DECLARATION OF THE KING OF ENGLAND.

His Majesty owes to himself and to Europe a frank exposition of the motives which have dictated his late measures in the Baltic.

His Majesty has delayed this exposition only in the hope of that more amicable arrangement with the court of Denmark, which it was his Majesty's first wish and endeavour to obtain, for which he was ready to make great efforts and great sacrifices; and of which he never lost sight even in the moment of the most decisive hostility.

Deeply as the disappointment of this hope has been felt by his Majesty, he has the consolation of reflecting that no exertion was left untried on his part to produce a different result. And while he laments the cruel necessity which has obliged him to have recourse to acts of hostility against a nation with which it was his Majesty's most earnest desire to have established the relations of common interest and alliance; his Majesty feels confident that, in the eyes of Europe and of the world, the justification of his conduct will be found in the commanding and indispensable duty, paramount to all others amongst the obligations of a sovereign, of providing, while there was yet time, for the immediate security of his people.

His Majesty had received the most positive information of the determination of the present ruler of France to occupy with a military force, the territory of Holstein—for the purpose of excluding Great Britain from all her accustomed channels of communication with the Continent; of inducing or compelling the court of Denmark to shut the passage of the Sound against the British commerce and navigation; and of availing himself of the aid of the Danish Marine for the invasion of Great Britain and of Ireland.

Confident as his Majesty was of the authority of the sources from which this intelligence was derived, and confirmed in the credit which he gave to it, as well by the notorious and repeated declarations of the enemy, and by his recent occupation of the towns and territories of other neutral states, as by the preparations actually made for collecting a hostile force upon the frontiers of his Danish Majesty's continental dominions, his Majesty would yet willingly have forborne to act upon this intelligence, until the complete and practical disclosure of the plan had been made manifest to all the world.

His Majesty did forbear, as long as there could be a doubt of the urgency of the danger, or a hope of an effectual counteraction to it, in the means, or in the dispositions of Denmark.

But his Majesty could not but recollect that when, at the close of the former war, the Court of Denmark engaged in a hostile confederacy against Great Britain, the apology offered by that court for so unjustifiable an abandonment of a neutrality which his Majesty had never ceased to respect, was founded on its inability to resist the operation of external influence, and the threats of a formidable neighboring power. His Majesty could not but compare the degree of influence which at that time determined the decision of the court of Denmark, in violation of positive engagements, solemnly contracted but six months before; with the increased operation which France had now the means of giving to the same principle of intimidation with the kingdoms prostrate at her feet, and with the population of nations under her banners.

Nor was the danger less imminent than certain. Already the army destined for the invasion of Holstein was assembling on the violated territory of neutral Hamburgh. And Holstein once occupied, the island of Zealand was at the mercy of France, and the navy of Denmark at her disposal.

It is true a British force might have found its way into the Baltic, and checked for a time the movements of the Danish Marine. But the season was approaching when this precaution would no longer have availed; and when his Majesty's fleet must have retired from that sea, and permitted France, undisturbed security, to accumulate the means of offence against his Majesty's dominions.

Yet, even under these circumstances, in calling upon Denmark for the satisfaction and security which his Majesty was compelled to require, and in demanding the only pledge by which that security could be rendered effectual—the temporary possession of that fleet, which was the chief inducement to France for forcing Denmark into hostilities with Great Britain; his Majesty accompanied this demand with the offer of every condition which could tend to reconcile it to the interests and to the feelings of Denmark.

It was for Denmark herself to state the terms and stipulations which she might require.

If Denmark was apprehensive that the surrender of her fleet would be relented by France as an act of connivance; his Majesty had prepared a force of such formidable magnitude, as must have made concession justifiable even in the estimation of France, by rendering resistance altogether unavailing.

If Denmark was really prepared to resist the demands of France and maintain her independence, his Majesty proffered his co-operation for her defence—naval, military, and pecuniary aid; the guarantee of her European territories, and the security and extension of her colonial possessions.

That the sword has been drawn in the execution of a service indispensable to the safety of his Majesty's dominions, is matter of sincere and painful regret to his Majesty. That the state and circumstances of the world are such as to have required and justified the measures of self preservation, to which his Majesty has found himself under the necessity of resorting is a truth which his Majesty deeply deplores, but for which he is in no other degree responsible.

His Majesty has long carried on a most unequal contest of scrupulous forbearance against unrelenting violence and oppression. But that forbearance has its bounds. When the design was openly avowed, and already but too far advanced towards its accomplishment, of subjecting the powers of Europe to one universal usurpation, and of combining them by terror or by force, in a confederacy against the maritime rights and political existence of this kingdom, it became necessary for his Majesty to anticipate the success of a system, not more fatal to his interests than those of the powers who were destined to be the instruments of its execution.

It was time that the effects of that dread which France has inspired into the nations of the world, should be counteracted by an exertion of the power of Great Britain, called for by the exigency of the crisis, and proportioned to the magnitude of the danger.

Notwithstanding the declaration of war on the part of the Danish government, it still remains for Denmark to determine whether war shall continue between the two nations. His Majesty still proffers an amicable arrangement. He is anxious to sheathe the sword, which he has been most reluctantly compelled to draw. And he is ready to demonstrate to Denmark and to the world, that having acted solely upon the sense of what was due to the security of his dominions, he is not desirous from any other motive, or for any object of advantage or aggrandizement to carry measures of hostility beyond the limits of the necessity which has produced them.

Westminster, Sept. 25, 1807.

LONDON, Oct. 10.

An article from Keil would have us believe, that the Danish Government wished to destroy rather than surrender the fleet, and that it had actually transmitted orders to that effect, which we intercepted.

We are not able yet to state whether the report transmitted from Memel, of Bonaparte having sent a requisition to the court of Petersburgh, to shut its ports against this Country; be true or not.—It is highly probable—Romanzow, the Russian Prime Minister is understood to be decidedly hostile to this Country:—But the hostility of Menzikow, is not participated by the rest of the Russian Nobility, and the increasing unpopularity of the Treaty of Tilsit, and of its offspring the Armistice with Turkey, is understood to have greatly strengthened the English party. —Prince Menzikoff has been charged with an important mission to this Country, and the friends of England consider this as a favorable prognostic.

October 12.

A report is current that on the part of the English, an application has been made to the king of Sweden to deliver up his fleet, which is now rigging and getting ready for sea in Carlscrona, as a deposit to the English. On Langeland, as well as Fremen, several English seamen attempted to effect a landing, but were repulsed.

A Nocturnal Balloon.—Garnerin has raised a new and beautiful one of [illegible] Balloons in Paris. He mounted from the gardens at Tivoli at night, in a balloon illuminated with 100 lamps. He mounted from the gardens at eleven o'clock on a very dark night, under Russian colours, as a sign of peace. When floating high in the air, above the multitude of admiring spectators, a flight of rockets were discharged at him, which in a few days, broke into sparks, hardly rising to the vision from the earth: and Paris, with all its blaze of reflecting lamps, appeared to him but like a spot—like the Pleiades for instance, to the naked eye. He gained an elevation, he says, of 3000 toises, and speaks with enthusiasm of seeing the sun rise at that height. After a flight of seven hours and a half, he descended near Reims, 45 leagues from Paris.

Halifax, Oct. 20.

At the desire of his Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor, a meeting of the principal inhabitants of the town was held at the Court House on Friday afternoon last, to consider of a request made by Major General Hunter, to his Excellency, for 100 militia men, daily, to assist in repairing the fortifications.—As soon as the object of the meeting was explained, the Artillery, Guardians, and Light-Infantry Volunteer Companies, tendered their services for immediate duty, until an arrangement could be made for drafting, proportionally, from the several Militia Companies, the number of men required.

Boston, November 19.

By the Francis, Captain Curtis, arrived on Tuesday [illegible] Liverpool, our London dates are brought down to the 12th inst.

On the subject of our affairs with England, there appears nothing further, than that Mr. Munroe was to return home, leaving, however, Mr. Pinckney, as an accredited Minister and Plenipotentiary to that Court;—That not having sufficient powers to conclude a Treaty; or, in other words, to settle certain points, in controversy with the two countries; there arose an absolute necessity for further correspondence between the respective governments; and that therefore, some considerable delay would necessarily elapse, before an ultimate decision could be made on them. To this situation, the business stood at the date of our last advices. The particular point, which has obstructed the operations of our Ministers, is said to be, that relating to search for seamen, on board private armed vessels;—our government denying and the British maintaining the right. As Mr. Munroe may be hourly expected at the seat of Government, as well as the despatches which our accounts state to have been forwarded by the British cabinet to their Minister here, we may yet hope, that such a spirit of accommodation, will prove to be manifested by the two parties, as shall avert the unnatural state of hostility, which now otherwise take place.

The London papers by the Francis do not contain a word on the subject of any British order of council, relating to Bonaparte's blockading decree.

From the Mediterranean.

Capt. Williams, arrived at Salem from Leghorn, confirms the account of the capture of that city by the French; of their laying an embargo, which continued until the 16th September, when it was taken off. He informs, that Lord Paget, the English Minister was negociating at Constantinople, with a prospect of success;—being backed by lord Collingwood, with sixteen sail of the line: who had taken the island of Tenedos (recently restored to the Turks by Russia) with six or seven sail of the line:—That a French army of 60,000, which had been on the march to Naples, supposed to be ultimately destined against Sicily, had halted; and this halt was attributed at Leghorn to appearances unfavorable to the French in other parts of Europe.—The discontents at Petersburgh it was expected would produce a change there in favor of the war party; and it was confidently believed that England would still be able again to combine both Austria and Russia against France, in which case the powerful diversion she had made at Constantinople, would probably contribute. Such was the view of affairs at Leghorn, the 1st October—

A Natural Curiosity.—Mr. A. Watson of Huntington, in this County, has raised an OX, that has three perfect horns. A hand some pair upon his head, and another on the top of his neck, inclining to the right side —The preternatural horn is about twelve inches from the head of the Ox, and is six or seven inches long, and growing rapidly.

The York Gazette.

YORK, DECEMBER 16, 1807.

The Militia Returns from the distant parts of the Province have been all received, we therefore suspend the list of those who have been chosen to officer the animated and patriotic corps of the Home District Militia; and we allow them this week of marking it ground has been ceded to [illegible] Select. We believe ourself safe in saying that so far as returns are received, our active friends exhibit but one general and general feeling, that of devoting their lives and property to the defence and support of their country and government.

We are sorry to observe, that the French and Spaniards are acting upon the American conservator maritimum law—and openly carry to far that policy (if it can be so called) which aims to entice hostility against Great Britain. A question now arises, which [illegible] on no more degree of philosophy to answer. How long will it be before Americans must make their election? We would be sorry to see it any to favour, the language of invitation; but we cannot shut our eyes to the views of the present Administration in America.

A late London paper mentions, that Major General Grant has announced the discovery of the longitude by a mathematical instrument, which shews the rate of a ship sailing with the greatest accuracy. This instrument is connected with others, which point out the ship's latitude and longitude, in direct or oblique sailing.

The Panharmonicon, a new instrument, lately invented at Naples, excites a general interest in Italy. It unites all wind instruments in itself, and performs the most difficult symphonies with an astonishing precision and purity. If report speaks true, it is expected that it will supercede the attendance of musicians playing on wind instruments in theatrical orchestras.—Lon. Pap.

Lord SELKIRK's Speech on the probability of Invasion.

[The following extract from the Speech of this gentleman as delivered in the British Parliament, a short time previous to its late prorogation, will be read with no little interest. We have not seen the whole Speech, but must judge from that portion of it, that his lordship was able advocate for the contemplated measure of encreasing the regular force to the utmost ability of the country.] Boston Gazette.

"But my lords, is the chance of invasion a mere possibility? When we look at the extension of the resources of France, at means of recruiting her navy, which she acquired by her continental conquests, it would be blindness not to perceive, that her naval power must soon become far more formidable than it has ever yet been. France is now in possession of the finest forests in Europe, and of countries capable of affording ample supplies of every naval store, she may command the services of all the seamen which the Continent can afford from Memel to Cadiz—Is it the part of a prudent politician, under such circumstances, to overlook the possibility of our navy being worsted. This my Lords, is an event for which we ought to be prepared; and fortunately there is room to hope that we shall have sufficient time to prepare against it. But any one who considers well what the state of this country would be, if the French had obtained a superiority at sea, will certainly not be disposed to think, that we can begin too soon to provide against such an emergency.

"In those who shut their eyes against the danger of immediate invasion, there is something like absolute infatuation. Because our enemy is at a distance and has Constantinople. We may look too to the prospect, that the whole energy of the French government will now be directed to this object: we know in fact, that during all the pressure of their continental wars, the most active exertions in ship building have never been discontinued in their naval arsenals, they have now no other object to divide their attention; and we may be well assured that all the ability of the ruler of France will now be turned to naval affairs!... The fame genius which has created such an astonishing change in the discipline & tactics of the French army, will now be unremittingly employed in the improvement of their navy, and (if we recollect that the disorganised bands which a few years ago, were flying before Suwarrow out of Italy, are now the victorious legions of Austerlitz, of Jena, and of Friedland, we shall not be disposed to underrate the change, which the same genius may effect in the navy of France. We have therefore every reason to believe, that the naval prosperity of England, must ere long be exposed to a more severe contest, than any which it has recently had to maintain.—Whatever confidence we may entertain in the valor and skill of our seamen, it is not for a while his back turned to us, we seem to imagine, that he can never again threaten our shores. His army indeed is now on the banks of the Vistula; but have we forgot the rapidity with which he moved from the Rhine to Berlin? Nor are France and the adjacent provinces left so entirely destitute of troops but that a week or two perhaps, would be sufficient to collect again at Boulogne, such a force as might be sufficient for the invasion. Even before the winter sets in, it is not impossible that a French army may be on English ground; & if the blow is delayed, it will only be that it may be struck with greater certainty. Under these circumstances, not only is the nation sunk in apathy; but his Majesty's ministers, setting the example of blind infensibility, and not ashamed of bringing forward such a proposition as the bill before us, telling the nation that 20 or 30,000 more troops are to ensure their security. If ever, my lords, there was an example of that infatuation which seems to be the natural forerunner of the fall of Empires, is not this one? In what are we more wise than the Prussians, who, a year ago, rushed headlong on destruction, and would not believe in the possibility of defeat? They thought that the legions of the Great Frederick were invincible, as we seem now to think that the channel is an impassible barrier. Will no experience teach us wisdom? And is England destined to afford us another terrible example that "quos Deus vult perdere, prius demental."

"Let us rouse, my lords from this fatal security; let us trust no longer to a barrier that may be overcome. It is not to the channel that we must look for security, but to the hands of Englishmen fighting for their liberties, for the glory and independence of their country. To put our trust in the sea, if it were not the extreme of folly, would be the extreme of cowardice! Shall the descendants of the men, who conquered at Agincourt and Creffy, acknowledge that they cannot meet the army of France hand to hand, and that it is only at sea that we can cope with our enemies? Away with the base idea, that England must entrench herself behind a miserable ditch, instead of coming into the field! Prepare for our defence, as if the cliffs of Dover touched those of Calis, or if the fleets of France had been as victorious as her armies! Till we can hear without dismay that the flotilla of Boulogne has effected a landing on the coast of Kent—that a French army of 120,000 men are in possession of Dover—and that 20, or 30,000 more have made their way to Ireland—till we can hear all this—without a well grounded apprehension, I shall not consider the state of our defence as worthy of the name of England. The probability is—that a year may not elapse before such news will reach our ears:—and when it does come upon us, what consequence can any reasonable man anticipate, if our state of defence remain such as it now is or such as it will be, with all the addition his Majesty's Ministers now call for! Let any man of military knowledge who is acquainted with the present situation and disposition of our regular and military forces, calculate the time that would be necessary, for bringing together an army capable of oppoling 100,000, or half that number of the troops of Bonaparte, flushed with all their late astonishing successes. Let him look back to the rapid marches of these troops in the campaigns of 1805 and 1806, and let him figure to himself what their movements would probably be, were they landed on the shores of England. Let him say whether the enemy might not be in possession of London, and all our military depots, before our army could even be collected? Whether advancing with his usual rapidity into the centre of the country, he might not intercept our scattered battalions, before they could reach a rendezvous, or form the semblance of an army fit to oppose him.

"Last year we saw Prussia overwhelmed, after a short and feeble resistance:—Heaven grant that England may not shortly exhibit a parallel, or a still more disagreeable spectacle! Prussia at least fought a battle before she submitted to the conqueror; England may probably be overrun, before her army is even in readiness to take the field and face the invader; and this far famed Empire may be crushed without our having the glory of making one stand for the liberties we value so highly."

LONDON, Sept. 5.

A letter from a respectable house in Lisbon, dated the 7th September, says—"The return of the Courier who was sent to Paris with the answer of our government to the demands of France, is most anxiously looked for, as it is expected he will be the bearer of the ultimatum of Bonaparte. Ministers expect he will be here about the 16th inst. by which time ten sail of the line and 13 or 14 frigates, will be ready to put to sea. The greatest activity pervades every department of the administration, as little doubt remains that the court will be obliged to remove to the Brazils. Don J. Almeida, formerly Ambassador to Great Britain, is going to London, as envoy extraordinary.

October 6.

A Cornwall paper observes as follows:—"We lately stated, that several seamen of the American States' schooner Revenge, had offered to enlist with the officer of the British Royal Marines, now on the recruiting service in Truro, but that he had sent them back to the American commander, with a declaration that he could not countenance deserters. We should have been happy to state, that this honorable conduct on the part of a British officer had produced an equally honorable return from the Americans; but what will the American declaimers upon national honor and political justice say, when we tell them, that captain Reed, of the United States schooner Revenge, an officer and a vessel rendered conspicuous by being the bearer of instructions from the American Executive to its Minister in London on a dispute between the two countries, in which desertion and the encouragement of deserters form so prominent a feature—that this Capt. Reed, so obliged, and so stimulated to honorable feeling, refused to give up one of the crew who had declared himself a deserter from a British regiment? Yet such is the fact. It is a fact too, that several others of the crew of the Revenge, declared themselves British subjects; and that they were not claimed as such, and taken out of the ship, was owing to the delicacy and prudence of the British officers to whom they offered themselves; who considering that the wish was nothing the return of dispatches from the American Minister, would not furnish a pretence to the Americans, that their vessel had suffered any detriment or delay in her mission, by weakening her crew."

October 8.

At the levee yesterday, Mr. Munroe, the American Ambassador, was presented to his Majesty, by the master of the ceremonies, His Excellency took leave of his Majesty, previous to his departure for America. Mr. Munroe is succeeded in his Embassy, by Mr. Pinckney.—Previous to the levee, Mr. Munroe had an interview with Mr. Canning. [The above ceremony is generally dispensed with, when Ministers leave the British Court dissatisfied.]

October 9.

Mr. Munroe, the American Minister, had his final interview with Mr. Canning on Wednesday. His departure is in no respect connected with the dispute with America. The final answer of our government on that subject has already been sent off to Mr. Erskine.

Instructions it is said, have been sent out to India, to impose an additional duty on neutral vessels trading there.

It is reported that the next French legislative body will be composed of two chambers viz. an upper chamber, in which will sit and vote all the princes, dukes, counts, marquises, and barons, lately created; and a lower chamber, composed of deputies from all the departments, each of which will have an intendant and parliament.

The Bourbon king of France, (Louis XVIII) and suite, are momently expected in England.

Great apprehensions were entertained at Constantinople, that the British squadron at the mouth of the Dardanelles would attempt to force that passage.

From a London paper of October 3.

The blockade, which was so arrogantly and absurdly announced by the French Government against this country, and which is now carrying into the most rigorous execution in Holland, has, at length we understand, determined his Majesty's Ministers, to resort to a measure of retaliation, which must be severely felt by France and the countries under its dominion. It is a deplorable consideration that the interests and happiness of France and so many states on the Continent, should be thus dependent on the will of an individual, who is evidently resolved to disregard every feeling of justice and humanity, in order to gratify his rancour against Great Britain. Britons may hence infer what they would suffer, if by a desertion of their own rights, or a negligence of supporting them, they should ever fall into the power of so violent and unrelenting an enemy. But while we are disposed resolutely to preserve the blessings we enjoy, we may bid defiance to all his menaces; and our naval strength gives us a full opportunity of inflicting upon him and his subjects-states, that blockade which he has ridiculously awarded against the British Empire. It is now said to be determined, that no vessel shall enter a port of France or of any state under its controul. We feel much concern at the necessity of thus throwing any obstacle in the way of that commercial intercourse which is so advantageous to Europe in general, and upon which such wide and complicated interests depend; but it is necessary to convince Bonaparte that we can really inflict that evil which he has vainly threatened; and, though we are almost hopeless of seeing any resolute endeavor, on the part of the people of France, or of any other state governed by France, to throw off the authority which so much oppresses them or at least to put some check upon it; yet the grief and indignation which they must feel from the adoption of a measure to which we are absolutely driven by France, may possibly arouse them to a sense of their wrongs, and shew how much revion shall we have to rejoice, that while we resorted to the expedient of a fair retaliation, which our nation-dent of a fair retaliation, which our nation-al pride as well as national interest had rendered unavoidable, we at the same time contributed to effect the restoration of Europe from a shameful submission and dependence on the arbitrary will of an impetious man, whose aftonishing elevation has absolutely intoxicated his mind, and made him a slave to his own passions, while he tyranizes over every port of Europe but this country, whose judgment he cannot deceive, and whole spirit he never will subdue.

Copenhagen, Sept. 23.

The Danish ships have all their guns on their poops, quarters and main decks. The stores in the arsenals are beyond calculation; it will take two months to get them on board; the piles of shot are immense. Exclusive of the stores shipped on board the transports, the men of war, both English and Danish, it is said, are loaded to the bends.

Fifteen sail of the line, besides frigates, are in the roads. The carpenters are pulling to pieces the ships on the stocks, and shipping the timber. In a few days, 150 vessels, with stores, (40 of them sail cloth) will be under way for England. The whole convoy will exceed 300 sail.

GOTTENBERG, Sept. 29.

"The Danish Crown Prince, it is said, will not recognize the Capitulation of Copenhagen. By not complying he may bring great distresses on the inhabitants of Zealand. One fact has roused the public indignation against the Danish government, towards which we, in Sweden, were disposed to feel nothing but commiseration.—It is that of having caused the Skaw Lights to be put out. Some American vessels which lately entered our port, were thrown into great embarrassment by this scandalous piece of puerile malice, which endangers the lives of neutrals and friends, as well as foes. Conduct like this, envenoms the hostility between nations at war, and helps to further a return to the barbarism of the middle ages."

New York, Nov. 23.

Capt. Sammis, from Halifax, informs, that he left that port on the 8th November, that just as he was getting under way, the British October Packet arrived there in 23 days from Falmouth, and that he was informed by the passengers, that all strangers in England, that could not give a satisfactory account of themselves had been put under arrest; and that the British government had prohibited all neutrals from trading to any of their enemy's ports.

The following vessels have arrived at Quebec from Halifax, with troops for the defence of that Province; ship Matilda, with 7 officers and 207 privates; brig Angelina, with 164 officers and privates; ship Paragon, 8 officers and 221 privates; schr. Nancy, 88 officers and privates; schr. Sally, from Prince Edwards Island, with 50 officers and privates; schr. Chance, from St. Johns, with 48 men of the Newfoundland regiment.

November 26.

From Europe.—The foreign articles presented in our last (says the Boston Gazette of the 23d inst.) were to October 12, morning. Since which a London paper has been received, dated on the evening of the same day. It announces, that Mr. Erskine, who now resides in this country, as an accredited Minister from England, was to be recalled by his government, and a new Minister to be appointed in his stead. No reasons are assigned for this measure; nor is the name of the gentleman contemplated to fill his office, mentioned; that the British Cabinet had given definitive answers to all the demands of our Ministers; that Mr. Munroe had taken his passage on board of a private ship, which was expected to sail for America in the course of all Oct. Although the alarm of war with this country had nearly subsided, still there was experienced much difficulty and embarrassment in procuring those ready freights, which a few months since were general, throughout all the ports in England. A number of American vessels detained, and carried into their ports, had been liberated, on paying falvage, costs, &c.

On Wednesday evening last, (says the Londonderry Journal of August 25.) a sailor belonging to the American ship Hannah, fell from the fore-yard on the deck, and was so severely hurt, that he lived but a very short time after. About two hours previous to the melancholy accident, a female passenger fell out of the board into the water, in attempting to go up the the ship's side, when the deceased immediately threw off his jacket and shoes, leaped in and rescued her from a watery grave. This generous and heroic act not only acquired him the esteem and regard of his messmates, but the universal admiration of the passengers on board, who, in order to evince their gratitude, eagerly prefled forward to treat him, by which means it is said, he got himself intoxicated, which circumstance unfortunately led to the catastrophe. The next day his remains, accompanied by all the sailors in harbor, who walked in solemn procession, and many respectable citizens, were decently interred in the Church Yard, where an appropriate funeral oration was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Hay. Never, indeed, have we heard a service more opposite the occasion or which seemed to make a more deep impression, and we sincerely hope a lasting one, in the minds of the those present. What a warning to the unfortunate victims of intemperance, who sacrifice health, fusbtance, life itself, and what is still worse than all, the prospects of hereafter, to the wretched pleasure of drinking a slow but sure poison, prepared by a process to enervate the faculties of soul and body, and pave the way for the commission of every heinous crime.

The York Gazette.

YORK, DECEMBER 23, 1807.

The York Assembly, which commenced on Thursday the 17th inftant, was honored by the attendance of His Excellency and Mrs. Gore. It was not numerous. A powerful and Mrs. Fork, the amiable Lady of the Attorney General, (lately arrived) was a distinguished figure.

Our States papers detail the particulars of an engagement between a collection of Indians on the Missouri, and an officer of American troops, with an account of the killed and wounded of the latter. Judging from the various reports respecting the affair of the Chesapeake, our impression is, (as hereinbefore) that no war will take place between Britain and America: it at present remains for the latter to decide, and we presume there is sufficient patriotism in their national legislature to counteract the illiberal bias in their executive; a short time will determine. The French and Spaniards continue their depredations upon the American commerce with unceasing vigor.

The English papers announce letters from Lord Collingwood, informing of the capture of 8 Turkish. 1 Venetian, 3 French, and 17 Spanish vessels.

The British Captains Hunter, Otway, Sir S. Hood, Sawyer, Keats, Pender, Lurmdale, Nicholls and Gould, have been appointed Rear Admirals.

A letter from Gottenburgh of the 29th September, mentions that the unfortunate Lewis XVIII. is about to seek an afylum in England.

FIRE—At Spa, (in Germany) 195 houses, valued at 380,000 dollars, was destroyed in September last.

The operation of the Non-Importation Law, which, if not repealed, will go into effect the 14th December, is stated to be the event which will put an end to all the negociations for Peace, and make a War inevitable. From several quarters we learn, that petitions are signing, praying Congress to repeal that law, those, therefore, who wish for Peace, and think this repeal likely to effect the continuation of it, ought to be speedy in transmitting their petitions to Congress.—Boston Gazette.

INTERESTING TO COMMERCE.

The last London papers contain the following article, interesting to our merchants who trade to India.—"Instructions, we understand have been sent to India, to impose an additional duty of 20 per cent on all neutral vessels trading to all ports of that country, within British jurisdiction.—Boston Gaz.

The Merchants and Traders of Philadelphia, have signed a Memorial to Congress, praying a repeal of the Non-importation act; as they consider it in its application to this country as extremely embarrassing, and it its operation on the government and people of Great Britain, as irritating and inefficient." The same measure is suggested in the Boston papers to be pursued by the merchants of that town. Albany Gaz.

Dr. Mitchell, in a speech in Congress on the subject of further security for our ports and harbors, and in which he admits that the states of the West and the North are as proper objects of the care of government as those of the East and the South, communicates the following very unpleasant intelligence—"That the warlike and murderous Sioux were actually at WAR with us on the Missouri; and that a state of commotion scarcely less than a war had long existed in Mexico." ib.

Chambersburg, (Penn.) Nov. 24.

On Thursday last, the celebrated general Moreau, passed through this place, on his way to Pittsburg, from thence he intends visiting New-Orleans. As this great military character has lately made his peace with Bonaparte, his intended visit will no doubt give rise to some speculation!

Mr. William Bates, (of the Beach) his family and friends, have experienced an affecting loss in the death of Mrs. Bates, who departed this life on the 17th inftant.

Died, in London, at an advanced age, Sir Brooke Watson, Bart. Alderman of Cordwainer's Ward, and for several Jubilee Mayoralties, and for several years Member of Parliament for the City of London. He served as Commissary General to the army in America, during nearly the whole of the American war, and likewise accompanied the army under the Duke of York, to Holland, in the same capacity. He lost a leg by the bite of a Shark.

BALTIMORE, July 23.

From Cadiz.—At the time Capt. Foster sailed, markets at Cadiz were very dull for flour: nominal price, $12 a 13. Tobacco now allowed to be landed except when sold to government, or to the Contractors with them—last price at which they have purchased was $11 per quintal, which would not be given for a cargo just arrived. A valuable ship belonging to the Philipine Company, just brought from England (formerly the Sir William Pultney, E. Indiaman) fitted out at great expense, with a valuable cargo of Copper and other effects, and about $200,000 in specie, (at the time of the sailing owned in Cadiz) was captured on the evening of the day she left the port, by two insurgent privateers, one of 20, the other of 10 guns, and this morning (14th) the crew of the said ship, and of a Spanish Barca, then in co. bound to the Spanish Maine, were sent in on board said Barca, which also had on board a bout $50,000 (which was taken out.)—the cannonading was distinctly heard from Ca iz, and although a supposition of the c use, none of the cruizers, of which 4 or 5 were lying in the bay, ventured out until four days after. There was some talk of another expedition being fitted out for S. America; but a want of means would probably retard its going into effect. Prayers were offered up and all amusements suspended, in consequence of the approaching accouchment of the Queen.—A considerable sensation had been felt among the holders of Spanish government paper, or vales reales, in consequence of a new system of finance, proposed by the new Minister of "Hacienda," Garay, which it was supposed would be carried into effect—A copy of the system, with several Madrid Gazettes, have been politely handed by Capt. Foster for publication, together with a late Gibraltar Price Current 11th June.—C. H. B.

CHARLESTON, July 17.

We had no mail yesterday North of Fayetteville, N. C. The overflowing of the streams on the road, in consequence of the late heavy rains, is supposed to be the cause of this failure.

July 19.

From Amelia Island.—We have seen several letters from St. Mary's and Amelia Island, received by yesterday's mail, which confirm the verbal accounts received here a few days since, from the same quarter, that the prospects of the Patriots were by no means so flattering as at first represented. Had M'Gregor pushed for St. Augustine, immediately on his landing at Amelia, while the Spaniards were panic struck and flying before him, he might perhaps have gained possession of that fortress—but he has lost that opportunity by delay; his followers are becoming dissatisfied; while the inhabitants of Florida are taking the alarm from the misconduct of his out-posts; and the planters are petitioning the officers of the American government on that frontier, for permission to bring their negroes into our territory for safety.

Extract of a letter dated Fernandina, July 2, 1817.

"I cannot form any opinion as to the future operations of the Patriots, they are at present limited to the Island. I fear they will fail in their laudable scheme; they have no force. Every thing favored their occupation and march to St. Augustine. The Dons were panic struck. There is at present a restlessness among the people under their flag. Some outrages have been committed by their out parties. There was a sale here to-day, of 31 slaves, seized 4 days ago. They were seized, tried, condemned and sold in that time. These proceedings injured the cause, and should they not receive large reinforcements, I fear they will have to abandon the place. The consequences of such an event are much to be dreaded."

From Nassau papers, by the sloop Brothers, July 5.

By the recent arrivals from Havanna, we learn with regret that the mortality has been great among the shipping, and that it still continues to be very sickly.

Another Spanish vessel with a cargo, and specie to the value of 16,000 dollars has been taken on her passage from Principe to this port.

Extract of letters, communicated for the Charleston Courier.

"JERSEY POINT, (Geo.) July 19.

"There is hardly enough of floating matter here to make a letter, although M'Gregor is so near us. All his movements appear to be confined to Amelia Island; if I am not deceived he will not benefit that province much. I see no means, either in soldiers or money. Several have already quit him, and others are much dissatisfied. But I am not sufficiently in his secrets to form a correct idea of what he may be in expectation of this fall. He has been perfectly quiet as yet, with the exception of levying a few taxes on shop keepers, tavern keepers, &c. &c."

"ST. MARY's, July 19.

"I suppose you have heard the particulars of the capture of Amelia Island &c. Last evening the Patriots had a reinforcement of some say 100, others only 30 men, from Charleston, in a schr. of about 80 or 100 tons, [the Joseph, capt. Dixon.] They have been joined, as yet but by very few people who reside in Florida, though twenty have joined them from this place."

We understand that a company of U. States troops, under the command of capt. Paine, will embark at this place in the course of a few days, for Point Petre, near St. Mary's, for the protection of that frontier.

We learn from captain Pond, of the schr. Ellen Tooker, arrived at Quarantine, some further particulars respecting the affairs of S. America. Capt. P. states that one division of the patriot troops which had joined the royalists, was commanded by Gen. Teran, in the province of Peubla. The cause of their defection is stated to have arisen from the disunion among the patriot officers, and the influence which the King's proclamations and offers of pardon, &c. had upon them. Gen. Victoria Guadaloupe, commanding a division of patriots, was at Vera Cruz, closely besieged by the royal army. General Mina's head-quarters were at Soto La Marina, which place he had fortified and had a garrison of about 1000 men. Many persons had flocked to his standard, and he had marched with his army against St. Louis Potosi.

From the Savannah Museum of July 22.

A person who has been in St. Augustine for the last thirty days, has just arrived from that place, who informs us, that the Governor of that Province feels himself perfectly secure from any attacks that the Patriots can make; and moreover, has provision for nine months, and can make a resistance against a force of five thousand men.

From the New-Orleans Gazette of July 2.

Piracy.—The brigs Freelove, De Morant, and Pomona, Rivarde, both belonging to this port, arrived in the river a few days since, from Campeachy.—On their passage, near Sisal, they were plundered by a small privateer, called the Mary, Captain ——, under the Mexican flag, and bearing a commission from Commodore Aury.—She is known to be the same that was fitted out some time ago in this port, and before her sailing lay in front of Marigny's fauxbourg: she is a small clinker built vessel, with 12 or 14 men on board, all of whom spoke English, and, (we blush at the disgrace of our country) all appeared to be Americans. The amount taken from the Freelove was inconsiderable: but they robbed the Pomona of near $12,000 in specie, the greatest part of which was ensured in this city at a low premium. These freebooters gave the captain and passengers to understand that they would take specie wherever they might find it, without respect to the flag by which it might be protected. In addition to robbing them, they abused the crews and passengers in the most shameful and barbarous manner. In consequence of this atrocious piracy, insurance on specie, indigo, cochineal, vanilla, and other valuable articles, has risen from one half to 10 per cent.

On arriving at the Balize, captain Morant, reported the occurrence to capt. Morris, of the frigate Congress, who, after making the most minute enquiries in relation to the vessel and crew, immediately weighed and sailed in pursuit of her. We hope most fervently that he may fall in with her, and that the scoundrels on board may be brought to exemplary punishment.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser of Monday.

By the arrival at this port yesterday of the brig Aurelia, Capt. Leach, in 66 days from Algiers, we learn that a frigate arrived at that place on the 9th May from Constantinople, a present from the Grand Seignior to the Dey of Algiers. A few days previous a detachment of about four hundred tons burthen, arrived from the same place, laden with implements of war of every description. The Grand Seignior had highly complimented, and conferred many honors on the Dey for his firmness and intrepidity in the defence of the city against the late attack of the British fleet under the command of Lord Exmouth, and the whole tenor of his conduct during the late unhappy state of affairs; has presented him with a captain's dress on the occasion, which is considered the highest reward of valor. On the 11th, 13th and 14th of May, great public rejoicings was manifested in consequence of the honor his Highness the Dey had received from the Grand Seignior. Salutes of cannon were fired on those days three times a day from more than 800 pieces of cannon.

On the 26th of May, an Algerine brig and schr. sailed on a cruise, against what power was not known. Their navy may now consist of one frigate, two sloops of war lately arrived from Constantinople, (repairing,) one sloop of war on the stocks, building, three 18 gun brigs, and one 18 gun schr. at sea.

On the 25th May, a Tuscan Ambassador arrived at Algiers; for the purpose of negociating a treaty between that Dukedom and the regency of Algiers.

We have received the Port-au-Prince Telegraph, of June 29, which is filled with a variety of official papers of the government of the United States of Venezuela. The first of these is a proclamation of Santiago Marino, Captain General and first chief of the armies of the republic to the people of Venezuela, dated May 10, 1817, year 7.

The second is an act of government, confirming Bolivar's decree proclaiming freedom to slaves and enacting a penalty for its violation.

The third a commission to the Honorable citizen Louis Brion, appointing him Admiral of the Venezuelian navy forces, and Captain General of the armies by land and sea.

The fourth is a military law, passed May 13 of the year 7 of the liberties of the Venezuelians, declaring every individual from 14 to 60 years of age, soldiers of the republic, and requiring them to present themselves in the towns of the several military commanders, who are to enrol their names, ages, place of birth, &c. Those who neglect are to be considered enemies of the republic, and punished according to circumstances.

Next follows an act of the Supreme Executive powers of the United States of Venezuela, passed May 17th, of the year 7, which after a preamble expressing the desire of the republic to show its gratitude to Great Britain and the United States of North America, for the hospitality shown to emigrants of the republic, and for admitting her ships into their ports, and respecting her flag on the high seas, decrees that English or North American manufactures, merchandize of any kind, imported into Venezuela under the flags of these two nations "shall pay but six per cent. and two per cent to the admiralty, which the merchants of other countries pay"—All produce of the country to which the vessel belongs to pay no more duty than is enacted of citizens. All arms and military stores are free of duty, as well as the return cargoes purchased for them. The article is to expire during the war. English and North American vessels to proceed from port to port of the republic without being charged with duty.—Citizens and subjects of these two countries who may settle in Venezuela, will be specially favored.

Then follows a bulletin, dated May 12, giving an account of a battle fought by Gen. Piar in Guiana, in which he claims to have routed the royalists, taken 500 prisoners, including in the number Cruth, gov of Guiana, & 17 officers.

The next article is a decree of the Executive government, in which it is declared that the style of the Sovereign Congress of Venezuela shall be "The Honorable Congress, the title of the executive shall be The Respectable, that of the judiciary, The Just. The title of High Officers is Honorable, and these titles are to be given in all official correspondence. "Thus the Respectable Executive Power hath decreed."

The next article is as follows, "Palace of the Government, at Pampatar, May 12, 1817, year 7.—Considering the distinguished services rendered by the inhabitants of this island, [Island of Margarita] in the struggle which they have maintained for the destruction of the tyranny and for the glory of the republic, this island shall take the name of New Sparta, on account of the resemblance of the heroism which they have exhibited to that of the ancient republic of that name in Greece. Thus communicated by the Respectable Executive Power for publication.

"CASIANO BAZARES, Sec'y."

The next and last article is a decree that the flag of the Venezulian ships of war shall bear 7 stars, representing the seven provinces, but merchant vessels shall carry only a tri coloured flag.

Cannon Foundery.—The proving and inspection of nearly ninety tons of cannon took place last week at the new foundery lately established by Peter Townsend, Esq. on Chamber's Creek, Newburgh.—They are the first cannon ever manufactured in the state of New-York, and for smoothness of surface, hardness of metal, and accuracy of boring were never excelled. The whole quantity passed the "ordeal" of double charges, and the most scrutinous inspection without a single condemnation. Thirty tons more are nearly completed. We learn some very valuable improvements have been made in the mode of boring and drilling.—The establishment is on a large scale, consisting of two furnaces and four boring mills, &c. which does great credit to the indefatigable proprietor, and worthy of the state of New-York.—The metal used is exclusively from the Mount Pleasant furnace, owned also by Mr. Townsend, and made of the well known sterling ore.—Nat. Int.

Fortunate escape.—During the thunder storm on Monday last, a few miles south of this village a large tree fell across the instant a gentleman was passing it in a chaise—the top of which fell upon the chair, one each side of the gentleman, and broke it down. The gentleman escaped unhurt.—Geneva Pal.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE of COMMONS, May 12.

Catholic Question,—May 9.

General Mathew said he should not have risen to offer one word upon the subject, were it not for the question asked by the Right Hon. Gentleman. He could answer that there was not at this moment a document in this country, which stated that his Holiness the Pope was ready to agree to any arrangement of domestic concerns which this country and the Catholics of Ireland might adopt.

Mr. Canning said he could not give a silent vote on this occasion, consistently with that policy which he had felt it his duty to adopt in respect to this measure. He felt it the more necessary to say something, after a speech of consummate ability which they had just heard from his Right Hon. Friend. The result, however, of his statement, amounted to no more than this, that by the question the House was placed in a state of infinite difficulty.—(Hear.)—It was true that they would have no other way of going or backward, that would be perfectly satisfactory. He allowed that, even if the measure was introduced and adopted, there would still remain several anomalies in the law. But the question was, whether by going so far they would remove any of the existing fundamentals ces without danger to the establishment? If he thought that the slightest hazard of that nature could result, he would agree that they ought to pause where they now were, rather than risk such a danger; but being in his conscience convinced, that they might go with safety to the extent of the measure now proposed, he did not hesitate to say, that they ought to go further.—They should weigh the disadvantage of the anomalies they might create with the state of things which they would get rid of. He would take the measure of 1813—he would take the ground of their admission into Parliament. If such a measure was agreed to, he was satisfied that at no distant period they would see many professors of that religion in the House. There were no classes of people in which they might obtain more those who by their rank were entitled to the distinction, and those who by taking advantage of Catholic disabilities, to inflame the passions of the people, could not shew so good a claim. He would say, that to open the doors of the House of Commons to such men as these, would be to nullify the mischiefs they had created.—(Hear. hear.)—By bringing them there, they would have an opportunity to cope with the mischief. His Right Honorable Friend could state that the country was satisfied with the system; if so, he would say, let it stand as it is. But if there was an uneasiness of discussion, both in Ireland and here, he would not be deterred, because he could not do all that ought to be done, from doing all that could be done. It had been stated, that they ought to be sure that effects would follow, and how could they be sure?—(Hear. hear.)—It was not by cannon out of doors, but by enactments within, that they were to be decided in their conduct. If the Catholics would not accept the boon, still let Parliament consider the Act, and they would find that those whom Parliament governed would soon obey. They were not to consider the Catholics alone, but the benefit of the whole community.—As to what the Pope might be prepared to do, it could not become a matter of previous negociation. If the tendency of the measure was to conciliate, he cared not at which side the work began, whether from the solemnity benevolence of the Legislature, or the supplication of the Catholics, which called that benevolence into action.—The former measure had produced discontent in Ireland and satisfaction at Rome; the reason of which was, that in Rome they thought it was carried, while in Ireland they knew it failed. This afforded reason for thinking that if it had passed, the same effects would have followed in both countries. He was not deterred by the contemplation of any uncertainty in the result from voting for the Committee. (Hear, hear, mixed with cries of Question! question!)

Mr. Grattan then rose to reply.—"Sir, with respect to this difficulty that is supposed to arise from going unprepared into the committee, I would ask the honorable gentleman, whether he can ever send you securities,—you can never send you securities of domestic nomination. I positively say that the sense of the Catholics is such as to prevent them from submitting.—What is for the good of the Catholic, is for the good of the whole. It is your duty to save the country, and not to accommodate any particular set of men. An honorable gentleman, whose regret was not more sincere than his eloquent, observed in the course of his remark, that this was a Protestant Constitution. He may baptise the constitution if he will, but originally it was Catholic—that is, it was founded by Catholics.—All the great laws to which the people owe their liberty were the work of Catholics.—At the time of the revolution our ancestors contented themselves with making a Declaration of Rights, because they could not go further than the Catholics had gone. The Bill of Rights was a Declaratory Law; it was declaratory of the privileges obtained by our Catholic ancestors—those who deny that Catholics have a right to demand emancipation, found their argument on inference. But you cannot take away prerogative by inference. But there is this great error in their argument—they found their inference on the principle of the Act. First, they say that the Catholics are liable to pains and penalties, which do not exist—and from this they draw their inference. An honorable member, on the second bench, was pleased to say, that at the time of the revolution, the exclusion of the Catholics was a fundamental principle of the constitution. At that time a danger threatened the religion of the country—but still you will observe, that the disabilities which the Catholics complained of, and which were now increased, did not take place till after the revolution. Some of them were enacted in the latter part of William's reign, and others took place in the reign of Anne. Now, what sort of an experiment was this? It was an experiment to uphold one religion, by inflicting pains and penalties on the professors of another. But, if you look a little further, you will find that the oath afterwards administered, was not a penal one against the religion of the Catholics—but an oath imposed on such persons as were then supposed to obey the temporal power of the Pope. And in order to shew that I do not mistake the facts, I will read to you the preamble of the Act of Parliament, in which the principle is laid down. [The Right Honorable Gentleman here read the preamble of the Act of Queed Anne, which, after reciting an Act of William III set forth, that the aforesaid Act was too severe against persons professing the Catholic religion; and then went on to state, that to admit the temporal superiority or power of the Pope, or See of Rome, in Great Britain, Scotland and Ireland, was contrary to the law of the land; be it therefore enacted, that a certain oath be taken, by persons of the Catholic persuation.] The Parliament (continued the Rt Honorable Gentleman) gave its opinion on the nature of this oath. They said, that this oath was not to militate against the Catholic religion, but against the temporal power of the Pope. They declared that it was an abstract Act, and they substituted in its place the oath of allegiance. Here is the opinion of your own Parliament, in 1793, on the nature of the oath—and their express declaration, that the oath of the Catholics was not intended as a fundamental oath, but was only meant to operate against those who paid obedience to the temporal power of the Pope—that it was, in fact, a dogma—and that the oath of allegiance had been inserted in its place. This is the opinion of your own Parliament against the fundamentality of the oath—which Gentlemen call an unalterable law, and an essential part of the Constitution. I have the authority of the Parliament of England—to re-affirm the verity of what I have said.—The 4th article of the Union with Ireland recognized the same principle. It says, 'and that the Lords of Parliament of the U. Kingdom, and that every Member of the House of Commons in succeeding Parliaments of the United Kingdom, shall use and take, and make and subscribe the said oath.' There was, first a declaration of the fundamentality of the oath—and here is a provision made by the Parliament of Great Britain and Ireland for doing it away. What, then, do these persons do, who contend for the fundamentality of this oath? There, say they, is an opening for you to come to the British Parliament, to provide for an alteration of the exclusive oath—and now, having annulled the Irish Parliament, we tell you, that the exclusion still remains, and that you must not interpret it according to the Act of Union—the exclusion is a final law of the land. Parliament said the same with respect to the Scotch Union—and those who wished for the fundamentality of this oath, declare that, if you hold out a hope to a set of men, and tell them, 'persons of your religion shall be permitted to political power,' you may at a future period, when you have gained as many votes as you wanted, turn round and say, 'We find exclusion to be a fundamental law of the land, and, therefore, you shall be deprived of certain privileges.' This was not the intention of the Legislature. Parliament was incapable of breaking a provision sole and made. You may object, that it was not the desire of Parliament to annex fundamental principles to the oath connected even with the religion of the State. There is a motion to be found on the Journals of the House of Lords, which proves this. It was moved, that the House should receive into their communities, 'to declare a certain oath fundamental, which disqualified every person who did not take the sacrament, according to the Church of England, from sitting in Parliament. On this motion, the question was put, and it was rejected by a great majority. Here, then, is the opinion of the Lords, as you before had the declaration of your own House of Parliament, which shews us, that these laws, with respect to religion, are not fundamental, but are subject to revision. From all that had been urged, I must infer and conclude, that the Protestants have no exclusive right laid down—that they have no exclusive right to the Constitution. Then comes another question—what right have the Protestants to exclude the Catholics? I agree, that, with respect to the right of sitting in Parliament, circumstances may arise, which may make it necessary to have a right, not to this or that office, but a right to make a law. A law that is limited must be limited for some reason. It is for the Legislature to discover those reasons; and, if they are vicious or arbitrary, the Legislature are guilty of an act of injustice if they proceed on them.—Because, let an office be, in its very nature, ministerial or executive, it is the common law that gives capacity—and it is the province of Parliament, when necessary, to limit it. That necessity can only be founded on a good reason. Now I say religion is not a good reason for limiting incapacity, and merit is good for it. So far as it is a sentiment of the mind—as far as it is the feeling of the individual—the Parliament cannot interfere with it. It is a human legislature between God and his creatures! Religion, therefore, is not a political right, though it may be brought within some considerations of a political nature. If we look to the Catholic religion, as connected with the Pope, it will at once be conceded that that circumstance will not justify the obedience of a subject to a foreign power—and, therefore, the Veto was devised to meet that evil, and to prevent it. Here, then, that danger ceases. Again, we produce the domestic nomination. Both the Veto and domestic nomination are laid at your feet—is that the argument founded on the necessity of checking foreign influence is put an end to. For, if you have not checked some, it is your own fault—and you reject an ample security for the independence of the Church and State, in order to continue your monopoly of power. The charge of moral obscurity in the Catholic religion has been completely met by the unanswerable declarations of the Catholic Prelates, who state, that it is not the doctrine of the Catholic religion, to support or obey any foreign or temporal power, and who tell you, that, to break faith with heretics is not a part of their creed. Besides, there is another argument against it, which is founded on the Divinity of the Christian Religion. Moreover crimes are incompatible with the Christian religion, which they profess—and the argument of moral atrocity applies not peculiarly to the Catholic religion alone, but against Christianity in general. The reasoning went to this, that the religion of Christendom is an abomination. If it be an abomination, why do you continue to tolerate it? You must either give on your argument or your religion—for say, they of Christian religion exists only in England, Scotland, Sweden and part of the North of Ireland, viz: in the counties of Armagh, Down, and one or two others. The idea is entirely inconsistent with the Christian religion, and, therefore I shall dismiss the subject. From this question of moral atrocity, I shall now go to the assertion that the communication of the Catholics is incompatible with the safety of England. The plain meaning of this is, that a man cannot be a good subject unless he go to church. The absurdity of this doctrine is so manifest, that it does require a formal refutation.—Then comes the influence of the Pope on the feelings of the Roman Catholics—Sir, I beg leave to know what has Parliament said on this subject. The Irish Parliament declared, that the Catholics were good subjects. In 1791, they stated, that it was necessary for the security of the country to give them a share of political power. That Parliament gave them the privilege of holding landed property, and not arms in their hands. Gentlemen assigned, that it was contrary to the principles of the constitution to let Roman Catholics possess power civil or military office. Now, I will read an extract from the act, passed in 1791, which rebuts this assertion. The statute says, "Be it enacted, that it shall and may be lawful for Papists, or persons professing the Popish or Roman Catholic religion, to hold, exercise and enjoy all civil and military offices, or places of trust and profit under his majesty."—(Hear, hear.)—Gentlemen contend that Catholics cannot be admitted to political power, because it is against the principle of the constitution—and here is a law expressly admitting them to the participation of that power. Now, I want to know, how is it contrary to the principles of the constitution to admit reasons of that persuasion to the enjoyment of civil or military offices? What then becomes of those arguments which say, that to suffer them to participate in political power, is contrary to the fundamental principles of the constitution; that it is against the law or the principles of the law? Let us consider the subject fairly, and we shall see with what marked inaccuracy those gentlemen have endeavored to argue four millions of their fellow subjects into perpetual bondage.—I now shall notice the conduct of the Catholics, which has been so roughly censured.—Here, I think, the parliament acquits them at once. The law that gave Catholics arms, acquitted them of intentions hostile to the state; and the law that gave them a vote at elections, and made them a part of the commons of the realm, proves that the legislature considered them to be devoted to the constitution. The letters of Cardinal Litta and Monsignore Quarantotti are decided parliamentary evidence of their allegiance. They both shew, that the allegiance of the Catholics was not against the feelings or sentiments of the Pope, but that he, on the contrary, encouraged and commended it. —What right had the legislature then to disfranchise the Catholics? I know that Parliament has the power of limiting the political capacity of the subject: but, I say, they have not a right to do it, without a powerful reason: and I will maintain, that the religion of the Catholics is not a proper reason. The charges readily made against them, charges which have not any solid basis, do not constitute any reason to disqualify them. And, therefore, I contend, that the present sets of disqualification are acts of power, acts of injustice, and ought to be repealed.—Hear, hear.]—I forgot to notice how the Catholics had made use of the power which they had from time to time acquired. I refer to your Generals and Admirals.—(Hear, hear.)—I will not speak of this battle or of that battle—I will not particularize this victory or that achievement—but I will ask, how can Gentlemen impeach their loyalty, who have seen them shed their blood in defence of that which it is said they mean to undermine?—Hear, hear, hear.]—An Honorable Gentleman opposite says, that if there were any commotion in the country, the Catholics would follow their orders. What right have we to assert that they would do so. What right have we to say, that those who filled your fleets and armies, when engaged in wars abroad, would act unworthily when confidence was placed in them at home. Would it not be hard to say, "whereas the Pope has suppressed the Society of Jesuits—and has suffered the revival of the Inquisition—therefore he is enacted, that Lord Fingal be attainted." You would say, 'No—this is an act of monstrous injustice, which we can never think of.' But when the loyalty of the whole Catholic community is impeached, with as little reason. It is hailed as a just and regular proceeding.—(Hear.) hear.]—You arrest a human tribunal, and for the offence of an individual, you then swell the character of your law into the commission of the Deity, and utter a denunciation against a whole community.—(Hear.)—It is the folly of your Code of Laws, that the Body are punished for the crimes (real or supposed) of an individual. The history of Ireland has been appealed to, as furnishing strong arguments in favour of the opponents of this question. What is that history. Why generally, it is the tale of an unhappy Province, ill-governed, and cruelly mismanaged. The historian is, in the case of Ireland, generally speaking, peculiarly bad authority. He wrote to gratify Power, and he flattered it. His own private advantage absorbed all his thoughts, all his contemplation only dwelt on that which might be turned to his own account, or that of his employers. But if you wish to state the case of Ireland fairly, don't go back to barbarous times and long exploded principles—state her transactions since she was united—take it, for instance, during the last 40 years: do not go back to senseless follies—do not say on this spot such a crime was committed, and on the other such a chieftain reared his despotic and merciless sway; but come at once to the point—say, here such a Catholic appeared on his ground, and nobly shared the dangers of that battle, the laurels of which it is not destined to share; here it stood the shock of battle, in defence of your Constitution. From which its brethren are to be for ever excluded.—(Hear, hear.) —Add to that their self-devotion to Britain, throughout the entire of her arduous struggle.—Repay them, that people the injury you have done them, and make the charm of your concord the force of your rule. Let them fight your battles and feel that they fight those free as they are brave.—(Hear, hear.)—

"His sword the brave soon drawn
And sure no cause but his country's cause"

Again and again, I say the principle of your law is bad—it attaints the child for the crime of the father, and makes discord and division the fundamental law of your policy. In vain will you fly for your defence to the moment when you oppose

ed Ireland, and the retaliated—rather take her character from the moment when you relaxed your impolitic code, and when she in return loved you and identified herself with you—when for the act of one party you disquality the whole, you are yourselves guilty of a crime—you are guilty of injustice—for what else is it to shut out so large a portion of your fellow-subjects from the attributes of law.—Law, then, will clearly not support you in your denunciation; see whether religion, the Protestant religion, will give you a better support for your proceeding. I have already said, that nothing short of shewing the Catholic religion to be an abomination, will give you this countenance; if you can say, the Catholic religion is an abomination, then you say the religion of a great portion of the civilized world is of that description. This would be a direct attack on the Protestant Church itself, for it would be an universal outrage on the Christian religion generally, of which that church is a part.—(Hear.)—It was, besides, an outrage upon the Deity; for what less can it be called when any human power arrogates to itself the right of judgment on points of conscience, and appropriates the Deity to his own exclusive use, transfers to himself the power of omnipotence, and brings the God-head to his own bosom, and all this for his own monopoly?—(Hear, hear.)—This position of the Deity, but from monopoly, and of a gross and rank nature. It had no celestial attribute about it—O, no! it smells of earth!' it wants every thing that is generous, noble, or true. Some gentlemen opposite spoke of the Constitution, the Glorious Revolution, the Revolution of the Act of Settlement, and of the danger to be apprehended from any principle of concession. Let them state in what the danger consisted. Until they did, their arguments were of no avail. For argument sake, what were the dangers?—For the sake of excluding three or four Catholics from having seats in Parliament, the whole community were to be disqualified.—Hear.—[In parts of this speech, the House showed some impatience.] I know that I have tired the House. —(Loud cries of Hear,)—and can easily imagine, that if I were at this place of assembly to the gentlemen present, I should be quite as impatient as they are, but I am entitled to say, that not having trespassed on the House in an opening speech, I have some little claim for their slight indulgence in my reply.—(Hear)—It was once said by Mr. Fox, that there was no mathematical proposition, however clearly demonstrated, that was not liable to contradiction, if self-interest had an object in denying it. So it was in the arithmetical consideration of this question. The Government of Ireland was in the hands of Protestants; the principle property of the country was with them. Was it likely that by the concession of these claims, those privileges or that property could be shaken? Suppose (Oh! impracticable supposition,) that if these claims were conceded to Ireland, the whole of her 100 Members returned hybrid members to the Imperial Parliament were Catholics, then did it follow, or was it likely, that they could influence the whole of the general Legislative bodies of the country.—If they succeeded in influencing the Commons House of Parliament, were they likely to have similar success in the Lords, and even if they had, were they likely to depose the King—for they must do all this before they had the power of overthrowing the Constitution?—But was this sort of calculation fair and honest towards the Catholics?—Was this a mathematical disquisition? Surely not!—The Catholic Question had been 30 years under discussion; it had gone through every sort of repetition, and the interest in its behalf had been doubled and doubled over again. In these discussions, no doubt, individual irritation arose and men appeared, and spoken and acted into some part of the populace. But the real question was, whether this state of things ought to be allowed to exist any longer? Are we to continue that sort of English connection in Ireland which has been called a settlement, and must be defended by an army paid by the people over whom it is placed? Is this what they call a settlement, after the years of their exclusive legislation and unbridled power, and powerful army? If it be not this, what were they doing during the centuries of Government which they held? To these Rulers I would say, —Have you been, during this lapse of time spinning round on your axis, and fancying that in your evolutions the people followed in your train? Was it for this your toasts of the glorious and immortal memory, and of successful party ebullition were eternally in your mouths? —These, then, have been your practices; and are they the return which you pay for the empire so long confided to you, and do you turn round upon us and call for military establishments to enable you to prop up your system?—Don't let us be deluded by your folly and absurdity, nor let us be led to identify the Constitution of England with your political malversation of it. Do not tell men whom you have robbed of their liberty—whom you have disqualified by your legislation, and by every sort of every shape of human endurance, that the fault is theirs, and not among their rulers. You are taught by God to love your enemy, but here you will not embrace your friend—such a system cannot last, depend upon it it cannot.—(Hear, hear.)—If you succeed in excluding the people from the State, they will, in the course of things, attach themselves elsewhere—they will fly to the Church of Rome to renew their ancient relations, that is, they will fasten close upon the connection of which you are so alarmed. The Catholic Body have no one to community with the State; they are morbid and excluded; and, on the other hand, the State is alive and vicious. Then let a new order of things mark the times in which we live, and let an immediate termination be put to any clandestine intercourse between them and the See of Rome. —(Hear.)—Do not seek for popularity, 'or dream that any measure of this kind must at once be attended with the results you anticipate from it.—Act wisely, liberally and rationally, and your measures of redress must be attended with the most beneficial success.—(Hear, hear.) —You may have, on some points, a popular outcry to endure, but that outcry must ever be transient when it is raised against the true interests of the people and privileges of the State.—(Hear.) England has grown up into a mighty Empire, she is obeyed in the remotest of the earth, and will you tolerate that her state shall be entangled and shackled with laws like these, and for the sake of a set of puny theologians and angry bigots, who torture their fellows while they seek for their own purposes to embroil their country in one common warfare?'—(Hear, hear, hear.)

The gallery was then cleared for a division, when there appeared—

A letter from Marseilles, of May 15, announces that an English frigate, which had just anchored in that port, was destined to convey the British Envoy to Constantinople. The presents embarked for the Turkish Emperor, were valued at a large amount.

Baron Rehausen, who has been Swedish Minister here for many years, has left town on a visit to Stockholm. The utmost secrecy continues to be preserved both here and in Sweden as to the affairs of that kingdom: it is nevertheless reported that two or three continental Powers (and among these we have heard Denmark and France named) are actively intriguing to dispossess Bernadotte's family of the throne of Sweden. Denmark expects to get back Norway by this overthrow; and Norway was part of the price paid for his support of the Allied Cause. —We confess, we do not exactly see what particular cause of enmity the French Government can have against him, and yet certain it is they have never fairly recognized him as Crown Prince. The Ambassador they sent him was a person of an inferior rank to the Swedish Ambassador at Paris, and he noticed the indignity immediately, with great spirit. To these adversaries may be added the Grand Duke of Baden, who is said to have sent an Ambassador Extraordinary (Baron Beust) to London, to solicit the British Cabinet on behalf of the son of Gustavus Adolphus, and nephew of the Grand Duke. Our readers will not fail to connect the Swedish Ambassador's sudden departure with all these reports. In the mean time we may fairly presume, that the British Government takes no share whatever in any of these intrigues. The dignified line of policy which has kept our Cabinet aloof from interfering even in the affairs of Spain and her colonies (a case in which our own national interests are so deeply concerned) will be pursued in the case of Sweden. We apprehend, nevertheless, that Baron Rehausen carries over with him the sentiments of the British nation at least, if not of the government, on the subject of the late violent decrees issued by his Master against the British commerce. We hope also, that on the Baron's return, he will be instructed by Bernadotte to lay before the British people, to whom he is much indebted, a copy of the Secret Treaty which he lately concluded with America.

COURT MARTIAL.

Lord Castlereagh lately stated in the House of Commons, in reply to Mr. Brougham, that the subject to which the following Court Martial relates, was in course of explanation and discussion with the Spanish Government; the specie seized by the Spaniards, on the surrender of the Tay, amounted to 800, 000 dollars.

A Court Martial was held on board his Majesty's ship Salisbury, at Port Royal, on the 21st of February, and continued by adjournment (Sundays excepted) during 18 days, to investigate the conduct of Captain Samuel Roberts, C. B. and officers and crew of his Majesty's ship Tay, for the loss of that ship, off the eastern reef the Alacranes Isles (in the Gulph of Mexico) on the morning of the 11th of November, 1816; and of several of the crew, for their subsequent ill conduct; and for striking his Majesty's flag, which had been flying on board the wreck, and the surrendering themselves prisoners of war to the commander of the Spanish corvette Valency, and to try them for the same accordingly; and the Court having heard all the evidence, as well as what the prisoners alledged in their defence, and very maturely and deliberately weighed and considered the whole, pronounced—

"The Court is of opinion, that the loss of his Britannic Majesty's late ship Tay was owing to a strong westerly current, that could not be accounted for; and that every possible precaution appears to have been taken by Captain Roberts, for the safe conducting of his Majesty's late ship Tay; and farther, that every exertion was used by the officers in general, but particularly by acting Lieut. William Henry Geary, whose prompt and officer-like conduct, as officer of the watch, when the breakers were first discovered, entitle him to the approbation of the Court. The Court is therefore of opinion, that no blame whatever can be attached to captain Roberts, his officers, and crew, for the loss of his Majesty's said ship Tay; and they are hereby acquitted of all blame accordingly.

"Lastly, the Court taking into its full consideration every circumstance connected with the fact of Captain Roberts' striking his Majesty's flag, and surrendering himself, his officers, and crew as prisoners of war to the commander of the Spanish corvette Valency, and armed schooner Saragozana, is of opinion, that in consequence of the peculiar situation of the ship, her guns being entirely useless, her magazine drowned, the greater part of her crew on shore unarmed, on the island, 11 miles from the wreck, and the treacherous conduct of the Spaniards, in inveigling on board, and taking possession of the boats and their crews, all and every means of defence was rendered impracticable; that in this distressed and helpless situation the conduct of the Spaniards became so decidedly hostile and insulting, that no other alternative was left for preserving the dignity of his Majesty's flag, but that of striking it, which was accordingly done with the concurrence of every officer present; and the Court doth fully approve of Captain Robert's conduct, and that of his officers upon the trying occasion; and doth therefore acquit him, the officers and crew, of all blame; and they are hereby acquitted accordingly."

Letters from Rotterdam complain of a great stagnation of business. You hardly see a vessel arrive or depart with a cargo. Holland has lost many branches of commerce which formerly enriched her. The transportation of merchandise, which formerly made this country the general factory of Europe is a kind of business which is almost at an end; the United States have succeeded to it in part; their marine transports to the two continents the produce of the new world. In the Netherlands commerce is hardly more active than in Holland. Many ancient manufactories can hardly support themselves.

It appears from the Calcutta papers last received, that on the 4th of December, Mr. Gordon Forbes and Colonel Loveday delivered over the French settlement of Chandernagore to the Commissioners appointed to receive it by Louis XVIII. On the 5th of November the Frances Charlotte, with a detachment of the 78th regiment on board, struck on a reef off the desert island of Preparis, which lies about half-way between Cape Negrais, on the Coast of Pegue, and the Andamans. On the 10th, Capt. Weatherall, of the Prince Blucher, on nearing the island, fell in with some boats belonging to the Frances Charlotte, and took on board the crews, who had been several days without food. Learning that the rest of the seamen and troops, with a number of women and children, had got on shore on the island, he next day sent his boats to fetch the women and children, and as many men as possible. On the 12th they returned with Major Macpherson and his lady, Mrs. Macqueen, the wife of Capt. Macqueen, Dr. and Mrs. Brown, Lieutenants M'Kenzie and M'Crummen, with a number of lascars & soldiers' wives and children. A storm coming on, frustrated an attempt to get off the remainder next day. Captain Weatherall then made sail for Calcutta, where he arrived on the 26th. Next day the Nautilus cruiser was sent off with a supply of provisions for the sufferers on the island, which it was supposed she would reach in six days.—There were left on the island six officers, 90 privates, and 40 lascars. There are several fine springs in the island, and the coast furnishes shell fish in abundance; there is also plenty of wood.

The Embassy to China.

Extract of a letter from one of the gentlemen composing the suit.—"Notwithstanding our abrupt dismissal from the court, our journey, towards Canton, was not only attended by all the usual honors and marks of respect and attention shown to foreign embassies, but was rendered personally agreeable by a greater degree of liberty than, I believe was ever enjoyed in China by any foreign embassy whatsoever, even by that of Lord Macartney. The liberty of making frequent excursions into the country and into the cities was, perhaps, strictly speaking, a liberty rather taken than a liberty given; but not the least objection was made to it, or the least obstruction thrown in the way of it. The uncommon duration of the journey, which from the lowness of the rivers in particular spots, extended to four months, afforded unusual opportunities for these excursions; but it would have been easy for the officers of the government to have imposed much greater restraint, without even affording the ambassador any very tangible grounds, of complaint.—The old ground of Lord Macartney's journey was gone over to a great extent, but we also trod a considerable portion of new ground, or, more properly speaking, water. The chief novelty, however, was our navigation for six weeks, partly on that noble river the Yangtse-Kiang, and partly across that great inland sea the Po-yang-lake, to Nantchang-foo, during which we had an opportunity of visiting Nan-king, and the Luishan, a mountain remarkable for its picturesque scenery. Capt. Maxwell, of the Alceste, and a deputation of the British factory, met us at a short distance from Canton, into which port the ambassador was conducted by a procession of boats; but the Canton Chinese were very sulky, and neither saluted the embassy nor turned out a single soldier. We were lodged in a temple, among the gods of the heathen, which, however, to do the Chinese justice, has been fitted up in a very comfortable manner. The Alceste will be ready about the 24th inst. (January,) and we hope to see our friends in England the first week in June."

An Imperial Ukase was issued at St. Petersburg, in Russia, on Easter Sunday, in favor of converts from Judaism. The following are some of its principal articles:—

"1. All Jews embracing the Christian Religion in either confession shall have privileges granted to them, whatever profession they may adopt, suitable to their knowledge and abilities.

"2. In the Northern and Southern Government, lands shall be assigned them gratis, where such as please may settle at their own expense, under the name of the Society of Jewish Christians.

"3. This Society shall have its own privileges.

"4. At St. Petersburg a Board shall be formed, of which Prince Alexander Golytzen shall be President, under the denomination of Board for the affairs of Jewish Christians, on which and on no other Magistrates (except criminal cases) the Society depends.

"5. This Board is bound to attend to every thing relating to the settlements, and to report on it to the Emperor.

"6. In the settlements of the Jewish Christians, which are given them as an hereditary property for ever, the Society can carry on any kind of professions, build cities, villages, or single dwellings. The lands are given to the whole community, but not to individuals, and cannot be sold or mortgaged to strangers. In these settlements the Jewish Christians and their posterity have entire religious liberty in the Christian confession of faith which they embrace. The Society is under the immediate protection of the Emperor, and depends entirely on the Board of St. Petersburg, to which alone it gives account. No other local Magistracy shall interfere with them; their preachers are only under the Board. The internal government of the Society is under an administration of the Society of the Jewish Christians, consisting of two Superiors and four Adjutants, chosen by the Society from its own members, and confirmed by the Board. It manages the internal concerns, the police, &c. and has a particular seal. It may expel improper members and receive new ones, but must report on this to the Board. The members of the Society obtain the rights of citizens in the Russian Empire. They may carry on trade at home and abroad, conformably to the general laws, establish manufactories, &c. without being registered in any Guild. In their settlements the Society may brew beer, distil brandy &c. they are free from billeting of troops, and for twenty years from taxes; are not bound to military services; and foreign Jews, who, after embracing Christianity, join such a community, may leave the country when they have paid their debts, and the legal contributions for three years on the capital which they have acquired in Russia. This regulation excites the more attention, because it is well known that our Ambassadors in Germany are expressly ordered to give no more passports to those who desire to emigrate."

From Lower Canada.

MONTREAL, August 2d, 1817.

On Wednesday morning the 30th ult. the beautiful Seam Boat, LADY SHERBROOKE, the property of Messrs. John Molson & Sons, was launched from the ship yard of Hart Logan, Esq. This noble vessel moved towards her element, and entered it in a majestic style, accompanied with the plaudits of a vast concourse of admiring spectators. Not a single accident happened; no anchor was lost, nor a rope-yarn broken; a circumstance very uncommon on such occasions. It is admitted by competent judges of naval architecture, that the Lady Sherbrooke is the most perfect model of any Steam Boat yet built in America, except the Chancellor Livingston, now plying in Hudson's river, which is nearly of the same size and model.—The Lady Sherbrooke's dimensions are, as understand, as follow;—134 feet 4 inches keel; her rake both fore and aft being very great, she is nearly 180 feet on deck; breadth of beam 34 feet 5 inches. From these data, her register tonnage will be nearly 700 tons. Mr. Johnston, who superintended the building of this vessel, has given a renewed proof of superior talents in his distinguished profession; which cannot fail of securing to him the most liberal and deserved patronage. The Lady S. was taken in tow on Thursday morning by the Malsham, for Quebec, to receive her machinery, which arrived three weeks ago. This Boat is entirely calculated for the conveyance of goods; her cabin will only accommodate 10 or 12 passengers, but it can be greatly enlarged if found necessary.

We are sorry to learn that the Chinook prevails to an alarming degree at Ste. Marie, Nouvelle Beauce, and its vicinity. Not less, we are credibly informed, than twenty-two children died there in the course of a week. The want of medical assistance is severely felt in that quarter.—Quebec Paper.

UPPER-CANADA GAZETTE,
YORK;
THURSDAY, AUGUST 21, 1817.

We have great pleasure in mentioning the arrival of the Steam boat yesterday, from Kingston, which she left the day before, bringing up 25 cabin and 13 steerage passengers, and upwards of 1000 barrels bulk of Mercandize, for this place and Niagara.

A strong easterly wind for eight days, had lowered the water so much at the place where she got aground, that she was not floated until Thursday last, by the assistance of a party of men sent by the Officer commanding at Kingston. She was found to have sustained very little damage, only a small piece of the Keel, having been broken off.

The Steam boat brings a report, on the authority of a letter from an officer recently from England, that it is the intention of Government to reduce the number of Regiments to 80; and also, that all 2d Majors are to be reduced.

Arrived in the schr. Wellington, from Niagara, on Tuesday last, John Savery Brock, Esq. brother of the late Maj. Genl. Sir Isaac Brock, Bart.

New Name.—The place near the mouth of Canadaway Creek, on Lake Erie, which was formerly known as Chadwick's Bay, has lately been called "Dunkirk's Bay," and a village has been recently planned at the head of said Bay which is called "Dunkirk."—N. Y. Paper.

Latest from Mexico.—To the politeness of a commercial friend we are indebted for a number of the "Journal of the Government of Havanna," of the 17th July. The only article of intelligence contained in it, of any importance, is an account of the capture by the royalists, of the Mexican patriot Gen. Calzada, styled Lieutenant General of the North, who was chief of the independents in that part of Mexico, and the dispersion of his party. This event is considered of much importance by the royalists, who mention Calzada as one of the most audacious chiefs of the insurrection, and who had great influence among the people of that country. It is also announced, that the royalists are in pursuit of General Victoria, who was hovering about Huasteca.—Balt. Pat.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser.

BAHIA, June 3, 1817.

Yesterday morning Major Salvador arrived in this city with the happy intelligence that the column of Marshal Inacio has peaceably taken possession of the Recife. In our next paper we shall give a more particular relation of this rapid and glorious success.

On Saturday morning arrived at this port the squadron of Rio de Janeiro, which began to enter the harbor on the night preceding. His Excellency the Governor and Captain General of Pernambuco landed immediately, with a great number of officers, and among them some gentlemen of distinguished rank. The inhabitants of this city have shewn the greatest satisfaction on receiving this illustrious body. They have been a month on the voyage.

Bahia, June 6.—Account of the entry of our troops into Pernambuco.—After the column of Field Marshal Mello, had completely routed the forces of the madman Martins, the faithful royalists marched immediately into the Recife, which they entered peaceably on the 21st of May after it had been contaminated by the possession of the rebels.

The blockading force landed without resistance and the members of government took to flight for the swamps. One of them, Father John Ribeiro, was found hanged by his own hand.

—Let us lift up our hands to Heaven for averting the fatal disaster, which would have levelled the Recife with the earth, and shed rivers of blood.—The illustrious governor of Pernambuco has arrived at that city, with the officers of his government, and has shewn a courage equal to his amiable qualities.

Bahia, June 13.—The commandant of the blockade, Rufino Perez Baptista, arrived from Pernambuco on Monday last, and brought 71 prisoners; and among them the principal leaders of this rash and barbarous enterprize.

The criminals who fled from the Recife, and who considered themselves safe amongst the swamps, were diligently pursued by the troops of Bahia, and those of the Cape. Nearly all the money of the treasury which was plundered has been taken and restored; for it was silver coin, in bags, and it was not possible for them to take it away on account of the necessity of not being heavily encumbered.

We have received intelligence from Maranham that the government of that captaincy took measures to order all the forces possible against Pernambuco, as soon as the particulars reached them of the fatal day of March 6. The government of Piauy did the same, and besides immediately prohibited the sending of cattle to Pernambuco.

We are informed that the rebels of Pernambuco had some Congreve rockets, but it is said they have all fallen into the hands of the Cape troops. If they have not weak heads, they have corruptible hearts, and who can be afraid of such people?

Latest from St. Helena.

A gentleman who has arrived at Philadelphia, in the Savannah, from the Isle of France, informs, that they passed the Island of St. Helena, about fifty days ago; were boarded by one of the "look-out ships," and were told that Bonaparte was in good health, but still continued his sullen despondent.

General Vandamme, long distinguished in the French service under Bonaparte, has arrived at Philadelphia from Amsterdam.

The Ohio papers speak of a severe hail storm at Cadiz in that state, during which hail fell of the size of a hen's egg; and we have the affidavit of John Bonsall, Esq. who is certified to be a man of veracity, that a mess of ice fell of the weight of thirty or forty pounds.—Argus.

M. Volney who is now a Count and peer of France, has just published a new edition of his Ruins. This is the fifth edition, and he has accommodated it to the times, by suppressing opinions which experience has proved to be erroneous, and adding reflections which the events of a long life have suggested to him. He has also published another work, entitled, New Researches in Ancient History.

ed Ireland, and the retaliated—rather take her character from the moment when you relaxed your impolitic code, and when she in return loved you and identified herself with you—when for the act of one party you disquality the whole, you are yourselves guilty of a crime—you are guilty of injustice—for what else is it to shut out so large a portion of your fellow-subjects from the attributes of law.—Law, then, will clearly not support you in your denunciation; see whether religion, the Protestant religion, will give you a better support for your proceeding. I have already said, that nothing short of shewing the Catholic religion to be an abomination, will give you this countenance; if you can say, the Catholic religion is an abomination, then you say the religion of a great portion of the civilized world is of that description. This would be a direct attack on the Protestant Church itself, for it would be an universal outrage on the Christian religion generally, of which that church is a part.—(Hear.)—It was, besides, an outrage upon the Deity; for what less can it be called when any human power arrogates to itself the right of judgment on points of conscience, and appropriates the Deity to his own exclusive use, transfers to himself the power of omnipotence, and brings the God-head to his own bosom, and all this for his own monopoly?—(Hear, hear.)—This position of the Deity, but from monopoly, and of a gross and rank nature. It had no celestial attribute about it—O, no! it smells of earth!' it wants every thing that is generous, noble, or true. Some gentlemen opposite spoke of the Constitution, the Glorious Revolution, the Revolution of the Act of Settlement, and of the danger to be apprehended from any principle of concession. Let them state in what the danger consisted. Until they did, their arguments were of no avail. For argument sake, what were the dangers?—For the sake of excluding three or four Catholics from having seats in Parliament, the whole community were to be disqualified.—Hear.—[In parts of this speech, the House showed some impatience.] I know that I have tired the House. —(Loud cries of Hear,)—and can easily imagine, that if I were at this place of assembly to the gentlemen present, I should be quite as impatient as they are, but I am entitled to say, that not having trespassed on the House in an opening speech, I have some little claim for their slight indulgence in my reply.—(Hear)—It was once said by Mr. Fox, that there was no mathematical proposition, however clearly demonstrated, that was not liable to contradiction, if self-interest had an object in denying it. So it was in the arithmetical consideration of this question. The Government of Ireland was in the hands of Protestants; the principle property of the country was with them. Was it likely that by the concession of these claims, those privileges or that property could be shaken? Suppose (Oh! impracticable supposition,) that if these claims were conceded to Ireland, the whole of her 100 Members returned hybrid members to the Imperial Parliament were Catholics, then did it follow, or was it likely, that they could influence the whole of the general Legislative bodies of the country.—If they succeeded in influencing the Commons House of Parliament, were they likely to have similar success in the Lords, and even if they had, were they likely to depose the King—for they must do all this before they had the power of overthrowing the Constitution?—But was this sort of calculation fair and honest towards the Catholics?—Was this a mathematical disquisition? Surely not!—The Catholic Question had been 30 years under discussion; it had gone through every sort of repetition, and the interest in its behalf had been doubled and doubled over again. In these discussions, no doubt, individual irritation arose and men appeared, and spoken and acted into some part of the populace. But the real question was, whether this state of things ought to be allowed to exist any longer? Are we to continue that sort of English connection in Ireland which has been called a settlement, and must be defended by an army paid by the people over whom it is placed? Is this what they call a settlement, after the years of their exclusive legislation and unbridled power, and powerful army? If it be not this, what were they doing during the centuries of Government which they held? To these Rulers I would say, —Have you been, during this lapse of time spinning round on your axis, and fancying that in your evolutions the people followed in your train? Was it for this your toasts of the glorious and immortal memory, and of successful party ebullition were eternally in your mouths? —These, then, have been your practices; and are they the return which you pay for the empire so long confided to you, and do you turn round upon us and call for military establishments to enable you to prop up your system?—Don't let us be deluded by your folly and absurdity, nor let us be led to identify the Constitution of England with your political malversation of it. Do not tell men whom you have robbed of their liberty—whom you have disqualified by your legislation, and by every sort of every shape of human endurance, that the fault is theirs, and not among their rulers. You are taught by God to love your enemy, but here you will not embrace your friend—such a system cannot last, depend upon it it cannot.—(Hear, hear.)—If you succeed in excluding the people from the State, they will, in the course of things, attach themselves elsewhere—they will fly to the Church of Rome to renew their ancient relations, that is, they will fasten close upon the connection of which you are so alarmed. The Catholic Body have no one to community with the State; they are morbid and excluded; and, on the other hand, the State is alive and vicious. Then let a new order of things mark the times in which we live, and let an immediate termination be put to any clandestine intercourse between them and the See of Rome. —(Hear.)—Do not seek for popularity, 'or dream that any measure of this kind must at once be attended with the results you anticipate from it.—Act wisely, liberally and rationally, and your measures of redress must be attended with the most beneficial success.—(Hear, hear.) —You may have, on some points, a popular outcry to endure, but that outcry must ever be transient when it is raised against the true interests of the people and privileges of the State.—(Hear.) England has grown up into a mighty Empire, she is obeyed in the remotest of the earth, and will you tolerate that her state shall be entangled and shackled with laws like these, and for the sake of a set of puny theologians and angry bigots, who torture their fellows while they seek for their own purposes to embroil their country in one common warfare?'—(Hear, hear, hear.)

The gallery was then cleared for a division, when there appeared—

A letter from Marseilles, of May 15, announces that an English frigate, which had just anchored in that port, was destined to convey the British Envoy to Constantinople. The presents embarked for the Turkish Emperor, were valued at a large amount.

Baron Rehausen, who has been Swedish Minister here for many years, has left town on a visit to Stockholm. The utmost secrecy continues to be preserved both here and in Sweden as to the affairs of that kingdom: it is nevertheless reported that two or three continental Powers (and among these we have heard Denmark and France named) are actively intriguing to dispossess Bernadotte's family of the throne of Sweden. Denmark expects to get back Norway by this overthrow; and Norway was part of the price paid for his support of the Allied Cause. —We confess, we do not exactly see what particular cause of enmity the French Government can have against him, and yet certain it is they have never fairly recognized him as Crown Prince. The Ambassador they sent him was a person of an inferior rank to the Swedish Ambassador at Paris, and he noticed the indignity immediately, with great spirit. To these adversaries may be added the Grand Duke of Baden, who is said to have sent an Ambassador Extraordinary (Baron Beust) to London, to solicit the British Cabinet on behalf of the son of Gustavus Adolphus, and nephew of the Grand Duke. Our readers will not fail to connect the Swedish Ambassador's sudden departure with all these reports. In the mean time we may fairly presume, that the British Government takes no share whatever in any of these intrigues. The dignified line of policy which has kept our Cabinet aloof from interfering even in the affairs of Spain and her colonies (a case in which our own national interests are so deeply concerned) will be pursued in the case of Sweden. We apprehend, nevertheless, that Baron Rehausen carries over with him the sentiments of the British nation at least, if not of the government, on the subject of the late violent decrees issued by his Master against the British commerce. We hope also, that on the Baron's return, he will be instructed by Bernadotte to lay before the British people, to whom he is much indebted, a copy of the Secret Treaty which he lately concluded with America.

COURT MARTIAL.

Lord Castlereagh lately stated in the House of Commons, in reply to Mr. Brougham, that the subject to which the following Court Martial relates, was in course of explanation and discussion with the Spanish Government; the specie seized by the Spaniards, on the surrender of the Tay, amounted to 800, 000 dollars.

A Court Martial was held on board his Majesty's ship Salisbury, at Port Royal, on the 21st of February, and continued by adjournment (Sundays excepted) during 18 days, to investigate the conduct of Captain Samuel Roberts, C. B. and officers and crew of his Majesty's ship Tay, for the loss of that ship, off the eastern reef the Alacranes Isles (in the Gulph of Mexico) on the morning of the 11th of November, 1816; and of several of the crew, for their subsequent ill conduct; and for striking his Majesty's flag, which had been flying on board the wreck, and the surrendering themselves prisoners of war to the commander of the Spanish corvette Valency, and to try them for the same accordingly; and the Court having heard all the evidence, as well as what the prisoners alledged in their defence, and very maturely and deliberately weighed and considered the whole, pronounced—

"The Court is of opinion, that the loss of his Britannic Majesty's late ship Tay was owing to a strong westerly current, that could not be accounted for; and that every possible precaution appears to have been taken by Captain Roberts, for the safe conducting of his Majesty's late ship Tay; and farther, that every exertion was used by the officers in general, but particularly by acting Lieut. William Henry Geary, whose prompt and officer-like conduct, as officer of the watch, when the breakers were first discovered, entitle him to the approbation of the Court. The Court is therefore of opinion, that no blame whatever can be attached to captain Roberts, his officers, and crew, for the loss of his Majesty's said ship Tay; and they are hereby acquitted of all blame accordingly.

"Lastly, the Court taking into its full consideration every circumstance connected with the fact of Captain Roberts' striking his Majesty's flag, and surrendering himself, his officers, and crew as prisoners of war to the commander of the Spanish corvette Valency, and armed schooner Saragozana, is of opinion, that in consequence of the peculiar situation of the ship, her guns being entirely useless, her magazine drowned, the greater part of her crew on shore unarmed, on the island, 11 miles from the wreck, and the treacherous conduct of the Spaniards, in inveigling on board, and taking possession of the boats and their crews, all and every means of defence was rendered impracticable; that in this distressed and helpless situation the conduct of the Spaniards became so decidedly hostile and insulting, that no other alternative was left for preserving the dignity of his Majesty's flag, but that of striking it, which was accordingly done with the concurrence of every officer present; and the Court doth fully approve of Captain Robert's conduct, and that of his officers upon the trying occasion; and doth therefore acquit him, the officers and crew, of all blame; and they are hereby acquitted accordingly."

Letters from Rotterdam complain of a great stagnation of business. You hardly see a vessel arrive or depart with a cargo. Holland has lost many branches of commerce which formerly enriched her. The transportation of merchandise, which formerly made this country the general factory of Europe is a kind of business which is almost at an end; the United States have succeeded to it in part; their marine transports to the two continents the produce of the new world. In the Netherlands commerce is hardly more active than in Holland. Many ancient manufactories can hardly support themselves.

It appears from the Calcutta papers last received, that on the 4th of December, Mr. Gordon Forbes and Colonel Loveday delivered over the French settlement of Chandernagore to the Commissioners appointed to receive it by Louis XVIII. On the 5th of November the Frances Charlotte, with a detachment of the 78th regiment on board, struck on a reef off the desert island of Preparis, which lies about half-way between Cape Negrais, on the Coast of Pegue, and the Andamans. On the 10th, Capt. Weatherall, of the Prince Blucher, on nearing the island, fell in with some boats belonging to the Frances Charlotte, and took on board the crews, who had been several days without food. Learning that the rest of the seamen and troops, with a number of women and children, had got on shore on the island, he next day sent his boats to fetch the women and children, and as many men as possible. On the 12th they returned with Major Macpherson and his lady, Mrs. Macqueen, the wife of Capt. Macqueen, Dr. and Mrs. Brown, Lieutenants M'Kenzie and M'Crummen, with a number of lascars & soldiers' wives and children. A storm coming on, frustrated an attempt to get off the remainder next day. Captain Weatherall then made sail for Calcutta, where he arrived on the 26th. Next day the Nautilus cruiser was sent off with a supply of provisions for the sufferers on the island, which it was supposed she would reach in six days.—There were left on the island six officers, 90 privates, and 40 lascars. There are several fine springs in the island, and the coast furnishes shell fish in abundance; there is also plenty of wood.

The Embassy to China.

Extract of a letter from one of the gentlemen composing the suit.—"Notwithstanding our abrupt dismissal from the court, our journey, towards Canton, was not only attended by all the usual honors and marks of respect and attention shown to foreign embassies, but was rendered personally agreeable by a greater degree of liberty than, I believe was ever enjoyed in China by any foreign embassy whatsoever, even by that of Lord Macartney. The liberty of making frequent excursions into the country and into the cities was, perhaps, strictly speaking, a liberty rather taken than a liberty given; but not the least objection was made to it, or the least obstruction thrown in the way of it. The uncommon duration of the journey, which from the lowness of the rivers in particular spots, extended to four months, afforded unusual opportunities for these excursions; but it would have been easy for the officers of the government to have imposed much greater restraint, without even affording the ambassador any very tangible grounds, of complaint.—The old ground of Lord Macartney's journey was gone over to a great extent, but we also trod a considerable portion of new ground, or, more properly speaking, water. The chief novelty, however, was our navigation for six weeks, partly on that noble river the Yangtse-Kiang, and partly across that great inland sea the Po-yang-lake, to Nantchang-foo, during which we had an opportunity of visiting Nan-king, and the Luishan, a mountain remarkable for its picturesque scenery. Capt. Maxwell, of the Alceste, and a deputation of the British factory, met us at a short distance from Canton, into which port the ambassador was conducted by a procession of boats; but the Canton Chinese were very sulky, and neither saluted the embassy nor turned out a single soldier. We were lodged in a temple, among the gods of the heathen, which, however, to do the Chinese justice, has been fitted up in a very comfortable manner. The Alceste will be ready about the 24th inst. (January,) and we hope to see our friends in England the first week in June."

An Imperial Ukase was issued at St. Petersburg, in Russia, on Easter Sunday, in favor of converts from Judaism. The following are some of its principal articles:—

"1. All Jews embracing the Christian Religion in either confession shall have privileges granted to them, whatever profession they may adopt, suitable to their knowledge and abilities.

"2. In the Northern and Southern Government, lands shall be assigned them gratis, where such as please may settle at their own expense, under the name of the Society of Jewish Christians.

"3. This Society shall have its own privileges.

"4. At St. Petersburg a Board shall be formed, of which Prince Alexander Golytzen shall be President, under the denomination of Board for the affairs of Jewish Christians, on which and on no other Magistrates (except criminal cases) the Society depends.

"5. This Board is bound to attend to every thing relating to the settlements, and to report on it to the Emperor.

"6. In the settlements of the Jewish Christians, which are given them as an hereditary property for ever, the Society can carry on any kind of professions, build cities, villages, or single dwellings. The lands are given to the whole community, but not to individuals, and cannot be sold or mortgaged to strangers. In these settlements the Jewish Christians and their posterity have entire religious liberty in the Christian confession of faith which they embrace. The Society is under the immediate protection of the Emperor, and depends entirely on the Board of St. Petersburg, to which alone it gives account. No other local Magistracy shall interfere with them; their preachers are only under the Board. The internal government of the Society is under an administration of the Society of the Jewish Christians, consisting of two Superiors and four Adjutants, chosen by the Society from its own members, and confirmed by the Board. It manages the internal concerns, the police, &c. and has a particular seal. It may expel improper members and receive new ones, but must report on this to the Board. The members of the Society obtain the rights of citizens in the Russian Empire. They may carry on trade at home and abroad, conformably to the general laws, establish manufactories, &c. without being registered in any Guild. In their settlements the Society may brew beer, distil brandy &c. they are free from billeting of troops, and for twenty years from taxes; are not bound to military services; and foreign Jews, who, after embracing Christianity, join such a community, may leave the country when they have paid their debts, and the legal contributions for three years on the capital which they have acquired in Russia. This regulation excites the more attention, because it is well known that our Ambassadors in Germany are expressly ordered to give no more passports to those who desire to emigrate."

MONTREAL, August 2d, 1817.

On Wednesday morning the 30th ult. the beautiful Seam Boat, LADY SHERBROOKE, the property of Messrs. John Molson & Sons, was launched from the ship yard of Hart Logan, Esq. This noble vessel moved towards her element, and entered it in a majestic style, accompanied with the plaudits of a vast concourse of admiring spectators. Not a single accident happened; no anchor was lost, nor a rope-yarn broken; a circumstance very uncommon on such occasions. It is admitted by competent judges of naval architecture, that the Lady Sherbrooke is the most perfect model of any Steam Boat yet built in America, except the Chancellor Livingston, now plying in Hudson's river, which is nearly of the same size and model.—The Lady Sherbrooke's dimensions are, as understand, as follow;—134 feet 4 inches keel; her rake both fore and aft being very great, she is nearly 180 feet on deck; breadth of beam 34 feet 5 inches. From these data, her register tonnage will be nearly 700 tons. Mr. Johnston, who superintended the building of this vessel, has given a renewed proof of superior talents in his distinguished profession; which cannot fail of securing to him the most liberal and deserved patronage. The Lady S. was taken in tow on Thursday morning by the Malsham, for Quebec, to receive her machinery, which arrived three weeks ago. This Boat is entirely calculated for the conveyance of goods; her cabin will only accommodate 10 or 12 passengers, but it can be greatly enlarged if found necessary.

We are sorry to learn that the Chinook prevails to an alarming degree at Ste. Marie, Nouvelle Beauce, and its vicinity. Not less, we are credibly informed, than twenty-two children died there in the course of a week. The want of medical assistance is severely felt in that quarter.—Quebec Paper.

UPPER-CANADA GAZETTE,
YORK;
THURSDAY, AUGUST 21, 1817.

We have great pleasure in mentioning the arrival of the Steam boat yesterday, from Kingston, which she left the day before, bringing up 25 cabin and 13 steerage passengers, and upwards of 1000 barrels bulk of Mercandize, for this place and Niagara.

A strong easterly wind for eight days, had lowered the water so much at the place where she got aground, that she was not floated until Thursday last, by the assistance of a party of men sent by the Officer commanding at Kingston. She was found to have sustained very little damage, only a small piece of the Keel, having been broken off.

The Steam boat brings a report, on the authority of a letter from an officer recently from England, that it is the intention of Government to reduce the number of Regiments to 80; and also, that all 2d Majors are to be reduced.

Arrived in the schr. Wellington, from Niagara, on Tuesday last, John Savery Brock, Esq. brother of the late Maj. Genl. Sir Isaac Brock, Bart.

New Name.—The place near the mouth of Canadaway Creek, on Lake Erie, which was formerly known as Chadwick's Bay, has lately been called "Dunkirk's Bay," and a village has been recently planned at the head of said Bay which is called "Dunkirk."—N. Y. Paper.

Latest from Mexico.—To the politeness of a commercial friend we are indebted for a number of the "Journal of the Government of Havanna," of the 17th July. The only article of intelligence contained in it, of any importance, is an account of the capture by the royalists, of the Mexican patriot Gen. Calzada, styled Lieutenant General of the North, who was chief of the independents in that part of Mexico, and the dispersion of his party. This event is considered of much importance by the royalists, who mention Calzada as one of the most audacious chiefs of the insurrection, and who had great influence among the people of that country. It is also announced, that the royalists are in pursuit of General Victoria, who was hovering about Huasteca.—Balt. Pat.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser.

BAHIA, June 3, 1817.

Yesterday morning Major Salvador arrived in this city with the happy intelligence that the column of Marshal Inacio has peaceably taken possession of the Recife. In our next paper we shall give a more particular relation of this rapid and glorious success.

On Saturday morning arrived at this port the squadron of Rio de Janeiro, which began to enter the harbor on the night preceding. His Excellency the Governor and Captain General of Pernambuco landed immediately, with a great number of officers, and among them some gentlemen of distinguished rank. The inhabitants of this city have shewn the greatest satisfaction on receiving this illustrious body. They have been a month on the voyage.

Bahia, June 6.—Account of the entry of our troops into Pernambuco.—After the column of Field Marshal Mello, had completely routed the forces of the madman Martins, the faithful royalists marched immediately into the Recife, which they entered peaceably on the 21st of May after it had been contaminated by the possession of the rebels.

The blockading force landed without resistance and the members of government took to flight for the swamps. One of them, Father John Ribeiro, was found hanged by his own hand.

—Let us lift up our hands to Heaven for averting the fatal disaster, which would have levelled the Recife with the earth, and shed rivers of blood.—The illustrious governor of Pernambuco has arrived at that city, with the officers of his government, and has shewn a courage equal to his amiable qualities.

Bahia, June 13.—The commandant of the blockade, Rufino Perez Baptista, arrived from Pernambuco on Monday last, and brought 71 prisoners; and among them the principal leaders of this rash and barbarous enterprize.

The criminals who fled from the Recife, and who considered themselves safe amongst the swamps, were diligently pursued by the troops of Bahia, and those of the Cape. Nearly all the money of the treasury which was plundered has been taken and restored; for it was silver coin, in bags, and it was not possible for them to take it away on account of the necessity of not being heavily encumbered.

We have received intelligence from Maranham that the government of that captaincy took measures to order all the forces possible against Pernambuco, as soon as the particulars reached them of the fatal day of March 6. The government of Piauy did the same, and besides immediately prohibited the sending of cattle to Pernambuco.

We are informed that the rebels of Pernambuco had some Congreve rockets, but it is said they have all fallen into the hands of the Cape troops. If they have not weak heads, they have corruptible hearts, and who can be afraid of such people?

Latest from St. Helena.

A gentleman who has arrived at Philadelphia, in the Savannah, from the Isle of France, informs, that they passed the Island of St. Helena, about fifty days ago; were boarded by one of the "look-out ships," and were told that Bonaparte was in good health, but still continued his sullen despondent.

General Vandamme, long distinguished in the French service under Bonaparte, has arrived at Philadelphia from Amsterdam.

The Ohio papers speak of a severe hail storm at Cadiz in that state, during which hail fell of the size of a hen's egg; and we have the affidavit of John Bonsall, Esq. who is certified to be a man of veracity, that a mess of ice fell of the weight of thirty or forty pounds.—Argus.

Miscellaneous.

The Vatican Pictures and Sculpture.

A "true born Englishman" has no idea of the ardent enthusiasm of the Italians, in their veneration for the productions of ancient art. Many persons went from Rome to Civita Vecchia, a distance of fifty miles, to hail the arrival of the English ship, which brought their celebrated pictures and statues from Antwerp, whither they had been sent from Paris. The venerable cardinal Gonsalvi, the Roman secretary of state, was sent by his holiness for the same purpose, and on his arrival on board, accompanied by the governor of Civita Vecchia, and other distinguished persons, under a salute from the ship, which was returned by the fort. Till that auspicious day the weather had been very boisterous, but on the first case being hoisted from the ship, containing the magnificent colossal statue called the Nile, a salute of fifteen guns was fired from the fort, and the sea became instantly calm! It was remarked that the moment the Nile appeared on the deck, the wind abated, and when it landed, a French schooner which had just entered the harbor got aground!—Such were the observations which the superstition of the people made on the influence of the gods of the Nile, and they were confirmed by the opinion of the cardinal! His eminence, by command of the pope, invited the captain and principal officers to visit Rome, where they were received and treated with every mark of regard by his holiness, who presented each of the officers with a casket of jewels; he ordered rings to be given to the petty officers, and a silver medal to each of the seamen, with 400 sequins in money, to be distributed among them.

After landing his precious cargo, which occupied four days, the captain gave a ball to the ladies, on board. Many of them had come from Rome, but the gods were not so propitious to them as they had been to the Nile—the sea became rough, and but few ventured to quit the shore—but those who did, joined in the dance, and were not a little amused with Jack's active and strenuous efforts in waltzing. The governor obligingly furnished the band of music which consisted of three violins, two flutes, one clarionet, and four guitars. A Roman lady, with great naiveté, asked the captain if the English had any more such large ships, which question the captain very characteristically answered by putting Steel's List of the British Navy into her hands.

On quitting the ship the sailors gave 3 cheers to the ladies, very much to their astonishment. From Civita Vecchia they proceeded to Leghorn, where the cases containing the caskets, &c. for the Prince Regent were embarked.—The ex-empress Maria Louisa, being then at Leghorn, went to the roads in a pinnace to view the English ship, but did not go on board. On her name being announced, all hands crowded to the side, and generously saluted her with 3 cheers in the English style, which her royal highness acknowledged by standing up, and treating Jack with 3 of her best courtsies!

During the time the ships remained at Civita Vecchia, they were abundantly supplied with fresh provisions, wines, fruit and vegetables by the governor, and the captain and officers were every where received with high favours by all ranks, from their arrival until their departure.

M. Menke, of Berlin, who has been employed in making models for the porcelain manufactory, has discovered it is said, the process of converting mahogany saw-dust into a soft paste, which becomes hard and solid by exposure to the atmosphere, and is susceptible of receiving and preserving the forms given to marble, to wood, or to bronze.—This substance takes the most beautiful gilding as well as the colour of bronze. The product of this manufactury are, candelabras, lustres, lamps, vases, statues and ornaments for all kinds of furniture. These objects rival in elegance the most beautiful works in bronze, and cost only the eighth part of the price.

The following account is from a Bengal paper. 'A very interesting case has just occurred of a person, born blind, being restored to sight by means of a surgical operation:—A native of Burdwan, of the age of 18, was lately sent by his family to Dr. Eurmore, whose success in the removal of the Cataract they had heard by public report. The operation was performed on the 26th May, and in six days he began to see and distinguish objects. He confirmed, with readiness, the conclusion so obvious, from the feelings of Dr Cheselden's patients, that our common judgment of figure, quantity and distance is not an inherent faculty in the mind, but a practical result, from the often repeated experiment of comparing the perspective with the actual figure, bulk or distance. For a cricket-ball was put in one hand, and a cake of soap in the other, and he was desired to describe their shape; he was unable to do it by his newly acquired and inexperienced vision, and was obliged to have constant recourse to the more practised sense of feeling. When any object is presented to him, although he can without hesitation declare its colour, he is wholly unable to decide on is quality until he his allowedto handle it."

Among the extraordinary instances which have occurred, of living animals being deeply buried in solid substances, where they had apparently existed for ages, the following is one of the most singular.

Two coalmen, working in a coal pit belonging to Viscount Dudley and Ward, in the Parish of Tipton, in the county of Stafford, in clearing or breaking up a a stratum of coal called the stone coal, about four feet thick, and lying about fifty yards from the surface of the earth discovered a living reptile of the snake or adder kind, lying coiled up in a small cell within the said solid coal, which might be about twenty tons weight. When first discovered the reptile moved, and soon afterwards crept out of the hole, but upon being exposed to the air, died in about ten minutes. The thickness and solidity of the coal, must have kept it entirely from the air. The hollow place in which it lay was split by means of an iron wedge, and was rather moist at the bottom, but without water. The cell was about the size of a common tea-saucer, and the snake was about nine inches long, of a darkish ashy color, and a little speckled. The above facts were sworn to before a magistrate, March 5th, 1817.—N. Y. Advertiser.

Captain Manby's Invention.

During the gale, on Wednesday last, the Spanish brig Bilbaino, from London, bound to Bilboa, with a valuable cargo of merchandize, drove on shore near Rottingdean. Soon after she struck, the Agent for the use of capt. Manby's Invention attended with the apparatus, and a mortar was planted on the summit of the cliff, from which was discharged a barbed shot, with a rope attached thereto, coiled on a frame for the purpose, in the hope of lodging it somewhere about the vessel. The first shot failed in effect, but a second left the rope pending from her broken foremast towards the deck. The tempest-tossed seamen did not appear to know the prisie use it was expected they should make of it; but appropriate gestures from those on land soon conveyed to them that necessary information, and the whole crew, numbering twelve souls, were in a short space of time rescued from their perilous situation, and with a facility and ease that amazed and delighted all present. As the tide receded, the hull of the vessel was left dry, which had received but little injury, and the cargo none.—London Paper.

Speaking of the numerous silly reports which are circulated respecting the probability of the escape of Bonaparte from St. Helena, a London paper says, "The thing is impossible.—From that Island he is doomed never to stir—it is to be his prison and his grave."

