 24th October 1828. } x 20

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

THE CANADA Steam-Packet for the remainder of the Season, will leave York and Niagara, alternate days, at Ten o'clock—Sundays not excepted.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Master and Managing Owner.

York, Sept. 29, 1828. x 17

PUBLIC NOTICE.—I require due notice to be given to me or to my Agent, Mr. Alexander Murray, at Mr. Proudfoot's Store, in York, of all transfers of Property in the Steam-Packet Canada, in default whereof I shall consider the original Stockholder, as the legal Owner in the Vessel; and in paying Dividends and doing other transactions connected with my situation, hold myself accountable to them alone. HUGH RICHARDSON,

Master and Managing Owner of the Steam Packet Canada.

York, 27th December, 1827. 51tf.

N B.—With Mr. A. Murray, reference may be had to all Books and accounts connected with the Canada Steam Packet.

THOMAS MOORE,—TAILOR, King Street, York, Meighan's Buildings, (opposite the Market Place.) Begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has just opened, and offers for Sale, a choice assortment of Goods, Selected by himself at the Manufactories in England, which he can recommend as being of choice quality, consisting of, Superfine, Blue; Black; Scarlett; Green; Olive; Grey and Drab, West of England Broad Cloths.—Black, Blue and Grey, Double and single Milled Kerseymeres. Forest Cloths. Lasting and Corduroys.—Beverteens; Fustians; Cantons. Jane; Drab, and Striped Brown Drills. Fine Welsh Flannel; White and Blue Flannel. White and Grey Cottons. London printed Calicoes and Chintzes. Fancy Vestings. Printed Muslins. Sewing Silk; Twist; Thread and Rich Gilt Buttons.

MILITARY EQUIPMENTS,

consisting of, Regulation Swords; Patent Leather Regulation Waist Belts, with rich Gilt clasps. Rich Gold Bullion Epauletts, crimson Silk Regulation Sashes.—Rich Gold Velvet Lace, and Gilt British Militia Buttons. Red, White and Green, Regulation Feathers, with rich Gilt Tubes for do.

The whole of which will be disposed of on reasonable terms, or made up to order, agreeable to the latest fashions, at the shortest notice.

York, 14th July, 1828. x 6

STEAM-BOAT NOTICE.

LAKE ONTARIO STEAM-BOAT, NIAGARA, Captain MOSIER, with DANIEL READ, Sailing Master, Will, after the 15th inst., leave Niagara for Kingston, Brockville, and Prescott, every Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock.

On her return, will leave Prescott for Brockville, Kingston, York, and Niagara, every Wednesday morning at 6 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made with Messrs. Norton, & Co., Stage Proprietors, by which, passengers going down, arrive in Montreal on Tuesday evening; and those proceeding upwards, will, by leaving Montreal on Tuesday, arrive in time at Prescott to take the Boat.

York. June 6th, 1828. x 1.

TO SAWYERS.—Wanted immediately an experienced SAWYER, and an assistant to take charge of a Mill that has a constant supply of water; and in other respects particularly well situated.—None need apply, who cannot give sufficient references as to character and ability.

Further information on application to Messrs. WRAGG & Co. King-street York. x 11

CHAIN CABLES, &c.—ACRAMAN'S Patent Chain Cables, and Anchors, (warranted proved by Machine) a constant supply kept on hand (in stock) of all sizes, by JOHN WATKINS, Kingston, and in Montreal and Quebec by

WILLIAM BUDDEN.

July, 30, 1827. 11-tf.

A LOAN WANTED.—The Subscribers, desirous of making some further improvements, wish to obtain a Loan of £300, for three years, for which will be given in security, a Paper and Grist Mill, Saw Mill, Distillery, and 200 Acres of Land, free of all incumbrance, situated within three miles of York. EASTWOOD & SKINNER.

Oct. 23rd, 1828. f 20

THE SUBSCRIBER begs leave to inform his friends and the public that he has purchased the Store-House, Wharf, &c. lately the property of William Cooper, Esqr., in this Town, where he will receive, store, and sell, on Commission, on the most reasonable terms, all descriptions of produce or merchandize, with which he may be favored.

The buildings are extensive and convenient, being at the head of the Wharf, where all vessels which come into the Bay, principally discharge and take in their cargoes. He flatters himself that the care and attention of the person superintending the Wharf and Store, will give general satisfaction.

There will be for sale a constant supply of Pork, Flour, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Peas, Salt, and Whiskey, also Stoves, Potash Kettles, Coolers, Sugar Kettles, a variety of castings and Grindstones.

The Subscriber has also for sale upwards of 2500 Acres unimproved Lands of superior quality, in the most flourishing Townships, and convenient to York, which he will sell very low and on easy terms to actual settlers.

WM. BERGIN.

York, February 28th, 1828. 41tf.

FRESH SEEDS.—Shaker's Garden and Flower Seeds, warranted of the growth of 1827, for sale by EDW'D. LESSLIE & SONS.

☞ E. L. & Sons expect a quantity of clover seed in a few days.

York, 14th March 1828. 43-tf.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL GROCERY STORE.—The Subscriber respectfully informs the Inhabitants of York and its vicinity, that he has opened a Store in the above line, on the Corner of Church and Palace Streets, where he is now ready to serve them with the choicest articles and at very low prices. The following are a few of the articles in his line, viz:—

O. L. P. Madeira,
F. Madeira,
L. M. Do.
Prime Port,
Second do.
Sherry,
Cagniac Brandy,
Bordeaux do.
H. Gin,
Jamaica Spirits,
Peppermint,
Shrub,
White Wine Vinegar,
Limejuice,
Molasses,
Olive Oil for Lamps,
Linseed do.
London Brown Stout,
And a variety of articles in the Grocery line.

London Porter,
Teas of all descriptions,
D. R. Loaf Sugar,
S. R. Loaf Sugar,
Muscovado do.
East India do.
Mace, Cloves,
Cinnamon, Nutmegs,
Alspice, Black Pepper,
White Pepper,
Mustard in Jars, ½ & 1 lbs.
Isinglass, Orris Root,
Macaroni, Vermicilli,
Curry Powder,
Raisins, Figs,
Starch, Blue,
Tobacco, Pipes, Blacking.

JAMES F. SMITH.

York, 17th September, 1828. ss. 15

TO LET, and possession given immediately, the House and lots lately occupied by Dr. Horne—Inquire of Mr. ALLAN.

York, 10th Oct. 1828. 18

LANDS FOR SALE.—In the Township of Hallowell, Lot No. 46, 3d Concession, Northwest side of the Carrying-Place, Acres.

In the Township of Cramalie—
Lots No. 17, 18, & 19, 3d Con, do. 4th do.	}	300
In the Township of Hamilton—
Broken Lots, 29 & 30, 9th Con.	}	476
27, 28, 29, 31, 32, 34, & 35, 10th do.
North-east quarter, No. 1, 4th do.		50
In the Township of Clarke—
Lots Nos. 16, 17 & 18, Broken Fronts 16, 17, & 18, 1st Con. 17, & 18, 2d do. 17, & 18, 3d do.	}	2000
In the Township of Darlington—
Lot No. 11, 3d Con. E. 4th do.	}	400
In the Township of Pickering—
Lots No. 16, 17, & half of 18, 1st Con. and Broken Fronts.	}	999
In the Township of York—
Lot No. 37, 3d Con.		200
In the Township of Gainsborough—
Broken Lot No. 27, 3d & 4th Con.		71

Apply to ANDREW MERCER.

FALL AND WINTER GOODS.—The Subscriber begs leave to announce that by late arrivals, he has received his usual supply of Fall and Winter Goods, which will be sold at reduced prices for Cash or Produce.

Grateful for the generous support he has received since his commencement in business, he again solicits the interest of the Ladies and Gentlemen of York and its vicinity, and hopes his Goods will give them general satisfaction.

WILLIAM BERGIN.

York, 7th November, 1828. x. 22

FOR SALE.—Lot No. 29, and part of 30, in the 7th Concession of the Township of Pickering, containing 350 Acres, and having an eligible situation for a Mill. For terms apply to Mr. Andrew Mercer, York,

York, 28th October, 1827. 22tf.

England.

ENGLAND.

CABINET MEETINGS.

A Cabinet Council was held at three o'clock on Friday at the Foreign Office, Downing-street, which was attended by the Lord Chancellor, the Duke of Wellington, Earls Bathurst, and Aberdeen, Viscount Melville, Lord Ellenborough, Mr. Secretary Peel, Sir George Murray, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Mr. Vesey Fitzgerald. During the sitting of the Council two of the law advisers of the Crown, the Attorney-General and the Solicitor-General, were consulted by the Ministers. Previous to the assembling of the Council, Mr. Secretary Peel and the Chancellor of the Exchequer, had a long conference with the Duke of Wellington at the Treasury. Earl Bathurst came to town to attend the meeting from his seat at Cirencester, Gloucestershire, which his lordship left on Thursday morning. Mr. Secretary Peel also came to town to attend the meeting on Friday morning, from the seat of his father, Sir Robert Peel, at Drayton Park, Staffordshire. Mr. Herries, the only member of the Cabinet absent from the Council, had not arrived in town from Scotland. In the evening the Duke of Wellington entertained the Cabinet Ministers to dinner, at his residence in Downing-street; the same ministers who attended the Cabinet (with the exception of the Lord Chancellor, who left town for Wimbledon) dined with his Grace.

(From the Courier.)

Another Cabinet Council assembled this day at the Foreign Office, at two o'clock, and was sitting when our paper went to press.

At the breaking up of the council yesterday, a Messenger was sent off with dispatches from the Home Department, for Ireland.

It would be presumption in us to hazard a conjecture as to the subject of these deliberations, further than that they may be supposed to be of great importance. But some of our contemporaries are quite convinced that three subjects must have occupied the attention of the Cabinet Ministers: the state of Ireland—the affairs of the Baltic—and some intention expressed by Russia of blockading the Dardanelles. We have heard of such a rumour these two days, but we have declined noticing it, because we could not reconcile such a measure with the assurance conveyed in his Majesty's speech upon proroguing the Parliament—an assurance in which his Majesty was warranted by the declaration of the Russian Government, that his Imperial Majesty had consented to waive the exercise, in the Mediterranean Sea, of any rights pertaining to "his Imperial Majesty in the character of a belligerent power, and to recall the separate instructions which had been given to the Commander of the naval forces in that sea, directing hostile operations against the Ottaman Porte." We desire not to be understood that we treat the report as if it were entitled to credit.

London, Oct. 1.—The continued rise in the Corn Market, has had the effect of causing a spirit of speculation in those articles.

The London agricultural Report for September, says—"The Continental harvests have partaken generally of the defects of our own.

Liverpool, Oct. 1.—Ashes, have been in good demand, and about 1000 bbls. of all descriptions were sold during the week—about 750, chiefly new Montreal Pots at 30s. 100 new Montreal Pearl, & 174 U. S. Pearl, brand 1827; at the same price—this week there has been a fair enquiry and rather better prices obtained for Pearls, of which 60 bbls. New-York brand 1827, sold at 30s. 6d., and 110 new Montreal at 31s per cwt.

The speculative demand for Grain continues, and an extensive business has been done in bonded Wheat at a further advance in prices of 9d. 1s. per 70 lbs. Flour in bond is also enquired for—a small parcel of fresh Philadelphia brought 47s. per bbl. and this price would readily be given for a further quantity, but there is none at present in the hands of the importers.

October 2d.—There was rather an extensive business doing in the Corn market to-day at the late advance.

A letter of the 3d says, bolders of Am. Flour in bond, refuse to sell at 29s.

The Queen of Portugal's reception in England had been enthusiastic. She proceeded from Falmouth to Truro, and thence to Exeter, escorted by the 4th Regt. of Dragoon Guards, who formed a guard of honour during the night. At Exeter she received a deputation from the unfortunate Portuguese at Plymouth. The addresses and ceremonies on the occasion were of an interesting character.

It was reported that a forgery had been discovered in London, by which a banking house in Lombard street had suffered. The guilty party is said to have absconded.

Dreadful accident in Exeter Street.—About half past two o'clock on Wednesday morning, a creaking noise was heard by the neighbours, and in a moment after, the houses Nos. 4 and 5 were seen falling down in one mass halfway into the street. It was known that the house No. 5, was inhabited by a large family of the name of Stokes, and the most serious apprehensions were entertained that the whole of them would fall a sacrifice. Fortunately the excavations in Catherine and Brydges Streets, for the construction of a new common sewer, were going on, and, in a few minutes upwards of 50 men were on the spot.—The first body taken out was that of a carman of the name of Neaves; this poor fellow had been engaged in carting gravel and soil for the purpose of excavation. The attention of the workmen were immediately turned to him, and he was found in the middle of the street quite dead. The horse was also very much injured. Under the cart, or rather by the near side of it, was found a man, by trade a carpenter, who escaped in a manner miraculous; seeing the walls falling, he had the presence of mind to place himself under a cart, which was very strong; and though upwards of a ton must have fallen on and against it, he escaped with very slight injury. A poor woman, Mrs. Edgely, whose age is sixty, was found at the back of the premises, with one of her arms broken. This poor creature who lived in one of the upper rooms, was immediately conveyed to Middlesex Hospital, where the limb was bound up and splintered. At a little after four o'clock, two children, the one seven years old, the other 9 months, were taken out and conveyed to the house of Mr. Callahan, in Essex Street. The infant died in a few moments after been taken into the house, but the other was found to have received no material injury, and after being washed was put to bed. Her first enquiry when she recovered her senses, was after her mother, and brothers, and sister. The next person extricated from the ruins was a fine girl seventeen years of age, the daughter of Mrs. Stokes, who had received only a few slight bruises. The first call of this poor girl was for her mother and the rest of the family, and she was almost frantic until her sister Selina was brought in, and she was assured that the rest were safe, but could not be disturbed. She was put to bed. At the time she was taken out, the cry of a lad was heard, and, in a short time, the men employed made a way to the spot, where the boy Frederick was buried beneath the ruins; but, fortunately, he was preserved by some timbers falling crossways, so as to prevent the rubbish from smothering him. The poor fellow could be distinctly seen with the aid of a candle; he was however, so benumed in, that to extricate him was impossible, without sawing asunder the beams by which he was protected, and in doing this great caution and judgment was necessary, to prevent the rubbish from falling in upon and suffocating him. A conversation was kept up with him, and every cheering assistance given him that he could be extricated, and the boy answered with perfect cheerfulness, and only begged for water, which was given to him, as was also some tea.—The fate of the boy had excited intense interest, and when he was brought from his perilous situation the most enthusiastic cheering was heard. He was found to be free from fracture, but his head was much bruised. His mother is very anxiously after the family. The following is a list of those who have suffered!:—John Neaves, the carter, Mrs Stokes, Frank Stokes, the baby, dead; Miss Stokes and her two brothers rescued without material injury. The workmen, in despite of the ruins, which hung dangerously on either side of them, made their way, by dint of great exertion, to where the body of poor Mrs. Stokes was.—— The scene here cannot be depicted. The poor creature it would appear, had made her way towards the door, as she was found with one of her feet crushed to atoms. Her head presented a dreadful spectacle; and her whole body was covered with dirt, and appeared like a flattened piece of timber. The real cause of the catastrophe appears to have been unsoundness of the story-posts, the bottoms of which were quite decayed, and the wretched sort of brick used in the building.

The Liverpool and Manchester Railway.—The works of the Liverpool and Manchester Railway are proceeding with great rapidity; and it is anticipated that the whole will be completed in less than two years from the present time. The Railway commences at Liverpool, at a point in direct communication with the King's and Queen's Docks. The line passes under the town by a tunnel and inclined plane. This magnificent archway, sixteen feet high and twenty-two feet wide, is cut through the solid rock for the enormous length of 2,248 yards, the inclined plane rising one foot in forty-nine. The steep ascent of Liverpool is thus avoided, and all interference with the general business of the streets is effectually prevented. The excavations of this stupendous work are carried on at several points at the same time; and the precaution with which the junctions of the different parts have been effected, in some cases not varying two inches, offers a most remarkable example of the certainty of scientific arrangement. The road through the tunnel, which within one is about a mile and a quarter long, comes to open daylight at the top of Edge hill, looking down upon Liverpool. A deep excavation through the elevated rock beyond this point offers an interesting example of the triumph of man over physical difficulties. Several miles onwards the roadway passes over a moss; and here, by a steady and cautious system of cuttings and embankments, the railway has been laid down successfully upon a soft which appeared as treacherous as the moss itself to assert. The valley through which the River Sanky runs is crossed by an enormous via-duct, consisting of embankments and arches built upon piles of extraordinary magnitude. Hence, to Manchester, the line does not present any peculiar difficulties, but, between that town and Chatmoss, there are some very considerable excavations and embankments. The whole cost of this grand work will be about £600,000.

Large Bequests.—Mr. Tillard, of Canterbury, besides many other great legacies, has bequeathed the following sums in the manner below stated:—

To the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts - - - - £30,000
The Central National School Society London - - 20,000
To the Parish of Marylebone - - - - 20,000
Westminster Hospital - - - - 10,000
Philanthropic Society - - - - 10,000
The Indigent Blind - - - - 10,000
Kent and Canterbury Hospital - - - - 3,000
The Canterbury National School - - - - 6,000
Lying-in Charity - - - - 2000

—These bequests are, we believe, unparalleled in their variety and amount.

Lloyd's.—At a meeting at Lloyd's on the 24th, for the purpose of receiving the half-yearly report of the Committee, a sum of £100 was voted to Thomas Harvey, a fisherman, at Newfoundland, for saving the crew and passengers of the Despatch, from Londonderry to Quebec.

LIVERPOOL MARKET.—Oct. 4.

The continued serious advance in the price of Grain in London and other southern markets, has given a further stimulus to speculation here, and the transactions in all descriptions of Grain, during the week have been very extensive, and they were this morning much increased by the accounts from Wakefield, stating an advance in prices of Wheat on the market of 10s. to 18s. per quarter.

GLASGOW MARKET.

The Glasgow Courier says: "Grain is now getting to such a height, that sugar may probably be used in distillation. We believe that a clause was inserted in a late act of Parliament, permitting, at the option of the distiller, the use of sugar, when grain exceeded a certain price, and which price the grain now exceeds. This state of things will probably give firmness and activity to the sugar markets."

From the London Sun, of October 8.

By the Hamburgh Reporter of the 3rd October, it appears that the price of wheat had again considerably risen at Hamburgh, chiefly in consequence of large foreign purchases, but the inhabitants of the place did not suppose that the rise would continue, and therefore refrained from buying.

Boreen Hale, Oct. 3, Four o'clock.—Wheat has again risen considerably, in consequence of purchases made for foreign account, which, as they exceeded the ex.ent of our arrivals, have reduced our stock in hand. Our own consumers have bought little, not believing, apparently, that the present high prices will maintain themselves.

Copenhagen, Sept. 19.—The bad weather during the first two weeks of the harvest, added to the advices from almost every part of the north of Europe, accasioned a considerable rise of Wheat here, and prices got up 10s. to 12s. sterling, imperial qr. The speculations continued to increase to the 25th of June, in consequence of the weather taking up, a re-action brought prices down 3s. to 4s. on Wheat. and 1s. 6d. to 2s. on other grain. Prices for old Wheat are now again a shade higher. Oats, since the last few days are also better.

The Internal Communications of England.—The improvement of Great Britain in her internal communications, is, perhaps, the most extraordinary circumstance in the records of civilization. It is impossible to contemplate our roads, our canals, and within these few years our railways, without a sentiment of national pride, which philosophy would scarcely ask us to repress. The turnpike-roads of England alone extend twenty thousand miles, and upwards of a million sterling is annually bestowed upon their repair and maintenance. The rapidity, the precision, and the security with which the whole communication is carried on, is one of the principal causes of our astonishing commercial activity. Through the agency of the post, and the influence of the public journals, the country is become all head and heart. There is no slow circulation through the extremities of the system: every pulsation of the political machine vibrates from the centre to the circumference to the centre. England is "all compact," and would that Ireland were knit up in this astonishing condensation of energies and interests! In the present session sixty-five road bills have passed into law; in the session of 1823, there were fifty-three. We think that this extraordinary course of improvement never stops: and the cause is this, the people know their own wants, and have the power to supply them. "In France," says Mr. Dupin, "during a period of profound peace, the government does not grant, for the support of the roads, one third of the amount which is supplied by the public of England alone, of which the supe ficies does not equal one-third that of France." And this neglect arises from the government meddling with every thing.—London Magazine.