Humorous Trial.—At the Quarter Sessions for Liverpool, Patrick Fitzsimmons was tried on Wednesday ne'n night, for stealing a watchman's great coat. It was proved the prisoner had, on the night of the 6th ult. broke open a watchman's box, and taken away the coat, which was found upon him about an hour afterwards. The prisoner, who, as his name imports, is a native of the sister kingdom, being called upon for his defence, placed himself in an oratorical position, and said, "May it please your honors,—I am accused of breaking into a watchman's box, and stealing away his coat; but I am perfectly innocent, and I'll tell you just how it happened:—I had been out drinking on the night they mention, and I had, to be sure, got mortally drunk, that I know is very wrong. About two o'clock in the morning, as I was going staggering home, I asked this here watchman, "Can you tell me where I can get a lodging, or where I can get something to drink?" "No," said he, "all the houses are shut up now; but in an hour and a half there will be a house open, where they sell capital purl, so step into my watch box, slip on my great coat, and make yourself asy while I go my rounds, and when I come back we'll see what can be done." I did as he bid me; he locked the door, and in a moment I was asleep. Soon after I waked, and finding myself boxed up in this narrow cell, I could not dream where I was; so setting my feet against the door, I burst open the box, and walked out quite forgetting that I had on the watchman's coat. On my way up the street, I met two other watchmen, and asked them, "could I get any thing to drink?" —They told me there was a house hard by, where they sold rum at 6d. a glass. —I said, (saving your honor's presence) that was devilish dear; but I went in and they went with me. When the reconing came to be paid, I happened to have no money; so one of the watchmen said to me, "How came you, Pat, by that great coat?" I said, "Sure, it is my own," not meaning to steal it, but intended only to keep myself warm with it until it was day-light. My companions, however, hauled me away to Bridewell; and this, please your honors, is the whole truth. Is it likely that a man that has been 16 years to Liverpool, should be so foolish as to break open a watch box! Did not I know that there is generally in these places nothing but a broom and a shovel!—And how could I tell that the watchman himself was not in his box?"

This defence was delivered with great fluency and animation; and the recorder, in addressing the jury, said, that though this was the best speech he had heard for the last six months, yet he feared, that if they acquitted the prisoner, it must be rather for his ingenuity than his innocence. After a short deliberation, the jury returned a verdict of guilty; and the court sentenced Fitzsimmons to 14 days imprisonment.—Ibid.

Quackery.—It is a lamentable truth, that many people lose their lives by employing ignorant pretenders to the "healing art." The following statement of a recent occurrence in a neighboring town is given in a letter from a friend to a gentleman in this town: The unfortunate had received a slight bruise on the shin, which merely broke the skin; this was succeeded by inflammation & swelling. Four or five days after his bruise was received, the Apollo of Tamworth and his Colleague made an incision in the calf of the leg, five inches in length and three in depth with an expectation of finding matter! but found none! Horrid! Ten or eleven days miserable existence closed the scene of the unfortunate.—Dover, N. H. paper.

INVERNESS, May 26.

A Highland Chieftain's Funeral.

The Chisholm's (Mr. Chisholm, of Chisholm,) funeral, which took place on the 15th inst. was conducted with a degree of splendor, which rivalled the usage of ancient times in the last tribute of homage and respect to the remains of the deceased Chiefs. Invitations were very general throughout Inverness, and the neighboring counties, and nearly 240 guests sat down to a sumptuous entertainment provided at Beauly. Upwards of 100 dozen of Claret were drank on this occasion! the commonality, of whom a very large assemblage were in attendance, had not been forgotten—bread and cheese in ample abundance, and 30 ankers of whiskey were distributed among them—and they made so very free, that a man and two women died of the effects of intoxication! Many battles with sticks, fists, and stones were fought and many cracked crowns were given and received—but beyond the foregoing melancholy instances, no further fatal effects ensued. Various depredations, were, however, committed—and among others, some of the riders discovered, next morning, that they had come home without their saddle flaps, the well dressed leather of which, it has been discovered, would make superior brogue soals.

To demand. †Duty. §Sterling. (Source, Montreal Gazette, July 28, 1817.)

I must relate to you a very novel case of good fortune. Some years since, the unfortunate Col. Aaron Burr, sold to John Jacob Astor, a certain property (at that time out of this city, [N. York] and I believe his country-house) for the sum of $40,000, reserving the right of redeeming it at any time within twenty years, by paying the principal and interest. One day in the early part of this week, Col. Burr tendered the money to Mr. Astor, and demanded his property, (now become invaluable) which Mr. Astor declined receiving: Col. Burr then demanded one hundred and fifty thousand dollars!—Mr. Astor required three days to decide; and yesterday I had it from most unquestionable authority, that they had compromised, by Mr Astor's paying Col. Burr $100,000, in cash, by checks on the Bank of the United States."—Richmond Compiler.

BOSTON, August 4.

We have received Halifax papers to July 22. More than a thousand emigrants had arrived there during the month of July, from Great Britain and Ireland, and many more were expected. It does not appear that any provision had been made by government for their settlement in the province.

From Amelia.—We learn by the schr. Humming Bird, arrived yesterday from St. Mary's, that the force of Gen. Mac Gregor has been considerably augmented since our last advices from thence, that he has now about 300 men, and is daily increasing in strength, volunteers from Georgia and the Floridas coming in every day. His followers were in high spirits, and were waiting for reinforcements from New-York, to march against St. Augustine. Accounts had been received from St. Augustine, of a reinforcement from Havanna having reached there, among which was a portion of cavalry. Mac Gregor was also collecting horses, &c. for the formation of a corps of the same description.—Charleston paper, July 29.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser, Aug 5.

Our Correspondent at the Salem Register Office, gives us the following information received there by way of Martinique, from Venezuela, The island of Margaretta, lately named New Sparta, was the head quarters of the Respectable Congress of the United States of Venezuela, and the conquest of it, together with the probable dispersion of Bolivar's army, are important checks to the republican cause.

The latest accounts from the Spanish Maine represent, that in consequence of the reinforcement of two thousand men, the Royalists received about four months since from old Spain, they were enabled to re-take Margaretta Island. Bolivar's army had received a check on the Maine at Carupano and Guayra, opposite said island. Bolivar had again deserted his comrades and gone to St. Thomas, having quarrelled with his second in command.—His late army had marched to the interior, and joined Gen. Piar, who had lately reduced the city of Augustura, by absolute starvation. Admiral Brion sailed from Margaretta, previous to the attack on that place, by the royalists, to blockade the Oronoke river—he took all his naval force with him, which according to some accounts, consisted of 22 sail, but it is certain he stopped off Grenada, for provisions, with 7 sail, among them 3 heavy brigs.—Recent accounts from Trinadada stated, that 9 sail of the fleet were cruizing in the Gulph of Paria, between Trinadada and the Oronoke.

Translated for the Boston Palladium.

An official account of the fleet of General Mina, written by the commander of the King's Frigate Sabina, Francisco de Eezauger, dated on the Bar of Tampico, May 26th 1817, addressed to the Viceroy of Mexico, Signor Don Juan Ruiz de Apodaca; published in the city of Mexico, June 4th and republished in Havanna July 14th.

The fleet of Mina was at anchor on the Bar of New Santander or Soto de Morina, and consisted of the ship Cleopatra, brig Neptune, and a schooner armed. The frigate Sabina sailed together with the schrs. Bellona, and Proserpine, from Vera Cruz, on the 14th May, and the 16th cast anchor at Tampico, and after acquiring the necessary information there, weighed anchor 17th and proceeded to St. Andre, where the attack was commenced at 10 o'clock, A. M. and the annihilation of Mina's fleet circumvated; the crews escaped on shore. During the engagement a horrible explosion took place on shore, which was supposed to be the Powder Magazine of the Independents.

The Viceroy has returned thanks to the commander, officers, marines, &c. in the King's name, and granted that all of them should wear on the right arm, a scutcheon, representing a sea, with the epigraph round it, "For the important service in Soto-la Marina."

The Commandant of Antigua informs the Gov. of Vera Cruz, under date of 1st May, that a convoy of 250 beasts of burden had arrived there, escorted by 10 royalists: having come by the route of Actopan to St. Carlos and is to proceed to Vera Cruz.

Croston Uninck, Esquire, is appointed Judge of the Vice Admiralty Court, at Halifax.

Some of the merchants of St. John's, N. B. have memorialized the British government against Consular Fees in America.—Palladium. Aug. 5.

From the Augusta Chronicle, July 23.

ST. AUGUSTINE.—We are on the tip-toe of expectation to hear further of the movements of Mr Gregor. All the civil and military arrangements for the security of Amelia being properly adjusted we presume the general will direct his immediate attention to St. Augustine, upon the reduction of which hangs the fate of his enterprise. it being the only military post of importance in the two Floridas. The capture of this portion of nature, we are fearful, will be attended with as little difficulty than public opinion is willing to admit; and unless it is surrendered by treachery or cowardice, it will cost Mr Gregor more blood than is generally imagined.

Geography presents but an imperfect knowledge of the defensible state and relative situation of St. Augustine; and it is with difficulty we can obtain from other sources any thing like satisfactory information. Its natural advantages are considered equal, if not superior to those of Quebec. The fort, which is bomb-proof, commands the town and the out-lets to the ocean—it can mount about twenty pieces of cannon, is capable of conveniently containing 500 men, and is encircled by a fosse one hundred feet wide, 25 or 40 feet deep. Almost every house in the town may be readily converted into a garrison; they are principally built of tabby, (a composition of the oyster-shell and lime) which renders them capable of advantageously resisting the impression of a cannon ball. The tabby is procured from Fishing-Island, adjacent to the town. Upon this Island are a few plantations and luxuriant groves of orange, lime and citron. According to a rough calculation, St. Augustine is supposed to be about half as large as Augusta and its population as proportionately great. If the place is fairly attacked, sir Gregor, it is supposed, will have to approach it on the land side, from St. Johns, by a circuitous, and in some parts an almost impervious route.—Then, admitting him in possession of the town, it is the opinion of well informed men, who are acquainted with its situation, that if the fort is well garrisoned, it could not only be rendered unassailable, but might compel the enemy to abandon his position and relinquish his intentions.—These remarks are certainly suppositions—but they are founded upon as correct a knowledge of the facts as we have been able to obtain.

The following interesting letter is from a gentleman of the first respectability and a man of superior intelligence, to his friend in this city.

"St. MARY'S, July 26, 1817.

"Sir—Your favor of the 27th ult. I received, and should have replied by the next mail, but from a desire previously to ascertain and communicate something more decisive as to the standing and views of the anomalous band that have lately taken possession of Amelia-Island—They were quite elated with their success in that enterprize, and for a time there was much vaporing of their ample resources and reported ability to subjugate the province, besides many other mighty atchievements; but the requisite means do not yet appear, nor have any permanent additions been made to the original adventurers, though many have fallen off, and their whole number now does not exceed eighty; three fifths of whom are said to hold commissions, but serve in the ranks for want of men—It is a most untoward event in the present condition of the treaty." Unfortunate inhabitants of this seemingly devoted province, just emerging from the calamities of unsuccessful attempts to throw themselves into the bosom of the U. S.! They were reposing in their last hopes, the confident expectation that the American government would shortly succeed in obtaining the provinces, a point to which all were anxiously looking, as the end of their political sufferings and only permanent ground of security for their persons and property; and of this it is true they do not yet despair, but in the interim, must be subjected to much perplexity and embarrassment, as it is now evident from their slender means, that the views of M'Gregor and his associates must necessarily be confined to Amelia Island; which, no doubt, was the principal object of the Scotch merchants, who made the advances for the expedition. Thus their patriotism seems likely to end, in placing the inhabitants between two fires, and rendering them liable to be sacrificed to the sordid object of assisting (or rather misled) merchants, the opportunity of purchasing bargains of piratical plunderers, to say nothing of their total dereliction of all principle in this concern. What must be the impulse of the American government, when it shall be known that this unprincipled attempt originated and emanated from her territory, composed of her citizens, and to cap the climax that vessels should be armed and manned in her ports, by and with her citizens and be permitted to proceed with this anomalous power, composed also of her citizens, for lucre to depredate on the property of private individuals of a nation with whom this government is at peace. These, sir, are the lamentable facts."

* The writer is supposed to allude to a treaty now believed to be going on between the U. S. and Spain.—Ed. E. P.

CURRACOA, (S. A.) July 19.

A letter from Barracas, of the 12th inst. states that the news of Gen. Murillo having effected a landing at Margaritta had just reached there—Brion with his squadron of 8 vessels intended to proceed up the river Oronoke, but owing to strong currents, he could not accomplish his object—Commodore Aury, with 2 schrs. and a sloop in returning were taken and a great many of the people on board shot. They reported that the crew of the brig Bello Indio, were in a state of revolt.—Several vessels were impeded in the Bocca of the Gulf of Paria to prevent their escape. Marino, with 500 men retired to Guira, where he is closely besieged.

Our last news from Guyana confirms the defeat of Bolivar by Gen. Cruz Torre; the former made an attack upon Augustura; but few of the assailants escaped. This famous h.o. as usual, took to his heels and until now no body has heard of him. It is reported that a new and general amnesty will be granted and acted upon.

Extract of a Letter from the Agent to Lloyd's, at Buenos Ayres, dated April 13.

"The private brig of war Regent, alias Trepe Camera, Manson, commander, arrived here on the 3d inst. with the Spanish East India ship Trinidad, captain Fairclough, from Calcutta, bound to Cadiz, with a valuable cargo of silk and nine piece goods, estimated at upwards of a million and an half of dollars, captured off the Cape de Verds, after a gallant defence of two hours and an half, in which the Trinidad had the third mate and twenty men killed. The Regent was fitted out at Baltimore under Patriot colours, and was only seventeen days at sea from that port when she fell in with the Trinidad."

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9.

Extract of a letter from the Lazaretto.—"During the time that the passengers of the Johanna and Elizabeth were on their way to the Dutch House, we visited the ship Hope, from Amsterdam, with 340 passengers. Such a sickly emaciated body of people I never beheld—not a blush of vigorous health was visible, not a smile lighted up a single countenance. I immediately demanded the healthy passengers on board the Johanna, that she might anchor in the Quarantine. After they were all on board; the commander of her passengers are in good condition, and the ship tolerably clean. Justice and humanity demanded that the Hope, in her wretched situation, having been on allowance of water for many days, should be first attended to. She is a living sepulcher. The slave trade has been abolished, as contrary to the laws of God, so should this inhuman traffic. There, four and 500 poor and ignorant creatures, are stowed in one vessel, conveyed to a far distant country, living on provisions that are would sometimes hesitate to give our hogs."

We are authorized to state, that the Board of Health are adopting every measure in their power to alleviate the distresses of the sufferers from Jamaica, lately arrived, of whom died at the Lazaretto within the last 24 hours.

August 11.

The hurricane.—On Saturday forenoon last, Philadelphia was visited with a storm or hurricane, principally blowing from the S. E. but unaccompanied with much rain. Several trees were blown down in the city and vicinity, and a sloop upset opposite the Navy Yard. It is also reported that the barge of the Franklin 74, was upset with several persons on board. In both instances, we are happy to understand, no lives were lost. We apprehend much damage has been done to the sea-board.

Inundation of Baltimore.—The passengers who arrived yesterday in the Steam Boat Delaware, inform that they left Baltimore on Saturday afternoon at five o'clock, when that city exhibited a scene of great distress, having been inundated by the great rise of the waters, in the hurricane which blew from the S. E. that morning. They represent many streets as being completely under water, which in some quarters reached to the second stories of the houses; that merchandize of various descriptions, and furniture, was drifting about; that hundreds of boats were employed in taking out the inhabitants from the upper stories of the houses which were inundated: and that the damage done must be great. They had not heard of any lives being lost. We hope the above account may be exaggerated, although we have our fears on the occasion.

If no mail arrives in the course of the day, yet we shall probably have particulars by the next steam-boat.

Another account.—Passengers in the Southern stage, yesterday, inform us, that a most violent Tornado was experienced at Baltimore, on Saturday last —bridges and houses were blown down, vessels sunk at the wharves, and many lives were lost—the Patapsco rose to an unprecedented height, washing the floors of the second stories of the Warehouses, and emptying their contents; so much so, that the river is said to have been literally covered with bales of Cotton, and other goods.

The extent of this severe blow, and all the damage it has occasioned, cannot yet be known—apprehensions may be entertained for the safety of vessels on the coast, as we know it reached the Delaware, and did some damage below —the wind blew violently at intervals in this city, and the branch of the Franklin 74, with upwards of thirty persons on board, was cruising in the river, but no lives lost.

UTICA, August 12.

On Saturday last this place and its vicinity were visited by an excessive fall of rain. It commenced early in the morning, and continued without intermission till 9 o'clock in the evening. The creeks and small streams were much swollen, and considerable injury has been sustained by the destruction of bridges, mill-dams, crops, &c. In some places large masses of earth were carried away, and new channels formed. But by far the greatest damage has been done by the overflowing of the Mohawk and the consequent destruction of the crops remaining on the rich flats along the banks of that river.

NEW-YORK, August 8.

Three hundred houses had been destroyed by fire in the town of Saargeren. in Prussee.

It is stated in the Dublin Evening Post, that there was not a county in Ireland in which disturbances had not taken place, which arose not from political opinions, but from the want of food. The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland has issued a proclamation, in consequence of the failure of the potatoe crop, and potatoes, exhorting all masters of families who are not in the lower classes, not to suffer potatoes to be used in their families, and requesting all those who keep horses, especially for pleasure, to diminish as far as possible, the consumption of oats for those animals, but to keep the same for the sustenance of the poor.

Potatoes are said to have been sold at 6d. per pound in the Dublin market on the 12th of June. Turnips and the same other vegetables were in great abundance, and herring plenty.

A RICH CARGO.—The British frigate Inconstant, Sir James Lucas Yeo, arrived last night at this port, in 35 days from Kingston, Jam. via Havanna, with TWO MILLION TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS. Of this sum $400,000 are for the U. S Banc: and 50,000 for sundry merchants here. The remainder we understand is going to England.

OTAHIETE.

Extract of a letter from the Rev. Mr. John Davies, one of the Missionaries at Eimeo, to the Rev. W. Cowper, New South Wales, dated the 30th of March, 1816:—"In the beginning of November (1815) peace was apparently restored between the contending parties; and Pomare returned to Taheite, to reinstate the fugitives in their different lands. He was accompanied not only by them, but by almost all the men who had renounced Heathenism. At first all things appeared to go on well; but suddenly hostilities recommenced, and the Atahuruans attempted, by a desperate effort, to support their tottering cause, their prophet assuring them of success. They came upon the King and his people on the Sabbath-day, November 12, at the time of morning prayer, expecting that, being too engaged, they would easily be thrown into confusion. This we had anticipated as a probable occurrence, and therefore had warned our people against it; in consequence of which they carried their arms with them wherever they went. Notwithstanding which, however, the sudden approach and immediate attack of the Atahuruans and others, threw them into considerable confusion, and some gave way, but soon rallied again, as the Raiateans, and the people of Eimeo, had kept their ground. Several fell on both sides; but on the side of the Atahuruans, Upufara, a principal Chief, was killed: this event as soon as it was known, turned the scale, and Pomare's party obtained a complete victory. But he treated the vanquished with great lenity and moderation, which had the happiest effect: for all exclaimed that the new religion must be good, because it produced such good effects; they declared also, that their gods were cruel and false, had deceived them, and sought their ruin;—and that, therefore, they were resolved not to trust them any longer. On the evening of that day, when the confusion of the battle was over, the King and his people, with many of the idolaters, united in one large assembly, to worship the God of Heaven and Earth, and to return him thanks for the events of the day.—After this, Pomare, by universal consent, was re-established in his government of the whole of Taheite, and its dependencies, which he had lost by rebellion, in 1808. Since this affair, Pomare had continued at Taheite, making arrangements respecting the several districts, overthrowing all vestiges of idolatry, destroying the gods, morais, &c. the chiefs zealously assisting in their destruction; and they are now employed in erecting places of worship for the true God, in every district all around the island. the whole of which is now professedly Christian, and so is Eimeo; and in a great measure the leeward islands, the Chiefs of which entrust us by every opportunity, to come over and help them."—Dai. Adv.

(In the American Daily Advertiser (Poulson's) of Thursday, the 7th inst. is a long letter giving an account of the proceedings of the late British Embassy to China, at the head of which, it is well known, was Lord Amherst, after their arrival in that country. The Embassy failed, and as the specific cause of the failure has not been before stated, to our knowledge, we republish the following extract from the letter above-mentioned—the whole being too long for insertion.)—Ib.

Aug. 20th—the Embassy arrived at Sungchow; which is one day's journey from Peking. Here we remained eight days, discussing with a person of the rank of a Duke and others, a question, considered of vital importance by both parties. Yet it all turned on a ceremony. High Officers of State in China; dependent Tartar Kings and Princes, all perform to the Great Emperor of China, a ceremony which is the strongest external expression of devotedness and submission, which this people, who abound in external forms of submission have been able to invent. To kneel down on the ground, to place the hands when bowing forward, on the floor, and to strike the forehead against the earth once, seems an abundantly apparent mark of veneration, devotion or submission. They, however, increase this by requiring the person to strike his head against the earth thrice; and they increase this; as we do our three cheers, by three times three. Between each three, the worshipper rises and stands erect, then kneels down again. This ceremony is called Pau-kives ken kow, which is rendered verbal "three kneelings and nine knocks." Some of the Gods, are worshipped by three knocks, some by six, and Heaven by nine. This ceremony is by tributary Princes and Foreign Embassadors performed to the Emperor, for its own sake, and apart from every other ceremony as an expression of homage. This is called by way of eminence "The ceremony" and this is what the Tartars (for they were all Tartars who were sent to negociate) required from the British Embassador. That he should hesitate, will not be wondered at by many.

The Duke at last pretended to give way, and on the afternoon of the 28th at 4 P. M. we set off for the palace of Yuen-ming-Yuen, and after travelling all night arrived at day-light the next morning. The hour appointed by the Emperor [or as he is sometimes called the "Son of Heaven"] for giving audience had already elapsed. The Tartars rise early. We were hurried after travelling all night, unwashed and undressed to the door of the Palace. A British Nobleman, representing his Sovereign, and who had come 50,000 miles to the Court of China, demurred, as was natural, thus to enter into the Imperial presence, and pleaded with the Duke, who came out to urge the Embassador into the Hall of Audience, that the fatigues of the night had rendered him unwell, and therefore requested the Duke, that the Duke would beg his Majesty graciously to defer seeing him that morning. To effect this with his capricious master, the Duke went and said that the Embassador was so ill that he could not stir a step.—This produced a gracious order, that the Embassador should retire to the house provided for him, and his Majesty's physician would attend upon him.—He did attend. What report he made is not known. He could not in truth report that the Embassador was exceedingly or dangerously ill. The Emperor thought he was imposed upon, and called a special meeting of his cabinet; neither the Duke, nor Princes nor the Courtiers, who knew the fact of our travelling all night dared to tell him of it; his menial servants who also knew the fact, did not tell him, till 2 or 3 days afterwards, when it was too late and his Imperial Majesty in a fit of anger (in the presence of those courtiers who knew the real state of the case, and could by stating it appease him, but did not) decreed, that the Embassador should be required to depart immediately. This decree was carried into effect the same day. At 4 P. M. we left Yuen-ming-Yuen, and after travelling all night the second time arrived at Tung-Chow by break of day on the morning of the 30th.

The Emperor found out afterwards, the real state of the case, and degraded the Duke by removing him from situations of high trust, which he held. The Duke is brother to the Empress. Three other persons of the first rank were also removed from their offices, and an Edict published, chiding his courtiers for their hateful indifference to the public welfare; and lamenting that selfishness should be carried to such a degree; a thing he said, which he did not believe possible. The Duke's most intimate friends, as his Majesty stated it himself, who in ordinary cases, professed the utmost attachment and cordiality, smiling and fawning upon him, when they saw him perplexed and embarrassed by the Emperor's questions put to him, would not, though fully in their power, put him right or state the truth for him.—Every one said, "It is not my business."

"Alas," said the Emperor in his edict, "on what a dangerous rocky eminence, does a statesman tread," and in the next line adds, "If you had no regard for the Duke, had you none for your country?"

Notwithstanding all this, his pride and notions of dignity, would not allow him to give an explanation to the Embassador. He, however, ordered his own officers to treat him with politeness as he passed through the country. The night after the expulsion (for such our departure was) he sent three articles as a present, or in their phraseology "a donation" to the King of England, and took three articles from our presents, or as they called it "tribute." One article was the portraits of our beloved and lamented Sovereign and his Queen.

The ceremony of opening the WATERLOO BRIDGE, took place on the 18th of June, the Anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo. The Duke of Wellington, who had come from [illegible] to attend the ceremony, [illegible] accompanied by his Aids, passed through St. James's Park, about a quarter past two o'clock, and proceeded to the Fife House. A few minutes after, the Prince Regent, attended by Sir E. Nagle and Lord Forbes, the Naval and Military Aids in waiting, proceeded through the gate into the Park. The guards at the Tilt-yard, with their colours decorated with Laurel, as emblems of victory in commemoration of the day, received his Royal Highness with military honors. The Earl and Countess of Liverpool, received him at the door of the Fife House. The Duke and Dutchess of York, the Dukes of Cumberland and Gloucester, with their respective suites, the Foreign Ambassadors, Cabinet Ministers, and Officers of State, soon arrived.

About 3 o'clock, the firing of the cannon on the Bridge began. Two hundred and two guns were fired in quick succession, in commemoration of the number of cannon taken from the enemy in the battle of Waterloo. Soon after the firing had ceased, the Royal Barges passed through the centre arch, and proceeded to the stairs on the Surrey side, where the company landed. The procession was then formed at the head of the Bridge. It was headed by the Prince Regent, with the Duke of York on his right, and the Duke of Wellington on his left, in their uniform of Marshals.—They were followed by a long train of Noblemen, Ministers, Members of both houses of Parliament, &c. &c. On their passage across the Bridge, medals struck to commemorate the occasion were distributed among the company who had honored it with their presence. On arriving at the Middlesex side of the Bridge, the Royal party descended the stairs, re-embarked in their barges, and returned to the house of the Earl of Liverpool, where they partook of an elegant and sumptuous Dinner.

The Bridge was ornamented, during the day, with twenty-four flags of different Nations, and a Royal Standard in each recess. The river above and below the Bridge, was covered with boats; and the boats as well as the banks of the river, as far as the eye could reach, were every where crowded with spectators. Several guns announced that the ceremony was concluded. The Bridge was then thrown open to the public, and remained toll-free until 7 o'clock.

The British Packet Princess-Elizabeth sailed from Falmouth for New-York on the 16th of June. She will touch, as usual, at Halifax; and may be expected here in the course of the next week.—New-York Spectator.

SALEM, (N. Y.) Aug. 7.

Extraordinary Vegetation.—The newspapers, from every part of the country, abound with accounts of the uncommon fruitfulness of the present season, and the unparalleled luxuriance of every species of grain and grass. The Ulster Gazette speaks of a stalk of rye measuring 7 feet 11 inches; stalks of oats, from 6 feet 5 inches to 7 feet 3 inches; stalks of flax, 4 feet 10 1-2 inches; clover, 5 feet 1 inch; and a stalk of corn, in a garden in Kingston, 10 feet 4 inches. —In Oxford, Chenango county, their largest rye is said to be 7 feet 4 inches, and on Long-Island, an editor boasts very much of timothy grass with heads 9 inches long.

But Washington county need yield to none in the state in the size of her vegetable productions, for we have heard of rye raised in this town measuring 8 feet; we have seen flax wanting but half an inch of 5 feet; and Isaac Bishop, Esq. of Granville, informs us that he has four acres of timothy so high, that when he stands up in the midst of it, the stalks of grass, while growing may be tied over his head, and as a specimen of the heads, he has left one at this office which measures 10 1-2 inches.

LIVERPOOL, June 17.

American flour dull—76 a 78.

The quantity of flour from America imported into Liverpool, during the week ending 17th of June, amounted to 48,994 barrels, and 1,992 half barrels.

It appears by accounts from the Nottingham Review, of the 14th of June, and the Leeds Mercury of the 14th, that disturbances had been of a pretty serious nature in those parts of the Kingdom.

On Monday the 16th, great numbers of people had assembled at Alfreton, and other neighbouring villages, in Derbyshire, and excited considerable alarm—the guards were doubled, and the magistrates held a close consultation.—Rumors of these movements reaching Nottingham, troops were sent to parade the market place. Things however, remained quiet until the next morning, when information was received that a party of armed men were on their way towards Nottingham. The magistrates assembled, and swore in 1000 constables to keep the peace. It appeared that a body of men had assembled at South Wingfield, and after arming themselves, proceeded towards Nottingham. —On Thursday they committed some outrages, and attempted to force all they met to join; but were disappointed in their expectation of volunteers on the road, none of that description appearing. At about 7 in the morning they reached Eastwood, where they had about 200 men, armed with guns, pikes, &c. and some with bags of bullets on their backs. Here they found their greatest strength, and from thence declined in numbers. At Kimberley, 5 miles from Nottingham, they had but about 20. Mortified and alarmed, they then threw away their arms, and dispersed in various directions. Several of them, however, were taken without resistance. Twenty-eight miserable looking creatures were secured and lodged in gaol.

The towns of Laughborough, and Newark, were thrown into considerable alarm at the intelligence of [illegible] were taken out to check the rioters if they should appear. The peace-officers were directed to be in readiness, and troops ordered out; but no disturbances took place in that quarter. On Wednesday 28 prisoners were examined, Admiral Sir John Borlase Warren, presiding on the occasion.

From Leeds, it is stated, that a plot had been discovered to effect a change in the representation. Private meetings had been held for the purpose at Dewsbury and at which a person of the name of Oliver, who represented to the deluded men with whom he held his conferences, that there was a general plot in London to have a rising on the morning of the 8th of June, to take possession of the public offices, seize the constituted authorities, release the State prisoners, secure the military, and thus effect without the least bloodshed, an entire change of the government. He proposed to extend this plan throughout the whole country, and to secure the military in every part of the Kingdom. This project being disclosed, the persons concerned in it, to the number of ten, were on Friday arrested, secured, and privately examined. On the examination it appeared that arms were deposited in a barn at Whitley—This proved afterwards to be false. The men were committed for further examination, and the escort of dismounted cavalry, on the way to the prison, were attacked with stones, clubs, &c. They were, however, safely lodged in confinement. For a week preceding the publication of the account at Leeds, all had been quiet in that neighbourhood.

On the 14th it was stated, that the plot which has been mentioned, had been got up under the instigation of an agent from London, and that the principal offender had been suffered to escape. On examination it proved to be Oliver above mentioned.

All was peace at Nottingham on the 14th.

The trial of Watson for treason occupied 7 days, and closed on the 15th of June, by a verdict of acquittal. Lord Chief Justice Ellenborough was nearly 5 hours in delivering his charge to the Jury, and then he was almost charged, was assisted by Justice Abbott in finishing the recital of the evidence. His Lordship then concluded, by "entreating that the Jury would give in such a verdict as would quiet their consciences, protect the prisoner, and give him no cause from punishment if he deserved not to be visited by it; while they would, at the same time, feel that they were protecting the laws of the land, and giving them, and those who administer them, effective security."

The Jury now proposed to withdraw, and an officer (Mr Beaumont) was sworn to take them in charge during their deliberation.

Lord Ellenborough then intimated to the Jury that they might have refreshment in the box before they retired; afterward, until their verdict was given in, they could not expect to receive any.

Mr. Justice Abbott suggested to them to have some tea or coffee.

Some of the Jury wished for sandwiches and wine and water, and in a few minutes after manifested an anxiety to retire and consider their verdict without waiting for any refreshment.

Lord Ellenborough told them not to be in a hurry; the Court would very readily wait.—Officers soon after escorted them out of Court to their room. Most of the barristers in the front seats, after the retirement of the Jury stood up, as did Mr. Watson, folding his arms. Afterwards, he wrote a note to Mr. Harmer, his solicitor, who conversed with Mr. Wetherall, who was on the floor of the court, and received Mr. Harmer's answer.

The Officer, to whose care the Jury were committed, took the following oath:—

"You shall well and truly keep this Jury without meat, drink, or fire—you shall suffer no person whatever to speak to them, nor you yourself, unless it be to ask them whether they are agreed, or not."

Before the return of the Jury, great bustling and clapping of hands were heard in the Hall. —Much surprise was apparent in the Court.—Lord Ellenborough said, he ought to be cleared, and Mr. Sheriff Kirby went out, as if for that purpose, but quiet was presently restored, and it was found, that the applause had been given to the Lord Mayor, on his passing through the Hall.

The Jury were absent about an hour and three quarters. Upon their return their names were immediately called over, and they were asked who was their Foreman? they replied, Mr. Richardson, who came forward. The Officer of the Court then said, "Prisoner, hold up your hand and listen to your verdict." The Foreman of the Jury pronounced in a loud voice, NOT GUILTY.

A Barrister, drawing aside the green curtain, instantly called out towards the Hall—"Acquitted." He was heard only by a small part of the company, but their plaudits immediately made it known to the others, and were re-echoed from all parts of the Hall. The intelligence spread rapidly through Palace-yard and the adjoining streets. It was impossible to walk in the neighbourhood, without hearing the words a hundred times in 5 minutes.

Lord Ellenborough looked round the court, as if his Lordship, by the gestures of this expression made by the verdict, seemed to think the plaudits proceeded from a part of the audience there; but his Lordship soon perceived that the utmost decorum prevailed within his doors.

As soon as silence was obtained, Mr. Watson asked permission to say a few words. One or two Gentlemen near him intimated, that as his Counsel Mr. Wetherall, had withdrawn, this might not be proper, but the Court appeared willing to hear him. Mr. Watson, bowing respectfully to the Jury, said, "Gentlemen I thank you much."

Lord Ellenborough asked the Attorney Gen. if he had any other charge against the Prisoner? —The Attorney General answered, "No, my Lord."

Mr. Watson was then discharged; but, as the plaudits continued in the Hall, Lord Ellenborough expressed a wish, that the Jury should wait a little time before they withdrew; and Watson, appearing to feel, that the reason of the request might extend to him, also remained in Court. When he withdrew, it was through the vaulted passage, which leads into Old Palace yard, whence he passed with Mr. Harmer to Milbank

In the mean time, the carriage, which had been drawn up near the door of the Hall to convey Mr. Watson back to the Tower, if he had been permitted by the verdict, was removed and the Horse Guards, who attended it, retired.

In Spring Gardens Mr. Harmer and Mr. Watson were recognized and cheered.

On the latter quitting Mr. Harmer's house in Hatton-garden, in a hackney coach, the populace took the horses from the coach, and drew him down Holborn, and through Fleet-street, 'till he arrived at Mr. West's, wire-worker, (one of his bail,) in Wych-street, Drury-lane, where he alighted. The populace soon after called out "Watson! Watson!" Mr. West made his appearance at the first floor window, and addressed the numerous spectators as follows:—"Gentlemen, Mr. Watson, in his repeated journies to and from the Tower, and his close attention in the Court of King's Bench on [illegible] was incapable of addressing you. Gentlemen let me entreat you to conduct yourselves with propriety and good order; recollect the laws, and that a Magistrate can immediately disperse you.

He desires me to inform you of his heartfelt gratitude for your good wishes towards him; it will be engraven on his heart, but he has not voice to thank you as he feels. (Applause.) Gentlemen he will shew himself to you, and he trusts that you will then depart quietly to your homes. He will also drink all your good healths in a bottle of good old wine.—Lights! Lights!" were then called for. Mr. West. "Gentlemen, you shall have lights." Mr. Watson now shewed himself standing outside of the window, surrounded by candles. He bowed repeatedly, and in his retiring placed his hand on his heart. The marks of applause were beyond description. He appeared much exhausted. Home! Home! was then the general cry, and the people dispersed peaceably.

The other prisoners, viz. Thistlewood, Hooper, and Preston, were arraigned and acquitted, no evidence being offered by the Attorney General in support of the indictments.

From the Liverpool Advertiser of June 21.

The distress appears great in France and Geneva. The peasants at Montargis have fixed a price for corn, but this has only had the effect of aggravating their misery, as the farmers brought none to market; in the department of Yonne, some excesses have taken place. The French Funds are declining. The Princess of Wales has arrived at Parma. The Duke of Wellington left Paris on Tuesday morning, and arrived at Dover on Friday.

Circulars have been issued to the Lord Lieutenants, directing them to repair to their respective counties, to be ready in any emergency. It is said that the Chancellor of the Exchequer will want a loan of 15 millions of pounds sterling.

The Irish papers give a more favourable view of the state of that country. The price of corn in the Dublin market fell on Saturday, and the active and humane exertion of the superior classes to relieve the distress of the poor, had allayed the disorders in the agitated districts which that distress had excited.

A few days since, at least 1000 silver Saxon Coins were ploughed up in a field on Wintersfield's Farm, in the Parish of Dorking, most of them in a high state of preservation: they are of various Monarchs and Archbishops, many of them in the time of the Heptarchy, and have probably been hidden 900 years. It is much to be regretted that the greatest proportion of these coins have been clandestinely made off with, for had the whole quantity remained in one collection, they would have formed (it is presumed from what has been seen of them) a complete series of English Saxon coins from the earliest times.—*Lon. PARIS, June 15.

It is believed that the Court will remove to St. Cloud on the evening of the 17th.

Letters from various parts of France, supported by the testimonies of travellers, give the most flattering hopes of the approaching harvest. Rye is cutting at different points of the south of France, and amongst others at Nismes; and in three days corn-reaping will commence on the right bank of the Rhone.—Nature is every where expending its benefits with profusion. The price of grain has fallen in almost every part of France.

Disturbances, in the towns [illegible] have been attempted at Chauny, Roye, in the Somme Department, by the agents of [illegible] and more particularly at Perpignan, who is the Catalan road, and the rebels tried to persuade the people that Paris had been revolutionized. But the seditious have been quelled, and order is restored once more. Letters from Rochefort say, that the executions of the pirates there have made a strong impression on the people.

The Duke of Wellington is expected to return in three weeks.

Genoa experienced a fresh fall of 4 inches on Thursday, and two on Friday. Letters from different parts of France announce a general decline in the price of grain.

Abundance has appeared in all the markets of Seine-et-Marne, Seine-et-Oise, &c.

The society of perdrons on the pretext for the disturbances in the Department of the Rhone; but the malevolence which skilfully availed itself of that circumstance had no cause to congratulate itself on the success of its criminal attempts. The revolt which began at six o'clock on Sunday evening was by Monday noon compressed within a circle of two leagues diameter.

Accounts from Vienna, of the 8th June, state, that the English Ambassador, Lord Stewart, who had left that capital on his way to London, will return there no more. It is thought by some, that he will proceed in the same capacity to St. Petersburgh; while others say, that he will succeed Lord Somerset in the Government of the Cape of Good Hope. Lord Granville Leveson Gower is expected at Vienna as the English Ambassador.

Internal Improvement.

Our readers will perceive, from an advertisement in this day's Gazette, that a WATER BLAST FURNACE has recently been erected on the Napanee River, in the Township of Camden. The advantages to be derived from an establishment of this kind, to the community at large, are almost incalculable. When the delay and additional expence of procuring such articles from Lower Canada or the United States, which can now be obtained at this factory, at the shortest notice, is once considered, we sincerely hope and trust, that a generous public will duly appreciate the persevering efforts of the proprietor of this infant establishment, and that he will reap the reward he may so reasonably expect, and so justly merit; and the article of Mill Iron alone, much finer and superior can be served to those who are erecting mills; for we knew of an instance not long since, where the proprietor of a Saw Mill was obliged to wait nearly three months for his Iron work, before his mill could go into operation, and merely for the want of an establishment of this kind in the Province.

BATTLE AT AMELIA ISLAND.

By the arrival on Saturday morning last of the brig Commodore Decatur, cap. Dugan, in five days from Amelia Island, we learn that on the night of the 1st of August, a battle was fought on shore commencing at 10 o'clock at night and continuing three hours. Capt. Dugan saw from his mast head, during the flashes from the cannon and musquetry, the advancing and retreating of the troops engaged. Capt. D sailed on the morning of 3d, and saw the Patriot flag still flying on the forts, and vessels in the harbour.

A few days before the C. Decatur sailed a Patriot privateer had captured a French brig, bound from Havanna to Bordeaux, on suspicion of having Spanish property. The brig was laden with coffee and sugar.—I. B.

Delegates from the upper part of the Mississipi territory met at Washington on the 7th July, to take into consideration the organizing a new State. Part of the members were in favor of organising according to the boundaries prescribed by Congress; while others wished to postpone the question till next March, in order to memorialize Congress to extend the line east to the centre of Mobile bay, and thence on a line north to the state of Tennessee. After debating a day or two, a resolution, declaring the expediency of forming a constitution and state government, was adopted, 36 to 11, and the Convention appointed a committee to draft a constitution.

GREGORIAN SCRIP.

It is a fact, communicated by a gentleman of the first respectability from Charleston, S. C. that Sir Gregor McGregor, when he was last at that place, in order to raise the wind, fell upon the scheme of issuing a quantity of scrip; something in this style; "I promise to pay one pound sterling 1000 dollars, and in the same proportion for more, he gave a writing called a script, transferable by delivery, by which he engaged to convey to the holder 2,000 acres of land in Florida, whenever he should come into possession of it, or to repay the sum so advanced, with interest. It was hardly to be expected this scheme would take, but, however strange it may seem, he obtained no less a sum from the credulous Charlestonians than 100,000 dollars; 60,000 more of the Georgians, and, unless report misrepresents the truth, some of the scrip has even found its way to New-York.—*N. Agricultural.

CHAFF—its Economical use in preference to entire Hay.

"Writhlington, Nov. 9, 1812.

The improved Chaff Cutter is employed for both Hay and Straw; and the chops or cutting of both, are technically called CHAFF. In the apprehended scarcity of Hay, the following article, from the 13th volume of the papers of the Bath and West of England Society, for the encouragement of Agriculture, &c. is well worthy of attention. Mr. Williamson, is a gentleman of respectability and observation.

Those who top and blade their Indian Corn, will find it amply reward them, although in plentiful Hay Seasons it is not so much an object. Many cut off the whole of the Corn plant near the ground, and dry the ears and stalks in open conical stacks—They will find the Straw Cutter of important advantage, for promoting nutritive Chaff from the whole plant, after the ears are taken off. Cutting even the tops and blades will be more economical, than giving them whole.

Public spirited Printers would do well to circulate these hints among Farmers generally; as they are not theories, but the results of experience. Those who are struck with its advantages, (which in a time of abundance of Hay may not appear so urgent) will have notice, in due season to prepare for the execution of the plan suggested. Let them suspend prejudice, till they have tried the experiment. A powerful Straw Cutter is all essential. Additional labour, is no doubt required; but the IMPORTANT saving of Provender, quadrupledly repays it.

"A comparative Statement respecting the use of CHAFF, and the common practice of serving Horses, &c. with Hay—By Thomas Williamson, Esq. in a letter to the Secretary—[Bath Soc. Papers, vol. 13 p. 104.]

"SIR—Permit me to solicit that you lay before the Society the following comparative statement respecting the use of chaff, and the common practice of serving horses, &c. with hay.

"I have throughout the summer kept my horses in the stable feeding them with good hay and beans. My oxen have, on the contrary, always been turned out to grass when liberated from their work; they have had the range of good pastures and the benefit of some less valuable hay, previous to their labour. My horses, five in number, have been regularly worked in pairs; latterly, after much opposition on the part of my servants, with reins. The oxen, four in number, have worked in collars, drawing generally a stout Beverstone plough, or a large drag and scuffler; their labour has been constant and rather severe. As our meadows began to fail us towards the end of September, owing to the quantity of stock upon them, it became necessary to allow the oxen more and better hay.

"The increased expenditure alarmed me; as the four oxen and the five horses, consumed no less than four tons in one month. This caused me to prohibit the use of hay in the racks, and to feed all the cattle with chaff; of which a boy can cut sufficient for daily use in two hours.

"My servants not only ridiculed the change, but so far as they dared, opposed it, in an underhand manner, by various evasions and pretexts. Aided by the care and vigilance of the young gentleman with me, the system of chaff feeding was fully established; and the quantity needful for the horses, and the oxen, separately ascertained.

"One hundred weight of hay was found to yield 20 bushels of chaff pressed into the measure and piled as high as it could safely be carried; consequently, each bushel weighed about 5 1-2 pounds. It was found that the five horses would eat twelve bushels of chaff during the 24 hours; and that the four oxen would consume an equal quantity in the same time. Ever since the oxen have been fed with chaff only, they have very evidently improved in condition; as have also the horses, although their work has latterly been on heavier soil, and of course more severe than formerly.

"Twenty-four bushels of chaff, at 20 to the hundred weight amount to about 21 1-2 tons yearly; which deducted from 48 tons, (the quantity we were consuming within the year,) gives a saving of about 26 1-2 tons, or more than half.

"I have, however, carried the retrenchments farther by cutting in beanstalks,* to the extent of about a quarter of the chaff; these, being laid uppermost in the cutting through, keep the hay well pressed, and cause it to be cut more regularly. Thus we now use about 2500 weight of hay monthly, instead of four tons!

"It is customary, in our quarter, to throw bean-stalks under cattle; a practice which cannot be too speedily abolished. Mine had suffered much from standing out a full month in the late rainy weather; yet all my cattle ate the chaff, cut from them alone, without hesitation; indeed, rather in preference.

"I am &c.

"THOMAS WILLIAMSON."

☞Mr. W. is not the only one who has profited, in a greater or less degree, by this practice. Much of the entire hay is wasted before it enters the mouth; and what is eaten, cannot be so properly and perfectly prepared, when whole, as to mix intimately with the system of the animal; whereas of the chaff nothing is lost; and every particle quickly undergoes the preparatory operations required.

* Hour much superior to bean stalks those of our Indian Corn will be found, every one acquainted with both can well ascertain; there being no comparison between them. The former stalk far exceeds in saccharine and nutritious qualities. Add to this, the top, blade, and husk—and our Indian Corn plant, as well for its grain, as for every part of its substance, must be acknowledged to be the most valuable of our Cerealia grain bearing products. It is welcome in seasons of prosperity and plenty, and doubly so in those of scarcity and deficiency of other resources for ourselves, or provender for our stock. How much more economically the very stalk and husks can be expended if brought into our barn yards or sheds, for support to our cattle at our pleasure, instead of suffering them to waste and tread them down in the fields at their will, dropping their manure to be given to the winds, let any one determine who has been wise enough to make the experiment. If it be even considered as an article to be converted into manure, the corn stalk far exceeds straw, or any other such material. How miserably then do they mismanage, who suffer the beast to wander in their stalk fields, and wasting as much as they eat, leave the greater part of the offals of the Corn plant to perish uselessly and shamefully!

The pretext that they are ploughed in for the benefit of the succeeding crop, is idle, as few of the stalks can be perfectly covered, and they have been found unrotten under the ploughing, even when partially covered, after a crop of wheat. The earth checks fermentation in such detached matter: there being no sufficient body of them together to promote putrefaction, when stalks are scattered at random as they fall over the field. Burning them is, so far as it goes, beneficial: but it is a wretched substitute for the superior advantages derived from hauling them into the yard in the fall, using what will answer for provender, and rotting down the residue for highly valuable manure

In our country, generally overflowing with plenty, the foregoing economical practices may not be regarded with the interest they merit. But if it should produce even a partial reformation in the expenditure of an article of forage, growing every day more costly as the demand increases, the end of the publication will be answered.

Mr. Williamson's expenditure of hay appears to exceed a necessary supply; yet horses and cattle, hard worked, consume forage wonderfully. But there is no doubt, of the facts in his statement; and the relative saving is the great object of instruction and example, and not the question whether the stock required less or more hay in the aggregate. Both the positive and relative savings may be better managed by those who depend on themselves, and not on reluctant and mulish servants, for the expenditure of their forage." August 16, 1816.

Miscellaneous.

BOTANY BAY.

The Asiatic Magazine for the present month, after observing that a new governor has been appointed for New South Wales, which is to be discontinued as a place of punishment, and to be converted to "more important purposes," proceeds to give some account of the settlement, derived from the information of an eye witness. The following is an abstract of that account.

Botany Bay, so called from the quantity of new botanical plants found growing on its shores. The most considerable district is Sydney, where are built ships of 500 tons, which sail to China and Peru. The East India company are jealous of the trade to China; should they crush it, by their influence in the British parliament, the measure would infallibly produce opposition, and might be productive of serious rupture. The climate is pure, (diseases being scarcely known,) and the soil is excellent.—The spring there is in August. Fresh fruits and vegetables are produced in every season. Agricultural labour is the most profitable; although in the town are found mechanics, manufacturers, and artizans of every description. —There are two harvests in the year, of wheat, maize and grass. One bushel of maize produces 600, Rice, millet and oats thrive well.

The wild cattle are almost as numerous as in South America. A peculiar breed of sheep has produced a very superior fleece, estimated to be worth six shillings per pound, in England. The climate is favourable for sheep, and the mutton is not surpassed. A woollen manufactory is established at Paramatta (a dependency) and at Sidney, 78 looms are employed in weaving sails and sacking, coarse cloth and linen.

From Sidney, the voyage to New Zealand is frequently performed in 3 days—to China in 3 weeks—to Peru in 4—to Bengal in 6—and to the Cape of Good Hope in 5. The sea that washes the shores of New South Wales and of Peru has no violent currents; no trade winds, no Chinese Tuffoons.

Herring visit Botany Bay during November and the following months; and five or six species of the fish common to the British channel, are daily caught. Sperm whales abound. One house in Sidney, of 5 partners, formerly bankers, in one year remitted oil and seal skins to London to the value of £50,000. The trade in skins and coal is the most thriving; the culture of flax and hemp for exportation is rapidly increasing. Masts and spars are exported to Bengal; and a profitable trade is carried on in sandal wood, procured from the neighbouring Feejee Islands.

Potteries and breweries have been established. Iron ore, good and abundant, has been discovered, but not yet worked. But the chief hope of New South Wales consists in its extensive wild territory, recently explored. It is probable that here the future glories of this interesting country will fix their seat. Already the people are as remote from calamity as any nation upon earth. Perhaps, at no distant day, the infant colony arriving at mature vigor, may reject parental control, and assume the independant functions of its manhood.

M. Locatelli, the celebrated mathematician of Milan, has invented a new piece of mechanism (says a Paris paper) by means of which vessels may ascend rivers without the assistance of a steam-engine. The first experiment, which was made on a small boat, completely succeeded. The inventor asserts, that his plan is applicable even to a man of war, and that it will secure her from the danger of ship-wreck; the strength of a single man or at most that of a horse, is sufficient to put this machine in motion.—Lon. Paper.

About the year 1670, a woman of fashion, Margaret D'Aubray, wife of the Marquis de Brinvillier, began to make a distinguished figure among the votaries of vice and infamy. Her husband possessed a yearly income of 30,000 livres, and she brought him an additional fortune of 200,000 livres. Her history is briefly as follows:—A needy adventurer, of the name of Goden de St. Croix, who, as a captain of Dragoons had formed an acquaintance with the Marquis during their campaigns in the Netherlands, became, in Paris, a constant visitor at his house, where in a short time he found means to insinuate himself into the good graces of the Marchioness. It was not long before the Marquis died, not, however, until their joint fortune was pretty nearly dissipated. Her conduct in openly carrying on the amour, induced her father to have St. Croix arrested and sent to the Bastile. Here he got acquainted with an Italian, of the name of Exile, from whom he learnt the art of preparing poisons. After a year's imprisonment, St. Croix was released, when he flew to the Marchioness, and instructed her in the diabolical art, which she undertook to practice, in order to better their circumstances. She assumed the appearance of a nun, distributed food to the poor, nursed the sick in the Hotel-Dieu, and tried the strength of her poisons undetected, on those helpless wretches. She bribed one Chaussee, St. Croix's servant, to poison her own father, after introducing him into his service, and also his brother, and endeavoured to poison her sister: a suspicion having arisen that they had been poisoned, the bodies were opened, but for that time the parties escaped detection. Their villanous practices were brought to light in the following manner:—

St. Croix, when preparing poison, was accustomed to wear a glass mask; but as this happened once to drop off by accident, he was suffocated & found dead in his laboratory. Government caused the effects of this man, who had no family, to be examined, and a list of them to be made out. On searching them, there was found a small box, to which St. Croix affixed a written request that, after his death, it might be delivered to the Marchioness de Brinvillier, or in case she should not be living, that it might be burnt. This request was as follows:—"I humbly beg that those into whose hands this box may fall, will do me the favor to deliver it into the hands only of the Marchioness de Brinvellier, who resides in the Street Neuve St. Paul, as every thing it contains concerns her, and belongs to her alone; and as, besides, there is nothing in it that can be of use to any person except her: and, in case she should be dead before me, to burn it, and every thing it contains, without opening or altering any thing: and in order that no one may plead ignorance, " I swear by the God whom I adore, and by all that is most sacred, that I advance nothing but what is true. And if my intentions, just and reasonable as they are, be thwarted in this point, I charge their consciences with it, both in this world and the next, in order that I may unload mine, protesting that this is my last will. Done at Paris, this 25th May 1672. De Saint Croix." Nothing could be a greater inducement to have it opened than this singular petition; and that being done, there was found in it a great abundance of poisons of every kind, with labels, on which their effects, proved by experiments on animals, were marked. When the Marchioness heard of the death of her lover and instructor, she was desirous to have the casket, and endeavoured to get possession of it, by bribing the officers of justice; but as she failed in this, she quitted the kingdom. La Chaussee, however, continued at Paris, laid claim to the property of St. Croix, was seized and imprisoned, confessed more acts of villainy than were suspected; and was, in consequence, broken alive on the wheel, in 1678.

The Marchioness fled to England, and from thence to Liege, where she took refuge in a Convent. Desgrais, an officer of justice, was despatched in pursuit of her; and having assumed the dress of an Abbe, contrived to entice her from this privileged place, which as the Professor very justly observes, "folly had consecrated for the protection of vice."—Among her effects was found a confession, and a complete catalogue of all her crimes, in her own hand writing; she was taken at Paris, convicted, and on the 16th July, 1676, publicly beheaded, and afterwards burnt.—Beckman's History of Inventions.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.

A part of the lots of public ground in this city, which, at the last session of congress were directed to be sold, were put up to the highest bidder on Thursday, and went off at an average of 47 cents per square foot, which would amount to rather more than $20,000 an acre. The conditions of sale required one moiety of the purchase money to be paid down, and oblige the purchaser of each lot to erect thereon, within 3 years a house 25 by 40 feet, 3 stories high.

The Baltimore Calamity.—The Baltimore papers received this morning, contain a melancholy detail of the desolation which occurred in that city on the night of Friday last. It was not a gale, or a tide, but a deluge occasioned by a tremendous torrent of rain, that caused the calamity. Many lives were lost; many houses were buried in ruins; and property swept away to the estimated amount of a million of dollars.

The details will now be given, as we find them in two of the Baltimore papers.

From the Balt. Federal Republican, June 13.

FRESHET.—On the night of Friday the 9th inst. the rain descended with unusual violence, and continued to increase until Saturday morning—between the hours of 9 and 12 o'clock of that day, the descending deluge seemed to pour from the clouds in torrents. Large sheets of water poured from the firmament upon us in such quantities, that the lower part of the city became completely immersed in water. In the mean time, the descending torrents thro' various channels were uniting all their streams, the rain continued to pour down with unabated vehemence. Market-space was completely immersed.—Men and women were seen passing in boats from one market to another, for the purpose of saving what little property could be preserved from the deluge. At length, as far as the eye could stretch in various directions, we beheld whole streets swept by the descending streams, forming a spectacle equally sublime and terrific. Jones's falls so suddenly replenished from so many sources, swelled beyond its banks, bearing away every thing in triumph that opposed the rapidity of the current. Ponderous bridges were loosened from their foundations in an instant, and were seen swept along like skiffs upon the floating surface. Houses that for a few moments appeared to obstruct the progress of the stream, were suddenly undermined, and swept away, leaving nothing but a shapeless mass of bricks. We do not believe that we exceed the truth, when we assert, that the water raised to the height of sixteen feet above its usual level.

Every bridge over Jones' falls, excepting Baltimore, Gay and Pratt st. bridges, were demolished, and fragments of floating timber, broken furniture, implements of industry, articles of merchandize, houses, horses, cows and other cattle, all swept away in confusion, proclaimed the extent the injury committed. We were forcibly impressed at this moment, with the apparent impotency and vanity of human strength, beholding this terrific demolition with so much ease, of works, that required so much patient labour to erect—we looked—they seemed to stand firm and irresistable at one moment—we looked again, and they were gone. Amid this warring of the elements, were to be seen the generous and benevolent, encountering every hazard, and braving every danger, for the preservation of the persons and property of their countrymen —skiffs and boats amidst the floating wrecks and amidst the distressed and afflicted from what appeared to be instant and inevitable death—this was a spectacle, if possible, more sublime than that presented by the desolation itself. We cannot, at this early period speak of the extent of the injury; this must be a matter of future calculation and enquiry. The ensuing morning arose brilliant and serene—we see nothing now of that destructive agent, and we can only trace his route by his ravages. He has departed indeed like a dream; but he has left wrecks behind. We presume that it is unnecessary to state to our fellow citizens, that a strong, imperious christian duty remains now to be performed—To search out and to relieve the sufferers by this visitation of Divine Providence, we presume will be no less a pleasure than a duty; poverty can only command a tear for the sufferings of others; it is the higher, more noble, more Godlike privilege of opulence not only to sympathise over, but to relieve such distresses. Several lives have been lost, the number not as yet ascertained, and upwards of a million of property destroyed.

The water company's mill dam has been swept away, and the canal partially filled up.—Pennington's mill dam carried away, as also are that of the mill dams on Jones' falls. The rolling and splitting mill, as well as the bridge at Elliott's upper mills, have also been carried away. The extent of injury has not yet been ascertained.

But what will more immediately deserve the attention of the Police, will be the great quantity of stagnant water deposited in private cellars. Such a nuisance in this hot season, unless speedily removed, may create pestilence, and do far more injury than the flood. We presume that no time will be lost in taking the most effective measures to guard against so serious an injury.

Another account, from the Baltimore American says, "The bridge (known by the name of Fion's Bridge) was completely carried off the abutments, and driven against Gay-street bridge, where it was arrested. By this stoppage of a strong wooden bridge, nearly as wide as the stream itself, and by the accumulation of timber, wood, houses, &c. which it arrested in their course, the channel of the Falls was blocked up. This occasioned the water to seek a new passage—It turned one by forcing through the lots at the west end of Pitt-street, down which st. it passed to Gay-street; from thence across to Frederick and Harrison streets; down Harrison-street to Market-space on both sides, and into the docks. Through those streets and through the lots and property between them and the Falls, the water rushed with an overwhelming force. The whole section of the city formerly called "Meadow," was under water; as also, South Frederick, from Second-street to the wharf.

There was also much damage done at Dr White's distillery, and some brick buildings below—the loss of Mr. Causland's brewery is immense. The greatest loss appears to have been about Gay-street Bridge—a part of Fish, North Fourth-st. and the intersection of Gay and Harrison-streets, as well as the Fish and Gay-street bridges and Peter's bridge. Market-street bridge is not injured, and Pratt-street bridge only part damaged.

The situation of families during this period was dreadful. In many of the houses it rose to the second stories, and on every side a raging current, overpowering any endeavouring to relieve them.

The waters were at their height at three o'clock, P. M. and between six and seven had subsided.

Of Harford Run, the Bridges crossing from Pitt-street, Dunlap-street and King George st. are much injured, that new Bridges will be required.

Several lives are reported to be lost—the number or names we cannot ascertain to-day. An apprentice to Mr. Geo. Miller, smith, is drowned—and a Mr. Peter O'Rourke, of Hollday-street. We witnessed several hair-breadth escapes of those who were striving to assist their friends.

On Gunpowder Falls, Mr. W. Patterson's Saw and Plaister Mills are entirely destroyed, together with 200 bbls of flour. The bridge at the Philadelphia road, and two others above are also destroyed.

From the York (Penn.) Gazette Extra, of August 11.

DREADFUL INUNDATION.

The 9th of August, 1817, will be a memorable day in the history of this place. The borough of York has had to bear heavy calamities, on former occasions. In 1800, the incendiaries torch menaced destruction to some of its fairest portions—but the conflagrations were generally within the control of the activity of the citizens—bounds could always be prescribed to the rage of the fiery element—but on Saturday last, the flood, the angry flood arose, and swept along with it not only the houses and furniture of many of our fellow citizens, but the lives of some were involved in the destruction.

On Friday night the most prodigious fall of rain was experienced in this country which has ever been known by the oldest inhabitants now living; the rain continued to fall till Saturday about noon, in torrents, with little intermission. All the streams were raised in a little time to uncommon heights; even the small branches were swollen to large creeks, sweeping away fences and in some instances cattle. Plantations are torn to pieces, and some of them have the soil almost swept away. Heavy losses have been sustained by millers. Dams carried away, races filled up and broken, and even mills and water works carried off.

The water rose five feet higher than ever known before in this town—where two breweries and five tanneries are swept away, and left nothing but a bare bleak shore—where instead of the hum of industry, nothing is now to be heard but the howling of winds and the rustling of water.

But the scenes which caused the greatest poignancy of feeling, were witnessed in the dwelling houses of many of our citizens on the western side of the bridge, being desolated by the floods. It was with painful solicitude we had to look on from the eastern side, and behold houses with their inhabitants sinking to the bottom of the stream, or carried off by its force. And what equally excited feelings of compassion, seeing those whose houses had still resisted the current's force, retreating on their roofs, and on that eminence having no prospect but that of soon following their neighbors to a watery grave. Their cries for help were heard by those on the eastern side, but none would venture to relieve them without exposing themselves to greater danger than they were in themselves.

That part of the house owned by John F. Williams, in which he kept his grocery store was the first that gave way. Mr Williams and Mrs. Williams saved themselves in the remaining part of the house: but sad to relate, Mrs. Williams was injured by the fall of the storehouse while she was endeavoring to save her child—her efforts were unavailing, and the affliction of seeing her darling offspring, lying innocent and helpless in the cradle, swept away, cradle and all. Peter Beel's house adjoining Mr. Williams is totally swept away. All the people in this saved themselves by taken refuge on the wreck of Mr. Williams's house.

The house occupied by Hugh Cunningham, and that adjoining occupied by G. K. Kane were carried off. In Mr. Cunningham's house, there were six persons, of whom five were lost, Mr. Cunningham and his wife, Daniel Undegraff, Esq. Samuel Eichelberger, (son of Martin Eichelberger) and a hired girl. Joseph Wren, a soldier of the revolution who had escaped the dangers, and overcame the fatigues of some hard campaigns in the times that tried men's souls, although he is now on the verge of 80, it seems had not filled the measure of his days. After assisting to remove the furniture to the second floor, he retired to the garret and laid himself down and slept, and the house actually went away without wakening him—it went only about 50 yards, where it hung to an apple tree until the water receded.

That neat and new brick building of Israel Gardner was thrown down. George Lauman who occupied it had sent his family to a place of safety, himself only remaining and saving himself in the back building. The western Gable end of the Widow Doudle's house fell down—The house of Mr Schlosser is razed to the ground. Every house from Newbury street, where you turn off towards the Methodist Meeting house has been swept away, or sustained injury more or less. Some are completely undermined, and almost all have the windows broken, window cases pushed out of place or floors raised and walls twisted or bent.

It was about one o'clock on Sunday morning before we could have any communication with the western side—The water having receded, we were relieved from a state of anxious suspense for the fate of those who were surrounded by the flood. It was some mitigation to our feelings to hear that many who were supposed to have sunk with their houses, had survived. Fires were lighted in the streets, on both sides, and moved as the water fell, as signals to those who were driven to their house tops without light and without any other means to ascertain the falling of the water. The house which appeared in the most imminent danger, and kept our sensibilities most alive, by its near situation to the bridge, was Jesse Sprangler's. Mr. Sprangler with 5 others remained in the house and all escaped.

One of the principal sufferers is Michael Doudle. His loss is great, for a young man who had but a few years established himself in the world—An elegant and newly built shop, his stock of hides and leather, all has been carried off with little exception. But he is not the only one who is removed from competency. John F. Williams lost all his groceries and other property and has nothing left but the wreck of a house, that can neither afford him shelter nor shade. Samuel Welsh and John Barnitz had their Breweries and a large quantity of cord wood. Martin Eichelberger, George Lauman and Jacob Saylor lost a tanning stock to a considerable amount. Israel Gardner. Weirich Bentz. Esther Schlosser, Peter Reed lose their dwelling houses. None feel their loss so grievously as Peter Reed who has thus in his old days been deprived of a home for himself and his equally aged and helpless wife. Mr. Reed has been reduced to the realization of what the poet says:

"Oh, age and want thou ill matched pair."

Mr. Elgar's house is much injured, and his wool factory totally carried off. Many others in the borough have suffered great loss, which we know not how to estimate: It appears useless idle to make an estimate of the loss occasioned by this deluge, as an estimate that can be made must be overthrown by the reality: all we can say, is that it is so great, that it will be severely felt for many a day.

Our town wears the appearance of having been the scene of military operations; as if it had undergone the assault of an enemy. Some are engaged in burying the dead, some in hunting their valuable effects among the ruins, while others are despatched as guards to protect the property floating down the stream, from falling a prey to such who seem to consider it, very improperly, legitimate objects of booty.

The corpse of Hugh Cunningham and wife, Daniel Undegraff, Esq. and Samuel Eichelberger, were all found in Mr. Cunningham's house, and buried on Saturday afternoon. The child of Mr. Williams was found half a mile down the creek, and buried this morning.—Henry Bradly, who lost his life by imprudently exposing himself in trying to save some horses in a stable, has also been found. The girl lost in Cunningham's house, and three others whose names we have not heard, remain still in their watery graves.

Intelligence from the neighbouring counties state, that a great deal of rain fell, but not half the quantity that fell here. This country seems to have been the focus, where three great rains united. One from the S. E. one from the S. W. and another from N. E. all poured down in rapid succession. Codorus creek in Main-street, raised about 30 perpendicular feet. The bridge was covered by the water—almost the whole of the side-walls fell, but the arches stood immoveable as a rock.—Five feet higher was the water than at the "High Flood" in 1786.

Thus we have hastily given an account of one of the severest visitations of Providence, ever experienced in this place. In concluding we would remark, that we hope, those who escaped, will administer the balm of consolation to the sufferers, by evincing at least, an expression of sympathy for the misfortunes of their neighbors. Sudden and unexpected it came upon one portion of our citizens, and we know not what means of chastisement Omnipotence has in store for the rest. Cut Worms and myriads of Vermin, which had given apprehensions so serious, have all passed harmlessly away, and affliction came from whence none had dreamt.

The time and means of our visitation are unknown, and therefore instead of pointing out any one as marked by the peculiar displeasure of Providence, let all follow the advice given in the good Book—"Be ye also ready.

LEXINGTON, (Ky.) July 22.

Awful occurrence.—On Sunday last, two respectable ladies were killed by lightning, in the Presbyterian meeting house in this town—Mrs. Eleanor M'Cullough and Mrs. Jane Lucket. This truly afflicting dispensation of Providence, happened during divine worship—the scene of distress and confusion among the congregation can scarcely be imagined.

READING, (Penn.) Aug. 9.

Casualty.—On Wednesday last a most distressing accident occurred in this borough. A new two story brick house, which was building by Mr. Krauser, in West Penn street, the brick work of which had been finished all to the walling up one gable end, suddenly gave way, and five unfortunate beings were buried in the ruins. They had all been at work at the same place, and were with the building precipitated to the ground and completely covered. The exertions of the citizens soon rescued them from their premature grave, from which it was expected none would have escaped with life. We are happy in being able to state, no lives were lost, yet the mangled situation of two of the unfortunates would almost preclude a hope of their recovery.

From South America.—Papers to the 24th May last, have been received in this town from Buenos Ayres. They do not contain any event of importance.—The cause of Independence seemed to acquire stability in the United Provinces of that denomination. The sovereign Congress had just met in that metropolis, which occurrence had occasioned great rejoicings during three days, and a general illumination for three nights. In Chili every thing gave way before the Independents; a remnant of the Royalist army was pursued, and would soon entirely vanish if overtaken by a detachment of the Patriot force. On the borders of Peru, there was constant skirmishing, and according to the Genl. in Chief's account, (Belgrano) to the Supreme Director of Buenos Ayres, the Peruvian Royalist army had suffered considerably in various rencounters, and it is represented as being very nearly shut in to Salta. Much is expected from the gentlemen composing the Sovereign Congress, being described as men of distinguished talents, probity and patriotism. Not a word is mentioned about Montevideo, or the Portuguese forces in that quarter.—Boston Patriot.

From the Boston Daily Advertiser.

We have received from Mr. Topliff, a further loan of Buenos Ayres papers, received from his correspondent, by the last arrival from that city. We have extracted from them the following intelligence.

Auxiliary army of Peru.—Bulletin No. 22 gives a narrative of proceedings from May 1, to the 11th. A party of the republicans had penetrated into the province of Potosi, and the royalists in that quarter under Gen. Tacon, had retreated to Arequipa. The main body of the royalists, under Gen. Jose de la Serna, evacuated Salta, May 5, having occupied it 20 days. Col. Martin Gremes, entered the town on the same day.

Chili.—A letter from Don Juan Gregora de las Heras to the supreme director of Chili, Don Bernardo O'Higgins, dated at Conception, May 5, mentions that he was attacked by an enemy's force of 13 or 1400 men, whom he repulsed with the loss of 3 pieces of artillery, a great quantity of arms and ammunition, 500 prisoners and 100 killed.

By the ship Gen. Scott, arrived here this forenoon, in 111 days from the coast of Chili, we learn, that the patriots under Gen. Martins, amounting to 12,000 men, took St. Jago, about the middle of January, and Valparaiso the 17th of February. After garrisoning both those places, he returned to Buenos Ayres for more troops.—N. Y. Ev. Post.

M'Gregor has been enabled to put his court of admiralty into operation. Two prizes, one containing $26,000 in specie, and a valuable cargo, have been brought in by his privateers, and condemned as bon prizes. There is much talk of expected reinforcements, but where they are to come from it is not ascertained. In the mean time M'Gregor keeps close to the island of Amelia, and does not venture upon the main.—Herald.

The Navy.—It is stated in the National Intelligencer, that a 74 gun ship is immediately to be built at Philadelphia, one at New-York, one at Boston, and one at Portsmouth; and that one is building at Norfolk and one at Washington; that active preparations are making to complete the nine ships of the line, twelve frigates and three steam batteries, authorised by law, and their total cost will probably fall within the appropriation of eight millions made for this object. When these vessels are completed, our navy will consist of 12 ships of the line, 19 frigates, 8 sloops of war, 4 steam batteries, and a proportionate number of small vessels, independent of those on the lakes.—Alb. Argus.

General Lavalette, whose escape from the fangs of the Bourbons, was effected through the heroism of his wife, has arrived at New-York, from Europe.

From Europe.

LONDON, June 23.

The great arsenal at Caracca, near Cadiz, has been consumed by fire. The following account is given in one of the Paris papers of Friday.—"The burning of the immense establishments at Caracca, has spread consternation throughout Cadiz and Madrid. It appears certain that this dreadful event is connected with criminal enterprises, the object of which was to prevent the equipping ships of war destined to convey to South America, a considerable force. The magazine of Caracca, notwithstanding the misfortunes of Spain, contained still every thing necessary for the equipping a powerful fleet. Every thing has been destroyed: the rope-walk was six hundred paces long, and was considered equal to any thing which England or France possess of this kind. The conflagration was so violent that the Isle of Leon, which is separated from Caracca by a large basin, was covered with flames."

We are happy to find from our corn report, that wheat fell ten shillings this morning at Mark-lane, and that even at that reduction there were but few buyers. Oats, peas, &c. experienced also a decline.

In a few days the May harvest will be over, and the fineness of the weather has produced every where a manifest improvement in the growing crops of all sorts; so that we have the prospect before us of an abundant harvest. Similar accounts arrive from France, and from the continent generally.

A letter received in town yesterday, from Deal, says, that late on Friday evening, nine sail of the line, one frigate and a brig of war, "all Russians," passed at the back of the Goodwin Sands, supposed to be bound to some port in France.

We ought to have stated that our accounts from Buenos Ayres, were to the 15th of April. We further learn, that the taking of Chili had already produced such an effect on the royalist army in Upper Peru, that it was in full retreat. This being observed by General Belgrano, he advanced rapidly and cut off an enemy's party, by which means several hundred prisoners and seven pieces of cannon fell into his hands. He had detached 300 cavalry to act with the guerrillas, commanded by Guemes, in the neighborhood of Chuquisaca, with orders to reach Potosi before the Spaniards, and thus forestall the treasure.—The latter experience all the inconvenience of marching in a completely hostile country.

General San Martin crossed the Andes, though covered with snow, it being necessary to have 300 men to clear the road, where the snows had accumulated. He was only accompanied by Major O'Brien, an intrepid Hibernian, who in the late action at Chacabuco took one of the royalist standards. He appears to possess and to have deserved the full confidence of his chief. Great preparations had been made to receive Genl. San Martin, but hearing of it, he entered in disguise by one of the small streets. Before he quitted Chili, the Municipality of Santiago presented him with a purse of 20,000 dollars, which he returned, saying he wished nothing for himself, and adding, as long as he had bread and meat, all his wants were supplied! Marco, the late Governor of Chili, was confined at San Luis, on this side the Andes, and 200 leagues distant from Buenos Ayres. Had he been the victor, most probably his antagonist would instantly have been shot. Several rich prizes had arrived at Buenos Ayres, and among them a Spanish Philipine Company ship, valued at more than a million of dollars. The navy was all ready, as it was supposed, to go round Cape Horn, in order to co-operate in the liberation of Peru. Genl. Rondeau had been despatched with 1000 men to act on the flank of the Portuguese. Four vessels richly laden from Lima, had been taken in the port of Valparaiso.—These vessels entered, supposing the country still in possession of the royalists.

A detachment of 500 Portuguese, commanded by Genl. Curio, had left Montevideo, to advance on San Joze, 50 leagues distant, in search of provisions, where they were attacked by Artigas' gauchos, and all put to the sword.—Another of Artigas' parties, then marched towards the Cerro, or heights, which commanded Montevideo, and took possession of the battery. The general Congress had opened its sessions in Buenos Ayres. One of the first measures of the Chili government was, to send away the bishop and clergy, who had meddled in the affairs of the country.

We have also received a decree of the Supreme Director, dated Buenos Ayres, March 29, by which it is enacted, that all public debts, of whatsoever nature they may be, are to be received at the Custom House, in payment for duties, and thus be liquidated. This measure is extremely creditable to the government, and tends to prove the good faith of its views. The Independents are sensible also, that the best way to obtain abundant supplies, is to hold all public engagements sacred, and they thus evince to the world a striking contrast with the conduct of their enemies. At no period have our merchants received such flattering accounts from the quarter alluded to. Numberless circulars have been sent over, stating the immense prospects that would follow the liberation of the Peruvian provinces, of which event not the smallest doubt was entertained. Chili was formerly the granary of Peru; of this resource the latter is now deprived, and the fullest arrangements have been made to march a sufficient army, not only to compete with the Spaniards, but also to shield the Peruvians from Spanish vengeance, when they will be equally as ready as their Buenos Ayres brethren to co-operate.

Don Marco de Noronho Brito, Conde dos Arcos, of the Council of his Majesty the King, our Lord, Gentleman of the Chamber of his Royal Highness the United Kingdom of Portugal, Brazil, the Algarves, &c.

Honorable Men of Pernambuco, who abhor the crimes of our unworthy countrymen.

It appears from families who have fled from the insupportable dominion of Rebels, that the theatre where shone the fidelity of Fernandez Viera, Cameram, Henry Dias, and others, whose names History has enrolled in the list of Heroes, is changed into the den of faithless and rebellious monsters.

And since your pretended chiefs have gone the length of lying, in the commission of the horrid perfidy of aspersing the character of the Inhabitants of this Province, of which I have the honor to be Governor, faithful to my first duty, I have to assure you, that the motto of the Bahians, is, "Fidelity to the dearest of Kings," and that every soldier of Bahia, will be at Scipio, at your side, the instant he has orders to avenge the outrage committed against the Sovereign whom in their hearts they adore, whose hand, ever liberal and beneficent, they had the honor of kissing in their native land the first of all his Brazilian vassals, and from whom we have all received so many proofs of generosity and love.

No. II.

Don Marco de Noronha Brito, &c. &c.

Men of Pernambuco, faithful to the King, our Lord, (whose number I now know to be, as we all hoped, very considerable) it is again my most sacred duty to diffuse amongst you truth, treacherously concealed from you by those ridiculous chiefs who so tenderly embrace your cause, fear you, and with reason, for the faithful inhabitants of Pernambuco, have always been feared, and justly therefore, considering you panic-struck by so horrible an occurrence, they attempt with the most execrable cunning to avail themselves of this moment to intimidate you with threats of the protection of the United States and other nations.

The facility with which we are all of us as men, liable to be ensnared under such circumstances, compels me to proclaim to you, that government has given, in the face of the whole world, too many proofs of upright dealing, to allow of a suspicion of its council using the vilest of crimes perpetrated by half a dozen banditti, born in obscurity and indigence, from which they saw no means of emerging, but by dint of the atroci-tles which they have just committed; and as the limits of this writing will not admit of my detailing other most weighty arguments of a political nature, I do assure you, on my word of honor, that the United States and all the other nations of the Universe, despise the patriot Martins, and his infamous colleagues, as their baseness merits, and most certainly will not throw away their soldiers in pursuit of their horrid crimes.—My soldiers! yes, they are the troops that will shortly proceed thither, for it is requisite they should, that the patriotic governors may be made, like all the notorious chiefs of revolutions, to atone for their enormous transgressions.

"His Excellency the Minister of Police has been very seriously indisposed, and an inflamation of the chest was apprehended. His Excellency, however, is much better, and out of all danger.

"Grain continues to fall in all the markets, and the rye harvest has begun.

"An article from Nuremberg of the 30th, says, 'the Duke de Sau Carlos, instead of going to London, will proceed to Madrid. The Earl of Aberdeen, will succeed Lord Cathcart, at Petersburgh."

A mail from Brussels arrived this morning. Quiet is restored in that city, and Grain experiences in the Netherlands, as in every other part, a decline in price. The weather is delightful, and the harvest promises to be abundant.

June 27.

This morning we received French papers of the 24th inst. The Moniteur contains several royal ordinances, of which one nominates Marshal Gouvion, St. Cyr, as Secretary of State for the St. Marine and Colonial Department; another elevates General the Count Dubouchage to the Peerage of France; and the third regulates a portion of the household troops on economical principles. The health of the King of France seems to be perfectly restored, for we find his Majesty walking for an hour in the Park of St. Cloud, at 8 o'clock in the morning, and after undergoing the fatiguing ceremonies of a Court day, taking his usual ride in the afternoon.—The late depression in the French funds is attributed in one of these papers to a rumor prevalent in Paris of the breaking out of fresh disturbances at Lyons.—This rumor we are, however, assured was wholly without foundation, and that the most perfect tranquility reigns throughout the kingdom.

An official return to an order of the House of Commons, states the amount of the unfunded debt in Exchequer Bills out standing at £83,897,200. This is the debt brought forward as not noticed in the Budget.

Corn Exchange, London, June 27.—Our market continues in the same dull state as on Monday and Wednesday: the fine weather having caused such a change in the mind of the buyers, that no sales can be effected, consequently the prices of all grain are nominal, and no business is done.

From late London Papers.

The Paris papers of Monday record a noble act of the Emperor of Russia:—A German Clergyman at St Petersburgh has procured a subscription of 3000 rubles for the distressed inhabitants of the Swiss Canton of Glaris, whose wretchedness is extreme. The list of subscribers being shewn to the emperor, he enrolled himself among them for the sum of 100,000 rubles; inscribing his name with his own hand, as if to shew the cordiality of the deed, and ordering that the money should be paid immediately. This contribution is from his own purse; there is no fund in Russia, out of which it can be paid, without affecting him.—The amount is about £20,000.

The Dublin Evening Post states, (says the Freeman's Journal,) "That the Duke of Wellington exercised his right of voting in Parliament, for the first time since his elevation to the Peerage, on Friday last, and voted against the Claims of his Catholic countrymen. The lists have not yet been published, and we cannot wholly divest ourselves of a hope that the Evening Post may have been misinformed.

A punster, observing two Sheriffs, officers running after an ingenious but distressed Author, remarked, that it was a new edition of the "Pursuits of Literature," unbound, but not pressed.

PORTUGUESE & SPANISH AMERICA.

BRAZIL

Is bounded by the mouth of the river Amazon, and the Atlantic Ocean on the north; by the same ocean on the east; by the mouth of the river Plata south; and by a chain of mountains, which divide it from Paraguay and the country of Amazons on the west. 2,500 miles in length, and 700 in breadth. Provinces—Para, Marignan, Siara, Petagues, Rio Grand, Paytaya, Tamara, Pernambuco, Seripoe, Bahia, or the Bay of All Saints, Pinos, Porto Seguro, Spirito Sancto, Rio Janeiro, St Vincent, and Del Rey.—Chief Towns—Para or Belim, St Lewis, Siara, St Lue, Tignarva, Peyraba, Tamara Olinda, Seripoe, St. Salvador, Puga, Porto Seguro, Spirito Sancto, St. Sebastian, St. Vincent, and St. Salvador.—Produce.—The soil is extremely fruitful, producing sugar, which being clayed is whiter and finer than one procession, as we call our refined sugar; also tobacco, hides, indigo, ipecacuanha, balsam of Copaiba, Brasil wood, which is chiefly used in dyeing. The produce of the soil was found very sufficient for subsisting the inhabitants, until the mines of gold and diamonds were discovered; these with the sugar plantations, occupy so many hands, that agriculture is neglected; and in consequence, Brazil depends upon Europe for its daily food. Commerce.—The trade of Portugal is carried on upon the same extensive plan on which the several nations of Europe trade with their colonies of America; and it more particularly resembles the Spanish method, in not sending out single ships as the conveniences of the several places and the judgment of the European merchants may direct; but by annual fleets, which sail at stated times from Portugal, and compose three fleets, bound to as many ports in Brazil; viz. to Pernambuco, in the northern part; to Rio Janeiro, at the southern extremity; and the Bay of All Saints in the middle. In this last is the capital, which is called St. Saldavor, where all the fleets rendezvous on their return to Portugal. The trade of Brazil is very great and enormous, every year; which is the less surprising as the Portuguese have opportunities of supplying themselves with slaves at a much cheaper rate than any other European power. They import between 40 and 50,000 slaves annually, all of which go into the amount of the cargo of the Brazil fleets for Europe. Their export of sugar, with in 40 years, is grown much greater than it was, though anciently it made almost the whole of their exports of produce, and they were without rivals in the trade. Their tobacco is good, though not raised in such large quantities as the American colonies. The northern and southern parts of Brazil abound with horned cattle, these are hunted for their hides only, of which no less than 150,000 hides are exported annually to Europe. The Portuguese have been long in possession of Brazil before they discovered the treasures of gold and diamonds, which have since made it so considerable. The gold alone, the greater part of which is coined in America, amounts to near four millions sterling; but part of this is brought in from their colonies in Africa; together with ebony and ivory.

OLD MEXICO, OR NEW SPAIN

Is bounded by New Mexico, or Granada, on the north; by the Gulph of Mexico on the northeast; by Terra Firma on the south-east; and by the Pacific Ocean on the south-west; containing three Audiences, viz. Galicia, or Guadalajara, Mexico Proper, and Guatimala.—Chief Towns—Guadalajara, Mexico, Acapulco, Vera Cruz and Guatimala; 3,000 miles in length, and 600 in breadth.—Provinces—Mexico is already in Pine-apples, pomegranates, oranges, lemons, citrons, figs, cocoa-nuts and sugar. There are here more sugar mills than in any other part of Spanish America. Cedar trees and logwood flourish much about the bays of Campeachy and Honduras. The boast and glory of this country are the mines of gold and silver. The chief mines of gold are in Veragua and New Granada, bordering upon Darien and Terra Firma. The other articles next in importance to gold and silver are the cochineal and cocoa. It is computed that the Spaniards annually export no less than 900,000lbs. weight of cochineal, to answer the purposes of medicine and dyeing. Cotton is here in great abundance.—Commerce.—The trade of Mexico consists of three great branches, which extend over the whole known world. It carries on a traffic with Europe by Vera Cruz; with the East Indies by Acapulco; and South America by the same port. These two ports are wonderfully well situated for the commercial purposes to which they are applied. It is by means of the former that Mexico pours her wealth over the whole world; and receives in return the numberless luxuries and necessaries which Europe affords to her, and which, the indolence of her inhabitants, will never permit them to acquire for themselves. Acapulco is the sea-port by which the communication is kept up between the different parts of the Spanish Empire in America, and the East Indies. About the month of December, the great galleon, attended by a large ship as a convoy, which makes the only communication between the Philipines and Mexico, annually arrives here. The cargoes of these ships (for the convoy, though in an unburthanded manner, likewise carries goods) consist of all the rich commodities and manufactures of the East. At the same time, the annual ship from Lima, the capital of Peru, comes in, and is not computed to bring less than ten millions of pieces of eight in silver, besides quicksilver, and other valuable commodities, to be laid out in the purchase of the galleon's cargoes. A great fair, in which the commodities of all parts of the world are bartered for one another, lasts 30 days. The galleon then prepares for her voyage, loaded with silver and such European goods as have been thought necessary.

NEW MEXICO, INCLUDING CALIFORNIA

Is bounded by unknown lands on the north; by Louisiana on the east; by Old Mexico and the Pacific Ocean on the south; and by the same Ocean on the west; 2,000 miles in breadth, and 1,600 in length.—Subdivisions.—New Mexico Proper, Apacheria, Sonora, and California, a peninsula.—The Chief Towns are Santa Fe, St Antonia, Yonge, and St. Juan.—Produce of the Country.—The face of the country is agreeably varied with plains, intersected by rivers, and adorned with gentle eminences covered with varied kinds of trees, some producing excellent fruit. With respect to the value of the gold mines in this country, nothing can be positively asserted.—Commerce.—The inhabitants are chiefly employed in raising corn and wine, which they export pretty largely into Old Mexico. California is admirably situated for trade, and on its coast it has a pearl fishery of great value.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Spa-Fields Chapel, Thursday, May 15.

The Anniversary of this Society opened on Wednesday morning, with a very eloquent discourse by the Rev. Dr. Chalmers, of Glasgow, at Surry Chapel; and with another sermon the same evening, by the Rev. Mr. Jones, of Syrior, at the Tabernacle, near Finsbury Square. Two other sermons have been since delivered before this Society, by the Rev. Mr. Harris, of Cambridge, at Tottenham-Court Chapel, and by the Rev. H. Campbell, M. A. at St. Ann's Church, Blackfriars; it being always the custom of this Society, which is composed of different denominations, to employ ministers of different denominations, to plead its cause.

The Meeting we are about to describe, however, was held for the purpose of delivering its annual report, and transacting its usual business; W. Alers Hankey, Esq. Treasurer, in the Chair. It was opened by a hymn and extempore prayer, by the Rev. Mr. Kent, of Gravesend. The Rev. Mr. Platt read the Rules, which contained the fundamental principles of the Society. The Rev. Mr. Barder, then read the Report, considerably abridged, in which he was assisted by his son, the Rev. H. F. Barder. From this Report we extract the following brief particulars.

The Report commences with the first station of the Society at Otaheite, one of the South Sea Islands. Here its labours commenced about 20 years ago, and for a long time with little prospect of success; and after success appeared no longer doubtful, in July 1815, some of the chiefs formed a plot, to cut off all the "praying people," as they were called; but this was providentially discovered, and occasioned their removal to Eimeo, where they found a happy and secure asylum with the King Pomare, "whose heart appears to be deeply engaged" in the cause of Christianity. By the last letter received from the Missionaries, it appears that the number of those who have entered their names as professed disciples of Christ, amounted to 362, and the scholars were 600 or 700, among whom are many persons of consequence; many more requested admission, but the teachers were waiting for elementary books, which have since been supplied.

CHINA.—Mr. Morrison has commenced new and large editions of the Chinese New Testament, both in octavo & duodecimo, the latter at the cost of only about 2s. 6d. each. He has translated the whole of Genesis and a great part of the Psalms; but we are sorry to say, not a single copy has yet reached us, nor have we had the pleasure of receiving any copies of his Chinese Grammar, though long ago finished at Calcutta.—The British and Foreign Bible Society has lately given another £100 to assist him in his translations, and £400 has been subscribed in America.

At MALACCA.—Mr. Milne continues to prosecute with diligence his translation of the Scriptures into the Chinese language, and to publish his monthly Chinese Magazine, which seems to promise great usefulness to the Chinese, dispersed among the numerous and populous islands in the eastern sea, and is read with great avidity.

JAVA.—Mr. Supper's sphere of usefulness is much enlarged by his being appointed Minister of the Malay Church; so that he has not only an opportunity of preaching to a great number of much neglected nominal Christians, Malay & Portuguese, but also of the Chinese and Mahometans. The surrender of Malacca and Batavia to the Dutch, presents no impediment to the progress of the missionary work. Mr. Kam, at Amboyna, preaches to 1000 persons in the Malay language.

CEYLON.—Mr. Erbaret and Mr. Read continue in this island; the former preaches alternately in the Dutch and Cingalese languages; he has also established a school, in which children are instructed in the English, Dutch and Cingalese tongues, and on the Lord's-days, in the meaning of the chapters which they read. Mr. Read preaches twice a week in Dutch, and keeps a day school. The principal proprietors of slaves in the island have declared free all children who shall be born of their slaves subsequent to August 12, 1816.

INDIA.—The brethren who sailed in the Moira, about a year ago, to strengthen the several stations in India, arrived safely at Madras, 26th Aug. 1816; Mr. Townley and Mr. Keith proceeded immediately to Calcutta, where they arrived on the 7th of Sept. in perfect health, and have been favoured with a propitious entrance upon their sacred labours.

Mr. May, at CHINSURAH, informs us, that the number of schools under his care amounted to thirty, in which there are more than 2600 children.

The proceedings of Mr. Lee at GANJAM, have been much interrupted by the ravages of a fever which prevailed there for a considerable time; and in the course of a single month about 700 persons fell victims to it.

Of the safe arrival of Messrs. Knill, Reeve, Mead, and Render, at MADRAS, we have received the agreeable information. Mr. Loveless states, that his free school flourishes. He had then 128 scholars, with the prospect of further increase.

Mr. Pitchett continues to labour at Vizigapatam, and has been joined by Mr. Dawson, Mr. Gordon being laid by through indisposition. There are 4 native schools at Bellary, and the European congregation flourishes. The soldiers alone have raised £43 towards the Missionary cause. At Surat, Mess. Skinner and Fyvie are studying the language; in the mean time they instituted 2 schools for boys, and Mrs. F. one for girls.—Mr. Le Brun is very usefully employe in the Isle of France.

SOUTH AFRICA.—Mr. Thom continues at Cape Town, where he preaches statedly, and with no small encouragement. He has, in various instances, rendered important services to the Missionaries who were sent to reside in the interior of Africa; and to others who have touched at the Cape in their way to the East. He has lately taken a journey for 10 weeks into the interior; in the course of which he travelled 1100 miles, and preached the word of life to thousands of colonists, hottentots, and slaves.

Mr. Bakkar labours at Stellenbosch, and Mess. Seidelsaden and Wimmer at Caledon, 120 miles E. of Cape Town, where they have a Church of 67 adults, and many candidates for baptism. Last year they grew 70 quarters of wheat.

At HOOM KRALL, about 900 miles from the Cape, in the same direction, Mr. Pacalt gives us a favourable account of the state of his mission. About three hundred persons are attached to the settlement, but cannot attend constantly, on account of their scattered situation and various employments. About 22 converted natives, among whom was a man nearly one hundred years of age, have been baptised, and others appear to be seriously concerned about religion. A school is supported, in which many receive daily instruction. The progress of civilization is very encouraging. A large quantity of wheat is sown, considerable gardens are cultivated. They have four hundred head of cattle, seventy sheep, and fifteen horses, and pay taxes to the amount of 426 rix-dollars.

BETHELSDORP, about 600 miles east of Cape Town. From this interesting station we have information that the work of conversion among the Hottentots is still going forward. A concern about religion has been manifested among the Boors, who unite with the Hottentots in acts of devotion. "Our school," says Mr Read, "flourishes.—We only want Bibles, we could soon dispose of two or three hundred." This want was no sooner made known to the British and Foreign Bible Society, than it was amply supplied. A Journal just received states, that 143 persons have been baptised, (one aged 70) and 100 children.

At THEOPOLIS, in Albany; the people have greatly improved in their habits of industry, and have sown above 50 sacks of corn the last year. The school goes on pretty well; and about 70 persons were baptized during the last year. Among the converts is Laberlotts, a man who drove Mr. Campbell's waggon, and who is one of the most active Christians in their Society; he often speaks of Mr. C. and asks whether he will revisit Africa.

UPPER-CANADA GAZETTE,
YORK;
THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1817.

Maj. Genl. Widdrington, commanding the Forces in this Province, and the Miss Widdringtons, arrived in the Steam-Boat, last Saturday; they proceeded the same evening to Niagara, & returned this morning.

The Steam-Boat has 40 cabin passengers for Kingston.

At the General Sessions of Oyer and Terminer, and General Gaol Delivery, at Charlotteville, in the London District, on Thursday, the 21st ult.

James Fitz-Gerald, was convicted of Grand Larceny, (having prayed benefit of Clergy) sentenced to be imprisoned 3 calendar months, and within that period to receive a punishment of 39 lashes by public whipping.

Hart Smith, convicted of an Assault, sentenced to be imprisoned one week, pay a fine of five pounds, find sureties for his good behavior for 12 months and to continue in custody until the fine be paid and sureties given.

Matthias Haun, late of Bertie, in the Niagara Dist. convicted of Compounding a Felony, sentenced to pay a fine of fifty pounds, and to remain imprisoned till the same be paid.

The last of the above mentioned, is a man of property, therefore he could have no excuse whatever to palliate his offence; it appears that he arrested Wm Armstrong, (whose sentence was inserted in the last Gazette) for having forged bills in his possession, and after getting back his own goods, agreed to compromise the matter for $36, which he received in cloths, &c. from Armstrong.

Armstrong has been throughout the Province, passing counterfeit notes whenever he had an opportunity.

Armstrong is one of a number, both in this country and in the States, who are engaged in circulating a vast quantity of spurious bills.—It behoves every one to exert himself, to bring these scoundrels to condign punishment, as by their nefarious practices the public are in effect deprived of a circulating medium of immense advantage in commercial transactions, a general suspicion of paper currency being excited.

 THE Members of the Wellington Society, having observed with regret, a number of indigent persons, who have been useful members of the community, and there being no provision for their support, they have formed themselves into a society for the purpose of raising a fund for the relief of such as may be considered proper objects for their charity, and they hope that so laudable an undertaking may induce others to join them.

The Conditions of admission, are, five shillings at the time of subscribing, and one shilling per week, to be paid on the days of meeting, which will be every second Tuesday.

York, Sept. 2d, 1817.

Major Genl. Sir Peregrine Maitland, from the staff of the Duke of Wellington's army, is about to proceed to North America, in the room of Genl. Wilson, returning home. He will be the Lieutenant Governor of Upper Canada.—Alb. Argus.

Caution.—The following singular circumstance lately took place at a Carding Machine, belonging to the United Society of Believers, at New-Lebanon. A quantity of the wood which flies off from the machine while in operation, called by the carders, the flyings, being collected together and packed away in a cask, gathered such a degree of heat that it took fire; but was discovered in time to prevent much damage. Some time previous to this, at the same place, a bag of flyings took fire in the same manner. This ought to operate as a caution to the proprietors and managers of carding machines.—Alb. Gaz.

tles which they have just committed; and as the limits of this writing will not admit of my detailing other most weighty arguments of a political nature, I do assure you, on my word of honor, that the United States and all the other nations of the Universe, despise the patriot Martins, and his infamous colleagues, as their baseness merits, and most certainly will not throw away their soldiers in pursuit of their horrid crimes.—My soldiers! yes, they are the troops that will shortly proceed thither, for it is requisite they should, that the patriotic governors may be made, like all the notorious chiefs of revolutions, to atone for their enormous transgressions.

It carries on a traffic with Europe by Vera Cruz; with the East Indies by Acapulco; and South America by the same port. These two ports are wonderfully well situated for the commercial purposes to which they are applied. It is by means of the former that Mexico pours her wealth over the whole world; and receives in return the numberless luxuries and necessaries which Europe affords to her, and which, the indolence of her inhabitants, will never permit them to acquire for themselves. Acapulco is the sea-port by which the communication is kept up between the different parts of the Spanish Empire in America, and the East Indies. About the month of December, the great galleon, attended by a large ship as a convoy, which makes the only communication between the Philipines and Mexico, annually arrives here. The cargoes of these ships (for the convoy, though in an unburthanded manner, likewise carries goods) consist of all the rich commodities and manufactures of the East. At the same time, the annual ship from Lima, the capital of Peru, comes in, and is not computed to bring less than ten millions of pieces of eight in silver, besides quicksilver, and other valuable commodities, to be laid out in the purchase of the galleon's cargoes. A great fair, in which the commodities of all parts of the world are bartered for one another, lasts 30 days. The galleon then prepares for her voyage, loaded with silver and such European goods as have been thought necessary.

NEW MEXICO, INCLUDING CALIFORNIA

Is bounded by unknown lands on the north; by Louisiana on the east; by Old Mexico and the Pacific Ocean on the south; and by the same Ocean on the west; 2,000 miles in breadth, and 1,600 in length.—Subdivisions.—New Mexico Proper, Apacheria, Sonora, and California, a peninsula.—The Chief Towns are Santa Fe, St Antonia, Yonge, and St. Juan.—Produce of the Country.—The face of the country is agreeably varied with plains, intersected by rivers, and adorned with gentle eminences covered with varied kinds of trees, some producing excellent fruit. With respect to the value of the gold mines in this country, nothing can be positively asserted.—Commerce.—The inhabitants are chiefly employed in raising corn and wine, which they export pretty largely into Old Mexico. California is admirably situated for trade, and on its coast it has a pearl fishery of great value.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Spa-Fields Chapel, Thursday, May 15.

The Anniversary of this Society opened on Wednesday morning, with a very eloquent discourse by the Rev. Dr. Chalmers, of Glasgow, at Surry Chapel; and with another sermon the same evening, by the Rev. Mr. Jones, of Syrior, at the Tabernacle, near Finsbury Square. Two other sermons have been since delivered before this Society, by the Rev. Mr. Harris, of Cambridge, at Tottenham-Court Chapel, and by the Rev. H. Campbell, M. A. at St. Ann's Church, Blackfriars; it being always the custom of this Society, which is composed of different denominations, to employ ministers of different denominations, to plead its cause.

The Meeting we are about to describe, however, was held for the purpose of delivering its annual report, and transacting its usual business; W. Alers Hankey, Esq. Treasurer, in the Chair. It was opened by a hymn and extempore prayer, by the Rev. Mr. Kent, of Gravesend. The Rev. Mr. Platt read the Rules, which contained the fundamental principles of the Society. The Rev. Mr. Barder, then read the Report, considerably abridged, in which he was assisted by his son, the Rev. H. F. Barder. From this Report we extract the following brief particulars.

The Report commences with the first station of the Society at Otaheite, one of the South Sea Islands. Here its labours commenced about 20 years ago, and for a long time with little prospect of success; and after success appeared no longer doubtful, in July 1815, some of the chiefs formed a plot, to cut off all the "praying people," as they were called; but this was providentially discovered, and occasioned their removal to Eimeo, where they found a happy and secure asylum with the King Pomare, "whose heart appears to be deeply engaged" in the cause of Christianity. By the last letter received from the Missionaries, it appears that the number of those who have entered their names as professed disciples of Christ, amounted to 362, and the scholars were 600 or 700, among whom are many persons of consequence; many more requested admission, but the teachers were waiting for elementary books, which have since been supplied.

CHINA.—Mr. Morrison has commenced new and large editions of the Chinese New Testament, both in octavo & duodecimo, the latter at the cost of only about 2s. 6d. each. He has translated the whole of Genesis and a great part of the Psalms; but we are sorry to say, not a single copy has yet reached us, nor have we had the pleasure of receiving any copies of his Chinese Grammar, though long ago finished at Calcutta.—The British and Foreign Bible Society has lately given another £100 to assist him in his translations, and £400 has been subscribed in America.

At MALACCA.—Mr. Milne continues to prosecute with diligence his translation of the Scriptures into the Chinese language, and to publish his monthly Chinese Magazine, which seems to promise great usefulness to the Chinese, dispersed among the numerous and populous islands in the eastern sea, and is read with great avidity.

JAVA.—Mr. Supper's sphere of usefulness is much enlarged by his being appointed Minister of the Malay Church; so that he has not only an opportunity of preaching to a great number of much neglected nominal Christians, Malay & Portuguese, but also of the Chinese and Mahometans. The surrender of Malacca and Batavia to the Dutch, presents no impediment to the progress of the missionary work. Mr. Kam, at Amboyna, preaches to 1000 persons in the Malay language.

CEYLON.—Mr. Erbaret and Mr. Read continue in this island; the former preaches alternately in the Dutch and Cingalese languages; he has also established a school, in which children are instructed in the English, Dutch and Cingalese tongues, and on the Lord's-days, in the meaning of the chapters which they read. Mr. Read preaches twice a week in Dutch, and keeps a day school. The principal proprietors of slaves in the island have declared free all children who shall be born of their slaves subsequent to August 12, 1816.

INDIA.—The brethren who sailed in the Moira, about a year ago, to strengthen the several stations in India, arrived safely at Madras, 26th Aug. 1816; Mr. Townley and Mr. Keith proceeded immediately to Calcutta, where they arrived on the 7th of Sept. in perfect health, and have been favoured with a propitious entrance upon their sacred labours.

Mr. May, at CHINSURAH, informs us, that the number of schools under his care amounted to thirty, in which there are more than 2600 children.

The proceedings of Mr. Lee at GANJAM, have been much interrupted by the ravages of a fever which prevailed there for a considerable time; and in the course of a single month about 700 persons fell victims to it.

Of the safe arrival of Messrs. Knill, Reeve, Mead, and Render, at MADRAS, we have received the agreeable information. Mr. Loveless states, that his free school flourishes. He had then 128 scholars, with the prospect of further increase.

Mr. Pitchett continues to labour at Vizigapatam, and has been joined by Mr. Dawson, Mr. Gordon being laid by through indisposition. There are 4 native schools at Bellary, and the European congregation flourishes. The soldiers alone have raised £43 towards the Missionary cause. At Surat, Mess. Skinner and Fyvie are studying the language; in the mean time they instituted 2 schools for boys, and Mrs. F. one for girls.—Mr. Le Brun is very usefully employe in the Isle of France.

SOUTH AFRICA.—Mr. Thom continues at Cape Town, where he preaches statedly, and with no small encouragement. He has, in various instances, rendered important services to the Missionaries who were sent to reside in the interior of Africa; and to others who have touched at the Cape in their way to the East. He has lately taken a journey for 10 weeks into the interior; in the course of which he travelled 1100 miles, and preached the word of life to thousands of colonists, hottentots, and slaves.

Mr. Bakkar labours at Stellenbosch, and Mess. Seidelsaden and Wimmer at Caledon, 120 miles E. of Cape Town, where they have a Church of 67 adults, and many candidates for baptism. Last year they grew 70 quarters of wheat.