Ireland,

SLAVES IN AN IRISH PORT.

(From the Belfast Guardian.)

A case of singular interest came before the Magistrates yesterday, in the Session-house of this town.

About ten days ago, two vessels, the Belfast (Captain Swan), and Griffin (Captain Godfrey), both of and from Bermuda arrived in this Port, the crews of which were black slaves. At this circumstance, a very industrious and sensible tradesman, a man of colour, who resides in this town, informed, as we have reason to believe, a member of the Society of Friends, through whose medium it was communicated to the Movallen Branch of the London African Anti slavery Association. Messrs. Wakefield, Dawson, Christy, and Sinton, members of this society, in the exercise of their benevolent duties, apprised the magistrates of the fact, and claimed their interference and protection for the seamen in question. Accordingly, application was made to the Captains of the vessels and the owners of the crews, and not the slighest objection was made by them to the attendance of the men, to have the matter fully investigated.

At noon, eleven of the ten men who constituted the crews of the two vessels appeared in the Session-house, before the Magistrates, and were addressed by C. M. Skinner, who briefly stated to them, that the very circumstance of their having set foot on Irish ground, or entered an Irish harbour, freed them at once from slavery as long as they remained in these countries. Of this fact the Magistrates could only apprize them, and leave it entirely to themselves to consider whether they would stay here or return to Bermuda—they were at liberty to act as they pleased; and, if any person should interrupt them in that liberty, then, and then only, could the Magistrates interfere for their protection. At present they were as free as any other person in His Majesty's dominions. He begged them, however, to act with caution, lest they should adopt a measure which they might afterwards regret.

The men were then severally called forward by name and asked, whether they would prefer remaining in this country as freemen, or return to Bermuda as slaves?—Eight of the eleven then present professed their gratitude for the kind intentions of the gentlemen who had interfered in their behalf, and their obligations to the Magistrates; but explicitly stated that it was their wish to return to Bermuda. Each of them declared, that he had a wife and children in that country, with whom he wished to reside. It appeared, by a declaration made by one of them, in a conversation in the room, that his proprietor had himself informed him, that, on his arrival in the British Isles, he might claim his freedom; but, as he had intimated to his master that he would return, he deemed himself bound to fulfil his word.

Three lads, or young men, who belonged to the crew, declared their wish to remain in Ireland. When their determination was known, Mr. Wakefield, jun. stated to them, that the society would find employment for them, in order to enable them, if industrious, sober, and moral, to earn a livelihood—that probably they might also have them educated—but that their own personal exertions would be necessary to insure success.

The Captains of the vessels did not appear in Court, lest, as some of their men intimated, it might be conceived they wished to influence or intimidate them.

The nine black seamen who expressed their wish to return to Bermuda are fine, manly, robust-looking men, perfectly susceptible of gratitude, and animated with strong feelings of affection for their wives and children.—Their healthy appearance—their comfortable clothing—their contented countenances—in short every thing relating to them (slavery excepted) indicated that their wants were well attended to, and supplied by an indulgent master.

Foreign Intelligence.

From the Bogota Gazette, Sept. 28.

Conspiracy against Colombia and the Liberator—Those who for some time past had meditated the destruction of the Republic and its guardian, effected a most atrocious attempt in the night of the 25th inst. The garrison of this city consisted of the first squadron of the horse grenadiers, the battalion of Vargas, and a brigade of artillery. The conspirators succeeded to bribe this brigade, and to make it the nucleus of their operations. In pursuance of their plans which had been concerted in a secret meeting held at 8 o'clock of the same evening, a part of the artillery was to attack the palace, another part of the barrack of Vargas, and another the grenadiers. Those intended to attack Vargas, were to be subdivided, and to liberate Gen. Padilla, in order to place him at the head of this parricidal undertaking.

In consideration of the distance, as well as of its own importance, it was determined to begin by storming the palace. This was done by the commanding officer (Comandante.) Carrijo, Horment, Florentino Gonzales, Captain Lopez, and Heneken, the adjutavar, who conducted and led the assassins. Horment, himself mortally wounded three sentinels, and accompanied by the others he ascended the upper apartments, where, notwithstanding his youth, Lieut. Andres Harra, orderly-officer of the Liberator, fought with signal valour until he was disabled by the cut of a sable in his right hand. The assailants succeeded to penetrate into the cabinet of His Excellency, who came out to meet them; but being alone against all the conspirators, he prepared to defend himself in his own cabinet, and when it was found impossible to hold out any longer, he sallied forth from a balcony into the street, and reached the barrack of Vargas.

The attack on these barracks had commenced as soon as news was received of that on the palace, and was directed by the Comdt. Silvia, by placing a piece of ordnance against the gate; but the guard sustained their post with firmness, and some of the soldiers of the same battalion, who from the upper windows fired upon the aggressors with some of the little ammunition which they had, beat back the conspirators, took their cannon and pursued them in all directions.

At this time some of the Artillerymen had succeeded in getting into the prison of Gen. Padilla, under the orders of Capt. E. Bruno and R. Mendoza, by leaping the wall of the yard, and having reached the room of that General, surprised Col. Bolivar in bed, and discharged a pistol at his breast. The valiant Colonel died by the hands of men who had never seen the face of an enemy.

When those who had attacked the palace left it, they met at the door Col. Ferguson, Aid-de-Camp of the Liberator. At the first noise of the tumult this deserving officer hastened from his lodgings, and on reaching the spot a pistol was fired at his breast by the Comdt. Carrijo, in whose recent promotion Ferguson had mainly assisted.

A division of the regiment of Vargas, under the command of Lieut. Forrealo, having been supplied with ammunition and headed by Gen. Urdaneta, minister of war, accompanied by Gen. Paris, Cordova Velec, and Orlega, placed themselves in the principal square, from whose orders were given for the defence of the city and the pursuit of the traitors: here they were joined by the Liberator, who was received with open arms and most enthusiastic demonstrations of joy by the officers and men.

A solemn High Mass in thanksgiving, was offered up on the 28th by the Archbishop.

The proper authorities are engaged in preparing the processes against the conspirators.

The people to the amount of 4000 have armed and by their exertions many of those who had escaped the pursuit of the military, were taken.

PROCLAMATION.

Pedro A. Herran, Intendant of the Department.

To the inhabitants of Cundimarca.—Last night brought this city and the whole of the republic to the brink of ruin! It is to be believed, that even here, in our very bosoms, villains should have existed who would attempt the murder of the Liberator.

Seduced by them, the brigade of artillery which was in this city, and supported by this force, they introduced themselves and spilt much blood, even in the very house of his Excellency; but Providence was pleased that Col. Ferguson, and Colonel Joseph Bolivar, with a part of the guard, should perish—the first at the entrance of the palace, the second in the house of the Gen. Padilla, where he was on service. The 2d Lieut. Ibarra, was wounded in the apartments of the palace, as were several others.—The Liberator, to whose cabinet, the assassins had penetrated, miraculously preserved himself. Several of the traitors have been arrested, and those who have fled are pursued. The full extent of their crimes will be discovered.

The first squadron of horse grenadiers, and the battalion of Vargas, conducted themselves during the whole night with that order and enthusiasm which has so often called forth the praises even of the enemy.

The artillery commenced their parricidal proceeding by pointing and discharging their guns against the quarters of those troops, whose valor was only fired by this attack. They soon put to flight the traitors, and running through the streets alone, or accompanied by their officers, they congratulated one another on the safety of the Liberator.

His Excellency also visited all parts of the city during the night, and every where he received testimony of the horror inspired in all by the crime meditated.

Countrymen, friends, believe not that the authors were Bogotians—Horment is not—Carovjo is not, nor are those who directed and commanded this band of assassins—Bogota is faithful to her vows, and grateful to the Liberator—Bogota above all, is Colombian.

What would become of the Republic, if crime were triumphant—we had lost our support, our bond of union, our Tutelar Angel. Friends, let us give thanks to the Most High, who, in preserving the Liberator, has preserved us all.

PEDRO A. HERRAN.

FROM GIBRALTAR.

The following Circular was received by the brig Soto:

GIBRALTAR, Oct. 1, 1823.

The health of this garrison at the present time is such as to render unnecessary and useles, the forwarding our Prices Current as usual. Business is completely at a standstand, and the place all but deserted by the commercial class. Nothing doing, except merely in articles of consumption, and storing goods as fast as they arrive.

The communication with Cadiz, Malaga, and other Spanish ports is wholly cut off, and no intercourse permitted whatever. The penalty is death. It is now fourteen years since we were last visited by this pestilence, &, on former occurrences, the begining of the year was the earliest period of communication with Spain; but the Spaniards appear, now, so much frightened, that we fear, on this occasion, it will be a later date. The fever commenced the latter part of August, gradually increasing, from its commencement, till it has now become somewhat alarming. We cannot look for a renewal of business short of four or five months; and when it does revive, as a large quantity of Tobacco has accumulated here, we expect it will meet with a heavy sale, at low prices. Should any thing interesting occur, you will be hereafter be made acquainted with it. Respectfully,

HILL & BLODGET.

Late East India accounts had reached London. Under the head of Boorhanpore it is stated that "in the village of Rakhun, near Boorhanpore, such an immense concourse of people, consisting of pedlars, Dadoo-Puntheers, Sunyases, and others had assembled, that the number of persons was supposed to be at least one hundred and fifty thousand. At the time the crowd was the thickest, suddenly a most pestilential and deadly wind began to blow, and the people, abandoning their property, fled they knew not whither.—Great numbers perished on the spot. The newswriter says, that the whole of the merchandise collected there, was given to the wind. It was wonderful, he adds, what could have become of so vast a multitude in so short a time. The virulence of the poisonous blast, however, at length abated, and the Dadoo-Puntheers, and Sunyases, and others that remained, fell into desparate strife, in which many were killed and wounded. The loss of property was beyond calculation.

RUSSIA AND TURKEY.

We learn from St. Petersburgh that the Russians were resolved upon making further efforts to recruit their army, in order to carry on the war against Turkey with additional vigour:—and that a third levy is to be made of four out of every 500 men throughout Russia. Reckoning the number of men in Russia capable of bearing arms at 15 millions, the proportion of four out of every 500 would produce a levy of 120,000 men!

The report, says the London Courier, of Turkey meaning to declare war against France, obtains credit with the Paris papers, which argues, that as the intention of the Porte, was known to be as hostile as ever to the emancipation of Greece, and as a Turkish army is said to be destined to the Morea to act against the French, a declaration of war may naturally be expected.

Greece, from the accounts of the German papers, appears to be more tranquil than usual.

The London Courier of the 8th says, "Joseph Hunton, the Quaker was taken out of the American packet ship Leeds, windbound at Portsmouth, by a Bow-street officer, on a charge of forgery, on the house of Sir William Curtis & Co." Captain Sprague wrote from Portsmouth to London on the 7th, that he came on board the Leeds at London, by the name of Wilkinson, and stated that he was a merchant in Ironmonger-lane; his family resident about four miles from London. Capt. S. adds:—"I understand that his real name is Joseph Hunton, and he is now lodged in gaol. They proceed for London to-night. It is fortunate for the ends of justice that the vessel was detained by contrary winds."

BLOCKADE OF THE DARDANELLES.

Foreign Office, London Oct. 1.

"H. M. Government have received information that it is the intention of H. I. M. the Emperor of Russia, to establish the blockade of the Dardanelles. The measure will be limited to the preventions of vessels bound to Constantinople, and laden with provisions or articles contraband of war, from entering the straits."

The London Courier in publishing the above, remarks, "We have not received from the Porte, any formal notification has yet been made to us. His Majesty's intention has merely been notified, and that notice we conveyed to Lloyd's. Lord Aberdeen declared in his speech, on the 16th of July, that it was impossible for the two Powers to co-operate with intelligence under the Treaty until the Emperor waived his belligerent rights in the Mediterranean." His Imperial Majesty voluntarily gave his assurance, that he would wave his right as a belligerent—and we co-operated with him. But if His Imperial Majesty resume his belligerent rights, it may be inferred that we will lose our co-operation in the Mediterranean."

The same paper of Oct. 7th, says,—"It having been asserted that the Dardanelles were actually blockaded before any communication was made to our Government, we have to reply, that according to the last accounts the blockade had not taken place, and may not take place for some time.

"Whatever may have been the proceedings of Russia, our Government, we repeat, will know how to afford the most effectual protection to British commerce and the national character."

From the London Sun, of October 8.

We have reason to understand, although the Earl of Aberdeen notified to Lloyd's the intention of Russia to blockade the Dardanelles, that our Government do not intend to recognise that blockade, as being attempted not only in direct violation of the promises made by Russia, but contrary to the spirit of the treaty of London, as well as subversive of our commercial interests. With this view, a remonstrance of the most decided character has been forwarded to the Emperor Nicholas, couched in terms which will admit of no equivocation. The answer must be entirely satisfactory, or the reverse; there can be no medium. Russia is preparing for war. The Russians have stolen a march upon our Government by taking advantage of their proximity to the Dardanelles, and ordering their fleet to blockade it; but they will find that they have overreached themselves in this particular, if they adopt any measures which may bring them into collision with Sir Pulteney Malcolm's squadron. We understand that upon the receipt of the Emperor's intention to blockade the Dardanelles, our Government lost not a moment in apprising Admiral Malcolm of the altered circumstances of the case, and directing him how to act. But to render their instructions still more effective, they continued upon reinforcing his fleet without delay; and such is the urgency in fitting out the men-of-war, that every ship has orders to sail as soon as ready, without waiting for others. In addition to the ships already under orders, we have reason to suspect that two more line of battle ships are secretly preparing for the Turkish Mediterranean, as known, but it may be guessed at. Despatch—is the word.

Navarino, Sept. 10.—The Turks and Egyptians evacuate the fort of Navarino. The Egyptians are embarking to return to Alexandria. The camp which was near Modon is also embarking. Ibrahim Pacha will not embark till the second Egyptian expedition sails; meantime he will occupy Modon and Coron. These two places will be delivered up to the French after his departure. Gen. Maison, wishing to occupy Coron immediately, had invested the place. Ibrahim gave notice to the Admirals, that if a single musket shot were fired, and if the troops made the smallest movement, all the conventions should be broken, and that he would not be forced from the Morea while he was alive. The admirals immediately sent to request Gen. Maison to cause the French troops to retire, and they have returned to Calamata. English, French, Russian, and Greek vessels are entering the bay of Calamata to land the Ambassadors of the three powers, and the President of Greece.

P. S.—The Ambassadors have landed at the head quarters of General Maison. There has been a conference between them, the Admirals, and Count Capo d'Istrias. The Egyptians are embarking amidst the thunder of the cannon of all the fleets, which salute the Ambassadors of the Allied Powers, and through the smoke we see the Greek colours hoisted in the room of the red flag of the Egyptians.—Gazette de France, Oct. 5.

Operations before Choumla, Sept. 18.—Our troops maintain themselves in the positions which they have taken up before Choumla, notwithstanding the difficulties they have had to encounter in collecting forage. Since the last attack on our redoubts the Turks have not ventured out of their trenches. Though they keep up a daily fire upon us, we have neither killed nor wounded.

United States.

The way they do business in Canada.—The constable who conveyed Christie to Canada, has returned. He arrived at York on Friday evening, Christie was examined on Saturday, on Monday he was indicted, on Tuesday he was arraigned, pleaded guilty and sentenced to be hung on Thursday.—Albany Gazette.

On the 4th February, a phenomenon as extraordinary as magnificent, was witnessed at Chocharta, in Siberia.—The cold was very severe. At sunrise, rays called in Siberia "ears of the sun" were seen on both sides of it.—At ten in the morning these rays changed to brilliant parhelia. An immense whitish column resembling the tail of a comet, seemed attached to the sun, which had already reached a great elevation, and was proceeding towards the west. This column formed in the whole extent of the sky a circle, in the circumference of which seven suns were visible, pale, and rayless, and situated at equal distances from each other and the true sun. The last, moreover, reflected in the atmosphere four great white circles so disposed as to form a pyramid; two of them being circumscribed by the first-mentioned circle, whilst the two others were in that part of the horizon opposite to the sun. It was observed that there must have been four circles in the greatest, but that one was effaced by the light of the sun, and only half of the other was visible, which glittered with all the colours in the rainbow. It is to be regretted that this phenomenon, which lasted nearly till midday, was not witnessed by Savans.—Moscow paper.

Canal Revenue.—The Albany Daily Advertiser states that the amount of toll paid this year up to the 1st inst, to the collector at Albany, is $145,823.

TROY, Nov. 4, 1828.

Messrs. Francis Hall & Co.

Gentlemen—In your paper under date of 31st Oct. we noticed a paragraph, stating, that the proprietors of the principal forwarding Lines on the Erie Canal were resolved to withdraw their horses from the tow path on the 10th day of November. The proprietors of the Troy and Erie Line would inform their friends that their horses and boats will be kept in operation until entirely prevented by ice.

G. S. GRIFFITH & Co.

Notice of a singular Chinese Fruit—from Prince's Treatise on Horticulture.

Chinese Flat Peach.—This most curious of fruits, introduced from China by the Horticultural Society of London, and figured and described in their transactions, may be considered an anomaly of its species. The fruit is described as 21-2 inches wide, and only 11-16 of an inch thick through from the stem to the suture, and the existence of such a fruit has always been doubted, until actually received from China. Both the external appearance of the fruit, and the pit so singularly compressed in its form, would seem to be the result of art rather than of nature. It is represented as being an early peach. About twenty trees are in possession of the author, which have been inoculated from the original introduced by himself.

BUFFALO, October 28.

Damage by the late Gale.—We have obtained the following facts in relation to the damage done by the gale on the 15th instant, and lay them before the public as authentic.

Schr. Louisa Jenkins went ashore at Grand River; the vessel was got off without damage. The cargo, owned principally at Cincinnati, was damaged about $1000: no insurance.

Schr. Columbus went ashore at the same place, filled, and lost a small part of her cargo, consisting of provision. The vessel was considerably injured: no insurance.

Schr. Young Lion went ashore at Otter Creek, U. Canada: insured, and will be got off with little or no damage. Has since arrived in port.

The Schr. Lady Washington, with a cargo valued, at 1000 or 1500 dollars, was wrecked on the 19th instant, off Sturgeon Point. She struck a reef, was got off, and finally sunk in 18 feet water, crew all safe. The cargo, composed of salt and dry goods, owned by merchants at Erie, and in the interior, was principally stowed in the hold, and will probably be wholly ruined: no insurance. The vessel said to be old and unseaworthy.

The above is all the damage that has been heard of.—Many of the vessels out during the gale, had left our harbour the day before it commenced, and took shelter under Point Abino..

A lady, a few days ago, in passing rapidly round the base of the sky-light on the dome of the grand rotunda of the Capitol, suddenly fell upon the glass frame, broke through one of the panes, and was fortunately stopped in her descent by the narrowness of the aperture, and the extension of her arms. She remained suspended in that position for several minutes, 130 feet above a floor paved with stone, till one of the attendants came to her assistance, her companions being too much petrified to give her any aid. We trust this will be a warning to those whose curiosity may lead them to that splendid but dangerous apex.—Washington Chronicle.

Smuggling.—On Wednesday evening, a quantity of woollen goods, carpetings, woollens, kerseys, &c. were seized by officers of the Custom House at South Boston, where they had been landed with the intention of evading the oppressive duties of the "law of abominations." We understand that these goods had been brought from Halifax, and were seized in consequence of orders of the heads of the Custom House, by Messrs. Minot and Fiske, on a private information. The amount seized, is said to have been from three to six thousand dollars.—Boston Gazette.

The price of Flour has again risen in Baltimore. Sales were effected on Thursday at $8 50 per bbl.