At HOOM KRALL, about 900 miles from the Cape, in the same direction, Mr. Pacalt gives us a favourable account of the state of his mission. About three hundred persons are attached to the settlement, but cannot attend constantly, on account of their scattered situation and various employments. About 22 converted natives, among whom was a man nearly one hundred years of age, have been baptised, and others appear to be seriously concerned about religion. A school is supported, in which many receive daily instruction. The progress of civilization is very encouraging. A large quantity of wheat is sown, considerable gardens are cultivated. They have four hundred head of cattle, seventy sheep, and fifteen horses, and pay taxes to the amount of 426 rix-dollars.

BETHELSDORP, about 600 miles east of Cape Town. From this interesting station we have information that the work of conversion among the Hottentots is still going forward. A concern about religion has been manifested among the Boors, who unite with the Hottentots in acts of devotion. "Our school," says Mr Read, "flourishes.—We only want Bibles, we could soon dispose of two or three hundred." This want was no sooner made known to the British and Foreign Bible Society, than it was amply supplied. A Journal just received states, that 143 persons have been baptised, (one aged 70) and 100 children.

At THEOPOLIS, in Albany; the people have greatly improved in their habits of industry, and have sown above 50 sacks of corn the last year. The school goes on pretty well; and about 70 persons were baptized during the last year. Among the converts is Laberlotts, a man who drove Mr. Campbell's waggon, and who is one of the most active Christians in their Society; he often speaks of Mr. C. and asks whether he will revisit Africa.

UPPER-CANADA GAZETTE,
YORK;
THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 4, 1817.

Maj. Genl. Widdrington, commanding the Forces in this Province, and the Miss Widdringtons, arrived in the Steam-Boat, last Saturday; they proceeded the same evening to Niagara, & returned this morning.

The Steam-Boat has 40 cabin passengers for Kingston.

At the General Sessions of Oyer and Terminer, and General Gaol Delivery, at Charlotteville, in the London District, on Thursday, the 21st ult.

James Fitz-Gerald, was convicted of Grand Larceny, (having prayed benefit of Clergy) sentenced to be imprisoned 3 calendar months, and within that period to receive a punishment of 39 lashes by public whipping.

Hart Smith, convicted of an Assault, sentenced to be imprisoned one week, pay a fine of five pounds, find sureties for his good behavior for 12 months and to continue in custody until the fine be paid and sureties given.

Matthias Haun, late of Bertie, in the Niagara Dist. convicted of Compounding a Felony, sentenced to pay a fine of fifty pounds, and to remain imprisoned till the same be paid.

The last of the above mentioned, is a man of property, therefore he could have no excuse whatever to palliate his offence; it appears that he arrested Wm Armstrong, (whose sentence was inserted in the last Gazette) for having forged bills in his possession, and after getting back his own goods, agreed to compromise the matter for $36, which he received in cloths, &c. from Armstrong.

Armstrong has been throughout the Province, passing counterfeit notes whenever he had an opportunity.

Armstrong is one of a number, both in this country and in the States, who are engaged in circulating a vast quantity of spurious bills.—It behoves every one to exert himself, to bring these scoundrels to condign punishment, as by their nefarious practices the public are in effect deprived of a circulating medium of immense advantage in commercial transactions, a general suspicion of paper currency being excited.

 THE Members of the Wellington Society, having observed with regret, a number of indigent persons, who have been useful members of the community, and there being no provision for their support, they have formed themselves into a society for the purpose of raising a fund for the relief of such as may be considered proper objects for their charity, and they hope that so laudable an undertaking may induce others to join them.

The Conditions of admission, are, five shillings at the time of subscribing, and one shilling per week, to be paid on the days of meeting, which will be every second Tuesday.

York, Sept. 2d, 1817.

Major Genl. Sir Peregrine Maitland, from the staff of the Duke of Wellington's army, is about to proceed to North America, in the room of Genl. Wilson, returning home. He will be the Lieutenant Governor of Upper Canada.—Alb. Argus.

Caution.—The following singular circumstance lately took place at a Carding Machine, belonging to the United Society of Believers, at New-Lebanon. A quantity of the wood which flies off from the machine while in operation, called by the carders, the flyings, being collected together and packed away in a cask, gathered such a degree of heat that it took fire; but was discovered in time to prevent much damage. Some time previous to this, at the same place, a bag of flyings took fire in the same manner. This ought to operate as a caution to the proprietors and managers of carding machines.—Alb. Gaz.

Miscellaneous.

From a late English Paper.

A FRAGMENT FOUND IN A SKELETON CASE.

Behold this ruin! 'Twas a skull
Once of ethereal spirit full!
This narrow cell, was Life's retreat:
This space, was Thought's mysterious seat!
What beauteous pictures filled this spot
What dreams of pleasure, long forgot!
Nor Love, nor Joy, nor Hope, nor Fear,
Has left one trace or record here!

Beneath this mould'ring canopy
Once shone the bright and busy eye—
But it art not at the dismal void:—
If social love that eye employ'd,
If with no lawless fire it gleam'd,
But through the dew of kindness beam'd,
That eye shall be forever bright,
When stars and suns have lost their light!

Here, in this silent cavern, hung
The ready, swift, and tuneful tongue:
If falsehood's honey it disdain'd,
And where it could not praise, was chain'd;
If bold in Virtue's cause it spoke,
Yet gentle Concord never broke;
That tuneful tongue shall plead for thee,
When death unveils eternity!

Say, fid these fingers delve the mine,
Or with its envied rubies shine?—
To hew the rock or wear the gem,
Can nothing now avail to them:
But if the page of Truth they sought,
Or comfort to the mourner brought,
These hands a richer meed shall claim
Than all that waits on wealth or fame!

Avails it whether bare or shod
These feet the path of duty trod?
If from the bowers of Joy they fled
To soothe Affliction's humble bed;
If Grandeur's guilty bribe they spurn'd,
And home to Virtue's lap return'd;
These feet with angel's wings shall vie,
And tread the palace of the sky!

PERU

Is bounded by Terra Firma on the north; by the mountains, or Cordeleiras des Andes, east; by Chili, south; and by the Pacific Ocean, west; nate succession to fight and resistance, of boldness and fear, is the circumstance that renders them unconquerable. War is to them a kind of amusement. As it is neither expensive nor inconvenient to them, they have nothing to be prevented from its continuance; and it is a constant rule with them never to sue for peace.—The pride of Spain must always condescend to make the first overtures. When these are favourably received, a conference is held—The Governor of Chili and the Indian General attended by the most distinguished Captains on both sides, settle the terms of accommodation at a convival meeting. The Spaniards are always obliged to purchase peace by some presents, and, after a variety of fruitless attempts, they have been forced to give up all thoughts of extending their conquest, and reduced to cover their frontiers by erecting forts at proper distances.—These precautions are taken to prevent the Indians, who have submitted, from joining the independent savages, and likewise to restrain the incursions of the latter into the colonies. These colonies are dispersed on the borders of the S Sea; they are parted from Peru by a desert that measures eighty leagues, and bounded by the island of Chiloe, at the extremity next the Straits of Magellan. On that great length of coast there are no settlements except those of Valdivia, Conception, Valparaiso, and Coquimbo, or La Serena, which are all sea-ports. In the inland country is St. Jago, the capital of the country. There is no culture or habitation at any distance from these towns. The buildings are all very low, made of unburnt brick, and mostly thatched. This practice is observed on account of the frequent earthquakes, and is properly adapted to the nature of the climate, as well as the indolence of the inhabitants. They are robust and well-shaped men, but few in number. In all that large settlement there are not 20,000 white men, and not more than 60,000 negroes, or Indians, able to bear arms. The military establishment amounted formerly to 2000 men; but the maintaining of them was found too expensive. and they were reduced to 500 at the beginning of the century. If Chili is uninhabited it is not owing to the climate, which is one of the most wholesome in the world.—The vicinity of the Cordeleras gives it such a delightful temperature, as could not otherwise be expected in that latitude. There is not a more pleasant province in all the mother country.—The richness of its gold mines has been too much extolled. Their united produce never exceeds £220,000 sterling a year. The gold was formerly brought over in bullion; but ever since the year 1749, it is coined in the mint set up in St. Jago. The excellent copper mines of Coquimbo supply the whole kingdom of Peru. A more certain source of wealth, though less pleasing to the possessors, is the prodigious fertility of the soil. All the European fruits have improved in that happy climate. The wine would be excellent, if nature were assisted by art. The corn yields a hundred fold. With all these advantages, Chili has no direct intercourse with the mother country. The whole trade is confined to Peru, Paraguay, and the Indians on their own frontiers. The inhabitants of Chili sell their most extraordinary and less valuable commodities to these savages for oxen, horses, and their own children, whom they are ready to part with for the most trifling trifles. Wine and spirituous liquors were sold till the year 1765, to these people, who, like most other savages, are excessively fond of them. When they were intoxicated, they used to take up arms, massacre all the Spaniards they met with, and suddenly attack the forts, and ravage the country near their settlements. These outrages were so often repeated, that it was found necessary strictly to forbid this dangerous trade. The good effects of this prohibition are daily felt. The commotions of these people are less frequent and less dangerous, and their peaceable behaviour has brought on a wish for the increase of intercourse with them. Chili supplies Peru with great plenty of hides, dried fruit, copper, salt meat, horses, hemp, lard, wheat, and gold. In exchange for these, Peru sends tobacco, sugar, cocoa, earthenware, woollen cloths, linen, hats made at Quito, and every article of luxury that is brought from Europe. The ships sent from Callao on this trade were formerly bound for Conception Bay but now come to Valparaiso.—Chili sends to Paraguay some woollen stuffs, called ponchos, which are used for cloaks. It also sends wines, brandy, oil, and chiefly gold; and receives in return was, a kind of tallow fit to make soap, the herb of Paraguay, European goods, and a many negroes as Buenos Ayres can furnish—hill is a state pretty distinct from Peru and governed by a Chief, who is absolute in all political, civil, and military affairs, and independent of the Viceroy, who has no authority, except when a Governor dies, to appoint one in a room for a time, till the Mother Country names a successor.

The Provinces or Vicerovalties of Chili and Peru situated on the Pacific Ocean, by far the most important regions of the southern Hemisphere, are not so well known here. Chili is between 25 and 3600 miles in length, and is 600 in breadth; its climate is one on the finest in all America, being temperate and salubrious, its soil fertile, and its sky is always clear, except at the commencement of the spring, which is in September, when it is revealed by copious rain. The port of Valparaiso is the principal medium of commerce for the whole province, and from thence more than 120 tons of wheat are annually exported to Lima. Saint Jago di Compostella is the capital, and contains about 30,000 souls. Peru is however the most important province in a commercial point of view. The annual total value of imports, taken at the European invoice prices is 32,307,455 dollars. The manufactures of the country consist almost entirely of a few Ponchos, the use of which is in a manner confined to the Indians and Negroes. There are besides an inconsiderable number of manufactories of Hats, Cotton Cloths, Drinking Glasses, &c. which do not however occupy much space in the scale of the riches of Peru. Of which the mines are the principal source, notwithstanding the little skill and industry which is employed in working them, and the small help which commerce affords to the miners. 534,000 marks of silver, and 6380 of gold were smelted and refined in 1790 in the Royal Mint at Lima; and 5,206,906 piasters, in both materials were coined there. The exports consist of Gold, Silver, Copper, Merino Wool, Cascarilla, China Root, Cotton, Cocoa, and other valuable articles, to the annual amount of 31,440,000 dollars. Cotton is excellent and abundant, as well in the Sierras as the Valles. The Spiders in Maynbomba, Chachapoyas, and Jean, yield a Silk as fine as that of Valencia. Flax and Hemp grow wild and in abundance but the chief dreams of cultivating them though the latter might with little difficulty be made an important article of exportation. The Kernes Berries are likewise found in profusion, and yet this precious drug is only employed by the Indians to dye a few of their own coarse stuffs.

BONAPARTE.—It is again reported, that there is a very deep laid and widely extended plot to effect the escape of Bonaparte. There are said to be enormous deposits in the Banks of every government in Europe, belonging to Bonaparte himself, his Brothers, Sisters, Relatives and Adherents of various descriptions and under different names, which, it is added, are intended to be employed in every possible way to deliver him from his present situation, and to embroil all Europe in the attempt to restore him to his former power.

Unparallelled Sailing.—The ship Pacific, capt. John Williams, on her recent passage from this port to Liverpool, arrived on the coast of Ireland in twelve days and a half from New-York. It is an average of two hundred and sixteen miles per day; and it is probably the first time that the Atlantic Ocean has ever been crossed from those points in so short a period. During nine of those days she sailed at the rate of two hundred and forty-five miles per day.—N. Y. paper.

Great foot race.—The great match against time was decided on Monday se'nnight, on Acton Bottom, and the powers of the pedestrain astonished the amateurs. It seems, that this Old Tom, but little known in London, was a soldier in the Deven militia, and he gave Old Time a specimen of his qualifications. His name is Jenkins, and colonel Barton matched him for two hundred guineas with captain Barclay, to do 17 miles in an hour and 34 minutes and an half, he having performed the distance on Finchley common a few weeks since in one hour and 35 minutes. In this match he kept before time every inch of ground. He did 10 miles in one hour and half a minute, and performed the task 15 miles in 1 hour and 34 minutes Betting before starting 3 and 4 to 1 on time.—This man is decidedly the best pedestrian of the day, and considering that the rain fell heavily during the race, the performance rivals any thing of the sort on record.— The match was run on a mile of ground.

CHAP. VI.

An Act to amend an Act passed in the fifty-ninth year of His late Majesty's Reign entitled "An Act for vesting in Commissioners the Estates of certain Traitors and also the Estates of Persons declared Aliens by an Act passed in the fifty-fourth year of His Majesty's Reign, entitled 'An Act to declare certain persons therein described Aliens and to vest their Estates in His Majesty, and for applying the proceeds thereof towards compensating the Losses which His Majesty's Subjects have sustained in consequence of the late war and for ascertaining and satisfying the lawful debts and claims thereupon."

[Passed 14th April, 1821.]

WHEREAS by an Act of the Parliament of this Province, passed in the fifty fourth year of His late Majesty's Reign, entitled "An Act to declare certain persons therein described Aliens and to vest their Estates in His Majesty" certain Estates in this Province have become vested in His Majesty, having been found by Inquisition to have been on the first day of July one thousand eight hundred and twelve, in the seizin of persons, declared Aliens by the Provisions of that Act, which Estates were after the said first day of July and before the departure of such Aliens from this Province conveyed to bona fide purchasers without any intention of fraud, or were seized and sold in execution upon judgments lawfully obtained before the departure of such Aliens from this Province as aforesaid: And whereas the Provisions of the said Act in that behalf were only intended to prevent fraudulent sales, made with intent to evade expected forfeitures, it is expedient that relief should be afforded to bona fide purchasers in the cases above mentioned, who in some instances have made large improvements upon lands acquired by them before the passing of said Act, and who would be wholly ruined unless provision is made for such relief. Be it therefore enacted by the King's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, entitled "An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the fourteenth year of His Majesty's Reign, entitled 'An Act for making more effectual provision for the Province of Quebec in North America, and to make further provision for the Government of the said Province" and by the authority of the same, That the Commissioners appointed under the Act passed in the fifty-ninth year of His late Majesty's Reign entitled "An Act for vesting in Commissioners the Estates of certain Traitors, and also the Estates of persons declared Aliens by an Act passed in the fifth fourth year of His Majesty's Reign, entitled 'An Act to declare certain persons therein described Aliens and to vest their Estates in His Majesty, and for applying the proceeds thereof towards compensating the losses which His Majesty's Subjects have sustained in consequence of the late War, and for ascertaining and satisfying the lawful debts and claims thereupon" shall and may have power to revise all such claims as have been brought before them respecting lands of which no sale has already been made under the provision of the said recited Act, passed in the fifty ninth year of His late Majesty's Reign, whether the same have or have not been decided on appeal, and if it shall appear to their satisfaction upon the proof brought before them in support of the same claim that the sale by the Alien, or under a judgment against him made or entered before the departure of such Alien from the Province, and before the passing of the said first mentioned Act, was bona fide and not for fraud or evasion, or with a knowledge of the purchaser of his intention to desert the Province, then the said Commissioners shall and may have power to decree such Estate to such claimant proving good title to the same, and that it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons having any claim under such bona fide sale as aforesaid to prefer the same to the said Commissioners within the period of six months from the passing of this Act, any thing in the above recited Act passed in the fifty-ninth year of His late Majesty's Reign to the contrary notwithstanding.

II. And whereas it appears upon the petition of Thomas Ridout, Esquire, and others, that in some cases, from a mistake in describing the Lot or other error in Inquisitions, certain estates have been erroneously returned as forfeited, and the persons owning the same not having observed the public notice thereof until after the expiration of the eight months limited for claiming before the said Commissioners, by reason whereof the same have been absolutely vested in the Commissioners above mentioned, who are compelled to proceed to sell the same notwithstanding such manifest error as aforesaid. Be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the said Commissioners to inspect the respective Inquisitions together with the minutes of evidence thereon and compare the same with the returns furnished and published by them according to Law, and that on its appearing to the said Commissioners or a majority of them from such inspection or otherwise that any Estate has been returned manifestly by error it shall and may be lawful for them at any time before the sale thereof to decree the same to such person as shall prove title thereto, or in default of any claim therefore, to forbear proceeding to sell the same.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That when any bona fide sale of any Lands or Tenements shall have been made by any person or persons who may hereafter be found by Inquisition to be an Alien or Aliens under the said Act passed in the fifty-fourth year of His Majesty's Reign, when such sale shall have been made previous to desertion of such Alien, it shall and may be lawful for the Commissioners aforesaid, upon satisfactory proof of such bona fide sale, to decree such lands and tenements to the purchaser or purchasers thereof or the person entitled to claim the same.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases where the Real Estate of any person declared an Alien under the provisions of the said Act passed in the fifty-fourth year of His late Majesty's Reign, shall have been sold in execution upon any Judgment obtained against him, before such real estate became vested in His Majesty by Inquisition found, the surplus monies arising from such sale, after the satisfaction of the execution and the legal charges thereupon, shall belong to his Majesty, and shall be forthwith paid over by the Sheriff or other Officer holding the same, to the Commissioners of Forfeited Estates, appointed in and by the said Act of the Parliament of this Province, passed in the fifty ninth year of His late Majesty's Reign, who shall pay the same to the Special Receiver appointed under the provisions of the said last mentioned Act, to be by him held subject to the same orders and appropriations, as it such monies had arisen from the sale of real estate by the Commissioners of Forfeited Estates.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases of sales of lands which have been or may hereafter be made by the Commissioners of Forfeited Estates, according to the authority vested in them for that purpose, Deeds of Bargain and Sale which have been, or which hereafter shall be made and executed by the majority of such Commissioners for the time being, shall be as valid and effectual in Law to all intents and purposes as if the same were signed by all the said Commissioners, any Law to the contrary notwithstanding.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of August next, the said Commissioners shall meet, on the first Tuesday in the months of January, April, July and November, and at no other time, unless for the purpose of determining some matter specially referred to them, or of receiving the evidence or hearing the claim of some claimant or claimants, agent or agents actually attending for that purpose.

CHAP. VI.

An Act to amend an Act passed in the fifty-ninth year of His late Majesty's Reign entitled "An Act for vesting in Commissioners the Estates of certain Traitors and also the Estates of Persons declared Aliens by an Act passed in the fifty-fourth year of His Majesty's Reign, entitled 'An Act to declare certain persons therein described Aliens and to vest their Estates in His Majesty, and for applying the proceeds thereof towards compensating the Losses which His Majesty's Subjects have sustained in consequence of the late war and for ascertaining and satisfying the lawful debts and claims thereupon."

[Passed 14th April, 1821.]

WHEREAS by an Act of the Parliament of this Province, passed in the fifty fourth year of His late Majesty's Reign, entitled "An Act to declare certain persons therein described Aliens and to vest their Estates in His Majesty" certain Estates in this Province have become vested in His Majesty, having been found by Inquisition to have been on the first day of July one thousand eight hundred and twelve, in the seizin of persons, declared Aliens by the Provisions of that Act, which Estates were after the said first day of July and before the departure of such Aliens from this Province conveyed to bona fide purchasers without any intention of fraud, or were seized and sold in execution upon judgments lawfully obtained before the departure of such Aliens from this Province as aforesaid: And whereas the Provisions of the said Act in that behalf were only intended to prevent fraudulent sales, made with intent to evade expected forfeitures, it is expedient that relief should be afforded to bona fide purchasers in the cases above mentioned, who in some instances have made large improvements) upon lands acquired by them before the passing of said Act, and who would be wholly ruined unless provision is made for such relief. Be it therefore enacted by the King's Most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, entitled "An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the fourteenth year of His Majesty's Reign, entitled 'An Act for making more effectual provision for the Province of Quebec in North America, and to make further provision for the Government of the said Province" and by the authority of the same, That the Commissioners appointed under the Act passed in the fifty-ninth year of His late Majesty's Reign entitled "An Act for vesting in Commissioners the Estates of certain Traitors, and also the Estates of persons declared Aliens by an Act passed in the fifty fourth year of His Majesty's Reign, entitled 'An Act to declare certain persons therein described Aliens and to vest their Estates in His Majesty, and for applying the proceeds thereof towards compensating the losses which His Majesty's Subjects have sustained in consequence of the late War, and for ascertaining and satisfying the lawful debts and claims thereupon" shall and may have power to revise all such claims as have been brought before them respecting lands of which no sale has already been made under the provision of the said recited Act, passed in the fifty ninth year of His late Majesty's Reign, whether the same have or have not been decided on appeal, and if it shall appear to their satisfaction upon the proof brought before them in support of the same claim that the sale by the Alien, or under a judgment against him made or entered before the departure of such Alien from the Province, and before the passing of the said first mentioned Act, was bona fide and not for fraud or evasion, or with a knowledge of the purchaser of his intention to desert the Province, then the said Commissioners shall and may have power to decree such Estate to such claimant proving good title to the same, and that it shall and may be lawful for any person or persons having any claim under such bona fide sale as aforesaid to prefer the same to the said Commissioners within the period of six months from the passing of this Act, any thing in the above recited Act passed in the fifty ninth year of His late Majesty's Reign to the contrary notwithstanding.

II. And whereas it appears upon the petition of Thomas Ridout, Esquire, and others, that in some cases, from a mistake in describing the Lot or other error in Inquisitions, certain estates have been erroneously returned as forfeited, and the persons owning the same not having observed the public notice thereof until after the expiration of the eight months limited for claiming before the said Commissioners, by reason whereof the same have been absolutely vested in the Commissioners above mentioned, who are compelled to proceed to sell the same notwithstanding such manifest error as aforesaid. Be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the said Commissioners to inspect the respective Inquisitions together with the minutes of evidence thereon and compare the same with the returns furnished and published by them according to Law, and that on its appearing to the said Commissioners or a majority of them from such inspection or otherwise that any Estate has been returned manifestly by error it shall and may be lawful for them at any time before the sale thereof to decree the same to such person as shall prove title thereto, or in default of any claim therefore, to forbear proceeding to sell the same.

III. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That when any bona fide sale of any Lands or Tenements shall have been made by any person or persons who may hereafter be found by Inquisition to be an Alien or Aliens under the said Act passed in the fifty-fourth year of His Majesty's Reign, when such sale shall have been made previous to desertion of such Alien, it shall and may be lawful for the Commissioners aforesaid, upon satisfactory proof of such bona fide sale, to decree such lands and tenements to the purchaser or purchasers thereof or the person entitled to claim the same.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases where the Real Estate of any person declared an Alien under the provisions of the said Act passed in the fifty-fourth year of His late Majesty's Reign, shall have been sold in execution upon any judgment obtained against him, before such real estate became vested in His Majesty by Inquisition found, the surplus monies arising from such sale, after the satisfaction of the execution and the legal charges thereupon, shall belong to his Majesty, and shall be forthwith paid over by the Sheriff or other Officer holding the same, to the Commissioners of Forfeited Estates, appointed by the said Act of the Parliament of this Province, passed in the fifty ninth year of His late Majesty's Reign, who shall pay the same to the Special Receiver appointed under the provisions of the said last mentioned Act, to be by him held subject to the same orders and appropriations, as if such monies had arisen from the sale of real estate by the Commissioners of Forfeited Estates.

V. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in all cases of sales of lands which have been or may hereafter be made by the Commissioners of Forfeited Estates, according to the authority vested in them for that purpose, Deeds of Bargain and Sale which have been, or which hereafter shall be made and executed by the majority of such Commissioners for the time being, shall be as valid and effectual in Law to all intents and purposes, as if the same were signed by all the said Commissioners, any Law to the contrary notwithstanding.

VI. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the first day of August next, the said Commissioners shall meet, on the first Tuesday in the months of January, April, July and November, and at no other time, unless for the purpose of determining some matter specially referred to them, or of receiving the evidence or hearing the claim of some claimant or claimants, agent or agents actually attending for that purpose.

Bank of Upper Canada, Kingston, Sept 13, 1821.

THE President and Directors of the Bank of Upper Canada, having observed (with great concern) for several months past, an endeavor on the part of the Bank of Canada, to injure its credit and cripple its operations, by using means highly unjustifiable, and as they are advised illegal, to collect their Bills by means of numerous agents established in every part of the Upper Province, for the purpose of producing a run on the said Bank of Upper Canada, deem it expedient (in order to prevent any false impression) to give this public notice, that they will not hereafter redeem any of the bills so collected, and presented by the said Bank or its agents—until compelled by the judgment of his Majesty's courts of justice.—In coming to this resolution, the President and Directors have been entirely governed by a sense of justice towards those individuals who repose confidence in the Bank of Upper Canada and who may desire to have bills redeemed that they have obtained by those honorable means best described as being opposite to those pursued by the Bank of Canada.

NOTICE.

THE Subscribers to the UPPER-CANADA GAZETTE & WEEKLY REGISTER are respectfully informed, that, as an inducement for greater punctuality in paying the subscriptions half yearly in advance, according to the original conditions of the Paper, (which have but in a few instances been attended to,) the Editor has resolved upon lowering the price from five dollars to four dollars per annum (*postage included) to those subscribers who are punctual in the said half yearly payments in advance, by which much trouble is saved in the collection of these small sums. But this allowance of one dollar on the yearly subscription can only be allowed to those gentlemen who pay half yearly in advance

The Editor pledges himself that no delusion as to the quantum of matter shall be experienced in consequence of this abatement in the Terms.—He takes this opportunity of stating that the York Almanac and Royal Calendar of Upper-Canada, is nearly compleated.

* Many of the Subscribers are not, perhaps, aware that the postage in each Newspaper mounts annually on an average, to Four Shillings, which must be paid quarterly by the Editor, whether he receives the money or not.

Editorial Commentary.

Is laying claim to a superior degree of sanctity over many other Papers, both of this country and of the United States, the U. C. HERALD ought not to have forgotten that without Truth there can be no Holiness—It was not in the U. C. Gazette, but in the Weekly Register, that the pure Editor of the HERALD saw the Excommunication of Hogan—We shelter not ourselves behind a quibble. It is necessary now and then to remind those who seem willing to forget them, of the marked divisions of our Publication—Even in the Gazette there is a barrier between that which is Official, and that which is Non Official; and we should be justly censurable were we to allow any responsibility to attach to others, which belongs exclusively to ourselves—For what appears in the Register we hold ourselves accountable, either as respects the original composition, or the compilation, or the admissions from Correspondents; and, we are not ashamed of the part we took in the further exposition of what appeared to us so horrible.

Let us have no pretended sanctity on this part of the U. C. HERALD, that would not palliate its pages with a statement which no weak contemporary Editors thought it right to expose; and there is no better way of curing an evil of this kind than by exposing it deformity. This is one of the grand uses of a Public Press. But, as for casting ridicule on the Roman Catholic Religion, or any other Religion, we wholly disclaim any such intention. Those who are best acquainted with us know that the writings of a Roman Catholic Archbishop, (FENELON) are never far from our reach, being amongst our most favorite books of a Religious nature. In our mind there is any thing rather than Religion in a production so infamous as the one alluded to.—As to the Catholics, we hope we are neither indiscriminate admirers nor unqualified censurers. We trust that we have learned how to distinguish between an absurd idolatry, and the true worship "in spirit and in truth"; between the substance and the shadow; and, to revere the commandments of God, more than the doctrines of men!

It is of very little consequence to us whether the Excommunication was faithfully reported or not, since the history of what are called Catholic Countries, and of the Inquisition, with their Auto da Fe's &c. &c. afford innumerable instances of sacrifices and anathemas, quite as horrible and disgusting as the one in question. Our surprise, on the occasion alluded to, arose in a great measure from the quarter in which it was said to have originated; and, with all due submission to those who seem inclined to vindicate, or vituperate the proceeding, it is rather singular that the account should have remained for so many months and in so many American papers of note, before it was thought proper to contradict it by substituting a milder form of denunciation—We had with joy, however, this appearance of sensibility and of shame, and of just obedience to public opinion, as the harbinger of brighter days and of better principles; for it was not until a sentiment of universal horror had gone abroad that the Editors of "the Catholic Sturdiary" thought proper to give us another form of Excommunication as the real one used in the case of Hogan, which, however, is still assuming a Divine Authority, and is therefore, we fear, blasphemous!

As the subject is before us we feel it right again to protest against any such doctrine as that which alleges a wretched mortal, quite as fallible and quite as guilty, perhaps, in a certain at least, as the one to be condemned, to arrow an exclusive approach to the Divine Ear, and an exclusive right to denounce that vengeance which is alone the awful prerogative of the Most High. Such a doctrine is horrible and blasphemous in a civil point, and is wholly adverse to that which inculcates "Peace on earth and good will towards men,"—and which tells us to "do justly, to love mercy, and walk humbly before God,"—the one Christian, of whatever denomination he may be, must be quite certain that such a doctrine never sprung from the GREAT MASTER & TEACHER but

> "Man! proud man,
> Dress'd in a little brief authority;
> Most ignorant of what he's most assur'd,
> His glassy essence; like an angry ape,
> Plays such fantastic tricks before high heav'n
> As make the Angels weep."

Having a little more room left, we begin to pay off arrears. In this number will be found the story from the 34th to 38th of our First Volume, omitted by the OLIVER of last week, in the 21st Century.

Under the Domestic Head will be found two very interesting notices on subjects nearly connected with the growth and prosperity of this country, as staple articles for Exportation, Tobacco and Hemp. We rejoice to see so much spirit in the Western District, and trust the adventurers will meet with such a reward as to stimulate others to similar exertions, to praiseworthy and beneficial to the individuals and so advantageous to the country. As a good deal of conversation has passed on the subject, we have published under the same head, the identical letter which was received by Col. NICHOL, from Montreal, to which the Editor of the OBSERVER in a very unmanly slilad, and so falsely asserted as coming from JOHN RICHARDSON, Esq. or from the House of FORSYTH, RICHARDSON & Co; although it really came from a Gentleman as to eminent in the mercantile world and was now glad of the permission allowed us to publish it, because it is fraught with pertinent remarks on the present state of the country and must be read with interest.

It will be remembered by those of our readers who are fond of the pursuits of Natural History that we expressed some doubt in our 24th number (Vol. 1st) respecting the genuineness of the Mermaid said to have been caught in the Japanese Seas—Our readers for that spelling originated from some experience in matters of this kind; for more than once, detected Impostures of a similar nature.—Being, therefore, interested to estimate the value of a very curious, beautiful, and apparently dried Bird, preserved in the famous Wycliffe Museum in the North of England, on which an extensive vacant price had been put, we discovered, on a close investigation, that it had been formed with much ingenuity from various parts of other birds, both British and Foreign, so as to produce a very striking and beautiful whole, very difficult of detection to any other than an experienced Ornithologist. On another occasion we had the good fortune to prevent the truly worthy and liberal Mr. BULLOCK, proprietor of the splendid exhibition in the Egyptian Museum in Piccadilly, from paying no less a sum than 300 guineas for what was called a mummified Mole, from China, but which, after a long investigation turned out to be nothing more than the head, and part of the nape of the neck, of the Great Northern Diver, Father Glacialis, which is found on all the great lakes of this country. These impositions, and several other of a like nature, lead us first to doubt the truth of what is related respecting the Japanese Mermaid; and, by an intelligent extract from a London paper, given in this number, it seems our doubts are confirmed.

Amongst the absurd reports which are afloat in Europe is one that the Count of Grece is to be offered to the Greeks, with certain conditions, the principal of which is, that he shall forthwith take the command of the Grecian Armies!!!

The last Mail has brought important news—That a is every appearance of an immediate War in Europe. We have endeavored to compress as much information on this subject, as we are possessed of, into a digest of European Politics. At the Duke of WELLINGTON has so strongly recommended pacific measures in regard to the differences between France and Spain, and that between Russia and Turkey, it must be presumed, for the present at least, that it is the intention of Great Britain to stand aloof, until her interference is absolutely necessary for the protection of her own rights, or the interest of her own interests. We regard the orders sent down to Portsmouth for the immediate equipment of a formidable squadron of ships of war, merely as a precautionary measure, or, for some purpose of observation. France may think it politic to employ some of her troops in a foreign war, for the purpose of getting rid, of, or finding employment for, her Ultra Royalists; nothing less that are perpetually serving the cause of Despotism. However, as well as for the purpose of aiding a Royal Cousin of Spain—what peace always can import. We are sensible that it is only to be insinuate in war, until a few more years of lounge have given our energies renewed strength, a strength and power which peace always can import. We are sensible, however, that the present state of affairs on the continent is such as to render another general appeal to the sword almost inevitable.

Our friends in the Country will probably expect us to give the Debates of our Provincial Parliament in this paper—it was our intention to have set apart a certain space for a Parliamentary Register—to be regularly continued, but some unpardonable obstacles have hitherto prevented us from making the attempt.—Whether these obstacles can be removed, or not, a few days will probably determine.

Selections from British & Foreign Journals.

It is asserted that the old King of the Two Sicilies is about to resign his crown, and fix his residence in the Austrian States, a proof of good sense which perhaps it is hardly to be expected he will give.—It is stated that some changes are to be made in the constitution of the Kingdom of Hanover.

The famous Hunt made his formal entry into London, Nov 11th, with a cavalcade of 10,000 horse men, chariots, banners, inscriptions, &c.

We learn from advices recently received in this city, that Lieut. Gen. Devereux of the Columbian service, whom we were led to expect in the United States in a ministerial capacity, has had his destination changed for one to England, to which country, and the States of Europe, he goes as a Commissioner from the Columbian Republic. It will be recollected that Gen. La Fayette bore a similar commission to France from the United States at the close of the American war. The determination of the Columbian Government to preserve the Irish Legion, which gained the decisive battle of Carabobo, and even to recruit it to six thousand men, shews that matters are not yet entirely safe and concluded in that country.

We also learn by the same accounts, that three regates were expected from England for the service of the Columbian republic.

Analysis of the Church.—There are about 13,000 Clergymen of the Established Church in England and Wales. They are evidently divided into two parties; one denominated—but why, I have yet to learn—Orthodox: the other, generally, Evangelical, frequently, Methodistical, and sometimes, Puritanical. The former, which is by far the more numerous, may comprise about 10,000; the latter, which appears to be annually increasing, and to be chiefly composed of pious, zealous Clergymen, and expect the regenerating, exemplary in their conduct, very useful members of the community, and conscientiously attached to the Established Church, but as evidently solicitous for its reformation, may comprise about 3,000. Of the Orthodox Clergy it has been fairly computed that at least three fourths are attached to the Established Church, merely under the influence of pecuniary considerations. These, together with their families, dependents, patrons, &c. may amount to about 40,000; and in each parish, one with another, there are probably about twenty individuals habitually, or hereditarily but incens derately attached to the Established Church, we hold any regard for its reformation; being altogether about 260,000.

Optical Trap.—To the curious it may not be uninteresting to be informed, that an ingenious sports man in this vicinity, (Newport, R. I.) has lately invented what appears to be an entirely novel mode of trapping birds, animals, &c. This seems to be founded on the principle of the fondness of many animals to associate with each other—and it is effected merely by placing a common mirror in a suitable trap, so situated that the animal, in passing to and fro from his usual haunt—may see itself reflected, and is some how or other curiously impelled to approach the glass, and consequently entrapped—for instance, in order to take minks, muskrats, &c. a common box trap is made use of, with a mirror at the extreme end, (opposite the mouth); this being placed on the margin of a river, or pond of water, frequented by them—they will necessarily see themselves in it, and like Narcissus, fall in love with their shadows, and are instantly taken.—The inventor has not only been successful in taking the above animals, but he assures me that he has recently caught rabbits and partridges, in one of this construction, and that no less than two dozen mice were taken in one night without any other bait.—American paper.

We understand that the Senate yesterday, by an unanimous vote, advised and consented to the ratification of the Convention concluded during the last year, between the United States and Great Britain, under the mediation of the Emperor of Russia, to prescribe the mode by which the first article of the Treaty of Ghent shall be carried into effect, in conformity with the decision of his Imperial Majesty.—Washington paper.

Of this number seventeen have been built at New Orleans, but they have been principally built on the waters of the Ohio, forming in the aggregate a tonnage not exceeding eighteen thousand tons.

Articles from the Naples papers give many details of the recent eruptions of Mount Vesuvius. On the night of the 23d of October, the mountain offered one of the most splendid sights of nature. The wind having died away, the smoke, which had before been carried off to separate masses, now collected, and formed an immense column of more than a mile in height, resting on the summit of the mountain. This column, penetrated by the rays of the Sun, which were differently refracted by its masses of equal density, presented a most splendid spectacle. By degrees this cloud of volcanic matter obscured both the Sun and Vesuvius itself. Night came on, and the beauty of the phenomenon exceeded all anticipation. Torrents of fire issued from the crater, descended through the column of dark clouds, swelled gradually in their progress, and exhibited the sublime view of a mountain of fire beneath a mountain of smoke. The concussions of the mountain followed in quick succession. A sound of low thunder continued without cessation. The shocks were felt even in the capital. Frequent gleams of electricity broke at intervals the double darkness of the night and the volcanic vapor, and the finishing to one of the most magnificent scenes ever witnessed by man.

Mr. Farquhar, the purchaser of Foot-hill, is a man of extraordinary character and habits. Mr. F. is a native of Aberdeen, and went out early in life to India, where he was employed for some time in a subordinate situation in the medical department. From its practical application the foundation of his present immense fortune is laid. There was some defect in manufacturing gun powder in the interior, and Mr. Farquhar was selected to give his assistance. By degrees he got the management of the concern, and finally became the sole contractor to the Government. In this way wealth and distinction rapidly poured in upon him, and he attained the particular favour and confidence of the late Mr Warren Hastings. After years of labour, he came home from India, with a fortune estimated at half a million of money, the principal part of which was invested through Mr. Hoare, in the Funds. On landing at Gravesend, Mr. Farquhar, to save coach or boat hire, walked to London, and his first visit very naturally was to his banker. Full of dust and dirt, with clothes not worth a guinea he presented himself to the counter, and asked to see Mr. Hoare. The clerks disregarded his application, and he was suffered to wait in the cash office as a poor petitioner, until Mr. Hoare passing through it, after some explanation, recognized his Indian customer—the man whom he expected to see with a Nabob's pomp. Mr. Farquhar requested £25, and took his leave. He then settled in the Upper Bank street, where he house was to be distinguished by its dingy appearance, uncleaned windows, and general neglect. An old woman was his sole attendant, and his apartment, to which a brush or broom was never applied, was kept sacred from their care. Books and papers were strewed on the floor: the spot where the book was concluded, there it was thrown, and never removed. His neighbours were not at all acquainted with his character; and there have been instances of some of them offering him money as an object of charity, or as a reduced gentleman. He became a partner in the great agency house in the city, of Basset, Farquhar and Co. and also purchased the late Mr. Wyndham's share in the brewery. Part of his wealth was devoted to the purchase of estates, but the great bulk was invested in stocks, and suffered to increase on the principle of compound interest. Every half year he regularly draws his dividends, his mercantile profits, and his rents, and purchases in the funds. In this manner his wealth has accumulated. Mr Farquhar is deeply read in ancient and modern literature, his mind is one of extraordinary vigor and originality—his conversation of a superior order, impressive and animated on every subject. His sentiments are liberal, and strongely contrasted with his habits. His avarice may be considered as a disease which he cannot control. His religious opinions are peculiar, and seem to be influenced by an admiration of the (supposed) purity of the lives and moral principles of the Brahmins. It is said that he offered to appropriate £100,000 to found a College in Aberdeen on the most enlarged plan of education, with a reservation on points of religion, to which, however, the sanction of the Legislature could not be procured, and the plan dropped.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

IMPORTANT.

From the London Courier, Dec. 4.

We have since our last, given the deepest attention to the mass of intelligence which we have received, both public and private, and we are irresistibly led to this conclusion, that war must take place between France and Spain, unless one of two things happen, which we have not at present the least right to expect—1st, that the Cortes will abandon their constitution, and consent to model one upon the views and principles of the Continental powers; or, 2dly, that France has persuaded with such constancy, and determination in getting her claims of right to an armed intervention with the affairs of Spain acknowledged, without having the intention of exercising it. What a ridiculous figure would she cut in the eyes of European powers—particularly in those of Spain! Instead of discouraging the Revolution as in that country or in any other, she would give them additional effrontery and spirits—They would argue in this way—"The Holy Alliance think to intimidate us, by threats, but dare not carry them into execution." Why, in that case infinite more injury than benefit would be done to the cause of legitimacy, and it would have been better that the claim of right had never been enforced; but that Spain had been left untouched, to all the mischief and miseries of the revolutionary warfare.

Upon these grounds which it appears to us perfectly plain and natural, we cannot but be of opinion, that war will take place.

Every port in the Channel is still crowded with outward bound vessels; and the shipping lists for the last week contain melancholy accounts of losses at sea, both of life and property.

LONDON, Dec. 5.

Intelligence from Madrid seems to shew that the Cortes anticipate the decision of the Congress—and it does not appear that they have any intention of changing their present Constitution. The success of the Constitutionists is confirmed; but this very circumstance may accelerate the execution of the plans of the French government, in furtherance of the discretionary powers conceded to her by the Congress.

It appears by intelligence from Warsaw, that the Emperor Alexander is raising a formidable body of Troops in the North of Russia; which these are united to his other numerous armies, if he feels disposed to carry into execution his long threatened vengeance against Turkey, he will have such influence to accomplish, his purpose.

FRANCE.

Paris, Nov. 13.—They write from Bayonne, under date of the 12th inst, that several couriers had passed through that place for Spain, which gave rise to various conjectures. The reported intervention of the continental powers in the affairs of the Peninsula appears to be confirmed. It is even declared that England will occupy Portugal for 5 years, and we have just learnt that five regiments of Spanish infantry and cavalry are daily expected to arrive on the frontier of Spain, which induce a belief that our neighbours are about to take precautionary measures.

The elections in France had terminated by the choice of a large majority of Royalists. M. Hyde de Neuville was elected a deputy from Nievre, La Fayette was re-elected at Meaux, by a small majority. Mr B. Constant lost his election.

Mr, Benjamin Constant was tried on the 7th Nov. before the court of correctional police, for "a libel published by him against the Procureur General of the royal court of Poictiers, the Magistrate who presided at the assizes in the affair of the Berton conspiracy, and also against the whole court. He at first objected to being tried by them on the ground that they had no jurisdiction over a deputy; but the trial proceeded, and he was condemned to one year's imprisonment, and a fine of 5000 francs. A new trial however was demanded and allowed; and on the 13th he was again brought to the bar. The house was extremely crowded on account of a report that he was to make his own defence; and after some time spent by the court in other business, he rose, and leaning on his chair made a speech about two hours long, which produced a great sensation among the audience. The final sentence was postponed, and a great crowd followed him to his carriage.

The attempt to restore "religion" in France by a revival of the mummeries of the dark ages, is very curiously edifying. The reader must have noticed the other day the very singular trial of a French Editor (M. Michelet) for having inserted in his journal, the Mirroir, a letter from Rouen, describing the representation, by puppets, of a part of scriptural plays. The modern attempts to promote piety by these puppet shows (which are blasphemous in the extreme, if any thing could be called blasphemous) has revived enquiry into the nature of these sacred dizzing stage representations, which were once common in England as well as other parts of Europe, and were indeed the precursors of the modern drama. We understand, that a gentleman, whom we know to be particularly qualified for the task; is about to publish a volume of these Ancient Mysteries and Religions, which will contain very curious matter, collected from those scarce books which are about it to be found. It will also be illustrated with a few engravings of the greatest oddities, being exact copies from the entire lishments of every old authors.

Prince Esterhazy gave a grand hunt in compliment to his friends, at which upwards of eight hundred peasants were employed for 15 days in enclosing and rousing the game.—In the Grand Duchy of Hesse, the peasants being called out on a like occasion, refused to serve as chiens de chasse," or as pointers or hounds. The consequence was a law suit between them and the proprietor, to determine the capacity in which they were to perform service.

Degraceful Bigotry of the Bourbons.—A grand religious ceremony was performed lately at the royal monastery of the Temple, of which her highness the Princess Louisa Adelaide de Bourbon Condé is the Prioress. The object of the ceremony was the baptism of four great bells, which are about to be placed in the belfry of the monastery. They were blessed in the choir of the Convent, by the Archbishop of Paris—The god-sires and godmother, the King and Madame the Duchess of Angoulême, were represented by the Duke of Duras, first gentleman to his Majesty, and the Duchess of Duras, lady of honour to Madame. The first bell was called "Louise Marie Bonne"—the second, "Stanislas Therese"—the third, "Xavier Antoinette"—and the fourth, "Charles Elizabeth."—French paper.

This judge is what the Ultras of France will, no doubt call "the revival of Religion." Men of common sense can regard it only as an insult to the age, and a gross offence to the Deity. The legitimate Louis-the 18th; the father of iniquity, and the godfather to a ton of bell metal!—Huzza!—Liverpool Mercury.

Sedition.—In a village near Paris, a professor lately gave his scholars, as a subject for composition the desert, Love of flower called heart's ease, or pensee. The description began with a line from the poem of Pere Rapin

"Pourque jocia varias fulis tricolora si qua."

The mayor of the village having seen the subject of composition, judged, in his Municipal wisdom, that the professor was guilty of the crime of provocation to sedition and revolt, and had him arrested. He engaged to prove the criminality of the prisoner in the following manner:—"Pourquoi the flower of Jupiter, can mean none other than Napoleon; fulis tricolaris must signify the tri coloured flag—this is perfectly clear." The professor soon exonerated himself from the charge, and was set at liberty; but the learned accuser is still Mayor, and might be easily named.—Museum.

THE ADULTRESS

More severely punished than with DEATH,

By Margaret de Valois,

QUEEN OF NAVARRE.

Written early in the 16th Century.

King Charles the Eighth having occasion to send into Germany about some affairs of the utmost consequence, fixed upon a nobleman named Bernage, in whom he reposed the highest trust and confidence, to execute a commission of importance.

As he travelled day and night for the sake of expedition he arrived late one evening at a certain Castle, where he begged to be admitted to repose and refresh himself; having urged his being a stranger, and not very well acquainted with the country, at length, with great difficulty, he obtained admission.

As soon as the owner of the Castle was acquainted with the quality of his guest, and to whom he belonged, he shewed him every mark of politeness in his power, at the same time apologized for his not being admitted sooner, owing to the gates being constantly barricaded on account of some domestic troubles, and the apprehensions he was under of being surprized by some of his wife's relations, who were maliciously disposed towards him. Bernage then told him the cause of his journey, and that it was to render some particular services to the King his master.—He was then shewn into a most splendid apartment, and, after some little conversation, conducted into a hall, hung with the richest tapestry, where they found the table spread for supper, which was served with great elegance; at which time there appeared from behind the tapestry a most beautiful woman, dressed in the deepest black, but her head without any hair, or external ornaments.

After the master of the house and Bernage had washed, they carried the water to the lady, who washed also, and then took her place at the end of the table, without speaking to any one—Bernage could scarcely keep his eyes from her, as she appeared one of the most beautiful women he had ever seen, only that her face was rather pale, and her features united with a melancholy cast. After she had eat a little, she was served with wine and water, brought her by a servant, in a vessel of a most singular kind,—being a human skull, the lid of which were stopped with silver, from which she drank two or three times: and, after she had supped, and washed, she made a courtesy to the master of the house, and retired, without speaking a word.

Bernage was exceedingly surprized at what he had seen, and which appeared to him so very extraordinary and shocking, that he became dull and pensive.—This, his host perceiving, said to him,—

* This passage is worthy of remark as shewing that European manners had not then become refined from a state of barbarism.—In our times, amongst civilized nations, a lady would have been first served—though at the day amongst savages the men would be the first served.—ED.

"I do not wonder, Sir, at your being astonished at what you have seen at my table; and I find something that appears to me so worthy and honest about you, that I cannot refrain from discovering to you a circumstance which has for a long time made me, from the happiest, the most miserable of men —Stranger as you are to me, I wish to vindicate myself to you, that you may not think me capable of acting with so much cruelty, without having had the greatest provocation to justify it. The lady whom you have just seen is my wife, and I loved her with as much tenderness and affection as ever man did a woman—I resigned every thing for the sake of marrying her, and I brought her here in spite of my relations.

She professed to have the same love for me; and I would have hazarded a thousand lives to protect hers. We have lived a long time together, with all the affection and harmony possible; and I was esteemed, by every body who knew me, to be one of the happiest men living. But being obliged to take a journey upon an affair of honour, she lost her's, and forgot the love and duty she owed to me, and became enamoured with a young gentleman whom I had brought up in my house.—This I a little suspected on my return, as I perceived some things which gave me no small uneasiness: but yet I loved her so ardently I could not condemn her until my eyes were at length fully opened, and I saw that which to me was worse than death.—My love was turned into fury and despair; and I determined to observe them with the closest attention. One day I feigned a necessity for my going into the country; instead of which, I concealed myself in the same chamber which she at present occupies. —Soon after my pretended departure she entered the apartment in company with the young gentleman I have mentioned, whom I saw take those liberties with her that she ought to have allowed only to myself:—but when I perceived he was leading her to the bed, I could no longer contain myself; and, darting from my concealment, killed him in her arms.—The crime of which my wife was guilty seemed to me of so heinous a nature, that, to dispatch her as I had done her gallant, was not, I thought, a sufficient punishment. I therefore contrived a new species of misery for her to endure which I believed to be more insupportable than death. This was to shut her up in that very apartment wherein she had chosen to dishonor me; and, in a cabinet which it contains, I have hung up the skeleton of her gallant; that she may be kept in perpetual remembrance of her crime; whilst, instead of a cup, I have ordered her to be served at table with what she usually drinks out of the skull of the ungrateful wretch who seduced her, to the end, that she may see him living, whom by her fault she has made her afflicted enemy; and, the remains of him whose death she occasioned, by preferring his happiness to mine—by this means she constantly sees two objects at dinner and supper which afflicts her most, namely, a living enemy, and a deceitful friend, both produced by her own fault:—in all other respects she is treated with humanity, except that her head is constantly shaved, the hair being an ornament which becomes not an adultress, no more than a veil does a wanton, for it is a mark of having lost both honor and chastity. —Now, if you chuse to see and speak to her, I will conduct you to her apartment."

This offer Bernage gladly accepted, his curiosity being greatly excited. He found her sitting by a good fire, in a bed chamber very elegantly furnished; her husband drew back a curtain which hung before a large case in which were placed the bones of the man who had dishonored him. Notwithstanding the permission which had been given to Bernage, he was almost afraid to speak to her, lest he might offend her husband, or increase her affliction.—This being perceived by the husband, he said, "If you have any thing to say to this unfortunate woman, speak, and you will now find to what manner she now regards her own sad conduct."

—"If your patience, madam," said Bernage, "be equal to the torment you suffer, I look upon you as the most extraordinary woman in the world."—The lady, from whose eyes ran a fountain of tears, with a grace and humility not to be described, replied in the following terms:—"I confess, Sir, that my crime is so great, that all the punishment which this Lord here (whom I am not worthy to call husband) can inflict upon me, cannot be equal to the grief I feel for having injured him."—In saying which she wept most bitterly.—The gentleman then taking Bernage by the arm, conducted him to another chamber.

When Bernage took his leave, he thus addressed his host:—"The esteem I entertain for you, and the great civility you have shewn me, strongly urges me to interest myself in your welfare and felicity. It seems to me, that, after you have had sufficient proof of your poor wife's repentance, you should pity her sufferings and forgive her:—consider, Sir, you are still young, and have no children and what a pity it would be for such a fine house and estate as your's to be lost for want of an heir; and that those who should otherwise inherit your wealth have not, perhaps, the smallest regard for you."

The gentleman, who had resolved never to pardon his wife, thought seriously on what Bernage had said, being sensible of the justness of his remarks:—he therefore promised him, that if she continued to conduct herself with that humility and sorrow which she had hitherto shewn, he would, in a short time pardon her transgressions.

As soon as he returned to Court, Bernage informed the King, his master, of this extraordinary affair. When upon the King sent some of his officers into Germany to make further enquiry; and was so pleased with the description Bernage had given of the beauty of this unfortunate Lady, that he sent his painter also, Jean de Paris, to draw her portrait.

In the end, this afflicted lady was pardoned by her husband, who received her once more to his arms —and it is said they lived for many years together in uninterrupted happiness, and not without an heir to their large possessions.

THE MERMAID.

"We have again our fully inspected this creature, as far as its glass casing permits. Our opinion is fixed that it is a composition; a most ingenious one, we grant, but still nothing beyond the admirable putting together members of various animals. The extraordinary skill of the Chinese and Japanese in executing such deceptions is notorious, and we have no doubt but that the mermaid is a manufacture from the shore of the Indian Sea, where it has been pretended it was caught. We are not if those who, because they happen not to have had direct proof of the existence of any extraordinary phenomenon, push a scepticism to the extreme, and deny its possibility. The depths of the sea, in all probability, form various chemical and philosophical causes, to us unknown to its surface waters, or if ever, rarely seen by human eye. But when a creature is presented to us, having no other organization but that which is suitable to a medium always open to our observation, it in the first instance excites suspicion that only one individual of the species should be discovered and obtained. When knowledge was more limited, the stories of mermaids seen in distant quarters might be credited by the many and not disbelieved by the few; but now, when European and especially British commerce fills every corner of the earth with men of observation and science, the unique becomes the incredible, and we receive with far greater doubt the apparition of such anomalies as the present.—It is curious that though medical men seem in general to regard this creature as a possible production of nature, no naturalist of any ability credits it after five minutes observation! This may perhaps be accounted for by their acquaintance with the parts of distinct animals, of which, it appears, the mermaid is composed. The cheeks of the blue-faced ape, the canine teeth, the simia upper body, and the tail of the fish, are all familiar to them in less complex combinations, and they pronounce at once that the whole is an imposture. And such is our settled conviction. Let us, however, in justice to the owner of this sea monster, repeat our opinion that he is by no means privy to the imposition. It is affirmed that almost all the eastern world, including Sir Thomas Raffles (a person of no mean judgment) hold the mermaid to be genuine; and that its purchaser allowed it to be so, is witnessed not only by the sum he gave for it, but by the fact of his having exhibited it originally in a way the most likely to court detection, if false, namely, by suspending it by a string fastened to the middle of the back.

"We lament, therefore, to be compelled, in justice to ourselves, to pronounce the judgment we have done;—but being thoroughly convinced that this lusus naturæ is not natural, we are bound to say so, and to tell our readers, that if they go to see it, (as it is well worth a visit) it must be to observe how admirably such a deception can be executed.

'It is a jest, and all things show it,
'We thought so once, and now we know it'"

AGRICULTURE.

Various articles for Fattening Swine.—Skimmed milk and pea, oat, or barley meal, rank first in point of excellence, with respect to the quality of the flesh, milk fed pork being superior to any other description, not only in delicacy of flavor, but in substance and weight, none weighing so heavy, in proportion, as the milk fed animals. Hence the bacon of the dairy counties is superior.—Milk will fatten pigs entirely, without the aid of any other food; a practice sometimes in the dairies.—Corn fed pork is next in value, peas, oats, and barley, being the best adapted grain. Bean fed pork is hard, ill flavored, and indigestible: potatoe fed, it is loose, insipid, weighs light and wastes much in cookery. To mix potatoes in the food of fattening pigs, is deceptious; deteriorating the pork in exact proportion. Hence the Irish pork and bacon are generally inferior to the English, and the market price so in proportion. The inferiority was, some years since, stated at three cwt. per lb. upwards, by an eminent dealer in Irish provisions. Clover fed pork is yellow, unsubstantial, and illtasted; fattened on acorns, it is hard, light and unwholesome: on oil cake, seeds, or chandler's grease, it becomes loose, greasy, and little better than carrion: on butcher's offal, lux ious, rank, and fulsome gravy, but of a strong and disgusting scent. Compared with the general consumption of pork, the real dairy fed boors a very small proportion, and the sale of it in the metropolis, is in very few hands, always commanding a superior price. In some parts of France, they skim their pigs intended for fresh meat.

Sheep and Wool.—In the report of the committee on sheep at the Worcester cattle show, it is stated that England and Wales produce 26 millions of sheep, the annual produce of whose wool is 27 millions of dollars. England imports from Spain about one fifteenth of the whole quantity of wool which she manufactures. Three fourths of the wool wrought by the woollen manufactories of the United States is the product of another sort.

DOMESTIC.

INTERESTING FROM QUEBEC.

Friday, 25th Jan. 1822.

Mr. Taschereau from the Special Committee, to whom we referred the petition of the Committee for the direction of the affairs of the Chambly Canal, and the plans and papers transmitted to this House by order of his Excellency the Governor in Chief, relating to the said Canal, reported that the Committee had examined the same, and had come to an opinion thereon, which he was directed to submit to the House when ever they shall be pleased to receive the same; and he read the report in his place; and afterwards delivered it in at the Clerk's table, where it was again read as follows:—

The Hon. Capt Byng, Royal Navy, appeared before your Committee, and declared, that the proposed Canal, ought, by all means, be constructed of the depth of five feet, so as to render it useful, not only for mercantile purposes but likewise for all military purposes. That a depth of water, five feet would be sufficient to allow vessels of sufficient size to act on Lake Champlain, in the event of war, to proceed from Quebec, which seeing the Naval means of Great Britain, would ensure her the command of the lakes whenever it shall be judged necessary, but that a lesser depth of water in his opinion would not be sufficient.

Captain Byng adds that the locks ought to be at least thirty feet clear.

The Hon. Colonel Ready then appeared before your Committee, and the information given by Capt. Byng having been read to him, he confirmed the same entirely. He added that with respect to the engagement taken by the Military Government to give ten thousand pounds towards the making the said Canal, he thinks that should the Canal Company go on making this Canal, this sum would be allowed, but should the Act be altered according to the petition referred, he thinks the Governor in Chief would deem it necessary to submit the matter to the Government at home, before he entered into any new arrangement.

Mr. John Goudie then appeared before your Committee, and confirmed Captain Byng's statement entirely, adding that in case of any urgent necessity, all the Steam Boats on the River St. Lawrence might be carried to lake Champlain, by this Canal, by taking off their wings to get thro'

Your Committee having heard the evidence above recited, and having examined the papers, plans and estimates laid before this House, are of opinion that the Canal would be of general benefit to the whole Province, that it ought to be five feet in depth, and the locks ought not to be less than thirty feet wide. That the Civil and Military Government ought to be empowered to take all the shares or parts of shares in the said Canal, and that there ought to be provided a fund for that purpose for the shares which the Civil Government might take. —Mer.

We are informed that the number of Petitioners against the Union, in this Province, amounts to about sixty thousand of all classes of His Majesty's subjects. It appears that the same Agents are also charged with the Petitions of the Inhabitants of Upper Canada against the Bill.—Can.

We subjoin a report of experiments made at Kingston Dock Yard, with samples of Canadian Hemp, sent there and tried against yarns selected from good English Bolt Rope:—The Hemp when received was carefully dressed and spun into common sized yarns, a fathom of each was weighed and then tried against English yarns, and the result was highly favorable to the Canadian Hemp. The first sample received, (which was of Upper Canada growth) was consider'd equal to Petersburgh Hemp;—and the more Hemp from this Province appeared to the others of this Dock Yard, equal to the best sample seen from England.

Extract of a letter dated Amherstburgh, U. C. Dec. 1822.

"There has been some stir this winter in consequence of the Tobacco trade. Next Spring I think there will not be less than one hundred Hogsheads shipped from hence. The Lower Canada merchants will soon have to find us other Markets than Montreal and Quebec, for the quantity will increase at least ten fold the year after."

The information contained in the above Extract is very important, and comes from an authentic source. The Tobacco is said to be even of a better quality than Virginian, and will probably soon become another valuable Staple in the commerce of His Majesty's North American Colonies. To lessen the expense of bringing it to Market, a Canal communication between the Lakes Erie and Ontario is requisite. We are happy to observe that this subject begins now to excite the public attention, and we trust it will not be lost sight of until fully accomplished. A practicable water communication by way of the St. Lawrence from the Atlantic to the great Lakes, would speedily develope the vast commercial resources of Upper Canada, and augment the demand for British manufactures in remote parts of America, now rapidly increasing in population and wealth. Perhaps no country in the world is favored with such natural facilities for a great inland navigation as the Canadas; and certainly no country offers greater inducements for the investment of Stock to be applied to the removal of such obstructions as exist.

THE LETTER TO COL NICHOL.

SIR, MONTREAL, 15th March, 1822.

I have been honored with your letter of the 24th ult. requesting me to communicate to you my opinion respecting the state of the Trade of your Province, which in common with that of this and most other Countries, has within a few years undergone a lamentable reverse. As regards yourselves it cannot have escaped you that the cessation of War between Great Britain and her numerous enemies in Europe and America, has had a fatal influence on every kind of your Produce, and a great part of the trade you exclusively enjoyed during the war, is now divided between your selves and your active speculative neighbours. The latter, indeed, drain your Province of specie, and by the facility they possess of carrying on a contraband trade, impair your public revenue, and most materially affect the upright dealer. But the principal cause of the depression of your trade arises from the reduced demand, and consequently diminished value of your commodities, and as there is little prospect of its speedy removal, the attention of the Upper Canadians should be turned to the improvement of the quality of their produce, to the extension of their markets, and to its safe, speedy and economical conveyance to this Province.

I am sorry to remark that a great proportion of your Flour, owing to negligence in the transport and other causes that are well known to you, arrives in this market in very bad condition, by which a heavy and in most instances very unnecessary loss is entailed on the propietor. I am convinced that during the two last years, many parcels have produced a dollar to a dollar and a half, per bbl. less than they would have bro't, but for the damage sustained on the way from your Province. If you consider how great a sum this will amount to when (as from your growing population must be the case,) your exports attained a great extent, you will be sensible of the necessity of remedying this evil by packing the Flour cool, dry, and in good barrels, and by adopting means of preventing it from being exposed to the vicissitudes of heat and moisture on its way to this place. You have excellent wheat, good mills, and yet one half of your flour is rejected on inspection.

That your trade admits of great extension, there can be no doubt, provided you will supply a merchantable article; and the present period is very favorable for it in consequence of the restrictions which the American Government has laid on the Trade between their Country and the British West India Islands. The produce of the Upper Province is admirably calculated for the latter Country, and moreover the Ports of the Islands are at all times open for its reception. Well assorted Cargoes of Flour Beef, Pork, Lard and Butter, if carefully packed, will always command a sale; and when the West India merchants know that an extensive supply can be furnished him, he will open a general trade with this country, very different from the limited intercourse now carried on by persons who have no employments for their ships.

A great deal of your produce could also be exported to Halifax and New Brunswick if the Crown Duties on Rum, which would constitute their return Cargoes, were reduced to the same rate as on Imports from Bermuda and the West Indies.

I would by all means recommend to your Merchants to turn their attention to sending down wheat and other grain. I am aware that Flour can be forwarded with greater facility, that its bulk is comparatively small, and that your mills would lose a part of their employment. These are not the only considerations which should influence you; our object must be to get the best price for your produce whether in a raw or manufactured state.

Your wheat will bring as much more in Great Britain than ours, as will pay at least half the expence of bringing it to this place.

As Great Britain is the only country capable of taking off any unlimited quantity of our produce, it is very important that no restraints should be laid on our mutual trade. Unfortunately the Corn Laws operate very much against us, as we cannot sell either wheat or flour on their arrival in England, provided the average price of wheat is under 67s. 8p. per quarter. None of the cargoes of those articles shipped from Quebec since the middle of last October, were admitted to entry for the home market on their arrival, which was a great loss to the Shipper. I think that on a united representation of this hardship by your Legislature, well seconded by your Agent in England, you might get the Law repealed as affects your produce; for if you could not obtain entire success, it might be so modified as to admit of the entrance of cargoes that sailed from Quebec previous to its being known there, that the Ports were shut.

It will occur to you that such a representation should originate here; but, one branch of our Legislature is rather anticommercial and is so fully occupied with other matters that commercial regulations are considered of minor importance.

The state of the Lumber Trade was to be brought before the Imperial Parliament as soon as possible after it assembled in January last; and there is no doubt but it has been decided ere now, whether the foreign duties should be reduced, or an additional duty laid on Timber, the produce of the British Colonies. When the question was agitated in Parliament last spring, an opinion prevailed that a reduction of 10s. 3d. per load of 50 cubic feet would be made on foreign timber, which from the superiority of its quality and the low rate of freights from the Baltic would exclude the Canadian Dealer from the trade.

Though I believe you are very well acquainted with the consequences of such an alteration, yet in case of the contrary I will take the liberty of explyfying them to you

Timber shipped from the British Colonies for naval purposes, is admitted duty free.

The duty on other timber from the British Colonies is 2s 4d 1-2 per load.

The duty on foreign timber is	£3	8	1 prload
freight of Timber from Quebec	2	10	0
ditto from Memmel,	0	18	0
freight in favor of foreign trade	1	12	0
The price of Memmel Pine,	6	6	0
ditto of Canada, &c.	4	5	0
in favor of Foreign Trade,	2	1	0
The Foreign Trade gains on sales	2	0	0
ditto on freight,	1	12	0
	3	12	0
the foreign duty is	3	8	1
less the expected redution	0	10	3
	2	17	10

In favor of the frg. trade pr load. 0 14 2

You will perceive by the above that if the small reduction of 10s 3d per load is made from the duties on Foreign Timber, or if a similar sum is added on our duties, the Baltic Merchants will be able to sell lower than ourselves, even if our Pine costs nothing on board. Fortunately we have most strenuous advocates in the shipping interest, for if the proposed alteration takes place, at least 800 sail will be obliged to find other employment.

In regard to the hardships sustained by your Province in consequence of the measures of our Legislature, I trust they will be partially removed when a conference takes place between the Commissioners of the two Provinces. Should you suffer grievances beyond their control you must have recourse to the Imperial Parliament for redress. I think that all goods imported into Quebec, intended to go direct to your Province, should be suffered to proceed without security being required for any duties, for it is not right that our Legislature should tax your Province. It is much to be desired that the smuggling trade could be effectually checked, as it is now carried on to a great extent, particularly in the article of Tea, of which the consumption must have greatly increased, and the quantity imported from England has much diminished. This and the interference of your neighbours in many other respects must be very prejudicial to your trade and requires to be remedied.

The few observations that in compliance with your request I have ventured to make, will, I am convinced, have been anticipated by the very respectable and intelligent Gentlemen who compose the Committee of which you are Chairman; but, should any thing that I have suggested, have the smallest tendency to promote the welfare of your Province, I shall feel highly gratified.

I have the Honor to remain with respect,

Sir,

Your most obedient

Humble Servant,

HIS Excellency the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, has been pleased to License the following Gentlemen to practise Physic, Surgery, and Midwifery, within this Province:—

THOMAS D MORRISON,
and
STEPHEN W. AVERY.

Executive Council Office, York, 14*th April,* 1824.

NOTICE is hereby given, to Jabez Johnson, or his Representative, to make good any claim he may have to Lot Number Two, in the Seventh Concession of the Township of Louth, in the District of Niagara within six months from this date, in default of which, the Lot will be otherwise disposed of.

By order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

JOHN SMALL.
Clk. Ex'v Council. 17—6m.

Executive Council Chamber, York, 31*st January,* 1824.

PRESENT,
HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
IN COUNCIL,

HIS Majesty's Government having recently extended their assistance to the class of Emigrants, which it was intended to relieve by gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres of Land, in conveying them to their respective locations:

IT IS ORDERED, that from the first day of May next, no gratuitous Grants be made of any share of Land to other than privileged persons.—And that as the Fee on Two Hundred Acres was raised, in order to defray the gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres for consideration being, the future Fee on Two Hundred Acres is reduced to Eight Pounds Four Shilling and One Penny Sterling; the existing Fee before 1819, and the Fee on all other Grants, in Townships Surveyed since that time, to be the same as established by the Order in Council, of 5th January, 1819.

N. B. Possessors of gratuitous Grants for Fifty Acres, may, by paying the Fee on One Hundred Acres, receive a Grant of the adjoining Fifty Acres if vacant.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Ex'v. Council.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL CHAMBER,
AT YORK, 26th JAN. 1824.
PRESENT,
HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
In Council.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR submitted to the consideration of the Board, the Sheriffs' Reports of their respective Gaols, together with other Documents relating to a Winter Circuit, by which it appeared that the House of Assembly had addressed His Excellency to that effect, for this Session only; and obviously for the Delivery of the Gaols in the several Districts.

THE limitation of such a measure to one season seeming to militate with the Provision of the Law, that when the Communication from the Seat of Government is united, and the circumstances of the Province required, there should be a regular Second Circuit, the Board would prefer to recommend that Special Commissions to deliver particular Gaols should issue where requisite; but, as the respective Reports from the Sheriffs do not, in the opinion of the Board, require any personal interposition, His Excellency, with advice of Council, postpones a Second Circuit until the circumstances of the Province more decidedly require it.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Executive Council.

Executive Council Office, York, February 7*th* 1821.

WHEREAS it has been represented, that many persons who have received Locations of Land, have, from Sickness, and other legitimate causes, been unable to fulfil the Settlement Duty in the time required by the Location Ticket, and have neglected to apply to His Excellency in Council for an extension of the period, for performance of such duty.

BE it Known that the period for completing the Settlement Duty, is hereby extended to Two Years from the date of Locations until further notice shall be given.

JOHN SMALL, Clk Ex. Coun.

WHEREAS by the Tenor of the Location Tickets a Certificate is required to be lodged of the Settlement Duty being done within two Years, or that the said Location should be forfeited, and in case of Locations not gratuitous, that one third of the Patent Fee be lodged with such Certificate; AND WHEREAS it is represented, that in many instances, Certificates of performance of the Settlement Duty, have been withheld from the inability of the settler to deposit such proportion of the Patent Fee, it is deemed expedient to relieve the settler from forfeiture of his location, when he may actually have performed his settlement duty—Notice is hereby given that in all cases where Settlement Duty has been performed within the limited period, the settler shall, on filing Certificate thereof within six Months of this date, be exempted from forfeiture notwithstanding the non-payment therewith of such portion of the Patent Fee, provided the Patent is sued out within One Year from the filing of such Certificate.

And further; His Excellency, in the hope of avoiding the necessity of rescinding any of the Militia grants, is pleased to direct this Public Notification; that all Lands granted to Militia Men, upon which the Settlement Duties shall not have been performed within the limited period, will in pursuance of general instructions given to the Surveyor General in all similar cases, be declared vacant, and will be granted within Six Months after the expiration of that period, to the first applicant, unless the Original Nominee, shall before such subsequent application, have lodged a Certificate of his having performed the Settling Duties.

JOHN SMALL, Clk. Ex. Coun.

Executive Council Office, York, 7*th Nov.* 1821.

WHEREAS it has become expedient to establish a line of communication through certain remote Townships, for encouragement thereof, Grants will be made to actual Settlers in the Townships hereinafter named on the condition of Settling within two years from the date of the Location, at the reduced Scale of 5th January, 1819, viz.

Government House, 15th July, 1824.

HIS Excellency the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, has been pleased to License the following Gentlemen to practise Physic, Surgery, and Midwifery, within this Province:—

THOMAS D MORRISON,
and
STEPHEN W. AVERY.

Executive Council Office, York, 14*th April,* 1824.

NOTICE is hereby given, to Jabez Johnson, or his Representative, to make good any claim he may have to Lot Number Two, in the Seventh Concession of the Township of Louth, in the District of Niagara within six months from this date, in default of which, the Lot will be otherwise disposed of.

By order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

JOHN SMALL.
Clk. Ex'v Council. 17—6m.

Executive Council Chamber, York, 31*st January,* 1824.

PRESENT,
HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
IN COUNCIL,

HIS Majesty's Government having recently extended their assistance to the class of Emigrants, which it was intended to relieve by gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres of Land, in conveying them to their respective locations:

IT IS ORDERED, that from the first day of May next, no gratuitous Grants be made of any share of Land to other than privileged persons.—And that as the Fee on Two Hundred Acres was raised, in order to defray the gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres for consideration being, the future Fee on Two Hundred Acres is reduced to Eight Pounds Four Shilling and One Penny Sterling; the existing Fee before 1819, and the Fee on all other Grants, in Townships Surveyed since that time, to be the same as established by the Order in Council, of 5th January, 1819.

N. B. Possessors of gratuitous Grants for Fifty Acres, may, by paying the Fee on One Hundred Acres, receive a Grant of the adjoining Fifty Acres if vacant.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Ex'v. Council.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL CHAMBER,
AT YORK, 26th JAN. 1824.
PRESENT,
HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
In Council.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR submitted to the consideration of the Board, the Sheriffs' Reports of their respective Gaols, together with other Documents relating to a Winter Circuit, by which it appeared that the House of Assembly had addressed His Excellency to that effect, for this Session only; and obviously for the Delivery of the Gaols in the several Districts.

THE limitation of such a measure to one season seeming to militate with the Provision of the Law, that when the Communication from the Seat of Government is united, and the circumstances of the Province required, there should be a regular Second Circuit, the Board would prefer to recommend that Special Commissions to deliver particular Gaols should issue where requisite; but, as the respective Reports from the Sheriffs do not, in the opinion of the Board, require any personal interposition, His Excellency, with advice of Council, postpones a Second Circuit until the circumstances of the Province more decidedly require it.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Executive Council.

Executive Council Office, York, February 7*th* 1821.

WHEREAS it has been represented, that many persons who have received Locations of Land, have, from Sickness, and other legitimate causes, been unable to fulfil the Settlement Duty in the time required by the Location Ticket, and have neglected to apply to His Excellency in Council for an extension of the period, for performance of such duty.

BE it Known that the period for completing the Settlement Duty, is hereby extended to Two Years from the date of Locations until further notice shall be given.

JOHN SMALL, Clk Ex. Coun.

WHEREAS by the Tenor of the Location Tickets a Certificate is required to be lodged of the Settlement Duty being done within two Years, or that the said Location should be forfeited, and in case of Locations not gratuitous, that one third of the Patent Fee be lodged with such Certificate; AND WHEREAS it is represented, that in many instances, Certificates of performance of the Settlement Duty, have been withheld from the inability of the settler to deposit such proportion of the Patent Fee, it is deemed expedient to relieve the settler from forfeiture of his location, when he may actually have performed his settlement duty—Notice is hereby given that in all cases where Settlement Duty has been performed within the limited period, the settler shall, on filing Certificate thereof within six Months of this date, be exempted from forfeiture notwithstanding the non-payment therewith of such portion of the Patent Fee, provided the Patent is sued out within One Year from the filing of such Certificate.

And further; His Excellency, in the hope of avoiding the necessity of rescinding any of the Militia grants, is pleased to direct this Public Notification; that all Lands granted to Militia Men, upon which the Settlement Duties shall not have been performed within the limited period, will in pursuance of general instructions given to the Surveyor General in all similar cases, be declared vacant, and will be granted within Six Months after the expiration of that period, to the first applicant, unless the Original Nominee, shall before such subsequent application, have lodged a Certificate of his having performed the Settling Duties.

JOHN SMALL, Clk. Ex. Coun.

Executive Council Office, York, 7*th Nov.* 1821.

WHEREAS it has become expedient to establish a line of communication through certain remote Townships, for encouragement thereof, Grants will be made to actual Settlers in the Townships hereinafter named on the condition of Settling within two years from the date of the Location, at the reduced Scale of 5th January, 1819, viz.

A Township North of Mariposa, advertised from the Surveyor General's Office on the 19th of October, as Zeta, to be called Eldon

Government House, 6*th March,* 1820.

HIS Excellency the Lieutenant Governor is pleased to direct that no Location requiring Settlement Duty shall be Confirmed by Patent, without a Certificate from the Land Board of the District in which such Location may be situate, that the Settlement Duty required by the Order in council has bona fide been performed within the time specified by the Location Ticket.

COMMUNICATION.

FOR THE U C GAZETTE.

Niagara Falls, June 30th, 1824.

To the Editor of the Upper Canada Gazette.

SIR,

From what is stated in Numbers Three and Four of a Paper lately Published at Queenston styled the "Colonial Advocate" it might be inferred that the Commissioners appointed to superintend the Erection of the Monument to the Memory of the late Major General Sir Isaac Brock had been remiss in their duty, in that they had employed William Lyon Mackenzie to superintend in their stead—but such is not the case;—it is thus:—

Shortly after the death of one of the Commissioners (Colonel Nichol), I consulted with the remaining Commissioner, Mr. Thomas Dickson, and with other gentlemen of the District, as to the propriety of having a procession of ceremony at laying the foundation—when it was agreed, from the recent death of Col. Nichol, and from the short time there was to invite over from York the gentlemen from thence, to form the necessary Masonic procession; that the ceremony should be deferred until the Monument was finished and when the remains of the late Major General would be deposited in the Vault of the Monument.

The Contractors informed Mr. Hall, Engineer, superintending the Erection of the Monument and myself, that they would be ready to commence the Foundation in the first week in June; they were directed to proceed when ready, as there would be no ceremony at the laying of it. On the first day of June I had appointed to be at Burling on Beach as a Canal Commissioner, as you will see by Public Notice in your Gazette of May last, where I accordingly went, accompanied by Mr Hall the Engineer.—On that day the most being silent, (the only remaining Commissioner Mr Thomas Dickson from indisposition not being able to attend at his room) Mr. Lyon Mackenzie, took upon himself unknown to the Commissioner, to perform his impertinent and officious ceremonies at the laying the foundation of the monument.

For the information of the public I have to state, that William Lyon Mackenzie's wide mouthed bottle, and his wider mouthed assertions paper are now removed from under the monument, and am Sir, your very obedient servant,

(Signed) THOMAS CLARK.

Commissioner for Erecting a Monument to the memory of the late Maj. General Sir Isaac Brock.

SELECTIONS FROM BRITISH AND FOREIGN JOURNALS.

SICILIAN DWARF.

(London Literary Gazette)

"Seeing is believing," and upon my conscience, unless I had seen the Sicilian Dwarf with mine own eyes, I could not have credited so extraordinary a variety in human nature. This creature is a female, and of the name of Cramacchia a Sardian by birth, and now within a few months of being ten years old. But it is impossible to describe the miracle of her appearance, or of its effect upon the mind. Reason, rationality, superstition, and intelligence, all the faculties of humanity, in a being inconceivably below the standard at which we have ever witnessed them, so overturns all previous impressions, that, even with the fact before us, we doubt the evidence of our own senses. A tolerable sized doll (acting, and speaking would not astonish us so much—for nature is in this instance, far more wonderful than art could be. Only imagine a creature about half as large as a new born infant; perfect in all parts and lineaments, uttering words in a strange unearthly voice understanding what you say, and replying to your questions; in fine, I say, this figure of about nineteen inches in height and five pounds in weight—and you have some idea of the most extraordinary phenomenon and the more you look, the more you reflect, the more you are puzzled it appears that this can be real—But are they not? Reason is the enemy of ancient mythology brought home to your own day. The expression of her countenance varies with whatever reflects her mind (for, only in her freedom wiping her cheek, and expressing her fancy) her beautiful tiny hand (for the little finger of which, the ring of a very small shirt button would be much too wide a round) has all the motions and graces which are found in the same member of a lovely woman; she laughs, she threatens, she displays her fondness for finery, she likes her drop of wine, she shows her displeasure, she chooses and rejects; in fine, she is as perfect as a common child of the same age. Her walk is rather tottering, and her voice (as I have said) very remarkable. Her general appearance is not unpleasing, though there is little of the stamp in the form of the features; her health is good, and her body, limbs &c. are complete.

I shall visit her again and again, for she is to me the wonder of wonders. I took her up caressingly and valued her; and I was most laughable to see her present the back of her little hand to wipe away her cheek, and expressing her dislike of the rough chin. But her great antipathy is to Doctors; these have offended her by examining her too minutely, and whenever they are mentioned she doubles her fibert of a fist, and manifests her decided displeasure. Of her trinkets she seems very proud, taking off her ring to show it, and pointing to her earrings with the joyous exclamation of "Very pretty,"—for she has already learnt a little English. But, go and see her or you never can conceive the true meaning of Milton's phrase—

"Mimin of nature."

CAUSE OF THE SEPERATION OF LORD AND LADY BYRON.

At the time of Lord Byron's separation from his Lady, many different and contradictory stories were in circulation as to the real cause of such an event. Scandal was not idle on the occasion, and reports highly prejudicial to his Lordship's character were most industriously circulated by his enemies. A domestic division, which arose from a very trifling circumstance, was laid hold of with avidity, in order to propagate the heaviest imputations against the morals of Lord Byron, that the most malicious heart could possibly devise.

The real cause of this occurrence originated in jealousy on the part of Lady Byron. Her Ladyship was filled with constant suspicions of the fidelity of her Lord; these doubts, it is said, had been infused into her mind by a favourite confidente, who had been her governess, and had continued to reside with her after her marriage, in the capacity of friend. This person actuated, one would imagine, by the spirit of a fiend, formed the design, from some selfish motives, of destroying the domestic felicity of the noble pair under whose roof she was a sojourner. This female fage commenced by vague imputations, dark insinuations and damnable surmises respecting Lord Byron, whose every action she watched with the eye of an Argos, to misrepresent with the cool calculating malevolence of a demon. She at length got so complete an ascendancy over the mind of Lady Byron, that her Ladyship was incapable of viewing any thing, except through the jaundiced medium in which this monster chuose to present it. Though Lord Byron, previously to his nuptials with Miss Noel, daughter of Sir Ralph Noel, had lived a free and dissipated life, yet it is asserted by his most intimate friends, that no man could have been more restrained in his conduct than he was after his marriage, and at the precise time of the quarrel which took place between the parties, and which terminated in their eternal separation.

At this period Lord Byron was one of the Committee of Drury Lane Theatre, and frequently had theatrical persons, both male and female, calling at his residence on affairs connected with the Committee.—This circumstance was artfully seized on by the person who was the confidente of Lady Byron, and was converted by her into a means of still further deluding her Ladyship's mind. Lord Byron was represented as the victim of gallantry with several actresses. As "trifles light as air are to the jealous, confirmations strong as proofs of holy writ," so a trivial matter which occurred tended to inflame the mind of Lady Byron, already prepared by the machinations of the person above alluded to.

The beautiful Mrs. Mardyn, at that time a member of the Drury-Lane Company, had occasion to call on Lord Byron, at his residence, relative to some theatrical business, and was shewn into his Lordships library. During her stay there came a dreadful storm of rain; and when the lady was about to depart, Lord Byron sent a servant to procure a hackney coach. There not being a single coach to be found, his Lordship very politely offered his carriage to convey her home. Lady Byron, who had received intelligence that Mrs. Mardyn was in the house, on hearing that the coach was ordered for her, directed the servant to say that his Lordship's carriage had been lent and was abroad.—"Then," said Lord Byron, (who immediately suspected that this was an excuse arising from the jealous mind of his Lady, and her common-sense inclination that such a conveyance should be provided for the female stranger) with some impetuosity, "let lady Byron's carriage be instantly got ready." Lady Byron's answer to this, was, "go tell your master that" Mrs. Mardyn shall never ride in a carriage of Lord Byron's." Hereupon Lord Byron, with great sang froid, observed, that as Mrs. Mardyn could not be procured any kind of conveyance home, she should stay and dine. Dinner was at length announced, and the Noble Lord led Mrs Mardyn to the dining room, where Lady Byron had just preceded them. On their entrance, he presented Mrs Mardyn to his Lady, who, with a haughty and consummate mastership of the deepest indignation, made some caustic observation on Mrs. Mardyn's character, and the object of her visit, and burst from the room. The consciousness of his integrity of conduct, and the injustice of Lady Byron's suspicions, roused in turn a momentary, though perhaps, a too warm resentment of, in the bosom of his Lordship; and as he followed his Lady to the door, he betrayed more of defiance, even than reproach, and quickly stepped it to as Lady Byron retired. This was too much for a woman full of love and passion, and with matter feeding upon her imagination both. She re-entered Her mental wife was deposed in her countenance; and with a commanding air, and a firmness and determination from which she never relented, she exclaimed: "I leave you for ever—never will I live with that monster!" she grew the last words Lord Byron ever heard his Lady utter—he saw her now for the last time! This carriage which Mrs [illegible] gotten ready by his Lordship's subsequent orders, for Mrs Mardyn, served in contrey his Lady from his house to return no more! [illegible] a manstle over her shoulders—fled, as it were, [illegible] om her home; she fled hastily into her chariot and drove to her father's real house—having the astonished [illegible] ve to most inviting cause of so much domestic disquietude, wrapt in confusion and astonishment. From this apparent trifling cause arose their separation; being very passionate, and his Lordship too proud to make even the slightest concession. The individual who had been trusted Lady Byron against her husband, had caused her to suspect that her Lord had an intrigue with Mrs. Mardyn. Mrs. Mardyn, however, denies in the most solemn manner, ever having any commerce of the kind with Lord Byron. Thus it would appear, but for the insidious intentions of a base wretch, the domestic happiness of the noble pair would not have been impaired; the separation would never have taken place; and England would not now have to lament his loss.—Dublin Star.

BUONAPARTE AND TALMA.—Talma mentioned to me some singular circumstances of Buonaparte, which may be of interest, as they are derived from an authentic source. The early acquaintance of Talma with Buonaparte originated from his passion for the stage, Talma had an opportunity of gratifying it, by giving him free admissions, when the finances of the "emperor to be" were too limited for a frequent indulgence in what every Frenchman considers as almost a necessary of life.—Their acquaintance soon ripened into familiarity, and the hours which were not devoted to their respective professions, were often passed together. They used frequently to stroll through the streets of Paris in the evening. Buonaparte was so immoderately found of coffee, that he could not refrain from entering every tavern by which they passed, in which his favourite beverage could be procured. His love for it arose from its exciting qualities.—After he had swallowed large draughts, and when his spirits were awakened into unusual vivacity, he indulged in all sorts of ambitious speculation. His friend could not help smiling at the confidence with which he predicted his future greatness, for he was ever commencing with futurity, and by anticipation was already a great man. All his notions were vast and daring; he expressed himself in wild and dreamy imagery, which was well suited to his high and aspiring thoughts. Talma said, that at this time his conversation was nearly Ossianic, from which I took occasion to inquire from him if it was true that Buonaparte had no much partiality for the writer whom he little suspected was a modern Scotsman, who had arrayed his conceptions in the mists of his own grey hills and contrived to impose upon the world, in this ingenious and fantastic masquerade. Talma did not seem to be quite pleased at my being so incredulous of the authenticity of the favorite author of his imperial friend; for he assured me that from the earliest period of their acquaintance, he remembered Buonaparte's pasion for what he considered as among the sublimest fragments of antiquity. He used to carry a small edition of Ossian about him. No doubt, the style more or less communicated something of its own colour to his mind; and we account for the occasional hyperboles to be found in his public documents, by referring them to that very likely source. I asked Talma whether Buonaparte's temper was as violent before he attained his elevation, as it was said to have been afterwards. He denied, and that with no little warmth, that his temper had ever been remarkable for its vehemence, and asserted, that on the contrary, though subject to gusts of a sudden and transitory kind, he was generally gentle, and exceedingly good-natured. As a proof of it, he mentioned the deep attachment of all those who were immediately about his person. Talma was often much affected in speaking of the man, who had loaded him with favours, and upon one or two occasions he was moved to tears. He could not help admitting the evils which Buonaparte had inflicted, and that he was a foe to liberty; but at the same time he said, that those who knew him best indulged in the hope that age might have calmed his ambition, and given his mind a more pacific cast—an opinion which, from politeness I did not care to controvert. Talma always found a ready access to Buonaparte, even in the days of his loftiest prosperity. The emperor used to chat with him, with all the familiarity of an old acquaintance, he inquired minutely into all the concerns of the theatre, and dwelt upon the subject with a real and unimpaired delight. Corneille was Buonaparte's favorite dramatist; and of all his works, he chiefly admired Cinna. It occurred [illegible] ne indeed, when I saw that [illegible] sentiments it con[illegible] able to [illegible] [illegible]ome tragedy, that the [illegible] ...ed must have been greatly agrieved [illegible] ...n, as the revival of a republic, and the it consequently [illegible] ...ful one. Among hand should seize the reins in turbulent and distracted times, are strongly inculcated.—Talma played Augustus for the first time whilst I was in Paris, and to Lafond, who had till then performed the former part, Cinna was committed. Their was a rivalry between the two actors, which gave additional interest to the performance. Talma soon left competition at an immense distance, and carried all the applause of the house, which was crowded to excess. The deepest emotion was produced among the spectators, by the many references to the scenes of Roman conception, which afforded a painful association with what they had themselves so recently beheld.—The terrific descriptions of the poet, given with all the power of the most masterly declamation, approaches at moments, to the vividness of reality. Scarcely a sentiment was uttered which did not find an echo in every bosom around me, and I could not refrain from praying, that in the theatres of my own country I should never be a witness to emotions derived from any kindred cause. Talma appeared to me, in his personation of Agustus, to aim at presenting some shadows of Buonaparte. Indeed, there was a vehemence and abruptness in his acting, so little conformable with my own ideas of the character, that I was satisfied that he intended to pourtray the great product of the revolution. Talma afterwards mentioned that Cinna was the play which Buonaparte chiefly liked; and that one day, after witnessing its representation, he mentioned, that the depth and justice of the political reflections which every where occur in the writings of Corneille, had so much impressed him with admiration for the genious of the poet, that if he had been living in his time, he would have made him his prime minister.

LORD BLARNEY

(Some valuable information relative to the affairs of Ireland.)

FROM THE NEW MONTHLY MAGAZINE.

The two former volumes of this lively and intelligent observer of men and manners, were duly noticed and properly praised by us, though it happened that some of our senior critics were not so well disposed to be pleased as we were with his facetious anecdotes and humourous descriptions. The present volume we think must be more to the taste of those grave censors of the press, for the noble writer has here given a sober and statistical account of the state of Ireland, which will be found highly interesting to politicians. His lordship is too shrewdly acquainted with human nature to deny the degraded condition of the Irish peasantry, but while he paints it in strong colours, and laments it with all the feeling of a patriot, he forms no visionary ideas of amending the evil by schemes of reform, which are merely tools for ambitious minds to gain possession of power, or of crafty knavats to procure riches. He calls loudly upon the gentry of Ireland to return to their duty, and instead of wandering from their native country, to employ their time, their influence, and their property, in bettering the condition of the indigent classes, educating the poor children, promoting industry, allaying faction, and above all, in counteracting a tyrannical priesthood. Lord Blayney is a steady friend to toleration, and he manifests great liberality in his sentiments; but he possesses too much discernment to perceive that the privilege of legislating contended for by the Roman Catholics and their blind or furious advocates would inevitably be the establishment of their church in Ireland. He here gives acknowledged that if this measure be carried in an evil hour, the consequences would be the total destruction of the Protestant interests, for no member will be returned to parliament but Romanists in faith or connexion. Mischief enough has already been done in the way of concession, and one which is here mentioned as a coming more immediately within his lordship's observation speaks so emphatically that we shall be forgiven for extracting the passage in this place. The evil alluded to is the order given by the British government for all soldiers to choose their respective places of worship, in Ireland, and to attend them in full dress on Sundays. "In my time," says Lord Blayney, "the greater part preferred going to a Roman Catholic Chapel; because there, after divine service, they would meet the dissolute and depraved, in order to drink whiskey, with a chance of purchasing some pernicious doctrines which they may not unhardly fail to receive, from the lowest, the most vile, and the most degraded of his Majesty's subjects. The soldiers never entertained a thought otherwise than that they were to attend divine service according to the rules of the established religion. The author commanded a regiment for many years, every non-commissioned officer and soldier went regularly to church; they never hesitated, nor was it a question that entered into their ideas, until informed of it by the sagacity of a general officer.—The effect has been, that the very best men in the regiment have been corrupted; order, morality, discipline, and regularity, for which they had been previously conspicuous, were set at defiance; and through the influence of the priests, and the [illegible] received from their flocks, the best [illegible] place men [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

A Sunday School Union has been formed in Montreal, Kingston, York, and Niagara, and a correspondence has been opened between each of these Societies and the Society in London. Books to the amount of £200 have been ordered this year from that society. And all country schools, which now are or may be formed in Canada, may be supplied through this channel with a very excellent assortment of Sunday School Books at the most reasonable price.—This is a very great accommodation to the small schools in this country. And it is hoped, that the secretary of each Sunday School, will write as soon as practicable to the secretary of the Union Society through which they may wish to obtain their books, inclosing the sum which may be raised, and what kind of books are needed.—And it is requested that the number of scholars in each school may be stated and such interesting facts, as may be thought worthy of a place in the annual report of the Sunday School Union Society of Canada.

That the most vigorous efforts may be made, for the accomplishment of this laudable design, is the fervent prayer of the Public's

VERSES ON THE DEATH OF LORD BYRON.

Thyself had'st said, that in the cloudy clime
Which gave thee birth, thou willing wouldst not die;
The wish thou breath'd, in thy prophetic rhyme,
Has granted been by answering destiny.

Greece saw thee die—Greece fully made thine own—
By all the ties thy genius could impose;
Greece claim'd thee living as her fav'rite son,
And dead, laments thee with a nation's woes.

Oh! well Childe Harold has his fame restored—
And well his wayward pilgrimage has closed;
In arms for liberty, by Greece adored,
He died, to Moslem tyranny opposed.

Oh, had his sword but drunk the oppressor's blood;
His dying voice but rais'd the victor's cry:
The pilgrim's glorious death would then have stood
A crowning worthy of his poetry.

LINES ON THE DEATH OF LORD BYRON, IN GREECE.

He sleeps in the land of his earliest dream,
In the scene of his brightest story:
The language that kindled his patriot flame
Has chaunted the dirge of his glory!—

And the sons of the heroes of ancient days,
O'er the grave of their brother are mourning;
For he came to their succour, he came for their praise,
Like the might of their fathers returning.

Oh, his was a spirit, great, gloomy, and dread,
Where Hector and Homer were blended,
For the cloud of the grave round his brightness was spread,
When the flash of his thunder descended.

He haunted the patriot's earliest tomb,
And sung like an orphan his sadness;
For vainly he look'd o'er the valties of gloom,
For the heirs of that freedom and gladness!

He has hallow'd their cause, it has hallowed his name,
Their fame is enshalmed with his glory;
E'en the Turk, while he bleeds on his pages with shame,
Immortally lives in their story.

But Britain must mourn, with a deeper distress,
And silent and lonely her weeping:
For who can reply with a soothing address,
Like the song of the bard that is sleeping?

Oh, then, let the light of his pages be sought,
Let her breathe in his language his sorrow;
She cannot be strung with so engrushing thought,
But there she its language may borrow.

The course of his spirit was awfully high,
Among the dread regions of thunder;
It flow'd through the deep, and it flamed through the sky,—
It burst every trammel asunder!

He looked on the world—it was splendour or gloom,
All midnight or noon 'in his mirror:—
He searched heaven and earth, and he rent every tomb,
For the stores of rapture and terror.

Yet think not the soft harp of passion unstrung,
In sympathy, sadness or pleasure;
Like the syren he wept—like the syren he sung,
With a magical sweetness of measure.

The gloom and the tempest would pass from the sphere,
And the landscape bloom lovely and tender;
His genius would beam in the dew of a tear,
Or rise from the ocean in splendour.

But he rests in the chilly embraces of death,
And his soul to its home is taken;
The angel has hushed the wild strains of his breath,
And who shall its slumbers awaken?

The following is a translation from an ancient Spanish Poem, which, says the Edinburgh Review, is surpassed by nothing which we are acquainted with, in the Spanish language, except the odes of Luis de Leon.

O! let the soul its slumber break,
Arouse its senses and awake,
To see how soon
Life, with its glories, glides away,
And the stern footstep of decay
Comes stealing on.

How pleasure, like the passing wind,
Blows by, and leaves us nought behind,
But grief at last;
How still our present happiness
Seems, to the wayward fancy, less
Than what it past.

And while we eye the rolling tide,
Down which our flying minutes glide
A way so fast;
Let us the present hour employ,
And deem each future dream of joy
Already past.

Let no vain hope deceive the mind—
No happier let us hope to find
To-morrow than to-day,
Our golden dreams of yore were bright,
Like them the present shall delight—
Like them decay.

Our lives like hasting streams must be,
That into one engulphing sea
Are doomed to fall;
The sea of death, whose waves rolls on,
O'er king and kingdom, crown and throne,
And swallow all.

Alike the vizer's lordly tide,
Alike the humble rivlets glide
To that sad wave;
Death levels poverty and pride,
And rich and poor sleep side by side
Within the grave.

* * * * * * * * *

Our birth is but a starting place,
Life is the running of the race,
And death the goal;
There all our steps at last are brought,
That path alone, of all unsought,
Is found of all.

Say, then, how poor and little worth,
Are all those glittering toys of earth,
That tempt us here;
Dreams of a sleep that death must break,
Alas! before it bids us wake,
Ye disappear.

Long ere the damps of death can blight,
The cheek's pure glow of red and white
Hath passed away;
Youth smiled and all was heavenly fair;
Age came, and laid his finger there,
And where are they?

Where are the strength that mocked decay,
The step that rose so light and gay,
The heart's blithe tone?—
The strength is gone, the step is slow,
And joy grows weariness and wo
When age comes on.

ELECTIONEERING INTELLIGENCE.—The contest between Mr. Cumming and Mr. Hagerman, for the honour of representing this Town in Parliament, was decided yesterday. The poll at its close stood as follows:

exhibiting a majority of Ten in favour of the former gentleman. The evening speeches of both Candidates were reciprocal in expressions of amicable feeling and respect—and a correspondent line of conduct was maintained by both gentlemen throughout the contest—not a word at variance with their sentiments having passed between them.

At the close of the poll, Mr. Hagerman, in a most conciliatory speech, which amply justified his reputation for eloquence, with an air of great sincerity, complimented the Town of Kingston on the character of the Member elect, who after expressing his gratitude to his friends for their effectual support, in his turn declared, that had he not been himself a Candidate, his opponent was the person of all whom he knew the best entitled to his conscientious vote.

The Election of two Members to represent the County of Frontenac commenced at Waterloo on Tuesday the 13th instant, pursuant to notice, and on Wednesday Messrs. Fownson and Atkinson were declared duly elected. The number of votes were for DISTRESSING OCCURRENCE.

On the evening of the 25th ult. Mr. Joseph Haskins and his nephew Joseph Hutton, manned his Canoe and dropped down the river (Rideau) from the Haskin farm, in quest of game. Another canoe about three miles below, set off to cruise up the river on the same evening; this last was managed by William & Smith, and his brother George Smith. William was in the bow with the fire arms and a torch, and George in the stern. In passing up on the Montague shore, they observed by the noise in the water that some animal was in the edge of the stream near the place where they were; but when William had lighted the torch, it immediately fled. After this they continued for a while to proceed up the river, but becoming weary, they concluded to return by the way they came, and at, or near the place where they rested the animal on their way up, they observed something in the water, and supposing it unquestionably the animal which they had just before driven out of the river, were eager to secure it; George who was still in the stern, in a low voice desired his brother to fire without lighting up, on which William (who notwithstanding the darkness of the night, discovered something above the surface of the water) immediately discharged his piece, and dreadful to relate! the ball after perforating the upper edge of the canoe, passed through the body of Hutton, from the left to the right hip; he sallied backward from his sitting position, and expired without uttering a word. Haskins was so astonished and blinded by the discharge of the gun, that it was some time before he could recollect himself; but as soon as he was sufficiently recovered he made himself known. But who can describe the emotions of the parties, on discovering the extent of mischief which had been done! They, however, united their efforts to convey him to the house of his mother, about a mile distant, whose feelings may be more easily imagined than described. An inquest was called on the body, and a verdict of "accidental death," was unanimously returned.—Brockville Recorder.

The following particulars of the unfortunate affair, to which it relates is from the pen of Doct. T. Raymond, who was a passenger on board.

On Thursday the 1st instant, as the new and elegant Schooner, Union, Capt. J. Meshier, Owner and Master, was sailing up the St. Lawrence, under a light though unsteady side breeze having on board the Captain and crew, 6 in number, 6 carpenters, and 9 passengers; among whom was a family consisting of the husband, the wife and five children, and 16 tons of merchandize besides about 9 tons of ballast. When the vessel was about two miles above Brockville, in a rapid Current, a sudden flaw, or gust of wind struck her sails, and notwithstanding the Captain was at the helm, and all hands properly stationed to ease off in the event of danger and but one topsail up, yet so sudden and violent was the gust, that no efforts could save her from upsetting for in four or five seconds she was on her beam ends, and the ballast and cargo having shifted prevented her from righting.

The five children were in the hold, and their parents were on deck, the woman fell over board, and with much difficulty was saved. two children, one seven years old, and the other an infant, were killed by the falling of some part of the cargo upon them; and as the vessel did not fill for twelve or fifteen minutes, two of the children were saved, but all exertions failed to save one boy about 12 years old, who was in the hold when it filled, at that time, when his hopes were all gone, it was truly horrible to hear his shrieks within, answered by responding cries of parents, and children without.—But discription can tell no tales of keen distress.

All on board were saved except the three children.—This happened about half past eleven o'clock A. M near an island, to which the vessel was landed. It is but justice here to observe highly to the credit of the people of Brockville and its vicinity that sufficient assistance soon arrived, taking an active and interesting part on the occasion, so that by 5 o'clock P. M. the vessel was righted though nearly all under water.—Ib.

Canadian.—Three men belonging to a raft living near the Falls of Montmorenci who were rescuing the anchors on Tuesday night last were thrown into the water. Two of them were saved by the Steam-Boat Experiment, but the other, a Canadian from Laprairie, was drowned.

A well dressed man, in the act of passing from Hunt's Wharf to the steam Boat Quebec, last Saturday morning, fell from the plank and was drowned, every exertion were used to save him, but without effect. The body has not been found.

The same evening John Tillery, Esq. of the Erie Herald, lying at the same wharf, when proceeding to the vessel found through that part of the platform which is in an unfinished state and was drowned—he was found about half an hour after under the wharf and was buried in a manner we understand he belonged to Greenock, and has left a wife and four children.—Quebec Gazette.

NOTICE is hereby given, to Jabez Johnson, or his Representative, to make good any claim he may have to Lot Number Two, in the Seventh Concession of the Township of Louth, in the District of Niagara within six months from this date, in default of which, the Lot will be otherwise disposed of.

By order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

JOHN SMALL.
Clk. Ex'v. Council. 17—6m.

Executive Council Chamber, York, 31st January, 1824.