Speedy Travelling.—The passengers in the Benjamin Franklin, from New York for Boston, 210 miles, landed at the latter place, on the 7th inst. in 19 hours and 20 minutes, the shortest passage on record by 1 hour and 12 minutes.

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1828.

We have received the New York Spectator of 14th instant. It does not contain any later intelligence from Europe than that quoted from the Albion, in our postscript of last week.

It seems now to be admitted that the Grain Crop in Great Britain, is a short one, and the "continued serious advance in the price of Grain," is spoken of, as having given, "a further stimulus to speculation." The price of Wheat on the Continent has risen considerably.

From all accounts, it does not appear probable that any quantity of Wheat, or Flour will be exported from Canada, during the ensuing season. The Crops in Lower Canada, are represented as being deficient, and a Cargo of three thousand Barrels of Flour, has lately arrived at Quebec from New York. Large quantities of Indian Meal, have also been brought in from the United States, into the Montreal market. The quality of the Wheat in this Province is generally not so good as usual. Most of the other Crops are excellent, both in quality and quantity.—Vegetables are abundant.

Some of the English papers contain rumours of the serious indisposition of His Majesty. These, however, and apparently on good authority, are contradicted, and it is stated that His Majesty, was recovering from an attack of Gout, which had prevented Him for some time from taking His usual daily exercises.

On Tuesday last, His Excellency Sir John Colborne proceeded to the Head of the Lake, as far as the Town of Hamilton, visiting Burlington Heights, and the works at the Canal. His Excellency returned to Town on Wednesday evening. Yesterday morning His Excellency, inspected the 68th Regt. under the command of Major Winniett.

Quarter Sessions.—The Quarter Sessions for this District commenced on Tuesday last. We regret to say that there are not less than Twenty cases of Assault and Battery for trial, which will probably occupy the Session for several days.

We have received a sample of Sugar, refined in London from the Maple Sugar of Canada. It is certainly equal to any of the refined Sugar imported for Sale into this Country. We have not the means of ascertaining what quantity of Maple Sugar is manufactured annually in this Province, but we have reason to believe it is considerable. Probably, however, that quantity, as the lands are cleared, is less than in former years. It is certainly worthy the attention of the Emigrant in settling on his lands, if the Maple is found growing on his lot, to preserve what is commonly called "a Sugar Bush." Many of our old Farmers have done so, and continue to derive advantage from their Trees, in the manufacture of a sufficient quantity of Sugar for their own consumption. The ordinary mode of tapping the Trees with an axe is a destructive one—in a few years they are of no further use. They should be tapped with a small auger, and tubs inserted in a careful manner for conducting the Sap into the troughs, by which means, they may be preserved for many years. The process for making the Sugar is simple, and easily acquired.

The American papers are principally occupied with the subject of the "Presidental Election," which appears to have been warmly contested. From the returns which have been received, there seems to be little doubt, that General Jackson will be the President elect. The duties of the office, commence on 1st March next.

In another part of our paper will be found an account taken from the St. Catharine's Journal, of the accident which lately occurred to the works on the Welland Canal.—It is with regret we add the following, communicated by a correspondent, to the Niagara Herald.

"I am sorry to say that another slip has taken place in the Deep Cut banks since writing my note of the 10th inst.—It occurred on Mr. Thompson's job, adjoining the former one, and extends nearly five chains in length. The obstacles to completing this part of the canal this fall, as anticipated, have of late become so multiplied and formidable as to induce the agent to order operations suspended for the winter; in the mean time by observing how the banks stand through the winter we shall be enabled to judge what method it will be most advisable to adopt in the spring to render them permanent and secure. I believe it is intended to fill the Canal from Deep Cut to Lock No. 1, at the Mountain, four and a half miles, in about a fortnight."

In the New York Enquirer, of 13th instant, is an Editorial article, containing reflections of an unjustifiable nature on Sir Peregrine Maitland. We will not say that we were surprised, on seeing such an article, copied into the last Colonial Advocate. But whether the Advocate will surprise us by copying the following, from the same paper of the following day, remains to be seen.

"Mr Editor:—I regret to see in your paper an observation in relation to Sir Peregrine Maitland, and feel it my duty to say, in common with many of our citizens, that, notwithstanding the religious and retired habits of Sir Peregrine Maitland, all who have intercourse with him, have found an urbanity and demeanour of the most gentlemanly character. I venture to say, that in no instance can it be stated that any expression of contempt, or ill will, has been uttered by His Excellency towards the people of this state—as a father, husband, and friend, his conduct is above all praise."

It is more than probable that our paragraph yesterday was too strong coloured. We are sometimes apt to complain of reserve and want of sentiment when nothing offensive is intended. Sir Peregrine Maitland is rather reserved in his habits.—Ed. Exq

The Albion of 15th inst. is just received, from which we take the following:—

POSTSCRIPT.

"The Sylvanus Jenkins arrived this morning from Liverpool with London papers to the 10th October. There is no official news of the Turkish war, but private letters from Vienna announce that the siege of Chounla has been raised, in consequence of sickness (amounting to 30,000 men) in the Russian camp. Varna has been reinforced by the Turks. The Sultan was at Constantinople on the 14th September. The Standard of Mahomet had not been raised, as the Russian army was too feeble to require it."

Papers of 9th and 10th inst. speak of His Majesty's illness as nothing alarming.

ARRIVAL OF LORD DALHOUSIE.

"Edinburgh, Oct. 9.—The Challenger, frigate, Captain Fitzclarence, arrived in Leith Roads, on Sunday morning, from Quebec, having on board the Right Hon. the Earl of Dalhousie, late Governor-General of the Canadas. His Lordship landed at Newhaven, under a salute from the frigate, in the course of the forenoon. The Challenger has only been 29 days on her passage, including a day's detainer in the Downs."

Four Companies of the United States' troops are arrived at Fort Niagara. We understand that they have been reduced by drafts to other Companies, and are to be made up by recruits during the winter; two Companies are to proceed to Sacken's Harbor we understand, forthwith.—N. Gazette.

We understand that Mr Forsythe, owner and landlord of the Pavilion at the Falls, has purchased from Mr. Brown, the Oatalo House, a gentleman has become the sole proprietor of both those elegant mansions, and can, therefore, grant the petition at the Falls. We, however, lately observed a substantial building of brick, erecting in the village of Lundy's Lane by Mr. Coryell, well known as an Inn-keeper in that village. This being not more than half a mile from the top of the bank at the Falls, many may prefer this retired situation to lodging in those elegant mansions. Competition is necessary for the accommodation of the public in every thing, not even excepting printing establishments. We look upon the village of Lundy's Lane, as the most thriving in the District, St. Catharines always excepted. A respectable inn is a great benefit to any rising village.—ib.

Domestic.

We have been shown the prospectus of a plan for forming an association, to be called the "Erie and Ontario Transportation Company," with a capital of £250,000, or $1,000,000, for effecting the transportation of Produce and Merchandize from any designated port on Lake Erie, through the Welland Canal, to Prescott, and thence to Montreal, or to Oswego, and from thence to New-York—and vice versa. We hope to be able to lay it before the public in our next.—Farmer's Journal.

WELLAND CANAL.

Copy of a Letter from our obliging correspondent at the Deep Cut, dated

Monday Evening, November 10, 1828.

"Dear Sir—

"Yesterday morning about 7 o'clock a part of the Deep Cut bank, extending about 12 rods from Mr. M'Farland's store, on the Hartwell job, settled down nearly 20 feet, carrying in one of the machines and part of the waggon road upon the high bank, pressing the earth from the canal bottom where there was four feet water, so that it now lies from 8 to 10 feet above the surface of the water. This day, again, about noon another slide of 16 rods took place on Mr. Thompson's job, on the west side of the canal, and about a quarter of a mile from the first, more serious than the other.

"There are alarming symptoms of the instability of the foundation upon which this bed of clay rests; and which, it seems, must be nearly cut through, and so weakened as to be unable to sustain the great weight of earth resting upon it.

"The water will in a fair way of getting through before Christmas; and I still think that, unless further slides continue to take place, it may yet be done this season."

The day previous to the above mentioned unfortunate and unforseen event, the whole of the Deep Cut was excavated to tow-path level, with the exception of about 60 Chains.—From the lower end, where it is the deepest cutting, the excavation of the Canal, from tow-path to bottom level, has been progressing upwards, or towards the Welland, for 12 months past, under the superintendance of those faithful and industrious contractors, Messrs. Davis and Donaldson; and filled with water as completed, by means of a dam across the Canal some distance below, thereby retaining a sufficient supply from the spring floods. Their method of disposing of the earth, is by scows, from whence it is thrown overboard in such places as will not interfere with the navigation, of which there are abundance close at hand; which has proved to be a far cheaper and more expeditious plan for taking out the bottom, than raising it to the top of the bank adjacent. For this reason, it was determined to open a ditch through such parts as were not finished, this fall, of 14 feet wide and 4 feet deep, to admit the passage of scows for carrying off the remaining earth, in the spring, which, it was judged might easily be effected by the first of May, 1829—when a free and safe channel would be open for vessels to pass from one Lake to the other.

A considerable portion of the heaviest part of the work has been entirely completed on the first plan, and had in use by the contractors for some time, and not the least indication of instability in the banks have yet been observed; but, on the contrary, remain apparently "as firm as the hills" It is far above this, towards the Welland, where the cutting is comparatively shallow, that the quicksands have tended to loosen the foundation of the Canal, and caused the avalanche of earth above described; and from the description given, we should think that the only way to render it permanently safe, will be to have the defective portions well timbered and piled, in the same style, only on a more extensive scale, as such places are formed on the New-York Canals, in which there is no difficulty other than extra time and expense. Notwithstanding these casualties, unless still greater ones occur, of which the public shall have due notice, we think there can be no doubt but the Canal will be open for navigation early in the ensuing season Therefore, merchants and others, on the upper Lakes and elsewhere, who are desirous of availing themselves of this new channel for the transportation of their commodities to market, will do well to make their arrangements, and be prepared to take the benefit of the same as early as possible. Lumber, particularly pipe staves, being a fair price in Quebec; and we understand is a profitable business. As most of the oak timber to and below Lake Ontario, has been made use of for that purpose, those men who have heretofore been engaged in this traffic, should now turn their attention to the shores of Lake Erie and its tributary streams, where they will undoubtedly find an abundant supply for many years to come. We should think 1,000,000 staves could be procured in time to pass through the Welland Canal the ensuing year, and from thence to the Quebec Market.—ib.

The following is a copy of a letter addressed to Mr. Merritt, the Agent of the Welland Canal, while in London, by Messrs. Leford and Nimmo, two of the most experienced and celebrated Civil Engineers in Europe. It is a plain and sensible statement of undeniable facts, not one of which can be controverted by all the sophistry or selfishness of the whole host of its opposers.—These Gentlemen are, also, stockholders in this Canal, to a respectable amount.—ib.

London, 13th of May, 1828.

"Sir,—

"We have, with much attention and interest, examined the documents you have laid before us, relative to the Welland Canal, now in progress in Upper Canada, and which is intended to connect the Lake Erie and Ontario line of navigation.

"With respect to the great importance of this undertaking, whether in a political or commercial view, and the advantages of that country, likely to result from its completion, there can be but one opinion among persons who will thoroughly investigate the subject.

"The very great extent of ship navigation in the lakes, above the Falls of Niagara, upon the same level, must always confine the carriage of the products of that country to trivial and inconsiderable burden; for, whenever this is practicable with few transhipments, no other mode of transport can compete with it.

"By your Welland Canal these productions are conveyed 150 miles, nearer to their market, even if delivered at Oswego for New-York; and 200 miles, if intended for the St. Lawrence; and at this, where the goods are now embarked, will be attended with little additional freight or insurance, to that impossible for a Canal, so far as it runs parallel with the lake, to compete with it.

"We are of opinion that you are perfectly justified in reckoning the advantage at the rate of 20s per ton; and that you must necessarily have a good proportion of that trade which now passes from Lake Erie to New-York.

"But as the improvement of the river St. Lawrence, below Lake Ontario, will follow as a natural consequence of this measure (and in this we understand there is no material difficulty,) so as to form an uninterrupted line of ship navigation to the ocean; from the superior facilities of that river for the trade of the countries on the upper Lakes, will ultimately fall into the natural outlet of the St. Lawrence, and the importation of the upper country will return in the same bottoms from the markets of Europe or the West Indies.

"What the extent of this trade may be in a country so rapidly advancing, cannot be conjectured by us, but there can be little doubt of its amply reimbursing the subscribers for the outlay of their capital.

"From the plans and sections that have been transmitted to us, this Canal seems to be very favorably circumstanced, with respect to the ground through which it is cut; the inexhaustible reservoirs which supply it with water, and the very extensive mill power which will be established at its locks. The prolongation into Lake Erie, besides saving several miles of navigation, will avoid the serious obstructions caused by the drift ice, at the head of the Niagara River, and thus have a material advantage over the New-York Canal.

"THOMAS TELFORD,
"ALEXANDER NIMMO.

"William Hamilton Merritt, Esq."

Distressing Casualty.—On Wednesday, the 15th October, as Mr. James M'Gouion and his two sons, Alexander, aged 20, and James, aged 10 years, were returning in a sail boat from Kingston to Adolphustown, (the place of their residence) when nearly opposite Herchimer's Point, the boat, as is supposed, unfortunately capsized, and all three of them were drowned. The body of the oldest son was found on Monday last, and that of the father on Wednesday, and decently interred. It is supposed the body of the youngest son is in the boat. They were natives of Scotland, from whence they emigrated about eight years ago — A widow and two or three children are left to mourn this afflicting dispensation of Divine Providence, but we feel happy in saying they do not "mourn as those without hope."—Kingston Gazette and Religious Advocate.

Address of the Gentlemen and principle Freeholders of the Town and Township of London:—

To His Excellency Sir Peregrine Mait-land K.C.B. Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Upper Canada, and Major General Commanding His Majesty's Forces therein, &c. &c. &c.

May it please your Excellency,

Being apprised that your Excellency has been promoted to the Government of Nova Scotia, we cannot permit you to depart hence, without some expression of feeling, by which the Loyal Province over whose destinies you are now to preside, may form some judgment of the way in which your services have here been estimated. The present we consider as a peculiarly appropriate time for the expression of our sentiments.—Your Excellency has now nothing to bestow, and we of course nothing to expect; it will therefore be impossible for the most fertile minded asperser of your Excellency's administration, to impute to us other motives, than those of the purest disinterestedness,—of the most perfect attachment to your Excellency's person and government.

For ten years we have lived under the mild and equitable administration of your Excellency—for ten years we have witnessed, with the attention of men having a deep interest at stake in the welfare of the Province, the unwearied exertions of your Excellency for the advancement of its prosperity, and the happiness of its people—and although we have during this period not unfrequently heard of oppression, of misrule, of public wrongs, and private grievances, we believe they have existed only in the imaginations of men, who, either to attain popularity, or to gratify some less laudable propensity, endeavour to infuse into the public mind a spirit of hostility to the existing authorities of the Country. The people feel, (notwithstanding the industry of the discontented and the disaffected) that they are living in the perfect, the undisturbed, unfearing possession of every blessing of our enviable Constitution.—"They sow in hope, and reap in gladness."—They arise with the smiles of the morning and lie down beneath the shadows of night "none daring to make them afraid."—They see the Country once an uncultivated desert, now unfolding its fertile bosom; and by the abundance of its productions, their toils are compensated, and their wants supplied.—They witness also the many and important operations which are progressing for the improvement of their internal navigation; and whilst they proudly anticipate the day, as almost at hand, when the once isolated Barque of the Western Lakes, shall proudly swell its spreading sails upon the bosom of the ocean, bearing the productions of their farms to distant lands, they cannot help thinking (notwithstanding all they have heard to the contrary) that under your Excellency's administration, the Province is rising to great commercial, and agricultural importance. It is therefore impossible that we, who are likely to derive so great advantages from the measures recommended and adopted by your Excellency, and entertaining as we do the highest esteem for your Excellency's private character could now abstain from assuring your Excellency that we deeply regret your departure from this Province.

Permit us therefore to bid your Excellency a grateful and affectionate farewell; and believe us when we say, we shall ever feel as happy to hear of your political advancement as we have always been of your domestic happiness.

London, Oct. 1828.

JOHN EWART, RICHD. TALBOT,
F. TALBOT, J. S. HARRISON,
Wm. HARDY, Wm. HALE.
[And Fifty-one others.]

To which His Excellency was pleased to make the following REPLY.

Gentlemen,

I have received your affectionate Address with much pleasure, and I duly appreciate the generous feeling which prompts you at the moment of my departure, to do justice to the motives by which I have been actuated during my administration of this Government.

That the Inhabitants of the Township of London cannot be too grateful for the blessings that surround them, is forcibly impressed upon my mind, by my recollection of the appearance which that Township presented to me when so few years had elapsed from its first settlement. I need scarcely remind you however, that it is not by the excellence of climate and soil that the prosperity or the happiness of a community can be ensured; a disposition to appreciate justly the advantages they enjoy, and to acquiesce contentedly in the arrangements necessary to social order, are required to render the political condition of any people permanently happy.—If the feelings which you have so warmly and so kindly expressed do not universally prevail, and if the efforts to which you allude for exciting discontent among a people who have so much to be grateful for, have been partially successful, I can but attribute it to that want of general knowledge of the truth, which renders a portion of the best disposed population always too easily accessible to the designs of the ambitious and the turbulent.

I rejoice with you, Gentlemen, in the cheering prospect of rapid improvement which Upper Canada presents to view.

In departing to assume the duties of the Station to which my Sovereign has been graciously pleased to advance me, I shall bear with me a grateful recollection of your kindness, and the consciousness that I have in no act of my Government suffered any other motive to prevail with me than an anxiety to discharge my duty by promoting your best interests.

Highly interesting to all who wish to promote improvement among the Indians and destitute Settlers in Canada.

Under the patronage of the Duke of Sussex, the Duke of Bedford, Lord Bexley and others, highly respectable in church and state. A society has been formed, in Great Britain, for the promotion of Education and Industry in this country. The object of the society is, to train up teachers on the most approved plan in Education and Industry among the Indians and destitute Settlers in both Provinces of Canada.

Two years ago an auxiliary to this society was formed in Montreal, under the patronage of the Earl of Dalhousie. Soon after a female branch of the Institution was formed under the patronage of the Countess of Dalhousie. In Quebec, Kingston, and several other places, auxiliaries were established. But, owing to various circumstances, very little has been done in this Province to aid the Institution, what has been done in the Lower Province, will appear by the reports of the Societies at Montreal and Quebec, copies of which have been circulated.

This Society is calculated to be great good to the Indians and Emigrants, for whom all good people must deeply feel. But, however anxious we may feel for "our red brethren," as Lord Bexley calls them; yet great care must be taken that we do not hurt them instead of assisting them. This has been the effect of most attempts which have been made amongst the Indians; and the same remarks may be made respecting assistance granted to Emigrants. Assistance in both cases must be afforded by teaching them to live upon their own earnings. We very much need a set of teachers who are qualified and disposed to go among the Indians and new Settlers, who would shew them daily what true religion is, and how to practice it. On this plan our Dear Friend Master and his apostles taught; on this plan Elder Case, Peter Jones, the Messrs. Ryerson and others, in Upper Canada, are now labouring to assist the long neglected and numerous tribes of Indians. All who will take the trouble to travel among the Indians in Canada and the United States where this plan has been introduced must be highly gratified

To open, as soon as possible a seminary, to train up teachers on this plan of uniting manual labour with mental cultivation, is the object of a meeting to be held in the Masonic Hall, on Monday next, when it is expected, that such statements will be made as will induce many to lend the proposed Institution their patronage and support. The chair will be taken at seven o'clock. Ladies and Gentlemen are invited to attend, without cards or further notice.

This meeting is called by the request of several friends to the Indians, and particularly by the desire of the agent of the above named Society in London The agent is now in Town and will attend the meeting.—Communicated.

NOTICE.—All persons having demands against Sir Peregrine Maitland, are requested to present them to Mr. Billings, for payment.