PRESENT,

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, in Council,

HIS Majesty's Government having recently extended their assistance to the class of Emigrants, which it was intended to relieve by gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres of Land, in conveying them to their respective locations:

IT IS ORDERED, that from the first day of May next, no gratuitous Grants be made of any quantity of Land to other than privileged persons.—And that as the Fee on Two Hundred Acres was raised, in order to defray the gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres the consideration failing, the future Fee on Two Hundred Acres is reduced to Eight Pounds Four Shilling and One Penny Sterling; the existing Fee before 1819, and the Fee on all other Grants, in Townships Surveyed since that time, to be the same as established by the Order in Council, of 5th January, 1819.

N. B. Possessors of gratuitous Grants for Fifty Acres, may, by paying the Fee on One Hundred Acres, receive a Grant of the adjoining Fifty Acres if vacant.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Ex'v. Council.

Executive Council Chamber, at York, 26th Jan. 1824.

PRESENT;

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
In Council.

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor submitted to the consideration of the Board, the Sheriffs' Reports of their respective Gaols, together with other Documents relating to a Winter Circuit, by which it appeared that the House of Assembly had addressed His Excellency to that effect, for this Session only; and obviously for the Delivery of the Gaols in the several Districts.

The limitation of such a measure to one season seeming to militate with the Provision of the Law, that when the Communication from the Seat of Government is admitted, and the circumstances of the Province required, there should be a regular Second Circuit, the Board would prefer to recommend that Special Commissions to deliver particular Gaols should issue where requisite; but, as the respective Reports from the Sheriffs' do not, in the opinion of the Board, require any unusual interposition, His Excellency, with advice of the Council, postpones a Second Circuit until the circumstances of the Province more decidedly require it.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Executive Council.

Executive Council Office, York, February 7th 1821.

WHEREAS it has been represented, that many persons who have received Locations of Land, have, from Sickness, and other legitimate causes, been unable to fulfil the Settlement Duty in the time required by the Location Ticket, and have neglected to apply to His Excellency in Council for an extension of the period, for performance of such duty.

BE it Known that the period for completing the Settlement Duty, is hereby extended to Two Years from the date of Locations until further notice shall be given.

JOHN SMALL, Clk Ex. Coun.

WHEREAS by the Tenor of the Location Tickets a Certificate is required to be lodged of the Settlement Duty being done within two Years, or that the said Location should be forfeited, and in case of Locations not gratuitous, that one third of the Patent Fee be lodged with such Certificate; AND WHEREAS it is represented, that in many instances, Certificates of performance of the Settlement Duty, have been withheld from the inability of the settler to deposit such proportion of the Patent Fee, it is deemed expedient to relieve the settler from forfeiture of his location, when he may actually have performed his settlement duty—Notice is hereby given that in all cases where Settlement Duty has been performed within the limited period, the settler shall, on filing Certificate thereof within six Months of this date, be exempted from forfeiture notwithstanding the non-payment therewith of such portion of the Patent Fee, provided the Patent is sued out within One Year from the filing of such Certificate.

And further; His Excellency, in the hope of avoiding the necessity of rescinding any of the Militia grants, is pleased to direct this Public Notification; that all Lands granted to Militia Men, upon which the Settlement Duties shall not have been performed within the limited period, will in pursuance of general instructions given to the Surveyor General in all similar cases, be declared vacant, and will be granted within Six Months after the expiration of that period, to the first applicant, unless the Original Nominee, shall before such subsequent application, have lodged a Certificate of his having performed the Settling Duties.

JOHN SMALL Clk. Ex. Coun.

Executive Council Office, York, 7th Nov. 1821.

WHEREAS it has become expedient to establish a line of communication through certain remote Townships, for encouragement thereof, Grants will be made to actual Settlers in the Townships hereinafter mmed on the condition of Settling within two years from the date of the Location, at the reduced Scale of 5th January, 1819, viz.

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor is pleased to direct that no Location requiring Settlement Duty shall be Confirmed by Patent, without a Certificate from the Land Board of the District in which such Location may be situate, that the Settlement Duty required by the Order in council has bona fide been performed within the time specified by the Location Ticket.

COMMUNICATION.

FOR THE U. C. GAZETTE.

Niagara Falls, June 30th, 1824.

To the Editor of the Upper Canada Gazette.

SIR,

From what is stated in Numbers Three and Four of a Paper lately Published at Queenston styled the "Colonial Advocate" it might be inferred that the Commissioners appointed to superintend the Erection of the Monument to the Memory of the late Major General Sir Isaac Brock, had been remiss in their duty. As that they had employed William Lyon Mackenzie to superintend in their stead—but such is not the case (still is that) —

Shortly after the death of one of the Commissioners (Colonel Nichol,) I consulted with the remaining Commissioner, Sir. Thomas Dickson, and with other gentlemen of the District, as to the propriety of having a procession of ceremony at laying the foundation—when it was agreed; from the recent death of Col. Nichol, and from the short time there was to invite over from York, the gentlemen from thence, to form the necessary Masonic procession; that the ceremony should be deferred until the Monument was finished and when the remains of the late Major General would be deposited in the Vault of the Monument.

The Contractors informed Mr. Hall, Engineer, superintending the Erection of the Monument and myself, that they would be ready to commence the Foundation in the first week in June; they were directed to proceed when ready, as there would be no ceremony at the laying of it On the first day of June I had appointed to be at Hunting on Beach as a Canal Commissioner, as you will see by Public Notice in your Gazette of May last, where I accordingly went, accompanied by Mr. Hall the Engineer.—On that day the coast being clear, (the only remaining Commissioner Mr Thomas Dickson from indisposition not being able to leave his room) Mr. Lyon Mackenzie, took upon himself unknown to the Commissioners, to perform his impertinent and offacious ceremonies at the laying the foundation of the monument.

For the information of the public I have to state, that William Lyon Mackenzie's wide mouthed bottle, and his wider mouthed assertion paper are now removed from under the monument, and on Sir, your very obedient servant,

(Signed)

THOMAS CLARK,

Commissioner for Erecting a Monument to the memory of the late Maj. General Sir Isaac Brock.

Editorial Commentary.

THE DURHAM ELECTION, which has excited so much interest both in the Home and Newcastle Districts, is not yet at an end—although the Poll was closed at 7 o'clock on Saturday evening last—after the warmest contest ever known in that part of the country.—At the close of the Poll, the numbers stood as follows:—

FOTHERGILL,	148
BOULTON,	148
WILMOT,	19
ORTON,	0

MR. WILMOT declined the contest on the morning of the 3d, and Orton at the close of the first, day.—The following is the state of the six days Poll will shew with what steady perseverance the independent interest of the Older Townships grappled by brought up their Candidate to a tie with the Candidate of the opposite interest.

CANDIDATES.	1st day	2nd day	3d day	4th day	5th day	6th day	TOTAL
FOTHERGILL, . .	20	36	28	22	18	24	148
BOULTON, . . .	53	54	13	4	3	16	148
WILMOT, . . .	10	9	—	—	—	—	19

AFTER the Poll was closed at 7 o'clock precisely, as was previously agreed upon—and the numbers were cast up and found to be equal.

The Returning Officer, at the suggestion of one of Mr. Boulton's numerous legal advisers, seemed disposed to strike off four from Mr. P's list in order to give Mr. B. a nominal superiority —Against this unjust measure, Mr. F. entered his formal protest, and demanded a general and not a partial, scrutiny—on both sides.—That scrutiny is fixed for Monday next, the 2d of August.

BOTH the Returning officer, and his Adviser on this occasion, ought to know, that when a voter is numerically admitted to the Poll—the words objected or rejected being placed opposite to a name do not reject him from being bold up—(see Heywood on Contested Elections). It is only upon invalidating the title or right of vote, upon a general scrutiny that he can be rendered inadmissible.—If the voter is willing to swear himself duly qualified the Sheriff is bound to receive his vote, &c. &c. &c. See Fothergill's Case, v. 2 p. 18.

As there is a tie, and there is not time Between the 2d and 9th of August (the return day) for a general scrutiny —The only safe way, in our opinion to pursue is to make a double return—when a new Election must be the necessary consequence. We are assured that Mr. FOTHERGILL, so far from having any dread of a general scrutiny, is confident of possessing at this very moment, a large majority of sound, INDEPENDENT YEAS!

So remarkable are many of the circumstances attending this Election—and so important are they to the general and local interests of the country at large—that it is determined to publish the Cheque Poll-Book, with remarks and observations, and send a copy to every Freeholder in the County.

SELECTIONS FROM BRITISH AND FOREIGN JOURNALS.

BUONAPARTE.

Two volumes of a new History of Buonaparte and his Family have just appeared at Paris. Among other anecdotes which are new to us, we find the following early instance of the sordid disposition of the mother of the Ex-Emperor, which, notwithstanding his power and vindictive character, drew down upon her the ridicule and contempt of the Parisians. The letter upon which this lady lived with M. de Marbeuf, the Commander, in Chief of the French forces in Corsica, and the reputed father of Napoleon, are well known. Marbeuf was rich, generous and kept a good house. His steward one day informed him that he had procured a very fine fish for his dinner; the master's curiosity was excited; he desired to see it; and ordered it to be sent up as a rarity in his name to his mistress. Madame Buonaparte was too good an economist to sit down to dinner with her husband upon such a dish, and sent it to the public market. The fish found its way back to the kitchen of the Count, who was determined to see the present which he had made to his mistress served up at last upon his own table. Several Frenchmen who were in Corsica at the time were eye witnesses of this curious adventure. This was the same woman who dazzled with the isle of Madeira at the court of the self-styled Emperor, required her ladies to work like hired women, and who, when a young female who held the appointment of reader to her, gave half her salary to her aged father, reduced it from 100 louis to 50, saying that as the latter sum was enough for her, it was useless to give her more. Bright justly he said of her, as Henry IV. observed of the incorrigible leaguers: "The barrel will always smell of the herrings!"

ELOPEMENT EXTRAORDINARY.

MISERIES OF NOT KNOWING THE SHORTEST CUT FROM DUBLIN TO PARIS.

(From the Dublin Star.)

A REAL OCCURRENCE.—An affair recently occurred in the vicinity of Dublin, which occasioned no small degree of bustle in the family of a worthey old sportsman, whom (not to publish names) we will call Mr. Steeplechase. Every body knows Miss Biddy Steeplechase squints a little, and has a bit of a bump on her back, though not much more than the pretty sex all voluntarily assumed, when they first adopted the French fashion of sticking out their backs, and wearing coal scuttle bonnets. But what did this signify to Paddy O'Dandy, the dapper little gentleman, who had discovered that Miss Paddy would have 10,000l. when she came of age, independent of her papa.

Paddy put on all his charms; he mounted a new gilt watch chain with seals; brushed up his castor, lowered, grained, ogled, and strutted. In short he so wriggled himself (as far as his stays would permit him to wriggle,) into Miss Biddy's good graces, that she really fancied herself in love. Paddy made his approaches skilfully, and at length proposed an elopement to Gretna.—Miss did not think the Blacksmith genteel, so Paddy was obliged to consent to run for Paris. The only question now was, to raise the wind. Paddy scraped, and begged, and borrowed, and at last, by letting his old father into his scheme, contrived to squeeze out of his savings the needful for the excursion. When all was ready, Miss Biddy, under pretence of sickness, retired early one afternoon to her room; bolted the door, and then, with all the delightful and romantic joys of an elopement, bolted through the window into the arms of her expectant swain, who conducted her with protestations of eternal love to a covered car, intending to carry her to Kingstown, and thence to Liverpool. Off they went; and Paddy, elated by the dexterity of his scheme, prepared a letter for old Steeplechase, which he threw in Biddy's window.

The steamer soon wafted them to Liverpool, and thence they posted off as fast as horses could carry them to their destination.

The next morning early old Steeplechase knocked at his daughter's door, and receiving no answer and becoming alarmed, he applied his shoulders, and in a trice forced an entrance. But the bird had flown! Paddy's letter lay on the floor before him. He took it up and read as follows:

'Dearest Dad elect.—Don't be in a pet at being diddled. We have got, at least, fourteen or fifteen hours start of you; so you need not waste your time and money in pursuit. I am going to be married at Paris, and to do the thing genteelly, so that the family will have no cause to be ashamed of it. As what is done can't be undone, I beg you will send me, for my Biddy's sake, a letter of credit on Paris, as I have only just cash for the journey.—I am, your dutiful ree-la tive elect,

P. O'DANDY.

"Stole away!" roared out old Steeplechase, with a tremendous oath. "Throw out! jockeyed by that d——d puppy! But stop; let us have a look at the country;" said he, as he snatched up a map. After a moment's consideration, he found tally ho! proclaimed his rising hopes, that he should yet overtake the fugitives. "Lynch," said he, "harness the black mare with all speed. Ah, the puppy! he won't jockey an old sportsman so easy." In such exclamations he vented his feelings till the mare was brought to the door, and he then drove to Kingstown, which he reached just in time to step on board the Bristol steamer. On his arrival at Bristol he posted without stopping to Southampton, where he found the steamer which runs from that place to Havre de Grace. An offer of 50l. induced the Captain to put to sea with all possible expedition, and in the course of a few hours he landed at Havre. Hence his journey to Paris was quickly made. He then took up his station at Meurice's, and, having refreshed himself, quietly awaited the arrival of the runaways.

In due time up drove, with furious haste, a rumble-tumble French carriage, containing the enamoured pair. Paddy handed out his prize, full of triumph and exultation, inhaling with delight the tickling sounds of Milor Anglaise from the postilions. But suddenly appeared the horrible vision of old Steeplechase. Miss Biddy went admirable through the regular forms of a loud scream, adroitly fainting into the arms of a hand some French Garcon, who stood near her. As for Paddy, he was almost petrified with horror. He seemed as though he would gladly have disappeared. Trembling and pale, he glanced fearfully on the hugstunting whip which portentously swung to and fro in the fist of old Steeplechase, who stood quietly with his arms a-kimbo in front of poor Paddy, enjoying his terror and confusion. At length, to his inexpressible relief, old Steeplechase, in a tone of mock gravity, thus addressed him—'Dearest, not elect, son-in-law, don't be in a pet at being diddled. When you want to get the start of an old fox-hunter, take care that you know the country over which the sport lies. Now find the shortest way back to Dublin—troop!"

Paddy needed no more. He turned upon his heel and scarcely felt the heavy kick of old Steeplechase's boot, which, applied to his rear, lifted him nearly three feet from the ground. The old gentleman leisurely returned with his daughter; and report says that Paddy O'Dandy was seen at Kingstown, sneaking out as a steerage passenger from the Bristol steam packet, shorn of all his beams, having pledged, at Southamton, all he could pledge to pay the expense of his passage home.

London, May 26.

FATAL AERONAUTIC EXCURSION.

This day the neighbourhood of Bedington and Carshalton, presented a remarkably agitated appearance in consequence of the report having spread that Sadler, who is the owner of the estates in that neighborhood. Mr. Harris, seeing the young lady a little alarmed at the descent, poured out a glass of brandy, and requested her to drink it, and to hold fast to the hoop, and by the [illegible] he [illegible] to come [illegible] earth, the shock would be less severe. At this time the valve was open, and during the time he was directing his attention to his companion, the greater part of the gas evaporated

It may be as well to give a description of the structure of this balloon, as part of the machinery (the valves), to the malformation of which the melancholy occurrence is positively attributed. The size of the valve of the descending balloon was Sinch 5 inches in diameter, and when opened to its extremity, would have a [illegible] the [illegible] to escape in about a minute and a half. Within the large valve was a smaller one, with two flaps about one foot square. The object of this invention was to give the aeronaut the power of discharging the gas either in large or small quantities, as occasion may require. There was a cord from each valve, and it is believed that during the voyage these cords became entangled, and when he pulled the cord affixed to the inner or small valve, the large valve was forced open to its utmost width, and the greater part of the gas escaped. Mr. Harris did not see the danger of depriving the machine of its buoyance so suddenly till the mischief was done, and he exclaimed (as far as the young lady recollects, who was nearly insensible at the time,) "Good God, protect me!" which were his last words.

The valve of Messrs. Sadler's, Graham's and Green's balloons are constructed from 21 to 28 inches in diameter only, which open by the pull of a cord, the end of which is fixed so as to receive hinge; and it is evident that the deceased was not aware of the rapidity with which gas would escape through an aperture of between three and four feet in diameter, or he would have seen no necessity for so large a valve.

Before the balloon reached within an hundred yards of the earth, its appearance had changed, owing to the escape of gas, from a globular to a cylindrical form; and the descent was astonishingly rapid. The persons who witnessed it were struck with horror at the consequences that must inevitably ensue, from the expected short green sward of the Plough. The gamekeeper of Mrs. Hall expected the poor creature to be dashed to pieces against a tree in the Park, with a gun in his hand, when the balloon descended within a short distance of him. His attention was attracted by the balloon, when it was within about one hundred yards of the earth, and a shout of horror burst from the lips of the gamekeeper, beyond doubt, occasioned by the rustling of the silk in the air.

When he first saw the balloon, the silk had collapsed, and very little gas remained inside.—The car, which beat against a tree, and broke off several branches, struck the ground with considerable violence, and the balloon with the hoop dropped perpendicularly, fell upon the car and the voyagers, and covered them, so that when the gamekeeper went up to it, he had no idea that a human being was underneath it, till he heard a deep moaning.—He instantly lifted the veil which enveloped the unfortunate pair and found the female lying across the back of Mr. Harris, who was doubled up. His ribs were bent in, his breast-bone shockingly fractured, and his was quite extinct. A quantity of blood flowed from an injury on his neck, but this was not sufficient to cause his death. He was dispatched with the boughs of an oak tree, no doubt broke the fall, and saved the adventurous lady from the fate of her companion. She however, was much injured internally, by the violent concussion she experienced; and after being on the body of Mr. Harris may be nearly attributed the comparatively slight injury she sustained. We are happy to state, that none of her limbs have been either broken or dislocated, but that sanguine hopes are entertained of her recovery. Neither of them were thrown out of the car, but were so entangled in the cords of it, that they were obliged to be laid upon the grass. The cushions were taken out of the car, and placed under the lady's head, and the most humane attentions were paid to her. In a short time she was restored to sensibility, and exclaimed, 'Good God, where am I?' Mr. Hodge, the surgeon of Carshalton, arrived on the ground in 20 minutes after the descent, and had the young lady and the corpse of the deceased carried to the Plough Tavern, at Bedington; he bled the lady as soon as she arrived there, and in the course of an hour she was capable of answering questions put to her by the coroner. It is first supposed by the surgeon that the spine of her back was seriously injured, but we are happy to say that such fear proved groundless. The deceased had a naval dress made for the purpose of wearing during his ascent, which was ornamented very richly with gold lace. His hat was worn in the usual manner, and his jacket lay on one of the seats. It is surprising that he did not throw out of the car all the ballast it contained, as a check to his descent.—He had in it 56 pounds of sand and two bottles of wine. Not less than 40 pounds of sand was found at the bottom of the car, the bags which contained it being burst by the fall. Two carrier pigeons, which the deceased had taken with him with an intention to despatch them to London to announce to his anxious friends his safe descent, were found in the place to which they were deposited under the seat, but they had suffered [illegible] they were deposited under the seat, but they had suffered they were deposited under the seat, but they had suffered they were deposited under the seat, but they had suffered plained to the person who cut him down, that she had hanged her brother "for to send him to heaven," and that she would cut her own throat to go along with him. She attempted to commit suicide, but was prevented. The Jury found her "not guilty, believing her to have been insane when she committed the crime. During the trial, she fainted away and was carried out in strong convulsions. This poor girl had been in the habit of attending the "Revival" meetings of the Methodists. According to one of the witnesses, "a Revival is an out pouring of the spirit," and causes the congregation to cry aloud to the Lord for mercy. The Revival continued at Redruth for a month or six weeks. The Revivals are held in the stated places of worship of particular congregations, and sometimes continue open for three nights and days in succession. Those who are 'convinced of sin," as it is called, fall on their knees, and with uplifted hands, and their bodies working to and fro, call as loud as they are able to the Lord for help. Their ejaculations are such as, "Oh! Christ pardon me my sins!—O Lord! give me grace!"—and a variety of other similar expressions, adopted as the zeal of the moment may suggest. The Revival is open by night as well as by day. There is no appointment as to the time when the Revival is to be held; a congregation may be met, and at prayers, when perhaps some member will fall on his knees and call aloud to heaven for mercy. When this happens; the other Members are generally moved by the same spirit, and the Revival commences. This continues till the preacher pronounces a benediction, and he tells his flock 'the moment of conversion' is come, and they may expect a ray of hope, of comfort, and joy.' The moment of the coming of the 'ray of hope' is uncertain, and the congregation continue their extravagant devotions, till they are 'convinced' or 'converted.'" One night, her mother went to fetch her home; and when Emma caught a sight of her, "immediately she lifted up both her arms, as if she was going to fly to the top of the room, and called on her dear mother and father to pray to the Lord to help them, for that they could not see the danger they were in. At this meeting she lost her cloak, bonnet, handkerchief, and pattens. She had been moving from one part of the meeting to the other; and, in her unbounded zeal, had dropped her cloths, and they were trodden under feet. On another occasion, she came home, praying in "horrible manner for the conversion of her father and mother."

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

TWO DAYS LATER FROM ENGLAND.

An arrival at Boston has brought London papers to the 1st of June inclusive, for extracts from which we are indebted to our correspondents of the Boston Daily Advertiser, Courier, and Centinel.

The prorogation of Parliament was expected to take place about the 20th of June.

On the 31st of May, Mr. Canning laid upon the table of the House of Commons, copies of two commercial treaties, with the governments of Prussia and Sweden.

Two Catholic petitions were presented to the House of Lords. They contained some insinuations that the Duke of York was the patron of the Orangemen. On account of some informality they were withdrawn. Mr Brougham presented a counter petition which was read. In the course of his remarks upon the petition, Mr B entered his favorite objection, "that there is nothing so sacred in his eyes, as the rights of subjects to say what they like of kings, princes, and ministers."

Another petition was also presented, praying for the suppression of the Catholic Association.

Mr. Goulburn gave notice that he should move the next day for the renewal of the insurrection act.

The London Courier of June 1. says. "The question of the recognition of South American Independence continues most anxiously to occupy public attention, particularly in the city. We can venture to state, that previously to the close of the present session of Parliament, a communication will be made on this question to the house of Commons."

It is stated in the same paper that a rumor was current, derived from Mexican advices, that the British commissioners were on their return from Mexico. The rumour is declared to be unfounded.

A paragraph from Berlin, May 22, affirms, that information has been received there, that Lord Byron completed the manuscript of Don Juan before he left Cephalonia, and sent it to England. He had written to Gother that he would pay him a visit at Weimar on his return from Greece.

Their Majesties the Emperor and Empress of Austria arrived on the 15th of May at Prague, where they were received with the greatest enthusiasm by the inhabitants.

A paragraph from Hague, May 27, says, "In the debates on the treaty of London, Messrs de Celles, Beerenstein, and Van Alphen, spoke at some length on the freedom of commerce, and expressed a hope that the example given in this respect by the Netherlands, may be followed by other powers. M. Brelaert, spoke of the importance of the Cape of Good Hope, and concluded with a wish that circumstances might again restore it to the Netherlands."

Paris dates are to May 30.—The Prince de Polignac Ambassador to London had not arrived but was expected every moment. His expected arrival gives rise to many political conjectures.—Some say that he is to enter the Ministry, others affirm that he is to be present at the approaching Congress, when the Sovereigns of the Holy Alliance are to deliberate in person respecting the affairs of South America and Greece.

Galignani's Messenger of May 29, says, the Money market has been very dull, notwithstanding the approach of settling day. The Price of Stocks has experienced a decline, which is attributed to the fall in the English Funds, and the uncertainty of the decision of the Chamber of Peers relative to the reimbursement of the Five per Cents.

LONDON, JUNE 1ST.

Letters have this morning been received from Trieste, dated on the 14th May, which advise the receipt of intelligence from Missolonghi dated on the 3d May. It must afford sincere satisfaction to those who are friendly to the restoration of Grecian civilization, to learn, that General Colocotroni, his sons, and his partizans, have not only submitted themselves to the orders of the Senate, but that their influence and exertions have been again restored to the services of their country: for the Senate, as soon as it was convinced of the sincerity of General Colocotroni's submission, restored to him its confidence, and directed him to resume the investment of Patras, which will now therefore secure the speedy surrender of that important fortress. The Senate also directed one of the General's sons to proceed to Candia with reinforcements, and, if possible to liberate that island from the yoke of the barbarians. The consequence of the submission of Colocotroni was the occupation of Napoli di Romania by the Senate. The greatest unanimity prevailed amongst all classes in the Morea, and preparations had been made on the most extensive scale to repel the Turkish invasion, should any be actually attempted. None of their ships, however, had at these dates appeared on the coast.

Letters were received this morning from Constantinople, dated on the 26th April, but they only communicate news tending to confirm the already generally entertained idea, that vice has at length nearly concluded the effects of her influence in that part of the world, by the now pending destruction of the once mighty Ottoman Empire. The following is an extract of one of these letters, written by a gentleman who is certainly not very friendly generally, in his communications to the cause of Greece:—"The fleet has at last sailed, thanks be to God! and taken with it the very dregs of villainy.—This is a harsh expression, but I am sick of fine troops, you would willingly sanction it. The Captain Pacha, after his departure on Wednesday last, returned to take fresh orders, and it is said that he is to make his first attack on the islands. This, however, is uncertain; the Turks left this quietly, but in very bad spirits, and one hundred and twenty of them made off the day before the expedition sailed.—The 84 gun ship is a very fine vessel, but still the Captain Pacha preferred to sail in a corvette. It is reported that 250 Europeans are on board the line-of-battle ship, but the corvette in which she was handled on her departure, says little for their seamanship. It afforded much amusement to observe her sometimes with head, sometimes with stern way, and frequently running on board of vessels which it was the object of the crew to avoid. To all appearance, this ship cannot defend herself against the enterprises of the Grecian steamers, and the Capt Pacha certainly has, therefore, discovered considerable prudence in preferring the corvette for the protection of himself. The Divan exhibits much uneasiness, and it is attributed to the receipt of bad news. There are 6000 men to be sent away by the end of next month, but it is all nonsense, for they will never do any good." The plague has broken out in Talavola or St. Dimitri, a village near Pera. Trade is dull, owing to the holidays, &c. &c.

From the same quarter, the intelligence received respecting Greece is highly satisfactory, and a short time only is requisite to enable the inhabitants to enjoy the reward of their persevering exertions in the cause of independence and civilization.

LATEST FROM CADIZ.

By the ship Fabius from Cadiz, papers have been received to the 29th of May. The King had issued a decree to re-organise the militia. Those individuals however, who were wanting in fidelity to their sovereign are not to be employed. By advices from Paraguay, it appears that Perron entered into a convention with the government of Buenos Ayres, in the name of D. C. M. whereby a friendly understanding between the governments was to be established. This arrangement was not sanctioned by the King, and the same has been declared by him null and void.—Com. Adv.

SHIPPING INTELLIGENCE.

Charlotte Town, Prince Edward Island, June 12th, 1824.

MELANCHOLY SHIPWRECK.—It now becomes our painful duty, beyond a doubt, to record the melancholy loss of the brig Jessie, with all the persons on board, twenty-six in number. She sailed from Three Rivers (in Prince Edward Island) on the 25th day of December last, for Liverpool, G. B. and was seen passing Cheticaw, (Cape Breton.) on the evening of the 27th, and it is most probable she run on shore that night on St. Paul's island (a desolate island opposite Cape North in Cape Breton.) From the currency of several reports from the adjacent shores of the wreck of a brig on that island, a small vessel was despatched from the house of Messrs. M'Kay's (the owners) which returned on Tuesday last with the most conclusive proofs of the fatal loss. The wreck of the Jessie lies within 200 yards of the south west point of the island, and on the west side of the point, eleven bodies were discovered about half a mile from the wreck; among whom were recognized Donald M'Kay, Esq. Mr. Forbes, (a merchant of Miramichi) and captain M'Alpine, who were lying together. It would appear that they must have perished from the severity of the weather, as some provisions were found. The passengers who left Three Rivers in the Jessie, Captain M'Alpine, were Donald M'Kay Esq. Mr. Forbes, Mr. John Lowe, Mrs. Williams (wife of Mr. John Williams) and two of her family. The loss of each individual is sincerely to be deplored, but the blank which Mr. M'Kay leaves will be severely felt by every person in this island, and indeed all who had the happiness of knowing him. The excellence of his whole character, the kindness and benevolence of his disposition, and his affable and truly gentlemanlike manners will be long remembered—no man perhaps ever possessed a warmer or more feeling heart, or enjoyed a greater share of the good will of mankind—A schooner left this town yesterday to bring some of the bodies here for interment, and on her return we hope to be enabled to give more detailed particulars.

Extract of a letter dated Sydney, June 11.—"A fishing vessel has lately returned to Margaree, from St. Paul's Island off Cape North, where they discovered eleven dead bodies of persons lying in a tent on the Island, supposed to have perished from cold and starvation, as there appeared signs of their having lived on each other."

The Bark Dunscombe, Harrison, from Bristol to Miramichi, in ballast was lost about the 1st June on Scaterie island near Main à Dieu, (Cape Breton.)

Besides the above vessel which had not been heard of before, there is the Brig Sampson which sailed about the same time.

DROWNED—On Monday the 12th inst. near the mouth of Chesteguay River, Mr. SAMUEL HARDY. He was unfortunately knocked overboard by the boom of the Durham boat on his passage to Montreal; the exertions of the Captain and crew to save him were unavailing. The deceased resided at Farr's Mills on the Humber, York, U. Canada, and had in his charge 14 barrels Ashes, marked S. H which, together with his saline, have been left with D. W. Eager: his body has not yet been found. His friends or relations will receive further information, by applying to Mr. Eager.—Canadian Courent.

SINGULAR DISAPPOINTMENT.—The Steam Boat Lady Sherbrooke on her last trip from Quebec to this city, had on board amongst other cabin passengers a female who was known by a gentleman on board, and who had been brought up by a family at Quebec as their adopted child: upon being interrogated by the gentleman who was acquainted with her, he ascertained that she had deserted her paternal home, and placed herself under the protection of a man who was a steerage passenger. Enquirery was then made, who this man was when he proved to be a trader from Saint Albans, U. S where he has a wife and family. Upon this being communicated to her, and the absurdity of such an unpremeditated elopement, she consented to go ashore at Three Rivers and return to Quebec. When the boat reached that place, she was smuggled ashore, and as her enamoured swain was in a different part of the boat, he did not find out his disappointment till the boat had conveyed him "fort from his dearie" But his surprise and chegrin may be easily imagined when he found out the trick which had been played upon him.

HIS MAJESTY'S Receiver General for the Province of Upper Canada, will be prepared to commence, on Monday the 14th day of June next, to pay to the Claimants for Losses sustained during the Late War with the U. States of America Twenty-five per cent on the Amounts Awarded by the Commission appointed under the Provincial Act of Parliament passed in the 4th Year of His Majesty's Reign, Cap. 4.

The List of Persons, and the sums awarded respectively, will appear in a future Gazette, as well as instructions for the Receipt of the Money, wherein it is done through the means of Agency.

Executive Council Office
York, 14th April, 1824.

NOTICE is hereby given, to Jabez Johnson, or his Representative, to make good any claim he may have to Lot Number Two, in the Seventh Concession of the Township of Louth, in the District of Niagara within six months from this date, in default of which, the Lot will be otherwise disposed of.

By order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

Executive Council Chamber,
York, 31st January, 1824.

PRESENT,

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
IN COUNCIL,

HIS Majesty's Governor having recently extended their assistance to the class of Emigrants which it was intended to relieve by gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres of Land, in conveying them to their respective locations:

IT IS ORDERED, that from the first day of May next, no gratuitous Grants be made of any quantity of Land to other than privileged persons.—And that as the Fee on Two Hundred Acres was raised, in order to defray the gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres the consideration failing, the future Fee on Two Hundred Acres is reduced to Eight Pounds Four Shilling and One Penny Sterling; the existing Fee before 1819, and the Fee on all other Grants, in Townships Surveyed since that time, to be the same as established by the Order in Council, of 5th January, 1819.

N. B. Possessors of gratuitous Grants for Fifty Acres, may, by paying the Fee on One Hundred Acres, receive a Grant of the adjoining Fifty Acres if vacant

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Ex'v. Council.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL CHAMBER,
AT YORK, 28th JAN. 1824.

PRESENT:

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
In Council.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR submitted to the consideration of the Board, the Sheriffs' Reports of their respective Gaols, together with other Documents relating to a Winter Circuit, by which it appeared that the House of Assembly had addressed His Excellency to that effect, for this Session only; and obviously for the Delivery of the Gaols in the several Districts.

THE limitation of such a measure to one season seeming to militate with the Provision of the Law, that when the Communication from the Seat of Government admitted, and the circumstances of the Province required, there should be a regular Second Circuit, the Board would prefer to recommend that Special Commissions to deliver particular Gaols should issue where requisite; but, as the respective Reports from the Sheriffs do not, in the opinion of the Board, require any unusual interposition, His Excellency, with advice of the Council, postpones a Second Circuit until the circumstances of the Province more decidedly require it.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Executive Council.

Executive Council Office,
York, February 7th 1821.

WHEREAS it has been represented, that many persons who have received Locations of Land, have, from Sickness, and other legitimate causes, been unable to fulfil the Settlement Duty, in the time required by the Location Ticket, and have neglected to apply to His Excellency in Council for an extension of the period, for performance of such duty.

BE it known that the period for completing the Settlement Duty, is hereby extended to Two Years from the date of Locations until further notice shall be given.

JOHN SMALL, Clk Ex. Coun.

WHEREAS by the Tenor of the Location Tickets a Certificate is required to be lodged of the Settlement Duty being done within two Years, or that the said Location should be forfeited, and in case of Locations not gratuitous, that one third of the Patent Fee be lodged with such Certificate; AND WHEREAS it is represented, that in many instances, Certificates of performance of the Settlement Duty, have been withheld from the inability of the settler to deposit such proportion of the Patent Fee, it is deemed expedient to relieve the settler from forfeiture of his location, when he may actually have performed his settlement duty—Notice is hereby given that in all cases where Settlement Duty has been performed within the limited period, the settler shall, on filing Certificate thereof within six Months of this date, be exempted from forfeiture notwithstanding the non-payment therewith of such portion of the Patent Fee, provided the Patent is sued out within One Year from the filing of such Certificate.

And further, His Excellency, in the hope of avoiding the necessity of rescinding any of the Militia grants, is pleased to direct this Public Notification; that all Lands granted to Militia Men, upon which the Settlement Duties shall not have been performed within the limited period, will in pursuance of general instructions given to the Surveyor General in all similar cases, be declared vacant, and will be granted within Six Months after the expiration of that period, to the first applicant, unless the Original Nominee, shall before such subsequent application, have lodged a Certificate of his having performed the Settling Duties.

JOHN SMALL, Clk. Ex. Coun.

Executive Council Office,

HIS Excellency the Lieutenant Governor is pleased to direct that no Location requiring Settlement Duty shall be Confirmed by Patent, without a Certificate from the Land Board of the District in which such Location may be situate, that the Settlement Duty required by the Order in council has bona fide been performed within the time specified by the Location Ticket.

COMMUNICATION.

FOR THE U. C GAZETTE.

NIAGARA FALLS, June 30th, 1824.

To the Editor of the Upper Canada Gazette.

SIR,

From what is stated in Numbers Three and Four of a Paper lately Published at Queenston styled the "Colonial Advocate" it might be inferred that the Commissioners appointed to superintend the Erection of the Monument to the Memory of the late Major General Sir Isaac Brock, had been remiss in their duty, & that they had employed William Lyon Mackenzie to superintend in their stead—but such is not the case;—it is thus—Shortly after the death of one of the Commissioners (Colonel Nichol.) I consulted with the remaining Commissioner, Mr. Thomas Dickson, and with other gentlemen of the District, as to the propriety of having a procession of ceremony at laying the foundation—when it was agreed; from the recent death of Col. Nichol, and from the short time there was to invite over from York, the gentlemen from thence, to form the necessary Masonic procession; that the ceremony should be deferred until the Monument was finished and when the remains of the late Major General would be deposited in the Vault of the Monument.

The Contractors informed Mr. Hall, Engineer, superintending the Erection of the Monument and myself, that they would be ready to commence the Foundation in the first week in June; they were directed to proceed when ready, as there would be no ceremony at the laying of it. On the 21st day of June I had appointed to be at Burlington Beach as a Canal Commissioner, as you will see by Public Notice in your Gazette of May last, where I accordingly went, accompanied by Mr. Hall the Engineer.—On that day, the canal being clear, (the only remaining Commissioner Mr. Thomas Dickson from indisposition not being able to leave his room) Mr. Lyon Mackenzie, took upon himself unknown to the Commissioners, to perform his impertinent and officious ceremonies at the laying the foundation of the monument.

For the information of the public I have to state, that William Lyon Mackenzie's wide mouthed bottle, and his wider mouthed incurious paper are now removed from under the monument.

and am, Sir, your very obedient servant,

(Signed) THOMAS CLARK.

Commissioner for Erecting a Monument to the memory of the late Maj. General Sir Isaac Brock.

Colonial Commentary.

THE DUNDAS EXPEDITION is destined to become a subject of much deeper interest than could have been anticipated. After fixing on Monday last, the 2nd instant, for a general scrutiny—and after Mr. FOTHERGILL had been put to the expense and trouble of bringing forward a vast mass of evidence, as well as being provided with Council—the Returning Officer thought proper to deny the scrutiny he had, himself, appointed—and on his own responsibility struck off four of Mr. F's voters—and returned Mr. Boulton as duly elected.

Since the very extraordinary circumstances of this case will be brought before the Legislature as soon as possible after the meeting of Parliament;—and, as the conduct of some individuals, will be brought before the Cognizance of our Courts of Justice—we shall forbear going into further particulars at present otherwise than by saying that we doubt whether all the electioneering annals of England, since the first institution of Parliament, can furnish a parrallel to this case, which cannot fail to become memorable in the political history of this Province.

SELECTIONS FROM BRITISH AND FOREIGN JOURNALS.

Carlton Palace had narrowly escaped being destroyed by a fire which broke out in one of the sitting rooms, on the night of the 8th. The damage done in that room was irreparable, as four inestimable portraits were destroyed. They consisted of a beautiful full length portrait of the late Duke of Cumberland, painted by Sir Joshua Reynolds; another of the Duke of Clarence, by the celebrated Hoppner; another fine portrait of Louis XV. and another of the Duke of Orleans. This was supposed to be one of the finest pictures ever executed by Sir Joshua. A very fine portrait of George II. and a full length portrait of the late Queen Caroline, were the only two saved.

A proposition had been discussed at a public meeting in London, for forming a canal between Bristol and the English Channel, large enough for ship navigation. The object is to avoid the dangerous passage around the Land's End, especially in winter. The cost is estimated at £1,200,000. The resolutions were adopted.

The King of England held a levee on the 5th June, at which were present all the ambassadors and foreign ministers. After the levee his Majesty held an installation of the Order of the Bath. Sir John Oswald was invested with the Order of a Knight Grand Cross, in the room of the late Sir Thos. Maitland.

PROSPERITY OF ENGLAND.

Extract of a letter from a Gentleman at Liverpool, dated May 22d, 1824.

"You would be surprised, should you return, to see poor old England in such a flourishing state,—no complaints, no wants, all in full work. Spinning and manufacturing, I think, is nearly doubled since you left, and I cannot see to what extent we shall go on. The South American and East India markets take off such abundance of goods, that no man living can set bounds to our prospects. Some very clever men think our manufactures only in their infancy, and I am inclined to think so too. The town of Bolton, I think, is nearly doubled since you left us home and see; for no letter can convey to you the flourishing and prosperous state this country is now in."

Extract of a letter dated Glasgow, May 29.

"We are going on most prosperously here. Four hundred looms are building. A house, bought for me two months ago for £2,000, was yesterday offered £2,200 for. All description of goods and wages are on the advance."

MASSACRE OF SIR CHARLES McCARTHY.

BRIDGETOWN, (Barbadoes) May 27th, 1824.

By the arrival this morning of the brig Anne, from Cape Coast Castle, last from Acora, which place she left on the 23d April, is melancholy intelligence of the massacre of Sir CHARLES MCCARTHY and his gallant followers, has been confirmed by a gentleman (Mr. Williams,) whose life was miraculously saved on this occasion; we say miraculously, because the Ashantees are a nation, whose victories are always followed by the blood of their slaves, and in no one instance before was it ever known that they spared a single one. This gentleman was among the men who were knocked down with the back part of a sabre supposed dead upon the field, whilst they were preparing to sever the heads from the prisoners they had already taken. Mr. Williams having recovered from his stupor was immediately surrounded, and the knife was instantly applied to his throat, when one of the chiefs suddenly drew him aside and swore "on the head of the Ashantees King," that his life should be spared—he would appear by the accounts given by this gentleman, that he was present when they took off the head of Sir Charles McCarthy: he states that after they had effected this, (which they considered a great trophy of victory to be presented to their King,) shocking to the feelings of humanity to relate, they then wrung his heart from his breast, which they exposed to the mockery of their wives, and then deliberately proceeded to cut him joint from joint, until they had removed every limb from his body; after which they placed his body upon the head of a barrel and scorched it until it became as black as their own skins.

In having been reported at the Cape that a white man had been seen among the Ashantees since the battle, enquiry was immediately made as to the fact, through a private agent and the report found to be correct. The Governor of St. George D'El Mina, the head quarters of the Dutch settlement, being upon good terms with the Ashantees, was applied to, who interested himself upon the occasion and they were induced by the offer of a ransom, (a proposition to the truth of which we know a gentleman of pleasing address, and engaging manners, well calculated to procure him any, on the condition that he was neither to go to the Cape or to Europe: It appears however that they very soon repented their bargain, or they were distrustful of the Dutch Officer, for they made an additional demand that four Ashantees should remain constantly with him as a guard. In other respects he has been rendered very comfortable by the hospitality and kind attention of the Governor. Mr. Williams having reached the castle perfectly naked and otherwise in a deplorable condition. Two gentlemen of the party, merchants, seeing the dreadful havoc among their unfortunate companions and the awful ceremonies they were undergoing, finding all attempts at escape fruitless, each drew a pistol from his belt and shot himself. It is added that previous to Sir Charles being overpowered, he received two or three wounds, one of which is said to be mortal. The battle took place on the 21st January, (as before stated by us) at two o'clock, P. M. and lasted until sun-set, when Sir Charles had using his ammunition expended, made a desperate charge upon them, was incredibly horse down by legions, when the general massacre commenced.

A SKETCH.—By LORD BYRON.

"Honest—Honest Iago!
"If that thou be as a devil, I cannot kill thee."

SHAKESPEARE.

BORN in the garret, in the kitchen bred,
Promoted thence to deck her mistress' head;
Next—for some gracious service unexpress'd,
And from its wages only to be guess'd—
Raised from the toilet to the table,—where
Her smarting batters wait behind her chair:
With eye unmoved, and forehead unabash'd,
She dines from off the plate she lately wash'd
Quick with the tale, and ready with the lie—
The genial confidante, and general spy—
Who could, ye gods! her next employment guess—
An only infant's earliest governess!
She taught the child to read, and taught so well,
That she herself, by teaching, learn'd to spell.
An adept next in penmanship she grows,
As many a nameless slander deftly shows:
What she had made the pupil of her art,
None know—but that high Soul secured the heart,
And panted for the truth it could not hear,
With longing fever'd and undoubted ear.
Each line reversed, a lesson to her given,
Reversed herself, all neatness, all deceiving:
This child of art and circumstance was she,
Instructed in the world's deceitful way,
Dull to the dictates of a heart untaught,
Save by the rules which her own art had brought;
And these she followed with far more success
Than aught which Heaven and Nature could express.
Foiled by the pupil she had render'd fit
To take the artist in her turn to wit,
Detected, proved, despised, and scorned, and all
Owing to conscious, self betraying pall,
Which made her traitress to her own intent,
And fixed the attention which it sought to rent;
Exposed at length, her publish'd powers were spent,
Save to some slight subaltern employment lent,
Or living long on others' kindness past,
Show how degraded falls the unchaste!
Fallen! perhaps not to the lowest state
Assigned to those who share a master's fate;
But worse than all, with precepts learnt by rote,
Without the power to quote them or devote.
Doom'd to abuse the charge which she had got,
And teach herself all that she hates to thought;
Till some brief year, or day, or hour, confound
Her pupil's precepts with the mischief found.
Such is the tale her humble annals show;
Such the hard lot of those who stoop so low;
Such the sure meed the traitress to her trust;
Such the disgrace with which the first is curst:
Unless that grace more than atones for all,
Which blends the mother with the governess in the fall.

From the Norfolk Herald of July 12.

We insert with great pleasure the following striking and exemplary instance of juvenile heroism, communicated by a Suffolk Correspondent.

Remarkable instance of interpidity in a youth.

Some five or six boys were standing on Jordan's wharf a few days ago, one of whom, (John Driver, about 12 years of age,) having gone too near the brink of the wharf, accidentally slipped off in eight or ten feet water, and, as he could not swim, would inevitably have perished in that situation but for the friendly aid and assistance which he received from one of his schoolmates, (Josiah, son of Thos. P. Smith, Esq. of this place,) who has not yet attained his tenth year. This intrepid youth, perfectly regardless of the imminent danger necessarily attending on the fulfilling of this part, and thoughtless of the great inconvenience of his clothes quickly leaped into the briny element, determined to rescue his companion or be buried with him in a watery grave; after great dispatch exertions on the part of little Smith, he succeeded in reaching the shore swimming with one arm, and bearing his senseless schoolmate with the other. Thus by his heroic and exemplary interposition, he has succeeded in restoring a fellow being from an untimely end

Much credit, Lemgrave, is here due to our little hero, as his juvenility alone necessarily precludes a suspicion of his having been actuated by any other than the purest motives of friendship and love that could possibly flow from the philanthropic breast.

Singular Law Case.—A man by the name of Smith, cut off the nose of one Taylor, in Nassau, New Providence, he was tried and convicted under the statute of Mayhem, which is a capital offence; an arrest of judgment was moved, on the ground that the ear was not a "member of the body," as referred to in the statute.

The Court took a week to consider, and gave a learned decision, shewing clearly that the ear was a member of the body, and in citing authorities, the following were referred to from St. Paul, in his first epistle to the Corinthians:

14. For the body is not one member, but many.

15. If the foot shall say, because I am not the hand, I am not of the body; is it not therefore of the body?

16 And if the ear shall say, because I am not the eye, I am not of the body; is it not therefore of the body?

17 If the whole body were an eye, where were the hearing? If the whole were hearing, where were the smelling?

18—But now hath God set the members every one of them in the body, as it hath pleased him.

Sentence of death was then solemnly pronounced by the Court.—N. Advocate.

Anatomical Phenomena—The body of a gentleman, who died in this place a few days since, was opened by some members of the faculty, for inspection: from which the following remarkable visceral transposition was discovered: the heart was found in the right cavity of the breast, with the situation of its auricles and ventricles reversed, and the aorta or great artery, arching towards the right instead of the left side, descending the spine in the usual course of the vena cava, which last, were situated where the aorta should have been. The great lobe of the liver occupied the left hypochondriac region, with the small lobe extending a little to the right. The spleen was found in the right side, where the liver should have been situated. The stomach was reversed with regard to its position, having the larger curvature on the right, the small curvature and the pyloric orifice on the left. The intestines were likewise changed in their order of arrangement, the deo dunus commencing, and lying principally on the left side, and the segmoid flexure of the colon on the right.

This examination was extended far enough, to satisfy those present, that this anomaly was a lusus naturæ of the remotest embryotic origin, and could not possibly have resulted from disease, at any period of his life. This gentleman died in his thirtieth year, and is said to have been remarkably healthy and athletic until two or three years past, during which time, he had suffered much from disarrangement of the liver and spleen, probably produced by his removal from a northern to a southern climate, of which disease he ultimately died.—Louisville Post.

CONCILIATION OF IRELAND.

TO——ROBERTSON, ESQ. M. P.

Concluded.

These results cannot be attained by Catholic Emancipation alone, still less by those futile measures which are now in progress; if the mind of the nation be not well directed, and the public will made to cooperate with the Legislature, the disease may be repressed, or shifted, but no renovating principle of health will be infused into the frame of society.

Catholic Emancipation will not remedy the evils of the tithe system, it will not allay the fervour of religious zeal—the perpetual clashing of two Churches, one elevated, the other fallen, both high-minded, perhaps intolerant; it will not check the rancorous animosities with which different sects assail each other; it will not remove all suspicion of partiality in the Government were Antonius himself the Viceroy; it will not create that sympathy between the different orders in the state which is ever mainly dependant on religion, nor produce that unlimited confidence between man and man, which is the strongest foundation on which public welfare can repose, as well as the most certain pledge of a nation's prosperity.—Withal Catholic Emancipation is a great public measure, and of itself not only would effect much, but open a passage to ulterior measures, which a prudent Legislature could without difficulty effect.

The Union of the Churches, however, which you have had the singular merit of suggesting to the Commons of the United Kingdom, would together and at once effect a total change in the dispositions of men; it would bring all classes to co-operate zealously in promoting the prosperity of Ireland, and in securing her allegiance for ever to the British Throne. The question of Emancipation would be swallowed up in the great enquiry, how Ireland could be enriched and strengthened, and in place of the Prime Minister devising arguments to screen an odious oppression, and reconcile an insurrection Act of five and twenty years duration, with the Habeas Corpus Act and Magna Charta, we would find him receiving the plaudits of the Senate, the thanks of the Sovereign, and the blessings of millions for the favours which he could so easily dispense.

This union, on which so much depends, is not as you have justly observed, so difficult as it appears to many; and the present time is peculiarly well calculated for attempting, at least, to carry it into effect.

It is not difficult; for in the discussions which were held, and the correspondence which occurred on this subject early in the last century, as well as that in which Arch Bishop Tillotson was engaged, as well as the others which were carried on between Bossuet and Leibnitz, it appeared that the points of agreement between the Churches, were numerous, those on which the parties hesitated few, and apparently not the most important. The effort which was then made, was not attended with success, but its failure was owing more to Princes than to Priests, more to State policy than to a difference of belief. But the same reasons which at that period disappointed the hopes of every good Christian in Europe would at present operate favourably. For what interest can England now have, which is opposed to such a Union, and what nation or church in the Universe can have stronger motives for desiring it than Great Britain, if by it she could preserve her Church Establishment, perfect her internal policy, and secure her external dominion.

The time is favourable; for the Government is powerful and at peace, the Pope is powerless and anxious to conciliate, the Irish Catholics are wearied and fatigued, exceedingly desirous of repose; the established religion is almost frittered away, and the Monarchy, a thing unprecedented in a Christain state, is left in one country with only the staff of the Church, to use an expression of Mr. Hume, and in the other with less than a moiety of the people attached to the hierarchy Add to this the improvement of men's minds during the last century, the light and liberality which distinguish the present, the revival of Christian piety since the overthrow of the French Revolution, and the disposition of even religious disputants to conciliate and explain.

In Ireland, I am confident that, notwithstanding the ferment which now prevails, a proposition, such as you have made, if adopted by Government, would be heartily embraced. The Clergy of the establishment are unpopular, and they feel it; they are without flocks, and every professional man wishes for employment; their property is attacked, and even endangered, for the State has touched it, and the people have no respect for it. The Dissenters have encroached on them, and the Catholic Clergy have despoiled them, in many places, of their flocks. The Catholic Laity, as I before mentioned, are tired of their degradation; they are wearied in pursuit of freedom; they love their country, and are anxious for repose. Their Clergy, without, I believe, an exception, would make every possible sacrifice to effect a union; I myself would most cheerfully, and without fee, pension, emolument, or hope, resign the office which I hold, if by doing so, I could in any way contribute to the union of my brethren, and the happiness of my country.

The Proprietors and Capitalists in Ireland, are affected at the prospect which lies before them, and are if not blind to self-interest as well as dead to patriotism, anxious to establish peace and security amongst us.—The Government has no interest in preserving disunion, unless for the purpose of securing its power, and should it find an honourable and safe substitute for so detestable and precarious a system, it should be blind and deceived if it did not embrace it.

The King who rules over us is liberal, wise and enlightened, beyond any of his predecessors; and as he is at the head of the State, so he has been foremost through life in bestowing his royal countenance and support on whatever could contribute to the honour or religion, to the good of his subjects, or to the glory of his reign.—Whatever, then, time and circumstances can contribute to a great and good undertaking seems now to favour a project for the union of Christians too long divided.—Had they been so favourable in the sixteenth century, the separation which produced such numberless calamities, would certainly have been prevented.

It may not become so humble an individual as I am to hint even at a plan for effecting so great a purpose as the union of Catholics and Protestants in one great body of Christians; but as the difficulty does not appear to me to be at all proportioned to the magnitude of the object to be attained, I would presume to state, that if Protestant and Catholic Divines of learning, and a conciliatory character, were summoned by the Crown, to ascertain the points of agreement and difference between the Churches, and that the result of their conferences were made the basis of a project to be treated on between the heads of the Church of Rome and England, the result might be more favourable than at present would be anticipated.

The chief points to be discussed are, the Canon of the Sacred Scriptures, Faith, Justification, the Mass, the Sacraments, the Authority of Tradition, of Councils, of the Pope, the Celibacy of the Clergy, Language of the Liturgy, Invocation of Saints respect for images, prayers for the Dead.

On most of these it appears to me that there is no essential difference between Catholics and Protestants; the existing diversity of opinion arises, in most cases, from certain forms of words which admit of satisfactory explanation, or from the ignorance or misconception which ancient prejudice and ill will produce and strengthen, but which could be removed, they are pride and points of honour, which keep us divided on many subjects, not a love of Christian humility charity, and truth

It should be the duty, as it is obviously the interest of the ruling powers, to provide for the happiness of the people, by enlightening there minds and curbing their passions, not by reprobachful feelings and coercive laws, but by means suited to their real wants; and if through the wisdom of Parliament and the efforts of Government, the Churches of these countries could be united, a new era of happiness would commence in our history. The laws of this country could be equalized, the most perfect confidence would prevail between the Government and the subjects; their natural protectors would be restored to a generous and warm-hearted people; the aristocracy would become what it never has been in Ireland—a link between the Prince and the peasant; industry would be protected; capital would flow into the country; all the resources of the soil, climate, genius and talent of the nation would be called into life and activity; the union of the countries would be consolidated, and Great Britain would not only be Queen of the ocean, but Mistress of the world.

Hoping that you will again call the attention of Parliament to the consideration of this important subject.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your obedient humble Servent,

SIR,—The public mind being much occupied with the consideration of the Rev. Dr. Doyle's Letter to you, on the practicability of a union between the Churches of England and Rome; I feel it would not be unbecoming in a Protestant Divine to endeavour to remove the persuasion which is so universally entertained, that the union he contemplates is visionary in the extreme. The history of the attemps which was made in the year 1718, to unite the English and Gallic Churches, will clearly prove the practicability of the measure, and that the failure of "the effort then made was more owing to Princes than Priests—to State policy, than to a difference of belief."

When the Pope (Clement XI.) had issued the Bull, Unigenitus, condemning Fasebasius Quenel's translation of the New Testament, a considerable number of the French Clergy took offence at the proceeding and appealed from the Bull to a general Council. At this period, Wake, Archbishop of Canterbury, was informed by Beauvoir, Chamlain to the Earl of Stair, the English Ambassador at Paris, that a strong desire existed on the part of the French Clergy to effect a union with the Church of England. Frequent letters passed upon the subject between the Archbishop and the celebrated Dr. Du Pin. These letters were all read in the Sorbonne, and at last Du Pin sent the

...robust "a commonitorium or advice, relating to the method of uniting the Churches as read and approved by that body. "The Doctors of the Sorbonne having examined the Articles of the Church of England, wholly approve in this commonitorium of the five first; would not make the 6th an occasion of quarrelling; wholly approve of the 7th, 8th, and 9th; agree, if they rightly understand it to the 10th; agree to the 11th, as explained by the 12th; would not dispute about the 13th; do not entirely agree with the 14th; make no objection to the 15th, 17th, 18th, and 19th, and that it was needless to say that all churches might agree; consent to the 20th, and with some modification to the 21st; explain away a good deal of the controverted points in the 22d; approve of the 23d; do not complain of the 24th; in speaking of the 25th; insist on the acknowledgement of the five Romish Sacraments; approve of the 26th, and 27th articles; and endeavour to express the doctrine of transubstantiation (which word they purpose to leave out) in a kind of ambiguous and accommodating manner; are for mutual toleration on the 30th; are not disposed to concession on the 31st; will not quarrel on the 32d; wholly agree with the 33d, and 34th; suspend their judgments, as they had not read the Homilies, on the 35th; as to the 36th, do not deny the validity of orders in the church of England, admit the 37th; but insist on a primacy in the Pope; approve of the 38th, and 39th Articles; and see neither in the discipline nor worship of the Church of England any thing amiss."

The correspondence on this subject soon transpired, and, owing to the complaints of the Jesuits, the ambition of the Abbe Du Bois, the deaths of Du Pin, and above all, the intrigues of the Spanish party at the court of France, the project of a union was defeated.—Thus, Sir, may we be led to believe, that if it were attempted by men of liberal and enlightened minds, heartily disposed to effect a union between the Churches of England and Rome in this country, that union might be accomplished. The day of its consummation would be the happiest that ever shone on our unhappy country. Instead of its being the theatre of distraction, poverty, and bloodshed, it would be the scene of peace and happiness, of civil and religious concord. The generous and ardent temper of our countrymen, which now, perverted by bigotry, or a sense of wrong, is the occasion of our being held up as a turbulent and cowardly and irreclaimable race, would then find a field for generous and patriotic energies. The union of the countries would be consolidated, and Great Britain would not only be Queen of the ocean, but Mistress of the world.

Hoping that you will again call the attention of Parliament to the consideration of this important subject.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

From the Commercial Advertiser.

NEW YORK, JULY 8th.

The packet ship Alexander, Captain Baldwin, arrived yesterday at Philadelphia from Liverpool, bringing London papers of the 6th June, and Liverpool of the 8th.

GREAT BRITAIN.

A grand entertainment has been given to the King and Queen of the Sandwich Islands, by Mr. Canning. Their Majesties evinced much satisfaction at their reception, and with everything that took place. Upwards of 300 persons of the first rank and fashion were invited to meet them, including their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, Prince Leopold, most of the Cabinet Ministers, and nearly the whole of the Corps Diplomatique. Their Majesties were attended by the Hon. Mr. Byng, who is appointed to attend them while they remain in that country.

The opposition in steam boat navigation, in some parts in Great Britain, exceeds that of the North River and Brunswick boats. The price of a passage from the Clyde to Belfast, is only five pence! In consequence, great crowds of passengers throng the boats.

The 90th Regiment, now at Manchester, is to embark for Halifax.

Independence of South America—The Courier says the question of the recognition of South American Independence continues most anxiously to occupy public attention. We can venture to state that previously to the close of the present session of Parliament, a communication will be made on this question to the House of Commons by Mr. Canning.

The Lord Chancellor is supposed to be the most opposed to the recognition of the South American Governments. He has issued an injunction on the part of the Colombian Government to perform a contract made with it, saying—"I can take no notice—no notice of the Colombian Government."

A large meeting has been held at Liverpool, to petition the Government to acknowledge the independence of the South American States.—The Mayor, Mr. Rose, Lawrence, Esq. presided a question to His Majesty, setting forth the great commercial advantages to be derived from the measure, was adopted.

Parliament—Mr. Brougham brought forward his motion relative to the case of the unfortunate missionary Smith, on the 1st of June. An interesting debate ensued, which was adjourned until after the holidays—many gentlemen having wished to take part in it having left town.

The project of the Great West India Company is abandoned—the ministry refusing to charter it. The bill for incorporating the Great Marine Insurance Company, has passed. [This Company are to give a bonus to the government of three hundred thousand pounds sterling.] The act for the better regulation and management of the port of Liverpool, has received the royal assent.

FRANCE.

The only article of intelligence, of any importance, from France, is the following, from a London paper of June 6. "An express from Paris arrived at Dover, bringing the Gazette of that day, from which it appears that the French Ministers have been unexpectedly beaten in the Chamber of Peers, where the financial law was rejected by a majority considerably larger than could have been anticipated. What makes this rejection the more remarkable was, that it was preceded by a speech from M De Villele, in which he had declared his intention to establish an institution, to enable annuitants of or below £40 sterling yearly value, to invest their capital at a fixed rate of interest. This proposition produced a great sensation, and the project was rejected by a majority of one hundred and twenty to one hundred and fourteen. All the other propositions, founded on the first, were likewise cut to the vote, and rejected, and the Chamber adjourned without fixing the day of its next meeting. The rejection of the project had occasioned an immediate fall in the rents of about 2 per cent. At the time the express left, they were down at 90 on 1021 lbs. They had been at 104f. 25c. Various reports, more or less contradictory, were in circulation among other things, it was said that a change of Ministers would be the first consequence of this defeat. We believe, however, that the best informed parties do not apprehend this result."

SPAIN.

Letters from Madrid of the 20th ult. state that the decree of amnesty has excited an intense sensation in that capital. The royalist volunteers age by no means satisfied with the exception; numerous as they are, for they hate the very name of mercy; but steps have been taken to keep them in order. Those persons who are allowed the measure of purification have been informed that they must present their decrees within 15 days from the publication of the amnesty, on pain of forfeiting the provision made in their favour. A committee, formed from Ex-Members of the Inquisition, is sitting day and night to make out a catalogue of prohibited books; and an order has been issued for all persons who have addresses. The impression on the staff of many of the seamen's letters was, "Though lost to sight to memory dear," a

...quets no doubt enlivened to the feelings of their friends at home, who from this time must feel a deep anxiety for the success and safety of these brave and intrepid adventurers, a feeling in which their countrymen in general must also participate."

THE POLAR EXPEDITION.—Extract of a letter, dated Thurso, May 31

Two proclamations have been issued by the King of Sweden dated 20th April, the one placing British produce, and American manufactures imported into Sweden, in British vessels, upon the same footing with respect to duties of customs, as is imported in Swedish vessels; and the other placing British vessels, in respect to duties of every description, upon a perfect equality with Swedish vessels.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE WANTS OF A LADY OF FORTUNE.

The following paragraphs are extracted from Miss Aikin's Life of King James.

"In the year 1610, died Sir John Spencer, formerly Lord Mayor of London, respecting whom some circumstances have been recorded worthy of notice, as illustrative of manners and private life. He was perhaps the richest citizen of his time, but the amount of his wealth cannot be ascertained, as it was variously stated at three, five and eight hundred thousand pounds.—His stupidness however, was no less noted, than one of the pirates of Dunkirk, who during this and the following reign, exercised their outrages with impunity on the English coasts, had laid a plot to carry him off to France to extort a ransom, but the design failed—the only child was a prize worthy the notice of a courtier, and he became the wife of William lord Compton, who was afterwards created Earl of Northampton. At the funeral of Sir John, about one thousand persons followed in mourning cloaks and gowns. The amount of the inheritance seems to have exceeded all the expectations of Lord Compton: insomuch that on the first news of it, either through the vehement apprehension of joy for such a splendid accession, or, if carelessness how to take it up and dispose of it," he became distracted and so continued for a considerable length of time. It was probably have been soon after his recovery that the following letter was addressed to him by a lady who enjoyed also the most perfect exposition we possess of the wants and virtues of a lady of quality in the age of James First.

"My sweet life, now I have declared to you my mind for the settling your estate, I suppose that it were best for me to bethink and consider within myself what allowance were meetest for me, and how I were to live; and therefore, my dear lord, your most kind and loving wife the sum of £2,000 quarterly to be paid. Also, I crave beside that allowance, have £800 quarterly to be paid, for the performance of the stable works, and those things I would not, neither will be accountable for. Also, I will have three horses for my own saddle, that none shall disorder lead or borrow, no not a lord but I; none borrow but you. Also, I would have two gentlewomen, but one should be sick, or have some other let. And in believe it, it is an undecent thing for a gentlewoman to stand on night or day, but when God hath blessed her lord and lady with a great estate. Also, when I ride a hunting or a hawking, or travel from one house to another, I will have them attending; so for either of these said women. I must and will have for either of them a horse. Also, I will have six or eight gentlemen; and I will have my coach, and coachman, one hired with velvet for myself with four of his horses; and coach for my women, lined with cloth and laced with gold, others lee with scarlet and laced with silver, with four good horses. Also, I will have two good coachmen, one for my coach the other for my women. Also, at any time that I travel, I will be allowed me not only coaches but spare horses for me and my women, but I will have such carriages as shall be fitting for all orderly, not pestering my things with my women's, nor theirs with either chambermaids, nor theirs with wash maids, nor yours, for laundresses. Also, when I travel, I will have them sent away before with the carriages, to see all safe, and the chamber maids I will have go before, that the chamber may be ready, sweet and clean. Also, for that it is undecent to crowd up myself like a gentlewoman usher in my coach, I will have him to have a convenient horse to attend me either in city or country. And I must have two footmen. And my desire is, that you defray all charges for me. And for my self beside my yearly allowance, I would have twenty gowns of apparel, six of them excellent good ones, eight of them for the country and each other of them very excellent good ones Also, I would have to put in my purse, £2,000, and £200, and so, you to pay my debts Also, I would have £6,000 to buy me jewels and £4,000 to buy me a pearl chain

"Now, seeing I have been and am so reasonable unto you, I pray you do find my children apparel and their schooling, and all my servants, men and women, their wages. Also, I will have all my houses furnished, and my lodging chambers to be suited with all such furniture as is fit; as beds, stools, chairs, suitable cushions, carpets, silver warming pans, cupboards of plate, (all hangings and such like.) So for my drawing chambers in all houses, I will have them delicately furnished, both with hangings, couch, canopy, glass, carpet, chaire, cushions, as things thereunto belonging. Also, my desire is, that ye pay your debts, build up Ashby house, and purchase no more land, nor money, as you love God, to my lord who would have all, perhaps your life from

I have declared to you what I would have.

LADIES TAKING THE VEIL.

The following is a description of the ceremony which takes place at the time of ladies taking the veil in France, and is given by an eye witness:

"When I was in the capital of this country, I had an opportunity of being present at the time when a lady took the White Veil, or in other words, formed a resolution to retire from the world, and shut herself up in a cloister. It may be interesting to give a short account of the forms observed upon this occasion. In the first place, this person, who was young was dressed in her secular attire, as it may be denominated, and placed in an arm chair in front of the altar: she was immediately surrounded by her friends, and those whom curiosity had attracted to the spot to be spectators of the solemnity. A Priest ascended a temporary pulpit, placed at the corner of the alter, and in front of the lady. At this time he delivered a discourse in which he pointed out the vanities of the world, the nature of the obligation she had undertaken to fulfil and the beneficial effects which would be derived from a life of contemplation in retirement. On this being ended she appeared under a considerable degree of agitation and embarrassment, particularly at the moment when her father gave her his hand, and led her from the seat out of the church. From thence she entered a contiguous convent; where there was a window at the side of the altar of the church secured by a close iron grating, and here the fair one appeared to be most completely metamorphosed.—Her hair had been cut off, she was stripped of her dress, and robed in the costume of the monastery where the spectators of the previous scene were permitted to see her through the iron bars. At this particular moment the scene appeared to be of a nature tragical and affecting. I observed her accompanied by a number of nuns, whose faces were concealed, with her own, in veils, who walked in slow procession round the place, preceded by one of them carrying a crucifix, when a mournful chaunt of praise took place by the whole, in which they were joined by some of the spectators. This being ended, a curtain was drawn over the grating. Although a promise of this nature is made after the proposed nun is allowed to deliberate a year from the period of the wish she expressed to seclude herself in the convent, yet should she enter this establishment, still there is a locus penitentiæ in one view attached to the obligation as to the white veil, since at the expiration of one year after having received it, she has it in her power to depart, and return to the world. During this year however, which may be considered a probationary state, a marked attention is paid to the young Nun, in order to induce her to go through another formality, namely, that of taking the black veil. Should she assume this, it constitutes a most effectual barrier to her quitting the Convent, and she is shut up in it for life"

HINTS TO FEMALES.—A London paper speaking of the ladies says: "We have of ourselves a still greater fault to find with a revival of the system of high pressure as an engineer would call it; we mean the odious screwing in of the waist, now springing up. If women fancy it graceful, they are wofully deceived, and if they do not find it prejudicial to their health, why, we are deceived and not they.

We believe it is owing entirely to the ease and freedom of the female dress for the last few years, that our young girls are all so healthy, so well formed, and so forward in their growth. All this will be checked by most unnatural screwing in and torturing of the body.

To talk about health to a girl in opposition to fashion, we fancy is useless: and we will take up the screwing system upon its effect, which is to make fat elderly ladies look like oil jars, and young ones like hour glasses. Four or five years ago we had fools among our men, so supremely fools, as to squeeze in their waists, and this during the time the ladies had abandoned the torture, as if they were wearing out the corsets of their female relations, and to strengthen this supposition, as soon as these persons have abandoned the folly, our fair country women adopt it—a folly which has not the merit of being either pleasant or becoming.

Simplicity in dress is its greatest beauty—artificiality becomes distortion, and we seriously recommend an immediate abandonment of the vice in question; assuring our fair readers that ladies unlike ships, are much best "when black in stays."

The triumph of independence in Middlesex is complete! Mr. Rolph and Captain Matthews have been returned by a large majority, which would have been doubled or trebled had the poll been kept open but one day longer; and such were the feelings of the Northern Townships towards Capt. Matthews, (where he is best known) that if location tickets had been permitted to vote (as they have hitherto done), he would have had at least 500 plumpers to have added to his already overwhelming majority.

The true character of that gentleman begins to appear, tho' nothing has been kept untried, by a few malicious and interested individuals to destroy it.

Capt. Matthews was escorted to his residence in Lobo, a distance of 20 or 30 miles, by the members elect of Oxford, his worthy fellow member elect, by the Chairman of the Court of Quarter Sessions in the London District, and by as gallant an numerous, and independent a troop of honest honourable and loyal men, as perhaps ever trotted that distance together.

FOR THE WEEKLY REGISTER.

Ancaster 13th July, 1824.

MR. FOTHERGILL,

SIR,

By inserting in your very valuable Paper the following authentic account of the ceremony of laying the Corner Stone of the New Church, now erecting in this village, you will confer a favour on the parties interested, and on the inhabitants of this part of the country in general.

Few villages on the Continent of America have increased within the last two years, equal to that of Ancaster, which is now about to be further improved by the addition of a very handsome frame Church, to be dedicated indiscriminately to the worshipers of God, of every Christian profession without distinction of sect or party—with this reservation, viz: That the resident minister of the Episcopal Church is at all times to have the right of preaching in it once a day, and oftener if no minister of a different persuasion is provided. Twenty five hundred Dollars has already been subscribed, the building contracted for and the preparations for raising it being in such a state of forwardness as to admit of the corner stone being laid. The 7th July was the day appointed for the ceremony, and the Masonic Union Lodge of this village, by permission of the Deputy Grand Master and of the Church Committee was appointed to officiate upon the occasion, a public dinner was ordered at Rousseau's Hotel, upwards of 200 invitations were issued; Col. T. G. Simons and Col. James Crooks, by request of the Committee of management, consented to act, the former as Marshall and the later as President of the day.

The day was remarkably fine, and the occasion being altogether a novel one in this part of the country, a great number of persons was assembled to join in the procession, which being arranged under the direction of Col Simons, moved off to the ground precisely at two o'clock; preceded by a part of the Military Band of the 76th Regt, which the Lieut Governor, with his Characteristic kindness—a kindness which has inspired every one interested upon this occasion with the most grateful sentiments towards His Excellency—had ordered to attend upon this occasion.

Upon the arrival of the procession on the ground a solemn Masonic air was played, and the ceremony of laying the Corner Stone was performed agreeable to the rites of the fraternity; several pieces of Coin and the following scroll were deposited.

The Corner Stone

Was laid with Masonic honors, by

SIMON MCGILLIVRAY, Esq. Grand Master, and JAMES FITZGIBBON, Esq. Deputy Grand Master.

Lieutenant General, the Right Honourable GEORGE EARL OF DALHOUSIE, G. C. B. Governor General of the British Provinces in North America.

His Excellency, Major General SIR PEREGRINE MAITLAND, K. C. B. Lieutenant Governor and Commander of the Forces in Upper Canada.

After the ceremony was performed, an excellent and very appropriate oration was delivered by John M. A. Cameron, Esq. of Dundas, in which the progress of Masonry was traced from the earliest ages to the present period, and its benefits to society depicted in a manner that evidently delighted the fraternity—inspired the uninitiated with a high opinion of the Masonic Institution and pleased every one.

After the return of the procession, about an hundred persons sat down to an excellent dinner, which had been prepared under an awning, on a lawn adjoining the hotel, the band playing "the Roast Beef of Old England." After the cloth was removed, the following toasts were proposed, by the President (Col. Crooks,) and drunk with great applause.

His Majesty's Ship Athol with the Earl of Dalhousie on board, all well, was spoken on the 15th June in long 53, (about the Banks of Newfoundland) by the Eddystone, arrived at Prince Edward's Island. The Eddystone had a London paper of the 16th May, which was presented to his Excellency.

The bodies of Donald M'Kay, Esq. and Captain M'Alpine, had been brought from St Paul's Island; nine were buried on the spot, and of the fifteen more no traces were found. The loss of so many valuable lives, of which we gave an account in Thursday's paper, had created an unusual gloom in Charlotte Town.

LADIES TAKING THE VEIL.

The following is a description of the ceremony which takes place at the time of ladies taking the veil in France, and is given by an eye witness:

"When I was in the capital of this country, I had an opportunity of being present at the time when a lady took the White Veil, or in other words, formed a resolution to retire from the world, and shut herself up in a cloister. It may be interesting to give a short account of the forms observed upon this occasion. In the first place, this person, who was young was dressed in her secular attire, as it may be denominated, and placed in an arm chair in front of the altar; she was immediately surrounded by her friends, and those whom curiosity had attracted to the spot to be spectators of the solemnity. A Priest ascended a temporary pulpit, placed at the corner of the alter, and in front of the lady. At this time he delivered a discourse in which he pointed out the vanities of the world, the nature of the obligation she had undertaken to fulfil and the beneficial effects which would be derived from a life of contemplation in retirement. On this being ended she appeared under a considerable degree of agitation and embarrassment, particularly at the moment when her father gave her his hand, and led her from the seat out of the church. From thence she entered a contiguous convent; where there was a window at the side of the altar of the church secured by a close iron grating, and here the fair one appeared to be most completely metamorphosed.—Her hair had been cut off, she was stripped of her dress, and robed in the costume of the monastery where the spectators of the previous scene were permitted to see her through the iron bars. At this particular moment the scene appeared to be of a nature tragical and affecting. I observed her accompanied by a number of nuns, whose faces were concealed, with her own, in veils, who walked in slow procession round this place, preceded by one of them carrying a crucifix, when a mournful chaunt of praise took place by the whole, in which they were joined by some of the spectators. This being ended, a curtain was drawn over the grating. Although a promise of this nature is made after the proposed nun is allowed to deliberate a year from the period of the wish she expressed to seclude herself in the convent, yet should she enter this establishment, still there is a locus penitentiæ in one view attached to the obligation as to the white veil, since at the expiration of one year after having received it, she has it in her power to depart, and return to the world. During this year however, which may be considered a probationary state, a marked attention is paid to the young Nun, in order to induce her to go through another formality, namely, that of taking the black veil. Should she assume this, it constitutes a most effectual barrier to her quitting the Convent, and she is shut up in it for life"

HINTS TO FEMALES.—A London paper speaking of the ladies says: "We have of ourselves a still greater fault to find with a revival of the system of high pressure as an engineer would call it; we mean the odious screwing in of the waist, now springing up. If women fancy it graceful, they are woefully deceived, and if they do not find it prejudicial to their health, why, we are deceived and not they.

We believe it is owing entirely to the ease and freedom of the female dress for the last few years, that our young girls are all so healthy, so well formed, and so forward in their growth. All this will be checked by most unnatural screwing in and torturing of the body.

To talk about health to a girl in opposition to fashion, we fancy is useless: and we will take up the screwing system upon its effect, which is to make fat elderly ladies look like oil jars, and young ones like hour glasses. Four or five years ago we had fools among our men, so supremely fools, as to squeeze in their waists, and this during the time the ladies had abandoned the torture, as if they were wearing out the corsets of their female relations, and to strengthen this supposition, as soon as these persons have abandoned the folly, our fair country women adopt it—a folly which has not the merit of being either pleasant or becoming.

Simplicity in dress is its greatest beauty—artificiality becomes distortion, and we seriously recommend an immediate abandonment of the vice in question; assuring our fair readers that ladies unlike ships, are much best "when slack in stays."

St. Thomas, 22d July, 1824.

The triumph of independence in Middlesex is complete; Mr. Rolph and Captain Matthews have been returned by a large majority, which would have been doubled or trebled had the poll been kept open but one day longer; and such were the feelings of the Northern Townships towards Capt. Matthews, (where he is best known) that if location tickets had been permitted to vote (as they have hitherto done), he would have had at least 500 plumpers to have added to his already overwhelming majority.

The true character of that gentleman begins to appear, tho' nothing has been kept untried, by a few malicious and interested individuals to destroy it.

Capt. Matthews was escorted to his residence in Lobo, a distance of 20 or 30 miles, by the members elect of Oxford, his worthy fellow member elect, by the Chairman of the Court of Quarter Sessions in the London District, and by as gallant as numerous, and independent a troop of honest honourable and loyal men, as perhaps ever trotted that distance together.

FOR THE WEEKLY REGISTER.

Ancaster 13th July, 1824.

MR. FOTHERGILL,

SIR,

By inserting in your very valuable Paper the following authentic account of the ceremony of laying the Corner Stone of the New Church, now erecting in this village, you will confer a favour on the parties interested, and on the inhabitants of this part of the country in general.

Few villages on the Continent of America have increased within the last two years, equal to that of Ancaster, which is now about to be further improved by the addition of a very handsome House to Church, to be dedicated indiscriminately to the worshipers of God, of every Christian profession without distinction of sect or party)—with this reservation, viz: That the resident minister of the Episcopal Church is at all times to have the right of preaching in it once a day, and oftener if no minister of a different persuasion is provided. Twenty five hundred Dollars has already been subscribed, the building contracted for and the preparations for raising it being in such a state of forwardness as to admit of the corner stone being laid. The 7th July was the day appointed for the ceremony, and the Masonic Union Lodge of this village, by permission of the Deputy Grand Master and of the Church Committee was appointed to officiate upon the occasion, a public dinner was ordered at Rousen's Hotel, upwards of 200 invitations were issued; Col. T. G. Simons and Col. James Crooks, by request of the Committee of management, consented to act, the former as Marshall and the later as President of the day.

The day was ushered in by a Cannonade, and the occasion being altogether a novel one in this part of the country, a great number of persons was assembled to join in the procession, which being arranged under the direction of Col Simons, moved off to the ground precisely at two o'clock; proceeded by a part of the Military Band of the 70th Regt., which the Lieut. Governor, with his Characteristic kindness—a kindness which has inspired every one interested upon this occasion with the most grateful sentiments towards His Excellency—had ordered to attend upon this occasion.

Upon the arrival of the procession on the ground a solemn Masonic air was played, and the ceremony of laying the Corner Stone was performed agreeable to the rites of the fraternity; several pieces of Coin and the following scroll were deposited.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
In Council.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR submitted to the consideration of the Board, the Sheriffs' Reports of their respective Gaols, together with other Documents relating to a Winter Circuit, by which it appeared that the House of Assembly had addressed His Excellency to that effect, for this Session only; and obviously for the Delivery of the Gaols in the several Districts.

THE limitation of such a measure to one reason seeming to militate with the Provision of the Law, that when the Communication from the Seat of Government admitted, and the circumstances of the Province required, there should be a regular Second Circuit, the Board would prefer to recommend that Special Commissions to deliver particular Gaols should issue where requisite; but, as the respective Reports from the Sheriffs' do not, in the opinion of the Board, require any unusual interposition, His Excellency, with advice of the Council, postpones a Second Circuit until the circumstances of the Province more decidedly require it.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Executive Council.

Executive Council Office,
York, February 7th 1821.

WHEREAS it has been represented, that many persons who have received Locations of Land, have, from Sickness, and other legitimate causes, been unable to fulfil the Settlement Duty, in the time required by the Location Ticket, and have neglected to apply to His Excellency in Council for an extension of the period, for performance of such duty.

BE it Known that the period for completing the Settlement Duty, is hereby extended to Two Years from the date of Locations until further notice shall be given.

JOHN SMALL. Clk Ex. Coun.

WHEREAS by the Tenor of the Location Tickets a Certificate is required to be lodged of the Settlement Duty being done within two Years, or that the said Location should be forfeited, and in case of Locations not gratuitous, that one third of the Patent Fee be lodged with such Certificate; AND

WHEREAS it is represented, that in many instances, Certificates of performance of the Settlement Duty, have been withheld from the inability of the settler to deposit such proportion of the Patent Fee, it is deemed expedient to relieve the settler from forfeiture of his location, when he may actually have performed his settlement duty—Notice is hereby given that in all cases where Settlement Duty has been performed within the limited period, the settler shall, on filing Certificate thereof within six Months of this date, be exempted from forfeiture notwithstanding the non-payment therewith of such portion of the Patent Fee, provided the Patent is sued out within One Year from the filing of such Certificate.

And further; His Excellency, in the hope of avoiding the necessity of rescinding any of the Militia grants, is pleased to direct this Public Notification; that all Lands granted to Militia Men, upon which the Settlement Duties shall not have been performed within the limited period, will in pursuance of general instructions given to the Surveyor General in all similar cases, be declared vacant, and will be granted within Six Months after the expiration of that period, to the first applicant, unless the Original Nominee, shall before such subsequent application, have lodged a Certificate of his having performed the Settling Duties.

JOHN SMALL, Clk. Ex. Coun.

Executive Council Office,
York, 7th Nov. 1821.

SELECTIONS FROM BRITISH AND FOREIGN JOURNALS.

Liverpool, June 8.

MR GRAHAM'S ÆRIAL EXCURSION.

On Wednesday last, Mr. Graham made another ascent in his balloon, accompanied by Mrs. Graham. The place fixed upon as ascend from was White Conduit House, near London The facial result of the former attempt of Mr. Harris, had thrown about the present a degree of interest which would not have otherwise attended it, and the number of spectators was consequently great. From 11 o'clock in the morning great crowds were hastening to the scene of action, and by 3 the gardens were nearly filled with respectable company, and the concourse of people outside was immense. In every direction, as far as the eye can reach, the crowd was as dense as it was possible to be, and the roofs of the houses which commanded a view of the gardens were covered with spectators. About a quarter before 5 o'clock, Mr and Mrs. Graham came from the tavern, and ascended the stage amid loud plaudits. Mr. Graham was dressed in a suit of black, and wore a cap, and his lady was attired in a spelise and bonnet of white satin. She seemed in delicate health, but perfectly collected, and conversed cheerfully with those about her while the final preparations were making. At twenty-five minutes past 5 Mr. and Mrs. G. entered the car, and the suspending cords having been brought up and lashed to the balloon, (his friends meanwhile holding it down) and every thing being ready, Mr. G. gave the word, and the balloon was let go. It ascended only five or six yards, and then lowered nearly to the ground, and there were apprehensions that it would come in contact with a row of houses adjoining the garden; but a long rope had been attached to the car, which was held by those upon the stage, and they pulled with all their strength, cleared it of the houses, and it ascended speedily and majestically Mr. and Mrs. Graham stood up in the car, and bowed repeatedly to the crowd below, and the cheering was loud and hearty. The balloon proceeded rather slowly in a south-westerly direction, and it had not arrived at a great altitude when Mr Graham discharged a quantity of ballast, and this he repeated several times before the balloon disappeared The atmosphere was much clouded, and the balloon, after being 12 minutes in sight, entered a dense cloud, and was lost to the view. It is impossible to conceive a finer ascent.

The Æronauts descended at Cuckfield, in Sussex, forty miles from London, at five minutes before seven o'clock, having been exactly one hour and twenty minutes on their voyage. Soon after starting, they got into a dense cloud, which had such an effect on them as almost to prevent their hearing each other talk They alighted in a field belonging to Mr Browne, a farmer, who rendered every assistance. The thermometer, at a quarter past six, was at freezing point, and at half past six so low as 20. They arrived in Portland Street at 3 o'clock on Thursday morning from whence they instantly proceeded to White Conduit Gardens. Both Mr. and Mrs. Graham were in good health and spirits.

It is a singular coincidence, that at the moment Mr. Graham's balloon passed over Tottenham court road, the mourners of Mr Harris were returning from St. James's burial ground, where they had just deposited the remains of that unfortunate adventurer.

In an account given by Mr Graham of his voyage he says; I need not say any thing concerning Mrs. Graham on this occasion.—Her conduct on entering the car is quite sufficient to prove the pleasure I experienced from her company and remarks during the voyage. The length of line to the grapling-iron was two hundred and seventy feet. Mrs. G. looking over the car observed the grapple to talk about the size of a small knife.—The greatest height we reached appeared to be, by the gauge, two miles and a half. Mrs Graham threw over the car an empty ballast bag; after this had descended a considerable distance, it became inflated, and ascended to the level of the car, and remained with us till we descended, having at one time reached as high as the equator of the balloon. After quitting the car, Mrs. Graham wrote five slips of paper, and fastened them to the pigeons we had taken up, but the heavy storm that prevailed at the time of the flight, prevented them reaching their homes as soon as was expected.

London, June 11.

LAND EXPEDITION TO THE NORTH POLE.

The final orders from the Lords of the Admiralty for the sailing of the expedition to co-operate with Capt Parry, in the event of being able to meet in the Arctic Regions, were received on Wednesday evening, and the Griper, which is to take out the expedition and proceed with it, was immediately swung upon the buoy in the tier in readiness for departure in the morning. Capt. Lyon came on board at ten o'clock on Wednesday night, and was accompanied by the whole of his officers. The crew were on board the transports, and on shore, and were, by permission, allowed to remain with their friends, and to enjoy the festivities of Greenwich Fair, and were not mustered until half-past nine o'clock yesterday morning; they were inspected by Capt. Lyon and his officers. The men appeared in excellent health and spirits. At ten o'clock the Commander from the quarter deck gave the signal for sailing, and the Blue Peter was run up. The Comet steam-yatch was then towed along side, and moored fast to the Griper. Notwithstanding the incessant rain, which at this moment came down in torrents, the shores and dock-yards were lined with spectators, who seemed to take a great interest in the departure of the hardy adventurers. A few minutes after six o'clock, the tide serving, the Comet proceeded to "clear the liquid way," with the Griper in company The crews of the different ships in the river gave three cheers as the Griper passed down, which were answered by her crew. The departure of the vessel produced a very great excitement of sympathy from the spectators. The Griper is no fine sailing trim, and her tonnage does not now exceed 380 tons, having undergone a great part of her stores into the Snap transport, which accompanies her to Davis's Straits. The crew of the Griper is composed of only 34 men, who are commanded by eight officers, all including the gentlemen who accompany the expedition for scientific purposes The vessel went as far as Northfleet yesterday, where the remainder of the stores were to be taken on board, and the arms and ammunition shipped All the instruments of science have been on board some days Upwards of 6,000 persons visited the Griper within the last few weeks.

Intelligence from the East Indies give alarming accounts of a scarcity of provisions. Madras and the surrounding country was in a state of famine towards the last of December. A letter from Madras, Dec 23. says—"in the bazaars rice is not to be procured, and only one banksball is now open for its sale, consequently the rush of the people to obtain a portion of this small supply is dreadful, and the North Beach is covered with hundreds, waiting with the faint hope of being at least fortunate enough to reach its door Many European gentlemen are seen mingled with the crowd, endeavouring to procure grain for their servants, which, after having succeeded, the difficulty of carrying it away in safety is considerable, as the right to the property is the only law at present, and universally acknowledged. Some few merchants are dealing out their stock of rice scantily and secretly during the middle of the night, to avoid the scene of confusion and violence attendant on a public sale of it." The inhabitants of Pondicherry, are subject to fears, arising from the want of food There was no longer indulge the expectation that a fall of rain may yet save the harvest of the coming year, as we understand from those acquainted with the subject that the crops are already destroyed."

Another letter says—"On Monday night a vast multitude assembled in the Black Town, and proceeded to break open some of the rice stores belonging to native merchants, which were plundered, and much grain carried off Guards of native troops were sent to protect property of this description; the mob, how ever, defied the most daring and outrageous manner towards the sepoys—while the latter, we understand, acted with the greatest forbearance, under very trying circumstances; two of the mob, however, are reported to be wounded, and one killed It is imagined that not less than 100,000 persons were collected.

PUGILISM.

SECOND BATTLE BETWEEN SPRING AND LANGAN FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP.

The great fight between Spring and Langan, for £001 a-side, took place at Chichester, on the 8th of June, on a stage six feet high from the ground, and twenty four feet square, planked with three inch plank. Langan was attended by Tom Belcher, and his countrymen, O Neil, a rough unpolished mountaineer; the former as the favorite holder and the latter Crib was second to Spring, and Painter was his bottle holder. Both men were brought into the ring—Spring came forward first, threw his hat on the stage, and immediately followed it. Langan although second in appearing, was well received, and mounted the stage leading to the stage with a firm step, and going up to Spring, said, "Well, Tom we'll see to day which is the best man."—Langan was first stripped, and while he waited for Spring to perform his toilet, he looked round with great good humour towards some of his friends, to whom he nodded familiarly. Spring being dressed tied his colours to the upper rail of the stage; they were blue, with a white spot; and Langan's being a black flag, was tied over the opposite corner. The men on coming to the scratch looked extremely well in point of condition—Spring was stated to weigh thirteen stone seven pounds, and Langan twelve stone four pounds and a half. On setting to, three to one was offered in favour of Spring; and after a few rounds it appeared to satisfy every one that there was not an ounce for Langan. The superior science of Spring enabled him to plant his blows wherever he pleased both right and left, and he punished his man dreadfully. At the 71st round, there were cries of "shame" from various quarters, and Col. O Neil was called upon to take Langan away. Col O'Neil came forward to the ropes, and said he left the man in Belcher's care. From the state of Spring's hands, it was impossible he could receive any more punishment, and as Langan had £001 of his own money on the fight, he did not like to interfere 74 Another round—Spring fibbed his man, and laid him down gently, evidently wishing to avoid administering more punishment.

74 Langan pushed down without a blow.

75 As Langan sat almost senseless on O Neil's knees Crib addressed him, and said, "So help me God, Langan, you are as brave a man as ever stepped in leather, but you have not a shadow of a chance, so don't be gammoned to come again." Langan, however, tried it once more, and fell almost senseless.

76 Langan was again at his post. Spring fibbed him gently, and he dropped The umpires now said that it was cruel to go further, and Belcher reluctantly gave in.

The battle lasted an hour and forty-eight minutes; and Langan was most shockingly sacrificed The falls from the ring to take him away from the 24th to the 70th rounds, were vehement. He was blind of both eyes, but still refused to yield. A braver man was never seen.

The latest accounts from Chichester say, that Langan is doing as well as can be expected, considering the severe punishment he received. On Wednesday last he was able to walk about his room for a short time, but in a state of total darkness. He complains most of his head, and particularly of a spot over his right temple, which, he says, was struck against one of the posts of the stage in a fall. At first it was thought that his skull was fractured in that part, but it is now ascertained that this is not the case. Many persons went up to see him in the after part of the day of the fight, some of whom dropped their sovereigns as a mark of their estimation of his bravery.

It is not probable that he will be in a state fit to be removed for some days O'Neil, his countryman, who went into the ring with him, attends him constantly Spring arrived in London on Wednesday; he suffers much pain from his hands, particularly his right one. He went to see Langan before he left Chichester: and we hear that he generously gave the fallen man ten pounds

It is supposed that the injury done to Spring's face is such that it will be impossible for him, were he disposed, to fight again.—Langan seems to have calculated on the effects of his iron head upon his adversary's knuckles; and in this he was right He ran in head foremost, regardless of the most tremendous blows on that sob, which, if we considered nothing but the hardness, we should suppose could have no effect in it for bruise. After all, though the Irishman was no match for Spring in science or length, it was no sinecure to thump such a piece of stuff as Langan for two hours.

The above contest has exhibited nothing but science on one side, opposed by a hard head on the other, and a foolish and obstinate determination not to give up as long as a spark of life was left.

Such was the interest felt in London on the result of this battle, that the evening papers published two thousand of a second edition after nine o'clock in the evening of the day the fight took place

AN OLD SOLDIER.

On the night of Thursday se night an aged couple, residing without Elgin gate in this city (Hereford) were amused by a loud knocking at the door, and called upon by a noisy applicant to welcome a long absent son, whom they had not seen for years; and they supposed was serving his country in a Regiment of Light Dragoons in India. In consequence the old man arose, procured a bed for the "veteran," at a neighbour's house, and anxiously expected the morning. With its earliest dawn the happy parents welcomed the soldier to their humble breakfast table, and a long conversation ensued on family matters, in which discussion the "veteran" seemed perfectly at home, particularly as to a sum of £400. "which he knew belonged to him," and of which the parents received the interest. Every thing appeared so correct, that the old man was satisfied the stranger could be no other than his own flesh and blood;" but his better half, on minute examination, felt some doubts on the subject, and began various singular inquiries—her son, she asserted, bore the marks of small pox on his face before he went abroad, but nothing of the sort was visible now; The soldier assured her they had been obliterated by a fever very peculiar to the East; this, however, did not satisfy the dame and at length the cross examination became so perplexing that the dutiful son declared his mother mad, and appealed in powerfully to his father, that the old man asserted he was satisfied, and counseled that his son should go to Leominster to receive the £400. Towards Leominster the hero accordingly proceeded, but at Din more he met with an awkward, "skirmisher in advance" in the shape of a constable who made him a prisoner, on a charge of having obtained £4. from another father, in or nea Leominster, to whom he had claimed kindred with the completest success This was a thunderbolt to the father with four hundred, who was astonished to find this—child of any father—no son of his, and he returned to his better half to compliment her sagacity, and acknowledge the truth of a certain proverb, which declareth that "he is a wise father who knows his own child." There is little doubt that the imposter had served in the Regiment (the 22d), and in the confidence of companionship had learned from different soldiers the residence of their parents and friends in England, besides various domestic occurrences, which enabled him on his return to this country to commence a campaign of the same kind here, he would have made no village to the tune of £400. The fellow was very improperly suffered to depart on refunding the £4. and doubtless will be attempting to play the old soldier and practice similar manœuvres in other places.—Hereford Journal.

VENTRILOQUISM.

(FROM THE EDINBURGH WEEKLY JOURNAL.)

The attraction of M Alexandre, that most astonishing of all ventriloquists, appears to increase rather than diminish, judging by that surest of all tests—the numbers that attend his performances. We went to see them last night, and, having been rather late, were received at the door with the encouraging information that there was tolerable standing room in fact, the place was crowded to overflow. All the feats of vocal magic were repeated with unabated effect; and a new one was gratuitously (for it was not in the bill) added, to the excessive entertainment of the hearers—that of instructing one of the ignorant in the mysteries of ventriloquism. We have neither time nor room for particulars; but it was as graciously received as gratefully intended.

This ingenious foreigner was on a visit at Abbotsford some days since; and having chanced to mention to his distinguished host that he kept a sort of Album, or Scrap book, in which were deposited various tributes which had been paid to his talents by many eminent individuals of the countries he had visited, Sir Walter stept aside, while the carriage was getting ready for his guest's departure, and immediately presented to him the following good humoured and characteristic lines:—

TO MONS. ALEXANDRE.

Of yore, in Old England, it was not thought good,
To carry living images under one hood:
What should folks say to you, who have faces such plenty,
That from under one hood you last night shew'd us twenty?
Stand forth, arch deceiver! and tell us, in truth,
Are you handsome or ugly, in age or in youth?
Man, woman, or child? or a dog, or a mouse?
Or are you at once, each live thing in the house?
Each live thing, did I ask? each dead implement too?
A work shop in your person—saw, chisel, and screw.
Above all, are you one individual? I know
You must be, at least, Alexandre and Co.
But I think you're a troop—an assemblage—a mob—
And that I, as the Sheriff must take up the job;
And, instead of rehearsing your wonders in verse,
Must read you the Riot Act, and bid you disperse;

WALTER SCOTT.

Abbotsford, April 23.

A few days ago, a servant girl entered the shop of courteous silk-mercer in a fashionable town not quite a hundred miles from the banks of the Cheli, and asked for some pink ribband. The obliging mercer, who does not think of blushes like Peter, desired to taste the poor damsel, and placing some purple ribband on the counter, facetiously asked her whether she could not "fancy it was pink?" "Oh yes," replied the arch Abigail, "certainly sir; please to cut me off twelve yards of it." The mercer, who had not expected to be so high betsent, measured the required quantity, and with his most graceful bow presented it to his customer, who after thanking him for his civility, thus played one of the best retorts that we have heard of for a long time. "To oblige you, sir, I fancied this purple ribband was pink—so oblige me now by fancying yourself paid!" and bowing left the shop The scene we pronounce inimitable!—Thus "fancy does all colours show."—Cheltenham Chronicle.

A circumstance of a very interesting and affecting kind occured some time since in one of the Greek Isles. A number of the islanders, terrified at the approach of a Turkish force, hurried on board a large boat, and pushed off from the land The wife of one of them, a young woman of uncommon loveliness, seeing her husband departing, stood on the shore stretching out her hands towards the boat, and imploring, in the most moving terms, to be taken on board. The Greek saw it without concern or pity, and, without regarding her cries, bade his companions, hasten their flight. This unfortunate woman, left unprotected in the midst of her enemies, struggled through scenes of difficulty and danger, of insult and suffering, till her failing health and strength, with a heart broken by sorrow, brought her to her death bed. She had never heard from her husband; and when wandering among the mountains, or lying hid in some secluded habitation, or compelled to urge her flight amidst cruel intrigues, her affections for him and the hope of meeting again, bore up her courage through all. He died at last, when the enemy had retreated, and the Greeks had sought their homes again, and learning her situation, was touched with the deepest remorse.—But all hopes of life was then extinguished; her spirit had been tried to the utmost; love had changed to aversion, and she refused to see or forgive him. There is at times, in the character of a Greek woman, as more than one occasion occured of observing, a strength and sternness that is remarkable. Her sister and relations were standing round her bed; and never in the days of her health and love did she look so touchingly beautiful as then; her fine dark eyes were turned on them with a look, as if she mourned not to die, but still felt deeply her wrongs; the natural paleness of her cheek was crimsoned with a brettie hue, and the rich tresses of her black hair fell disheveled by her side. Her friends, with tears, entreated her to speak to and forgive her husband: but she turned her face to the wall, and waved her hand for him to be gone. Soon the last pang came over, and affection conquered; she turned suddenly round, raised a look of forgiveness to him, planted her hand in his, and died.

ON THE DEATH OF THE HON. THOMAS SCOTT.

Oh mournful muse! melpomene! arise—
She comes with solemn steps and downcast eyes,
Raises her hand points to the earthly bed,
Where rests the ashes of the virtuous dead.

Soft heaves her bosom while her accents roll,
With sad remembrance thrilling to the soul;
There Scot remains in solemn silence sleep,
There Science, Virtue, Truth and Justice weep.

There lies a man whose upright heart and hand,
Once bore the sword of justice in your land,
Once stood the champion of his country's cause,
To impartial guardian of his country's laws.

There lies the empty casket where is fled
That gem the spirit, lo! from earth 'tis freed,
Aerial it flies, mounts on triumphant wing,
Nor heeds of grave the power, of death the sting.

Peace to his ashes on that clay-cold bed,
'Till the last triumph shall wake the slum'bring dead,
Then shall he rise, shall join the angelic choir,
And feel a seraph's love, a seraph's fire.

Where's now the sword of justice lo! 'tis borne,
By one his station fitted to adorn,
By one whose deeds demand from truth the praise,
Where POWELL sits in judgment justice sways.

Long may he live to guard his country's laws,
And feel that high reward his hearts applause,
And then like SCOTT in honour sink to rest,
Rever'd by all regretted by the best.

THE UNION.

Letters have been received by a respectable mercantile House in this city, from London, mentioning that a bill for uniting the Provinces of Lower and Upper Canada, was recently brought before the House of Commons, and ordered to be printed. The letters further state that His Majesty's Ministers intend to act on this bill in the early part of next session.—C. Com't.

Extract of a letter to a Commercial House in this City, dated London, June, 14, 1824.

"The East India Company have just made public their intention of opening a Trade in Teas direct to Canada from China; and a bill is now in progress through the Houses of Parliament to allow them.—The detail is not arranged; but it is intended to have public sales—the monies received to be paid into the Colonial Treasury; to be accounted for with the Company at home. The Tea is ordered to be in readiness at Canton in January next."—Canadian Times.

Accidents.—On Friday evening as Mr and Mrs. William Wragg were taking a ride in a calech, the horse stumbled near the entrance of the St. Antoine Suburbs, and the sudden jerk threw Mr. W (who was not in a good state of health) out of the Vehicle: he fell on the side of his head, and right shoulder, his collar bone was broken, and his shoulder dislocated. He lied profusely from the ear, and lay for some time in a state of total insensibility. Surgical aid was procured as soon as possible, and we are happy to say he is now in a fair way of recovery. Mr. W was left in the Carriage; her feelings at that moment cannot be described, the crowd which immediately collected on the occasion frightened the horse, and he ran with full speed towards the bridge, some persons attempted to stop him at the entrance, but he made a violent plunge, and narrowly escaped the creek. Mrs. W. cried out to let the horse pass, and no further resistance was then made by those on the bridge, over which he bounded furiously; many unavailing attempts were made to stop his progress in the suburb, during which time Mrs. W. thought destruction inevitable, she did not however in this perilous predicament lose her presence of mind. she made a successful effort to reach from the carriage and hold fast by the harness, considering that in the event of the calesh being overturned, she might be more secure in that position. While she was thus situated, the reins fortunately met her eye, she seized them. and regaining her place in the carriage drew tight the reins and was most providentially saved from the impending danger. The spectators cried out "you are safe"; it was then that her feelings overpowered her, she sank down in the carriage and remained for a considerable time deprived of all powers of recollection. We have seldom had occasion to notice a circumstance which so strongly marks the protecting care of a merciful providence, as the one above mentioned.

Messrs. Auclair and Marion, with their wives went from this city on Sunday last to visit some friends on the opposite side of the river; they stopped at a house a few miles from La Prairie to give the horse some water. the men got out of the waggon, leaving the women in it, the bridle was taken off the horse, and one of the husbands held him by the mane. Some persons returning from church drove past at the time, and the cracking of their whips frightened the horse, who disengaged himself from the hold, and ran off violently; the waggon was dashed against a fence, and the women thrown out. We understand that Mrs. Auclair had three ribs broken, and Mrs. Marion (her sister) had her arm broke. They were carried to town on Monday morning.

On the same day, Mrs. Johnson. wife of Mr. Johnson, Baker, residing in Commissioners Street, which runs along the banks of the river. had just got into a calesh, when the horse in place of proceeding as she intended, continued to back towards the river, where the bank is remarkably high, over which he would have been precipitated had not the wheels of the carriage come in contact with a large Potash Kettle which was lying within a short distance of the edge of the bank; by the violence of this resistence, Mrs. J. was thrown from the calesh and we are sorry to state had one of her legs broken.—Canadian Courant.

THE LAUNCH.