York, 20th November, 1828. x. 24

VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE.—Consisting of 800 Acres, in the Township of Darlington, Newcastle District, Upper Canada,—comprising Lots No. 30, 31, 32, and 33, in the second Concession, 400 Acres of which are Freehold, and 400 Reserve, the Leases of which have eleven years unexpired.—200 Acres cleared & Fenced.—The Buildings consist of a Large Dwelling House, Root House, and Stabling, Capital Barns, inclosed Garden, Orchard, an excellent Saw-mill, Mill-house, & several small tenements, and is plentifully watered.

The High Road from Kingston to York passes through the premises, being 27 miles from Port-Hope, and 58 from York.—It is well situated for a Merchant's Store, or Tavern.—The whole will be sold together, or in Lots of 1 or 200 Acres, and the payment made easy.

For further particulars apply to R. Fairbourn, Esq'r., Darlington; J. G. Bethune, Esquire, Cobourg; J. Warren, Esquire, Whitby; John Macaulay, Esquire, Kingston; the Editor of this Paper, and of the Proprietor, James Black, Esquire, St. Catharines, Niagara District.

November 20, 1828. x. 24

WILLIAM MOORE—APOTHECARY & DRUGGIST. Respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has received direct from England, by the Don Drop, and others, a general assortment of Genuine Drugs, and Patent Medicines, Oils, Paints, Dye Stuffs, Spices, &c. &c., which he will sell at his usual low prices. He also takes this opportunity of returning his sincere thanks for the liberal patronage he has received, and hopes, by punctuality in business, to merit a continuance of that support which he has been favoured with for the last four years.

York, November 17, 1828. y. 24

CABINET WARE-ROOM.—At the Corner of Bay and Newgate Streets, York.—E. B. GILBERT, begs leave to inform the public that he keeps constantly on hand, an assortment of superior articles, consisting of Side Boards, Secretaries, Bureaus, Tables and Stands, Bedsteads, &c., which he offers for sale at reasonable prices for cash.

Orders executed with neatness and despatch.

☞ A few Gallons best Copal Furnish for Sale.

York, 20th November, 1828. x. 24

JAMES SMITH,—Formerly Saddler to His Royal Highness Prince Henry, Duke of Cumberland, Respectfully begs leave to inform the inhabitants of York and its vicinity, that he has taken a Shop next door to Mr. Paterson's Hard-ware Store, Market Square, where he intends carrying on the SADDLERY BUSINESS in all its branches, under the firm of SMITH & SONS.

Having served a regular Apprenticeship in High Holborn, and been a Principal in several first rate Shops in London—such as Wilson's, Oxford Street—Whippy's South Audley Street, and having carried on business for thirteen years in the City of Worcester, in a Shop, excelled by few in the Kingdom, London excepted—he would further inform the public in general that he will have a regular supply of Saddlery, direct from one of the first Houses in England, which will enable him to manufacture as good an article in Canada, as in London, on reasonable terms.

☞ A Shop will likewise be opened on the Main Road leading from Hamilton to Dundas, for the accommodation of Farmers, where Wheat and Oats will be taken in payment.

York, 21st November, 1828. n. 24

NEW GOODS, Wholesale & Retail.—HENRY HAMILTON takes this opportunity of acquainting his friends and the public in general, that he is now receiving, in that Store formerly occupied by Wm. Gamble, Esq., opposite to Mr. John S. Baldwin's, a large supply of well selected and choice GOODS, consisting of Clothiery of every description; Rose and Point Blankets; Red and White Flannels; Carpeting and Horse Cloths; Druggit and Swanskin; Irish and Scotch Linens and Sheetings of every description; 200 Pieces Sail Canvas, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6; Twilled and plain Baggings, Osnaburg, &c.; 1,000 pieces Mulled Jaconet, Cambric, and Book Muslin.—All kinds of Cotton Goods, viz.—Calicoes and Furniture prints; Salempores and long Cloths; Superior English Cotton Yarn, Nos. 6, 8, 9, 10, 12, and 14; Turkey Red and Blue and White Stripes; Derry and Check; Steam Loom and Factory Cottons, &c. &c.; Gros de Naples; Persians Sewing Silk and Cotton Bags; Gentlemen's fancy Silk, Pocket and Neck Handkerchiefs; Woollen Hosiery; Gloves and Buckskin Mitts,—together with every other article suitable for the trade.

—ALSO—

An assortment of Writing and Packing Paper; a few Crates of Assorted Crockery; Pot Ash, Sugar, and Tea Kettles; Nails; Stoves and Pans; Andirons, Spiders; Bellied Pots; English and Swedish flat and square Bar Iron, &c. &c.—Linseed Oil in two Gallon Tin Cans; Single and double refined Loaf Sugar; Muscovado Sugar; 4 Cwoons Pepper; 30 Barrels of Coffee; Teas of all kinds; 20 pipes Cognac Brandy; 6 Pipes real Hollands; 10 Puncheons best Jamaica Rum; 10 Pipes best Old Port.—All which can be recommended in the strongest terms, as being as good as any ever imported into this country from Cognac, Holland, Jamaica and Oporto, they having come direct to H. H. from the King's Docks, and not having been subject to that adulteration too frequently practised by dealers in these articles in the Lower Province, and will be sold unusually low for money or its equivalent.

☞ Cash will be paid during the Winter, for Wheat, Flour, Ashes, and heavy Corn-fed Pork.

York, 12th November, 1828. x. 24

FRESH ARRIVALS.

AT THE SIGN OF THE GOLDEN TEA CHEST.

THOS. CARFRAE, JUN.

RESPECTFULLY informs his Friends and the Public, that he has just received, and now offers for Sale, at his Store, (next door to the Methodist Chapel,) a well selected assortment of new and fashionable,

DRY GOODS,

Of this Falls' importation; also, a choice assortment of Groceries, together with a great variety of other Articles too numerous to detail in an Advertisement.

N.B.—T. C. has received a great variety of English, French, and German Toys; also, a small assortment of Jewellery, all of which will be sold at a much reduced price for cash. x 19

Poetry.

THE MOSS ROSE.

An angel of the flow'rs one day,
Beneath a rose-tree sleeping lay,—
That spirit to whose charge is given
To bathe young buds with dew from Heaven.
Awaking from his light repose,
The angel whisper'd to the rose,
"Oh! fondest object of my care,
Still fairest found where all are fair,
For the sweet shade I o'er given to me,
Ask what thou wilt, 'tis granted thee!"
Then said the rose, with deepen'd glow,
"On me another grace bestow."
The spirit paus'd in silent thought—
What grace was there that flow'r had not?
'Twas but a moment—o'er the rose
A veil of moss the angel throws,
And rob'd in Nature's simplest weed,
Could there a flow'r that rose exceed!

Lower Canada.

We wish to see our Militia so constituted that the Province could at a day's warning present a panoply of defence, that, like ancient Sparta, could oppose a wall of freemen in arms to an invading foe: this however must be done with certain exemptions in favour of particular classes, as the Clergy, the members of the Bar, Medical gentlemen, Schoolmasters, Firemen, &c. which will doubtless be properly provided for; but unless frequent and efficient trainings are ordered we fear that in the time of trial our Militia would be found very deficient.—Canadian Courant.

On Sunday last, Mr. Antoine Gamarche of St. Roch, was killed near the Parish Church, by a horse belonging to his brother; the deceased was not aware of the furious spirit of the horse, and upon approaching him, gave him a slight slap with his hand on the neck, when the animal sprung on him and trampled him to death: Mr. Gamarche was a respectable farmer of considerable property and is deeply regretted by his numerous friends and acquaintance. He has left a widow and ten children.—ib.

We observed with much pleasure, the rapid progress to completion of the interior of the NEW CATHEDRAL of this place. The exterior front will in a few days be completed, and nothing then remain to be done but the towers and belfries. The painting of the interior is rapidly advancing, the large end window has been for some time finished, and the scaffolding that remains will shortly be demolished, by which the tout ensemble of the interior may be fairly examined. Great praise is due to the exertions of the architect, Mr. O'DONNELL, and the other individuals connected with this magnificent undertaking, for the rapid progress which they have made. The CATHEDRAL, will be a monument to their fame, as it is universally acknowledged to be an embellishment to this city. Montreal Gazette.

J. C. Buchanan, Esquire, His Majesty's vice Consul at New York, who arrived here yesterday morning, took his departure for Quebec by the steamer John Molson, immediately on his arrival at the port. Mr. Buchanan was the bearer of parcels for His Excellency Sir James Kempt, brought by the Britannia packet, which are supposed to contain duplicates of the instructions, which in all probability were forwarded from Falmouth by the English mail of the 1st of October, via Halifax.

The Vestry of Christ's Church within the last few weeks unnanimously determined on presenting a Silver Cup to Mr. Christian Wagner, bearing the following inscription. "Public services merit public demonstrations of gratitude.

To Christian Wagner,
From
The Vestry of Christ's Church, Montreal,
In grateful acknowledgment of the deep sense of his long and valuable services,
In superintending the fund for the Poor of that Parish.
Easter Monday, 1828.
'No man liveth to himself.' "

A committee consisting of Messrs. John McCord, Henry Corse, and Alexander Skakel, Esquires, lately waited upon that gentleman with it; when Mr. Skakel addressed him, to which Mr. Wagner made a suitable reply: and afterwards addressed the vestry, in nearly the following terms:—

"Your Committee have presented me with a Silver Cup, in acknowledgment of your sense of my services in superintending the fund for the poor of the Parish. This very flattering testimony that my feeble efforts to follow you in your active benevolence, have met your approbation, is to me most satisfactory. I seek no higher honour, but gentlemen, if I delivered the poor that cried, and the fatherless, and him that had none to help him; it was your exertions, your benevolence, that enabled me: the blessing is therefore due to you!"—ib.

By the arrival of the Washington at Quebec, the Imports of the port of St. Johns as stated in our last, and the Imports of the port of Montreal for the St. Lawrence, which has been considerable during the last few days, it will be observed that flour, Indian meal, &c. are pouring into the Province from different parts of the U. States: this will doubtless calm the apprehensions that some time prevailed here respecting our supplies of bread stuffs; the fears were doubtless groundless in a great measure, for although our wheat crop is below an average, the Potatoe, Indian corn, and Oats have given a plentiful return: and as it is a general practice with our peasantry to grind down Indian corn and Wheat together for domestic purposes, no want of flour will be felt in country places. The demand for Oat meal is increasing, and the supply will increase with the demand, as we have now mills for the manufacture of this article. The procuring flour for large Government contracts, has had a tendency to raise its price; but as these contracts are nearly provided for, the market will be soon left to its usual demand, and will doubtless be found sufficiently supplied.—Canadian Courant.

Port of Quebec.

ARRIVED,

Nov. 1.. Ship Montmorenci, London, ballast
.... Bark Amity, Bristol and Prince Edward's Island, general cargo
..2.. Schr. Lord Nelson, Malaga, fruit, wines, &c.
.... Brigantine Felix Soulegny, Trinidad, molasses.
.... Brig Orleans, Tobago, rum and sugar.
.... Schr. Margaret, Halifax, cotton, oil, &c.
.... Brig Diana, Belfast, ballast
.... Brig Carrington, Tobago, rum, &c.
.... Ship Superb, Newfld., iron and salt—6 settlers.
.... Brig Sir J. T. Duckword, Demerara, rum.
.... Schr. Julia, Grenada, rum, &c.
..3.. American Ship Washington, New-York, flour.
.... Two Schrs. from Gaspé and one from Baie des Chaleurs.

Varieties.

Writing.—Among all the productions and inventions of human wit, none is more admirable and useful than Writing, by means whereof a man can copy out his thoughts, utter his mind without opening his mouth, and signify his pleasure at a thousand miles distance; and by the help of twenty-four letters, by various joining and infinite combinations of which all words that are attainable and imaginable may be framed; and the several ways of joining, altering, and transposing these letters, do amount (as Calvin, the Jesuit, has taken pains to compute) to 24,-695,738,496,665,000 ways, so that all things that are in heaven and earth may be expressed by the help of this wonderful alphabet, which may be comprised in the compass of a farthing.—Palmer's Aphorisms.

DIAMONDS AND PEBBLES.

It being familiarly known that the diamond cuts glass, many imagine that a crystal of quartz (rock crystal), or a pebble (chalcedony), which are hard enough to scratch glass, must be diamonds, or something approaching them. This is not to be wondered at, when it is considered how few have seen rough diamonds, or have ever reflected on the vast difference between scratching glass and cutting it. The diamond cuts it so that it breaks in the line frequently under the very act; other mineral substances merely scratches it. The diamond weighs at least two-thirds heavier than any pebbles, and it cannot be worn down like pebbles by a file, emery, nor even by the Lappidary's wheel.

Birth,

At York, on Wednesday 19th instant, Mrs. DUNN—The Lady of the Hon. the Receiver General of this Province—of a Son

Married,

At Waterloo, near Fort Erie, on Thursday 6th instant, by the Rev. W. Leeming, Doctor David J. Bowman, of Port Talbot, to Miss Jane Warren, Daughter of John Warren Esq. of Waterloo.

At Quebec, on Saturday evening last, by the Venerable the Archdeacon of Quebec, at Cumberland House, Beauport, Wm. Henry Lunn, Esq. Ensign 79th Highlanders, to Georgiana Susannah, second, and youngest, daughter of Joseph Jones, Esq. of that place.

Died,

At Hillier, on 7th instant, much lamented, Mr. Ebenezer Sloan, after an illness of three weeks, which he bore with christian resignation,—aged 40 years.—Com.

At Brockville on 12th inst. universally and deservedly lamented, Richard Carley Esq. aged 31 years, fifth son of Colonel B. C. ley.

At his residence at Tottenham, (five miles from London,) on the 8th of April last, WILLIAM PHILLIPS, F. R. S & &c. co-author of the Geology of England and Wales, author of a treatise on mineralogy, and of various other publications. The death of this philosopher and philanthropist, leaves no inconsiderable blank among the worthies of his age and country.—Silliman's Journal

NOTICE.—The Annual Meeting of the Society of Friends for the relief of Strangers in distress, will be held at the Court House, on Saturday, the 29th inst., at 12 o'clock.

JAMES FITZGIBBON,
SECRETARY.

York, 22d Nov., 1828. 3. 24

ANY PERSON or Persons, inclined to devote a few hours of their time, daily, to the PRIVATE TUITION of a Youth, in the Classics, Arithmetic, Mathematics, &c., are requested to apply to the Printer for further information.

York, November 19, 1828. n. 24

PROSPECTUS of a Newspaper, about to be published at Hallowell, in the County of Prince Edward, Upper Canada; and entitled THE HALLOWELL GAZETTE, or General Advertiser for the Countics of Prince Edwards and Hastings—JOHN CLARE, ESQUIRE, Editor and Proprietor.

TO THE PUBLIC:—When it is considered that there is not a single Printing Establishment between Kingston and York, for a distance of nearly 200 miles, through a well settled country, it must be generally admitted that the time has arrived when such an establishment is necessary. The Editor, some time since, gave publicity to a Prospectus for a Newspaper he intended to publish at Port Hope, to be entitled "The Port Hope Monitor," but has changed his mind and fixed on Hallowell for his Establishment; from the known respectability of the inhabitants of that village and its vicinity, the Editor flatters himself with the most sanguine hopes of a liberal and generous support.

To the inhabitants of the Counties of Prince Edward and Hastings, in particular, it is hoped this undertaking will prove a general benefit, and they will no longer have to send as far as York, or Kingston, for a few Handbills, or other work in the printing line, as the proprietor is determined to spare no pains to ensure the best execution of every kind of work submitted to him. The Types and Press, and every thing connected with the office, are entirely new, and have been selected by a competent judge.

As to the NEWSPAPER which it is intended to publish, it is hoped a few numbers will prove its character to be worthy of the estimation of the public. Its principles shall be purely and soundly constitutional, by which is meant a due deference to every branch of the happiest system of Government ever devised by man, and such as is established in England. The CANADAS will at all times be considered as forming an INTEGRAL part of the British Empire. This paper will never lose sight of the particular interests of these Provinces. All party spirit and feeling will be avoided. By respecting the public authorities, it is hoped the best respect will be shown to the people for whose Legislators they are appointed. Personal abuse never yet obtained any one satisfactory result, and insolence to those in superior station neither evinces the Gentleman nor the Christian—at the same time that a genuine spirit of loyalty to the best system of government ever known upon earth, and a reverence for religion will be found to pervade the pages of this work; at the particular unmindful nor sparing of correction, when abuses of power, on either side, shall render correction necessary.

From the importance of AGRICULTURE as the basis of the physical power of nations, that subject will ever be a prominent feature in the work—and no subject that can elucidate, or advance the domestic interests of the Colony shall be overlooked.

The most extensive arrangements have been made to insure the earliest and most authentic foreign news—and if the most zealous exertion to give general satisfaction can avail,—THE HALLOWELL GAZETTE will be found worthy of that general patronage which is now solicited.

It will be printed on a ROYAL Sheet, and the terms are Four Dollars per annum, exclusive of postage—6 months payable in advance. In order to induce the farmers to support a paper so warmly in their interest as it is intended this shall be—GRAIN of all kinds, PORK, and other country produce, will be received in payment of subscriptions at the Market price, deliverable at the office in Hallowell.

15th October, 1828. n. 24

WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE.—THE SUBSCRIBERS are just receiving by the Rebecca, Sophia, Favorite, Montreal, Ariadne, Horatio, Lady Digby, John Francis, and Sprightly, an extensive and suitable assortment of Fall Goods, Staple and Fancy, consisting of nearly every article in the Dry Good line.—Amongst the principal are the following:—
Broad and Narrow Cloths,
Cassimeres, & Pelisse do.
Paddings, Freize, and Coatings,
Plushings, Plushings, and Cloakings,
Red, White, and Shabby Flannels,
Blankets, Whitney, Rose and Point,
Serge, Baize, and Drugget,
Chintzes and Calicoes,
Hosiery of every description,
Handkerchiefs, Shalloons, Moreens, & Cambletts,
Tartans, Scotch Bonnets, and Fur Caps,
Scotch Sheetings, 34, 35, 36, 38 & 39 inch,
Osnaburgs, Bagging, and Hessins,
Grey Cottons, Checks, and Cross-overs,
Ginghams, Dufficate, Maddrass & Verona Handkerchiefs,
Bandanna, Brittanias & Barcelona do.
Fine, Superfine, and Brussels Carpeting,
Linen & Cotton Ticks & Sclampores,
Canvas, Dowlas, Huckaback and Diaper,
Book, Jaconet and Mull Muslins,
Bombazines, Gros de Naples, Sattins, Persians, &c.
Ribbons, Crapes, Shawls, Spoolls, Tapes, & Bobbins,
Linen & Cotton Thread, Sewing Silks, Braces, Ferrets, &c. &c.

—ALSO—
A few Crates assorted Earthenware, Combs, Shoe-thread, Shot, Letter Paper, Buttons, Needles, Pins, Handkerchiefs, Lines, Braids, &c. &c.—which they will sell off Lower than any in the Upper Province, and greatly below the Montreal prices, at their Store, Corner of Market-Lane and Church-Street, for Cash.

JAMES DOUGALL, & Co.

York, 6th November, 1828. x. 22

THE LOYALIST.

VOL. I. NO. 20.

YORK, UPPER CANADA, SATURDAY NOVEMBER 29, 1828.

Poetry.

COLD WINTER IS COMING.

Cold Winter is coming—take care of your toes—
Say Zephyr has folded his fan:
His lances are couch'd in the ice wind that blows,
So mail up as warm as you can.

Cold Winter is coming—he's ready to start
From his home on the mountains afar;
He is shrunken and pale—he looks froze to the heart,
And snow-wreaths embelish his car.

Cold Winter is coming—Hark! did ye not hear
The blast which his herald has blown?
The children of Nature all trembled in fear,
For to them is his power made known.

Cold Winter is coming—there breathes not a flower,
Though sometimes the day may pass fair!
The soft hue is removed from the lady's lora bower,
Lest it coldly be touched by her air.

Cold Winter is coming—all stript are the groves,
The passage-bird hastens away;
To the lovely blue South, like tourist, he roves,
And returns like the sunshine in May.