The long expected launch of the great ship took place on Wednesday morning last at the point of the Island of Orleans, in presence of a large concourse of people, assembled to witness an event which forms as important an epoch in the history of naval architecture, as it does in the annals of this province. The St. Lawrence, which but a few years ago, comparatively speaking, had borne on its wave only the rudely constructed canoe of the native Indian, has now floating on its waters the largest ship in existence, or of the building of which for navigable purposes we have any authentic record. This immense vessel, has, with great propriety been named The Columbus.

Her dimensions are as follows—length 300 feet, breadth of beam 50 feet and depth of hold 30 feet, her model is also as extraordinary as her dimensions, being precisely that of a Candian batteau, that is, perfectly flat bottomed and wall sided, the stem and stern post nearly or altogether perpendicular, and both ends sharp alike, without any fullness as is the case in the bows and sterns of ships of the usual construction. So that her floor may be compared to a parallelogram, with an acute equicrural triangle at either extremity. Her tonnage by register is 3,600 tons, but she is thought to be capable of carrying at least 6,000 tons freight, her stowage is somewhat embarrassed by the massy beams which connect her side timbers, or she would probably freight 7,000 tons.

This ship has been an object of general curiosity since she was first laid down, her dimensions, so far exceeding any which have yet been attempted in the largest ships of war, that even a faithful report of the bulk was received with suspicion, and a number of vague stories were set afloat as to the intention of the builders in framing this wonderful craft, it was imagined by many, that a solid mass of timber was to be built in, something like the shape of a vessel, and covered with an outward sheathing of plank sufficiently strong to render her capable of traversing the ocean at a favourable season when good weather might be expected, but as the work advanced, it became evident from the regular plan pursued and the solid manner in which her massy frame was connected, that something more was intended than a mere ship shaped raft, she is now a complete vessel, and it is expected will prove sufficiently managable, but will not probably perform more than one voyage. Every precaution has, however, been taken for the safety and comfort of those who are to navigate her. Her cabin and a safety room being prepared. that should the vessel by any means become water logged, the crew would endure but little inconvenience. Many persons entertained doubts of the possibility of launching this stupendous fabric, and there were not wanting those who affirmed that she would never float, but remain on the blocks where she was built, a monument of the presumptuous folly of the projectors.

The events of Wednesday proved how much the wonderers and doubters had been mistaken, and shewed how able the work had been conducted and how minutely and justly the builder had made his calculations. At half past or 35 minutes past seven, this ponderous mass was put in motion with as much facility as any smaller vessel and slid majestically into the St. Lawrence. The length of the ways was somewhat less than 600 feet, and precisely one minute elapsed between the period when she moved and that of her reaching the water, her entrance into which was greeted by appropriate airs from the military bands in attendance, and repeated salutes from the guns of the Steamboats, and some which had been planted on the shore for that purpose. Her ways were much scorched by the friction of her motion, and so great a smoke arose, that distant spectators imagined some accident to have taken place. From her peculiar construction in the wedge-like form of her stern, and the small proportion her breadth bears to her length, she created but little swell, even the smallest boats were hardly tossed, and no sensible motion was experienced on board the Steamboats and larger vessels.

Three of her four masts were standing, that is, the first and second main-mast-, and her try sail mast—the sheers were also up for shipping the fore-mast and her bowsprit was in; the whole of these appear so small when compared with the bulk of the hull, that they look like jury spars, her main-sail is not larger than that of a small 74. As soon as she lost way, she was taken in tow by the Steam-boats, Swiftsure, Lady Sherbrooke and Malsham; and conducted to the Montmorenci channel, where she dropped her anchor, which did not appear to us larger than we have seen on board a first rate ship of War.—The weight is 18 Cwt. 2 Qrs.

The day was remarkably fine and the river presented an animated spectacle, no less than seven steamboats and an amazing number of rowing and sailing boats being upon the water. Those who contented themselves with a view from the works of the Town or Cape Diamond, though they had but a distant sight of the launch had the pleasure of enjoying the moving scene upon the St. Lawrence as in a panorama. The effect of the military bands upon the water was very fine; the Swiftsure, which after the business of the launch was over, made the tour of the Island of Orleans, had on board the band and bugles of the 71st Regt.; the 68th band enlivened the Lady Sharbrooke, whilst the admirers of the pibroch were gratified by the pipers of the former Regt. who were on board the Laprairie in full national costume.

Amongst the company in the different boats we saw some strangers from the United States, and several gentlemen from Montreal; what greatly enhances the pleasure afforded by this memorable occasion is, that we have not heard of any, even the most trivial accident occuring.—Quebec Mercury.

HIS MAJESTY'S Receiver General for the Province of Upper Canada, will be prepared to commence, on Monday the 14th day of June next, to pay to the Claimants for Losses sustained during the Late War with the U. States of America Twenty-five per cent on the Amounts Awarded by the Commission appointed under the Provincial Act of Parliament passed in the 4th Year of His Majesty's Reign, Cap. 4.

The List of Persons, and the sums awarded respectively, will appear in a future Gazette, as well as instructions for the Receipt of the Money, where it is done through the means of Agency.

Executive Council Office
York, 14th April, 1824.

NOTICE is hereby given, to JABEZ JOHNSON, or his Representative, to make good any claim he may have to Lot Number Two, in the Seventh Concession of the Township of Louth, in the District of Niagara within six months from this date, in default of which, the Lot will be otherwise disposed of.

By order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in Council,

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Ex'v. Council. 17—Gn.

Executive Council Chamber,
York, 31st January, 1824.

PRESENT,
HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
IN COUNCIL.

HIS Majesty's Government having recently extended their assistance to the class of Emigrants, which it was intended to relieve by gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres of Land, in conveying them to their respective locations:

IT IS ORDERED, that from the first day of May next, no gratuitous Grants be made or any quantity of Land to other than privileged persons.—And that as the Fee on Two Hundred Acres was raised, in order to defray the gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres the consideration having, the future Fee on Two Hundred Acres is reduced to Eight Pounds Four Shillings and One Penny Sterling; the existing Fee being 1819, and the Fee on all other Grants, in Townships surveyed since that time, to be the same as established by the Order in Council, of 5th January, 1819.

N. B. Possessors of gratuitous Grants for Fifty Acres, may, by paying the Fee on One Hundred Acres, receive a Grant of the adjoining Fifty Acres if vacant.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Ex'v. Council.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL CHAMBER, AT YORK, 26th JAN. 1824.

PRESENT;

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,

In Council.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR submitted to the consideration of the Board, the Sheriffs' Reports of their respective Gaols, together with other Documents relating to a Winter Circuit, by which it appeared that the House of Assembly had addressed His Excellency to that effect, for this Session only; and obviously for the Delivery of the Gaols in the several Districts.

The limitation of such a measure to one season seeming to militate with the Provision of the Law, that when the Communication from the Seat of Government admitted, and the circumstances of the Province required, there should be a regular Second Circuit, the Board would prefer to recommend that Special Commissions to deliver particular Gaols should issue where requisite; but, as the respective Reports from the Sheriffs' do not, in the opinion of the Board, require any unusual interposition, His Excellency, with advice of the Council, postpones a Second Circuit until the circumstances of the Province more decidedly require it.

JOHN SMALL,

Clk. Executive Council.

Executive Council Office, York, February 7th 1824.

WHEREAS it has been represented, that many persons who have received Locations of Land, have, from Sickness, and other legitimate causes, been unable to fulfil the Settlement Duty, in the time required by the Location Ticket, and have neglected to apply to His Excellency in Council for an extension of the period, for performance of such duty.

BE it Known that the period for completing the Set tlement Duty, is hereby extended to Two Years from the date of Locations until further notice shall be given.

JOHN SMALL, Clk Ex. Coun.

WHEREAS by the Tenor of the Location Tickets a Certificate is required to be lodged of the Settlement Duty being done within two Years, or that the said Location should be forfeited, and in case of Locations not gratuitous, that one third of the Patent Fee be lodged with such Certificate; AND WHEREAS it is represented, that in many instances, Certificates of performance of the Settlement Duty, have been withheld from the inability of the settler to deposit such proportion of the Patent Fee, it is deemed expedient to relieve the settler from forfeiture of his location, when he may actually have performed his settlement duty—Notice is hereby given that it all cases where Settlement Duty has been performed within the limited period, the settler shall, on filing Certificate thereof within six Months of this date, be exempted from forfeiture notwithstanding the non-payment therewith of such portion of the Patent Fee, provided the Patent is sued out within One Year from the filing of such Certificate.

And further; His Excellency, in the hope of avoiding the necessity of rescinding any of the Militia grants, is pleased to direct this Public Notification; that all Lands granted to Militia Men, upon which the Settlement Duties shall not have been performed within the limited period, will in pursuance of general instructions given to the Surveyor General in all similar cases, be declared vacant, and will be granted within Six Months after the expiration of that period, to the first applicant, unless the Original Nominee, shall before such subsequent application, have lodged a Certificate of his having performed the Settling Duties.

JOHN SMALL, Clk. Ex. Coun.

Executive Council Office, York, 7th Nov. 1821.

WHEREAS it has become expedient to establish a line of communication through certain remote Townships, for encouragement thereof, Grants will be made to actual Settlers in the Townships hereinafter named on the condition of Settling within two years from the date of the Location, at the reduced Scale of 5th January, 1819, viz:

A Township North of Mariposa, advertised from the Surveyor General's Office on the 19th of October, as

Government House, 6th March, 1820.

HIS Excellency the Lieutenant Governor is pleased to direct that no Location requiring Settlement Duty shall be Confirmed by Patent, without a Certificate from the Land Board of the District in which such Location may be situate, that the Settlement Duty required by the Order in council has bona fide been performed within the time specified by the Location Ticket.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 19th, 1824.

SELECTIONS FROM BRITISH AND FOREIGN JOURNALS.

An account of the proceedings under the insurrection act, during the last year, has been published by order of the House of Commons. It appears, that nothing less than seventeen hundred and seven persons were brought to trial, after periods of imprisonment, amounting in many instances, to two and even three months, though not more than 271 were convicted, and sentence was actually carried into execution upon only 75.

A bull was lately slaughtered at Astle, in Cheshire, which weighed one ton one hundred and eighty pounds: the rough fat taken from him weighed three hundred and eleven pounds. He was eight years old. Of a bull previously killed, at the same place, one rib weighed twenty-three pounds.

Mr. Kean the tragedian, has purchased ground for building a villa in the island of Bute. The situation, on the banks of Loch Fad, is truly beautiful, and the villa, in which he intends to reside, is now in a state of great forwardness. It is to consist of two stories, with a neat front.

We mention for the information of our female friends, that an entirely new article, called Circassian, or Casinette, is now manufacturing in the neighbourhood of Huddersfield, in very considerable quantities, principally for exportation to the Continent. The warp is of cotton, and the weft woiten, and all colours, qualities, and widths may be had. It wears well, and, in some colours look very genteel. The chief recommendations of this fabric are, its cheapness, durability and incombustibility; not that it will not burn, but it takes fire with difficulty, and is, on that account, well adapted for children's wear.—The Casinette makes a very pleasant dress, particularly in the winter season; and, though it is little more than the same price as calico, it will wear three times as long, and save a fourth dress in washing.

There are serious differences between the spring knife makers and their employers, at Sheffield; the former demand what they call the prices of 1810, which the latter, it appears cannot accede to. About 1500 men are out of employ, in consequence of refusing to work.

It is determined by the relatives of Lord Byron, that his remains shall be interred in Poet's Corner, Westminster Abbey.

At the Old Bailey, lately, William Campion was convicted of publishing a profane and blasphemous libel on the Holy Scriptures and the Christian Religion, and was sentenced to three years imprisonment in Newgate. Richard Hassall was found guilty in the same court, of a similar offence, and was sentenced to two years imprisonment, and to enter into his own recognisance in £100 to be of good behaviour during his life.

In the Court of King's Bench Thomas Thurtell, [brother of the notorious John Thurtell,] William Anderson, and J. B. Snowden were tried for a conspiracy in setting fire to their premises, situate in Watling street, in the year 1822, and for defrauding the County Fire Office of the sum of £1330. The Jury found Thurtell and Snowden guilty, and Anderson not guilty. The defendant Thomas Thurtell sat in court with great composure till the Lord Chief Justice began his charge, when he retired.—The trial lasted till near midnight.

The Rev. Mr. Dunbar has, by a series of experiments in Scotland, ascertained, that, when a queen bee is wanting for a hive, her majesty can be, and is produced from the egg of a working bee. In one experiment, having removed the queen, the bees set about constructing royal cells, and placing common larvæ in them; in seven days two queens were formed. One of these killed the other; and though, while in a virgin state, treated with no distinction whatever, she no sooner began to lay, than she became the object of constant solicitude and respect to crowds of her admiring subjects, who fed and watched upon her.

At a farm house, at Hooton, a short time ago, there was a little pet duck, which was accustomed regularly to suck a cat with her kittens; and at the hunting stable there is a large gentleman cat, which was pursued by a terrier bitch, which fondled with it as freely as with its own whelps. In the kitchen there, also, is a young rab fox, reared by a cat, who took the utmost care of her reynardian charge.

At the conclusion of the June Races, at Epsom, a number of ruffians on horseback, in chaises, waggons, carts, &c galloped down the course, broke down a chain placed to prevent their egress, and indiscriminately knocked down and drove over many persons on foot. One lady had her jaw broke by a horse treading on her; a countryman's arm was fractured, a boy was so dreadfully injured that his life is despaired of; a coachman was kicked by a horse, and died at the Magpie, in Epsom, in about an hour; a groom had his skull fractured and his horse killed; and many others were severely bruised.

A poor woman at Glasgow, one of those forlorn creatures who pick up their living on dunghills, chanced, a few days ago, to light on a small parcel which she took for meal; home she hastened, and made what she thought a delicious mess of pottage; but alas! there was arsenic in it, (used probably for destroying rats,) and she perished in great agony.

At Sheffield, a man was lately so dreadfully lacerated by a bear, which he kept for the purpose of baiting, that he died shortly afterwards. A boy 12 years old, was also stung in the leg by an adder, in a wood near Dumfries, the effects of which nearly proved fatal to him.

A Dr. Thornton has projected a balloon, and solicited subscribers at ten guineas each, to patronize his scheme. He describes this new vehicle as having wings and a tail, worked by a steam engine and mechanical powers; made to ascend and descend at pleasure, and to travel 100 miles within the hour, in any direction, and to carry letters and persons to any distance.

The following is the direction of a letter sent from Sheffield to Dublin, a few days ago; "For John——, private soldier, 2d or Queen's Royal Regiment of Foot, King's Military, Infirmary, Dublin. If dead please to read this letter.

DREADFUL PARTY CONFLICT.

Ireland.—The Enniskillen Chronicle gives the following account of the conflict at Inniniore:—On Monday last, a scene the most alarming among the many that have degraded this quarter of the country for some time, took place in Inniniore, a large island about five miles distant from Enniskillen. From the circumstances which we have been able to collect, it appears that a duel was to have been fought in the morning, between two men named Kenny and Lunny, the former a Protestant, the latter a Roman Catholic, and that the friends and adherents of both parties assembled on the occasion in great numbers. From the interference of some gentlemen, the quarrel was made up; but the bad feelings of the parties led to a general conflict, in which the Protestants who were at first by much the weaker party, were overpowered and beaten; and one of them, named M'Creery, had his skull fractured, and was left senseless on the field. The alarm of this affair, with the usual exaggerations, shortly after spread through the country, and a resident gentleman armed with guns, bayonets, and other weapons, repaired to the scene of action—On the appearance of the arms, the Catholics retreated to their cots on the opposite shore, on the Monaugh side of the country. The Protestants irritated by the circumstances above stated, fired and wounded several persons, and afterwards committed excesses in the Island. On the news reaching town, two companies of the 66th regiment, accompanied by Magistrates, set off without delay, each taking a different side of the lake, but on their arrival at the Island, the affair was nearly subsided. Some of the parties on both sides were made prisoners, and a few muskets seized and brought into town. On Tuesday the Magistrates assembled to investigate the business, and have proposed taking information on both sides. Thus, we believe, the matter at present rests. M'Creery, whose skull is fractured, was not dead when the last accounts reached us, but remained in a most dangerous state. A fair was held in Maguire-bridge yesterday, which, we understand, was also a scene of battery and bloodshed. On the evening of Sunday last, a Mr Graham, the Paymaster and Sergeant of the yeomanry corps of this town, was returning from the country, he was attacked by a party near Lisbellaw and beaten in such a savage manner that he was unable to proceed home. Mr Graham is a man of the most peaceable disposition and inoffensive manners; but in the present disorganized state of society here, the best disposed persons are equally the victims of the lawless and turbulent ruffians that distract the neighbourhood."

Genius Heroism.—When the plague raged violently at Marseilles, every link of affection was broken; the father, turned from the child—the child from the father; cowardice and ingratitude, no longer excited indignation. Misery is at its height, when it thus destroys every generous feeling—thus disunites the very tie of humanity. The city became a desert, grass grew in the streets, a funeral met you at every step. The physicians assembled in a body at the Hotel de Ville, to hold a consultation on the fearful disease, for which no remedy had been discovered. After a long deliberation, they decided, unanimously, that the malady had a peculiar and mysterious character, which opening a corpse alone might develope—an operation, it was impossible to attempt, since the operator must infallibly become a victim in a few hours, beyond the power of human art to save him, as the violence of the attack would preclude their administering the customary remedies. A dead pause succeeded this fatal declaration. Suddenly, a Surgeon named Guyon, in the prime of life, and of great celebrity in his profession, rose, and said, firmly, "Be it so: I devote myself for the safety of my country. Before this numerous assembly, I promise in the name of humanity and religion, that tomorrow, at the break of day, I will dissect a corpse, and write down, as I proceed, what I observe." He left the assembly instantly. They admire him, lament his fate and embrace him for the last time. The next morning, at the usual hour, Guyon, animated by all the sublime energy religion can inspire, seized up to his word. He had never married, he was rich, and immediately made his will, dictated by justice and piety; he confessed, and in the middle of the night, received the sacrament. A man had died of the plague, in his house, within four and twenty hours. Guyon, at day break, shut himself up in the same room; he took with him an ink-stand, and paper, and a little crucifix. Full of enthusiasm, never had he felt more firm or more collected; kneeling before the corpse, he wrote—"Moulding the creature of an immortal soul, not only can I gaze on thee without horror, but even with joy and gratitude. Thou wilt open to me the gates of glorious eternity. In discovering to me the secret cause of the terrible disease, which destroys my native city, thou wilt enable me to point out some salutary remedy: thou wilt render my sacrifice useful. Oh God (continued he) then will bless the action thou hast thyself inspired." He began—he finished the dreadful operation, and recorded in detail his surgical observations. He then left the room, placed the papers into a vase of vinegar, and afterwards sought the ingredients, where he died in twelve hours—a death ten thousand times more glorious than the warrior's who, to save his country, rushes on the enemies ranks—since he advances with hope at least, sustained, admired, and seconded by a whole army.

Extract of a letter from St. Thomas, June 8.

Yesterday evening a melancholy circumstance occurred here. A Danish gentleman named Gardiner, received information that his wife, a beautiful young woman, of twenty years of age, had formed an improper connexion with a young Englishman or German of good appearance, and respectability, he liberally gave him the means of paying for proceeding to Copenhagen, in order to make arrangements for proceeding to the European Continent. The people of the house left the lady in charge of her mother. He was to sail on the 6th instant, and the lover had a so taken his passage for Puerto Cavello. Every thing was settled, and nothing remarkable occurred till yesterday evening, when the wife of Gardiner took advantage of his being occupied in dressing at four o'clock, left his house and proceeded to that of the young man, which she joined her husband's. On entering she locked the door, and immediately afterwards two shots were heard. The people of the house forced open the door, and discovered the young lady a corpse on the bed, with a pistol wound in the lower part of her face, and the pistol at a considerable distance; whilst the young man was on the ground, likewise mortally wounded, having discharged his pistol through his mouth. It is presumed that he first discharged his pistol through his mouth. It would seem also from destroyed her, and afterwards himself. It would seem also from the position of the bodies that she urged him to the act, as well as from the circumstances of a letter having been previously written by her, to her husband, confessing her infidelity, commending him and desiring him to marry a woman more worthy of him, and more capable of rewarding his virtues. This is the more probable, as the young man had manifested on previous disquietude but subsisted cheerfully with some friends in his warehouse, until within half an hour of the fatal moment: there especially was a predetermination to die on the part of the woman is obvious from her letter

Execution of John Cannell.

On Friday last, the 14th instant, this unfortunate man forfeited his life to the offended laws of his country, according to the sentence passed on him at last Circuit Court, where he was tried and found guilty of two separate charges of uttering forged notes. All being ready, the doors of the prisoner began to tremble, and the fatal signal was given in his hand. He did not, however, the fatal signal was given in his hand. He did not, however, let it drop as soon as the executioner expected, and he had to touch him gently on the shoulder to remind him—he then dropt the handkerchief, and instantaneously with the act he sprung and the rope was round the back of his neck, and at the same time commencing his body downwards, as if he intended to spring, but doubtless, with the hope that he would thereby render his fall more easy. All this passed in an instant for he had no sooner done so, and the executioner cut the drop fell, and this world closed upon him for ever. He had continued to grasp the rope for a minute, and there can be no doubt that he himself was the means of heightening and protracting those pains and agonies which have no parallel but in the sufferings of the damned. He died as he had all along existed, hardened and impenitent to the last moment mentioned, and that he met his fate with the same composure which he had manifested from the time of his sentence, as upon descending the last ladder, he suddenly seemed to make a grasp at the spars of the folding gate and doors, which had come against his body whilst struggling; his hand, however, missed, and he was hurled off by the violence of the concussion, clenching his fingers in apparent agony. He struggled long and violently. The body was cut down after it had hung rather more than 30 minutes. He was cut off by his father and brother in a cart with all speed, under the fond but delusive hope, that efforts to restore animation would not prove unavailing. We understand the father had, a day or two previously, called on a medical gentleman in St Nicolas, and mentioned what he intended to do on getting the body of his son.—The surgeon immediately opened a vein in the temple, but without effect. He was more successful on opening the jugular vein, which flowed so freely that he could have taken any quantity of blood. The body was rubbed, and the usual methods adopted for producing circulation put in practice, but without effect; for no sooner was the blood drawn than the body became cold—the aspect of the countenance, and every thing placing it beyond doubt that the functions of life had now been for long suspended to expect that any human efforts could recal them again into existence. He is, however, confident, that if Campbell had been suspended for ten minutes less, the result would have been very different. More, he expressed himself in confident terms, that even under all the circumstances of the case, he had strong hopes of success had he been aided with the assistance of a galvanic battery.—Stirling Journal.

The Eye.—This very delicate and beautiful organ is exposed to many injuries, though protected by several admirable contrivances, which demonstrate design and considerate kindness on the part of the Creator.

A fact is stated in the Newspapers, of a person's becoming blind, in consequence of the eyes being pressed by another person in sport, is a remarkable instance. No visible injury had been sustained by his eyes; but it is at least probable, that, in the struggle, the optic nerves were either ruptured, or otherwise rendered useless. It is well known that the eye is merely an instrument. By means of its humours which answer the purpose of lenses, the rays of light are brought to a focus on the retina, forming an image of the external object. The retina is an extension of the medullary portion of the optic nerves, which are connected with the brain. If these nerves are divided, the communication is destroyed, and the eyes are rendered useless, though otherwise perfect. The following case, related by and English Surgeon, is in point:—

In going through an hospital on the Quay at Ostend, in order to assist the wounded French officers that arrived from Waterloo the night before, I was accosted by a tall man of about fifty years of age, a Brigadier General. He was a true picture of the old Napoleon soldier—the thick mustachio—the dark curled and careless looks—the stern countenance—the round earrings—the decoration of the legion of honour—all marked him out as one of the sons of glory. He advanced towards me bowing, and seemed to fix his full black eyes on mine, as he asked for my assistance. I begged to know where he was wounded; and he informed me that he had been shot through the head, that the wounds were nearly healed but that he was quite blind. I looked at his eyes, and found no alteration in them from the natural appearances, but on closer inspection found the pupils dilated and fixed. He then allowed me the entrance and exit of the ball. It entered between the top line of the ear and whisker, and having passed across the head, came out exactly opposite between the other ear and whisker. It was therefore evident that the loss of vision was occasioned by the optic nerves having been totally divided by the ball in its passage. From the intensity with which I examined his case he seemed to gather hopes of relief. I hesitated as I told him of the irreparable loss of his sight, and I saw the tears start from those fine, but now useless eyes, with a sympathy that instantly affected my own—it was one of the most extraordinary wounds I ever witnessed which did not prove fatal.

From the Albion.

Among the numerous passengers by the New York, we notice the arrival of three members of the British Parliament:—The Honorable Edward Geoffery Stanley, for Stockbridge, grandson of Earl Derby; John Evelyn Denison, Esq. for New Castle under Lyme, Staffordshire, and James Stuart Worley, for Bossiney, in Cornwall. They are quite young members having all been returned to Parliament since the last general election. These Gentlemen have commenced their tour by proceeding up the Hudson, and will visit the Canal, Niagara falls, the Canad s, and the Eastern States, and return to New York in the autumn. It is we understand, their intention to proceed to the south, and to be at Washington during the next Session of Congress. We are gratified to learn, that they have determined to rough it, and perform their journey like true travellers, by taking the regular conveyances of the roads; a plan which will bring them in contact with all classes of the American people, and of course afford them the best facilities of acquiring a true knowledge of the state of the country they have come to visit. Mr. Stuart Worthey is the son of James Archibald Stuart Worthey, the loyal and independent Member for Yorkshire. The Hon Edward Geoffrey Stanley will alter the demise of his father and grandfather, being in the direct line of succession, succeed to the titles and estates of Earl Derby. The title of Earl Derby is very ancient and respectable, its different inheritors having on various occasions adorned the page of history with feats of their bravery and patriotism. The Earldom was first granted to Thomas Lord Stanley, (second Baron) by Henry VII. in 1485, for his eminent services at the battle of Bosworth Field.—James, the seventh Earl, was taken prisoner at the fatal battle of Worcester, in 1651, during the civil wars, and was beheaded at Bolton shortly afterwards, notwithstanding his plea of having surrendered to one Capt. Edge, upon the condition of quarters being given.

This noble Earl was truly loyal, and of a generous and heroic spirit; he fell a sacrifice to the dastardly revenge of Oliver Cromwell, who sent a letter, offering him his own terms, if he would deliver up the Isle of Man; to which the Earl returned the following spirited answer:

"I received your letter with indignation, and with scorn I return you this answer, that I cannot but wonder whence you should gather any hopes from me, that I should (like you) prove treacherous to my sovereign; since you cannot be insensible of my former actings in his late Majesty's service; from which principle of loyalty I am no way departed.

"I scorn your proffers, I disdain your favours; I abhor your treasons; and am so far from delivering this island to your advantage, that I will keep it to the utmost of my power to your destruction.

"Take this final answer, and forbear any further solicitations; for if you trouble me with any more messages upon this occasion, I will burn the paper, and hang the bearer.

"This is the immutable resolution, and shall be the undoubted practice of him, who accounts it the chiefest glory to be,

"His Majesty's
"Most loyal and
"Obedient subject,
"DERBY."

Those who have read that excellent Novel, the King of the Peak, founded on facts which occurred during the reign of Queen Elizabeth, will recollect the amiable character of the Earl of Derby of that day; although, as the author remarks, the then Edward Stanley "was the proud, fierce, and wicked character here portrayed, I have to request that he (Earl Derby) will pardon me for having raked up the ashes of the only bad man of his house, to supply a picture in my gallery."

SHIP EDWARD NEWTON.

Copy of a letter from Capt. Bertody, late Commander of the ship Edward Newton, of Boston, to the owners, Messrs S G Perkins & Co.

"St. Phillip de Benguela, March 12, 1824.

"Gentlemen,—I have the painful task to perform of giving you an account of the destruction of the Edward Newton by fire. The impression forces itself upon me, and I cannot help remarking the great mercy of God in our preservation through the perils of all the interests we have in open boats, and finally, when our case seemed hopeless, and death (either by sword or famine,) appeared inevitable, by our sudden and unexpected deliverance into the hands of civilized and hospitable people.

"I will endeavour, as well as the bewildered state of my faculties will admit, to give you some particulars of this distressing affair. I left Calcutta on the 15th of December, Madras and Pondicherry on the 28th of the same month—had rounded the Cape of Good Hope, and was making the most of a fair wind, with the prospect of a short passage, when, on the 20th of Feb. in lat. 29, S. long. 10 1-2 E. this dreadful calamity befel us. On the day above mentioned, at half past 3 o'clock in the evening, smoke was discovered issuing from beneath the cabin deck, through the apertures of the pump-nuttle, which being instantly removed, discovered the ship to be on fire. Every exertion was made to smother the flames, but all to no purpose, as by opening the hatch it took vent, and fanned the flames, which rushing furiously up, filled the cabin, and obliged us to retreat or perish where we were. The fire followed us so closely and spread so rapidly on her deck, and the thick sulphureous smoke produced by burning saltpetre, having penetrated every part of the hull, we gave up all hope of saving the ship, and turned our attention to the preservation of our lives; and it was by the greatest exertions only that the boats were got out, and that we escaped sharing the fate of our ship. It does appear almost incredible, but is no less true, that in fifty minutes from the time the discovery was made, we were all in the boats, and the ship in one general blaze, even to the royal mast heads. "The flames from aft rushed along the main deck with such impetuosity, that the instant the launch struck the water, a lady passenger, with three children, (one an infant) were actually caught up and thrown into her. There was no possibility of getting below after our first retreat from the cabin; consequently not an article could be saved, either of wearing apparel, papers, or any thing which could serve us as food. Every thing of the stock kind was also devoured by the fire during this scene of confusion, that we were obliged to allow America it a providential circumstance, that we saved the only cask, containing twelve gallons water, all the others being under deck; with which, and a bag containing 15 lbs. of bread with a tarket of potatoes, we pushed off from the ship; being at that time entirely enveloped in smoke, as not to be able to discern each other in the same boat. After pulling off, we remained at a short distance to windward, with all eyes fixed on the shocking scene before us. The flames had now got possession of every part of the hull, and had ascended the masts as before mentioned, and the sails, which were all set, formed a solid body of fire—the dense columns of smoke shooting up and mixing with the clouds—a scene sufficient to appal the stoutest heart. At half past 6 o'clock, our goodly ship being dismasted, and burnt to the lower deck, (which had previously blown up) disappeared, and sunk, not leaving remained of her, save a few floating fragments of burnt spars. Night closed the scene, and left us to realize the misery of our situation. There remained no hope of obtaining any thing that might float from the wreck. All the provisions being below, were destroyed with the ship, and our only stock thus entered us with starvation. We had therefore no time to lose, but to make every possible exertion to reach the Coast of Africa; and with the help of two pieces of burnt sails and a compass, without charts, or covering of any description, and with what we stood in, we shaped our course (as we supposed) for the nearest point of the Continent, in boats—myself, Mrs. Nixon and children; and 10 men in the launch. the officers and three men in the other. Strong southerly winds and a northerly current, greatly protracted our passage, and reduced our stock of provisions very low, before we saw the land, coast of Caffraria, in at 19. S. a dreary, sterile coasts, inhabited by wild negroes and wild beasts, and presenting to us nothing but mountains of burning sands, and, on the sea coast affording no fresh water. To have landed here, would doubtless have been fatal to us all; and notwithstanding we were reduced by thirst to a state bordering on desperation, our reason still prevailed, and we had the fortitude to keep the sea with the land in sight,—and after suffering all that human nature could endure during twenty days, in the boats, we arrived on the 19th inst. at this settlement, and were received by the Governor in a most kind and hospitable manner, whose generous and unremitted exertions to supply our wants, and render our situation comfortable, do honour to himself, and entitle him to our lasting gratitude.

"Since my arrival here, I have interrogated the ship's steward respecting the immediate cause of this sad affair. I mean not to impute to him a design to destroy the ship. I believe the act of firing her was accidental; but his own confession to me, proves him to have been guilty of a most unpardonable breach of trust, in disregarding a well known, long established order from me, prohibiting the use of lights in the magazine in any case. He states that not readily finding an article he was in search of, he took advantage of my absence, and ventured to use a lanthorn; and there remains no other conclusion, but that fire was communicated in this way to a quantity of straw used for stowage of bottles.—This took place at 4 o'clock, and the discovery was not made until half past 5. By this time, the fire, as is generally communicated with the hold, and no doubt the whole after part of the ship was burning when the smoke was first discovered.

"In the constant burning heats of the sun to which I have been exposed, during the days of suffering in the boats, it has so affected my eyes, that it is with the greatest pain and difficulty that I see to write, and I find myself obliged to omit many particulars, which if added, could have no other object than to swell the list of our past sufferings, which, through the great mercy of God, are now for the present to have ended.

"We are here well fed and comfortably lodged, and gradual by recovering ourselves, with the promise of being shortly furnished with a passage to the Brazils.

"Mrs. Nixon, the lady passenger before mentioned, is the widow of an officer of the King's 44th Regiment now in Bengal a native of Halifax, for whom our friend, Mr. Newton, at Calcutta, interested himself to procure a passage to America.

"Gentlemen, your Obedient Servant.

A. BERTODY."

[Capt. Bertody has arrived in Hampton Roads, a passenger on board the Brig Eliza Reilly, from Rio Janeiro]

THE SEDUCER.

The man who lays a snare to entrap innocence, however shielded by the specious name of gallantry or gayety of disposition, is a fiend, and a monster that should be shunned and detested by society.

View thyself seducer! What are thy triumphs! Thou hast perhaps destroyed the fairest blossom of nature—planted the thorn of never ceasing woe, in the bosom of one who loved you—who trusted you; one who, perhaps had formed the tenderest wishes for your welfare, and who prized life, but as your happiness was centered in it; who thought to have named you by the most endearing of titles; expectations miserably disappointed! Unfortunate girl! The man whom you hoped one day to have called by the fond name of friend, husband or protector, has proved your bitterest enemy—your cruel destroyer

As the rose that blushes in the garden, if plucked by the hand of the wanton spoiler, is thrown under foot, neglected and forgotten: Alas! like unto it, art thou child of simplicity. Thy innocence had issued in thy ruin; he who once vowed eternal fidelity to thee, by him art thou forsaken and viewed only as an object of contempt.

Yet wretch! canst thou view thyself as her superior;—from whence the guilt that sinks her below thy level? It was from loving you and trusting you—this was her guilt her shame. Betrayed, perhaps, through love, to a momentary weakness, (which her better principles condemn,) your tears and your labours are accomplished—you have conquered! but despicable the exultation.

"Amid roses, fierce repentance rears,
Her snaky crest, a quick returning pang
Shoots through the conscious heart."

She knew of no disguise and expected none. Now view the heart of the afflicted penitent! see the pangs which rend her struggling bosom! The thorn of anguish rankling at her heart, instead of innocence and cheerful gayety—instead of that ease which arises from a knowledge of inward purity and worth, you see the conscious blush of shame, warm her pallid cheek—trembling lest all there might read her crime. Stung when alone by keen reflection—tortured by the pangs of neglected love and lost innocence—contemned by an unfeeling world, she dreads solitude, whilst the society of the virtuous is a constant reproach; and at length, having fallen a prey to sensations too acute, either sinks into an untimely grave, or buries recollection in the commission of new crimes.

Canst thou then, despoiler, behold the unhappy victim of thy desires, sink into the cold arms of death for relief from miseries of which thou art the cause?—or see her plunge (by thee led to the brink) into the gulph of woe and infamy? Blush miscreant! Whilst contemplating the deformity of thine own image, nor think the picture exaggerated, and abhor thyself.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

EAST INDIA HOUSE, JUNE 9.

Yesterday a Special General Court of the Proprietors of East India Stock was held at the Company's House in Leadenhall-Street, for the purpose of considering the draft of a Bill before Parliament to authorise the East India Company to import teas direct from Canton in China, to Quebec and other ports in British North America.

The Court met at 12 o'clock, when the proceedings of the last Court were read and approved of.

TEA TRADE IN CANADA.—The Chairman then called the attention of the Court to the draft of the Bill which was before Parliament respecting the Tea Trade with North America. The objects of that bill, and all the circumstances which led to it, would be found fully explained in a letter from Mr. Huskisson the President of the Board of Trade, to the Chairman of the Court of Directors, which would be read to the Court. Any information which this correspondence did not afford, he professed himself willing to supply to the best of his power.

This letter and the Chairman's answer were then read. The letter bore date the 26th ult. and began by calling the attention of the Court of Directors to the state of the Tea Trade with North America. From official communications made to Government, it appeared that upwards of 10,000 or 12,000 chests of Tea were annually consumed in British America, not a tenth part of which was supplied by the East India Company, but was smuggled in from the United States. That by this means a revenue of upwards of £50,000 was levied on the consumption for the use of the territory of United States. The attention of the local Legislature had been called to the subject, and annexed was an Address to the Crown, together with a report of the Assembly of Upper Canada, in which, after alluding to the loss of revenue before stated, those remedies were proposed: namely—Firstly, to permit the East India Company to import Teas direct from Canton to Quebec, or some other convenient mart for British America; secondly, to open the trade to individual merchants; thirdly, to legalize the trade already going on, and by imposing some duty on Teas imported from the United States, to indemnify the revenue, in some measure, against loss. Of these propositions, the last was so objectionable, that Government would not recommend its adoption, unless nothing better could be devised; the second was referred to the consideration of the Company, as such permission would interfere with their Charter. The first alone was open to great difficulties, and the Government might be misconstrued or abused in America. The third only was submitted to the adoption of the Court. The letter concluded with a strong recommendation to the Company to send to Quebec such a quantity of cheap Tea as would meet the demand there. The inducement to smuggling was stated to be the cheapness of the Teas, which, after paying enormous duties, and running all the risk of smuggling, could be sold more cheaply than the Company's teas imported from this country, although that was subject to no duties outward. The tea was of inferior quality, but just as the people could have no more difficulty in smuggling the same article in China than the inferior. The letter concluded with expressing a strong conviction, that the Company would comply with the suggestion, and that in so doing they would not only supply new channels of private emolument to influence general principles of commerce.

The answer of the Chairman and Deputy Chairman was then read. It was dated the 29th ult. addressed to Mr. Huskisson. It stated that the Court of Directors were not unobservant of the illegal trade in tea which had been carried on with Canada, and the prejudice which the revenue sustained for the benefit of the United States. Being anxious to prevent this evil, the Company professed its willingness to import a supply of tea direct from Canton for the American market, and in fact, orders had been transmitted to the Committee of Supercargoes at Canton to buy up a quantity of inferior tea, which was to be ready by the 10th of July next. But it was stated that an Act of Parliament was necessary to legalize this trade, as from the laws respecting the Company, no such intercourse could now take place.

The Chairman said that it was under the circumstances detailed in the correspondence which had been just read, that the Act now under consideration was brought into Parliament. That correspondence was so explicit as to the objects of the Act, that there remained for him but little to add. It would be observed that the Company had not parted with any of their privileges. They had only complied with the wishes of Government, moved from considerations of a public and commercial nature than from any hope of profit to themselves. He then moved that the Resolutions of the Court of Directors might be confirmed by the Court. He added that the powers given the Company in the Bill were in the alternative either to trade themselves or to license others to do so.

Mr. Rendal Jackson said it was important to know, first, whether the Company meant to trade on their own account; and secondly whether this direct trade from Canton was to be confined exclusively to Canada, or to extend to the West India Islands.

The Chairman said that, for the present, the Company were disposed to engage in the trade in ships freighted by themselves, and by no other, for future arrangements; and secondly, that the Bill applied only to the Continent of North America.

Mr. Jackson said he hoped the Resolution of the Court of Directors would be adhered to, and that they would confine the trade to their own ships. He then adverted to the alarms which were formerly felt at opening the trade to the East otherwise than through the medium of the City of London.

The Chairman said, the Hon. Proprietor's fears were groundless, and that the Company meant to confine the trade to ships freighted by themselves.

Some much conversation occurred between the Chairman, Mr. Carruthers, and Mr. R. Jackson, in which the Chairman stated that the Company were determined to freight ships on their own account, and he thought no objection could be raised to the Company having the power of licensing other persons to carry on this trade.

The Resolution was then agreed to.

HOUSE OF COMMONS, JUNE 11

TEA TRADE WITH CANADA.

Mr. Hume objected to the monopoly which would be given to the East India Company, and moved that the consideration of this question should be adjourned till Monday next.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer said that Government had not the slightest desire to extend the monopoly, and this Bill was not brought forward with such a purpose. As the law now stood no dealings in tea could be carried on with Canada, except through this country. That could only be done at a considerable expense, and the United States of America might and did smuggle Canada, without the payment of any duty, by the mere assertion of smuggling. This Bill gave no advantage to the East India Company, but was for the benefit of Canada.

Mr. E. Elliot hoped Mr. Hume would withdraw his opposition to the measure.

Mr. Bright wished the debate to be adjourned, because Members had been at no opportunity of considering the subject. He had thought the East India Company ought to be treated as a body possessing only the powers, for their interests were in opposition to those of the public.

Mr. W. Wynn said the question was whether the East India Company should be enabled to exercise the right they enjoyed in a manner most beneficial to the Colonies

Mr. Hume, in reply, said he would not divide the House.

The Bill was then read a third time and passed.

[We here subjoin the Bill itself, as it passed in the House of Commons, for which we are indebted to the Quebec Mercury]

A BILL.

To authorise the East India Company to trade direct from China to the British Colonies and Plantations in America.—1st June, 1824.

WHEREAS it is expedient that the United Company of Merchants of England, trading to the East Indies (or their own account, or permitted to be licensed by them, should be authorized by law to export direct from China to the British Colonies and plantations in America Tea and other merchandize:

May it therefore please your Majesty, that it may be enacted, and be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That it shall and may be lawful for the said United Company, and also for any other or other subjects, with the special leave and license of the said United Company in writing, or a special leave and license in writing under their authority for that purpose, to export in ships or vessels navigated according to law, from any port or ports within the dominion of the Emperor of China, any Tea or other Goods, Wares or Merchandizes, the produce or manufacture of any country within the limits of the said Company's Charter, and to carry and import the same direct, into any of the British Colonies or plantations in America, any law, statute, charter or usage, to the contrary notwithstanding.

TEAS.

Rough-guess of the Consumption in British North America.

In Upper Canada, men who are supposed to be acquainted with the population, estimate the number of families at forty thousand, others think that this number too high; however if it does not approach them far it will reach that amount in a few years, and on the information of those conversant with the habits of the people, and that Tea in general makes part of every meal with many of the families who begin to feel comfortable, the consumption of it may be moderately estimated at one Chest to 5 families, hence 5,000

4,000 Families in the Cities of Quebec and Montreal consuming each at the rate of three half a Chest to one and a half a Chest per month, taking the medium at only one half Chest for each of those families (not reckoning on the Shipping) 2,000

7,000 Families in the Eastern Townships, extending by William Henry, Chambly, St. Johns, and all the North side to St. Regis, one Chest to seven families, ... 1,000

7,000 Families from Three-Rivers exclusively to the River Raisin, and both sides of the Ottawa, including the Country part of the Island of Montreal, one Chest to five families, ... 1,000

6,000 Families from Three Rivers inclusive down towards, taking in the Country on both sides of the St. Lawrence not previously mentioned, and also Gaspe, and Chaleur Bay, one Chest to six families, 1,000

(And without having reference to near sixty thousand families more in Lower Canada, most of whom consume more or less in the course of the year,) this computation is supposed to be considerably under the actual consumption

Having no satisfactory data to follow in estimating the population of the Lower Provinces, as Halifax, New Brunswick, Cape Breton, Prince Edward's Island, and Newfoundland, (and the shipping frequenting these Ports, and there supplied with Tea, as well for immediate use as for Sea Stocks;) these may be put down at eighty thousands families, nearly all using Tea the year round, may be taken as in Upper Canada, at one Chest for eight families being, ... 10,000

Yearly consumption of British North America 20,000 chests

From which a deduction is to be made for the quantity legally imported Average of Chests of Tea legally imported and entered at the Custom House of Quebec (or previous to all Provincial Duties last five years, 14 915—

Yearly average, ... 3,144

Rate of the Lower Ports almost the same average 1816 to 1824, ... 4,000

Showing the immense quantity, ... 16,000 Chests smuggled into these Provinces—a loss to the honourable British Colonial, the Shipping interest, with all the demoralizing consequences that follow.—The Provincial Revenue of Lower Canada has for a length of time suffered a loss on the Article of Tea of £10,000 annually.

Upper Canada is mostly supplied with smuggled Goods from New York, Quebec, Montreal and the Eastern Townships past ly from N. York and partly from Boston;—the Lower Provinces are supplied from the India Houses at and near Boston, by Water and Land, on or near to the Bay of Fundy.

The population of Great Britain consume on the average, each struggling more than one pound and a half of Tea annually.—Stated at the India House in London announced in 1823 to 28,000,000 Pounds;—In British North America Tea is said at a much lower price than it is in England; and the consumption is supposed to exceed the proportion allotted to the British Isles, the Population of these Provinces at one Million, and the consumption of Tea at 1,000,000 pounds; and allowing three to each Chest makes 20,000 Chests, and form a comparison with the first Statement.—Mr. Miller's Gazette.

FOUR DAYS LATER FROM ENGLAND

By the ship Cortes, arrived at New York, on Monday evening, London papers have been received to the 24th June, and Liverpool to the 26th.

The British parliament was to be prorogued by the king in person, on the 28th June. The first regiment of life guards was ordered to escort his Majesty to and from the House of Peers.

The English and French funds had experienced an advance, with a prospect of a further rise, in consequence of its being positively announced that the King's Speech will contain the good pacific assurances, and it being understood that an eminent capitalist had given orders for large purchases.

The Royal assent was given by the House of Lords on the 23d June, after the rejection of certain clauses proposed by the Lord Chancellor.

The Hyperion frigate, which is supposed to have brought dispatches for the British Government from Columbia has arrived at Portsmouth.

Mr. M'Cready, the Tragedian, played the character of Cardinal Woolsey on the evening of the 23d June, from which it would appear that he had not taken orders for the church.

The Lord Chancellor has given notice for the next Session, of a law on the subject of corporations and associations.

The Liverpool Mercury gives notice, that it will publish Mr. Webster's speech upon the tariff, and expresses a hope that his brother editors of the metropolitan will also publish it. He prenounced "a most able piece of political economy."

Mr Gourlay had not been dismissed. He still remained in his sanity, and stated what he had done had been determined upon for five months.

Madame Riego, widow of General Riego, died in London on the 19th June.

The bill repealing the act which prevented artizans from leaving England, the shipping duties bill, and the new churches bill, have all been passed by Parliament.

A Frenchman, named Dubruel, formerly Receiver General at Amiens, has fraudulently obtained of Messrs. Rothschild, in London, bills on Paris to the amount of 9 070f.

Private letters from Paris, received in London, state that there is not the least foundation for the different reports that have been spread, of the persons who are likely to succeed the Viscount de Chateaubriand. M de Villele will certainly hold the Portfeuille of Foreign Affairs for some time to come. These letters mention that it is the peculiar wish of M. de Villele to cultivate the most amicable relations with the British Government. Some communications have already taken place, upon the subject of withdrawing the French Troops from Spain. It is said whatever course may be pursued in this matter, will be adopted with the previous concurrence of the British Government.

It is said that the late French Minister, Viscount Chateaubriand, is engaged in writing a pamphlet on his Ministry of 18 months, which will be published in the month of July, and may be expected to be extremely interesting.

In Madrid they had begun to impress all poor and unemployed persons for the army, which alarms the young men, and may produce a dangerous excitement on the public mind. The debate of June 8 9 and 10th, it is mentioned that the troops from Catalonia are coming in garrison in the metropolis, that many French troops are said to be entering the kingdom, and that it is very notorious when the King will return to Madrid. There is a general distrust of them manifested throughout all classes. The decree of amnesty has done little good.

Great distress prevails in the Spanish Province of Catalonia, from the failure of the harvest. A cargo of corn, which the custom house officers in virtue of a non-importation law, would every exertion to prevent the landing of, was secured by the inhabitants, who rose en masse.

The King of Portugal has issued a proclamation calling the ancient Cortes of the kingdom together.

A letter of a recent date from Salonica, state that the Greek Congress had assembled at that place, and was proceeding in its discussions favourably. It was wide stood that propositions would be made by the Turks to the Greeks, but the nature of them was very doubtful. The entire invasion army of the Turks was estimated at 90,000 men, but not the slightest idea was entertained of the result.

A service has been celebrated here in memory of Lord Byron; the catafalc was adorned with the sword of the Consul of France, brother to the historian of the "Regeneration of Greece." The Archmandrite Anthimos pronounced a funeral Oration, which drew tears from all the auditory.

Mr Edward Blaquire has arrived here with the funds arising from the loan of London. The death of Lord Byron had retarded the consignment, which is now effected. The Hetairese Government is prepared to receive the Turks on whichever side they may present themselves, and we are assured that Constantine Canaris is resolved to die first with his brethren, determined to or to the first follows their Example.—"or of signalizing himself by the burning of a third or fifth Pacha.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A CALMUC TALE, TRANSLATED FROM THE RUSSIAN.

A rich old man, who resided at the extremity of the camp, quite apart from the rest, had three daughters, the youngest of whom, named Kookju, was as much distinguished for her beauty as for her extraordinary wisdom.

One morning as he was about driving his cattle for sale to the Chan's market-place, he begged his daughters to tell him what presents they wished him to bring to them on his return.—The two eldest asked him for trinkets; but the handsome and wise Kookju said that she wanted no present, but that she had a request to make which it would be difficult and even dangerous for him to execute. Upon which the latter, who loved her more than the two others, swore that he would do her will, though it were at the price of his life. "If it be so," replied Kookju, "I beg you do as follows: sell all your cattle except the short-tailed ox, and ask no other price for it except the Chan's left eye." The old man was startled; however remembering his oath, and not doubting in his daughter's wisdom, he resolved to do as she bade him.

After having sold all his cattle, and being asked for the price of the short-tailed ox, he said that he would sell it for nothing else but the Chan's left eye. The report of this singular and daring request soon reached the ears of the Chan's courtiers. At first they admonished him not to use such an offensive speech against the Sovereign; but when they found that he persevered in his strange demand, they bound him and carried him as a madman before the Chan. The old man threw himself at the Prince's feet, and confessed that his demand had been made at the request of his daughter, of whose motives he was perfectly ignorant; and the Chan, suspecting that some secret must be hidden under this extraordinary request, dismissed the old man, under the condition that he would bring him that daughter who had made it.

Kookju appeared, and the Chan asked:

"Why didst thou instruct thy father to demand my left eye?"

"Because I expected, my Prince, that after so strange a request, curiosity would urge thee to send for me."

"And who else dost thou desire to see me?"

"I wish to tell thee a truth important to thyself and thy people."

"Name it!"

"Prince," replied Kookju, "when two persons appear before thee in a cause, the wealthy and noble generally stand on thy right hand, whilst the poor and humble stand on thy left. I have heard in my solitude that thou most frequently favourest the noble and rich. This is the reason why I persuaded my father to ask for thy Left eye; it being of no use to thee, since thou never seest the poor and unprotected."

The Chan, incensed and surprised at the daring of this maiden, commanded his court to try her. The Court was opened, and the president, who was the eldest Lama, proposed that they should try, whether her strange proceeding was the effect of madness or of wisdom.

Their first step was to send to Kookju a log of wood, cut even on all sides, ordering her to find out which was the root and which the top? Kookju threw it into the water, and soon knew the answer, on seeing the root sinking, whilst the top rose to the surface.

After this they sent her two snakes, in order to determine which was a male and which was a female. The wise maiden laid them on cotton, and on seeing that one coiled itself up in a ring, whilst the other crept away, she judged that the latter was a male and the former a female.

From these trials the court was convinced that Kookju had not offended the Chan from motives of malice, but the inspiration of wisdom granted her from above. But not so the Chan; his vanity was hurt; and he resolved to puzzle her with questions, in order to prove that she was not wise. He therefore ordered her before him, and asked:

"On sending a number of maidens into the wood to gather apples, which of them will bring home most?"

"She," replied Kookju, "who, instead of climbing up the trees, remains below and picks up those which have fallen off from maturity or the shaking of the branches."

The Chan then led her to the Harem, and asked her which would be the readiest way to get over it; and Kookju said, "to cross it would be farthest, going round, nearest." The Chan felt vexed at the readiness and propriety of her replies; and, after having reflected for some time, he again inquired:

"Which is the safest means of becoming known to many?"

"By assisting many that are unknown."

"Which is the surest means of always leading a virtuous life?"

"To begin every morning with prayer, and conclude every evening with a good action."

"Who is truly wise?"

"He who does not believe himself so."

"Which are the regulars of a good wife?"

"She should be beautiful as a peahen, gentle as a lamb, proud as a mouse, jealous as a turtle-dove as the scale of a fish; she must mourn for her deceased husband like a she-camel, and live in her widowhood like a bird which has lost its wings."

The Chan was astonished at the wisdom of the fair Kookju; yet, enraged at her having reproached him with injustice, he still wished to destroy her.

After a few days he thought he had found the means for attaining his object. He sent to her and asked her to determine the true worth of all his treasures; after which he promised to absolve her from guilt in questioning his justice, and to admit that she intended as a wise woman merely to warn him.

The maiden consented, yet under the condition that the Chan would promise her implicit obedience to her commands for four days. She requested that he would eat no food during that time. On the last day, she placed a dish of meat before him, and said, "Confess, O Chan! that all thy treasures are not worth as much as this joint of meat!" The Chan was so struck with the truth of her remark, that he confessed the truth of it, acknowledged her as wise, married her to his son, and permitted her constantly to remind him to use his Left Eye.

POETRY.

LINES.

Addressed by the late lamented Lord Byron to his Lady.

And will thou weep when I am low?
Sweet lady, speak those words again,
Yet if they grieve thee, say not so!
I would not give thy bosom pain.

My heart is sad, my hopes are gone;
My blood runs coldly through my breast;
And when I perish, thou alone
Wilt sigh above my place of rest.

And yet methinks, a gleam of peace
Doth through my cloud of anguish shine!
And for a while my sorrows cease,
To know thy heart hath felt for mine!

Oh lady, bless-ed be that tear!
It falls for one that cannot weep;
Such precious drops are doubly dear
To those whose eyes no tears may steep.

Sweet lady, once my heart was warm
With every feeling soft as thine;
But beauty's self hath ceased to charm
A wretch created to repine.

Yet will thou weep when I am low?
Sweet lady, speak those words again!
Yet if they grieve thee, say not so!
I would not give thy bosom pain.

Domestic.

A handsome boat of about 30 tons burthen, with excellent accommodations for passengers, has been fitted up for the purpose of plying on the LaChine Canal, which is expected to be opened for uninterrupted Navigation from St. Gabriel's Farm to LaChine, a distance of about 8 miles, before the end of next week.—We expect to be enabled in our Thursday's paper to give more satisfactory information relative to this interresting event, and to detail the particular objects which the proprietors of this boat have in view.

We understand that the Commissioners of the Canal are making every possible exertion for putting things in such a state of forwardness, so as to enable them to complete this desirable work early in the ensuing season; but until that is effected, the distance from Town to the farm is so short, as to render it only a pleasant walk to where the passage boat will ply from, in time to meet the Steam-Boat Perseverance previous to her departure from LaChine to the Cascades.—Canadian Courant.

GAOL BREAKING.

About seven o'clock on the evening of the 28th ult the sentinal in front of the Gaol of this city saw a man named J. B. Verdon, decending from a window of the tower next the Court House, he immediately ran to wards him with charged bayonet, the culprit was instantly secured, and returned to prison where he was placed in irons. This circumstance being known, the ward whence Verdon descended, was examined, when it was ascertained that the following old, and notorious offenders had made their escape, viz. J. M. Desjardins, Joseph Jolicœr, Joseph Moreau, Louis Dufort, Francis Maturin (this fellow formerly escaped from the Goal of Quebec, and was most probably the contriver of the late elopement) and John Reiley.

A prisoner in the room where those men had been confined states that they procured two old knives which they used as files for cutting the bars of the window, and when they had accomplished this part of their design, they cut up the ticking of their beds into stripes, which they tied together, by which they were enabled to lower themselves to the ground; this they did after nately when the sentry left that part of the prison on his walk to the other end, a considerable distance, and as the projection of the center part of the building prevented their being observed by the sentry they succeeded in escaping. From the manner in which they executed their purpose, there cannot be any blame attached to the sentinel then on duty.

We understand, that double sentries are placed in front and rear of the Gaol every evening at 8 o'clock, this being known by the prisoners they choose an earlier hour for their opperations; we think from the extent of the building, that two centries are necessary in day time as well as night. Not long before the transaction above mentioned Mr. Holland the Gaoler, with the Smith of the prison went to examine the different wards, they found one of the nuts of a screw in an iron gate of the window through which the prisoners escaped, nearly cut off, whereby they could with little exertion force the gate open, and cut the bars of the window. The Smith secured the gate, but the ingenuity of the fellows within overcame all difficulties, and through the very place which had been so lately strengthened, they made their exit.

It is to be hoped for the benefit of Society that these vagabonds will be speedily returned to their old quarters; vigilent search is now making for them, which we trust will prove successful.—ib.

Awful Warning.—A few days ago a child of between 4 and 5 years of age, the son of Mr. Moore clerk to the Brigade Major, got out of bed, and perceiving a decanter with spirits drank a sufficient quantity to cause his death on the following morning. The most skilful medical aid was procured, but every effort to save the life of the poor child proved unavailing.—ib.

Yamaska Mountain, July 31st, 1824.

REMARKABLE LEAP.—About 2 o'clock on the morning of the 24th July, as several persons were returning home to this place from the Circuit Court at St. Denis in carts, and were passing over Jean Bte. Denoville's Bridge across Yamaska River, the horse in the forward cart sheering a little to the right, the end of the axletree struck against the railing of the bridge, which caused the cart to stop suddenly; the persons in the cart being fatigued with the journey and travelling all night, were a little drowsy at the time; the hat of Mr. Lorenzo Wells who was sitting on the right side of the cart fell off, and between sleeping and waking he leaped suddenly from his cart to recover his hat, and jumped fairly over the railing of the bridge about twenty five feet into the rapids of the river below. Being very athletic, and a Shoemaker by trade, and much used to sitting, he had the good fortune to seat himself very easily in a small bason of water about thirty inches deep and just wide enough to receive him, surrounded by sharp cragged rocks on all sides.—His flight was so sudden, and it being very dark, the other Gentleman in the cart was totally at a loss to know where he was, whether he had like Elijah of old in passing the river Jordan suddenly ascended, or had fallen like Lucifer son of the morning, but Mr. Wells not leaving his station behind him, nor a double portion of his spirit, as the old Patriarch did, and the other Gentleman not seeing any chariot and horses of fire, he called out very audibly "Wells where are you?" When he (Mr. Wells) vociferated from his seat below, "here I am under the bridge, and am not dead yet!" He was immediately got out but soon fainted, a Surgeon was immediately called, and after proper treatment is now nearly recovered. A very singular fact is that his skin was not broken, except a small scratch on one finger, and in his side pocket he had a looking glass about ten inches square, which was not injured.—Canadian Times.

HARTFORD, July 12.

Cows.—A number of Cows in Wethersfield, have been seriously injured by the use of tubes in milking them. Their bags swelled, the milk afterwards taken from them was not fit for use, and then they dried up. We have heard, though it may be a mistake, that three Cows in Windsor have lately died, in consequence of this treatment. If it is so, it should be made known, that the use of this "invention" may proceed no farther; and gentlemen, in this vicinity, who keep large dairies, are requested, should such occurrences take place, to let some printer or other know of them. The loss of property is the concern of the owners, the saving of time to the boys or girls who are set to milk, and their better disposal of it, are matters of which we cannot judge, but the cruelty to the animals is unwarrantable.—This is not making a fuss about a trifle—a little reflection will convince people that newspaper paragraphs rarely mention matters of half the importance of this single mischief.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
In Council.

HIS Excellency the Lieutenant Governor has been pleased to refer to the consideration of the Board, the several Reports of their respective Clerks, dated on the 19th instant, and transmitted to the Office of the Executive Council on the 21st instant, and His Excellency is desirous that the House of Assembly should have the benefit of the information contained in the said Reports, and His Excellency is of opinion that the Licensing of Ferries in the Province would be productive of many public advantages, and would tend to the security of the Revenue.

The limitation of such a measure to one season seeming to militate with the Provision of the Law, that when the Communication from the Seat of Government admitted, and the circumstances of the Province required, there should be a regular Second Circuit, the Board would prefer to recommend that Special Commissions to deliver particular Gaols should issue where requisite; but, as the respective Reports from the Sheriffs' do not, in the opinion of the Board, require any [illegible] Disposition, His Excellency, with advice of the Council, postpones a Second Circuit until the circumstances of the Province more decidedly require it.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Executive Council.

Executive Council Office,
York, February 7th 1821.

WHEREAS it has been represented, that many persons who have received Locations of Land, have, from Sickness, and other legitimate causes, been unable to fulfil the Settlement Duty, in the time required by the Location Ticket, and have neglected to apply to His Excellency in Council for an extension of the period, for performance of such duty.

BE it Known that the period for completing the Settlement Duty, is hereby extended to Two Years from the date of Locations until further notice shall be given.

JOHN SMALL, Clk Ex. Coun.

WHEREAS by the Tenor of the Location Tickets a Certificate is required to be lodged of the Settlement Duty being done within two Years, or that the said Location should be forfeited, and in case of Locations not gratuitous, that one third of the Patent Fee be lodged with such Certificate; AND WHEREAS it is represented, that in many instances, Certificates of performance of the Settlement Duty, have been withheld from the inability of the settler to deposit such proportion of the Patent Fee, it is deemed expedient to relieve the settler from forfeiture of his location, when he may actually have performed his settlement duty—Notice is hereby given that in all cases where Settlement Duty has been performed within the limited period, the settler shall, on filing Certificate thereof within six Months of this date, be exempted from forfeiture notwithstanding the non-payment therewith of such portion of the Patent Fee, provided the Patent is sued out within One Year from the filing of such Certificate.

And further; His Excellency, in the hope of avoiding the necessity of rescinding any of the Militia grants, is pleased to direct this Public Notification; that all Lands granted to Militia Men, upon which the Settlement Duties shall not have been performed within the limited period, will in pursuance of general instructions given to the Surveyor General in all similar cases, be declared vacant, and will be granted within Six Months after the expiration of that period, to the first applicant, unless the Original Nominee, shall before such subsequent application, have lodged a Certificate of his having performed the Settling Duties.

JOHN SMALL, Clk. Ex. Coun.

Executive Council Office,
York, 7th Nov. 1821.

WHEREAS it has become expedient to establish a line of communication through certain remote Townships, for encouragement thereof, Grants will be made to actual Settlers in the Townships hereinafter named on the condition of Settling within two years from the date of the Location, at the reduced Scale of 5th January, 1819, viz.

Editorial Commentary.

We wish to apprise many valuable correspondents in the Country, who are in the habit of sending communications for insertion in this paper—that we have made it a rule to admit none where authors are entirely unknown to us—or, which may not be traced, should it be necessary to ascertain the writer—Not that we could be induced, by any personal consideration, to give up the name of such an author or communicant—but, for our own satisfaction. It is for this reason that, however much we approve a paper late ly sent to us, and subscribed "A By-Stander" it cannot appear until we know from what quarter it has been sent.

JULIAN shall appear in due time, and probably with some comments that may not be unacceptable to the readers of his well written, and well-intended, production.

Our readers must have observed that we have not been regular in noticing the returns of Members, from the various Towns and Counties of the Province entitled to Representation in the new Parliament. The cause of this apparent negligence originated in our willingness to wait until we could give a general return for the whole Province—designating the new, from the old. Members;—which it is our intention to do, as soon as we have all the necessary information.

Several interesting communications on the subject of the late remarkable Contest for the County of Durham are under consideration. Some of those on the conduct of the Returning Officer are inadmissible from their over-violence—for, however much we may have reason to condemn his proceedings, as the whole of his conduct will be inquired into by a committee of Parliament it would be improper in us to create an unfair bias by any premature exposure of facts regarding his inexplicable conduct.—How a man who is neither a Freeholder, nor an inhabitant, of the County in which he has exercised so high a ministerial function, came to be recommended, is a question quite too delicate, mysterious, and important for us to answer—although we may probably indulge the inquirer, at some future period, with a few remarks on this head.

THIS number of the paper being nearly made up, before his return, MR FOTHERGILL'S address of thanks and congratulation to the INDEPENDENT FREEHOLDERS of the COUNTY of DURHAM—cannot appear until next week.

The Speech of His MAJESTY on the prorogation of the Imperial Parliament, is a just reflection of the spirit that has prevailed with that lively interest and satisfaction which the certainty of national prosperity cannot fail to create. Most fervently do we pray that the people of this country will cultivate those feelings of content and attachment to the Constitution so powerfully recommended by our illustrious and beloved Monarch, which He so well knows how to appreciate, and on which not only our individual happiness, but the high station which the British empire holds among the nations of the world, does indeed, so mainly depend.—A never to be sufficiently praised Constitution; which should be the study of every man in CANADA—the only Colony in the world blessed by its possession,) as the only sure foundation of lasting greatness.

SELECTIONS FROM BRITISH AND FOREIGN JOURNALS.

Biographical Curiosity.—It is stated that the greatest characters in the world have sprung from a source of which the following list of their names might be greatly enlarged, if procurable by the world—we mean, of course, such as have emerged from obscurity by their own talents or virtues:—Homer was a beggar; Virgil o' a baker; Horace of a freedman; Theophrates of an old clothesman; Rosseau, the poet, of a shoemaker; L'd. Rosseau was a watchmaker; Robin the historian, of a cutler; Shakespeare of a tanner; James Cook, a very indigent peasant; Shakespeare of very poor parents; Benjamin Franklin of a tallow chandler, and himself a printer; James Monroe was the son of a mason; Rittenhouse was a goldsmith. Here is encouragement for young men of genius. Through the means of industry, perseverance, of good habits, every obstacle to the road of ever lasting fame has often been surmounted. If a young man of talents nevertheless be eminent, and pursues the requisite course, he will become eminent.

FROM THE LONDON MEDICAL ADVISER.

Nervousness.—Nothing is more common with people who feel and are habitually melancholy, than to feel, as they say, "a sinking" in the breast, a heaviness in region situated immediately over the pit of the stomach, which they are inexplicable from depressed spirits—What is the first symptom of a depression of the mind? A sighing—which is no more than an involuntary exertion of the respiratory muscles to keep them open from the weight newly imposed upon them; or, in other words, from the flagellations which the mind gives to the heart, lungs, and great blood vessels. These are stopping for want of breathing, and the blood-vessels are dispos'd to. If this fact cause (grief) continue, the sluggishness will follow, and therefore heavy sighing, still increasing as it goes on. The digestive organs—stomach, liver, and spleen, become subjects to be tried soon when he dreamed that one of them was murdered his fellow travellers. Rogers had been imprisoned with Huskey to rest for a day, and that he would soon after be condemned that his wife should be questioned on the same head. Soon as separately examined, and gave the dream exactly as Mr. Bloxby he rehearsed it; as also affirmed, that when Mr. Bloxby and Cranfield came to the house her husband ran to the inner and Cranfield came to the house her husband ran to the inner room, desiring her to take notice that three men were the identical objects he had seen when he dreamed that one of them was murdered his fellow travellers. Rogers had been imprisoned with Huskey to rest for a day, and that he would soon after be condemned that his wife should be questioned on the same head. Soon as separately examined, and gave the dream exactly as Mr. Bloxby he rehearsed it; as also affirmed, that when Mr. Bloxby feelings would find some rest; but the visitation that impended over her was still more calamitous than all that had preceded it. Bereft of parents, separated from her relations, a fugitive from her native land, her existence still found a stay in the consoling hope, that she should, one day or other, enjoy the society of her husband as the reward of her more fortunate. Never was there disappointment more terrible or severe heitherto. It is not necessary to detail the circumstances of her husband, or the consummation which concluded them. Suffice to say, that within three months after her arrival in London, the sanguinary act was perpetrated which extinguished every parental consolation and future hope. The account of his death reached us on the 15th November. Her poor frame could no longer rally or resist; she wasted and withered daily, under the corroding influence of a fatal decline, and at length closed her unhappy course in the embraces of her sister, attended by her devoted protector, the estimable Canon, and several distinguished exiles. Amidst the pangs, which, to the latest moment, enjoyed the confidence, and adhered to the tenderness of her husband, and never failed in proofs of respect, attention, and regard towards the widow.

Some few days previous to her dissolution she intimated to those around her an anxious desire to execute a testamentary document, and on the 12th inst. she duly made her last will in this instrument she not only arranges her private affairs, but further manifests additional proofs of unabated attachment to her unfortunate husband, and provides for its interment. She does ample justice to Great Britain, and directs her Executor, the Canon, to assure the British people of the gratitude which she felt towards them at her dying moments, for the sympathy and support which they extended to her in the hours of her bitter adversity, but what must strike with peculiarly affecting is her solemn and impressive though superfluous attestation to the purity and sincerity of the political life of General Riego, for she states that she esteems it to be her last act of justice and duty to the memory of her beloved husband, whose life, at the awful presence of her GOD, before whose judgement seat she feels she must soon appear, that all his private feelings and dispositions respecting his country corresponded with his public words and profession in defence of its liberties.

Her parents, in her youth, this amiable and accomplished lady, the story of whose life abounds with incidents of melancholy interest. All those whose feelings or opinions are worthy of consideration will readily extend to her memory the tribute of respectful sympathy.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

ONE DAY LATER FROM ENGLAND.

(From the Commercial Advertiser.)

The ship William Penn, arrived at Philadelphia on Monday, bringing Liverpool papers to the 16th, and London to the 25th—being one day later than our preceding advices —We lay before our readers the following items, together with the Speech from the Throne, at the prorogation of Parliament.

LONDON, June 25.

Prorogation of Parliament.—At 12 o'clock, the passage from Whitehall to the House of Lords, was completely stopt by carriages.

By half past 12 the benches appropriated to the ladies were completely occupied; many stood in the passages. The front benches, on both sides, were for the most part reserved for Peers —The display of splendid dresses, elegant plumes, and every variety of ornaments, was brilliant in the extreme. There were about 300 ladies in the House.

A few minutes before one o'clock, the Lord Chancellor entered at the lower door, and proceeded, slowly, in full robes, to the wool sack.

The Bishop of Chester immediately read prayers—Dr. Carr took the oaths and his seat as the Bishop of Chichester.

The Peers continued to enter in their robes.—The twelve Judges took their places on the wool sack.—The Duke of York appeared a few minutes before two. The Ambassadors of the several Powers were stationed at the end of the Bishop's benches.

At twenty minutes past two o'clock, the firing of guns announced the arrival of His Majesty—The ladies immediately leaped upon the benches, and every eye was directed to the entrance to the right of the throne.—At half past two, His Majesty took his seat on the throne, wearing the crown on his head.

The folding doors were then thrown open for the Commons, when the Speaker entered, accompanied by Mr. Canning and the other Ministers, and followed by a great crowd of Members. The rush was so great that many members cried out for WORDER." A cloud of dust was thrown along the House

The Speaker then addressed His Majesty. He commenced by stating that the House of Commons had attended to all the recommendations of His Majesty's Speech, at the opening of this Session.

"In releasing the burthens of the people, two courses had presented themselves to their view, either a direct repeal of direct taxation, or to discumber the trade of the country from the impediments which restricted it, and which were condemned by enlarged and enlightened views of policy.

With the view of removing these restrictions such alterations had been made in our commercial laws as they hoped would improve the great national resources of this country. But they had never lost sight of the necessity of proceeding cautiously in breaking down a system, which however impolitic, had been the growth of ages.

They had found it their painful duty to re-enact the Insurrection Act in Ireland, not with the vain hope of its curing the evil, not concealing from themselves its harshness and severity, and not as a permanent measure, but such as the pressure of the existing emergency rendered necessary, not only for the protection of the innocent, but in mercy to the guilty.

It would ill become him to detain His Majesty by more minute details of their proceedings. He had only to express a hope that the conduct of His faithful Commons would meet with the gracious approbation of His Majesty.

In conclusion he tendered the appropriation bill, to which, and to several bills, the royal assent was given.

His Majesty then delivered the following gracious Speech.

"My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I cannot dismiss you from your attendance in this Session of Parliament, without returning you my warmest acknowledgements for the diligence and assiduity with which you have applied yourselves to the several objects of public interest which have been submitted to your consideration.

"I deeply regret the painful necessity under which you have found yourselves of renewing for a further period, measures of extraordinary precautión in Ireland. I entirely approve of the inquires which you have instituted as to the true nature of the evils which have long disturbed a part of that country, and I have no doubt you will find it expedient to renew them in another Session of Parliament.

"I continue to receive from Foreign Powers, the strongest assurances of their disposition to preserve their friendly relations with this country, and you may rely on the continuance of my efforts to maintain the peace of Europe, and to extend the commercial relations of my subjects.

"Gentlemen of the House of Commons,

"I thank you for the supplies which you have granted me for the service of the present year, and more especially for the great liberality with which you have provided for the interests of religion and for the maintenance of the splendour of the Crown.

"I am fully sensible of the advantages which may be justly expected from the relief you have afforded to some of the most important branches of the national interests."

"My Lords and Gentlemen,

"I have the greatest satisfaction in repeating my congratulations to you on the general and increasing prosperity of the country, I am persuaded that you will carry with you to your respective counties the same spirit of harmony which has distinguished your proceedings, and that you will cultivate amongst all classes of my people those feelings of confidence in the laws and attachment to the Constitution, on the continuance of which, under Providence, depends not only their individual happiness, but the high station which this country holds among the nations of the world."

The Lord Chancellor then declared the Parliament prorogued to Tuesday, the 24th day of August next; and his Majesty withdrew in the same form as he entered.

It was stated some time ago, in the newspapers, that Mr. Macready was about to quit the sock and buskin for the church; but if the following paragraph from the York Herald be true, it would appear that he has chosen the bar.—"Granby Inn, Harrogate.—We understand that the purchaser of this well established and excellent Inn, which was lately advertised for sale in the York Herald, is no other than the celebrated Mr. Macready, of theatrical notoriety."

The Valorus frigate has arrived in England from Mexico, with $800,000 specie, and an Ambassador from the Mexican Government.

A loan for one million, sterling, to the Buenos Ayres Government, was negotiating.

The Bank Directors have come to the resolution of lending money at the rate of 4 per cent, on Government Securities or on Bank Stock. The advances on Government Securities will be to the amount of three fourths of the market value and for a period of not less than one month nor more than six months.

This circumstance and the pacific intentions of the Continental powers, announced in the King's Speech, have improved the funds. Consols for Act. 85⅞.

The Globe and Traveller of June 25th says, we are assured from a high source, that a loan to the Government of Buenos Ayres will make its appearance in the money market in a few days; it is stated to be for one million sterling, 6 percent interest per annum, to come out at about 85. The same paper says there are letters from Madrid of the 13th of June, from which we learn that the most frightful anarchy continues to reign in that city. From the 9th to the 13th not less than 400 persons were arrested at night upon suspicion of treasonable intentions: but the greater part were released on the morning of the last mentioned day. The king was seriously indisposed in the early part of June, and was visited by several of the leading Ecclesiastics, but he continued obstinate in encouraging the serviles in their resistance to the orders which the ministry, under compulsion of the French Authorities, had given for the amelioration of the condition of the Constitutionalists and the general improvement of the provincial Governments. Ferdinand was closely guarded by a mixed body of French and Spanish royal guards, the latter of whom were chosen chiefly from the sons of the wealthy clergy.

It seems that the difficulties that have arisen in Egypt do not prevent the Viceroy from endeavouring to induce artisans and mechanics to settle in that country. Such is the protection he affords to manufacturers, that he gives 4,500 and even 6000 francs a years to printers of calicoes. These advantageous terms have induced printers without work in the Department des Bouches du Rhone to go to Egypt, and they are waiting at Marseilles for a favourable wind in order to set sail.

LETTERS FROM THE EAST.

GRAND CAIRO.

Not far from the city, on the way to the Desert, is the burial-place of the Mamelukes, the most splendid cemetery in Egypt. Here repose the Beys, with their followers, for many generations. The forms of the tombs are various and fantastic, and often magnificent: over the sepulchres rise domes which are supported by slender marble columns, and some of these are finely carved.—The tombs of the Caliphs are a mile and a half in another direction from the city, amidst the sand; they are beautiful monuments in the elegant and fantastic style of the Arabian architecture, and are in a very perfect state of preservation. They are built of fine lime-stone, and are lofty square buildings, with domes and minarets; some of the latter are of exquisite workmanship.

One day I met a marriage-procession in the streets, conducting a young Egyptian bride to her husband. A square canopy of silk was borne along, proceeded by several friends and slaves, all women, and three men followed with the tambourines and pipe. Two female relatives, who walked beside the bride, held the canopy over her; she was shrouded from head to foot, so closely and long carefully, that not the least beauty of figure was discernible, and a thick white veil concealed her features, two holes only being left for her dark eyes to look through. Beneath this coarse exterior the richest dresses are often worn; but all is sacred, both form and feature, and splendid attire, till arrived in the harem of the bridegroom, when the disguise is suddenly thrown off, and his impatient looks are lent partially or delightfully on his dear unknown. This procession moved at a very slow pace to the sounds of the music, and the lively cries of joy of the women.

Grand Cairo is encompassed by a wall, which is about ten miles in circumference, and of great antiquity. Mount Mokattam stands near the city, of which, and the whole country, it commands a most extensive prospect. This mountain is of a yellow colour, and perfectly barren. Beneath, and in a very elevated position, is the citadel, which is of great extent, and in many parts very ruinous. This fortress is now more famous for the massacre of the Mamelukes Beys, than for any other event and the Mamelukes force in Cairo consisted of from five to ten thousand choice troops, commanded by their various Beys. It was a grand and splendid spectacle to a stranger to view the exercises, the revel and splendid entertainments, and capital horsemanship of the Mamelukes, which were exhibited every day in the great square of the city. The chiefs and officers were constantly jealous of each other: he longed to curtail or destroy their power, and they in turn fed his unprincipled ambition. After this state of affairs had lasted a good while, sometimes in open hostility, or assuming a hollow friendship, the Pacha resolved to accomplish, entire and chrual reconciliation, terms of amity were agreed on, and he invited the Beys to a splendid banquet in the citadel. The invitation of these unfortunate men was singular, in trusting to the protestations of a man whose faithless character they knew so well. It was a beautiful day, and the three hundred chiefs, on their arrival in the citadel, were constantly jealous of each other; he longed to curtail or destroy their power, and they in turn fed his unprincipled ambition. After this state of affairs had lasted a good while, sometimes in open hostility, or assuming a hollow friendship, the Pacha resolved to accomplish through the fields. Or an Egyptian, half naked, stands all day long in the burning sun on the river's bank at a simple machine of wood, to the ends of which a couple of buckets is suspended; these he incessantly lets down into the stream, and then pours the water into the small canals cut in his ground. The inundation does not extend over the whole of the flat cultivated land, so that it is necessary, by these sluices and irrigations, to distribute the water every where. When the inundation has subsided and been absorbed in the earth, a rich black mould is left, which requires little labour. No plough is known here; but, a small furrow being made in the earth, by a stick, the grain is dropped in and the most abundant crop soon starts up, as if by magic. I have also been present, one in March, the other in October, at the way we met an Arab funeral; about twenty men, friends of the deceased, advanced under a row of palm trees, singing in a mournful tone, and bearing the body; they walked two or three abreast, with the corpse at their head; and, having formed a square in front, paused close to us. The corpse was that of a woman, neatly dressed in white, and borne on an open bier, with a small awning of red silk over it.

The market at Cairo, or place where the Circassian women may be purchased, cannot fail to be interesting, though at the same time repugnant to a stranger's feelings. These unfortunate women, as we term them, though it is a doubt if they think themselves so, are bought originally of their parents who are generally peasants, by the Armenians and other merchants who travel through Georgia and Circassia. There masters procure them an education, as for as music and singing go, give them handsome clothes, and then sell them as presents to the rich Turks, or bring them to the market at Cairo, where, however, the business is conducted with tolerable decorum. The lady, behind handsomely, and as best becomes her figure, and veiled, is attended by the merchant whose property she is, and may be seen by the person who wishes to become a purchaser. The veil is often, and the beauty almost exposed. This is better, however, than a Turkish bath, which, on the latter evenings, for the first time perhaps, draws aside the shroud of her charms, and throws herself into her husband's arms, when he may recoil with horror from his own wife's perfidy, as finding the smarting loveliness he had anticipated changed into a pasty, yellow, and faded aspect. But the Greek, generally speaking, is nearly as fair and joyous, and their dark eyes:—there are no eyes like them in the world. The stranger then casts his eye over the figure, the hand and foot: a small and delicate hand is with the Orientals, much valued—even the green sandpoured of by dancing-girls. His demands only accomplishments; if she sing or is skilled in music, in this case the price is greatly enhanced; a thousand or fifteen hundred pounds sometimes given for a lovely woman so highly gifted.

One day, in company with another traveller, I paid a visit to a rich Jew, one of the first merchants in Cairo. He received us in a handsome apartment, to which a flight of steps ascended.—The floor was covered with a rich carpet, and the divan, elevated a couple of feet higher, was lined with soft cushions, and behind all for luxurious enjoyment. A lofty dome of glass lighted the chamber. We reclined on the divan with the master of the house; and a few words from us was another and more interesting party; six Oriental ladies, all unveiled and richly dressed, were at dinner, and seated in a circle on soft cushions on the floor round a low table almost covered with high. The lady of the house, a handsome young woman, was just recovered from her confinement, and this was the first day of her receiving her friends. They eat and conversed much at their ease, and the two women were married at the age of fourteen, and the husband sold by his bride were married at the age of fourteen, and they were then six and twenty, and had a houseful of children. Bismillah! blessings to the Prophet! a fork would have added, with a devout look; but, being a Jew, he invoked nobody, and looked very resigned when it was indeed having finished their repast, each of them had a Turkish pipe, all of the best tobacco brought, and putting themselves in an easy position, with the master at full-length to screen their ease, and the bale of the pipe resting on the carpet, began to smoke, and to converse with the interpreter. The custom of smoking in the East is very different from that in our country, the tobacco is so very mild and sweet, that it does no injury to the teeth or breath, and it is often used as a luxury by the women, and the tube of their pipes would, though ever so long, be of no use in the hand, but is placed on the ground, or, if holding the hand, in some graceful attitude, and so as to advantage a beautiful arm.

I consider punishment is inflicted on the Eastern ladies for their lively wit, a chastisement sometimes inflicted on the Neapolitan; but with a chastisement sometimes inflicted on the Neapolitan; but with a chastisement sometimes inflicted on the Neapolitan; but with

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, in Council, having taken into consideration the system hitherto practised, of Granting Licences of Occupation for GLEBE LANDS, is pleased to Order, that in future the Glebes in the several Townships, with the exception of One Lot in each Township, for the accommodation of the Incumbent, shall be Leased on the same terms as Clergy Reserves.

NOTICE is therefore given to those Persons who hold Licences of Occupation for any of the said Glebe Lots, that the same will not be Renewed; and unless they do make application, by Petition, for Leases in the usual manner, through the medium of the Corporation for superintending the Clergy Reserves, before the Twenty-ninth day of September next ensuing, the Lots so held by Licence of Occupation will be Leased to other Applicants.

PRESENT,
HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
IN COUNCIL,

HIS Majesty's Government having recently extended their assistance to the class of Emigrants, which it was intended to relieve by gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres of Land, in conveying them to their respective locations:

IT IS ORDERED, that from the first day of May next, no gratuitous Grants be made of any quantity of Land to other than privileged persons.—And that as the Fee on Two Hundred Acres was raised, in order to defray the gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres the consideration failing, the future Fee on Two Hundred Acres is reduced to Eight Pounds Four Shilling and One Penny Sterling; the existing Fee before 1819, and the Fee on all other Grants, in Townships Surveyed since that time, to be the same as established by the Order in Council, of 5th January, 1819.

N. B. Possessors of gratuitous Grants for Fifty Acres, may, by paying the Fee on One Hundred Acres, receive a Grant of the adjoining Fifty Acres if vacant.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL CHAMBER, {
AT YORK, 26th JAN. 1824. }
PRESENT;
HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
In Council.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR submitted to the consideration of the Board, the Sheriffs' Reports of their respective Gaols, together with other Documents relating to a Winter Circuit, by which it appeared that the House of Assembly had addressed His Excellency to that effect, for this Session only; and obviously for the Delivery of the Gaols in the several Districts.

THE limitation of such a measure to one season seeming to militate with the Provision of the Law, that when the Communication from the Seat of Government admitted, and the circumstances of the Province required, there should be a regular Second Circuit, the Board would prefer to recommend that Special Commissions to deliver particular Gaols should issue where requisite; but, as the respective Reports from the Sheriffs' do not, in the opinion of the Board, require any unusual interposition, His Excellency, with advice of the Council, postpones a Second Circuit until the circumstances of the Province more decidedly require it.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Executive Council.

BE it Known that the period for completing the Settlement Duty, is hereby extended to Two Years from the date of Locations until further notice shall be given.

JOHN SMALL. Cl'k Ex. Coun.

WHEREAS by the Tenor of the Location Tickets a Certificate is required to be lodged of the Settlement Duty being done within two Years, or that the said Location should be forfeited, and in case of Locations not gratuitous, that one third of the Patent Fee be lodged with such Certificate; AND WHEREAS it is represented, that in many instances, Certificates of performance of the Settlement Duty, have been withheld from the inability of the settler to deposit such proportion of the Patent Fee, it is deemed expedient to relieve the settlers from forfeiture of his location, when he may actually have performed his settlement duty—Notice is hereby given that it all cases where Settlement Duty has been performed within the limited period, the settler shall, on filing Certificate thereof within six Months of this date, be exempted from forfeiture notwithstanding the non-payment therewith of such portion of the Patent Fee, provided the Patent is sued out within One Year from the filing of such Certificate.

And further; His Excellency, in the hope of avoiding the necessity of rescinding any of the Militia grants, is pleased to direct this Public Notification; that all Lands granted to Militia Men, upon which the Settlement Duties shall not have been performed within the limited period, will in pursuance of general instructions given to the Surveyor General in all similar cases, be declared vacant, and will be granted within Six Months after the expiration of that period, to the first applicant, unless the Original Nominee, shall before such subsequent application, have lodged a Certificate of his having performed the Settling Duties.

Editorial Commentary.

In the pastoral letter addressed by the present Pope, to his clergy, he an authentic document, it is an important one, and ought to be read with the deepest interest; as shewing that three centuries of religious toleration, in the most enlightened portions of Europe, and the glorious benefits resulting therefrom, to others, have been unable to bring about the slightest change in the Church of Rome.—We are no bigots, nor are we one hair-breadth in matters of faith, and mere opinion, but we do think that such a fact ought to be duly considered by those who advocate the cause of Catholic Emancipation in Ireland.—For, what can we think of that system which looks with more, and worse, than jealousy on the spreading abroad of the sacred writings,—and the consistency of that Apostolic Character which, in practice, denies what its theory boasts—the calling of the uncircumcised and the apostle to the salient spring, the only true fountain, of everlasting light and life?—How long will it be before the Head of the Romish Church, cries with the inspired on of Amoz

"Ho! every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters and he that hath no money, come ye, buy and eat yea, come, buy wine and milk without money, and without price"

Also, we fear this document, to which we allude, proves such a period to be yet very distant!

N. B having room for Mr Fothergill's address to the Freeholders of Durham, in the columns of the Gazette, it is printing on a separate sheet.

Death of the Queen of the Sandwich Islands.

The death of her Majesty Tamehamaha, consort of his Majesty Tamehamaha, the second King of the Sandwich Islands took place on the 8th of July. Her Majesty was quite well till a few days before her death, when she was taken ill, and decomposed. His Majesty took his last farewell about ten o'clock in the morning, previously to which he informed him that she was sensible she was dying, and was quite resigned. During the night she died. The immediate cause of her Majesty's death was inflammation of the lungs. We are in less grief for his Majesty's loss; as we understand, he has four more wives at home. The Courier adds:—"The mortal remains of the Queen were removed at five o'clock this morning, (12th) from Owhyhee Hotel, in a hearse and six, followed by most of the suite in a mourning coach, and deposited in a vault under St. Martin's Church, where it will remain until removed for embarkation."

Death of the Chinese Lady.—The death of her Majesty the Queen of the Sandwich Islands (says the Courier) we regret to find that of another remarkable Foreign lady, Yuen Fang Queen, who expired on Friday, July 9.

Langan and Shelton.

To the Editor of the Globe and Traveller.

Sir.—In consequence of the severe accident which has happened my father, I had determined to go immediately to Dublin, and was prevented from going until I should hear from my character from the impression that under malice or one have endeavoured to make respecting me, with the view of inducing the people of Dublin, to believe that I was paid for being the battle I can with pleasure to my feelings say, that there is no man in this country (either English or Irish,) but will clear me of any dishonesty. No man ought under more disadvantages than I did, I have now to inform Mr Shelton that I have put down fifty pounds in Mr. Boring's hands, and will fight him with in six months from this date, as, in my opinion, to me his character would be unmanly on my part, in consequence of my father's very severe illness.

J LANGAN.

July 7. 1824.

[No man who saw the fight between Spring and Langan can for a moment suppose that it was any thing but a fair manly contest; many rounds before the close there were repeated cries of test; many rounds before the close there were repeated cries of take him away, such was his beaten state. We had an idea that any other opinion prevailed in Ireland.]—Globe and Traveller.

Remote Indians.—Some aborigines, natives of the territory beyond the Rocky Mountains, and the chiefs, it is said, of a population amounting to near 100,000 souls, have lately visited Washington. There they were received with attention, and promptly and admitted to audiences with the President. They are very fine bodied men, possessing the good sense common to the natives of this continent before their intercourse with the white men. Most of them had never seen other civilized persons than the traders.

Ireland.—The Patriot says, "Tranquility is generally increasing, and the cash all parts of the country there never has been a greater prospect of an abundant harvest.

Steam Navigation.—It is impossible to foresee the advantages which will result from the application of Steam to navigation and as a moving power generally; we extract the following lines from the New York paper

"A company is forming in London to establish a Steam boat communication between Great Britain and the United States.—Perkins, is of opinion that the project is practicable, and the passage could be made within twelve days."

Gourlay!—Mr. Gourlay was released from his confinement a few days after Parliament was prorogued, but was brought to trial at the next assizes, where Sir George Frothell and Dr Munroe, swore that he was a dangerous person of unsound mind and ought not to be suffered to go abroad—He was then committed to the House of Correction, with directions to have every care taken of him

Shocking!—As Mr. Henderson, his Britannic Majesty's Consul General to the Republic of Columbia, was lately proceeding up the river Magdalena to Bogota, accompanied by his family, on their arrival at Mompox, one of his sons, a fine promising youth, was induced to bathe, and in the act he was seized by an alligator, and immediately disappeared. A dog, that was swimming at the same time, met a similar fate.

BOSTON, OCTOBER.

The long expected event has taken place. The roar of artillery, and the long and reiterated cheers of thousands of freemen announce, that the Hero of the Revolution, the friend of the great Washington has this moment set his foot on the soil of New York! We congratulate our city and the nation on this joyful occasion.—N. Y Spectator.

Mad dogs.—It is calculated that during the terror of hydrophobia which has lately prevailed, not less than 2,500 dogs have been destroyed in Liverpool. At least an equal number have perished in Manchester and its suburbs; and the alarm has been greatly aggravated in that neighborhood, by two or three deplorable cases of hydrophobia which have recently occured.

BOSTON, Aug. 14

The Sea Serpent.—The Newburyport Herald informs us that the Sea Serpent was seen on Wednesday last, by Mr Rogers, of Bristol county, a few miles on Plum Island beach, with his family. They had a distinct view of him in different positions for more than half an hour. He is supposed to be within thirty yards of them, and they took a distinct view of his head, which was shaped like a sheep's, and about two feet long. When he opened his jaws, they could see his teeth, which were white and two or three inches long. They saw parts of his body, as much as thirty feet from his head, but did not see his tail. Mr. R's general description of the animal is similar to that which has been repeatedly given.

Wool Trade.—We have received this morning Frankfort papers, and extract from them the following article of intelligence,

"STUTGARD. June 3.

"The following letter has been received from a Saxon merchant now in London:—

"With the most sincere apprehensions for the interest of my country, I have to announce to you, that two gigantic projects are on the eve of execution, which at a future period will create to the infinite injury to the exportation of German wool to England. The Government, with the consent of the Parliament, has just made a present to a company, possessed of a very large tract of land in New South Wales, upon which, it is said, a million of acres of land to New South Wales, upon which, it is said, a million of acres of land to New South Wales, upon which, it is said, a million of acres of land to

Nor is it only a disease of the ill, but it is also, when improperly treated, the cause of many other disorders. Neglected scolding may have been produced fits, of which a remarkable instance may be found in a treatise written by Dr. Column, entitled The Jealous Wife, in the fourth chapter, or act, as he calls it, of that celebrated work. On the other hand, when the scolding matter has been long pent up, without any vent, I have little doubt that it may bring on consumptions of the lungs and those dreadful hysterical disorders which, if not speedily fatal, at least embitter the lives of many worthy members of society. All these evils might have been averted, if the faculty had considered scolding in the light of a disease, and had treated it accordingly.—In pursuance of my theory, I now proceed to the Symptoms.—The symptoms of scolding are these: a quick pulse, generally about one hundred beats in a minute; the eyes considerably inflamed, especially in persons who are fat, or reside near Wapping; a flushing in the face, very often, to a great degree; at other times, in the course of the fit, the colour goes and comes in a most surprising manner; an irregular, but violent motion of the hands and arms, and a stamping with the right foot; the voice exceedingly loud; as the disorder advances, it becomes hoarse and inarticulate, and the whole frame is agitated. After these symptoms have continued for some time, they gradually, and in some cases very suddenly, go off; a plentiful effusion of water comes from the eyes, and the patient is restored to health; but the disorder leaves a considerable degree of weakness, and a peculiar foolishness of look, especially if any strangers have been present during the fit. The memory, too, is, I conceive, somewhat impaired; the patient appears to retain a very imperfect recollection of what passed and, if put in mind of any circumstances, obstinately denies them. These symptoms, it may be supposed, will vary considerably, in different patients, but where they appear at one time, there can be very little doubt of the disorder.

Predisposing Causes.—In all diseases, a knowledge of the predisposing causes will be found to assist us in the cure. In the present case, these causes are, irritability of the vascular system, an exaltation of the passions, and a moderate deficiency of natural temper.

Occasional Causes.—The occasional causes of scolding are many. Among these may be enumerated, the throwing down of a china bason, misplacing a hat or a pair of gloves or an umbrella; leaving a door open; overdoing the meat, under-doing the same; spoiling the soup; letting the fire go out; mistaking the hour, &c. &c. with many others, which I should think it very necessary to enumerate, because these causes are so natural, that we cannot prevent them, and because, whatever the occasional cause of the disorder may be, the symptoms are the same, and the mode of cure the same.

Cure.—Various remedies have been thought of for this distemper, but all, hitherto, of the rough and violent kind, which, therefore, if they remove the symptoms for the present, leave a greater disposition toward the disorder than before. Among these, the common people frequently prescribe the application of an emetic, a horse-whip, or a leather strap or belt, which, however, are all liable to the objection I have just stated. Others have recommended argumentation; but this, like inoculation, will not produce the desired effect, unless the patient be in some degree prepared to receive it. Some have advised a perfect silence in all persons who are near the patient, but I must say, that wherever I have seen this tried, it has rather heightened the disorder by biting on fire. The same thing may be said of obedience, or letting the patient have her own way. This is precisely like giving drink in a dropsy, or meat, or curing the burning fever by throwing in great quantities of brandy.

As the chief intention of this paper was to prove that scolding is a disease, and not a fault, I shall not enlarge much on the mode of cure; because the moment my theory is adopted, every person will be able to treat the disorder secundum artem. I shall mention, however, the following prescription, which I never found to fail, if properly administered:—

Take—Of Common Sense, thirty grains;

Decent Behaviour, twenty grains;

Due Consideration, ten grains.

Mix and sprinkle the whole with one moment's thought, to be taken as soon as any of the occasional causes appear.

By way of diet, though it is not necessary to restrict the patient to a vegetable diet, yet I have always found it proper to guard them against strong or spirituous liquors, or any thing that tends to heat the blood.

But it is now expedient that I should state a matter of very great importance in the prevention of this disorder, and which I can assure the reader that no person can read without great distinct, and may be seen, reasoned under one view. It is commonly supposed, and, indeed, has often been asserted, that the disorder is peculiar to one only of the sexes; and, I trust, I need not add, what sex that is. Although it may be true, that they are most liable to it, yet it is certain, from the theory laid down in respecting the predisposing causes, that the men are equally in danger. Why, then, do we not find as many males afflicted with scolding as we do females? For this plain reason: scolding, as proved above, is in the first place a passion most unbecoming in the male sex. Now this matter ingenders in men as well as in women; but the latter have not the frequent opportunity for discharging it which the men enjoy. Women are by fashion and custom confined to one side, restrained from all those public amusements, clubs, assemblies, &c. &c. where the men have a continual opportunity of discharging the cause of the disorder, without its ever accumulating in so great a quantity as to produce the symptoms I have enumerated. This, and this only, is the cause why the disorder appears most often in the female sex. I would propose, the state, if I were a legislator, or I had influence enough to set a fashion, that the ladies should, in all respects, imitate the societies of the men; that they should have their clubs, their coffee-houses, their cities, and even their Parliaments. In such cases, they would be able to take that species of exercise that tends to keep down the disorder, which at present accumulates to confinement, and when active attempts a discharge, the explosion is attended with all the violence and irregularities I have before enumerated.

Thus much I have ventured, at advance respecting scolding, and I hope that I shall succeed in abating the unreasonable prejudices which have been fostered by an affected superiority in our sex, joined to a portion of ignorance, which, to say the least, renders that superiority a matter of great doubt.—Portfolio.

BOW STREET.

THREE MONTHS AFTER MARRIAGE.—Wm. and Mary Warren, a newly married couple, came voluntarily before the magistrate; Mary to complain of William, and William to complain of Mary; but Mary seemed to have the most cause to complain; for though nature had given her a pair of very fine black eyes, William in his waywardness, had made their lids of the same colour; and that too, by no very gentle operation; an operation which would lead one to believe that he considered the wedding ring as a symbol of the ring pugilistic.—Be this as it may, however, we shall state their case, for the benefit of the newly married public in general.

William is in his 23d year, and Mary in her 19th; they have been married just 3 months; it was altogether a love match; Poverty has not peeped in at their door, and yet Love has already flown out through their window. And why has he no soon deserted them? Mary attributed his flight to William's excessive thirst of money, and William ascribed it to Mary's love of money; which, as William very truly observed is the root of all evil. Mary said William was cruel enough to strike her, because she told him of remaining so long at the public house. William, on the contrary, said, Mary was of such a "desperate" bad temper, that she was continually burning him about from chair to chair, and boxing his ears whenever he came home; not because he spent too much money, but because he did not get enough; she wanted him to live upon water gruel, in order that they may become rich, and he wanted to enjoy the good things of this world as fast as they came to hand.—Dum vitimus vivamus Mary admitted she was not particularly good tempered; and William admitted that he was ashamed of having struck her—"For," said he, "I love her as well or better than ever I did; and I shouldn't have towelled her if she hadn't tempted me to it!" "And pray how did she tempt you?" said the magistrates, "Why, by boxing my ears," replied William, "and telling me I darn't hit her again."

It was evident to their Worships, that there were faults on both sides. It was clear to them, that Mary had thought to find her husband all perfection; or, at all events, she was determined to make him so; and it was equally clear, that, however William might love his wife, he had still some love to spare for an occasional jollification from home; that in short he could at one time sing—

"When the heart of a man is oppressed with care,
The mist is dispell'd if a woman appear."
And at another—
"When the heart of a man is elated with beer,
The fair is dispelled should his spouey appear."

But of this jovial penchant they thought he might be cured, if his wife would give him soft words instead of hard thumps; and, after recommending him to spend his beer money at home instead of abroad, and censuring him severely for striking his wife, they seriously advised them to shake hands in kindness, and try each other for 3 months longer.

They shook hands accordingly, and left the Office wing in wing, apparently very well satisfied with what had been done for th in.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

PORTUGAL.

LONDON, (Friday Evening.) July 9.

We are informed upon the most respectable authority, that a diplomatic note on the affairs of Portugal, from the Allied Sovereigns, on their respective Ambassadors at Foreign Courts, will almost immediately make its appearance. The note will advert generally to the disturbed state of affairs in Portugal and express the determination of the Allied Powers to remove it, with the view of preventing any ill effects to the peace of Europe, and the harmony that subsists between its Cabinets. England as the ancient Ally of Portugal, is, in the first instance, to send her troops thither for the preservation of tranquility and the support of the Sovereign; but the Allies declare that if such interference should be found insufficient, they will aid, at the request of the King of PORTUGAL, forthwith troops for the same purpose.

In contradiction of the reports respecting a British Force being sent to Portugal in support of the King's authority, the Courier remarks:

"We have glanced at the difficulties which are connected with the request of the King of PORTUGAL to this country for the assistance of Foreign troops. These difficulties we have reason to believe, are of a nature very different from any that have been surmised by our contemporaries. The question that has been put to us is, not whether the expense of maintaining a force should be sent, nor how the consequent expenses are to be defrayed; it embraces considerations of a much higher character. There must be, of course, every disposition on the part of his Majesty's Government to assist an old and faithful Ally, where the necessity for such assistance is clear, and the mode of rendering it unexceptionable. But it would be a more desirable course, if practicable, to organise, by means of that influence which peculiarly belongs to our relations with Portugal, a power sufficient to control the apprehended danger, without recurring to the aid of foreign troops. At all events this must be tried on experiment which should be sincerely tried, before the other is adopted.

It certainly is not desirable to encourage the practice of one nation calling in foreign troops from another that kind of influence, which can never be exercised without the danger of compromising those great fundamental principles which should regulate the intercourse between independent States. A special case, justifying such interference, may readily be imagined; but it is no less easy to imagine how a special case so circumstanced by a pretext upon, may be perverted into a precedent for a less justifiable purpose. This consideration obviously imposes the necessity of grave deliberation before any decision is taken, and it would warrant, we may add, a painful and reluctant acquiescence, even in the expediency of that acquiescence can no longer be disputed. We should fulfil a duty with the consciousness that an irreproachable act on our part was too open to misconstruction, and too susceptible of perversion to leave behind it the common reward of self-satisfaction at what we had done.

At present no step has been taken which can place us in such a position. The question has been met with a full and clear conviction of all the embarrassing difficulties which belong to it. How it may be finally disposed of, it is not for us to anticipate. Supposing, however, the result should be that the required aid is granted, we can state that not a single British Soldier will be sent."

RUSSIA.

On the 10th of March an Ukase was issued to the following effect:—"No public functionary in the Russian service shall, without special permission of his superior, compose writings in any language whatever, which, though it spread from ownership, treat of the domestic affairs of the empire."

GREECE.

The affairs of the Greeks continue to prosper. The Turkish expedition against Scinto and north of Negropont has failed. The Greeks are united in the defence of their country from Turkish invasion.

The Greek general Odysseus, at the request of an English Gentleman, has ordered an ancient temple, hitherto to be considered as a museum; and great efforts were said to be making to obtain a fine collection of antiquities. God preserve the collection from the approach of the Turks! The Greek Committee in London, had received information from Prince Mavrocordato, that all the Greeks were united in the cause, and the Legislative body and executive enjoyed the full confidence of the nation.