Cold Winter is coming—he'll breathe on the stream—
And the bane of his perific breath
Will seal up the waters; till, in the moon-beam,
They lie stirless, as slumber or death!

Cold Winter is coming, and soon shall we see
On the panes, by that genius Jack Frost,
Fine drawings of mountain, stream, tower, and tree—
Framed and glazed too, without any cost.

Cold Winter is coming—ye delicate fair,
Take care when your hyson you sip,
Drink it quick, and don't talk, lest he come unaware,
And turn it to ice on your lip.

Cold Winter is coming—I charge you again—
Maille warn of the tyrant beware—
He's so brave, that to strike the young hero he's fain—
He's so cold he'll not favor the fair

Cold Winter is coming—I've said so before—
It seems I've not much else to say;
Yes, Winter is coming, and God help the poor!
I wish it was going away.

Miscellaneous.

From the Naval and Military Magazine.

A VISIT TO CAPT. FRANKLIN, R. N.

BY MISS JANE PORTER.

A liveried servant ushered us into a drawing-room, carpeted and sofaed, with all the other elegant fittings-up which belong to refined and comfortable life. The walls were hung with drawings;—England portrayed in miniature; landscapes, rural or romantic; the interiors of cathedrals, and village churches; historical and domestic scenery. But the most attractive picture of the whole, was the living one which presented itself immediately on our entrance: a gentleman of peculiarly amiable and manly appearance, sat on a sofa, playing with an infant child: he was tossing the babe, and looking up to its sparkling countenance and crowing lips, while he held it above him, with all a father's fondness in his eye and smile. Near him, on a low chair, close to a small table—on which a quantity of unfolded silk lay heaped—sat a delicately formed lady, young, and aspect-like, evidently from enfeebled health, as well as delicacy of form: she also, at the moment we entered, was looking smilingly towards the gentleman and child: meanwhile, her fingers passed upon some breadths of the heaps of silk—blue, red and white—which she seemed sewing together. Her eyes told that it was her husband and babe she gazed upon; and they also told it was with some unrealized idea connected with the pleasure: for when she turned round at our entrance, the large tears in them was that of a brimming tear, and her voice faltered to the salutation of my friend, while she rose. The gentleman put the infant tenderly into her arms, (for she as instantly resumed her seat,) and he, shaking Sir Charles heartily by the hand, politely uttered a cordial welcome. I was introduced, and found myself in the presence of Captain Franklin. He bowed his head with a slight but courteous bend, an urbane expression suffusing itself over his features, while even his dropped eyelids partook the little obeisance. He then sat down with the Baronet on the sofa, and conversed with him. I had leisure to observe and note him. The fond invalid mother seemed engaged in rocking the spotlessly tired babe to rest upon her arm: and I was in no mood to distract her attention or my own, from the object most interesting to us both. I listened and gazed upon the polar traveller —he unwearied traverser of barren deserts and trackless shores—the resolute encounterer and conqueror of fatigue, famine, and yet direr trials! But here was no man of imposing stature, bold aspect and daring eye: such was the portrait I had mentally drawn of him. I saw a person of manly make, indeed, but of moderate height, and, perhaps, something more of fullness than of absolute muscular strength in his proportions. His age seemed the middle time of life. His countenance was mild, of intense thought, with an aspect of composed and kindly penetration, whenever he turned his deep-set, dark, and intelligent eye upon the person he addressed, or who addressed him: but, most often, he listened or spoke with his eye cast down. Yet the look was steady, honest, and full of judgment, when it did meet you. The eyes were small and bright, but it was a calm lustre, and the broad, open, rather projecting forehead above them, stamped the whole with a most decided character. His voice was low, mellow, distinct, and somewhat slow of utterance: and his conversation bore an undeviating evidence of the manly sense and modesty of the speaker. He rather talked of the inferior objects of his pending journey, than fell in with my friends reference to the disasters of the past. Sometimes, however, I thought his voice took a saddened tone; and once at the moment, I followed the direction of his eye: he was looking at his infant, asleep on its mother's lap; its little form half shrouded in the loose folds of the unfurled silk, on which she had sometime resumed her work. The young wife's face, downcast, and silently pursuing her employment, wore an expression of tender thought. Sir Charles, too, had observed the turn of his friend's eye, and the pause: he took the edge of the silk in his hand—the action seemed to ask the question: he was answered. "It was the flag of her husband's expedition she was making."

For one impressive moment we were all silent.

Captain Franklin has sailed, and that interesting woman is no more. How various now must that flag be in his sight! but that is not all that has occurred: Capt. Franklin, with the image of his infant daughter then in his heart —the most tender memorial of her lamented mother—has traversed those barren deserts, has explored the trackless coasts of those icy gulf seas; has planted the mariner's refuge; has laid down a chart for the security of future travellers, and is now on his return to England.*

The glory of successful enterprize will hail his arrival, and the sober, heart-felt reverence of the best of his countrymen, try to make us in the social attachments of friendship, for the domestic happiness he has lost. Such men may indeed be the lions of a day, and in the following day be forgotten, be what the thoughtless call the world's—But years that the world knows not of, are their inheritance, and when the men of its day, who presume to look with their flat the celebrity they cannot comprehend—when they go down into their graves, it may, indeed, be surely said, "They have brought their days to an end, and the worms feed on them!" But these laborers for the benefit of futurity live in the memories of posterity forever; the witness on earth, of an immortality beyond its confines.

ADMIRAL GREIG.

It may be interesting to our readers to be informed, that Admiral Greig, of whom honourable mention is made in the Russian Bulletin, received his first knowledge of Naval tactics in the British Navy.

The father of Admiral Greig was born at Inverkeithy, North Britain, entered the British Navy, and attained the rank of Lieutenant, was actively employed in 1760, at the siege of Havanna. The Empress Catherine wished some British Officers to enter her service, and among them were two Lieutenants from the same place, and connected by relationship, Greig and Roxburgh, the latter died an Admiral. In the war in which Catherine shortly afterwards engaged against the Turks, a fleet was sent to the Mediterranean. The nominal command was bestowed on her favorite, Count Alexis Orloff, but he not being experienced in Naval matters, had the judgment, in a great measure, to trust to Greig, and other British officers, under whose direction the planning and the destruction of the Turkish Fleet was accomplished in the Bay of Tchesma. (The present Admiral Greig is named Alexis Orloff, after the friend of his father.) Admiral Samuel Greig was promoted to situations of the greatest trust and importance by the Empress Catherine: was Governor of Cronstadt, and after his success against the Swedish fleet, he was taken dangerously ill, but could not be prevailed upon to enter port. He then was blockading the Swedish fleet. At last the officer next in command ordered the Admiral's Ship into Revel. The Empress, on learning his dangerous state, ordered her own body physician from Petersburgh, Dr. Rogerson, to attend Greig, but all availed nothing; he died in a great measure, a martyr to his duty, and his Sovereign caused a handsome marble monument to be erected to his memory, in Revel Church, where his remains are deposited. During the reign of Paul, Greig like many other worthy men, fell under his displeasure, and was ordered into the interior under surveillance, because he offered his resignation when the infatuation of Paul led him to a breach with England; and young Greig, from a high sense of honour and gratitude to the country of his forefathers, and to the attention received in the British service, preferred offering to resign his rank, (then Captain in the Russian Navy) than to serve against Britain. He is said to be the perfect model of his father—brave, considerate, entirely void of ostentation and disinterested. He had the happiness of being in high favor with the late Emperor Alexander.—Like his father the late Admiral Greig, his ambition lies in performing his duties, and the love of lucre he considers beneath his notice. In this he resembles our immortal Nelson, and in another trait the resemblance between their characters is marked as was also the case with his father, perfect coolness in action, and adored by persons serving under him. Greig, when a youth, received his education at the High School of Edinburgh.

FORMER WAR BETWEEN TURKEY AND RUSSIA.

Everything relating to the Russians and Turks, and the present seat of war between these two nations, is at this time valuable. The following account of their last sanguinary conflict previous to the late commencement of hostilities, from a work recently published, will, we think, be read with interest.

"In the year 1806 the Turks were in a state of great weakness, under their amiable but feeble monarch, Selim: their provinces in a state of insurrection abroad; their people turbulent and discontented at home; and pressed and harrassed by the conflicting and peremptory demands

* Since this sketch was written, this distinguished traveller has arrived in this country, (see vol. ii. p. 696,) and we have already briefly stated the results of his last enterprize. He will probably again return to the arctic regions for the purpose of completing the survey of that part of the coast he has left unfinished. Government has advanced £1,000 to defray the expense of engravings for the illustrations of the objects in Zoology and Botany, collected in the countries traversed by this distinguished individual.—ED.

of the great European powers. They had conceded to Russia, by the treaty of Yassi, 1792, an extraordinary right of interfering in the provinces of Wallachia and Moldavia, that their respective Hospodars should be continued in office seven years, and not removable but by the consent of Russia. To this agreement, however, they did not adhere. The then reigning Hospodars were deposed before their time; and when the Russians remonstrated, the Bosphorus was closed against their ships.—Taking umbrage at these causes of complaint, General Michelson was despatched with an army of sixty thousand men, who crossed the Niester, took Bender and Chotzim with little resistance, and entered Yassi, the capital of Moldavia. From hence he proceeded to Bucharest, the capital of Wallachia, where he found a Turkish force which had been sent against him by Mustapha Bairactar, the energetic Ayan of Rutschuk. These, however, he soon defeated: when his approach was known, the inhabitants rose upon the Turks, attacked them suddenly with all kinds of weapons; and, with the aid of a small advance guard of the Russians, drove them out of the town, leaving fifteen hundred dead in the streets; he then entered Bucharest, and took entire possession of the three Provinceses of Bessarabia, Moldavia, and Wallachia; not leaving a Turkish corps or fortress on the north side of the Danube, with the exception of Giurdzievo; and he prepared immediately to pass over to the other side,

"A tumultuary army was now hastily collected at Adrianople, of troops from the provinces of Asia, and moved forward with the Janissaries to the Danube; they mutinied, in their march, massacred some of the officers who wished to introduce European discipline among them, and when they at length arrived at the scene of action, were so disorganized, that they effected nothing against the Russians, who remained in almost undisturbed possession of the province, till the year 1810, when the armies on both sides were augmented, to two hundred thousand men, and a fierce and sanguinary contest ensued, which, perhaps, never was surpassed.

"The Russians passed the Danube in three places.—Their direct progress would have been from Giurdzia to Rutschuk; but at this latter place the passage was impracticable, either at the town or near it, as the banks were steep and high, and defended with Turkish batteries. They therefore crossed over above it at Ostrova, near Widdin, and below it at Hirsovay and Toutourkay, and lai l siege to Rutschuk. The town was vigorously defended; and the Russians were repulsed in a desperate attack, in which they lost six thousand men. Kaminsky made also a similar assault on the entrenched camp at Shumla; but here, too, he was driven back with great carnage. The Turks, though unacquainted with regular discipline in the field, make a fierce and sanguinary resistance when attacked behind their ramparts. On these occasions they issued their memorable bulletin—that they had taken such a number of infidels' heads, that they would serve as a bridge by which the faithful might pass over to the other world.' It is to the vigorous defence of these two places, and the losses sustained before them, that the final failure of the campaign is generally attributed.

"In the month of September, Kaminsky left Langeron before Rutschuk, and with his disposable force suddenly attacked the Turks at Bayne. They defended themselves with desperate valor; but were at length defeated, with the loss of twelve thousand men in killed and wounded; and Rutschuk was compelled to surrender, with all the Turkish flotilla lying before it, and Giurdzio on the other side. In order to create a diversion, the Turks now sent a fleet into the Black Sea, and threatened and attacked on the Crimea; notwithstanding this, the Russians concentrated their forces in Bulgaria, and the Grand Vizier was obliged to retreat before them, recross the Balcan, and take up a position at Adrianople; leaving, however, the strong and impregnable fortresses of Varna on the sea coast, and Shumla on the ascent of the mountains, well secured at the other side.

"The feeble Selim, and his successor Mustapha, had both been strangled, and Mahmoud had been called to the throne, who, even then, displayed the vigor which since has distinguished him. He set up the standard of the prophet at Daud Pasha, a large plain two miles from Constantinople, and issued a Hatti-sheriff, that all Musulmen should rally round it. In this way he assembled, in a short time, a large army; appointed a new Grand Vizier, whom he sent on with the troops; and returned to the city. The new Vizier, Ahmed Aga, was a man of the same energy as the Sultan, and had distinguished himself by his defence of Ibrail. He immediately descended from the mountains, forced the detached corps of Russians in Bulgaria to recross the Danube, and made a fierce attack upon Rutschuk, defended by the Russian general Kutosov. The Russians, hard pressed, transported the inhabitants to the other side of the river, set fire to the town in four quarters, and then retreated themselves. The Turks rushed into the burning town, to stop to the conflagration, and took up their position there. The Grand Vizier, having thus driven the Russians to the opposite shore, was now determined to follow them; and he made the attempt in three places, Widdin, Rutschuk, and Silistria. He succeeded at Widdin, and established thirty thousand men in Wallachia. He also succeeded at Rutschuk, took possession of a large island in the river called Sobodse, and, in perfect confidence, passed the greater part of his army to the other side, and established them in an entrenched camp. Kutosov was not idle; he immediately availed himself of the Vizier's crossing over, and detached eight thousand men, under General Markoff, to attack the camp he had left behind.

"A Turkish camp is formed without any regularity.—The Grand Vizier's tent is always conspicuous in the centre, and becomes the nucleus round which all the rest are pitched, as every man chooses to place them. It is, however, their strong hold, to which they always retire, as a wild animal to its lair; and they defend it with the same fierceness and obstinacy. On this occasion, they were completely surprised; the whole of the camp, including the general's tent, fell into the hands of the Russians, and the fugitive Turks crowded into Rutschuk. Here they were commanded by the artillery of their own abandoned camp, and General Langeron, from the other side, directed one hundred pieces of cannon to bear upon them. The Vizier, having heard of this misfortune, threw himself into a little boat, and, availing himself of a storm of wind and rain, he pushed across, and, landed in safety; but the Russians now brought up their flotilla, and intercepted all communication between the divided portions of the Turkish army. They next attacked and carried the island, and turned the guns on the entrenched camp of the Turks, who were thus cut off from all communication or supply. In this state they endured the severest privations; and after feeding on the flesh of their horses, and giving up all hope of relief, they were compelled to surrender, having lost 10,000 men in the different assaults made on them. This was the last effort of the combatants. The Turks, who had entered Wallachia, at Widdin retired to the left side, and the Grand Vizier, who had received great reinforcements, concentrated them at Rutschuk; but while the combatants were preparing to renew the sanguinary conflicts, the exhausted state of the one, and the critical state of the other, invaded by the French, induced them to come to an accommodation; and the peace of Bucharest, concluded in 1812, gave another accession of territory to the Russians, extending their frontier from the Niester to the Pruth, and assigning to them all the country that lay between the two rivers, Bessarabia, and a considerable part of Moldavia.

"The Russians withdrew from the provinces of Wallachia and Moldavia, which they had occupied for seven years, and have never since entered them: they are now, however, in appearance, about to renew their desperate conflicts, and dye the Danube again with blood; and the general opinion is, that they will meet with no effectual opposition to their further progress; but certainly the events of the last campaign should induce us to adopt a different opinion. They availed themselves of a moment of their enemie's weakness, and advanced, with little opposition, to that river, here they stopped; and after a very sanguinary and persevering conflict of six years, we find them, at the end of that period, still on its shores.—Whenever they attempted to proceed beyond it, they were driven back with carnage, and a single town scarcely fortified, as contemptible in the eyes, as it would be weak in the hands, of European troops, effectually arrested their career."

NEW GOODS,

Wholesale & Retail.

HENRY HAMILTON

TAKES this opportunity of acquainting his friends and the public in general, that he is now receiving, in that Store formerly occupied by WM. GAMBLE, Esq. (opposite to MR. JOHN S. BALDWIN'S,) a large supply of well selected and choice GOODS, consisting of Cloths, Cassimeres; Rose and Point Blankets; Red and White Flannels; Carpeting and Floor Cloths; Druggit and Swanskin; Irish and Scotch Linens and Sheetings of every description; 200 Pieces Sail Canvas, Nos. 4, 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6; Twilled and plain Baggings, Osnaburg, &c.; 1,000 pieces Mulled Jaconet, Cambric, and Book Muslin; All kinds of Cotton Goods, viz.—Calicoes and Furniture prints; Salempores and long Cloths; Superior English Cotton Yarn, Nos. 6, 8, 9, 10, 12, and 14; Turkey Red and Blue and White Stripes; Derry and Check; Steam Loom and Factory Cottons. Also—Hats, Caps, Staples; Persians Sewing Silk and Cotton Balls; Gentlemen's fancy Silk, Pocket and Neck Handkerchiefs; Woollen Hosiery; Gloves and Buckskin Mitts.—together with every other article suitable for the trade.

—ALSO—

An assortment of Writing and Packing Paper; a few Crates of Assorted Crockery; Pot Ash, Sugar, and Tea Kettles; Nails; Stoves and Pans; Andirons; Spiders; Bellied Pots; English and Swedish flat and square Bar Iron, &c. &c.—Linseed Oil in two Gallon Tin Cans; Single and double refined Loaf Sugar; Muscovado Sugar; 4 Cayenne Pepper; 50 Barrels of Coffee; Teas of all kinds; 20 pipes Cognac Brandy; 6 Pipes real Hollands; 10 Puncheons best Jamaica Rum; 10 Pipes best Old Port.—All which can be recommended in the strongest terms, as being as good as any ever imported into this country from Cognac, Holland, Jamaica and Oporto, they having come direct to H. from the King's Docks, and not having been subject to that adulterating too frequently practised by dealers in these articles in the Lower Province, and will be sold unusually low for money or its equivalent.

☞ Cash will be paid during the Winter, for Wheat, Flour, Ashes, and heavy Corn-fed Pork.

☞ Just received, in addition to the above—one hundred pieces—STOUT YORKSHIRE CLOTHS, double fold, from 4s. to 12s. Cy. per yard.

York, 14th November, 1828. x. 24

FRESH ARRIVALS,

AT THE SIGN OF THE GOLDEN TEA CHEST.

THOS. CARFRAE, JUN.

RESPECTFULLY informs his Friends and the Public, that he has just received, and now offers for Sale, at his Store, (next door to the Methodist Chapel,) a well selected assortment of new and fashionable,

DRY GOODS,

Of this Falls' importation; also, a choice assortment of Groceries, together with a great variety of other Articles too numerous to detail in an Advertisement.

N.B.—T. C. has received a great variety of English, French, and German Toys; also, a small assortment of Jewellery, all of which will be sold at a much reduced price for cash.

x 19

NOTICE.—All persons having demands against SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, are requested to present them to MR. BILLINGS, for payment.

York, 20th November, 1828, x. 24

VALUABLE FARM FOR SALE.—CONSISTING OF 200 ACRES, IN THE TOWNSHIP OF DARLINGTON, NEWCASTLE DISTRICT, UPPER CANADA,—comprising Lots 30, 31, 32, and 33, in the second Concession, 200 Acres of which are Freehold, and 400 Reserves, the Leases of which have eleven years unexpired—200 ACRES CLEARED & FENCED.—The Buildings consist of a LARGE DWELLING HOUSE, ROOT HOUSE, AND STABLING, CAPITAL BARNS, INCLOSED GARDEN, ORCHARD, AN EXCELLENT SAW-MILL, MILL-HOUSE, & SEVERAL SMALL TENEMENTS, AND IS PLENTIFULLY WATERED.

The High Road from Kingston to York passes through the premises, being 27 miles from Port-Hope, and 32 from York.—It is well situated for a Merchant's Store, or Tavern.—The whole will be sold together, or in Lots of 1 or 200 Acres, and the payment made easy.

For further particulars apply to R. Fairbourn, Esq'r., Darlington; J. G. Bethune, Esquire, Cobourg; J. Warren, Esquire, Whitby; John Macaulay, Esquire, Kingston; the Editor of this Paper, and of the Proprietor, James Black, Esquire, St. Catharines, Niagara District.

November 20, 1828. x. 24

WILLIAM MOORE—APOTHECARY & DRUGGIST, Respectfully informs his friends and the public, that he has received direct from England, by the Dee Drop, and others, a general assortment of GENUINE DRUGS, AND PATENT MEDICINES, OILS, PAINTS, DYE STUFFS, SPICES, &c. &c., which he will sell at his usual low prices. He also takes this opportunity of returning his sincere thanks for the liberal patronage he has received, and hopes, by punctuality in business, to merit a continuance of that support which he has been favoured with for the last four years.

York, November, 17, 1828. y. 24

CABINET WARE-ROOM.—AT THE CORNER OF BAY AND NEWGATE STREETS, YORK.—E. B. GILBERT, begs leave to inform the public that he keeps constantly on hand, an assortment of superior articles, consisting of SIDE BOARDS, SECRETARIES, BUREAUS, TABLES AND STANDS, BEDSTEADS, &c., which he offers for sale at reasonable prices for cash.

Orders executed with neatness and despatch.

☞ A few Gallons best Copal Varnish for Sale.

York, 20th November, 1828. x. 24

JAMES SMITH.—FORMERLY SADDLER TO HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS PRINCE ERNEST, DUKE OF CUMBERLAND, Respectfully begs leave to inform the inhabitants of York and its vicinity, that he has taken a SHOP NEXT DOOR TO MR. PATERSON'S HARD-WARE STORE, MARKET SQUARE, where he intends carrying on the SADDLERY BUSINESS in all its branches, under the firm of SMITH & SONS.

Having served a regular Apprenticeship in High Holborn, and been a Principal in several first rate Shops in London—such as Wilson's, Oxford Street—Whippy's South Audley Street, and having carried on business for thirteen years in the City of Worcester, in a Shop, excelled by few in the Kingdom, London excepted—he would further inform the public in general that he will have a regular supply of Saddlery, direct from one of the first Houses in England, which will enable him to manufacture as good an article in Canada, as in London, on reasonable terms.

☞ A Shop will likewise be opened on the Main Road leading from Hamilton to Dundas, for the accommodation of Farmers, where Wheat and Oats will be taken in payment.

York, 21st November, 1828. n. 24

NOTICE.—The Subscriber having been duly appointed Agent to the Estate of the late Henry Dean, of the town of York, Merchant, deceased, hereby gives notice to all persons having claims against the said Estate to render their accounts duly authenticated to him, at his office in the town of Hamilton, in the Gore District.—And all those indebted to the said Estate are hereby notified, that unless their respective accounts are paid, or otherwise arranged on or before the 1st day of March, 1829, legal steps will be taken for their recovery.

ALLAN N. M'NABB.

14th November, 1828.

N.B.—All letters addressed to him relating to the Estate, to be Post-paid. xt. 23

HALF-PAY AFFIDAVITS, of the latest form, for Sale at the Gazette Office.

YORK HAT WARE-HOUSE.—JOSEPH ROGERS, respectfully informs the public, that he continues to carry on THE HATTING BUSINESS, at his old stand, opposite the English Church, where he has on hand, the latest and most fashionable paterns for GENTLEMEN'S SUPERIOR HATS.—BEAVER AND IMITATION ditto.—WARRANTED WATER-PROOF ditto.—Together with GENTLEMEN'S FUR CAPS, of the latest fashion,—and a choice assortment of BEAR, AND BUFFALO ROBES FOR SLEIGHS.

☞ The highest price, paid in CASH for HATTING AND SHIPPING FURS.

York, 11th NOVEMBER, 1828. ac. 23

NOTICE.—The Executors of the late Richard Hatt, Esq. deceased, having placed in the hands of the subscriber for collection, all the outstanding Book Accounts, Notes, Bonds, Mortgages and Securities, of or belonging to the said estate.—Notice is hereby given to all those whom it may concern, that unless they call at the office of the subscriber in Hamilton, and settle the amount of their respective accounts, on or before the first day of September next.—The subscriber is instructed to commence prosecution immediately after that period.

ALLAN N. M'NABB.

Hamilton, August 15, 1828. x. 23

MORE NEW GOODS.—R. A. PARKER, at the York Cash Store, has just received a variety of FANCY SILKS, Ribbons, Handkerchiefs, Kid Gloves, Hosiery, Jaconett, Mull and Book Muslins, Bobbinets, Printed Calicoes, Bleached and Brown Cottons, 6-4 and 3-4 Bed Tick, Ratteene, Flannels, BROAD CLOTHS, Pelisse do, Cassimere, Sattinett, Blankets, Moroceo and Stuff Shoes, LOOKING GLASSES, and a general assortment of GROCERIES, CROCKERY, &c. &c. —for sale, at low prices.

R. A. PARKER.

York, 7th November, 1828. c. 22

FOR SALE.—The Leasehold premises on the Market Square, at present occupied as Shops and Dwelling Houses, by Mr. John Roddy and Mr. Robert Rutherford—situate on King-Street, nearly opposite the English Church, being among the most eligible situations for business in the town of York.—Attached to the premises are large and commodious Store-houses, with other out offices, and Yards.

For particulars apply to Mr. Daniel Brooke, or to the Subscriber,

ALLAN N. M'NABB.

York, 14th November, 1828. x. 23

HOUSE AND STORE TO LET, by the Subscriber (and immediate possession given)—the Store House now occupied by MR. James M'Guire, on the North side of King-Street, in view of the Market-House. ALSO, a nice Cottage with fifty Acres of land, (forty of which are improved) in the vicinity of the town, this side of the Attorney General's, and Darcy Boulton's, Esquire.—The lands are of excellent quality, well watered and divided, and a large Barn on the premises.

WILLIAM BERGIN.

York, November 12, 1828. x. 23

FIVE DOLLARS REWARD—STRAY HORSE. Strayed from the Common about the town of York, in the month of July last—A DARK GREY HORSE—fifteen or sixteen hands high—switch tail,—and with a strong mark of a Cork on the off fore foot.—Any person returning him to the subscriber, shall receive the above reward for their trouble.

JAMES TURNER.

York, 15th November, 1828. n. 23

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given, that from and after this date, Messrs. John Torrance & Co., are fully authorised to settle all claims due to the Estate of the late Mr. Daniel Fisher, and that Mr. George Monro, of York, and Mr. James Lockhart, of Niagara, are also authorised to settle all claims due to the said Estate in Upper Canada.

Signed, JOHN FISHER,
by his Att'y. JOHN MACKENZIE,
JOHN TORRANCE,
JOHN MACKENZIE,
WILLIAM LUNN, } EXECUTORS.

Montreal, 1st November, 1828. c. 23

WINES.

A CARD.—Mr. HAWKINS, Wine Merchant, of Quebec, offers for Sale a few Cases of excellent Port Wine, just received from Quebec.

Mr. Hawkins will be happy to receive orders from such gentlemen as are disposed to secure a supply of Genuine Wines, to be delivered early in the Spring at York and at Niagara.

York, 21st November, 1828. n. 24

NOTICE.—The Subscriber having been duly appointed Agent to the Estate of the late Henry Dean, of the town of York, Merchant, deceased, hereby gives notice to all persons having claims against the said Estate to render their accounts duly authenticated to him, at his office in the town of Hamilton, in the Gore District.—And all those indebted to the said Estate are hereby notified, that unless their respective accounts are paid, or otherwise arranged on or before the 1st day of March, 1829, legal steps will be taken for their recovery.

ALLAN N. M'NABB.

14th November, 1828.

N.B.—All letters addressed to him relating to the Estate, to be Post-paid. xt. 23

FOR SALE, OR TO LET.—A Two Story HOUSE, in the Town of York, on the North side of Dutchess Street, opposite Mr. Allan's new Brick Building, and in rear of Chief Justice Campbell's. There is a good Cellar Kitchen to the House, and attached to the Premises, which contain one-fifth of an Acre, is a Garden—a good Well of Water.—Stable—Out-Houses, &c.—Apply to

York, 16th Oct. 1828. x 19

Mr. S. P. JARVIS.

ELIGIBLE SITUATION.—To be sold, Lots numbers 29 & 30 in the first concession of the Township of Scarborough with their broken fronts on Lake Ontario, situate about Seven miles from the Town of York.—On Lot No. 29, are erected a Log and a Frame House together with outhouses &c. These premises are now in the possession of Mr. Adna Bates, and are an eligible Situation for a Tavern.

Application to be made to C. C. SMALL Esq.

York, 20th August, 1828. x 11

THE CANADA COMPANY.

NOTICE is hereby given, that no person is authorised to order any goods or articles on account of the Canada Company, but only the Superintendant, Accountant, and Warden, and even by them the Orders must be in writing, and signed.

JOHN GALT,

SUPERINTENDANT.

CANADA COMPANY'S OFFICE, Guelph, 16th Oct. 1828. x 20

FOR SALE.—By the Subscriber, 100 Barrels PLAISTER OF PARIS, of the very best quality, low for Cash

WILLIAM BERGIN.

York, September 19, 1828. x. 15

York Auction, Mart, & Commission Ware-House.

Opposite the Market Square.

M. & R. MEIGHAN,

HAVE for Sale, an assortment of Household Furniture, consisting of Mahogany, Curled Maple and Cherry Tree, Side Boards, Secretaries, Bureaus, Bedsteads, Breakfast Dining and Card Tables, Work Tables, Bason Stands, Feather Beds and Bedding; A London made grand Piano; an excellent Sulkey Carriage; a Mangle for pressing clothes; A Jack for Roasting Meat; A very elegant fourteen day Time Piece with Italian Marble Frame and Glass Shade; Double and Single Barrel Percussion Lock Fowling Pieces and Pistols; Bridles, Saddles, Double and Single Harness; Gilt and Plain Frame Looking Glasses; Some Handsome Vases and chimney Ornaments; an extensive assortment of Elegant Dry and Fancy Goods of every description, Hardware, Jewellery, Crockery and Glassware; Groceries, Tea, Wine and Spirits; together with an Elegant Collection of Books, Stationery, Perfumery, Patent Medicines &c. Regular Auction Sales every week.

York, 1828. x 6.

ALLIANCE, BRITISH AND FOREIGN Life and Fire Assurance Company, OF LONDON,

(CAPITAL—Five Millions Sterling.)

THE Subscriber having been appointed AGENT to the above Company, at York, he is ready to Insure against loss or damage by Fire at moderate rates of Premium. The high standing of this Institution in England, and the Company allowing their Agents in Montreal to settle losses in this Country, with the Assured participating in the Profits of the Company, renders it worthy of Public Confidence.

R. W. PRENTICE.

York, November 18th, 1828. 25.

FOR SALE,—Lot No. 12, and East half of 14 in the 3d Concession of the Township of York, West of Yonge-Street,—300 Acres,—the property of Major W. G. White.—Refer to ROBERT STANTON, Esquire, U. C. Gazette Office.

York, 4th July, 1828. x. 5

NOTICE.—All persons having claims upon the Estate of the late STEPHEN HEWARD, Esquire, of York, deceased, are requested to present the same properly authenticated to the Hon. P. Robinson, one of the Executors, without delay; and all persons indebted to the said Estate are requested to make payment to the said Executor.

York, September 15, 1828. x. 15

NOTICE.—Having seen in the Canadian Freeman of yesterday an Advertisement of "A Farm to Let,"—signed, John Lynch, Blacksmith to the Canada Company, Guelph."—I hereby give notice, that I know of no such person in the employment of the Canada Company.

JOHN GALT,

Superintendant.

CANADA COMPANY'S OFFICE, York, 24th October 1828. x 20

BANK NOTICE.—DISCOUNT DAY, Wednesday of every Week.—Notes offered for Discount, must be put under cover to the Cashier, and left at the Bank the day before.

THOMAS G. RIDOUT,

Cashier.

WHISKEY.—For Sale by the Barrel, a quantity of SUPERIOR OLD WHISKEY—Apply to R. W. PRENTICE.

York, 25th Sept. 1828. x 16

BRITISH WAREHOUSE.—J. C. GODWIN & Co., Wholesale and Retail Merchants, beg to inform their Friends and the Public, they have received direct from England, the following Goods, which they offer low for cash:—

West of England Cloths, the best assorted,
Yorkshire Cloths of superior qualities, assorted,
Kerseymeres of fine Textures, assorted,
Variety of Vest Patterns,
A well selected Assortment of Gentlemens' Dress, and Surtout Coats, Trowsers, &c., made in London,
Imitation Brussels Carpeting, Venetian Carpeting, and Brass Rods,
Upwards of 2,000 yards unbleached Factory Cotton,
Ships' Canvas bleached, Nos. 3, 4, 5, & 6,
Fashionable Tea and Coffee Urns,
Sheet Copper for Distills, &c.,
Brass Crimping Machines, with Heaters,
Brass and Steel Fire Irons, of the newest quality,
An assortment of Cabinet Furniture,
Cast Steel in Bars,
Variety of Woollen and Linen Girth Webbs,
Paints, assorted, first quality,
Boiled and Raw Linseed Oil,
First quality Cognac Brandy, favorite mark Marvet,
Fine Holland Gin,
Good old Whisky, by the Barrel or per Gallon,
Port, Sherry, and Teneriffe Wines, of choice quality.—With a variety of other Goods. J. C. GODWIN & Co.

York, Aug 25th 1828 19

PUBLIC NOTICE.—I require due notice to be given to me or to my Agent, Mr. Alexander Murray, at Mr. Proudfoot's Store, in York, of all transfers of Property in the Steam-Packet Canada, in default whereof I shall continue the original Stockholder, as the legal Owner in the Vessel; and be entitled to the dividends and doing other transactions connected with my situation, held myself accountable to them alone. HUGH RICHARDSON,

Master and Managing Owner of the Steam Packet Canada.

York, 27th December, 1827. 31tf.

N B.—With Mr. A. Murray, reference may be had to all Books and accounts connected with the Canada Steam Packet.

THOMAS MOORE,—TAILOR, King Street, York, Meighan's Buildings, (opposite the Market Place.) Begs leave to inform his friends and the public, that he has just opened, and offers for Sale, a choice assortment of Goods, Selected by himself at the Manufactories in England, which he can recommend as being of choice quality, consisting of, Superfine, Blue; Black; Scarlett; Green; Olive; Grey and Drab, West of England Broad Cloths.—Black, Blue and Grey, Double and single Milled Kersymeres. Forest Cloths. Lasting and Corduroys.—Beverteens; Fustians; Cantons. Jane; Drab, and Striped Brown Drills. Fine Welsh Flannel; White and Blue Flannel. White and Grey Cottons. London printed Calicoes and Chintzes. Fancy Vestings. Printed Muslins. Sewing Silk; Twist; Thread and Rich Gilt Buttons.

MILITARY EQUIPMENTS,

consisting of, Regulation Swords; Patent Leather Regulation Waist Belts, with rich Gilt clasps. Rich Gold Bullion Epaulets, crimson Silk Regulation Sashes.—Rich Gold Velvet Lace, and Gilt British Militia Buttons. Red, White and Green, Regulation Feathers, with rich Gilt Tubes for do.

The whole of which will be disposed of on reasonable terms, or made up to order, agreeable to the latest fashions, at the shortest notice.

York, 14th July, 1828. x. 6

CHAIN CABLES, &c.—ACRAMAN'S Patent Chain Cables, and Anchors, (warranted proved by Machine) a constant supply kept on hand (in stock) of all sizes, by JOHN WATKINS, Kingston, and in Montreal and Quebec by

WILLIAM BUDDEN.

July, 30, 1827. 11-tf.

A LOAN WANTED.—The Subscribers, desirous of making some further improvements, wish to obtain a Loan of £2000, for three years, for which will be given in security, a Paper and Grist Mill, Saw Mill, Distillery, and 200 Acres of Land, free of all incumbrance, situated within three miles of York. EASTWOOD & SKINNER.

Oct. 23rd, 1828. f 20

THE SUBSCRIBER begs leave to inform his friends and the public that he has purchased the Store-House, Wharf, &c. lately the property of William Cooper, Esq'r., in this Town, where he will receive, store, and sell, on Commission, on the most reasonable terms, all descriptions of produce or merchandize, with which he may be favored.

The buildings are extensive and convenient, being at the head of the Wharf, where all vessels which come into the Bay, principally discharge and take in their cargoes. He flatters himself that the care and attention of the person superintending the Wharf and Store, will give general satisfaction.

There will be for sale a constant supply of Pork, Flour, Wheat, Oats, Corn, Peas, Salt, and Whiskey, also Stoves, Potash Kettles, Coolers, Sugar Kettles, a variety of castings and Grindstones.

The Subscriber has also for sale upwards of 2500 Acres unimproved Lands of superior quality, in the most flourishing Townships, and convenient to York, which he will sell very low and on easy terms to actual settlers.

WM. BERGIN.

York, February 27th, 1828. 41tf.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL GROCERY STORE.—The Subscriber respectfully informs the Inhabitants of York and its vicinity, that he has opened a Store in the above line, on the Corner of Church and Palace Streets, where he is now ready to serve them with the choicest articles and at very low prices. The following are a few of the articles in his line, viz:—

O. L. P. Madeira,	London Porter,
F. Madeira,	Teas of all descriptions,
L. M. Do.	D. R. Loaf Sugar,
Prime Port,	S. R. Loaf Sugar,
Second do.	Muscovado do.
Sherry,	East India do.
Cagniac Brandy,	Mace, Cloves,
Bordeaux do.	Cinnamon, Nutmegs,
H. Gin,	Alspice, Black Pepper,
Jamaica Spirits,	White Pepper,
Peppermint,	Mustard in Jars, ½, ¼ & lbs.
Shrub,	Isinglass, Arrow Root,
White Wine Vinegar,	Macaroni, Vermicilli,
Limejuice,	Curry Powder,
Molasses,	Raisins, Figs,
Olive Oil for Lamps,	Starch, Blue,
Linseed do.	Tobacco, Pipes, Blacking.
London Brown Stout,
And a variety of articles in the Grocery line.

JAMES F. SMITH.

York, 17th September, 1828. sn. 15

FRESH SEEDS.—Shaker's Garden and Flower Seeds, warranted of the growth of 1827, for sale by EDW'D. LESSLIE & SONS.

☞ E. L. & Sons expect a quantity of clover seed in a few days.

York, 14th March 1828. 43-tf.

TO LET, and possession given immediately, the House and lots lately occupied by Dr. Horne—Inquire of Mr. ALLAN.

York, 10th Oct. 1828. y 18

FALL AND WINTER GOODS.—The Subscriber begs leave to announce that by late arrivals, he has received his usual supply of Fall and Winter Goods, which will be sold at reduced prices for Cash or Produce. Grateful for the generous support he has received since his commencement in business, he again solicits the interest of the Ladies and Gentlemen of York and its vicinity, and hopes his Goods will give them general satisfaction.

WILLIAM BERGIN.

York, 7th November, 1828. x. 22

FOR SALE.—Lot No. 20, and part of 20, in the 7th Concession of the Township of Pickering, containing 350 Acres, and having an eligible situation for a Mill. For terms apply to Mr. Andrew Mercer, York.

York, 28th October, 1827. 22-tf

ANY PERSON, or Persons, inclined to devote a few hours of their time, daily, to the PRIVATE TUITION of a Youth, in the Classics, Arithmetic, Mathematics, &c., are requested to apply to the Printer for further information.

York, November 19, 1828. n. 24

WHOLESALE WAREHOUSE.—The Subscribers are just receiving by the Rebecca, Sophia, Favorite, Montreal, Ariadne, Horatio, Lady Digby, John Francis, and Sprightly, an extensive and suitable assortment of Fall Goods, Staple and Fancy, consisting of nearly every article in the Dry Good line.—Amongst the principal are the following:—

Broad and Narrow Cloths,
Cassimeres, & Pelisse do.
Paddings, Freize, and Coatings,
Flushings, Plushings, and Hookings,
Red, White, and Salisbury Flannels,
Blankets, Whitney, Rose and Point.
Serge, Baize, and Drugget,
Chintzes and Calicoes,
Hosiery of every description,
Bombazettes, Shallooms, Mureens, & Cambletts,
Tartans, Scotch Bonnets, and Fur Caps,
Scotch Sheetings, 34, 35, 36, 38 & 39 inch,
Osnaburgs, Bagging, and Hessins,
Grey Cottons, Checks, and Crossovers,
Ginghams, Fullicate, Maddroes & Verona Handkerchiefs,
Bandanna, Brittanias & Barcelona do.
Fine, Superfine, and Brussels Carpeting,
Linen & Cotton Ticks & Sclampores,
Canvas, Dowlas, Huckaback and Diaper,
Book, Jaconet and Mull Muslins,
Bombazines, Gros de Naples, Sattins, Persians, &c.
Ribbons, Crapes, Shawls, Spoolls, Tapes, & Bobbins,
Linen & Cotton Thread, Sewing Silks, Braces, Ferrets, &c. &c.