From Greece.—The latest intelligence of the movements of the Turkish fleet we believe is contained in letters received in Boston, from Smyrna, dated May 22, at which time it was stated that the fleet was at Salonica, for the purpose of taking on board 18,000 troops. A London paper furnishes the following particulars, of nearly as late a date.

Letters this morning have been received from Salonica, which advise the arrival in the Gulph, which bears that name, of the Turkish fleet, consisting in all of nearly sixty ships. It was reported that it would be joined by thirty transports, having six thousand troops on board, and then proceed against some of the most powerful islands in the Archipelago. This force, in addition to the troops expected from Smyrna and Egypt, will again render the Ottomans formidable to the Christians, and unless these last should be more ably among the Greeks in addition, the successful finish of the year may be more distant, than the favourable conclusion of the last campaign led the friends of Grecian Independence to expect. Janlouvy has hitherto prevented the reduction of the fortresses of Patras, and of the castles of Lepanto; and as the Turkish fleet will now probably supply those garrisons with provisions and military stores, a considerable period may still intervene before the barbarians be entirely expelled from the Morea.

TURKISH DEFEAT.

Accounts were received in London, on the 8th, from Greece, by letters from Trieste, dated June 26, which confirm what has been before stated of the defeat of the Turkish commander in chief. It appears that this general, who is one of the best in the Turkish army, had proceeded with much expedition towards the passes of the Thermopylæ, which he made an effort to force.

The Turkish troops fought with more courage than usual, and for a time the issue of the contest seemed doubtful. In the end, however, the patriotic defence of the Greeks prevailed, and the Turks was compelled with some loss to make a retreat to Lamia, where he was to wait for the reinforcements from Romelia.—The same letters state that the corps of cantonnine Bizarry and the troops of the Pasha of Scutari, had met, and that an engagement had taken place, which must have terminated favourably to the Greeks, as Constantine remained in possession of the field, and the Turks had fallen back to and 20 leagues in all directions.

The naval force of the Turks in the Gulph, of Lepanto is only eight vessels; three frigates, two corvettes, and three brigs. The Greeks have in the waters of Ipsara not less than 180 sail, mostly small.

SOUTH AMERICA.

From Rio Janeiro.—We are indebted to the polite attention of Capt. Heaton, of the brig Eliza Reilly, which arrived here yesterday, in 38 days from Rio Janeiro, for a number of Brazil newspaper from 6th May to 15th June inclusive.

Among these papers we find a Proclamation of the Emperor Don Pedro, to the Brazilians, dated 10th June, announcing the receipt of information that their powerful armament was about to sail from Portugal to reduce them under the dominion of that Kingdom. He exhorts the Brazilians to the most determined resistance, against the invaders of their liberties; tells them that they must adopt as their motto "Independence or death." That as their Emperor and protector, he will shed the last drop of his blood in defence of their rights and for the security of their happiness; that should the enemy prove too formidable for them in the onset, they must abandon their towns, and retreating to the interior entrench themselves strongly, until they can array a competent force to expel them from the territory; that the fleet will come to their assistance whenever it can co-operate with them successfully, in annoying that of the enemy, and that swarms of Privateers will sweep the commerce of Portugal from the ocean, &c.

We have, before us a letter from Rio Janeiro dated 1st ult, from which we copy the following paragraphs.

"Lord Cochrane has lost here much of his influence. An affair lately took place which may induce him to leave the service. About ten days ago, a Brazilian frigate commanded by a young Englishman named Grenfell arrived from Para, having on board a large amount (about 200,000) resulting from the seizures made at Para, soon after the affair of Maranham when Cochrane got possession of about double that sum, which he has ever since retained, upon the plea that he would account to him for his Portuguese pay when required. Soon after Grenfell came to anchor, he went on shore to pay his respects to Cochrane, and whilst he was absent Pedro the First, having been advised of the money being on board the frigate, went in person and absolutely took possession of and brought on shore the whole of it is said, with all Grenfell's papers, &c. This joke, so unconstitutional and so dignified, did not please my Lord Cochrane. He told his Majesty next day that he had this time 'out generalled him' Poor Grenfell, however who enjoys the reputation of having been the cause of destroying 253 Brazilian men at Para in October last, in the hold of a vessel, has disappeared, and wether he be concealed by Cochrane, or on board one of the British ships of war, is not known."

LONDON, JULY 10.

LORD BYRON.—The crowds that presented themselves this morning at No. 20 Great George Street, to view the above illustrious person lying in state, were beyond all precedent; and the uproar and confusion that prevailed, beggar description.—The Lambs was a great that it was found expedient to call the aid of Hundley and Weale, the two principal Officers of Queen Square establishment, and even their presence scarcely sufficed to abate the violence of the applicants—so eager were they to gain admittance.

This morning a wooden frame was erected round the coffin and urn, to keep the spectators off, upon the top of which were plumes of sombre feathers. The splendid pall was then thrown over the coffin, on which side were displayed five escutcheons, and one at the head and foot. Another pall was placed over the urn, which was decorated with four escutcheons.

The pall on the coffin was surmounted with a full of rich black feathers, which gave to the whole a remarkably grand and funeral aspect.

On the top of the pall that enveloped the urn were displayed his Lordship's splendid coronet and cushion.

Five of the late Lord Byron's suite accompanied the Body to England. Amongst them is a Greek (or an Italian) who attended his Lordship, and also his Italian courier; the latter is a man of robust stature, and wears a rich uniform, en militaire, of blue and silver. The muscular form and outline of Bodily strength, for which the late Lord Byron was remarkable, were perfectly visible after his decease, notwithstanding the operation of his late pugilistic fitness, and the previous indisposition which was attended with very debilitating effects. The personal appearance continued nearly the same when the body was removed from the spirits, in which it had been preserved in Italy, on its passage to this country, into the coffin finally prepared for its reception. The fine lines on the features had of course collapsed in death, but they were previously reduced, and expressive of much care and anxiety. His hair had grown thin, and become in many places grey. But this alteration became more visible after death, when the curls lay more extended upon the surface of the head. There was no appearance of convulsion upon the features, and the approach of death was in all probability imperceptible to the deceased, who seemed to have died in a state of entire composure. Near the coffin, on the ground, is a gentleman which was painted on wood in Greece, and there displayed when the body of Lord Byron lay in state at Misselonghi.

† The late Lord Byron's will passed the Seal of the Prerogative Court in Doctor's Common on the 6th inst. probate being granted to John Cam. Hobhouse, Esq. and John Hanson, of Clement's-lane, Esquire executors. The personal estate in England was sworn under £10,000. The will is dated the 29th July, 1818. It appears that he left an annuity of £1400 each to his Lord and with the exception of a bequest of £1000 each to his Lord ship's executors, is made solely to benefit his sister, Augusta Mary Leigh, wife of George Leigh, Esq. and her children; Lady Byron and any family he might have, being stated to be otherwise amply provided for. The manor or Lordship of Rochdale, in the county of Lancaster, is given to the executors in trust to be sold for the above purposes; as is also the manor and estate of Newstead, in the county of Nottingham, which latter is subject to a charge of £30,000 for fulfilling the trusts of his marriage settlements—but which sum, or any part thereof, but no more, is granted to the executors of £5,000 in trust for Allegra Byron, an infant about twenty-one months old, "by me brought up and now residing at Venice, is to be paid to her at twenty-one or marriage, "provided she does not marry a native of Great Britain." The interest, in the mean time, for her maintenance and education.

HERESY OF BIBLE SOCIETIES.

The Pope and the Bible Society.—The following is extracted from the Pope's Encyclycle letter. "What shall I say more? The iniquity of our enemies has so increased, that beside the deluge of pernicious books, contrary to the faith, it even goes so far as to convert to the detriment of religion the Holy Scriptures, which have been given us from above for the general edification."

"You are not ignorant my venerable brethren, "says his holiness, "that a society commonly called a Bible Society, is audaciously spreading through the earth, and that in contempt of the traditions of the holy fathers, and against the celebrated decree of the Council of Trent, it endeavours with all its power, and by every means, to translate or rather to corrupt the Holy Scriptures into the vulgar tongues of all nations; which gives just reason to fear that in all the translations the same thing may happen which has happened with regard to those already known—namely, that we may there find a bad interpretation, and instead of the gospel of Christ, the gospel of men, or what is worse, the gospel of the devil!

"Many of our predecessors have made laws to turn this scourge, and in these latter times, Pius the VII. of sacred memory, sent two briefs, the one to Ignatius, the other to Stanislaus, Archbishop of Mohilow. In these briefs are found passages taken as well from the Holy Scriptures as from tradition, and collated with care and judgment to show how injurious this subtle invention is to faith and morality.

"And we also, venerable brethren, in the discharge of our apostolic duty, exhort you to remove your flocks with care and eat nestness from this fatal pasture. Reprove, intreat, insist, on all occasions, with all doctrine and patience, in order that the faithful, attaching themselves exactly to the rules of our Congregation of the Index, may be persuaded, that if they let the Holy Scriptures be indiscriminately translated into the vulgar tongues, there will result, in consequence of the rashness of men, more evil than good.

"This is a truth demonstrated by experience, and which St. Augustine more than all the other fathers, has made known by their words! There have been found heresies and perverse dogmas, which involve the souls of men in their snares, and drag them down the abyss only because the Holy Scriptures have not been well understood, and because having ill understood them men have supported their false interpretations with rashness and audacity!

"Such, venerable brethren, is the tendency of this society, which, besides, omits nothing for the accomplishment of its pious wishes: for it boasts not only of printing the translations, but of disseminating them by going through the towns; and were to seduce the simple by a pertidious liberality, choose to distribute them gratuitously.

"We exhort you not to let your courage be cast down. You will have for you, and for this we rely with confidence on the Lord, the power of Secular Princes, who as reason and experience show, defend there own cause in defending that of the authority of the Church; for never will it be possible for man to render unto Cæsar the things which are Cæsar's without rendering unto God the things which are God's. You will also have for you, to speak as St. Leon did, the good offices of our ministry towards you all—In your crosses, in your doubts, and all your necessity, have recourse to this Apostolic guidance. For God, as St. Augustine said, has placed the doctrine of truth in the chair of unity."

AGRICULTRE.

From the Boston Centinel.

TO THE BUTTER MAKER.—The writer of this note could tell a long story about butter, having been 40 years in the trade, but he will make it very short.

Make your butter of sweet cream—work out all the buttermilk; put no more salt to it than will make it palatable, for salt has no good effect as to keeping butter sweet; it is working out all the buttermilk, and excluding the air from it that will accomplish this very desirable object.

Pack your butter in handsome tight kegs, which will contain 20 or 25 lbs; soak the kegs well in a strong pickle, and then tar them; pack the butter solid—not in layers as is too often the case—This gets bad of butter gives you a double chance for sale; for being equally handy for home use, and if it does not sell in the market, it can be inspected, and will be in order for exportation. But when your butter comes to market in tubs, barrels, boxes, &c it can be sold only for home use, for butter cannot be exported except in kegs.

Many tons of butter are now on hand made last year, and the year before, the greater part of which must be sold for soap grease at five cents per pound.

This article, if made good, and well packed, would constitute a very considerable commodity for exportation, but foreigners will not eat our rancid butter, The spring and summer butter must be sold low, for our merchants cannot ship butter at a high price: for the Dutch and Irish butter, stand in our way, and is very excellent. The custom of selling butter in lumps to the traders is a very bad one; every family should first fill a keg no matter if it does not contain more than 12 lbs, than sell it to the trader; but the other method is ruinous.

I hope some gentlemen of education and knowledge of the subject will take it up, for it is very necessary to the welfare of

ANECDOTES.

ANECDOTE OF SIR EDWARD PELLEW, NOW LORD EXMOUTH.

At Portsmouth, several years ago, this gallant officer was sitting alone at dinner, when his servant announced to him that an Indiaman had struck upon the beach, and was in imminent danger of going to pieces. Sir Edward hastened to the shore, and found the intelligence correct; and the surf running so high that no boat durst venture to board the vessel. Sir Edward, addressing himself to the crowd upon the beach, asked if any of them had heart enough to swim off with him to the ship. A young man stepped forward to answer the challenge; and two lines having been procured, Sir Edward and the stranger each took one, gained the vessel, and after safely landing all on board, were the last to return on shore. On stepping upon land, the gallant Admiral, addressing his comrade in danger, exclaimed, "Give me your hand, you're a fine fellow—who are you? you must sail with me in future!" The young man replied, that he was the mate of a collier, and that he should hesitate to quit a situation so comfortable for the chance of doubtful promotion. Sir Edward overcame his scruples; and this singular introduction added to the heroes of the British Navy an officer unrivalled in heroic exploits—no less in character than Captain Jeremiah Coghlan.

At the meeting of the British and Foreign School Society, on Monday, Mr. F. Buxton told the following curious anecdote:—It had been his misfortune, when very young, to live with a gentleman, whose prejudices against the improvement of the poor, were numerous and inveterate.—There were, in that gentleman's opinion, three great causes of the demoralization of the poor—reading, writing and arithmetic—laughter—and whenever a quarrel took place in his neighbourhood, he was in the habit of saying, "That is the effect of education." If a theft or a murder was committed, "There," he would say, "is another test of the bad effects of education." In speaking of his own steward, this hater of human improvement would say, "That Man, to his credit he it spoken, is not able to read a word, or to write a figure; and yet he is, perhaps, the best accountant in the county." It was natural to inquire by what process of memory the steward kept his accounts. This was shewn. A drawer was produced; in one compartment there was a parcel of beans, in another a parcel of peas, and in the remaining divisions there were various descriptions of grain. These were the symbols of various debts and payments, which with the aid of a strong memory, the steward kept with great exactness. Until one night a rat broke into his account box, and down went the account of what was due from various tenants, and all was thrown into the widest confusion and doubt (loud laughter.) From that moment he (Mr. Buxton) had been a convert to the superiority of written or printed symbols.

The following exquisite specimen of orthography has been transmitted by a Correspondent to the Cheltenham Chronicle, and published in that paper.

HAPPINESS.

By Doctor Heber, the present Bishop of Calcutta.

One morning in the month of May
I wander'd o'er the hill;
The' nature all around was gay,
My heart was heavy still.

Can God, I thought, the just, the great,
These meaner creatures bless,
And yet deny he Man's estate
The boon of happiness?

Tell me ye woods, ye smiling plains,
Ye blessed birds around,
In which of Nature's wide domains
Can bliss to man be found?

The birds wild carol'd over head
The breeze around me blew,
And Nature's awful charms unbid—
No bliss for man she knew.

I question'd Love, whose early ray
So rosy bright appears,
And heard the timid goddess say
His light was dim'd by tears.

I question'd Friendship: Friendship sigh'd,
And thus her answer gave—
The few whom fortune never turn'd
Were wither'd in the grave?

I ask'd if Vice could bliss bestow?
Vice bruised loud and well,
But fading from her wither'd brow
The borrow'd roses fell.

I sought of Feeling, if her skill
Could sooth the wounded breast;
And found her mourning, faint, and still
For others woes distress'd!

I question'd Virtue; Virtue sigh'd,
No boon could she dispense—
Nor Virtue was her name, she cried,
But humble Penitence.

I question'd Death—the grisly shade
Reclin'd his brow severe—
And—"I am Happiness," he said,
"If virtue guides thee here."

Domestic.

Affair of Honour.—We have to congratulate the Fourteenthian public on their escape from what might have been a very serious loss. Early on Saturday morning last, a meeting took place, or rather seems to have taken place immediately behind the House of Assembly in this Town, between two public characters of some note; one of them lately in the Benchandmain department of a respectable Hotel, and the other a Mercury employed to carry despatches to and from the regions of Midas: in other words the case was, D——n versus F——n; but, fortunately for the public, the mercurial qualities so eminently possessed (along with many others equally valuable) by Mr. F——n, together with his laudable aversion to that—"villainous salt-petre" so pathetically declaimed against by the very pink and flower of all Chivalry, the renowned Knight of La Mancha,—led that gentleman to course in an opposite direction at the precise hour when his presence was required in the field of honour:—where upon, after parading the ground for nearly an hour, and discharging one of his formidable "barkers" (which were of unusual length and calibre for such occasions being fully FOUR INCHES in length) in the air, by way of triumph,—Mr D——n went forthwith in search of the foe, proposing, as was said, either to place his nose in a close parenthesis, or to give him a twitch,

"Just in the place where honour's lodg'd,
As wise philosophers have judg'd
Because a kick in that place more
Hurts honour than deep wounds before."

The cause of this serious rupture is not yet made public.

MONTREAL Aug. 18.

Our city has been overflowed with strangers during the last month; the principal hotels have been so thronged that great difficulty has been experienced in procuring agreeable entertainment, previous to the departure of the Steam boats for Quebec. We are pleased at this circumstance, it will produce many good consequences, and serve to dissipate that prejudice which has, for so long a period, kept the residents of Canada, and the people of the United States, indifferent to the interests of each other.—Courant.

BERMUDA.—It appears that Sir William Lumley, Governor of Bermuda, has been ordered home to answer the charges brought against him by the inhabitants of that Island.

SERIOUS LOSS.—We regret to learn that seven or eight large Rafts of timber and Staves were wrecked on "Herchimer's Point," during the gale of Saturday last. The owners, we believe, are Messrs. Shuter and Wilkins, Everitt, Leavens Murphy, Fiddler, Allan and others. The value of the property thus unfortunately wrecked, cannot be less than Nine Thousand Pounds

The following particulars of the Hail Storm, which we noticed last week, were received from a Correspondent in Yonge.

A most tremendous and destructive storm took place here last evening. About 7 o'clock, P. M. a very black and heavy cloud, slowly advanced from the North-East, and as it approached higher, it seemed to increase in magnitude—clad in all the terrors of pitchy darkness.—Within a few minutes of Eight, it blew a perfect hurricane, accompanied with hail, or rather large pieces of ice, in a triangular form. The scene was now dreadful; so much so, that it baffled all description. The falling trees, the rolling thunder, and the hail dashing with such violence against the windows, sides and roof of the house, produced a combination of sounds, without any manner of distinction: for nearly fifteen minutes nature seemed to be in her last struggle. At this moment the atmosphere was completely illumined, almost without intermission. The incessant glare afforded me a full view of a small field, having a gentle declivity opposite the south side of my dwelling house, the surface of which was literally covered with water.

The morning light exhibited what I may call the wreck of nature—the fruitful fields were turned into a wilderness—and the husbandman's hope laid low in ruin. last evening about an hour previous to the commencement of the storm, I congratulated a neighbour on having such an excellent crop of Oats, Rye and Pease, all in one field. This morning being desired to examine the same field, I found it swept with the besom of destruction. The straw of the oats and rye, was cut in pieces, and half buried in the earth. I have seldom seen a well reaped field appear so smooth on the surface, as it appeared to be: the pease, which were rather late, were, notwithstanding, so completely threshed out that nearly two seeds were left on the ground. One circumstance attended the destruction of this field, which I conceive worthy of notice; the field itself was nearly level, and from the centre to the East side, the straw lay in one direction; and from the centre to the West side, it lay exactly different. This, no doubt, was occasioned by two different streams, or currents of air, or rather wind, which at the same moment from two several points, attacked with equal fury, and was equally fatal to the husbandman. A great number of very excellent fields of corn were seriously damaged, and others totally ruined: potatoes though cut and shattered in their tops, may yet recover; Buck wheat is altogether spoiled, garden vegetables extirpated; some small orchards in this neighbourhood had from 15 to 20 bushels of apples cut down and numbers half buried in the mud, which an overflowing flood brought upon them after they fell to the ground, the remainder of the apples that still adhered to the trees was mostly wounded, some of them in fact were fairly spit in two. Window lights broke in pieces, one man lost nearly 40 panes of glass. Winter wheat has been very much hurt indeed, in one word, crops of every description have suffered severely.

The fury of the storm appears to have spent itself on the 4th and 5th Concession of Yonge, Lot No. 1, 2, and 3, and the Western part of the same Concessions in Elizabethtown.

Thus, Sir, I have very imperfectly, and rather in haste, given a brief sketch of a storm, the equal of which, I never witnessed. A storm, all circumstances considered, perhaps the most terrible that ever visited this part of the Province.

J——s G——n.

Yonge, August 10th, 1824.

P. S. Since writing the above, a storm very similar to the one described, took place on Thursday last, at 2 o'clock P. M. on and in the vicinity of the farm, the property of Peter June, Senior, Yonge. The wind was not so high, but a much greater quantity of hail fell, which lay on the ground 20 hours, notwithstanding the season of the year. It has done much hurt.

Yonge, 13th August, 1824. J. G.

AN INSTANCE OF SUDDEN DEATH.—A young man of the name of Thomas Mullins, lately residing with a person of the name of Jones, at Exbury, near Beaulieu, in the new Forest, signifying his intention of changing his residence, was asked by his landlady to settle her demand of 9s. previous to quitting her house, when, with great vehemence he exclaimed,—"Mrs. Jones, may God strike me dead, if I owe you more than one shilling!" The words were scarcely uttered before the man dropped down, and he instantly expired, without a struggle. This awful event, (which occurred on the 2d of July) was witnessed by Mrs. Jones, her mother, and sister, and several friends.—Salisbury Journal.

NOTICE is hereby given, to Jabez Jessup, of his Representative, to make good any claim he may have to Lot Number Two, in the Seventh Concession of the Township of Louth, in the District of Niagara within six months from this date, in default of which, the Lot will be otherwise disposed of.

PRESENT,
His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, in Council.

HIS Majesty's Government having recently extended their assistance to the class of Emigrants, which it was intended to relieve by gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres of Land, in conveying them to their respective locations:

IT IS ORDERED, that from the first day of May next, no gratuitous Grants be made of any quantity of Land to other than privileged persons.—And that as the Fee on Two Hundred Acres was raised, in order to defray the gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres the consideration failing, the future Fee on Two Hundred Acres is reduced to Eight Pounds Four Shilling and One Penny Sterling; the existing Fee before 1819, and the Fee on all other Grants, in Townships Surveyed since that time, to be the same as established by the Order in Council, of 5th January, 1819.

N. B. Possessors of gratuitous Grants for Fifty Acres, may, by paying the Fee on One Hundred Acres, receive a Grant of the adjoining Fifty Acres if vacant

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Exv. Council.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL CHAMBER,
AT YORK, 26th JAN. 1824.
PRESENT:
HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
In Council.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR submitted to the consideration of the Board, the Sheriffs' Reports of their respective Gaols, together with other Documents relating to a Winter Circuit, by which it appeared that the House of Assembly had addressed His Excellency to that effect, for this Session only; and obviously for the Delivery of the Gaols in the several Districts.

The limitation of such a measure to one season seeming to militate with the Provision of the Law, that when the Communication from the Seat of Government admitted, and the circumstances of the Province required, there should be a regular Second Circuit, the Board would prefer to recommend that Special Commissions to deliver particular Gaols should issue where requisite; but, as the respective Reports from the Sheriffs' do not, in the opinion of the Board, require any unusual interposition, His Excellency, with advice of the Council, postpones a Second Circuit until the circumstances of the Province more decidedly require it.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Executive Council.

Executive Council Office,
York, February 7th 1821.

WHEREAS it has been represented, that many persons who have received Locations of Land, have, from Sickness, and other legitimate causes, been unable to fulfil the Settlement Duty in the time required by the Location Ticket, and have neglected to apply to His Excellency in Council for an extension of the period, for performance of such duty.

BE it Known that the period for completing the Settlement Duty, is hereby extended to Two Years from the date of Locations until further notice shall be given.

JOHN SMALL. Clk Ex. Coun.

WHEREAS by the Tenor of the Location Ticket a Certificate is required to be lodged of the Settlement Duty being done within two Years, or that the said Location should be forfeited, and in case of Locations not gratuitous, that one third of the Patent Fee be lodged with such Certificate; AND WHEREAS it is represented, that in many instances, Certificates of performance of the Settlement Duty, have been withheld from the inability of the settler to deposit such proportion of the Patent Fee, as is deemed expedient to relieve the settler from forfeiture of his location, when he may actually have performed his settlement duty—Notice is hereby given that it all cases where Settlement Duty has been performed within the limited period, the settler shall, on filing Certificate thereof within six Months of this date, be excepted from forfeiture notwithstanding the non-payment thereowith of such portion of the Patent Fee, provided the Patent is sued out within One Year from the filing of such Certificate.

And further; His Excellency, in the hope of avoiding the necessity of rescinding any of the Militia grants, is pleased to direct this Public Notification; that all Lands granted to Militia Men, upon which the Settlement Duties shall not have been performed within the limited period, will in pursuance of general instructions given to the Surveyor General in all similar cases, be declared vacant, and will be granted within Six Months after the expiration of that period, to the first applicant, unless the Original Nominee, shall before such subsequent application, have lodged a Certificate of his having performed the Settling Duties.

JOHN SMALL, Clk Ex. Coun.

Executive Council Office,
York, 7th Nov. 1821.

WHEREAS it has become expedient to establish a line of communication through certain remote Townships, for encouragement thereof, Grants will be made to actual Settlers in the Townships hereinafter named on the condition of Settling within two years from the date of the Location, at the reduced Scale of 5th January, 1819, viz.

ERRATUM.

For Apostle, in our Commentary of last week READ Apostate.

Editorial Commentary.

Although we cannot pretend to insert an hundredth part of the balderdash, gascounde, and vain compliment, with which the American papers are stuffed, on the arrival of the Marquis LA FAYETTE, we cannot refuse giving the account of his embarkation in France, which is important, as shewing the state of popular feeling in that still unsettled country.—As to the General himself, and his republican brethren on this side the Atlantic, both parties are rapturously engaged from morning to night, and from night to morn, in tuning that well known ditty,—the chorus of which runs in this happy strain.

If you love us as I love you,
No Knife can cut our love in two.

YANKEE DOODLE DOO!

We rather think Mr. WARD will not be very thankful to the Colonial Advocate for making him the Returning Officer for Durham, which he has done in the 11th number of his miscellany.—As to the number of bad votes therein stated, as being on the side of Mr. Boulton, we can assure the Advocate he has greatly underrated them.—But the lapse of a few more weeks will probably clear the matter up—and determine who has a right to the seat for the County.

FAILLA is perfectly correct in his conjecture that Mr. Fothergill lost a great number of votes in consequence of his having advocated the measures of Government on a certain occasion.—Mr. F. was fully sensible of what would be the consequence at the time—but he did then, (as he would now, and for ever, whilst he has life,) scorn to weigh any personal considerations or advantages of his own—against what he conceived to be the public interests.—He believed the views of the Executive, on the occasion alluded to, to be enlightened and just, and he performed what he thought was his duty.—In a work that is preparing for the press this affair is further, and, as we trust, satisfactorily explained;—that work will be published—; in the mean time, we see no good likely to result from the publication of EMILIA's letter.

Notwithstanding our remarks on the subject of anonymous communications two weeks ago—we have received another from Whitby, involving the character of a man whom we have hitherto always understood to be highly respectable, in a very serious charge, being no less than Felony.—Really some authority ought to be given with such a document.—We have no doubt that the conduct of Mr. SHAW, the Magistrate, was highly meritorious; and, as we hear one of the parties is actually in jail—our communicant, who ever he is, will see a notice of the affair under our domestic head, according to his wish—but we must decline publishing the name of the implied principal—until we have a better authority.

It cannot be at all surprising that MR. GOURLAY should remember Mr. Fothergill with feelings of bitterness (see No. 11 Col. Advo.)—having received his first serious check in the District of Newcastle, which that wandering patriot was pleased to term the rebel District.—But he is totally in error if he imagines that Mr. F.—entertains any enmity whatever towards him. Pity, he does feel, and has often cried with the poet,

O, what a noble mind is there o'erthrown!

But, as Mr. G. says he sometimes reads this paper, and seems to court a reply to his abusive postscript, we shall probably grant his desire in our next.

Partially recovered from his delirium, poor Orton has published a very silly letter in the OBSERVER "—on the result of the Durham Election—Surely he cannot be so mad as to court a flagellation from us!—He must know that twere ds him, particularly, we have the bowels of compassion—nay—they absolutely yearn, for his recovery!—But we doubt whether his friends in Montreal—and neighbours in Hope—will be equally tender and compassionate towards this aspiring representative of a golden city!—He has our prayers, however, and until something very pungent and healing comes to our hands, for his benefit—we shall be careful of his wounds.—

* By the bye, CAREY ought to visit the Dull at Skenwatch Farm, for a week or two—in order to look into the famous Hebrew Lexicon, kept at that celebrated house of entertainment—for the admiration and astonishment of strangers—since we perceive he is rather deficient in his knowledge of the Mosaic tongue.

SELECTIONS FROM BRITISH AND FOREIGN JOURNALS.

THE GRAND CALEDONIAN BALL.

In consequence of the reparation of the fortified Penitentiary, Quarck's never before contained such an assemblage of rank, fashion, and beauty, as it did on Friday night.

There where present at midnight, eleven hundred persons, dressed in the costume of every country, and the brilliancy of the scene, from the quantities of diamonds with which almost every female dress was bedizzled, was unequalled.

At half past nine the Duchess of Richmond, and many other leading women of rank, arrived; as great a crowd had they of the ace, reaching crowd. From this hour till half past eleven arrived Mr. Canning and the other Cabinet Ministers, all in the Windsor uniform: the Duchess of Bedford, Duchess of Argyll, Somerset, Lonsdale. The leading Nobility assembled in the banqueting-room, on the ground floor, until the arrival of the Royal party, who entered at the private door opposite Duke Street, at twenty minutes before 12 o'clock. The name announced were—the Princess Augusta, Duke and Duchess of Clarence, and Prince Leopold, Duke Howard, Argyll, and Athol, and the Highland Chiefs, attended the Royal Ladies, preceded by the ancient and renowned pipers, who came all the way from Gordon Castle to preside on this occasion; he marched up the stairs playing the reel of "Tulloch ardgorum" with that degree of animation so necessary to the Highlander, all the Ladies of rank followed, together with the Gentlemen.

The Appearance of the Gre t Saloon at Midnight.—The double orchestra was decorated with flowers; the walls were covered with the banners of Scotland, and, at the top of the room, the arms of England were placed to the left as those of Scotland. The illumination was brilliant beyond example. The French musicians attempted to strike up "God save the King" on the entrance of the Royal Party; this was opposed, and Gow's band played it, which was the favourite of the Duke. The dancing commenced at a quarter past twelve, with a cotillie à la Polonaise—danced by two sets of tall, young, and beautiful women, called "The Ladies of the White Rose." The Rose of Charing Stuart marched the first in the right hand, for the first Lady since the year fifteen and forty-five, a worthy "Tullochgorum" was the next dance, followed by "Colonel McLean"—"Moneymusk"—and "Through the Wood to Davie." After this, the crowded room produced heat; and that beat he room intolerable; about three o'clock the dancing had a pause, about four it was partially revived; at five the music wholly ceased; at six the rooms were clear ed.

The following were among the finest and most splendid y dressed Ladies:—

The Duchess of Argyll, in a dress of massive golden tissue; her raven locks, and a prodigious plume of feathers of the same colour, produced a contrast with her diamonds equalled only by

The Duchess of Bedford, whose jewelry astonished all by its glitter and its quantity. Her display indeed, was splendid, but independently of the necklace, which cost at least fifty thousand guineas, chains of diamonds with amethysts in the centre, decorated her Grace's dress from the black velvet Spanish hat to the girdle or cestus below the stomacher.

The Hon. Mrs. Hope was a meteor in the throng; that lady was a moving firmament; and it was said the cost in brilliants a lone, in a dress of sombre magnificence (crimson) exceeded seven hundred thousand pounds!

The foreign characters were almost as numerous as the native ones. The Spaniards out abundant, but the Donnas were. The splendour of the scene was not a little heightened by the presence of the Officers of so many Dragoon Regiments. The Marquis of Londonderry wore his uniform of the Tenth. The Marchioness of Winchester, who is a very fine woman, wore a dress of white satin, almost covered with brilliant stars, which had a rich effect. Mrs Charles Calvert were a plume of fifteen ostrich feathers. Lady Saltoun and the Hon. Misses Fraser wore the Scottish Highland plume. The Misses Addington looked uncommonly well, in golden tissue. Mr. Christie, as Mahommed Ali, the present Viceroy of Egypt was very amusing.

The head of every House was there, except the Duke of Athol: his Grace left as his substitute his son Lord Glenlyon, who looked remarkably well in the full Highland dress.

We forgot to mention the Ladies of the "White Rose" were all dressed alike in white gossamer over white silk, with a Spanish hat turned up in front; the crown in a trellis work; the simplicity had a very agreeable effect, which their dancing contributed not a little to increase.

The Duke of Wellington wore the Uniform of the Oxford Blues.

Mr. Gow's band, by particular desire, played his (Mr. Gow's) last farewell to the Land of Scotch Quadrilles.—Caledonian Herald.

STEAM NAVIGATION.—The advantages which steam navigation affords to travellers will be shortly extended (it is stated to us) in an extraordinary degree on the coast of Scotland; as a steam vessel very superior in her size, construction, and accommodations, is about to be established in the month of July, between Leith, Wick, Ilia, Staffa, Iona, and even the Giant's Causeway. It is needless to point out the advantages which travellers in general, but more particularly the curious, will now enjoy in being thus enabled by means of this pleasant and expeditious conveyance to visit those parts of the North, so celebrated for the remains of antiquity and the wonders of nature.

Extract of a letter dated Aruba, July 16th 1824.

GOLD.—Every person in this island is busily employed in digging for gold, so that they cannot be had for any other employment. No doubt you will be surprised when I inform you one piece of pure gold has been found, weighing 32lb. 8oz and many pieces weighing from 14 to 16lb. I have seen several pieces of the latter weight myself. The schooner that left yesterday has upwards of 100 pounds on board.

THOMAS D JONES.

Extract of a letter from an American gentleman, dated at Curacoa, July 22

The above extract is entirely confirmed: for since I have been in this island, scarce 3 weeks, upwards of £150,000 in value of pure virgin gold, 24 carrats, have come in from Aruba.

The government of this place have noticed it, and proclamations are in circulation to prevent speculation, and other irregularities respecting this most valuable commodity. The piece of 32lb weight is mine, and appears perfectly pure and as native as ever.

The Dutch Government will have the exclusive benefit, and monopolize measures to secure it.

The levelling system.—A friend of ours relates an Anecdote, which delineates with admirable effect, the levelling spirit felt particularly in the State of New-York.

While sitting in a Bar Room near Albany waiting for a Stage, a fat Boniface of a Landlord with a pipe in his mouth, related an interview which had taken place during the morning between him and Mr. Filbrup. He said he met the late governor on horse back, and having stopped him to converse, he (the landlord, at last addressed him in these words;—"Now Dewitt, suppose we should put you in this year; tell us honestly whether you will behave yourself?"—Times.

From the London Daily Advertiser.

CANNIBALS.—In the brig Sultana, which arrived at this port yesterday, from London, came passenger, Mr. Joseph Price, of Wilmington, Del. who was one of the crew of the brig Gen. Gates of Boston, and was taken prisoner by the natives of New Zealand. Mr. P has furnished Mr. Todd with a narrative of their capture, from which we extract the following particulars:

The Gen. Gates sailed from Boston in 1821, on a sealing voyage, and on the 18th of August following Price was landed with five others, on the coast of New Zealand, to catch seals—after remaining there six weeks, having procured 3563 skins, they were taken on board by the natives of New Zealand, at 10 or 11 o'clock at night. The natives set fire to their huts, burnt the ships and destroyed the provisions, not knowing the use of them. They then tied their hands behind them, and marched them to Looking Glass Bay, a distance of more than a hundred and fifty miles. They had nothing to eat but roasted fish. They were then marched 200 miles to Sandy Bay, where they found a collection of savages, who carried them before their King and Queen. As soon as they arrived, one of their number, John Baxter of London, was ordered to be killed. He was tied to a tree and struck on the head by two savages, armed with clubs. His head was cut off and buried, and the rest of the body they roasted in a kind of oven under ground, and offered to the survivors to eat; and having nothing else, they were forced by hunger to partake of it. They had the remaining five to a tree, with fifty men to guard them. The next day, James Weaver was killed and roasted; the day after, Wm Rawson, of New-London) and the day after, Wm. Smith, of New-York, shared the same fate. The next day, from what they could learn from the Chief, James Street, of New-York, was to die; but the night previous a heavy squall rose from the east, with thunder and rain, which so frightened the natives, that they all ran away to the west with a hideous noise, leaving the men tied under the tree. They succeeded in untying themselves, escaped to the shore, found their boat, in which they put to sea without provisions. They were not 50 yards from the shore when they saw 200 savages coming in search of them. They had been three days in the boat, when they were picked up by the brig Margery, Captain White, of Sidney, N South Wales, at which place they were landed on the 15th of November.

A new book of Military Instructions has just been published by command of his Majesty, and under the revision of Major General Sir Henry Torrens, of which every officer in the Army and Marines is required to supply himself with a copy. The object is to establish one uniform system of field exercise and movement throughout his Majesty's land forces. The new system is founded on that which was introduced about thirty three years ago, by the late General Sir David Dundas, and embraces all the improvements that have since been so partially adopted during the late war, so that a fixed and general presence of temper is expected to be universally adhered to, and the Army is no longer to be subjected to the inconvenience necessarily resulting from a desultory and dissimilated practice, carried on to some years by the uncertain discretion of commanding officers. The work extends to a number of 335 octavo pages, and has twelve large plates, containing no fewer than 91 figures, representing the different manœuvres and evolutions that are hereafter to be performed by companies, battalions, brigades, and divisions. Heretofore the number of evolutions under the system of General Dundas was limited to more than eighteen; but the additional evolutions are considered as essential to the complete management of an Army in all possible positions; and a considerable portion of the work is occupied by instructions to officers, how and when to execute those species of tactics constantly practised with great success by Buonaparte in his campaigns. It may easily be imagined what an extensive and complicated piece of military machinery this must be, indeed it is not considered by the said Field Officers, many of whom are unable to make themselves masters of it; and they will probably on that account be obliged to retire from the service. The work, however, appears to be one of the most complete things of the kind that ever was published; and there is every reason to expect that when well understood and generally acted upon, it will give to the British Army a degree of efficiency and perfection which it never possessed before.

EVILS OF FORTUNE-TELLING.—A lady had been married some years, had three little girls, and was near her confinement a fourth time, when her husband, being absent on business, wrote to request she would search his bureau for a paper of some consequence; in doing which she found another, inscribed, "Minutes of my fortune, told me in the year 1789," which was seven years prior to her marriage. Curiosity prompted her to open it, when she found as follows:—"L. D. to me that I am to marry, in seven years, a lady with blue eyes, fair complexion, and light hair, with whom I am to live very happily; that I shall have three daughters; that in giving birth to a boy, the fourth child, my wife shall die." This paper fell into the lady's hands but a few days before she was confined, and caused a depression which she could not throw off; but when the sex of the child was known, the strange coincidence of the three girls, and the boy being as predicted, the fourth child, so entirely seized her imagination, that in three days she lost her intellects, and in less than three weeks (during the whole of which time she was completely deranged) she expired.

WARM BATHING.—The luxury of warm bathing is considerably increased in Paris by the bather taking refreshments whilst immersed to the chin in the water. This practice, the Paris physicians contend, additionally opens the pores, and, by a gentle but increased perspiration, proves highly efficacious in removing those disorders for which the tepid bath is prescribed. When the patient is in the bath he rings a bell, and tea, coffee, chocolate, soup or other deluting refreshments, are introduced upon a waiter made of cork, which floats upon the surface of the water, whilst the bather takes it at his pleasure.

A TOUCH OF THE MARVELLOUS.—Lord Blaney, an Irish Peer, and a General Officer in the English Army, which, it will be recollected was taken prisoner near two years ago by the French near Gibralter, and was afterwards sent into France, has lately published an account of his adventures in that country, in which he relates the following most extraordinary occurrence, stated to have taken place while he and his friends were drinking their wine after dinner, near Gueret in France:

"Three of the wine glasses broke spontaneously in pieces, and the wine ran about the table and on the floor; the clock which had before struck tolerably correct, now struck two hundred and sixteen; the screech owls, of which there were abundance in the neighbourhood, made a hideous noise; "and appearances," says his Lordship, "were altogether so very strange, that I observed, there must either have been an earthquake, or some most extraordinary event had taken place. Our imaginations, from being wound up in the highest pitch of conjecture and anxiety, to devise a cause for such strange occurrences, were soon set at rest by a most violent rapping at the door, which proved to be an express, that brought us the agreeable and wonderful intelligence of Napoleon's abdicating the throne."

From the London Literary Chronicle.

A dead take in.—Some few years back, while an East Indiaman was lying at Canton, a party were sent on shore for fresh water, accompanied by a young officer, who took with him his doubled-barrelled gun, and amused himself, until attacked by several of the natives, when he fired, and unfortunately killed one of the men; this deterred the rest from pursuit, and he escaped. On the following day a great stir was made about the business; the trade was suspended, and, as usual, the officer was demanded as an expiatory sacrifice to the manes of the deceased Chinese. This could not be agreed to; but, instead of the officer, a large sum in dollars was offered to hush up the matter; but no, fond as they are of dollars, the great men of Canton, in this instance, would have a life for a life.

Just at this juncture, the butcher of the Indiaman committed suicide, when some cunning dog of the ship's company found out that he was about the size of the officer who had shot a Chinese instead of a parroquet; and it was thought he might be passed off very well for him. The body was, therefore, dressed in a suit of the other's uniform, and the poor butcher was unwittingly promoted after his decease; the dirk was strapped round his body, and every thing done to make it appear that he was the officer, who was very snugly put out of sight; the villainous butcher's knife was changed for a town made razor, which was besmeared with blood, and put into the deceased's hands. When all was ready, a boat was despatched to the shore, to say that the authorities might now have the body of the offending officer. A murderer was sent on board, saw the officer lay dead with his own eyes, and having so seen, said, "It was no fashion (no use,) to take a dead man;" but as he was dead, they had better buy him, and pay the money of first officer."—A very wise Chinese decision. I wonder if this circumstance is much money was paid on the occasion, but the dead officer, who so cruelly committed suicide at this critical moment, and a few Spanish dollars, soon set the junks at work again.

UTILITY OF A GOOD NOSE.—A few days ago, a respectable gentleman of this town while standing at the door of his house, fancied that he felt a slight titillation in his nasal organ, caused by some effluvia or other, which, from the faint sensation it produced, seemed to imply its having come from a considerable distance—Doubting at first whether his odorous ventilator had on this occasion transmitted a faithful impression to the seat of the soul, he blew it soundly in his handkerchief, and having put it in its best trim for external perception, turned his face to the gale, which was then blowing up High-street, and after taking a few hearty snuffs plainly perceived that he had been rightly informed, and that the odour, which he now more strongly felt, proceeded from burning. He immediately resolved to scent it out; and after smelling minutely all about his own premises, and satisfying himself of their safety, he proceeded from Church Place along High street, poking his head into every entry and opening in search of his game, and making the most strict analysis of each separate scent that rushed upon him in combination through these funnels of fetidity. Still, however, the one he sought for was not there—it yet continued to throw its awful burden on the wind at a distance; and in this manner he proceeded, piloted by his faithful nose, along the current, through crowds of passing townsmen, whose olfactory tubes, either bedashed with snuff, or more calous by nature, seemed quite uncon scious of the object of his pursuit, till he at last arrived at the head of Bank street. Here his pilot almost ushered him to turn to the right, and without the smallest ceremony introduced him into the shop of Mr. ——, where, after taking a few hearty inhalations, and looking inquisitively around him, he demanded of the merchant if his shop was not on fire? He was, of course, answered with no small surprise in the negative, and assured that all was right; but this assseveration was by no means strong enough to confute the epod cial testimony of his own nose, which had traced the scent to that place, and could trace it no further. Still, too, though unfelt by the merchant, it every moment even very all to him fresh proofs of its being in the immediate vicinity of where he was standing; and after repeated assurances to that effect, the merchant was induced to examine a back part of his premises in which a fire was kept, where, to the utter confusion of his sterdality, and the complete triumph of the gentleman's nose, some bags of seed were found to be on fire, which might soon have led to disagreeable consequences!—We most tinyerely congratulate the happy town of Dumfries on possessing the inestimable treasure of such a nose, which has thus proved itself to be a complete safeguard to the inhabitants from every danger that smells before it is more fatally felt; and we heartily wish, in grat tude to the gentleman, as well as for our own safety, that this sense may be the last of the five that forsakes him.—Dumfries Courier.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY.—For some years past a very strong persuasion has existed in the minds of many of the inhabitants of Lincolnshire, that beds of coal exist under many parts of that county, and might be worked to advantage, but that all the persons who have been employed to search for them have been bribed by the coal-masters in Yorkshire, to render their attempts abortive. A few years ago the Earl of Bristol was prevailed upon to search for coal on one of his estates, and employed a number of men to bore for that purpose. After going to a considerable depth without success, (indeed the finding of coal there is geologically impossible), his lordship began to tire of the undertaking and the men found that their services would very soon be dispensed with, unless they did something to relieve their employers. With that view they several times put small quantities of coal into the bore, which of course were brought up by the instrument, and induced his lordship's agents to think that it had been reached according to their wish. One day the borers saw the steward approaching the place where they were at work; a dose of salts was administered to him which hastily emptied his pockets of the keys, while the other stopping to scrutinize very minutely what it contained. While the steward stretched his morning rod was drawn up, and brought with it, not only a quantity of coal, but some bread and cheese, the sight of which greatly disconcerted the borers. Whether the Earl was afraid of alarming the agricultural interests by the discovery of bread and cheese mines, we are not informed; but certain it is that he immediately discontinued boring.—Manchester Guardian.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

The French Ambassador, Guilleminal, arrived at Constantinople on the 11th of June, and was received in the usual form.

From an eye witness of the Embarkation of La Fayette:—

"As it was expected that the General would arrive early in the afternoon of the 12th July, several merchants, and a great number of young men, left this at 2 P. M. in carriages, gigs, and on horseback, to go out and meet Monsieur La Fayette at Bacllieux (6 miles from Havre,) and accompany him into town. The American Consul, and all the American gentlemen in and the neighbourhood of Ships in the harbour, intended also joining that triumphant to the General; but the Sous Prefet notified to the Consul, that the Americans must not do so."

"The road for two miles out of town, continued crowded from 3 in the afternoon till dark, and the hillocks of the Generals house were covered with people. The people returned into town, where they remained in groups all the evening. Havre presented the appearance of a town in danger of an enemy's approach. The guards were doubled at all the posts, patroles of soldiers, police men and gendarmes, marched about, and prevented the crowd from collecting in any one spot."

"At a quarter past 10 the General arrived in a post carriage with his son and secretary. They were accompanied by the carriages that had gone out from Havre, and about 200 young men on horseback. He desired that the strong body of grenadiers might feed the cavalcade. On arriving at the entrance to the city, the gates were shut, and the guard drawn out with fixed bayonets.—It was then asked if it was the Marquis de La Fayette, who was there, and on being answered that it was General La Fayette, the gate was opened to admit his carriage, and closed immediately, to prevent the entry of any of those who had gone out to meet the General. After repeated and unavailing attempts to get in, and expostulating with the Officer on guard, this latter assured the people then, as he himself, that if they would go to the Porte de Picardie, (a gate at the rear side of the city, and a mile from the principal one,) they would be admitted. On repeating the answer at that gate, it was closed, and they were desired to go back to the principal gate, where they were admitted, two by two, at intervals, and the names of several taken."

"In the mean time the General proceeded to the house of Mr Philippon, (a most respectable merchant,) where an elegant dinner was provided, and a large party waiting to receive him.—In the course of the entertainment, a stone was thrown in by some miscreant in the house one of the windows, which passed close to the head of one of the generals aids. On the morning of the 13th a crowd again assembled to witness the embarkation of the General, and the streets presented the same appearance as the evening before. A party of Soldiers was drawn up opposite to the Cadran, on the Custom-house quay, where it was supposed the embarkation would take place. Every impediment was used to prevent the people from showing any mark of respect. The Cadran, in consequence of the tide's falling, was obliged to haul into the roads. The General, accompanied by a body of gentlemen, arrived, and went on board the Steam-boat, which was previously cleared by order of the Police, who would not allow him to embark whilst any body of the town was on board. They also hauled down the flag belonging to the boat, and would not let it be hoisted while M. La Fayette was on board. The gates were shut, to prevent the people coming to the Jetty—heed to take a last view of the General. However, in this, their efforts were unavailing, as every boat that could be had was immediately filled, and followed the Steam-boat to the Cadran, then two miles off. A general and a perfect silence went out in the Cadran, to prevent any body but the General and his suite going on board. On his coming along side, he was received with hearty and repeated cheers from the ship, which were returned from the boats and a few persons on shore, who had got out and overtaken a-head of a mile from the jetty. On the out of the way of the military, as there was a strong guard at the pier-head.) Thus closed the scene."

SPAIN.

MADRID, June 29.—A Lind of Congress formed of the Ambassadors of the Holy Alliance is now talked of. The actual situation of Spain, the occupation of Cadiz and the future destiny of the Balearic Islands, are said to be subjects upon which the circumference will take place. It is not known what part England will take in the affair, but we are entertained that she will not take into the views of the other powers.

General Tiel, commander of the Artillery of the French army in Spain, demarcation for public affairs, continues to be the centre of the Cathedrals. Letters from Navarre speak of organizing a band of the landed royal force. At that place, and the second here, that the reinforcement that was sent to the garrison of Cadiz, and the works that have been going on at the out stopping to scrutinize very minutely what it contained. While the steward stretched his morning rod was drawn up, and brought with it, not only a quantity of coal, but some bread and cheese, the sight of which greatly disconcerted the borers. Whether the Earl was afraid of alarming the agricultural interests by the discovery of bread and cheese mines, we are not informed; but certain it is that he immediately discontinued boring.—Manchester Guardian.

The Pope's Nuncio has transmitted to the King, through the medium of the Chief Secretary of State, the circular bull addressed by Pope Leo XII. to all the Patriarchs, Primates Archbishops and Bishops, upon the occasion of his exaltation to the Pontificate, as well as the bull for the publication of the Jubilee for 1825. The Holy Father speaks eloquent and decisive to religious matters, against bible societies, and the Holy Scriptures being translated into the vulgar tongues.

HOLY ALLIANCE.

AIX-LA-CHAPELLE, July 6.—The conferences at the village of Johannesberg are upon the point of being ended. Prince Metternich and his suite will no longer joining his Sovereign at Vienna. He will be followed by the Russian Senator Tatischeff, who is also returning to Vienna. This last has sent off, some days since, an extraordinary courier to St. Petersburgh, with despatches. Many notes relative to the interior affairs of Germany have been decided at Johannesberg, in concert with Prince Hardenberg first Plenipotentiary of the King of Prussia. The Austrian Minister, President of the Germanic Diet, has received in consequence instructions from Prince Metternich, to be communicated to that Assembly. It is thought that the principality will decide to the severe measures that have been lately adopted against the German universities, and new dispositions respecting the fortresses at that Confederation.

TURKEY.

Great silence prevails in respect to the operations of the Ottoman force: both by land and sea, from which circumstance it is generally supposed that their affairs are in a bad state in the Peloponnesus, or that, at least, nothing has been done to set at rages The Divan, it is believed, is occupied in considering the means of evacuating the provinces, and it was affirmed that an order to that effect would be immediately issued.—Standard

MR. ROBERT GOURLAY.

It is known that Mr. Gourlay has been in custody, committed by the Commons, but on no charge, at Bellamy's coffee house, within the walls of the House of Commons, since his assault upon Mr. Brougham On Friday, in consequence of the prorogation of Parliament, he was as a matter of course, discharged; but it had been thought necessary, in certain high quarters to have him still in confinement, and a warrant for his apprehension was issued by the Bow street Magistrate, and put into the hand of Ellis, one of the officers, who watched Mr. Gourlay from the House of Commons, and followed him as far as Castle-court, Strand, where he took him into custody He was then taken to the public office in the evening. He was accompanied by several friends, and Sir George Tuthill and Dr. Munro were in attendance, at the desire of the Secretary of State for the Home Department.

A long examination took place but no new facts of importance were elicited. Mr. Gourlay answered promptly to questions put to him, and examined the the constable who took him into custody at the House of Commons. He repeated his former assertion, that the act was premeditated, and that he had consulted a friend about it, who approved of his intention. Two persons, Mr. Burke, a surgeon, and Mr. Bannister, a student at law, who were acquainted with Mr Gourlay, were of opinion that he was not of unsound mind

Sir George Tuthill and Dr. Munro were then sworn, and the certificates which they had given when Mr. Gourlay was in confinement at the House of Commons, and which have already been published, were read over to them, and the Learned Doctors said they were still of the same opinion. They had observed the manner of Mr. Gourlay during the present examination, and they were of opinion that he was of unsound mind, Sir G. Tuthill added, that the defendant was a dangerous person, and not fit to go abroad.

A long conversation ensued, in which Mr Gourlay protested against the proceedings, but was told by Mr. Halls there was sufficient to warrant his detention—"I do not sit here," said the Magistrate, to decide upon your sanity or insanity, Mr Gourlay, and I beg you will understand that I shall only pursue the same course with you that I should with others. I have not before me, that you have committed an assault, and that you are suspected of being an insane person. I shall therefore commit you under the act of Parliament to the Sessions, there to be further dealt with. You may be bailed if you bring such bail as will satisfy myself and the Honourable Baronet, and if we should refuse to take it, you will still have an opportunity of applying to the Judges of the land."

Mr. Gourlay, after pulling several other questions to the Magistrates and Physicians, was committed to the House of Corrections, with directions that every possible attention should be shown him. Mr. Halls ordered him he should experience the treatment due to a gentleman.—London Paper.

IRELAND.

GALWAY, June 26.

Famine.—It is with great regret we are obliged to write upon this subject; but the fact is, that our people famish, not only in the midst of plenty, but also in the prospect of superabundance.

In consequence of the representations made to government by the Roman Catholic clergy of the state of distress in this neighbourhood, and the humane disposition of some persons who were pleased to contradict the fact, and to say that none existed, his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant was graciously pleased to send down Commissary General Luscomb to inspect and inquire into the actual state of the poor in this district, and to report to his Excellency the result. On the 22d instant, this gentleman arrived here, and after making some inquiries, he proceeded to Oughterard, fourteen, miles west, and such was the distress and misery which he witnessed there upon his arrival, that he can express the same night for a quantity of oatmeal to be immediately sent him, to keep the people alive! This human, this excellent gentleman, was shocked at the spectacles of human misery which were presented to his view; young men laid down upon the bed of misery, unable to move for want of food, and resigned to die No pen could describe, no pencil paint, what the wretched—the picture was too appalling for human nature to support—The Commissary General could not obtain himself, he was unmanned, the tear of pity ran down his cheek, every shilling which he and his associates possessed was instantly distributed to stay the hand of death.

The Commissary General having made his arrangements at Oughterard, and having had a supply of thirty tons of oatmeal lodged in the town, he returned here, when, at an early hour, one of the Roman Catholic clergy sent him in a report of upwards of two hundred families in one parish who were in an equal state of want, many of whom had not tasted food for the day before; and had the Commissary General waited in town that day, it was the intention of the other Clergy to make known the state of their parishioners, but we understand he proceeded towards Westport —While this distress exists in the neighbourhood, cargoes of oatmeal are shipping off every day.—Advertiser.

LONDON, JUNE 28.

STEAM COMMUNICATION WITH AMERICA.

On Saturday, a Meeting of the Noblemen and Gentlemen connected with Ireland was held at the City of London Tavern, for the purpose of establishing a more direct communication between Great Britain and Ireland and America.

At one o'clock there were assembled, the Marquis of Londonderry, the Earls of Meath and Ormond, Lord Abbey, the Hon. C. H. Hutchinson, M. P. the Rt. Hon Prince Fitzgerald M P. (the Knight of Kerry) Sir Robert Adams, and several other gentlemen connected with the South of Ireland and American Trade Board, after one o'clock, several persons who were expected not having arrived—

Mr. M. Fitzgerald addressed the Meeting and requested a short delay for the arrival of Mr Randolph, who had just arrived from America, and who was capable of communicating much information which would be useful to the object of the Meeting, and Mr. Thos. Peing Rice who was interested in the project, both of whom were shortly expected.

The object for which the meeting was convened was explained in a prospectus from which the following are extracts:

It is proposed to establish a line of packets to sail weekly from the excellent harbour of Valentia, in the west extremity of Ireland to the city of New York.

The harbour of Valentia is the nearest point of Europe to the American continent. It is 202 miles more nearly than Falmouth, and may be reached from London in 50 hours, and 40 from Liverpool, by a regular, who will thus save all the disagreeable risks of the Channel navigation.

At two o'clock, Lord Carbery took the Chair, and opened the business of the meeting.

Mr. M. Fitzgerald then addressed the meeting. In carrying into effect this project, they ought to be guided by two leading principles—the first, that the line of communication should be formed between the nearest convenient points of Ireland and America. The Right Hon Gentleman pointed out in the strongest manner the advantage to personal intercourse with America, which the new plan of establishing steam vessels between the south of Ireland and America would afford, and the ready commercial intercourse which could be kept up by branch vessels between the south of Ireland and the other parts of the kingdom. He pointed out the ready supply of coals which might be had at Valentia from the British Channel, and that by the steam packets sailing from Valentia to the eastern points of Nova Scotia, they there were within the coast supply from Cape Breton, to enable them to take a fresh supply for the voyage home.

Mr. Nimmo then addressed the meeting. He estimated that with vessels of 1000 tons burthen (which would carry all the necessary coal,) they could navigate the Atlantic from Valentia to the most eastern cape of Nova Scotia in less than a fortnight; four hundred tons coal would do for the voyage. He only intended that the passenger steam vessels should sail between Valentia and Nova Scotia. At the latter place smaller vessels could be appointed to carry on the navigation throughout all the channels which were open to all ports of Canada, New York &c, and the smaller steam vessels which brought coals from the British Channel to the South of Ireland for the use of the larger packets, could also convey the merchandize brought in the latter to its proper consignment in other ports of the kingdom.

Lord Carbery suggested that the port of Valentia should not be finally fixed upon without the concurrence of the great commercial interests engaged in the American trade.

The Hon. C. H. Hutchinson enlarged upon the inestimable advantages which must accrue to Ireland from the

NEW SOUTH WALES.

(EXTRACT OF A PRIVATE LETTER.)

June 16th, arrived off the Isle of Wight, the ship Competitor, Captain Ascough in 124 days from New South Wales with a cargo consisting of various kinds of Colonial timber, elephant oil seal skins, and the hides of cattle; ever through Cook's Straits New Zealand, and by way of Cape Horn touching at St. Salvador for water. Barron Field, Esq. late Judge of the Supreme Court, and his Lady, are passengers. The Lieutenant Brooks, sailed the same day as the Competitor, as also the ship Harriott, the Cowlier and Woodlark, were also charged by the house of Messrs Jerby, to load for England, sailing at Van Diemen's Land to fill up, and touch at Sydney; and after having had taken on board several cwts. of the great productions made by Governments, and the alteration in the state of the currency. Good grain ten was sold at 4s 2d per lb. by the chest: best Isle of France sugar, at 3d by the lot, and best sugar retailing at 4s; currency; beef 6d and 7d per lb; wheat, from 5s 6d to 6s 6d and flour from 2s 6d to 3s per bushel, in the market. Mr. Oxley, Surveyor General had returned, in January, from an examination of part of the coast to the North and succeeded in discovering a river in Moreton Bay, lat. 28 Carleton has made a fine Settlement to say yet Moreton Bay in New Holland. He ascended this river 80 miles and saw its course from an eminence for 30 or 40 miles more, being compelled to return from further examination from want of provisions. It is 3 miles broad at the entrance, and has a safety from three to four fathoms water in a winding course on the left of the survey; but about 20 miles from the sea it is crossed by a ledge of rocks, over which there is only twelve feet at high water. At the distance to which he proceeded the tide has risen four feet and a half, and ran upwards of four miles per hour. The country all round was an undulating level abounding in very superior timber, the soil rich and well covered with grass, but in our strong. The river came from the S. W. in the direction of the Macquarie marshes, of which it may probably prove the outlet, being at the termination of Mr. Oxley's survey about 100 miles in a direct line from where he lost the Macquarie among reeds, in his former trip into the interior. The country around was not subject to flood, no marks of it being seen exceeding seven feet above the then level of the river, which was considerably within its banks It continued to the same species as has hitherto once been found in the banks of the Macquarie. A river of tolerable magnitude, called the Logan, was also discovered behind Mount Warning, a little to the south west of the bay, with a good bar by four of fourteen feet, and the country seemingly good around. A smaller one, called the Bogue, was also found in Port Curtis.

The Governor intended proceeding, in April, to explore the harbour, in his Majesty's ship Leon, lately arrived from India.

Mr Oxley's health having been materially injured by his two former hazardous expeditions, the hardship encountered in this last had given it a still severer shock; but he had recovered considerably at the period of the Competitor's departure, and was anxious to set out on a further journey of discovery for the benefit of sciences and the Colony, to which his meritorious and patriotic exertions have already been so serviceable.

Mr. Archibald Bell, Jun. of Richmond Hill, had also discovered a new route over the Blue Mountains to Bathurst, by way of Richmond, which passes through a fertile, well watered, bushy country. Besides considerably reducing the distance, the road will be free from almost every hill, and from nearly all the inclosures which render the bleak and barren one now used so unthriving to the traveller, and ill adapted for the passage of coach and driving of cattle. The Vetinas Corps, lately disbanded, is to be settled along this line.

A stage coach, with four horses has recently commenced running daily between Sydney and Parramatta, leaving Sydney in the morning and returning in the evening; while a handsome two horse spring caravan for passengers leaves Parramatta in the morning and returns in the evening. These conveyances were proposed to sail, that a second caravan was preparing to run between Sydney and Parramatta daily, a third between Parramatta and Liverpool, and a stage coach between Parramatta and Windsor; so that now travellers may proceed by daily stages to all the well settled parts of the Colony.

The five hives of bees taken out by Captain Wallace, of the Isabella, were thriving well and had thrown off many swarms, the greater part of which had escaped into the woods, where they will, no doubt, multiply fast, from the climate and country being so favourable to their propagation, so that wild honey as it was may hereafter become objects of interest to the Colonists for domestic purposes and exportation, besides what will be produced from them at their home stock.

Mr. Marsden's Establishment some time ago, imported six young apprentices from England, from five of which eighty three young plants have been raised by means of layers, while the parent stems have added a full third to their growth. The mill is a very handy light house, and Mr. Marsden was erecting several others with the view of planting an olive grove, as from the intelligence of their growth, this soil appeared to be so well adapted to it. Should the production of the olive progressively increase at this rate, Mr Marsden will be able in a few years to supply the whole of the Colonies with their own Lucca Oil, where all attempts at propagating it have hitherto failed.

A Tread mill for grinding flour has lately been erected at Sydney, by Government, which answered well as an object of terror to criminals, and as a means of grinding their bread stuff; but of productive benefit to the Colony it was not found to be established on a more extensive scale. A quantity of New Zealand flax had also been imported, which the female convicts in the factory were taught to dress in the New Zealand manner, by a native of that country, and it is upon the whole considered by the female convicts, into various descriptions of cloth. Should this manufacture be properly encouraged, it may not only prove a profitable way of employing the female convicts, whose bad characters unfit them for family servants, but by encouraging the New Zealanders to cultivate the flax which they produce in exchange for European articles, may in the end, relieve them from acts of murder and cannibalism, to that of following a useful occupation by which all their wants may be supplied.

Tobacco has this year been so extensively cultivated, that the Colonists will be independent of all Foreign supply in a day or two. By having been held upon imported tobacco, to encourage that of Colonial growth. This measure has put a complete stop to the cultivation of tobacco in Otaheite, where it had latterly been produced of a very superior quality. Had the duty not been reduced 4d. per lb. upon the Otaheite, it would have afforded a sufficient protection to the Colonial grower, without annihilating its cultivation in Otaheite, which may be considered as a dependance of New South Wales, and on that account ought to be attended to some consideration.

The country is rapidly altering by means of the clearing gangs, the settler (as my informer believes of wheat per acre on upwards of 100 acres, and to make it fit for the plough. A large distillery has just been completed, to distil from grain; and all the common earthen-ware used in the Colony is now made by two Staffordshire potters, who say that the New South Wales clay is very superior to the English for the purpose.

When the Orcan sails, no less than ten vessels will have cleared from New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land for England, with cargoes chiefly the produce of the Colonies This great increase is owing to the steady going to the duty being taken off Colonial oil and timber at home, so that they now afforded a remunerating price to the shippers, but it is also, no doubt partly referable to the reduction of Government expenses in the Colony, and Government having no longer purchased oil at a fixed price, but sold it to the highest bidder; so that the merchants find it more profitable to make their remittances in produce than in bills, which now bear a premium of 15 to 20 per cent.

On our passage home, April 26, in S. lat 26, we were boarded by his Majesty' ship Tamar, Captain Bremer, (1 lat from the Cape de Verds bound to the Cape of Good Hope and New South Wales, on secret service.

A Swiss woman is exhibiting in London, who is 6 feet 5 inches high. [We formerly heard of an Irishman superior in stature to the Grenadier—and on enquiry was told there was a Negro particularly large—and we ourselves have seen two or three people considerably above the middle size. But we never heard of a female above the middle size, or exhibited for money. Query—may not the representation of the Swiss woman be a mistake?]

Communication.

To the Editor of the Weekly Register.

SIR,

When an individual comes before the public in the character of an Independent Editor, what are the qualifications he should be possessed of?—are they an implacable disposition, ready deliberately to stab the character of every individual of opposite sentiments to himself?—An eagerness to give publicity to the most extravagant statements of things that pass, coupled with falsehood of the most disbelieved nature?—Refusing when an in correct statement is made to correct it?—And abusing the parties aggrieved by his falsehood, by epithets and in terms which they cannot stoop to answer? Or is it true, open, candid, and manly sentiment, and a readiness on all occasions to correct what ever he may do illadvisedly or amiss when authentic documents are furnished him for that purpose?—I think, Sir, I can anticipate your reply. It is not my purpose Mr. Editor, nor is it my province, to enter into all the qualifications of an Editor of a public paper; but, I humbly conceive that qualities, such as I have above described, are not those befitting the character of an honest man and an Editor of a public paper, which ranks in the community as a guardian of the people's rights—if the press is the palladium of the rights of free men, it should never become accessary to the injury of any man. Great offences against candid and libentic statements touching public things should always find a place in the columns of an independent paper.

There is a paper, said to be published at Queenston, in this Province, called the "COLONIAL ADVOCATE"—From that name, Mr. Editor, something in character might have been expected, and were I equal to the task, I might point out the benefits which this Province might derive from a paper conducted on principles which that title suggests; but, what is now that paper?—Is it not the direct reverse, in——ness, paper-ness? And is it not promised to be conducted with the late "Upper Canada Guardian" with this exception, that its Editor wants the ability with which that paper was conducted:—to say but little of the principles of either: suppose them co-equal also. Great things can frequently be judged by comparison, and if that is a fair criterion, by which the "ADVOCATE" may be estimated, God prevent its circulation in this Province. Its Editor has announced, that when he invested any thing which afterwards proved to be incorrect, he was ready at all times, and would always give publicity to more authentic accounts: how different has been the conduct of that man in the affair of laying the corner stone of the Church now erecting at Ancaster, you have no doubt seen an anonymous letter, in number 9 of the Advocate, by which it would appear that, among the deposits in the corner stone of the building is No. 1 of that paper, and also that the Editor had been toasted on that day by the company who directed there. Now, Sir, unfavourable as the world may think of the people of the District of Gore, I hope and trust that neither you, nor any other honest man, ever entertained an opinion, that a company of such a number would collectively drink such a sentiment as is there inserted: whilst indulging in the luxury of enjoying the benefits of a part of the land of the 26th Regt. playing God save the King.—The Committee, appointed the meeting on Wednesday the next day, feel rig themselves aggrieved by the falsehood published in No 9 of the Advocate, and anxious that the public should be informed of the truth, through the same channel, that its baneful effects might at once be checked, addressed a letter to the Editor of last paper, for insertion, and correcting what had appeared: but, strange as you may think it, Mr. Editor, he refused to publish the true statement!!! but wrote them an impudent letter, informing them, that if his paper was deposited without their knowledge, they must have been remiss in their duty; and as the "Advocate" was now approximating so nearly to the just medium of politics as to rank as a veteran, he congratulated them upon a discovery which his sagacity had made, and hinted to his friend at Ancaster that if the committee published their communication with any remarks in any other paper, they might expect what Col Clark got, as he knew the private characters of four of them!!! O my God, Mr. Editor, are the people of this Province to be gulled into the support of such a man, as an Editor of a public paper? As well may the husbandman guard against a nocturnal beast of prey, or the traveller against a midnight robber, as that the committee, above alluded to, could guard against treasonous intentions of such as concerned in the business transaction of depositing that paper clandestinely.

The exertions made by the friends of both Cameron and McMartin, were never on any occasion exceeded.

As for McDonnel, great exertion was unnecessary, his friends were, as they have always been, true blue,—he led from the beginning he won easily.—

DREDGING THE LAKE ST PETER.

We are glad to find the important subject of deepening Lake St. Peter has begun to attract the notice of men of talent and abilities amongst us. The following scientific remarks, as applicable to this undertaking, has been communicated to us:—

"In the New Edinburgh Encyclopædia, vol. vii. article DREDGING, it is stated that a machine now at work upon the Thames, with a steam engine of 16 horse power when dredging in a moderate depth, will bring up enough to load two barges of forty five tons each in an hour with only three men to attend the winch; and the engine will consume about 343 lbs. of Newcastle coals per hour." Now if we take 12 feet for a moderate depth, and the weight of a cubic foot of the earth to be removed at 124 lbs, this machine will remove 1264 cubic feet of earth per hour; or if dredging a channel 40 feet wide and 4 feet deep, the machine would advance a little more than 7½ feet per hour, or 77½ feet per day of 10 hours, or in that proportion, in a channel of any width and depth that may be required."

QUEENSTON Aug. 28th.

Dreadful Accident at General Brock's Monument.—The floor of this tower is stained with blood; the sarcophagus which is designed to perpetuate the memory of a slaughtered British hero, will also serve as the tomb stone and memorial of a youth to fortune and to fame unknown! A young Scots lad, a stone cutter and contractor for quarrying, has met his death on the very spot where the general's bones are intended to be entombed. On Saturday the 28th ult. about dusk in the evening, Donald Keith, a native of Argyleshire in Scotland, accompanied by Peter McIntosh, a stone cutter at the monument, resolved to be hoisted to the top from motives of curiosity. The tower is now 57 feet high, and when they were within about four feet of its summit the rope (which is worked by a horse and pulley's,) broke down with their weight and precipitated them 53 feet at once amongst the stones at the bottom inside the round tower. An Irishman of the name of Riley, who was, with other means on the top humanely attempted to assist, if possible, the unfortunate men, by sliding down the single rope that remained suspended to the pulley at the top. He held by the rope till within about 15 feet of the base, and then, from a momentary fear, let go, and so fell to the ground. He is a good deal hurt, but none of his bones are broken. McIntosh was standing in the mortar box when they were hoisted; he fell on his breech, the mortar in which he was over the shoes having preserved his equilibrium. He was lifted up insensible, and strange to relate not a bone of his body is broke, nor is his skin even scratched; unless a small contusion on his head.—I was present when he was stifled, and he spoke to me and others as he lay in bed quite in a rational manner; he also swallowed a glass of wine which I held to his lips. On Sabbath he became light headed, and lost all remembrance of his fall, but strong hopes are entertained that he will recover.—The other unfortunate man, Keith, received a large and deep wound in the forehead, his skull was broken and shattered in pieces, he was moreover hurt internally, and his thigh broken. When I came upon the hill they were washing away the blood which flowed abundantly from his head. Mr Raymond had it thus in the right arm; we tied up his head; Mr Chisholm very humanely rode off to Niagara for a surgeon; a mer wound up of straw mattrass and hand barrow; on this he was hoisted 1 st at the top and held up his head as well as I could. In this way he was carried to Mr Queen's house. Alas! his time was come, for with a gurgle, as it respected me was stopped by blood in his throat, he soon breathed his last. He was a terrible spectacle to behold in death, his ghastly appearance, the deep gash in his forehead, with his whole body covered with his own blood, exhibited in its most awful form the triumph of the king of terrors. He was a fine stout lad, about five and twenty, has a brother at Oak Orchard Creek, who is sent for; he is to be interred on Monday, and his sudden call is all I trust prove a seasonable warning to many to prepare for that great change, by which eternity is unveiled, and the sinner ushered into the presence of the judge of all the earth.

Monday.—An Inquest was held yesterday over the unfortunate Keith's body, the verdict of the jury was accidental death, and it came out in evidence that the rope had twisted, and the pulley not permitting it to go fair, the power of the horse broke it, one of the men who was on the top called out, that they would never reach the summit with that twist: McIntosh replied, "there is no danger," no one stopped the horse, and the result was as I have stated it. No one is at work at the tower to day.—Col. Advocate.

This day was committed to our Goal by WILLIAM SHAW, Esq. Magistrate of Whitby, JOHN HUFF for uttering forged bills, and for having in his possession between 30 and 40 dollars of bills purporting to be of the bank of Canada. It is supposed that this man is but a subordinate agent of a gang, that for some years has been uttering forgeries on the public, and too much praise cannot be given to Mr. Shaw, for his exertions in bringing one of them so pected, indeed implicated, principals, and one of the inferior agents, to the bar of public justice.

NOTICE is hereby given, to Jabez Johnson, or his Representative, to make good any claim he may have to Lot Number Two, in the Seventh Concession of the Township of Louth, in the District of Niagara within six months from this date, in default of which, the Lot will be otherwise disposed of.

York, 31st January, 1824. }

PRESENT,

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
IN COUNCIL,

HIS Majesty's Government having recently extended their assistance to the class of Emigrants, which it was intended to relieve by gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres of Land, in conveying them to their respective locations:

IT IS ORDERED, that from the first day of May next, no gratuitous Grants be made of any quantity of Land to other than privileged persons.—And that as the Fee on Two Hundred Acres was raised, in order to defray the gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres the consideration failing, the future Fee on Two Hundred Acres is reduced to Eight Pounds Four Shilling and One Penny Sterling; the existing Fee before 1819, and the Fee on all other Grants, in Townships Surveyed since that time, to be the same as established by the Order in Council, of 5th January, 1819.

N. B. Possessors of gratuitous Grants for Fifty Acres, may, by paying the Fee on One Hundred Acres, receive a Grant of the adjoining Fifty Acres if vacant.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Ex'v. Council.

EXECUTIVE COUNCIL CHAMBER, {
AT YORK, 26th JAN. 1824. }

PRESENT;
HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
In Council.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR submitted to the consideration of the Board, the Sheriffs' Reports of their respective Gaols, together with other Documents relating to a Winter Circuit, by which it appeared that the House of Assembly had addressed His Excellency to that effect, for this Session only; and obviously for the Delivery of the Gaols in the several Districts.

THE limitation of such a measure to one season seeming to militate with the Provision of the Law, that when the Communication from the Seat of Government is admitted, and the circumstances of the Province required, there should be a regular Second Circuit, the Board would prefer to recommend that Special Commissions to deliver particular Gaols should issue where requisite; but, as the respective Reports from the Sheriffs do not, in the opinion of the Board, require any unusual interposition, His Excellency, with advice of the Council, postpones a Second Circuit until the circumstances of the Province more decidedly require it.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Executive Council.

Executive Council Office, {
York, February 7th 1821. }

WHEREAS it has been represented, that many persons who have received Locations of Land, have, from Sickness, and other legitimate causes, been unable to fulfil the Settlement Duty, in the time required by the Location Ticket, and have neglected to apply to His Excellency in Council for an extension of the period, for performance of such duty.

BE it Known that the period for completing the Settlement Duty, is hereby extended to Two Years from the date of Locations until further notice shall be given.

JOHN SMALL. Clk Ex. Coun.

WHEREAS by the Tenor of the Location Tickets a Certificate is required to be lodged of the Settlement Duty being done within two Years, or that the said Location should be forfeited, and in case of Locations not gratuitous, that one third of the Patent Fee be lodged with such Certificate; AND WHEREAS it is represented, that in many instances, Certificates of performance of the Settlement Duty, have been withheld from the inability of the settler to deposit such proportion of the Patent Fee, it is deemed expedient to relieve the settler from forfeiture of his location, when he may actually have performed his settlement duty—Notice is hereby given that in all cases where Settlement Duty has been performed within the limited period, the settler shall, on filing Certificate thereof within six Months of this date, be exempted from forfeiture notwithstanding the non-payment therewith of such portion of the Patent Fee, provided the Patent is sued out within One Year from the filing of such Certificate.

And further; His Excellency, in the hope of avoiding the necessity of rescinding any of the Militia grants, is pleased to direct this Public Notification; that all Lands granted to Militia Men, upon which the Settlement Duties shall not have been performed within the limited period, will in pursuance of general instructions given to the Surveyor General in all similar cases, be declared vacant, and will be granted within Six Months after the expiration of that period, to the first applicant, unless the Original Nominee, shall before such subsequent application, have lodged a Certificate of his having performed the Settling Duties.

JOHN SMALL., Clk Ex. Coun

years,) to be paid off. The intelligence of most prominent interest from that quarter is what relates to the dispute with Algiers. The letter which we subjoin upon this subject, is in tenor the same as several others with which we have been favoured:—

"Off Algiers, May 28, 1824.

"The present capricious war with the Dey of Algiers (for such it is considered here) is, I perceive by the papers yet misunderstood. It is stated in one of the articles for the Dey's signature as an apology for the outrage said to have been committed in breaking upon the consul's house, (which the Dey positively denies,) and declares that his [Mr. Mc Donald's] own clerk opened the door and told the soldiers to go in) for the future, the flag should be hoisted on the town house as well as the country one. To this demand the Dey remonstrated inasmuch as it would become a question of religion among his subjects; consequently, he could not answer for the safety of the Consul, if it was hoisted. This he stated himself, in a letter to Lord Bathurst, at the same time he agreed to sign the whole of the articles presented, and denied any objection having been made to Lord Exmouth's treaty, but he could not, after the repeated ill treatment he had experienced from Mr. Mc Donald, allow him to return, but any person beside, "a child," he will respect, that England may send. This is the absurd contention to cause another bombardment. Further, there is no objection whatever to our officers wearing their swords in the Dey's presence, for the Admiral (Sir Harry Neale) and the Captain) and Sir Charles Burrard), a Lieutenant and two Midshipmen, waited on the Dey with their swords on, and so little did the Dey think his objection to Mr. Mc Donald would be considered of any consequence, that he himself arranged the different seats, as a proof of his friendly disposition: but when the proposal was made for the Consul to land again, and their duties on as since quit now, the Dey broke into a passion, and thus ended the interview and negotiation.

"There is much expected from the bombs; but we ought to expect more from the disposition of his Janizaries, for if they do not cut off his head, they will laugh at your bombs. Since Lord Exmouth was here, they have strengthened those we knows His Lordship discovered, with three additional batteries, each two tier: on the lower 18 guns, and on the upper 16. It is not supposed the ships will have any thing to do with the attacks, nor indeed would it be at all prudent. They are to anchor near the bombs, to give them assistance only, if necessary.

"The Dey declares that if we bombard the town, he will send all the inhabitants out of it, and hold it to the last!' We fully expect, however, that as soon as the other bombs arrive from England, (the Tercur, Capt. Arbuthnott, is arrived,) we shall begin to bombard.—The Naiad is blockading Bona; the Ranger blockading Oran; the Active and Glasgow blockading Algiers; the Revenge is at Malta, the Sybille at Smyrna, the Eurydus, on its passage to Naples, Leghorn and Genoa; the Hinde is gone up to Alexandria, the Pandora and Anactis are employed in conveying home between Malta and Gibraltar. The Terror is gone to Gibraltar.

INDIA.

By the latest arrivals from India, it seems that a very serious war has broken out between the British and the Burman Empire, which is represented to contain a population of 13 000.000 Upon the receipt of this news in England, India Stock declined considerably in value.

SOUTH AMERICA.

By the Brig Elizabeth, from Alvarado arrived at New York official information has been received, of the landing, arrest and execution of the celebrated Iturbide, Ex-Emperor of Mexico. He suffered death by shooting at Padilla on the 19th of July, in conformity to a decree of outlawry, passed relative to him in the Sovereign Congress of Mexico, on the 28th of April last.

The Courier of the 20th contains the first of a series of papers, the object of which is to induce a formal and unqualified recognition of South American Independence.

ABDUCTION.

From an Irish paper.

Few cases of abduction of a more aggravated complexion than the following have ever fallen under our consideration:—

Mrs. N. of ——, in the barony of ——, came to Ballana, about three months ago on a visite to Mr. George Rogers's who has a numerous, and now grown-up family; she was accompanied by her accomplished niece. Miss N. who had just attained that age when the female person displays its perfect symmetry, and its natural charms are developed with the greatest advantage. To aid to these gifts of nature Miss N. had another perfection, generally better prized by ——sick adventurers—she is rich, having a handsome fortune in her own right, and great expectations from two aunts, whose affections she had gained by her kind and endearing conduct towards them.

All these advantages had their due effect upon every individual of Mr. Roger's family. So much beauty and what was more important so much money should not long be let slip through their fingers. It was, therefore, determined in full conclave, that John, the oldest of several sons (who are all bachelors) should try his fortune. The word was, have her—honourable if you can—but have her.

This hopeful prop to the honours of the family immediately commenced the campaign, and having besieged his fair visitor for some days with his amorous attentions, at length disclosed the flame that burned within him, and asked her consent to make him happy. Miss N. surprised at such conduct, remonstrated with him, and after using many dissuasive arguments, concluded with assuring him that she was already pledged to a nother, with the approbation of her friends, and consequently no longer at liberty to dispose of herself. She immediately disclosed the affair to her aunt, and directly afterwards to Mr. Rogers, in the mean time, take their departure. The Roger's, in the mean time, finding Miss N. firm in her resolution, planned the out rage which exhibits them to the execrations of the public.

On the night of Wednesday, at the hour of eleven o'clock, after Mrs. N. had got into bed, and Miss N. to bed, the whole of the servants were in the House but the lower attendants. The great articles of duty he will set down as the morning but the lesser attendants he will mark as leavers.

Much more is lost or gained of future happiness and influence by a wife's behaviour in the first months of her marriage than is generally imagined. A woman of sweet temper and good understanding will not be tenacious about trifles, nor in exacting those attentions, which she is never the less gratified in receiving.

Domestic order and regularity ought to be insisted on, as essential to domestic comfort; but any change of house, which her husband finds convenient, she makes agreeable to herself. Every thing, however trivial, which she fancies contributes to his comfort, becomes a object of consequence and interest with her — She gives the greatest attention to any accident, which he relates of circumstances in which he was pleased or interested him.

A wife, though she be not highly accomplished, in the regular acception of the word, ought to be well informed in every species of general knowledge conversen well, and on the honours of her table with the ease and elegance of a well bred woman; and by her manners, expressions, and appearance, should evince even to highbred neighbours, that she is a polished, if not a fashionable woman; one that reflects credit on her husband's choice, and evidently glories in her own.

As rational religion is the true source from which every good principle springs. I must have it understood, that those ladies whom I now address are supposed to be possessed of this essential and strongest foundation for a man to look for happiness — A woman without religion can be easily avoided.

The more easy, indeed to be easily avoided.

The more easy, indeed to be easily attained and married who is so fortunate as to select such a wife, and every day will more convince him of the justice of such congratulations.

If a wife make home agreeable to her husband, he will never go from home in search of amusement, which is sometimes the case from a wife's indifference to his comfort, which in the form they had expected to find it, they reluctantly shut their eyes against every other means of comfort; and, with all the selfishness attached to romance, and what is usually known by the name of sensibility they disregard wholly the feelings of all around them, and think only of indulging their own.

Thus, or never let me be, any where I shall think there is not any merit in complying with the habits or even prejudices, which custom has more pleasant to my husband

I am a great advocate our family be money, and I have pleasure and heartfelt gratification in making some sacrifices to secure it. Whatever your neighbours do please, have the happy art of finding out the way, and ingenuity must be nature be, who is not out by tender attentions?"

"As similarity of mind
Or something not to be defined,
First draws our attentions,

So manners decent and polite,
The same we practised at first sight,
Must save it from destruction."
Read this address ye married, as well as unmarried women: think of it seriously; it is of vital importance; I implore of you, seek your husband's happiness, and you will promote your own, believe me,
Your truly sincere and disinterested friend,
A VERY HAPPY MARRIED WOMAN.

Anecdote of Buonaparte and Canova.—Canova was very familiar with Buonaparte, and was often alone with him and Josephine. The warrior joked the artist. "You make conquest on marble," said he; "they are harder than mine." "And perhaps more durable," observed Canova; and then he intrested him to rest amidst his trophies, to consolidate his power, and no longer risk a destiny so often assured by victory. The Emperor laughed at the sculptor's fears. "I fight new battles, said he, "as you make new statues." "It is very different said the sculptor; "an artist ought never to stop in the pursuit of fine arts; there we may always march on from conquest to conquest. Mediocrity alone conceive that the goal is attained, for a thousand dangers a wait, the warrior on the road of ambition; think of Cæsar, and a multitude besides."—"You anticipate for me, then, the ides of March?" "Ah! I apprehend less for your death than your defeat." "I fear neither the one nor the other; both will find me as immoveable as your statues.!!—After Napoleon had married Maria Louise, he appeared dissatisfied that Canova did not compliment him—Puis feliciter," said Canova, "d'avoir fait divorce avec la fortune?"

Poetry.

It is not often the American Press produces lines of equal merit with the following, said to be from the pen of "CAMARIN"—We agree with the editor of the Post, that the third stanza does contain one line exquisitely beautiful.—Ed.

Lines written at Alnwick Castle, the seat of the Duke of Northumberland, October 1822.

Home of the Percy's high-born race,
Home of their beautiful and brave,
Alike their birth and burial place,
Their cradle and their grave!
Still stands o'er the Castle gate
Their house's Lion stands in state,
As in his proud departed hours;
And warriors frown in stone on high,
And feudal banners "flout the sky"
Above his princely towers.

A gentle hill its side inclines,
Lovely in England's fairless green,
To meet the quietstream which winds
Through this romantic scene
As silently and sweetly still
As when, at evening, on that hill,
While summer's wind blew soft and low,
Seated by gallant Hotspur's side,
His Catherine was a happy bride,
A thousand years ago.

Gaze on the Abbey's ruined pile,—
Does not the sorrowing Ivy keeping
Her watch around it seem to smile
As o'er a lov'd one sleeping?—
One solitary turret grey
Still tells, in melancholy glory,
The legend of the Chaplet day.
The Percy's proudest border story.
That day its roof was triumph's arch,
Then rang, from aisle to pictur'd dome,
The light step of the soldiers march,
The music of the vows and drums,
And babe and sire, the old, the young,
And the Monk's hymn, and Minstrel's song,
And woman's pure kiss, sweet and long,
Welcom'd her warrior home.

Wild roses by the Abbey bowers,
Are gay in their purple hue and bloom,
They were born of a race of funeral flowers
That garlanded, in long-gone hours,
A Templar's knightly tomb
He died, the record on his mailed hand,
On the holiest spot of the Blessed Land,
Where the cross was dampd with his dying breath,
When blood was free as festal wine,
And the sainted air of Palestine
Was think with the darts of death.

Wise with the lore of centuries,
What tales, if there be "tongues in trees,"
Those giant oaks could tell,
Of beings born and buried here,
Tales of the present and the past,
Tales of the bridal and the bier,
The welcome and farewell.
Since, of this bough, the startled bird,
Dust, in her twilight slumbers, heard
The Sentinel's curfew call.

I wandered through the lofty halls
Trod by the Percies of old fame,
And stood upon the chapel walls
Each high, heroic name,
From him* who once his standard set
Where now, o'er mosque and minaret,
Glitter the Sultan's crescent moons;
To him who, when a younger son,†
Fought for King George at Lexington,
A Major of Dragoons.

That last half 'stanza—it has dash'd
From my warm lip the sparkling cup
The light that o'er my eye-beam flash'd,
The power that bore my spirit up
Above this bank-note worldmess gone;
And Alnwick's but a market town,
And this, alas, its market day,
And beasts and borderers throng the way,
Oxen, or bleating lambs in lots,
Northumbrian boors, and plaided Scots,
Men in the coal and cattle line,
From Tarlot's hard and hero land,
From royal Berwick's beach of sand,
From Wooler, Morpeth, Hexham, and
New-Castle upon Tyne.

These are not the romantic times
So beautiful in Spencer's rhyme,
So dazzling to the dreaming boy;
Ours are the days of fact, not fable,
Of Knights, but not of the Round Table,
Of Bottle Jarvis, not Rob. Roy—
'Tis what "our President," Monroe,
Has call'd "the era of good feeling;"
The Highlander,—the bitterest foe
To modern laws, has felt their blow,
Consented to be tax'd and vote,
And cut on pantaloons and coat
And leave off cattle stealing;—
Lord Stafford mines for coal and salt,
The Duke of Norfolk deals in malt,
The Douglas in red herrings;
And noble name, and cultur'd land,
Palace, and park, and vassal band
Are powerless to the notes of hand
Of Rothild, or the Barings.
The age of bargaining, said Burke,
Mat come—to day the tortur'd Turk,
(Sleep, Richard of the lion-heart!
Sleep on, nor from your cearments start,)
Is England's friend and fast ally,
The Moslem tramples on the Greek,
And on the Cross; and Alter stone,
And Christendom looks tamely on,
And hears the Christian maiden shriek,
And sees the Christian father die,
And not a sabre blow is given
For Greece and fame, for faith and heaven,
By Europe's craven chivalry.

You'll ask if yet the Percy lives
In the arm'd pomp of feudal state?—
The present representatives
Of Hotspur and his "gentle Kate"
Are some half-dozen serving men,
In the club coat of William Penn,
A chambermaid, whose lip and eye,
And cheek, and brown hair bright and curling,
Spoke Nature's aristocracy;
And one, half groom, half Seneschal,
Who bow'd me through court, bower, and hall,
From donjon keep to turret wall,
For ten and sixpence sterling.

Canada.—It gives us sincere pleasure to learn, that his Majesty's Government entertain the most lively interest for the welfare and advancement of these valuable Provinces. It is, we believe, in contemplation, to remove all fees on grants of land to settlers, and to hold out every inducement in favour of extensive colonization by a class of emigrants that will be at once valuable and respectable. It is already known that a large part of the Crown Reserves will be sold, and the proceeds appropriated to the Clergy throughout the Provinces. The large sums of money now paying by Government for indemnification to sufferers during the late war, diffuses cheerfulness and activity among all ranks. It is also hinted that a sum of money may be granted next year, to be expended in internal improvements. We trust it may prove to be the fact, for surely no country is more susceptible of immense internal improvement than Canada.—Albion

The Election for the County of Grenville closed on Wednesday evening last. Messrs. Jonas Jones & Hamilton Walker were returned. The following is the state of the Poll at the close.

Jonas Jones,	313,
Hamilton Walker,	289,
Zeba M. Philips,	224,
Paul Glasford,	132,

Mr. Glasford retired on the morning of the 2d day.

VALUE OF CANADA.

(From the British American and Provl. News letter)

Of the value of Canada to Britain, and, of its protection to us, the following fact from the above work is sufficient proof. While the population of British North America, scarcely equals one tenth of the United States, its exports in tonnage, during the last year were equal to full the half of the exports of that power—in all important consideration with a Country which like North America abounds in rude produce. The American tonnage of Shipping employed in 1823, was 775,271, by the Report of the Secretary to the Treasury.

Contradictory Rumours.—Here follow two very contradictary rumours relative to an important ecclesiastical office

We understand that two Archdeacons are to be added to the Establishment of the Episcopal Church in these Provinces. The Honourable and Reverend Dr. Stuart, and the Honourable and Reverend Dr. Strachan; as spoken of as having been selected to fill these offices.—Quebec Mercury.

Rumours.—It is rumoured that the Hon. and Rev. Dr. Strachan, whose mysterious visit to England was briefly noticed in the Herald of the 10th February last, has been consecrated Bishop of Upper Canada: and that his companion, the Hon George H. Markland, will return to the wilds of Canada nothing less than a Baronet. In addition to the above it is stated that the long talked of Union will positively take place this season, and that the Church of Scotland is to share the loaves and fishes with the Church of England in these Provinces. Should the foregoing reports prove true, we shall not fail to apprize our readers at an early period, in order that they may govern themselves accordingly.—U. C. Herald

Opening of the Lachine Canal.—On Saturday, the 14th inst. the first Canal boat which has been seen in this Province, left the basin situate near Mr. Griffin's Cottage (about 1½ mile from this city) to proceed to Lachine, on the Canal. The President of the Canal Board, the Hon. John Richardson, and the Commissioners, attended by E. Watson Esq. of Albany, were on board with a view of ascertaining the state of the Canal and locks, preparatory to the admission of loaded boats. The day was remarkably fine. His Majesty's flag graced the stern of the boat, which is called the Jane, and is constructed on a neat and novel plan, and calculated for passengers or for freight. By one of the gentlemen who sailed in the Jane, we are informed that the people along the Canal, at every village or hamlet and at Lachine, evinced much joy in viewing this novel display, which will doubtless prove a stimulus to more extended operations in the Canal line in this country.

The Lachine Canal is 9 miles long, and with the exception of three locks at the outlet is now completed. It will contain 8 locks, each of 6 feet lift and 20 feet wide, built in the most substantial manner; thus surmounting 48 feet of rapids in the space of 9 miles, a hitherto serious obstacle to our internal commerce—The other dimensions of the Canal are 28 feet at the bottom, and 48 at the surface, and it is to contain 5 feet of water. The Bridges are all of a sufficient height, built in a solid manner, of cedar (except at Lachine, where there is a beautiful cut stone bridge) and supported knees similar to those used in the construction of vessels.

The opening of this our first specimen of artificial internal navigation, forms an era in the history of the improvement of Canada. To look forward simply to the benefit which will arise out of this important work itself, we are to take but a limited view of its results. A few years we are convinced will, not only bring conviction to the minds of the people of the vast importance of this work, but will cause our Legislature as well as the whole body of the community to feel an interest, hitherto unknown, in the extension and multiplication of such works.—*Can. GLEBES.

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, in Council, having taken into consideration the system hitherto practised, of Granting Licences of Occupation for GLEBE LANDS, is pleased to Order, that in future the Glebes in the several Townships, with the exception of One Lot in each Township, for the accommodation of the Incumbent, shall be Leased on the same terms as Clergy Reserves.

NOTICE is therefore given to those Persons who hold Licences of Occupation for any of the said Glebe Lots, that the same will not be Renewed; and unless they do make application, by Petition, for Leases in the usual manner, through the medium of the Corporation for superintending the Clergy Reserves, before the Twenty-ninth day of September next ensuing, the Lots so held by Licence of Occupation will be Leased to other Applicants.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk Ex. Coun,

Executive Council Office, York, 29th April, 1824. 19—tf.

Executive Council Office York, 14th April, 1824.

NOTICE is hereby given, to Jabez Johnson, or his Representative, to make good any claim he may have to Lot Number Two, in the Seventh Concession of the Township of Louth, in the District of Niagara within six months from this date, in default of which, the Lot will be otherwise disposed of.

By order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

JOHN SMALL.
Clk. Ex'v Council. 17—6m.

Executive Council Chamber, York, 31st January, 1824.

Present,

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, in Council,

His Majesty's Government having recently extended their assistance to the class of Emigrants, which it was intended to relieve by gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres of Land, in conveying them to their respective locations;

IT IS ORDERED, that from the first day of May next, no gratuitous Grants be made of any quantity of Land to other than privileged persons.—And that as the Fee on Two Hundred Acres was raised, in order to defray the gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres the consideration being, the future Fee on Two Hundred Acres is reduced to Eight Pounds Four Shillings and One Penny Sterling; the existing Fee before 1819, and the Fee on all other Grants, in Townships Surveyed since that time, to be the same as established by the Order in Council, of 5th January, 1819.

N. B. Possessors of gratuit us Grants for Fifty Acres, may, by paying the Fee on One Hundred Acres receive a Grant of the adjoining Fifty Acres if vacant

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Ex'v. Council.

Executive Council Chambers, at York, 26th Jan. 1824.

PRESENT:

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, In Council.

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor submitted to the consideration of the Board, the Sheriffs' Reports of their respective Gaols, together with other Documents relating to a Winter Circuit, by which it appeared that the House of Assembly had addressed His Excellency to that effect, for this Session only; and obviously for the Delivery of the Gaols in the several Districts.

The limitation of such a measure to one season seeming to militate with the Provision of the Law, that when the Communication from the Seat of Government admitted, and the circumstances of the Province required, there should be a regular Second Circuit, the Board would prefer to recommend that Special Commissions to deliver particular Gaols should issue where requisite; but, as the respective Reports from the Sheriffs do not, in the opinion of the Board, require any unusual interposition, His Excellency, with advice of the Council, postpones a Second Circuit until the circumstances of the Province more decidedly require it.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Executive Council.

Executive Council Office, York, February 7th 1821.

WHEREAS it has been represented, that many persons who have received Locations of Land, have, from Sickness, and other legitimate causes, been unable to fulfil the Settlement Duty, in the time required by the Location Ticket, and have neglected to apply to His Excellency in Council for an extension of the period, for performance of such duty.

BE it Known that the period for completing the Settlement Duty, is hereby extended to Two Years from the date of Locations until further notice shall be given.

JOHN SMALL. Clk Ex. Coun.

WHEREAS by the Tenor of the Location Tickets a Certificate is required to be lodged of the Settlement Duty being done within two Years, or that the said Location should be forfeited, and in case of Locations not gratuitous, that one third of the Patent Fee be lodged with such Certificate; AND WHEREAS it is represented, that in many instances, Certificates of performance of the Settlement Duty, have been withheld from the inability of the settler to deposit such proportion of the Patent Fee, it is deemed expedient to relieve the settler from forfeiture of his location, when he may actually have performed his settlement duty—Notice is hereby given that it all cases where Settlement Duty has been performed within the limited period, the settler shall, on filing Certificate thereof within six Months of the date, be exempted from forfeiture notwithstanding the non-payment therewith of such portion of the Patent Fee, provided the Patent is sued out within One Year from the filing of such Certificate.

And further; His Excellency, in the hope of avoiding the necessity of rescinding any of the Militia grants, is pleased to direct this Public Notification; that all Lands granted to Militia Men, upon which the Settlement Duties shall not have been performed within the limited period, will in pursuance of general instructions given to the Surveyor General in all similar cases, be declared vacant, and will be granted within Six Months after the expiration of that period, to the first applicant, unless the Original Nominee, shall before such subsequent application, have lodged a Certificate of his having performed the Settling Duties.

JOHN SMALL., Clk Ex. Coun

Executive Council Office, York, 7th Nov. 1821.

WHEREAS it has become expedient to establish a line of communication through certain remote Townships, for encouragement thereof, Grants will be made to actual Settlers in the Townships hereinafter mentioned on the condition of Settling within two years from the date of the Location, at the reduced Scale of 5th January, 1819, viz.,

GLEBES.

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, in Council, having taken into consideration the system hitherto practised, of Granting Licences of Occupation for GLEBE LANDS, is pleased to Order, that in future the Glebes in the several Townships, with the exception of One Lot in each Township, for the accommodation of the Incumbent, shall be Leased on the same terms as Clergy Reserves.

NOTICE is therefore given to those Persons who hold Licences of Occupation for any of the said Glebe Lots, that the same will not be Renewed; and unless they do make application, by Petition, for Leases in the usual manner, through the medium of the Corporation for superintending the Clergy Reserves, before the Twenty-ninth day of September next ensuing, the Lots so held by Licence of Occupation will be Leased to other Applicants.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk Ex. Coun,

Executive Council Office York, 14th April, 1824.

NOTICE is hereby given, to Jabez Johnson, or his Representative, to make good any claim he may have to Lot Number Two, in the Seventh Concession of the Township of Louth, in the District of Niagara within six months from this date, in default of which, the Lot will be otherwise disposed of.

By order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

JOHN SMALL.
Clk. Ex'v Council. 17—6m.

Executive Council Chamber, York, 31st January, 1824.

Present,

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, in Council,

His Majesty's Government having recently extended their assistance to the class of Emigrants, which it was intended to relieve by gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres of Land, in conveying them to their respective locations;

IT IS ORDERED, that from the first day of May next, no gratuitous Grants be made of any quantity of Land to other than privileged persons.—And that as the Fee on Two Hundred Acres was raised, in order to defray the gratuitous Grants of Fifty Acres the consideration being, the future Fee on Two Hundred Acres is reduced to Eight Pounds Four Shillings and One Penny Sterling; the existing Fee before 1819, and the Fee on all other Grants, in Townships Surveyed since that time, to be the same as established by the Order in Council, of 5th January, 1819.

N. B. Possessors of gratuit us Grants for Fifty Acres, may, by paying the Fee on One Hundred Acres receive a Grant of the adjoining Fifty Acres if vacant

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Ex'v. Council.

Executive Council Chambers, at York, 26th Jan. 1824.

PRESENT:

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, In Council.

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor submitted to the consideration of the Board, the Sheriffs' Reports of their respective Gaols, together with other Documents relating to a Winter Circuit, by which it appeared that the House of Assembly had addressed His Excellency to that effect, for this Session only; and obviously for the Delivery of the Gaols in the several Districts.

The limitation of such a measure to one season seeming to militate with the Provision of the Law, that when the Communication from the Seat of Government admitted, and the circumstances of the Province required, there should be a regular Second Circuit, the Board would prefer to recommend that Special Commissions to deliver particular Gaols should issue where requisite; but, as the respective Reports from the Sheriffs do not, in the opinion of the Board, require any unusual interposition, His Excellency, with advice of the Council, postpones a Second Circuit until the circumstances of the Province more decidedly require it.

JOHN SMALL,
Clk. Executive Council.

Executive Council Office, York, February 7th 1821.

WHEREAS it has been represented, that many persons who have received Locations of Land, have, from Sickness, and other legitimate causes, been unable to fulfil the Settlement Duty, in the time required by the Location Ticket, and have neglected to apply to His Excellency in Council for an extension of the period, for performance of such duty.

BE it Known that the period for completing the Settlement Duty, is hereby extended to Two Years from the date of Locations until further notice shall be given.

JOHN SMALL. Clk Ex. Coun.

WHEREAS by the Tenor of the Location Tickets a Certificate is required to be lodged of the Settlement Duty being done within two Years, or that the said Location should be forfeited, and in case of Locations not gratuitous, that one third of the Patent Fee be lodged with such Certificate; AND WHEREAS it is represented, that in many instances, Certificates of performance of the Settlement Duty, have been withheld from the inability of the settler to deposit such proportion of the Patent Fee, it is deemed expedient to relieve the settler from forfeiture of his location, when he may actually have performed his settlement duty—Notice is hereby given that it all cases where Settlement Duty has been performed within the limited period, the settler shall, on filing Certificate thereof within six Months of the date, be exempted from forfeiture notwithstanding the non-payment therewith of such portion of the Patent Fee, provided the Patent is sued out within One Year from the filing of such Certificate.

And further; His Excellency, in the hope of avoiding the necessity of rescinding any of the Militia grants, is pleased to direct this Public Notification; that all Lands granted to Militia Men, upon which the Settlement Duties shall not have been performed within the limited period, will in pursuance of general instructions given to the Surveyor General in all similar cases, be declared vacant, and will be granted within Six Months after the expiration of that period, to the first applicant, unless the Original Nominee, shall before such subsequent application, have lodged a Certificate of his having performed the Settling Duties.