—ALSO—

A few Crates assorted Earthenware, Combs, Shoe-thread, Shot, Letter-Paper, Buttons, Needles, Pins, Handkerchiefs, Lines, Braids, &c. &c.—which they will sell off Lower than any in the Upper Province, and greatly below the Montreal prices, at their Store, Corner of Market-Lane and Church-Street, for Cash.

JAMES DOUGALL, & Co.

York, 8th November, 1828. x. 22

PARCHMENT DEEDS,
For Sale at the Gazette Office, York,

The Washington City Chronicle,
A WEEKLY NEWSPAPER,
Published in the City of Washington,
BY ROTHWELL & USTICK.

THIS Paper has been established at the Seat of the General Government, under auspices which the Publishers think favorable to the encouragement of a Periodical devoted, as it is, to the diffusion of Literary, Scientific, and useful miscellaneous information. Its object has been, as it will continue to be, to promote the cause of Letters, by the best and Arts, together with the latest Foreign and Domestic Intelligence. Mere party disputations are and shall be sedulously avoided, and nothing will be admitted but what may tend to enlarge and interest the mind, and improve and benefit the heart.

☞ A SUMMARY of the Proceedings of CONGRESS will, during the Sessions, be regularly given.

☞ The CHRONICLE is published every Saturday; and is printed in the best manner, on a large sheet, (imperial size,) price $4 per annum, or $3,50 if paid in advance.

☞ Editors who exchange with the Chronicle are requested to give the above a few insertions, and the favor will be reciprocated. 25

SPLENDID VIEWS OF AMERICAN SCENERY.

ON Friday the 10th of October, will be published, by T. K. Greenbank, No. 64, Spruce Street, Philadelphia, a Volume of Splendid Views of American Scenery:

1. A view of Beck's Shot Tower, on the Schuylkill, near Philadelphia, and adjacent scenery.
2. View of the Light House in Long Island Sound, with the adjacent scenery.
3. View of York, on Lake Ontario, with the fortifications.
4. Characteristic Scenery on the Hudson River.
5. View of New London, Connecticut, with the adjacent scenery.
6. Seats of Lemon Hill, near Philadelphia, the seat of Henry Pratt, Esq.
7. The Tomb of Washington, at Mount Vernon.
8. View at the Great Bend of the Susquehanna.
9. View of the Upper Falls of Solomon's Creek, Luzerne county, Pa.
10. View of the Lower Falls of Solomon's Creek.
11. View of the Cattskill Mountains, from the Hudson.
12. View of Fort Niagara, on Lake Ontario, from the Light House on the British side.

These Views are executed in the best style of Philadelphia Engraving, from drawings made upon the spot.—Each Plate will be accompanied by a full and accurate description thereof, so as to make it perfectly intelligible to every person.

The work will be printed and issued to subscribers in the first style, on superior paper, and with a handsomely printed cover, and delivered to subscribers at the very low price of One Dollar per copy. Flexible covers will be used for country subscribers, so that they can safely be sent by mail.

☞ Any gentleman, postmasters and others, who will interest themselves to procure ten subscribers, and remit $10 to the Editor shall receive twelve copies. From the very flattering patronage already received, (1200 subscribers having put down their names) this volume will probably be succeeded by another, as soon as other plates can be engraved. All orders from the country will be promptly attended to.

Address, T. K. GREENBANK, No. 64, Spruce St. Philadelphia.

☞ Any Editor who will insert the above a few times, and forward a copy of his paper containing the Advertisement, directed "Saturday Bulletin, Philadelphia," shall receive a copy of the Views, immediately on their publication. 25

LOST, on Saturday night, 5th of October, 1828, a BAY HORSE, with a small Star in his Forehead, Tail, Mane and Square cut, the property of Da. Mitchell of York.

Whoever brought he went up Yonge Street, or Dundas St. is requested to send him home to Da. Phillips, shall be amply rewarded.

York, 29th October, 1828. 25

ALL accounts against the Canada Steam Packet, are requested to be closed on the 30th November, and sent in for payment as soon after as convenient.—All debts due the Canada, are requested to be paid before the 5th of December.

HUGH RICHARDSON,
Managing Owner of the Canada Steam Packet.

York, Nov. 24, 1828.

RAFFLE.—The celebrated RACE HORSE, Harriet, winner of the Maitland and York Stakes, at the late York Meeting; will be raffled for, on the 10th day of December next, at MERRAN'S ROOMS, where the Subscription paper lies. Thirty throws at Ten Dollars each—the highest of three throws to take the Horse.

York, 20th November, 1828. s 25

THE Subscriber thankful for past favors, begs leave to inform the Public, that he has on hand a number of first rate SLEIGHS, for Sale.

MATTHEW WALTON.

York, 27th November, 1828. x 25

Summary.

The subscribers to Lloyd's have voted £100 to George Harvey, of Dead Island Harbour, Newfoundland, the fisherman who saved, and afterwards subsisted, 152 passengers and the crew of the Despatch, wrecked in July near Cape Key. They also voted a silver snuff-box to the Rev. E. Redmond, a Catholic Clergyman, who induced the people to refrain from plundering the Venus-steampacket, when she was wrecked off the Wexford coast; also £5 to the poor of the neighbourhood.

Gas-lighting.—From a calculation recently made, it appears that the whole quantity of gas generated in London annually is nearly 400,000,000 of cubic feet. This prodigious supply is principally afforded by four great companies, the Chartered, the City of London, the Imperial, and the Phœnix, which consume 53,000 chaldrons of coals in the year. The number of lamps lighted with gas in London is upwards of 61,000 private and 70,458 street burners. This estimate does not include the gas supplied by several minor companies, nor the quantity consumed in public establishments that make use of this means of illumination.

Quakers' Affirmation.—The first conviction under Lord Lansdown's Act admitting the affirmation of Quakers in criminal as well as civil cases, took place at the Old Bailey, when a young man was found guilty of embezzling the property of his employers, members of the Society of Friends. We find, by this trial, that the Judges have ruled that the act is retrospective.

Manufacture of Pins.—It is supposed that fifteen millions of pins are daily manufactered in England.

Ancient Coin.—A rose noble, one of the singularly beautiful gold coins of the reign of Edward the Th d, was lately turned up by the plough in a field at Crossley, in Mirfield.

Edinburgh, Sept. 27.—On Monday his Grace the Duke of Gordon visited the Castle, for the first time since his appointment as Governor. The reserve companies of the 42d regiment received him on the esplanade with military honours. His Grace seemed highly gratified at being welcomed to his new office by the gallant corps which he had so long commanded.

As a proof of what might be done in the acceleration of the London mail, were the matter to be seriously gone into, we may mention, that this evening Messrs. Jackson, Spears, & Co.'s Royal Express four-horse coach, which left Edinburgh at two o'clock, arrived in Glasgow at 25 minutes to 6, performing a journey of 43 miles, with very heavy roads, in 3 hours and 35 minutes, being at the rate of 12 miles an hour.—Glasgow Chronicle. Sept. 29.

England.

East India Company's Tea Sale.—Wednesday morning, the sale, which commenced on the 1st instant, terminated.—The whole quantity offered was 7,900,000 lbs. contained in 32,155 chests of Company's goods, and 22,202 chests private trade. Nearly the whole quantity declared for sale has been purchased, and generally at improved prices. The averages of the sale have been as follows:—Bohea from 1s. 5d. to 1s. 11d. per lb. Congou from 2s. to 3s. 3d. Campoi, 2s. 11d. to 3s. 2d. Souchong, 3s. 2d. to 4s. 7d. Twankay from 2s. to 3s. 3d. Hyson from 3s. 3d. to 4s. 9d. Hyson skin 2s. to 2s. 9d. The private trade teas sold much on the same terms. Some of the teas sold arrived so long back as May, 1827.—The declaration was as follows:—1,000,000 lbs. Bohea; 1,450,000 lbs. of Congou, Campoi, Souchong; Twankay 1,100,000; and of Hyson 800,000 lbs. being 200,000 lbs. more than the last and several former declarations. The total quantity of teas offered by the East India Company for sale in the year ending on Wednesday exceeds thirty millions of pounds, the consumption being much on the increase. The excise duties levied on teas are as follows: 10 per cent on bohea teas—2s. per lb. and 100 per cent on those disposed of at prices exceeding 2s. per pound.—In the tea trades there is more competition at present than at former periods.

The whole of the late King's Library, which has been valued at £100,000, is now placed upon the shelves appropriated to its reception in the new room at the British Museum.

The Duke of Bedford, some time since, for the purpose of patronizing in the most effectual manner, the English School of Painting, sent a great number of the pictures of the Old Masters, to Christie's, for sale, to make room for the productions of living artists. Among these pictures, was one purchased by his Grace, from Smart, the picture-dealer, for 80 guineas, which, at the sale, produced 200 guineas. On the account of his sale being sent to his Grace, he no sooner perceived that his picture had sold for more than he had paid for it, than he sent Smart a check on his banker for the difference, merely observing, "You did not know the value of your own picture."

A laughable and rather expensive mistake was made by a Portuguese Officer in Plymouth, the other day, owing to his ignorance of the English language. He had invited a small party of his brother officers to dine with him; and that they might fair sumptuously, he ordered his landlady to provide 20 legs of mutton. The landlady remonstrated with him, saying he must be in error, and even if he were not, it was impossible for her to dress such a quantity of meat. Remonstrance was however, in vain. The mutton was purchased, and for the sake of variety, part of it was roasted, part boiled, and part baked. At the appointed time the guests arrived, and the landlady commenced serving up dinner. When the fifth leg was brought into the room, the host was astonished, and said he did not want any more. The answer was, that there was 15 legs more to bring up, and that it was in accordance with his order. An eclaircissement took place, when it turned out that his wish was to have 20 sheep's trotters, instead of 20 legs of mutton!

We have the happiness to state from authority, that the health of the King is almost entirely restored. His Majesty's indisposition has been very serious.—Brighton Gazette.

We are also enabled to state that the Duke of Clarence is materially better; but His Royal Highness remains still in a very weak and exhausted state.—ib.

QUEEN OF PORTUGAL.

The last London papers, state that the demonstrations of public respect continue to greet the Queen of Portugal in her progress through the country. The orders of His Majesty, that her reception shall be that of a crowned head are strikingly obeyed. She is paid military honours on the road, wherever troops is stationed, and companies of Local Yeomanry turn out in the different towns as an escort.

The young Queen of Portugal arrived at Bath on Tuesday, where she will remain until Government has decided as to what place of residence shall be appropriated to her Majesty. We understand that the intention which was at first entertained of fitting up apartments for the Queen in Hampton Palace, has been abandoned. As it is said to be the wish of the Marquis of Palmella that as much privacy as is consistent with the rank of this Illustrious Visitor shall be observed, it is probable that Ministers will make arrangements for the residence of the Queen at a short distance from London. According to our Bath correspondent, up to yesterday, nothing positive had reached the Marquis of Palmella, or the Brazilian Minister on the subject.—Oct. 2.

The Queen of Portugal has since arrived in London. The following is an account of the visit paid to her by the Duke of Wellington and Lord Aberdeen.

The Duke of Wellington and Lord Aberdeen arrived at Grillon's Hotel shortly after two o'clock yesterday, and had an interview with the Queen of Portugal for the purpose of welcoming her arrival in the capital. The Ministers, who came in their State carriages, were dressed in military uniform, and decorated with their several orders. Messages of congratulation were also sent from his Majesty at the Royal Cottage at Windsor, and several of the Nobility have, during the day, left their cards at the Hotel. Although many individuals have congregated in Albemarle-street, in expectation of seeing the interesting stranger, the crowd, at present, is far from being numerous.

All the Portuguese Nobility, Gentry, Military Officers, Merchants, and residents in London, presented the following Address to her Majesty:

"We trust your Majesty will allow us to have the honor, this day, of fulfilling the most sacred and most pleasing of duties. A number of faithful subjects of your Majesty present themselves to day at your Majesty's feet, and hope that you will deign to accept, in conjunction with the declaration of our homage and respect, the expression of delight which we feel at the arrival of this happy day, when we have the felicity of being in the presence of our beloved and revered Sovereign. It is unnecessary, Madam, to use superfluous words to express our sentiments of attachment and loyalty to your sacred person; our presence in this country, and in this place, fully proves the sincerity of our attachment. Your Majesty is now surrounded by persons who have voluntarily risked their all, and sacrificed every thing to maintain their honour and keep sacred the oaths which they have sworn to your Majesty and to your august Father, the magnanimous and generous Legislator of Portugal. But we this day regain the best part of what we have lost. Here we still have a country, the true centre of which is the diadem which encircles the august brow of your Majesty, by the Grace of God, and by virtue of legitimate right, and of which no human power can ever deprive you. May your Majesty deign to accept the homage of our vows which are in accordance with those of all Portuguese who have been driven from their homes by tyranny, and a Government founded upon usurpation; and which are also in accordance with the sentiments, equally fervid, though from necessity silent, of many other faithful subjects of your Majesty, which terror and chains compel them to bury in the bottom of their hearts."

To which her Majesty was pleased graciously to make the following answer:—

"Faithful Portuguese—I am grateful for the sacrifices you have made for my sake. Believe me, I shall never forget the martyrs of legitimacy."

The deputation consisted of 150 persons. The Address was read by the Marq is Palmella.

The Chevalier Barbosa acted as Master of the Ceremonies.

The Portuguese Consul, M. Sampayo, was not present on this occasion.

LORD MAYOR OF LONDON.—Mr. Alderman Thompson, M. P., has been chosen Lord Mayor elect of London, for the ensuing year.

Scotland.

Time occupied on the road between Glasgow and Edinburgh.

In 1758, 42 miles were performed in 10 1-2 hours, being at the rate of 4 miles an hour.

In 1790 the journey was performed in 7 1-2 hours, being at the rate of rather more than 5 1-2 miles an hour.

In 1799 the journey was performed in 6 hours, being at the rate of 7 miles an hour.

In 1828, heavy coaches carrying 18 passengers and luggage, run between Edinburgh and Glasgow in 4 hours and three quarters; but lighter coaches with 11 or 12 passengers, frequently run in less than four hours, being at the rate of upwards of 10 miles an hour, or equal to the London mail northwards. The experiment of the Edinburgh Morning Herald running with two horses, and changing six times, has exceeded expectation, frequently performing the journey in 3 hours and 40 minutes.

Mr. Allan Dreghorn, timber merchant and builder, was the first person who started a gentleman's carriage in this city. It was made by one of his own house carpenters in 1752.

A number of persons depart from and return to Glasgow every lawful day by track-boats on the Forth and Clyde navigation, the track-boats on the Monkland Canal, and on the Ardrossan Canal. Not being able to procure (in a satisfactory manner) the number of passengers by one of these canals, I have had recourse to a statement I formerly published in an abridgement of the Annals of Glasgow, from which it appears that in 1815, 85,968 passengers were had by the Forth and Clyde navigation, and 12,773 by the Monkland Canal. Assuming the number which go by the Ardrossan Canal as an equivalent for any defalcation in the others, the number of persons departing from, and arriving in, Glasgow, every lawful day, would be as follows:—

46 Steam-boats, each averaging 20 passengers,	-	920
Coaches, carrying 1010 passengers, deduct 337, one-third,	-	673
Canal track-boats,	-	156
Number of persons departing from Glasgow every lawful day,	-	1749
Do. returning,	-	1749
Total departing and returning,	-	3498
Or yearly,	-	1,094,874

Glasgow Council Chambers, 5th Sept. 1828. JAMES CLELAND.

The Crops.—This season promises to be a profitable one for the Scottish farmers, and the crop of Barley, in particular, is likely to pay them well. In England, on account of casting five-sixths of the Grain consumed, fixes the market price, and when the harvest has been good here, while it has comparatively failed there, our farmers have a double advantage—a large supply of corn to sell, with the high prices which arise from scarcity. The harvest in England has rather failed in quantity than in quantity; and as the potatoes are soundant, we have no idea that either corn or potatoes will amount to a high price. But it is otherwise with barley, a great proportion of which is used for brewing and distillation, and in both of these operations the quality and soundness of the grain is of the first importance.—Much of the Indigo barley this year is damaged, and what is not damaged is generally of inferior quality. A friend who imports extensively, informs us that the corn merchants in Norfolk, Essex, and Cambridgeshire, cannot undertake to supply barley this year with more than 47 pounds per bushel. Last year the general weight of the grain imported by the Scottish farmers and distillers, was 52 pounds; and in the Lothians, barley can be purchased, of this year's growth, weighing 55 pounds. This single fact leads us to anticipate the state of the trade from the two countries. The consequence must be, that our barley will be in request with the English brewers this year; and Scotland instead of importing as usual, will export this species of grain. The fine qualities are already rising in price in both ends of the Island.—Scotsman.

Aberdeen, Sept 27.—The labors of the farmer are now crowned with an abundant harvest, in all the low districts, where, generally, the whole crop has been fully secured. From the continued fine weather, which we still enjoy, the latest Highland districts must be immediately cleared also of the crop, which, as regards some of those more particularly, promise, we learn, to be equally abundant that of any mentioned for a number of years. In this northern climate, at such an advanced season of the year, we have no recollection of a finer season.

Stornoway.—Arrived here in a very exhausted state, Captain Stenton, and four of the crew, of the ship Emerald, of St. John's New Brunswick, from the island of St. Kilda. Capt. Stenton states, that having had a tedious voyage across the Atlantic, and St. Kilda being the first land that the ship made, he was induced, from the mildness of the weather, to land, in expectation of procuring some fresh provisions and water. He had no sooner landed than it came on to blow very fresh from the westward; and when a dense fog, which accompanied the gale, had subsided, it was found that the ship had been blown off, and upon ascending the most elevated parts of the island, no trace of her could be seen in any direction. Captain Stenton remained a week on this remote island, daily looking out for the re appearance of the vessel, but as she did not return was unlikely, he resolved upon the desperate attempt of quitting the island in the boat in which he had landed, and to steer for the Orkney Islands, whither he supposed his ship had been driven. He accordingly left St. Kilda, and made for the eastward, without either compass or sail, their provisions consisting only of two buckets of water, and a few cakes of coarse bread. They had rowed only about five leagues when a breeze sprung up, which gave them a most favorable gale, and proved the means of performing a most perilous night, the storm gradually diminished, and the rising of the sun enabled them to see that the wind blew between the northern and the westward which would carry them to some part of the Long Island. They accordingly rowed in that direction, and next day landed at Scarp, on the west side of the Lewis. Happy and thankful for having escaped the dangers they had thus so awfully and recently encountered, they remained on shore for the night, and had proceeded on their boat to Stornaway, a distance of 50 miles, where they arrived on Thursday last in an unfurnished state. Upon Captain Stenton's reaching Stornaway, he was informed of the safe arrival of his ship in the Orkneys, whither he immediately proceeded to join her. She is timber laded, and bound from St. John's, New Brunswick, to Hull.—Glasgow Chronicle

A new Light-House is being erected on the Mull of Galloway, and will be finished in August, 1829. The elevation is beautiful and independently of its utility, will prove a real ornament to the giant Mull. The tower, when finished, will stand 85 feet above the base, which, added to the elevation completely natural, from the level of the sea to the apex of the rock, of 270 feet, will render the beacon, when seen blazing, one of the highest and most commanding in the whole kingdom. The total expense is estimated at only £8,000.

The Wandered Woman.—A singular and interesting occurrence took place in Queen-street last week. A respectable woman, who resides there, having left her child, an infant two years of age, to play about the door till she attended to some household duties, went when she was disengaged to look for her char ge. The urchin could barely crawl, and she expected to find him at the door cheek. There, however, it was not, and the mother, in considerable alarm, called on several neighbors, to enquire if they had seen her child. No one had seen it; and as a considerable time had now elapsed in making fruitless enquiries, the anxiety and fears of the poor woman became proportionally augmented. Parents can only Judge of her feelings when no trace of her child could be found. The neighbors kindly assisted in making strict inquisition in every well, pig-sty, hen-roost, or out-of-the-way corner, for the wandered swain. He was, however, no where to be found, and, as a last resource, they then resolved that the bell should be sent through the town. In the mean time the mother, in a state bordering on destraction, went into her own house to ransage again every bed and bunker, bed and cupboard While thus employed one of her sympathizing friends happened to cast her eye on the gable of a neighboring house, and there, with surprise and horror, discovered the lost child perched on a ladder, and within a few steps of its very top, apparen ly quite delighted with its state of exaltation. A lady endeavored to induce the ambitious mite to come down; but no, it shook its head, and sat fast. She then tried to go up the ladder, but half up, her head grew giddy and she was obliged to descend without accomplishing her object. The mother by this time was informed that her child was found, but her feelings may be more easily guessed than described when she saw its danger. The ladder was long enough to reach the eave of a three story house, and within four steps of it was her child, holding firmly by one of the bars, and looking quite complacently on the faces below. With trembling steps the agitated mother cautiously ascended the ladder, but when within arm's length of her infant, and on the point of laying hold of him, he, as if to mock the agony of his parent, clambered up the remaining steps, and straddling across the topmost bar, held out his little hands and smiled, as if proud of his daring feat The mother at last folded the object of her fears and affections to her fond bosom, and descended with her precious burthen in safety, shedding tears of gratitude and breathing a heartfelt prayer to that providence which had so miraculously preserved her dear little pet.—Paisley Advertiser.

Foreign Intelligence.

FROM THE THEATRE OF WAR.

The substance of the latest news from the seat of war in the East, is contained in the following abstract of the more copious details of the Paris papers, which we copy from the London Courier of the evening of the 8th. It will be seen that there is a prospect that the Russian army will be forced to make a disastrous retreat. It is even now said that they have raised the siege of Choumla.

We have received some details from the seat of war which are of deep interest though they are not in the shape of Bulletins. But they dwell upon the difficulties which Russia has to struggle with—difficulties which, they apprehend, must increase as the campaign draws to a close. According to the different articles which we have extracted from the Paris Papers of Monday and Tuesday, the Grand Vizier has reinforced the Turkish Army at Choumla with 40,000 men, thus swelling the total of the Turkish force to upwards of 100,000 men. Another account states that Achmet Pacha has taken up a position at Eske-Stamboul, and that the Grand Vizier is between Kasta, & Karnabat.

The Russians have already suffered severely from sick and wounded, to a large amount, to Jeni Bazar, and this movement seems to be preliminary to their retreat from Choumla But they may wait to ascertain whether Varna falls, and the sending off the sick and wounded to Jeni Bazar, on the road to Varna, would induce us to suppose that they will be removed to Varna if the Russians shall make themselves masters of it.—But it is conjectured that the Grand Vizier would still make some effort to relieve it—though if the late Russian defeat be correct any such effort, unless made immediately, and with great force, would be ineffectual. It is in the retreat from Varna towards the Danube, for the Russians cannot winter in Bulgaria, that their march is likely to be harrassed by the Turkish Cavalry.

The Pacha of Widdin continues his incursions into Little Wallaria, and is said to have entered Crajova. No further intelligence has been received relative to the siege of Silistria, or of any other fortress on the Danube

The Journal des Debats contains some remarks upon the campaign, which we have translated The Editor seems prepared to expect that the Russian arms will not be crowned, he more successful in Turkey than the efforts of Buonaparte were in Spain.

Since writing the above, it has been stated that Letters from Vienna, announce the Russians to have raised the siege of Choumla, and to be in full retreat.

London, Oct. 9 — City, two o'clock —Consols, after recovering in the first instance from their great depression, at twelve o'clock to 86¼, the nearest price, have again evinced more firmness, and gone back to 86⅛ for money, and 86 sellers for November. The appearance is heavy.

Squinting is, in the new phraseology of intellect, denominated "ocular indecision"

Three o'clock.—Consols for account have suddenly gone down to 86 sellers, and appear extensively heavy, the Government have, it is said, given notice to the East India Directors of their intention to claim the quantity of Saltpetre usually kept on hand for their use, which amounting to 5000 tons, the price is now 26s. per cwt. and no sellers.

A great excitement has taken place on the Royal Exchange this afternoon, occasioned by the numerous reports circulated on the state of political relations with Russia, and the state of His Majesty's health.

Letters from Vienna, which appear entitled to credit, announce, quite positively, that the siege of Choumla has been raised, and the Russians are in full retreat from before that formidable position They are further described as experiencing considerable embarrassment in the removal of the sick and wounded soldiers, who amount to the distressing number of between 30,000 and 40,000 men. The anxiety for the next accounts of the proceedings of the Emperor Nicholas and Count Woronzoff, is very great. If Varna should be successfully defended, or the Russians much crippled by the carnage of an assault upon 20,000 or 30,000 Turks, behind even impaired fortifications, there is no calculating what may be the consequences to the invading army, even should the capture of Varna close the present campaign.

PARIS, October 7.

It now appears decided that our troops will return from the Morea, after Ibrahim Pacha has embarked. This is certainly important, as it does away with all hostile views on the part of the French Government in the Mediterranean and in Egypt; it also proves that France continues in the greatest friendship with England.

GREECE.—From Alexandria they state, that the French Admiral had refused to ratify the treaty made by Admiral Codrington, unless the fortresses in the Morea are put into the hands of the French Army.

Advices from Alexandria state that the Greek slaves had been given up to the British Consul; and that the Pacha was equipping vessels to go for the Egyptian forces at Navarino.

GENEVA. October 1.

The celebrated novelist, Coopcr, has been for some days in this city.

MARKETS.

The Flour Market—Much anxiety for further news from Europe is felt—more especially to learn the state of the Grain Market. The late information from England, has produced a great rise in the American Market, not only in consequence of the reported short crops in Europe generally, but on account of reports that the British ports would soon be opened for American bread-stuffs. And this latter opinion is strengthened by a letter from Liverpool, which will be found under our Richmond head. Ten dollars is the present asking price of Flour in this market, and two dollars for best western wheat. Nine and a half is offered for flour; but there are few sales. These prices will afford a golden harvest to the farmers, if they can get their wheat to market, while prices are up. And they had better do so, rather than to wait for more. We doubt whether the present prices, (which have already sadly diminished the size of our loaves) can be maintained.—N Y. Spectator.

LIVERPOOL MARKETS.

LIVERPOOL, October 11.

Ashes.—There has been a fair demand for Ashes. About 500 barrels, chiefly Pots, have been sold at 30s. a 30s. 3d, and a few at 30-b.

Grain and Flour—The advance in the Corn Market is very great, thus proving [notwithstanding we are under the influence of a gold currency] that with a real, or even an exaggerated cause of alarm, the price of grain is susceptible of a great advance if public opinion be in its favor. Without questioning that there may be a serious deficiency, and consequently substantial causes for a rise in our markets, yet viewing it on public grounds, this great improvement in prices, thus early, is likely to be generally beneficial, inasmuch as it will cause an early check to consumption, and give additional encouragement to foreign imports, the duties on which are weekly lessening, and when brought on a par with the price now actually paying, they will, under the present Corn Bill, nearly cease—and have raised my quotations annexed to the rates paid at our market on Tuesday last, since which the transactions are not important; but owing to short supplies from all quarters, no general decline has yet been submitted to. A large lot of Indian Corn, in bond, sold at 29s.; another, duty paid, at 40 per 480 lbs; and for a parcel of American Flour, to arrive, warranted new, 35s per barrel, in bond, has been realized. Quotations—Wheat English, old, 11s a 11s 6d per 70 lb; new, 10s 6d a 11s 6d; Canada, duty paid, 11s a 11s 6d; Flour, American, sour, in bond, 32s a 34s for old, and 34s a 35s for new; Canada, sweet, duty paid, 34s a 35s.

HULL MARKET.

OCTOBER 7.—There have been extensive sales of all grain, both for and in bond since our last, at considerably advanced prices, for which we refer to our quotations. The market has been well supplied with wheat from the farmers; but the high prices demanded caused purchasers to hold back, as they have experienced; however, we quote an advance of 10s to 12s per quarter, in the business transated on the best runs of old wheat, and 6s to 8s on new, for the prices of last week. Oats have also been in considerable request, and are dearer; 2s to 3s per quarter on free, and the same advance may be noted on those under lock. Good malting barley is in request at an advance of 2s per quarter, but very little offering; bonded barley has nearly all changed hands at 2s to 3s per quarter advance, and is now held firmly. Rapeseed and linseed are both in improved demand at better prices.

NEW-YORK MARKET.

NOVEMBER 15, 1828.

FLOUR—Since our last notice, there have been no sales of Flour worthy of notice, and prices cannot be quoted with any degree of accuracy. The asking price for the best western Flour is 89.25 a 9.50. Some Ohio Flour have been sold at 8.75. Holders are anxiously looking for further advices from Europe.

GRAIN.—We have no sales of Wheat to notice, and quotations are nominal. 81.62 a 1.85 Western, 1.80 a 1.90. Imports this season from the South, amount to about 230,000 bushels, which exceeds by 130,000 the whole import of last season.

The Army.

The Hon. Colonel Molyneux is appointed Lieutenant Colonel of the 8th Hussars, stationed at Newbridge, County Kildare, in the room of Lord George Russel, who retires to half-pay. The 8th Royal Irish Hussars, stationed at Newbridge, have received an order of readiness to move. The 70th regiment from Cork, is to be moved to Buttevant.

MONTHLY MILITARY OBITUARY.

General —Arabin, late of 2d Life Guards.

Lieutenant-Colonels —Forsteen, 12th Foot, London; Sir A. Eghenrt, Bart. half-pay 73d Foot: Preedy, half-pay 90th Foot.

Major.—Parker, half-pay Nugent's Levy.

Captains.—I. F. Cane, 22d Foot, Chelsea; Enright, late 10th Royal Veteran Battalion; MacDonald, Barrack Master, Edinburgh Castle; Willis, Royal Artillery Drivers; Fead, half-pay 20th Foot; Cox half-pay Royal York Rangers.

Lieutenants.—Berwick, 13th Dragoons, Cadiz; Madras; Cohen, 28th Foot; Hathorn, 26th Foot; O'Beirne, 2nd Foot, Versailles; Batteman, 87th Foot, London; Shea, half-pay 12th Dragoons; Fitzgerald, half-pay 11th Foot; Coldman, half-pay 60th Foot, Maidstone; Baillie, half-pay 61st Foot; Dowling, late 2d veteran Battalion; J. C. Grutteman, half-pay Brunswick Infantry, Brunswick.

Ensigns and Second Lieutenants.—Leech, 48th Foot, Pamlamoodrum, Madras; Woodford, Ceylon Regiment, Aripo, Ceylon: Lambton, late 4th Veteran Battalion, Jacques Cartier, Quebec; Skinner, late 8th Veteran Battalion, Weimar; Jenkins, half-pay Fish's Corps.

Paymaster —Dawson, 2.3Dragoons, Dublin.

Adjutant —Sewell, Carnarvon Militia.

Quarter-Masters.—Tennant, half-pay Royal Waggon Train; Jackson, half-pay 3d Dragoons; Johnstone, half-pay 18th Dragoons.

Commissariat Department.—Assistant Commissary General Maxwell, Waterford; Deputy Assistant Commissary General Loveridge, half-pay, London.

Medical Department.—Surgeon Ivory, 3d Foot, on passage from New South Wales to Bengal; Surgeon Brady, Lastrim Militia; Marsh, half-pay 58th Foot; Assistant-Surgeon Keoghe, half-pay 1st Royal Veteran Battalion.

Communication.

[FOR THE LOYALIST.]

Mr. Editor please to insert the following; each Editor in York is requested to copy it.

To extend the blessings of Education and the necessary knowledge of the arts of life among the Indians and destitute throughout this extensive country, is an object to which every good man will most cheerfully lend his assistance. But in a country like Canada, so divided and diversified, as to modes and forms of worship, it is difficult to adopt any plans of Education which will not meet with some opposition. The plan proposed by Lord Bexley at the formation of the Society for promoting Education and Industry in Canada, appears to be the only one practicable. These are the words of that pious Nobleman, "In a country where are Catholics and Protestants of all denominations any schools for their benefit must be established on general principles independent of particular creeds or modes of Church discipline. We must allow the Clergy to lead their flocks in that which they think, to be the right way. The Bible must form the basis of every system of instruction carrying to all men the comforts of time and the cheering hopes of eternity." Had this plan been adopted and acted upon ever since this country has been settled, we should this day have witnessed a more pleasant state of society than we now do. All can unite in printing and circulating the Bible, therefore all can join in teaching the young to read and obey that holy volume.

Two years ago a branch of this Society was organized in York; and last autumn another attempt was made; but, in consequence of different opinions in the Committee, or want of activity, but with the sentiment expressed by the Society in London, very little has been done. Another attempt is now making to revive this Institution; which, it is hoped, may be more successful. The last year's report of the Society with the Committee's Address, and the plans of its operation, has been laid before HIS EXCELLENCY SIR JOHN COLBORNE, who has granted an audience to the Agent of the Society, and kindly observed, that he would most cheerfully co-operate in his power to better the condition of the long neglected Indians and others throughout the Province.

To furnish all destitute places with the means of elementary instruction, and open a Seminary for training up Indian youths to become teachers among their brethren, are the important objects of this Institution. That general patronage and support may be granted to this Society is the prayer of many in Europe and America, and especially of your humble servant,

T. OSGOOD, Agent of the Society.

THE LOYALIST.

YORK, U. C., SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1828.

Unavoidable absence from our Office during the present week, prevents us from paying the attention we could wish to our Editorial duties. Our columns however will be found to contain copious extracts from papers lately received.

On Monday last HIS EXCELLENCY SIR JOHN COLBORNE was pleased to receive an Address from the inhabitants of York and its vicinity, which together with HIS EXCELLENCY'S reply, we have taken from the Gazette of Thursday last, as well as an Address, with HIS EXCELLENCY'S reply, from the Methodist Canada Conference.

The Prospectus of the Poem—"TECUMSEH OR THE WARRIOR OF THE WEST," which we received through the Post Office, we have inserted in this days paper. If the person who sent it to us, will favor us with a call, and explain his wishes to us, we shall have much pleasure in forwarding his views on behalf of the Author, if it is in our power to do so.

LATE INTELLIGENCE.

We are again indebted to the Albion for late intelligence — The Packet Ship New-York from Liverpool, brings London papers to 17th Oct.

From the seat of War.

DISCOMFITURE OF THE RUSSIAN ARMIES.

[UNOFFICIAL ACCOUNTS.]

London Sun Office, Oct. 17, quarter past four o'clock P. M.—Second Edition.—The Journal of Commerce received by mail, brings acc unts from Frankfort to the 9th inst. that although no official accounts had been published for several days past, private letters had been received from Berlin, saying that the second army under the command of Count Wittgenstein, was dispersed.—Whole regiments of cavalry dismounted;—the want of water was so great that three roubles were given for a bottle of water. It was reported on the Change at Frankfort that the siege of Varna was raised, and that the Russian Army was in full retreat to the Danube.

[The above was forwarded in slips, to his foreign correspondents, by that very active person, Mr. Willmer, Agent for newspapers at Liverpool.]

Vienna letters of the 5th October, state, that on that very day despatches had arrived at the Foreign Office from the theatre of war. After the arrival of the Courier who brought them, a report was circulated in the capital of Austria, that the army of Field Marshal Count Wittgenstein continued his retreat, and had arrived at Kazvasson, 30 leagues (90 English miles) distant from Choumla. The condition of that army is deplorable; it is followed by a large number of sick, and had been compelled to abandon on the road a part of its materiel. It had been announced to the Russian troops that such of the cavalry regiments as had lost their horses should proceed to the Ukrain to be remounted.

The letters we mention remain silent respecting the Russian corps d'armee which forms the siege of Varna. It is not known whether that corps continues its operations, or whether it has rejoined the army of Count Wittgenstein at Bazardjik.

From the Morning Herald of 17th October.

The despatches received from Lord Heytesbury confirm the previous accounts relative to the deplorable condition of the Russian army before Varna. According to these despatches, which are down to the 22d Decr., Varna had not only not fallen, but no assault had been attempted by the Russians. We have, also, from other sources, that the Russians are suffering all sorts of privations, and that one of their greatest miseries is the want of water. After all, however, Varna may be obliged to surrender; but, it should, the victory will cost the Russians more than it is worth, and there is little doubt that he will be nevertheless forced to retreat. This Turkish war forms a very striking example of a very important truth—namely, that although a people can themselves may be extirpated, yet they never can be conquered.

DEATH OF THE QUEEN OF WURTEMBERG.

Supplement to the London Gazette, of October 14.

Foreign Office, October 13, 1828.—A despatch was this day received by the Earl of Aberdeen, K. T. His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, from Edward Cromwell Disbrowe, Esq. His Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at the Court of Stuttgart, announcing the melancholy intelligence of the decease of Her Majesty the Queen Dowager of Wurtemberg, at Ludwigsburg, between one and two o'clock in the morning of the 9th inst. to the inexpressible grief of the King and all the Royal Family.

It is with the most unfeigned pleasure that we announce His Majesty's recovery from his late attack of gout. His Majesty is able to leave his apartments, and take the air airing to-day. This intelligence, upon which perfect reliance may be placed, will be received with the greatest satisfaction, because it will dispel at once the gloomy reports which had been in circulation.—Courier, Oct 13.

Ireland—We are truly happy to state that Ireland is in a much more tranquil state, and that the alarm a short time ago existed, has in a great measure subsided. The cause may be ascribed to the kind effects of the Lord Lieutenant's Proclamation and Mr. O'Connel's address.

HIS EXCELLENCY SIR PERREGRINE MAITLAND and Suite, arrived at New York on Sunday 23d, and proceeded for Boston on Tuesday 25th inst. where the Chebucto, Government Vessel, waits to carry them to Nova Scotia.

OBITUARY NOTICE.—Drowned, whilst bathing, at the Island of Madeira, on the 26th September last, in the 29th year of his age, Captain the Hon. William Pitt Canning, R. N., eldest surviving son of the late Right Hon. George Canning.

The following appears in the Gazette de France, of Sunday last (Oct 12.)

"Paris, Oct. 11.—We have received letters from Odessa of the 26th Sept. No doubt was entertained of the taking of Varna, but it was known that the Russians were in a distressed condition, and that the Emperor desires peace. If we may believe the letters from Bucharest, the Turks have assumed the offensive. The corps of Gen. Roth has been almost entirely destroyed, the siege of Choumla has been raised, and the remaining thirty pieces of cannon, have retreated towards Bazardjik, pursued by Hussein Bey, at the head of 70,000 men, who flattered himself that he should destroy them, fall on the rear of the army besieging Varna, and bring that town, and terminate the campaign by compelling the whole of the Russian army to a general retreat."

Dutch papers received on Monday last contain the following: "Berlin Dec. 6.—On the 26th of Sept. a manifesto was issued at St. Petersburgh, ordering a levy of four men of every 500 of the population. This levy is to extend to the whole empire, with the exception of Bessarabia and Georgia. The preamble of the manifesto states, that the arms of Notwithstanding the success of our arms in the war against the Ottoman Porte, and our sincere wish to put an end to hostilities, the enemy by his refusal to listen to our proposals for peace, and by his obstinacy, obliges us to take new measures for prosecuting this war; and we consider it necessary to make our army complete.' Estimating the population liable to the levy now ordered, at 30,000,000, the number of recruits will be 240,000 men."

Hamburg papers, to the 11th inst, have since been received, from which we extract the following:—