JOHN SMALL., Clk Ex. Coun

Executive Council Office, York, 7th Nov. 1821.

WHEREAS it has become expedient to establish a line of communication through certain remote Townships, for encouragement thereof, Grants will be made to actual Settlers in the Townships hereinafter mentioned on the condition of Settling within two years from the date of the Location, at the reduced Scale of 5th January, 1819, viz.,

Editorial Commentary.

In a paragraph, which has appeared in the Morning Chronicle, contains a true statement, the dreams of ambition, and the love of ambitra y sway, have at length driven the "Holy Alliance" absolutely lunatic—We are extremely sorry that we cannot give the passage entire—But the pith of the matter is this, Pozzo di Borgo—the renowned Pozzo, Ambassador from Russia to France; and Paramount Minister of the Allied Sovereigns of the Continent, has gravely proposed the subjugation of the United States of N. America, as well as the restoration of the South to the dominion of the spiritual and holy, Ferdinand;—declaring the said conquest to be an easy enterprise!!—The arguments u ed are inconceivably childish, and remote from all truth and common sense—We are glad to find this most unholy of all unholy combinations, exhibiting such unequivocal signs of danger, and incompetency to stay the march and progress of right feelings, and liberal sentiment.

Our readers must place what reliance they please on the extracts from the London Sun relative to the views of Russia towards America.—We can have no doubt how the Czar's inclinations lie, notwithstanding the Quebec Gazette of Dr. Fisher assures us the ambition of Russia is quite cool,—(one of the most unlikely things in the world).—But it is fortunate for America, and for the world, that the fast anchor'd isle is yet safe in her moorings.—

We this day give an interesting extract from Bell's Weekly Messenger, on the Manufactures and Commerce of England; in which, amongst a great deal of valuable information, we are sorry to find a reiteration of his old absurd doctrine respecting the non-importance of Canada to the mother country, and the evil's which she is said to saddle certain merchants and tradesmen of England by the support she continues to receive from the imperial Government.—It is highly gratifying, however to perceive that he is obliged to contradict himself, and admit that British America and the West Indies, together, receive British exports in amount very nearly equal to the whole trade with the United States!—This is a most glorious fact; and it is astonishing that it has not served to stay his calumniating mouth in regard to this rising country; and yet more surprising that a writer evidently and intelligent should not remember the strict analogy there is between the principles of a wise colonial system and those which support the connection between parents and their children—if our sons are not expected to be strengthened, and supported, and have their boundaries enlarged, by his children, in advanced life—will he refuse his aid to their infancy?—The reason of gratitude in all of these cases yields an inheritance infinitely more durable and valuable than any that can be derived from civil discord, political jealousy's, or that deadly hatred which never fails to be engendered by an improper exercise of arbitrary rule—We need not travel far for illustration.—Happy are we to find, however, that the sentiments of Mr. Bell, Sir Isaac Coffin, and other croakers of opaque intellect, are no those of the British Government

We are sorry it is out of our power to publish the excellent Charge of the Hon. Mr. Justice Carr, bell, to the Grand Jury of Perth at the late criminal Term held there—which is, in every respect, a highly valuable and able document—but it length fully precludes its insertion in these columns.

We are anxiously waiting some confirmation of the glorious news given in this day's paper.—from the Albion—relative to the great Canadian Land Company, said to have been formed in London, with a capital of One Million, Sterling—God grant it may be true!—

SELECTIONS FROM BRITISH AND FOREIGN JOURNALS.

Latest London Papers.—We hear from good authority that ministers are so perfectly satisfied of the tranquil state of politics, that they intend the Cabinet meetings shall cease after the beginning of next week, when all the members will separate in different directions. Lord Liverpool goes to Walmer Castle, Mr. Canning is about to travel in Ireland. Lord Harrowby to Buxton—the renowned Pozzo, Ambassador from Russia to France; and Paramount Minister of the Allied Sovereigns of the Continent, has gravely proposed the subjugation of the United States of N. America, as well as the restoration of the South to the dominion of the [illegible] and holy, Ferdinand;—declaring the said conquest to be an easy enterprise!!—The arguments u ed are inconceivably childish, and remote from all truth and common sense—We are glad to find this most unholy of all unholy combinations, exhibiting such unequivocal signs of danger, and incompetency to stay the march and progress of right feelings, and liberal sentiment.

The Marquis of Hastings arrived at His Government of Malta on the 7th June, where he was received with extravagant rejoicings by the natives.

Grand Improvement in London.—A meeting has taken place in London, to effect a most magnificient plan of improvement in the appearance of the city on the north side of the Thames. It is proposed to build an esplanade or terrace, to extend from London bridge to Blackfriars, and from thence to Westminster bridge, as far as Scotland Yard. The width to be 80, and the height 60 feet. The expense to be defrayed by tolls, and the letting of warehouses under the terrace. It does not appear whether the plan will be finally adopted as some preliminary measures are to be taken.

Catholic Churches in Canada.—In the Cork Reporter of 22nd July, is the following paragraph in an article on Canada.

"Dr. McDonnel is now in London. He has been presented to the King, and has received the most flattering reception. The object of his journey to England is to obtain subscriptions to assist in the building of some new Churches, which have become necessary for the accommodation of the Catholic inhabitants of the Provinces."

News papers.—The Dublin Evening Post says, "Fellows was lately detected in the act of Stealing a Newspaper at the general post office. He was taken into custody, and will be prosecuted under the act of the present session. The practice of purloining papers has become so serious a nuisance and the cause of so many disappointments that the public are much indebted to Sir Edward Lees, for his zeal in getting the Bill passed, which makes it a penal offence."

Cotton.—The Cotton planters in the United States appear to feel some apprehension of a serious rival in the part of the Pacha of Egypt, who has already begun to send Egyptian Cotton to the English market. "The banks of the Nile are represented to be well adapted to the growth of that valuable plant; and, if the inhabitants should become industrious, and [illegible] to the enjoyment of the fruits of their industry, they might produce it in great abundance.

An acceptable Present.—The Myriorama, of many thousand views, designed by Mr. Clark.—The Myriorama is a moveable Picture, consisting of numerous cards, on which are fragments of landscapes, neatly coloured, and so ingeniously contrived, that any two or more placed together, will form a pleasing view; or, if the whole are put on a table at once, will admit of the astonishing number of 20,912,789,348,000 variations! it is therefore evident, that if a person were to continue it night and day, making one change every minute, he could not finish the task in less than 39,807, 488 years and 336 days. This ingenious production is admirably adapted to excite amongst young persons a taste for drawing; to furnish them with excellent subjects for meditation, and to supply an inexhaustible source of amusement.—London Paper.

Singular.—A Greenburgh (Pa.) paper of the 20th instant, announced the sudden death of Mr. James Montgomery, of Unity township: But after the article was in type, the editor was informed that Mr. M was restored to life, after, as every appearance indicated, it had been suspended for about two hours. It is stated that his body was cold, and that he had no pulse. Every person who saw him, was confident that the vital spark had fled, and indeed preparations were making by his friends to attend his funeral. This circumstance may, and ought to teach, a useful lesson. Let us not be too precipitate in entering those whom we suppose to be dead.

Ingenious Invention.—A patent has been taken out, in England, for a machine, for making all kinds of shoes, gloves, caps and hats, cartridge boxes, sword-Lands and sword sheathes, of one piece of leather, without any seam or sowing whatever.

Death of an Elephant in England.—An Elephant lately died in England at the age of 53 years. It was suffocated by its own trunk, and originally cost 1050.

A Modern Miracle.—The following account is seriously published in the Norfolk Beacon, under the signatures of three gentlemen, one of whom is the Rev. William Lee," as a singular display of the goodness and power of the Almighty God, at a camp meeting held on Tangier Island August 15, 1824

"Miss Narcissa Crippin, a highly respectable young lady, nineteen years of age, and a zealous christian, was, on the evening of the 15th instant, say about 8 o'clock, so operated on by the spirit of God, that her face became too bright and shining for mortal eyes to gaze upon, without producing the most awful sensations in the beholders. It resembled the reflection of the sun upon a bright cloud The appearance of her face for the space of forty minutes was truly angelic, during which time she was silent, after which she spoke and expressed her happy and heavenly feelings, when her dazzling countenance faded, and her face resumed its natural appearance!!!

Hyttien Tragedy.—The Propagateur Hayt'ien states that a negress, sixteen years of age, had composed a tragedy, entitled "The Death of Christophe." The work, adds the Propagateur, will be represented at the national theatre of the Republic, by order of the President Boyer.

Shaking Hands.—At a late duel in Kentucky the parties discharged their pistols without effect: whereupon, one of the seconds interfered, and proposed that the combatants should shake hands. To this, the other second objected as unnecessary, for, said he, their hands have been shaking this half hour.—Norfolk paper.

Carlisle, (Pa.) Aug 12.

Mysterious Personage.—A female, who professes to cure all manner of diseases to which the human frame is liable, has recently made her appearance in Perry county The Perrysville states that in one case she restored a person to perfect health who had for many years been obliged to support himself on crutches.—She had also effected the cure of aggravat d cancer in the breast! She speaks the languages fluently, is a good chemist, and prepares her medicines from herbs, being very careful to conceal the process. No person has been able to obtain from her any account of herself, who she is, or from whence she came.

The Late Luke White, Esq. in the year ——, Mr. Warren, of Belfast, kept one of the most respectable and extensive book shops in Ireland. His circulating library was perhaps the largest at that time in the country. Luke White was then a thriving linen lin en draper, with a small but still steadily rising capital. He called on Mr. Warren in the course of business, and purchased sed from him some of his cast off novels, and volumes of broken sets; as well, as a few ballads and penny pamplets. He displayed, in his dealing with Mr. Warren the greatest honesty and punctuality; and was on more than one occasion, credited by him to the amount of two or three pounds. We have not been able to trace out where he lodged, but we suppose it must have been in no very respectable domicile; as he found it safe and desirable to deposite his bag, "his all" nightly, in Mr. Warren's shop; and next morning when the clerks opened the concern, he resumed his burthen and his toilsome occupation. To think that behind Mr. Warren's counter, should have been deposited in a greasy linen bag the property of a ragged pedlar, the very beginning of such wealth as Mr. White has lately bequeathed. The lean visaged philosopher, "with spectacles on his nose," and a world of anxious doubt and care reposing in every furrow of his wrinkled brow, peeps, with a palpitating heart into his crucibles, to see whether his chemical discoveries and experiments have produced that long sought for substance, whose touch turns to gold; but not more anxiously, we are sure, than did Luke White cone over the bundles of "Chevy Chase," and the. "Fair matilda," which Mr. Warren's shopman supplied him with—the paltry profits from which, were to be increased to two millions of money.

"At this time Mr. Robert Hodgson, father to the highly respectable Mr. J. Hodgson, bookseller of Belfast lived in North Street. Luke White was in the habit of calling on him, to get some of his workmen to patch up the broken binding of his second-hand purchases. Mr. White was in the practice of selling by auction his pamphlets and imperfect volumes in the public streets of Belfast. On these occasions he used to borrow a three legged stool from Mr. Hodgson, to elevate himself above his literary congregation; and as it the smiling goddess who led him through pleasant walks to a bank of wealth, had determined to flirt with her own freaks, she changed the three legs of the stool in the common street, to three seats in the Common's House.

His future history is well known. The knowledge he thus acquired of public sales procured him the situation of clerk to an auctioneer in Dublin. He opened a small book shop; became eminent in that line; sold lottery tickets, and speculated in the funds. By stock jobbing and contracting for government loans, he was enabled to, bequeath at his death £30,000 a year, and £1,0100,000 in money and securities. This which remained, after the enormous sum of £200 000 expended upon elections, he has bequeathed among his children.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

PORTUGAL.

We understand that at the Cabinet Council, held yesterday, it was determined to address a circular to the different Ambassadors at foreign Courts, explaining the conduct pursued by the English Cabinet with regard to Portugal. In this circular it will be stated that nothing but the most urgent necessity for interference would induce the English Government at all to listen to the proposition of sending troops to Lisbon; but that the Government were happy to state, that by the most recent intelligence from that country, it appeared that no necessity whatever existed for such interference, and that the security of his Most Faithful Majesty would be quite complete by sending an additional ship of war to the Tagus, with a few extra corps of marines, which it was their attention to do forthwith. The English Cabinet also announce, that it is their intention, in future to maintain in Portugal an Ambassador of the first rank, instead of conducting the diplomatic relations of the two countries through the medium of the Charge d'Affaires, as at present. This measure is supposed to have originated on slight feelings of jealousy on the part of the English Government, in having observed, during the late crisis at Lisbon, the supreme influence possessed by the French Ambassador, on account of his superior rank as a diplomatist.

[It is said to have been well known, that both Mr Canning and Mr. Peel have strongly opposed the sending troops to Portugal, and that it is principally owing to the interference of these gentlemen that the measure has been entirely abandoned.]

SWEDEN.

One of the minor Paris papers of Thursday gives some curious particulars of an attempt to place Prince Gustavus, son of the Ex-King of Sweden, on the throne. Private letters enter into more particular details, and state, that this young Prince had been invited to Baden, where he was treated by the Emperor of Austria in the most splendid style; and that, during his residence there, he received letters from the Emperor of Russia, the King of Prussia, and some of the inferior Sovereigns of the German states.

BOHEMIA.

We learn from Prague that immense damage has been done to Bohemia by the overflowing of the Elbe and Muldau. The town of Prague was completely inundated.

HOLY ALLIANCE! IMPORTANT!!

We have (says the London Sun of the 21st July,) this morning received most important intelligence by Express, both from Paris and Frankfort. The Readers of the Sun have had abundant evidence of the accuracy and correct information of our Foreign Correspondents, some of whom, indeed, hold stations which enable them to speak with absolute certainty of the important affairs on which they think fit to communicate with us. They may therfore rely, with as unlimited confidence as we ourselves do, on the truth of what we are now about to state.

Our Frankfort Correspondent gives us the momentous and truly alarming information, that the Congress of Minister at Johansberg have resolved, that assistance shall be given to Spain for the recovery of her South American Colonies. This resolution has been adopted, on the representations made by Spain, as to the distracted and unhappy condition of Spanish America, torn and desolated by military factions, whilst the great majority of the population are attached to the mother country, desirous of being re-united to her, and only awaiting the appearance of an adequate force from Europe to enable them decidedly to manifest their true dispositions. This much for the intelligence from Frankfort, and which at once puts in jeopardy the peace of Europe and the independence of America and more unsatisfactorily accounts for the naval manœuvres of France and Russia, so opportunely entered upon just at the time that the decision of the Congress of Ministers upon the South America question renders it necessary that the fleets of these two Powers should be put in motion.

Our Express from Paris brings the scarcely less important intelligence, that it is now believed in the Ministerial circles that M. de VILLELE, cannot by possibility hold his ground, but must retire from the Ministry. The resignation or dismissal of M. de VILLELE, therefore, may be daily expected. The true position of this Minister was not yet generally known in Paris; but affairs are altogether looked upon as so gloomy in that capital, that the French Funds, instead of receiving from the late shock, are lowering, and were on Monday at 93f. 35c.

FROM THE LIVERPOOL COURIER, JULY 24.

If one were at liberty to judge, from the state of the stock markets, of the general prospects of Europe, one would have apprehension that the state of peace, which has so long endured, and which has been found by all parties so salutary, was about to be disturbed. Our own has declined very considerably, within a short period, and the Parisian market still more. Yet it is not possible, we think, that there can be any real danger to the peace of Europe. The re is but one subject that can be a subject of serious difference among the European states,—South America. But, it seems to us, this must remain in the state of a question of opinion only, it is hardly possible that the European Governments will be so highly absurd as to proceed to forceful argument on the subject. It is even now said, in quarters of some authority, that France is not very violently disposed to concur with the high tone of the rest of the holy alliance on this subject, and were there any confidence due to this surmise the question would be almost set at rest; for without the co-operation of France, it is impossible to suppose that the other powers of the alliance would be so Quixotic as to undertake an adventure which, even with France, would have been sufficiently hopeless, the re-conquest of Spanish America. We must presume, therefore, that the depression in the stock markets is only the reasonable difference which so base a thing as money owes to the august thoughts and humours of Princes, shrinking into itself at a frown, or dilating at a smile of a monarch or a minister.

TURKS, RUSSIANS AND GREEKS.

Information from Constantinople to the 23d of June positively announces that Lord Strangford, after a long conference with the Reis Effendi, in which he assured him that the English government would take no part with the Greeks, but would recall all the English officers now engaged in their service, has obtained a promise that the Turks should evacuate Wallachia forthwith and Moldavia within a very short delay.—Every thing in the two principalities will be established upon the same footing as in 1821, before the insurrection broke out. Lord Strangford, in the excess of his joy, announced that a Russian Ambassador would be sent to Constantinople.

Advices from St. Petersburgh, however, through the Prussian Gazettes, state that the conferences at the former place upon the affairs of Greece have not had satisfactory issue. England is opposed to the views of the Emperor Alexander, who requires Greece to be placed under the protection of the European Powers as well as Walachia and Moldavia. England, on the contrary, wishes Greece to enjoy the same independence as the Ionian Islands. For the rest, says the Hamburgh Gazette, we are assured that however be nevolent may be the views of the mediating Powers neither the assent of the Porte, nor even that of the Greeks will ever be obtained.

Extract of a private letter of the 16th June, from Zante:—The solemn tone of the Anti-Christian Society which represents itself to be well informed, and which really is so because it is the director of the plan of the Ottoman campaign, announced disasters which have even has already in great part averted. It is known that the Turks succeeded in throwing a reinforcement of 2000 men into the Isle of Eubœa, and revictualling Negropont at the moment when that place was upon the point of capitulating. This intelligence was no sooner known here than the Government learned that the Austrian brig Le Pollux of Ragusa, laden with provisions for the Turks at Patras, was to sail from Leghorn with 70 000 double piastres, furnished by the house of Gouthau to the order of Mehemet Ali, Pacha of Egypt, and that this money was destined to corrupt Colocotroni and some other Greek Chiefs. This notice soon afforded a clue to a conspiracy hatched at Missolonghi by Caralcysos, who commanded part of the garrison of that place. A seizure was made of a correspondence which he kept up with Jussuff Pacha, in virtue of which 5000 Turks were to make a sortie from Lepanto, to take possession of Missolonghi, which the traitor would have surrendered to them. The Ottoman division stationed at Patras, would have seconded the movement. The day was fixed, and advice thereof had already reached Patras, when a post of 500 Greeks, stationed at the defile of Mount Taphias or Kaki Scala, seized the despatches of Caralcysos, which were immediately sent to Mavrocordato. The latter dispatched forthwith reinforcements towards Kaki Scala, leaving Caygi Cyprus who never suspected that his letters had been read, to make a favourable reply to Jussuff Pacha. The thousand Turks immediately marched towards the defile where they were assailed with such impetuosity that very few of them regained Lepanto. The naval division which had sailed from Patras being informed of what had passed, came to anchor on the 2d inst. and has since sailed towards the Levant. Caralcysos is in prison at Zante, are charged to pay over the Loan to the Hellenist Government. M. Blaquiere has received advices from the Committee of the Philo-Hellenist Society of London, of the early arrival of a frigate destined to join the Turkish fleet which is expected upon the coasts of the Morea. The vessels of Hydra, Ipsara, and Spezzia, are ready to put to sea. The intrepid Constantine Canaris is on board the Admiral's ship.—Forty thousand Greeks in the Morea are preparing to oppose themselves to the Ottoman forces, whose object is to make themselves masters of Navarin in order to winter there.

Augsburgh, July 12.—We have received letters from Semlin and Belgrade, which give circumstantial details of the defeat of a part of the army which Derwish Pacha caused to advance into L vadia according to orders received from Constantinople; and which was to proceed from thence to the Negropont to join the army of the Captain Pacha. This project of a junction, however, completely failed; the detached body of the Derwish Pacha amounted to between 8 and 9,000 men; he thought to force the important pass of Thermopylæ, but the Greeks under Nicetas, after making a feint to retire, fell unexpectedly on them, and after completely dispersing them took possession of all the artillery and material. Derwish Pacha, who had advanced with the other forces as far as Zeitouny, feel back on Larissa, where he again took a defensive position. Thus has the first part of the Turkish expedition completely failed, and it is to be hoped that the same will happen to the expedition from Egypt.

The War in Africa.—Despatches from Cape Coast to May 12th, had reached England. The Ashantees had pushed their successes nearly to the Gardens, four miles from the Castle, but no apprehensions were entertained of an attack. Some further reinforcements were expected, when it was intended to give battle to the natives.

BRITISH MANUFACTURES AND COMMERCE.

Manufactures in Great Britain.—It is estimated about 6 or 7 years ago, by those the most experienced cotton spinners in Great Britain, that the quantity of cotton thread produced on an average by each worker, connected with the whole power, could have spun on the single wheel, as was the practice before the late inventions of Arkwright and others, was then 120 to 1; persons engaged in the spinning of cotton thread in this country, that is, one person produced as much as 120 would have produced previously to these inventions. There are now about 280,000 280,000 multiplied by 120, gives 33,600,000, as the number of operatives who would have been required to produced as much cotton thread on the old plan, as is spun in Great Britain at present. Political economists generally reckon one in five a producer, but say one in three; then it follows, that it would require the working part of a population of more than one hundred and twenty of human beings to produce on the old single wheel as much cotton thread as 280,000 workers are enabled to manufacture, in consequence of the mechanism by which they are assisted

Now the spinning of cotton thread is only one particular branch of one particular manufacture. The same improvement have been made in wool and flax spinning. Wonderful and continually increasing and improving machines are employed in hundreds of operations, in weaving, bleaching, dying, printing, dressing, &c. &c. every species of cloth for the garments of the world—in the various hardware manufactures—in letter press printing and engraving, and an endless catalogue of other operations and engravings, and an endless catalogue of other operations which were formerly performed at an immense expenditure of time and labour, by unassisted manual power alone. Add to this, the thousand steam engines that are now working for us, all over the kingdom, some of them of considerable power; there is one steam engine at present in Cornwall, working day and night, and of 260 horse power; now each horse power, is estimated as equal to six men; and it would require three sets of men, each set working incessantly eight hours out of twenty-four, to produce the same effect of this single steam-engine, which thus performs the labour of 560 persons.

If we reflect for a moment on these facts, we shall be convinced the mechanical power which is now at work in Great Britain and Ireland alone, exceeds the effective power which would be produced by the manual labour of several hundred millions of active mankind—Edinburgh Paper.

Uses of Steam.—It is stated that in Manchester, (England) five looms, Chintzes, &c. are printed by steam. A piece of white muslin 49 yards in length, is thus converted into printed calico, in one minute and four minutes. Nearly all the machinery at present in England, is driven by steam. That for the manufacture of clocks is particularly ingenious. Saws, augers, chisels, planes, gouges lathes, polishing tools, in short every thing by which a large piece of figured is and a rough bolt of iron are converted into a clock and pulley are moved by steam with a velocity and precision that is truly admirable. At Sheffield no insignificant number of operations are carried on by steam. All sorts of edge tools and glasses for optical purposes are ground by steam. At Leeds there is a steam wagon, by means of which coal is conveyed a distance of two miles upon an iron rail way; sometimes as hundred tons at a time. None hundred sheets of paper are printed on both sides, the ink also being distributed by the same powerful agent, on wedgie printing parts worked by steam. In the summer of 1823, the first steam boat was launched on the Ohio.—There are now on the Ohio and Missisippi, upwards of one hundred steam vessels, many of them of the largest size and fitted up in the very best manner.—Pittsburgh Paper.

FROM BELL'S WEEKLY MESSENGER, JULY 5.

Finance and Commerce, Shipping and Miscellanies for the present year. These accounts, according to annual custom, have been laid before the House of Commons.

We shall not at present, convey our readers with the detail of figures, our matter into the general character of the returns as compared with those of last year We shall confine ourselves to the state of our trade (under the head of Exports) with the different foreign kingdoms with which our commerce is carried on, and endeavour to show the great disparity in our traffic between the several nations with which we deal.

And first with regard to Russia. In the Official Report which contains an account of the same total of our foreign trade with the different nations, it appears that our total exports to Russia for the year ending January the 5th, 1824, amount to £1,220,148 for the year ending January the 5th, 1824, amount to £1,220,148 for the preceding year, the amount was £3 663,055, so that in this branch alone there is a falling off, in the course of the year only, of upwards of £2,400,000, or more than two thirds of the whole. A wonderful deficit, and justly alarming unless a real reason can be rendered Happily, however, this reason is not so difficult to be found, and it mainly falls upon a deficient demand for our home manufactures. The £2 663,000 of the year 1822 and 1823, was exported and made up of two classes of exports—namely of British and Irish produce and manufactures, and £1,419,156 in foreign and colonial merchandize. Now, in the year just finished, and the accounts of which are given in the Official Report, the amount of foreign and colonial produce exported home into Russia, is only £306,160, that is to say, more than one million short of what was sent thither in the former year. A vast proportion, therefore, of the actual defect belongs to a diminished exportation of colonial produce—of sugar, rum, &c Now, whence arises this happen? Simply, because the improved and extended cultivation of Spanish America cause the improved and extended cultivation of Spanish America cause the improved and extended cultivation of Spanish America cause the improved and extended cultivation of the Caracas, has enabled Russia to supply herself with sugar at a cheaper rate than from the British Islands And the same fact will account for the immense stock of this article now in the British market, and for the consequent abandonment of the demand. It is, in this manner, indeed, that the system of every will work its own death and certain abolition.—Let us cease to encourage these islands, or, in other words, the slave trade, by our existing prohibitory duties on sugar; and the slave trade, by our existing prohibitory duties on sugar; and then sugar, under the certain effect of a large labour, can only be afforded at such a price that it will not be able to keep the market, let against the competition of sugar raised by free labour in the Caracas.

After Russia, the next head in the Official Report is Sweden, Norway, and Denmark. The joint amount of the exports to these countries found figures about half a million. The cause of this contemptible amount is to be found in the absurd and perverse policy of this country, according to which we sacrifice the interest of our manufacturers to the proprietors of woods and forests in Canada, as we in turn sacrifice the landholders in Canada to the shipowners in England The interest of the community is to have every thing as cheap as possible, and therefore to traffic in the way of free trade, and with the nearest dealers. It is a very doubtful policy, whether, under any circumstance, we ought to deal with a colony, as to sacrifice such a great and general interest of a part and good as that of the whole empire, for the benefit of a very small portion of the great body of the empire. When things are equal, it is want of proper feelings not to prefer dealing with our own connections. But where we can only do so at our own great cost, the question is, whether it is not the duty of every one to sacrifice his interest to the good of the many.—In other words, whether we are to pay for retaining our colonies and to give them every year so much out of our own pockets

Germany, the next head, exhibits the surprising amount of upwards of nine millions, and which is not more than two millions and a half below the amount of our exports to colonial produce. This is a most promising and improving trade, and the prosperous condition of it is doubtless to be imputed to the number of free marts which abound in that country. With Austria we have little trade, but the free cities of Germany supply themselves almost exclusively from the same markets and manufactures

With Prussia the amount of our trade does not exceed £767,6 11 a small amount, but another proof (in common with that of Austria) how an imperfect government affects all the resources of a state, and how impossible it is for commerce to flourish under a despotic monarchies. With Holland, though not above one half the magnitude of Prussia, our exports exceed two millions annually. Our depot trade to Gibraltar is very considerable, and also those, and our trade with Turkey, Italy, and the Papal States, exceed £1,500,000. And what is a very singular fact, we send nearly the same amount, and the same amount only, that is taxay, about one million annually to France and to Turkey.

There is one fact, however, which we have to notice with much pleasure, and with which we shall conclude. and this is, that our trade with the British America and the British West Indies (our exports only) very nearly equal the amount of our trade with the United States. Our exports to the United States amount to £7,500 868, while our exports to British America and the British West Indies, amount to six millions, wanting about twenty-five thousand pounds.

In round figures, our export trade with the East Indies and China, amounts to nearly four millions.—our trade to Brazil to nearly two millions,—our trade to Spanish America to £2 000,000, and our trade to Portugal to three millions seven hundred thousand pounds.

Upon the whole, the accounts of the year are most flattering to all the departments of our national industry. The only deficit is in our exportation of foreign and colonial produce. But in all our exportation of foreign and colonial produce. But in all our exportation of foreign and colonial produce. But in all stone was then laid by M. Roux, the superior of the Seminary, the whole clergy kneeling, and the band playing the national anthem of God save the King. At this moment a gun was fired, and a signal hoisted from the highest balcony of the spire of the French Church, when a salute of nineteen guns was fired from St Helen's Island, accompanied by the firing of guns from all the steam-boats in the harbour.

In the corner stone were deposited a brass and leaden plate, on each of which was engraven a latin inscription mentioning the day, month, and year, on which this ceremony took place, with the name of His Majesty, and their Excellencies the Governor in Chief and Lieutenant Governor The names of the Sovereign Pontiff, of the Bishop of the Diocese, of the Rector, and of the present Church Wardens, were also inscribed on these plates. A scroll of parchment, hermetically sealed in a glass tube, was also deposited containing the names of His Majesty, the Pontiff, the Bishop, his Coadjutors, the Governor and Lieutenant Governor, the Judges of the Court of King's Bench of this District, the Church Wardens, the Gentlemen forming the Building Committee, the Architect and head Mason; and stating that the expense of the building had, in a great measure, been defrayed by voluntary donations.

A silver medal, weighing sixteen ounces, was also deposited, on which was represented an excellent bust of His late Gracious Majesty George III. on the one side, and the Arms of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, on the reverse On another medal was commemorated the death of George III. There were likewise deposited a gold sovereign, a silver shilling, and two brass farthings of the present reign with a half-dollar coin of the United States of America.

After the ceremony had been completed, a collection was made towards the expense of the building, to which His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, and other respectable persons present, liberally contributed; the whole scene terminating under those solemn impressions so peculiar to an event of this kind, which connects the present moment with the events of future ages.

A short description of the noble structure thus founded may be attended with some gratification to our readers. It is dedicated to the Virgin Mary, and is to be a chaste and correct specimen of Gothic Architecture, selected, in part, from some of the best models now existing in Europe, of the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth Centuries It is to front St. Joseph and Notre Dame Streets, and placed upon the natural soil, its extreme length, from East to West, will measure 255 feet, by 134 feet in breadth, from North to South. It will have six towers, so arranged, as that each flank will present three; the East end having two; and the principal front on the West, the same number—each 200 feet high. Three towers will be of a quadrangular form, with octangular buttress placed at the angles of each, and terminating, at the top, in conical pinnacles. The curtain, or space, between the front towers, will be 73 feet, by 112 feet in height, crowned with an embattled parapet. There will be five public and three private entrances to the first floor, and four to the galleries; so that 10,000 people, the number which the edifice is designed to contain, may assemble and disperse in five minutes, through ample and commodious avenues and doors—All the doors and windows are to be encircled with the pointed arch. The Eastern Window, behind the high Alter, will be 32 feet by 68, separated by shafts into compartments, subdivided by multangular impannels of trefoiled tracery, intended for stained glass. This window will be seen to great advantage from the great front entrance, as well as a perspective view of the flank windows, side galleries, and the grained ceiling, 80 feet in height The vault of this ceiling will be supported in part by a double range of grouped columns, each three feet six inches in diameter; from these springing the groins of the ceiling, intersected by bosso relievo stills disposed diagonally over the vaults, which form the groins into grand and decorated compartments

There will be seven alters, placed so as to be seen from the front entrance—the high alter in a direct line, nearly at the extremity of the nave, elevated in the channel 3 feet above the floor of the Church, and encompassed on three sides by semicircular seats for the Clergy; the front of the channel being left open and accessible by an easy flight of steps in the form of a double [illegible]. The floor will be on an inclined plane, or level, from the front entrance to the high alter, which will contribute much to the general aspect, the whole of the interior being arranged for every possible convenience, and disposed so as to produce the most pleasing effect. The Church will be warmed with heated air conveyed from furnaces built in apartments under the floor. The interior will have Buttresses between the windows in the flanks, corresponding to form with those of the Towers, and crowned on the top with pinnacles; these Buttresses will be hollow so as to answer for chimnies.

The windows in the flanks will consist of one range each 10 feet by 36; finished in the same style as the eastern window. The edifice will be surrounded with a spacious terrace, upon which the entrance to all the apartments will be.—This terrace will form the line of St. Joseph and Notre Dame Streets, and the Building will recede on the terrace in front 36; from which there will be a flight of steps to the portal, formed by an arcade consisting of 3 arches, each 19 feet by 47 in height. From this arcade there will be 5 entrances to the Church, 2 of which will lead to the galleries. Over this arcade is placed another of the same form, which connects the front towers; and between the piers there are treloil canopy-headed niches, intended for marble figures, in alto relievo.

At the termination of the front, between the towers, there will be a promenade 75 feet by 25, elevated 112 feet above the surface of the square; to this promenade there will be a safe and easy access, which will command a delightful and picturesque prospect of the Saint Lawrence and the surrounding country.

The front towers are intended for Chime Bells, Time Clocks, and observatories.

It is not necessary on this occasion to enter into a detail of the arrangements of the plan of this Edifice, but we may observe, that the plan is so digested, as to unite convenience, durability, proportion with effect, and grandeur without ornament. When completed it will present a pile of Gothic Architecture, so bold and impressive, as will, we trust, do honour to Canada.

CANADA.—We mentioned last week the great exertions which are making in England for the improvement of the Canadas. We have now the pleasure further to state, and we derive our information from the most competent authority, that the fees on grants of land are to be positively abolished; in fact, that Government have already issued orders to that effect. We have now to announce a fact of still greater importance, an indistinct rumour of which had previously been received, the formation of a Company, under the immediate patronage of his Majesty's Government, for settling and bringing under cultivation the lands in Canada. This Company will commence its operations with a capital of £1,000,000 sterling, to be made up of 10,000 shares of £10 each. They state their objects to be.

1.—To purchase portions of the Crown and Clergy reserves.

2.—To give immediate employment to emigrants on their arrival in Canada.

3.—To prepare, by clearing the lands and by building houses, &c. for the settlement of persons and families to whome the lands may be sold or let, as may be agreed on.

4.—To make advances of capital, in small sums, (under superintendence, at the legal rate of interest in the Colony, which is 6 per cent.) to such settlers on the lands of the Company as may require it, withholding the titles till the advances are repaid, as well as the price of the lands.

5.—To give in this country, to persons intending to emigrate, information regarding the lands of the Company, and to facilitate the transmission of their funds but not to interfere with the conveyances of emigrants.

6.—To promote the general improvement of the Colony, whether it be in making inland communications, connected with the lands and interests of the Company, or in extending the cultivation of articles of exports such as flax, hemp, tobacco, &c.

The first step taken by the Company will be to purchase the Crown reserves. For this purpose, two commissioners will be appointed on behalf of the Government, to meet two delegated by the Company. The four Commissioners will then proceed to Canada to value the reserves, taking for their guide the average prices of the sale of lands in their vicinity

It is with sincere pleasure we find that the people of England have at length turned their attention to these Colonies; and the spirit being once awakened, there is no fear but that the business will be gone into at once liberally and effectually. It has long been a matter of regret to see the surplus capital of British industry and enterprise employed in foreign loans, on the most questionable and uncertain security, when it could be applied among our own fellow subjects with such safety profit and effect. We have been convinced, and have stated our opinion to several Canadian gentlemen, that the measures for canals and other internal improvements would not be suffered to languish, as has been the case heretofore, if properly made known in England.

Since the above was in type we have been most obligingly favoured with the following additional particulars from a highly respectable and authentic source:—

An Association, composed of highly respectable London Merchants, Members of Parliament, Bankers &c. has been lately formed in England, with the view of purchasing the Crown and Clergy Reserved Lands in Upper Canada.—Several interviews and conferences had taken place on this subject, at Lord Bathurst's Office, before the close of the late session of Parliament; and the arrangements connected with it, were in such forwardness as to raise the belief that the Company would be formally incorporated under the designation of "the Canadian Land Company," in July or August last, by a Royal Charter, to be followed with the further sanction of an act of Parliament, in the course of the ensuing session.

This Company was to be formed very nearly on the same plan and with the same rights and privileges as granted to the New South Wales Land Company, recently established in England.

The whole of the Crown reserved Lands, with two-thirds of the Clergy reserves, were to be purchased by the Canadian Company.

The price at which the lands are to be transferred to the Company, is to be determined by an average valuation formed on the actual sale prices of land in Upper Canada, prior to the 31st March last.

In order to obtain this average value, evidence of the preceding rates of sale is to be collected on the spot, by four Commissioners, two on the part of the Crown and two on the part of the Company.

The amount of the purchase of the lands was to be paid over by instalments. The sums receivable on account of the Clergy reserves to be invested in public securities, the interest applicable to the Church Establishment of the Colony. The amount received for the Crown lands to be appropriated for the public service of Upper Canada, for its general improvement, and for making roads, canals, &c.

The names of the members of the Board of Direction were not announced at the date of the latest advices. In the mean time, Mr. Jno Stuffet, an eminent Merchant Mr. Downie, M. P. Mr. Bidulph, M. P. Mr. Horsley Palmer, with several other gentlemen of fortune and distinction, acted as a Committee of Management Mr. John Galt had been appointed Secretary, ad interim, with the option of coming out to Canada as one of the Commissioners on the part of the Company.

It was expected that the Earl of Liverpool and other patriotic and distinguished noblemen would come forward, as Presidents, Vice-Presidents and Patrons of the Company.

Copyright of a Newspaper —On the 4th curt the Court of Session (Second Division,) determined an important point regarding the copyright of new-papers

John and Peter Wilson, in 1803, established a newspaper called the Ayr Advertiser, or West Country Journal, which speedily became a lucrative concern, and thenceforward belonged to them equally In 1809, Peter Wilson sold his half share to a third person, receiving a premium or price for the copyright, exclusive of the stock. The purchaser afterwards sold it to two strangers, receiving the same premium as he had paid.

John Wilson retained his original half share till his death in May 1821. Conceiving it to be a valuable part of his estate, he by his will conveyed his half share of the copyright to his testamentary trustees In all the changes of partners or proprietors, from the first establishment of the newspaper, there had been no written contract of copartnership betwixt them

John Wilson's trustees were about to sell his half share, when the two persons who had last purchased the other half presented a bill of suspension and interdict to have the trustees restrained upon the allegation that there was no such thing as the copyright of a newspaper; that the right to print & publish a newspaper exercised by two or more persons associated together, just resembled any other trade; and that upon the death of any partner, there being no written contract providing otherwise, the good will, as it is called, of the business accrued to the survivors. Lord Meadowbank, in the Bill Chamber, appointed the Bill to be answered, and granted the interdict On advising the bill, with answers, Lord Cringletie appointed parties to prepare memorials to the Court. In these memorials the case was fully argued

The Court were unanimously of opinion, that the right of printing and publishing a newspaper, or the share of such a right, however anomalous it may be in point of principle, and whether it should be called copyright, privilege, property, or by whatever other name, is a valuable right, now perfectly known and understood, and is by the common law both transferable inter vivos and transmissible to heirs, independently of any written contract betwixt partners or proprietors. They therefore recalled the interdict, and refused the Bill with full expenses.

KREUTZNER OR THE GERMAN TALE. By HARRIET LEE

The declamation of Lord Byron in his preface to the tragedy of "WERNER" that this work contain d the germ of much that he had written since the peru al of it, at the age of fourteen, could not fail to create extraord n ry anticipation and wide-ranged curiosity That Byron should have paid this tribute to the memory of any contemporary without its being a palpable truth to the perception of every reader, was not to be presumed; therefore, the anxiety produced in the literary world to get a hold of the work which, from such a knowledge of it, had made a most powerful impression on the mind of one who has puzzled half the world to conjecture what manner of mind he was possessed of, was certainly not to be wondered at, and it accordingly, in London, run through five editions, in a thousand of nine unpublished

This work exhibits a most singular power of mind, and a clear and vivid conception never ex ressed in a similar production—an exalted, though perfectly natural tone of being, equally capable of estimating that dramatic mean both felicity, effected by every day occurrences, as the more re fin d and less lovely system of happiness consequent upon an adherence to the principles of moral philo-opa —it is a work upon your Christian principles, and the lessons of morality it inculcates are as perfect as they are beautiful—it full illustrates the important truth, that an adherence to our duties at any one period of our lives, will spare us more than half its sufferings.

Way to preserve Vines from Bugs.

As soon as the young plants appeared, we put over the h a box consisting of four pieces of shingles, or thin boards, nailed together, one foot long, and about eight inches broad —over the top of this box is stretched a thin piece of worn out muslin or millinet, and edges fastened with tacks to the side of the box. This cover while it admits the air and light, protects the plants effectually from bugs and flies, and shields them from cold winds and frosts. The difference in the growth of the plants thus covered, and those which were left unprotected. was almost incredible, and I observed that while the latter were pinched with drought, the soil round the others was constantly moist, and their leaves in the morning were loaded with dew " American Farmer.

TO PRESERVE CUCUMBER PLANTS FROM BUGS.

From the Berkshire Star.

It is said, that if you plant Buckwheat with Cucumbers, Mellons or Squashes, the yellow Bugs, which eat of, and often destroy those young plants will prefer the Buckwheat to the plants; by which method said plants may get age and strength, so as to escape in a great measure the said destroyers and then the remaining Buckwheat may be pulled up. This easy method is worthy of a fair trial.

Another correspondent in the N England Farmer, relates a method of raising cucumbers, which he has used with much success, and which he thinks preferable to the ordinary way of sowing that vegetable The process is as f lows—A hole measuring two feet in depth and two in circumference, is dug in the ground This hole is filled with old hay or coarse straw, and then covered with small stones. Three inches from the edge of the hole, the cucumbers are planted around the whole circumference, and as they begin to spread their vines, bushes are stuck in the ground, about 9 inches from the roots. These bushes are similar to those used for peas but in this case they are stuck in the ground in a slanting direction, diverging from the centre of the hole, so that the top end may rise about a foot from the earth. As the vines continue to advance, another row of bushes is placed in the ground about half way between the top ends of the first row, and the place where their but ends are in the ground. This second row has the same slant, outward from the circle, given them A third and fourth row of bushes may be added, as the growth of the cucumbers require. By means of the rows of bushes so placed, the vines are born up several inches from the ground, outwards from the edge of the hole, and will continue to bear much longer than those suffered to run directly over the ground. The hole in the centre filled with old hay and stones, is intended to give the vine a sufficient supply of moisture, without the inconvenience of turning the water directly upon them The gardener, by throwing a certain quantity of water in the hole, has the degree of wet entirely at his command

A barren soil may be made very productive, if it is protected from the ray- of the sun, and at the same time exposed to the action of the a mo-phere. Earth under a woodshed, a dwelling house, or any othe building, if the air has free access to it, soon becomes fertile without manure.

MOORE'S IRISH MELODIES.

The following song is set to one of Ireland's merriest claa-ics, and composed in honor of her fair famed Wuiskey The second verse requires a little explanation. The unfortunate Irish peasant who cannot well pay the exhorbitant rents, and taxes imposed by his landlord, and is quivering under the fangs of a "middl man," or agent, betakes himself to the bottle—a d rost unfrequented mountains, where he manufactures the ma ic beverage, by the smuggled sale of which he hopes to di-incumber himself His small ine-uh rustic soul, and the pe-ple with whom he is obliged to mix in the process, gives it the smoky flavour which is alluded to in the second stanza. The licenced or lawful whiskey is called the Parliament by the peasantry, and is held by them in great abhorrence —A poor fellow was once arraigned before Baron M'Clelland on a charge of smuggling, and was thus address ed by his Lordship—" Well, my lad I remember you. what have you got to say for yourself this time ?" —In truth little enough, my Lord, for you kill my witness."—" I kill your witness!—what do you mean ?" —" Nothing at all, my Lord, but a sod of the turf he threw at me as we were all as he trotted at the last assizes, that my poor Paddy would get no chance ever since except the Parliament, and it finish ed him fairly—my Lord, you know well it'd poison the devil."

AIR.—Paddy O'Rafferty.

Never was philter form'd with such power
As whiskey and love like us this we are quaffing:
Its magic began when in autumn's rich hour,
As a harvest of gold in the fields it stood laughing;
Then, having by nature's enchantment been fill'd
With the suns and the bloom of her kindliest weather,
The wonderful juice from its cave was distill'd,
To delight such hearts as our love bring it together!
Then look off the cup—you'll find there—a spell in
Its very drop gainst the ills of mortality;—
Talk of the cordial, that sparkled for Helen,
The cup was a fiction, but this is reality.
As I though perhaps—but breathe it to no one—
Like caldrons the witch brews at midnight so awful,
In secret this philter was first taught to flow on
Yet—'tisn't less potent for [illegible] it,
What though it may taste of the [illegible]ke of that flame;
Which in silence extracted its virtue forbidden
Fill up—here's a fire in a me hearts I could name,
Which may wo-k too its charm, though now lawless and hidden.
So drink off the cup—for oh, there's a spell in
Its very drop gainst the ills of mortality;
Talk of the cordial, that sparkled for Helen,
Her cup was a fiction, but this is reality.

Horrid Murder.—On Friday morning a young woman of the name of Thomson, who has been these few months past a servant in the house of A. M'Nab Esq. of this town, was committed to gaol for the murder of her new born infant m On suspicion being first awakened, proper measures were instantly had recourse to for investigating the affair. For some time the unfortunate woman steadily denied the fact, but at length a full confession of her guilt was obtained, and accompanied by a medical gentleman of this town and others, she led to the grave (dug by herself at a short distance from the house) where the body of the infant was found. It was immediately discovered the child was full-grown—marks of violence were discernable on the head and cheek bone, and on fu ther investigation, a triangular fracture of considerable extent ap eared in the skull as if inflicted by a stone. It seems the wretched mother evinced but little concern during the investigation

Selections from British and Foreign Journals.

LATEST FROM EUROPE.

LONDON, June, 29

It is anticipated that the financial exposé of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, will be of the most gratifying description.—The Courier says the revenue during the present quarter will be found, we believe, to be productive almost beyond precedent, and the general flourishing condition of the country furnishes ample ground for congratulation.

On Friday the 20th of June, in the House of Commons, Mr. Wilmot moved a grant of £15000 for promoting emigration from the south of Ireland to the Canadas, and the Cape of Good Hope. The motion, after some discussion, was agreed to.

The state of affairs in Ireland grow more and more alarming—even a rebellion was forboded. Troops were pouring into the agitated districts. It was stated by Mr. Peel, in the House of Commons, that out of 64 days that body had been engaged in business, 49 of them had been occupied in the discussion of Irish subjects.

Mr. Robinson, the King's Messenger, arrived in town yesterday morning, with despatches from Spain. In the afternoon a Cabinet council was held at the Secretary of State's office for Foreign Affairs, which continued sitting about an hour and a half at the breaking up of which, it was expected, as soon as Mr. Canning could prepare his despatches. Mr. Ward of the British Embassy at Seville would leave town for Spain, with the reply of the British Government to the important despatch of which he was the bearer last Wednesday, from Sir W. A'Court, conveying the account of the removal of the King of Spain from Seville. A messenger was despatched to his Majesty at Windsor, with the result of the Cabinet Council. The deliberations of the Cabinet yesterday were a continuation of those of Thursday upon the same subject.

From the Liverpool Mercury of 27th June.

We learn from good authority that the person sent to this country from the new Regency of Madrid, was dismissed from the Foreign Office with a mere receipt for the despatches which he delivered. He also waited on the Spanish Minister, Admiral Jabat, to deliver despatches from the Regency, but was dismissed with a declaration that he knew no such body and could not receive the communication which he tendered. London paper.

It is said that Sir Hudson Low is appointed to the Governorship of Demerara.

LONDON, June 16.

The Adjutant General Sir Henry Torrens, is superintending the practical effect of various alterations and important improvements intended to be introduced in the field exercise and movements of his Majesty's Forces. Sir Henry is the author of the present system, which will, after it has undergone some revision, be promulgated to the army.

This distinguished Officer has already revised and simplified the rules and regulations for the Government of His Majesty's Forces; the improved Code was promulgated to the Army on the 1st January, 1822.

The exclusion of the Judies from the gallery of the House of Commons is thus accounted for:—A Bill being under discussion, which greatly affected the interests of a noble family of high and extensive connections, the galleries were daily crowded with the female relatives of the party, most of them as may be easily imagined, in full possession of the highest possible attractions, as youth, beauty, wit, &c. Upon which a member got up and begged to put the question to the Speaker, whether the credit and character of the House did not, he conceived, most peremptorily require, that in all their deliberations they should be free from any undue or extraordinary influence, and whether any of that Honourable House could cast their eyes up to the galleries, and say that they were so at that moment. He should therefore move, that every of beauties should immediately retire. The ladies obeyed, and have never been admitted since in the same manner."

England is an improving nation.—Who, twenty years ago, would have supposed that, in the year 1823, ladies and gentlemen would be forced from London Bridge to Celsia in twelve hours, by a kettle of boiling water: or that, while we were stirring our drawing-room fire, we should be feeding the lamps at our hall-door! Every thing has improved—how much is public taste refined! Instead of barrel organs, grinding English ballads through the streets, we have Savoyards, gaily dressed, playing foreign airs. Instead of two long parallel rows of people jumping awkwardly about a room, by way of dancing, we have the attitudinizing quadrille, and the twisting waltz; our shops are saloons; our ware-houses emporiums; our packets are yachts; our country boxes villas. A man who cures deafness is an aurist; a man who cooks one's dinner is an artist; a gig, with a head, is a cabriolet; a boy's school is a seminary, and a girls' school an establishment. An actor's benefit is appointed now—not fixed (like Sylvester Daggerwood's.) Instead of common-place exhibitions, such as we had of old, we have fourteen coloured prints rush on the wall, and called a cosmorama; we have a perretrife panorama of the coronation; we have equestrian exercises instead of horsemanship, and gymnasia instead of tumbling; even Punch himself has grown genteel.

Scotch Attainders.—We understand that a Petition has been presented to His Majesty, praying for the restoration of the titles of those Peers of Scotland who were attainted in the years 1715 and 1745, and that His Majesty, graciously considering that the families of those Peers have already sufficiently suffered under the penalties inflicted upon them arising out of the attachment of a long line of ancestors to the cause of an unfortunate family, has been pleased to signify his will that the titles should be restored. The petition has been referred to His Majesty's Ministers to be acted upon accordingly.

Spanish Subscription.—On the 21st June, the subscription in aid of the Spanish cause amounted to near £9000 in money, besides many subscriptions in guns, swords, pistols, muskets, shoes, and warlike accoutrements of various kinds.

Admiral Jabat transmitted the sum of £530 from the gentlemen of the Spanish Legation, of which the Duke de San Lorenzo subscribed £100 and the Admiral £200. The committee in delicate terms declined to accept the generous proposal, as they were unwilling to add to the great sacrifices which the Legation and all Spaniards would be called upon to make in the sacred cause in which they were embarked.

A GREAT NAME.

To the Editor of the Liverpool Mercury.

"Good name in man or woman
Is the immediate jewel of the soul!"

GENTLEMEN.—On the 5th day of March, 1780, the Princess of Asturias was brought to bed, at three o'clock in the morning, of a Prince, who was soon after baptized by the Cardinal Patriarch. His names were, Charles, Dominick, Ferdinand, Raphael, Joseph, Anthony, John, Nepomucene, Gabriel, Julian, Vincent, Ferrer, Andrew, Avelin, Louis, Ferdinand, Angel, Francis, Pascal, Jacchin, Cayetan Ignatius, Emanuel, Raimond, January, and Francis de Paul. For the truth of which, I refer you to the 1st vol. of the New Annual Register, for the year 1780.

Pray can you inform me if this Prince is now living, or any of the same family, and their names, if they will not take up too much room in your columns?

ROME.

There are in Rome 19 Cardinals, 27 Bishops, 1450 Priests, 1852 Monks, 1464 Friars, and 933 Seminarists. The population of Rome, in 1821, without reckoning the Jews, amounted to 146,000 souls.

The diving bell, recently employed in Plymouth Sound under the superintendence of Mr. Sicley King, Harbour-Master, has been removed to Portsmouth, after having rendered the most essential service to the above anchorage.—During its operation in the Sound, two rocky ledges have been reduced—one nearly ten feet, and the other six feet, so as to admit of lineof-battle ships sailing over at all times of tide, besides affording about 200 yards more room in that part.—The quantity of stone for large ships to work in and out. The quantity of stone taken off the above mentioned shoals exceeds 400 tons, and the cold and cheerless winter months have not prevented the work being perseevered in.

Cure for the gout.—A county gentleman, who has resided in the south of France for some years, informs us that he has remained free from gout for four years, in consequence of wearing oiled silk stockings over fine worsted ones, day and night. Previous to their use he has been subjected to a paroxysm every six months. This practice is common in the south of France, and throughout Italy.—London paper.

A correspondent of the Liverpool Mercury of the 7th Feb. last, under the signature An Old Woman, sent to the editors the following prophetic parody for publication:—

The King of France,
And one hundred thousand men,
Went up the Pyrenees,
And came down again—

And such is the fate,
I anticipate,
Of Louis the great.

A notorious pirate, named Johnson, was executed at Barbadoes on the 16th July. He had killed 4 men, and caused another to jump into the sea to avoid his ferocity, out of a crew of eight persons that were on board the vessel that brought him to the above port.

Wonderful Shot!—As Mr. George Stiles of Waltham, was returning home from shooting one day last week, he was surprised at the sudden appearance of night. it being then just three o'clock in the afternoon; on looking up to ascertain the true cause of this phenomenon, he perceived immediately above his head a flock of wild geese—with extraordinary presence of mind, he fired his fowling piece (a single barrelled gun of Mr. Joseph Manton's) into the centre of the body, and, miraculous to say, brought down three hundred and seventy-eight birds at one shot! This, however surprising it may appear, is equalled in curiosity by the adventure which he subsequently encountered, for, having with great difficulty, secured 92 of the birds, by tying them round his waist, he was considerably surprised and alarmed at finding them gradually recover animation; but judge his horror and astonishment when he found himself suddenly lifted into the air by the resuscitated captives, who, it appeared, had been more frightened than hurt; and which carried him over a large tract of country, and finally alighted in the sea, within seven miles of Hastings, where upon touching the water, he had the presence of mind to disentangle himself by cutting the string which confined the birds, and by that means, with assistance of his breeches which a panksife. Thus disencumbered, he continued swimming till midnight, when he was discovered floating in the water by the brig Fancy, of Hull, and, miraculous to say, brought down three hundred and seventy-eight birds at one shot! This, however surprising it may appear, is equalled in curiosity by the adventure which he subsequently encountered, for, having with great difficulty, secured 92 of the birds, by tying them round his waist, he was considerably surprised and alarmed at finding them gradually recover animation; but judge his horror and astonishment when he found himself suddenly lifted into the air by the resuscitated captives, who, it appeared, had been more frightened than hurt; and which carried him over a large tract of country, and finally alighted in the sea, within seven miles of Hastings, where upon touching the water, he had the presence of mind to disentangle himself by cutting the string which confined the birds,

"A batch of new peers having just been made, a lady of rank was not sure whether she was in the habit of visiting (that is, exchanging cards) with one of the new peeresses: and she referred to the footman in waiting, who was accustomed to deliver such cards. "Do I visit Lady H.?" was the question: to which the servant replied, "Your grace has not visited her since the Creation."

Anecdotes.

From the Itinerant.

DRAMATIC ANECDOTE.

Mrs Jordan.—The late Mrs. Jordan possessed a heart susceptible of the most tender and humane emotions, and these were called into instant action by the least approach of misery and distress. During her short stay at Chester, where she had been performing, her washer-woman, with three small children, was, by a merciless creditor, thrown into prison. A small debt of forty shillings had been worked up, in a short time, by law expences, into a bill of eight pounds. As soon as Mrs Jordan heard of the circumstance, she sent for the attorney, paid his demand, and observed, with as much severity as her good natured countenance could assume, "you lawyers are certainly infernal spirits sent on earth to make poor mortals miserable." The attorney, however, pocketed the affront, and with a low bow, made his exit.

On the afternoon of the same day the poor woman was liberated. As Mrs. Jordan, with her servant was taking her usual walk on the Chester walls, the widow with her children followed her; and just as she had taken her shelter from a shower of rain in a kind of porch, dropped on her knees, and, with much grateful emotion, exclaimed, "God forever bless you, madam! you have saved me and my family from ruin." The children beholding their mother's tears, added, by their cries, to the affecting scene; which a sensitive mind could not behold without strong feelings of sympathy. The natural liveliness of Mrs Jordan's disposition was not easily damped by sorrowful scenes; however, though she strove to hide it, the tears of feeling stole down her cheek, and stooping to kiss the children, she slipped a guinea into the mother's hand, and in her usual playful manner, replied, "There, there, now it's all over; go, good woman. God bless you—don't say another word." The grateful creature would have replied, but this good female Samaritan insisted on her silence and departed.

It so happened that another person had taken shelter under the porch, and witnessed the whole of this interesting scene, who as soon as Mrs. Jordan observed him, came forward, and bolding out his hand, he exclaimed with a deep sigh, "Lady, pardon the freedom of a stranger, but would to the Lord the world were all like thee!" The figure of this man bespoke his calling; his countenance was pale, and a suit of sable, rather the worse for wear, covered his tall and spare person.—The penetrating eye of Thalia's favorite votary soon developed his character and profession, and with her wonted good humour retreating a few paces, she replied, "No, I won't shake hands with you." "Why?" Because you are a methodist preacher, and when you know who I am, you'll send me to the devil." "The Lord forbid! I am, as you say, a preacher of the gospel, which tells us to clothe the naked, feed the hungry, and relieve the distressed; and do you think I can behold a sister cheerfully obeying the commands of my great Master, without feeling that spiritual attachment that leads me?—Look through worldly customs, and offer me the hand of friendship and brotherly love?" "Well, well, you are a good old soul I dare say, but—but don't like fanatics; and you'll not like me when I tell you who I am." "I hope I shall." "Well then, I tell you I am a player;" the preacher sighed, "yes I am a player; you must have heard of me—Mrs. Jordan is my name." After a short pause, he again extended his hand, and with a complacent countenance, he replied, "the Lord bless thee, who ever thou art; his goodness is unlimited; he has bestowed upon thee a large portion of his spirit; and as to thy calling, if thy soul upbraid thee not, the Lord forbid that it should."

Thus reconciled, and the rain having abated, they left the porch together; the offer of his arm was accepted, and the female Roscius of comedy, and the melancholy disciple of John Wesley, proceeded arm and arm, to the door of Mrs. Jordan's dressing. At parting, the preacher shook hands with her, saying, "Fare thee well sister, I know not what the principles of thy calling may be, thou art the first I ever conversed with; but if their benevolent practice equal thine, I hope and trust, at the great day, the Lord will say to each: "Ye kind my forgiven place."

Lord Kenyon.—A cause having been tried before Lord Kenyon, and a verdict given for the plaintiff, the defendant, not content with the verdict, called the plaintiff a perjured rascal. An action was brought for slander, and, when brought before Lord Kenyon, one of the witnesses was called to prove the words. "What exactly did he say?" asked Lord Kenyon. "Why, my Lord," he added, "you were a rascal and the jury all a parcel of d—d fools." Upon which the learned judge directed a verdict to be entered for the defendant, as the words (his Lordship said) had been spoken in such blind passion, that he was not likely to be seriously believed.

Henry Erskine.—A gentleman of very plain understanding once asked the Hon Harry Erskine, what was meant by that passage in scripture, "He is clouded with curses?"—"No thing," said he, "but that the man had got a habit of swearing."

A dispute about precedence once arose between a bishop and a judge, and, after some altercation, the latter thought he should quite confound his opponent by quoting the following passage:—"For on these two hang all the law and the prophets." "Do you not see," said the lawyer, triumph, "that even in this passage of scripture we are mentioned first?"—"I grant you," says the bishop, "you HANG first!"

A Highlander entered a haberdasher's shop the other day, and asked for a piece of scarlet cloth, to make him a waistcoat. The master of the Gael set some young women, who were at the counter a-gigling, and the shop man, willing to afford them sport, began to play off his small wit upon the stranger.—"So good man, ye want a piece of scarlet?—Would you know scarlet if you saw it?" "I think I would," replied the mountaineer. The shop-man threw down a piece of blue cloth; "Is that scarlet"—Hoot no, no, that no be it." A piece of green cloth was then produced; the same question was repeated, and received a similar answer, to the infinite amusement of the querist and his female friends, who were at no pains to conceal their mirth. The Highlander took revenge in his own way. He put his nose to the cloth, and affected to judge of the colour by the smell. The shopman, at his request, did the same, but the moment he bent his head towards the counter, the Highlander seized him by the ears and made his nasal protuberance come in such violent contact with the boards, that the blood sprang from it. That 'sold the Highlander, 'is the colour o'scarlet t'ye noo, lad,' and he walked away.—Glasgow paper.

Fact.—A gentleman, who fills every situation necessary to constitute him "the best of the village," and who had taken some pains to instruct the rustic inhabitants in the proper signs of respect due to him, being lately on a horse somewhat given to sly, and observing a lad walking before him, called out 'Boy don't take off your hat;' the youth turning his head, very innocently answered, 'I am not going sir.'

An elderly lady, residing a few miles distant from London, having been visited for some time by her physician, who seldom omitted his daily attendance, began at last to feel that the fee of five guineas so frequently repeated amounted to a very considerable sum. As the disciple of Galen made no overtures towards reducing it, in consideration of the short intervals between its renewal, the lady found it necessary to begin herself the good work of retrenchment. Accordingly on his next visit she gave him four guineas. He felt in an instant that the hand was minus one, and he instantly turned his eyes, with an air of official authority, to the face: "Have you lost any thing?" inquired the patient. "Why Madam, I—let me see—one, two, three, four, yes; I must have dropped a guinea." "Oh no Doctor, "said the lady, with a significant smile, "it is I that have dropped a guinea.

Some of our Journals have lately repeated from Sheridan's facetious equivoque to his lawyer when he advised him to take a wife—"I have no objection, sir; whose wife shall I take?" An equivalent to, if not the original of which we remember to be of some standing in Warwickshire, Sir——, a justice of the peace, and frequently had before him at the suit of the parish, Turf and Mary Jones, whose love of intrigue often brought him into paternal scrapes. One day, while his worship sat with my lady, it was announced that the worthy farmer, in charge of the constable, attended for a hearing touching one of his usual mid-nights. My lady was requested to leave the room during the examination; and—going away, met the culprit. "Ah! John John I!" said she "why do you meddle with the parish? Why don't you get a wife?" John scratched his head apologetically, and replied "Co I does na like nobody sometimes, but then their husbands are so domned mad."

The belief that punishment of the cruelly, oppression, or misconduct of an individual descended as a curse on his children to the third or fourth generation, was not confined to the uncivilized people. All ranks were influenced by it, believing that if the curse did not fall upon the first or second generation, it would inevitably descend upon the succeeding—The late Colonel Campbell, of Glenlyon, retained this belief through a course of thirty years' intercourse with the world, as an officer of the 42d regiment, and of matters. He was grandson of the Laird of Glenlyon, who commanded the military at the massacre of Glencoe, and who lived in the Laird of Glencoe's house, where he and his men were hospitably received as friends, and entertained a fortnight before the execution of his orders. He was playing at cards with his family when the first shot was fired, and the unwelcome consequence. Colonel Campbell was an additional Captain in the 42d regiment, and in 1758, and was put on half pay. He then entered the marines, and in 1762 was Major with the honorary rank of Lieut. Colonel, and Commandant of his corps at the Havannah. In 1777, he was ordered to superintend the execution of the sentence of a court martial on a soldier of marines, condemned to be shot. A reprieve was sent, but the whole ceremony of the execution was so conceived until the criminal was upon his knees, with a cap over his eyes, prepared to receive the volley. It was then he was to be informed of his pardon. No person was to be told previously, and Col. Campbell was directed not to inform even the firing party, who were warned that the signal to fire would be the waving of a white handkerchief by the Commanding Officer. When all was prepared, and the Clergyman had left the prisoner on his knees, in momentary expectation of his fate, and the firing party were looking with intense attention for the signal, Col. Campbell put his hand into his pocket for his pocket-book, and pulling out the packet, the white handkerchief accompanied it, and catching that moment the party, they fired, and the unfortunate prisoner was shot dead.

The paper dropped through Col. Campbell's fingers, and, clapping his hand to his forehead, he exclaimed, "The curse of God and of Glencoe is here; I am an unfortunate ruined man." He desired the soldiers to be sent to the barracks, instantly quitted the parade, and soon afterwards retired from the service. This retirement was not the result of any reflection or reprimand on account of this unfortunate affair, for his conduct was fully approved—The impression on his mind, however, was never effaced—Nor is the massacre and the judgment which the people believe has fallen on the descendants of the principal actors in this tragedy, effaced from their recollection. They carefully note, that, while the family of the unfortunate gentleman who suffered is still entire, and his estate preserved in direct male succession to his posterity, this is not the case with family, posterity, and estates of those who were the principals, promoters, and actors in this black affair.

SCOTLAND.

AYR, June 12.

The monument in memory of Burns is now in such a state of forwardness, that we understand the elegant gilded tripod, with which it is to be surmounted, will be raised on the building on or about the 24th of this month. According to ancient custom, certain ceremonies have been observed in placing ornaments of this kind, and we understand that it is in contemplation to finish the building, as it was begun, with a masonic procession.

GREENOCK, June 20.

More British ships have gone to the Russian dominions, this year, than in any since the peace of 1815, particularly to Petersburgh and Archangel.

A meeting has been called at Edinburgh to consider the propriety of a subscription in aid of the Spanish constitutionalists.

SPANISH AFFAIRS.

From the National Gazette of August 4.

On the 17th and 18th June, the municipal bodies of Cadiz, presented to the Cortes, by deputations, addresses in which they congratulated themselves and Spain, on the presence of that assembly in Cadiz, and recurred to the circumstances of the constitution having been formed there in 1812, denounced there in the last year, and there proclaimed anew, and re-established in 1820. They anticipated that liberty and prosperity would again be diffused from the same impregnable citadel of freedom, and answered for the resolution of its inhabitants to perish, rather than submit to French control.—The Cortes held their sittings in the same hall in which the constitution was framed in 1812.

Gen. Lopez Banos, was appointed on the 17th June, Political chief of the department of Seville. He levied a contribution of $50,000 upon the ecclesiastical council of the city of Seville. In the excesses committed by the populace—The Pavoe committed on the placards, the effects of the government and individuals embarked on the river, was immense. The Cortes decreed that the first opportunity should be taken of inflicting the severest punishment upon the rioters.

The Cadiz Expectador of the 20th says, "Why should we not expect, notwithstanding the trials and conflicts which all lovers of their country must now meet, that the cause of liberty and independence will triumph. We have yet five armies, and hold possession of all our fortresses—we are yet masters of two thirds of the soil of the Peninsula—we have the hands of the Greeks, who are not willing to give them up, because they have a prospect of making another exchange. Ulysses still commands in that city, the citadel of which is defended by three thousand men. At the 21st of March the Turks continued masters of Patras, of Modon, of Corone and Corinth. This last city must ere long be in want of provisions, and the Greeks already flatter themselves, which to be sure is not the case, that this place at the end of two years must be forced by famine to surrender!!!!

Koraiskeh, (three days' journey from Salonica) April 1—On every side of this country motions are making—Levies of troops are made for the Morea. It is said that more than eighty thousand men are to be put on foot. They are to be commanded by new Pachas. The Pacha of Adrianople is to march at the head of 12 thousand men. Each Bey will be followed by a thousand or fifteen hundred soldiers. The Bulgarian Greeks are also enrolled as they were the preceding year. Some of the Greeks of Macedonia and Thessaly have been compelled to march, but only in the quality of domestics. The insurgents in the Peloponnesus are making on their side, also, great preparations, as I am informed by people from that quarter. They expect to be attacked in a very serious manner this year, and they are taking all measures to make a vigorous stand against the Ottomans. They do not propose to attack the places of which the latter are in possession, but at first to fight the enemy which advances towards the peninsula. They have fortified the Isthmus of Corinth, and they have transported their bombs and cannon. It is said that if they are victorious in this campaign, as they consist of him until the Porte is informed, after the execution of Ney, took possession of his papers and made the discovery. Gen Lallemand, when in this country, while travelling through Maryland from Philadelphia to Baltimore, confirmed this by a reference to the circumstances.—Query?

French Marshals.—The Marshals of France appear to be again prominent objects of attention. They are twelve in number, and all (with one exception) of the Napoleon School, but all said to be among the most loyal and devoted subjects of the Bourbons. The following are their titles, rank, &c. 1 Duke of Coneyliano. (Moncey.) 2. Count Jourdan. 3. Duke of Dalmatia, (Soult) 4 Duke of Treviso. (Mortier.) 5 Duke of Belluno (Victor) 6. Duke of Tarentum. (MeDonald.) 7 Duke of Reggio, (Oudinot) 8. Duke of Conegliano, (Macdonald) 9 Duke of Albufera (Suchet) 10 the Marquis Gouvion, St. Cyr. 11 the Marquis de Viomesnil, and 12, the Marquis Law de Laureston. The 11th has always been a royalist, and served in the United States in the war of the revolution, under Rochambeau. The 12th has recently received his staff; and in the appointment has superceded Canuel, Grouchy. Vandamde, Belliard, Decaen, Kellerman, Clausel, Benet, Grandjean, and others. He is well known as being the favorite Aid and Minister of Bonaparte; and after the abdication of the latter, equally celebrated for his attachment to his new Sove eign.—He is considered in Paris as one of the Ultra Royalists.

BIOGRAPHY.

Boerhaave, that great and celebrated man, was born at Voorhout, near Leyden, in the year 1668. In 1693, he was created Doctor of Physic, which he then regularly practised; and, by a happy union of theory and practice, was and was at this time he could scarcely equal by his contemporaries, and was compelled to teach the mathematics to procure the bare necessaries of life, although he left at his demise the vast fortune of two hundred thousand pounds. Whilst Boerhaave presided in the chair of chemistry, medicine, and botany, he considered himself as the principal of Europe in the city of Leyden was considered the school of Europe in the city of Leyden was considered the school of Europe in those sciences. In 1715, when Peter the Great went to Holland to study maritime affairs, he regularly attended the lectures of Boerhaave, and sought every leisure opportunity of associating with him. So widely diffused was his fame, that a Mandarin in China, wrote to him a letter, thus superscribed "To the illustrious Boerhaave, physician, in Europe," and it was regularly received.

It is a grave and philosophical treat, by the celebrated M. Rusconi, of Pavia, lately published at Milan; it is a splendid quarto volume, embellished with five plates of elegant figures. The author's object is to give complete an account as he can, of information concerning the very contributes so large a part of the catalogue of Linnæus has been taken by Mark Bobardi, who, however, was severely wounded in the attack. Other accounts say the Turks has been defeated near Arta.

SMYRNA, April 16.

The squadron, properly called Turkish, will be composed of about 40 vessels of different sizes. United with the Egyptian flotilla, and that of the Barbary powers, it is calculated that it will amount to the imposing number of 120 vessels—The French commander, de Chosis, has returned from Athens, where he had carried twelve Greeks, of whom we have forwhere he had carried twelve Greeks, of whom we have formerly been, to exchange them for a more considerable number of Turks, and in consequence, there have been twenty nine individuals of that nation, women and children, brought here.—There are still remaining some at Athens in the hands of the Greeks, who are not willing to give them up, because they have a prospect of making another exchange. Marshal Ney.—It appears by an article going the rounds of the public prints, that the unfortunate Marshal Ney, who was shot at Paris on the restoration of the Bourbons, was an American by birth, was born near Elkton, Maryland, and that his proper name was Michael Rudolph. His history is brief; by this; he commenced his military career, and received the first rudiments of his education in Captain Lee's dragoons of the Maryland line during the revolution, from which he was honorably discharged.

He was born in Cecil County, in that State; and after the period of his discharge from the army, he removed to Canada, where he married, but his matrimonial connection rendered him unhappy, on which he left his family, took a vessel to the West Indies, remitted the proceeds and declined returning to his native country; since which no trace could be found of him until the French movement, after the execution of Ney, took possession of his papers and made the discovery. Gen Lallemand, when in this country, while travelling through Maryland from Philadelphia to Baltimore, confirmed this by a reference to the circumstances.—Query?

Natural History.

FROM THE AMERICAN FARMER.

Extract to the Editor, dated Allentown, N. J. June 10, 1823.

Extraordinary power of Locomotion, or Quadruped turned Biped.—A few days ago, in passing a flock of sheep, at some distance from me, I observed something of uncommon appearance amongst them; it was owing, I found upon approaching nearer, to be a lamb, following its dam, walking upon its fore feet, with its body erect. Its hind feet, I was told upon enquiry, and legs, as far as the gambles, were frozen off the night it was lambed, and very soon afterwards it acquired this extraordinary kind of motion. It is three months old, quite fat, and of ordinary size for its age. It grazes and sucks, resting wholly upon its fore feet, with its body in the position just mentioned; and will walk, if not urged too fast, a quarter of a mile at once, without inconvenience.

The above fact may be familiar in the sheep districts of colder countries, but to me, and as far as I can learn, to the people of this neighborhood, it is altogether novel, and exhibits the resources of the animal economy for the purposes of locomotion, to an extent of which I have heretofore had no conception.

Remains of the huge extinct quadruped named Megatherium.—On further examination the teeth disinterred in Georgia, and deposited in the Mitchill museum, by Mr. Taylor, prove more interesting to zoologists and geologists than was first supposed. There is solid grounds to conclude they belong to the huge clawed animal, and a skeleton of which was found in Paraguay, south of the river La Plata, and placed in the king of Spain's museum at Madrid, some years ago. The engraved figure published by royal authority there, and forwarded by Mr. Consul Hackley, fully warrants the inference. A careful survey of the osteology, has led to a decision, that the creature inhabited the land, and belonged to a family of the Bradypus or Sloth, none of which is known to be an inhabitant of this globe at the present day. He was upwards of 15 feet long, and almost 6 feet high. What are the dimensions of the skeleton, near the mouth of Savannah river, can only be known by connecting and measuring them. It is suggested to the proprietor of the land, Robert M. Goodwin, Esq. that he can scarcely perform any act so serviceable to natural science, as to gather up the fragments of the Megatherium, and forward them to New York, for full investigation.

The only other species of this extinct race, is the Megalonyx or Great Claw, described by Mr. Jefferson, as found in one of the lime stone caverns of Virginia. We offer the strongest exhortation, for procuring the remainder of the Georgia skeleton.

THE GORGONIA LEPADIFERA.

In these profound depths is found the remarkable gorgonia lepadifera of Linæus, considered rare by the inhabitants of those parts, who, when they accidentally meet with it hang it up as a curiosity. This extraordinary zoophyte grows in the form of a tree, or branch; and its similarity is such, that few indeed, after even a minute investigation, would suppose it possessed life, or imagine it was any thing but what it has heretofore been considered, a vegetable. This idea, which long prevailed with respect to the class of zoophytes in general, has been gradually exploded, as the attention of the naturalist has been directed to marine productions. * * *

"On a first inspection of this gorgon, we behold nothing but a mere branch, singular indeed in its appearance, and covered over with whitish scales, which seem like scales hanging in every part of it: how extraordinary then does it appear, when we are told that it is an animal, with not only bone and flesh, but even possessed of minute muscles and tendons! The stem of the branch, which is the inward support or bone of the animal, appears to be formed of different distinct layers or circles of a hard calcareous matter, and in the living state is surrounded by a fleshy substance. This is thickly covered with a small whitish tubercles which appear like barnacles hanging on it, and are the cells that contain the cumberless animals of which the gorgonia consists, protecting their delicate parts from injury. These they have the power of contracting and opening; and from them the tentacula of the polypus extend themselves to procure nourishment, which is afterwards conducted to the main stem or body.

A prodigious quantity of the largest crystals ever known was discovered in 1720, in a cavern of the Grimsel. Some of these crystals weighed from four to eight hundred pounds, and the value of the whole was estimated at 30,000 florins; a few more such discoveries, and the value would sink to nothing at all. The ancients spoke of a crystal of thirty pounds as wonderful. The largest of the crystals discovered in 1720 may be seen in the Cabinet on Natural History, Jardin des Plantes at Paris, measuring three feet and a half by two feet and a quarter.

There is at present in the chapelry of Grindale, in the parish of Greystoke, Cumberland, a remarkably fine Lamb, which has eight legs, four ears, and two tails. One of the tails is a little shorter than the other; the ears are like those of other lambs, and the four extra legs have no joints in them and do not quite reach the ground. This lusus naturæ is said to be in a thriving state.

The Elm.—Madame de Genlis speaks of an Elm of great size in this country, in the hollow trunk of which a poor woman gave birth to an infant, and she afterwards resided for a long time. This tree, which is a great curiosity, is still standing in the village of Crawley; but, as the parish is not willing to be burdoned with all the young elms that might have been brought forth from the trunk of this singular tree, the lord of the manner has very wisely put up a door to the entrance of this lying in hospital, and which is kept locked, except upon particular occasions, when the neighbours meet to enjoy their pipes and tell old tales in the cavity of this elm, that is capable of containing a party of more than a dozen. The interior of this tree is paved with bricks, and in other respects made comfortable for those that it embarks.—Devize Gazette.

Four horned Ram.—The brig American, from Rio Grande, has brought out three four horned rams, two horns on the head elevated, and the others bending downwards, with the usual crooks in them.

Kingston, Augt. 15.—We last week mentioned that a Gooseberry of uncommon size was reared this season in the garden of Messrs. Smith and Butterworth. This morning a similar berry was produced in town, from the garden of Mr. Oliver of this place, weighing 10dwts. 12grs. It is with much pleasure we observe a spirit of emulation in Horticulture shewing itself among the inhabitants of Kingston.

Poetry.

BRITISH HEROES.

When Chatham in his Country's cause
Upheld her right with fainting breath,
Stood forth the champion of her laws,
Nor ceas'd till grasp'd by icy death;
His spirit, from its bonds set free,
Sought the bright realms of Liberty.

When Wolfe on Quebec's bloody field
First heard the shout.—"They run, they run!"
And saw the flying squadron yield,
"Great God!" he cried, "my duty's done;
My soul with joy I yield to thee,
For thou hast gained the victory!"

When Nelson on the gore-stain'd deck
Receiv'd his last, his fatal wound,
His gallant spirit felt no check,
Though bloody slaughter rag'd around.
"Great God!" he cried, "my Country's free,
(For thou hast gain'd the victory!"

Britons! their glorious tract pursue,
Walk in the paths their feet have trod,
Keep freedom's glorious cause in view,
Your King, your Country, and your God;
Then may you hope, from toil set free,
O'er Death to gain the Victory!

QUEBEC AUG. 12.

This morning His Excellency the Governor in Chief and Commander of the Forces, returned from his excursion to Nova Scotia, and disembarked from H. M. S. Niemen,——Sibley, Esq. Commander, under salutes from the Ship and Citdel. His Lordship was accompanied by Capt. Hay, A. D. C. and Capt. Parker, D. A. Q. M. G.

Mr. Maule, A. D. C. & Asst. Mily. Secretary, arrived last night, having quitted the Frigate at Saint Thomas.

This day, being the anniversary of His Majesty's birth-day, the Regiments in Garrison, with the Artillery and a Brigade of Field Guns, paraded on the Plains of Abraham, and fired a feu de joie in honor of the day; His Excellency the Earl of Dalhousie was upon the ground, attended by the general and personal Staff.—Notwithstanding the threatening aspect of the weather, a considerable concourse assembled to witness the parade; the troops made a fine appearance.—MERCURY.

ST. JOHNS N. B. JULY 29.

A private letter from an officer of the 74th Regiment in London, mentions the appointment of Sir COLIN HALKETT, K. C. B. and G. C. H. Lt. Governor of Jersey, as successor to the late Lieut. Governor SMYTH, in the command of this Province:

Unprecedented Dispatch.—To those who have been accustomed to the Navigation of the St. Lawrence between Lachine and Kingston, and have witnessed the delay and fatigue of ascending the several rapids on the route, it will appear incredible that a voyage which usually occupies from 12 to 15 days to effect, should have been performed in the short space of five days and a half.

On Saturday the 3d instant an Officer of the Commissariat left Lachine at half past nine, A. M. in a Batteau heavily laden with Specie and Stores arrived at Kingston on the Wednesday following, at 4 o'clock P. M. where he remained 21 hours, and returned to Lachine on Friday of the same week at 4 o'clock P. M. thus performing the voyage (in the time which he remained at Kingston be deducted) in somewhat more than four days.

The passage downwards was performed in 24 hours.—Mon. Herald.

A few days since, an American, having two Tea Chests neatly packed up in his waggon, was met between Laprairie and Longueil, by two Custom-house Officers, who immediately seized the Chests, and hired a carter to take them to Laprairie. On their arrival the boat which should have brought them to Montreal was gone, they had the Chests carried to a store for the purpose of having them deposited till its return. After the storekeeper had taken them in charge, they demanded a receipt for two chests of Tea, to which he refused until he had seen what they contained; on the chests being opened, to their utter astonishment they were found to contain only manure.

OBITUARY.

Died.—At his residence, in Williamstown, Glengary U. C. on the morning of the 5th instant, Roderick McLeod, M. D. in the 43d year of his age.

His opportunities in the University of Edinburgh, and in the Army, for attaining professional eminence, were numerous, and well improved; for to a retentive memory were added a discriminating judgment, persevering application, and a laudable predilection for the scientific and operative branches of the healing art. In the various departments of his profession, few practised more extensively, or were more eminently successful—for his affability and courtesy of manner, and his fervent solicitude for their recovery, secured him the entire confidence of his patients. To a form peculiarly graceful and dignified were joined those qualities of mind that strongly endeared him to his acquaintances. He possessed the open engaging airs of the soldier, the urbanity of the citizen, and the polish of the gentleman. In domestic life, he discharged, with all the native warmth of an affectionate heart, the filial, conjugal, and fraternal duties towards a most dutiful mother, an amiable wife, and a circle of beloved brothers and sisters. His final indisposition which was lingering, and of the fatal issue of which he was fully aware, afforded him that desirable leisure for the duties of piety which he sedulously improved, and which enabled him to look forward with equanimity to an event which few can anticipate without anxiety. His remains were attended to the place of interment by a very numerous concourse of sympathizing friends, who testified by every mark of respect and condolence, their conviction of his singular worth, and of their own irreparable loss. Many, very many, paid to his memory the tribute of their tears, and appeared deeply to feel that, "to take him all in all, they never should look upon his like again."

"No farther seek his merits to disclose,
Nor draw his frailties from their dread abode;
(There they alike in trembling hope repose)
The bosom of his Father and his God."

market, may be considered as certain. These causes, operating so strongly, against the future prosperity of the Erie Canal, may account for the policy of the State of New-York, adopted by the general Government, in claiming a right to the Navigation of the St. Lawrence, through Canada, to the Ocean.

We are informed that the Engineer and Contractors of the Welland Canal, are preparing a Report, shewing the progress of the work, during the late season. We have no doubt it will be satisfactory, and it will afford us much pleasure, to communicate its contents to the public.

His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, Lady Sarah Maitland and family, arrived here on Thursday last from Stamford, and have taken up their residence for the Winter Season, in the Government House.

At the latest dates the Steam Boat Niagara was still aground. The greatest exertions are making by Capt. Mosier to get her off. The weather has been tempestuous, but we are happy to hear that the Niagara has not received any material injury.

From an extract in this days Paper, it will be seen that a Detachment of the Royal Staff Corps, under the Command of a Major, is ordered to Quebec. This Detachment it is probable will be employed on the Rideau Canal. From the great preparations which are making, and the number of Officers sent out, to superintend the Construction of public works, we may anticipate that the ensuing season, will be one of particular interest, throughout Canada.

The Catholic Bishop of Upper Canada, The Rt. Rev. Mr. McDonald, arrived in Town on Sunday last, and we are informed intends spending some time in York.

Jonathan Walton, Esquire, of Schenectady (with that spirit of liberality which so eminently distinguishes him) has presented to the Episcopal Church at Port Hope, a fine mellow-ton'd Bell, of a size adapted to the use of that sacred Edifice. The value of this acceptable present is much enhanced from the consideration of its being entirely an act of disinterested munificence; the generous donor having long since disposed of his property in this Village and the adjacent Country.

To all to whom these Presents shall come

GREETING:

WHEREAS for the more effectual preventing the recurrence of such abuses as have heretofore prevailed in the prosecution of the Trade in Timber in the parts of this Province bordering upon the River Ottawa, and to the end that the Public Interest may be more certainly advanced, the Commerce in that important article of exportation the better regulated, and more equal Justice observed with regard to all Our Subjects desirous of participating in the said Trade. Executive Council Office, York, 23rd March, 1826.

NOTICE is hereby given, by Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor, in Council, that in future, the First Wednesday in every Month will be a regular Council day.

JOHN SMALL.
No. 9 1. f. C. E. C.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepard in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2s. 6d.

4 All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 200 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2s. 6d.

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of 5s per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, shall at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hunded Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant. It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessarry expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must lay before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

By Order of His Excellency the Lieutenant Governor.

ORIGINAL.

For the U. E. Loyalist.

ON THE DEATH OF LORD BYRON

Translated from the German of H. [illegible]

Seven-and-thirty funeral shots! [illegible] I fain would tell!

Are they seven-and-thirty [illegible] in which he met and smote the [illegible] wounds, which on his breast the hero bare?

Are they seven-and-thirty [illegible] loss his country's grief declares.

Is it seven wounds, no victories, [illegible] thunders weep to-day,

Which from Missolonghi's ramparts high, [illegible] ening to the shore,

And which, like a dungeons echo, summons up to life again,

The heart which sorrow's tidings, had benumb'd with fear and pain.

Seven-and-thirty years—'tis this those numbered thunders say;

Byron, Byron! time the years of life, which Hellas weeps to-day,

Are they years which thou hast lived and pass'd?

No; thos. no tear shall claim,

For they live and shall forever, in the quenchless light of fame.

On the eagle wings of song upborne whose never wearied flight

The souls of sleeping heroes, e'en with their rustling woke:

No, I weep the years through which your course was fated not to rue,

The years of all the glory, which for Greece you fain had won.

Such years, such months, such days, to me those funeral sounds recall;

Alas! what strains, what conflicts, what wounds, and what a fall!

Seven-and-thirty funeral shots, thunder, thunder through the world,

And toss them o'er your wastes, ye waves, on all your billows hurled;

To the native land that reared him, bear the sound o'er ocean's bed.

Though she banished forth the living, let her still lament the dead.

All the wrongs that she has done to us, in counsel or in deed,

To wipe them from our memory, for Byron was decreed;

O'er his bier the hand of Friendship to his country to be joined,

Land of the Free, accept it—be our refuge and our Friend.

YOUNG HEADS ON OLD SHOULDERS.

From the New Monthly Magazine.

The personage who last employed my pencil had an old head upon young shoulders. I have had a subsequent sitter in an opposite predicament.

Into the magnificent-eating room of the Union Club House, on Wednesday last, at half past seven o'clock, there entered one of those very numerous people whom we middle-aged gentlemen about town have known by sight for the last five-and-twenty years, and whom we always accost with a mental ejaculation of "Who is that man!" The stranger had a lean long body, which in the natural course of events, would have been cased in fleecy hosiery, but which, upon the present occasion, was arranged in an olive brown Wellington frock-coat and white jean waistcoat and trousers. His cravat was of light blue silk, his back was as stiff as a Peer at a Bedford-square dinner-table, and a small moss rose bloomed in his bosom. Every member of the Union Club is required by its Regulations to write his name upon the small piece of ruled paper upon which he inscribes the particulars of his proposed repast. I overlooked one of the old shoulders of the unknown while in the act of performing that operation, and read to myself, "Sir Jerk Withers." Fortunately for the world of Pall Pry-hood, and equally unfortunately for Sir Jerk, the new book of Peerage includes the Baronets. The precious volume, bound in red morocco, lay on the newspaper-room table, to be opened in the room. In fact, it is impossible itself, not a hair of it being yet out of its teens. The outside of the head is, in that particular, as remote from the age of discretion as is the inside of it. When Sir Jerk Withers had dispatched his dinner, he adjourned up stairs to the library, and I did the same. Here he seated himself at the central table, and his back to the light, as by-gone-beauties are apt to do. I once dined with a certain German princess, at a certain house on the banks of the Thames, to which a subsequent resident gave much celebrity. The German princess had been a favourite in her day, but that day was forty years ago. Accordingly her highness manœuvred to avoid frowning the light, with all the skill of an admiral [illegible] weather gauge. The [illegible] covered her head that I could not see her as being older than [illegible] forty; when suddenly a city barge, intent upon [illegible]-hopping, sailed up the [illegible] drawn off her guard; she beckoned me to the window to behold the gilded and turtle-fraught vessel. Apollo looked her full in the face: I did the same, and her Highness shewed seventy-two! A similar accident nearly occurred to Sir Jerk. He had [illegible] bled to another table to fetch away a Transatlantic Review. The canvass [illegible] as Sir Jerk was stooping blind was down, and [illegible] alacky waiter, conceiving that the [illegible] light, touches a spring. The blind [illegible] down darted his rays from the apex of Waring [illegible] face. Exit bloom; enter wrinkles: and I verily believe if the Club, like that of the University, had admitted Ladies, Sir Jerk would have [illegible] the waiter out of the window, across the [illegible] Redhouse in Ariosto, ejected the [illegible] three miles into the Mediterranean.

Hardly had Sir Jerk Withers smoothed his ruffled plumes, when General Ephraim Meadows, an old-school [illegible] the Baronet [illegible] room, and [illegible] at the same table with the latter. "Ay," thought [illegible] self, as I surveyed their contrasted exteriors, "[illegible] a Gentleman of sixty ought to be." The General [illegible] bald at the top, and [illegible], which curls [illegible] ears, at the most [illegible] grey.—His face is ruddy with exercise, and not with rouge His body swells [illegible] the base, as Nature means, most Gentlemen's bodies at his age to swell. This is a matter of no [illegible] to him. He does not, like his friend the Baronet, pinch his unhappy loins in stays, and procure a slight diminution of bulk in the quarter at the expense of causing his face to [illegible] as red as a [illegible] and his eyes to [illegible] start from their sockets. [illegible] fact is, patent [illegible] does not good. I have [illegible] a dandy at the corner of Hamilton place trying to [illegible] gray splash from his Russia-duck trousers, and [illegible] converting a splash into a smear. A baby [illegible] sixty is worth all the [illegible] in St. James's street. [illegible] might be [illegible] it. He arose on the morning [illegible] his arrival, the high expectation of his own irresistibility. He [illegible] his whiskers, like a male Aurora; and, after taking a survey at the little green [illegible] on the opposite side of the road to which the tricanni highway robbers of the Eton Boys have given a celebrity, rather disproportionate to its bulk, he proceeded to his mirror, and [illegible] reduction, that made the cabbage-leaf, in the full hope of finding his grey noddle transformed to a beautiful chestnut brown. Alas! the virtues of the fluid were [illegible] awakened, but those of the cabbage leaf were [illegible] Sir Jerk's hair had become [illegible] he driver home [illegible] back-chaise [illegible], hoping in the recesses of [illegible] Charles-street to be the Green Man at [illegible] Fate ordered it otherwise; an alarm of fire [illegible] him from his bed at three o'clock in the morning, he bolted out at the street door which [illegible] that his night cap fell from his head. A Phœnix [illegible] man, who had dipped into the classics, qualified the dead luggages [illegible] new system of [illegible] Charles-street, by giving his vivid apex, mistook him for [illegible] father Thames, and exclaimed, with a Latin [illegible] "Ails right—here's Rex Flaviorum come to put you the flames! Sir Jerk Withers has since taken refuge in a wig, and [illegible] sustains [illegible] exhibition of the Royal Academy in Somerset house, as the bronze figure in the [illegible] pouring water from his urn, would [illegible] pleasant association.

[illegible] wonder, that all men who wear [illegible] young ones! The pert attorney [illegible] portly merchant of forty, the gouty [illegible] fifty, and the Sir Jerk Withers of sixty, have [illegible] them a grey head to match their [illegible] This is what years call proving too much. Ever while you live "Eye Nature's walks," and where she has planted grey ash trees, or cleared the ground by [illegible] the top of the head, do not fly in horror [illegible] by ordering home a hyperion [illegible] those [illegible] times called love-locks [illegible] sometimes heart-[illegible] playing carelessly over a forehead, where the crow [illegible] reading foreknand. One would think [illegible] of making bad worse would be of [illegible] quite the contrary. No sooner [illegible] than take a [illegible] than he forthwith resolves [illegible] a young head upon old shoulders. Sir Jerk Withers is too much a man to be [illegible] in the race. In fact, he is preventing in approbation of her conduct. The mother of the unfortunate girl, who had just arrived from Manchester to see her daughter, quite unconscious of her illness, at that instant rushed into the room, threw herself down in a paroxysm of grief and implored the Coroner to let her see her dear Ellen. The scene became too distressing, and the poor afflicted mother was obliged to be removed. The Jury returned a verdict, "Died by the visitation of God."

The Commerce of Liverpool.—The annual finance accounts have just been published, by order of the House of Commons. By this document it appears, that the whole of export duties for Great Britain and Ireland, for the year ending 5th of January last, amounted to £125,072. 19s. 2d.—Thus showing an increase upon the amount of the preceding year. Of this sum nearly £50,000, or the great proper of two-fifths of the whole, was collected at Liverpool, whilst London contributed scarcely £30,000.

SPAIN.

The deserters from Spain act by concert: for two bodies of about 2000 each entered Portugal by different points, presented similar declarations, saying that if the government would not aid them in carrying a better system into Spain, they would go to Madrid themselves. "What will Spain do," inquires a Paris paper—the government placed confidence in the troops; and they have just asked in vain of the Madrid Merchants a paltry loan of two millions.

The arrival of English troops in the Tagus is spoken of; but they come as to an ally. The English squadron is still there; and a Paris paper inquires what nation will dare to interfere against another constitution, after what she experienced of France?

The British embassy are very active at Madrid.

The Prior of the richest convent in Bercelona has been assassinated, probably for having said that the Clergy ought to support the state.

Propositions have been made to the King of Spain, by a Frenchman, offering to secure, in the name of the Knights of Malta, the coast of Spain from the insults of the Barbary powers, on condition that he will give them the Island of Minorca. They would, further, renounce all claim to their possessions in Spain, and take their Chief from the Royal Family.

Gen. Ruiil has received from the King the Grand Cross of the Royal American Order of Isabella the Catholic, for his defence of the Castle of Callao. It will be recollected that this post was held out in express violation of the capitulation of Ayacucho; and that, notwithstanding this breach of good faith, the Peruvians strictly performed the stipulation.

A letter from Tricato, says, the Island of Milo has been ceded to the christian nations, as a port for their vessels.

FRANCE.

Extract of a Letter, dated, Paris, Sept. 28, 1826, to the Editor of the New-York Commercial Advertiser.

Europe seems on the eve of another mighty struggle. France appears quiet, but the knowing ones say that the appearance is deceitful. I think myself that war will take place between Russia and Turkey. It is said here, that France and England will unite to keep the power of the former country within salutary limits. Mr. Canning is here, and in good favour. The King is not liked, but his successor, the Dauphin, is rather popular, being considered a thoroughly honest man.

A Diligence, on the route from Brussels to Paris, was lately set on fire by the pipe of a traveller on the top, and injured some of the baggage.

A Society has been formed in France to encourage the colonization of French Guians, for the purpose of obtaining wood for ship and other building, as also for cultivating the soil. The first company of colonists were to sail the beginning of October. The climate is considered healthy. The King of the Low Countries has granted permission to the children of the great painter, David, to erect a monument to their father, in the cemetery of Saint Gudule.

The line of succession to the throne of Austria, is said to be not determined, as the Imperial Prince is not inclined to the system of M. Meternich. The second son of the Emperor would in that case be substituted.

RUSSIA.

In Moscow there is a continued succession of entertainments. On the 13th there was a masqurade in the National Theatre; on the 15th, a ball at the Club of the Nobility; on the 16th, the merchants were to give a grand dinner; on the 17th, a ball at the Duke of Ragusa's; on the 19th, 21st and 23d, balls at the Duke of Devoushire's, Prince Jussupol's and Countess Orlof's.—On the 24th, there was to be all kinds of popular amusements; and, in conclusion grand fire-works on the 25th.

General Paskewitsch, with two divisions of infantry, and General Illowwaisky, with 20,000 Cossacks, are ordered to the frontiers of Persia, there to receive further orders. By his Majesty's commands, all soldiers wearing the honorary medal for 20 years faithful services have been asked whether they will continue to serve with triple pay, or receive their honorable discharge in order to accept, besides their pension, a more comfortable situation, on which they are to decide freely.

UNITED STATES.

Destructive Hurricane.—One of the most tremeudous, awful and destructive hurricanes, of which we have any record, passed through the country about 25 miles above here, in nearly an east direction, on Friday evening the 20th instant. The current of wind was only about 100 yards in width. In its course it swept away every thing from the ground; such was its resistless fury, that the sturdiest oaks, and the heaviest rocks, were torn from the earth, and blown off like feathers before an ordinary wind. This is extravagant language we know, but it is no more so than the reality will bear us out in using. The forest where the hurricane passed, was levelled with the ground! presenting the appearance of a meadow of luxuriant grass, with a single swath mowed through the centre of it. Wherever it passed a plantation, it totally annihilated every thing in its course. The greatest sufferer we have heard of, is Samuel Jones Esq. (late sheriff of this county)—The hurricane unfortunately passed directly over the most valuable improvement on his plantation near the Yadkin river, about 25 miles above this; and it left desolation and death in its wake. His large dwelling, the kitchens, smoke houses, negro houses, and a great number of other out houses, with all their contents, were entirely swept from the ground, where they stood, and blown off in thousands of atoms, and scattered over the country for miles around. Three negroes were killed, and another not expecedt to live. Fortunately a number of negroes, on hearing the coming of the wind, ran into a large barn, which was but little injured, the current of wind passed east of it. On the north east side of the river, the hurricane in its course passed directly over the farm of Mr. Jacob Hoover; swept away all his building and every thing in them; and killed his daughter, aged about 11 years. We have not learned the whole extent of the hurricane.

To give some idea of the tremendous force of the wind, we can state on the best authority, that large timbers 12 inches square, and 20 or 30 feet long, were carried two and three miles; some of the wearing apparel, blown from Mr. Jones' house was found lodged 6 or 7 miles from there; knives and forks were blown two and three miles, and some of them stuck fast in trees at that distance. We could name hundreds of other instances, seemingly as probable as the above, which are vouched for in a way that will not admit a doubt of their correctness.

It is almost impossible to estimate the loss Mr. Jones has sustained; it cannot be less than $2,000.—Salisbury, [N. C.] Carolinian.

Steam-Boat Burnt.—We regret to have to note the loss of the elegant steam-boat Emerald by fire. It is perhaps generally known that this boat belonged to the proprietors of the Union Line between this city and Philadelphia, the Emerald running from New-York to New-Brunswick. She arrived at the latter port on Saturday afternoon, and was to have left for this city on Sunday morning at 6 o'clock. At half past one o'clock yesterday morning she was discovered to be on fire by one of the persons who was asleep in the cabin, and who was aroused by the suffocating smoke. He gave the alarm, and her commander, Capt. Vanderbolt, whose residence was within a few yards, repaired immediately to the scene of conflagration, but the boat was, in a few minutes, in a sheet of flame. Every exertion in the power of the Inhabitants of New-Brunswick was rendered, but it being necessary to part from New-York 5,160 tons, or from Pentanguishine, the out-post of Canadian settlement, about 4,444 miles, from the 23d of April.

"Captain Franklin was very desirous of opening a communication with the Esquimaux at the mouth of Mackenzies river, but did not see any of them. He left, however, presents of iron work at several encampments, which appeared to be of recent erection, and we have the satisfaction since the commencement of winter of learning, through the medium of an adjoining tribe, that they received them, and are desirous of evincing their gratitude by receiving us kindly next season."

Presentiment.—The power of presentiments is extraordinary. During the reign of terror in France, the Baron of Marivet was continually tormented by the apprehensions that he should die upon a scaffold. All the cares of his wife were employed unsuccessfully to calm his fears. He sometimes indulged himself with the hope, that if his birth-day passed without his being arrested, he should be delivered from the weight which pressed upon his heart, and might perhaps be saved. Upon one occasion, he gazed, in a fit of deep melancholy, upon his son, who was then about two years old, and exclaimed,—"I shall never live to see this child in male clothing;" an observation which his lady carefully treasured up in her memory. The horrors of the revolution appeared at length to draw to a close, and the birth-day of Baron de Marivet had arrived. His wife was preparing a little feast for him upon the occasion, and the hour of supper was fixed upon for enjoying it. Wishing to give her husband an agreeable surprise, and to belie his presentiments, Madame de Marivet, about eleven o'clock, when they were just serving the desert, left the table, and returning a few moments afterwards with her son in her arms dressed like a sailor, she gave him to her husband, whom she tenderly embraced, and exclaimed "you now see your son, my dear, in man's clothing, and your birth day has already passed!" "Not yet," was the reply, 'midnight has not yet struck.' His friends shuddered at the words, and anxiously turned their eyes upon a timepiece, the fingers of which they silently regarded, as they moved towards the wished for hour. It was just on the point of twelve, when a thundering knock was heard at the door. M. de Marivet turned pale; all who surrounded him were struck dumb with terror; the door opened, and gave admission to the emissaries of the revolutionary committee, who were come to seize him. M. de la C., whom, in a letter, he had advised to emigrate, had not taken the precaution to destroy his papers. After his departure they had been transported, amongst his other effects, to the house of M. de Piepape, his grandfather. The latter had been imprisoned on suspicion, and Interesting to Navigators.—We received by the last mail the following interesting letter:—

Orelousas, Parish of St. Landry, Louisiana, September 27, 1826.

The enclosed is a copy of a card found in a bottle near the mouth of the river Calcaseau, in this parish, by Major Coward, a respectable gentleman residing upon that river. The mouth of the Calcasau is about two hundered miles west of New Orleans, in a direct line. It may be of great importance to navigators, I therefore enclose it for publication.

Yours respectfully,

NORTHERN OVERLAND EXPEDITION.

Fort Franklin, Great Bear Lake, Feb. 1826.

"After remaining as long at New-York as our desire to commence our journey would permit, we proceeded to Lake Ontario, crossed it to York, the capital of Upper Canada, and from thence travelled by land and water, in carts and in boats, to Penetanguishine, a naval depot in Lake Huron; here we embarked in two canoes, manned by 44 Canadian voyagers: our party previously consisting of five officers and four mariners, and, coasting Lakes Huron and Superior, arrived at Fort William, a post belonging to the Hudson's Bay Company, on the 10th of May, 1825. At this place the expedition embarked in four small canoes adapted for the navigation of small rivers, and proceeding in two divisions by the Lake of the Woods, Rainy Lake, Lake Winifrey, and the River Saskatchew, came to Cumberland House where the seamen attached to it, and who had been sent out with three boats passed the winter. We arrived at Cumberland House on the 15th June, twelve days after our seamen had joined their voyage for the summer, and losing no time in following them, we overtook them on the 29th of the same month, near the height of land which seperates the rivers flowing towards Hudson's Bay, from those which fall into the Arctic Sea; our progress after this was more slow, from the accumulation of our stores and provisions, which we had been picking up at the different trading ports on our route; the different portages detained us considerably, as the crews had to make five or six, and the boats were carried seven or eight trips across Methy; the longest portage on the route is about 13 miles statute in length, and occupied us seven days. We arrived at the Lake of the Hills on the 15th of July, at Slave Lake the 28th, and entered Mackenzie's river on the 31st. On the 3d of August we arrived at Fort Simpson, situated at the junction of the river of the mountains with the Mackenzie. On the 6th came to Fort Norman, and advice of the Company's posts, situate on the Mackenzie, about two hundred miles further down; on the 7th entered Bear Lake River, and on the 10th arrived at this place, which we have since named after our commanding officer. Mr. Back arrived next day with the detachment of canoes under his charge, Captain Franklin and Mr. Kendall having descended the river to the sea in a boat with six seamen and an Esquemaux interpreter. They came to the mouth of the river six days after leaving Fort Norman, having past the last of the Company's posts about that way. From Garry's Island, lying 25 or 30 miles to seaward of the river's mouth, they had a wide prospect of salt water free from ice, and sporting in seals and white whales. This was a cheering prospect; after remaining a day on the Island to ascertain by astronomical observation its position, and which they found to be lat. 69 deg. 29 min. north, long. 135 deg. 41 min. west, they reascended the river, and joined us here on the 6th of September. The expedition up to this latter date had travelled from New-York 5,160 miles, or from Penetanguishine, the out-post of Canadian settlement, about 4,444 miles, from the 23d of April.

"Captain Franklin was very desirous of opening a communication with the Esquimaux at the mouth of Mackenzies river, but did not see any of them. He left, however, presents of iron work at several encampments, which appeared to be of recent erection, and we have the satisfaction since the commencement of winter of learning, through the medium of an adjoining tribe, that they received them, and are desirous of evincing their gratitude by receiving us kindly next season."

sale had been placed upon the property of his house. He died in prison, and the agents of the committee, who were present when the seals were removed, found, in an empty vessel, amongst some torn papers which were destined to be burnt, the letter in which M. de Marivet advised M. de la C. to emigrate. This letter was his sentence of condemnation. M. de Marivet was summoned before the revolutionary tribunal, condemned to death, and lost his head upon the scaffold, just before Thermidor.

A serious alarm was excited a few nights ago, in Cowan-street, occasioned by the absence of three young children from the paternal roof for some hours after the gloaming. Search however having been made in all directions without success, the despairing parents were upon the point of sending through the drum, for the purpose of advertising them, when, fortunately, a little girl happening to go to a sow house immediately behind the dwelling, with meat to her family was surprised at the appearance of something black lying coiled up in a corner thereof. Having gone and procured a light, she returned with some others, and proceeding (not without fear,) to explore the nursery, was saluted with a sonorous and deep-drawn snore, somewhat different from the monotonous grunt which Saunders was in the habit of sending forth, which amazed them exceedingly; they, however, upon again recovering their courage, cautiously approached to the mysterious spot—when, lo! they discovered the three renegadoes most lovingly locked in the close embrace of he said sow, and all four fast asleep.—Stirling Journal.

COLONIAL.

A Commissioner has been appointed for the carrying into effect of certain improvements to the Navigation of the River St. John, below Fredericton, viz:—Removing such sunk logs or trees from the bed of the river, as will be pointed out, and making iron rings and fastening bolts, and attaching the same in a secure manner to such places of the rock on the banks of the narrows near Indian Town, as may be required.

HALIFAX, Oct. 28.

Yesterday morning, two of the men taken into custody at Cape Breton for Piracy and the murder of the Captain and Mate of the American schooner Fame, of Boston, were carried to jail under a strong guard. We understand that it is the intention of the American Government to send down an armed vessel to take these people to Boston, in order to have them tried there. Mr. Harris seldom been the scene of, executions, and we are happy that in the present instance we shall be long relieved from the disagreeable duty of carrying the law into operation, as such scenes have generally a bad effect either upon the morals or feelings of the spectators.

CAPE BRETON.—The following is an extract of a letter from an emigrant from Scotland, who arrived in Cape Breton, in July last:—"We have been traversing the country in quest of a settlement, and have now fixed upon one on the Grand River Mire. We intend passing the winter here. You wished me to communicate to you what remarks I might make on the state of the country and inhabitants. Regarding the former—the soil is, in general thin, though by no means unproductive. The rearing of grain is very precarious, an instance of which has appeared this season, the crop having greatly failed, owing to the destructive influence of heavy rains, which are very prevalent here. As to the people—the inhabitants in this quarter are composed of Scotch, English, French, Irish, and native Indians; the majority are Scotch Highlanders from Barra. Among such a mixture of nations, one may expect to find great diversity of character—a very prominent feature of which is hospitality; another obvious trait is frugality. A landholder here makes his own house—implements of husbandry,—builds his own boats—makes his own clothes—and every other requisite to, if not the luxuries, at least the necessaries thing of life. The unsettled state in which I now am has precluded the possibility of my writing you so fully as I would wish.—Montreal Herald.

DOMESTIC NEWS.

Mr. Alexander Gibbs, of Montreal, Surveyor and Draftsman, proposes to publish, if he receives a sufficient encouragement, a Plan and Section of the Lachine Canal. Although compared with the gigantic artificial navigation in the neighbouring state of New-York, the Lachine Canal may be considered as insignificant, it derives consequence from the magnitude of its utility, and as being the first attempt, made in these Colonies, at improving the communication between the great western waters and the waters navigable to the ocean; it may, not unaptly, be considered as the parent of the canals since undertaken, either by Government or by the exertions of spirited individuals, in other parts of the provinces, and in point of the general style and solidity of its execution, may vie with any of the most celebrated canals at least. Mr. Gibbs' Prospectus is with Mr. Thompson, at the Exchange Reading-Room, who is authorized to receive subscriptions.

We understand that the printed Report of the Committee of the House of Commons on Emigration, with the evidence taken on the subject, has been officially received. Mr. Horton's report is attainable in his attention to this Committee, and obtained the attendance and evidence of every person connected with the Canadas, who happened to be in London while the investigation was going on last spring. From the desire expressed by Mr. Horton, that the utmost publicity might be given to the Evidence and the Report, as well in the Colonies as at home, we doubt not that the whole will eventually be laid before the public, and circulated in the most general manner. We have already perused with great interest the evidence of the Honorable Richard Uniacke, and that of Henry Bliss, Esq. relating more particularly to the fisheries, and to the Province of Nova-Scotia.—Quebec Official Gazette.

The weather has been variable during the past week; the cold which was experienced in the early part, subsided on Thursday, since which there has been a continual thaw. The winter roads are again broken up and travelling must be bad, as the Montreal post had not arrived at 3 o'clock.

Most of the outward bound vessels are ready for sea. The Ottawa, Douglas, for London, as well as several others will sail to-morrow, should the wind continue fair as it is at present. Quebec Mercury.

The official paper recommends a Light House on the Island of St. Paul at the entrance of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, to be provided for by a duty of 1d. per ton on shipping arriving at the Port of Quebec and the Ports in the Gulf. For the duty at the latter, it would, of course be necessary to have the co-operation of New Brunswick.

By late arrivals at New York London dates to 14, and Liverpool to 16, October are received. We have copied the principal items of news. The accounts are satisfactory, respecting the amendment in the trade of the country.—the money market is improving, and confidence in a great measure restored.

The Parliament of Lower Canada, by Proclamation in the Official Gazette, meets for the despatch of business, on 23, January.

We have heard, that it is intended to remove the Troops and Public Stores from Fort George next Spring, and that preparations are making for carrying the object into effect. The contemplated works at the Short Hills, in Thorold, we understand, will be commenced early next season, and when completed, will be occupied instead of Fort George.

The Woolen Manufactures of the United States, appear to be in the most depressed state, and Congress is to be petitioned at its next sitting, to take the subject into its consideration. Meetings have lately been held in Boston, and resolutions passed, setting forth the embarrassed state of the Trade, and a Committe appointed to correspond with other parts of the Union, on the subject of the intended memorial. The "Circular" Letter of this Corresponding Committe states, that "the fact of the unprecedented depression of American Woolen Manufacturing establishments is undeniable; and that their increased distress and probable ruin, unless ample protection is speedily extended to them by Government, are clearly foreseen."

The duty on imported Woolen Cloths in the United States in 1816, was 25¼ per cent, and a petition that year to Congress, resulted in an increase of 8 per cent, making the present duty 33¼ per Cent. The duty on imported Wool is 30 per Cent. The remedy proposed by the Boston Meeting for the difficulties under which the Woolen Trade labours, is an additional duty on imported Woolen Cloths.

From the Niagara Gleaner.

On Sunday last, at the Garrison Service in this Town, one of the most chaste and elegant discourses, upon the death of the Hon. Wm. Claus, (an event which we recorded in our last number,) was preached by the Rev. Thomas Handcock, the Acting Chaplain to the Forces at this Post. Whether we consider the style of composition, or the sublime doctrines it so ably developed of the value and immortality of the soul, we are equally sensible of its impressive effect; and we are convinced that the many who were deprived of the benefits of its instructive nature, by absence, unite with us in the hope that he may be induced to publish a composition that so eminently displays the powers of the Christian Minister and the Scholar, and the circulation of which must be a subject of improvement and moral advantage to all.—(Communicated.)

LOST BOY.

Henry Watson, aged 19, in a deranged state, left his Fathers house on the afternoon of Friday, 1st December, had on Blue Coatee, Duck cloth Trowsers, and Fur Cap.—Small of his age—dark eyes and hair—his head shaved. Any information respecting him will be gratefully acknowledged by his Father, in Duke Street, near the new Bank, in the town of York.

RICHARD WATSON.

York, 2, December, 1826. 27.

Runaway from the Subscriber on the 30th July last William Davis alias William McEwen, an indented apprentice to the Iron and Brass Foundery Trade, said boy is about nineteen years of age, short thick set with rather a blushing countenance when spoken to: it is understood he was employed by some person to commence a Foundery in York (Upper Canada).—All persons are forbid employing said boy and it is presumed no person of sound discretion would encourage a Runaway boy who has met with the most tender treatment from his former Master, but, would on the contrary admonish him to return to his duty.

Provided always, nevertheless, That in consideration of the authority and permission hereby given, the several Rates and duties herein-after specified, shall be paid to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, (that is to say,) Upon every Thousand Feet of Oak Timber, the Sum of Six Pounds and Five Shillings, being at the rate of One Penny Half-penny per Foot. Upon Saw Logs of the proper length to be cut into Deals, Two Pence upon each Log—and upon every Thousand of Standard Staves, Four Pounds One Shilling and Eight Pence—which Duties are to be paid in lawful money of Our said Province of Upper Canada, and to be levied and received by such Person as We shall for that purpose Appoint by Commission under the Great Seal of Our said Province; and at such place or places upon the said River Ottawa as We shall declare through Our Officer to be appointed as aforesaid, to be most fitting and convenient.

Provided always, That for the better preventing the said Timber being Cut before it has attained a suitable growth, double the amount of Duty herein specified shall be charged upon all such Timber as shall not Square more than Eight Inches. And it is our further Will and Pleasure, that all such Timber or Wood which shall have been Cut as aforesaid upon Our Unconceded Lands in Upper Canada, upon which the Duties shall not be paid, when exacted by Our Officer so to be appointed as aforesaid, shall be seized and detained to Our Use as forfeited.

Provided always nevertheless, That all Persons, properly authorized by or under Our Licence granted in manner heretofore, used to Cut Timber in Our said Province shall be permitted to carry away and export the same, to such extent as their Licences may specify, without the exaction of any rate hereby imposed, and that all such Timber as may have been heretofore Cut upon Our Unconceded Lands as aforesaid, without Our express Licence, may upon payment of the Duties hereby specified, be suffered to pass through Our said Province of Upper Canada.

38-6*w* JOHN SMALL, C. E. C.

In Council 21st November, 1825.

FOR the information of persons arriving in Upper Canada as settlers, the following Summary of the Rules which His Majesty's Government has thought fit to lay down for the future Regulation of Grants of Land in the Province, in conformity to the system which has been recently adopted with respect to other Colonies of His Majesty, has been prepard in conformity to Instructions from Earl Bathurst.

1. A valuation will be forthwith made of the lands throughout the Colony, and average prices will be struck for each District.

2 All the lands in the Colony not hitherto granted, and appropriated for public purposes, will be offerd for sale at the average prices thus fixed.

3 All persons proposing to purchase lands must transmit a written application to the Government through the Office of the Surveyor General, in a certain prescribed form, which will be delivered to the party applying, by the Surveyor General, or by an officer to be appointed by him for that purpose, in the several Districts on payment of a fee of 2*s.* 6*d.*

All correspondence with the Government respecting Grants of Land must take place through the same Office.

5 The purchase money is to be paid by four quarterly, or five annual instalments as the party applying may desire, but in the latter case legal interest shall be charged, and shall be payable annually from the time of making the agreement—A discount of Ten per Cent will be allowed for ready money payments.

6 On payment of the money a grant will be made in fee simple to the purchaser at the expense of the Crown, with the usual reservations of Mines and Minerals, and of White Pine Timber.

7. The largest quantity of Land which will be sold to any Individual, is 10,000 Acres, and when put up to sale, it will be offered in such tracts, not less than 100 Acres, as may be directed. Persons wishing more extensive purchases must apply, in writing, through the Lieutenant Governor in Council, to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Colonies, with full explanations of their objects and means.

8. Lands may also be obtained without purchase, but upon different conditions.

9. Persons desirous to acquire Lands without purchasing will make their application to the Government, in writing through the Surveyor General's Office, in a prescribed form, Copies of which will be furnished by the Surveyor General upon payment of 2*s.* 6*d.*

10. The largest grant that will be made without purchase is 1200 Acres, the smallest 100 Acres.

11. No grant will be made to any person without purchase, unless the Government is satisfied that the Grantee has both the power, and the intention of expending in the cultivation of Lands a Capital equal to half the estimated value, or, in case the grant do not exceed 200 Acres, that he intends to reside upon, and improve the same.

12. A quit rent of £5 per cent per annum upon the estimated value, will be fixed upon the Land granted without purchase.

13. The quit rent will be redeemable within the first 25 years next following the grant, on payment of a sum equal to twenty times the annual amount of it.

14. Until the expiration of the first seven years next succeeding each grant without purchase, no quit rent will become due upon the Lands comprised in it.

15. Every Grantee without purchase, must at the expiration of the before mentioned term of seven years, prove to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant Governor in Council, that he has expended in the Cultivation and Improvement of his Land a Capital equal to half its value, as that value was estimated at the time of his Grant, or, in case the Grant shall not exceed two hunded Acres, that he has during that time, resided on, and improved his Land—On failure of such proof, his claim to the Land shall be forfeited, and the same may be granted to another applicant. It is to be understood, however, that if at any time within that period the condition of expenditure and cultivation shall have been complied with, the Patent may immediately issue.

16. No additional Grant of Land will be made to any person who has not proved, as last mentioned, the necessarry expenditure of Capital on the Lands already Granted to him.

17. Persons receiving a second Grant of Land, without purchase, will become liable to pay a quit rent upon the Lands comprized in such second Grant immediately from the date of it.

18. Persons desirous to receive Grants of Land without purchase, on terms different from those above stated, must first before the Lieutenant Governor in Council, a full explanation in writing of the circumstances which they may conceive to exempt them from the fair operation of these general Rules.

19. U. E. Loyalists and other persons entitled to gratuitous Grant by the general regulation of His Majesty's Government, are not to be affected by these Rules.

The above Rules to take effect from the first of January 1826.

THE RENEGADE.

He had crossed the Desert's wavy sand,
And he stood among the pilgrim band,
That came; (each toil and danger o'er,)
At Mecca's shrine their vows to pour.
Yet seemed he not of the tawny East,
For when aside his glittering vest
He drew, to give his bosom air,
For Eastern birth 'twas far too fair.
But dark the scorn upon his brow,
As moslem e'er was seen to show,
And the glance of his eye,—was terrible—
It seemed to pierce, where'er it fell;
And his curling lip and lofty stride,
Betokened his nature's fiercest pride.
But his spirit feels it not a pain,
For which a cure is sought in vain!
Those fits of pensiveness that steal,
Which e'en his pride can ill conceal,
Oh! tell they not of a secret sore,
That festers e'en his bosom's core?
And now on the Zemzem's marble brink
He stands, of its limpid wave to drink,
Tho' not in the sacred draught he sought
The virtue that moslem faith had thought;
Nor hoped to quench in the deep filled bowl,
The fever that scorched his inmost soul.
And now, when all in prayer are bent,
He calls the woes of his banishment,
The happy hours his childhood knew,
Ere passion its chain around him drew!
When infancy owned a mother's care,
Who taught the lips the holy prayer,
And the happy scenes of that happy time,
He had left fore'er in his native clime;
And the citron grove, and the orange bower,
Where he chased the bee from flower to flower;
And many a hope then formed, now clings
As bright as their first imaginings.
Oh! 'twas too much for his soul to bear,
And he uttered a sigh of wild despair;
And deeply the thought of his own disgrace,
Was read in the tortured lines of his face—
Oh! 'twas too much, for one who had felt
The tend'rest throb within him melt;
For the hard strained chords of feeling burst,
When he felt how deeply he was accurst,
The curse that for himself he'd made,
The curse that blights the Renegade—
Reason forsook her tottering throne,
And he sighs to the breeze, a Maniac's moan.

Summary.

The Globe says—"There is no truth in the rumours which have been circulated of the resignation of Mr. Canning, nor is it believed that any thing is yet settled as to the future Ministry. One of the arrangements talked of, is that Earl Bathurst will be first Lord of the Treasury—that Lord Plamerston will take a seat in the Cabinet, with the office of Secretary to the Colonies, and that Mr. Wynn will go to India. It is supposed Lord Colchester will be the new Member of the Cabinet.

The emigration committee have reported to the Commons, that they will not recommend the application of the national funds to purposes of emigration, except in aid of local contributions. The distressed weavers of Glasgow and its neighbourhood will, on all probability, be the class upon which the experiment on a large scale will first be made.

Rundell, the silversmith on Ludgate Hill, lately died, and left personal property alone to the amount of one million two hundred thousand pounds sterling!

The speculative demand for Ashes, noticed in our last, having subsided, the market this week has been dull, the total sales amounting only to 220 barrels, consisting of 150 barrels of Montreal Pot at 25s. to 25s. 6d. for new, and 24s. per cwt. for old, and 70 barrels Pearl at 25s. for old, and 26s. 6d. per cwt. for new.

Accounts are said to have been received, that Captain Franklin had accomplished the objects to his overland expedition, and had fallen in with and embarked on board Behring's ship Blossom, which had been sent for the purpose of meeting him in Behring's Straits. It is added that some of the party who were with him had retracted their steps by their original route.

Letters have been received from Major Laing, dated subsequently to his arrival at Timbuctoo; but by some oversight the particular date is not inserted. The state of that city, so much talked of, and so much sought after by Europeans, together with the rivers and country adjoining, will soon be made known, and by a hand fully able for the work. We regret however, to learn that, instead of proceeding down the river Niger to the sea, as he intended, Major Laing intends returning home by the way of Tripoli.

A BILL

To authorize the sale of a part of the Clergy Reserves in the Provinces of Upper and Lower Canada.

Whereas, by an act passed in the thirty-first year of the reign of the late Majesty King George the Third, intituled, "An act to repeal certain parts of an act passed in the fourteenth year of his Majesty's reign, intituled 'An act for making more effectual provision for the government of the province of Quebec, in North America, and to make further provisions for the government of the said province,'" it is amongst other things enacted, That it shall and may be lawful for his Majesty, his heirs or successors, to authorize the Governor or Lieutenant Governor of each of the provinces of Upper Canada and Lower Canada respectively, or the persons administering the government therein, to make, from and out of the lands of the crown within such provinces, such allotment and appropriation of lands as therein mentioned, for the support and maintenance of a Protestant Clergy within the same; and it was further enacted, That all and every the rents, profits or emoluments, which might at any time arise from such lands so allotted and appropriated as aforesaid, should be applicable solely for the maintenance and support of a Protestant Clergy within the province in which the same should be situated, and to no other purpose whatever:

And whereas in pursuance of the said act, such allotments and appropriation of land as aforesaid have from time to time been reserved for the purposes therein mentioned; which lands are known within the said provinces by the name of the Clergy Reserves:

And whereas the said Clergy Reserves have in great part remained waste and unproductive, from the want of capital to be employed in the cultivation thereof; and it is expedient to authorize the sale of certain parts of such Clergy Reserves, to the intent that the monies arising from such sale may be employed in the improvement of the remaining part of the said Clergy Reserves, or otherwise, for the purposes for which the said lands are so reserved as aforesaid:

"BE IT THEREFORE ENACTED, by the KING'S Most Excellent MAJESTY, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, That it shall and may be lawful for his majesty, his heirs and successors, by any commissions or letters patent, to be for that purpose issued under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, or under the public seals or seal of the said provinces, or either of them, to authorise any person or persons, or bodies or body politic or corporate, within the limits mentioned provinces, or elsewhere, to sell, alienate and convey, in fee simple, or for any less or larger estate or interest——part of the said Clergy Reserves in each of the said provinces, in such manner and form, and upon, under, and subject to such conditions provisos and regulations, as his Majesty, by any such commissions or letters patent as aforesaid, shall be pleased to direct and appoint: Provided nevertheless, that all the monies to arise by, or to be produced from any such sales or sale, shall be appropriated, applied, and disposed of, in such manner, and subject to such conditions, as by any such commissions or letters patent as aforesaid, may be prescribed in that behalf, for the improvement of the remaining part of the said Clergy Reserves or otherwise for the purpose for which the said lands were so reserved as aforesaid, and for no other purpose whatever, save only so far as it may be necessary to apply the same, or any part thereof, to or towards defraying the expenses of or attendant upon any such sales or sale as aforesaid.

CATHOLIC EMANCIPATION.

House of Commons, March 5.

At four o'clock the Speaker took the Chair. Mr. Coke, of Norfolk, presented a Petition signed by the Archdeacons of Norwich and Sudbury and 900 of the Clergy of the diocese of Norwich, in favour of Catholic Emancipation. An immense number of Petitions were presented by various Members from different parts of the United Kingdom, for and against further concessions to the Catholics; Mr. Canning presented two, one from the Catholic inhabitants of Liverpool, and another from the county of Clare.

Sir FRANCIS BURDETT then rose and addressed the House in a long & eloquent speech, in which he particularly dwelt on the Treaty of Limerick, and the necessity of conceding the demands of the Catholics. He concluded by moving—

"That it is expedient for this House to take into immediate consideration the state of the Laws which impose civil disabilities upon the Roman Catholic subjects of this country, with a view to their repeal."

The motion being seconded in an able speech by Lord Morpeth, Mr. Dawson followed in opposition to the motion. Mr. Rice, Mr. V. Stewart, Mr. Brownlow, and several other spoke in the course of the evening, and the House, after a very animated debate, adjourned at one o'clock in the morning.

House of Commons, March 6.

CATHOLIC QUESTION RESUMED.

Sir John Newport and Lord Elliot addressed the House in favour of the motion, Mr. Hart Davies against it.

The Master of the Rolls then spoke against the motion at great length, and was admirably answered by Mr. Plunkett, the Attorney General for Ireland.

Mr. Secretary PEEL then rose, but the opening of his speech was frequently inaudible. He spoke of the painful nature of the duty he was called upon to perform, in reference to the necessity under which it placed him in differing in this only instance from his colleagues. He had no refuge from those painful feelings but in the consideration that he meant to speak the truth, and to obey the dictates of his conscience. He complained not of those, who, after the lapse of two years, might have looked at this question in a different light, and changed their opinions in consequence; so far from it, that if the same change had been effected in his own mind he should have been as ready to declare it, as he had been to assert his former opinion. But as long as he remained unconvicted of the error of that opinion, he would stand up and maintain it; he would not shrink from that duty, though it separated him from his colleagues and from the majorities of the House. He had hoped to be relieved from the painful necessity of referring to any thing of a personal nature to himself—and the only point upon which he should feel called upon to do so was that which related to the treaty of Limerick—When this question was before the House in 1825, he could be satisfied that my privileges were withholden from the Roman Catholics, for by the treaty of Limerick, they had given any valuable consideration, his judgment would be materially influenced by the terms of such a treaty. He dealt with the greatest attention at this part of the subject, he was bound to say, that he was not satisfied of the truth of that assertion, but on the contrary, was more and more convicted that relief from political disabilities was not contemplated by the treaty of Limerick. The terms of the article upon which so much stress has been laid were, that the Roman Catholics should be guaranteed in their religious privileges, and in the exercise of their religion without any disturbance. This he argued to extend to political privileges; but he asserted that all the writers of the age, Lord Clarendon among the rest, defined the terms as being limited to the privileges connected with the free exercise of the religion of the Roman Catholic religion. Besides this he had the words of King William himself, one of the parties to the treaty, written within a month after the capitulation. In a letter then written by King William, he declared his willingness that they should be protected in the undisturbed exercise of their religion, but that he would not consent to their enjoying political privileges. The conduct of the Legislature, at the same period, put the question at rest. The capitulation of Limerick took place on the 3d of October, 1691, and the Parliament met on the 22d October following. In that Parliament an Act was passed for applying the oaths of supremacy and allegiance to Roman Catholics, without any question being started as to the treaty of Limerick. There were discussions upon it, conferences took place between the two Houses, stipulations were made, but it was never once contended that the Act interfered with the treaty of Limerick. On February 24, the following year, ratification of the Treaty was executed, after the Act had passed excluding Catholics from Parliament and offices of trust and power. If he had been guilty of that bottering to which the supporters of this measure now desire to fix upon him, would that monarch have resorted to such a solemn mockery! He —— was defending the Whigs of those days, and what had the Whig historians said? After describing the ratification of the Treaty, he add., " and some ambiguous words were explained in favour of the Irish." Under these circumstances then, he thought he was entitled to withhold his assent to the motion of the Honorable Baronet, at least upon the ground of the Treaty of Limerick. [Cheers.] He now came to the general question, and here he must confess that so far was what had been urged by those who had supported this motion, from decreasing his reluctance to grant the general question, that it had only increased his distrust, and aggravated all his objections. When the Hon. Baronet declared there was no difference in the principle which sent a man to the faggot, and that which indicted the penalties now existing in this country—and when his Right Honorable Friend the Attorney General for Ireland, told him that if they withheld the same power from any body of Englishmen, they would rise in arms—[Loud Cheers.]—when he heard these things asserted for the purpose of influencing the decision of that House, he started from them with abhorrence. [Cheering.] And was he to hear the names of Burke and Pitt invoked to the aid of such abominable doctrines? [Continued Cheering.] Was he to hear his Right Honorable Friend make such a declaration as this when a large body of his fellow subjects in England were actually in the condition supposed; and when he recollected that his Right Honourable Friend presided over the legal administration of Ireland—[Cheers]—and that, too, under circumstances of agitation? [The Right Honourable Gentleman was here interrupted by immense cheering.] His astonishment increased beyond his power to express it. That Burke and Mr. Pitt utterly repudiated the doctrine these claims could ever be demanded as a birthright.

Mr. Pitt's words were these—"These are the grounds upon which this measure can alone be discussed: for I cannot allow that, under any circumstances of any situation of affairs, can we maintain the doctrine of the question as a right. I never was one of those who held the term, 'Emancipation,' as at all applicable to a repeal of the few remaining penal laws." Thus he not only rejected the doctrines of those who now supported the measure, but even their very name. Mr. Pitt then went on to declare his opinion that it must be in human nature for the Catholics to endeavour to advance the interests of their religion, when time and opportunity offered. This was also his (Mr. Peel's) opinion. It was because he held, with Mr. Pitt, that whenever opportunities should arrive, the Roman Catholics would do all in their power to advance their religion, that he would prefer exclusion to securities, and take his stand on the ground further onward. He would fairly own, that, upon constitutional grounds, he had a distrust of the Roman Catholic religion. He found fault with no man for his faith; he never applied his objections to the individual; but if he found that a particular religious faith, there was, and had been grounded a scheme of worldly policy, he had a right to inquire into its nature: and if he found it pernicious, he had a right to take precautions against it. Hear, hear! It was not any man doubt, then, that those who presided over the Roman Catholic religion, had something more than the purity of religious faith in view? When he saw that religion calculated to give mad power over the minds of men, and to make that object beyond the simple interests of religion. When he found that so lately as in the year 1807, Pope Pius the VIIth, issued a bull which was promulgated in Ireland, offering three hundred days of indulgence to any Catholic who should devoutly utter pious ejaculations therein named, in favour of the souls then in purgatory, he was astonished and disgusted. As to the attempted explanations of such things the more he examined them the greater was the mystery, and the greater his disgust. And when he reflected that this paper was sent by rational men, and received by rational men, for the purpose of working on the ignorance and superstition of the deluded victims, he could not but entertain that there were other objects than those of religion. Although he held no objection to individuals entertaining a profession of the Catholic faith, yet he had a strong objection to the political system connected with it. If he looked to countries where this religion luxuriated and held an undivided sway—if he looked to others where it was left to struggle with rival establishments—and if he looked at home, where it was kept within certain limits by the restrictions—he was forced to the conclusion, that that state was the happiest and the most fortunate which supported a mitigated, moderate, temperate predominance of the Protestant Church. It would be the merest mockery of Catholicism when called upon by Parliament, to take every opportunity of improving the condition of their religion, and placing it in a more favourable condition in England, if it were not the eventual destruction of the Protestant Church so much to be apprehended, but the conflicts and struggles which must follow any attempt to accomplish that object. His Rt Hon. Friend had told them that this measure would be the final and country adjoining, will soon be made known, and by a hand fully able for the work. We regret however, to learn that, instead of proceeding down the river Niger to the sea, as he intended, Major Laing intends returning home by the way of Tripoli.

consumation of all that was wished and hoped for by the Catholics; he did not believe it. He thought that the Catholics of this House, would unite themselves in the the pursuit of ulterior objects, for bettering the condition of their Church, and that they would by degrees find the means of gaining support and perhaps success. As he thought [illegible] to guard against this possible increase of the influence of the Roman Catholic religion, that the penal laws were passed; it was in order to [illegible] that safeguard that he now opposed their removal; yet, no anxious was he for the tranquility and security of his country, that he could have no hesitation in declaring—that if he thought such an immense good could be derived from the present measure, he would be ready to purchase it by the sacrifice of these possible remote effects upon the Constitution. If he was sure, indeed, that this was the way which would lead them to the Elysian Fields, he should think the risk subordinate to the certain advantage of such an acquisition. (Hear.) But he could not make up his mind to any such conclusion. The Hon Member who [illegible] had said, "Having got thus far, let us now go to the top of the hill," and so he would, could he believe that to be the top which was pointed out as such, but that gained, other heights will be seen, and Alps on Alps arise. He thought that when the Roman Catholics were admitted to an equality, the same disturbances and struggles for office and power which now agitated the country would still be carried on. If the authority of the Friends was to be admitted now, they would deny it after such a measure had passed. His Right Honourable Friend called it patriotism now. (Cheers) Patriotism! (Cheers and laughter) It was patriotism now, because they supported the bill. But when that bill should be passed, they would be the judges of what was patriotism themselves; and it would then be too late to deny their right of exercising this spiritual authority for the furtherance of their own views. With regard to the recommendation in favour of the Catholic Prelates, he could not, as a public man, give the same confidence which they had so readily obtained from his Right Honourable Friend. His Right Honourable Friend had that night in the most unqualified manner declared that no such thing could well do. He had admitted that their object was to infuriate the people, and thereby intimidate the House into concession. But had the Catholic Prelates discountenanced there demagogues in their indignation. Had they advised the Catholics of Ireland to submit to the law, and not to be led into intemperate conduct by the demagogues of the Catholic Association? Or the Catholic Prelates who signed the petition presented in the House by his Right Honourable Friend, eleven were members of that Association. (Cheering.) The system which he had been content to follow with regard to Ireland was, to enforce the laws with impartiality, to inquire into the grievances, and to redress grievances were they were found to exist. Farther than that, according to the present firm conviction of his mind he could not go. It was with unfeigned sorrow that he differed from his friends on this subject, for whom he had ever respected, and from whom he differed upon no other question in the slightest degree.—(Cheers from Mr. Canning.) The interests of some great and illustrious names had lately been lost to that side of the House which he now addressed. He never had differed his opinion from the influence of station, however illustrious, or of names, however powerful. But while he deeply lamented the loss which the country had sustained, it was some consolation to him to feel that he was not among those who supported the cause which he formerly espoused, when no man could possibly suspect him of motives into which considerations of personal advantage could by possibility enter.—(The Right Hon. Gentleman sat down, amidst the loud cheering of the House.)

Mr. Secretary CANNING then rose at half-past two o'clock in the morning, and spoke to the following effect:—"Sir, after the protracted discussion to which this debate has been already extended, he House has a security in my discretion, as well as in my power, for my inability to trespass upon their attention. Indeed, I am principally induced to rise lest it might appear disrespectful to the House and unbecoming in me to abstain from speaking (at least shortly and succinctly,) upon grounds on which I give my vote this night. In doing so, I think it may not be incpedient to recal the attention of the House more accurately than it has been called during the greater part of the discussion, to the question immediately before the consideration of the House. The Hon. Baronet (Sir F. Burdett) who brought this question forward, introduced it with a generosity and prodigality of argument and remark, which perhaps tended to confining himself merely to the motion itself—to the accurate statement of what the substance of the proposition is. Of that omission on the part of the Hon. Baronet, I must say very unfair advantage has been taken in the course of this discussion. Because the Hon. Baronet, did not distinctly state that the present opposition was one that merely asked of you, the present House of Commons, whether you do or do not, entertain the same opinion as that which you entertained the importance of which this important question, I did not expect that, therefore, objection would have been made to him for having omitted to fill up the details of a measure to a preliminary resolution of principle.—[Hear, hear.] I should not have expected this misconstruction of argument from a Member who had only sat in this House for the first time; but I confess I was little prepared to have an example of such a confusion set by judicial accuracy. [Cheers and laughter.] The speech of the Right Hon. Gentleman (the Master of the Rolls,) has been partly historical and partly critical. The historical part, on the admission of the Right Hon. Gentleman himself, was inapplicable to the present question; and I shall presently shew that his critical part was not less inapposite. [Hear, hear, hear.] The Right Hon. Gentleman began, continued, and ended his speech, by complaining that no securities were offered to the Catholics in the resolutions. If the Right Hon. Gentleman required securities, how were they to be propounded? In what! In a resolution calling upon you to declare whether you will affirm or abjure this inherent opinion of your constituents? When the House declares its opinion in affirmation or negation of the necessity and importance of considering and entertaining this measure, then will be the time for deliberating on the measure in its details. Then will be the time for considering what bill and what provisions it will be proper to introduce: but until that time arrives, Hon. Gentlemen might, without impropriety, restrain the expression of their surprise, that the Hon. Baronet had not in the first instance, introduced a measure in all its details to the House. The Hon. Baronet had done right in omitting to do so. He would have only perplexed and defeated his object if he had encumbered it at this stage of the discussion, with all the topics of interest which had been gleaned and collected from the deluge to the revolution. [Hear, and a laugh.] What right has the Right Hon. Gentleman to require that the motion should be encumbered with such topics now—a motion which only embraces a single proposition—to take into consideration the laws affecting Roman Catholics, with a view of relieving them from the civil disabilities under which they labour? Is this a proposition submitted for the purpose of idle and otiose discussion? No; but one which is submitted for the last discussed, and a decision come to upon it, a dissolution had taken place, a new parliament had been returned, and a general impression has gone abroad that a change of opinion had taken place—a change which I utterly disbelieve. Who is there in the course pursued by the Hon. Baronet was the correct one; for, by admitting the principle of the measure, the House would come to a fairer consideration of all its grounds; as the Hon. Baronet, by obtaining an admission of the principle, had secured the measure being more favourably entertained in its future stages; and as, without such admission, he would have been altogether without the hope of a fortunate issue. Because a detailed scheme of securities has not been brought forward, the Right Hon. Gentleman has thought proper to accuse me of abandoning the idea of securities, which I at one time regarded as a necessary accompaniment of any measure of relief to Roman Catholics; and upon this he has founded a charge of inconsistency. I say that I have not altered or abandoned any sentiment or opinion I have entertained respecting this important measure. Why does the Right Hon. Gentleman not bring forward the motion of the necessity of securities? What prevents him? What has done so? [Cheers.] Where is the evidence of my dereliction? [Renewed cheers.] I do not know whether or not the Right Hon. Gentleman was in Parliament, when Lord Grenville moved for this measure. [It was intimated across the table to Mr. Canning that the Master of the Rolls was not then in Parliament.] Well, as the Right Hon. Gentleman was not then in Parliament, I will furnish him with a short abridgement of the history of this question since that time. I will be his historian of these latter times. [Hear.] In 1812, towards the close of the Session, I took the liberty of moving a resolution, the object of which was to take into consideration in the ensuing Session of Parliament, the laws affecting our Roman Catholic fellow subjects. The Parliament meanwhile, as occurred last year, was dissolved. On the opening of the New Parliament the Bill was introduced by Mr. Grattan—it was given to him by me, as I thought it my duty, on his fame, his station, and his venerable age, that the bill should be brought forward by him. On my unexpected victory, the greatest that was ever achieved on this question, constituting, I think, a majority in its favour of fifty-four, I was induced to and into it were incorporated the securities which I deemed necessary to the required concession. The Right Hon. Gentleman lies under a fallacy as to the object and proposed effect of these securities. The securities were of a political nature, and were not, as the Hon. Gentleman supposes, securities of Church and State. The objects which these securities were intended to attain were these two—first, to give to the Crown a certain authority in the nomination of Catholic Bishops; and secondly, to secure the correspondence of the See of Rome with the Roman Catholic subjects in this Country, to the inspection of Government. (Hear, hear.) Various States in question had had an intercourse and negotiation with the Pope, which he did not possess in the existing state of the Law we could not enter into any such negotiation. The year after he had come into the office which he then held, he had had an opportunity of ascertaining the fact. In those popular works which were resorted to by the unlearned, he had heard that it was high treason to correspond with the Pope of Rome. Soon after he entered on the Foreign Office, there came a letter from the Pope addressed to our Most Gracious Sovereign, announcing the Pope's accession to the Pontificate, which letter was accompanied by a very handsome letter from the Roman Catholic Secretary of State to him, (Mr. Canning.) Although he always thought that the only way in which the question of the securities to be required from the Catholics could be settled, was by a negotiation with the Pope, yet he knew that it might be as much as his reputation was worth to be detected in a correspondence with his Holiness. (A laugh.) At length he bethought himself of consulting the law officers of the Crown on the subject, and he would now read to the House the answer which he received. The Right Hon. Gentleman here read the answer, which was, in substance, that in the opinion of the persons consulted, the 1st of Eliz. c. 12, would not be infringed or done by Mr. Pitt, at the time of the Union, which could be construed into a pledge to the Catholics. But it would be disingenuous not to say that there was that in the transactions of the period alluded to, calculated to inspire the Catholics with a hope, which unfortunately had been deferred until it sickened. [Hear, hear.] He was also of opinion, that at the period of the Union we ought to have been particularly careful not to allow any expectations to be cherished, which it was not intended to gratify. [Hear.] He could not, however, shut his eyes to the fact, that directly or indirectly, the Roman Catholics in Ireland were induced to believe, that in the United Parliament their question would be more favourably received. Some people entertained a doubt whether Mr. Pitt was warm on the subject of Catholic Emancipation. He (Mr. Canning) remembered as well as if it had happened yes erday, Mr. Pitt showing him a letter from Lord Cornwallis, stating that he thought he might carry the Union, but not Catholic Emancipation. He (Mr. Canning) had the presumption of youth, exclaimed "then abandon the Union!" Mr. Pitt rebuked him, as he deserved to be rebuked. He carried the Union: but although he failed in carrying the question of Catholic Emancipation, there was no tribunal, however solemn, before which he (Mr. Canning) was not quite prepared to depose to his firm belief in the sincerity of Mr. Pitt's wishes and intentions. [Hear, hear, hear.]

He would further say, that he had himself no knowledge, nor did he believe that any person had any knowledge of any change in Mr. Pitt's opinion on the subject; with the exception of the communication which he had during the life of the late King. In that, but in no other respect, was Mr. Pitt's mind altered; and he was confirmed in that opinion by the declaration of a person who had known Mr. Pitt well, the late Marquis of Londonderry, and who, in his place in the House of Commons, voluntarily contradicted Mr. Rose on the subject, and added to the testimony the fact, that Mr. Pitt had maintained his opinions respecting the Catholics to his dying day. In truth, those who read the speech which Mr. Pitt had made on the Catholic Question in 1805, and who recollected that only five months elapsed before his valuable life terminated, could scarcely believe that a change so rapid could take place in his sentiments. He therefore protested against the imputation of the assertion, that Mr. Pitt had changed his opinion; an opinion so decogatory to the cause which he (Mr. Canning) plumed himself on inheriting from Mr. Pitt. [Hear, hear, hear.] He had been drawn aside from the subject in consequence of having misunderstood the manner of Mr. Pitt.—Some words which had fallen from him in the House of Commons, Mr. Pitt's reply, with respect to the course that it would be expedient to pursue in Ireland, were rather of an alarming nature.—He hoped he had misinterpreted them: but if not, he did not envy the hands to whom would devolve the task of carrying such a system into effect. [Hear, hear.] He hoped, however that the opposition to the Honourable Baronet's motion was opposition rather than hesitation; and that what was suggested as advisable, was something that would tranquillize the feelings of the Irish nation, rather than any thing that might assume a more unseemly character. God grant that it might be so! God grant that the time might arrive when perfect conciliation would be accomplished. He hoped that the House would not be insensible to the danger of suffering the question to remain in its present state. It was impossible for any man to hear the statements without being convinced that it was both unsafe and impossible to keep that Country in its present situation.—The Penal Code was borrowed from the treatment of the Israelites by Pharaoh; but it could not be safely persevered in, nor its last vestiges much longer retained. He called it the worst champion nor the accuser of the Catholic Priests. But he could not believe that all the charges which were made against them were well founded. The Right Hon. Gentleman here read copious extracts from the Catechism published by the Roman Catholic Church to show that they had not wilfully or for any sinister purpose garbled the language of Scripture, and particularly that of the decalogue. He pledged himself only by his vote to the consideration of the Question, and if it should be the opinion of the House that this Question was one not fit to be considered, which, by negativing the resolution they would declare, then he could only say that the House of Commons was changed indeed. The Right Hon. Gentleman then drew a neatly finished picture, of a man of dauntless courage, addressing a few words to the Members from all parts of the House, with an Hon. and Learned Gentleman, that nothing was said or done by Mr. Pitt, at the time of the Union, which could be construed into a pledge to the Catholics. But it would be disingenuous not to say that there was that in the transactions of the period alluded to, calculated to inspire the Catholics with a hope, which unfortunately had been deferred until it sickened. [Hear, hear.] He was also of opinion, that at the period of the Union we ought to have been particularly careful not to allow any expectations to be cherished, which it was not intended to gratify. [Hear.] He could not, however, shut his eyes to the fact, that directly or indirectly, the Roman Catholics in Ireland were induced to believe, that in the United Parliament their question would be more favourably received. Some people entertained a doubt whether Mr. Pitt was warm on the subject of Catholic Emancipation. He (Mr. Canning) remembered as well as if it had happened yes erday, Mr. Pitt showing him a letter from Lord Cornwallis, stating that he thought he might carry the Union, but not Catholic Emancipation. He (Mr. Canning) had the presumption of youth, exclaimed "then abandon the Union!" Mr. Pitt rebuked him, as he deserved to be rebuked. Communication.

(From the Kingston Chronicle.)

Sir,

Although every means that can be devised is now actively employed to unsead the Aliens, and to excite them and others to petition against the final passing by His Majesty of the Naturalization Bill, it is pleasing to observe that many have the good sense to rise superior to the prejudices with which it is intended to inspire them, and to fully appreciate, and gratefully acknowledge the benevolent intentions of the Government in recommending the measure.—For the sake of these—for the sake of honest, well-meaning, and upright Aliens—I am truly glad, not only that the Act has passed thus far, but also that due pains are taken that it are employed to communicate its true intent and meaning, and the absolute necessity of such an enactment. As for the rest the sworn enemies or secret foes of our King and country, I fear it would be but waste of time to attempt to bring them at present to a better mind: but even with some of these time may yet do what reason cannot now accomplish.

When I look at the history of the passing of this bill in the Assembly, I cannot help but think that, its most violent opponents have been merely enacting a kind of political farce from first to last. Let it be remembered that they have always called it an "infamous" bill —when it was first read they called it so—when it lay dead at their feet they called it so, and when they themselves called it again into life they called it so—for this infamous bill was once dead—dead as Richard the IIId. but was again brought to life—and by whom—not by its early friends, for they had not then the power—but by, forsooth, its greatest enemy—charitable man!—and by his obedient followers! He was indeed the chief operator in the resuscitating process, by which the breath of political life was communicated to this infamous bill; but other enemies of the bill also assisted in the operation—stood acutely and directly —others passively and indirectly. So many! I put ask if these gentlemen really thought it an infamous bill, were they not highly to blame in restoring it from death to life? Acts speak men's minds more faithfully than words, from the act, therefore, of their restoring this bill to the order of the day—from their not daring, when they could do so, to finally distroy it, I must conclude that they did not think it an infamous bill; and from this I must conclude that they were afraid to return to their constituents with the load of responsibility which would have fallen upon them by its destruction by their hands.

Well, Sir, they dare not destroy this "infamous" bill when it was wholly at their mercy —on the contrary, they restored it to life and vigor—not to slay it now, but with a full persuasion and hope that it would then pass the Assembly. The conduct in reference to this bill, in first rejecting it, then in restoring it, cannot be accounted for on the ordinary principles of opposition to measures proposed by government, nor on the supposition that the bill was thought by them to be an infamous bill, but merely with a view to the consideration of their constituents whether or not they were fully persuaded the bill was a good bill, was absolutely necessary as it is in its conditions, and fully adequate to the purpose intended. Who could believe that they would have brought up this bill again, and by so doing, give it a second chance of passing into a law according to the country's wishes, had they really believed it to be one so infamous bill—knowing, as they did, that if not passed according to those instructions, the Royal Assent would be withheld. Their understanding—their integrity—cannot be placed at quite so low a standard—although no standard may be graduated low enough to express their inconsistency—their insincerity—mere wanton opposition might have led them to some their poor end, but that they could call a bill and make it alive again—but surely none but men who were really mad, and who had no method in their madness—none but men totally destitute of all regard for the welfare of the Aliens and of the country, would call up a bill which they themselves had defeated, and give it a change amounting to a certainty of passing, if they really believed it to be an infamous and ruinous bill. Acting, therefore, as they have done, I conclude they neither did nor could have thought so.

They did not think so—nay more they had then, and they now have, a pleasing conviction of the goodness of this bill and of its absolute necessity for quieting the possessions of the Aliens, and conferring upon them franchise rights. They knew that the Aliens possessed no legal title to their farms, sections, or to be elected to the Assembly—that those rights were hitherto enjoyed by them contrary to law, and that such illegal enjoyment would be no longer permitted. They knew that the 30th Geo. IIId. is not a naturalization Act—that it gives no promise to settlers from the United States of franchise rights, but only permission to settle in, and bring goods to a certain amount duty free, and to become settlers in the country—and that it says nothing about renewing allegiance—they knew that that law passed before this country received its constitution—passed at a time when even natural-born Subjects of His Majesty did not enjoy franchise rights—when the government of Canada was vested in a Governor in Council—when no representation of the people existed—did not, could not, give to Aliens franchise rights—all this they knew full well, and they dare not so far risque the consequence of persisting in their opposition to the naturalization bill, so as to destroy it.

Had they avowed their real motives and reasons for raising this bill from the dead, the matter as far as they were concerned, would have there terminated and ended, but at the same time must have terminated and ended all their pretensions to legal and constitutional knowledge—for in doing this they must have said, we have been hitherto mistaken—we were ignorant of the law—we understood not to give an opinion upon a subject which we did not understand, and we hope our constituents and the public will pardon us for having meddled with matters beyond our reading, knowledge and capacity—and in balancing our account give us credit for having led others astray, with the item that we ourselves were led astray.

The present electioneering clamour against the bill must have terminated also—but such open, candid conduct, can hardly be expected. It is more natural to expect that the farce of opposition will continue to be a little longer enacted. Having so taken their measures as, while they appeared to be its strenuous opponents, to effectually ensure the passing of the bill, they will still maintain their outcry against it—not to defeat it in the hands of those they have now with nor hope—but to make a party here —they are well acquainted with the materials upon which they are working—they knew that some of the Aliens are so extremely blinded by ignorance and educational prejudice, that they cannot at present see the inconsistency of their conduct, however glaring, nor even their own interests, but will cannot of their own that the bill is a good or a bad one, its apparently most determined opponents were the sole cause of its having passed the Assembly—they cannot see that the clamour is kept up by them to throw into the shade their own inconsistency —to keep out of view their full conviction' evidenced by their conduct, that the bill is a good one.

Nor can they at present see, or, perhaps, they are determined not to see, at present, that I have here given the true explication of conduct so inconsistent with the language of these gentlemen. But, Sir, they will see it very clearly by and bye. Let us wait until the bill comes out, having the force of law, and we shall not see again, not a man of independent feeling now call it, and who may even then call it, an infamous bill, urging the Aliens to avail themselves of its provisions—others of them may entirely change their tone, and trumpet its praises to the very skies. The cry will then be, qualify yourselves under the act, or not a single patriot, not a man of independent feeling will be returned to the Assembly—we shall all be ousted of our elections, and the friends of Government alone be returned; and then—oh then, the Province will be forever ruined—even the Governor will be charged with tardiness in appointing commissioners under the act. And, all this will go down quite smoothly with many of the people—time and experience will in measure wash it wholly forgotten, and a fresh instance be given how largely certain men may draw upon the prejudices and credulity of the people, without being detected by them. Advice, in itself good, will then be given, but with the same motives, and for the same purposes, that bad advice is now given. That ruinous inability to legislate for the whole Province, of some men in this Province is embued, will accommodate itself to all circumstances and changes; but, as they have been hitherto defeated, defeat, it is hoped, will follow them in all their future course. The Aliens will do well to withdraw from such men, their confidence and good opinion; others may, they will be led by them beyond their depths, and plunged into utter ruin. The arm of Government is strong—strong in the confidence of the wisest and best of the people, both subjects and Aliens. The happiness and security of the people is the only object which the Government can have in view; and in return for this happiness and security, the Government will re-ask the loyalty of the people. It is time enough, therefore, to oppose the measures of Government when those measures are either in themselves illegal, or have a tendency to abridge the liberty and lessen the happiness of the people. But what is the Government doing in the present case; not requesting His Majesty to take away the lands of the Aliens, which are beyond the control of the Crown, but to give a legal title to those lands, and thus place them as much beyond the control of the Crown, as are the lands of His Majesty's natural born Subjects—not to take away the franchise rights, hitherto illegally exercised by the Aliens, but to enable them legally to exercise them—not to abridge their liberty, but to add to their security—not to compel them en masse to become British Subjects, or against the will of any individual, but to leave it to each individual to determine for himself. I do not wonder that this bill was brought from the dead by certain gentlemen, who must have seen its value and importance, and therefore, secretly favoured it—but I cannot but admire the clear command of face which enables them to keep from blushing, while they clamour publicly against it.

STEPSURE.

The U. E. Loyalist.

YORK, U. C. SATURDAY, MAY 5, 1827.

It does not appear from the latest accounts that there is much probability of any further interruption to the tranquility of Portugal. The rumour of additional Troops being required from England by Sir H. Clinton, seems to be groundless.

The Catholic question was brought forward in the House of Commons, by Sir F. Burdett, on 5th March. His motion for taking it into consideration was negatived by a majority of four, in a very full House. We have given the Speeches of Mr. Peel and Mr. Canning, leading Speeches on either side of the question. The New York papers just received, bring us no later news.

Among the Resolutions which were "unanimously adopted," by the "select party of the friends of those in opposition to the Alien Bill" (they will persist in giving it this mis nomer) who "met and dined together at Port Hope at the House of Mr. Mark Hewson" and who "after" drinking "several loyal and appropriate Toasts," (secundum artem in bumpers of course) had resolution enough to pass eighteen resolutions: the following is one:—

"That this meeting feels it as by no means the slightest, or least considerable, of the evils of the present administration, that every kind of false and unjust representation of the feeling of the country, or of particular sections thereof, is admitted into the columns of the Gazette, by Authority, and sent to England, evidently for the purpose of creating impressions adverse to our interests, whilst all remonstrance, or refutation is carefully and studiously withheld from that paper, least the public opinion, both here, and in England, should be undeceived."

Now, on looking over the columns of the 'Gazette,' it will be easily seen, that they contain Proclamations —Official Notices—Sheriff's Sales. These are of course inserted by authority, and if by these "the select party" mean the 'unjust representations' which the account of their "dinner" speaks of, it can only be attributed, as that account itself says "to the proper source" namely—that the aforesaid bumpers, had got the better of their understandings. If the attack had been made in sober earnest on the U. E. Loyalist, we might have considered it necessary to take notice of it. But really when "a select party." over their Wine cups, after pouring out several libations to the "Jolly God," appear to be so far gone, as to mistake the U. C. Gazette, for the U. E. Loyalist—'tis laughable—and so we dismiss the subject; hoping that the select party, found Mr. Mark Hewson's Port, at Port Hope, of good quality, and that the following morning restored them to a proper use of those faculties, over which the aforesaid "Jolly God" seems for a time to have exercised his sway.

In the reported Speech of Mr. Baring, as contained in some of our Provincial Journals, on the subject of the Bill for the Sale of part of the Clergy Reserves, that Hon. Gentleman is said to have made use of the following language &c.

"Before a Committee which sat last year, the Attorney General, or some other law officer from Upper Canada, was examined as a witness on these Clergy Reserves. A question was put to him as to the numercial proportion of the Church of England men in Upper Canada, to Roman Catholics, and Members of other professions. The question was, "How many Church of England men belong to the Legislative Assembly of Upper Canada?" The answer was, "Two," (hear)—and of these two one was the Attorney General himself."

There must be some mistake in this matter; for we are authorized to say, that such a question was not put either to the Attorney General, or Solicitor General of this Province, as by some means or other we observe, that it is mentioned in one of the Journals, that the question was put to, and answered by the latter gentleman. The impossibility of its having been put to the former, rests on the fact, that he was not in England at the time. That the question, however, was put to another person from this Province, who was examined before the Committee, and answered as stated in Mr. Baring's Speech, there can be no doubt. In the hurry of Debate, it may have escaped Mr. Baring's recollection, that this person is not a Law Officer in Upper Canada. The fact besides is otherwise—we can venture to assert with safety, that there are many more than two Members of the House of Assembly in Upper Canada, who are Church of England men.

It is a failing with some men, when fairly driven from the field of argument, that they have recourse to intemperate language, thereby exposing themselves, and giving the most powerful proof, that they feel their opponent has the better side of the question. Some of our late remarks seem to have fallen like "Iron blows" on some of our cotemporaries, who, finding their arguments "without a leg to stand upon," have resorted to personalities, which although uttered in the hope of moving our equanimity of temper, we do assure them can only have a directly contrary effect. Whenever we find such persons attempting to mislead public opinion, we shall always feel it to be our duty, to arrest them in their progress of mischief—personal attacks, we shall at all times consider as unworthy of notice.

A DESPATCH,

Of which the following is a copy, has been received by the LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR, from HIS MAJESTY'S SECRETARY OF STATE for the Colonies:—

(CIRCULAR.)

DOWNING STREET,
2nd May, 1831.

SIR,—

MUCH inconvenience has, in several instances, arisen from the transmission of representations to this Department by subordinate Officers or private individuals in the Colonies, without the intervention of the respective Governors.

In such cases it often becomes necessary to return the Communications to the Colony, for the report or explanations of the Governor; and the decisions on the cases and the answers to the parties, are thus retarded, and prejudice occasioned to the objects which they had in view, as well as to the Public Service.

It is especially necessary that the regular channel for transmitting letters should be adhered to, or copies of them previously communicated to the Governor, when the object of the writers is to appeal to His Majesty or to the Secretary of State, against any proceeding of the Colonial Authorities, since it would of course be impossible to form any opinion upon such a subject, unless those authorities should have had ample opportunity of explaining the views by which they had been actuated.

I have, therefore, to request that you will take such measures as may appear to you to be most effectual for making it generally known in the Colony under your Government, that unless in cases where some especial and sufficient reason can be assigned for a contrary course, the Secretary of State will be under the necessity of declining to entertain the subject of any representation which shall not have been previously submitted to the Governor.

In order, however, that the notice for this regulation may not be misunderstood, you will, at the same time, explain that it is not intended to prevent any of His Majesty's Subjects from sending Memorials or Letters to His Majesty, or to the Secretary of State through any medium, other than that of the Governor, provided copies are previously communicated to him, it being fully understood, that if this is neglected, no steps will be taken upon them without that delay, which, unless in very peculiar cases, must ensue in the answer to be returned, owing to the necessity of referring the matter to the Governor, for his report upon it.

I have the Honor to be,
&c. &c. &c.
MAJOR GENERAL GODERICH
SIR JOHN COLBORNE,
&c. &c. &c.

The Locatee shall clear thoroughly the half of the Road in width, opposite to the front of his Lot, by burning or totally removing all the Timber, Wood and underwood of every kind therefrom. He shall cut down the stumps for the space of ten feet from the centre of the Road, so low, that a Waggon Wheel may easily pass over any thing that stands within that space, and he shall sow with Grass-seed the Road so cleared.

Upon proof that this has been done, and that some person has been constantly resident upon the Lot for the space of two years, a Patent may issue without other condition of Settlement Duty.—But in cases where the Lot has not been so occupied, a Patent shall not issue until the Locatee, in addition to the Road Duties, above prescribed, shall have wholly cleared the Timber from the front of his Lot for the space of one chain.

If proof of Settlement Duties, as above required, with, or without residence, be not produced to the Surveyor General within two years and a half, the Lot shall be again open to Location.

And further, that in respect to all Locations made before this date, the Grantee shall have the option of performing the Settlement Duties either according to this Regulation, or to the Regulations which were in force before the making of this Order.

Lastly, it is ordered, that where a Grantee has a Grant of more than one Lot in a Township, and resides upon one of them, the Settlement Duties in respect to those Lots, on which he does not reside, shall consist of the Road Duty, and the clearing the chain in front of the Lot, as above mentioned.

By order of the Court,

CHARLES C. SMALL,

IN conformity to Instructions recently received from His Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies, the following arrangements for disposing of the Waste Lands of the Crown in Upper Canada, are made known for the information of Emigrants and others.

Except in the case of U. E. Loyalists, and other persons entitled by the existing Regulations of the Government to Free Grants, no person can obtain any of the Waste Lands of the Crown otherwise than by purchasing at the Public Sales, made from time to time under the direction of the Commissioner of Crown Lands.

These sales will be made on the first and third Tuesday of each month, and will either be continued through the following day, or not, as circumstances may appear to the Agent to require.

They will be held at the following places:—

At Bytown—for the District of Bathurst.
Belleville—for the Midland District.
Peterborough—for the District of Newcastle.
York—for the Home District.
Hamilton—for the District of Gore.
London—for the District of London.
Chatham—for the Western District.

Besides these general periodical Sales, there may be occasional Sales by Auction in other Districts, of such Town Lots, or other Lots of Land, as may remain to be disposed of; and of these Sales ample notice will be given.

The conditions of every Sale by Public Auction will be as follows:—One-fourth of the Purchase money to be paid down; and the remainder in three equal Annual Instalments, with Interest at six per Cent on each Instalment, payable with the Instalment.

The Lands will be put up at an upset price, of which notice will be given at the time of Sale, and in the previous advertisements which will be published of the Lands intended to be put up at each Sale; and in case no offer shall be made at the upset price, the Land will be reserved for future sale, in a similar manner by Auction.

A Patent for the Lands will be issued free of charge upon the payment in full of the Purchase Money and Interest.

The regular periodical Sales will be held for the first time as follows: In Peterborough, York, and Hamilton, on the third Tuesday in June next; and in Bytown, Belleville, London, and Chatham, on the first Tuesday in July next; and they will continue to be held at all those places on the first and third Tuesday in each month, until after the first Tuesdays in November next: when such other arrangements as may be made by the Government will be announced.

Information can be obtained respecting the Lands to be disposed of in the several Districts, by applying to the following Gentlemen, Agents for the Commissioner of Crown Lands—viz:

In the Bathurst District,—Mr John McNaughton, D. S. Bytown.
Eastern District—James Pringle, Esq. Cornwall.
Newcastle District,—Alexander McDonell, Esquire, Peterborough.
London District,—Roswell Mount Esquire, Delaware.
Western District,—Henry John Jones Esquire, Chatham.

The Commissioner for Crown Lands, acting also as Agent for the Sale of Clergy Reserves, requests it to be noticed, that such Clergy Reserves as have not been hitherto occupied by authority, or Leased by the Government, will be disposed of, by Public Auction only, either at the periodical Sales of Crown Lands, or at occasional Sales to be duly advertised; and that the terms of payment for Clergy Reserves will continue to be as follows:—Ten per cent to be paid at the time of Sale, and the remainder in nine Annual Instalments of ten per cent each, with Interest on each Instalment, to be paid with the Instalment.

Such Clergy Reserves as have been leased, or occupied by the authority of the Government, must be applied for by letter to the Commissioner of Crown Lands, and when disposed of, will be sold by private Sale on the same terms of payment as those disposed of by Public Auction.

All application from Emigrants, or respecting Emigration, not immediately connected with the Sale of Public Lands, are to be addressed, to Anthony B. Hawke, Esquire, at York, he being specially appointed by the Government to act in that Department.

 The College Boarding House has lately undergone material alterations in its interior arrangements: it is also under new domestic management, and the Master of the Preparatory School resides in the house for the especial purpose of superintending the conduct of the Boarders out of College hours.

The dues for Tuition are £2 per College Quarter, for Pupils in the College; and £1 5*s*. for those in the Preparatory School, with an additional five shillings per quarter in each case for the incidental expenses of pens, ink, fuel, &c. The necessary books and materials are furnished by the College at the expense of the Pupils.

The College Quarters are ordered as follows:

A SELECTION
OF
PSALMS AND HYMNS
FOR EVERY SUNDAY AND PRINCIPAL FESTIVAL
THROUGHOUT THE YEAR,
FOR THE USE OF CONGREGATIONS
IN THIS DIOCESE,
Selected and arranged under the authority and direction of
THE HON. AND RIGHT REVEREND
THE LORD BISHOP OF QUEBEC.
TOGETHER WITH A NUMBER OF CHANTS,
THE WHOLE OF THE MUSIC SET AND ADAPTED BY
W. WARREN,
Organist of St James' Church, York, Upper Canada.
PUBLISHED BY ROBERT STANTON,
KING'S PRINTER.

It is in contemplation to publish in Octavo a Selection of Psalms and Hymns, as described above, on a plan whereby the Music of the Tunes will appear on one page, and the words of four suitable Psalms or Hyms, on the opposite page. The number of Tunes will be about sixty, including the Chants.

It is proposed to print at the same time a separate Volume in 18mo., containing the words only of this Selection, unaccompanied by the Music, but with the same Index as that which will be added to the larger work, pointing out the Psalms and Tunes intended to be sung on every Sunday, &c. throughout the year. The price of the former work will be about Five Shillings, and that of the latter about Two Shillings.

The want of a publication of this kind has long been felt by many Congregations in this Diocese; and as it is believed that the Work now proposed will much assist those persons who wish to join in this most interesting and delightful part of Public Worship, it is hoped that it will receive general support.

As the Work originates in the desire of His Lordship the Bishop to promote the practice of Psalmody throughout his Diocese, and as it will not be a source of emolument to any individual, the price will necessarily depend upon the number of copies printed;—it is therefore requested that all those persons who feel disposed to assist this undertaking will give in their names to the nearest Clergyman in their neighborhood, with the number of copies of each Work which they are disposed to take.

The U. C. Herald, Kingston Chronicle, Hallowell Free Press, Cornwall Observer, St. Thomas Journal, and Niagara Gleaner, are requested to give the above two insertions: accounts to be rendered to Gazette Office, York. 10

Land Agency Office,
AT BRANTFORD.

THE Subscriber begs leave to inform the public that he is about to open a Land Agency Office at Brantford, in the Gore District, in connection with his profession as a Surveyor; and from his long experience in the practice of Surveying, Conveyancing &c. he trusts that he will be able in some measure to facilitate the prosperity of this Section of the Country by attention to the above business.

All persons having improved farms for sale will find it to their advantage to inform the Subscriber by Letter post-paid, of the No. of the lot, Concession, Township, District, &c. the quantity of improvement; the kind of soil, timber, buildings, springs, or Streams of Water, which may be on their respective premises and the lowest price, as well as the terms of payment &c. and if Wild Lands, the distance from a Settlement as well as the description of the Lot &c. to enable the Subscriber to afford correct information to the applicants.

Persons living in other Districts or in the Lower Province, who may have lands for sale in this part of the Country will find it to their advantage to furnish the Subscriber with power to sell and make Conveyances for them.

His charges will be as reasonable as that of any other professional person in the Country, and in proportion to the nature, extent of the business done, or on such terms as may be agreed upon.

All who may intrust the agency of their business to him may rely on the strictest attention being paid to it—and all monies which may come into his hands for the sale of lands will be remitted without delay.

 The College Boarding House has lately undergone material alterations in its interior arrangements: it is also under new domestic management, and the Master of the Preparatory School resides in the house for the especial purpose of superintending the conduct of the Boarders out of College hours.

The dues for Tuition are £2 per College Quarter, for Pupils in the College; and £1 5*s.* for those in the Preparatory School, with an additional five shillings per quarter in each case for the incidental expenses of pens, ink, fuel, &c. The necessary books and materials are furnished by the College at the expense of the Pupils.

The College Quarters are ordered as follows!

1st Qr.—From the close of the Christmas Vacation (about the 1st week in January) to the 20th March.

2nd Qr.—From 20th March to 3rd June.

3rd Qr.—From 3rd June to commencement of Summer Vacation (about 14th August.)

4th Qr.—From close of Summer Vacation (about the end of September) to the beginning of the Christmas Vacation.

N. B. At whatever period of any of the above quarters a Pupil may be entered or withdrawn, his dues for Tuition are payable for the whole of that quarter.

OF
PSALMS AND HYMNS
FOR EVERY SUNDAY AND PRINCIPAL FESTIVAL
THROUGHOUT THE YEAR,
FOR THE USE OF CONGREGATIONS
IN THIS DIOCESE,
Selected and arranged under the authority and direction of
THE HON. AND RIGHT REVEREND
THE LORD BISHOP OF QUEBEC.
TOGETHER WITH A NUMBER OF CHANTS.
THE WHOLE OF THE MUSIC SET AND ADAPTED BY
W. WARREN,
Organist of St James' Church, York, Upper Canada.
PUBLISHED BY ROBERT STANTON,
KING'S PRINTER.

It is in contemplation to publish in Octavo a Selection of Psalms and Hymns, as described above, on a plan whereby the Music of the Tunes will appear on one page, and the words of four suitable Psalms or Hymns, on the opposite page. The number of Tunes will be about sixty, including the Chants.

It is proposed to print at the same time a separate Volume in 12mo., containing the words only of this Selection, unaccompanied by the Music, but with the same Index as that which will be added to the larger work, pointing out the Psalms and Tunes intended to be sung on every Sunday, &c. throughout the year. The price of the former work will be about Five Shillings, and that of the latter about Two Shillings.

The want of a publication of this kind has long been felt by many Congregations in this Diocese; and as it is believed that the Work now proposed will much assist those persons who wish to join in this most interesting and delightful part of Public Worship, it is hoped that it will receive general support.

As the Work originates in the desire of His Lordship the Bishop to promote the practice of Psalmody throughout his Diocese, and as it will not be a source of emolument to any individual, the price will necessarily depend upon the number of copies printed;—it is therefore requested that all those persons who feel disposed to assist this undertaking will give in their names to the nearest Clergyman in their neighborhood, with the number of copies of each Work which they are disposed to take.

The U. C. Herald, Kingston Chronicle, Hallowell Free Press, Cornwall Observer, St. Thomas Journal, and Niagara Gleaner, are requested to give the above two insertions; accounts to be rendered to Gazette Office, York. 10

Land Agency Office,
AT BRANTFORD,

THE Subscriber begs leave to inform the public that he is about to open a Land Agency Office at Brantford, in the Gore District, in connection with his profession as a Surveyor; and from his long experience in the practice of Surveying, Conveyancing &c. he trusts that he will be able in some measure to facilitate the prosperity of this Section of the Country by attention to the above business.

There are many respectable Emigrants daily arriving from Europe, who prefer purchasing improved farms, and wild lands in the neighborhood of the old settlements, to settling in the back Townships which have been recently surveyed, who would undoubtedly avail themselves of the advantage of such an office, as there they could at once learn what Farms and Wild Lands were for sale.

All persons having improved farms for sale will find it to their advantage to inform the Subscriber by Letter post-paid, of the No. of the Lot, Concession, Township, District, &c. the quantity of improvement; the kind of soil, timber, buildings, springs, or Streams of Water, which may be on their respective premises and the lowest price, as well as the terms of payment &c. and if Wild Lands, the distance from a Settlement as well as the description of the Lot &c. to enable the Subscriber to afford correct information to the applicants.

Persons living in other Districts or in the Lower Province, who may have lands for sale in this part of the Country will find it to their advantage to furnish the Subscriber with power to sell and make Conveyances for them.

His charges will be as reasonable as that of any other professional person in the Country, and in proportion to the nature, extent of the business done, or on such terms as may be agreed upon.

All who may intrust the agency of their business to him may rely on the strictest attention being paid to it—and all monies which may come into his hands for the sale of lands will be remitted without delay.

IN conformity to Instructions recently received from His Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies, the following arrangements for disposing of the Waste Lands of the Crown in Upper Canada, are made known for the information of Emigrants and others.

Except in the case of U. E. Loyalists, and other persons entitled by the existing Regulations of the Government to Free Grants, no person can obtain any of the Waste Lands of the Crown otherwise than by purchasing at the Public Sales, made from time to time under the direction of the Commissioner of Crown Lands.

These sales will be made on the first and third Tuesday of each month, and will either be continued through the following day, or not, as circumstances may appear to the Agent to require.

They will be held at the following places:—

At Bytown—for the District of Bathurst.
Belleville—for the Midland District.
Peterborough—for the District of Newcastle.
York—for the Home District.
Hamilton—for the District of Gore.
London—for the District of London.
Chatham—for the Western District.

Besides these general periodical Sales, there may be occasional Sales by Auction in other Districts, of such Town Lots, or other Lots of Land, as may remain to be disposed of; and of these Sales ample notice will be given.

The conditions of every Sale by Public Auction will be as follows:—One-fourth of the Purchase money to be paid down; and the remainder in three equal Annual Instalments, with Interest at six per Cent on each Instalment, payable with the Instalment.

The Lands will be put up at an upset price, of which notice will be given at the time of Sale, and in the previous advertisements which will be published of the Lands intended to be put up at each Sale; and in case no offer shall be made at the upset price, the Land will be reserved for future sale, in a similar manner by Auction.

A Patent for the Lands will be issued free of charge upon the payment in full of the Purchase Money and Interest.

The regular periodical Sales will be held for the first time as follows: In Peterborough, York, and Hamilton, on the third Tuesday in June next; and in Bytown, Belleville, London, and Chatham, on the first Tuesday in July next; and they will continue to be held at all those places on the first and third Tuesday in each month, until after the first Tuesdays in November next: when such other arrangements as may be made by the Government will be announced.

Information can be obtained respecting the Lands to be disposed of in the several Districts, by applying to the following Gentlemen, Agents for the Commissioner of Crown Lands—viz:

In the Bathurst District,—Mr John McNaughton, D. S. Bytown.
Eastern District—James Pringle, Esq. Cornwall.
Newcastle District,—Alexander McDonell, Esquire, Peterborough.
London District,—Roswell Mount Esquire, Delaware.
Western District,—Henry John Jones Esquire, Chatham.

The Commissioner for Crown Lands, acting also as Agent for the Sale of Clergy Reserves, requests it to be noticed, that such Clergy Reserves as have not been hitherto occupied by authority, or Leased by the Government, will be disposed of, by Public Auction only, either at the periodical Sales of Crown Lands, or at occasional Sales to be duly advertised; and that the terms of payment for Clergy Reserves will continue to be as follows:—Ten per cent to be paid at the time of Sale, and the remainder in nine Annual Instalments of ten per cent each, with Interest on each Instalment, to be paid with the Instalment.

OF
PSALMS AND HYMNS
FOR EVERY SUNDAY AND PRINCIPAL FESTIVAL
THROUGHOUT THE YEAR,
FOR THE USE OF CONGREGATIONS
IN THIS DIOCESE,
Selected and arranged under the authority and direction of
THE HON. AND RIGHT REVEREND
THE LORD BISHOP OF QUEBEC.
TOGETHER WITH A NUMBER OF CHANTS
THE WHOLE OF THE MUSIC SET AND ADAPTED BY
W. WARREN,
Organist of St. James' Church, York, Upper Canada.
PUBLISHED BY ROBERT STANTON,
KING'S PRINTER.

It is in contemplation to publish in Octavo a Selection of Psalms and Hymns, as described above, on a plan whereby the Music of the Tunes will appear on one page, and the words of four suitable Psalms or Hyms, on the opposite page. The number of Tunes will be about sixty, including the Chants.

It is proposed to print at the same time a separate Volume in 18mo., containing the words only of this Selection, unaccompanied by the Music, but with the same Index as that which will be added to the larger work, pointing out the Psalms and Tunes intended to be sung on every Sunday, &c. throughout the year. The price of the former work will be about Five Shillings, and that of the latter about Two Shillings.

The want of a publication of this kind has long been felt by many Congregations in this Diocese; and as it is believed that the Work now proposed will much assist those persons who wish to join in this most interesting and delightful part of Public Worship, it is hoped that it will receive general support.

As the Work originates in the desire of His Lordship the Bishop to promote the practice of Psalmody throughout his Diocese, and as it will not be a source of emolument to any individual, the price will necessarily depend upon the number of copies printed;—it is therefore requested that all those persons who feel disposed to assist this undertaking will give in their names to the nearest Clergyman in their neighborhood, with the number of copies of each Work which they are disposed to take.

The U. C. Herald, Kingston Chronicle, Hallowell Free Press, Cornwall Observer, St. Thomas Journal, and Niagara Gleaner, are requested to give the above two insertions; accounts to be rendered to Gazette Office, York. 10

Persons living in other Districts or in the Lower Province, who may have lands for sale in this part of the Country will find it to their advantage to furnish the Subscriber with power to sell and make Conveyances for them.

This Account has been examined and found correct. The Collectors for the Town and Township of York, and several other Townships in the District, have not returned the Assessment Rolls, upon which sums are still unpaid for the year 1832. Land Agency Office,
AT BRANTFORD.

THE Subscriber begs leave to inform the public that he is about to open a Land Agency Office at Brantford, in the Gore District, in connection with his profession as a Surveyor; and from his long experience in the practice of Surveying, Conveyancing &c. he trusts that he will be able in some measure to facilitate the prosperity of this Section of the Country by attention to the above business.

There are many respectable Emigrants daily arriving from Europe, who prefer purchasing improved farms, and wild lands in the neighbourhood of the old settlements, to settling in the back Townships which have been recently surveyed, who would undoubtedly avail themselves of the advantage of such an office, as there they could at once learn what Farms and Wild Lands were for sale.

All persons having improved farms for sale will find it to their advantage to inform the Subscriber by Letter post-paid, of the No. of the lot, Concession, Township, District, &c. the quantity of improvement; the kind of soil, timber, buildings, springs, or Streams of Water, which may be on their respective premises and the lowest price, as well as the terms of payment &c. and if Wild Lands, the distance from a Settlement as well as the description of the Lot &c. to enable the Subscriber to afford correct information to the applicants.

Persons living in other Districts or in the Lower Province, who may have lands for sale in this part of the Country will find it to their advantage to furnish the Subscriber with power to sell and make Conveyances for them.

His charges will be as reasonable as that of any other professional person in the Country, and in proportion to the nature, extent of the business done, or on such terms as may be agreed upon.

All who may intrust the agency of their business to him may rely on the strictest attention being paid to it—and all monies which may come into his hands for the sale of lands will be remitted without delay.

Surveying, Drafting Plans, Conveyancing in all forms, Wills, articles of Agreement, Bonds, Powers of Attorney &c. executed as usual with neatness and despatch.

Upper Canada Gazette.

VOL. XIV. TORONTO, THURSDAY, MAY 16, 1839. NO. 1

By Authority.

(From the Upper Canada Gazette Extra. of Saturday, 11th May.)

TORONTO, SATURDAY, MAY 11, 1839.

THIS day, at six o'clock, HIS EXCELLENCY THE LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR proceeded in State, from the GOVERNMENT HOUSE to the Chamber of the Honourable the LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL, where being arrived, and seated on the Throne, the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod was sent with a Message from HIS EXCELLENCY to the HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY, commanding their attendance: the MEMBERS present being come up accordingly, HIS EXCELLENCY was pleased to prorogue the Session of the Legislature with the following—

SPEECH:

Honourable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council: and, Gentlemen of the House of Assembly:

In relieving you from your Legislative duties, I desire to express my satisfaction at the zeal and patience you have displayed, in considering the important subjects which have engaged your attention.

It has not surprised me, that conscientious differences of opinion have so long led to much embarrassment in the disposal of the Clergy Reserves.

You were right, certainly, to leave no means unattempted, in order finally to settle this great question by the Provincial Legislature; but every expedient having failed, and all hope being excluded of unanimity here, I rejoice greatly that this Parliament has resolved, that the difficulties of this subject shall not longer be suffered to excite and encourage antagonist feeling in a community, whose common safety requires the greatest concord.

I shall feel it to be my duty, to the utmost of my knowledge and ability, to put Her Majesty's Government in possession of the desires and opinions of the people of Upper Canada, regarding the public aid to be afforded to the maintenance of the Christian Religion in the Colony: and will, without loss of time, transmit that Bill, together with your Address thereon.

The Bill which you have passed, accepting the cession of the Casual and Territorial Revenue, upon condition of a permanent supply for the support of the Government, in its ordinary and most necessary details, will, I hope, prove satisfactory to Her Majesty.

The omission, however, in the Bill, to provide for certain annuities, charged upon these Revenues, renders it necessary for me to reserve the Bill for the signification of Her Majesty's pleasure thereon.

I have derived great satisfaction from the Bill which you have passed, for the promotion of liberal Education, and the extension of Schools, of a highly useful character, to every District in the Province; and I most sincerely hope, that another Session of the Legislature will not be allowed to pass over, without your making a similar wise and liberal provision for Common Schools.

Among the measures of the Session, I am happy to observe a Bill for the establishment of a Lunatic Asylum, which will have the humane effect of rescuing many unhappy beings from incurable wretchedness; and I have no doubt, that the burden, consequent on carrying this beneficent design into operation, will be cheerfully submitted to by the people of the Country.

In sustaining the great interests of the Country, no object of legislation requires more care and precaution than the due regulation of its system of Banking; and nothing is more hazardous to those interests than a prolonged issue of inconvertible Bank paper.

Impressed with this truth, I consider it would have been better to fix a much earlier day, for the return to a sound system of Banking, but have, nevertheless, determined not to withhold my concurrence to the Bill, which both Houses of the Legislature have agreed in thinking necessary.

Gentlemen of the House of Assembly:

I thank you, in Her Majesty's name, for the Supplies granted for the service of the present year.

In superintending the ordinary disbursements, I shall economically restrict them within the narrowest limits, which are consistent with a due regard to the efficient administration of public affairs; and I trust there will be no recurrence of the distressing events which caused an expenditure last year, unexampled at any former period.

The serious doubts expressed by Her Majesty's Government as to passing any measures calculated to affect, and especially to derange, the monetary system of the Province, render it my duty to reserve, till Her Majesty's pleasure be known, such of the Bills as you have passed, which appear to me to have that tendency.

I will lose no time in transmitting these Bills, to Her Majesty's Secretary of State for the Colonies, that the decision upon them may be known with the least possible delay.

In the mean time, I trust that the sale of the Stock in the Bank of Upper Canada, and the other resources of the Province, will enable me during the interval, to carry on the Public Service without any material inconvenience.

Having felt it my duty to adopt this course in reference to these Bills, it has become necessary for me also to reserve for the signification of Her Majesty's pleasure, the Bill for the relief of sufferers by the late insurrection, or by foreign aggression, or otherwise claims under that Act might be presented before there were any means provided for their liquidation.

It is my deliberate opinion, that at this crisis you must seek for, and rely upon, the protection and advice of Her Majesty's Government, in your money concerns.

Honourable Gentlemen, and Gentlemen:

In returning to your homes, and among those whom you represent, I wish earnestly to impress upon you, that your exertions in maintaining the same constitutional spirit, which has actuated you in your Parliamentary labours, will materially serve and promote the welfare of the country; and I firmly hope and believe, that in any measures that Her Majesty's Government may recommend, and the Imperial Parliament may adopt, for the future regulation of these important Colonies, you will find that your loyalty to your Sovereign, and your faithful attachment to the Empire, will be pre-eminently regarded, and will ensure to you the maintenance and protection of those political institutions and constitutional principles, which you so justly appreciate and revere.

WHEREAS it is expedient and right, that the name and style of the Court established in this Province under the authority of an Act of the Provincial Parliament, passed in the thirty-fourth year of the reign of His late Majesty King George the Third, entitled, "An Act to establish a Superior Court of Civil and Criminal Jurisdiction, and to regulate the Court of Appeal," should alter and vary according to the existing fact of the reigning Sovereign being male or female: Be it therefore enacted, by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, entitled, "An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the fourteenth year of His Majesty's reign, entitled, 'An Act for making more effectual provision for the Government of the Province of Quebec in North America, and to make further provision for the Government of the said Province," and by the authority of the same, That from and after the passing of this Act the name and style of the said Court shall be, His Majesty's Court of King's Bench in and for the Province of Upper Canada, during the reign of any male Sovereign: and that the said name and style shall be, Her Majesty's Court of Queen's Bench in and for the Province of Upper Canada, during the reign of any female Sovereign, as the case may be, any thing in the above mentioned Act to the contrary thereof in anywise notwithstanding.

2. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That nothing in this Act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to affect any suit or action that may have been brought in any of the Courts of Law or Equity in this Province, previous to the passing of this Act. 2-s

An Act to alter and amend the law relating to the appointment of Commissioners of the Court of King's Bench, in the several Districts of this Province.

(Passed 11th May, 1839.)

WHEREAS it is expedient to alter and amend the law, relating to the appointment of Commissioners, for taking Recognizances of Bail, and Affidavits, in the several Districts of this Province, so as to authorize the Justices of Her Majesty's Court of King's Bench, in certain cases, to make such appointments without the intervention of the Chief Justice: Be it therefore enacted, by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, entitled, "An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the fourteenth year of His Majesty's reign, entitled, 'An Act for making more effectual provision for the Government of the Province of Quebec, in North America, and to make further provision for the Government of the said Province," and by the authority of the same, That in the event of the death of the Chief Justice, for the time being, or his absence from the Province, it shall and may be lawful for any two or more of the Puisne Justices of the said Court, to appoint Commissioners for taking Recognizances of Bail, and Affidavits, in the several Districts of this Province, in like manner as the said Chief Justice, and other the Justices of the said Court are now by law authorized to do, any thing contained in any former Act or Acts notwithstanding.

An Act to provide for the payment of Costs in certain cases of informations, at the suit of the Crown, and for other purposes therein mentioned.

2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That when any Costs shall be taxed and awarded against any Defendant, they shall be levied and recovered in the same manner as is now by Law provided for the levying any penalty adjudged to the Crown.

3. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That when a Verdict for the Defendant in any such Information shall be rendered, it shall be lawful for the Judge who tries the same, in his discretion, to certify that it is a proper case for the allowance of Costs to the Defendant, and further to certify whether there was reasonable and probable cause for the prosecution, and in case the Judge shall so certify, then and in such case, the Costs shall be taxed and the amount thereof paid by Warrant of the Lieutenant Governor out of the Receiver General, out of the general Revenues of this Province; and in case the Judge shall certify that it is a proper case for the allowance of Costs to the Defendant, but shall not certify that there was reasonable and probable cause for the prosecution, then such Costs shall be taxed and shall be recovered from the Prosecutor or person at whose instance such Information shall have been preferred, and filed by attachment, after demand duly made.

4. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That interlocutory Costs may, in like manner, be allowed to and recovered by either party, on any such Information, in the discretion of the Court of King's Bench, or any Judge thereof in vacation.

5. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if, after Judgment shall have been rendered in favor of the Crown in any Information of intrusion, and process of execution shall have been executed against the Defendant, such Defendant shall, without lawful authority, again intrude upon and take possession of the same Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments from which he shall have been expelled and removed, it shall and may be lawful for the Court of King's Bench, or any Judge thereof, upon hearing the Parties on Affidavit, to order an Alias or Pluries Writ of Execution on the same Judgment, to issue against such Defendant, and to award such further Costs of the Writ and Application, as shall be, from time to time regulated by the Rules and Orders of the said Court.

3. And whereas it is expedient to provide greater facilities for Barring Dower: Be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That from and after the passing of this Act, whenever any Married Woman shall join with her Husband in any Deed or Conveyance, whatever, (wherein a release of Dower is contained,) it shall not be necessary to acknowledge the same before any Court, Judge, or Justice of the Peace, but such execution shall be deemed a valid and effectual Bar of Dower of and in the premises mentioned and described in such Deed or Conveyance, any law, usage or custom, to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

4. And whereas it is necessary, by Legislative provision, to legalize the Bar of Dower, in certain Deeds and Conveyances where the Wife has not been a party to such Deeds or Conveyances, but has acknowledged the same before some competent authority: Be it therefore enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all acknowledgments which have been taken before any competent authority, shall be taken and deemed to be a valid and effectual Bar of Dower, to all intents and purposes whatever, although the said Wife shall not have joined in the execution of such Deed or Conveyance, or shall not have acknowledged the same on the day of the execution of such Deed or Conveyance. 2-s

27. Provided always, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That all Officers who may be appointed to compose any Court for the Trial of any offender or offenders under this Act, shall, before proceeding to the Trial of such offender or offenders, take the following Oath:—"I do sincerely promise and swear that in all such matters as shall be brought before me, under the Militia Laws of this Province, I will faithfully act according to the best of my Judgment agreeably to the said Laws, without favour or partiality to any person—so help me God";—which Oath may be administered by any one Member to the other Members of the said Court.

An Act to provide for the advancement of Education in this Province.

(Passed 11th May, 1839.)

WHEREAS it is very desirable to afford every encouragement to the advancement of Education throughout the Province: And whereas, His late most Gracious Majesty George the Third, was pleased to direct that a quantity of the Waste Lands of the Crown should be set apart for the endowment of Grammar Schools, and also of a University: And whereas, a Royal Charter has been granted incorporating the University of King's College, which has been endowed by a grant of Lands from the Crown: And whereas, Upper Canada College has, by an Act of the Legislature, been incorporated with and now forms an appendage to such University: And whereas, the advancement of Education will be better promoted by devoting a portion of the annual Reserves of King's College to the support of Upper Canada College and of Grammar Schools, for several years to come, than by the erection of a University in the present state of Education in the Province: And whereas, Upper Canada College, with some changes easily effected, would afford sufficient accommodation to the public as as a Provincial seat of learning, until it should be deemed requisite to erect the University: And whereas, it is expedient to appoint Trustees for each Grammar School in the several Districts to superintend the Schools to be established under the provisions of this Act, and to see to the application of the monies appropriated to their support. Be it therefore enacted, by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, entitled "An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the fourteenth year of His Majesty's reign, entitled 'An Act for making more effectual provision for the Government of the Province of Quebec, in North America, and to make further provision for the Government of the said Province," and by the authority of the same, That the several District Schools in this Province shall be and are hereby declared to be Grammar Schools, as contemplated by His late most Gracious Majesty King George the Third, at the time the said reservation of land was directed to be made as aforesaid.

2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That there shall be constituted and appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor a Board of Trustees to each and every Grammar School in the several Districts of this Province, consisting of not less than five members, three of whom shall be a quorum, who shall have the superintendance of the Grammar Schools established in the several Districts of this Province, and receive the money authorised to be paid under this Act.

3. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the money now remaining in the Receiver-General's hands unex-

pended, arising from the sales of School Lands, or which may come into his hands, applicable to the purposes of this Act, shall be invested in the Debentures of this Province, at six per cent. interest, and the proceeds placed under the control of the Council of King's College, for the purposes of this Act, to be by the said Council distributed amongst such Districts as in their opinion more immediately require assistance, owing to the state of the School-house, or other circumstances.

4. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor, by and with the advice of the Executive Council, to set apart two hundred and fifty thousand acres of the Waste Lands of the Crown in this Province, to be sold in like manner as other Crown Lands, at a price not less than ten shillings per acre, and the proceeds thereof paid into the hands of the Receiver-General, from time to time, to be appropriated in such manner, and for the Grammar Schools, as hereinbefore provided.

5. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That a sum not exceeding one hundred pounds per annum, may be advanced to each of the said Boards of Trustees, from time to time, out of any monies in the hands of the Receiver-General applicable to the purposes of this Act, and should such monies be insufficient, it shall and may be lawful for the Council of King's College, in their discretion, to appropriate a sufficient sum from the annual revenues thereof, to make up the deficiency, to be applied in providing an additional master, and other means of instruction for the Grammar Schools in each District respectively. Provided always, that no portion of the principal money arising from the sale of Lands granted to King's College shall be so appropriated, but merely the interest or rents thereof.

6. Provided also, and be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful for the said Council of King's College, first to appropriate a proportion of the revenues thereof, not exceeding one half, to the support, extension and maintenance, of Upper Canada College, until it shall be deemed necessary to erect the University.

(Passed 11th May, 1839.)

WHEREAS the establishment of an Asylum in this Province, for the reception of Insane persons, has become necessary, and it is therefore expedient to authorise his Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor to appoint Commissioners for superintending the erection of a suitable building to be appropriated for the purpose aforesaid, and to provide for the appointment of Officers for the government thereof, and to frame regulations for the management of the said Asylum, and to authorise the Court of Quarter Sessions, in each District in the Province, to levy an additional assessment of one-eighth of a penny in the pound, to be annually appropriated to the erection of the said Asylum, and in the purchase of land sufficient for a site, and maintaining and supporting the same: Be it therefore enacted, by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council and Assembly of the Province of Upper Canada, constituted and assembled by virtue of and under the authority of an Act passed in the Parliament of Great Britain, entitled "An Act to repeal certain parts of an Act passed in the fourteenth year of His Majesty's reign, entitled 'An Act for making more effectual provision for the Government of the Province of Quebec, in North America, and to make further provision for the Government of the said Province,'" and by the authority of the same, That an Asylum, for the reception of Insane and Lunatic persons, shall be erected on such plot of ground as shall be appropriated by the Lieutenant-Governor, or purchased by Commissioners appointed under the authority of this Act for the purpose.

2. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That His Excellency the Lieutenant-Governor shall be and is hereby authorized to appoint Commissioners, of whom one shall be an experienced Medical Practitioner, for superintending the erection of said building, with full power and authority to employ a skilful Architect, to procure plans and elevations, and to adopt such plan as to them may seem best suited for the purpose intended.

3. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That so soon as the said building shall be reported to the Lieutenant-Governor, by the said Commissioners, as sufficiently completed and furnished for the reception of patients, it shall and may be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor to appoint to such institution a Board of Directors, to consist of not less than twelve persons resident within the Province, and it shall be the duty of the said Board, or of any two members thereof, at least once in each month, to visit the said institution, to inspect the same, and annually on the first Tuesday in November, after the passing of this Act, to make a Report of the state thereof, and of the patients therein, and the times of their admission or discharge, to the Lieutenant-Governor, for the information of the Legislature.

4. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said Board of Directors, to be appointed as aforesaid, shall have power to make such prudential rules and regulations for the internal arrangement and management of the said institution, as to them may seem fit and proper, and may change, alter, annul, or renew the same, from time to time, as occasion may require, and the said Board of Directors shall appoint a superintendant, who shall always reside at the Asylum, and whose duty it shall be to act as Physician to the said establishment, and to watch over the internal management thereof, and carry into effect, in so far as appertains to his office, the provisions of this Act, and the by-laws of the said institution, and the said Board shall have the appointment of all other Officers and servants to the said institution, and have power to remove them at pleasure, and appoint others, and fix the amount of their salaries, subject to the confirmation or disallowance of the Lieutenant-Governor; Provided that the salary of the said superintendant shall not exceed the sum of three hundred pounds per annum.

5. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall be the duty of the said Board to meet at least once in each month, and oftener if they shall see occasion, in some convenient room at the institution, to be selected by them for holding the meetings of the said Board, and a minute of all such business as shall be transacted at any such meeting, shall be recorded in a book to be kept for that purpose at the said meeting-room, and to be on no account removed therefrom, except by the special order or consent of the Board, and at any such meeting a plurality of votes shall be binding and conclusive upon any matter before the Board: Provided always, that there shall be at least three Directors present at such meetings, who shall, for the purposes of this Act, constitute a quorum for the despatch of business, and in case of an equality of votes at any such meeting, the chairman shall have a casting vote.

6. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That any Insane or Lunatic person or persons, being subject or subjects of Her Majesty, and a resident of this Province, may be received into the said Asylum, upon proof to the satisfaction of the said Board of Directors, or any one member thereof, in case the Board shall not be then sitting, of the said person, being such subject and resident as aforesaid, and upon the production of a certificate, signed by at least three resident practising Physicians in this Province, that such person has been examined by them collectively, and that he is Insane or a Lunatic, and in case the superintendant of the said Asylum, or any officer or servant belonging thereto, shall admit any person into the said institution, charged with Insanity or Lunacy, without first requiring and receiving such certificate, together with an order from the Board, signed by at least one member thereof, he or they so offending, shall forfeit and pay the sum of one hundred pounds for each and every offence, to be recovered by action of debt, in any of Her Majesty's Courts of Record in this Province, by any person or persons who shall sue in his, her, or their name or names, and one moiety of such penalty, when recovered, shall go to the use of the said institution, and the other moiety to the party or parties who shall sue for the same, and the onus of proving that such order and certificate were duly given, shall be upon the defendant or defendants.

7. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the said Board shall establish the sum per diem, to be paid by the person or persons so admitted into the said Asylum, towards defraying the expense incurred for the maintenance, attendance and support, of such person or persons, which sum shall be paid quarterly in advance, and security shall be given by bond to the Treasurer of the said institution, for the future payments, according to the terms of the establishment.

8. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That so often as application shall be made to the said Board for admission into the Asylum of any destitute, Insane, or Lunatic person, the said Board may admit such person to the benefit and advantages of such institution, upon proof to their satisfaction, or if not then sitting, to the satisfaction of any one member of the said Board, of such person being an inhabitant of this Province, and a subject of Her Majesty, and without the means of paying the expenses to be incurred for his maintenance and support.

9. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the expenses that may be incurred in removing such destitute, Insane, or Lunatic person, from his usual place of abode, shall be borne by the District in which such person was last resident, and shall be ascertained and paid as the other ordinary or incidental expenses of the District, and upon the recovery of the person so admitted, such District shall also bear the expense of his removal from the said Asylum to the place from whence such person was brought.

10. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That if any Insane or Lunatic person upon, or at any time after his admission into the said Asylum, shall possess, or become possessed of or entitled to any goods or chattels, lands or tenements, or any estate or property, whereby or by which the expenses to be incurred for his maintenance and support in the said Asylum can be raised, and shall have no relatives or guardians, or protectors, willing or capable of the care or management of the same, for the benefit of the said Insane or Lunatic person, and of giving the necessary security to the Institution, for the payments, as required by this Act, then, and in such case, it shall be lawful for Her Majesty's Court of King's Bench in this Province, upon the application of the next of kin, or nearest friend of such Insane or Lunatic person, and upon sufficient proof being adduced to the satisfaction of the said Court, in Term time to appoint one or more persons, in the discretion of the said Court, to be a Committee, of the person and property of the said Lunatic or Insane person, and the Committee so to be appointed of the said Lunatic or Insane person, shall, during the continuance of his Insanity or Lunacy, and until a supersedeas of his or their authority shall have been issued by the said Court, have full power over and be competent to manage and appropriate, recover, lease, mortgage, sell or convey, all or any part of the real or personal estate, chattels and credits of the said Insane or Lunatic person, in the name of such Insane or Lunatic person, or as his Committee, and as fully and effectually, to all intents and purposes, as such Insane or Lunatic person could or might have done the same, in a sound disposing mind; and such Committee shall obey the order and discretion of the said Court, to be from time to time made in the matter and affairs of such Lunatic or Insane person.

11. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the accounts of the said Institution shall be made up and ascertained by the superintendant, quarterly: on the first Tuesday in January, April, July and October, in each year, and be audited by the Board and a true copy thereof transmitted by the said Board, as soon as may be, after the first Tuesday in November, in each year, to the Lieutenant Governor, to be laid before the Legislature, which copy of said accounts shall specify the amount of salary paid to the different officers and servants of the Institution; and also, the ordinary and incidental expenses incurred in carrying on its operations; also, the sums received or due for the support or maintenance of the persons admitted, (if any there be,) who have means for the payment thereof.

13. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the Justices of the Peace of each and every District of this Province, at their General Court of Quarter Sessions, next holden after the passing of this Act, to levy by assessment, to be made on each and every inhabitant householder, within their said several Districts, in the same manner and form, as by law, any assessment may now or hereafter be levied for any public purpose within the same, an additional rate or assessment of one-eighth of a penny in the pound, which additional rate of assessment of one-eighth of a penny in the pound, after deducting the expenses allowed by law for levying and collecting the same, shall be paid by the several District Treasurers, into the hands of Her Majesty's Receiver-General of this Province, for the purposes of this Act.

MILITIA GENERAL ORDER.

BEFORE a General Court Martial of Militia, held at Toronto, on the 8th day of February, 1841, and continued by adjournment until the 19th day of the ensuing month—Lieutenant John Maitland, of the Fourth Battalion Incorporated Militia, was arraigned on the following charges viz: Scandalous and Infamous behaviour, unbecoming the character of an Officer and a Gentleman, in the following instances, viz;

First.—Having stated, at the City of Toronto, on or about the 27th June, 1840, in the presence and hearing of George B Holland, late Sergeant of the First Troop of Incorporated Militia Dragoons, that he, the said Lieutenant John Maitland, had paid to the said Major T. W. Magrath, the sum of £28 7s. 6d. Currency, he, the said Lieutenant John Maitland, at the same time well knowing that he had not so paid the same.

Second—Having stated at Toronto aforesaid, on or about the 19th day of November, 1840, in the presence of Colonel Frederick Alexander McKenzie Fraser, Assistant Quarter-Master-General to the Forces; Colonel Sir Allan Napier MacNab, third Regiment of Gore Sedentary Militia; Colonel Bullock, Adjutant General of Militia; and Captain Frederick Leopold Arthur, Aid de-Camp—that he, the said Lieutenant John Maitland, had paid to the said Major Thomas W. Magrath, the sum of £6 5s. Currency, being the amount of the subscription of certain Officers of Her Majesty's 43rd Regiment, to the City of Toronto and County of York Race meeting, for the year 1839—he, the said Lieutenant John Maitland, well knowing at the same time, that he had not so paid the same.

Third.—Having stated at Toronto, on or about the 19th day of November, 1840, at a meeting of the Stewards of the City of Toronto and County of York Race meeting, for the year 1839, that he, the said Lieutenant John Maitland, was prepared with proof, that the said Major Magrath, had received the sum of £6 5s. Currency, being the amount of the last-mentioned subscription of Officers of the 43rd Regiment, for the purpose of endeavouring to entrap the said Major Magrath into an admission of the receipt thereof—he, the said Lieutenant Maitland, at the same time having no such proof, and being well aware that the fact was contrary to the said statement.

Fourth.—Having stated, at the time and place last-mentioned, that the said Major Magrath had not paid certain men of the said First Troop of Incorporated Militia Dragoons, the amount of a certain Purse, called the Troop Purse, won for at the said Race Meeting of 1839, and won by certain men of the said Dragoons; and that he, the said Lieutenant Maitland, had been informed by two men of the said Troop, who were entitled to receive a proportion thereof, that the same had not been paid to them by Major Magrath, or any one for him, and that they had not received their proportion, he, the said Lieutenant Maitland, well knowing, when he made the said statement, that the said Purse had been paid by Major Magrath, and that no man of the said Dragoons, entitled to receive any proportion thereof, had made any such declaration.

Fifth.—Having written and published, or caused to be written and published, at Toronto, on or about the 31st day of August, 1840, in a public Newspaper, called the "British Colonist," a false, scandalous and malicious letter, with the intent to injure and defame the character of the said Major Magrath, as an Officer and a Gentleman, expressing therein and thereby, that a certain statement, published as the result of the examination of the Toronto Turf Club Accounts, for 1839, was a most bungling and barefaced attempt to cover the peculation of the said Major Magrath.

Sixth.—Having written and published, or caused to be written and published, at Toronto, on or about the 10th day of October, 1840, a false, scandalous and malicious statement, tending to injure and defame the character of the said Major Magrath, as an Officer and a Gentleman, in reference to the Race Funds of the City of Toronto and County of York Race meeting, for 1839, whereby he accused the said Major Magrath of having attempted peculation of the said funds.

Such conduct being contrary to the Rules and Regulations of Her Majesty's Service, and subversive of good order and Military discipline.

The Court having maturely weighed and considered the evidence in support of the Charges against the Prisoner, John Maitland, Lieutenant 4th Battalion Incorporated Militia, his defence, and the evidence adduced in support of it, is of opinion, that with regard to the First Charge, that he, the Prisoner, John Maitland, Lieutenant 4th Battalion Incorporated Militia, is not Guilty, and do therefore acquit him of the same.

With regard to the Second Charge, the Court is of opinion that the Prisoner, John Maitland, Lieutenant 4th Battalion Incorporated Militia, is Guilty.

With regard to the Third Charge, the Court is of opinion that the Prisoner, John Maitland, Lieutenant 4th Battalion Incorporated Militia, is Guilty.

With regard to the Fourth Charge, the Court is of opinion that the Prisoner, John Maitland, Lieutenant 4th Battalion Incorporated Militia, is Guilty.

With regard to the Fifth Charge, the Court is of opinion that the Prisoner, John Maitland, Lieutenant 4th Battalion Incorporated Militia, is Guilty.

With regard to the Sixth Charge, the Court is of opinion that the Prisoner, John Maitland, Lieutenant 4th Battalion Incorporated Militia, is Guilty.

The Court having found the Prisoner Guilty of the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth Charges, preferred against him, which being in breach of the Articles of War, and the Militia Act now in force in this Province, do Sentence him, the Prisoner, John Maitland, Lieutenant 4th Battalion Incorporated Militia, to be Cashiered.

The Court having performed its duty, cannot separate without recording its opinion upon the description of defence attempted to be set up by the Prisoner, to wit: that he had received a provocation sufficient to justify on his part a breach of Military discipline: a doctrine, subversive of the fundamental principles by which all Armies are governed, and entirely at variance with those authorities, which are equally binding upon Military and Civil Tribunals.

Yet, notwithstanding this attempt upon the part of the Prisoner, no testimony has been produced by him, even if his position had been tenable, sufficient to justify the Court in acquitting him of any one of the Charges of which he has been found guilty.

His Excellency the Governor-General has been pleased to approve and confirm the finding and Sentence of the Court.

Mr. John Maitland will cease to receive pay in Her Majesty's Service, from this date.

The General Court Martial, of which Colonel Vankoughnett, 5th Battalion Incorporated Militia, is President, is dissolved.

By Command.
